Have you noticed bagforms on the trees around our house this winter? Nov s a good time to control the bagworms by removing the bags from the trees and destroying them. The adult bagworm is a moth. The females lay approximately 500 eggs side the bag. The bag con ains the eggs remains on the ree until spring.

If the bags are destroyed low, the life cycle is broken. If not, the eggs hatch into tiny worms which begin feeding greedily on the surround-ing foliage in the Spring.

Aside from destroying the overwintering stages they can be controlled with several in-secticides if applications are made while the larvae are quite small. As soon as the larvae become fairly large, they are extremely hard to kill and heavy infestations will remove the foliage and bark from all parts of a tree
