DIES ALONE ALTHOUGH HE FOUND A FORTUNE

(By Associated Press)

New York, Sept. 10.—Samuel Hawley Napier, who found what is said to have been the largest nugget of gold ever mined, is dead, says the Providence town, Mass., dispatch to the Times. He died alone, except for the companionship of a faithful dog, 200 miles from any human habitation, in the wilds of the Gallineau river, Canada.

Napier's rich strike occurred in Australia in 1852. He was a purser on a Melbourne-Liverpool ship when the master for the Australian mines succeeded in the finding of rich deposits.

He joined his fortune hunting with his brother and the two went out to the gold country. One day Napier's ship pick struck solidly upon a metallic mass of large proportions.

The nugget was taken to London where it was exhibited and finally sold for $60,000. Napier settled at Bathurst, N. B., and became a member of the provincial parliament, but his share of the wealth amassed at the King Owar mines was lost in speculation.

MARINE ENGINEERS ON PARALYZING STRIKE

CLAIM AGREEMENT HAS NOT BEEN FOLLOWED AND NOW THREATENS NAVIGATION

Portland, Oregon, Sept. 10.—The marine engineers here, about one hundred and fifty, have voted to go on a strike. They claim that their employers have not acted up to the terms of their agreement by which the strike of two months ago was settled. The engineers say that the companies agreed to take back all of the old men but have not done so.

It is believed that the strike will tie up nearly every boat on the Willamette and Columbia rivers.

THE COLORED MAN IGNORED

A Portion of the Tarrant County Delegation Displeased

The colored portion of the Tarrant county delegation is feeling sore over the meeting of the delegation held yesterday. Dr. A. L. Taylor, who is a delegate from the Seventh ward, says that they were discriminated against, and that all the recommendations for appointment on convention committees were made from white delegates. Further, he says, "a large number of the colored delegates did not even know that the meeting of the delegates had been called. I did not know of it myself, and I have not seen a colored member who was present."

W. C. Jones, secretary for the Fifth ward, says that the colored members

AT ALL EVENTS, THE FRIENDS OF MR. GREEN CONTENT HE IS THE WINNER OF THE CONTEST IN THE END, AS THE SOLE PURPOSE FOR WHICH HE WENT INTO THE RACE HAS BEEN ATTAINED, THAT IS, A HARMONIOUS AND RE-UNITED PARTY IN TEXAS.

WHEN THE SITUATION BECAME DEFINITELY KNOWN THE NAME OF E. H. R. GREEN WAS PROPOSED TO HEAD THE STATE TICKET, AS A MAN UPON WHOM ALL THE PARTY ELEMENTS MIGHT WELL UNITE. THEY BELIEVE THE DISTINCTION IS DUE THE "BIG FELLOW," AS THEY CALL HIM, FOR THE WORK HE HAS ACCOMPLISHED.

THE SUGGESTION COMES WITH GREAT FORCE FROM THE EXTREME WESTERN PART OF TEXAS. THE EL PASO DELEGATION IS PRESENTING IT AND HAS BEEN ASSURED OF MUCH SUPPORT. THE TICKET PROPOSED IS:

IS AT LAST CALLED TO ORDER

Convention Gets Down to Business at 2:30 O'Clock This Afternoon

At 2:20 p. m. the city hall, top and bottom, was crowded, a delegation of Green men entered with the Green banner, "Roosevelt 1900—E. H. R. Green for state chairman, 1902,"—and the yell went up.

At 2:30 p. m. the Lyon delegation entered with the Lyon banner—everybody to their feet and the yell went deafening. At this time Cecil Lyon stepped upon the platform from the committee room—pandemonium broke loose—and the band played "There'll Be a Hot Time," and before quiet was restored the band played "America." The density of the audience was impenetrable. The band played "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

At 2:35 Chairman Lyon called the convention to order.

"I desire to read you a joint letter received by Hon. Mr. Hawley and myself a short while ago. I desire to say this is the greatest day for the Republican party in Texas. Upon my arrival in the city Mr. Hawley and myself began consulting in an effort to adjust the differences existing and to arrive at some conclusion as to the best means of bringing about harmony. Mr. Hawley, with his usual magnanimous spirit forgave us for all the evil we had done, and likewise we conceded likewise."

Mr. Lyon then read the joint letter from Mr. Green, withdrawing from the race for chairman and advocating the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for 1904.

Mr. Lyon then introduced Messrs. Green and Hawley, and the three—Messrs. Green, Hawley and Lyon, joined in a handshaking fete which caused much enthusiasm.

Mr. Lyon then called upon Rev.

worded speech, during which he said in part:

"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention:

"It is my privilege to extend to you a cordial welcome to Fort Worth. I am sure that every necessary arrangement has been made to make your stay in the city pleasant and agreeable. Fort Worth knows no political distinction in the entertainment of its guests, and I am proud of the courtesy given me by the committee of arrangement to extend to you this welcome.

"Mr. Chairman, in looking over this assembly, holding as it does some of the brightest intellects of this great state, representatives of the great dominant party of our country, I realize that it is but a difference of methods that distinguishes the Republican from the Democrat; that in their primal attitude each desires a government as lofty and pure as Lincoln's republic—of the people, for the people and by the people,—and one that fulfills Jefferson's undying philosophic deduction that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed."

"I realize that notwithstanding what may be the policy and purpose of political parties in the game for governmental control, the individual holds with steadfast faith the pure and patriotic ideals of our constitution, guaranteeing liberty and justice as the common right and heritage of a common people. It was this sublime faith that enabled the people of America to go onward and upward after the awful vortex of our civil war which settled the one grave controversy in that constitution, and from that hour the stream of American manhood, irrevocable in its steadily amalgamating virtue and powers has risen until it stands today the highest and best type of citizenship in the world's history.

"The Republican party has had control of the government, with the exception of a short period, for nearly fifty years. During that time America has arisen from a comparatively insignificant position to be the greatest industrial nation of the world.

"Under the rule of the Republican party the hegemony of the Anglo-Saxon race has been wrested from England. Its exchequer drained and the flower of its army taken by the ravages of war and disease in South Africa, the British empire was forced to consent to the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and by the terms of the Hay-Pauncefote substitute the British empire consented to the Monroe doctrine and the building of the EARLY FALL HATS!

THE COOL WEATHER OF THE PAST FEW DAYS NATURALLY MAKES YOU THINK OF A CHANGE OF APPAREL — ESPECIALLY A NEW HAT. IT IS RATHER TOO LATE FOR SUMMER HATS AND TOO EARLY FOR YOUR WINTER DRESS HAT. YOU WANT SOMETHING NEW AND FRESH TO WEAR BETWEEN SEASONS. IN OUR MILLINERY DEPARTMENT, YOU WILL FIND A VERY SATISFACTORY AND UP-TO-DATE COLLECTION OF JUST SUCH "BETWEEN SEASONS" HATS IN FELTS, NAPED BEAVERS, ETC. SOME SIMPLY TRIMMED AT $1.50 TO $2.00—OTHERS FINER AND MORE ELABORATE UP TO $7.50. NEW IDEAS IN HAT DRAPERIES, VEILINGS, BIRDS' WINGS, ETC., ETC.

Industrialism: By the control of Anglo-Saxon destinies passed to American hands and the building of the canal will ultimately establish for many years the industrial leadership of America over the nations of the earth. How brilliant seems this record back of which lies the peerless energy and power of our superb citizenship. But has not its very accomplishment caused us to drift away from the ideals and moorings of our constitution? Do not present issues and conditions present a pathway we are following to the misery of an industrial servitude? Does the trust, with the boundless power over our commercial destiny, truly represent the great ideal of the martyred Lincoln? Listen to those words of warning uttered by him a short time before his assassination: 'As a result of the war corporations have been enthroned, and an era of corruption will follow. The money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign. . . . until all wealth is concentrated in a few hands and the republic is destroyed. Before God, I fear more for the safety of my country now than when in the midst of war.'

"Gentlemen, will the great Republican party meet the issues of the hour and solve them under the grinding inspiration of these words, or will it continue in the path it is treading?" "Years ago when the Plumed Knight pleaded to the closed ears of congress for reciprocity, he foresaw the dangers of Lincoln's almost fulfilled prophecy. President Roosevelt, in his recent Providence speech, was animated by a similar impulse when he declared in favor of a supervision of the great trusts by the general government, even if it took a constitutional amendment to meet the case. And the words of the great lamented martyr—the pure and gentle McKinley—uttered at Buffalo about one year ago, come to me with the sanctity of a benediction, pleading almost as man never plead before for a government for the benefit of all the people. I know not what destiny awaits our country, but if under the leadership of your party it must continue, may your leaders be inspired by the example of your great martyrs to give our beloved republic in truth and in fact a government of the people, for the people and by the people."

DEBATE TO KILL TIME

CLOSING FEATURES OF THE AFTERNOON AND NIGHT AT CITY HALL

The Harmony Hobby Ridden to Death—Severe Rebuke Is Administered to the White Boddlers and Their Tools

At the close of Mr. Atwell's speech yesterday afternoon, and at the point the Telegram's report of the day's proceedings closed, he was asked to relate something about Congressman Hawley, and what he had done in congress. He said that he was not a Hawley man or a Lyons man or for anybody else. He also said he (Mr. Atwell) was holding the last office he ever expected to hold by appointment of the federal government. When the party got big enough in Texas to ask a man to run for any such office as he might want, he might consent to run. With reference to Mr. Hawley, however, he would say that Mr. Hawley had brought more honor to the party than any other man who was ever honored with a seat there.

Mr. Atwell then urged the fighting faction to shake hands and get together and join in an attack on the common enemy—the Democratic party. He referred to the recent congressional convention in this, the twelfth district, and said "17,000" more or less ballots had been cast, and then because they were afraid the Republicans would put out a ticket if they all three run, they "drew straws" to see which one of the three would make the race.

Discussing the national problems, he said that cotton was never so low as when Cleveland was president, except when Buchanan was president, neither were there ever so many enforced sales of property as during these two administrations.

Eulogizes Roosevelt. Tackling Mr. Atwell paid high tribute to William McKinley, and pictured in feeling flights of oratory the administration he inaugurated and how it had been perpetuated by the man now in power, and pictured Roosevelt standing in the Milburn mansion on a particular day, saying "the policies of my eminent predecessor shall be mine." He made the emphatic announcement that Roosevelt would occupy the chair again.

He begged pardon for the suggestion to his friends to get together, lay aside all possibilities of a split, and show the people one great, grand united Republican party in Texas, and—The band played "America."

Colored Brother to the Front. "Hon." J. Vance Lewis of Houston took the stand in response to earnest call. He said that when a "black cloud" made its appearance there would surely be a rain, "now look out for the shower," said he. He proceeded then to deliver himself of one of the most elaborate flow of words that Webster contains regardless, apparently of definition—yet, the point was, "man, his greatness, and his connection with the Republican party." He pictured "man" as God made him, made from a mixture of sands, the white sands used for the white man, and he was "dog-goned glad God went deep enough to find the black sand. We are the barometer of the Christened world, said he, and by advocating a classer constitution, a united party.

With reference to the state chairman he said he wanted a man who would not today receive you in his parlor and tomorrow in his back yard. He wanted the blacks and whites to unite on such a man as would receive them on all occasions and at all times in the same manner—with the right hand of fellowship, and—The band played "There Will Be a Hot Time."

O. S. York, white, of Edna, Jackson county; Arthur Jackson, colored, of Waco, John Kain, colored, from Washington county; Dr. Mosely, colored, of Grayson county; L. B. Kinchion, colored, of Austin; W. H. Love, white, of Van Alstyne, followed on the harmony proposition.

An adjournment was then taken, the announcement was then made that the delegates would assemble at the city hall at 8 o'clock, but it was not thought that the executive committee would be ready to make a report before today.

It was 8:30 o'clock before the auditorium was filled.

Chairman Cecil Lyon announced that the committee was not ready to report, and would not be before the noon hour today, but at that time he would call the convention to order whether the committee was ready or not. He claimed again that it was "no fault of the committee that all this rumpus had been raised in the delegations."

First Speaker of Evening. Rev. H. Watts, colored, of Houston, came upon the platform in the interest of harmony, and made a most entertaining talk. He is an exhorter, and demonstrated his powers. He favored everything for the colored brother—except "social equality." He told some good stories which caught the crowd.

O. S. York, white, of Edna, Jackson county, came upon the stand to say he saw the olive branch in sight and heard the rustle of the dove's wings. He said "harmony" was coming, and he knew it. He said this convention would be a history making one, a memorable one, and that the eyes of the universe and President Roosevelt were on this convention. He quoted what President Roosevelt had said to Cecil Lyon in Washington, that "what we want of Texas Republicans is work, and not so much hustling after federal patronage."

Mr. Broiles of McClellan county, declared there were too many lieutenants. The Republican party of Texas

Henry Terrell Not In The Chairmanship Race

The following statement made by Henry Terrell was given out to the newspaper men at 1 o'clock this morning:

"The whole policy for which we have contended and the conduct of the party as we believe in it has been conceded and consented to by Mr. Lyon and his friends. They made distinct and repeated overtures looking to a peaceful solution of the differences between us and the re-establishment of a united harmonious party. The entire personnel of the various organizations remains undisturbed and their influence will be as it was before, the assembling of the different conventions. Our friends will organize the convention and present its platform. The party will be united and in the condition it should be for the approaching campaign in the state and the various congressional and senatorial districts. There are to be no divisions. The party is to go forward on the broad and generous platform outlined at the beginning of our campaign. Every concession has been made to us, our views have been adopted, the highest interests of the party have been served, our purpose has been fully accomplished and we are content."

was composed of bankers, cattle kings and business men, still the state legislature had no Republican representative, and there was but one in congress—still, all this delay and wrangling was over a little old state chairmanship. He, too, was for harmony.

L. M. Sublett, colored, of Waco, was red hot on the harmony line. He was giving it to them straight as to why there was no harmony when his voice gave out on him and he was forced to sit down. Smith of Colorado county, candidate for temporary chairman, made a speech which caused his supporters to applaud generously. W. L. Dixon of Gilmer, who claimed to be looking after 140 orphan children in Upshur county, the Dixon colored orphan's home, was the next speaker, and advanced some good suggestions along the harmony line. He said that the negroes who were howling and clapping their hands for Wright Cuney, now dead, had helped to kill him by taking his prestige from him. He closed a good talk from a Republican standpoint, with an appeal for the motherless and fatherless children in his charge, and got a fair good donation.

At 10:30 Ed Loving, colored, entered the hall bearing a life-sized portrait of Wright Cuney, and it was placed with the cluster amid much enthusiasm. Following this incident the crowd which had filled both lower floor and balcony, began to thin out, and a white man from the committee room stepped upon the platform, saying: "Ladies and gentlemen, we will in all probability be in that committee room all night. You can go home or stay here, as you like, but there will be nothing doing until 1 p. m. tomorrow."

Soon after this announcement the hall was vacant, except for a few of the colored brothers, who, worn by the long hours of waiting, had fallen asleep.

H. W. Clingman of Jack county is here as a spectator during the convention. He is an independent candidate for representative of the 85th district, which is composed of Clay and Jack counties. Speaking of the crop conditions of his section he said that a good corn crop will be gathered, cotton is good and the other products are much improved since the late rains. Before that the continued dry spell had caused great injury to all kinds of crops. There is plenty of water now, though, and tanks and creeks furnish plenty of stock water. Cattle interests are in good shape.

ALL ARE AFTER GOOSENECK BILL

Charlie Ferguson Was Not Overlooked, and the Row Following Stopped the Executive Committee

They all went after "Gooseneck" and Charlie Ferguson in the convention hall this morning.

Dr. D. W. Porter, colored, of Grayson county, was introduced. He deprecated the action of those states which had eliminated the colored man. Action tended that way in Texas, but it would never come to pass. The black man was being educated in principles and would evolve from that education with ideas and a following that would demonstrate their power. He saw and heard not more than twelve hours before the line of color was being drawn, or at least a move in that direction was started. He was born in North Carolina, where his people were disfranchised. The next move would be to cut down the school fund and finally cut it out entirely and the finish of the colored race in North Carolina he could see. He said the color of the man who had put this disfranchising scheme on foot in Fort Worth was "a dark brown."

Dr. Max Urwitz of Harris county came next. He eulogized the men whose pictures adorned the wall, starting with George Washington and down the line to Roosevelt. The speaker was born in Germany. The United States he said was the only country on earth where such admirable conditions existed offering the possibilities to the children of men. Referring to the chairmanship contest for Texas Republicanism, he said he was ashamed to acknowledge that there were men here today who were out to buy and out to be bought. It was a shame, and such men were not only a blot on civilization but an especially cancerous blot on the Republican party.

Went After "Gooseneck." Prof. A. S. Jackson of Waco, colored, did a "doubleheader" turn. He spoke yesterday. He spoke especially of the conduct of "Gooseneck" on last night, which, he stated, was diabolical

ST. LOUIS SHOCKED AT DOINGS THAT HAVE COME TO LIGHT

SWORE SOLEMN OATH

Members of House of Delegates Are Said to Have Pledged Their Lives As a Forfeit If They Failed to Keep Vow

St. Louis, Sept. 10.—Seven of the nineteen members of the alleged boodie combine of the house of delegates are still at large with no prospects of their arrest.

The developments in the famous case Tuesday came with startling rapidity. The most important feature of the day's developments was the finding of new indictments against eighteen members of the combine.

In addition to the charges of bribery and perjury in connection with the suburban street railroad deal, the combination now rest under additional charges of bribery. These were found by the grand jury before which J. K. Murrell testified Tuesday as to the city lighting scandal of 1900, in which each member of the combine is said to have received $2500 in payment for his services in securing the passage of the bill. Bonds were fixed at $15,000 for each indictment, making a total of $45,000 necessary to be secured for the release of any of the accused.

Early in the day former delegates J. K. Schnettler, John Helms, Otto Schumacher and Chas. Gutke and Delegate J. J. Haanigan, who spent the night at their respective homes in the custody of deputy sheriffs, were locked up in jail, because of their failure to secure bonds. Chas. Gutke was later released in bonds of $30,000 on the first two indictments, but was soon rearrested on the bribery indictments returned Tuesday, and is still in custody, having failed to secure additional surety.

Ex-Delegate Bersch was taken into custody some time during the forenoon, but was soon liberated. Ed Butler, a wealthy local politician, signing his bond to the amount of $45,000. Butler also went surety in like sum for Delegate Chas. J. Denney and former Delegate T. E. Albright.

It has developed that an oath was administered to each of the 19 members of the combination whose identity was disclosed by the confession of J. K. Murrell yesterday. A copy of the oath has been given to Circuit Attorney Folk and the grand jury. It reads:

"I do solemnly swear before the Almighty God that in associating myself and becoming a member of this combine I will vote and act with the combine whenever and wherever I may be ordered to do so.

"And I further solemnly swear that I will not at any place or time reveal the fact that there is a combine and that I will not communicate to any person or persons anything that may take place at any meeting of the combine.

"And I do solemnly agree that in case I should reveal the fact that any person in this combine has received money, I hereby permit and authorize other members of this combine to take the forfeit of my life in such manner as they may deem proper and that my throat may be cut, my tongue torn out and my body cast into the Mississippi river."

Ex-Speaker Jno. K. Murrell, delegate Murrell and former Delegate Geo. F. Robertson have turned state's evidence and are where Circuit Attorney Faulk can find them when wanted.

HABITUAL MISCARRIAGE

(The Bane of Weakly Wives)

It is often the result of some uterine disease, but may cause still other serious complications and bring on many ills and miseries. It deprives the woman of personal health as well as of her children. The blessing of maternity is thus lost. This serious condition can be overcome and prevented by the judicious use of G. F. P., which will heal and tone the parts concerned in maternity so that they will properly perform their intended functions.

"I was subject to habitual miscarriage and its attendant flooding and danger to life and health. I took two bottles of G. F. P. and now have a fine, healthy baby boy."—Mrs. Emma Shorter, Prospect, Tenn.

"Four bottles of G. F. P. cured my wife and now we have a fine baby boy."—Orville Rice, Gardard, Mo.

"I can recommend G. F. P. in the highest terms, for I am now the mother of a fine fifteen month boy, my health is improved, and I am much stronger."—Mrs. Annie Hill, Prairie Point, Miss.

When he reached Trenton he said he only had $5, and being tired of flight, had the operator wire the officers at Chattanooga to come after him.

EDITOR'S SON DISAPPEARS

HENRY W. GRADY OF ATLANTA IS MISSING SINCE FRIDAY

No Clew Has Been Found and There Is No Cause Assigned For His Strange Absence From Home—Last Seen at Norfolk

Atlanta, Sept. 10.—Henry W. Grady, Jr., has disappeared, and his friends and relatives are much concerned over his fate. Mr. Grady is the only son of the late Henry W. Grady, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, who at the time of his death was probably the most popular man in the south.

Young Mr. Grady was last seen at Norfolk, Va., on Friday of last week, when he left the hotel where he was stopping, with his wife and child, in order to secure transportation for the return to Atlanta, his home. Since that time no trace of him has been found by any member of his family.

Mrs. Grady, prostrated with grief, has returned to Atlanta. Eugene R. Black, a prominent attorney of this city, and brother-in-law of Mr. Grady, is now in New York in quest of him, having abandoned all hope of finding him in Norfolk.

Mr. Grady had only a small amount of money upon his person when he was last seen. The theory of suicide is not entertained by his family or friends. His domestic life was happy, and he was in very comfortable financial circumstances.

Every effort possible will be made to locate Mr. Grady if he is still alive.

The entire country will be searched for him, and the police of every city, domestic and foreign, will be notified to watch for him.

The missing man was for a time prominent in Atlanta political life, having been city councilman for two years. He has for some years been connected in an editorial and reportorial capacity with the Constitution. His wife was Miss Grace Gould of St. Louis, Mo.

A Powerful Search Light. The latest invention is that of a signal light which it is claimed will penetrate the heaviest fog for a distance of half a mile. If it is a success many accidents on both land and sea can be averted. Much interest is being manifested in the discovery the same as in any other invention that is intended to save life. This is the reason so many people have been interested in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters during the past fifty years. It is recognized as the best health maker and blood purifier in existence, and with good health and pure blood, disease cannot find a foothold. It is therefore specially adapted for persons in ill-health and who suffer from heartburn, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, or malaria, fever and ague. Try it.

MEMBER ASSOCIATED PRESS

FORT WORTH, TEX., SEPT. 10, 1902

Laying the convention aside, are you talking up Fort Worth?

Isn't it about time for the convention to start passing resolutions?

The geese once saved Rome. Now is the time for "Gooseneck" Bill to come to the aid of his party.

Ye people of Houston street, have ye decided wherewithal ye shall pave? The day approacheth and the time is at hand.

It is safe to assert that when the convention plums have all been pulled, some of them, at least, will be found Green.

Hocake and hominy are all right for 360 days of the year, if one can get even a little slice of federal pie during the other five.

Care should be taken, lest in the idle moments of a deadlock, some of the delegates forget themselves and lapse to shooting craps.

The curtain has been rung down, the orchestra has left, the stage hands are enjoying their midnight lunch, and the Venezuelan war is once more ended.

The reason no one is betting on the result of the convention is, no doubt, fear of grand jury indictment. Laying that aside, of course it's a sure thing who'll win.

Texas is such a very healthful state that we suppose this is the reason so few are in politics for their health. We have seen no consumptives at the Republican convention.

Will Wicks, a bartender, committed suicide by taking an overdose of morphine. The presence of the Republican convention is alleged not to have been the cause for the act.

One of the prominent delegates to the convention wears a "razab" on the lapel of his coat. It is a matter of earnest speculation where some of the other delegates wear theirs.

The fire-alarm system did two stunts yesterday for the benefit of the visiting delegates. The act was highly appreciated. Some of the delegates immediately started singing, "Hear dem bells."

So far there has been as much kicking about the other candidates issued from the headquarters of the different Republican factions, as could come from the hindquarters of a healthy Georgia mule.

Frank P. Walsh, Democratic national committeeman from Missouri, predicts that Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland, will secure the Democratic nomination for president in 1904. He says that "Bryan's friends in Missouri are all talking Johnson." Mr. Johnson seems to be the man for the public to keep in its eye.

The term of United States Senator Teller of Colorado will expire on March 3, 1903. When Teller was elected last time it was as an independent silver Republican. The Democratic county conventions of Colorado have been endorsing him for a reelection. Mr. Teller was not so hidebound a Republican that he would not stand by his convictions and it will be no more than right that the Democrats send him back to the senate, this time as a Democrat.

Republicans of Idaho have taken advanced ground on the subject of tariff reform. After endorsing the protective principle they favor a "revision of the tariff without unreasonable delay, which will place upon the free list every article and product controlled by any monopoly and such other articles and products as are beyond the need of protection." The Republicans of Idaho have gotten so nearly into the Democratic camp that they

Devils Are Cast Out At Christ's Command

Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb; and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw.
And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the son of David?
But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub, prince of the devils.
And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand.
And if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?
And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges.
But if I cast out devils by the spirit of God, then the kingdom is come unto you.
Or else how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man? and then he will spoil his house.
He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abroad.

are in danger of being read out of their own party. Advanced thought is a Democratic slogan and Republicans are beginning to think.

At the coming November election in this state the people will be called on to vote on a constitutional amendment making the payment of a poll-tax a prerequisite for voting. The man who will not pay the small sum that will be asked is to be classed with the indifferent voter.

San Antonio Express: After having taken nearly 8000 ballots without result the Democratic convention in the Twelfth district succeeded in making a nomination for congress. Two of the candidates drew lots to see which should withdraw. Then Mr. Gillespie of Fort Worth got a unanimous nomination. There are many persons who still think that after such a prolonged struggle the better way of deciding the issue would have been a resort to a blanket primary, giving the masses of the Democrats an opportunity to make a decision which their delegates seemed incapable of doing. However, the nomination is an excellent one and will probably prove quite as satisfactory as any that could have been made.

A MONTH FOR THINKING

September is a good month in which to start thinking. Not about your work or your business or your pleasure, but about people. The distressing heat of the summer months is almost gone, the irritating influence of the sun's rays has been removed. It is more pleasant to live and you feel better.
Just when you feel the life coursing through your veins and an energy that is bubbling over in the desire to do something—then is a good time to start thinking. For when you are at peace with yourself the world will not suffer.
It is one of the sad things that we do not think enough about other people in the world. We start down the street and see a hundred faces, we laugh momentarily at a grotesque one, we shudder involuntarily at one which shows the marks of a tragedy. We notice a new street sign and we think about it a minute or two, we notice a shop window and we may think about it five. An item in the paper we last read, may make us think for even ten or fifteen minutes, or something we have heard may call our attention for a longer time. All the time our minds are running the gamut of the different subjects that have come to their notice, we are meeting people, perhaps bowing and smiling to them, but seldom if ever thinking about them. And when we do think about them it is often about their faults, or the follies, their follies or their foolishness.

There is little of the whole twenty-four hours of the day we spend in thinking about the good things in other people. In comparing their qualities, which make others like them, with the qualities we possess. In honestly admiring the ability other people have and of feeling friendly toward them for it.
We're in the world only to enjoy ourselves and help others; the two purposes can be further reduced till the statement that we're here only to enjoy ourselves is true. For without helping other people there are many joyless moments that come into life.
We are wont to call these moments "blue devils" and think about the "martyrdom of we" till we get into a snivelling sympathy with our afflictions.
Read some good book, see some good picture, talk with some true man or woman, till you begin to feel at peace with the world and its people. And then—then go out and make sunshine. You will not always succeed. Maybe you'll get no further than your own heart, but you've done that much. It is a good time to begin thinking and doing good things now.

me; and he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abroad.
Wherefore I say unto you, All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men; but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men.
And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him; but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come.
Either make the tree good and his fruit good; or else make the tree corrupt and his fruit corrupt; for the tree is known by his fruit.
O generation of vipers, how can ye, being evil, speak good things? for out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.
A good man out of the good treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things; and an evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth evil things.
But I say unto you, That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment.
For by thy words thou shalt be justified and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.
—Matt. 12: 22-38.

A FEW STORIES

There is a citizen in New York who decided to treat himself to a horse and runabout. In every case he insisted upon knowing the attitude of the prospective purchase in relation to automobiles. "I don't want my neck broken daily," he would say.

There was a horse that suited him. "I can warrant him on the automobile question," said the Jersey farmer who owned him. "I will guarantee that he will pass a dozen an hour all day long and never look at one of them."
"Will you give me a written statement to that effect?"
"I will."
The sale was made. For once a Jersey man had told the truth in a horse trade. The horse was blind.—Washington Post.

Opie Reid, the well known novelist, once published the Arkansas Traveler at Little Rock, Ark. As, however, the people of that section of the country showed little or no appreciation for the paper, Reid decided to move the plant to Chicago. Therefore he visited the general passenger agent of a Missouri railroad to arrange for transportation which was to be paid for with advertising.
"But Mr. Reid, said the local agent, George H. Daniels, "I don't seem to have heard of your paper; where does it go?"
Reid rose magnificently.
"Where does the Traveler go?" he exclaimed with well-feigned surprise. "Ask, rather, where it does not go? Why, sir, it goes everywhere—North, South, East, West—just absolutely everywhere. Yes, sir! Why, do you know, I've had the right of my life during the past six months to keep it from going to hell!"—Pliers' Ink.

Carl Hertz, the American sleight of hand performer, who is just now amusing London audiences, was once giving an entertainment in Nashville, Tenn., where he engaged the services of a gawky boy whom he wished to utilize as a confederate.
"Now, listen," said Hertz to the youth. "You keep this marked dollar in your trousers pocket, and when I call you from the stage come up and hand it to me."
It was near the close of the evening's program before Hertz reached the trick in which he counted upon the assistance of his confederate. He produced a marked silver dollar, palmed it, swallowed it, passed it through doors and tables, and, finally, caused it to vanish in the air.
"There," exclaimed the magician, pointing to his confederate who held the duplicate coin, "that boy has it. Come here, you," and the youth shuffled forward at the summons.
"Now," continued Hertz, "give me that dollar you have in your trousers pocket."
Slowly and with apparent distress the lad fished out a handful of small change.
"Here's 80 cents; it's all I've got left," he explained. "I spent the rest in oranges."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Advertisements becoming more and more a necessity, and retail merchants are fast realizing the fact that money invested in good newspaper advertising pays a most handsome rate of interest, figuring upon the increased business received.
It is not the merchant that has educated the public to reading these advertisements, but the public has convinced the dealer that the merchant whose advertisement appears upon certain days each week is eagerly watched for by the housewife to take advantage of special bargains, etc., offered as an inducement to bring the prospective purchaser to his particular store.
Of so great importance has advertising become that the manager of one of Chicago's largest stores, in a reported interview published in one of the leading advertising journals recently, said in part:
"Of such importance has advertising become that should the volume of our business or other causes make it necessary to economize it certainly would not be on our advertising bills. If anything, our expense in this direction would be increased."
This statement, coming from this source, is necessarily of importance, for firms that spend thousands of dollars annually in this direction have studied the advertising problem and traced results until satisfied that newspaper advertising is an absolute necessity to successfully conduct a business of today.

THE LAST WORD

The Democrats are foolishly wasting ammunition on a congressional election that would be better stored for a Presidential campaign two years hence.—Denison Herald.

They're merely following the example of the army and navy and engaging in preliminary practise. The damage will be only "constructive."

The Texas Republicans will hardly follow the example of their North Carolina brethren in excluding the negro from the state convention at Fort Worth. The negro comes pretty near being the whole thing in the Republican party of Texas when it comes to counting noses.—San Antonio Express.

It takes something more than noses to count at a Republican convention. Almost any Republican could tell you what it is.

Houston should tune its ear to listen to great news when Mr. Gould gets here, or just after he has gone.—Houston Tribune.

From indications at present, Houston will have to keep tuning its car for several weeks yet.

Running a newspaper is just like running a hotel, only it's different.—Terrell Transcript.

Please don't give trade secrets away.

A big market house and square where meat and vegetable men could display their products to advantage would be a great thing for Austin.—Austin Tribune.

Austin meat and vegetable men must be very productive.

The manner in which the anthracite miners hold out for their rights is very striking.—Houston Post.

"The humor is a shaft, etc."

The Times-Herald remarked yesterday that Chicago wouldn't be without a mystery long. One turned up last night. When you see it in The Times Herald it is so.—Dallas Times-Herald.

O, so it is.
'Tis wonderful how many men make "set" speeches—without ever hatching a single idea.—Texarkana Courier.

Saddest of all, is when they're eg(g)otistical about it.

FASHION HINTS

Nothing is smarter for evening wear than a black gown. This should be of net, chiffon, mousseline de soie or some other thin material and should be made fussy with shirtings and lace insertions. Narrow velvet ribbons are also used as trimmings and applique in fanciful designs.

Very pretty dresses are made of alternate wide and narrow insertions of black chantilly or of black and white silk.
These black robes can either be mounted over black or white silk, but perhaps the most economical way is to have them free from the lining so that they can be worn over separate slips. Silk of contrasting color, whether in medallions or bands, is much used for trimming purposes.

Prince Neslerov wants to marry Frances Gordon, the charming daughter of an American who is building the Trans-Siberian railroad. Frances is interested in the fortunes of Vladimir Paulpoff, a stalwart Russian blacksmith. She asks Neslerov to use his influence for Vladimir. Neslerov goes to Vladimir's hut. The blacksmith has talent and shows Neslerov a picture he has painted. It is the portrait of a woman of rank copied from a miniature. The prince is excited and asks for the original. Vladimir's father says it has been lost. To Vladimir old Paulpoff confesses that he lied to Neslerov and still has the miniature.

Jansky's horse was soon by the side of the steed ridden by the prince.

"I made it my business to ride past the shops of Paulpoff," said the prince. "I met there, just leaving, a man who was, to say the least, disreputable in appearance. I spoke to him, and he was frightened. I saw him crumple a paper in his hand. I snatched it from him. It was a message addressed to 'Number Five' of some mysterious circle, calling upon the person bearing that name to come to the shops at a certain hour tonight. We shall be in time. Let us ride."
It had so chanced that a number of accidents to horses had taken place that day on the forest road. When the inspector of police and Neslerov arrived, four men were within the shop, their horses standing outside, and all were apparently in the greatest eagerness to have their horses shod. Papa Paulpoff was visibly disturbed by this sudden influx of the horseshoeing business, but the giant Vladimir, who never refused a request if he could help a human being, was beginning to make the shoes. The men did not apparently know one another, and each growled continually at the others for being there.

"Certainly. That is the position for which I intend you. I have watched your career. You are eager, ambitious and resourceful. What better man could I have in such a position? It is upon you whom I must rely to prevent the encroachments of our enemies. It will be the superintendent of my police who will be my closest confidant. Who could be more acceptable to me than you?"
"I thank you, your excellency. I thank—"
"Wait. Thank me with deeds when we succeed. As I said before, there are difficulties. One cannot leap too great a distance at once without a cause. We must find a cause."
"A cause, your excellency?"
"What I mean is some potent reason for this great promotion. The chief of the Tomsik police will have a palace, a large income and will be second only to myself in power. To obtain that one must do something worthy."
"Oh, if I could but win that distinction!"
"I think it even now within your power."
"You have discovered something?"
"Yes—a very nesting place for nihilists."
"Good! Give me an idea where this place is, your excellency. There will be no more nesting."
"Do you know a forge on the forest road leading out of Perm to the south?"
"A forge? A horseshoeing place?"
"Well, that and all ironworking. It is kept by a man named Paulpoff."
"Paulpoff, the giant who breaks horseshoes with his thumbs and forefingers? The simple minded son of old Michael? What has he to do with nihilists?"
"He is their leader." Neslerov said quietly.

Jansky turned white, whether from surprise or horror at the devilish plot he scented we do not know. But he sat there waiting. The police of Tomsik needed a chief. The chief would have a palace and a large salary.
"Yes," continued Neslerov, "this Paulpoff, as I accidentally discovered, is the leader of a band of nihilists who meet there in the shops. I chanced to pass there yesterday and overheard a bit of conversation between the son and the old man. It seems there is to be a meeting in a few nights."
"A meeting of nihilists in the shops of Paulpoff?"
"Yes. Now, it has long been suspected that there were many nihilists at Perm, but the police have not been able to uncover them. Let me advise you. Keep this to yourself—a secret between you and me. We will go to the forge and arrest these Paulpoffs. If we find proof that they are nihilists, they will go across the border and you will be mentioned for promotion. Then the opportunity will come to me to speak to the minister of justice for you, and undoubtedly you will be given to me as the chief of the Tomsik police."
Jansky nodded. It was not for him to ask questions now.
"I am ready," he said.
"Then tomorrow, I will make still further investigations in my own way, and we shall be ready to act. We must both go to Perm from here."
Jansky, not being asked to remain longer, took his departure. And then suddenly from his repose the prince became a man of quick action. He called from his estate four men in whom he knew he could place the most implicit confidence. He spent some time at his desk writing. To each of the four he gave a letter, unsealed, unstamped, but addressed to each and apparently having been delivered by the hand of a private messenger.
"Go with me, do what I bid you, and you will have good rubles for a year's pleasure," he said.

Inspector Jansky, happy and yet agitated at the result of the conference with the prince, sat in his office in Perm on the following afternoon. It was growing late, and he had looked hours for Prince Neslerov.
"He was mistaken or he has failed," he said. "He would have come if there was a possibility of success."
As he spoke the prince's horse galloped to the door.
"Good! Then success is possible!" said Jansky, grasping the hand of his noble benefactor.
"Possible! It is certain. Come with me."
Neslerov, upon arriving at the shop, whispered to the inspector, and both leaped from their horses.
"Seize the old man and the son!" said Neslerov. "I will search these fellows."
Poor old Papa Paulpoff turned white and sank in horror to the ground, suspecting what was coming, but Vladimir, in whose innocent mind there was no suspicion, stood gaping at the newcomers.
"It is the prince!" he exclaimed. "What have these poor men done, your excellency?"
Neslerov did not answer him. He turned to the nearest of the four, wrestled with him a short time, while the others showed evidences of terror, and then pulled from his pocket a letter.
"See!" he cried, waving it in the air and then showing it to the inspector. "It is a message to 'Number Three'! We have here the five constituting the circle."
"Let me read," said the inspector, while Vladimir still looked on unconscious of the tragedy that was being played with himself as its center.
The letter simply commanded "Number Three" to attend a meeting of the circle at the shops at that hour.
The name of Vladimir Paulpoff was signed.
"It is enough!" cried Jansky. Paulpoff, I make you my prisoner in the name of the czar!"
The young ironworker could, had he exerted his strength, have thrust the entire shameless crew from the place and crashed their skulls together. But even now he did not realize the enormity of the thing with which he was charged.

"Attend, Paulpoffs!" commanded Jansky, while the prince went through the pockets of the other three of the circle.
"Oh, have mercy!" cried Papa Paulpoff, falling upon his knees and clasping the legs of the prince. "We are innocent. I swear it! Some enemy has done this thing! The name is not in the writing of my son, I am certain! Oh, let me see the letters!"
Neslerov made a movement as if to hand the letters to the old man when one of the wretches who had brought them there sprang forward, seized them and rushed unhindered from the place.

"The letters! The proof is gone!" howled Jansky.
"We have seen them. It is enough," said Neslerov calmly.
At this point Mamma Paulpoff came in. In consternation and helpless horror she saw her husband in the grasp of an inspector of police.

OLD SOLDIERS' ASSOCIATION
 They Say They Have Authorized No Tender of Support to Any One
 Those in authority to speak for the Old Soldiers' Association contradict the statement accredited to H. C. Adler of Terrell in which he is said to have tendered the support of the association to Mr. Green. They say that at the meeting held last night there were one hundred voters represented but that no authority was given Mr. Adler or anyone else to tender their support to any candidate. The fact is, they say, that if any preference is shown it is for Dr. Acheson of Denison.

FORT WORTH UNIVERSITY
 In choosing a school for next session, we invite careful consideration of the excellent facilities, good equipment and general merits of Fort Worth University, a school that is here to stay, a permanent possession, of which the city and state are justly proud. The university, without a change of management goes right on from year to year increasing in facilities, attendance and popularity. Results show its good work. Its students stand in the front rank wherever tested. Parents, you can find no better place for your children. If you want to separate them from social demands, which hinder progress, you can do so without sacrificing the home life by placing them with us from Monday morning until Friday night. We are sure that many of our people would be pleasantly surprised on examination to find how excellent provision you have in this home school. It is Christian but not sectarian, strict in discipline, but kindly in spirit, up to date, full of healthy enthusiasm, a happy, helpful and safe place for your children and young people.

COFFEE BLOATING
 Coffee Causes Liver Congestion in Some People
 "We drank coffee some years and it seemed an established law in our household to take refuge with some medicine or physic to make the bowels move or relieve the stomach of its pressure (coffee is generally the cause of persistent constipation as it produces more or less congestion of the liver.) I was so nervous that my hands trembled and sleep fled from me; I felt irritable all the time and unable to do much of any work. I had to force myself to do things; always felt lazy and had to drive myself to get around; the food I ate belched up and I always felt as if I were bloated, and had such a narrow and tight sensation in my chest, so that every little exertion started hot waves running through the whole body, followed by a cold, chilly sensation. But after I commenced to use Postum Food Coffee and quit coffee these complaints all disappeared; I feel well, energetic and hopeful; am better nourished and able to sleep well every night. My husband was often sick and the doctor and medicine were constantly needed in our house, but since we stopped coffee and used Postum, all these things are changed and that heavy feeling around the chest has gone. Every wife should introduce this wholesome beverage into her family. She would discover in a few days what a rich food she had prepared for her loved ones, and would be rid of all those oppressing sensations and stomach and bowel complaints which are caused by coffee drinking." COMPLETION OF ANGLO-CHINESE TREATY IS A SOURCE OF CONGRATULATION

(By Associated Press)
 New York, Sept. 10.—The Anglo-Chinese treaty is hailed as a signal triumph for British diplomacy and Sir Jas. McKays achievement in persuading the Chinese government to strike off the heaviest fetters that have hitherto impeded foreign commerce into the celestial empire is lauded to the skies, says a London despatch to the Tribune. It is fully recognized, however, that the abolition of the Likan cannot become an accomplished fact without the concurrence of all the powers.

Russia has not yet disclosed her hand. Her commercial interests in China are considerable and she may object to any arrangement which would be principally for the benefit of England. Certainly, whatever Russia does will be duly supported by France. On the other hand, the advantage to all nations of having important commercial relations with China is manifest, and no opposition is anticipated from America or Germany. It is hoped that Russia and France will consider the treaty on its merits and not allow economic reform to be blocked by any of the difficulties and jealousies which are only too apt to make European concert inharmonious and ineffective. But even assuming that all the countries may approve Sir James McKay's agreement, the task of carrying it out cannot fail to be one of immense difficulty.

We have often wondered which comes first: the thought in the widower's mind of marrying again, or the story on him.

VALIDITY OF MIXED MARRIAGES INVOLVED

DECISION OF THE VATICAN IS AWAITED WITH CONSIDERABLE INTEREST BY MANY

(By Associated Press)
 Rome, Sept. 10.—The case of Princess Rospiolosi, who was a Miss Marie Reid of Washington, D. C., for the annulment of her first marriage, with Frederick Parkhurst of Bangor, Me., involves a point of canon law, the decision of which is considered in church circles as liable to affect thousands of marriages of Catholics and non-Catholics in the United States.

The application for the annulment was filed 14 months ago. It is now said that the principal reason for the delay is because the Propaganda was unwilling to decide in favor of the supplicant, on a point which might possibly raise the question of the legitimacy of many other marriages. The Princess' lawyers expect to secure an annulment on the ground that there is no trace of dispensation having been either granted or read in the church at the time of the marriage, which according to canon law, is indispensable, as Mr. Parkhurst was a non-Catholic. The American clergy say that these formalities are generally omitted and that a decision in favor of the Princess' contention will affect thousands of similar cases.

The lawyers have complained of the delay in reaching a decision, which they attribute to malevolence. The case has aroused intense interest in society, where the Princess has warm friends as well as enemies.

 QUAKERTOWN, Sept. 10.—George Gledhill was recently married a second time. Shortly after his nuptials he presented to his wife the title papers for a lot in East Memorial cemetery, which he told her would be his final resting place. The unusual gift excited much talk in the neighborhood, but Mr. Gledhill's only comment was: "Death comes to all of us; why not know just where your body will lie after life has flown?"

You would be surprised at learning how many people there are in the world who bathe in wash bowls, and are still happy.

OLD SOLDIER MEETS DEATH

EX-CONFEDERATE STRUCK BY A TRAIN AND IS KILLED

While Waiting For One to Pass He Is Mangled By One Approaching From Another Direction—Funeral Today

Last night about 10 o'clock Sam J. Darcy, an aged, one-armed Confederate soldier, was killed at the Seventeenth street crossing of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway. He had stopped to await the passing of a train of cars, and then moved to cross the track. Just as he got upon the track he was struck by one of two box cars that had been "kicked" onto a switch. Being knocked down, he was dragged and rolled several feet, the body being frightfully mutilated.

Deceased was 65 years old, and had resided in Fort Worth nearly all his life. He served through the Confederate army, having joined the Thirty-second infantry, Army of the Tennessee, at this place in 1861. In the battle at Murfreesboro had suffered the loss of an arm. His parents are dead, his father dying in Houston in 1845. He was a bachelor, and one sister survives him, one other sister having died in this city a few months ago. He with his sister lived at 1903 Lamar street, and he made a living by circulating advertising matter over the city. He was quite well known, and highly respected. He was a member of R. E. Lee camp, United Confederate Veterans, and was buried from the residence at 4 o'clock today by that camp, with pall bearers from the Sons of Veterans, they being in uniform. There was a large attendance of Veterans, Sons and Daughters at the funeral, as well as a large number of friends and acquaintances aside from these orders. C. McPherson, pastor of the First Christian church conducted the service.

Parents' Responsibility Great

It is the right of every child to be well born, and to the parents it must look for health and happiness. How inconceivably great is the parents' responsibility, and how important that no taint of disease is left in the blood to be transmitted to the helpless child, entailing the most pitiable suffering, and marking its little body with offensive sores and eruptions, catarrh of the nose and throat, weak eyes, glandular swellings, brittle bones, white swelling and deformity.

How can parents look upon such little sufferers and not reproach themselves for bringing so much misery into the world? If you have any disease lurking in your system, how can you expect well developed, healthy children? Cleanse your own blood and build up your health, and you have not only enlarged your capacity for the enjoyment of the pleasures of life, but have discharged a duty all parents owe to posterity, and made mankind healthier and happier.

There is no remedy that so surely reaches deep-seated, stubborn blood troubles as S. S. S. It searches out even hereditary poisons, and removes every taint from the blood, and builds up the general health. If weaklings are growing up around you, right the wrong by putting them on a course of S. S. S. at once. It is a purely vegetable medicine, harmless in its effects, and can be taken by both old and young without fear of any bad results.

Write us about your case, and let our physicians advise and help you. This will cost you nothing, and we will also send our book on blood and skin diseases.

"Waken, Lords and Ladies Gay, On the Mountain Dawns the Day."—Scott.

The sleeping-car that leaves Fort Worth on our night train is ready to receive passengers at NINE o'clock, each evening, and this car is set out at Colorado Springs for guests to vacate at their leisure. The place where the car waits is only about six miles from the mountains, and a beautiful sight greets the wakers from that long, refreshing Colorado sleep—under blankets.

This night train also has a sleeper that goes into Denver, reaching there at a comfortable rising time.

Both of our daily THRU TRAINS have those sleepers with "Large, Ladies' Dressing rooms," also meals served in our own Cafe Dining cars, — a la carte service, 25c and up per individual. These special features of distinguishing excellence are among the characteristics that have, now for some time, made appropriate the "Only-One-Road" — and "You-Don't-Have-to-Apologize" verdict of persons who are capable of appreciating good service and making distinctions.

WANT TO GO TO CLOUDCROFT? Well, we have the best and shortest line there, too.

Just call up phone 561, or drop into our office at the Hotel Worth.

Wealthy Men Back of the Projected Steamship Company Which Will Be Important Factor in Commercial Development

New York, Sept. 10.—Increased interest in trade with China and elsewhere in the orient is indicated, says today's issue of the Journal of Commerce by the announcement that another steamship company has been formed by strong financial and shipping interests of this city and will soon enter into active competition for commerce between this port and the far east.

MANY VESSELS CHARTERED The service will be inaugurated by the steamship Gibraltar, which has been chartered by the company. It is the intention of the company, however, to build its own vessels.

All of these vessels have been chartered and have not taken return cargoes from this port, that is, to China and Japan. The new enterprise will therefore complete the line of affording an outward service.

The steamship Gibraltar is a new

In this connection the news may be of interest that the Union Pacific railroad company through the Oregon Short Line company, which it controls, has concluded to try for the carrying trade between the Pacific coast, Japan and China.

New York, Sept. 10.—Richard Croker, who has just arrived in town, announces, cables the London correspondent of the Herald, that he has disposed of the greater part of the large stable he had in England because he found American horses have no chance in England, as the handicap is put upon them so heavy that there is absolutely no possibility of their winning a race.

While the date for the encampment is still far in advance it is necessary to begin preparations at an early season which has already been done, and the preliminaries are now far enough along to make assurances of a grand encampment and a big success.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN GENERALS AT GERMAN MANEUVERS

Corbin and Young Are Impressed by Superiority of German Cavalry and Believe It To Be Due to Systematic Training

New York, Sept. 10.—Most cordial relations have been established between the British and American generals attending the maneuvers of 90,000 German troops near Frankfurt-on-Order.

The maneuvers probably will confirm the impressions General Corbin and Young formed at the preliminary parades, namely: That the superiority of the German cavalry is due to the systematic arrangements for breeding horses for military purposes and that the German regimental methods of artillery organization is workmanlike and tends to concentrate the fire of guns with overwhelming effect.
