STRIKE COMMISSION AT LAST REPORTS

DECISIONS CONTAINED ARE MADE PUBLIC

VICTORY FOR MINERS

A GENERAL ADVANCE OF WAGES AND REDUCTION OF TIME MADE

AN EFFECT THREE YEARS

Provisions Will Be Binding Until April, 1906--Discrimination on Part of Either Miners or Employers Prohibited--Settlement by Arbitration

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The report of the commission appointed by President Roosevelt last October to investigate the anthracite coal strike was made public today. The report is dated March 13 and is signed by all the members of the commission.

In brief, the commission recommends a general increase of wages, amounting in most instances to 10 per cent. There is also some decrease of time. It recommends settlement of all disputes by arbitration and fixes a minimum wage and a sliding scale. It provides against discrimination against persons by either owners or miners on account of membership or non-membership in labor unions, and provides that the awards made shall continue in force until the last day of March, 1906. The commission discussed to some extent the matter of recognition or non-recognition of the miners' union, but declined to make any award in the matter.

RECOMMENDATIONS
The commission makes a number of recommendations, which may be summarized as follows: It recommends the discontinuance of the system of employing "the coal and iron police," because this force is believed to have an irritating effect, and a resort to the regularly constituted peace authorities in case of necessity.

POWER OF PUBLIC OPINION
The commission expresses the opinion that with a few modifications the federal act of October, 1888, authorizing a commission to settle controversies between railroad corporations and other common carriers could be made the basis of a law for arbitration in the anthracite coal mining business. The commission, however, takes a decided position against compulsory arbitration. On this point they add a lengthy commentary, which closes in the following language:

"The chief benefit to be derived from the suggestion herein made lies in placing the real facts and the responsibility for such condition authoritatively before the people that the public opinion may crystallize and make its power felt. Could such a commission as that suggested have been brought into existence in June last, we believe that the coal famine might have been averted—certainly the suffering and deprivation might have been greatly mitigated."

THE LOSSES
The losses occasioned by the strike they estimate as follows:
As to mine owners, $46,100,000; to the mine employees in wages, $25,000,000; to the transportation companies, $25,000,000.

INCREASES RECOMMENDED
An increase of 10 per cent over and above the rates paid in the month of April, 1902, to be paid to all contract miners for cutting coal, yarding and other work for which standard rates or allowances existed at that time. From and after Nov. 1, 1902, and during the life of this award, the amount of increase under the award due for work done between Nov. 1, 1902, and April 1, 1903, to be paid on or before June 1, 1903, and during the life of the award they shall have eight-hour shifts, with the same pay effective in April, 1902, and where they are now working eight-hour shifts the eight-hour shifts shall have an increase of 10 per cent on the wages effective in the several positions in April, 1902.

Engineers employed in hoisting water shall have an increase of 10 per cent on earnings between Nov. 1, 1902, and April 1, 1903, to be paid on or before June 1, 1903, and from and after April 1, 1903, and during the life of the award they shall have eight-hour shifts, with the same pay effective in April, 1902, and where they are now working eight-hour shifts the eight-hour shifts shall have an increase of 10 per cent on the wages effective in the several positions in April, 1902, and in addition they shall be relieved from duty on Sundays, without loss of pay, by a man provided by the employer to relieve them during the hours of the day shift.

REMAINS OF TWO AGED MEN FOUND

THEY WERE LAID AWAY IN THE POTTER'S FIELD

Thomas Reed, a Teamster, Died on the Banks of the Trinity, and Alexander Smith, a Blacksmith, Passed Off in City Jail's Hospital Ward

Two aged men who were found dead yesterday morning were given their last resting place in the Potter's field yesterday afternoon. They were Thomas Reed, a teamster, aged 65, and Alexander Smith, a blacksmith, aged 57, who came to this city recently from Beaumont.

Smith was found dead in the so-called hospital department of the city jail at 6 o'clock. He had passed away during the night of consumption. He was a pauper and had been seeking shelter in the jail for five or six days.

SOUTHERN SHOPS WORKING NOW

SHREVEPORT, La., March 21.—The Kansas City Southern shops were working full force today, for the first time since the strike was inaugurated. One hundred and twenty non-union men were brought here to man the machines and forges. The shops have been fenced in and armed guards placed there. Monday all of the strikers will receive their time checks.

THE SLIDING SCALE

The following sliding scale of wages shall become effective April 1, 1903, and shall affect all miners and mine workers included in the awards of the commission:

For each increase of 5 cents in the average price of white ash coal of sizes above pea coal sold at or near New York, between Perth Amboy and Edgewater, and reported to the bureau of anthracite statistics above $4.50 per ton, the employees shall have an increase of 1 per cent in this compensation, which shall continue until a change in the average of said coal works a reduction or an increase in said additional compensation hereunder, but the rate of compensation shall in no case be less than that fixed in the award.

THE DEPARTMENTS' ORDER EFFECTIVE

GUTHRIE, Okla., March 21.—A delayed telegram received by the governor from the interior department flatly prohibited the approval by him of the cattle quarantine bill, which, if a law, would abrogate leases in the Otoe Indian reservation held by cattlemen and approved by the department. The governor had decided to sign the bill, as it gave to Oklahoma a better law and increased the number of inspectors. He telegraphed the department leader, but the reply was not received until today. In the meantime the governor had determined to sign the bill. It is now dead, however, his signature being withheld after hearing again from the department of the interior.

Wireless telegraphy gives worse results on land than at sea. A coherer placed underground is not influenced by electric waves, which proves that the curvature of the earth constitutes an absolute barrier to wireless telegraphy.

THE CATTLEMEN TO CONVENE TUESDAY

CHILDRESS, TEXAS, MARCH 21.—The

The association was organized four years ago at Canadian, Texas. The membership was twenty-eight the first year, with W. C. Isaacs of Canadian as first president. The association was not organized to pull down any other organization, but the cattlemen in the panhandle have interests that are not in full accord with people below the quarantine line, therefore, they thought it best to organize for mutual protection.

OLYMPIA OPERA MAKES A HIT

The Olympia opera company scored a hit before a big audience at Greenwall's last night in the familiar masterpiece of Sousa, "El Capitán." The opera was the best yet presented by the company and the house was also the largest that has yet greeted them.

Edward Eagleton, who is one of the best comedians who has visited Fort Worth this year, took the part of El Capitán with great success, his excellent bass voice serving him admirably. The other parts were well taken and frequent encore were given by the audience. The company will continue its engagement at Greenwall's Monday night, when it will present the ever-catchy and tuneful opera "Fra Diavola." Tuesday night they will give "Nell Gwynne" and Wednesday matinee "La Mascotte." To close their very successful engagement Wednesday night they will present "La Perle." This will be the last opportunity to hear comic opera this season.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It is in Preserving Health and Beauty

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey. The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit. A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

AFTER EFFECTS OF LA GRIPPE

Pe-ru-na a Specific Restorative That Has Stood the Test of Time.

Women Fear La Grippe and Catarrh—Pe-ru-na a Reliable Protection.

WITHOUT raising the discussion as to whether la grippe is produced by a specific microbe or not, at least this much is certain and admitted by all, it will produce chronic catarrh if not promptly and properly cured.

It leaves a person haggard, weak, salivary, frazzled-out, mucous membranes all congested, appetite changeable, digestion capricious, and just about empties life of all meaning or desirability.

There is no remedy in the world that nets the conditions produced by la grippe better than the remedy, Peruna. Peruna strengthens as it renovates, soothes while it stimulates, heals as it expurgates.

Peruna is not a purgative, or cathartic, or sedative, or stimulant, nor a vegetable or mineral poison.

Pe-ru-na Reaches the Source of Catarrhal Diseases—Unhealthy Mucous Membranes.

It reaches the source of all diseases of the mucous membranes by its action on the vaso-motor system of nerves.

Every person who has had la grippe during the last year should take a course of Peruna. No one need expect perfect recovery unless they do so. The grip has produced catarrhal inflammation of the whole mucous membrane, and good health is impossible until these are restored to a normal condition.

This Peruna will do. A great many remedies have been suggested for this condition from time to time, but Peruna appears to be the only remedy that has any substantial value in these cases.

Mrs. Theophile Schmitt, wife of the ex-Secretary of the German consulate writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman from 3417 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.:

"I suffered this winter with a severe attack of la grippe, and having repeatedly heard of the value of Peruna in such cases I thought I would try it. I used it faithfully and began to feel a change for the better the second day, and in the course of a week I was very much improved. After using three bottles I not only found that the grippe had disappeared, but my general health was much better. I am satisfied that Peruna is a wonderful family remedy and gladly endorse it."—Mrs. Theophile Schmitt.

MRS. THEOPHILE SCHMITT, OF CHICAGO.

CURED OF LA GRIPPE BY PE-RU-NA.

Pe-ru-na Not Only Cures the Grip (Epidemic Catarrh) But It Leaves the System in a Healthy Condition.

It has stood the test of forty years' experience and still occupies the unique position of being the leading (if not the only) specific remedy for the after-effects of la grippe.

At the appearance of the first symptoms of grip people should stay indoors and take Peruna in small doses (teaspoonful every hour) until the symptoms disappear. This will prevent a long, disastrous sickness and perhaps fatal results.

Hon. James R. Gull is one of the oldest and most esteemed men of Omaha, Neb., coming to that city in its early days when it little dreamed of being a metropolis. He has done much to make it what it is, serving on public boards a number of times.

A recent letter written by him to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., endorsing their remedy, Peruna for catarrh, consequently carries with it considerable weight and importance. The following is his letter:

Omaha, Neb., January 23, 1900. The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen: "I am 68 years old, am hale and hearty, and Peruna has helped me attain it. Two years ago I had la grippe—my life was despaired of. Peruna saved me."—J. R. Gull.

La grippe is acute, epidemic catarrh. There is no remedy in the world that meets this form of catarrh as thoroughly as Peruna. During the first stages of la grippe Peruna is an unfailing remedy. People who have had la grippe and have partly recovered, but remain half sick, will find Peruna exactly suited to their case. There is no remedy devised that will so quickly and thoroughly dispel the disagreeable and serious after-effects of la grippe as Peruna.

LOSES DIAMOND ON A STREET CAR

Mitchell Greenwall is mourning the loss of a valuable diamond setting in his handsome ring that has been the cause of many an admiring glance from theatergoers as they caught its sparkle while waiting for the change at the opera-house ticket window.

MR. STEVENSON'S FIRST VISIT

Robert Mather of Chicago, second vice president and general counsel of the Rock Island, accompanied by M. A. Low of Topeka, Kan., general attorney for the Rock Island, arrived from their trip south in Mr. Mather's private car Rockmarge over the Texas and Pacific, via Dallas, and were met here by W. W. Stevenson, son of Chicago, comptroller for the Rock Island Railroad Company, who arrived in the city Saturday morning in his special car, No. 309.

MR. STEVENSON'S FIRST VISIT

Neither Mr. Stevenson, who was seen before the arrival of Messrs. Mather and Low, nor the latter gentlemen, would have anything to say regarding the reported purchase of the Houston and Texas Central railroad by the Rock Island. They would not say that the purchase had been made, and, on the other hand, had no positive denial of the rumor.

GREATER FORT WORTH WEEK'S NEW PLANS

The first meeting of the general committee on "Greater Fort Worth Home Week," which is to begin April 20, was held in the rooms of the Board of Trade at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

It was decided to carry out the program as originally mapped out in so far as it provided for the extending of invitations to prominent state officers and former officers.

There will be something doing of a state nature every day of the week. It was decided that the railroads should be asked to make specially attractive rates during the big week.

Negotiations already have been opened with an aggregation of street fair shows, and if it is found that a company containing a number of attractions, all of which will be suitable for presentation to mixed crowds, can be induced to come here, its services will be engaged.

Much enthusiasm was manifested by the business men present. One gentleman said that the idea of a "Greater Fort Worth Home Week," originated in a series of articles printed in a local paper—meaning "The Telegram"—which were devoted to "greater things for Greater Fort Worth."

ARE SELLING STOCK TO BUILD A CHURCH

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 21.—A capitalized church is the latest thing in Cleveland, and stock is now being sold by Rev. C. H. Lemmon in the North Congregational church.

"We must have the church, we must raise the money, and this is the only way I see to get it," said Rev. Lemmon, Tuesday. "We have in our territory 5,000 adults, 10,000 children, 300 saloons, many dance halls and respectable houses."

"We have gathered a church of 90 members, and a Sunday school of 150, which fills to overflowing the largest and only room we can rent, at 2017 St. Clair street."

We must have more room, so we are selling building fund stock at $10 per share. We hope to sell 500 shares in the next few days and have sent out circulars explaining our plan to the good people of Cleveland. Convassers will follow the circulars and take the subscriptions.

UNCLE SAM WILL USE NEW SLOT MACHINES

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Uncle Sam is going into the slot machine business. The postoffice department has decided to place in the hotels and theaters here an ingenious contrivance for the collection of special delivery letters.

The person who desires to send his letter by special delivery drops a dime in the slot and the door opens. The letter is deposited and as the door closes the letter is stamped and numbered, after which it falls into a box.

If a letter is put in the box by using a counterfeit or piece of lead the number will indicate it and it will be thrown out by the mail clerks. The machine is considered by postal officials one of the most ingenious devices submitted for facilitating the mailing and collecting of letters.

PLANS FOR SHOW BEING COMPLETED

ARRANGEMENT COMMITTEES ARE GETTING WORK IN SHAPE

Some Facts About Entering Horses Which Are Not Generally Known—Dallas People Are Interested in the Event and Engage Boxes for Local Show

"It does not seem to be thoroughly understood," said a prominent Horse Show Association official yesterday, "that there will be local classes in the horse show for driving and riding, and that the professional showmen will be barred from these classes."

"I notice many ladies on the streets every day driving turnouts that would be a credit to any horse show. Horse shows, being society events in which ladies take prominent part, it is particularly desirable that the ladies of Fort Worth show their appreciation by entering their horses wherever possible."

"The colors of the Fort Worth horse show are cherry and white, and are harmonious to any complexion, so it is to be hoped that Fort Worth society will see that these colors predominate at the show."

CHILDREN'S CLASSES "By the way," he continued, "there are also classes for children, so that any boy or girl who has a pony fit to enter wants to take advantage of the opportunity to get in the first annual horse show of Fort Worth."

RECENT ANNOUNCEMENTS The big horse show tent has arrived, and plans for the seating capacity are now being drawn. Several thousand people can be accommodated.

PATRONESSES NAMED The following have consented to act as patronesses of the show: Mesdames S. Burnett, R. H. Beckham, Winfield Scott, W. V. Galbreath, E. H. Lowe, D. B. Keeler, D. T. Bomar, W. R. Thompson, W. G. Turner and E. Berney.

HAVE HAD THEIR DAY

Old-Fashioned Medicines for Catarrh No Longer in Vogue For many years past the usual treatment for catarrh diseases was with local douches, sprays, inhalers and liquid medicines composed principally of alcohol, all of which never cured, but simply gave the temporary relief and stimulation.

A thorough cure can be made only by the treatment which removes the catarrhal poisons from the blood. A new remedy which meets the requirements and which so far has been remarkably successful in curing catarrh is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

They can hardly be classed as a secret patent medicine, as they are composed of such valuable remedies as blood root, Hydrastin, red gum of Eucalyptus tree and similar antiseptics combined in tablet form, which cure by eliminating from the blood and mucous membrane the poisons of catarrh.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are large, pleasant-tasting lozenges to be taken internally, allowing them to dissolve in the mouth, thus reaching the throat, trachea and finally the stomach.

Dr. Bennett stated "that the internal treatment of catarrh by means of pleasant medicated tablets is rapidly taking the place of douches and local applications" and further says that "probably the best and certainly the safest remedy at present on the market is the Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, as no secret is made of their composition, and all the really efficient catarrh remedies are concentrated in this tablet."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cents for full-sized package, and they will tell you there is no safer, more palatable, efficient and convenient remedy known to the trade.

Caught in the Street

"Say," drawled a Boston man in the lobby of the Worth hotel last night, "you fellows out here in the far southwest are a good deal more civilized than I thought you were in most things; but there is one thing in which you are far behindhand."

"I have been here several days, now, and have bumped over a good portion of the city in the street cars. Perhaps the street car company cannot afford to provide better cars than those in use at present, but there are some things it certainly can do; it would not cost much, for instance, to keep the cars clean, and a few rules requiring the crews to be courteous and attentive would improve the service wonderfully."

Some folks may think that Texas fish will bite at any old thing, but you know better. You wouldn't think of wasting a whole day out on the Clear Fork with tackle intended for salmon or pike or tarpon.

Now We Claim to Know

One or two things about fishing and in buying tackle have selected only that which is suitable for waters near Fort Worth. No matter if you have been unsuccessful heretofore, perhaps you didn't go properly prepared.

STOCK EXCHANGE REDUCES FEES

FOR THIRTY DAYS MEMBERS WILL BE ADMITTED

Rate Will Be One Hundred Instead of Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars, and Many Are Expected to Take Advantage of the Offer — Will be Valuable Some Day

At an important meeting of the Fort Worth Live Stock Exchange held yesterday afternoon in the office of the Fort Worth Live Stock Commission Company the important decision was made that for a period of thirty days new members will be admitted by paying $100 instead of the customary entrance fee of $250.

This rule applies only to those qualified to admittance under the bylaws of the exchange and applies to those whose business is in connection with the work of that organization.

A prominent member of the exchange said yesterday: "This offer will probably be taken advantage of by a great many, as the rate is exceedingly low. Within five years it is safe to say that a seat in the Fort Worth Live Stock Exchange will be worth $1,000. Today's step was under contemplation some time and will hold good for only thirty days."

FORT WORTH LINE ALMOST READY

MAY 1 WILL WITNESS THE COMPLETION OF WORK ON THE I. & G. N.

General Manager Nixon on Oil for Fuel and Supply of the Santa Fe—President of Texas Central Railroad and Party Visit Fort Worth—Railroad and Personal Briefs

From a reliable source in railroad circles yesterday it was learned that the Fort Worth line of the International and Great Northern, now building from Waco to this city, will be completed May 1. This event has been repeatedly announced, and is often postponed, but it is stated now that only the most unfavorable condition of weather will delay the completion beyond the date above mentioned.

PLENTY OF OIL ON HAND

General Manager Nixon says that the Santa Fe now has more than six months' supply of fuel oil in storage and is prepared to operate its engines with oil for at least that period without being bothered by the high price of that fuel. He further stated that at $1 per barrel no road could profitably use oil for fuel, with the prevailing comparatively low price of coal. Those roads, however, that fitted their engines with oil burners and failed to secure a large supply of oil are likely at an early date to be confronted with a pretty serious proposition to secure the fuel. Unless the roads of Texas secure wells of their own the question of fuel oil for engines probably will settle itself by being abandoned.

As far as a Tribune reporter has been able to learn, the Southern Pacific is the only road in the state that has acquired territory in the proven oil field. It reports are true this road has purchased a considerable tract of land in the Saratoga field, including the Hooks well at that place.—Galveston Tribune.

RAILROAD BRIEFS AND PERSONALS

Henry K. McHarg, president of the Texas Central railroad, accompanied by his wife and son, and Mrs. S. Schuster Merritt, Mrs. J. H. Staats and Mayor Henry McHarg Davenport, all of Stamford, Conn., was in the city yesterday en route to Waco. The party was traveling in the special Wabash car Missouri. President McHarg stated that he was making a combined business and pleasure trip over his line. He said his visit to Fort Worth yesterday was the first time he had been here for two years, and expressed great surprise at the improvements which he witnessed since that time.

W. S. Polhemus, superintendent of the joint track, is convalescing after an extended illness, and will be able to be at his duties again soon.
The death of Conductor Harrington of the Fort Worth and Denver City, who was accidentally killed on that line a few days ago, was heard with much sorrow. His brother, Conductor Frank E. Harrington, was for several years a resident of this city.

The Texas and Pacific has opened a gravel bank at bridge No. 11, near Benbrook, nine miles west. This gravel will be used between Fort Worth and Weatherford.

Now cabbage by the car load is being received over the southern lines from Corpus Christi.

Douglass White of the telegraph office of the joint track, who suffered a stroke of paralysis some time ago, is still in a serious condition.
William Hilgers, night yardmaster of the Texas and Pacific, is in Aldene attending court.

Cotton Belt trains of Friday night arrived in Fort Worth over the Texas and Pacific, but today's trains came over the company's own line.

Engineer John L. Baker of the Texas and Pacific between Fort Worth and Abilene, is in Dallas on business connected with the Engineers' organization.

The promotion of George Morton of St. Louis to the office of general passenger agent for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas will make vacant the position of compiler of the Texas rate sheet. It is said an effort is being made to land this plum for some Texas man.

Henry K. McHarg of the Texas Central railroad, who was in the city yesterday en route to Waco, is also prominently associated with the Wabash railroad, a line which is at present affording unexcelled advantages of travel from St. Louis to Buffalo particularly.

The discovery of coal near Cisco will no doubt make the extension of the Texas Central to the coal fields of Erath county unlikely. The Texas Central is said to have cast a longing eye at this territory for some time, but will now be

FOOLED THE HOSPITAL.

Was Pronounced Incurable But Got Well on Pure Food.

Sometimes in a case of disease resulting from the use of improper food the symptoms are so complex that medical science cannot find the seat of trouble, and even the most careful hospital treatment fails to benefit. A gentleman of Lee, Mass., says:— "On April 1st, 1900, I was sent home by one of our Massachusetts hospitals, saying nothing more could be done for me. I have been a great sufferer from nervous diseases and rheumatism and nervous prostration and had previously been treated at Sharon Springs and by a number of doctors without getting much assistance.

"One day I was feeling worse than usual when I read an article about your Grape-Nuts that impressed me so that I sent out for a package. I commenced using it at breakfast the next day.

"For fifteen months I never missed one day. If you ever saw anyone grow strong and improve it was I. I gained from 125 pounds to my old weight 185. I will always be a cripple from rheumatism but otherwise I am so much improved that I now feel as well as any man in this country." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

DID NOT KNOW AGE OF BRIDE TO BE

E. H. Shaw stepped into the county clerk's office soon after noon yesterday and said that he desired to have a marriage license issued to him. He announced that the bride-to-be was Miss Ola Branham, but he could not swear that she was 18 years old.

Walter King, who, in his capacity of marriage license clerk, annually permits hundreds to ascend to the highest mounts of matrimonial bliss and hundreds of others to descend into the bottomless pits of matrimonial despair, thought it was rather strange that a bridegroom-to-be should not be aware of the age of the elected girl, and so he dispatched Mr. Shaw in quest of W. D. Branham, father of the young lady.

QUARTER OF PACKING HOUSE BONUS PAID

Ben O. Smith, cashier of the Farmers and Mechanics national Bank, which is the depository of the packing house bonus funds, announced last night that the subscriptions were being paid with gratifying promptitude. The total amount paid up to date is about $25,000, or one-fourth of the total. "We expect that the full sum will be subscribed by the first of April," said Mr. Smith, "and if it is the achievement will be one almost unequalled in the history of public subscriptions, although Fort Worth's record in such matters is about par." The full list of those who have paid will not be printed for a few days.

BOY PLEADS HIS OWN CASE AND IS ACQUITTED

whose combined years encompass twenty-six and are equally divided between them, were arrested Friday afternoon, charged with writing bad words on a wall at the Second ward school. Janitor Lee captured them and turned them over to Officer Coley, whom he summoned from police headquarters. Yesterday morning the two boys, both bright looking, appeared before Judge Stewart in the corporation court. Robert defended the case, and he did so ably enough to obtain an acquittal for himself and companion. It developed that the boys attend the Fourth ward school. Friday afternoon, after school, they resolved upon a visit to the Second ward school. "Did you write bad words?" asked the judge in a tone of reproach. The boys chorused that they wrote only their names. "The janitor who made the complaint never even looked at the wall—he was too busy catching me," said young Lamond. "They saw names of other boys on the wall and they decided that theirs ought to be inscribed on the roll also. When Robert was captured Joe executed a flanking movement, which brought him up in front of the wall by a circuitous route and he was proceeding to erase the two names when he fell into the toils."

Robert Lamond is the boy whose father sometime ago lost his life by drowning in saving his son from a similar fate, the same son who was in court yesterday morning. Judge Stewart turned both boys loose.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word, but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we call your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25-cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. W. L. Smallwood and Martin, Smallwood & Walkup.

KING EDWARD ANGRY AT REPORTS

LONDON, March 21.—King Edward is indignant at the reports in a labor newspaper that he and the prince of Wales had fallen victims to a beautiful French marquis who enticed them into a heavy gambling game where they were unmercifully cheated. The losses, alleges the paper, are so great that an application will have to be made to parliament for additional allowances.

The attorney general has been called in by the king and instructed to prosecute the newspaper. Cooler counsels prevailed, however, and no action has been taken. The story is declared in court circles to be absolutely false.

DENNIS OBJECTED TO THE DONKEY

NEW YORK, March 21.—Dennis McSweeney and Patrick Flaherty made a rough house in a theater and were thrown out. Before a police magistrate Flaherty said it was bad enough when a man with a face like a monkey came on the stage as an Irishman, but when a donkey came on decked in green ribbons it was more than the blood of a patriot could stand. Both men were discharged.

HER LENTEN SACRIFICE.
He told her he felt guilty. As every churchman feels. Who makes no self-denials in habits or in meals. Said he: "I must give up, until the Easter tide. That which I cherished most. That most would wound my pride. I have not yet agreed. With self what it shall be; At all events I shall deny myself," quoth he. Again he spoke: "Dear heart, meseems 'twere meet, also, for you some simple thing. Some trifle to forego." The maiden smiled abruptly. 'Twas mischief in her eye; "My conscience doth upbraid me for acting selfishly. I will give up a trifle. Since 'tis your wish, fair swain. And so, until the Easter tide You need not call again."
—Chicago Tribune.

she be behind a counter or in an office, whether she wants recognition of her work in pen or brush, she knows that it is to woman she must appeal and that she will not appeal in vain. When, therefore, in a little play this law of life is recognized the response is prompt and comes from the deepest emotions of the heart.

This is another sermonette without any text at all. Or maybe it is not a sermonette, but just a word or two from a confidential talk with a woman whose hospitality and kind heart is widely known.

"I really do not know what to do," said she the other day. "I meet many strangers in church and club work and also at the various parties I go to. I want to show them such courtesies as will make them feel that in coming among us they are still with friends and will enjoy such social recognition as will make their residence pleasant. But I have so often made mistakes in choosing the objects of my courtesies that I am discouraged.

"Do you know there are a lot of people who do not know and have not within them the possibilities of ever learning the meaning, the definition to say nothing of the spirit, of hospitality? To be invited to a house, to break bread there, carries with it no sense of obligation or of appreciation. Too often it is seized upon as an opportunity to find something to speak disparagingly of afterward. If I happen to serve hot biscuit and the guests be from a part of the world where the biscuit is unknown they go away and report that I am ignorant of all the rules of good housekeeping. If I speak of a tin bucket, it is not long until there is brought back to me the derisive remarks of the visitor who calls it a pail.

If I choose to serve the salads after the soup I have sinned grievously because in Circleville the salads come just before the desserts. And so it runs. Small trifles of differences in local habits or speech are magnified into social or economic crimes and the good will and consideration that has prompted the invitation wherein all these things were found out is never spoken of except to show how condescending they were to accept it.

I could tell many of my experiences with trying to make newcomers feel at home, to let them know that we are glad to have them among us. After them I am afraid that I have not felt quite so glad as at first.

My trouble now is whether to cease my well meaning if injudicious efforts at being hospitable, or to continue to be the $1,000, 2100 $7.40 20,000 202 $7.25 victim of ill natured criticisms and waspish manners. For after all it may be more manners than anything else.

Most people have at some time been brought to a realizing sense of the lack of appreciation of courtesies on the part of those who receive them. It is easy to recall the blank feeling when it was first known. It was a feeling far removed from anger or even irritation. Doubtless a spirited horse feels that way when suddenly, while travelling on a good road at a spanking pace he feels the bit jerked and with such force that he is thrown upon his haunches but people have this advantage over the horse. They do not wear the bit, at least self respecting folks do not, and though they may be brought to a stand still by some remarkable exhibition of character they can at least profit by the experience.

But is it not time to consider if it is well to continue the habits that prevailed fifty years ago among the pioneers. In those days every one was sure that the traveller was tired or hungry or cold, and when his wants were supplied he gave of his best in manners and thoughts in return for what he had received. But now things are different. The hospitality that is offered may be of a kind that is not wanted. Why force upon folks invitations that they do not want, and then blame them because they say so? Would it not be better to wait awhile, break the ground as it were, before planting such precious seeds?

A FORT WORTH SOCIETY FAVORITE

MISS BERNIE NEWLIN

One of the special favorites of society is Miss Bernie Newlin, who is often the assistant of popular matrons, who, when entertaining, gather around them particularly clever and beautiful girls. Before her entrance into society she traveled extensively abroad and is as accomplished as she is charming.

Then perhaps the harvest of congenial friendship would be more to the liking of all concerned.

Everything in life worth while has its price and he who would possess it must pay. Hospitality in its highest and best expression is one of the best gifts men may share with one another. He that has it to offer should hold it at its true worth and he that accepts should be prepared to give in return the currency of good breeding at least.

It is astonishing the glamor thrown over a spring bonnet when it is purchased thirty miles from home.

A girl with a beau and a paper of pins don't care much what kind of music she dances to.

If Dr. Lorenz can invent a machine that can knead club feet and congenital hip malformation into place why can not some great mind invent a machine that will knead light bread?

ing the attention of his audience. The Tabernacle was filled with lovers of art, mostly feminine lovers, though a half dozen men were discovered in the audience, something worth noting.

Mrs. Adams, president of the '93 club, introduced the lecturer, who after the usual pleasantries proceeded to talk earnestly along the lines of his subject.

"I am glad of the opportunity to talk shop," said he, "for this is really a shop talk, about the work I do in my studio, a part of which I have brought with me. In my lectures through the country I find the work and study of the club women, which seems to pervade all sections, promise most to the artists. They are doing much for the cause of the beautiful in art and literature. In them is the hope of art in this country, for I find no sign of helplessness among the men."

"In the books on art there is little helpfulness for the art student. There is much gossip about the personality of the artist and even romances, but nothing as to his work or the spirit in which he approaches it."

The lecturer then spoke of the spirit that animated the frieze and pediment of the Parthenon, comparing the physique and garments worn by the ancient Greeks with modern garments and accessories. "However, I would not give one of these American girls for a thousand dead Greek ones—for steady company." Whereupon the American girl present, as well as her mother, was much pleased.

He criticized the attitude of the American mind toward beauty. We dwell on our material achievement, but our hearts are dead to the calls of the beautiful, and he hoped that a thousand years hence, we would be remembered for something more than the worship of the almighty dollar.

At this point he began the practical demonstration of a sculptor's work. Supporters of light timber were covered with modeling clay, and out of the mass were shaped the features of his assistant who posed before the audience. Other demonstrations followed on the same line, showing the evolution of the artist's idea from its inception to the complete reproduction in marble. Incidentally he remarked that a thousand dollars was his price for a marble bust.

His assistant, Leonard Crunella, was engaged during the lecture in modelling a child's head that when finished brought out applause.

A cast of an infant head by Mr. Crunella that had been a prize winner at an exhibition was also shown, and won a tender place in the hearts of all that saw it.

The convention of Federated clubs of the Fifth district which met in Terrell last week had among interesting features of the program a talk on libraries by Mrs. J. C. Terrell of this city. The next meeting will be at Paris.

The officers elected were: President, Mrs. Fred Fleming of Corsicana. Vice President, Miss Kate Hunter of Palestine. Secretary-treasurer, Miss Halbert of Corsicana.

Mrs. Edmund Key, the retiring president, was elected a delegate to the national convention, which meets in St. Louis next year.

Covert, the married members having the privilege of inviting their husbands, and the young ladies an escort. On this occasion the selected program will be rendered.

Several full rehearsals of the Arions and the Trio club were held last week and in the mixed chorus the result was more than satisfactory. The voices blend admirably and the parts are effectively balanced. The concert Tuesday evening will present to lovers of ensemble singing one of the best rendered numbers ever heard here, not even excepting some choruses by professionals, while the choruses of the Arions and the Trio club separately promise enjoyment.

SO SWEET AND PLEASING IN TASTE! Mrs. C. Peterson, 625 Lake street, Topeka, Kan., speaking of Ballard's Horehound Syrup, says: "It has never failed to give entire satisfaction, and of all cough remedies it is my favorite, and I must confess to my many friends that it will do and has done what is claimed for it—to speedily cure a cough or a cold, and it is so sweet pleasing in taste." 25c, 50c and $1 bottle at H. The negro melodies of the southern plantation, the "pat juba" of the negro quarters, the songs of the deck hands of the Mississippi as material for the future American genius found supporters among the members of the department. The history of music as it related to written characters was outlined, followed by a paper on music as an art by Mrs. Goetz.

The continuing development of music, its further needs, was illustrated in the absence even yet of a distinguishing signature of the minor scale. Mrs. Paxton read a paper on the influence of Calvin on musical growth in

A REMARKABLE CASE

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I run down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies to no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength."

To the Editor: If I were to woo a girl my style would be first to study her character. Then find out her aim in life, encourage and try to help her to succeed. Then study her tastes and wishes, her manner in doing things and try and satisfy all these as best you can. Be kind and attentive to her, sympathetic or cheer her just as occasion may arise, always be polite and always greet her with a smile and you can rest assured that if she possesses the right qualities you are bound to attract her attention and win her in the end. TRUE DEVOTION TO FOREIGN WORK

DR. SUSIE C. RIJNHART RELATES UNPRECEDENTED PERILS

Will Return to Tibet to Continue Her Mission—Lost Husband and Baby in Field of Her Chosen Work—An Opportunity for Pioneer Missionary Labor, May Visit Fort Worth Again

Nine years spent in laboring as a physician, missionary and explorer, with the people of Tibet, of which tribe the men have been termed "gentlemen by profession and robbers by trade," has given to Dr. Susie C. Rijnhart a knowledge and experience as a missionary which she is most effectively imparting to Christian men and women throughout the United States.

DANGERS NO BARRIER

It was with the utmost difficulty and after encountering trials and dangers which will not prove effective in description, that this brave little woman made her way back to the border and thence to friends in her native country.

LAND FOR PIONEER WORK

Dr. Rijnhart said: "Tibet is the last land to be opened to God. It is the only country which now affords truly pioneer missionary opportunity. It is located in Central Asia, where an effort has been made to keep out all 'white intruders' as they are termed. The houses in which the people live are crude in the extreme, and the large majority of the population live in tents.

TRIP TO INTERIOR

Dr. Rijnhart very briefly, though graphically, portrayed the customs of the Tibetans, where Buddhism has for centuries been the only form of religion. She terminated her remarks by relating the attempt made by herself and husband to enter the interior, where they might more profitably carry on the work for which they were laboring.

AN ABSOLUTE NECESSITY

So Thinks at Least One Traveling Man I would as soon think of starting out without my mileage books and grip as to start out on a trip without a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in my valise, said a traveling man who represents a St. Louis hardware house.

husband. They had been attacked by a band of robbers and had escaped with but one horse, the others having been shot in the battle with the attacking foe.

HUSBAND MURDERED

She waited at the little improvised camp all that day, and the night following, expecting every moment he would return. A second day and a second night passed and still he did not come.

DR. RIJNHART MAY RETURN

It is expected that arrangements will be made for a second visit of Dr. Rijnhart to Fort Worth very soon, and at that time an effort will be made to secure for her a larger audience than that with which she was greeted last evening.

MAYOR TO BE CITY JUDGE; OTHER RADICAL CHANGES

CITY COUNCIL DECIDES TO NAME THE FULL BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CHARTER

APPEALS FROM THE CRIMINAL COURT TO GO TO THE COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEALS INSTEAD OF COUNTY COURT—BOND INTEREST AMENDMENT.
STREET COMMISSIONER'S POWERS ARE CUR-TAILED—TO NARROW THE STREETS

COUNCIL'S CHARTER CHANGES.

- That the office of Corporation Judge as a separate entity be abolished and the duties heretofore devolving upon the Corporation Judge be added to those of the Mayor.
- That the three members of the Board of Equalization be appointed by the City Council; at present one member is appointed by the council, one by the judge of the 17th district court and one by the County Judge.
- That appeals from the Corporation Court go to the Court of Criminal Appeals instead of to the County Court. This widens the jurisdiction of the Corporation Court by giving it the powers in criminal cases of the County Court.
- That the Street Commissioner be placed under the direct supervision of the City Engineer and Street and Alley Committee and that he make weekly reports to them.
- That the present section prohibiting the payment of interest on other than four per cent refunded bonds be stricken out.

Aside from what was accomplished, the feature of the meeting of the City Council Friday night was the new alignment of the members which transformed a hitherto beaten but game minority into a triumphant majority. The new line up is due to John W. Renfro's candidacy for street commissioner to succeed William Lahey. Renfro is the brother-in-law of M. M. Lydon, alderman for the Fifth ward who from the day of his entrance into the council up to Friday night had identified himself with the dominant faction. It looked odd to see Messrs. Ward, Murray and Lydon voting as a minority. Lydon deserted them.

The proceedings were important from start to finish. The new alignment first became visible when Alderman Waggonman introduced his proposed charter amendment that the Board of Equalization be appointed by the council. Another provision of the amendment is that the board be given power to increase assessments as well as reduce them, which power is not clearly defined at present.

THE ARGUMENT.

Mr. Lehane moved that the proposed amendment go to the charter committee. Mr. Waggonman moved as a substitute that the council adopt it at once. Mr. Mr. Dyeus opposed the amendment. Mr. Lehane wanted to know why such important amendments were brought in at the last moment and intimated his belief that there was something behind it. Mr. Moreland favored it; he said that the power of naming the fire chief might as well be given to the county judge and the power of naming the superintendent of water works be given to the judge of the 17th district court as to have those two officers name two of the three members of the board of Equalization. The judges had no well defined, particular interest in the city and had their hands full with their own work.

being offered he proposed to offer one to the effect that hereafter no relative of an alderman be appointed to office by the council. The mayor announced that he would entertain Mr. Lehane's amendment after the pending one was disposed of. Mr. Henderson offered weak opposition to the mayor becoming city judge. Mr. Moreland said that he was in doubt and would like to hear from the mayor. The mayor recalled the fact that this was one of the first recommendations made by him in his inaugural message to the council. Mr. Lehane was willing to vote for the amendment if it provided for an increase of the mayor's salary. The present salary, he considered, was not commensurate with the duties and dignity of the office of mayor of Fort Worth. It was decided to add $500 to the mayor's salary. The saving to the city is $700 a year. When the vote was taken Mr. Ward cast the only negative vote.

NEPOTISM

Mr. Lehane then put his motion against nepotism. "That should be made to read within the third degree of consanguinity," suggested Mr. Moreland. Mr. Newby said that he had no relatives who wanted office under the city government, but that the whole argument appealed to him as ridiculous. "The only question to be considered in appointing men is their fitness, and if a man is the best offering for a place he should receive it whether he is related to an alderman or not," he said.

Mr. Lehane probably only introduced the amendment in order to cause Mr. Lydon a momentary shock, for he withdrew it.

Mr. Moreland moved that the charter committee, the mayor and city attorney be authorized to draft the amendments approved by the council and forward them to the legislature. The motion carried.

FOR NARROW STREETS

Mr. Moreland introduced a proposed ordinance to narrow the streets on which there are no car tracks under the following plan:

Streets 100 feet in width to have pavements twenty-five feet wide on each side; ninety foot streets to have twenty-three foot pavements on each side; eighty foot streets twenty-two foot pavements; seventy foot streets eighteen foot pavements; fifty foot streets ten foot pavements; forty foot streets seven foot pavements; thirty foot streets six foot pavements.

This went over to the next meeting together with a similar ordinance to narrow East Belknap street by making seventeen foot pavements on each side.

These proposed ordinances are designed to narrow streets in order that the expense of paving them may be reduced and the sidewalks beautified with rows of trees. It is the plan adopted in Detroit, Minneapolis and other cities with splendid success. The question of location of water pipes must be considered in connection with the curb extensions and it was in order to devote some attention to this feature that the matter went over.

MAY AND ANNIE STREETS

A resolution by which the city agrees to pay one-third of the cost of graveling and grading May street and Annie street, in the Sixth ward, for a distance of five blocks each, in addition to paying for the grading and graveling of intersections, was passed on motion of Mr. Newby. W. F. Sterley, who was present, made a brief address to the council in regard to the matter. The cost of the work will be about 75 cents a front foot. The work will relieve the street situation in the Sixth ward to a considerable extent.

On motion of Mr. Lehane the city engineer was instructed to build a culvert on Presidio street at a cost of $150 to $200. Mr. Lehane again called attention to the condition of North street below the gasworks. He said it was practically impassable. The matter was referred to the street and alley committee. Mr. Waggonman said that it would have immediate attention.

The practice of filling in hollows with trash, manure, etc., thus creating a menace to the health of communities, was under discussion. It was decided that strict orders be given for the enforcement of the ordinance against this practice.

EIGHTH WARD SCHOOL

Another step was taken toward hastening the erection of a brick or stone school building in the Eighth ward when Alderman Dyeus introduced a resolution providing that a vendor's lien note of $2,000 due the city from S. A. Tomlinson, when paid, be applied to the fund for the school, and further providing that school buildings at present in the Eighth ward be sold and the proceeds applied to the new school. The resolution was adopted.

The petitions for sewer extensions sent in by N. E. Nelson, A. L. Johnson and R. C. De Hoven were granted. The petition of Dr. Frank Gray was referred to the city engineer.

Martin Mansfield was appointed special policeman in the Denver yards, without cost to the city.

Resolutions of sympathy on the death of City Attorney Orrick's daughter were passed.

NEW THINGS STRANGE & CURIOUS

Water Clock.

This is probably the most curious clock in the world. A metal drum, with a metal axis stuck through it, is upheld by two strings in such a manner that the latter gradually unwind, causing the drum to descend. Under ordinary circumstances the drum would run to the bottom in a moment, but owing to an ingenious device it takes exactly 24 hours to go from the top to the bottom. Each hour is indicated by a peg, and thus the "Jap" can always tell what time it is.

The drum is divided inside by radial partitions into a series of compartments, in one of which some water is put. The partitions are pierced by pin holes, allowing the water to pass slowly through from one compartment to another as the drum goes down. But it is very hard for the drum to revolve, as it is impeded by gravity to do, because in revolving it is obliged to lift the water. It can only go around as fast as the water goes from one compartment to another, and thus its speed can be regulated exactly according to the size of the pin holes aforesaid.

Wonders Of Coal.

The formation of coal, according to Dr. Homer Greene's cosmical theory, was due to the solar orb bringing forth millions of years ago, when it was larger and hotter than today, a wonderfully luxuriant vegetation, including plants of various kinds, mosses, as large as forest trees and ferns 30 feet in height, growing up richly from the clayey soil and forming dense jungles in the vast marshes, the latter covering great areas of the earth's surface. These ferns, mosses, and the leaves, branches and trunks of trees in time falling, decayed where they grew only to render the soil more fertile and the next growth more luxuriant. Year after year, century after century, this process of growth and decay went on until the beds of vegetable matter thus deposited became of great thickness.

The earth's body, however, still continued to shrink, in consequence of which, her crust sinking throughout vast areas, the beds of vegetable matter going down and the water sweeping again over the great marshes, sand and mud and gravel were laid down above the deposits, and the clayey soil from which the next rich growth would spring was spread out on the surface, this process being repeated again and again, as many times, indeed, as there are seams of coal in any coal bed.

In this way, according to Dr. Greene, the conditions for the formation of coal were made complete, atmospheric air being entirely excluded while the vegetable beds underwent the processes of decomposition, so that in some beds of coal whole trees have been found with roots, branches, leaves and seeds complete, and all converted into the same kind of coal as that surrounding.

Costly Canals.

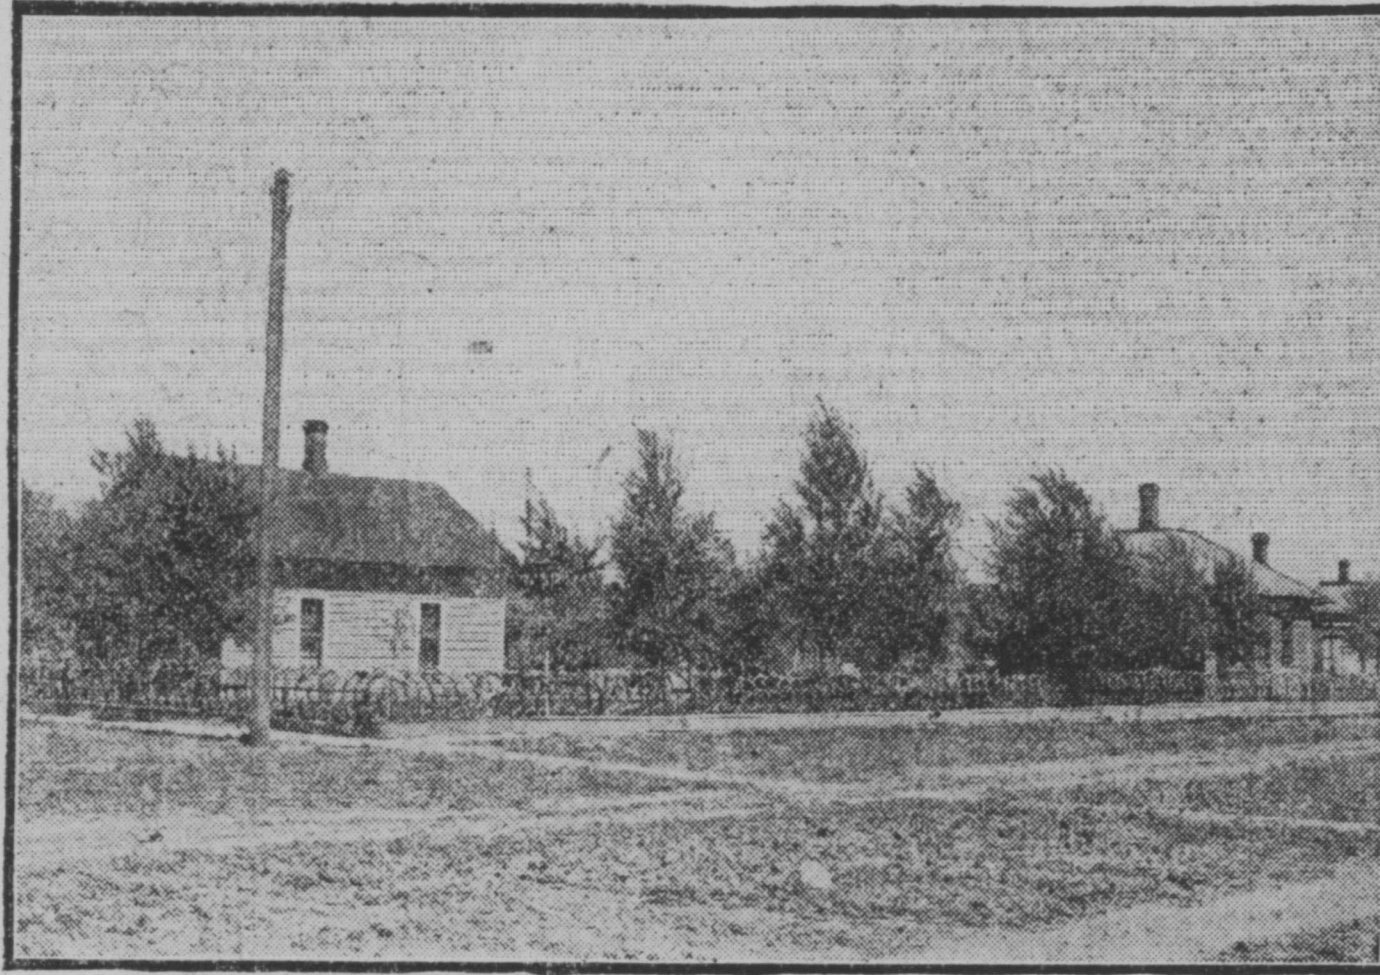

The oldest and the most important ship canal is that of Suez, begun in 1856 and completed in 1869. It is 100 miles in length and cost $22,000,000. In 1862 $10,000,000 was expended to widen it.

Ships are allowed to pass through it at a speed of five and one-third miles per hour, so that its whole length can be traversed in 18 1/2 hours. Night navigation is made possible by electric lights, which were introduced in 1887. The tolls are eight shillings per ton. In 1870 486 ships passed through the canal, in 1880, 2,026; in 1900, 3,441. In the year 1899 221,348 passengers were transported.

In 1887 the Emperor William Canal, to connect the North Sea with the Baltic, was begun, and the canal was opened in 1905. Its cost was $40,000,000. Its receipts do not cover expenses. Still another canal connecting the North Sea with the Baltic was opened in 1900. Its cost was $6,000,000.

The Manchester Ship Canal cost $83,000,000. Amsterdam is connected with the sea by a ship canal opened in 1848, and Rotterdam is likewise connected with deep water by a canal opened in 1896. The Gulf of Corinth Canal was finished in 1903. It cost about $5,000,000.

FENCE CONSTRUCTED OF ELK HORNS.

It is highly probable that the United States does not contain a rarer curiosity in the way of a fence than the one to be found in Livingston, Mont., and which is the subject of illustration. This fence is made from between 250 and 300 elk horns, representing about 150 animals. The first thought is that it was erected to slaughter all these elk in order that their horns might be used for fence building, but this is not the case. It should be remembered that the wattle regularly casts its horns. Instead of there having been a general slaughter of the animals, the horns used in this fence were gathered on the winter range and taken to town for the express purpose of building this novel and remarkable fence.

In the East elk have become so scarce it would appear that the owner of this fence has a rich possession. Previous to 1842 elk were found in New York State, and even later in Pennsylvania. There are two or three small herds in California at present, but it is likely that before the present century ends the animal will become extinct. In many Montana towns the horns are quite common and quite a few are sent here and there as trophies. Chairs, picture frames and large knife handles are also made from the horn, while for decorative purposes they are much cherished.

BEAUTIFUL GIFT FOR THE POPE.

A feature of the Silver Jubilee of Pope Leo, marking its conclusion this month is the presentation to him of a splendid gift by Emperor Franz Josef of Austria. A beautiful work of art it is, being one of the choicest productions of Herr Rudolf

Marshall, the Viennese sculptor. On a block of marble, which is finely veined with violet, stands a figure of gold, representing the "Good Shepherd." In his arms the shepherd holds a lost lamb, and behind him follow other members of the flock. Remarkably lifelike and impressive is the picture, as the accompanying illustration shows, and the Emperor is said to be highly pleased with it. On the marble is engraved a suitable Latin inscription and over it appear the Papal and imperial arms, set in gold and precious stones.

Resurrection Plant

What is generally known as the rose of Jericho is, perhaps, one of the most familiar of the curiosities of plant life known as resurrection plants, though other varieties have recently been added to the list of these oddities. The rose of Jericho is said to be imported from the valley of the River Jordan, and is the resurrection plant mentioned in the Bible. The plant when received from its native home is simply a bunch of leafless and seemingly lifeless sticks or branches, clustered together tightly. When placed in a glass of water, however, the branches expand, seed buds unfold, and soon the green foliage starts out and the plant really grows.

The Mexican resurrection plant is the fluffy fernlike variety often noticed in saucers of water in the florist's window. This delights the children, as the plant is so quickly resurrected from a dry, hard ball to a green living plant. When it is dormant it is a shrunken, rounded ball of tightly folded leaflets, dry and dead.

It is dropped in a bowl of tepid water, and soon one frondlike tip curls slowly outward, then another and another, and in a short time there is floating in the dish a beautiful metallic green plant, a great loose expanded rosette of the fernlike leaves, odd and beautiful.

This experiment can be repeated many times, the plant curling together tightly when dry and expanding into new life when soaked in water. The asteriscus pygmaeus is the only resurrection plant that develops blossoms. In reality it is the blossom that is resurrected from a dry, hard shell-like substance to a full blown flower.

Stones Are "Alive."

The most curious specimens of vegetable or plant life in existence are the so-called "living stones" of the Falkland Islands. Those islands are among the most cheerless spots in the world, being constantly subjected to a strong polar wind.

In such a climate it is impossible for trees to grow erect, as they do in other countries, but nature has made amends by furnishing a supply of wood in the most curious shape imaginable. The visitor to the Falklands sees scattered here and there singular shaped blocks of what appear to be weather beaten and moss covered bowlders, in various sizes.

Attempt to turn one of these "bowlders" over and you will meet with a surprise, because the stone is actually anchored by roots of great strength; in fact, you will find that you are fooling with one of the native trees.

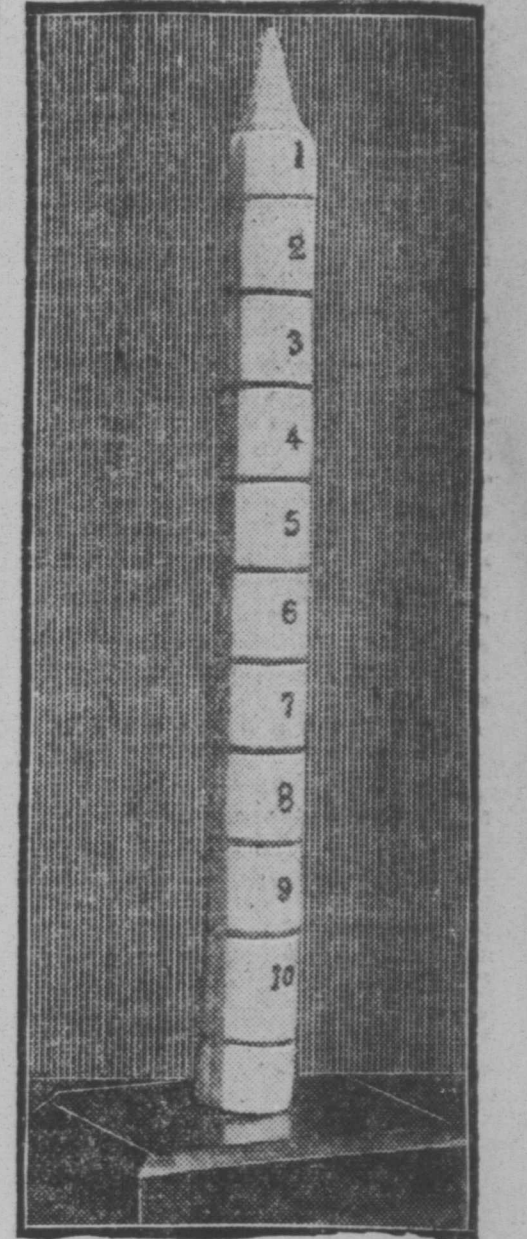

No other country in the world has such a peculiar "forest" growth, and it is said to be next to impossible to work the odd shaped blocks into fuel, because the wood is perfectly devoid of "grain," and appears to be a twisted mass of woody fibres.

Germany has seven academies and five schools for the teaching of forestry.

Candle Tells Time.

King Alfred, who was called the Great, was the original advocate of an eight hour law. He said that man should give eight hours out of every day to work, eight hours to sleep and eight hours to play. In order to keep tab on the hours, at a period when there were no clocks he invented the time-keeping candle, which was afterward used in monasteries and elsewhere quite commonly.

The candle was divided up in such a way as to indicate the hours by its burning. Such a candle is here shown, but the divisions are only for quarter hours. If you make a candle big enough in diameter and the wick small enough it will burn for months, of course.

Indigo was first used as a dye in Europe in 1570. Cochineal came into use about the same time.

CIGARETTE TONGS.

In the good old days of Queen Bess every smoker had in his outfit a pair of tobacco tongs. If he were a gallant of the court they were made of silver; if a substantial merchant, of brass; but if a working man, of cheap ironware. They were a necessary implement to the smoker. Matches were plentiful and the only available fire in the daytime was the blazing log upon the hearth. With the poker a smaller piece of the glowing ember was broken off, which with the tongs was applied to the freshly charged pipe.

Hundreds of these tongs are to be found in the collections of antiquarians. Most of them are clumsy objects, but a few are graceful in outline and artistic in workmanship. These tongs were revived on a small scale some 20 years ago when they were employed for holding cigarettes. The cigarette tongs were from two to four inches in length, connected at the upper end by a smart spring, which kept the ends together when in a position of rest.

When used the smoker opened them and caught the cigarette between the tips, close up to the mouth end. The contrivance enabled the user to burn the cigarette down to the last whiff, and protected the fingers from the discoloring vapor that produces the brown stain upon the fore and middle fingers.

Primitive Surgery.

Surgical operations were performed on the human skull in America 200 years before the coming of Columbus. The work was done in those early days with the aid of shells and flint hatchets. Many skulls have been discovered in Peru which illustrate the methods of these early surgeons. From the appearance of the skull it is also evident that a considerable proportion of those operated upon lived afterward.

This trephining was probably performed to save the lives of those who had received

Camera Caught Ball.

The accompanying picture was taken by George M. Still, of Brooklyn, at his summer home, at Ronkonkoma, L. I., and is considered by photographers to whom it has been shown to be a most remarkable picture of an object in motion. Mr. Still, whose expert knowledge runs along the line of optics rather than photography, took the picture by a snapshot while the boy was tossing the ball in the air. When shown to the head of a firm of well-known New York phoa serious wound from a club or a stone. Considering that the surgeons of those early days worked with nothing more effective than sharp shells or flint knives, the work is exceedingly credible. Human skulls bearing the signs of similar operations also have been found in Europe, dating back to prehistoric times. In the South Sea Islands the operation is often performed with the same primitive implements. The local surgeons not only trephine in the case of fractures, but as a cure for epilepsy and certain forms of insanity. Trephining is also performed in this primitive way even as a cure for headache.

Six Stringed Spinnet

Several beautifully fashioned musical instruments of various kinds, dating back to the Middle Ages, were recently acquired by the Royal Society of Berlin, and among them was a six-stringed spinnet. It was made in the sixteenth century, and the delicate carving with which it is embellished is a rare proof that it was the work of an artist.

A century or two ago it might have been possible to get good music out of this instrument, but now it is sadly out of tune and no one with a musical ear could long endure to hear it. One reason why the Royal Society prizes it highly is because the inside of its cover are painted several emblems and grotesque pictures of animals. In mediæval times emblems were more popular than they are now, and the artist who used them for the purpose of beautifying this spinnet, was evidently well versed in the subject.

tographers he declared it to be a picture that probably could never be taken as clearly, even under the same conditions, again. When this expert in turn showed the picture to other photographers they said they would need an affidavit that the picture was not "a fake," but when fully assured that it was taken "on the square," agreed that it was a remarkable picture of a moving object.

The British Empire outside the United Kingdom only contains some eight and one-half million of people of British descent—that is to say, only one in 40 of its population.

The sound of the first eruption of Mont Pelée is now ascertained to have been heard at Maracabo, in Venezuela, a distance of 800 miles.

PARSEE SYMBOLISM.

The entire costume of the Parsees symbolizes the mysteries of religion. The gauze shirt, bound with the sacred cord of Kusti, must be woven with 72 threads to represent the chapter of the Iashni, and the 12 knots of the heavy tassels signify the 12 months of the year and represent the perpetual obligation of sacred duties.

The embroidery of the sloping black hats carries out a further doctrinal significance, and in the white headbands of the women warp and woof form an elaborate cryptograph of Zoroastrian theology.

Even the mode of wearing the siften saris of pink, primrose, azure and green is prescribed by ritual law, though the linen headband gets pushed further back and the floating folds of the brilliant veil occasionally combine coquetry with orthodoxy.

A solitary instance recurs to memory of a fuzzy fringe framed by the headband and sari, and contrasting strangely with the Asiatic face and beautiful historic dress of the wearer. Possession of unlimited wealth enables the Parsee of Bombay to exercise important control over the fortunes of the city, and rows of splendid mansions in the suburb of Parsi show the status of the colony which identifies itself with Western progress while retaining in full strength all its original character and ancient faith.

Though he is in perfect health, Baron Ortel, a wealthy Russian nobleman, has not left his bed even for one half hour during the last 10 years. He claims that in order to remain in good health one must sedulously refrain from taking any kind of physical exercise and that his own excellent health during the last decade is due to the fact that he has not exerted his body in any way. On the other hand, he maintains that the brain should be kept constantly at work, and therefore he spends much of his time every day consulting with his stewards about the management of his vast estate and making plans and estimates for proposed improvements. He is propped up in bed while he talks to his stewards, and whenever he strolls he lies in a bed which has been specially made for him.

Who Skated First?

It is very doubtful which race first skated, for traces have been found among prehistoric remains all over Northern Europe indicating that the art was practiced by primitive peoples. The Eskimos of the furthest north are also found to be in possession of runners carved from whalebone.

Skating is mentioned by a Danish historian about 1134, and Fitzstephen, in his "History of London," says that in the twelfth century young men fastened the leg bones of animals under their feet by means of thongs in order to slide along the ice. This statement is confirmed by the pair of bone skates of the period now in the British Museum. It is likely, however, that these early Londoners got the idea from Holland, probably by Lincolnshire, where skates have been used on the frozen fens from very remote times.

Never Leaves Bed.

Though he is in perfect health, Baron Ortel, a wealthy Russian nobleman, has not left his bed even for one half hour during the last 10 years. He claims that in order to remain in good health one must sedulously refrain from taking any kind of physical exercise and that his own excellent health during the last decade is due to the fact that he has not exerted his body in any way. On the other hand, he maintains that the brain should be kept constantly at work, and therefore he spends much of his time every day consulting with his stewards about the management of his vast estate and making plans and estimates for proposed improvements. He is propped up in bed while he talks to his stewards, and whenever he strolls he lies in a bed which has been specially made for him.

BANDIT "CAPTURED" BY CAMERA.

One of the most "celebrated" brigands in Sicily today is Francesco Varsalona, who has quite outdone his predecessor, Musolino, inasmuch as he has eluded the carbineers and soldiers for 10 years. Like many a member of his "profession," he is devoutly religious. It is said that he will run any risk to get to a certain shrine of the Virgin near Castronovo, where he considers himself under adequate protection.

The above picture was taken under peculiar circumstances by an amateur photographer, who was passing the shrine at the moment the brigand and a female companion arrived. The camera man thought that some picturesque and so secured a snapshot without the man and woman being aware of the fact, absorbed as they were in prayer.

Shortly afterward, in an endeavor to persuade some peasants in the village of Cummaranta to pose for him, he exhibited this picture among others. The villagers at once recognized the man as Varsalona and the woman as his constant companion. Naturally, the sensation caused was great, and the photographer was obliged to decamp, as the brigand heard of the picture and vowed to wreak vengeance on the snapshotter.

LARGEST OF RAM'S HORNS

On February 1 last was published the photograph of what was believed to be the "record" head among 6 1/2 horned sheep. Since its publication the extent of another remarkable pair of horns has sent a photograph of the head to substantiate his claim to having the largest horns. A comparison of the dimensions of the two sets, as well as of their photographs, readily proves the superiority of the new set. The "record" set of horns, it should therefore be said, belong to Mr. George C. Gill, of Holyoke, Mass. The horns owned by Mr. Gill are not only larger in every dimension than the pair already reproduced on this page, but are superior in form and beauty. The spread of the first pair of horns was 51 inches. Mr. Gill's pair measure 62 inches. The first pair of horns, again, measured seven inches through at the butt, while the larger pair measure 15 1/2 inches. The 62-inch horns were exhibited three years ago at the exhibition of the American Sportsmen's Club, in Chicago, where it was asserted to be the "record" head.

is an open date. Championship or postponed games must take precedent over all exhibition games with non-league clubs, unless agreed otherwise by the contending clubs. The visiting club shall receive one-half the gate receipts when said postponed game shall be played off, when no guarantee attached.

19. It is also agreed and understood that if any non-league club in Texas or other state or territory receive or harbor any disgruntled or contract jumping player of the Texas League no exhibition games shall be played with said club by Texas League clubs or with any club who plays such clubs harboring jumping players from the Texas League.

20. The League reserves the right to transfer any franchise to any city they think will benefit the league with the present franchise holder maintaining his property rights, and also any games that benefit financially the said clubs.

THE RACE MEET TO OPEN MONDAY

WASHINGTON, March 21.—All indications are that the spring meeting of the Washington Jockey Club, which opens at Benning race course Monday will be the largest meet in the history of that popular track. The city is rapidly filling up with the "sporty boys" who follow the ponies, and the stewards are counting on the best meeting the club has ever experienced.

Racing interest throughout the country is centered on the Benning meet because many of the horses are fresh from a winter's rest, and this will be the first opportunity they will have to show their work for the coming season. For the past week the owners, trainers and the "tipsters" have been busy at the track sizing up the sprinters in the practice work. The track is in splendid condition and some of the flyers working over the course have made exceedingly fast time.

The stables now at the track include that of W. P. Burch, who has the lot of F. R. Hitchcock, among them Gray Friar, Sergeant and Castilian. William Garth has a stable of fifteen, including Imperial, Black Dick, Concertina and Dusky Secret. The Columbia stable has a half dozen fast ones, of which Toscan, Gloriosa and Red Damsel are the stars. Gwynn Tompkins has Dour, Flaesus, Gum Honey, Orion, Walter Cleary and a number of others. J. J. Mackessey has Courtney and All Souls. Charles Ray has Auto, Miss Lobster and Haekensack. Alie Gates has the horses of G. W. Cook, including Orontas, Merriment, Jerry and Mango. Trainer Sykes has Top Gallant, the great steeplechaser, and Trainer Baldwin has Circus, the Montgomery Handicap winner of 1902.

cannot be dismissed unless by three votes. 8. Umpires will be paid $5 per game and $2.50 in case of no game or postponement of game by rain. Both clubs will contribute one-half of said payment, and will be paid to the said official by the home club.

9. The secretary shall have the assignment of umpires to the different cities where they will officiate.

10. Umpires must appear on the field in a uniform consisting of a cap and coat, which will be furnished by themselves, the color of said uniform to be decided upon by the league.

COVERED SEATS

11. The league shall provide covered seats for the visiting teams and protect the playing field by either railing or other obstructive device to keep spectators from trespassing on said premises during the progress of the game.

12. It will be the duty of the umpire to see that the playing and field rules of the league are carried out, and under no circumstances will he allow anyone to sit on the players' benches unless he is in uniform or the manager of the team.

13. It will be the right of the home club to remove any player from the grounds for profanity, by an officer of the law.

14. Any player put out of the game three times during the season by the umpire shall remain suspended two weeks with salary, and shall not participate in any game unless by vote of the directors.

15. It shall be the duty of the umpire to first fine an offending player $3. This he will report to the captain or manager of the club, and also to the secretary of the league after the game. For a repetition of the offense on the same occasion, the umpire is empowered to remove him from the game.

16. Said fines of players shall go into the fund of the league, and the treasurer must see that said fines are collected.

17. The commercial relations of the Texas League shall be as follows: The visiting club shall be paid $50 for each game with the privilege of one-half the gate receipts, and on holidays the visiting team will receive one-half the total gross receipts, which includes grand stand and gate.

IN CASE OF RAIN

18. In case of rain or postponement of regular scheduled game the visiting team is to receive $40, and the home team shall have the right to name the date and time when said game shall be played, which must only be when the visiting club is coming or going to said city when there

1002 HOUSTON STREET

FORT WORTH TO BE THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CITY IN SOUTHWEST

REDUCTION OF STREET WIDTHS IS EXPECTED TO LEAD TO GENERAL GRADING AND GRAVELING MOVEMENT WHICH IS ALREADY BEGUN—WHAT IT WILL COST—FLOWER GARDENS IN VARIOUS PUBLIC PLACES—CITY PARK TO BE BOWER OF BEAUTY—OTHER IMPROVEMENTS

Fort Worth is to be made the most beautiful city in Texas. Not only is it to be the industrial center of the southwest; not only is it to be heralded far and wide for its hospitality; not only is it to be known as the home of the live stock industry and as the packing-house center; not only is it to be celebrated for its pretty girls, its culture, its social life, its railroads and its pure artesian water—not only is it to be famed for all these things, for plans are on foot to make it the most attractive city in the state, and one of the most attractive in the United States. Wide pavements lined with trees and shrubbery and well paved streets throughout the principal residence areas as well as business districts, are not only in sight, but they are close at hand.

Plans are before the city council and will be considered by that body at its next meeting, which provide for considerable extensions of the curb lines in the residence sections in order that the pavements may be widened to an extent that will permit the introduction of rows of trees and shrubbery. This will lessen the cost of paving them about 33 per cent, and it is the confident belief that such a reduction in the cost will lead to a general movement in the direction of good paving, even if it is confined to grading and graveling.

CITY TO PAY PART

At Friday night's meeting of the city council the city agreed to pay for one-third of the paving of five blocks along May and Annie streets in the Sixth ward in addition to paying for the intersections. This establishes a precedent that may cost the city a good deal of money, but it will put the streets in a better condition. These two streets are to be graded and gravelled at a cost of about 75 cents a front foot. It is understood that this calls for six inches of gravel on the level. The total cost with this sort of paving would be $37.50 for a fifty-foot lot. With the city paying one-third of the cost to the property owner would be $25 for a fifty-foot lot, a figure certainly within the reach of nearly any purse. And with streets narrower than May and Annie the cost would be even lower.

Along some streets the property owners are going in for brick paving. City Engineer Hawley announced at Friday night's council meeting that the property owners living along College avenue and several other streets were prepared to begin paving with brick as soon as the ordinance permitting the extension of curb lines becomes effective. Alderman Newby said that the property owners on Adams street also would improve as soon as the curb lines were extended.

SOME GARDEN SPOTS

W. L. McCart, the city landscape gardener, is fast transforming City park into a bower of floral beauty. The ground-work is nearly completed, drives and paths have been laid out and beds prepared for the reception of the various flowers.

Mr. McCart said yesterday that within a few weeks he would be able to devote his attention to the beautifying of the city hall grounds. He also will decorate the plot at central fire hall, which the firemen have named Maddox park.

The grounds at Texas and Pacific station put on their spring attire last week when a landscape gardener constructed some beds for flowers, trimmed the grass and otherwise "dressed" the premises. Streets 100 feet in width to have twenty-five foot pavements on each side; gram office, facing the Carnegie public library, has been cleared and plowed under the direction of the ladies of the library association. It will be sowed in grass and flower beds will be placed in it.

WEALTHY WIDOW WED AT NEW YORK HOME

NEW YORK, March 21.—Society was much interested today in the wedding of Mrs. William Earle Dodge, one of the wealthiest widows in New York, to Stephen H. Olin, a prominent lawyer. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by Rev. Dr. Grosvenor, rector of the Church of the Incarnation.

The bride is a daughter of Oliver Harriman and a grand-daughter-in-law of William Earle Dodge, the philanthropist. She inherited a widow's share of the immense Dodge estate, and her father, Oliver Harriman, has had his wealth divided by order of the court, he having been adjudged incompetent.

Mr. Olin is the son of Rev. Dr. Stephen Olin. Although he is connected with the well-known Livingston family, he has not been known for his wealth so much as for his prominence as a lawyer. He is a graduate of Wesleyan University and a member of several prominent clubs.

After a wedding tour in Europe Mr. and Mrs. Olin will take up their home in the handsome residence in East Thirty-fifth street given to the bride as a present on the occasion of her marriage today by William Earle Dodge, the father of her first husband.

Thirty Days Was My Life's Limit.

Agony From Inherited Heart Disease.
Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me.

One person in every four has a weak heart. Unless promptly treated a weak heart will easily become a diseased heart. A little extra strain from any cause is sufficient to bring on this deadly malady, the most common cause of sudden death. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure will tone up the heart's action, enrich the blood and improve the circulation.

"My trouble began with catarrh and I have always supposed it caused the trouble I have experienced with my heart. I had the usual symptoms of sleeplessness, lost appetite, constipation, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath and pain around the heart and under left arm. My mother suffered in the same way and I suppose mine was an inherited tendency. At one time I was in agony. I suffered so severely and became so weak that my doctors said I could not live thirty days. At this time I had not slept over two hours a night on account of nervousness. The least exercise, such as walking about, would bring on palpitation and fluttering of the heart so severe that I would have to give up everything and rest. Nerve and Liver Pills cured me of constipation and heart symptoms disappeared under the influence of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I am in better health than I have been in twelve years and I thank Dr. Miles' Remedies for it. I think they are the grandest remedies on earth and I am constantly recommending them to my friends."—Mrs. L. J. CANTRELL, Waxahatchie, Tex.

YOUNG WIFEHOOD

Boston, Mass., 152 Shawmut Ave., Oct. 25, 1902.

After I had been married about for months I felt my health generally decline. I seemed to lose the light step and dragged along wearily instead. My appetite failed me and I lost health and strength. I was nervous and had shooting pains through my limbs and stomach while bearing down pains and constant headaches added to my misery. The menstrual flow became more and more profuse and I was unable to attend to my daily duties. My husband called in three different physicians and I took medicine enough to kill or cure a dozen women, but it all had no effect on me whatever, until I took Wine of Cardui. In a few days I felt a change for the better, my general health improved and at the next time of my period my flow was more natural and I was in less pain. Gradually I recovered my health and strength and am now in perfect health. I take an occasional dose of Wine of Cardui which keeps me well. I am happy to give you this endorsement.

MRS. BERTHA RICKER,
President Back-Bay Woman's Club,
Boston, Mass.,

Wine of Cardui brought Mrs. Ricker good health. That is why she has so much faith in it that she never is without Wine of Cardui in her house.

The first months following marriage are full of peril for the young wife and a dose of Wine of Cardui every day is a great tonic to her strength. Why don't you try for the same health Mrs. Ricker has? It is easy to secure if you take Wine of Cardui according to directions. Wine of Cardui strengthens weak and worn-out women of any age and assists the mother and housewife to bear her exacting duties. It is a great strain to give birth to children and to perform housework, but Wine of Cardui makes women fit for all the duties of womanhood.

It will relieve the pains of irregularity, cures falling of the womb, leucorrhoea, ovarian troubles, and has been known to remove what physicians considered dangerous tumors. Women who use Wine of Cardui do not suffer at the monthly periods. No shock or strain lays them up in bed for days or weeks with nervous prostration. They do not suffer hysterical attacks, because Wine of Cardui gives them strong nerves freed from the irritation of female suffering.

A $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui purchased from your druggist will keep you free from pain.

JOLLY "UNCLE BILL" KNOWS A THING OR TWO

A PRETTY ROMANCE WHICH HAD CHARMING CHAPTER IN FORT WORTH

STORY OF THE BRIDE AND GROOM

TWO VERY SENTIMENTAL YOUNG FOLKS PAID "BILL" A FRIENDLY VISIT AND WHAT HE DID FOR THEM PROVES HIS EXTREME GENEROSITY, HIS ASTONISHING CLEVERNESS, AND THAT HIS KINDNESS WAS EQUALLED BY HIS WISDOM

"Miss Duncan-Hettie-d-e-dear!" -but the speaker took a header over bashfulness only to hear a sweet, "Yes, Harry."

"Oh, if I might only hope to—er—er—"

Another failure of language. It was seemingly a hopeless case, and it might have been only a demure—

"Harry, I've said 'yes' twice, and if you mean it, I mean it too, and—"

Not much longer before a letter came from Hettie's Uncle Bill in Fort Worth, Texas, who wrote effusively of her "grit,"

GUARDING AGAINST MISFORTUNE "To guard against any misfortune," says Uncle Bill to Harry, "I would suggest that you insure your life. We have a first-class company represented in Fort Worth, so we will call there. It is the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, of which William H. Taylor is resident agent, with offices over First National Bank, Seventh and Houston streets. The Mutual Life of New York is the largest, strongest and most reliable life insurance company in the world. The assets of the Mutual Life of New York, on Dec. 31, 1902, amounted to $382,432,681, placing it easily at the head of its class of the world's institutions, and showing a gain for the year of $26,593,710. It has an annual income of $73,305,022, which is larger than any other life insurance company in the world. The Mutual Life of New York paid to policy holders in 1902, $29,109,857.11, and since its organization in 1843, it has paid them $598,293,137.55. It has paid to its living members over $210,000,000, and paid for death claims over $352,000,000. Its total benefits to policy holders are over $921,000,000, and has insurance in force to the amount of $1,342,912,062. The policy of the Mutual Life of New York is the best for the insured, because it has in black and white guaranteed large cash values, automatic paid-up insurance, loans at 5 per cent, extended insurance, thirty days grace in the payment of premiums, and several other attractive features."

Why Pay Rent. "The basis of a home," says Uncle Bill, "is a piece of mother earth. For what you pay in rent for the use of a house you can buy a home of your own from A. N. Evans & Co., 706 Main street. They have desirable houses in all parts of the city. Ideal places for homes, and you can buy of them for cash or on credit. You will find it cheaper to buy of them than to rent. Hundreds of families in Fort Worth have procured homes in this way. Why not you? Any ordinary rental of any house will pay for your home in a few years. Every rent payer can, if he chooses, convert his rent money into absolute ownership of a home of his own choosing, by consulting Evans & Co. To build and sell artistic dwellings, containing modern improvements, in good neighborhoods, has been their aim. Another object aimed at has been to place beautiful homes within the means of persons in moderate circumstances by a system of easy monthly payments. Evans & Co.'s constant advice has been, "don't pay rent." Fort Worth is adorned by many residences erected by this firm. If there is any firm that deserves praise for efforts to provide homes for the people of Fort Worth it is that of Evans & Co. They are certainly providing the way for the man in moderate circumstances to occupy a home at once and pay for it while enjoying the benefits of a home of his own. Think not the girl you love, loves not. She loves depend upon it. And she will share your happy lot, if you have a house upon it. An Architect Who Knows How. "We are now ready for the cage for your bird," remarked the old gentleman Harry, "and the first thing to be done is to secure a competent architect. One of the leading representatives in this line in Fort Worth is M. L. Waller, 808 Main St., Columbia Building. That he is gifted with the inspiration of a true artist is shown by the many notable illustrations in this city and elsewhere. Though his success has been unusual, his unremitting industry and talent justify entitling him to the enviable reputation he has attained for symmetry, grace and thoroughness of his work. Mr. Waller's buildings are always admired for their stability and excellence, while the elaboration and detail and the care bestowed upon every department reflects the utmost credit upon his honorable and business-like methods. Mr. Waller has been commissioned with many large buildings and on the majority of these buildings has been the sharpest competition with some of the ablest men in the business, which is conclusive proof that he stands in the front rank of his profession."

W. R. Knox, Builder. "And next comes the builder," says the old gentleman to Harry. "One of the leading men in this line in Fort Worth is W. R. Knox, 1415 Jennings Ave. The place is the firm of Evans Bros., 113 North Houston street, and they deserve everything in the way of business they have received. It is their constant effort to supply every demand that is made upon them, and their genial, affable and courteous treatment of customers, and their strict sense of business honor, in giving to their trade the fullest value of every dollar spent with them, has brought their house into notoriety and increased their business until it taxes their capacity to handle it." The volume of business done by them every day cannot be imagined unless one were to spend the day with them, and see the vast quantity of goods sent out, and the large number of stock men and farmers that purchase their goods at the above named place. Their stock consists of a fine line of foreign and domestic groceries, imported delicacies, condiments, sauces, canned goods, teas and coffees, dried and preserved fruits, also a complete variety of fresh fruits and vegetables. The success of this firm may well serve as an incentive to all who believe in the success of the capable and worthy. Goods delivered promptly to any part of the city.

builder occupies one of the most important branches of industry of which this country has reason to be proud, for it is principally on them that the fame and popularity of our large cities depend. Mr. Knox is an excellent example in his chosen line and every little detail is carefully looked after from foundation to roof, and at the same time he offers inducements impossible to be secured elsewhere, his connections being wide spread as his facilities are perfect. He never uses shoddy material, and your plans will be carried out to perfection. He is rapid, too, the sills won't rot before the roof is on.

"He believes in the old proverb, 'what-ever is worth doing at all is worth doing well.' Since embarking in business he has shown himself to be a thorough master of the most complicated plans and exacting specifications. He cheerfully furnishes estimates and when quoted, they are invariably found as low as the usage of good material and workmanship will allow. Mr. Knox is a general contractor and builder and superintends all the work personally."

They Find a Good Laundry. "Uncle," remarked Hettie, "I wish you would recommend a laundry. I'm afraid I can never satisfy his lordship with respect to his linen."

"All right," laughed the old gentleman. "Send it to the Natatorium Steam Laundry, Phone 176. It is needless to remark that it is the most popular laundry in the city. The most delicate fabrics are treated here without the slightest injury. The work turned out is unrivaled for finish and uniform excellence, being the acme of perfection, and has found unusual favor with the public. It is a part of their religion not to slight work, and to that end, they employ none but experienced and faithful operators. The work of The Natatorium Steam Laundry is superior to that of any other laundry in the city. Their principal object being to extract dirt and not tear the garment."

N. E. Gambrell, the proprietor, gives every little detail his personal attention, and in the way of order and neatness and good management, has no superior. The work of The Natatorium Steam Laundry is as near faultless as human skill can accomplish. Their work justly merits the praise bestowed upon it by the public. Work is called for and delivered to all parts of the city and surrounding vicinity. And now, Hettie, as this is patronized by the best people in town, I would advise you to do the same."

Where to Buy a Fence. "You will certainly have an ornamental fence surrounding your home," remarked Uncle Bill to Harry, "and Fort Worth is fortunate in having one of the most progressive and modern establishments of this kind to be found anywhere, that is known as the Texas Anchor Fence Co., and conducted under the management of J. F. Shelton. Their main office and factory is located at 1607 Houston street. They have made constant progress in the command of the best trade, its output representing the most artistic and thorough results in its line of industry. They are manufacturers of bank and office railing, wire trellises of every description for training vines, plain and crimped tree guards, stable and stall railings, also fences of every description, for lawns, cemeteries, yards, parks, zoological gardens. In fact the best and cheapest fence for any purpose."

A Good Transfer Company. "The next in order," says Uncle Bill, "is to have your goods transferred from the station. I will telephone No. 65, the Darrah Storage company. They are the parties who will do it at once; they make it a business exclusively. They are highly endorsed by the merchants, manufacturers and citizens generally for promptness and the efficient manner in which they perform all work entrusted to them. They are owners of several first-class horses and a number of trucks and light wagons, and are always ready to remove baggage, machinery, pianos, safes, merchandise, household goods, etc., employing for this purpose careful and experienced men who are under the personal supervision of J. W. Collins. They have wagons at all times ready for any order left at their office, or by telephone, which will receive the attention that their importance demands. They use trucks for moving, and household goods are packed, boxed or crated, moved, shipped or stored, their facilities in this line being of the best. This company is a very popular one in business circles, and is doing a large business. They are thoroughly alive to the demands of the public and always ready to fill orders in the most satisfactory manner."

Groceries That Are Good. "And now," said Uncle Bill, "I want to tell you the best place in town to buy your groceries, which is by no means an unimportant item to consider when going to housekeeping. That place is the firm of Evans Bros., 113 North Houston street, and they deserve everything in the way of business they have received. It is their constant effort to supply every demand that is made upon them, and their genial, affable and courteous treatment of customers, and their strict sense of business honor, in giving to their trade the fullest value of every dollar spent with them, has brought their house into notoriety and increased their business until it taxes their capacity to handle it." The volume of business done by them every day cannot be imagined unless one were to spend the day with them, and see the vast quantity of goods sent out, and the large number of stock men and farmers that purchase their goods at the above named place. The success of this firm may well serve as an incentive to all who believe in the success of the capable and worthy. Goods delivered promptly to any part of the city.

TO PAINT YOUR HOUSE "In recent years," said Uncle Bill, "the country has been flooded, so to speak, with cheap ready-mixed paints, which are apt to prove attractive to those unacquainted with their character. While all are not deficient in merit, the vast majority of them have no lasting property whatever. If you want the real article, I would advise you to use none but the Waples-Painter Rubber Paint, sold at wholesale by the Waples-Painter Lumber Company. These paints have acquired a deservedly popular and high prestige, which has obtained for them a very high demand. They are strictly first-class and are unequalled by any for richness, permanency of color and durability, while the character of the materials used in their manufacture guarantees superior quality. On any surface, wood, stone or plaster, Waples-Painter Rubber Paints have no equal anywhere, as they wear longer, cover more surface, rub out better under the brushes, fade less and more uniformly, and prove more economical to the consumer than any other paint. When you use Waples-Painter Rubber Paints you use the best, ask L. B. Curd, the manager, and he will tell you all about it."

Better Than Mother Made It. "If there is one thing I dislike about orthodox domestic economy," continued the old gentleman to Harry, "it is that of expecting our women to stand over a hot oven, burning their faces and worrying their heads, when they can have bread of such excellence is made by Turner & Dineege. It is manufactured in a uniformly high standard of excellence, and none but skilled workmen are employed. Mr. Dineege exercises his personal supervision over all departments, which are thoroughly equipped with the most modern appliances for furnishing bread, 'the staff of life.' Turner & Dineege's bread is sweet, rich and moist. Their process of baking holds the steam in the bread, retaining all the aroma, flavor and nutriment of the wheat. By this process every bit of gluten in the wheat is utilized and the result is a loaf as Mother used to make it; delicious to the taste and which does not dry out or grow stale the day after it is cut. Turner & Dineege's bread is the most healthful, economical and longest keeping bread ever made. It is devoid of all deleterious ingredients, and can be relied upon. At his store may be found a large assortment of bread noted for its smoothness and evenness. There are other makes of bread sold in Fort Worth, but none so good as Turner & Dineege's. It is the best made at any price. Don't believe any one when they say that another is 'just as good.' It isn't. Bread is made to eat. The leading grocers sell it. Insist on having Turner & Dineege's bread."

A Cornice for the Home. "You will want cornice work for your new home," says Uncle Bill, "so we will call on Attwell Cornice Company, corner of Rusk and Weatherford. They have won a recognized position as one of the most thorough and reliable in this line throughout this section. They make a specialty of steel ceilings, sky lights, copper and galvanized cornices of every description, and sheet metal work of all kinds. They also do tin, slate, tin, gravel and ready roofing in all its branches, and all kinds of tin, sheet iron, copper and zinc, made to order and in the best possible manner, a competent and reliable corps of workmen being employed at all times, and the finest class of work turned out on short notice. Attwell & Co. have executed many original and beautiful pieces of work and are recognized throughout this section as leading experts in their line. They are prepared to work in any part of the state by experienced men and to do repairing of all kinds in their line on short notice, and guarantee satisfaction. They handle some of the largest contracts in this city, and out of town, their facilities being competent to execute every variety of modern design and manufacture in their line. They make a special feature of furnace work."

An Attractive Restaurant. "Nearly every business community," says the old gentleman, "is provided with places renowned as being the resort of leading business and professional men, where they can dine and acceptably entertain their friends and visitors. Fort Worth can boast of such an establishment in the premises fitted with all the accessories of a first class metropolitan establishment, and there at all times may be obtained meals, hot or cold lunches, comprising all the delicacies that the market affords, and everything is prepared in the highest style of the culinary art and temptingly served by courteous assistants. A very able chef is employed, and the many patrons of this attractive establishment agree that nowhere in Fort Worth are oysters, clams, lobsters, game, steaks, chops and other attractive dishes so well and deliciously served. They also have in stock the best of everything in wines, liquors and cigars, and have the best Fort Worth Brewing Co.'s beer on draught. For reliable service and most attractive refreshments, all visitors to Fort Worth will do well to call at The White Elephant."

Gas Vs. Coal. "Many people," says Uncle Bill, "who have been paying for gas for illuminating purposes are somewhat dubious about using gas for fuel on account of the supposed high cost. While it is true that there are more units contained in a ton of coal than there are in the gas extracted therefrom, yet for domestic purposes gas is the cheaper fuel. When it is necessary to supply the heat in a large quantity and for a long time, as, for instance, under a steam boiler, of course coal is the cheaper. But when the heat is only wanted intermittently and but for a short time and in a small way, gas, at the price now sold by the Fort Worth Gas Co. for cooking and heating purposes, will prove cheaper. In burning coal for domestic purposes it is estimated that nine-tenths of it is wasted; goes up the chimney, heats up the range and the brick in the range; heats up the kitchen and to some extent the entire house. This waste of fuel may be avoided by doing your cooking on a gas range. You will do your cooking quicker and cheaper, and your expense ends with extinguishing of your flame. You can accomplish as much with a gas range as on the best wood or coal stove, baking, roasting, cooking, washing, ironing, etc. A gas range will do it quicker and in a more agreeable way. It requires no march to the wood shed for kindling wood to get and split, no coal dust, and no dirt to soil the hands and clothing. No smoke, ashes or soot to fly around, no heat that will scorch you. You light a match, turn on the gas, and at once the range is ready for use."

WHERE TO GET A GOOD PHOTO "And now, Hettie," said Uncle Bill, "have you and Harry had your photographs taken?"

"No, uncle, we haven't," said Hettie. "We have been so interested in our plans for housekeeping that we haven't had time, although we intended to as soon as we arrived."

"How times do change," said Uncle Bill. "When I was young the first thing a bride and groom thought of after getting married was to have their pictures taken. But, I suppose you want me to direct you to the best place in town, and I can truthfully say that I consider the Larimer Gallery as such. They take rank with the best in the country for real artistic skill, and have the reputation of being leaders. They do first-class work, for which they have a complete equipment, skill and taste in crayons, pastels and water colors, which an inspection of their work will quickly show. They are regarded as excelling in their line, and also in their prices, which are remarkably low for such excellent work."

FLEMING THE BEST A-GOIN' "The place to get the furniture?" asked Uncle Bill. "Why, that is down to Fleming's, the man that runs the big second-hand joint on Second and Houston street. Know Fleming? Well, I should smile. He is the first guy I got next to when I hit the burg. He sells anything, including new and second-hand furniture. He is the same mark that rents houses already furnished. He sold my aunt and me our layout when we lit and I have continued to buy of him since because I have always found him on the square. I was down and had a little seance with him the other day and he gave me a line of talk about why he could sell cheaper than anyone else. He said his storage facilities were such that he could buy in large quantities and was satisfied to sell at a small profit. He also put me wise to the fact that he had fifty-two houses already furnished, any one of which is waiting to make someone a happy home. When I was down I told him that you anticipated making the fatal leap and he said if you located in Fort Worth or vicinity to bring you around, as that was his strong graft, feathering the nest for newly married people. Yes, if you have anything to sell Fleming will give you as many shakels as anyone—in fact, it's my opinion that he is an easy mark to skin, but, of course, that is Fleming's business. The all-important thing is to buy where we can buy cheaper, so let's hasten on and turn him for what we can."

BEST OF ALL DECORATORS Hettie now remarked that she would like to see about the wall paper. "Well," says Uncle Bill, "I know of no better firm in Fort Worth than Burns & Hamilton, 1001-1003 Houston street. They are the leaders in their line in this city, and command a large and influential patronage. Their handiwork proclaims them to be genuine decorators and designers and for skill in which they display in combining colors and shades so as to produce the most beautiful and striking result. They employ none but skilled workmen and carry the largest assortment as well as the finest of anybody in the city, including handsome pressed goods with borders, freizes and ceiling to match, and here you can find everything required for the parlor, hall, dining-room, library, bedroom and living-room. The work executed by Burns & Hamilton is unrivaled for excellence of artistic elegance, originality of design and perfection of workmanship. Their patronage represents the best city and suburban custom and they have gained the highest approval and uniform thoroughness. They are exclusive agents for the celebrated Sherwin-Williams paint."

"Now," says Uncle Bill, "we will call upon the Telegram. You will want a newspaper every day, and this is the favorite paper. I'll subscribe for it."

Upon joining Hettie, she began volubly to express her thanks. "You have brought me everything," she exclaimed. "Only forgot one thing," remarked Uncle Bill, reflectively, "but I can remedy that. We will go down to Fleming's furniture store, as he has a fine line of them, and you can get one when you need it. I'll pay for the best."

"What?" exclaimed Hettie, with great curiosity. "Whatever can it be?" "Well, it's a-a-a baby carriage, and—" but Hettie had fainted.

The recent explosion upon the submarine boat Le Francis has revealed a new danger in this type of craft. Humanity is Bigger Than The Dollar By Rev. Chas. Gregory

DEAR SIR—I am a Scandinavian. I came to this country about ten years ago, got married, and have now a family dependent upon me. I am a coachman. The man I work for curses me every day and treats me as if I was a dog. I am poor and he is rich, but I don't like to be treated so. I don't want to give up my place, and I don't want to be cursed. Will you tell me what I ought to do?

Certainly, and to the best of our ability, we will tell you what to do. In the first place, our advice to you is to attend to your work like a man. Do your whole duty, quietly and conscientiously; and as soon as you possibly can find another place in which you may receive better treatment.

You say you are a Scandinavian. The writer of the old viking blood in your veins prompts you to club the unmannerly fool who does not know enough to respect your manhood.

But keep cool! For your wife and children's sake, you cannot afford to resort to violence. Keep your head level while the fool is cursing. If your anger rises choke it down and get you another place as soon as you can.

But don't run away with the foolish idea that the man you are working for is a fair sample of the general run of those who employ coachmen.

He knows perfectly well what that means. It means that you come of the old Norse stock, a stock that has ever been very jealous of its rights and bitterly averse to every form of servility.

Coming of such stock it goes hard with you to be placed where you have to endure those curses.

He is not. He is not the rule, but the exception to the rule.

As a general thing coachmen are treated fairly well—and with the respect that belongs to them as men.

And why not? Gentlemen who are fortunate enough to have made or inherited money enough to enable them to support an establishment, and among other things a coachman, are to be congratulated. They are lucky, and there is not one of us who would not like to meet with the same good fortune. But these lucky gentlemen should remember—and we are sure that the most of them do remember—that their luck gives them no right to be scornful of the less fortunate ones who are obliged, by the stern logic of necessity, to become their servants.

The rich man who owns the carriage, and the poor man who does the driving, are both members of the same human family, both have the same human feelings, and the same desire to have those feelings respected.

The rich man has no right to curse his coachman simply because he is his coachman.

He would not think of cursing his PEER IN WEALTH AND SOCIAL STANDING. To such peer he is proverbially polite, considerate and respectful.

But is he not just as much bound to be polite, considerate and respectful toward his coachman?

The master of the house is not obliged to take his coachman into the intimacies of the home, but he is obliged, by every sentiment of right and justice, to treat him like a MAN, and not like a dog.

The coachman does not expect to be made a member of the family—he would be a fool if he did—but he does expect, and has a right to expect, that he will be treated with kindness and with CIVILITY.

There is a sensible pride—and a foolish pride. It is the latter sort of pride that causes a man, simply because he is rich, to look down with contempt upon those who are poor.

Humanity is a bigger thing than the dollar, every day in the week and every hour in the day; and it is humanity, rather than the dollar, that we should venerate and respect.

The man who makes his million in Wall Street and the man who drives him down to his office in the morning are both human; and between the two—the millionaire and the coachman—there should be mutual courtesy and good will. Each should respect the other's manhood and feelings.

This is true democracy. This is true religion. This is plain, every-day common sense and right.

The Crosses We are Building By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Stop and Consider What Crosses You Are Building for Yourselves

TO THE YOUNG poets old truths are often revealed. Before the discords of life begin to drown the wisdom voices from within the young poet who has the divine right to this royal title frequently speaks more truths than after he has gained knowledge from books and from men.

A few years ago there lived in New York a young girl scarcely out of her teens, who had been given the poet's dower. A fair, bright, sweet, lovable girl, with a great sense of humor and every indication of good health, her friends looked forward to her future as one of assured fame and growing success. But just as her voice was beginning to make its strong, clear note, heard beyond her own circle she passed into the Spirit world. Among the poems she left behind her as testimonials of her genius the one quoted below should make the name of Anne Reeve Aldrich immortal, for it contains the wisdom of the ages in twelve short lines:

A Parable.

By Anne Reeve Aldrich.

I made the cross myself whose weight
Was later laid on me.
This thought is torture as I toil
Up life's steep Calvary.

To think mine own hands drove the nails
I sang a merry song,
And chose the heaviest wood I had
To build it firm and strong.

If I had guessed—if I had dreamed—
Its weight was meant for me,
I should have made a lighter cross
To bear up Calvary.

After you have read these verses over carefully stop and ask yourself just what you are doing at present toward building a cross for your own shoulders.

Perhaps it is only begun, and you do not feel its weight. But by and by it will grow heavy and heavier, and then you will forget that you were the builder, and you will pose in your own eyes as a martyr to a cruel destiny.

It may be the cross is being built of uncontrolled appetites. You are indulging yourself in every desire; eating whatever you happen to think you want, drinking whatever you crave, overloading your system and overtaxing your powers of assimilation.

So far you have suffered only slight consequences, but as you continue to "choose the heaviest wood you have, and built it firm and strong," your cross of ill health will begin to press upon you, and you will feel that you are cursed among men and broken down in your prime by "overwork" or "care" or "worry."

Yet it will be all your own doing, your own cross building. Perhaps you are using gold dollars in a search for expensive pleasures, and the mast of your cross is formed of extravagant habits and the bar of wasted hours.

When the burden of poverty and need wears on you will you realize who built the cross?

It may be an irritable temper and a nagging and critical disposition. After you exhaust the patience of those nearest to you and find yourself unpopular and unloved, will you say that the world is a cold, cruel place, and friendship and love but names, or will you say, "Mine own hands drove the nails?"

It would be wise, perhaps to take a careful survey of your own doings before you let another day pass into eternity and before you drive another nail in your own cross.

Mrs. John A. Logan's Idea of the NEGRO PROBLEM

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)
(Great Britain rights reserved.)

IT is greatly to be regretted that the negro question has been again forced to the front. Of all questions, it is the most fruitful of mischief, not only to the negro, but to all parties.

It was to be hoped that such tactics as were displayed by President McKinley might have continued until the problem was solved by the sequence of the silent methods adopted by such leaders as Booker T. Washington, whose influence has certainly been for the betterment of his race.

Time alone can work out a solution of this momentous question.

President McKinley's strategy in taking the objectionable postmaster away from the scenes of his troubles and removing the cause of irritation to the people was wisdom par excellence, because in this elevation of the colored man to a better place he satisfied his people and the man himself, and in the removal from their midst of an irritating cause satisfied the white people.

It is a curious thing that the antagonisms of the South are toward the race and not toward the individuals of the race. They do not care how fortunate and successful a negro may be individually, provided he achieve success in fields away from the South.

It is the presence of the negro in an elevated position that excites their animosity.

It is a mooted question whether it is a wise policy for the colored race to insist upon being elevated to high positions in the South or to undertake to force the South to accept them, notwithstanding its prejudices.

It would seem wiser to avoid exciting these conflicts and to give the colored man recognition in other fields, where he will not be met at every turn with opposition, and in many cases with injustice.

A colored man or woman may be eminently qualified to fill important positions. And why should they not? Since the war of the rebellion the colored people of this country have had every advantage of education and advancement. If they could not have these in some localities, they could easily go where they could have them without sacrificing anything, because opportunities for employment have always gone hand in hand with opportunities for improvement. But give them recognition in localities where it will excite no comment, but be accepted as a fitting reward for meritorious qualifications and conduct.

It goes without saying that, notwithstanding the negro is in the majority in many sections of the South, he must lose in every conflict with the white race. There are many negroes with strains of noble blood in their veins, but this class is in the minority, and the preponderance of African blood in the majority neutralizes the power of the race to cope with the white man under present conditions.

The era has not yet arrived, if it is ever to come, for the eradication of prejudice engendered by many years of slavery.

Persons seem to forget that the greatest men of the colored race that have been produced in this country have been men with a greater or less degree of white blood in their veins, and that these men have been what they were in spite of their negro blood.

I am not informed as to what proportion the increase in the negro population shows amalgamation of the races. The whole question is one fraught with much importance to the negroes and to the white population of the Southern states.

me that it is a misfortune to urge upon any state objectionable issues.

Every citizen, black or white, should be protected, but in giving that protection it does not follow that special honor should be conferred upon any citizen to the disgust of other loyal citizens. Better exercise diplomacy and promote him to other fields of distinction and usefulness, where no objection will be raised or discord ensue.

It has been astonishing that so many colored men who have attained prominence by their intelligence and achievements in the North have gone back to the South to practise their professions or to pursue their vocations, when they knew it would be impossible to live down the prejudice against them.

This seems suicidal, because they can do better anywhere north of Mason and Dixon's line and be unmolested in the exercise of their legitimate privileges. It would seem that there could be no such thing as sentiment or association that could influence them to seek a home where every association would awaken unpleasant memories of the experience of their ancestors or of themselves.

The Etiquette of Matrimony By Dorothy Dix

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

ONE of the interesting questions raised by the Duryea divorce case is what language a perfect gentleman is justified in using toward his wife. Mr. Duryea is a man of position, of wealth, of education, accustomed to good society, yet he admits that he called the partner of his bosom "a fool," "an idiot," "a watering tart" and various other endearing tender epithets.

No point is, of course, more definitely settled than that the etiquette of matrimony does not demand that husband and wife shall treat each other as if they were ladies and gentlemen. Mr. Duryea is one of the first to publicly enunciate the dictum that a man is at liberty to say what he pleases to his wife, but there isn't any doubt that the majority of people secretly concur in the theory—at least in practice.

Most men say what they please to their wives, and the majority of women exercise a similar freedom of speech in regard to their husbands. If they do not use the language employed by Mr. Duryea it is because they possess a more limited vocabulary, but the important fact remains that the majority of married people say things to each other that they would not dare to say to the cook, who could give notice and leave, and that they would not dream of saying to a casual stranger.

Marriage is life with veneer rubbed off. It is the one relationship in the world in which men and women feel that they can dispense with all of the amenities of civilization, and in which they have the courage of their rudeness. Human beings have no idea of how many faults they possess nor how they look to others until they hear the litany of their shortcomings chanted with relentless candor by their husbands or wives.

Other people laugh at your good story. Your wife feels called upon to remind you that she has heard it forty times before, and that you are a failure as raconteur, anyway. Other people praise your youthful vivacity. Your husband feels free to tell you not to make a fool of yourself by acting like a schoolgirl when you look forty years old. It is on our husbands and wives we flash out all the ill temper and nerves and irritability we have not dared vent on customers and servants. It is our husbands and wives who tell us the thing about ourselves that we don't want to know, that we are trying to blind ourselves to. And yet there are people who speculate about the cause of domestic infidelity.

This is the very root of the divorce question, and if the real co-respondent were to be named, in ninety-nine out of a hundred cases of separation it would be lack of politeness. The freedom to say just what one pleases to husband or wife has broken up more homes than drink or infidelity or any other cause. Courtesy is the buffer which we interpose between ourselves and the unpleasant facts of life. Nowhere else is it so needed as in matrimony. Nowhere else is it so completely dispensed with, which accounts for the number and violence of the family jars we hear on every side.

Every man when he marries believes himself a hero in the eyes of his wife. Every woman thinks her husband has idealized her into an angel, and both of them get the jolt of their lives when they are told in plain, unvarnished English that the other party not only regards them as human beings, but as pretty poor, measly specimens of humanity at that.

This is universally conceded to be one of the privileges of matrimony. There are people with ingrowing consciences that even consider it a duty to tell their husbands or wives of their faults, but it does not make for peace or happiness. This may be a chastening experience, but it does not endear. Few people are meek enough to kiss the hand that smites them, or to endure the lecture on their own weaknesses.

Every one knows this, and it is inexplicable that we should ignore it in the most important crisis of life, for it is of little matter whether we get along with casual acquaintances or not in comparison with whether we hit it off with our own particular Mary Jane or John Henry. Yet to the one we show the most beautiful deference, the most exquisite consideration, the most flattering and tactful attention, while to the other—where the same conduct would bring us a harvest of happiness—we exhibit all that is most brutal in our natures and conduct.

Grotesquely pitiful as it sounds, it may be laid down as an axiom that if the supply of common, decent civility was not so short in family life, the crop of divorces would not be so large. We can overlook a good many big sins in the person whose deportment is always beyond reproach, and who possesses the knack of always saying the agreeable thing to us, and if more men and women practised these gentle arts in the home there would be fewer people out on a still hunt for a lawyer to free them from bonds that have become galling.

The book that most needs to be written and that will come nearest to filling a long felt want will be a handy manual of etiquette for husbands and wives that will teach them to be as polite to each other as they are to strangers. No greater fallacy exists than the widespread belief that we may say what we please to our own, and dispense in the family circle with the courtesies of life. The home is not a place for frankness. It is a place for diplomacy. Not in vain did the great masters paint Cupid with wings. That was to show that love can fly from us as well as to us, and that it is a shy bird that is precious easy to shoot out of our backyard.

The Coming of the Airship By Edgar Saltus

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

WE WANT a great deal here below. There is, of course, an adage to the contrary. But to say one thing and mean something else happens to every one, however devout. Among our present necessities is the airship. Either that or else, in New York at least, we will have to take to stilts. But stilts represent a retrogression. We are forging ahead. How fast we are forging it is platitudinous to note. The gate of recent decades has taken us further than did the pace of anterior millennia.

The gait will quicken. Everything being possible it is quite probable that at present we are but reaching a dawn. Night is about us still. But beyond is light. We will get to it. We will find there the airship. We will find there other things more surprising still. Moral substances perhaps and educational elixirs. But anyway we will get the airship.

The airship will be a development of the automobile precisely as the latter is a development of the bike. The point is who is to do the developing. Personally we cannot tell. Clairvoyance is not part of our equipment. We can see better behind than we can before. Yet this hindsight leads us to assume that the developing will not be effected in this country.

Nationally we are great at adopting and adapting ideas, but we are rather poor at originating them. Wireless telegraphy is a case in point. So, too, for that matter is the telegraph, so also is the telephone.

The telephone originated not here, but in England. It was a German who invented the telegraph. The steamboat which we ascribe to Fulton as we ascribe the telegraph to Morse, was due to an Englishman. The electric light glowed at the bidding of a Russian long before it dazzled Mr. Edison. Antiseptic surgery we got from London, bloodless surgery from Vienna, and if Wells did not discover anaesthetics it was through no fault of Sir Humphry Davy.

Even the dear historical novel did not originate here. Even the art of knowing enough to come in when it rains did not either. In the circumstances it is safe to assume that the airship will not surge from our immediate vicinity.

The THEATER

Comic opera and rural drama we had last week. The quality of both was above the average and fair audiences attended. "The Missouri Girl" was good because it was funny, the comic opera was good because it put us in mind of happy childhood and the days when Gulliver was the hero and the mimic armies of the Lilliputians marched across the stage of our imaginations, when Little Red Ridinghood played a star part, and Don Quixote was the only comedian worth a headline. The old comic operas, the moss-covered operas, etc., we couldn't do without 'em, so we go to see them all again and hush at Comstock's "Charley," the sacred elephant, and all the rest of the merry crew. This week we have some more of them and then something modern. The name "Offenbach" is suggestive. Cautious maiden aunts used to mention it only when pretty nieces were out of hearing, but opening night always found both aunts and nieces there. "La Perichole" is one of Offenbach's newest.

Then will follow "Lost River" and "Are You a Mason?" Both are well enough acquainted to dispense with a chaperon.

OLYMPIA OPERA CO.

The Olympia Opera company which opened a weeks engagement at the Greenwall Opera House last Thursday night will continue its engagement tomorrow night, presenting "The Diavolo." The company's repertoire now contains several of the best and latest successes notably among them are the two billed to be produced Tuesday and Wednesday nights, viz: "Neil Gwynne" and "La Perichole" neither of these operas have ever been presented in Fort Worth before. "Neil Gwynne" is by the late Robert Plattquette, and is one of his best creations. "La Perichole" is the fanciful creation of that most gifted of all opera bouffon composers, Jacques Offenbach, and was produced in English by Lillian Russell and her company in 1896 at the Casino in New York City where it made an unprecedented run of over five months. At the margin matinee Wednesday afternoon "La Mascotte" by Audratt will be presented.

to be on the blood and thunder order. It was clear, clear through and bristled with strong lines, touching pathos and refined humor. While intricate, the plot was so cleverly woven that it was easily followed and the company that presented the play was of a high average ability.

"ARE YOU A MASON?" The comedy which is to be presented at Greenwall's Opera House Friday night, March 27, with John C. Rice and Thos. A. Wise, as stars, is an adaptation from the German of Laufs and Kratz, by Leo Ditrichstein. The piece which had its original production at Wallack's Theater, New York, is credited with being the funniest of its class since "The Private Secretary" and "Charley's Aunt."

Local theater goers who saw Tim Murphy in "A Texas Steer" and "Old Innocence," will be glad to know that the popular comedian is going to revive "The Carpentier" and "The Carpentier" with Tim Murphy and an admirably selected company, including that beautiful and accomplished actress, Miss Dorothy Sherrod, is booked for an early presentation here.

Fort Worth theater goers will soon see not only a beautiful play but a great company as well when Comedian Thomas J. Keogh, supported by the Grand Opera House Stock Co. of New Orleans will present April 27 "Rudolph." Bronson, Howard and David Belasco's master production. It had both a phenomenal run in New York and London and has inducements from Henry Irving, Joe Jefferson and other prominent theatrical people. It has been selected as a starring vehicle by Mr. Keogh as it is a splendid play, replete with humor and pathos and with catchy specialties, elaborate scenic effects and a story that appeals to all.

One of David Warfield's best-liked stories he is telling in the west, where, by the way, he is meeting with considerable favor in "The Auctioneer," it being his first trip to the coast since he achieved fame as a character comedian. Some

DRESSMAKERS HAVE LIVE ADVERTISEMENT

It is established that famous Parisian dressmakers depend upon living advertisements to extol their abilities. In Paris today there are probably a hundred actresses and women of the upper half-world who wear the most sumptuous gowns without paying for even the material. These wonderful frocks they parade upon the stage, in restaurants or at the race course, and they take good care to let it be known from what establishment the gowns came. Dressmakers vie for the privilege of gowning the reigning beauty of the rapid capital, whether she be of the stage or of the tickets, Joseph Jefferson." The man glanced keenly at the woman, and said, "I am sorry, madame, but I cannot honor this."

"Why not?" she demanded in astonishment and offended dignity.

"Because," replied the ticket seller, "Mr. Jefferson signs his name this way only when requested for his autograph. Whenever he signs an order for tickets it's plain 'J. Jefferson.'"

There is a tradition in Texas that if a mule kicks a ducky on the head the mule will go lame. Macklyn Arbuckle, who for a brief period practiced law in that state before becoming a follower of Thespis, says that on one occasion he met a little colored girl limping along a road, her feet wrapped in immense bandages of gunny sacking.

"What's the matter with your feet?" was the natural inquiry.

"My fadder done hit me on de head while I was standin' on a iron cellar door," was the response.

restaurants, and for each gown they let her wear, their trade increases in proportion. Paquin, now renowned, succeeded Worth as the foremost dressmaker of Paris by furnishing his best ideas to Mme. Rejane. She was the rage of the city and Paquin shared her prosperity.

Another actress, Lucile Gerard, made the fortune of Viot, the milliner. Viot evolved the idea of a hat of cherries, with crimson streamers, and the beautiful Gerard was asked to wear the odd conception. The cherry hat resulted in Lucile's rise in the theatrical world, and Viot's fame as a milliner. Jeanne Dorlan served as Paquin's best living model for six years. A few weeks ago Mlle. Dorlan committed suicide under the most tragic circumstances. At her funeral the whole dressmaking establishment turned out to mourn for the lovely creature who had worn the dainty frocks so well.

FRATERNAL BROTHERHOOD

Fort Worth lodge No. 277, Fraternal Brotherhood, gave a very interesting musical and literary entertainment at its hall, corner Fourth and Main streets, last Wednesday evening, which was largely attended by the members and friends. The fraternal organizations of the city and bids far to surpass any of them in membership, at the present rate of increase. John J. Cox gave an entertaining talk on "Fraternal Societies" in general and the Fraternal Brotherhood in particular, also stating that the fraternal societies of this city, recommending that all fraternal societies of the city send their items to this paper for Sunday publication. It is very interesting to the members of the different societies to read the proceedings of their meetings in the Sunday issue of The Telegram. Mr. Cox being a member of most all of the fraternal organizations of the city is fully qualified to speak on this question.

There were 607,000,000 passengers carried by the railroads of the United States in 1902.

SEVERE ATTACK OF GRIP

Cured by One Bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

"When I had an attack of the grip last winter (the second one) I actually cured myself with one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Frank W. Perry, editor of the Enterprise, Shortsville, N. Y. "This is the honest truth. I at times kept from coughing myself to pieces by taking a teaspoonful of this remedy, and when the coughing spell would come on at night I would take a dose and it seemed that in the briefest interval the cough would pass off and I would go to sleep perfectly free from cough and its accompanying pains. I had no idea that it would or could knock out the grip, simply because I had never tried it for such a purpose, but it did, and it seemed with the second attack of coughing the remedy caused it to not only be of less duration, but the pains were far less severe, and I had not used the contents of one bottle before Mr. Grip had bid me adieu." JOHN C. RICE AND THOMAS A. WISE IN "ARE YOU A MASON?"

"LOST RIVER."

Joseph Arthur's big scenic melodrama "Lost River," ran for six months in New York and was kindly treated by the critics as well as by the public. It was Mr. Arthur who put a fire engine in working order on the stage in "The Still Alarm," and gave a buzz saw a place in the same play. The scene of the play is rural Indiana. Its story recites the adventures of Robert Blessing, a young contractor, building an aqueduct over Lost River, who falls in love with a little country girl and endeavors to discover the mystery of her parentage. His efforts make him distrusted by narrow-minded country folk, and enemies plot his destruction and that of the aqueduct. Their attempts are foiled, and the incidents are given the aid of the finest scenery, storm and light effects, and massive mechanical devices which have been lavished on any production of this class in recent years. "Lost River" will appear at Greenwall's Opera House Thursday, matinee and night March 26.

The Galveston Tribune had the following to say:

"Lost River" at the Grand last night was a most pleasant surprise to those who expected this delightful melodrama years ago he left San Francisco an unknown, now he goes back a Belasco star. But the story as he tells it goes this way:

"Isaacstein was sent to a New York hospital, where he was found to be suffering with appendicitis. After the doctors had made their diagnosis they operated as usual in such cases. A friend of Isaacstein's met another acquaintance of his in Hester street and asked:

"'Haf you heard about Isaacstein?'"

"'No. Vass iss it?'"

"'He vas sick. They take him by der hospital, and vat you tink they do to him?'"

"'Vell. Vell. Vat iss it?'"

"'They put him in a room all by himself and take his appendix away from him.'"

"'Nai! Nai! Vat a pity, ain't it, he didn't have it in his wife's name.'"

It seems that recently at some social function when the orchestra played "Mr. Dooley" Comte Robert de Montesquiou jumped up and stood respectfully until, looking around, he was surprised to see that all of the other guests present had remained seated. "What?" exclaimed the Comte. "Isn't it the custom here to stand when the national anthem is played? Surely 'Yankee Dooley' must be very popular with the American people, for I have heard it every day and everywhere since my arrival!"

Miss Sandol Milliken, who is now appearing in "The Bird in the Cage," was singled out again by Charles Frohm for promotion. This little actress, who not long ago was struggling along in musical comedy, is to become leading ingenue of the Empire Theater company. She will succeed Miss Beatrice Irwin in the role of Beatrice Fielding in "The Unforgotten." Miss Milliken's debut at the Empire will not be until after she has had a short whirl of the near-by one-night stands in the Clyde Fitch play, who will succeed her in "The Bird in the Cage," or whether the piece will be withdrawn, cannot now be said. Miss Irwin will leave the Empire to be near her fiancé, James Erskine, sometimes known as "Junius," when he tries to be dramatic critic, and sometimes called the Earl of Rosslyn when he is trying success for breaking the bank at Monte Carlo. The noble Briton is to back himself in a piece called "The Young Miss Pettifer." Miss Irwin will be one of the principals in this production. She has been quite successful at the Empire.

plainest waist. Tab collars seem to be the thing. Nearly every stock has a tab of some shape either in the front or back. The chiffon and lace stocks are generally fagotted together with coarse little steel nail heads.

THE stock of material which is usually attached to a tailor-made silk waist is no longer of any use. Fancy stocks of every description are to take their place. A great many regular collars were discarded last year, but this year there are none to be seen. A young woman who is at all handy with a needle can have several of these for the amount of money she would pay for one in the shops.

Beautiful designs are shown in cotton goods, laces and the finest silks and chiffons. They ornament the

A stock that is exceptionally pretty to be worn with a plain cotton shirt waist is shown in the picture. It is made of butchers' linen. The stock is perfectly plain, with a smart bow in front. These stocks are practical, because they are easily laundered. The bow is made from two shapely pieces of the linen and can easily be untied and laundered. The stock is lined with a piece of canvas with a little pocket arranged under the chin in which a little piece of celluloid is slipped to keep turn over from stock keeps its shape better if dry cleaned.

Another rather plain stock has a pointed turnover which is embroidered in mercerized linen floss. Such a very pretty and easy stock to make is shown. The plain foundation is made of biscuit-colored satin taffeta. The circular turnover is cut separately, and buttoned around the edge with pale blue silk. A row of tiny black French knots appear, just above this, with sprigs of forget-me-nots embroidered on each side. A long pointed tab hangs from the center, which is finished and embroidered in the same manner.

A canvas lining or pieces of featherbone can be used to hold it up.

The second figure shows a stock of pearl white chiffon and black-and-white fagotting—the foundation of the stock is of chiffon and fagotting, ornamented with French knots and dainty crocheted buttons, and is exceptionally pretty worn with fancy silk waists.

A very stylish stock is shown in the third picture. It is made of white lawn embroidered in red cherries and shaded green leaves. The foundation is plain, with a wide turn-over cut with long leaf-shaped ends, which are embroidered with the cherries and leaves. Such a stock is very striking when worn with a black waist.

Circular turnovers can also be embroidered to match, to be worn on the sleeves. The soft, fluffy materials are of course more dressy and can be trimmed more elaborately, but some very smart stocks are shown in washable goods.

The white cotton chevot stocks, with Ascot tie, will again be worn with outing suits, such as golf and tennis. They are soft and comfortable and just mannish enough to complete the costume.

CHATS WITH LOVERS

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am a young girl of 18. I am engaged to a young man of 21. We are to be married on his birthday, in July. We have known each other since childhood, and might be happy.

There is a young girl who is paying a good deal of attention to him. He seems very much annoyed when I am around. He has asked me to go to England with him, so as to get rid of this girl. I am a little bit afraid to do it.

Do you think it is proper for me to go under the standing condition of affairs, and also before we are married? I have heard that he is engaged to the other girl. My parents say it is not true, but I am quite sure it is so. Do you think I would be right if I send him his engagement ring back?

GERTRUDE: I most certainly do not think it would be proper for you to go to England with your fiancé before you are married. The only thing for you to do is to find out if he is engaged to this other girl and if he is, at once to break off your engagement to him. Do not send back the ring until you are quite sure that he is deceiving you.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am a young lady 17 years of age. There is a young man I go out with often, and he seems to think of me a great deal, but never has spoken of marriage or the future. Kindly let me know and give me some advice as to what I should do. I do not wish to waste my time with him, and perhaps some good chance might turn up for me and I would let it go, thinking he might propose.

LILLIAN: Most certainly do not ask him his intentions. That would be a most unwomanly thing to do. He probably has only a feeling of friendship for you and has no idea of marriage. If you feel that you are wasting your time give him up, and perhaps some man who has serious intentions will come along. You are far too young to have such worldly ideas in your head and to see a possible husband in every man you meet. Put all this nonsense out of your mind and enjoy your friendships with young men without always wondering whether or not their intentions are serious.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I am a young lady 18 years of age, and about eight months ago met a young man who has since been coming steadily to see me, and has taken me out to theaters, etc., considerably. He is right in with the family and comes nearly every evening to the house, and if we do not go out he plays cards with my father. Although he has never spoken of marriage except as in a jest to me, he seems to be under the impression that sooner or later he will make me his wife. I like the young man very much, and also his company, but as for marriage, that is out of the question, for I would not marry him for several reasons, one being the difference in religion, and also as regards his position, for he is very uncertain in keeping a position.

Now, this is the question: How am I to be rid of him without insulting him, as I do not wish to keep him under the impression that he holds? It keeps me from meeting other young men, as I have the name of keeping steady company, and also keeps him from meeting other girls that perhaps he would like better. Another question I would like to ask you is this: Am I at liberty to go out and accept invitations from other young men while this one is coming to the house?

M. J. B.: The next time he speaks to you in just about marriage you had better let him see that you do not intend marrying him. Tell him that it is too serious a matter to jest on, and that will in all probability bring things to a crisis and you can tell him that you never can marry him. It is just possible he has no serious intentions regarding marrying you, and in that case it is best that you get the affair on a settled basis. You certainly are not bound to him in any way and are at liberty to see as many young men as you please and to accept their invitations. After you have had a serious talk with him and have let him see that you never will marry him, he perhaps will cease his visits to your house, but you must begin by declining his invitations to theaters and other amusements.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I have known a young man only a short time and have met him in society, and he has been with me all evening, and before going home has asked me if he could not have the pleasure of taking me to the theater. I have refused him and told him I think best to wait a time yet and let me think over the matter. I think he is a very kind and polite young man, but do not know what I should do, if I should accept his offer or not, and if he should ask me to keep company with him, if I should do it or not.

DIMPLES: You seem to be in a very undecided frame of mind. Surely you know whether or not you like the young man well enough to accept his invitations. Going to the theater is not such a grave matter that it needs days of consideration. If you like him and enjoy being in his society accept his invitations. If you do not like him tell him that you cannot go to the theater, and that will probably end it, but decide one way or the other, or the man will get tired of waiting and then you will have no say in the matter.

Way to a Woman's Heart

IN one of the fiction successes of the season the hero tries in every way to win the girl of his choice. Devotion, absence, riches fall to make an impression. He loses his fortune; calls once more on the girl before going west to take up a life of toil; she is engaged to another; her fiancé calls; the hero seizes her hands while the other man is in the hall waiting to be announced and compels her to declare she loves him and that she is engaged to marry him.

The story reads well and no doubt many girls say to themselves that it is the way they would be wooed. As Lochinvar seized his bride at the altar so many girls want to be won by force and arms so long as the hero is a brave, worthy young man.

Others want years of devotion, of hopelessness on the part of the sweetheart, yet devotion in spite of loss of hope. How would you be wooed? How would you woo? For the best letter on this topic a Gorman silver prize will be awarded by the New York Journal. Address letters to The Telegram Home Magazine Page, and the letters will be forwarded.

To the Editor: In all love affairs several elements enter, namely: To love, to be loved, to be worthy of being loved. The first or the second elements, taken together or separately, is or are essential to success; the last without one or both of the others, means failure.

Some men are bold, skillful and ardent wooers; other are shy, awkward and modest. Some men are so accustomed to flirting with every girl they meet that it is as easy for them to love as falling off a log. They think nothing of starting a flirtation and approaching women sometimes without the slightest acquaintance. I shall not be one to condemn them.

But there are men more reserved, who never flirt, unless it be with the one they consider to be the finest flower in the garden of womanhood. They are backward in coming forward. It is almost a new experience to them, and they act like the novices they are.

They cannot act boldly, dashingly, and, as it were, mount the hill and storm the parapets of a woman's heart. They are not old hands at the business. Was the animal man ever backward? Did his unworthiness ever have weight enough with him to deter his progress in his love storming expedition? Did he not think that as he is a man he is good enough for any woman?

Suppose that though one has no vices or bad habits he thinks himself unworthy the hand of the woman he loves; in fact, believes she would be foolish in having him, how can such a man be cold in even trying to make her acquaintance? Suppose he reflects that he can neither dance nor sing, nor crack jokes, and is by no means a social lion—though he is a lover of music and of everything refined, noble and artistic, what chance has he beside the dashing, worldly man who can sing, dance, joke and make merry?

JAMES IRWIN.

To the Editor: How shall I woo? I find the best answer in the paragraph which precedes the clever essay of Miss Winifred Oliver in the Evening Journal of March 6.

Miss Oliver writes: "Every mother as she gazes on her infant son sees in him a future irresistible wooer of women." The blue eyes of her baby look blandly into hers. She cuddles the baby to her breast and the thought to her heart. The baby's thoughts are not responsive to her own; he is absolutely indifferent to her adoration, yet her love is so enthralling that his very indifference revises it into a rain of kisses upon his face.

Here is perfect love—and not only perfect love, but the perfection of love making, on the baby's part, I mean.

There are three reasons why the wooing offered by a baby boy is perfect love-making. First to waken within a woman's heart the deeper passion of which so few men have the benefit, she must first realize the absolute dependence of the man's personal welfare and contentment upon her. Second, there must be an indifference on the part of the man to all she lavishes upon him. Third, just as the mother says to herself (as Miss Oliver might have added) "My boy will be my protector one day," so the maiden who is wooed must be convinced that her lover will one day be her refuge and strength.

FRANCES THOMPSON.

To the Editor: There are no two heads alike. No matter what you say; And every girl would like To be wooed in a different way;

And should I come to wooing, I'll know what I am doing. According to her inclinations Close or timid will be our relations

All her fancies I will watch, And to my deeds I'll make them match; But still in every act I'll see that I'm intact.

To successfully woo Is easy, if you know Her light sides and her shades, And the string that with her heart vibrates. AD. E. SMITH. Meriden, Conn.

Miss Chappelle & Says

DEAR MISS CHAPPELLE: Would you very kindly tell me of something that will remove wrinkles from my forehead?

Massage is the only thing that will remove this sign of worry, and then when you have a smooth, wrinkleless forehead the only way that you can keep them always is to cease to worry. Massage your forehead every day for about ten minutes with sweet olive oil, and it will not be very long before the ugly little lines will entirely vanish. But before you do this, while you are doing it and afterwards, keep your mind far from worry, or the wrinkles will all come back.

DEAR MISS CHAPPELLE: Would you kindly inform me through The Telegram what to do for my teeth? They are very yellow.

B. J.: Pulverized pumice is an excellent thing with which to whiten the teeth. But you must not use it with greater frequency than once a month. Your teeth should be cleaned twice a day, and prepared chalk is a good powder for constant use. A few drops of lemon juice in the water is also a splendid thing, for it not only removes the yellow but also sweetens the breath.

MY DEAR MISS CHAPPELLE: Kindly tell me how to prepare oatmeal bags.

BUFFALO. To prepare oatmeal bags to use in the bath water, make several little bags of cheesecloth, and put in each about two tablespoonfuls of oatmeal. Throw one of these bags into the wash basin, and when the water becomes milky by squeezing the bag use it for both face and hands. The same bag may be used three or four times.

CLINGING MATERIALS

Are the Mode & Declare Dressmakers

Black and White Check, with Braid and Buttons

THE heavy and mannish-looking materials of the last two seasons must give way this year to the thin, soft materials. Even the tailor-made gowns are of soft, fluffy goods, such as etamine, basket cloth and French voile. Voiles are used a great deal and especially in tailor-made costumes.

The foulards, which last season were considered only suitable for shirt waist suits and morning gowns, have been revived for the most dressy occasions. They are made up in the most elaborate designs.

Among the gorgeous gowns on exhibition at the Dressmakers' Protective Association's Convention, in session in the Masonic Temple, there are to be found many dainty creations of foulards.

All the gowns have a soft, fluffy appearance. No stiff, heavy, hanging tailor skirts. They all fall loosely and many of them are shirred very full at the band.

Many women who are a little stout object to this effect and in these cases it is relieved by the fullness being brought more into the back, with the front brought in to fit the figure more closely.

Black and White Stripe Flannel Piped in Black.

Cording in the shirred skirts is the newest thing. Silk acellennes are very much used.

In a lecture given by Miss White, president of the Dressmaker's Association, she said that during her stay in Paris, after investigating the matter as thoroughly as she did, she only saw one plain tailor-made gown. The gowns are not made as they formerly were, but all of soft materials, elaborately trimmed.

The flat, broad shoulder effect must be carried out on waists as well as gowns.

Delaines will be used a great deal this Summer. They are exceptionally pretty, in plain colors, with tiny spots and natural colored floral effects. They very much resemble the filmy muslins, but keep their freshness and newness twice as long.

For midsummer linens are always ready and albition. A Chicago modiste offers a very attractive tailor gown of black and white check trimmed in braid and buttons, with a unique touch of red in piping on the cuffs, collar and tabs.

The jacket has a wide collar which is trimmed with the buttons and piped with the red. Skirt is trimmed with braid running in narrow bands to within a few inches of the front, which is left plain. Also plain over the hips. This is a stylish and altogether very serviceable costume.

Another pretty gown from a St. Louis modiste is of ribbed taffeta with escorial lace coat of Louis XIV style, which has a long shoulder cape with pointed ends trimmed with braid drops and wide flaring cuffs of the lace. This coat reaches to the knees and is worn over a perfectly plain gored skirt. An Ohio modiste exhibits an attractive Louise pedestrian suit. It is navy blue, stitched in ciret red. It resembles the shirt-waist and suit very much and is embroidered up the front and on the sleeves and collar with a pretty design of Oriental shades.

An evening gown of biscuit-colored voile is shown. It has a seven-gored skirt with yoke back, ornamented with a fan design in lattice work. Waist decollete, with elbow sleeves. Same design in lattice work across the front, with peau de chine draw through the lace.

From St. Joseph, Mo., comes a very smart striped flannel shirt-waist suit. The skirt is cut on the bias, with a seam up the front, bringing stripes together diagonally. It has a yoke of plain white stitched flannel with straps of the striped flannel piped with black running over the shoulders.

The graduated flounce on the skirt is outlined by points of the material piped in black.

The sleeve has two straps trimmed with pearl buttons. It is cut with the bishop fullness, with wide fancy cuff. The skirt is unlined and the waist lined with a very thin silena.

THE CHARM OF COLONIAL FURNITURE

Into the still villages of New England, with the plain square houses set in green yards along the broadly shaded streets; among the farmhouses of the early Dutch settlers in New York; into the prim Quaker settlements of Pennsylvania and Delaware, and to the dilapidated mansions of the old South has gone the enthusiastic collector and venerator of the fine old-time stained pieces of furniture that our forefathers brought across the water before the republic was born. Closely in the wake of the lover of these ancient bits has followed the pseudo admirer of old things, impelled by his desire to be in fashion, and often ahead of both has appeared the commercial collector.

"Since it has become so fashionable to furnish houses with the expensive carved mahogany of a century or two ago," said a dealer, "we collectors of rare furniture send

"That chair is all that is left of the furniture we have had in the family for over 100 years, and I will not part with it. I want my eyes to rest on it when I die. When I am gone you can have it."

Rare Antiques Owned by Negroes.

"There are some old families in the South with whole sets of clawfooted furniture that they don't use and won't sell, and yet our patrons are willing to pay any price to get sets that match. Some of the persons we visit despite us for wanting such old-fashioned trash, and some make their bargains with rears, as though old members of their families were leaving them. Again we get many rare antiques from negroes, old family servants, who became possessed of them through gift or abandonment during and after the Civil War. In few cases does manufacture, 1620. The escritoire is a quaint combination of desk, bookcase and chest of drawers made in a long-forgotten fashion.

In the dining-room a superb china cabinet combining a cabinet for liquors, extended from floor to ceiling, its lustrous wood a fit setting for rare old china and cut glass, and its wonderful carving harmonizing with that of the other furniture.

"Oh, where can I get something like that?" appealed the Northern woman.

"I will take you to see some of the places where it is kept," said the Southerner, "but you will find it hard to get."

True to her word, she drove the visitor beyond the long green avenues of the plantations that hold Columbia in their moss gray shadows to a venerable house with high-peaked roof and walls of log and plaster, lars draped in ivy from crown to square pedestals, all that is left of a home so magnificent and so famous that even its ruins inspire the beholder with awe.

To the right and to the left of the ruins rose tall, gray stone towers, in height about that of a three-story building, sinuating a little toward the top. In one of these the priceless old wines of the Hamptons had been kept; in the other provisions for cold storage. Now they are filled with magnificently carved mahogany furniture held in the compass of a spider's web; with mirrors from England and the Tuilleries, which once reflected the pride and glory of the French Empire; with priceless bits of cut glass, odd pieces that have rung to the toasts of a hundred years or more. The aged Hampton sisters cling to these heirlooms, unwitting of their value, and loving them as links which bind them to the past. The only bit of life upon the place is an ancient negro, Aunt Patty, who dwells in a little cabin back among the ruins of former outhouses. Aunt Patty has served a century of Hamptons.

"Here I stays on my old mistress' holdin'," she said. "My young mistress takes good keer of me. She don't let Aunt Patty want 'nothin'."

The poor old crane was busy at a quaint splaining wheel, which had probably seen the dawn of white dominion in South Carolina. Her cabin was bare and poverty stricken, for the gaunt wof of poverty skulked close beside the door of her white-headed "young mistress."

"Won't you sell me that wheel, Aunt Patty?" pleaded the woman from the North.

"No'm," mumbled the old woman, shaking her head. "I spins de yarn dat makes my wooden stockings fo' de winter on dat wheel."

"But I will give you all the nice warm stockings you want."

"Ah! I spins de yarn fo' my grandchilden," argued the old woman. "I makes my livin' spinnin' yarn on dat wheel."

Like a Chinese image set in motion she shook her head to each inducement offered.

"My ma an' my gran'ma befo', dey use dis wheel. No'm, I ryan't sell it," she said.

Some distance down the road a negro woman exclaimed cheerfully, in answer to the question about Aunt Patty: "Oh, she don't want for nothin'. Why, some weeks she gets as much as a dollar a week!"

And the woman from New York with the full pocketbook had to leave to the poverty-stricken homes of that part of South Carolina without adding a single heirloom to her collection.

Novelties In Parasols.

New parasols, especially those in the stylish pongee tones, are almost always lined with contrasting tints of silk, sometimes shirred and sometimes put in plain. The outer portions show a tendency to small embroidered effects and to wide borders of vertical tucks hemstitched and bordered with tiny frills of two colors.

Out of courtesy to the rag for pongee gowns new parasols not only come in that material with all sorts of ornamentation, but also in white silk and chiffon trimmed with flounces of lace and applique over with medallions of pongee-colored lace. Nearly all the fancy parasols have handles of natural colored wood, but many have ornamental handles that can be fastened on at the bottom. These are jeweled and show a tendency to flat effects.

The parasols which will act as frames to beauty—for they are too pretty to be termed useful for any other purpose—show decided although delicate contrasts in colors and patterns, with a leaning toward black and white in embroidered, herringbone and fan, trimmed effects. An old white parasol can only be covered with square dotted black flit net and edged with a frill or flounce of lace to be the smartest thing of the season, while an old colored parasol can simply be covered over with pongee and serve another season of usefulness.

Oriental bands are among the popular trimmings for new parasols, and the girl who is shopping for spring fashions is gathering together a collection of dainty parasols for her spring costumes with an eye to contrasting colors showing sharp outlines in street parasols and soft tones in those for dress wear.

One of the new parasols has a small pocket placed on the inside near the edge, just large enough to hold a dainty bit of cambric, lace trimmed or embroidered.

New York Fads & Fancies.

When Mrs. M. Orme Wilson's new home, on sixty-fourth street, near Fifth avenue, is completed it will have one of the handsomest parlors in town. This room practically comes from Paris, where the beautiful woodwork which covers its walls was carved. The room is after the style of Louis Seize, and the color scheme of its decoration is turquoise blue and gold. The entrance hall, staircase and foyer hall, on the second floor, will also be remarkably fine. They are of Chen stone, of the heavy Louis Seize style, genre Deffosse.

Mrs. John Blake Baker's drawing room contains a very quaint Oriental lamp of graceful shape, and is a bit suggestive of the Cathedral candlesticks so popular these days. It has a shade of carved brass that calls to mind the domes of Turkish mosques, and a number of small lamps project from the sides of the tall standard, like so many arms.

Everything is green in Mrs. David H. Greer's library, in St. Bartholomew's rectory, No. 342 Madison avenue, the walls, curtains and furniture coverings, even the wood basket of wicker piled full of logs, which stands next to the fireplace, harmonizing. The effect is particularly restful and pleasing for a reading room.

Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting has a luxurious and easy inviting chair in the red reception room of her town house, No. 24 East Seventy-second street. It is of white wood covered with a red velvet and silk striped material, and suggests in its shape a steamer chair, as it can be stretched out to accommodate one in a reclining position.

A Convenient Pocket.

Maple Sugar Time.

Take a quart of bread dough after it is moulded for the last raising and after it is one cupful of maple sugar, a quarter teaspoonful of soda and a teaspoonful of butter. Let it rise. Then mould again and cut into small rolls. Put in a buttered tin, let them rise 15 or 20 minutes and bake in a quick oven.

Maple Sugar Biscuit.

Make a very rich tender baking powder crust, using milk in place of water. Roll out about half the thickness of ordinary biscuit and cut into shape with the cover of a quarter pound baking powder can or a tea caddy. As every other biscuit is cut out sprinkle bits of maple sugar on top, moisten the next biscuit and press down on top of the sugared one. Lay close together in the pan in which they are to be baked so that they will rise instead of spreading. Brush over with milk or melted butter and bake in a quick oven until they are brown, but not hard. Serve at once with saucers of warm, melted syrup.

Sure a la Creme.

Roll together a pound of grated maple sugar and a half cupful of rich cream until the syrup forms a soft ball when rolled in a saucer with a spoon. Cover the bottom of well buttered tin with a layer of chopped buttered meats and pour the candy over them. Let it harden a little and work into squares with a knife.

This is a favorite confection among the French-Canadian peasants, who so use the boiled cream and sugar for being a delicate white cake. An excellent layer cake is made by using this sure a la creme, with the butter used for a filling, then frosting the top layer with the cream, without nuts.

Maple Parfait.

Put one quart of milk into the double boiler and scald. Meanwhile beat the yolks of six eggs until lemon colored and thick, add a pinch of salt and two cupfuls of graded maple sugar, or one and one-half cupfuls maple syrup. Pour the hot milk into the egg and sugar mixture, and when well blended turn all back into the double boiler. Cook until the mixture adheres to the spoon, stirring constantly and lifting occasionally from the water to keep from boiling too rapidly. As soon as the custard is thick and creamy raise from the fire and beat into it little by little the whites of six eggs, already beaten stiff. Keep beating until cold, then stir in one pint of cream, whipped stiff and turn into the freezer. Pack with three parts ice to one part of salt, and turn the crank slowly until the mixture begins to "set." Pack in a mold, taking care that no bit of salt is allowed to work its way in. When ready to serve, turn out on a platter and sprinkle the surface of the mold with one cupful chopped butternuts or almonds.

Hot Maple Sauce for Ice-Cream.

Put one pint of maple syrup and a half cupful of cream into a saucepan, and cook without stirring until it boils. When a little of the syrup dripped into cold water can be rolled into a soft ball, take from the fire, stir in a half cupful of English walnuts, chopped fine, and keep hot until ready to serve.

The Aggressive Elbow.

The angle at which woman carries her elbow in assertive efforts to lift her trailing, clinging skirts transforms it into a humanity puncher. With calm unconsciousness, and as often callous indifference, maid and matron punch their way to their goal, be it at the bargain counter of the department store or the crowded shopping streets.

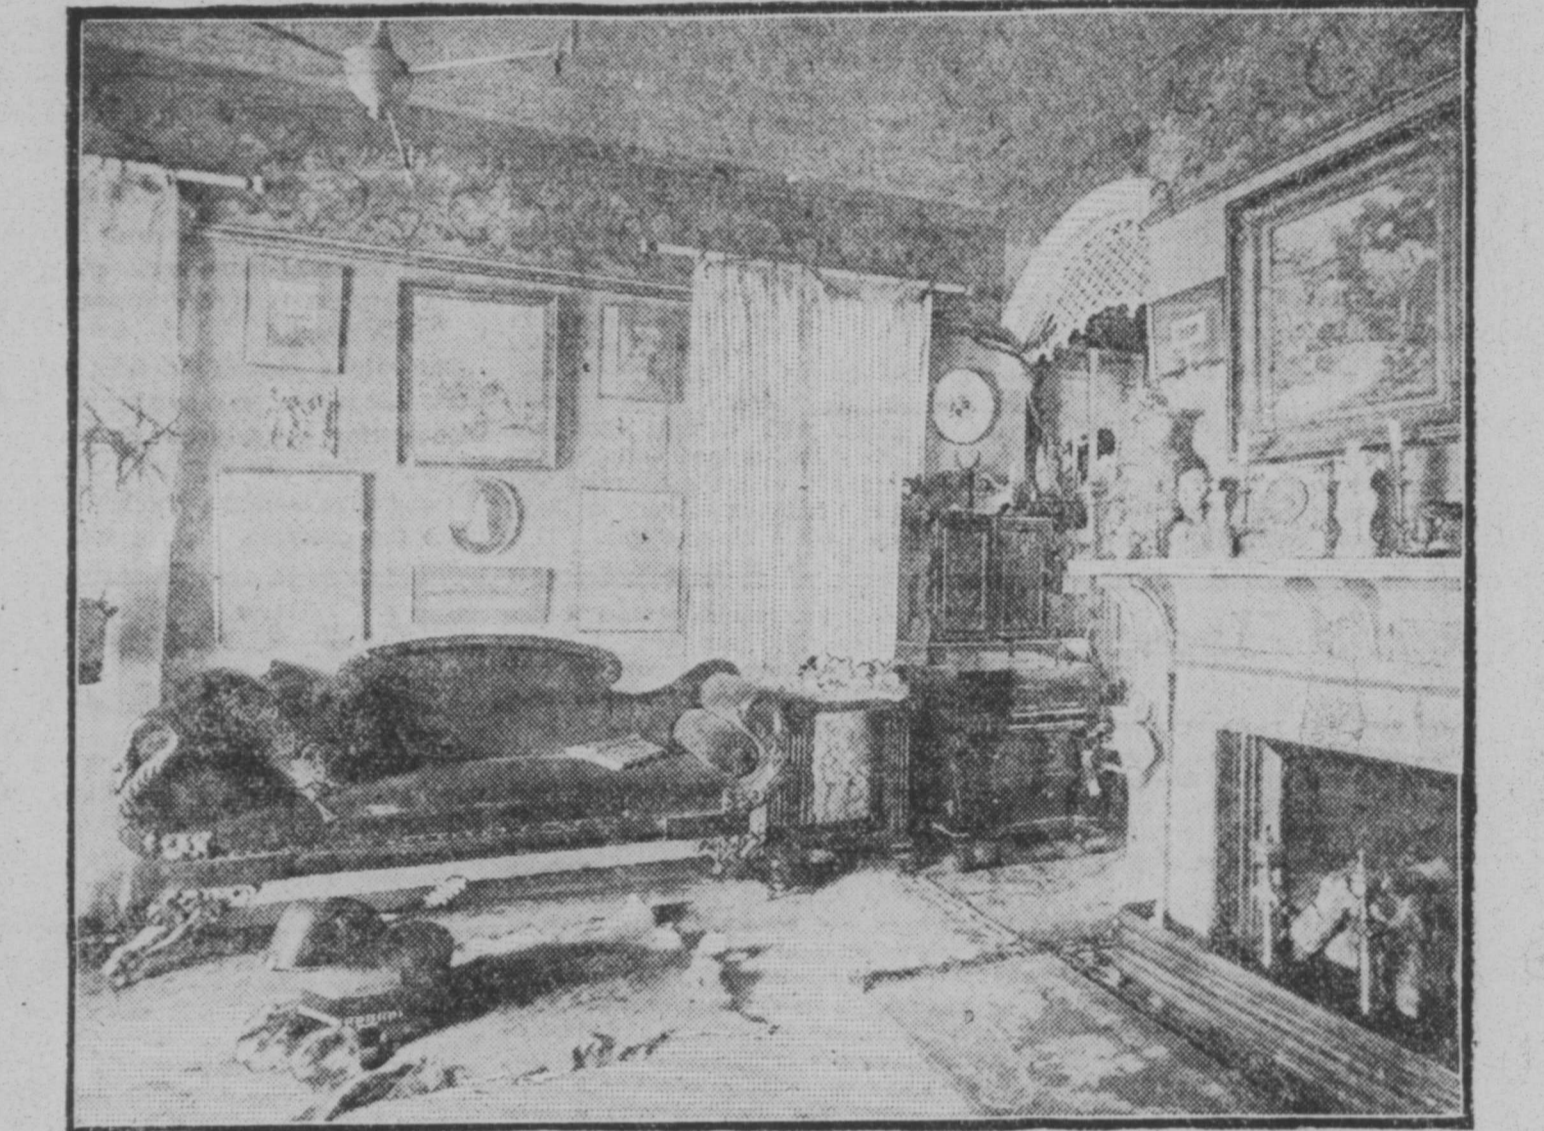

None can deny that the unavoidable annoyances of crowded thoroughfares to which people in large cities are inured are sufficient tax upon patience and equanimity, and why will women trebly increase these by the adoption of an inelegant whim in the carriage of their arms?

Because women have become infatuated with an inconvenient and slovenly mode of dress is no reason that they should yield to another which enhances its evil; but the crowning iniquity and absurdity of the street-cleaning gown is the encroaching elbow which nudges throats or digs into every passerby as she awkwardly clutches the clinging folds of her skirt in a vain effort to lift it from the disease-breeding fith of the pavement.

For one originator of anything there are a thousand imitators. Humanity is like a flock of sheep and springs with the same eagerness to follow its leader.

If you must wear trailing skirts at times and seasons when they are out of place, make them as little of an offense as possible and lift them gracefully. A little practice before a full-length mirror will enable any woman to learn the art of gathering the folds of her skirt in one hand and lifting them so that, with the arm extended by her side they will be raised entirely from the pavement. In this position the arm not merely accomplishes the purpose of protecting the skirt from the dirt, but, being comparatively free and unconstrained, the tension of the whole body is relieved, and it is possible to walk with some degree of ease and grace, even when handicapped by the necessity of caring for a trailing gown.

our agents to scour the country. Most of the richest pieces come from the far South and the New England States and represent the finest art of the woodcarver and cabinet-maker in the old English and French styles. No such furniture is made today, and it is practically indestructible.

"You would be surprised to learn that much of it is picked up in trash heaps, woodsheds, garrets and cellars. One of the richest carved pieces we have in the house was rescued from a chickenhouse, where it had been placed for the hens to roost on. Many persons who have come into possession of rare antique furniture of old times have no understanding whatever of its value and do not want the trouble of cleaning it. Their principal grievance against it, however, is its weight. A single bedpost is so the mahogany possesses any but a sentimental value to its owners, and we pay for the sentiment attached to the pieces or profit by the lack of it, as in the case of rich antiques rescued from woodsheds and chickenhouses."

Northern visitors to Aiken and other fashionable resorts in the South are often lured many miles from the beaten travel paths in quest of an old table, cabinet or some other piece of mahogany that has survived the fortunes of war and the changes of peace, but not infrequently even extravagant offers of money fail to dislodge it from the spot it has graced so long.

In Columbia, S. C., not long ago a wealthy Northern woman bent upon matching the rare pieces in her collection, came upon a house that was literally filled with sofas and chairs whose shining mahogany had pledged by cannon balls forged in 1776, the inn where George Washington and Lord Cornwallis alternately made their headquarters. The latter, in his last hasty exit from the inn, left behind him a beautifully made round mahogany card table that folded flat against a slender stem of the wood, supported by four arched legs. This he had carried through his whole campaign.

Dilapidated family portraits of beauties and cavaliers of olden time looked down upon discolored carved mahogany of the same bygone era, making strange contrast with articles of almost every period since.

After futile endeavors to become possessed of some of the antiques which charmed her fancy the Northerner bent her whole energies toward obtaining the Cornwallis card table.

heavy that it usually takes two men to move it."

"It's a wonder that they can bear to part with it!" said the shopper, looking over a bed carved along the posts with plebeian fruit and leaves and having a crown of leaves to support the heavy cornice of the richly carved tester.

"Sometimes they won't part with it," replied the dealer. "We have visited one old woman for years to get a chair from her. It is a magnificent specimen of clawfooted mahogany. She is ill and poor, but she will not part with that chair. 'No, no!' she says, 'I'll give you 250 for it,' she said.

"A lady in Boston offered us that," responded the owners of the table. "She raised the price several times, but we didn't want to sell it. At the Charleston Exposition offered us $500 for it. They wanted to exhibit it. So we said, 'we'd lend it to the Exposition, but we won't sell it to anyone.'"

A long drive through the outskirts of Columbia ended at Mt. Wood, the boyhood home of Gen. Wade Hampton, where a splendid park had been laid out by some landscape gardener of the past. In wide circles the road wound up to six lofty fluted white columns
