INNOCENT CHILD IS AN INMATE

Only One to Suffer Punishment Of the Law for Lynching of Negro Murderer at Wilmington, Delaware Last Night.

OUTSIDE MAN AT HEAD OF THE MOB

Alleged That Plot Had Been Formed Several Days Ago and That a Leader Was Imported to Carry Out the Deed—Negro Confessed the Crime

WILMINGTON, Del., June 23.—All is quiet in this community today, following the horrible lynching of George White, Helen Bishop's confessed slayer, at an early hour this morning.

Of the mob of nearly 5,000 that overpowered the authorities, stormed New Castle county workhouse and dragged from the cell the trembling wretch and burned him afterward, the identity of only one is publicly known.

The lad was struck by a bullet, which entered his back and it is thought penetrated his kidneys.

At the Homeopathic hospital, where the injured boy was taken, the physicians stated at 9 o'clock this morning that he is in a serious condition.

After the mob completed its awful vengeance the body of the negro rasher and murderer was left chained to a stake, with the fire burning all around it, and the members of the lynching party went home.

Public sentiment here so far expressed appears to approve the lynching of White and it is not believed there will be any arrests.

WHITE'S CONFESSION

WILMINGTON, Del., June 23.—White's confession, made just before the torch was applied to the oil-soaked bushes around him, was an admission of everything and more than had been charged against him.

He is stated to have said: "I was sent by Mr. Woodward to a cornfield to try to get some corn. I saw Mr. Woodward's daughter and intended to assault her, and said if she would give me I would let her go. She gave me 60 cents.

"Then I again seized her and she cried: 'Please don't hurt me.' I choked her and accomplished my purpose. Then I asked her if she was going to tell on me. She said she was.

"Then I cut her throat twice again and left her. After that I went back to Mr. Woodward and told him there was no good water to drink down there and he sent me somewhere else. I went back, but soon left. Then I went back to the house and put on a white hat instead of the cap I wore."

The negro's confession rendered the already incensed crowd even more desperate and some wanted to tear him limb from limb before they reached the scene of the execution. The negro begged mercy before he was burned, but his mercy was shown the culprit, and although his sufferings were terrible, White remained conscious and self-possessed up to the last.

While at times during the night there were at least 5,000 people around the workhouse, the men who actually took part in the lynching did not number over 500. The leader was a man who said his name was Baker and that he was from Virginia. His face is familiar to most people and it is believed he is a resident of Wilmington, although they say he had been imported for the purpose of leading the mob.

RESULT OF A PLOT

The lynching is believed to have been the result of a plot, which was concocted several days ago, and was to have been put into execution Saturday night, but on that occasion there was a misunderstanding and the attempt failed.

Early yesterday morning word was passed around that an attack was being made on the prison at 10 o'clock last night and the men who were to participate in it were to meet at Prices Corner a half hour before that time. The report gained wide circulation, but most people who were not actually concerned in the plot were of the opinion that the plan would not be carried out.

at the prison at the time and the officers were powerless against such a large number, so they flocked into the building to assist the guards in an effort to protect the prisoner. During one of the rushes made by the crowd several shots were discharged, and Peter Smith, a boy aged 12, of Wilmington, was shot in the back and so seriously injured he will die. He is now in a hospital in this city. The shooting did not have an effect on the crowd, other than to frighten a few of the laws surrounding the workhouse, but they returned with reinforcements and aided those who were striving to free the negro's cell. Upon arriving at the workhouse the mob lost no time in making preparations. Crowds advanced into the front vestibule of the reception hall and demanded admittance to the jail. Their demand was refused by the guards and they were deluged by a stream of water from the fire fighting equipment of the institution. This did not lessen the eagerness of the besiegers, who immediately began an assault upon the iron doors. Chief of Police Black shouted to the crowd: "The first man that comes in this corridor will be killed."

DARES THE SHERIFF

The man who said he was from the South grasped a heavy sledgehammer and he struck the steel door, cried: "Then you'd better kill me for the first one."

In addition to Peter Smith, a youth whose name is not known was wounded during the shooting.

While about three hundred men and boys were storming the front of the jail, several thousand sympathizers lined up outside, but took no part in the attack, although plainly in favor of lynching White.

The leaders told Chief Black and the warden they intended to get the negro if they had to break every steel door in the place, and argued it would be a great expense to the county to answer for the damage done to property.

The officials saw the strength of the argument and informed the leaders that White was in cell No. 13, on the front row of the third story. This was enough, and the door of this row of cells was at once attacked.

While the door was being cut, another party with sledges and chisels attacked a large steel box containing the keys that opened the steel cell doors. At 12:20 o'clock the yelling and cursing mob rushed into the corridor past the cell doors of the frightened prisoners to the cell occupied by White. In smashing the lever box the mechanism was damaged and the door to the cell could not be opened.

THE LYNCHING

WILMINGTON, Del., June 23.—A mob early this morning burned George F. White, a negro, at the state prison, Corner, four miles from Wilmington. The mob, consisting of 4,000 persons, stormed the workhouse, where White was confined on a charge of having assaulted and stabbed to death Miss Helen S. Bishop, 43 years old, daughter of Rev. Dr. E. A. Bishop. The crime was committed last Monday afternoon, and ever since then there have been mutterings of lynching the man.

During the attack on the jail four lawbreakers were shot by the prison guards.

JOHN MASON ARRESTED

Charged That He Kidnaped the Daughter of Alexander Young

DEAD IS THE BEAR THAT MISS ANNA HELD

NEW YORK, June 23.—Anna, the bear that Miss Anna held, is dead; not because Miss Anna held it, but from the pain of teaching. Miss Anna Held, the actress (the same Miss Anna who held the bear), gave it to the Central Park menagerie, and it became the special pet and care of "Billy" Snyder. Recently Anna (bear) began having trouble with her gums, and she was found that she was cutting her back molars. Doubtless Miss Anna Held would be satisfied to bear the pain if she could say that Anna couldn't bear the pain, although the pain was bearing hard on her, so Snyder gave her soothing syrup and paregoric. Only when under the influence of these narcotics could Anna sleep. Finally she failed to act, and yesterday Anna died in a convulsion. She was 2 years old. Hereafter in the museum of natural history may be seen the stuffed skin of the bear that Miss Anna held.

WALL STREET INTEREST

Members of Stock Exchange to Fight "Get Rich Quick" Concerns

NEW YORK, June 23.—Plans have been discussed at a meeting of several members of the New York Stock Exchange and the consolidated exchange for the inauguration of a vigorous campaign against "get rich quick" concerns presently centering about Wall street. The prosecution of all "get rich quick" swindles, wherever evidence can be found against them sufficient to warrant an arrest.

The ferretting out and exposure of bogus mercantile concerns, which supply references for these companies. The exposure and prosecution of Wall street newspapers which, for a financial consideration, supply these concerns with favorable reports and accept their advertisements.

CORRESPONDENTS LEAVE

Are Suddenly Recalled From Belgrade to the Balkans

BELGRADE, June 23.—The newspaper correspondents who came here from Sofia have been recalled. They say there are indications of serious trouble in Bulgaria. Those who are conversant with the Balkan situation, anticipate a recrudescence of the revolt in Macedonia. They consider it possible that the revolutionary committees have proclaimed the autonomy of Macedonia, and say it is quite possible Bulgaria will openly favor and aid such a line of action. The best informed people here regard the whole Balkan situation as being most serious, and they think that unless the powers act quickly and decisively there is likely to be a general outbreak.

Objection in the United States is Unwelcome to Cuba

HAVANA, June 23.—News received here of renewed opposition by the protectionists in the United States to the confirmation of the Cuban reciprocity treaty is particularly unwelcome in Cuba at this juncture, as it had been hoped the Cuban senate before adjournment of the present session would ratify all the treaties pending with the United States. Although Cuba is bound under the Platt amendment, so carry out all the other pending treaties, it is feared that some senators may make the additional difficulties that the reciprocity treaty is encountering at Washington an excuse for letting the ratification of the other treaties go over until the winter session of the Cuban congress.

The treaty covering the leases of naval and coaling stations to the United States, the signing of which is expected to take place today, provides that the United States shall advance the money necessary for the acquisition by Cuba of such private lands as are necessary for the purposes of the stations, the same to be deducted from the thousand dollars annual rental due to Cuba.

AN OPERATION WAS NECESSARY

AMPUTATION OF LEG NECESSITATED BY ACCIDENT

Result of Collision Between Two Street Cars at Foot of Bridge Over the Trinity River—Conductor Escaped by Jumping, Motorman Lost Control of Car

As the result of a collision on the Northern Texas Traction Company's street car line, at the foot of the bridge over the Trinity river last night, the injured motorman, E. L. Maddox, was compelled this morning to submit to an amputation of his left leg just above the ankle.

The accident occurred about 8 o'clock. Motorman Maddox and Conductor J. D. Aldridge were taking car No. 14 of the Samuels avenue line to the north side car barns. In descending the bridge Motorman Maddox in some manner lost control of the car and it shot down the incline at a terrific rate of speed. At the foot of the bridge a switch on which the stock yards cars pass. An outgoing car was standing on the north track, directly in the path of the runaway car.

Motorman Maddox realized his danger, but stuck to his post, in hopes that the motorman of the car on the siding would see his approaching car and get out of the way. Maddox shouted warning, but there appeared to be no time to avert the calamity. The cars came together with a loud crash, completely demolishing the front portion of the car on which Maddox was standing, resulting in his injury as stated above.

Conductor Aldridge, realizing his danger, jumped before the collision occurred. He was not hurt. When the car got under the control of the motorman the driver flew off the wire, which Aldridge endeavored to replace before leaving the car.

The injured man was removed to the office of the Northern Texas Traction Company, where his injuries were temporarily treated, after which he was removed to the Protestant Sanitarium, Railroad avenue and Main street. Mr. Maddox is unmarried. He has been in the employ of the company about six months.

EXTRA!

COMMISSION RESTRAINED BY COURT

At 3:50 o'clock this afternoon Judge Meek in the United States district court in the case of the J. Rosenbaum Grain Company vs. the Railroad, Rock Island and Texas, railway and the Railroad Commission, in which the plaintiff prayed for an injunction to prevent the cancellation of the existing contracts between the grain company and the railroad, granted the injunction prayed for against the railroad commission. This was really what the grain company desired, as by this decision the railroad commission is estopped from enforcing its order to the railroad to abrogate its existing contracts with the grain company.

The following amended answer, to which was attached an affidavit of the members of the railroad commission, was filed by the general attorney, C. K. Bell, in the office of the clerk of the federal court this morning, and was followed by a brief amended reply by Capps & Coney, the attorneys for the Rosenbaum Grain company.

In the United States circuit court for the Northern district of Texas.

J. Rosenbaum Grain company vs. No. 131, Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway company et al.

Now comes the railroad commission of Texas, and amending the reply heretofore filed, showing by a writ of injunction should not be issued against said railroad commission, or its employees, respectfully represents and shows to the court:

That the order issued was intended by them simply as a notification to the railroad company; that they regarded the action of the railroad company, to which the order relates, as a violation of the law; and the railroad company was given until the 16th of June, 1903, within which to annul the contracts and arrangements referred to in said order.

That it was not the purpose or intention of the railroad commission to pass an order under which proceedings could have been had against the railroad company under the terms of chapter 109 of the act of the twenty-seventh legislature. That no proceedings under such act were contemplated and that no proceedings under such act are now contemplated.

Jim Dumps once found he must endure
The pain that haunts an epicure.
"Give up rich foods and try instead
The well-known 'Force'-cure, sir," one said,
Jim tried it. It agreed with him.
The "Force"-cure made him "Sunny Jim."

A Rejuvenated Being.

"Force" is not a heavy food, and it has that substantial foundation which begots blood. If it was eaten more frequently, and the terrapin, lobster and bird eschewed, people would not complain in the morning about not feeling well. No more heavy suppers for me when I can get 'Force.' Why, Miss Jane Evans, since I have been eating it I feel like a rejuvenated being.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy I seldom need it, as it has cured me. Mrs. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

HIS VIOLIN HAD NOTES OF SILVER THAT IS WHY SUPPOSED ITALIAN VIRTUOSO WENT TO NEW YORK IN COMPANY WITH CLEVER DETECTIVES

NEW YORK, June 22.—For months the residents of the southern part of Elizabeth, N. J., wondered at the strange, but neatly constructed, cottage built by a good-looking young Italian whom all understood to be a violinist of great ability.

Several west Texas ranchmen were at the yards today and report abundant rains and plenty of grass. Charles Larimer, representative of the Union Stock Yards of Chicago, has received a copy of the regulations adopted by the sanitary board of Illinois, which authorizes the federal inspector stationed here to inspect all cattle and issue certificates for Illinois shipments.

ARTESIAN WATER PUMPS STARTED ROCK ISLAND DEAL TO BE CONSUMMATED VERY SOON

Test of Engines and Pumps Late Yesterday Proves Splendid Success. The Mayor and City Engineer Witness the Second Test Today. Late yesterday afternoon the fine new engines were connected with the artesian water pumps at the bottom of the Mead shaft at the new waterworks and then, at an order from Superintendent Lakin, the engines were started.

It was not thought yesterday at noon that the work would be far enough advanced to enable a test to be made yesterday afternoon, but by fast work all preparations were completed. The engines did their work splendidly, and the test of engines and pumps proved eminently satisfactory.

Superintendent Lakin gradually increased the power until the engines were running 180 revolutions to the minute. They were continued at this speed for several minutes, during which time they pumped water from the shaft at the rate of six million gallons a day.

Other rumors are in effect that the presidency of the newly acquired interests will be centered in W. B. Leeds, president of the Rock Island; that C. H. Markham, present vice president, will remain as such, and that a new manager has been slated all of which is known only to the officials of the company, who will not make public any portion of such knowledge until officially passed upon by the directors of the roads interested in the deal.

THE NEW TEXAS: Writing of the progress made in Texas during the past twenty years, basing as a subject a book written by ex-Governor Roberts, a score of years ago, the Austin Statesman says:

"The jack rabbit, the long horn, the cowboy, the broncho, make the picture of the Texas of twenty years ago. The well-kept farm, the best bred stock, the thrifty dairy, the scented vineyards and fruit gardens, the scholarly and elegant gentlemen of today, with a keen eye for business, a quick eye for industry, a cool head for judging opportunities, this is the picture of the new Texas, the Texas of today."

"The greatness of Texas is undreamt by her people. Without organization, almost without so much as an invitation, the world has caught the flaunting of the flag of the great army of Texas progress, and homeseekers from every quarter are pouring into the ranks of our people."

North Texas is literally alive with new blood, new energy, new resources brought by new people pitching their tents among the hospitable fields of a hospitable country, inhabited by hospitable men and breathed upon by a hospitable climate. Farther to the south and to the west rolls this wave of immigration and under the magic touch of industry arises the gardens of peace and plenty, almost as the gardens that traditions say sprang from the thoughts of the magicians of Persia.

"But within the compass of no ordinary newspaper article may be written an adequate description of the wonders that in twenty years have seen wrought in Texas. Yet more wonderful are the changes which the next twenty years are to bring to us. He who would be borne forward by the march of a magical progress should cast his lot in Texas, and the experiences of the coming years will be to such a living manifestation of the stories of the wonderful Lamp of Aladdin."

Recently the estimate of imports for the fiscal year ending with June was given in The Telegram, and indicated that all records for preceding years would be far exceeded. It is more gratifying to know that not only will the imports show an increasing trade, but that also the exports will show an even larger gain, so that a trade balance amounting to about 100,000,000 in favor of the United States will be made.

It is estimated that the total commerce, which is the largest the United States ever enjoyed, will aggregate $2,400,000,000, of which exports will be represented by about $1,400,000,000.

The trade balance in our favor, or excess of exports amounting to about $400,000,000 will not, it is thought, exceed the record of 1902, which amounted to $478,308,623. In fact, the past three years have shown a steadily decreasing sum in our favor.

The record of commerce for the past five years is as follows:

Table with 3 columns: Exports, Imports, Total. Rows for years 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903.

It will be noted that this is the first year in which the total imports reached the billion-dollar mark. Since 1898 the value of imports has steadily increased, while the value of exports has varied greatly. The causes operating to produce this fluctuation are so many and the conditions so difficult to regulate that the greatest value in such statistics lies in the indication of the way the whole amount is increasing, and of the fact that the United States is still a growing nation both as to its needs and to its resources.

LITTLE STORIES OF THE STREET: They were talking about the Allwood case, one of The Telegram's recent exclusive stories, in which it will be remembered the circumstances so affected Assistant Chief Allen, Detective Jim Thomason and Lawyer W. Scott that they shed tears, when Chief Rea related the following story of the only time in his long connection with the police department that he ever cried:

"This 'story' happened some months ago," said the chief. "My connection with Fort Worth's police affairs dates back to 1879, and not having given way to tears in something over 20 years, I long ago had come to the conclusion that my crying days were over. I won't mention names in this story, because I do not wish to unnecessarily wound the feelings of any one, and, any way, the circumstances are such that the force of the story will not be lost by the omission of names.

"At the time I speak of, one of my officers arrested a white girl whom he found in one of the lowest negro dives in the city. She was not yet 16 years old and was very pretty and innocent looking. The course she had started to follow robs a woman of her beauty quicker than anything else that I know of, but this girl had not been following this course more than a day or two when she was brought to police headquarters.

"I took her into the detectives' room and questioned her, my idea being to learn where her relatives resided and to notify them, so that every effort could be made to save the girl. She related her whole story to me. It was a striking one, some of the particulars of which cannot be told in print. The girl's mother, it seems, died when the girl was only a few years old. She was turned over to a family in another city to be raised. The head of this family, according to the girl's story, is one of the foremost men that ever lived. He took certain advantages of the girl while she was yet a child, and continued the practices up to the time the girl left his home and came to Fort Worth.

"The girl concluded her story by giving me her real name and I was surprised and shocked to learn that she was the daughter of a Fort Worth man with whom I am well acquainted. I sent for him at once. He was under the impression that his daughter was still with the family with which he left her and knew nothing of the experiences through which she had passed.

although he had been in the habit of making frequent visits to her. The wife of the man who took advantage of the girl does not to this day know the facts and is under the impression that the girl simply returned to Fort Worth to take up residence with her father. But the meeting between the father and daughter here was so affecting that it brought tears to my eyes. The father and girl both broke down and wept. He took her away with him and the girl today is leading a life of purity and honor."

Stories of absentmindedness, in which the details furnish amusing incidents, have frequently been related, but the one in which a prominent local jeweler was the actor was related by himself to a party of friends one evening recently. The incident had its beginning when the jeweler entered a sleeping car to return to Fort Worth from a trip East. He was coming home on the Cotton Belt, and by mistake first entered the Dallas sleeper. Before the fact had been discovered, however, he had partially prepared for the night. When he entered the car he was wearing a new hat which he had purchased after leaving home. His old hat he had placed in his grip.

When he entered the sleeping car he substituted a traveling cap for the new hat he had just purchased. When he was informed that he was in the Dallas sleeper, he decided to go to the sleeping car ahead of the one in which he had prepared for the night, he made the change without taking his new hat, and also left his cap behind. After getting into the Fort Worth sleeper he recalled the fact that he had left his headgear in the other car.

When he awakened at Fort Worth, and prepared to leave the car, the fact dawned upon him that both the hat and cap had been left behind, and at that moment were in Dallas. The old hat which he had carefully tucked away in his traveling case was also forgotten, and here, where the absentmindedness part of the story comes in, he did not think of it until he had gone to his favorite haberdasher, bareheaded, and purchased another new hat. Then he chanced to remember that he had been carrying a hat all this time in his grip, and that his act of returning home bareheaded was all due to temporary forgetfulness and not to necessity.

True, he could not see much of her on the journey, for the directors of the Silver Star Line were martinet of the sternest type, and did not hold with their officers carrying wives or sweethearts at all, let alone squiring them during the voyage. And so it came about that poor Overend and his fiancée had to be content with meaningful glances and commonplace chats at long intervals, for there was a director of the company among the passengers, and it would never have done for the new carrier to have given cause for offense on his maiden trip in his own ship.

But upon his pilot jacket, the shipper left his cozy stateroom, still full of fond thoughts of the future. The wind was rising momentarily, and he paused for a second to get his breath ere climbing to the dizzy altitude of the bridge.

Suddenly he became aware of a man and a woman standing sheltered in an alleyway to leeward, deep in earnest conversation, and the strangeness of their presence there at such an hour made him curious. Presently the voice of the woman came to his ears, every word clear and distinct in the comparative shelter of the great funnel.

"It can't be," she said, pitifully. "Oh, it can't be! I am bound to him by every tie it is possible to think of. Ever since childhood we've been sweethearts, and I love you I love him dearly, and he's worked so hard to be able to marry me. He even paid for my schooling and bought me a great many things. Oh, I know I ought to love him, but I don't, not now. It's dead, though it had never existed! Dick, darling, tell me."

But Overend had heard enough, more than enough. Like a man in a dream he walked back to his room and shut himself in. He could not think; his brain was in a whirl, and presently he appeared on the bridge with a curt intimation to the first officer that he ought to go below and turn in.

"Old man seems queer tonight," was the first officer's mental comment as he made for his quarters. "Thinking about his marriage, I suppose. And best man, great Scott!"

Alone on the windswept bridge, with nothing but the heaving waste of black and troubled waters around him, Overend thought of the girl who had been his betrothed, and the man with her was none other than Lieutenant Dick Hazely, of the Light Horse, nephew of one of his own directors, and one of the biggest blackguards in Sydney.

In one brief month on shipboard Nellie had learned to forget the long hard struggle Overend had made for her sake, the countless sacrifices, the patient waiting.

And now—she had had her over for the sake of a man who had come into her life but yesterday, and whom she knew by repute to be a scoundrel! He gripped the wet rail savagely, and looked out ahead, where the turmoil of the billows seemed to harmonize with her mood. He realized now, dimly, that for him life had lost its savor; there was nothing left to live for. This woman had been all in all to him, and now the simple, trustful

FIXES THE WEB WORM: A Fannin county farmer has discovered what he believes to be a sure shot against the ravages of the web worm. SIGNS OF GOOD TIMES: More than 250 bins have been sold this season by implement dealers of this city, which is by far the greatest number ever sold in any previous year. This of itself indicates not only that the acreage is greater, but that the average yield per acre will be close to 40 bushels of 1891 crop, which was about twenty-seven bushels. The sale of bigger twine also has been at least one-third more in pounds than last year, and nearly every farmer interested in the amount of twine it would require to bind his crop and found it necessary to buy more. All these things point to good times, provided a reasonably fair price is obtained for wheat and oats.—Wichita Herald.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE DISAPPEARANCE OF CAPTAIN OVEREND

BY VICTOR PITT-KETHLEY (Copyright, 1903, by W. L. Hearst, Great Britain Rights Reserved.)

"I can't sleep," growled Captain Overend, of the Silver Star liner Illwara, as he rolled over for the fifth time. "She's from Australia, to the right, any,—and Dickson won't be sorry to get relief."

He tumbled out and put on his things. It wanted another half hour before his watch was due, but in his present frame of mind it mattered little to him whether he took charge now or later on.

As he stood there in his stateroom Captain William John Overend was a supremely happy man. He had but just been appointed captain of the Illwara, and this was his maiden voyage as her skipper. That was one reason for his happiness, but there was another almost as weighty. Among the saloon passengers was a certain Miss Nellie Burns, now on a voyage from Australia to the United States. He had been so proud of him when he first appeared in the brass buttons and jaunty cap, and that he was so young and good-looking, for his parents were miserably poor. And now the dream was about to be realized. He had $1,250 in his pocket, his pay had increased with a bound, and the one obstacle to their earlier marriage—want of means—was removed.

True, he could not see much of her on the journey, for the directors of the Silver Star Line were martinet of the sternest type, and did not hold with their officers carrying wives or sweethearts at all, let alone squiring them during the voyage. CLOSE BETWEEN LAST THREE CLUBS IOWA DEMOCRATS MEET TOMORROW

FORT WORTH HAS CHANCE TO FINISH SECOND

If Dallas and Panthers Each Win Two Out of Next Three Games They Will Finish in Second Place, Tied—How They'd Finish

By winning yesterday's game from Corsicana, Dallas drew up along side of Fort Worth and at the same time pulled the Oil City down within reaching distance. Fort Worth and Dallas are now tied for third place and the next three games will decide which is to wallow around in last place. There is an outside chance for either Fort Worth or Dallas to finish ahead of Corsicana, in second place.

Table with 3 columns: Club, Won, Lost, Per cent. Rows include Fort Worth, Dallas, Corsicana.

Of course, if Fort Worth should happen to win all three games from Paris—but then, what's the use of speculating? NEW PLAYERS COMING

Manager Ward received a telegram from Mike Peer, the new fielder signed by him, announcing that he would arrive in the city tonight. After a night's rest he probably will be ready to add the local colors tomorrow.

Conciliation Between Two Factions in the State May Be Effected, But Outlook for a Warm Fight Is Promising

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 22.—The democratic state convention here tomorrow will be among the most interesting contests in the political history of the commonwealth. Delegates are all here today for the preliminary skirmish and the corridors of the Savery Hotel echo with the hum of a political discussion.

From present indications, however, it seems certain that there will be a contest to determine whether the Kansas City platform shall be affirmed, another to determine whether a plank demanding government ownership of railroads shall be inserted in the platform and a third to decide whether Judge Anthony Van Wagenen of Sioux City shall be the candidate for governor.

Van Wagenen opposes reaffirmation and demands the government ownership issue. His attitude combines to form a unique situation. The reaffirmationists are largely favorable to government ownership, but they insist on reaffirmation.

Whether a combination of two of the three factions can be successfully formed to control the convention is a matter of doubt. If the reaffirmationists could be vanquished, or if Van Wagenen could be brought around to support reaffirmation, which appears impossible, the atmosphere would be cleared immediately.

A number of the party leaders are in favor of the democrats adopting as their tariff plank the "Iowa idea" expression used by the Iowa republicans the last two years, but which the latter will probably abandon on the ground that it is too radical and decisive in effect.

The convention will consist of 853 delegates. It will be called to order at noon in the Auditorium, J. I. Quick, ex-mayor of Sioux City, has been selected to act as temporary chairman.
