Surprising Turn in the Illness of the White Robed Prisoner of the Vatican Is Now Recorded

"I DO NOT HOPE; I DO NOT DESPAIR"

Dr. Laponi Says the Remarkable Reaction Puts a New Phase on the Case—Transacts Business With Papal Secretary

LONDON, July 9.—A special dispatch from Rome says a surprising rally occurred in the pope's condition and the doctors say there are some hopes of his recovery.

ROME, July 9.—The pope was suddenly well this morning to be shaved. His functional disorders have passed and consultation with other physicians is now considered to be unnecessary.

ROME, July 9, 1:10 p. m.—The pope, on learning that Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state, desired to see him, received the cardinal at 11 o'clock this morning. The pontiff said he had seen with great pleasure how the sacred college is interested in his person and he was equally gratified at the manifestations from the good people of Rome.

THE DIFFERENCE IN TIME BETWEEN FORT WORTH AND ROME

The difference in time between Rome and Fort Worth is six and three-fourths hours.
At midnight in Rome it is 5:15 p. m. in Fort Worth.
At midnight Wednesday in Fort Worth it is 6:45 a. m. Thursday in Rome.

After this his holiness spontaneously asked Cardinal Rampolla whether there are any urgent affairs to deal with, and the cardinal made a short summary of the principal pending questions. The pope interested himself in all of them and the conversation turned again to the pontiff's condition. He said: "I have always been my great difficulty." Dr. Laponi, on leaving the pope's bedroom at 1 o'clock this afternoon said: "I cannot say that I hope, but I no longer despair."

POPE HAS RIGHT TO NAME SUCCESSOR

PARIS, July 9.—Abbe Sabatier, canon of the archdiocese of Paris, has written a book on "How a Pope Is Chosen," in which he maintains that the pope has a right to nominate his successor. The abbe begins by asking three questions: 1. If the present pope, being the supreme judge of ecclesiastical matters, be considered to be in a position to nominate his successor, what would the world think of it? 2. Ought Roman Catholics to regard as illegitimate a pope who has been thus directly nominated by the pope himself before his death, who had been invested by him with the supreme power of the universal pontificate and who had been proclaimed pope in an authentic document, addressed to all Christian people? 3. Would the nomination of such a pope be valid? To the last two questions the abbe has a decided answer. "I do not hesitate to reply in the affirmative," he says, and thereupon he gives his reasons for maintaining that such a pontifical nomination would be absolutely valid.

HEAD OF THE CHURCH
The pope, he points out, is the head of the church. He commands not merely Rome, but all. Jesus Christ did not place the sheep on an equality with the shepherd, still less did he place them above him; the shepherd alone is above all. With the single exception of the Roman pontiff, no bishop has by right divine authority over another bishop and it naturally follows that neither one bishop nor several bishops, nor indeed all the bishops, can have any authority over Peter. Peter (and of course each of his successors) is the chief, who rules the church in the name of Jesus Christ. Since he is the supreme pontiff no one can bind what he has unbound; since he is an infallible teacher, he cannot err when he speaks as a doctor of the universal church; since he is a sovereign judge and lawmaker of the church he cannot be judged by anyone.

CAN DO EVERYTHING
Indeed, the pope's power is such that France does not hesitate to say that he can do everything even though it may be against his extra-jurisdictional law, contrary to law, outside of the province of law, since he holds directly

CHILD DRANK KEROSENE OIL
Little One Is in a Critical Condition from the Effect of It

BONHAM, Texas, July 9.—A 2-year-old child of Fred Morris of this place drank a quantity of kerosene oil yesterday. The parents did not notice it until late in the night, when the child was taken very sick. A physician was called in and found the little one with high fever and vomiting a great deal. The patient is in a critical condition.

HE NAMED BONIFACE
Consequently on Aug. 31, 530, he summoned to his palace, where he lay on his bed, the clergy, senators and the officials of the Roman church, pointing out to them the necessities of the hour and especially the pecuniary needs and the debts of the pontifical treasury, he informed them that it was his desire to have his archdeacon Boniface II, elected to the papacy after his death. His arguments prevailed with all those who heard them, and thereupon, in order to show that his wish to have Boniface II as his successor was immutable he removed the sacred pallium from his shoulders and placed it on the shoulders of Boniface II as the token of papal power.

Sheriff Seidemann also stated that he was coming to take custody of Kimble. Sheriff Tobin, however, has orders from Governor Lanham to hold the negro, and he says he will not give him up until ordered to do so by the governor.

His Condition Is Much Improved
ROME, July 9, 1:15 p. m.—By special favor the correspondent of the Associated Press was allowed this morning to visit the papal apartments, where he had an interview with the situation with a personage who is better informed than anyone else, but who from motives easily understood does not wish his name mentioned.

On the other hand, it is claimed that the negro's statement that he was working for Sam Harris, twenty-five miles away on the day before the crime is substantiated, as well as his statement that the day following or the day after he was in the neighborhood of Kingsbury with a companion and refused to go to town because he was afraid of arrest for having stolen a pair of shoes at that place.

He had been visiting the home of a neighbor, returning to Sagamore Hill about 1 o'clock in the morning. The president and his family had gone to bed and the house was in darkness. THE WAR CLOUD All eyes turn to the Far East. Russia is now very active in the vicinity of Manchuria, and it is stated in the dispatches that she proposes to retain her position in Manchuria, whether Japan is satisfied with it or not.

The Lincoln (Neb.) State Journal suggests that if Texas would agree to be divided up into several states that two federal senators for each additional state would be provided. That shows the ignorance of a man from Nebraska. The people of Texas would not trade the immense area of this state for a dozen national senators.

Secretary Hay is getting to be decidedly foreign, you know. When by a vote in the skuptchina of any of those countries across the pond some cabinet measure is defeated, the cabinet resigns. Roosevelt has turned Mr. Hay down on the Hebrew petition, and Mr. Hay will quit. The country has expressed a decided want of confidence in the secretary of state for a long period of time.

Since the Austin Statesman is invoking the trust law on the bidders on text books who have their printing done in other states, why cannot the alleged trusts pull the anti-pool room bill on the Austin Statesman's books. The new law prohibits "book-making," and several very energetic and ambitious workers were put out of business in Fort Worth July 1.

The Texas skuptchina—that is the sheriffs' convention—is to meet in San Antonio. It will proclaim a candidate for comptroller for the next election, and will proceed to put him in office.

The undertakers have come to the right town. The people of Fort Worth were "undertakers" many years ago, and they have succeeded in the undertaking—building a city.

A DANGEROUS TEACHING A correspondent signing "G. M." in the Houston Post says the tragic death of the late R. M. Love, state comptroller, should be a warning to young men who are constantly seeking positions in the state departments. How such a moral is drawn is difficult to see.

WEDDINGS.

LUCKEY-RAY The wedding of E. A. J. Luckey of Waco, Texas, late of Nashville, Tenn., and Mrs. Belle Ray, was consummated at 1112 Main street, Tuesday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock, Justice Terrell performing the ceremony. Mr. Luckey is engaged in the poultry business at Waco. His bride has been a resident of Fort Worth for the past three years, where she is well known. Mr. and Mrs. Luckey will remain in the city for a week or ten days before returning to their future home at Waco.

George Meredith, the novelist, whose condition was announced to be critical, is better.

THE EIGHT TENTHS

Eight tenths of the diseases of the kidney, liver, bladder and blood are caused by the excess of uric acid in the system. Uric acid is a blood enemy. It impoverishes and poisons it. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is called by physicians an emphyreic, and is a blood maker, blood builder, blood cleanser and purifier. Many physicians say it will cure Bright's disease. We declare Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy to be a certain, absolute and permanent cure for all ailments of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia, constipation and the sicknesses so common among women. It is no experiment. It is a cure. It is purely vegetable, thus absolutely harmless. Try it. It will make you well. Druggists sell it in New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00-size bottles. Sample bottle—enough for trial, free by mail among women. Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y. Dr. David Kennedy's Golden Drops instant relief. Neurakia. Rheumatism. Brains. Burns. 25c, 50c. Dr. C. Weaver sells and recommends Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

CLEANINGS FROM... THE EXCHANGES

The tardiness with which the Columbian congress is acting in the Panama canal treaty may lose her the price of the big ditch.—Goliad Guard. Not on your life. That big ditch, as you term it, is like death, it is bound to come.—Austin Statesman. The ditch is bound to come and Uncle Sam is not forced to ask Colombia about it. There's Nicaragua, you know, and Nicaragua says it is the best route.

Many people never look ahead further than to the next meal.—Dallas News. In some instances that is quite a distance. You know, it is not every fellow who lives equal to the prosperity of a newspaper man and gets three of them a day.

The Texas game law is now in effect in Texas and next winter the ladies will have to be careful what they buy for headress. Birds cannot be worn in such profusion as formerly.—Denison Herald. They can leave off the headress. "Beauty unadorned," you know.

Truly, if the president will busy himself in purifying the government service and business, all departments, instead of straining himself for the 1909 nomination, he will have enough to do. Here is an Augean stable for a Hercules, were our Hercules not an office seeker and too American to arrange the great government stable.—Houston Chronicle. Do you really think Hercules could have accomplished a job like this one without a little help from the outside?

The Chief has been requested to roast the men who promised to give the truck growers 90 cents a bushel for potatoes delivered on the car at Comanche and to the aggrieved parties donated to the editor a bucket of as fine a lot of these potatoes as ever grew, and inasmuch as he expects several others to do likewise, when they read these fervid lines, he, therefore proceeds to impale the base deceiver on the point of his pen and fry him in the crackling flames of public wrath.—Comanche Chief. Go after the "base deceiver." The man who refuses to pay the truck grower 90 cents a bushel for his potatoes ought to be roasted. Potatoes are worth 90 cents. The farmer knows. He worked to get them.

Do anything and everything you can to make Cleburne a better town—a better place to live in, a better place to do business in, a better place to entertain the stranger in—and you will be doing a great work.—Cleburne Enterprise. But don't do the stranger, because you would then overdo the matter. Give him the glad hand and assure him that his pocketbook is safe.

Where can the republican party find a more eligible candidate for the vice presidency than Booker T. Washington? The two men who ate together can surely run together.—Texarkana Courier. There is no way to force Booker T. to accept. Simply because he had dinner with "Teddy" does not indicate he would be willing to associate with him all the time.

One reason why it's raining so much just now is because it's going to be so very dry after the election in August.—Belton Journal-Reporter. Evidently you have a local option election fixed for some time in August.

King Peter is having a hard time selecting a design for a crown. How would skull and crossbones do, Pete?—Dallas Times-Herald. Don't do it, Pete. You toss the crown proposition away; rule without the bauble. Get a Colt's 45, a two-edged sword, a Winchester rifle and a pair of knucks. When the army gets tired of you as king you will be better prepared than Alexander was to persuade the army that you will not resign.

How is it Max O'Rell keeps on writing for the New York American, now he is dead? Is he a syndicate like Andrew Lang and the late Alexander Dumas pere? Or can Mr. Hearst do the Owen Glendower act and call spirits from the vasty deep?—Houston Chronicle. Possibly Mr. Hearst has bought the "all rights reserved" privileges of the official organ of the Hearst on the Styx.

Fancy the difficulties of the national poet who has to embody "Karageorgevitch" in deathless rhyme.—El Paso Herald. Oh, Alfred Austin, where were you and all your symbolism rich if you were put to doing stunts with Peter Karageorgevitch?—Houston Post. Before his shirt the first round out are paused, take a saving stitch; but son he'll land in rhyming shout on Peter Karageorgevitch.—Orange Daily Tribune. King Alexander lost his scepter; his coronet was tossed into a ditch; the soldiers chose as a successor, the good Peter Karageorgevitch.

A Boston girl is making a quilt out of her old letters.—Houston Post. All a Houston girl has to do is to spin a pair and sew the two together.—Austin Tribune. How do you know, major?

Bill Sterrett's hens have gone to laying and one has produced an egg containing the recent discoveries in Heteroglyphics and pictures of everybody from Moses down to Stump Ashby. Sterrett's long suit always has beenedies and snake stories.—Denison Daily Herald. How about a few post-mortem hands? The colonel at one time had a fund of such stories.

Catarrh of the Stomach. When the stomach is overloaded, when food is taken into it that fails to digest, it decays and inflames the mucous membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secrete mucus, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach. For years I suffered with Catarrh of the Stomach, caused by indigestion. Doctors and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.—J. R. Rhea, Coppell, Tex. Sold by all druggists.

GRAUSTARK

By... GEORGE BARR MCCUTCHEON Copyright, 1901, by Herbert S. Stone.

SYNOPSIS. Griefall Lorry, a wealthy American globe-trotter, stumbles into acquaintance with a charming foreign girl on the train from Denver to Washington. The pair gets left at the station when the flyer stops for repairs in West Virginia. Lorry wires ahead to hold the train at the next town. He hires a wagon to drive them the intervening four miles. They catch the train. Lorry learns the young lady's name is Miss Guggenlocker and her companions are her uncle and aunt. They arrive in Washington and Lorry is asked to breakfast with the trio. They leave for New York. Lorry spends a day trying to work, but gives it up and rushes to New York, hoping to catch a farewell glimpse of Miss Guggenlocker before she sails. Just as the Kaiser Wilhelm steams away he catches sight of her and throws a kiss from the tips of his fingers. To his great surprise the gesture is returned. Lorry joins his old friend Harry Anguish, an American artist of the great Grand Central Hotel, Edgewood, are located by a guidebook. The Americans get no trace of the Guggenlockers there.

(Continued From Yesterday.) "Thanks," said Lorry dryly. "We shall try to conduct ourselves discreetly in the city." Probably a quarter mile farther down the narrow, level street they came to the bazars, the gaudy stores and then the hotel. It was truly a hostelry to inspire respect and admiration in the mind of such as Sitky, for it was huge and well equipped with the modern appointments. As soon as the two Americans had been given their rooms they sent for their luggage. Then they went out to the broad piazza, with its columns and marble balustrades, and looked for Sitky, remembering their invitation to drink. The guard had refused to enter the hotel with them, urging them to allow him to remain on the piazza. He was not there when they returned, but they soon saw him. On the sidewalk he was arguing with a white uniformed police guard, and they realized that he had been ejected from sacred precincts.

They promptly rescued him from the officer, who bowed and strode away as soon as they interceded. "These fellows is slick enough to see you are swells an' I'm not," said Sitky, not a bit annoyed by his encounter. "I'll bet my head 'at inside ten minutes old Dangloss will know who you are, where you come from an' what you're doin' here." "I'll bet fifty heads he won't find out what we're doing here," grinned Anguish, looking at Lorry. "Well, let's hang up at the third department."

They found the little apartment in which drinks were served at tables, and before they said goodby to Sitky in front of the hotel, a half hour later, that worthy was in exceeding good humor and very much flushed in the face. He said he would be back in two days, and if they needed him for any purpose whatever they could reach him by a note at the railway station. "Funny how you run across an American in every nook and corner of the world," mused Lorry as they watched the stocky ex-man-o'-warman stroll off toward his hotel.

"We can run across the Guggenlockers as easily, well be in luck. When shall we begin the hunt? Tonight?" "We can make a few inquiries concerning them. They certainly are people of importance here." "I don't see the name on any of the brewery signs around town," observed Anguish consolingly. "There's evidently no Guggenlocker here."

They strolled through the streets near the hotel until after 6 o'clock, wondering at the quaint architecture, the pretty gardens and the pastora atmosphere that enveloped the city. Everybody was busy, contented, quiet and happy. There was no bustle or strife, no rush, no beggars. At 6 they saw hundreds of workmen on the streets, going to their homes. Shops were closed, and there came the clatter of the distant boom of cannon, evidently fired from different points of the compass and from the highland as well as the lowland.

"The toy army is shooting off the good night guns," speculated Anguish. "I suppose everybody goes to bed now." "Or to dinner," substituted Lorry, and they returned to the Regenetz. The dining hall was spacious and beautiful, a mixture of the oriental and the mediæval. It rapidly filled. "Who the dickens can all these people be? They look well," Anguish whispered, as if he feared their nearest neighbors might understand his English.

"They are unquestionably of the class in which we must expect to find the Guggenlockers." Before the meal was over the two strangers saw that they were attracting a great deal of attention from the other guests of the house. The women as well as the men were eying them and commenting quite freely. It was easy to see. Toward the end of the dinner several officers came in, and the Americans took particular pains to study them. They were cleanly built fellows, about medium height, wiry and active. As a class the men appeared to average 5 feet 7 inches in height, some a little taller, some a little shorter. The two strangers were over six feet tall, broad shouldered and athletic. They looked like giants among these Graustark men.

"They're not very big, but they look as if they'd be nasty in a scrap," observed Anguish, unconsciously throwing out his chest. "Strong as wildcats, I'll wager. The women are perfect, though. Have you ever seen a snainter set of women, Harry?" "Never, never! A paradise of pretty women. I believe I'll take out naturalization papers."

When the two strangers left the dining room they were conscious that every eye in the place was upon them. "We seem to be the whole show here, Green," said Anguish as they sat down at one of the tables in the garden. "I guess Americans are rare." "I've found one fellow who can speak German and French, and not one, except our guard, who can talk English. That clerk talks German fairly well. I never heard such a language as these other people use. Say, old man, we'd better make inquiry about our friends tonight. That clerk probably won't be on duty tomorrow."

"We'll ask him before we go to bed," agreed Lorry, and upon leaving the brilliantly lighted garden they sought the landlord and asked if he could tell them where Caspar Guggenlocker lived. He looked politely incredulous and thoughtful, and then, with profound regret, assured them he had never heard the name. He said he had lived in Edgewood all his life and knew everybody of consequence in the town. "Surely there must be such people here!" cried Lorry, almost appealingly. He felt disheartened and cheated. Anguish was biting his lips.

"Oh, possibly among the poorer classes. If I were you, I should call on Captain Dangloss, the chief of police. He knows every soul in Edgewood. I am positive I have never heard the name. You will find the captain at the tower tomorrow morning." The two Americans went to bed, one so dismayed by his disappointment that he could not sleep for hours.

CHAPTER VII. THE LADY IN THE CARRIAGE. THEY slept rather late in the morning, first because they were very much fatigued after their long journey, and second for the reason that they had been unable to woo slumber until long past midnight. Anguish stretched himself lazily in bed when he heard Lorry's voice from the adjoining room. "I suppose we are to consult the police in order to get a clue to your charmer," he yawned. "Nice friends you pick up on railway journeys! I'd be ashamed."

"Well, Harry, I'll confess I'm disgusted. This has been the most idiotic thing I've ever done, and if you say the word we'll get out of here on the first train—freight or passenger. The Guggenlockers—pigs!" Mr. Lorry was savage. "Not a bit of it, my boy; not a bit of it. We'll make a house to house canvass if the police fail us. Cheer up, cheer up!" "You go to thunder!" "Hold on! Don't talk like that or I'll go back on you in a minute. I'm here because I choose to be, and I've more heart in the chase at this minute than you have. I've not lost hope. We'll find the Guggenlockers if we have to hire detectives to trace 'em from the United States to their very doorstep. We're going to see the police after breakfast."

After breakfast they did go to see the Baron Dangloss. After some inquiry they found the gloomy, forbidding prison, and Mr. Anguish boldly pounded on the huge gates. A little shutter flew open, and a man's face appeared. Evidently he asked what was wanted, but he might as well have demanded their lives, so far were they from understanding his query. "Baron Dangloss" asked Anguish promptly. The man asked something else, but as the Americans shook their heads deprecatingly he withdrew his face and presently swung open the gates. They entered and he closed the doors behind them, locking them in. Then he directed them across the court to an open door in the aged mass of gray stone. As they strode away from the guard Lorry created consternation by demanding: "How are we to talk to the chief if he doesn't understand us or we him? We should have brought an interpreter."

OLD SOLDIER SEEKS FUGUE IN CANADA

D. C. Cameron, who was color bearer of the First Arkansas battery during the civil war, is in Fort Worth at present. He will be 73 years old in October. Until recently he was an inmate of the Confederate home at Austin. At present he is engaged in an effort to ascertain whether or not he has fallen heir to a fortune left by relatives in Canada. Readers of The Telegram will remember that nearly a year ago a letter from a lawyer in Winnipeg was printed in this paper, which sought to learn the whereabouts of a man named Cameron, who left Canada in the fall of 1854. Mr. Cameron saw the item and wrote to Winnipeg, but received no reply. He is now prosecuting his inquiries in the hope that he may be able to learn why the inquiries were made.

Mr. Cameron left Toronto in the fall of 1854. During the summer of that year he was on the Grand Trunk depot at that city. He journeyed on the Great Lakes as far as Collingswood and there was booked for passage on the Niagara. The steamer Buck Eye State of the same line reached port ahead of the Niagara, however, and Cameron embarked on that boat. The Niagara reached port a few hours later and shortly after leaving it was burned in Lake Michigan, some 100 lives being lost. Cameron fears that the passenger list would show that he was lost in the disaster, but is clearly able to prove his identity.

HE JOURNEUED SOUTH

He came south as far as southern Illinois and Missouri in 1855, and after several years in those states continued southward. At Fort Smith, Ark., he enlisted in the First Arkansas battery, under Cap-

Saved From Death After Four Years Of Nervous Prostration and Debility.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Me Permanently.

Nervous prostration is the most serious of nervous disorders. It arises from some extra strain, which robs the nerves of strength, vitality and life. The patient speedily loses self control, is subject to frightful headaches, faint spells, melancholia and morbid tendencies. Too weak to drag the thin, wasted body around; unable to get sleep or rest, life seems scarcely worth the living; the mind frequently broods, suffering becomes unbalanced and insanity often results. Read what Dr. Miles' Nervine did for Mrs. Grabill:

"I was terribly afflicted with nervous trouble for nearly four years. I was so bad at times that I could not help myself, nor carry a chair across the room without giving out. One physician attended me for a year and a half without giving me any relief. I was ever and I also doctored with two others without any good results. My father and others wished me to try Dr. Miles' Nervine, which I did. I took six bottles and I feel better than I have for years. I was completely cured of my trouble and I heartily recommend it to any woman who is suffering from a nervous disorder. I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for headache and neuralgia with best results. I believe firmly in the efficacy of the Nerve and Liver Pills and am fully convinced that Dr. Miles' Remedies saved my life."—MRS. HATTIE GRABILL, Roanoke, Va.

W. S. Bourland Suffering From Stroke of Last Friday

W. S. Bourland of Keller was in the city today. Mr. Bourland is a son of A. D. Bourland, who was stricken with paralysis at the Texas and Pacific depot in this city last Friday while en route to Reton, N. M., to spend the summer. Mr. Bourland Sr. was accompanied by his wife. They had passed through the gates at the station to go to their train and when about to enter the coach he fell to the ground. He was taken to a hospital in helpless condition. His left side is paralyzed and though some better at present, his son said today that his father is yet in a critical condition.

NEW REGULATIONS

Effort of the Department to Prevent the Spread of Scabies

The following new regulations of the agricultural department regarding cattle have just been received by Dr. Klein at the stock yards:

United States Department of Agriculture, Office of the Secretary, Washington, D. C., June 18, 1909.—To Managers and Agents of Railroads and Transportation Companies of the United States, Stockmen and Others: In furtherance of the regulations for the suppression and extirpation of contagious and infectious diseases among domestic animals in the United States, dated March 10, 1903 (B. A. L. Order No. 106), notice is hereby given that the following regulations shall be observed by the stockmen and others in that part of the United States lying west of the Mississippi river and the eastern boundary of Minnesota, and in order to prevent the dissemination of said disease and to aid in its eradication, the movement of cattle within and from the above described section of country shall be governed by the following regulations:

1. Cattle that are affected with said disease or that have been exposed to its contagion shall not be moved or be allowed to travel from one state or territory into another, except as hereinafter provided.
2. Cattle affected with scabies or exposed to the contagion thereof may be shipped for immediate slaughter when transported in cars bearing a placard on each side with the words "Scabby Cattle" in plainly visible letters, said placard to be affixed by the railroad company, or they may be transported by boat when healthy cattle are not carried on the same trip. Said cattle when unloaded en route or at destination shall be segregated in pens reserved exclusively for the use of such cattle and entirely separate from other cattle pens, or else the pens shall be immediately cleaned and disinfected after the cattle are removed therefrom. The cars or boat spaces occupied by such cattle shall be cleaned and disinfected as soon as possible after the cattle are unloaded and before being again used for cattle.
3. Cattle affected with scabies or exposed to its contagion may be transported in pens reserved for the use of such cattle and entirely separate from other cattle pens, or else the pens shall be immediately cleaned and disinfected after the cattle are removed therefrom. The cars or boat spaces occupied by such cattle shall be cleaned and disinfected as soon as possible after the cattle are unloaded and before being again used for cattle.
4. Cattle in the above described section of the country that are not affected with scabies and have not been exposed to its contagion may be moved without restriction, except as may be provided by other regulations of this department or such as may be lawfully imposed by the authorities of the state or territory to which they are transported. Cattle so shipped or exposed to its contagion may not be shipped or trailed out of any state or territory or stock yards for grazing or stocking until they have been dipped in whitewash or treated in any other manner approved by this department. Until otherwise directed, the lime-and-sulphur dip, made in the proportion of twenty-one pounds of flowers of sulphur and sixteen and three-fourths pounds of unslaked lime to 100 gallons of water and, properly prepared, shall be used for dipping cattle. Affected cattle shall be given two dipplings with an interval of ten or twelve days between; unwhipped cattle shall receive one dipping.
5. Inspectors of the bureau of animal industry will, upon request, give certificates for cattle found upon inspection to be free from the disease and not to have been exposed to contagion and for cattle that have been satisfactorily dipped under their supervision.
6. Cleaning and disinfection shall be done by first removing all litter and manure and then saturating the interior surfaces of the cars and the woodwork, flooring and ground of the chutes, alleys and pens with a 5 per cent solution of crude carbolic acid in water, with sufficient lime to show where it has been applied.
7. Violation of this order is punishable by a fine of not less than one thousand dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by both fine and imprisonment.
