GENERAL MILES HERE, HIS TALK IS OF A WAR

Russo-Jap Struggle Now Kneading Might Settle the World's Greatest Problem--That of the Orient

LAST INSPECTION TRIP Lieutenant-General Commanding United States Army Visits Fort Worth, Arriving Late Last Night

The Chinese question is the greatest political problem of the world, and its solution threatens to have an effect on the races as great as that resulting from the settlement of any problem of the world has encountered in a hundred years.

That was the reply made by Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, commander of the United States army, to a Telegram reporter last night, when the subject of the present strained relations between Russia and Japan was broached.

To General Miles, at least, the present state of affairs in the Orient is the keenest interest--first, because he is a soldier, and war and war's alarms are always first in interest to soldiers, and second, because in last December and January, after his memorable trip to the Philippines, he made a trip through Manchuria, Korea, Japan and Siberia, and it is doubtful if there is any soldier in the world not connected either with the Japanese or Russian military preparations who is as well posted on the presentness of those two nations for war as he.

The latest dispatches from the seat of the trouble indicate that the great war between Japan and Russia, for which both nations have been preparing ever since Russia robbed Japan of the victory over the Chinese, is nearer now than at any previous time since the crisis became apparent all over the world.

That this war, when it comes, and military men of all nations regard it as inevitable, will forever settle the great problem to which General Miles referred, is practically certain.

General Miles was asked the direct question as to what he observed as to the preparedness of Russia and Japan for war, but he declined to make more than the general statement quoted.

HE ARRIVED LATE General Miles arrived in the city at 12:30 last night, over the Katy from San Antonio. He is traveling in No. 99, the private car of President Rouse of that road, and is engaged in a final tour of inspection of the chief military posts of the west and southwest after completing which he will return to Washington, where he has a fine residence and where his clubs and friends of later years are close at hand.

In another month he will go on the retired list, and the office of lieutenant general of the United States army will again pass out of active commission.

"I am not talking politics on this trip," he said when that topic was introduced.

When asked to make a statement about his plans after his retirement he replied: "I do not know what I shall do. I may decide to come west and grow up with the country. I have passed twenty-six of my sixty-four years west of the Mississippi. I was in this state, I expect, before any one now present."

LOCAL MILITARY MEN There were present a number of local military men, including Colonel George T. West, Major Cal O. Elliott, John Elliott, Sam Henderson and others who went down to meet the train, hardly expecting to find the general up, but very willing to try to welcome him.

When the party entered the general cordially greeted them. He walked to a light blue shirt waist and dark blue trousers. On his table was a light military helmet of huge proportions.

Despite his sixty-four years the general is straight as an arrow, broad and powerful in appearance and if he was fatigued with the long, hot journey under a blazing Texas sun from San Antonio to Fort Worth, he showed no signs of it.

He inquired of the newspaper men regarding the newspaper condition and paid the following tribute to the military press: "They will have a hard time to find a man to take his place. His remarkable ability at such an advanced age demonstrates as nothing else could the virtue of his long life. Not only was he marked himself among men of great good, but also as goodly great in the power of an intellect that has made him one of the grand old men of Europe."

RETIRES IN AUGUST General Miles will be 64 years old on August 8, which is the date of his retirement. In the general convention last night he announced that the military post at San Antonio, Fort Sam Houston, would be made more important in the near future.

ALL COMING TO FORT WORTH

Railroad Commission Will Attend Interstate Commission Hearing Here a Week Hence

PROF. CHATFIELD IS ILL AT AUSTIN

Judge D. E. Simmons May Be a Candidate for Attorney General Next Time--Characters Filed Yesterday--The Comptroller's Department

AUSTIN, Texas, July 11.--On account of a session of the interstate commerce commission to be held at Fort Worth Monday, July 20, for the purpose of inquiring into the method of handling shipments of grain by the J. Rosenbaum Grain Company, it is ordered by the railroad commission that all matters set for hearing at Austin Tuesday, July 21, are postponed to July 23.

TEXAS SOUTHERN BONDS The railroad commission granted an application of the Texas Southern Railroad for an additional issue of $167,000 in 5 per cent bonds. This is in addition to the issue of $497,000 authorized Oct. 2, 1892, making a total of $664,000.

AN EXPRESS HEARING The railroad commission issued notices to superintendents of express companies in the state that the matter of reduction in rates would be considered and invited them to be present.

L. E. Walker, president, and S. P. Jones, attorney for the Texas Southern Railroad, were attending to business with the commission today.

He said that a great amount of military preparation was designed for Galveston by the government. He has just visited Galveston, Houston and San Antonio, and goes out on the Rock Island this morning to inspect the posts at Fort Texas, Fort Bliss and, perhaps, Fort Douglas and Leavenworth. After these inspections he will go to St. Louis and Chicago, and thence to Washington to be received.

Former Governor Hogg was to have accompanied him on the entire trip through Texas, but owing to an accident to Miss Irma Hogg, daughter of the former governor, the latter cut short his trip with the general, who now is accompanied only by his aide-de-camp, Colonel Marion E. Maus. It is reported that General Miles is preparing to invest in the Hogg-Swayne oil syndicate. He already has some investments in the oil fields near Lafayette, La.

I was in Fort Worth four years ago, but I am an early riser and tomorrow morning I shall try to be up in time to see how much the city has improved since then, before my train departs," he said at parting.

PETITION MAY BE RECEIVED Two of the Czar's Ministers Advise a Friendly Acceptance of the Document

NEW YORK, July 11.--The American Kishineff petition is causing grave discussion between the czar's two all-powerful ministers, De Witte and Plehve, and, according to the St. Petersburg correspondent of the World, the rivalry between them may result in the petition being received.

De Witte is extremely friendly to the United States and is said to regard any weakening of the good relations as a grave error in policy. He is reported to be using his influence toward having the way for the reception of the petition.

GAVE CARBOLIC ACID Mother Made a Mistake and Her Child Is Dead

PARIS, Texas, July 11.--Mrs. S. P. Nicholson mistook a bottle of carbolic acid for persin and gave her 3-year-old son a spoonful by mistake. The child is dead. The mother is on the verge of insanity because of the unavoidable mistake.

GUESTS GIVEN BALLOON RIDE The Duzes Entertained Their Friends by an Ascension, Landing Forty Miles Distant

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, July 11.--Duke and Duchess Duze are probably the first persons in the world of society anywhere to give a balloon party. They entertained a number of friends at luncheon in the park of the Airo Club. After luncheon the duke and duchess invited the most daring guests to take a balloon ascension. The duke had two big balloons. The Duke and Duchess Duze and the Duchess Denegrop entered one and sailed away. Twenty minutes later the second balloon departed with Count de Contades, Marquis de Clermont-Tonnerre, Prince Isenbourg and Baron Lepic. The balloons landed at dusk forty miles away, the balloonists returning by train.

If Parisian hostesses follow the Duze example it will be expensive. Mrs. Charles Carroll of Baltimore was among the duchesses' guests at luncheon.

LINEMAN FATALLY INJURED BRENHAM, Texas, July 11.--Samuel Murray, a lineman, employed at the electric plant, fell from a cross-bar in front of Judge C. C. Garrett's residence this afternoon sustaining injuries which are expected to prove fatal.

KILL WEEVIL FOR A REWARD State Offers a Prize to the One Who Will Destroy the Pest of the Cotton Fields

AUSTIN, Texas, July 11.--A standing announcement is made that the state of Texas will pay $50,000 for whatever is discovered that will rid the cotton fields of Texas of the boll weevil pest.

This announcement was made today jointly by Governor Lanham, Agricultural Commissioner Clay and President Houston of the Agricultural and Mechanical College, in accordance with an act of the last session of the legislature. In the announcement the terms of the contest are set forth, and that which proves most destructive will be paid the amount.

POSSIBLY A CANDIDATE Judge D. E. Simmons, office assistant of the attorney general, is being strongly pressed to make the race for attorney general. Judge Simmons was appointed to the position he now holds from Grayson county by the late Thomas S. Smith, when he was first elected. He served during the time of that officer's incumbency and the incoming attorney general, Judge C. K. Bell, reappointed him. He is well known throughout the state. He has not announced his decision on the matter.

PROFESSOR CHATFIELD ILL Professor Chatfield of Abilene, a member of the text-book board, is ill and a very short session of the commission was held. No awards have been made, and the outside public appears to be as much in the dark as ever regarding the books which will be selected. Inability to ascertain what is being done has discouraged some of the publishers who have remained here during the entire time, and the numbers are thinning out some.

COMPROLLER'S DEPARTMENT The comptroller has registered $10,000 Donkey county jail bonds and $13,000 Fort Worth refunding bonds.

A warrant for $79,323.36 was drawn by the comptroller to pay interest due by the state July 1 on bonds held by the school fund, university, Agricultural and Mechanical College, deaf and dumb, state insane, blind and orphan's asylums.

CHARTERS FILED The following charters were filed today: Wesley Co. Company, Rockdale; capital stock $30,000.

De Witt County Oil Company, capital stock $10,000. Texas Title and Trust Company, Waxahatchie, capital stock $50,000.

The Pennell Ford Sugar Company of Shreveport, capital stock $150,000, was granted a permit to do business in Texas.

OFFICERS VISIT HOMES Several of the officers of the state department left tonight for a visit to their homes. Adjutant General Hulien will spend Sunday in Gainesville. Railroad Commissioner Colquitt will be in Kaufman and Railroad Commissioner Mayfield at Sherman.

TOM PLATT LAUDS ONE MORE SUNDAY DAWNS FOR THE POPE

THE SECOND OPERATION APPEARS TO HAVE RELIEVED THE PONTIFF AND HE IS MUCH BETTER THAN THE DAY BEFORE

HIS HOLINESS HAD A LONG AND RESTFUL SLEEP

He Discusses His Condition With His Physicians--Does Not Like to Remain in Bed--L'Italie Has An Article on the Probability of Gibbons Being Elected to Succeed Leo (Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) ROME, July 12, 3 a. m.--The pope has awakened from a restful sleep of four hours. He is slightly stronger than last evening, but still very weak. There is a perceptible amelioration in his condition.

Dr. Lappont said last night: "The patient's heart is getting stronger and the possibility of his recovery is not excluded."

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) ROME, July 12.--Leo passed a restful day. Owing to the strain of the pope's illness many eminent men are becoming ill. Volponi's tragic end was precipitated by the strain; Modelli, Leo's oldest friend in the sacred college, who lives at the Vatican, became dangerously ill last night. The papers reported his death erroneously. Four correspondents learn tonight his condition is dangerous. Monsignore Ungermann, the pope's private chaplain, also has succumbed to the strain and lies dying of fever.

RAMPOLLA IS NOW SERIOUSLY ILL Pucellini, the master of the papal household, declares if the pope's illness continues a week the Vatican will be transferred into a great hospital.

Cardinal Rampolla is the latest to succumb. He is seriously ill of a fever and has been ordered to take absolute rest by Lappont. The gravest fears are entertained. The fever was superinduced by excessive work and worry, and the excitement of the bitter opposition of his candidature. Rampolla's death at this crisis would cause untold complications.

The physicians this evening stated that the pope has slept the best day of the week. He was reluctant to remain in bed, protesting he would die all the sooner if compelled to remain in bed. The pope's effort to escape from the bed whenever the vigilance of his attendants is relaxed is an extraordinary manifestation of his vitality.

CROWDS OF ANXIOUS Within the great colonnade fronting St. Peter's, there gathered the same gathering of anxious crowds, with steady lines of cardinals and distinguished members of the diplomatic corps proceeding to the inner court of the Vatican to learn the result of the doctor's conference. Even before daylight groups gathered at the entrance seeking the latest information.

THE WEATHER EXCELLENT The weather conditions here are ideal and contribute greatly to the comfort of the patient. Usually Rome reeks in mid-summer with the fierce heat of the sun and exhalation from surrounding marshes, but now the climate is a special favor, encouragement toward the recovery of the illustrious patient. The sun shines from a cloudless sky and the heat is tempered by the balmy westerly breezes. The temperature seldom rises beyond 80 degrees Fahrenheit during the day and the nights are respectively cool.

AN AFFECTING INTERVIEW An affecting interview occurred between the pontiff, Cardinal Satolli and three other cardinals representing various degrees of the sacred college. Cardinal Satolli and companions were admitted to the presence of the pope at a special evening following earnest entreaties. In the gentlest manner Cardinal Maechi, speaking for all, told the pontiff of the universal interest taken in his condition, adding: "Strayers are going up everywhere that the Lord may preserve for the benefit of the church the precious life of your piety."

"I thank your eminence," replied the pope. "It will be as God wishes, and we must submit humbly to His holy will." So saying the sufferer pressed the hand of each cardinal as they withdrew.

ONE CARDINAL'S VIEW One cardinal present at the interview spoke afterwards of the remarkable changes that have been wrought since he last saw the pontiff, only last Sunday night, when extremeunction was administered to his holiness. The cardinal said: "The appearance of the holy father is intensely painful. He maintains a mental asceticism, but I believe his spirit is terribly broken. This is especially apparent to me. I am used to seeing him often. I have observed a great change in his physical condition during the last five days. His words are now uttered with difficulty and he raises his hand only after an effort. His face is excessively emaciated and his eyes are deeply sunken. His extreme weakness is evident at the first glance; there remains only the shadow of a man."

MEETING POSTPONED The congregation's sacred right was to assemble in the presence of the pope July 13, to discuss Joan of Arc's title to heroic degree for sanctification, but the condition of the pontiff has caused the abandonment of the meeting and a determination of the saintly status of Joan of Arc.

ENGLAND, being with the United States, the only countries without a representative at the Vatican. King Edward has caused regarding the condition of the pope are through Mr. Stonor, archbishop of Trilobond.

Pope Leo continues to show great interest in arranging that testamentary desires shall be carried out. He specifically designated Cardinal Rampolla, Mr. Mori and Cardinal Cretoni to see that every detail will be carried out as he desired. The arrangements relate to the

AT THE VATICAN HOPE FOR THE POPE ROME, July 11.--Hopes for the pope's recovery have again arisen at the Vatican as a result of the rest taken as a whole. Even the attendants have been able to enjoy a much needed rest.

Dr. Lappont paid a visit to the pope at 7 o'clock. The pontiff was at first not in a good humor, saying he could not stand remaining so many hours in bed, never having been accustomed to lie down for them.

EMPLOYEES UNION LABOR

Alfred Vanderbilt Discharged Contractors Who Were "Unfair"

NEWPORT, R. I., July 11.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt has recognized organized labor in Newport, and at headquarters has been put down as "fair."

Mr. Vanderbilt was having work done at Oakland, his country place, when differences occurred between the mechanics and the employers. Mr. Vanderbilt wanted the work done, and after having the situation explained to him he decided to discharge the contractors who were at odds with their men and become his own master mechanic. He agreed with the painters that he would employ only union men and recognize all union methods and soon had all the men at work that he could employ.

ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

L. P. Robertson Was Host to a Party of Friends

Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Robertson entertained Friday evening at dinner, the affair being complimentary to a number of the gentlemen attending the annual convention of the Funeral Directors of Texas.

They have a pretty home, and within that home is the truest hospitality known in the southland. The latching is on the outside, and passing the portal one is at once impressed with the genuine cordiality which overshadows the entire household. Mr. Robertson was the host and the guests were his friends, but Mrs. Robertson was the entertainer. The gentlemen spent a pleasant time at conversation before being invited into the dining hall.

The dinner was a magnificent spread. The table was set with the prettiest flowers and a menu was of the most delicious. The presence of a most excellent housekeeper was evident by the delightful fragrance of everything served, and the gentlemen enjoyed to the utmost the pleasure of the association.

In the party were P. D. Francis, editor of the Embalmers' Monthly, Chicago; Dr. Carl L. Barnes, demonstrator and lecturer, Chicago; John G. Fall of Waco, A. S. Grant of San Angelo, L. N. Woodward, president of the association, Dallas; George W. Loudermilk, secretary, Dallas; J. T. Cotton of Weatherford, Dr. C. W. Conroy and James Hays Quarles of Fort Worth.

GRADING PAPERS

Funeral Directors Return to Their Respective Homes

The state board of examiners before whom the members of the Texas Embalmers' and Funeral Directors' Association have been taking examinations, completed its work at noon yesterday and the members of the association who had been compelled to remain for the final work returned to their respective homes.

The board is now engaged in grading the work which duty will not be completed before Monday afternoon.

MAINE GRANITE IS USED

Two of the Eight Columns Have Been Received

NEW YORK, July 11.—Two of the eight granite columns that are to form an arch about the altar of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine have arrived here. They are the largest, aside from the Central park obelisk, in this country. They were brought on a specially constructed lighter with massive trucks and very powerful cranes from Rockland, Me., where the huge pieces of granite were quarried and polished.

Each column is made of two pieces. The lower is six feet in diameter, thirty-six feet long and weighs eighty-two tons. The upper is eighteen feet long, six feet in diameter and weighs forty tons.

INJURED BY EXPLOSION

TERRELL, Texas, July 11.—While being charged a fountain at the Terrell bottling works exploded this morning, the fragments striking John Lowry, an employe, inflicting perhaps fatal injuries.

TO EVADE PROHIBITION

HILLSBORO, Texas, July 11.—The Hillsboro Pleasure Club, a social organization for the thirsty, has opened for business. Members pay an initiation fee and monthly dues and have the privilege of imbibing freely of whiskey, wines and other things that go to satisfy the wants of the thirsty. The officers say they will not permit it to do business.

AN ASSASSIN PROMOTED

BELGRADE, July 11.—Colonel Mishis of the Sixth Infantry regiment, which took a prominent part in the coup d'etat of June 11, has been promoted to the post of department chief of the ministry of war.

TO COME AFTER WRIGHT

LONDON, July 11.—Detective Willis, who is in charge of the case of Whitaker Wright, the English company promoter under arrest in New York, expects to sail for New York to receive Wright either July 15 or 18.

THE IRISH IMMIGRATION

NEW YORK, July 11.—Figures on Irish immigration for the fiscal year ended June 30 have been compiled by the Ellis Island officials and show that about 5,000 more persons arrived from Ireland during 1902-03 than came during 1901-02. The total for the former period was 24,356.

DISCH LEADS AT STICK; JARVIS' GOOD WORK

The averages of the Panthers in the second championship series, including Friday's game, show a decided falling off in batting. The fielding averages are about the same, although several of the players have dropped considerably on account of a number of errors made in a single game.

Disch leads in batting this week, as Peer has slumped disastrously in his hitting. Disch has fallen some twenty points, but that is the smallest drop that has been taken by any of last week's leaders. Peer, who led last week, is in third place, Disch and Combs having passed him. Combs did not go upward, but remained stationary, while the others dropped. The biggest gain by any one player was made by Lockhead, who went from 142 to 250, chiefly on account of a single day's hitting, when he made three hits out of four times at the bat.

In fielding Poindexter, who was one of those with a perfect record last week, has made two errors and dropped to seventh place. Peer has made the best advance this week, as he has fielded his position without an error. He has accepted 26 chances during the week. Reitz and Combs have spoilt their records by contributing a number of bobbles.

SCHAEZKE GETTING READY

Fred Schaezke, captain and second baseman of the Panthers, who has been out of the game for about six weeks, owing to a spiking he received in Dallas, which resulted in erysipelas, is making all preparation to re-enter the fray. He has been exercising in his room for some time in an effort to work the strength back into his arms and body. His right leg, which was in terrible shape a few weeks back, has entirely healed and the swelling is rapidly diminishing. Thursday Fred intended taking a row on Lake Erie at Handley, but decided at the last moment not to go. On Friday he donned his uniform for the first time and going out to Haines Park took a little light fielding and hitting practice. Yesterday he ventured out again.

It will be fully a week before he attempts to get into a championship game, as it would be the height of folly for him to try to play before he regained his strength and the full use of the injured limb. In the first place he would not be able to do himself full justice, nor would he add strength to the club, and in the second place the hard strain of a game might bring on a relapse that would put him out for the balance of the season.

At the rate now on, Fred's strength as a second baseman, as a hitter, and as a ginger factory, may be the deciding factor that lands the pennant for Fort Worth. If he goes along slowly and steadily, gradually working himself up to the point where he can play with his former nerve and dash, he will help the Panthers drag many a hard proposition into the winning column. Of course, the fans hope to see such a fine player out of the game for even one day, but looking the whole situation over, he is too valuable for any more chances to be taken with him than are absolutely necessary.

POOR RECORD ON TRIP

The record made by the team on the foreign trip this week has been anything but good. After defeating Corsicana three straight, the team went to the City and lost two out of the three games. To be sure, it won one in a walkaway and lost a 10-inning game, but the playing of some of the individuals was rather startling. One day Combs made three misplays.

CURIOSITY

The Motive That Leads to Knowledge

Fred says curiosity once killed a cat, but if it were not for curiosity little progress would be made. A Texan tells the following good story about his curiosity and what he learned about food: "One day down at the store I noticed a yellow package with a curious name, 'Grape-Nuts.' The name fascinated me, and aroused my curiosity. I didn't like to display my ignorance by asking, so I bought a package and took it home where I read all about it. When wife and I tried it we thought it delightful and commenced using it morning and evening with cream.

Before this I had suffered from lack of assimilation of food and my stomach was so weak that what I ate for breakfast seemed to lie there a long time before being digested. I was usually in distress and had no appetite for dinner. All this has changed since my diet has been largely on Grape-Nuts. I have gained steeply in strength, health and weight, sleep soundly at night and get up refreshed in the morning. Wife says I look like a new man and she herself has been greatly benefited by the food.

After my breakfast of Grape-Nuts I don't need anything in the middle of the day, as a rule, but I always keep a little of the food handy, and if I have any sense of exhaustion I just take a few mouthfuls of it. It gives me immediate relief and does not destroy my appetite for dinner, but seems to sharpen it. It surprises me that we never seem to tire of Grape-Nuts, although we have now been using it for several years. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Sold for medicinal purposes, but is good food for 75¢ money prices.

PITCHER JACK JARVIS (He has won ten out of twelve games pitched by him for the Panthers this year.)

In a single game and the next day Reitz equalled the third baseman's record. The game Friday with Waco was not much to talk about either, as a shut out was only averted by a wild throw of a Waco player.

Jarvis punctured his straight series of victories by losing to Corsicana on Friday in a 10-inning game. His record of ten out of twelve games is still a remarkable one and such as is very seldom equaled, and it probably would have been 11 out of 12 if Combs had not fallen down.

MANY GOING TO WACO

Many local fans will take advantage of the special excursion rate to Waco and return today, by going to that city to take in this afternoon's game there between Fort Worth and Waco. Manager Ward and a number of friends have made up a special party, which includes a number of hard rooters, and the chances are that the Panthers will get plenty of encouragement from at least one section of the grand stand.

WILL PLAY TODAY

The Retail Clerks and the Yozielias will line up at Haines Park this afternoon for a game of baseball. The two teams are among the strongest in the city. Play will be called at 4 o'clock. The line up will be as follows:

Retail Clerks—Hall, catcher; Hawn, pitcher; Miller, first base; Fagan, second base; Glenn, third base; Lewis, shortstop; Mays, left field; Putman, center field; W. Cunningham, right field.

BEER COMES IN TABLOID FORM

Wandering Briton May Carry His Particular Brand in His Pocket

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) LONDON, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—The latest necessary article of diet to be reduced to convenient tabloid form is beer. The wandering Briton may henceforth be accompanied by his beloved home beer to all parts of the earth.

A means has been devised of reducing and preserving malt as a tabloid jelly. All the traveler has to do is to add water to dissolve the jelly, as one would a soup preparation, and there is the beer, fresh as from an English inn.

A half pint bottle filled with the jelly is sufficient to make a gallon of ale, and it is claimed that the beer is immeasurably superior to that brewed from sea-borne malt, which loses much of its freshness in transit.

No sort of temperature affects the beer tabloid, and for colonial use the new compound is able to save one-half the cost of production to consumers.

WEATHER AND CROPS

CROPS ARE VERY GOOD

RIISING STAR, Texas, July 11.—We are having some very warm weather and needing rain in many places. Corn and cotton will not suffer for several days. But it will require one more rain to mature corn.

The fruit crop is turning out well. Peaches, apples, plums, berries and vegetables have been coming in for some time. A collection was sent from here to the farmers' congress.

GRAIN BEING GARNERED

HE HAD A LONG PEACEFUL SLEEP

ROME, July 11, 1:30 p. m.—Shortly after the midday meal the pope fell into a peaceful sleep, which still continues. At 3:30 p. m. the pope continues to sleep, and those about him consider the sleep to be unnatural and arising from augmentation of weakness. It is expected that all three doctors will go to the sick room twice this afternoon, at 5 and 7 p. m.

At 4 p. m. the pope awakened, thus dissipating the fear of the approach of a state of coma.

Later in the day the pope received the Countess Canali and Countess Moroni, his nieces.

After a short chat with them, he asked about Monsignore Volpini, saying: "What is the matter? Why does he not come to see me?"

It was explained to the pontiff that the excitement of the last few days had overcom Monsignore Volpini, who is quite unwell, but the pope was not informed that Monsignore Volpini is dead.

A rumor is now circulating to the effect that the pope is suffering from inflammation of the kidneys, but Dr. Mazzoni emphatically denies it.

At 5:30 p. m. the pope is still awake, but is not feeling quite so bright as he did this morning. The doctors are now arriving at the vatican for an early visit.

In order to take into account the convenience of all concerned, including the pope, unless new symptoms are discovered the doctors are not likely to return to the vatican tonight.

FORGERY CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN

In the court room of Justice of the Peace Rowland yesterday afternoon Mrs. R. A. Greenlee, wife of a railroad man, waived examination on a charge of forgery and was held in the sum of $500. She furnished bond and was released.

It is seldom that such a charge is lodged against a woman. Mrs. Greenlee is a prepossessing woman and although she was greatly worried by the charge and consequent publicity, she maintained a cool demeanor.

The case is a peculiar one. Mrs. Greenlee, according to a member of the county attorney's staff, some time ago contracted a good sized bill at a local department store. She paid off part or all of the bill and then a dispute arose as to whether she had paid it all. She produced a receipt and bill and it was now claimed that this bill has been changed so as to make it appear that it is a receipt in full. Hence the charge against her. She declares that she will easily establish her innocence.

In the same court Jim Tubb waived examination on a charge of burglary and was held in the sum of $500.

John Brown waived on the charge of theft of over $50 and was held in the sum of $750.

Otis Grizzelle waived on a charge of theft from the person and was held in the sum of $500.

M. F. Murray vs. W. H. Murray, divorce.

DIVORCE GRANTED

In the Seventeenth district court yesterday the divorce suit of R. A. Boyd vs. C. M. Boyd was heard. A decree was granted.

COUNTY COURT

In the county court yesterday E. H. Radford was fined $5 and costs on a plea of guilty in answer to an assault charge.

Luther Jones pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and was fined $25 and costs.

May Rogers pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and was fined $25 and costs.

FIVE MADE BOND

Before Judge Smith in the Seventeenth district court yesterday afternoon five young men who are charged with burglarizing a store at Webb, Tarrant county, made bond in the sum of $500 each. The young men were rounded up Friday a few miles east of Mansfield by Deputy Sheriff Roark.

Their names are: Walter Wyatt, Henry and Bob Curry, "Bud" Perry and Luther Gaunce. They were at work in a harvest field when arrested.

A Very Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters, and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by J. W. Fisher. Price 50 cents.

WHITELASH FOR PANTHERS AT WACO

Bateman Prevented Them From Scoring While His Own Comrades Rolled Up Four Runs

Special to The Telegram: WACO, Texas, July 11.—For five innings today's game between Fort Worth and Waco was a pitchers' battle. There was a big Saturday crowd out but it did not get a chance to cheer for its newly won team until the sixth inning when a couple of hits by Waco men and a couple of misplays by the Panthers yielded two runs for the home team.

The score then remained 2 to 0 until the ninth inning when the locals clinched the victory by adding two more tallies. Bateman pitched in superb form and administered a shut-out. Lockhead pitched a good game, but it was not as good as other games he has pitched against the same club that he faced today.

Tomorrow the first Sunday game in Waco since this city broke into the Texas league this season will be played and a record breaking crowd is expected. There will be several excursions from nearby cities and a big throng is expected from Fort Worth.

DALLAS STILL WINNING

DALLAS, Texas, July 11.—"The narrow margin of one run" was again in evidence today, and Dallas had the "narrow." The fact is that nearly every game Dallas has figured in during the second series has been decided by one run. It is becoming a monotonous incident.

Moulder the young Corsicana amateur, sustained his reputation as a pitcher of ability, dividing honors with Reagan, long and loudly heralded as the star of the Texas League. Only seven singles were recorded against Moulder, while one of the seven chipped off of Reagan's delivery was a two-bagger. Empire Robinson's work was so unsatisfactory to Coyle, O'Connor and Curtis that he picked off a total of $9 from their combined salaries.

A STUPENDOUS SALE WITHOUT A PARALLEL!

A Sweeping Sacrifice of Values!

The sale successes of the past are to pale into insignificance compared with THE COLUMBIA STOCK SALE, BOUGHT AT 60c ON THE DOLLAR makes this sale stand out as the most important in the whole South. The busy, bustling, buying crowds of yesterday are a splendid exponent of the fact that low prices for worthy merchandise are appreciated by this people and are bound to bring success. We have shown you yesterday in the first step of our mercantile career in your city that nothing is uncertain at this store. The right sort of business methods shall endure here—the sort that leaves no stone unturned or field unexplored to bring you better-than-usual-values. We shall work unceasingly to increase our helpfulness—and thus the store has come to this city to occupy the position as a shopping center for every one who wants to make their money stretch farthest. The news which follows is of extraordinary interest. It's news that strikes home—for it tells of opportunity after opportunity for rare bargains—of myriad chances to provide home and personal needs for less than you dared hope.

ADAM COOK RECOVERING

NEW YORK, July 11.—Rear Admiral Francis A. Cook, who commanded the cruiser Brooklyn during the battle of Santiago, is slowly recovering from a long illness in the naval hospital at Brooklyn. He was attacked by the grip early last September and the disease seriously affected his heart and kidneys. Prior to this attack Admiral Cook had been on the sick list but once in all his forty-three years of service, and that happened when he sprained an ankle.

WOMEN AND JEWELS

Jewels, candy, flowers, men—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get this reliable remedy at W. L. Smallwood's and Smallwood & Walkup's, Price 25c and 75c.

THE BI-CENTENNIAL OF JOHN WESLEY

SOMETHING OF THE LIFE AND CHARACTER OF THE FOREMOST FIGURE IN METHODISM AND A STORY OF HOW HE WAS PERSUADED TO ESTABLISH THE NEW SECT

At the First Methodist Episcopal church, South, corner Fourth and Jones streets, Dr. S. H. Werlein, the pastor, will deliver an address on "John Wesley," commemorative of his two hundredth birthday. This will be the theme at the 8:15 p. m. service. Celebrations of this kind have been held during the past two weeks all over the world. John Wesley is today recognized as one of the greatest religious individualities since the days of the apostles, and his followers are more numerous and influential than ever.

All Methodists are cordially invited to unite with the congregation of the First church in doing honor to the name of this eminent reformer. Services at 11 a. m. The two hundredth anniversary of the birth of John Wesley was celebrated by a universal Methodism on June 28. The birth of the great leader was on June 17, 1703, but by the new law of computation the bicentennial will fall on June 28. Methodism observed three centennials in less than fifty years—one in 1839, in recognition of the formation of the first society in the world, one in 1868, in remembrance of the establishment of the first society in America, and one in 1884, in commemoration of the organization of the Methodist Episcopal church at the general conference at Baltimore. It was found that the 50 ministers and 2,000 communicants in 1786 had grown in 1886 to 18,000 ministers and 3,000,000 members, and that the 280 ministers and 54,000 members in 1784 had advanced to 24,000 ministers and 5,000,000 communicants in 1884. And now the church begins the bicentennial with the birth of Wesley.

Great progress has been made especially in this country. At the close of the Revolutionary war there were only 35,000 members. There are now 35,000 ministers, 56,000 churches and 6,841,755 communicants, the increase for the year 1902 being 228 ministers, 42 churches and 58,000 members. The church is the largest Protestant denomination in the country. One person out of every thirteen, one Christian out of every four, one Protestant out of every three in the United States is a member in full fellowship of the Methodist church. It is not surprising that American Methodism is making great preparation for the celebration of Wesley's bicentennial.

John Wesley had able helpers, without whom Methodism would have been an impossibility. The pen of history is likely to pay too little attention to the names of his co-workers. Charles, who wrote a 6,000 hymn book of the M. E. church, some of whose verses Handel rendered doubly immortal with his melody, whose "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," has been sung more widely than any other hymn in the English language. It is hard to tell which was more potent in the great awakening, the hymnology of Charles or the theology of John Wesley. There was also George Whitefield, who was a more eloquent preacher than Wesley, who began field preaching before he did, and who, continued for thirty years to charm audiences often as large as 30,000, as few men had ever done, who visited Scotland fourteen times, Ireland twice and every county in England and Wales, who crossed the Atlantic seven times, who preached 14,000 sermons, who captured Philadelphia, charmed New York, even set Harvard wild; who stirred the American colonies to the white heat of religious enthusiasm as no one of the century had done, under whose inspiration all denominations were quickened spiritually, under whose impulse his co-workers were led to found benevolent and educational institutions, notably Princeton and Dartmouth colleges, the Wesleyans of England, especially Lord Dartmouth, contributing liberally to their establishment. But he, being a Calvinist, led that wing of Methodism, and Wesley and he, though agreeing in heart, went each his own way. It is no injustice to Wesley to give Whitefield credit for the important part he took in the awakening which crystallized into the new sect.

After due credit is given to the good and great men and women who aided him, John Wesley must ever be considered the founder of Methodism. The movement began in his heart, was watched by his eye, guided by his skill, organized by his wisdom, promoted by his industry, quickened by his zeal, sanctified by his affection and sacrifice and dominated absolutely by his imperial will. He rode on horseback a distance equal to several times the circumference of the earth and preached 25,000 sermons. He ministered to the bodies and souls of men. By tongue of matchless power and pen of greatest vigor he addressed hundreds of thousands of his fellow men and brought many of them to a better life. For over fifty years he set himself with more than mortal energy to the task of giving organized embodiment to the new life of love which had been planted in his heart. It is not a wonder then that the Methodists of Britain and her colonies should call themselves Wesleyans.

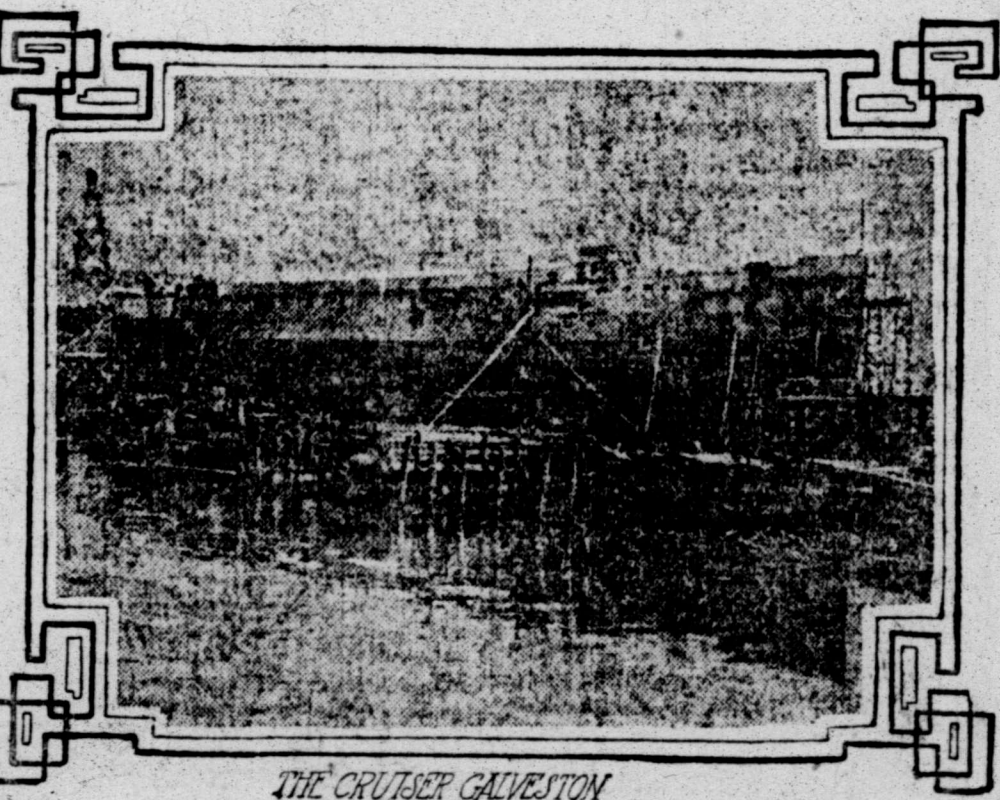

THUNDER STORM IS DUE THIS AFTERNOON

Warning was sent out from the weather bureau yesterday to pleasure seekers that among the provisions for picnics today (Sunday) should be included showers scheduled for some time today, with the probability that they will arrive this afternoon. The conditions for rain are not the strongest that can be found, but Official Forecaster Reeder announced that he thought it was very probable there would be rain some time today with all appearances pointing toward the afternoon as the time. Fort Worth will be on the edge of an area of high pressure this afternoon, and showers usually accompany such conditions. The temperature will also be a little lower today than it has been the past few days. The area of thunderstorms will extend as far south as Waco, where the storm is scheduled to begin about the time the baseball game between Fort Worth and Waco is to be played. Yesterday came near breaking the year's record for heat. The thermometer mounted up to a fraction over 93 degrees, which is within a half degree of the set for a record two weeks ago. The temperature Friday was about the same as the other days this week. The highest was 92 degrees.

FEDERAL PRISONER ATTACKED THE SHERIFF

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., July 11.—Gilbert Mullen, a Federal prisoner, who led the mutiny at Fort Leavenworth prison in November, 1902, and who had been in the county jail here for the past year awaiting trial on a charge of having murdered one of the guards during the mutiny, led an assault on Sheriff Pease early today and he, with three other white and two negro prisoners, escaped. The sheriff was overpowered and badly cut about the head, but succeeded in getting the cell door closed before the other prisoners could get out. BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE ATLANTA, Ga., July 11.—The third day of the international convention of Baptist Young People's union began with early morning prayer meetings in various churches of the city, all of which were well attended. The afternoon session was devoted to the Junior branch of the society, the exercises being on the general subject, "The Light of the World."

ANTI-POOL BILL IS MADE VOID

LONE STAR TELEGRAPH MONEY ORDER COMPANY STARTS

HOW PLAN IS WORKED

MONEY TO BE WAGERED ON RACES IS TELEGRAPHED TO LOUISIANA

IT IS ALL DONE BY WIRE

H. T. Huey is President and Manager of the Local Company, Which is Capitalized at $20,000—A Reporter Wires a "Flyer"

The first thing that greets your eye when you saunter into the "offices" of the Lone Star Telegraph Money Order Company, which opened its doors to the public yesterday, is a large placard which bears on its face in firm and uncompromising characters the words: "Positively, No Betting Allowed Here."

Alongside this sign on a long black-board you observe the names of various race tracks, thus:

- Brighton Beach—St. Louis—Chicago.

The day's entries at these tracks are posted in neat columns beneath the respective track names; alongside the names of the horses are posted the odds that presumably are being laid against the chances of the animals at the track. Just over the name of each horse is the name of the jockey that rides it and after each name is the weight carried, below each column as the afternoon's sport progresses is posted the time at which the horses will go to the post.

On the whole, if you are not forewarned, you are liable to drift into the terrible error of thinking you are in a poolroom. But you are not. If you wish even to bet that it is a poolroom you must go outside to do the betting, because no betting is permitted in the "offices" of the Lone Star Telegraph Money Order Company. H. T. Huey, president and general manager, capital stock, $20,000.

PURPOSE OF COMPANY

This company is organized to do a general telegraph money order business. The firm of Breen and Madigan, at Lake Charles, La., will receive moneys telegraphed by the Lone Star Company from Fort Worth and will place wagers for persons in Fort Worth who desire to have the same placed. This firm will place the bets on the horse indicated by the Fort Worth man who "thinks he has a 'hot one," and if the "hot one" delivers the goods this firm also will take pleasure in telegraphing to the Lone Star Company to pay the said Fort Worth man the amount telegraphed and the amount won, which sums shall be deducted from the account kept by the firm with the Lone Star Company.

REPORTER TRIES IT

When The Telegram reporter wandered into the new telegraph company's office yesterday afternoon there was quite a gathering of "the talent" in sight. The telegraph wire was clicking and the operator was calling off the result in the first race at Brighton Beach, which Gold-En Maxin won. The reporter was taking a bit sport, and after consulting some men who borrowed his pencil in order to figure out how much they already had telegraphed to Lake Charles, he decided to place a modest wager—or rather determined to telegraph a modest sum of money to Breen & Madigan, to be placed on Poor Boy, which was expected by the pencil borrowers to win in a common center in the first event at Chicago. "Why, Helgeson, the boy that rode The Picket when that horse won the American Derby, is up, and it's just the same as if it were any other now," said one. Poor Boy looked like a cinch to The Telegram reporter, who, after taking a wise look at the blackboard to see if there were anything in the race likely to give him an argument, turned toward the "receiving" clerk's desk and planked down $5.85, which sum represented his entire cash assets, and ordered that amount telegraphed to Breen & Madigan, forthwith, to be placed on Poor Boy at 15 to 1. The 85 cents was shoved back as "receiving" clerk's desk and a nominal charge was made for telegraphing the money, the receiving clerk said, to which the reporter acquiesced.

HOW IT IS DONE

A receipt was handed to the reporter, who also was permitted to take a fleeting glimpse of the money order blank. The instructions by the reporter to the Lone Star Company were: "Pay to Breen & Madigan at Lake Charles, La., the amounts named herein for me, subject to the printed terms and conditions upon receipt held by me, which is free to readers of The Telegram who are distressed by stomach troubles or tortured and poisoned by constipation or in danger with kidney and liver congestions or diseases. If you care to be cured of indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, catarrh of stomach and bowels, constipation, or torpid and congested liver; if you wish to be sure that your kidneys are free from disease, and are doing their necessary work thoroughly; if you expect to be free from catarrh, rheumatism and backache; if you desire a full supply of pure, rich blood, a health tissue and a perfect skin, write at once for a free bottle of this remedy, and prove to yourself, without expense to you, that these ailments are relieved immediately and cured quickly, thoroughly and permanently with only one small dose a day of Drake's Palmetto Wine. Any reader of The Telegram may have a trial bottle of Drake's Palmetto Wine sent free and prepaid by writing to Drake Formula Company, Lake and Dearborn streets, Chicago, Ill. A letter or postal card is the only expense.

are agreed to, and send the following message to said payee, subject to terms and conditions on back hereof, which are agreed to."

The telegram itself was as follows: "Place for me, as my agent at Lake Charles, La., with some person engaged in book-making at Lake Charles, La., the amounts named below herein (which amounts I herewith telegraph you), as follows: "Five to $75 on Poor Boy to run first. "The're off at Chicago. If any, at my risk, to the holder of receipt No. 501 C, issued by the Lone Star Telegraph Money Order Company and waive identification."

Pretty soon the operator announced "The're off at Chicago." The reporter clutched his ticket, or rather his receipt, tightly, and held his breath. Poor Boy must have got off badly, because his name was not called among the three named as getting off in front. It was a pipe, though, that he would be leading them all at the quarter. When that call was made, however, Poor Boy's name did not issue from the lips of the deep-voiced man at the keyboard. The reporter made up his mind that Poor Boy certainly had got one of the worst starts ever made at the Chicago track and was in for mobbing the starter, only, of course, that was impossible at the distance. At the stretch call the operator hesitated a minute and everyone expected that he at last was about to accede to the far as the transmission of the money may have involved it. "This thing of running a telegraph company is too tame for me," said H. T. Huey, president and manager of the company. "Here I have been in the business only one day and I'm already tired of it. The latter part of next week I think I shall run down to New York and take a flyer on the races. There was a little excitement for me when I was making a book here, but this thing of running a little telegraph company on a commission basis isn't thrilling enough."

The telegraph money order company is being introduced generally in Texas by former bookmakers, who found that they could not make a book in this state under the anti-pool bill enacted into law by the last legislature.

BUSINESS MEN COMBINED TO TELL THE WORLD

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25, 1903.—To H. T. Pangburn & Co.—Dear Sirs: There are daily occurrences in this city that ought to be known all over the world. A guileless old gentleman, an octogenarian, a distant relative of Robert Fulton of first steamship fame, has saved the lives of hundreds (probably thousands) after they were believed to be beyond human aid. His discovery is undoubtedly the long-sought cure for Bright's Disease and Diabetes. This is not a case of belief and it is the purpose of a number of business and professional men of this city (of whom I am one) to tell the people. You are hereby authorized to tell the hundreds in your city whose kidney diseases have become chronic and who fear they are incurable, that nearly nine-tenths of them can recover. Among the business men who are giving moral and financial support, and who would give neither if the above was not strictly true, are Hon. D. M. Burns, president Candelaria Mining Company; Edward Mills, president Bullock & Jones Company; Captain Roberts, president Boca and Loyalton R. R. Co.; Thos. Kirkpatrick, capitalist; D. E. Bender, capitalist; W. C. Price, capitalist; William Sharp, capitalist; C. W. Clark, capitalist, and many others. The pamphlets herewith are to be given to all inquirers without charge. Yours truly, A. E. SHATTUCK, President Pacific States Type Foundry.

THE HUB Tea & Coffee Co.

have just closed a contract with a large firm that will enable the rich and the poor to have their houses numbered and streets named. By calling at their store at 1002 Houston street, opposite library, you can get particulars. Mr. J. J. Holland, manager of this company, advocated this movement some years ago, but at that time a contract was in existence between a party and the city council to do this work, and until his term expired this work could not be given to another. Later on a number of good home industry ladies saw it was for the good of the city and the convenience of the public at large to have this work done, and by hard work and soliciting have accomplished a large part of the work. Now the Hub Tea and Coffee Co. will finish the work if you will help by calling and leaving your name and address at 1002 Houston St.

OAK CLIFF TROUBLES

The Annexation Question is to Be Called Monday

DALLAS, Texas, July 11.—Keen interest is general in the hearing that is to come up before Judge Morgan in the Forty-fourth district civil court on Monday next on the Oak Cliff annexation controversy. From what can be learned, no dilatory tactics are contemplated by either side. Both sides to the controversy have equipped themselves with the best available facts, opinions and precedents to use in the legal battle.

The annexationists express confidence in their ability to successfully defend the annexation act of the legislature, and the anti-annexationists are confident that the matter will be declared unconstitutional by the courts. It is hoped to have the matter finally disposed of by the supreme court of the state by next September or October.

NEWS FROM DALHART

Rock Island is Making Extensive Improvements in That Town

DALHART, Texas, July 11.—Work on the thirty-ton ice and electric light plant is progressing rapidly and Messrs. Wolff and Foules, the proprietors, state that the place will be using home manufactured ice and lighted by electricity by September 1. The city has contracted for several 2,000 candle power arc lights and the electricians are now busy wiring business houses and residences.

The Chicago, Rock Island and Mexico Railway is doing considerable improvement here in the way of additional yard tracks and machinery in the shops. It is stated that the railroad force at this place will be increased to between three hundred and four hundred men at once. Some very fine samples of wheat and oats have been brought in by farmers from Dallam and Sherman counties.

Cattle are in fine condition and grass the best for years. The calf crop as a rule has been very satisfactory among the smaller ranches, averaging 85 to 90 per cent of calves.

All crops are in good shape.

Love that has nothing but beauty to keep it alive is apt to be short-lived.

INDICTED 30 YEARS AFTER

PRES. BAILEY IS NOW CHARGED WITH MURDER

SURRENDERS TO OFFICERS

He Makes Bond Before Judge Smith in the Sum of Thirty-Five Hundred Dollars

KILLED A MAN IN TARRANT

First Indictment Destroyed When Old Court House Was Burned—New One Returned Last Week—Self-Defense Is His Plea

In March, 1873, President Bailey, then 21 years old, met his brother-in-law, "Sandy" Talbot, near Bradford, Tarrant county, and shot and killed him. Last week thirty years after the killing, he was indicted for the Tarrant county grand jury for the crime.

Yesterday he surrendered to the officers, was taken before Judge Smith, in the Seventeenth district court, and made bond in the sum named by the judge, $3,500, with his brother, Robert Bailey, and Former Sheriff Sterling P. Clark, as his sureties.

Back of these main facts lies a most unusual and interesting story. From all accounts, there was bitter feeling between Bailey and the Talbots, especially between Bailey and "Sandy" Talbot. The events connected with the tragedy long ago slipped the memories of most of the few yet living in this vicinity who were old enough at that time to become acquainted with the facts.

MARRIED TALBOT'S SISTER

Bailey married the sister of "Sandy" Talbot when both were in their teens. Both families were prominent. After the killing Bailey on the advice of friends and relatives moved away in order to avoid what threatened to become a feud. He went to Arkansas. A divorce from his wife followed. After living in Arkansas for a few years he remarried. His second wife bore him seven children, the youngest of whom is now nearly grown. About twenty years ago he returned to Fort Worth. Meantime shortly after the killing an indictment charging him with murder was returned against the family. The house burned in the latter part of the Seventies this indictment was destroyed. When he returned to Fort Worth, the officers of that period were not inclined to prosecute him. "They were familiar with the facts," said Former Sheriff Clark last night, "and undoubtedly knew that Bailey shot Talbot in self-defense."

HERE SEVERAL TIMES

After remaining in Fort Worth for a while Bailey went back to Arkansas. Since that time he has made several trips to Fort Worth. About six weeks ago he came to this city with his two eldest boys. All three succeeded in obtaining employment at the packing houses. Then, the family was brought over from Arkansas, a neat home was rented and the family was getting along very happily when the report reached Bailey that the grand jury had taken up his case, and returned an indictment against him. He at once sought counsel of friends. His surrender followed and yesterday he made bond for his appearance when required, before Judge Smith, to answer to the charge of murder.

REAL ESTATE MEN ARRANGE PROGRAM

List of Papers to Be Read at Houston Convention Is Made Out by the Officers

A meeting of the executive committee of the Texas Real Estate and Industrial Association was held in the office of the secretary, A. N. Evans, Friday evening. The only matter that was discussed was the program for the convention which is to be held in Houston on September 17 and 18.

The convention will be called to order on the morning of the 17th by the president, C. Culmore of Houston. The address of welcome will be delivered by O. T. Holt, mayor of Houston, and the response will be made by the president of the association. After this the roll will be called by the secretary of the city. The counties will be called alphabetically and each county will be allowed to give responses of five minutes each in answer to the question, "What have you got?" The morning session will then adjourn.

The annual address of the president is the first thing on the program for the afternoon session. It will be followed by the report of the secretary. After this papers will be read as follows:

"Developed Resources of Texas," by Professor Atwater.

"Good Roads," by Judge B. M. Fly of Victoria and C. Culmore of Houston.

"Sugar Industry," by Captain William Christian of Houston and Captain F. A. Reichardt of Resources of Texas, by Professor Phillips of Austin.

"Home-Grown Food and Forage Supply," by R. E. Smith and J. F. Evans of Sherman.

"Immigration—What Class Needed and How to Be Obtained," by H. H. Simmons of Hillsboro and Oswald Wilson of Fort Worth.

"Relation of Railroads to Texas Development," by T. J. Anderson of Houston, M. G. Robinson of Houston and W. C. Crush of Dallas.

"Rice Industry," by Dr. S. A. Knapp of Lake Charles, La., W. C. Moore of Houston and Colonel S. L. Cary of Jennings, La.

The meeting will then adjourn until Friday morning, when the reading of the papers will continue, including the following:

"Horticultural Development of Texas," by E. W. Kirkpatrick of McKinney and Professor R. H. Price of College Station.

"Timber and Lumber Interest of Texas," by Hon. John H. Kirby of Houston and J. H. Bettis of Orange.

"The Torrens System of Land Title of Texas," by C. W. Hutchinson of Fort Worth.

L. G. SCHULTZ TO GO TO SOUTH AMERICA

FORMER RESIDENT OF FORT WORTH IS TO MAKE A MAGNETIC SURVEY FOR ARGENTINA—He WILL START IN AUGUST, GOING VIA EUROPE

Mrs. L. G. Schultz, who has been visiting her home in Fort Worth for the past few weeks, will leave Monday for Washington to join her husband and during the first week in August they will sail for South America by way of Europe. They will be accompanied on the trip by their daughter, Miss Eva Mae Scott, who will remain abroad with them for a year or longer.

Since he left this city, where he was for a long time weather observer, Mr. Schultz has been stationed at Cheltenham, Md., near Washington, as director of the United States coast and geodetic survey magnetic observatory at that place, which is the chief base station for the survey of the United States, Alaska and the new island possessions.

Although a magnetic survey of America, Europe and the British Indian and African possessions has been in progress for the past seventy years, all other portions of the earth have been neglected. Argentina has been preparing to undertake a survey for a number of years. Finally after purchasing the necessary instruments they expressed a desire to have an American take charge of the work or to start it, and Mr. Schultz has been chosen to do this.

He will make a preliminary survey of the region around Cordoba in order to select a suitable site for a permanent observatory, to be used as a base station, and after putting up the necessary buildings and installing the instruments there he will gradually extend the field of operations over the entire southern portion of the continent to Tierra del Fuogo. The United States navy will provide instruments for standardizing. These will be compared by Mr. Schultz with the standards at Cheltenham, Ky., Paris, Potsdam and St. Petersburg and he will make observations with them at all ports touched and on shipboard during the voyage, so that the operations in the southern hemisphere will be directly connected with the surveys in progress in America and Europe.

COL. G. WASH. JONES DIES AT BASTROP

BASTROP, Texas, July 11.—George Washington Jones died at his home here today, aged 75 years.

The death of G. Wash. Jones, as he was known all over Texas, removed one of the most conspicuous characters in the history of Texas.

Colonel Jones was born in Marion county, Alabama, September 5, 1828. He was reared in Tipton county, Tennessee, and came to Texas, locating in Bastrop county in 1848.

There he taught school and was later admitted to the bar, his conspicuous political career commencing with an election to the office of district attorney in 1856. In 1861 he enlisted as private soldier in the Confederate army. He was elected lieutenant colonel of the Seventeenth Texas infantry, and before the close of the war was made colonel. He returned to his home in Bastrop county after the war, and was a member from that county of the constitutional convention in 1868. When the constitution was adopted he was elected lieutenant governor on the ticket with J. W. Throckmorton ("Old Throck"), but later was removed from the office by the Federal authorities, the cause alleged being that he "was an impediment to reconstruction." He was elected to the Forty-sixth congress as a democrat, and served two terms.

Later he ceased his fealty to the democratic party, and when Ireland was nominated for governor in 1882, Colonel Jones made the race against him, but was defeated. Nothing daunted, he made a second race against Ireland in 1884. Colonel Jones was such a strong man, and one so universally liked personally, that his race for governor was the cause of many long time democratic records being "scratched" because the voters "scratched the ticket" and voted for him, and it has often been used in politics against a man, that he "supported" Jones for governor.

After these defeats Colonel Jones remained at home in the practice of law. He was respected by all who knew him and his wisdom on questions of importance was sought by many. He was successful in his practice.

In 1898 Colonel Jones made another effort to break into politics and was an "independent candidate" for congress against the present congressman from his precinct, A. S. Burleson. He had the support of the republican party, but it was not sufficient to elect him, and after that defeat he retired to private life.

TEXAS TROOPS TO CAMP ALONE

Joint Maneuvers Will Not Be Ordered by the Department of Texas in August

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 11.—By a streak of ill luck the Texas militia this year will be deprived of the hoped-for joint maneuvers. The department of Texas this summer is practically depleted of troops through the Philippine movement, and new troops will not arrive until fall. The Texas National Guard therefore will confine itself to the usual state encampment, which will be held in Austin August 20, and General Grant will lead it all the service that lies in his power. Inasmuch as this is not a joint maneuver called by the department commander, the expenses of the trip will have to be borne by the militia, no pay for time of service during the period of the encampment can be drawn from the general government by the officers and men.

PLAYERS TELL QUEER HOME RUN YARNS

There is some queer home-run stories going the rounds of the Northern press. Some of them are true, but the reader is usually allowed to judge for himself as to the fact of their having occurred or not. The following are a few examples of what will turn up when a base ball player starts off to beat the one just previous:

Frank Isbell, Comiskey's first baseman, tells a prize story about a home-run. "In 1898 I was pitching for St. Paul," says Isbell. "We were not allowed to play Sunday games inside corporation limits, and so a little park was fitted up outside for Sunday play. The park was extremely small. The field was so short that a fence twelve or fifteen feet high had been built behind it to keep the balls from going out of bounds."

"As a consequence of the small field it was almost impossible to hit out better than a two-bagger, for the ball would strike the fence and roll back into the infield. "One Sunday we were playing Minneapolis. I was pitching for St. Paul, Minneapolis was at the bat in the last half of the ninth inning and we were two runs ahead. There were two men out and two men on bases. The next man at the bat lined out a high fly. It struck the high center field fence about twelve feet above the ground and everybody was certain we had the game won."

"But we didn't. The ball struck the fence and staid there. It struck directly on the sharp end of a wire nail, and before we could get a stepladder and climb up after it the Minneapolis line had its three runs and the game was over."

STUCK IN THE FENCE
The following one is recorded to the credit of George Mullin, the Detroit twirler:

"I was pitching a game for Fort Wayne in the old Interstate," said George, "when Hogriever was in all his glory. Doggie Miller was out captain and he was hitting them out in great shape in those days. There were two of us on bases with a tied score along about the seventh inning, and Doggie got the ball hard on the end of his bat. It hit the short fence back of Hogriever, on the fly, and the rest of us chased around the bases like mad. Before I turned third I saw Hogriever standing up against the fence and clawing away with all his might. It looked as if he was trying to make a hole in the boards with his finger nails."

"Doggie saw there was something doing and kept right on running. It went for a home run and we all looked around at Hoggie. He was still clawing at that fence with his back turned to the crowd."

"Finally he looked around and saw that the bases were clear. Then he quit and came in, with the information that the ball had hit in a hole out through the fence by some kids who wanted to see the game. It had fitted in so nicely that its speed had wedged it tight, and Hoggie couldn't budge it."

"For a long time that ball was left in the hole. I don't know whether it's there yet or not. I suppose the kids have poked it out and everybody but Hoggie has forgotten it. He went round the next day, though, and plugged all the holes all round the line."

FOUND THE HORNETS
"The funniest home run I ever made was at Atlanta," said Ryan, of the Washington team. "I was down there with a major league team and we were playing the locals. One of the Atlantas hit the ball away out in the outfield, and Schaffer started after it on a run. It was a short hit and I thought it would go for a single, but the first thing I knew he was running around like a crazy man and slapping his head."

"The ball rolled back, but he paid no attention to it at all, and instead of fielding it came in on a dead run. The runner got around easy, and when I got up to ask Schaffer what was the matter he was still slapping at his head, and I saw there was a swarm of hornets buzzing around him. The ball had gone into the nest, and they were getting even with Schaffer."

HAD TO SWIM FOR IT
"Another queer home run was at Cripple Creek, when the St. Paul team, which I was managing then, played Colorado Springs in the mining town on Sunday. I noticed a bank in the outfield back of me when I went out, but I never thought to look at what was behind it. Pretty soon a high fly was hit, and I started back and ran right over the bank and into a creek, going up to my neck. The ball fell in the water and floated away. The crowd gave me the laugh for getting wet, but two innings hadn't passed before one of those mountain thunder storms broke and the whole crowd was drenched."

HOME RUN ON THREE STRIKES
"Paper Bill Schreiver got the laugh once in New York on a home run that was different from anything I ever saw. The Chicagoes were playing at the polo grounds and Schreiver was catching away back. The third baseman had two strikes in one inning, but Schreiver didn't come in, and the third strike hit one of Paper's buntions and bounded into the press stand. Schreiver made a run and jump and got his hands on the railing of the box to go after the ball, but try as he could he couldn't swing himself up. He hung there, swinging back and forth, until the man had made the round, and come home with a tally. I think we lost the game on that play."

A HOME RUN?
"The funniest play that I ever heard of on a long hit was one that Cliff Latimer told about," said Kitson. "He said he hit one over the short fence at the Boston National grounds for what looked like a home run, and started around the bases slowly. There was a train passing just then on the railroad, and it fell into the smoke-stack. The next puff the engine gave the ball flew out and the wind carried it back on the grounds so that the center fielder got it in time to throw 'Tacks' out at home."

REPULSIVE FEATURES.
Blackheads, pimples, greasy faces and muddy complexions, which are so common among women, especially girls at a certain age, destroying beauty, disfiguring and making repulsive, features which would otherwise appear attractive and refined, indicate that the liver is out of order. An occasional dose of Herbine will cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver and so establish a clear, healthy complexion. 50c at H. T. Pangburn & Co.'s.

THE SOCIAL SEASON

Swirl feminine society in New York may now be seen in its walks abroad wearing an article of apparel that until this day has been considered exclusively the property of mere man.

MY HUSBAND'S PIPE (Quality.)
When lights are lit and evening blazes dance And daytime cares forgotten for the nonce.

My husband lights his pipe, No protest do I make of "curtains" rare Or that old plaint "tobacco in the hair."

My husband's soul is ripe And mellow as a pipkin that has hung Sun kissed, where happy honey bees have sung.

With slippers feet and home-made dressing gown He strides along, oftentimes a smile, a frown.

Perchance may cross his face His thoughts on things of moment sometimes turning.

He nothing says, but with his pipe a-burning Keeps up his measured pace Through hall and dining room and library.

And back again, where he can smile at me, Whenever he lights his pipe.

Sometimes he whiffs and sings, "Lead, Kindly Light!"— Fine taste has he—he wants no ballads to bite.

Barbecued chicken to the accompaniment of compliments and gratified palates was the program for a picnic at Handley Friday evening.

The following announcement, which recently appeared in the New York World under a Boston date will interest a considerable portion of the Fort Worth and Texas public.

Barbecue has the sanction of high authority as a sure cure for business care, and therefore it has been adopted as the official form of summer hospitality for the Business Men's Social club.

Barbecued lamb was the "piece de resistance" at the business men's picnic at Handley Tuesday evening given by Messrs. E. H. Carter, A. M. Young, George Diehl, Sam Davidson, O. W. Matthews, Geo. Thompson, J. L. Johnson, J. G. Wilkinson, Robert Harrison, M. H. Mills, D. T. Bomar, H. A. Judd and Dr. L. A. Suggs.

After dinner, as the women sipped their coffee and the men enjoyed their cigars, D. T. Bomar, as toastmaster, introduced felicitously Sidney Samuels, who told of "Popular Superstitions," incidentally alluding to the witchery that lurked in the eyes of certain fair maidens if gallant swain gazed therein too long.

The invitations sent out by the Commercial Club for Friday evening were generally accepted that the pavilion at Handley has not yet been the scene of so brilliant a gathering.

Among the guests were Misses Maidee Watkins, Nance, Thompson, Norton, Fouke and Roberts, Conner, and Messrs. Wright, Rogers, M. E. Taber, W. L. Crawford, Elseny and Charles Long of Dallas.

Among the large attendance were noted the following: Dr. and Mrs. Cook, Dr. and Mrs. Mil-loquent speaker, advice that the women present busily discussed for some time thereafter.

After "Good Night, Beloved" was sung as a double quartet, the guests still lingered and found in the lake and other attractions of the grounds much entertainment.

Besides the hosts and their families, there were present Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Owlley, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Turner, Mrs. M. Dayton-Chase, Miss Grace Fakes, Mr. and Mrs. Marjory Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Lassiter, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Harding, John Winters, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Higby, Mrs. M. K. Higby, Rev. and Mrs. Ramage, Mr. and Mrs. Hird, Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd, Captain J. F. Waller, Judge and Mrs. Dunklin, Miss Horsley, Mrs. Curtice, Marion Santon, L. B. Comer, John Bradley, Holt Hubbard, Mrs. Maddox, Miss Head, Dr. and Mrs. Saunders, Miss Saunders, Miss Head of Sherman, Miss Caldwell, Captain and Mrs. Clements, Miss George Diehl, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Jacard, Captain and Mrs. Purinton, Mr. Barwise of Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Googins, Mr. and Mrs. Stripling, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Price and Dr. L. C. Chase.

The Zoellia dance at Handley Monday evening brought out all the members of the club and many of their friends.

Those present were Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Thompson, Captain and Mrs. West, Messrs. and Mesdames Harry Walton, Vapor, Hollis, Tascor, Camp, Garlington, Triplett, Hoote, Wart, Carro, Roselle, Goetz, Stookey, Van Zandt, Davis, Anderson, Schencker, Mesdames Whitta, Pendleton, Littlefair, Boerner, Misses Spencer, Van Zandt, Crittenden, Swayne, Shugart, Binyon, Larimer, Callaway, McLean, Vogel, Spoonis, Warren, Diehl, Crowley, Bartels, Daggett, Wilkes, Stripling, Perry, Carter, Hosmer, Littlejohn, Mallard, Saunders, Tarlton, Elizabeth Tarlton, Drake, Garner, Edgington, Branch, Hollingsworth, Sabin of Nebraska, Martin, Nowlin, Bell of Mississippi, Schfer, White, Hess White, Richards, Head of Sherman, Edna Pendleton, Bue Smith, Messrs. Chilton and Pollock.

Miss Virginia Logan and Miss Virginia Rossington entertained with finch Wednesday morning and a large number of their friends tried as earnestly as could be to catch their opposite number over the finch pile.

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" was awarded to Miss Beattie Kira.

MEXICANS AND JAPS FIGHT FOR FIVE DAYS

WHILE ENGAGED IN RAILROAD WORK THEY HAVE A PITCHED BATTLE ON THE ARIZONA DESERT, IN WHICH FOUR HAVE BEEN KILLED AND ABOUT FIFTY WOUNDED—NO SIGNS OF PEACE

NEW YORK, July 11.—A bloody battle between 150 Japanese and the same number of Mexicans has been raging five days on the desert between Barstow and Victorville, according to a Tribune dispatch from Los Angeles, Cal. Four are reported dead and about fifty wounded, and the end of the struggle is not in sight.

A few minutes many heads were cracked. The Japanese were finally driven across the river amid showers of stones almost as effective as bullets, their leader remaining in the front to the last.

TAXING TAXES TO RAISE MONEY

Revenue Stamps Must Now Pay Duty to the Federal Government

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, July 11.—Taxing the taxes is the latest device for raising money for the city. Advertisers upon the public walls are obliged to purchase the privilege. Then they must buy a stamp which is pasted upon the advertisement or notice.

Sisters of Charity, the president said: "In the face of your admirable society, we need have no uneasiness. Your work is splendid, and it is the work of those who most honor France. The honors you have won make a golden book which all should read. Your self-sacrificing labor is the most beautiful example which could be given to the children of France."

SUICIDE PACT FORMED BY BOYS

Two Attempted the Self-Deconstruction, But the Third Gave Alarm

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) LONDON, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—A London neighborhood has just been shocked to discover that it harbored a "suicide club" composed of small boys, two members of which nearly succeeded in accomplishing the object of their organization.

NO PRECEDENT HOLDS LOUBET

President of France Makes Speeches Without Approval of the Ministry

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—President Loubet has tossed a bombshell into the ranks of the ministry. He has broken loose from the tyranny of precedent, which requires that the president's speeches be written and revised by the ministry before delivery.

With this intention they held a council of war as to ways and means. Rat poison, suggested one. This proposal was defeated by a scheme of suicide by spirits of salts.

Accordingly this poison was purchased, and the boys adjourned to a local park to carry their plan into effect.

Two of them took a draught of this deadly concoction, but the third boy, suddenly realizing that life was not such a burden as at first appeared, declined the beverage, and ran for a policeman instead.

The policeman immediately removed them to the infirmary, where antidotes were successfully applied.

One of the would-be suicides, however, was very ill and his life hung in the balance for several days.

HE DIED ON A TRAIN

Government Engineer Expired While En Route to Dalhart, Texas.

DALHART, Texas, July 10.—John Ashbury, en route from Cairo, Ill., to Dalhart, Texas, expired last night on the Fort Worth and Denver City northbound train and his remains are now here awaiting disposition.

Mr. Ashbury was in the employ of the government, and came to Dalhart in the interest of the irrigation surveys, instituted last season by the government for this territory and not yet completed.

Opening dance July 15, continued every Wednesday till Nov. 1. Rain or shine.

ART DOES NOT PAY SO WELL

Members of French Society Dismayed by the Salon's Failure

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—Art does not pay so well as it used to, is the lamentation of the members of the Society of French Artists, who are dismayed by the fact that the receipts of this year's Salon are nearly one-third less than the previous year.

The desolation of the artists is correspondingly great. They had looked forward to a better year, a cloud, instead of this they find themselves ruined. The season will probably finish as it began, with very few visitors. The weather is too fine. Rainy weather suits us better, as then people are glad to take shelter in the Salon.

SULPHUR SPRINGS NEWS

IT WILL CATCH WEEVIL

Invention of a Washington County Man to Kill the Pests

BRENHAM, Texas, July 11.—A new boll weevil machine is being exhibited in Brenham. It was invented by John McClusky, a planter living about two miles east of Brenham. He has experimented with the machine and finds that it not only catches the weevil, but also the punctured squares. In a test which he made a few days ago, he caught over 225 weevils on twenty-six rows of cotton, about 132 steps long, together with a basketful of punctured squares. The machine is very simple, being constructed of canvas and steel, together with two galvanized iron troughs. The machine is dragged over the cotton, several pieces of wire being arranged so as to strike the cotton and shake off the weevils and squares, which fall into pans on either side. The machine is worked by one animal and one man. Six acres of small cotton, or four acres of large cotton, can be covered in one day with one machine. No damage is done to the plant.

These machines will be manufactured in Brenham and put on the market at the lowest possible price.

ANTIS WON THE FIGHT

Harrison County Went Wet by Vote of the Negro Population

MARSHALL, Texas, July 10.—The antis won the prohibition election in this Harrison county today. Returns from a majority of the precincts tonight show about a three to two vote. The city of Marshall went wet by 294 majority.

The negro was the deciding factor and carried the vote wet, as it is claimed and admitted that a white vote would go dry. There were no disturbances of any kind reported and the city election passed off quietly, excepting of course the ardor exercised by both sides.

Street talk tonight indicates a contest on the grounds of many ignorant negroes being voted twice by the antis.

It is also pointed that another election will be asked for at once to take place as soon as possible by law.

PETER WARNED BY A MEDIUM

Former King Milan Sends a Message by a Trance Operator

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) LONDON, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—Occultists have been much interested in Garrett P. Serviss' article in the American on the extraordinary clairvoyant seance at which Mrs. Birchell had a prevision of the assassination of King Alexander of Serbia. Mr. Serviss inquires if there was a royal crest or anything suggesting royalty on the paper Mrs. Birchell held during her clairvoyance. In answer to the Serviss question Mr. Stead replied:

"There was nothing suggesting royalty on the sheet of paper. The paper was inside the envelope. I handed her the envelope. I did not know what was in the envelope until the incident was closed. The writing on the paper was simply Alexander's name in Serbian characters, which I could not read."

Serviss also asks if the figures Mrs. Birchell saw in her trance wore crowns or robes suggesting royalty. To this Mr. Stead replies:

"Mrs. Birchell did not mention any clothing; she saw only figures. A famous London woman medium, on the night after the tragedy, received a message from King Milan, Alexander's father. Milan appeared to her and said: 'Woman, tell Peter to remove every soldier that took part in the murder of my son. There will be no peace in Serbia while one of those assassins remains alive.'"

AN HEIRLOOM FOUND

An Advertisement in The Telegram Brings Back a Valuable Pin

Returning from Handley Monday evening, Mrs. G. W. Want lost a fine diamond pin. An advertisement was placed in The Telegram, describing the pin the next day.

Hardly had the paper been issued when she received word from an employe of the traction company, saying that he had found the pin near where the Handley car had been swept out, and that he had left it at his company's office to await its owner. He said that he had seen the advertisement in The Telegram and telephoned to her immediately. The pin that was lost is a lady's gold bar pin set with five diamonds in gold leaves. It is an heirloom and has been handed down in the family for years. Its original cost was over a hundred dollars, but is valued at far beyond that on account of its associations.

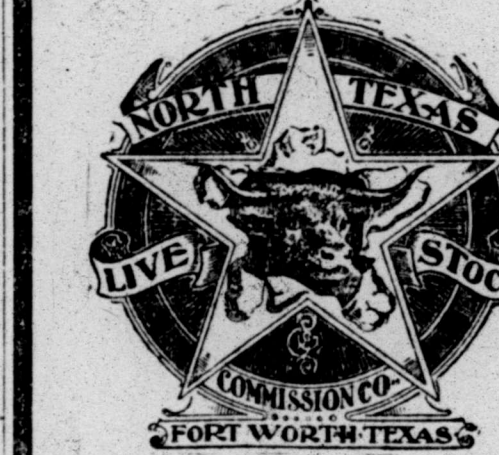

G. W. Want said to a Telegram reporter this morning: "My wife and I thought that it would be nearly impossible to get such a pin back again, but we decided to advertise for it in any way, and we were agreeably surprised to hear about it so soon."

TO OUR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS—

While the run of cattle this week was not as heavy as last, the buyers have succeeded in taking off from 15c to 30c on all kinds. We attribute this take-off to the decline in the Northern markets, and believe, though prices look mean here, that cattle will net the shipper more money here than they could realize out of them on the other markets. The sharp decline here will cause considerable cattle that were intended for this market to go elsewhere, and for this reason we look for the market to be in good shape for the shipper this coming week.

TO CUT CANAL FORTY MILES

London Financiers Will Make Navigation Improvements in Scotland

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) EDINBURGH, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—A syndicate of London financiers has prepared plans to cut the southern part of Scotland in half, joining the Forth to the Clyde by a waterway navigable by the largest vessels afloat.

In view of the new naval base at St. Margaret's Hope, in the Firth of Forth, the canal, if cut, will prove of the highest strategic importance. It is estimated that this ambitious project will cost $50,000,000.

A well known firm of engineers in Edinburgh have already received instructions, and have commenced to make a survey and to prepare plans for the carrying out of the proposal.

Including something like ten miles of Loch Lomond, the canal is to be about forty miles in length.

THE DOGS ARE POISONED

Convict Killed Bloodhounds and Made His Escape

CLEBURNE, Texas, July 11.—Billie Patterson, superintendent of the county road camp, was in today and reported that two of the county's finest bloodhounds had been poisoned, and a convict had escaped.

The escaped convict has been doing the cooking, and it is supposed it was through this means the result was accomplished. The dogs were of the best breed, and, though young, had never yet failed to follow a trail to a successful termination.

IT STANDS ALONE. STEALS A BLANKET TO BUY MEDICINE

LIEUTENANT IN GERMAN ARMY, FURLOUGHED IN NEW YORK, OUT OF FUNDS AND ILLNESS OF HIS WIFE CAUSES HIM TO STEAL BOARDING HOUSE BED CLOTHES

NEW YORK, July 11.—Stealing a blanket to buy 16 cents worth of medicine for his bride, instead of meaning prison for him, has brought money, friends and a trip home to Lieutenant Friedberg, formerly an officer in the German army.

The lieutenant was arrested a few days ago on the charge mentioned. He admitted the theft and the case was held up pending investigation of his story. When it was called again a probation officer said to the magistrate:

"The prisoner was a lieutenant in the German army on a furlough. I find that he is of excellent family and has a splendid record at home. His father is a colonel of an infantry regiment stationed at Hanover, and when this young man came here with his bride early in the year he had plenty of money."

"When his money was gone his wife became ill and he tried to get employment as a teacher of languages. He was in debt to his landlady and his six trunks had been held up at one boarding house. It was impossible for him to get a cent. He had been getting money from home, through the German consul, but the remittance had failed to come.

"He had a prescription for his wife that he could not get filled. The medicine would have cost only 15 cents. Being desperate, he took a blanket from the room where he and his wife were stopping to a pawn shop. All he asked on the blanket was 15 cents, just enough to buy the medicine."

"Now they have received a remittance from home, and I have raised additional funds which will enable them to sail at once for home."

The lieutenant's plea of guilty was withdrawn, the magistrate dismissed the charge and the couple will sail for their native country today.

CLOSE TO NATURE.

SPRING AND SUMMER.

EVERYONE knows that the pure country air and a chance to get close to Nature in the fields and woods, is sure to improve our animal spirits and bodily health. We are only civilized animals after all, and the present dwellers in the cities are compelled to live in badly ventilated rooms or factories filled with the germs of disease—of grip, consumption or catarrh. They are compelled to eat their lunch hastily, and, in fact, to run the human machine at all times so improperly that they are constantly in danger of being sick. Sunshine and good air are essential for good health. Nature provides the germ destroyer, if we only find it, in a life in the open air and sunshine. If we are run down physically, if our blood has too many of the white blood corpuscles and not enough of the red corpuscles, if we look pale and anaemic, or with pimples or hives appearing on the skin, it's a pretty sure warning that we need a little of nature's cure. For those who are confined indoors and need a strengthening tonic, a blood and body builder, there is a remedy provided by Nature which is sure and safe—Alterative Extract from roots and herbs, without the use of alcohol, which nourishes the tissues and nerves with good red blood. That medicine was the discovery of Dr. R. V. Pierce, the founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. It was sold by druggists thirty-seven years ago or more and has become more popular every year since, under the name of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Dr. Pierce receives quantities of grateful letters and testimonials every day. It would take all of this newspaper's space to print those received in a single month. Here is a sample:

"About seven years ago my health failed, and I tried different doctors but they could not help me," writes Reuben S. Kleppinger, Esq., of Leighton, Pa. (Box 673). "I was still getting worse. Had a cough, pain in chest, night-sweats, was weak and nervous. I decided to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and state my case. I received a prompt and careful reply, which I still have in my possession. The malady was a complicated one, involving the nasal and other air-passages. There was a catarrhal condition extending from head to the bronchia and lungs. The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy was advised. I used about two dozen bottles of each, also some of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and these remedies have done their work. Since that time I don't believe I have lost a day's work on account of sickness. Am well and have been able to eat anything ever since. Thanks seem but a slight return for all the good your medicine has done me."

"About two years ago I consulted a physician to try and get relief from a cold which had stopped up my head, and also settled on my lungs, causing catarrh in a very bad form, and also throat difficulties," writes Justice Thomas E. Bourquin, 1808 Ogercher Road, Savannah, Ga. "He gave me some medicine, but one month's faithful use of same failed to do me any good, so I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I don't cough nearly as much nights, slept much better, and in two weeks the cold, cough, catarrh and throat difficulty were all cured. I was certainly pleased with the results, and so wish to write you of it."

* We quote from the New York Journal the following:

"In Allen street, in eight blocks of tenement houses, live ten thousand seven hundred and thirty-seven human beings.

"The features of this miserable street are:

"Darkness; Dampness; Disease; Death.

"The deaths are especially plentiful among the very young children.

"Of all the New York streets in which evil conditions destroy child life Allen street is the worst. It has a record for killing children under five years of age.

"The street is very narrow, and the second avenue elevated railroad running through it, filling it from house to house, roofs it in, making of it a dark, gloomy tunnel.

"On the ground it is dark all day, the lamps are always lighted.

"Diseases of the eye, pneumonia, tuberculosis, the rickets and other troubles of ill-nourished children, are features of this street.

"Among the dirt, the din, the darkness, the dampness of this infernal death tunnel, children are supposed to 'play.'

"Do you wonder that they are deformed and sickly? Do you wonder that they die off before they reach the age of five?

"As well try to grow a flower in a cell as to bring up children in that horrid street to which poverty and the city's culpable neglect condemn so many families."

and the faintest of cakes and ices were the refreshments.

Those present were Misses Blanche Connell, Alice Van Zandt, Fannie Van Zandt, Mary Louise Hurley, Lela Crowley, Josephine Matthews, Blanche Harding, My Montgomery, Alma McKnight, Bessie Brown, Gladys Randall, Gladys Grammer, Margaret Logan, Bertha Logan, Cecil Calhoun, Hazel Calhoun, Jessie Wardlaw, Cella Taylor, Mabel Long, Bessie Webb, Phoebe Connell, May Whitsett, Alma Capps, Mattie Mae Capps, Florence Siedel, Elizabeth Hovenkamp, Mary Wallace, Margie Slaughter, Mildred Wellington, Hilda Boykin, Mary Kern, Hattie Stanley, Roseline Perry, Bessie Kirl, Pearl Swain and Daisy Kirt.

Miss Floy King entertained with flinch Thursday evening, the intricacies of this favorite game getting wonderfully mixed up with sparkling eye-midsummer jokes, fruit nectar, and ices and cakes. Those who were Miss King's guests were Misses Beas, Eppie Trigg, Alma Connell, Edna Connell, May Burgess and Hamlin, Messrs. Clifford Beckham, Hoide Crenshaw, Warren Taylor, Joe Jackson, Willie King and Dr. Nugent.

Miss King was assisted in entertaining her guests by Mrs. W. M. Evans.

Supper at Handley and the lake afterward were the plans formed and followed Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Will Mitchell, Misses Edgington, Lucille White, Tarlton, Elizabeth Tarlton, Bell of Mississippi, McCarl, Newlin and Mrs. Scott, Messrs. Winfrey, Reimers, Keith, Kauffmann, Manning, Messer and Dr. Chilton. The supper, the moonlit lake and the music over the waters justified the plans and received hearty approbation.

Miss Bernie Newlin introduced her guests who came to meet Mrs. Robert Harrison Tuesday morning to bridge whist, and the guest of honor, fascinating game and winsome hostess made a very happy morning indeed.

Mrs. Harrison won the prize, a Gibson picture framed as a Gibson picture should be.

The guests were Mesdames Harrison, Van Zandt, Collett, Gardner, Gocains, Flournoy, Anderson, Stephens, Misses Carter, Edgington, Tarlton, Elizabeth Tarlton, Faddock, Terrell and Bell.

Six hand high whist was the choice of Mrs. Stephen Wednesday afternoon and the "As You Like It" endorsed the choice with laughter and merry bids. The season suggested the sunflower and throughout the card suite this radiant child of summer sun reigned in decoration. The score cards, the product of the brush of the hostess and the imaginations of the guests, fitted into the merry mood of the players.

A half dozen of the hand favorites were the club prize, won by Mrs. Collett, while a Gilbert head in artistic frame was the guest prize, won by Mrs. McNatt.

During the game Miss Nadine Spoons scored fruit and score was kept by Miss Mary Terrill.

The guests were Mesdames Maasie, Ellis, Schencker, Bernie Anderson, McNatt, Hawley, Van Zandt, Burney, Collett, Gainer, Howells, Gardner, Drelbiss, Dunklin, Robert Harrison, W. R. Edgington, F. D. Thompson and Boehme.

Misses Newlin, Horsley, Terrell, Faddock, McCarl, Florence Smith, Watkins and Sigler.

Professor and Mrs. Heathcote entertained with a dinner party Wednesday evening complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCart. The service and appointments, as well as the courteous excellence of the courses, evinced the hospitality that distinguishes always these genial entertainers. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCart, Miss Bessie Ellis, Miss Smith of Dallas, Miss Dale, Miss Swayne, Mr. Hamlin and Mr. Littlejohn.

Mrs. C. S. Mattison entertained the Priscilla club Wednesday with luncheon. The informality of the Priscillas was met on this occasion by the jolliest of hostesses and all went well and merrily. Those present were Mrs. A. T. Byers, Miss Byers, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Petzet, Mrs. Bunting, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. McCart, Miss McCart.

Merry picnickers with a basket—Handley does the rest.

On Wednesday evening the picnickers were Mr. and Mrs. Hootie, Misses Tarlton, Elizabeth Tarlton, Grace Hollingsworth, Juanita Hollingsworth, Martha Richards, John Nourse, Herman Gagegan, Frank Reynolds, W. A. Tuley, Sretwell Shock of St. Louis, W. H. Leith and Jeff Taylor.

The baskets contained lots of good things to eat, in the lake, the boats and an impromptu arrangement of converting boats into table did the rest.

Mr. E. H. Want entertained with a waltz party last Friday evening. The guests, though few in number, enjoyed the occasion as such an occasion should be enjoyed.

Miss Johanna Hanna enabled Mrs. George Rozelle to win a burnt-wood hand mirror. Miss Larimer a Haviland plate and Miss Stewart a vase, by giving a flinch party last Thursday morning. Besides these pretty prizes, there were many bouquets of carnations throughout the house, and a welcome cordial enough to make every guest almost forget that all could not win the prizes. The party was a compliment to Miss Malony of Dublin.

THE MUSIC HALL GIRL AND THE COUNTRY BOY

You couldn't notice the wings on him, perhaps, and there wasn't any halo visible unless by a fantasy of the imagination the yellow electric lights could be turned into one, but he was an angel just the same.

There was an air of purity about him and when he entered the Crown theater his presence seemed to make the painted meadows on the stage seem real, and you could almost hear the tinkle of the painted brooklet and the lowing of the painted cows—and surely you could hear the voice of the painted woman, who was singing "I'm goin' tuh live until I die."

He was only 22 and he was just off a cow ranch that nestles snugly among the low rolling hills and valleys of the Panhandle and it was his first introduction to the city music hall. The music pleased him and he thought that the crowd of rough, dissipated men who filled the place with cigar and cigarette smoke, the fumes of strong drink and oaths, were a merry and jovial lot.

HE MEETS A GIRL. He settled down into a chair and looked on for a while and then the girl who had been singing came to his side and asked him if he was enjoying it all. He told her he was.

"I saw you from the stage while I was singing," she said. "Did you like my song?"

He told her that he liked it. "There is great rivalry among us girls," she went on. "Would you be willing to help me out in a little contest that is going on tonight?"

She shook her roguish curls in his face and held her lips in dangerous proximity to his. Certainly, he would be glad to help her.

"Well, you see, the girl whose friends buy the most beer for her tonight gets a special prize," she went on. "Would you buy a bottle for me?"

HE BUYS. He bought a bottle and then she pointed out a neatly curtained box, where they could sit unseen by the rest of the crowd while they enjoyed the beer and the performance. And so he went along with her. He was surprised when they charged him a dollar for the bottle, but he had about $35 in his pocket, and after thinking it over made no complaint. Indeed, he was surprised to find himself buying another bottle. So they enjoyed a couple of bottles, during which she confidentially informed him that the manager wasn't trotting her right and was giving the other girls the best of it, and the other girls were always "knocking her," because she didn't pick up with every penny she made.

THE IDLER'S NOTE BOOK. COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., July 8.—I have just come downstairs after a morning spent on the roof with a pair of opera glasses. My efforts were unrewarded. I had to give up the search, and yield to what my judgment failed to convince me is the inevitable. For I yet believe I shall find it, even if I have to get bigger glasses and climb a still higher hotel roof.

It is most amusing, this traveling a thousand miles to see something you have always supposed existed, only to have hopes shattered and beliefs ruthlessly wrecked. But I will not give up, even if I have to paint it there myself and then stand off to see the realization of my ideal.

Doubtless you haven't the slightest idea as to what I am writing about, but to me it is a sure assurance of the way they solve their Fort Worth two paragraphs of introduction.

I am referring to the copyright sign on Pike's Peak. From earliest boyhood, even in the old geographies, I have been accustomed to seeing it, and I believe the first time was in 1882, when I was four years old and couldn't read. Someone had sent home some Colorado views and in the collection was a photograph of Pike's Peak, which had in one corner, as plain as the peak itself, "Copyright, 1882." They told me what it meant then, and since that time I have always looked forward to the day when I should see it for myself.

True it is, I have noticed as the years have passed, that the sign also changed. When I next observed it, I believe, was at a stereopticon lecture. The sign then read, "Copyright, 1891." At various times since I have observed it and only last winter did I note with delight, "Copyright, 1901."

When I got up this morning, the air was delightful and the sun had a perfectly glorious climb over the hills before it was in plain view. From the little stone station, which I will always hold dear to memory, because of the way they solve their Fort Worth two paragraphs of introduction, I could see the mountains, with the big peak holding a little to the right of the center position in the scenery. It looked as if I suppose it always has. Even the little patch of snow that is put in with China white on the photographs, was in its proper place. As a whole, I was greatly pleased with the peak until I discovered the copyright sign was missing and since then disconsolation has been my lot. Yet still I hope to find it, even as I said, and have to paint it on there myself. Perhaps others coming afterwards will pay silent tribute to my thoughtfulness in supplying for their ideal, the one thing nature forgot, and if so it will be worth the paint.

I reached home about 10 o'clock, with not even a late train to give cause for complaint. The mountain time bothered me somewhat at the start, but I am getting more used to it. Before leaving Fort Worth I had purchased some mountain hose, and this morning when I woke up, discovered that the clocks had gained just an hour. I had to wear slippers all forenoon as a result, but think my feet will be all right tomorrow.

The Texas and Pacific Railroad company has issued supplement No. 2 to its time table No. 64 for the Dallas district between Longview Junction and Fort Worth, the new schedule to take effect at 1 o'clock a. m., July 13. Three trains are affected by the change, the most important revision being in the schedule of No. 14. At present its time of departure is 7:55 p. m. According to the new card it will leave for Dallas at 4:20 p. m., which is five minutes after the time of arrival of the train from the west. The change will enable through passengers to continue their journey without any stopover, as heretofore.

Considerable change will be made in the time of arrival of No. 13. The present schedule is 6:25 p. m. By the new arrangement No. 13 will arrive from Dallas at 3:30 p. m. Train No. 13 will be train No. 14 returning.

Train No. 11 will arrive in Fort Worth at 5:15 a. m. instead of at 5:20 a. m., as at present.

Beginning July 15 T. and P. trains from the east will arrive in Fort Worth as follows: No. 1, 5:20 p. m.; No. 2, 7:45 a. m.; No. 5, 7:45 p. m.; No. 7, 11 a. m.; No. 9, 2:55 p. m.; No. 11, 5:15 a. m.; No. 13, 3:50 p. m.; No. 103, 6:50 a. m.

Trains departing from the above date will leave on the following schedule: No. 2, 8:10 a. m.; No. 4, 5:30 p. m.; No. 6, 7:45 a. m.; No. 8, 3:20 p. m.; No. 10, 10:30 a. m.; No. 12, 11:30 a. m.; No. 14, 4:20 p. m.; No. 102, 9:30 p. m.

THE LATEST IN RAILROAD NEWS. Town of Mart on the I. and G. N. Developing Into Important Center. IT TAKES TRADE AWAY FROM WACO. Business Houses in the Latter Place Establishing Branch Stores at Mart—Company's Local Improvements—Rock Island Appointments.

A gentleman from Mart was in Fort Worth the other day relating some remarkable incidents of growth and prosperity, which has come to that place within the last year. In fact, Mart has had its growth within a year.

Twelve months ago, the site of the little city which now boasts a population of 2,000 people, was a field. The International and Great Northern Railroad Company, which has located its shops and round-houses at that place, are responsible for all this prosperity.

The growth of Mart is all right for Mart, but according to the visitor, the people of Waco are not altogether pleased with it. They are not particularly jealous of Mart, but they do not like to see the business which has always come to that city from the community surrounding Mart, now going to the merchants of the latter place. This has come to be a condition to such an extent that merchants at Waco who have the heaviest loads by the order of affairs have established branch houses at Mart, that they may continue to do business with their old customers. Some of these branch houses are said to be about as important as the parent plants.

The loss of the business is not altogether the reason for the dissatisfaction with the people of Waco. It is not altogether the reason for the dissatisfaction with the people of Waco. It is not altogether the reason for the dissatisfaction with the people of Waco.

THE INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN IS continuing the policy of making the best of every thing in this city. Its roundhouse was erected in the most modern style; its yards arranged in the most convenient manner, and now the company is completing track arrangements and provisions for caring for its passenger cars and engines, which are on the most modern and approved plan.

The boiler, originally installed at the pumping station and which was mentioned in this paper some time ago as being entirely too small for the capacity required at the pumping station, has already been replaced with a much larger one. The company is now erecting a large tank with a capacity of several thousand gallons, in which water will be stored for the purpose of filling up to all parts of the roundhouse and yards.

The new stone building designed for an oil, sand and waste house is about completed. The building is of stone, throughout. In the tank room are two large steel tanks, perfectly fitted into the building as it was erected.

PLANNING NEW ICE HOUSE. Very soon a large ice house will be erected on the grounds adjacent to the sidings, where the passenger coaches are stored. The object of the last named improvement is to afford a place to store carload lots of ice, which will be used in keeping the passenger coaches. At present this is accomplished at a great inconvenience as well as at an unnecessary expense to the company.

EXCURSION DATES. Reduced round trip rates have been authorized by the Rock Island for the Chautauqua, Waxahachie, selling July 20, 21, 22, with return limit August 1; annual reunion Cowboys' Association, Canyon City, Tex., selling August 3-7, limit 15 days; Y. DIAMOND HILL ADDITION. ADJOINING SWIFT AND ARMOUR PACKING HOUSES. Many thousands of dollars are being spent in developing this property—building attractive cottages, grading and graveling streets, and making other improvements, which will add a substantial value to the suburban.

The west boundary of Diamond Hill addition is only three hundred yards from the Swift and Armour plants, and much of it is high and picturesque and commands a beautiful view of the surrounding country, offering an ideal location for a home, or investment. We can offer lots or homes on easy monthly payments or can make other terms to suit purchaser. Those buying early will assuredly benefit by the many improvements already contracted for, and the certain further development of the property.

McCONNELL'S ADDITION. Three blocks from the Missouri avenue street car, adjoins Union Depot addition on the south. High, pretty, well drained lots. WHY PAY RENT, when you can own your own home for practically the same money as you pay your landlord. We are building a number of attractive four room cottages, with handy closets, brick flues, wire screens, etc. These houses are located both on the south side and in North Fort Worth, giving you a choice as to location. We can sell these on easy monthly payments or make almost any terms to suit you. If you are living in a rented house, call on us and we will make it possible for you to live in your own home.

M. F. SMITH, Commercial Agent, Dallas, Texas. 343 Main Street, Dallas, Texas.

THE MUSIC HALL GIRL AND THE COUNTRY BOY. You couldn't notice the wings on him, perhaps, and there wasn't any halo visible unless by a fantasy of the imagination the yellow electric lights could be turned into one, but he was an angel just the same.

There was an air of purity about him and when he entered the Crown theater his presence seemed to make the painted meadows on the stage seem real, and you could almost hear the tinkle of the painted brooklet and the lowing of the painted cows—and surely you could hear the voice of the painted woman, who was singing "I'm goin' tuh live until I die."

HE MEETS A GIRL. He settled down into a chair and looked on for a while and then the girl who had been singing came to his side and asked him if he was enjoying it all. He told her he was.

"I saw you from the stage while I was singing," she said. "Did you like my song?"

He told her that he liked it. "There is great rivalry among us girls," she went on. "Would you be willing to help me out in a little contest that is going on tonight?"

She shook her roguish curls in his face and held her lips in dangerous proximity to his. Certainly, he would be glad to help her.

"Well, you see, the girl whose friends buy the most beer for her tonight gets a special prize," she went on. "Would you buy a bottle for me?"

HE BUYS. He bought a bottle and then she pointed out a neatly curtained box, where they could sit unseen by the rest of the crowd while they enjoyed the beer and the performance. And so he went along with her. He was surprised when they charged him a dollar for the bottle, but he had about $35 in his pocket, and after thinking it over made no complaint. Indeed, he was surprised to find himself buying another bottle. So they enjoyed a couple of bottles, during which she confidentially informed him that the manager wasn't trotting her right and was giving the other girls the best of it, and the other girls were always "knocking her," because she didn't pick up with every penny she made.

THE IDLER'S NOTE BOOK. COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., July 8.—I have just come downstairs after a morning spent on the roof with a pair of opera glasses. My efforts were unrewarded. I had to give up the search, and yield to what my judgment failed to convince me is the inevitable. For I yet believe I shall find it, even if I have to get bigger glasses and climb a still higher hotel roof.

It is most amusing, this traveling a thousand miles to see something you have always supposed existed, only to have hopes shattered and beliefs ruthlessly wrecked. But I will not give up, even if I have to paint it there myself and then stand off to see the realization of my ideal.

Doubtless you haven't the slightest idea as to what I am writing about, but to me it is a sure assurance of the way they solve their Fort Worth two paragraphs of introduction.

I am referring to the copyright sign on Pike's Peak. From earliest boyhood, even in the old geographies, I have been accustomed to seeing it, and I believe the first time was in 1882, when I was four years old and couldn't read. Someone had sent home some Colorado views and in the collection was a photograph of Pike's Peak, which had in one corner, as plain as the peak itself, "Copyright, 1882." They told me what it meant then, and since that time I have always looked forward to the day when I should see it for myself.

True it is, I have noticed as the years have passed, that the sign also changed. When I next observed it, I believe, was at a stereopticon lecture. The sign then read, "Copyright, 1891." At various times since I have observed it and only last winter did I note with delight, "Copyright, 1901."

When I got up this morning, the air was delightful and the sun had a perfectly glorious climb over the hills before it was in plain view. From the little stone station, which I will always hold dear to memory, because of the way they solve their Fort Worth two paragraphs of introduction, I could see the mountains, with the big peak holding a little to the right of the center position in the scenery. It looked as if I suppose it always has. Even the little patch of snow that is put in with China white on the photographs, was in its proper place. As a whole, I was greatly pleased with the peak until I discovered the copyright sign was missing and since then disconsolation has been my lot. Yet still I hope to find it, even as I said, and have to paint it on there myself. Perhaps others coming afterwards will pay silent tribute to my thoughtfulness in supplying for their ideal, the one thing nature forgot, and if so it will be worth the paint.

I reached home about 10 o'clock, with not even a late train to give cause for complaint. The mountain time bothered me somewhat at the start, but I am getting more used to it. Before leaving Fort Worth I had purchased some mountain hose, and this morning when I woke up, discovered that the clocks had gained just an hour. I had to wear slippers all forenoon as a result, but think my feet will be all right tomorrow.

DIAMOND HILL ADDITION. ADJOINING SWIFT AND ARMOUR PACKING HOUSES. Many thousands of dollars are being spent in developing this property—building attractive cottages, grading and graveling streets, and making other improvements, which will add a substantial value to the suburban.

The west boundary of Diamond Hill addition is only three hundred yards from the Swift and Armour plants, and much of it is high and picturesque and commands a beautiful view of the surrounding country, offering an ideal location for a home, or investment. We can offer lots or homes on easy monthly payments or can make other terms to suit purchaser. Those buying early will assuredly benefit by the many improvements already contracted for, and the certain further development of the property.

McCONNELL'S ADDITION. Three blocks from the Missouri avenue street car, adjoins Union Depot addition on the south. High, pretty, well drained lots. WHY PAY RENT, when you can own your own home for practically the same money as you pay your landlord. We are building a number of attractive four room cottages, with handy closets, brick flues, wire screens, etc. These houses are located both on the south side and in North Fort Worth, giving you a choice as to location. We can sell these on easy monthly payments or make almost any terms to suit you. If you are living in a rented house, call on us and we will make it possible for you to live in your own home.

1. LULU: "Oh, Leander, I'm so glad I met you. I'm going to call on my Cousin Sarah. Please do come with me. She has two delightful children. I want you to meet her."
LEANDER: "I'll be delighted, I'm sure, dear."

2. "Sarah, this is Leander. And here are the two little angels, Leander. Willie, Ethel, shake hands with Mr. Leander."

3. LULU (in a side whisper): "Yes, Leander is awfully fond of children."
ETHEL (as she smears her candied hands across Leander's face): "Oo has a awful funny face."
WILLIE: "I bet you I can climb up the back of this chair."

4. LULU: "Yes, Ethel would make a most fairy-like flower girl for my wedding."
ETHEL: "What pooty clothes. Eddy give it some candy all over it."
WILLIE: "Hoop la! Ain't I a regular circus actor?"

5. ! ! ! ! !

6. COUSIN SARAH: "Did 'oo icked man hurt 'oo mommer's 'itty babies? Bad, icked man!"
LULU: "How could you be so careless, Leander. I guess we had better be going. We will call again, Cousin Sarah."
LEANDER (aside): WE WILL NOT! Ickedy man! Suit of clothes ruined, collar ripped off, necktie ruined, smeared with candy from head to foot, and I'll not get that candy out of my hair for a month."

EVERY one to his taste, or as the French say, "If you don't like this or that, don't disgust others out of it; there are some who may like it."
Some will tell you that a woman with a small, turned-up nose is not fit to look at. Others will tell you, on the contrary, that that woman is often very piquant, cheerful and amiable looking, which makes her quite charming, and will add: "Who could admire a woman with a long, arched nose?" Well, some do. Cleopatra, who had such a nose, was considered the greatest beauty of her time and Pascal goes so far as to say that if her nose had been an inch shorter the face of the world would probably have been changed.

I have heard women say that Rejane, with her short, retrousse nose, her eyes set wide apart, her eyebrows in the middle of her forehead and her huge, square mouth, is absolutely ugly. Many people—and I am one of those—call her the personification of piquancy and fascination. A general expression of amiability, an intelligent face, a contagious laugh, eyes beaming over with fun and humor, an air that denotes good temper, good fellowship—all that may belong to a person, even a woman, that most people would agree in declaring ugly.

Descartes liked women who had a squint. Alfred de Musset liked to see a little down on their upper lips. Every one to his taste, let us repeat.

There are women who would be able to inspire love with the mere sound of their melodious voices, even if you could not see them. The pretty woman is preferable to the beautiful woman; the charming woman is the best of all, and the charming woman may possess no beauty whatever. The pretty woman remains pretty longer than the beautiful woman remains beautiful, and the charming woman is and remains charming forever.

The Princess Metternich, wife of the Austrian ambassador in Paris, was considered the most fascinating woman at court during the Second Empire. I may say that she had not one feature that did not swear at all the others. She had a round face, with a huge mouth and a little turned-up nose, but she was the embodiment of wit, amiability and cheerfulness, and when she spoke to you you were absolutely under the spell of her irresistible charms. I saw her only a few months ago. She had not changed a bit, although I must say that she is now a woman a good deal over sixty. Happy the women who have charms that last, and these charms you will generally find in women who have no regularity of features; in fact, in women who are anything but beautiful.

Besides, there is an age, some time about forty, when ugliness disappears, and, contrary to the woman who at that age may have lost her beauty, the homely woman is more than ever amiable and cheerful. In losing her beauty the beautiful woman has lost generally everything, for Nature, which is somewhat sparing of her gifts, seldom endows a woman perfect of face and figure with much intelligence, wit and wisdom. She is spoiled in her youth by the admiration bestowed upon her by parents, friends and men in society, and the loss of what caused all that admiration leaves her sad, dissatisfied and unhappy.

An ugly woman is sometimes wicked, but she is very seldom silly. It is said that hunchbacked people are very sour and revengeful, malicious and treacherous, and some people say that ugliness develops in women the characteristics that you see in hunchbacks. I do not believe it. My opinion is that plain women (of course I do not speak of those whose ugliness is enough to stop all the clocks in a house) have very often qualities of heart and mind that make them much preferable to beautiful statues who seem to expect you to stand in silent ecstasy before them.

The woman who adds to the tenderness of her heart, and the brilliancy of her mind, all the attributes of beauty in form and feature is the glory of creation; but although I have an idea that most women would give all their intellectual attainments and moral qualities in exchange for beauty, I must say that all wise people would agree in wishing them, for their sake, the possession of all that is solid and lasts.

Humanity's Forward March

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)
(Great Britain Rights Reserved.)

But the greatest of these is love.
—I. Cor., xiii., 13.

WHEN, in 1831, Charles Darwin got back from his ever-memorable voyage on the Beagle, he began the investigation which ended, after years of heroic toil, in the discovery of the natural law which is today known as the "Struggle for Life, or the Survival of the Fittest."

According to this law, all life is a battle. Plants, fishes, beasts, birds and human beings are ever fighting each other in the remorseless battle for existence.

It is a war in which the combatants fight under the black flag—the flag with the cross-bones and skull. No quarter is expected, no quarter is given. It is war to the knife, and knife to the hilt! It is victory or death—victory to the strong, death to the weak.

The fittest—that is to say, the strongest or the most cunning—survive, while the unfit—or the less strong and cunning—perish.

All through the long pre-human period this terrible struggle went on. It dyed the world-encircling ocean of the primeval world with blood; and when the land appeared above the waters it painted that with the same crimson hue.

Monsters in the seas and monsters on the land met and fought without the least regard for the principles of the Red Cross Society. The redness was everywhere; but the Cross, the symbol of mercy, was nowhere to be seen.

After a time, however, a new order of being appeared upon the stage—the human species. But after man's arrival, as before, the old law worked right on. Still it was the struggle for life; still it was the survival of the fittest; the strong as against the weak; the cunning as against the simple.

Those who have read history with a careful eye do not need to be told that it is but a continuation of the long and terrible story of the pre-human period, with its "giants of the prime that tore each other in their slime."

In human history, we find men treating each other precisely as ichthyosaurus treated dinosaurs, as mastodon treated cave bear, as wolf treated deer.

In history we learn how, from the beginning of human society right down to the present day, the rule among men and nations has been the good old one of brute force: "Let him take who has the power, and let him keep who can."

Nevertheless, in the brain and heart of the new creature, Man, were the germs out of which a fairer order was to grow.

The great Goethe knew perfectly well what he was about when he called man "Nature's first dialogue with God."

For a long time God was silent. There was nothing for Him to talk to. To ichthyosaurus and dinosaurs, mastodon and cave bear He could say nothing. Those brutes could not have understood Him.

But with man God could talk—not much at first, but a little—just a little. However, the dialogue was started. At last a being had arrived upon the stage who could hear, and recognize God's voice, and who was able to get a faint inkling of what the voice meant.

But that faint inkling was the guarantee of the ultimate victory! Humanity kept on listening, and with infinite patience the Great Father kept on talking—talking and waiting—and by and by He succeeded in finding a few of His children who were sufficiently advanced to be able, partially, at least, to interpret Him to the rest of mankind, and plead the cause of sympathy, gentleness and good will, as against the old-time spirit of brutality and greed.

The battle was won! The long reign of brute force was ended! For ages yet the results of the victory would have to wait, but sooner or later they were sure to come.

The little minority, having reached the thought that love was the greatest thing in the world, held its own, and slowly grew; and today, in every quarter of the globe, there are tens of thousands who feel that the grim old rule of the right of might has no legitimate place in human society.

A mighty army is today preaching and living the doctrine of the sacredness, not alone of human life, but of all life; and the human law of love is coming in to take the place of the old law of insensate greed and brute force.

We are beginning to feel that the "weak" have some rights; that the "unfit" are entitled to some consideration. It is a growing conviction that the weak should be helped by the strong; and as for the unfit, we have learned that they are oftentimes the most worthy of being preserved.

The unfit! Why, from the viewpoint of muscle and brute force, Jesus of Nazareth was one of the unfit, as were, also, blind old Homer and the lame Epictetus, and the physically weak Shelley, and the infirm Pascal, and the half-demented Charles Lamb, and the narrow-shouldered Emerson, and the, in many ways, incompetent

Coleridge. Among our early ancestors of the antediluvian times they would have stood no sort of show; yet how poor the world would be today had those choice spirits not survived!

And so we come to the very pith and marrow of the truth of "evolution."

The starting point is matter and its forces, animalism and its greedy, remorseless appetites; and through long ages of struggle and suffering and degradation we finally reach the stage where man, after a weary struggle with his lower nature, becomes conscious of his higher, truer self, and begins to be gentle, loving and just.

This is the great victory!—for, as Amiel puts it: "Man becomes man only by the intelligence, but he is man only by the heart."

We are living in the Golden Age! Humanity never loved so much as it does today. There was never as much kindness in the world, never such a rock-ribbed sense of justice, never such a mighty desire to make all men happy, as there is right now.

It is this splendid new growth of the moral and spiritual, as opposed to the old order of force and greed, that is shaking the world up so today! And it will continue to shake it until the wrong is all overthrown and love and justice are supreme in human affairs.

Jealousy; a Great Cause of Humanity's Trouble

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)

WHEN we come to analyze the troubles of humanity we find but two causes—selfishness and jealousy.

Of course the former includes the latter, so we might say there is but one cause of the world's miseries. Yet this second phase of the primal evil is so prominent in all the different places where trouble exists that every laborer in the vineyard of God ought to go forth, hoe in hand, to exterminate the noxious weed from the earth.

The children born of one mother and father become discordant in the home circle through jealousy. One sister receives more attention than the other, is more popular socially, or a greater favorite with her schoolmates and teachers. One brother succeeds in business or in love or in politics, and lo! blood is changed to gall and love to hate.

Neighbors become enemies because one woman seems to surpass or even to equal another who had deemed herself pre-eminent in her circle, or owing to the fact that one man builds a larger house than another and drives a finer pair of horses.

In the kitchen, war is declared when the waitress is complimented by her employer for good service; the cook wishes to be the only favorite of the mistress, and after making life insupportable for the household departs in high dudgeon or compels her subordinate to leave.

Friendships are destroyed, homes ruined, society turned into chaos, churches undermined, communities disturbed and nations driven to war through jealousy. We have but to look about us to see the disaster wrought by it, the happiness destroyed, the hearts blighted, the lives dwarfed.

Trace almost any trouble to its source, save that of the death of dear ones, and you are sure to find petty, mean jealousy emptying into the stream as a generous tributary.

When we are conscious of any unlovely or disturbing element in human nature the first and most practical method of eradicating it is to begin with ourselves. It will not be an easy task to confess to yourself that you are jealous, that your dislike of some person is traceable to that cause, or that your readiness to criticize is due to it. No, it will be far easier; more agreeable to convince yourself that your dislikes are "intuitions," and that you are peculiarly analytical and discriminating, and therefore critical.

You have the correct "artistic" eye is why you so seldom see beauty in people, and you are so prone to find fault with the behavior of your acquaintances.

All this is pleasant for you to believe, but it renders you most unpleasant, and is making your heart a neglected garden where weeds run riot.

I have heard a woman artist who maintained that she had found the secret of right living and right thinking indulge in bitter denunciations of the vulgar taste of the age which allowed the mercenary and imartistic to succeed and left the spiritual and the gifted to suffer in neglect and obscurity.

She did not know it, yet her whole "mind stuff" was exhausting itself in jealousy of those who were successful. She believed it was her high ideals which were wounded, but it was her own ambition and self-love.

Had she put aside all bitterness and jealousy and saved her vitality for her work she would have risen to the heights for which she yearned in spite of the tendency of the age, and from the heights it is easier and wiser to call to people to go higher than from the valley.

Are you unhappy in any of your domestic or social relations? If so, analyze yourself—find out how much a secret, lurking, unworthy jealousy of others has to do with it.

Are you in some one's employ—a cook, a maid, a man servant, a clerk, a saleswoman, an office boy—and in trouble with your associates, stop and ask if the fault does not lie in yourself before you go any further. Are you not making your own unhappiness by harboring a mean, unworthy spirit of jealousy?

Are you at odds with your neighbors, your business associates, or your political comrades—find out what is wrong with your own mind before you lay the blame on others.

Are you unable to enjoy the company of most people and flattering yourself with the idea that you are exclusive and peculiarly refined, and that you must therefore be always a lonely soul? Look to it that you are not instead a jealous creature, resentful of the popularity of others.

Do not deceive yourself as you wander through the garden of your mind, but when you find the ugly weed jealousy uproot it. If you find it in others uproot it there. Begin by realizing what it is, then by asserting its antidote—universal love.

Do not make the mistake of denying it. Expand your mental forces in the more effectual method of declaring the love principle until your heart and mind are imbued with love, charity, good will and breadth of feeling. In quiet moments say to yourself there is room in God's world for all his children, and that no one can crowd another any more than one star can crowd another in the firmament. Compel yourself to praise the good qualities of those who have aroused your jealousy. Seek to do them a favor. These are all steps toward self-conquest. But this self-conquest cannot take place if you coddle your jealous feelings by calling them other names and convince yourself that it is your "love of justice" and your "sensitiveness" and your "discrimination" which produce your unhappy emotions and your disapproval of so many people.

Treat your heart as you do your flower garden. When you find a weed say, "This is a weed," then uproot it and plant a flower in its place.

Do not say, "This is a lovely vine," and train it about the trellis of your mind until the whole world shuns you because you have cultivated poison ivy.

The Coming Of Order

By Charlotte Teller

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)
(Great Britain Rights Reserved.)

THOSE WHO SUCCEED in business today are the men who can make changes in methods and progresses whenever changing conditions require reorganization. "Reorganization" is the password to success. To succeed is to keep abreast, if not a little ahead, of changing conditions. Men are learning this, and applying it in the field of factory production; not only has the work itself been reorganized, but the very relation of factories in the same industry.

At first there was a doing away with waste in the particular work of the particular factory; then, when self-interest drew the owners into a forced harmony, there was a doing away with the waste of competition. The large amounts of money spent in advertising against every other man in the same business were either put into the business itself or into the pockets of those who had been clever enough to see the force of the old adage, "In union there is strength."

So far has the movement toward reorganization in production gone that there is reason to believe that, on the material side, production will soon show almost perfect order. Through common understanding each capitalist-producer will know his task, keep in his own place and help his fellow capitalists fight their common enemy, the workman—who is the real producer, without title or rights—add help pull the wool over the eyes of the buying public, so that it cannot see how the increased profits which have come out of the better ordered business go only into the pockets of the few at the top.

There is a second field wherein reorganization is beginning to have its effect—the field of human labor.

Again there is found a real belief in the truth of the strength of union. There are unions of hundreds and federations of the hundreds of unions. As in the field of material production self-interest has led to concentration of capital, so in this field self-interest—which is after all the class interest—has brought about concentration of effort. There is a visible order growing out of the former confused competition of wage laborers.

But chaos still reigns in the field of distribution; one glance at a city street, or even at a village street, proves the need of order in the distribution of the common necessities of life. Merchants waste time and money in advertising against each other. To cover these expenses high prices must be put on whatever goods can stand them, and low wages paid to the clerks; there is waste in the time and money of those who are distributing the things which have been made usually at the least cost of time and money. But there is even a greater waste on the part of those who must buy; they must get the best at the lowest price or else be the losers. That requires wasted energy in going from one store to another. All is seen to be confusion, if one studies the possibility of order in this distribution of goods.

No one considers the postoffice system absurd nor Utopian, and it would seem outside of reason to put it on the basis of "free competition," although occasionally, to be sure, some one might profit by a reduction in the price of stamps. Yet food and clothing are no less essential than postal cards. Community interests in roadways, water and light have come to be acknowledged as a matter of course; yet water is no more necessary than food, and common centers of distribution would serve any community better than helter-skelter shops and stores.

It is inevitable that order come, for that is the great goal of all business effort, though few may be conscious of it. But before it comes in such a way that all may benefit by it there must be an awakening of desire for order in a larger sense. If a man walks down a street without feeling the disorder hidden behind the gay window showings, if he does not read wasted human effort in the competitive signs, and wasted human beauty and health in the too great number of those who offer rivals' goods—then, indeed, is he still unconscious and no help toward a better order. If, on the other hand, he notes all these things and hopes for the change to take place soon, then in his heart he will wish for the coming human order, when those who produce and those who help in the distribution will be the industrial members of a society in which the means of production, the capital, will belong to the communities themselves, to be used toward the building of the best and strongest individuals ever gathered together into one great democracy.

CAN A KING BE A SOCIALIST

New Monarch of Serbia Was of That Faith When He Was But a Prince

THE POWERS ARE YET HOLDING ALOOF

England Withdraws Her Minister, Uncle Sam's Minister Does Not Present Credentials and Russia Makes Demands

BY JOHN JOSEPH CONWAY, M. A. (Copyright, 1933, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—The fact that England has withdrawn her minister from Belgrade, that the United States minister will be at least studiously slow in presenting his papers, and that Russia insists that the murderers of King Alexander and Queen Draga be brought to justice, are only a few of the considerations which make the crowned head of Peter Karageorgevitch uneasy.

As Prince Pierre the new king of Serbia is known to have been an advanced socialist. He belonged to the pronounced school of Jules Guesde, rather than to the constitutional and parliamentary socialism of Jean Jaures, now vice president of the chamber of deputies.

The French socialist clubs are discussing the question: Can a king be a socialist?

Not so long ago they decided by a paltry majority that a socialist could be a minister.

This was done in reference to the case of M. Millerand, the then minister of commerce.

But the knotty point remains: Can a socialist become a king?

The trend of opinion is that Peter I. will have to get out of the king business or cease to be a socialist.

Kingship, at least as it is understood in the kingdom of Serbia, is held to be incompatible with sound, practical socialism.

LADIES INTERESTED

During these days of the dying chamber the ladies are the longest sitters and the best listeners.

Fast, hungry, wearisome discourses wear them out.

Foremost among the ladies who sit longest and listen hardest are Mme. Paul Deschanel, the distinguished-looking young wife of the ex-president of the chamber, Mlle. Combes, the pretty daughter of the militant prime minister, and the Princess de Tarente, a leader of the fashions in the Faubourg St. Germain.

Deputies rush out to take air or go to the sidewalk to refresh themselves. But the ladies cling to their places with a tenacity which belies the phrase of the feeble sex.

They have been known to sacrifice luncheon and dinner upon the altar of parliamentarianism. A few of them have been found refreshing themselves surreptitiously with sandwiches and Malaga.

POLITICAL NATURALISTS

A school of political naturalists in Paris has been formed with the object of collecting into a general zoo all the symbolical epithets applied to prominent politicians in France.

Men species in the animal world are represented, and a certain scientist has found that the analogy in most cases is exceedingly striking.

In the amusing collection Joseph Reinisch is the representative bulldog, Mr. F. Pressense is a bloated otter, Freycinet is a boxing kangaroo, Camille Pelletan is a bearded crab, Deschanel is a gallant chimpanzee and General Andre is considered to be admirably portrayed by the head of a hyena.

The man who has demonstrated the greatest talent in classing by a stroke of the pen his political contemporaries among the ruminants or quadrupeds is Henri Rochefort, who is himself represented as a silver-haired fox, with the bushy end of his tail curled over the top of his head.

He has recently finished up his description of Milleveve by dubbing him with the name of Grand Eucalyptus.

An enterprising impresario is about to start a museum on the boulevards, where a specimen of each genus will be exhibited in wax.

LOUBET IS DEMOCRATIC

President Loubet has shown that he is a most democratic chief of state. I met him one morning at 8:30 o'clock, walking down the Boulevard des Capucines. He was accompanied by M. Combarieu and General Dubois, the latter in civilian's dress.

President Loubet's trousers were baggy and he carried a short, ugly stick in his left hand.

Were it not that his tall hat was faultlessly shiny he looked as though he was returning from a nightly revel in Montmartre.

Neither Faure, nor Carimir-Perier, nor Carnot, nor any other previous president would be seen on foot on the boulevards.

But President Loubet says: "I don't see why I should not have the same liberty as any other Frenchman. If the boulevards be good enough for the people, they are good enough for me."

AUTOMOBILE SMUGGLING

In the French frontier town of Hazebrouk an automobile has twice successfully broken through all the customs regulations and introduced a load of tobacco into France.

The first time the automobile rushed past the post of the customs officers at racing speed, and as it was entirely covered over with canvas there was no means of identifying the vehicle.

The intrepid smuggler was so pleased with his success that he warned the customs officers that the trick would be tried again.

The employees on all the neighboring stations were on the lookout, and ropes had been stretched across the roads.

The automobile duly appeared, and seeing a rope across a bridge, the chauffeur turned back and fled in another direction, where he found a railway crossing open and entered France triumphantly, pursued by four automobiles that had been hired by the customs authorities.

But the speed he made far exceeded that of his pursuers, and he again escaped identification.

A POE MONUMENT

An original monument has been planned for the Boston admirers of Edgar Poe by the Spanish sculptor, Jose Charmon, and plaster casts have just been dispatched from Paris for the approval of American taste.

The monument is in itself an architectural whole, and will need no pedestal, as it purposes to be symbolical from the ground up. It represents two figures holding a mortuary shroud, in which the body of the poet is to be borne to its resting place.

As they are just in the act of lifting it up the shroud unfolds and the body rolls out, falling on the steps of the monument.

The idea is terribly ghastly, and the artist's ambition seems to have been to outdo the weird poet himself in his weirdest conceptions.

The attitude of the two figures is additionally striking.

One of them looks down at the fallen corpse with a stare of hideous horror, but the other, to mark the contrast, raises his eyes with almost angelic ecstasy to heaven.

The whole group is certainly dramatic, and may be powerful enough to stir the poet in his grave and make him come out some dark night to look at himself by the light of a phantom torch.

Boston matrons might do well to warn their little girls before they take them to see the awe-inspiring model.

PEASANTS ARE FILTHY

A German doctor just returned in disgust from the Russian province of Tchernigov, where he practiced his profession for eight months, gives a most picturesque account of the filthy habits of the Russian peasants.

A peasant was suffering from a wound that would not heal, and it became necessary to take a piece of skin from another part of his body and graft it on the wound.

After washing the patient well, the doctor proceeded to take the slice of skin required, but when he came to put it into a disinfectant solution he was astonished to find that it dissolved.

Closer examination showed him that what he had taken for skin was really dirt, which had become so much a part of the peasant's body as to be indistinguishable from it.

The same doctor was obliged in hundreds of cases to scrape the dirt off his patients and then scrub them violently with a hard brush and water before he could give them medical treatment.

He found that the peasants, as a rule, never washed themselves from childhood to old age, and often wore the same clothes next to the skin for years together.

A Russian doctor, M. Schmelevitch, who resides in the same province, and has had medical experience in several other parts of Russia, confirms these statements, and adds that the conditions described by his German colleague are general throughout the rural districts of Russia. There are millions of Russians who never wash and never enjoy a change of linen.

AMERICAN PROTESTS

American protests against Russian massacres of the Jews do not seem to have diminished the good feeling between M. De Witte, minister of finance, and the New York Stock Exchange. The minister is just about to be elected to a stock exchange committee, a magnificent vase over seven feet in height as a present.

The vase is of porcelain, made by one of the best artificers in St. Petersburg, and is very richly ornamented.

The reason for the present being sent is that the committee, on the introduction of the Russian 4 per cent bonds to quotation on the New York exchange, renounced their claim to the tax, amounting to $100,000.

SHE DID NOT LIKE IT

There lives a wealthy and estimable lady in the town of Glozau whose opinion of the wisdom of a local magistrate is not flattering. Knowledge of the facts probably will cause every member of the fair sex to indorse her view. This lady refused to pay $100 for a portrait she had ordered and the artist refused to sue.

Experts gave evidence that the portrait bore a decided likeness to the original, but that the artist had represented her as much older than she really appeared. They declared that ought not to have expected a good portrait for less than $1,000.

In giving judgment for the plaintiff, the magistrate tried to comfort the woman by telling her that in fifteen years she would probably be older and resemble to the picture. And this was the last straw. The fair defendant paid the judgment, then tore up the canvas in court.

A HANDSOME HEROINE

BERLIN, July 11.—There should arrive in New York about this time the handsome heroine of the most extraordinary scandal which has disturbed Berlin society in years.

Privy Councillor Zimmermann, aged 65, who married his own housekeeper forty years younger than himself, died soon afterward, leaving her part of his fortune.

The sole executor of the will, Judge Ehmecke, when settling his friends' affairs, found $100,000 to be missing. He accused the young widow of illegally appropriating the money, and Frau Zimmermann retaliated by accusing the judge of certain grave offenses, and contending to have him seized and removed to a lunatic asylum. Here the doctors soon realized that the supposed lunatic was perfectly sane, and he was released.

The minister of justice ordered an investigation as to how it was possible for a prominent judge to be put away in a madhouse, and ten days ago Frau Zimmermann fled in company with a hypnotist named Reichel.

One version of the many stories being circulated is that she bought a baron's title for her lover wherewith to cut an imposing figure in America. Her friends, on the other hand, suggest that Reichel has led the widow astray by his hypnotic influence.

HE IS AN ANARCHIST

The Russian Prince Nakachitz, who belongs to one of the most aristocratic families of Moscow, finds it impossible to reside in any European country.

Eight years ago, after the terrible accident at Krasni, which marred the coronation of the present czar, the prince expressed decided nihilistic convictions and was expelled from Russia. Since then he has become more than ever convinced in his own mind that the coronation of the present czar, the prince expressed decided nihilistic convictions and was expelled from Russia. AN INFERIOR PLAY

Germana who have returned from Brixlegg, in the Tyrol, where they witnessed the recent performance of the Passion Play, declare them to be inferior to the original Oberammergau production, from which the Brixlegg version is frankly copied.

The facts seem to have been very different. Never for one moment does the spectator's heart stand still. What is wanting at Brixlegg is the feeling, so intense at Oberammergau, that their Passion Play is the life of the people.

The troupe of Swissers, are said to be distinctly good, and in one or two cases better than at Oberammergau. The singing is also good, eight male and eight female voices rendering some effect. But being under cover, the second part of the wearing of wigs and other accessories, strictly prohibited at Oberammergau. The dresses also, though fairly effective, are tawdry, and the colors not well balanced.

NO PLACE OPEN TO THE EVICTED

Older Members of Congregations Must Get Off the Earth

(Copyright, 1933, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—The enforcement of the laws against the congregations has amounted in the case of some of the poorer and older members to an order to get off the earth.

Old men and old women who have been evicted from their monasteries and convents have found themselves too advanced in years to begin new form of work and have discovered that all their near relatives are dead. The orders to which they belong are too poor to take care of these evicted people.

Some of them have drifted to Paris penniless. They have attempted to beg, but here again they are prohibited by law. An old brother who had been evicted and is now being arrested for begging, declares that nothing awaits such as he but the poorhouse or the grave.

"Get off the earth," says Prime Minister Combes. And they must get.

KISHINEFF WILL AGAIN MASSACRE

Circulars Have Been Issued Urging Citizens to Make Town Too Hot to Hold a Single Jew

THEY HOPE FOR A WHOLESALE EXODUS

Growing Unrest Among the Industrial Classes Adds to the Danger in That Russian Province

BY MALCOLM CLARKE. (Copyright, 1933, by W. R. Hearst.) BERLIN, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—Kishineff, according to the latest dispatches, trembles on the brink of another Jew massacre. Again circulars have been distributed urging citizens to make the town "too hot to hold a single Jew."

The circular adds that "the warnings of the governor and of the government need not be taken too seriously, and if the prosecution of Jewish rascality be carried on with proper determination the other southern centers will ultimately follow suit, and the result will be a wholesale exodus of the detested and detestable Hebrews from Southern Russia."

The authorities in Kishineff do not underestimate the sinister significance of these circular threats. What adds to the danger is the growing unrest among the industrial classes. Unfortunately any outcry against the Jews is the easiest and surest way of raising the passions of the unruly elements.

PEN NAMES ARE UNDER THE BAN

Bill to Be Urged in Chamber to Prohibit Use of Pseudonyms by Writers

"GYP" IN TEARS BECAUSE OF IT

Novelists and Story Tellers Are Indignant at the Attempt to Rob Them of Well Known Names

(Copyright, 1933, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, July 11.—(Special Cable.)—M. Gervaise, deputy for Nancy, has drawn up a bill compelling people to drop pseudonyms, or pen names, and to use their own. The bill will soon be presented to the chamber of deputies, and already it has caused consternation in the ranks of literary men and artists, for nowhere else are pseudonyms so freely used in the literary and artistic world as in Paris.

Writers who have made reputations and are known to their readers only by their pen names believe that they will suffer great loss if they be forced to abandon them. The Countess de Martet de Janville, who is known to readers of society novels by the name of "Gyp," is in tears. Pierre de Coulevaire, who made such clever studies of American women, will be recognized with difficulty by her real name of Mlle. Fayard. Not one in fifty would know Jean Lorraine by his family name of Verdier.

Even the traveled and cultured Pierre Loti is not widely known by his real name of Julien Vaud. It is doubtful if even professors of literature know Anatole France by any other name. His real name, Antoine Thibaut, conveys no meaning and conjures up no poetic beauties.

A kindred confusion will be caused in the ranks of journalists. That fighting editor, Urbain Gohier, will not be permitted to sign himself, for this is merely his nom de plume. Octave Uzanne, nephew of the late M. de Blois, and a writer on the Matin, will have to sign his family name or none at all.

The Duke of Pomar must give up his democratic signature of Victor Bellechasse, and the Queen of Naples wishes to continue to contribute to the newspapers it will not be over the name of the Countess Isola, as she has hittego done.

Cartoonists are similarly in trouble. The world renowned Caran d'Ache will become plain Emmanuel Poiré; the witty Willy will become Gauthier Villars. All the potency attached to the name of Reclams would have to be rearranged should the law compel her to wear her name of Madame Porel.

The further sacrifice of making Jane Hading become plain Jeannette Hading would be committed. It would force Madame Calve to be put upon the dead walls of the city as De Rouquier. The adoption of this bill would lead to the debaptism of the leading names of literature, the stage and the press.

No Summer Bowel Troubles

Not for me! I'm safe from all of them and happy. The heat of summer causes organic matter everywhere to decay. All dead vegetable or animal matter rots if not kept on ice. All undigested food in the human body will ferment a hundred times as quickly in summer as in winter. Consequence—stomach, liver, bowels poisoned, thrown out of order—sour stomach, gases, colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera, appendicitis, and in some regions yellow fever and the plague. Little children suffer terribly everywhere. What does good sense tell you to do? You can't keep the human body on ice, and the drinking of ice-cold drinks does more harm than good because it stops digestion and chills the internal organs. The proper thing is to keep all impure and unnecessary matter out of the body every day, not give it a chance to sour and decay in the stomach and bowels, and poison the blood and the whole body. In this way you will stop all hot, feverish conditions, and keep your insides cool and healthy. To do it, use a medicine that is not offensive to the taste and not harsh and violent in its action. There is only one safe system-cleaner to take in the summer time, because it will not cause diarrhoea or griping, and that is

GRAUSTARK

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

SYNOPSIS.

Grenfall Lorry, a wealthy American globe-trotter, stumbles into acquaintance with a charming foreign girl on the train from Denver to Washington. The pair set out for the station when the flyer stops for repairs in West Virginia. Lorry goes ahead to hold the train at the next town. He hires a wagon to drive them the intervening four miles. They catch the train. Lorry learns the young lady's name is Miss Guggenlocker and her companions are her uncle and aunt. They arrive in Washington and Lorry is asked to breakfast with the trio. They leave for New York. Lorry spends a day trying to work, but gives it up and rushes to New York, hoping to catch a farewell glimpse of Miss Guggenlocker before she sails. Just as the Kaiser Wilhelm steams away he catches sight of her and throws a kiss from the tips of his fingers. To his great surprise the gesture is returned. Lorry joins his old friend Harry Anguish, an American artist, in Paris. Graustark and his capital, Edelweiss, are located by a guidebook. The Americans get no trace of the Guggenlockers there.

The lady started violently. Her eyes grew wide, her lips parted, and her body was bent forward eagerly, a little gloved hand grasping the side of the open carriage. Her "ideal American" was bowing low, as was the tall fellow at his side. When he looked up again his eyes were glowing, his handsome face was flushed and he saw her smile, blush furiously and incline her head gravely. The carriage had swept past, but she turned her head and he past, but she turned her head, and he detected an appealing glance in her eyes, a perplexed wrinkle across her brow, both of which were swept away an instant later by the most bewitching of smiles. Again her head was inclined, this time a trifle more energetically, and then the maddening face was turned from him. The equipage rolled onward, and there was no effort on her part to check its progress. The men were left standing alone and disappointed on the streets of Edelweiss, the object of their search slipping away as soon as she had been found. Her companion was amazed by the little scene, it was evident, judging by the eager look on her face as she turned with a question in her eyes.

"Turned down!" exclaimed the irrepressible Anguish dolefully. "That's pretty shabby treatment, old man. But she's quite worth the journey."

"I'll not go back to America without her. Do you hear that, Harry Anguish?" He was excited and trembling. "But why didn't she stop?" he went on dismally.

"Oh, you dear old fool!" said Anguish.

The two stood looking after the carriage until it turned into a side street half way down the shady stretch toward the castle. They saw her companion glance back, but could not tell whether she did or not. Lorry looked uneasily at Anguish, and the latter read his thought.

"You are wondering about the Guggenlocker name, eh? I'll tell you what I've worked out during the past two minutes. Her name is no more Guggenlocker than mine is. She and the uncle used that name as a blind. Mark my words, she's quality over here; that's all there is about it. Now, we must find out just who she really is. Here comes a smart looking soldier chap. Let's ask him, provided we can make him understand."

A young soldier approached, leisurely writing a cane, for he was without his side arms. Anguish accosted him in French and then in German. He understood the latter and was very polite.

"Who was the young lady in the carriage that just passed?" asked Lorry eagerly.

The face of the soldier flushed and he grew pale with anger.

"Hold on! I beg pardon, but we are strangers and don't quite understand your ways. I can't see anything improper in asking such a question," said Anguish, attempting to detain him. The young man struck his hand from his arm, and his eyes fairly blazed.

"You must learn our ways. We never pass comment on a lady. If you do so in your land, I am sorry for your ladies. I refuse to be questioned by you. Hand aside, fellow!"

Anguish stood aside in astonishment, and they watched the wrathful gallant trudge down the street, his back as stiff as a board.

"Blamed touchy!" growled Anguish.

"You remember what Sitsky said about their respect for the weaker sex. I guess we'd better keep off that tack. It'll hatch up a duel or two. They seem to be fire eaters. We must content ourselves with searching out her home, and without assistance too. I've noted a bit, Harry, and, now that I've seen her, I'm willing to go slowly and deliberately. Let's take our time and agree to perfectly cool. I am beginning to agree with your logic, proposition. It's all clearing up in my mind now. We'll go back to the hotel and get ready for the visit to the palace grounds."

"Don't you intend to hunt her up? Gad, I wouldn't miss a minute if I had a chance to be with a girl like that! And the other was no scarecrow. She is rather a beauty too. Greatest town for pretty women I ever struck. Vienna is out of it entirely."

They strolled on to the hotel, discussing the encounter in all its exhilarating details. Scarcely had they quitted themselves on the piazza after partaking of a light luncheon when a man came galloping up to the walk in front of the hotel. Throwing his bridle rein to a guard, he hastened to the piazza. His attire was that of a groom, and something about him reminded them of the footman who sat beside the driver of the carriage he had seen a short time before. He came straight to where the Americans sat smoking and, bowing low, held before them an envelope. The address was "Grenfall Lorry, Esq.," but the man was in doubt as to which was he.

Lorry grasped the envelope, tore it open and drew forth a daintily written note. It read:

My Dear Mr. Lorry—I was very much surprised to see you this morning. I will accompany this messenger when he calls for you at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, he will conduct you to my home, where I shall truly be charmed to see you again. Will my friend?

SOPHIA GUGGENLOCKER.

Lorry could have embraced the messenger. There was a suspicion of breathlessness in his voice when he tried to say calmly to Harry:

"An invitation for tomorrow."

"I knew it would come that way."

"Also wants you to come."

"Shan't I be in the way?"

"Not at all, my boy. I'll accept for you. After this fellow goes I'll let you read the note. Wait until I write an answer."

Motioning for the man to remain, he hastened to his room, pulled out some stationery and feverishly wrote:

My Dear Miss Guggenlocker—I shall be delighted to accompany your messenger tomorrow, and my friend, Mr. Harry Anguish, will be with me. I have come half way across the continent to see you, and I shall be repaid if I am with you but for a moment. You will pardon me if I say that your name has caused me despair. No one seems to have heard of here, and I was beginning to lose hope. You may expect me at 3, and I thank you for the pleasure you bestow. Yours sincerely,

GRENFALL LORRY.

This note, part of which had been written with misgiving, he gave to the messenger, who rode away quickly.

"She didn't wait long for me to write to you, I notice. Is it possible she is suffering from the effects of those three days on the other side of the Atlantic? Come to think of it, she blushed when she saw you this morning," said Anguish. Lorry handed him her note, which he read and then solemnly shook hands with its recipient. "Congratulations. I am a very fair sighted young man, having lived in Paris."

CHAPTER VIII.

THE ABDUCTION OF A PRINCESS.

THAT afternoon they went to the palace grounds and inquired for the chief steward.

After a few moments they were shown to his office in a small dwelling house just inside the gates. The steward was a red faced little man, pleasant and accommodating. He could speak German—in fact, he was a German by birth—and they had no difficulty in presenting their request. Mr. Fraasch—Jacob Fraasch—was at first dubious, but their frank, eager faces soon gained for them his consent to see that part of the great park open to the public. Beyond certain lines they were not to trespass. Anguish asked how they could be expected to distinguish these lines, being unacquainted, and the steward grimly informed them that the members of the royal guard would establish the lines so plainly that it would be quite clear.

He then wrote for them a pass to the grounds of the royal palace of Graustark, affixing his seal. In giving this pass to them he found occasion to say that the princess had instructed him to extend every courtesy possible to an American citizen. It was then that Anguish asked if he might be permitted to use his camera. There was an instant and emphatic refusal, and they were told that the pass would be rescinded if they did not leave the camera outside the gates. Reluctantly Anguish deposited his luckless box in the steward's office, and they passed into the broad avenue which led toward the palace.

A guard, who served also as a guide, stepped to their side before they had taken ten paces. Where he came from they never knew, so instantaneous was his appearance. He remained with them during the two hours spent in the wonderful park.

The palace stood in the northwestern part of the grounds, possibly a half mile from the base of the mountain. Its front faced the mountain side. The visitors were not permitted to go closer than a quarter of a mile from the structure, but attained a position from which it could be seen in all its massive, ancient splendor. Anguish, who had studied churches and old structures, painted the castles on the Rhine and was something of a connoisseur in architecture, was of the opinion that it had been standing for more than 500 years. It was a vast, medieval mass of stone, covered with moss and ivy, with towers, turrets and battlements.

The park was probably a mile square and was surrounded by a high wall, on the top of which were little guard-houses and several masked cannon. When they had completed their tour of inspection, their guide rapidly led the way to the wall that encircled the grounds, reaching it at a point not far from the castle itself. Here was situated another large gate, through which they did not pass. Instead they ascended some steps and came out upon the high wall. The top of this wall was several feet wide, and walking was comparatively safe. They soon understood the guide's design. The object was to walk along this wall until they reached the main gate. Why this peculiar course was to be taken they could not imagine at first. Anguish's fertile brain came to the rescue. He saw a number of women in a distant part of the grounds, and, remembering their guide's haste in conducting them to the wall, rightly conjectured that it was against custom for visitors to meet and gaze upon members of the royal household. The men and women, none of whom could be plainly distinguished from the faraway wall, were undoubtedly a part of the castle's family and were not to be subjected to the curious gaze of sightseers. Perhaps her royal highness the Princess of Graustark was among them.

They reached the main gate and descended, Anguish securing his camera, after which they thanked the steward and turned to see the guide. But he had disappeared as if the ground had swallowed him.

"Well, it's a fair Versailles," observed Anguish, as they walked down the street, glancing back at the frowning wall.

"It all goes to make me wonder why in the name of heaven we have never heard of this land of Graustark," said Lorry, still thinking of the castle's grandeur.

"My boy, there are lots of things we don't know. We're too busy. Don't you remember that but one half the world knows how the other half lives? I'll wager there are not twenty-five people in the United States who know there is such a country as Graustark."

"I don't believe that a single soul over there has heard of the place," vouchsafed Lorry, very truthfully.

"I'll accept the amendment," said Anguish. Then he proceeded to take a snapshot of the castle from the middle of the street. He also secured a number of views of the mountain side, of some odd little dwelling houses and two or three interesting exposures of red robed children. Everybody, from the children up, wore loose robes, some red, some black, some blue, but all in solid colors. Beneath these robes were baggy trousers and blouses among the men, short skirts among the women. All wore low boots and a sort of turban. These costumes, of course, were confined to the native civilians. At the hotel the garb of the aristocrats was vastly different. The women were gowned after the latest Viennese patterns, and the men, except those of the army, wore clothes almost as smart as those which covered the Americans. Miss Guggenlocker—or whatever her name might be—and her carriage companion were as exquisitely gowned as any women to be seen on the boulevards or in Hyde park of an afternoon.

It was late in the afternoon when they returned to the hotel. After dinner, during which they were again objects of interest, they strolled off toward the castle, smoking their cigars and enjoying the glorious air. Being a stranger in a strange land, Lorry acted on the romantic painter's advice and also stuck a revolver in his pocket. He laughed at the suggestion that there might be use for the weapon in such a quiet, model, well regulated town, but Anguish insisted:

"I've seen a lot of these fellows around town who look like genuine brigands and cutthroats, and I think it just as well that we be prepared," asserted he positively, and his friend gratified what he called a whim.

At 10 o'clock the slender moon dropped behind the mountain, and the valley, which had been touched with its tender light, gradually took on the somberness and stillness of a starlit night. The town slumbered at 11, and there were few lights to be seen in the streets or in the houses. Here and there strolled the white uniformed police guards, occasionally soldiers hurriedly moved through the dense shadows on the sidewalks, but the Americans saw still life in its reality. Returning from their stroll beside the castle walls far to the west of where they had entered the grounds that afternoon, they paused in the middle of Castle avenue near the main gate and looked down the dark, deserted street. Far away could be seen the faint glare from their hotel. One or two street lamps burned in the business part of the city. Aside from these evidences of life there was nothing but darkness, silence, peacefulness, about them everywhere.

"Think of Paris or New York at 11 o'clock," said Lorry, a trifle awed by the solitude of the sleeping city.

"It's as dead as a piece of prairie land," said his friend. "Gad, it makes me sleepy to look down that street. It's a mile to the hotel, too, Lorry. We'd better move along."

"Let's lie down near the hedge, smoke another cigar and wait till midnight. It is too glorious a night to be lost in sleep," urged Lorry, whose heart was light over the joys of the day to come. "I can dream just as well here, looking at that dark old castle, with its one little tower light, as I could if I tried to sleep in a hard bed down at the hotel."

Anguish, who was more or less of a dreamer himself, consented, and after lighting fresh cigars they threw themselves on the soft, dry grass near the tall hedge that fenced the avenue as it neared the castle grounds. For half an hour they talked by fits and starts, one thinking of the face he had seen, the other picturing in his artist eye the painting he had vowed to create from the moonlit castle of an hour ago.

"Some one coming," murmured the painter, half rising to his elbow attentively.

When she was on her way to a matinee card party. She was late. She was nervous.

When she came into the room where the players were she had a story to tell. "Do you see this sleeve?" and she held up to view the remnants of a bit of lace and organdie. "Well, I have been traveling on the street car. You know the Fort Worth conductor is the politest man in the world. In fact, he is so effusively attentive that when the car stops and you reach the door to get off he grabs you by the arm with one hand and with the other pulls the cord signaling the motorman to start. As the car again gets in motion the conductor lifts you from the platform and puts you down at some place along the block—that depends upon the motorman's pleasure as to speed."

"I have become quite accustomed to this double play of the conductor, and though I am neither so old that I cannot walk nor so blind that I cannot see the steps, nor so decrepit that I cannot step lively enough to keep the car proceeding without undue delay, I have submitted with a degree of Christian resignation to the imprints of grimy, perspiring fingers on the sleeves of my clean shirtwaist. But I do believe that my Christian fortitude has now forsaken me. On my way here I tried to catch the eye of the conductor to get off for at least three blocks. Our cars, of course, have no electric button to signal with, and we have to depend upon the chance of having the conductor see the pleading hand we hold up. I not only held mine, but I waved it excitedly. I knew I was late, and I did not want to waste time traveling several blocks beyond my F— street even to get more ride for my money."

"At last he saw me, and as I got to the door he grabbed my arm to lift me to the ground. Instead of my arm, however, he got my sleeve, and it was not made to be used as a tackle for a derrick. Now look at it!" and she held up and hanging from the children up, wore loose robes, some red, some black, some blue, but all in solid colors. Beneath these robes were baggy trousers and blouses among the men, short skirts among the women. All wore low boots and a sort of turban. HOVEY'S EVIDENCE WASN'T REQUIRED

Ballinger Tethered Cow on Railroad Right-of-Way and Pleaded Guilty to Charge of Trespass

S. B. Hovey, vice president and general superintendent of the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf railroad, was in the corporation court yesterday to testify against Jack Ballingier, who was charged with trespassing, but his testimony was not required, as Ballingier entered a plea of guilty to pasturing a cow upon the Rock Island right of way and was fined $1 and costs.

According to Mr. Hovey, residents of the city who have cows to pasture have formed the habit of tethering them upon the right of way where the grass is good. Recently several trains have been brought to a stop by the engineers, who feared that they would kill one or more of the cows. In two instances after heavy trains came to a standstill it was necessary for switch engines to be sent out to get them under headway again.

Mr. Hovey said that he hoped Ballingier's experience in court would result in keeping cows off the right of way.

A lively contest developed when Ed Utley was arraigned on a charge of vagrancy. Several employees of the Crow Theater and a number of policemen testified against him, but Judge Prewett let him go on account of his youth and family.

"I'll give you a chance this time; be sure you don't give me the next chance," said his honor.

Joe Flowers, who announced when first arraigned on a charge of pistol carrying, the other day, that he hailed from "five miles below Venus," paid the lowest fine—$25 and costs—yesterday and was turned out.

Frank Conway, who was arrested the other day for annoying a lady who lives on Jennings avenue, by showing her unwelcome attentions, pleaded guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace and was fined $1 and costs. As will be remembered, Conway was caught by Officers Tom Snow and John Tames, who chased him on horseback from the high school to the city hall, he being on a north-bound City Belt car.

Walker appeared in court with one foot bandaged and wearing a general air of deep regret. The liquor places took testimony of his guides to a strange lot for fresh brew Friday. The city exchequer waived matter to the extent of $1 and costs in his case.

Catarrh of the Stomach.

When the stomach is overloaded; when food is taken into it that fails to digest, it decays and inflames the mucous membrane, exposing the nerves, and causes the glands to secrete mucus, instead of the natural juices of digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach. For years I suffered with Catarrh of the Stomach, and medicines failed to benefit me until I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure.—J. R. Rhea, Connell, Tex. Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder. If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy I seldom need it, as it has cured me. Mrs. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

The Great Panhandle of Texas

(Fort Worth Telegram Special Correspondence.)

AMARILLO, Tex., July 4.—Now, and then, what wonderful things have come about. This morning, after 3 o'clock, I boarded the train at Wichita Falls—at noon I took dinner at Amarillo. It seems scarcely credible. A few years ago I made the same trip, but then in an overland wagon drawn by the best four mule team I ever saw, and it took just five days to get over the same ground.

I said that I made the same trip, but my reckonings were taken from the Palo Duro Canyon, not far from this city, but in those days there was no talk about hogs, alfalfa and irrigation than I have heard since I left the plains of Nebraska, where irrigation, hogs and alfalfa, near the Omaha market, have made so many farmers rich. A big artificial lake has been made at Wichita Falls. A picture hardly tells what it is, but it is better than a word description. The picture shows but a part of the lake, for it covers nearly three thousand acres of ground. The water is used for irrigation and the city waterworks system, and the railroads. If Fort Worth had a lake like this, it would be the attraction of the state.

TALK ABOUT FORT WORTH

The great packing houses at Fort Worth are talked about as if they were only a few miles away, and in speaking of the future of the town, it is claimed years longer, will make Fort Worth a great city. Irrigation, with its natural development of orchard, vineyard, field and stock farm, will play its full part in the future of this country. Alfalfa has made the farmers of Nebraska and Kansas independently rich, and with an outlet through the packing houses at Fort Worth for all the cattle, hogs and sheep that can be fattened on alfalfa grown along the line of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad, it is sure to do as much for all this part of Texas.

CAN PRODUCE COTTON

I am told that cotton, too, can be raised as profitably in the counties of Wichita, Wilbarger and Hardeman as in most sections of Texas, and that under irrigation cotton will produce more than one and one-half bales to the acre.

The second assistant is Herschel Stine, who has charge of the printing of the daily weather maps and the distributing of them.

INSTRUMENTS IN USE

The Fort Worth station is a fully equipped office and is supplied with all the latest and most modern meteorological instruments, automatically recording the pressure of the atmosphere, the temperature, the wind direction and its velocity, the per cent of sunshine and the rainfall to the one-hundredth degree of an inch.

The newest and most interesting instrument in use in the office is called the meteorograph. This machine records automatically the wind direction for every minute of the twenty-four hours, the sunshine for every minute of the day, the wind velocity for every mile that passes over the station. The standard rain gauge is on the lawn in the rear of the building. This instrument is connected by electric wires with the meteorograph and records there the rainfall to the hundredth of an inch. This meteorograph is usually known as the triple register, although it registers the four things.

The most important instrument in use in the station is the barometer. It records the weight of the atmosphere and is one of the principal instruments in use in the forecasting work. It was first invented in the year 1643 by a native of Florence—Torricelli. It consists of a glass tube some thirty inches in length and about a quarter of an inch in inside diameter. As the weight of the atmosphere changes the mercury within the column rises and falls. When the column falls there is a storm brewing. This instrument has to have corrections made for temperature and the elevation above sea level every time that it is read. All barometers have a standard correction so that their reading can be figured out for sea level and the parallel of 45 degrees.

The station has another kind of barometer which is called the barograph. This instrument is so set up on the corner of the meteorograph that it has eight cells instead of the one, and the pen that registers the pressure is regulated by a system of levers, which are controlled by the cells according to the increase and decrease of the pressure. This instrument traces the pressure of the atmosphere as the wave moves over the station and makes a continuous record for seven days at a time. The height of the standard barometer is traced upon a sheet of paper which is moved by a clock in order that it may be free from all radiation of heat from the ground. This radiation of heat, "artificial heat," as it is called, is what causes the thermometers on the street level to record a higher temperature than the official instrument. The thermograph traces the temperature for every second of the twenty-four hours. The record for seven days is kept on the one sheet, which is revolved by a clock.

In the weather bureau everything about the atmosphere is automatically recorded. If a thunderstorm occurs it is recorded, and in a station such as that at Fort Worth every cloud is noted. This last, of course, is done by the eye.

CLOUDS ALSO ARE WATCHED
Many people lose beautiful views by not watching the clouds, and one may notice that a man who has been in the weather service for any length of time always glances at the clouds as he leaves a building. He sees many beautiful pictures that the average man loses. There are many different formations of clouds, all of which mean something to the weather observer. For instance, a well trained observer of many years' experience can look at the clouds called cirrus, the highest clouds known—they range about 27,000 feet—and tell that there is a storm forming hundreds of miles away. There is a cloud that can be seen floating about every day, with a horizontal base and a rounded top, which is known as the summer cumulus cloud. This cloud always disappears about or soon after sunset and it is the only cloud that casts a real shadow. It is generally a fair weather cloud.

There are other clouds, forerunners of rains and storms. These are the altostratus and the cirrostratus. There is another beautiful cloud which is often seen in the summer, which is known as the thunderhead, or scientifically as the cumulo-nimbus. Another kind of cloud is the strato-cumulus, which is generally seen in the spring, and is always lying from the south. It frequently means here that there is more wind than rain coming.

WORK OF FORECASTING

The most beautiful work in the station is the forecasting, which is done by the official in charge. Mr. Reeder has not got a frog to aid him, nor does he notice the ants, nor does he get up on top of the building with a powerful spyglass to search for the storms before the other people can see them. The forecasting is done from the observations taken in the morning. These observations are taken throughout the country at all the stations at the same moment. This is the instant when it is 8 o'clock at the meridian passing passing through Washington station. That makes it 7 o'clock here when the observations are taken. The records taken at these stations are then telegraphed to every other station, and it is from these reports that the forecasting is done. The Fort Worth station receives the reports of all the stations from Montana on the northwest to Florida on the southeast, from Utah on the west to the Atlantic ocean on the east, and from Canada on the north to the Rio Grande on the south. The reports from the stations west of the Rocky mountains are not needed, as the condition of the atmosphere can be received well in hand the instant the change appears on this side of the mountains. The different conditions as they exist at the time of the observation are then recorded upon the map. Solid lines, called isobars, are drawn through the points having the same atmospheric pressure, a separate line being drawn for each difference of one-tenth of an inch in the height of the barometer. Dotted lines, called isotherms, connecting places having the same temperature, are drawn for each ten degrees of the thermometer. Heavy dotted lines, inclosing areas where a decided change has occurred within the past 24 hours, are sometimes added. The direction of the wind is indicated by an arrow flying with the wind or opposite to the ordinary vane. The state of weather—whether clear, partly cloudy, cloudy, raining or snowing—is also indicated by symbols that are easily understood.

The general movement of storms in the United States is from west to east, similar to a series of atmospheric waves, of which the crests are designated on the maps as "highs" and the troughs as "lows." These alternating highs and lows travel at an average steady movement of 600 miles per day.

High winds, with rain or snow, usually precede the low area, often extending to a distance of 600 miles to the eastward of the center of the storm. In advance of the lows the winds are generally southerly and, in consequence, bring high temperatures. When the center of the low passes to the eastward of a place the wind shifts to the west or northwest, bring low temperatures. Following the low there usually comes an area of high, bringing sunny weather, which in its turn is followed by another low.

This ability to forecast a storm is used very often on a seaport, where the weather forecaster can telegraph to the shipmasters, telling them of a storm on the way, and also advise them to make sail and avoid the storm. These facts can be told to the shipmaster long before he would have any idea of the storm from other sources. This information has become of such general use that if a master of a ship receives such warning of a storm and sails anyway, the insurance will not be paid if he is wrecked.

ADVANTAGES OF THE SERVICE

The weather bureau service offers advantages to a bright young man in a way that is found in no other department of the government. In it there is a chance for individuality. Every man can rise according to his ability. Every promotion is made within the service, no outsider ever being considered. The young man that desires to enter the service first has to pass a civil service examination. If he passes and is appointed, he goes to a station which is in need of an assistant. Here he begins his work under a trained officer who is in charge of the station. If at the end of six months of this probationary period he is found to be of the "right stuff," the officer in charge recommends that his appointment be made permanent, and he starts in on his work with a salary of $840. From this time on he is raised to higher positions by passing different civil service examinations. After passing the third of these he may feel that he is started well on his work, as he is by that time a first assistant. His success from this time on depends upon his real ability, and it absolutely depends upon his individual efforts as to whether he will rise or not. The chief of the service today is a man that has risen from the ranks.

Forecaster George Reeder of the Fort Worth station graduated from the Meteorological and Military school with class of 1885. That was the last class to graduate, as the school was abolished by the government that year. The school was situated at Fort Meyer, Va., not very far from Washington. Mr. Reeder went into the army, where he was made an officer in the signal corps. In 1891, when the weather bureau was transferred to the Agricultural Department, he was appointed as an assistant. He held this position for eleven months, when he was promoted to be an observer in charge of a station. Since that time he has been head of the bureau situated at Vicksburg, Miss., Chattanooga and Corpus Christi. He came here from Corpus Christi, where he made a record for himself as being able to understand Texas weather. He now ranks very high in the weather bureau and is recognized as an authority on Texas weather.

that thousands of acres will go into alfalfa, and that hogs, cattle and sheep will be fattened for the Fort Worth market, where delivery can be made in four hours after the animals are loaded at Wichita Falls on the cars.

The old time ranch is rapidly passing away all along the line of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad. In its stead has come the stock farmer and his thrifty family. Feed stuff is raised, and the fine stock is fed during a few months of the winter and a thrifty, healthy growth kept up all the time.

Amarillo has outgrown its system of deep wells and a limited supply of water. The city is now looking out for capital to put in a system of water works suitable for a city of metropolitan style, such as it has now assumed. Five railroads and more coming is enough to make a plains city hopeful of its future.

WILL MAKE FORT WORTH

The wonderful Panhandle country was pioneered but a few years ago by Fort Worth people, and its trade alone, it retained by Fort Worth for a few

The boll weevil is not known in this section, and it is believed that the weevils are too cold for him to thrive. At any rate, on irrigated lands, the cotton rows are planted nearly five feet apart, and sunshine, cultivation and water are claimed to be the boll weevil's enemy. The recent rains have caused the grasses to grow and the flowers to bloom, and this whole land wears the face of early spring.

The death loss on the open country among the range cattle was quite heavy last winter, but there were practically no losses on the stock farms and among the better class of cattle. Looking over the vast plains and figuring on the possibilities of development, the wonder comes from whom will the needed timber be drawn to build all the homes and barns that the future settlers of this country will require. Here it is all plain, and I am told that not only Texas, but Indian Territory, Oklahoma and Kansas are fast depleting the timber lands of Texas and Louisiana. Perhaps this problem may be deferred for a future generation to meet.

he is wrong. The skilled weather man after twenty years' scientific study of meteorological conditions, aided by telegraph reports and maps of "highs" and "lows" and wind currents and the most modern and costly instruments, makes a well-weighted and well-balanced forecast of the weather for thirty-six hours. He expressly stipulates that it is a forecast and not a prediction.

He is not always positive, but he nearly always is right, although the newspaper man and the cartoonist and comic papers have a vast amount of fun at his expense. He goes along forecasting storms at sea and thus keeping the ships in port until the squalls and hurricanes are past, saving millions of dollars annually for the men whose ships "go down to sea," saving lives and doing a great work on a small government salary—small when compared with the value of the work—and despite the large bumps of knowledge which form upon his cranium he usually manages to "turn up a good story" for the inevitable newsgatherer; he answers about two hundred telephone calls per day, gets out of bed at 5:30 in the morning and maintains a serenity that is simply astonishing when the amount of work he accomplishes is considered.

The weather is ever a fruitful topic of conversation. The tradesman and his customer, the bashful boy and his sweetheart, the cotton speculator and the farmer, the preacher and the Houston street merchant—in fact, where is the person that doesn't take a whirl at the weather at least once a day? But did you ever take a peep into the weather shop of George Reeder, the forecast officer of the local weather bureau? A reporter for The Telegram solved some of the mysteries of how the weather is gauged, yesterday, and when he finished he felt like he had been touring in a house of magic, and he failed to see why Mr. Reeder, with all the instruments at his disposal could not sit down some fine afternoon and forecast the weather for a year ahead.

There are three officers at the Fort Worth office, as there are at all of the more important offices. George Reeder is the officer in charge and has charge of the forecasting. He is officially known as the forecaster. Dennis S. Landis is the first assistant, and is known as the observer. He has charge of the reading of the barometer and the other instruments.

railroad metropolis at this place. After leaving Quanah the trip was a daylight run. The marvelous changes that have been made upon the face of the country are wonderful indeed. The Fort Worth and Denver City railroad has been the prime factor in the changes that have come. Speeding the way in a Pullman palace car across the plains, the panoramas of prosperous towns, of farms and orchards, or herds of Gallows and Herefords and Durhams and other fine breeds of cattle, was one of an ever-changing picture.

ONE CONTINUAL FARM

Around Wichita Falls there is not a vestige left of the big ranches that I knew in the days that have come. The whole of the Wichita valley is one continual farm, principally wheat, and this is true also of much of the high land. Another change is rapidly taking place at Wichita Falls. The one crop idea has not always proven a boon to those people, but failure at times caused them to look around, develop the water proposition and diversify and irrigate. While at Wichita Falls I heard more
