JEFFRIES TELLS HOW HE LANDED KNOCKOUT

RING CHAMPION OF THE WORLD DISCUSSES THE IMPORTANT PART HE PLAYED IN THE EVENT OF FRIDAY NIGHT—FOUND CORBETT'S WEAK POINT

(By James J. Jeffries, world's champion heavy-weight pugilist.) SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., August 15.—Some of my friends tell me that I was lying in the eighth and ninth rounds of last night's fight. That is a mistake. I found that Corbett's punches did not hurt and I desired to draw him nearer to me. With that view in mind, I did take some punishment, but I gained my point. Corbett became confident, mixed it more and gave me the chance for the punch I had been looking for. I knew I had him when I started the tenth round. I went in to beat him then and there. I rushed from the clasp of the gong. Corbett clinched continuously, but I threw him off. I swung my left to his cheek and followed with a right to the chin. I aimed for his face to raise his guard. Corbett is weak in the stomach and I knew it. As he raised his guard I pushed my left into his ribs with all the power I have. I felt it land right and saw Corbett sink to the floor. It hurt him badly. I knew from his face. For a minute I felt that it was a shame to finish him, but then I remembered my friends had bet on the tenth round. I must do it. Corbett was game and rose with the count. He tried to clinch again, but I pushed him off, measured the distance with my eye and sank my right glove in his midriff. He fell to the floor. I was afraid I might kill him with another punch should he get up. The agony on his face was awful. I told him to give up. Before any answer came, Ryan threw the sponge in the ring, and the fight was mine. Champion Jeffries made this announcement this afternoon: "I am ready to meet any man in the world. My plans for the future have not been decided upon, but if any fighter wants to meet me in the ring, now is the time to send in his name."

RUSSIA SENDS HER SQUADRON

Warships Ordered to Sail at Once to Turkish Waters to Enforce the Demands of Russian Government

CZAR INSISTS ON SEVERE PUNISHMENT

He Prescribes a Series of Demands and His Instructions Are They Are to Be Enforced—Action Must Not Be Misunderstood

ST. PETERSBURG, August 15.—A squadron of the Russian Black Sea fleet has been ordered to sail for Turkish waters. Notification of this move has been telegraphed from Sebastopol to the Russian ambassador at Constantinople. The dispatch of the squadron is intended to emphasize the Russian intention of effecting complete compliance with the demands for satisfaction for the murder by the Turkish gendarme of her consul at Monastir. The czar ordered the Russian minister at Constantinople, M. Zinoviev, not to promise on the part of the Turkish government should be accepted, but demands be made as follows: "Immediate and severe punishment of the murderer. The arrest and exemplary punishment of the person who fired at the consul's carriage. Immediate production of positive proof that the wall of Monastir is generally banished. Immediate and severe punishment of all civil and military officials responsible for the murder." In addition to these demands Ambassador Zinoviev is instructed as a means of general pacification in the vilayet of Monastir to make the following demands: "Immediate and severe punishment of all Turkish officials regarding whose outrageous behavior the report was made by the director of the Russian consulate at Uskub, after making a tour of the vilayet of Koshevo in company with the Austrian consul. Reinstatement of Ismail Hakkli, who was dismissed, but whose efficiency is endorsed by Hilmi Pasha, inspector general of Macedonia. Immediate release of the peasants on whom, according to representation of the Russian and Austrian consuls the Turks perpetrated atrocities. Instant dismissal and punishment of officials of the administration of Salonica and Prisdend, whose malpractices have been brought to light. Finally, foreign officers employed in Macedonia shall immediately enroll fresh gendarmes and police for the requisite protection of the peaceable population and introduction of legislative order."

WALL STREET IS WATCHING DEAL

General Impression Is That the South Is to Be Collis Huntingtonized by Money Powers of the East

MORGAN BEHIND THE LATEST BIG COMBINE

Seaboard Air Line Has Been the Factor Which Interfered With Success of the Southern—Rebates and Commissions Will Be Saved

NEW YORK, August 15.—Wall street is asking if the Frisco-Seaboard Air Line deal means that the South is to be Collis Huntingtonized. The railroad situation in the South is attracting as much attention in the street just now as any other thing. It is the general opinion that in bringing about the Frisco-Seaboard Air Line deal there has been accomplished indirectly what was sought to be accomplished directly in the Northwest through the Northern Securities company—that is, a consolidation of all the railroads of the section, if not under one management, at least under managements so closely allied that will work in thorough harmony and there will be no chance for throat-cutting competition in the Southern states from Mobile and New Orleans to Cincinnati and Norfolk and from the Mississippi river to the Atlantic seaboard, as was California when the Huntington combination controlled all the railroads to the coast. Now Morgan is in practical control, either by combination or direct ownership, of all the railroad systems south of the Potomac and east of the Mississippi, and is in a fair way to bring the lines in the southwest beyond the Mississippi into the fold. That is the Wall street view and it seems to be borne out by the facts. The Seaboard Air Line, as an independent system, has long been a menace to rates and has on several occasions been a thorn in the side of the Southern railway system, of which Mr. Morgan's firm is the controlling factor and with which it came into most direct competition. Several times efforts to get control of it have been made by Mr. Morgan, but they have in the past been futile. The Richmond financier, J. Skelton Williams, believing he could do better outside the combination than in it. The situation in the South has been thus summed up by a Wall street man who knows it thoroughly: "This southern combination now includes the Atlantic Coast Line, the Southern railway, the Seaboard Air Line, the Louisville and Nashville and the Frisco, and the minor roads, which are simply appendages of the great system, while they nominally are independent. The Illinois Central and the Gould roads are friendly. This means that the railroad business in the South from Texas to Virginia will be run primarily in the interest of the railroads, as Mr. Morgan and his friends see it. The general interests of that section of the country may or may not be served, according to how they jibe with Mr. Morgan's ideas as to what is the best interests of the roads. If they run in parallel lines, well and good for the country; if not—well, the railroads will not suffer. The fact that most, if not all the Southern states have railroad commissions, with power to fix maximum rates, will perhaps prevent any general raise in freight rates, nominally, but the experts employed by the Southern railroad trust can find a hundred ways of evading the exactions of the commissions, and as they are able to employ the most astute political manipulators in the various states, there is little danger of adverse legislation. One good reason which may follow the combination is that rebates and discriminations may be done away with, because there will not be the scramble for business which makes such things advisable. If this result follows it will be a good thing both for the country and the railroads. The general impression in the street is that the combination will be a good thing for the railroads and this belief was advanced by the better prices for their securities.

CLEVELAND AND CARLISLE IN IT

President Roosevelt Is Seeking Views of the Former Executive and His Secretary of the Treasury

FINANCE BILL IS TO BE NON-PARTISAN

IT IS DESIRED THE MEASURE MEET THE APPROVAL OF ALL GOLD STANDARD MEN OF BOTH PARTIES—OYSTER BAY CONFERENCE UNIQUE

NEW YORK, August 15.—John G. Carlisle and Grover Cleveland will, it is said, exert more or less influence in framing the currency bill which is to be presented to congress when it meets this year. There was no little surprise in political circles when President Roosevelt asked Mr. Carlisle, Cleveland's secretary of the treasury, to Oyster Bay to talk over the proposed bill. The spectacle of a former democratic officer being called in consultation by a republican president was unique. It is taken to mean that the president desires to have the proposed measure so perfected that it will meet the approval of all those who believe in the gold standard, whether democrat or republican and thus have the bill when it goes to congress as nearly non-partisan as possible. After Mr. Carlisle's visit to Oyster Bay one of his friends in this city said: "It is not strange that Mr. Roosevelt should have called in Mr. Carlisle. His experience in congress and in the cabinet to say nothing of his studies since retiring from public life, have made him an expert on matters of national finance and his opinion on any measure to be presented to congress is valuable. More than this the president will, through Mr. Carlisle, have the invaluable assistance of former President Cleveland. In fact it is safe to say that Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Cleveland have already gone over the ground together and that their views were expressed to President Roosevelt. There will probably be no direct communication between the president and the former president on the matter but that is a matter of detail which amounts to little. Whether the measure as finally perfected will meet the public approval of Messrs. Cleveland and Carlisle will depend largely on how far their views are adopted. If the gentlemen who have the matter in hand follow the lines laid down by Mr. Carlisle it may have an important bearing on the success of the bill in congress."

BERLIN TALKS OF GENERAL MILES

Snub of Retiring Commander Is a Subject of Gossip in the Capital of the German Empire

HE IS NO GRATER BUT A SOLDIER

That a Nation Should Be Forgetful of Its Best Patriots Gives the Foreigner a Poor Opinion—Criticism of Graters and Politicians

(Special Cable. Copyrighted, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) BY MALCOLM CLARKE. BERLIN, August 15.—General Miles is not a millionaire. He is not a grater. He is old-fashioned. He was indignant because his soldiers were poisoned by the old soldier's of their families, some of whom were in regiments of which Miles was an officer—and an officer self-created from the ranks. Of course, there would be much less said about the Miles incident here but for the present vehement desire on the part of certain editors to present all things American in the worst possible light. And what could give more weight to a particularly interesting number of denunciations, or rather relatives of German-Americans who fought in the American civil war. Their sympathies are naturally with the old soldier's of their families, some of whom were in regiments of which Miles was an officer—and an officer self-created from the ranks.

WOMEN PLEAD FOR A WOMAN'S PARDON

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Headed by Mrs. Martha Goode Anderson, fifty prominent Georgia women now in New York have forwarded a petition to Governor Joseph M. Terrell of Georgia, asking for the pardon of Mamie DeCrist, the "Diamond Queen," flogged in the state prison. The feeling of indignation among Georgians visiting this city is strong, not only against the treatment the unfortunate woman received, but mainly on account of the convict laws now existing in that state and because of the defeat of the bill introduced in the legislature at the session

Later on when Count Khuen-Hedervary, the premier, rose to speak, he was greeted with such deafening shouts that for ten minutes he was unable to obtain a hearing. Since the legislators have sat with closed doors—but this cannot long continue without protest from the populace and danger of a riot. The Hungarian people are in a mood to believe that bribery of legislators is the rule rather than the exception.

MISS VIRGINIA BALL

General Order No. 1. In assuming the command of the Trans-Mississippi Department, U. S. C. V., it is desired to announce that something material is expected in the way of results. In the past the department commander has been a mere figurehead, and the staff of even less importance. The commander expects to bring results through active work and requires that each of his personal staff shall exhibit an active interest in the work and to that end has selected those of his comrades who have a healthy interest in the work that does not lag at any season. The following staff appointments of the Trans-Mississippi Department command are hereby announced: "L. J. Stockett, adjutant general and chief of staff, Fort Worth, Tex.; "J. M. Ball, quartermaster general, Houston, Tex.; "John P. Easley, inspector general, Ardmore, I. T.

GIRLS MADE STAFF OFFICERS IN U. S. C. V.

A new departure in the appointment of staff officers has been taken by Commander N. R. Tisdal of the Trans-Mississippi Department, U. S. C. V., whose first general order is published this morning. In the order, Commander Tisdal states that the appointment of the ladies is done as a tribute to their zealous work in behalf of the Sons and their interests in times past. The ladies on the new staff and their ranks are as follows: Miss Estelle Dougherty, assistant quartermaster general, Houston, Tex.; Miss Louise Douglas Lightfoot, assistant quartermaster general, Thurber, Tex.; Miss Virginia Ball, assistant commander general, Fort Worth, Tex. Following is the full text of the order: "Fort Worth, Tex., August 15, 1903.—

Fort Worth Girl was appointed yesterday Assistant Commander General Trans-Mississippi Department U. S. C. V.

assistant quartermaster general, Thurber, Tex. "W. E. W. Nicholson, assistant commissary general, Fort Worth, Tex. "In appointing young lady assistants, a decided departure has been made from the rule which has obtained under past administrations, but recognizing the influence and energy of the ladies in the work of the organization and being fully aware of the efforts being made in some quarters to eliminate camp and brigade sponsors, it is deemed but a worthy tribute to the ladies to provide a higher honor, if possible, as reward for their zealous work in behalf of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans. And much good is expected to result from this innovation. "The above named officers will be obeyed and respected accordingly. "N. R. TISDAL, "Department Commander. "L. J. STOCKETT, "Adjutant General and Chief of Staff."

OAK CLIFF IS VET DEFIANT

Suburban Council Met and Made a Contract for Fire Protection in the Town

RACE WAR IMMINENT IN POTTER COUNTY

AMARILLO, Texas, August 15.—The lower class have undertaken to rid the town of the negroes. Last night they attacked the home of John Grundy, an inoffensive, hard-working negro, killing his wife and shooting the lip off a negro visitor. This may bring forth a serious conflict between the better element of the whites and the so-called toughs, as the better element is very indignant at this unprovoked outrage. Steps are being taken to ascertain the identity of the perpetrators of this lawlessness. Nine shots were fired into the house by unknown assassins and serious trouble is expected. There are only fifteen negroes living in Potter county, all of whom are good citizens. It may be necessary to call out the militia to quell the trouble aroused by the lawless lower class of whites. Great excitement prevails. Many deputies have been sworn in and armed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Headed by Mrs. Martha Goode Anderson, fifty prominent Georgia women now in New York have forwarded a petition to Governor Joseph M. The feeling of indignation among Georgians visiting this city is strong, not only against the treatment the unfortunate woman received, but mainly on account of the convict laws now existing in that state and because of the defeat of the bill introduced in the legislature at the session to have these laws changed. The petition sent to Governor Terrell in part is as follows: "To His Excellency, Jos. M. Terrell, Governor of Georgia: The undersigned, in view of the acts recently made public concerning Mamie DeCrist, now in the state penitentiary of Georgia, believing that the brutal treatment she has received at the hands of the prison wardens under the perniculous convict laws of our state, is sufficient punishment for her crime, do hereby earnestly pray your excellency to pardon the unfortunate woman."

WILL APPLY AGAIN FOR TELEPHONE FRANCHISE

INDEPENDENT PEOPLE TO MAKE ANOTHER EFFORT TO GET A GRANT IN THE CITY OF DALLAS—THERE MAY BE NEW COMMISSIONERS THERE

DALLAS, Tex., August 15.—The news given out from sources close to the "inspired" section of the new telephone company, whose application for a franchise was successfully turned down by the municipal commission, after having passed the city council, that the promoters of the enterprise will try again in September to procure the kind of a franchise grant that they desire.

It is well known that a majority of the city council's membership is decidedly more favorable to the terms that are desired to be incorporated in the franchise than a majority of the municipal commission; but it does not appear that they have the two-thirds vote necessary to pass it over the commission's objections, must less the required three-fourths vote should the two-thirds be procured and then the measure encounter a majority veto.

It is clearly apparent, inasmuch as the announcement is made in the face of the conditions cited of a determination to re-apply for the turned-down franchise, that the promoters of the new company hope for new municipal commissioners to be in control by the time they can have their franchise passed through the city council. The terms of office of the present appointive commissioners—Dan F. Sullivan and Bennett Hill—expire on August 29. They, of course, continue in office until their successors are appointed and qualified. Mayor Cabell is the third member of the board. His term does not expire until next April, and whoever becomes his successor will become a member of the municipal commission, by virtue of his office and election by the people; the other two members are appointed by the governor.

A keen contest is being waged for the two commissionships soon to become vacant. There is no doubt that the promoters of the new telephone company are giving serious thought to who the appointees will be, as, by the way, are all the corporations enjoying municipal franchises in Dallas, or who are applicants for franchises. The list of men who are being urged for appointment is a long one, and includes such locally conspicuous names as those of A. P. Hardie, D. H. Lindsay, Louis "Blind" Judge Joseph E. Cockrell, Sam P. Cochran, W. C. Fudgett, John H. Traylor and W. C. Holland.

If any two of the above named men shall be appointed by Governor Lanham, it is almost a certainty that the promoters of the new telephone company will have the city council pass practically the same franchise legislation that it did before, and then do their best for favorable action before the new commissioners.

Arlington Heights Car Line Project Receives Thorough Ventilation in Columns of The Telegram

HAINES PLANNING TO SPRING SURPRISE

Says He Will Have All Extensions Complete and Running, Save Part of One, by August 28—It's Up to Council! Is the General View

UP TO THE COUNCIL

A resident of the Heights yesterday made this statement: "So far as I am concerned, and I believe that I reflect the views of the majority of the people of the Heights, there is no hard feeling on our part toward the Traction company. We simply desire a car line into the city; the mayor has vetoed the ordinance passed at the last meeting of the council, which gave us a line on Fifth street, and now it is up to the council to act on the veto. The whole matter is in the hands of the council. We hope that the council will give us a line over some street, and we don't care whether the one selected is Fifth or Seventh or any other street, if any others are available. Our negotiations with the Traction company failed; it was simply a business proposition which did not appeal to the Traction company and, therefore, was rejected. If the Traction company fails to complete its extensions by August 28 the council will have a chance to force that company to give us a right of way in operation as far as West Seventh, providing we agree to pay for the privilege; or, failing that, permission to put our track down alongside that of the Traction company."

HAINES' STATEMENT

General Manager Haines of the Traction company was asked for a statement. "Those persons who think that we are so far behind with the work on our extensions that we will be totally unable to complete them by August 28 probably will find themselves mistaken," he said. "In the first place, our extensions on Evans avenue and Samuels avenue have been completed for some time. The Hemphill street and Polytechnic Heights extensions positively will be completed and in operation by August 28. All of the Seventh street extension will be completed by that date with the exception of that part running out Summit avenue. The line will be in operation as far as Summit avenue along Seventh street by August 28. "There is one thing to be regretted in this matter. The Traction company is being pushed, and therefore, is compelled to put down old rails on the Polytechnic and Seventh street extensions, whereas, if it had been given more time, nothing but new rails would have been used. "The old Main street rails will be used on part of the West Seventh street extension and the old Arlington Heights line rails will be laid to Polytechnic Heights."

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE "I'll admit that the Traction company has not been able to do all the things planned by it in the time allowed; it has been handicapped by inability to get material, but that is an old story, and there's not much use repeating it. However, maybe the people of Fort Worth are not familiar with all we have done. For one thing, there is not a rail nor a car in use today on any of our lines that was in use two years ago. POTTER COUNTY IN FINE SHAPE

Crops Are Excellent, Schools Growing and Outlook Fine. Will Have a Fair

AMARILLO, Texas, August 12.—District court is now in session here. The grand jury is wrestling with the local option violations. The upper Panhandle has enjoyed good rains during the past week and crops and range are in fine condition. Farmers here have harvested fine crops of oats, rye, barley and alfalfa and the recent rains insure an abundance of Indian and Kaffir corn. Your correspondent saw some of the home-grown alfalfa on the market. The hay men claim it is superior to that grown in the irrigated valley of the Pecos. There are large quantities of sub-irrigated land in this section that is the natural home of alfalfa. This popular farm product can be grown successfully and very profitable here on land that sells for $5 per acre. In the coming street fair and carnival, August 18-21, it is expected to draw crowds from south and east Texas, coming to see not only the fair, but the rapidly growing city and prosperous country. At a recent meeting of the school board Miss Laura Nelson and Mrs. Woodard were elected to positions in the city schools. This makes a corps of twelve teachers, just double the number employed at this time two years ago. While titles in east Texas have boasted of an increase of 10 per cent in scholastic population, Amarillo has shown a steady increase of 50 per cent for the past three years. The new road from Amarillo to Plain Field, mention of which was first made in the Telegram, is to be not merely promoted, but a reality. It has not only

ELLIS COUNTY COTTON

Encouraging Reports of the Crops Are Received From All Sections

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, August 15.—Encouraging reports of the condition of the cotton crop in Ellis county continue to come in. Yesterday W. J. McDuffie, a business man of the city and a member of the board of aldermen, made a tour of inspection through the southern part of the county. He says that from the observations he made he thinks the crop this year will be equal to it not greater than the big crop of 1900. The stalks, he says, are smaller than usual but they are loaded from the top to the bottom with squares and bolls. He says he heard a few complaints of boll worms and boll weevils but at the present time no material damage has been done by these insects. At the session yesterday of the county commissioners the quarterly report of the county treasurer was audited and approved. The report shows the county to have on hand in cash and securities the sum of $199,377.95. The Western Ellis County Singing Auxiliary will meet at Plum Grove August 23 and 30. Mrs. M. A. Curlee, wife of Henry Curlee, a citizen of Bell county died yesterday at the home of her son, A. J. Curlee, in this city. Mrs. Curlee was 66 years old and a native of Tennessee. The remains were shipped to Temple for burial.

BREAKS THREE RIBS

HILLSBORO, Texas, August 15.—It is reported from Mr. Chalm that Ran Etheridge went in the kitchen Thursday morning to start a fire and ran against a table and fell down. He was found a few minutes later by his wife with three ribs broken and still insensible. He is confined to his bed.

I tried everything to relieve them, which failed until I used White's Cream Vermifuge. The first two doses brought four worms from one of them; the next two doses twelve, one of them measuring twelve inches; the other child was only relieved of four worms. THE GATESVILLE REUNION

GATESVILLE, Tex., August 15.—A concert entertainment was held at the reunion grounds that entertained a large crowd. Several short addresses were delivered, after which the platform was turned over to the dancers and till late the whirl of the dance was enjoyed. Hon. J. H. Arnold spoke Tuesday morning. Several others made short talks, principally the old veterans. At the close of the speech of Hon. T. M. Campbell yesterday all the old veterans gathered about him and congratulated him for his address. District court adjourned today. It was in session five weeks.

Thomas F. Stone, grand dictator of the Knights of Honor of Texas, has been here several days attending court.

Congressman R. L. Henry went to Evans to deliver an address at a barbecue there. Conservative estimates place the crowd yesterday at from 10,000 to 12,000, with only about two or three drunken scamps. Mayor Hall and Marshal Stone, with their deputies, managed the crowd nicely.

A. R. McCollum of the Waco Tribune was here yesterday to enjoy the reunion.

The Windsor hotel has been repaired and thoroughly renovated and is now under the management of F. H. Blaine of Whitesboro, who assumed control this week. Guy L. Green of San Angelo has bought an interest in the furniture business of L. V. Ellison at this place and Sweetwater. The latter will remain in charge of the Sweetwater house and Mr. Green will manage the business at Abilene. Mayor Roberts has appointed a committee of citizens to co-operate with the employees of the Texas and Pacific railway in establishing a park on the right of way west of the passenger depot. The Texas and Pacific people have agreed to keep a landscape gardener to care for the park if the people of Abilene will do their part. The Citizens' band is already erecting a band stand on the grounds. There have been several local option prosecutions here lately, six complaints having been filed against one alleged offender.

Rain has fallen in good quantities in different portions of this county during the past week. It has not been general, however, and many sections still remain dry, some communities not having had a rain for six weeks and longer. It is claimed, however, that cotton has not suffered to any material extent, and that a rain in a few days would assure a good yield.

Attorneys A. H. Kirby and T. A. Bledsoe spoke today at a picnic at Tuscola, in the southern part of the county, under the auspices of the local organization of the Coming Men of America.

DELEGATES BOLT THE CONVENTION

Holt and Ewing Forces Divide the Party in the Congressional Fight

HOUSTON, Texas, August 15.—The Harris county congressional convention this morning was a warm affair. The Ewing forces controlled the convention through a temporary organization of their own. Two delegations thus go up before the congressional convention here next Tuesday from Harris county.

The Holt following tried to get representation; but failed. After effecting a temporary organization the Holt delegation bolted and effected an organization of its own.

The Ewing delegation numbers 139, the Holt 104.

Likewise, two delegations from Austin county.

A Holt man, Sam R. Blake, was elected chairman of the Austin county convention and because of his rulings the Ewing and Glenn forces bolted, effecting a separate organization. Holt has thirty-five instructed votes from Austin county.

Complete returns from the district here tonight show the following vote by counties:

For Ewing—Harris, 17 Madison, 4 total, 21.
For Pinckney—Leon, 4; Waller, 2; Fort Bend, 2; Montgomery, 5; total, 13.
For Holt—Austin, 6 (contested); Grimes, 4; total, 10.

For Glenn—Walker, 4.
Necessary to choose, twenty-five votes. Results are most mixed over the district, and the fight seems to lay between Ewing and Pinckney. If the congressional convention seats the Holt delegation from Harris county, he will doubtless secure the nomination. The general opinion is that unless Holt gets it, the nomination will go to Pinckney.

COLOR LINE DRAWN

Republicans of Texas Are Once Fighting Among Themselves

DALLAS, Texas, August 15.—There are unmistakable indications that the color line is to cut a strong figure in Texas republican politics next year. The leading negroes in the organization in the state seem to be lining up in antagonism to Mr. Lyon at its head and Mr. Hawley as national committeeman. It continues through its managers to ignore a majority of its members and defiantly asks them what are they going to do about it. This is the way the matter stands. Ferguson, McDonald, Moseley, Mitchell, White and other prominent negroes, are every day to be seen in armor bright walking up and down before their sable armor in stolid silence. Let the warriors whet their steel, for when the storm does break it will rage in all its fury. The coming battle will be decisive. Lyon and that element of our party (who at no time desires to see men like Ferguson and his kind advanced), are preparing to establish themselves in party control. They have no notion of recognizing the colored contingent, and the latter, being forewarned, should arm for the fray. To this end political leaders must agree on a line of battle for self-preservation. The boys in the trenches are expecting orders; let them not be disappointed."

EXODUS OF NEGROES

They Leave Whitesboro to Make Their Homes in Denton

DENTON, Texas, August 15.—A considerable number of colored people have come into Denton in the last few days from Whitesboro, there having been an exodus from that place on account of the disturbance there.

A report has been current here that the colored man in jail at Sherman charged with attempting to assault Mrs. Hart and causing the trouble at Whitesboro, whose name is given in the Whitesboro News as Jonas Brown, is Jim Brown, who is well known in Denton, having formerly worked at the Pierce house, the Outman house and in a private family here. But the report is based on very indifferent information and is hardly to be credited. No one from here who knew the Jim Brown who used to live here has ever seen the man under charge in Grayson county to substantiate or deny the report that he is the former colored Dentonian.

Extensive Plans Being Made for Meeting of State Federation in Fort Worth Next Fall

DALLAS WILL SEND HUNDRED OR MORE

C. W. Woodman Reports Result of Interesting Meeting of Central Body at Dallas Friday Evening - Labor Temple Notes

C. W. Woodman, secretary-treasurer of the State Federation of Labor and editor of the Union Banner, attended a meeting of the Trades and Labor Assembly at Dallas Friday evening, in the interest of the State Federation, and also to secure affiliation of the Dallas organizations at the state meeting in Fort Worth, beginning November 16.

From the present indications there will be 500 delegates at the November meeting, 100 of which are promised from Dallas. Waco will have 30 or more. San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Cleburne, Sherman, Denison, Texarkana and other places will also be largely represented.

The first state meeting was held at Cleburne in 1900, at which time the organization was founded. Since that time meetings have been held at Dallas, San Antonio, Waco, Houston, and this year at Fort Worth. The state meetings are held annually, unless special sessions are called.

The sessions will be held at the new Labor Temple hall. The most important question to come up for consideration and discussion will be the anti-trust law. Notwithstanding the fact that assurance has so often been given out that organized labor is not affected by the anti-trust law, the central body of the Trades and Labor Assembly and the Electrical Workers' Union at San Antonio are now defendants in a suit brought under that law.

Extensive preparations are being made for the entertainment of the delegates coming to Fort Worth next fall. Ever since the first of last January a fund has been accumulating from a 5 per cent assessment levied by every local union with which to defray the expenses which will be incurred in properly caring for the local unions' guests at that time.

The labor day committee will meet at Labor Temple hall this morning at 9 o'clock for the purpose of completing arrangements for Labor day celebration.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited. How do they manifest themselves? In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility. How are they expelled? By Hood's Sarsaparilla which also builds up the system that has suffered from them. It is the best medicine for all humors.

M. C. A. CAMP AND SCHOOL

First Annual Outing Held at Lampasas and Proved to Be a Success in Every Way

The first annual session of the Young Men's Christian Association summer school and camp closed at Lampasas Friday morning. In some respects this was one of the most remarkable schools of the country.

This is the first of a number of such schools in the country that closed its work without any deficit. With the promise of unfavorable weather and the discouraging indications the committee expected failure on financial lines. But the enrollment passed the expectations of the most sanguine and every bill was paid before the camp broke.

The school was remarkable also in the strength of the program, especially on Bible study. This was the observation of those who have attended the best schools of the country.

President S. P. Brooks of Baylor, Dr. John R. Allen of Georgetown, Dr. J. S. Clyde of Austin College, Dr. R. E. Vinson of Austin and John V. McCall of Cleburne, Rev. G. W. Ray of Fort Worth, Rev. Luther Rees of Paris and A. C. Hart of Mobile were among the speakers and teachers of the school.

At a meeting of the Secretaries' Association, held at Lampasas this week it was voted to make the summer school committee consist of nine members instead of five, and the following were elected, three of whom serve one year, three for two years and three for three years: William Lewis and R. N. Watts of Waco, J. G. Reeves of Fort Worth, Samuel Warr and W. S. Stevens of Cleburne, Dr. T. S. Clyde of Sherman, S. A. Kincaid of Houston, L. E. Jones of Beaumont and E. M. Scott of Hillsboro.

The committee held a meeting for organization and J. G. Reeves was elected chairman, Samuel Warr vice chairman and R. N. Warr secretary-treasurer and registrar. The committee was highly pleased with Lampasas as the permanent place of encampment and this will no doubt be decided upon if local conditions can be met at that place. This cannot be definitely settled at present. The committee probably will meet in Fort Worth early in September to outline the policy for the new year and begin efforts now to secure talent wanted for next summer. The committee confidently expects the attendance more than doubled next summer.

It will be a source of gratification to Fort Worth people to know that Rev. G. W. Ray, one of the city pastors, who taught at the summer school, was considered by those in position to know one of the very best teachers of the "book" in this country. Mr. Ray has been secured to teach a class of young men every Monday night in the association building. This class being unlimited will no doubt embrace a large number of men. It is open to all men next Monday night at 8 o'clock. Mr. Ray also speaks at the open-air meeting for men at 5 p. m. today at the Young Men's Christian Association lawn.

Misses Carrie and Ollie Carter of Dallas are visiting the family of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hull at 820 Eighth avenue.

MECHANIC HURT TWO ARE HELD

Ed. P. Holland at City Prison in a Critical Condition. Woman and Her Son Are Under Arrest

MAN WAS SEVERELY BEATEN LAST NIGHT

Difficulty Over Remarks Alleged to Have Been Made By Holland, Results Seriously - The Woman Becomes Hysterical

Edgard P. Holland, a mechanic, aged 36, whose shop and room are at 506 Rusk street, lies at police headquarters in a critical condition as the result of injuries, including a fracture of the skull, serious bruises on the right side, on the right temple and other minor hurts, all of which were received about 8:30 last evening at his place of business.

Mrs. Minnie Street and her son Fred are in the city prison on a charge, which was first made assault, but which later was changed to a more serious one, the gravity of which will not be determined until the result of Holland's injuries become fully known today.

Mrs. Street and her son were first arrested last evening by Officers Temo and Walker and were afterward released on bond. Later, when it was discovered by City Physician Mulline and other doctors who were called in, that Holland's condition was critical, they were rearrested about midnight and lodged in the city jail.

CAUSE OF THE DIFFICULTY The story of the difficulty as given by Fred Street is that he and his mother started downtown last evening to see Holland regarding some remarks concerning Mrs. Street, alleged to have been made by him.

"As we got even with his shop, Holland stepped out," said Street, "and I asked him if he had said those things about my mother. He replied that he had not. I told him I didn't believe him, and then we mixed."

Holland is unable to give a coherent account of his side of the case. Mrs. Street alleged that Holland entered her room at the place where she and her son are staying and there applied disgraceful epithets to her.

SAYS HE FELL DOWN Mrs. Street was brought to police headquarters for the second time about midnight. She was sobbing hysterically and with difficulty became sufficiently composed to talk.

"He was drunk and fell down," said Mrs. Street in answer to a question as to how Holland was hurt.

"He came up to the place where I am staying tonight," she continued, "and started to raise a fuss with one of the women who have rooms there. Then he came into my room and started to abuse me and called me disgraceful names."

Further than that Mrs. Street would not speak of the difficulty. At the officers' request to accompany him to the city prison she again became hysterical.

In appearance Mrs. Street is rather above medium size, is of middle age and of not unattractive features. Her son is about 23 years old.

STARTED TO SURRENDER. Regarding his conduct after the fight, young Street said last night: "After it was over we started home. When we got there I changed my shirt, which had been all torn up, and then we started downtown for the city hall to surrender. On our way down we met an officer and were arrested."

RELEASED ON BOND The first charge lodged being that of simple assault. Street and his mother were released on appearance bonds. After the second charge they were held without bond to await the action of the county authorities today.

THE INJURED MAN Holland is about 36 years old and has lived here about six years. He is a mechanic. It is not known where he came from to this city.

Lying on the old lounge in his shop at an early hour this morning, Holland made a pitiful appeal to the attending physicians and the police at his side to allow him to remain at his room. "Please don't take me away," he begged again and again. "If I'm going to die, I want to die right here where I am."

Afterward he became violent and, bruised and battered as he was it required the strength of several men to remove him from the lounge to the patrol wagon, which was used to convey him to the station.

At 2:30 o'clock this morning Holland was removed to St. Joseph's infirmary.

FORT WORTH'S FIRST DEPT--AND ITS END

The first railroad passenger depot that Fort Worth ever possessed, once the pride and boast of the city, the keynote, as it were, that sounded the Panther city's first forward stride, descended last week to the lowly estate of a section-house.

At just this time twenty-seven years ago hammers and saws in the hands of sturdy carpenters were making sweet music for Fort Worthians. They were evolving out of a mass of shingles and slabs and planks a passenger depot, and it does not require a vivid imagination to picture the castles-in-the-air scenery that floated majestically across the mental visions of the few hundred sanguine souls that made up the population at that time as they watched the structure take shape.

Yet it is doubtful if even the most rosy-headed mental pictures of that far-off but still near period contained anything that looked as good as the present Fort Worth depot to the average resident here, nor anything in the line of a successor to the frame passenger depot quite so massive and costly as the present Texas and Pacific passenger station.

To be exact it was Sept. 2, 1876, that the first railroad passenger depot of Fort Worth was dedicated. On July 4 of the same year the first Texas and Pacific locomotive had tolled over a temporary track into the city. On Sept. 2, when the depot was opened for business, all Fort Worth gathered and sent up a cheer. Captain B. B. Paddock then walked forward and in a brief speech presented a gold-plated can to the depot agent, Leo F. Swingley. Leo F. Hurd was the first cashier.

Captain Paddock had the honor of buying the first ticket sold in the new depot. He purchased a ticket to Dallas of his own free will and volition. It has to be something very urgent nowadays before the captain will ever think of going to Dallas.

Since the opening of Fort Worth headquarters for the receipt of Texas products to be shown at the World's Fair at St. Louis a great many of the leading farmers and fruit raisers of Texas have been shipping specimens of various fruits and vegetables.

As fast as the specimens are received they are preserved and stored away in large stone jars, where they will remain until shipped to St. Louis.

The method of preserving fruits and vegetables is one of the simplest imaginable. The fruit is placed in large stone jars so pure distilled water and the jars containing the fruit are then placed in a large air tight vault, and a quantity of sulphur is then ignited, the fumes of which penetrate the water, sulphurizing it, and in this condition the fruit may be preserved for any period of time.

Yesterday was a busy day with Mr. Graham, who is in charge here. Not only was he kept busy answering inquiries and receiving the specimens, but he was also busy preserving and storing fruit which was sent in Friday.

named "a morning of card games" next Thursday morning from 9:30 to noon in their rooms in the northwest basement of the National Sunday evening at the drill and other card games, a progressive war game, a program of music, refreshments and prizes. There will be games for both young and old, and a pleasant time is assured all who attend. The receipts will go to swell the chapter fund.

The Fort Worth Fencibles, under command of Captain "Brac" Carter, will depart for Camp Mabry, at Austin, to take part in the state encampment of the Texas National Guard Monday evening at the drill. The boys are confident they will pull down the drill prize. They have been drilling nightly for three weeks or more.

WEDDING SURPRISE FRIENDS CLEBURNE, Aug. 15.—Mr. Silas D. Reid and Miss Katherine Reid, who were attending the old settlers' reunion at Alvarado yesterday with a party of friends from Venus, surprised their county mates on to Cleburne, where they were married by Justice N. P. Higgins, the evening of August 14.

W. C. Lansford of the firm of W. C. Lansford and company has sold his business to Mr. Tom Deo of the Lawrence Jewelry company.

Ray Hampton of Alvarado has been turned over to the sheriff's department by his bondsmen and jailed here for safe keeping. He is under indictment for murder and has been out on bond some time.

The First Baptist church people will build a handsome new parsonage right away.

F. Ramsey will immediately begin the erection of a modern two-story building of pressed brick on Henderson street.

PLOWMAN WINS SUIT Dallas County Cannot Use His Land for a Public Road DALLAS, Tex., August 15.—Judge Thomas F. Nash of the Fourteenth district court today ruled against the county in the motion of George H. Plowman vs. Dallas county and George Neely, county commissioner, and an injunction was granted which is practically perpetual as far as the district court is concerned, restraining the county from building a public road through Plowman's land in Oak Cliff.

COMPANIES GET READY TO ACT

Wells-Fargo, Pacific and American Superintendents Meet in "Social" Session

NEWS FROM WAXAHACHIE

There was a meeting here yesterday of A. Taft, general superintendent of the Wells Fargo express; Joe A. Bass of Dallas, general superintendent of the Pacific express, and C. D. Summy of Dallas, assistant superintendent of the American express. The gentlemen declared there was no significance to their presence in the city, but that a social visit only was the cause.

It is understood, however, that they discussed incidentally the new regulations regarding express matter which have been put forth by the railroad commission. There was also a discussion regarding a wagon service for the packing houses. The Swift and Armour people have requested the express companies to call for their refrigerated boxes of meat which go out of here by express. The companies have declined to do so, as the distance is too far, and the packing houses are located in another town than that in which the offices are located. The express companies claim that Fort Worth is the nearest shipping point for the packing house business in this territory. They are required to deliver their goods to the offices because they are located outside the limits of the city. There has been a rumor that the packing house people will take the matter before the commission.

CATTLE DIED OF POISON Serious Crime Laid at Door of Johnson County Man J. M. Henderson of Cleburne, deputy sheriff of Johnson county, came in last evening from Graham, having in custody a young man whom he had arrested at Graham on a charge of misdemeanor. Mr. Henderson said the crime with which the prisoner is accused is that of poisoning three head of fine cattle owned by George McClung. The animals were purchased by Mr. McClung at the fat stock show in Fort Worth, last spring, and were among the finest of his herd.

The young man, Mr. Henderson says resides at Somerville, and was formerly employed by Mr. McClung. The prisoner was confined in the city jail all night.

SAFE OPENING TOOLS Implements of Which Burglars Never Even Get a Glimpse "We have tools for opening safes," said the foreman of the machine room of a safe factory, "that no burglar could imitate even if he got them. But it would be one of the most difficult things in the world for him to get even a sight of them. The tool room is guarded as closely as a bank vault. A watchman stays in it all night. We are very careful about employing our men. They must give bonds and have the best of references. The chance of a burglar getting into our employ for the purpose of learning our methods is scarcely worth thinking about."

"Very frequently we have hurry calls for a man to open a safe where the time clock has gone askew or where the clerk has forgotten the combination. You can readily imagine that with a bank or trust company it is an essential thing to have the safe open before business begins. When we send a man out he takes a wagon load of tools, for he must open the safe without rinking the lock, and he does not know precisely what the trouble is. He carries a photograph of himself with our credentials on it. Nor will he open the safe while alone. Some bank official must remain with him, no matter how long the job takes. That is for our own protection. Some very queer alleged robberies have been charged to men sent out to open safes."

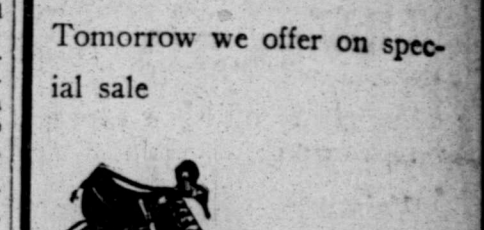

"To mechanics in our business it is laughable to read that a full kit of burglars' tools has been found beside a safe. As I have said, it would require an express wagon to carry them, and burglars don't work that way. If they care to take chances by blowing up a safe with dynamite it is another matter; but those fellows nearly always get caught."

"A police officer told me that burglars make their own tools. The big crooks are all spotted and are afraid to go out and buy the material for them. Some of them send their wives and children." —Philadelphia Ledger.

POULTRY POINTERS. The best way to feed corn to young chickens is cracked or crushed. A good dust bath will go far toward keeping fowls in good condition. Clear, raw corn meal wet with water is not a good feed for young ducklings at any time. Destroy the nest of a sitting hen as soon as the chickens are a day old. Give her a new nest and burn the old one. Separated early and raised up by themselves, pullets are worth at least 25 per cent more for use than if allowed to run with a lot of cockerels. On the farm if more than one breed is kept it is necessary that they be kept separate, and one or the other must be kept confined part of the time. It is important to keep the young turkeys dry until they are about eight weeks old, and even then they should be strong and well developed. Dampness is almost always fatal to young turkeys. Himself to Blame. "Didn't you once say that your wife was the making of you?" "Only once," answered Mr. Meekton. "Henrietta heard it and said it was very unkind and unjust to blame her in that manner."—Washington Star.

THE LATEST PORTRAITS OF THE PRINCESS AND PRINCE OF WALES.

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) LONDON, August 15.—The accompanying picture of the Prince and Princess of Wales was taken while they were on their recent trip through England. The young couple are very proud of traveling and on his return to London the prince is reported to have said that he hoped that his next trip he might go to the United States, as he did not see why Prince Henry of Prussia should be able to boast of the many American friends he had won. "Americans may look for me next year," he added.

WACO TREATED TO A SHUT OUT

Jarvis Lets the Heavy Hitting Visitors Down With Six Hits and No Runs

Fort Worth defeated Waco in the easiest kind of a manner yesterday. Jarvis was in the box for the Panthers and although he was hit twice in a couple of innings, the visitors could not bunt their way into a run or get even a single score.

The Panthers hit Berghyden hard and made runs as they pleased. The game was the second of this series in which the Panthers went into double figures.

Disch was the star of the game, getting two baggers and a single. Every one of the local team hit the ball hard as can be seen by the number of hits made. Errors by the visitors helped to swell the score.

Fort Worth started by scoring two in the first inning and kept the run making all through the whole contest. Beginning with the last out in the third inning a visitor reached first until twelve had been put out in succession. Five of them retired on strikes.

Waco made as hard an attempt to score in the last inning after two were out. A single and a double to right made it appear as though a shut out was to be avoided but Jarvis shot three speedy ones over and all was off.

The rooters wanted a score of 17 to 0 for some unknown reason but all seemed satisfied with the 10 to 0.

Fort Worth and Waco play a double header here this afternoon. The first game will begin at the usual time 3 o'clock. The second game of the series is the postponed game which rain prevented at Waco some time ago and which is transferred here. Buchanan and Lockhart will pitch for Fort Worth. Tilford will handle the indicator.

CORSICANA IS SHUT OUT
 CORSICANA, Tex., August 15.—Dallas took revenge on Corsicana for the shut out of yesterday and succeeded in giving the home team the absolute zero side of the game. The score was 5 to 0 in favor of Dallas. Baseball pitched for Dallas and his delivery was a mystery to the Corsicana hitters and try as they might they were unable to touch him at all at opportune moments. The batteries were, Corsicana, Rayburn and Westlake; Dallas, Railing and Berry.

U. T. C'S TO PLAY AGAIN
 The United Commercial Travelers, representing the Dallas and Fort Worth councils, yesterday agreed upon another game of baseball which will be played in Fort Worth at Haines' park on August 29. The local team proposes to put in some hard licks in the next two weeks, getting ready to yank itself out of the dust of defeat.

BASEBALL D C STEP BATTING AND
 This week's batting averages show a decided falling off in the hitting of the Fort Worth team. Only four players have increased their batting averages and one of these is only for one point. Buchanan has advanced four points, and in so doing has placed himself ahead two positions, and is now in third place. The best improvement has been shown by Schaezke, who has advanced but sixteen points, however. The game at Dallas this week in which Fort Worth was shut out without a hit is responsible for the poor showing in the batting. Disch, however, stands about where he was last week and he is still the only man on the team with an average of over .300.

In fielding the team has dropped off a little this week, but altogether the work in that department of the game has been satisfactory, except in one or two instances where a couple of the players got to pieces in one game and made several errors.

The team has not hit very hard this week, either, as is shown by the fact that only ten extra bases were made on hits. Five of these came in the game yesterday. Disch still leads the rest of the team in the hard hitting by a considerable margin. His hits have netted him nineteen extra bases. Combs is next with the base-stealing line of the game. McMurray still leads, although Disch has come up considerably. He stole three bases in one game this week, and is only two stolen bases behind Mac. The work of the team is a great improvement this week, as eighteen bases were pilfered in the seven games which were played, which is rather remarkable, as in one of the games only one man succeeded in reaching second base.

 CORSICANA, Tex., August 15.—A big oil gusher was struck by Charles T. Madison five miles east of here at noon today and is now throwing out water and stones to a great height. LOUBET GOES TO NEW RESIDENCE

President of France Is at His Chateau, Which Is Situated Near the Place of His Nativity

A QUIET RETREAT AFTER OFFICIAL LIFE

Village People Near By Turn Out and Give Him An Enthusiastic Ovation Upon His Arrival—It's Halls Are Comfortable

(Special Cable. Copyrighted, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)
 BY JOSEPH CONWAY, M. A.
 PARIS, August 15.—President Loubet has left Paris for his new residence the Chateau Mazenc, which he purchased last spring, and which is situated near his native place, Marianne, near Montclair.

The chateau formerly belonged to the barons of Vissac and was left inhabited by the widow of the last baron, who was very fond of fountains and had water led in special conduits from the neighboring hills into the park, which is rather extensive, studded with corpses and trees of primival growth.

The chateau is by no means a very sumptuous seigneurial residence. Its old walls considered from the modern point of view of comfort are anything but perfect.

There are four spacious rooms on the first floor and a dining room that looks like the sacristy of a great cathedral with its gothic windows and arched ceiling.

There is a story that Diana of Poitiers, the favorite of Henry II., once inhabited the chateau.

M. Loubet purchased it for 250,000 francs, which is no very extravagant price for the president of the republic. He intends to make it his quiet retreat after his term of office is over and will spend there his last days in bucolic peace and quiet far from noisy crowds and politics.

OVER A MILLION WHO ARE NOT CITIZENS.
 According to recent statistics France is the most hospitable country in the world and it has more than a million and a half foreigners within its borders, who are mostly birds of passage and never intend to become French citizens.

There are 403,300 Belgians alone in France, whilst there are only 52,500 Frenchmen in Belgium; there are 287,000 Italians in France, only 11,000 Frenchmen in Italy; about 84,000 Germans are scattered over the country, whilst there are scarcely 24,000 Frenchmen in Germany; the Russians number 15,000 in France and 5,000 Frenchmen are scattered over Russia.

It shows that France is a rich and pleasant land in which foreigners like to live and that Frenchmen on the other hand are not anxious to quit their own country.

TWENTY THOUSAND MAKE AUTOMOBILES.
 The suburban town of Puteux, near Paris, is fast becoming a vast agglomeration of automobile factories. There is nothing shows the immense development of this industry so vividly as to see all the workshops established within a few years in this locality.

Among the principal ones are the factories of Dion-Bouton, Charron, Girardot, Voigt, Bardon, Vinot-Desgand, Prunel, Forest, Gobron-Brillet, La Gallia, Renault, Freres, Clement, Dunlop, Bucket, Kriger-Chenard, Welker, Vedrine, Bottiaux, Rothschild, Galles, Ader and Werner.

The Mercedes company has just acquired an extensive property and intends to invest ten million francs in a magnificent manufactory.

The number of workmen now employed in all the automobile factories of Puteux is calculated at about twenty thousand. According to the latest statistics on the matter, the automobile industry has exported from France during the past year automobiles to the value of 3,000,000 francs. With the best of good will the French manufacturers are unable to fill all the orders they get promptly and many of them have orders for four years to come.

The new Hotchiss company which is giving up the founding of guns for the manufacture of a splendid model of automobiles, has sold all its product for one year to Mr. Fournier, who in his turn has sold them nearly all on paper in one month.

PRIESTS AND MONKS BEFORE THE COURTS
 The tribunals of Paris have again witnessed a crowd of black-robed priests and meek-looking monks defile before the bars accused of disobeying the law regarding the dispersion of members of religious orders.

There were fourteen poor Redemptorists and five Marist priests among them, belonging to three different establishments in Paris.

"Why do you drag us before the courts like common criminals?" said the superior of the Redemptorists, Father Castelain.

"Our life was open and public; in the cities and in the country our preaching was public, and I defy anyone to bring proof that we ever spoke against truth and justice. We exhorted the faithful to every virtue, to charity and to justice. Why do you persecute us for that?"

The pleading of Father Castelain was listened to with great respect and in silence.

The judges themselves appeared moved. But they were obliged to apply law and condemned each priest to 15 francs fine. They have appealed, but will scarcely be sustained.

The misfortune of the fathers was in traditions they are connected with all the reactionary parties who make use of them to create periodical agitations against the government, and are suffering more for the sins of others than for their own.

DESTROYED LETTERS OFFICERS WANTED
 While the Marist fathers of one convent were before the courts the police made an irruption into another of their convents, where the police commissary discovered a packet of letters in a drawer which he considered very important, and deputed a policeman to watch them while he was inspecting other parts of the convent.

Father Lebon, the superior, suddenly snatched the packet of letters from the table and rushed into the water closet, where he shut the door.

The policeman missed a hue and cry, the commissary ran to the spot himself and called on Father Lebon to come out, which he did only after having torn all the papers and flushed them down into the sewer. "Now," he said, as he came out, "you treat us as thieves and I have acted like one."

The police officers retired discomfited and orders were issued by the courts for the arrest of the bold superior.

He is now in the prison of the Sante, waiting for his trial, which promises to be a very sensational one, the least penalty which the courts can inflict being a fine of 500 francs and one year's imprisonment.

A NEW METHOD OF TESTING WINE
 A French scientist, George Manoeuvre, chief of the Parish municipal chemical laboratory, has discovered a new method for testing the composition of wine and discovering how much water has been added, by means of an electric current which is passed between two samples, one of the pure wine and the other of the adulterated article.

When water has been added to one, the current produces a loud vibration equivalent to the amount of water added, and these vibrations record the extent of the adulteration to within an infinitesimal quantity.

The discovery is a marvel of ingenuity and will be applied at once in all the municipal laboratories where wines are examined.

GREAT LYRIC STAR HAS JUST DIED
 A great lyric star, Mme. Rosine Stoltz, whose career at one time was one of the most remarkable on the Paris stage, has just died in Paris at the respectable age of 88 years and some months.

She was born at Toledo, in Spain, in 1815, on Feb. 13, on the same day as the Duke De Berry died, and was, in consequence adopted by the family, who paid for her training at the Paris Conservatoire in the time of Cherubini.

She made her debut in Paris in 1839 in "La Juive," and was considered the most remarkable singer in those days.

In 1840 she attained European fame by her impersonation of Leonor in "Favorita," and continued her splendid artistic career during seven years.

In 1845 Mme. Stoltz appeared for the first and last time in "Robert Bruce." The manager had hired a number of young men to applaud, and the audience was so annoyed by their constant clapping, as it was the first time such a thing was done, that many got up and left the theater.

Mme. Stoltz herself was so annoyed that she broke down and vowed that she would never again appear on the stage.

She kept her word for fifty-eight years.

THIS CARDINAL WAS A SUSPECT

Mathieu Visited Paris Three Years Ago and Was Arrested on Suspicion of Being an Anarchist

DISLIKES THE CLOTH WORE CITIZENS GARB

Police Took Him in Charge and to This Day the Records Bear His Name as an Anarchist and He Makes No Effort to Have It Changed

(Special Cable. Copyrighted, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)
 BY PAUL VILLIERS.
 PARIS, August 15.—Paris had the honor of sending to the recent conclave which elected Pius X, a cardinal who even if he may be able to prove that he is no anarchist, has at least been arrested as suspected of spreading anarchistic tendencies.

His name is Cardinal Mathieu, and he is known all over France for his eccentric ideas.

During the year of 1900 he visited this city to see the exposition and he cordially hates to wear clerical garments, he immediately after his arrival donned a common citizen's garb.

He must, however, have looked very suspicious as immediately after leaving his hotel he was arrested as suspected of being an anarchist.

He succeeded, however, in proving that he had no murderous intentions, but even today the police records of a certain arrondissement in Paris shows this entry:

"Charles Mathieu, anarchist, occupation given: Archbishop of Angers," and even to this day the cardinal has made no effort to have the records changed.

VALUABLE DIAMOND IN POPE'S TIARA
 The most valuable diamond in the tiara worn by Pius X, at his coronation last Sunday, was recently reset by a well known Parisian firm who were allowed to exhibit the precious stone for a few weeks.

The married couple received the blessing of the Catholic church from Joseph Poincel and Charles Gottret, Abbe Blanchard of Geneva.

Two of the inhabitants of the village were the official witnesses.

This diamond, which is a pure blue white stone, weighs in its present form 971 carats and is valued at about one and one-quarter million francs.

Its history is quite interesting.

It was found several years ago near Jagersfontein by a poor Hottentot field laborer who brought it to Com Paul and in return received 800 piastres and a horse.

President Kruger, strong protestant though he was, sent the stone as a gift to the late Pope Leo who gave it the place of honor in the papal tiara.

ARCHDUKE MARRIES A WELL KNOWN ACTRESS.
 From the little village Verrier, in Switzerland, a Parisian friend of Archduke Leopold of Austria, writes to La Figaro, that the archduke is now plain M. Leopold Wolping, having formerly married his fiancée, the actress, Mlle. Adamovic, with whom he followed his sister, Princess Louise of Saxony on his romantic flight from Dresden to Geneva.

The wedding which took place a few days ago, is described in this manner:

It was a beautiful August morning that M. Leopold Wolping married Mlle. Adamovic in the little Swiss village.

A few minutes before 8 the couple left the Hotel Beau-Sejour and walking the bride was dressed in a plain gray silk to the office of the mayor.

The former archduke wore a Prince Albert coat and gray trousers, while silk dress.

At 9 o'clock the young couple started on their wedding trip, the young groom looking as radiantly happy as if he had not forever renounced a title which many an American millionaire would have paid his whole fortune for.

HOUSE WAS LEOP'S
IS TO BE SOLD.
 At the end of next week a house belonging to the late Pope Leo will be sold at auction, but strange to say very few Parisians seem to take very much interest in it, and if it will be sold it will probably be bought by the church.

The house came to the pope through the last will and testament of the Marchioness of Fieschi-Belliere, who gave to the Holy Father not only this house which is situated in a most fashionable neighborhood on the Place de la Concorde but a splendid chateau in the southern part of France.

HEAT DRIVES ALL FROM FRENCH CAPITAL.
 It is many years since Paris has been so dull as this summer, the only excitement being caused by the foreigners who faithfully remain in the city even when the oppressive heat has driven out every Parisian who is able to leave.

One of the most conspicuous visitors this season has been M. Ivanhoff, who came here surrounded by all the luxuries becoming a Russian prince.

Now, however, his body lies unclaimed at La Morgue and no one seems to care what becomes of it.

A few nights ago M. Ivanhoff visited the city and sat down to a game of rouse et noir.

He was accompanied by his beautiful wife and after having lost more than 200,000 francs he pledged his wife against his losses and lost again.

He then calmly lit a cigarette, walked into the smoking room and sent a bulle through his train.

The wife seemed to think it quite natural and was evidently not claimed by the winner.

QUEEN WILHELMINA TRAVELS THROUGH HOLLAND.
 Queen Wilhelmina of Holland is traveling through her kingdom, not as monarchs generally travel in a maze of ceremonies, but simply an inexpensively as any young woman might.

Everywhere, however, she is received with the greatest enthusiasm by her people, who are at a loss to show their devotion, as the queen has asked that fireworks, arches of honor, and military display be avoided.

A few days ago she entered Rurenronde announced simply by two her-alds, but as soon as she had the town her carriage was surrounded by hundreds of white pigeons each carrying ribbons in the colors of the house of Orange.

A single room had been placed at her disposal, furnished to the smallest details by the ladies of the town, who afterwards kept the furniture as souvenirs of the visit of their queen.

IT WILL REOUEN IN A FEW DAYS.
 It is not true that the celebrated cafe de la Regence, known by every tourist who ever visited Paris, will be changed into a "brasserie."

To be sure the old cafe has closed its doors, but only for a few days, then it will again reopen its hospitable door to its cosmopolitan guests.

And then as ever it will remain the house for the chess players of Paris.

Alfred de Musset, the great author, who was an enthusiastic chess player, spent several hours here every day and not even a fire in the establishment could drive him away from his chair.

In the revolutionary year of 1848 he sat playing a game with Deleogorsk, the celebrated elephant hunter.

It was on February 24 and a great battle was going on in Rue Saint Honore and in front of Palace Royal.

Suddenly a stray bullet passed between the two chess players and imbedded itself in a great mirror on the opposite wall.

Deleogorsk jumped to his feet ready to leave, but Musset still sat there bent over the checkerboard as if nothing had happened.

EIFFEL TOWER IS EYESORE TO PARISIANS.
 The Eiffel tower, once the pride of every Frenchman and without doubt the principal attraction of the exposition in 1889, has long been an eyesore to many Parisians and several attempts have been made to have it removed.

The Seno prefect, however, has made up his mind that we must learn to like the tower and to give us an opportunity he has just prolonged the concession of the company who owns it for another ten years.

As the present concession does not expire until 1909, it is evident that 1917 will still find the monster overlooking Paris.

The question has lately been discussed how long the tower would last if left to itself before it would tumble down upon the palaces which cover the Champ de Mars.

On this point the experts are unable to agree, one faction who only takes into consideration the ravages of rust, declares that the tower should last at least 200 years, while another faction who claims that vibration is far more destructive than the oxidizing of the steel feels positive that the famous tower will not last over fifty years. "Qui vivra verra."

The body of Mrs. Laura Anderson, a free thinker, who died on Thursday at her home near Oakville, Ind., was cremated in Cincinnati. The ashes will be strewn over Mrs. Anderson's favorite horse buck at her home. This was in accordance with the wishes of deceased.

Professor Mommson expressed the opinion in a recent private letter that German students and young folks in general grow old too soon, in learning as well as in life, and need rejuvenation. Regarding himself he wrote that his hopes of ever regaining his health were daily becoming fainter.

M. Loubet, president of the French republic, is reported to have determined never again to stand for office. In a recent interview Abel Combarieu, secretary general to M. Loubet, said: "At the expiration of the period seven years for which he was elected, the president will step back into the ranks. He is a plain citizen whom the people have raised to office for a given time, but he would consider it contrary to the spirit of the constitution for him to take advantage of his present position in order to secure reelection."

Sir Arthur Fairbairn, who is a deaf-mute and probably the only holder of a hereditary title thus afflicted, is by no means afflicted in any other way. Sir Arthur tells a story of how he was once invited by a friend to dine at his club.

Knights of Pythias Initiate Ten Members in Esquire Rank—Annexation Talk

While there is no question that the city council of North Fort Worth has done all it could since the last fire in trying to solve the water question there is still complaint among citizens and a longing desire to be absorbed by Greater Fort Worth. Some citizens openly express themselves as being in favor of annexation to Fort Worth.

The Knights of Pythias met Friday evening and initiated ten members in the rank of esquire and two in the rank of page.

There will be a called meeting Wednesday night next to confer the rank of Knight upon the ten members taken to the ranks of esquire. The lodge will meet in regular session every Friday evening in its hall in the Frazier building.

Miss Pearl Woods entertained an out of door party Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. B. Collier. Croquet was the amusement in the early part of the evening after which there was a well appointed and appetizing luncheon in the dining hall. Various games were indulged in the guests all being Miss Woods a delightful and charming hostess.

SHERIFF RAIDS GAMBLERS' ROOMS

Officers Locate Three Games and Secure Names of Seventeen Players

The gambling element of Fort Worth were given another set-back last night by Sheriff Honea and his deputies which again makes good the assertion of Mr. Honea that he has started out to put a stop to gambling in this city, and that as long as he is in office he expects to keep it up.

Three places were raided early last evening and the names of 17 men secured, against whom informations will be filed Monday, and the usual proceedings instituted. Sheriff Honea was assisted by Deputies J. J. Martin, Hamil Scott and O. B. Deason. The officers learned of the operations of the gamblers yesterday and at once set about making preparations for the raid. They gained an entrance to each of the places by slipping in behind the porters and before their presence could be "tipped off" they were all the information of which they were in search.

Over sixth and Houston street eight men, known to the officers as "old timers" were caught in the midst of a poker game. The names of six men were secured in a room over the Stag saloon, and three were added to the list over the White Elephant.

The "big game" was located at Sixth and Houston streets. Here the sheriff and his deputies found one of the most elaborately furnished gambling rooms that has been opened in Fort Worth for many years. The furniture was of the richly upholstered kind, the sight of which is irresistibly fascinating. The general furnishings of the room were unusually rich and elaborate. Everything in it was brand new and for several days past the "fraternity" which had been quietly apprised of what was to be, has been anxiously awaiting the opening day. The excelsior in which the highly polished tables and chairs were packed had scarcely been removed from the room before the officers started on a warm trail. They didn't have to be told that they already knew that the place had just been opened, and now they have the promise that it has been closed for all time. The furniture arrived from the factory Thursday night and an electric fan put in Friday.

Mr. Honea said the other places had also only recently started up. The officers were told last evening that there were other gamblers operating on Main street, but a search failed to locate any of them.

The sheriff said however, that he proposes to see that gambling continues to remain suppressed in Fort Worth, and that he will spare no efforts to locate any other "joints" if there be any, and to see that they are not any new ones started.

Modern European royalties are long lived. A few days ago the sister of the Duke of Cambridge, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, reached her eighty-first year. Now there are seventeen octogenarian members of the reigning families of Europe. The latest to join the list is the Duchess of Modena, a Bavarian princess, who was 80 in March. A few years ago there was but one octogenarian sovereign. Now there are four.

The city of St. Paul will reach its semi-centennial next year and several dates have been suggested for commemorative exercises. It appears that on March 4, 1854, the bill incorporating the city was signed by Governor Gorman; on April 11 the city was put in operation and on April 18 the first mayor, David Olmsted, was inaugurated.

According to latest accounts Menelek, the Abyssinian ruler, is aging rapidly, being in very bad health. As it is in his hands to nominate a successor, European chancelleries are much interested in the future of Abyssinia. It is believed to be certain that Menelek's death will result in trouble. This will doubtless prompt European intervention and the disappearance of Abyssinia from the map.

The proposition to erect a monument to Henri Taine at Vouziers has brought out some opposition, based on political hostility, notably from M. A. Aulard, professor in the Sorbonne, who accuses Taine of inaccuracy in his history of the French revolution. M. Aulard goes so far as to say that Taine was no historian at all and that his documentation was so fantastic and erroneous that those who are authorities on the matter have long since dismissed his historical works as negligible.

KING LOSES A FAVORITE DOG

Pleasure of Tour of Ireland Is Marred by the Loss of An Inseparable Companion of the Monarch

FAITHFUL JACK IS CHOKED TO DEATH

Animal Once Ate the Gold Lace on the Coat of a Well Known Ambassador - Constituted Himself the Bodyguard of the Royal Master

BY PAUL LAMBETH.
(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

LONDON, August 15.—The pleasure of the king's Irish tour was marred by the loss of his inseparable companion, the famous Irish terrier, Jack.

The poor dog choked himself while feeding.

The deceased, who had been in the king's possession for some years, very soon discovered that there was peculiar sympathy between himself and the king. He would recognize no other master, and was very jealous of anyone coming near his majesty.

He slept always in the king's bedroom and invariably attended his royal master at breakfast and luncheon.

If Jack had one failing, it was his fondness for chewing cloth. There is a story told that a famous ambassador (not American), while awaiting an audience of the king at Buckingham palace, found that the gold-laced tails of his diplomatic coat had been reduced to a pulp by the king's terrier, who had been at work on them while lying under his chair.

Jack was a great traveler, for he accompanied his royal master on all his journeys.

At Sandringham he loved to accompany the shooting parties, though, of course, he was not a trained sporting dog.

On these occasions he constituted himself the king's bodyguard, and jealously kept the spaniels at their proper distance.

Poor Jack's place has now been filled by another specimen of his breed, for Lord Dudley presented the king with a new pet very soon after the loss of his majesty's favorite.

EARL OF SHREWSBURY IS PREMIER EARL

The Earl of Shrewsbury, who has been prominent in entertaining the king and queen during their visit to Ireland, is the premier earl of England.

He is a tall, slender man, with a "sandy" mustache and hair to match. Despite the antiquity of his title, he is not rich and adds to his income by engaging in business. The noble earl years ago organized a company to run hansom cabs in the streets of London.

Now that automobiles are popular, he is in the business. He has a store in the west end and isn't above displaying his wares to possible purchasers. The earl is also holder of the earldom of Waterford, where his presence in Ireland during their majesties' visit.

One day he took out the king and queen in a motor car to pay an afternoon call, thereby gaining the attention of being the first nobleman who took a king and queen motoring in Ireland.

LONDONERS FEARFUL OF HANSON CABS

Recently, because of several fatal accidents caused by the upsetting of hansom cabs, Londoners have become fearful of their favorite vehicle.

If all the accidents that befall occupants of hansom cabs were recorded in the newspapers, it is to be feared that the hansom cab would be shunned.

It is only when some notable, like the colonial secretary, Joseph Chamberlain, is injured in a cab accident that the incident is reported in the newspapers.

The hansom is a dangerous vehicle, especially in wet weather. The smooth wooden streets of London are nearly always wet and slippery, and as the use of corks on horseshoes is prohibited horses frequently lose their footing and fall.

Then the passenger is either tossed out of the hansom or is knocked halfway through the glass window which usually is lowered in wet weather.

More persons are injured in cab accidents in London in a week than are hurt by automobiles in a year, yet the hansom cab is never publicly denounced.

VIVIAN TWINS ARE VERY POPULAR

Queen Alexandra's pretty twin maids of honor, Violet and Doris Vivian, shared with two American sisters—not twins, Gladys and Vera Deacon—the honor of being the most popular girls in a very dull London social season.

The Vivian twins are "alike as two peas," and the queen is very fond of them—indeed, she commanded that they should both serve her at the same time. Her majesty also requested that they should dress alike, perhaps to enhance the piquancy of their twinning.

There are several sets of twin sisters in the families of peers.

Lord Abergraveny has twin daughters; so has Lord Doneraile. Lord Crew and Lord Sligo also have twin daughters.

It is an odd fact of precedence that the lady privy seal and the lord president of the king's council, no matter what their personal rank may be, take precedence of all dukes at public functions where the king attends.

When Lord Granville was president of the council, the Duke of Hamilton, at a public dinner, ran into the hall ahead of Lord Granville. The sovereign witnessed the discourteous incident and asked Lord Granville why he permitted a mere duke to take precedence of him.

"Hem, your majesty," said Lord Granville. "I can't run like a newsboy."

Fortunately at Dublin castle no duke attempted to take precedence of the lord privy seal.

LORD ILCHESTER ARRESTED FOR SCORCHING

Lord Ilchester, a proud and haughty peer, with a peppy temper, was held up the other day by a humble policeman for "scorching" in a motor car.

The noble lord "sassed" the policeman and threatened to make an example of him, but the policeman wasn't frightened and called his lordship's bluff, causing him to be summoned for violating the speed ordinance.

Lord Ilchester said the policeman wasn't "properly dressed" and had no right to speak to him, demanding that the police captain should be called. The policeman, angered by his lordship's reference to his dress, angrily retorted:

"Well, my lord, my suit has been paid for."

Lord Ilchester, of course, always pays his tailor promptly, so his lordship reported the policeman for his "impertinence."

Lord Ilchester owns one of the finest houses in London, Holland house. It was built in 1600. Excepting the king's palace, Holland house is the only mansion in London that stands in a park, with gardens on all sides of it.

LITTLE CONSIDERATION FOR CO-RESPONDENTS

London juries have little consideration for co-respondents in divorce cases.

It is the custom in England for husbands and wives suing for divorce on the statutory cause, infidelity, to ask for damages against the person who broke up their home.

English juries invariably mulct the co-respondent in heavy damages. Awards of $25,000 and $50,000 are not uncommon, while the other day a jury broke all divorce court records by mulcting Dr. Lance, the co-respondent in a suit for divorce brought by Dimitri Constantind, against his wife, who is the daughter of the late Stephen Ball, one of the richest merchant-bankers in London, in $25,000.

The physician-co-respondent hasn't that much money, but Mrs. Constantind, whom he will marry, can easily supply the sum from her fortune without missing it.

The firm of Railli Brothers, whence this woman derives her great fortune, is one of the richest and most widespread in the kingdom.

It was founded nearly a hundred years ago by four young Greeks, brothers, from the Isle of Chios. They prospered amazingly and lived to an old age.

When they died each left about $10,000,000, which has been further increased by their sons, who succeeded them.

DRAGA'S JEWELRY TO BE SOLD OUT

Showmen and morbid curiosity hunters are expected to muster in full force shortly at Belgrade, where a public auction will be held of the jewelry of the wretched Queen Draga.

These grim relics of the slaughter at the Konak are valued at $24,000.

Louis Tussaud of the famous London waxworks museum is likely to be the purchaser of the jewels, which will in that case adorn the "Chamber of Horrors" at his Metropolitan establishment, which is the goal of many American tourists.

Impetuous society ladies who have to recoup themselves for their losses at bridge and hunt found a new form of commerce by which to make money. This is becoming commission agents for automobile builders.

DOCTORS FAIL TO AGREE

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

LONDON, August 15.—Members of the British Medical association, which is in session at Swansea, are unable to agree on the subject of leprosy. Sir Patrick Manson and other authorities warmly dispute the contention of Jonathan Hutchinson of London, that overwhelming evidence opposes the belief that leprosy spreads by any ordinary mode of contagion.

To the eating of fish is ascribed the whole of the leprosy in the world. The medical profession, Mr. Hutchinson added, should declare it was the most gross injustice to imprison lepers for life.

THE LATEST PHOTOGRAPH OF THE EMPEROR AND EMPRESS OF GERMANY

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)
BERLIN, August 15.—The Kaiser has always liked to have his picture taken, and of course, he could not think of sailing for Norway without leaving his beloved people a new picture to console them during his absence. The accompanying picture of the emperor and empress, which the Kaiser considers one of the very best, was accordingly taken immediately before his departure on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern.

TO LITIGATE FOR HEIRLOOMS

Earl of Darnley and the Widow of Former Lord Have a Contest

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)
LONDON, August 15.—Litigation is threatened between the present Earl of Darnley and the widow of the late earl over some pictures and heirlooms said to have been left to her by the late earl.

The present earl, brother of the late Lord Darnley, is perhaps better known all over America as the Hon. Ivo Bligh, the cricketer, and it is he who has to establish that most of the beautiful art treasures taken from Cobham Hall, near Gravesend, in Kent, belong only to family heirs.

The widow of the late earl, on her side, declares that her husband gave these choice pieces of art to her personally and on his death, in spite of all opposition, she obtained possession of all that she claimed to be hers, although many were the reports how the wonderful hall, the ornament of a magnificent estate, was being denuded of treasures worth untold gold.

Before her marriage the countess was Miss Jemima Blackwood, a relation of Lord Dufferin's. When Countess of Darnley she had one little daughter, who is now four years old, and who is Baroness Clifton in her own right—the youngest peeress in the kingdom. Since that time, Jemima, Lady Darnley, has married Captain Arthur Leverson of his majesty's navy.

It is reported that if it cannot be proved that the treasures are heirlooms, an endeavor will be made to prove that the late earl was not responsible for the bestowal of valuable works of art always considered as part and parcel of the estate, so keen is the determination of the present earl to recover possession of the articles.

MINSTREL COMING UNDER CANVAS

A. G. Allen's Big Original New-Orleans Minstrels, with an avalanche of brilliant, new attractions under his mammoth new canvas theater, chaste and elegant in conception, moral and refined in tone, unparalleled in daring exploits, electrical in thrilling features. Containing the greatest variety ever presented by any show. The funniest comedians, the most laughable pantomimes, the most adroit and graceful pastimes presented by any acknowledged leading colored performers known to the minstrel world. Owing to the large seating capacity of his tent the coming meeting of the National Irrigation congress at Ogden next month is rapidly being swelled. Word was received here today from Secretary of Agriculture Wilson that he would attend the congress and deliver an address. He will be accompanied by some thirty scientists and experts of that department.

TRIBAL WAR IN ALASKA.

VANCOUVER, B. C., August 15.—The steamer Princess Mary, from Skagway brings word of a tribal war among the Chilkat Indians of the Klukwan tribe. For several days a reign of terror was in progress in the valley of the Chilkat. "Witchcraft," which generally prevails among these Indians, is said to have been at the bottom of the trouble. One Indian is reported killed and many badly injured.

POTENT PILL PLEASURE

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are De Witt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot of Albany, Ga., says: "During a bilious attack I took one. Small as it was, it did me more good than calomel, blue-mass or any other pills I ever took and at the same time it effected me pleasantly. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by all druggists.

It looks as if a man's back is the center of strength when he is straining to lift or haul a heavy weight. But the center of strength is not the back, but the stomach. There's no strength in the back of a giant if he's starving. All strength is made from food, and food can only be converted into strength when it is perfectly digested and assimilated. When the nutrition of food is lost and physical weakness follows.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It makes men strong and muscular, by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food eaten.

"I suffered from a very obstinate case of dyspepsia," writes R. E. Secord, Esq., of 115 Eastern Ave., Toronto, Ontario. "I tried a number of remedies without success. I was so far gone that I could not bear any solid food on my stomach; felt melancholy and depressed. Could not sleep nor work. My doctor recommended your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have taken three bottles and it has accomplished a permanent cure."

The Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

UNKNOWN MAN FIRES A SHOT

Thos. C. Black, An All Round Sport, Is Fatally Wounded During Early Hours of the Morning

TROUBLE BREWING FOR SOME TIME

Saloon Man Takes Seat on Empty Keg Armed With a Winchester—One Shot Is Fired and He Fell to Sidewalk Without a Word

DALHART, Texas, August 14.—A fatal shooting affray occurred on Main street this morning at 7 a. m. Thomas C. Black, more popularly known as Thomas Fogerty, an all round sport was shot through the breast with a Winchester by parties unknown.

This trouble has been brewing for the past few days and a killing was inevitable. It came off this morning and in a most sensational manner. It seems for some days Black had terrorized citizens and officers and had received notice to leave the town. This morning when quietness was supreme Black came out of his saloon with a Winchester and sat down on an empty keg resting his gun in his lap. People were just entering his place of business and the streets were occupied by many pedestrians.

The railroad employes at this place predominate. They are peaceable, law abiding citizens and their commercial interests are supreme. With the passing of this chapter a new era will spring into existence of a higher and nobler character and law and order reign supreme.

Nothing like it is likely to occur in 100 years. The school under its new management is newly appointed from top to bottom and is taking on new life. Its course of study is practical, up-to-date and comprehensive and its teachers are wide awake and progressive men of fine ability who take interest in their pupils. The Queen City has a course of study equal to the best schools of its kind in the United States. The principal is a graduate of the University, also a graduate of Hill's Business College of Waco. Positions are secured for all who take bookkeeping and shorthand combined. Write to G. W. Hill, Dallas Texas, for terms and board.

QUEEN CITY COLLEGE

At no time in the history of business colleges has such a sweeping business proposition been made for patronage as is made by the Queen City Business College of Dallas. In order to place it in the lead in number of students in North Texas, a three month course worth $40 is now offered for $20, in either bookkeeping, or shorthand and typewriting. Many have completed one of the courses in that length of time. This is an offer that the young man or woman seeking a business education cannot afford to overlook. It's a chance of a lifetime. Nothing like it is likely to occur in 100 years. The school under its new management is newly appointed from top to bottom and is taking on new life. Its course of study is practical, up-to-date and comprehensive and its teachers are wide awake and progressive men of fine ability who take interest in their pupils. TO CONCENTRATE HERE

Companies of State Militia Going to Annual Convention.

On account of the encampment of the state militia at Camp Mabry, beginning August 18, the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad will deliver to the Santa Fe this place Monday, a company of infantry from Wichita Falls and a troop of cavalry from Amarillo.

The Santa Fe will operate a special train from Fort Worth to Austin via Milano Junction and the International and Great Northern, leaving Fort Worth on the evening of August 17, for the accommodation of various northern Texas companies which are to be concentrated here.

Some of these companies will carry considerable camp equipment, arrangements having already been made for the transportation of two or three cars of cavalry horses from Amarillo.

HILL'S COLLEGE, WACO

Twenty-two years ago the 5th day of next October Hill's Business College opened its doors for the reception of students with its present proprietor constituting its faculty. During all these years of its rapid growth and prosperity it has been under the same management. It is now one of the most luxuriously appointed schools of its kind in the United States and is the only one in the south using electric fans to elaborate apartment and in fitting its students for big salaries in positions in accounting, shorthand and telegraphy, railroad positions and teachers in business colleges. Its students are holding the highest positions throughout Texas and adjoining states. Young men and women who are thinking of preparing themselves for business life should write to Hill's Business College for terms before deciding to go elsewhere, as it will lead them all in high grade work and in securing high positions for its students.

FALL FESTIVAL CAN BE MADE A SUCCESS

The time is now at hand when all who are in any way interested in the future of the city, should put their shoulder to the wheel and push and also help financially by volunteering a liberal subscription. The general committee Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias is hard at work upon the details of what promises to be the greatest event ever held in all Texas.

After the necessary moneys are raised the real work begins. There are fronts to build, arches, floats and enough work to keep an army of men busy from now until the opening day. So, much depends upon each one.

Over $5,000 in contracts for attractions are being held awaiting for donations toward the expense necessary. That it will be a benefit to Fort Worth is beyond all question and that 20,000 to 40,000 strangers will be drawn here each day is no idle boast. The railroad rates will bring them. The entertainment provided will hold them and bring them again next year. But all must help and invite as many friends and customers in their words—do a duty to the home town.

"Elks Day" here, October 6, will return hundreds of visiting members. They are the very best citizens of Texas. The Patriarch Militant I. O. O. F. have a state convention at Denison, October 5 and 6 and 7, and will adjourn to Fort Worth

October 8 to make "Odd Fellows Day" a hummer. The Ancient Order of United Workmen are inviting each of the 200 lodges in the state to come and help make "A. O. U. W. Day" one of the largest of the week. The "Woodmen of the World" who are 1,500 strong in this city are inviting all Texas to join them in making Saturday October 10, Woodmen of the World Day, a record breaker and also to assist in unveiling the "W. O. W." monument on Sunday, October 11.

The Red Men are considering plans to entertain as they only know how. Then the "Eagles," "Maccabees," "United Commercial Travelers," "Knights of Honor," and many others are considering the matter but have not as yet set a day nor approved the suggestions offered by the committee.

The Fort Worth "Fall Festival" is a matter which will have the support of all public spirited citizens. Fort Worth has the money and now we have the opportunity to show the outside world what can be done when all pull together. Cooperation and financial support will put the management in shape to carry out the best laid plans that have ever been presented to this city for a successful event that will bring the desired results.

MURDERS HIS WIFE WHILE SHE SLEEPS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., August 15.—Mrs. Lillie Maud Evans, wife of George B. Evans, manager of the American Transfer company, was murdered in her home in the southern portion of this city early today. Her husband, against whom she filed suit for divorce last Wednesday, cannot be found and the police are searching for him. He was seen in a saloon near his home early today, where he displayed a revolver.

The murder was most cold blooded and occurred while Mrs. Evans was asleep.
Later—Evans' body was found in Mount St. Mary's cemetery, two miles from the scene of the murder. He had shot himself in the head.

The situation is alarming as the disease appears to be in virulent form. One new case of the plague is reported at Mollendo where it is believed the authorities have succeeded in checking the disease. Another person infected has been found in Lima.

TO VENTILATE COACHES

A Fort Worth Man Has Patented a Device to Secure Pure Air

W. S. Baertich of this city is interested in a patent system of passenger car ventilation for which much is claimed. The purpose is to supply fresh air to all parts of the car at the pleasure of the occupant of seat or berth, and at the same time to remove the dead or impure air from the car. The claim is made that the system of ventilation is so perfect that the air never gets foul, even with the cars tightly closed.
Briefly the system consists of an intake pipe at the top of the car and a series of pipes which deliver the air about the height of the face of the occupant of the seat. When the air enters the pipe it is carried downward until it meets a cleansing apparatus which frees it from dust and cinders, but will not take out all of the smoke. The air, as it is claimed, is replaced by the passage through the deflector. Replacing the molding which runs around the part of the car where the roof and the walls join is a hollow cornice connected with a siphon, which draws the foul air out and discharges it at the rear. Intakes for the air are provided at each end of the car, so that the system will work however the car may be moving.
A test of the apparatus was made on an Ohio railway and it was shown to be practical.
The system is to be submitted to State Health Officer Tabor with the hope that it will serve as an efficient method of disinfecting cars according to the requirements of the state law on that subject. The inventors are convinced that unless chemical disinfection is insisted upon, every requirement of the law will be fulfilled by their system of ventilation. Mr. Baertich says "pure air means freedom from the germs of disease and we can supply the pure air."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. FREIGHT TRAINS COLLIDE.

Two of the Brakemen Are Killed and Engineer is Injured.

PHILADELPHIA, August 15.—Two freight trains on the Pennsylvania railroad crashed together early today between St. Davids and Radnor, suburban stations a short distance west of this city, killing two brakemen and injuring the engineer of the second train. A tramp who had his collar bone broken in the accident says several of his companions were riding on the freight and probably they were buried in the wreckage.

SAN FRANCISCO DRUGGISTS WRITE TO THIS CITY

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22, 1903.—H. T. Pangburn & Co.—Dear Sirs: As San Francisco druggists personally acquainted with the facts we are asked to certify to you the curability of chronic Bright's Disease and Diabetes, and however unreasonable it may seem to you, yet such is the fact. Up to a year ago we never heard of a genuine case of chronic Bright's Disease or Diabetes recovering. Now it is a common occurrence in this city. A great discovery has undoubtedly been made. Many prominent people here have recovered and every one of us whose names are appended hereto have either had recoveries among our customers or have genuine chronic cases now recovering. And the percentage of efficiency seems to be very high, for there are very few failures. Yours, etc.,

SHAKESPEARE STATUE ERRECTED IN WEIMAR

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst). BERLIN, August 8.—The plays of Shakespeare are like good wine—they improve as they grow older. At present there is a Shakespearean revival all over Europe. A few weeks ago a statue of the famous playwright was erected at the grave of Hamlet at Elsinore, Denmark, and now a beautiful statue by Otto Lessing, one of Germany's most famous sculptors, has been erected at Weimar. The picture shows the beautiful lines of this statue, at whose feet is very appropriately put a fool's cap on a skull, allegorical of the great poet's earnestness and humor, of his deep sense of comedy and tragedy.

SOME STATISTICS OF THE SOUR LAKE OIL FIELD

SUMMARY OF THE OPERATIONS IN SOUTHEAST TEXAS WHERE THE RECENT OIL STRIKE HAS MADE PEOPLE WEALTHY—WHAT SOME WELLS HAVE DONE FOR THEIR OWNERS

BEAUMONT, Texas, August 15.—The Oil Investor's Journal, a semi-monthly publication devoted exclusively to the Texas-Louisiana oil fields, prints today one of the most valuable issues in the history of the publication. A greater portion of its space is devoted to a thorough and detailed report of developments and conditions in the Sour Lake field and it embodies information in detail that will prove both valuable and interesting to those who are interested in oil. The resume gives every well completed in Sour Lake, together with the name of its owner, also the wells drilled and the condition of each hole. The tankage in Louisiana and Texas are given, the size of each tank, whether they are iron, steel, wood or earthen, their owners and their location. The report is the most complete information of the kind that has ever been compiled since the discovery of oil in Texas, a summary of which follows: In preparing a resume of operations in the Sour Lake, Texas, oil field up to August 15, facts and figures have been obtained first-hand, which show that since April 1, 1903, more than $4,000,000 has been expended in the legitimate development of the oil industry in this new field. It is to be doubted if, in the history of mineral or oil discoveries, an equal amount of development has been effected in the same space of time, as has marked the opening up of the Sour Lake field. That the result of this work has been highly satisfactory in so far as proving the magnitude of the field, is shown beyond doubt by the fact that 50,000 barrels of oil are being moved daily by pipe line and railroad from Sour Lake. Estimates of the capacity of the seventy-five producing wells in the field are conservative in making the amount 100,000 barrels daily. More than 100 new wells are drilling and within sixty days the present capacity may be nearly doubled. The facilities permit of the moving of 50,000 barrels of oil a day; with the completion of additional facilities, including storage, it will be possible to move 100,000 barrels a day.

The amount expended in the Sour Lake field, August 1, 1903, was a grand total, estimated, $4,300,200.

SUMMARY TO AUGUST 1, 1903. A summary of the Sour Lake field to August 1, shows 220 wells completed, drilling, or rigging up to drill. Owing to the great number of interests represented, it is exceedingly difficult to obtain accurate information concerning the various wells, except in regard to those that are flowing. The summary herewith presented is based on the best information obtainable on the field and, while it may contain errors, it gives a comprehensive idea of the activity in drilling operations and the magnitude of the field as an oil proposition. In estimating the production of wells, conservative figures have been used. In several instances, the estimates are below the actual production, as measured in the tanks, this being in line with the policy of this article to avoid any possible exaggeration in the statement of facts.

ESTIMATED CAPACITY 100,000 BBLs. Of the 220 wells completed, drilling or rigging up, seventy-five are producers, but because of the lack of facilities for handling their output, not more than one-half of them were being operated on August 1. The capacity of the producing wells is placed at about 100,000 barrels daily. In the summary accompanying this, in the aggregate, amount to 100,000 barrels. The number of wells closed in or abandoned, for various reasons, is forty. The number drilling or rigging to drill is 105. The remainder are either cleaning out, balling or in process of finishing or rigging to pump.

RECAPITULATION OF TANKAGE. Steel tankage completed in Texas field, 10,408,000 barrels. Steel tankage completed in Louisiana field, 1,772,500 barrels. Total steel tankage completed, both fields, 12,180,500 barrels. Earthen tankage completed in Texas field, estimated, 5,840,000 barrels. Wooden tankage completed in Texas and Louisiana fields, estimated, 500,000 barrels. Total of tankage completed in both fields, estimated, 18,520,500 barrels.

Mind Impaired and Nerves Shattered From Excessive Mental Strain.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Gave Back My Health. It is not always severe manual labor that breaks down the health. Mental strain, worry, anxiety, the cares of business or the home, have an equally strong tendency towards undermining the nervous system, upon whose vitality the health of the body depends. When you find yourself unduly fretful, anxious, easily excited, when you sleep is troubled and you can get no rest; if you have frequent headaches, are losing your appetite and are getting thin, you should be given at once a thorough course of treatment with Dr. Miles' Nervine. There is no nerve tonic so good, so sure, so safe. It speedily restores the weakened nerves to healthy condition and builds strength and tissue.

"I was raised on a farm at hard labor, and when I left the farm and began preaching, the change of occupation and excessive study shattered my nerves and impaired my memory. I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and after using two bottles I could see a decided improvement, and I continued until I had used nine bottles, when I considered myself completely cured. That was seven years ago so that I know my cure is permanent. My health is better than ever since. I am glad to add my testimony to the merits of this wonderful restorative tonic and trust that other sufferers may receive the same benefit from its use that I have."—REV. W. L. STINGLETON, Duluth, Ga.

Steel tankage building in Texas field, 1,140,000 barrels. Earthen tankage building in Texas field, estimated, 2,400,000 barrels. Grand total of all tankage, completed and building in Texas and Louisiana fields, part estimated, 21,600,500 barrels. Estimate of amount of oil in storage August 1, in both fields, 7,500,000 barrels.

PRODUCTION STATED. To the oil man in the east who is accustomed to pumping propositions, of moderate gushers without flow for a limited period, the statements as to production at Sour Lake will undoubtedly seem overdrawn. Yet the cold facts are here to demonstrate the truthfulness of statements made in this article, and in addition, figures are presented—and with no intention to create a boom sentiment, but with the sole object of describing the Sour Lake field, just as it is, on its merits as an oil producing proposition. It must be borne in mind that the Sour Lake has no stock company propositions, like Spindletop, and that the people who are operating in the new field are there to get the oil out and sell it and not with the object of contracting for guarantees or gushers on thirty-second of an acre tracts, as the basis for one million dollar stock companies. Yet, knowing the difference in this respect, between operations in the two fields, the persons who have not seen it for himself at Sour Lake, can hardly realize that the Sharp well flowed between 300,000 and 350,000 barrels of oil in twenty days. Mr. Sharp has a certificate of deposit showing that on July 18, 1903, he deposited in the Citizens National bank of Beaumont, a check on the First National bank of Beaumont, drawn by the J. M. Guffey Petroleum Company, for $30,400, representing an estimate of the amount of oil that that company had received into its line from his well in a period of twenty days. It was only an estimate, for the well overflowed the tanks, and it was next to impossible to gauge the oil. This well is still flowing. The Gilbert No. 1 well produced more than 250,000 barrels or oil in the month of June. The five brothers and sisters who constitute the Gilbert Company made $25,000 apiece out of this single well in the month.

SKINNER HAS RETURNED

Chicago Stock Yards Manager Tells of Western Range Conditions. W. E. Skinner has returned from a ten days' trip through the western range country. He visited Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah and Montana. The range of the northwest, he says, are spotted this year and in sections where grasshoppers have not eaten the grass the range is very good and cattle and sheep that will come from them will be in first-class condition, but those that have run on the range infested with grasshoppers are in poor flesh and will be all season, unless grass improves. The supply of cattle to be marketed, he says, will hardly be as large as last year and, though the general quality will hardly be up to that of a year ago, there will be some very good steers marketed, though not until later in the season. The country east of Sheridan, Wyo., is in very good shape and cutting the range is poor. The Colorado range, he says, is very good, as well as sections of Idaho.—Chicago Daily News.

HOW HE MANAGED IT

"Now, guard," said Mr. Pilkington, "remember, if I have this carriage all to myself for the entire journey, you will receive a whole half crown from me." "Very good, sir," said the guard, and he locked the door and went to his van to think out how he would invest that half crown when he got it. All went well until they got to a station about the middle of the journey and then an irascible gentleman pulled at the door of Pilkington's carriage as if he were pulling for a prize in a tug of war. "Guard, guard!" he yelled, "open this door. I know your tricks and I won't countenance them. I've got the right to travel in this carriage and I mean to do it." The guard hurried up, but, wonder of wonders, he whispered a few words to the irascible gentleman and that individual went quietly away to seek room elsewhere. "How did you manage it?" Pilkington asked the guard at the end of the journey as he pressed the promised half crown into his hand. "Oh, that was easy," replied the guard, with a suspicious wink, "I only just told 'im you were a little bit wrong in the 'lead, an' 'e went off like a fly 'at had trod on a 'hot cinder.'"—Tit-Bits.

AN IMMENSE CROWD

The biggest crowd for the space occupied ever assembled in Paris turned out last night to attend A. G. Allen's New Orleans Minstrels, who gave their entertainment in a tent stretched on Grand avenue opposite the Avenue hotel. There were fully three thousand persons present, and the only reason that there were not more was that they could not be packed and jammed any tighter inside the tent. Most persons who patronize minstrel shows prefer burnt artists because they portray the old-time plantation dandy to better advantage than the black man himself. In the entertainment last night, however, the negro character was portrayed faithfully by the negroes themselves. The show was quite up to date and that it was clean and refined was attested by the fact that it was attended by many of the most prominent theater goers in the city, all of whom appeared to be pleased. There is a vast difference in the price of admission charged by this company than what is usually charged by minstrel companies, nevertheless the show was fully up to date.—Paris Morning News, Paris, Texas.

It would appear that Miss Alice Roosevelt's visit to Newport did not stir that fashionable colony any more than would the arrival of Miss Mary Ann Smith, Mrs. James P. Keenochan or any of the celebrities, was her hostess, but the president's daughter did not cause anything of a social sensation, and other Newport women betray no particular anxiety to worship at her shrine. By all accounts, however, this lack of enthusiasm does not appear to worry the young woman in the least.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Ninety-nine out of every one hundred diseases that children have are due to disorders of the stomach, and these disorders are all caused by indigestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is just as good for children as it is for adults. Children thrive on it. It keeps their little stomachs sweet and encourages their growth and development. Mrs. Henry Carter, 705 Central street, Nashville, Tenn., says: "My little boy is now three years old and has been suffering from indigestion ever since he was born. I have had the best doctors in Nashville, but failed to do him any good. After using one bottle of Kodol he is a well boy. I recommend it to all sufferers. L. W. Delling Did Not Find Improvement in the West. Town Is Overrun With Female Beggars—Land Is in Demand

COLORADO, Texas, August 15.—The revival tent meeting here, conducted by Rev. Luther Little of Fort Worth, has about come to a close. Rev. Little preached his farewell sermon last night and took the train for home at 10:15 p. m. Large crowds attended the services and six or eight were added to the church.

Word has just been received here of the death of L. W. Delling, ex-sheriff of this county, in Carlsbad, N. M. He was out there doing carpenter work and in search of better health. His wife and daughter were just getting ready to move out to him. He was a member of the Woodmen of the World and Masonic fraternities of this city.

J. F. McGill is having the Snyder building painted, replastered and generally cleaned up for the reception of his dry goods and grocery stock.

Colorado was somewhat overrun with female beggars this week. There was a bunch of them, and each one had a city far ahead for which she was destined. One would circulate a petition awhile and then they would change the petition and try the town again.

W. A. Crowder, the local popular ticket agent, is sinking a well at his residence in this city, ostensibly for water, but it is generally believed that he expects to strike oil. Either one will be quite valuable under the surrounding circumstances.

Harold, the 5-year-old son of the Presbyterian minister of Dayton, Ky., was being prepared for bed. He had spent a very anxious day at coasting, and was weary and very sleepy. "Now, Harold, kneel down by mamma and say your little prayer." "But, mamma,"—half asleep, with his head on her shoulder. "Be 'ma's good boy, now," coaxingly. "Thank God for all His goodness to you." "But Harold was asleep. This mamma gently aroused him. "Harold, don't be naughty. Be a good boy, and thank Jesus for the nice home you have, the warm clothing and fire to keep you warm, and a mamma and papa to love you. Think of the poor little boys who are hungry and cold tonight, no matter how hard they work, no warm bed to go to, and—"

THE SALE AT LILLIAN

The auction sale of town lots at Lillian, conducted by Captain J. A. H. Hosack, was not as largely attended on account of the old settlers' reunion at Alvarado, as it would have been, but there was a fair crowd of good people there and the sale was a good one and everybody was happy at the same time and all the day long. There was a nice picnic dinner and barbecue and a good band to make the people all feel good and young. Lillian will be heard from soon and will be an important point. It was Captain Hosack's one hundred and twenty-ninth sale.

SOCIETY FEARS WOMEN IN TRADE

Several Have Attended Court This Season and An Investigation Follows

(Special Cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) LONDON, August 15.—Official inquiry and investigation are being made quietly with regard to one or more ladies who have attended court this season, and something like the terror reigns among a number of society women.

That most fearful of condemnations, the cancelling of their presentation at court is hanging over some one and until the Lord Chamberlain of England proclaims who that some one is, many are quaking in their shoes.

Some who will escape know that it will only be by the "skin of their teeth" although they have used all their cleverness to break the only spirit of the rules that debar from presentation at court and not the letter. But with all the new laws and strictness governing attendance at court it is never known what other point may be sprung upon the unwary.

It is an old rule that does not permit a woman in trade or the wife of a tradesman to be presented at a drawing room.

And yet society is full of women traders.

They have one or two awful examples to warn them against this. They remember that Lady Dun Gordon, the fashionable dressmaker, is debarred from attending court although the modest name of "Lucille" appears over her shop door. They think of the Hon. Mrs. Fockington, who traded as "Madame Lill" in Grafton street; the late Lady Granville Gordon, one of the first fifty milliners who was known to the world of trade as "Madame Lette"; of Mrs. Robertson in whose beautiful drawing rooms society sipped tea and condemned her from future royal invitations because they paid for it.

So society women make money in another way. They become the most intelligent of commercial travellers, and some of them work from morning to night trying to sell their goods. They sell on commission, and they know how to catch the eye of the society woman who has a growing city if it does not come naturally. The smart motor car they call in is loaned them by the dealers to rush about and get orders for other machines on a 5 per cent commission.

Lamp shades, soap, silver knickknacks, gowns, complexion creams, hair produce, vegetables, laundry orders, etc., are all taken up by the smart society woman who has the levi's scruple in adding to her commission profits something more than the shop's price list would mark.

One woman harassed all her friends to buy black sheep, though she does not hawk a specimen, and leaders of musical circles at whose houses they are known to make a fine business out of commissions for getting their engagements.

It is trade or is it not? Struggle as they will society women cannot convince themselves that the selling of wares does or lamp shades is a profession. They don't know how they can get rid of the word "trade" in connection with recommending laundries or selling motor cars. And in the meantime the lord chancellor is keeping hundreds of them on tenter hooks by not proclaiming at once the names of the ill-fated "drummers" in society who have been pounced upon for violating the rules for presentation at court.

MOVING A BIG BRIDGE

All Paris Turns Out to Witness Engineering Feat (Special Cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, August 15.—Almost half Paris turned out to witness the extraordinary proceeding of moving bodily one of the bridges of the Seine, the so-called Passerelle de Passy. The bridge is a solid structure of iron, consisting of two arches at each end, each of which measures 105 feet, and a central arch, measuring 136 feet. The entire bridge, weighing 360,000 tons, with its iron arches in the form of a V, was lifted off the pillars and slowly rolled up the river ninety feet away. The remarkable part of this feat was that after only six weeks of preparation, for laying the rollers and setting the winches, twenty-four men sufficed to move the entire structure.

The moving of the Passerelle de Passy was made necessary by the works of the new underground electric railway of Paris which is progressing at a giant pace. It will traverse the Seine above or below water level at six different places and, when finished, will be one of the most perfect and convenient systems of underground electric railways in the world.

There are now about 8,000 workmen employed on the various new lines, there will be more than 200 stations and the whole length of the several lines will be over 100 kilometers, which, within the narrow limits of Paris, will make it the best supplied city in the world with transport facilities.

CIVIL DOCTORS ARE NEGLIGENT

Marine Surgeons Find Men Unfit for Duty Are Being Passed on Examination

NEW YORK, August 15.—As a result of an accidental discovery at the New York navy yard it is probable that a special board will be appointed by the department in Washington to investigate the work that is being done by civilian surgeons in examining applicants for places in the service, and that the practice of employing such surgeons may be abandoned.

Two men who had been examined for the marine corps and passed by a surgeon in a city in Michigan, after reporting to the New York navy yard, were put in the hands of a marine, who was instructed to take them to the equipment bureau for uniforms and other parts of their outfit. By mistake the recruits were taken before a surgeon, who, after a short examination, rejected them as being totally unfit for duty.

Medical Director Price was astounded when he learned of the discovery. He is holding the men at the barracks and they will be carefully re-examined by a specially appointed board of survey. He has also recommended that a special board be formed to investigate the entire system of examination by civilian doctors.

TO OPPOSE THE MONEY ORDERS

Banks in New York Fear Competition of Express Companies and Postoffice

NEW YORK, August 15.—President Stephen M. Griswold of the New York State Bankers' association says that at the tenth annual meeting of the association to be held in Saratoga, September 10 and 11, action will be taken looking to the doing away of the money order system by the express companies and the post-office department and the taking up of the same by the banks.

"In addition to the money order business the association will tackle the question of admitting trust companies to the state association," said he. "At present the trust companies are not obliged to keep a reserve. This gives them an advantage that the banks object to. The bankers all over the country are taking the steps to bring the necessary pressure to bear so the money order business now transacted by the postoffice department and the express companies shall be controlled wholly by the banks. The banking associations of various states have taken the necessary action already and we expect to fall in line with our western brethren and reach an agreement that will enable the banks to conduct this particular branch of the banking business advantageously to the general public."

DISHONEST MEN ROB THE CITY

Collusion Between Municipal Employes and Water Consumers Has Been Discovered

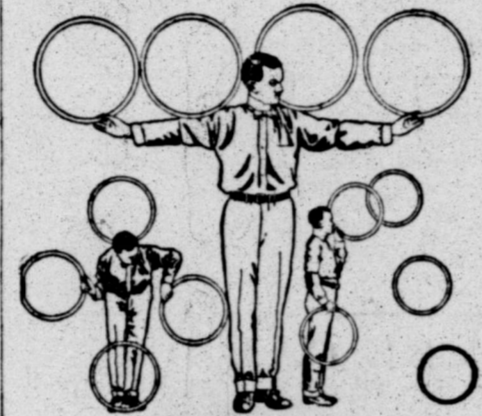

NEW YORK, August 15.—Evidence of fraud by which the city has lost sums aggregating almost one million dollars, has been obtained by Water-Commissioner Monroe. Three inspectors in the water department are under suspension. One probably will be called upon to face charges within a few days.

The facts disclosed are said to show gross carelessness if not worse on the part of many trusted employes of the water department. In some cases there is the strongest circumstantial evidence of collusion between consumers of water and employes of the department, whereby the former apparently have been allowed to use all the water they required in their business and on the payment of merely nominal fees, instead of the price fixed by ordinance.

GEORGIA MINSTRELS

Richards and Pringle's famous Georgia Minstrels with their fifty comedians, graceful dancers and sweet singers, comes to Greenwall's opera-house, Thursday matinee and night, August 20.

The features introduced this season are novel, numerous and startling, and include many innovations in the field of minstrelsy. The singing portion of the show is the strongest put together—Carlyle Williams, William Garland, William Goode, Sidney Kirk, Napoleon Johnson and T. P. Jones, the six highest salaried colored singers in the world.

In comedy the company is especially strong and numbers everybody's favorites—S. H. Dudley, Clarence Powell, Emmett Davis, Buck Campbell and Charles Scott. The olio is made up of J. W. Cooper and his talking figures, Simpson and Pittman, musical artists; Campbell brothers, comic exponents; Kraton, the marvelous hoop controller; Dudley and Kelley, comedy boomers; "Boomsky," in illusions; the No. 3 Tommys, acrobats; Clarence Powell, in a new budget of funny sayings, and Dudley in his latest creation, "Jim Jackson, at the Policy Shop."

A CENTENNIAL DAY

Chicago Stock Yards Will Celebrate in Latter Part of September

Preparations are in progress for a centennial celebration at the Chicago stock yards this fall, at which thousands of visitors are expected, and at a meeting held Wednesday, committees were appointed and preliminary plans laid for the coming event. The celebration will be of the nature of a "fall festival," with one special red-letter "stock yards day," around which the entire celebration of the week will center. Members of the committee in charge are taken from the office staffs of the various packing houses, the Union Stock Yards Company and others interested in the live stock industry.

OF INTEREST TO STOCKMEN

The Montana wool marketing season is over. At Billings the total amount disposed of on the local market will reach 11,000,000 pounds. The prices paid ranged between 11 and 17 1/2 cents. Sales at Great Falls aggregate $28,690 pounds.

A dispatch from Miles City, Mont., says that the scourge of grasshoppers in the state at present is beginning to abate and many will move their herds out at once. H. R. Wells, manager of Scott & Robinson's HAT X outfit, which brought in about 15,000 head this year, does not anticipate any trouble, and will take no steps to move the herd at present.

It is stated that Armour & Co. contemplate the erection of a new $1,000,000 plant at St. Joseph. Plans are now in the course of preparation, says the Live Stock World.

A monster "cattle dip" has just been completed on the Carpenter-Sanborn 14,000 acre stock farm at Pukwana, S. D., which probably surpasses anything of the kind in the country. The vat is forty-eight feet long, eight feet deep, thirty inches wide at the bottom and thirty-six inches wide at the top. The capacity of the vat is 3,000 gallons and the working capacity is about 150 head of medium sized cattle per hour. A twelve-horse power boiler keeps the mixture in the vat at a temperature of about 115 to 120 degrees. The complete plant cost about $1,000.

The Chicago Daily News of Thursday says that half of the 200 cattle that reached here today were from a section of their range that had been badly burned up, and the cattle had to be shipped to escape starvation. Their quality was very inferior, most buyers regarding them as fit for any one outside of the canning department.

Of the same cattle the Drovers' Journal says: "The Panhandle cattle were poor in quality, having been forced out by the dry weather." The 457 head offered in Chicago averaged 960 pounds and brought $3.30 per 100. On Tuesday's market at Fort Worth it will be remembered that 250 head of the same cattle, only of much lighter averaged (856 pounds), sold to Swift at $2.15.

DIES A PAUPER

NEW YORK, August 15.—Moses Rockwell (Crow), project of water works companies and once a millionaire, has died a pauper at the state hospital on Ward's Island. His body has been placed in the magnificent mausoleum, the finest in the middle West, which he had built in the heyday of his prosperity at Falls City, Neb.

He projected the present water system used to supply Ward's Island, where he died of brain fever after an illness of several months, following his term as a charity patient at Bellevue hospital.

Crow made the millions he spent so lavishly by developing water systems for a number of communities, notably in Grand Rapids, Mich., and in Westchester county, in this state. Money being needed for further operations, he mortgaged his property and plants recklessly. Bad financing and business quarrels got him into complicated litigation, which ended in foreclosure proceedings and the loss of his entire property.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices created by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pain I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy I seldom need it, as it has cured me. Mrs. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

Mr. Wheat, the popular manager of the roof garden has made a change in the prices of admission to his cozy garden theatre. With tomorrow night's performance the public will have the pleasure of enjoying the splendid plays presented by Miss Dale and the clever artists that compose the cast at a price that should be the mean of filling every seat at the roof garden. The seats can be reserved as usual, but the prices will be only 10, 20 and 30 cents (no higher). Miss Dale, supported by the original Curtis company will present the Cur act comedy "The Little Detective" one of the best pleasing comedies in the companies' list of plays. Each act is filled with many incidents that cause hearty laughter and applause. An interesting story and clever plot with exciting situations makes the play pleasing to all. The 10, 20 and 30 cent tickets can be reserved at the theatre building cigar stand where the seat sale opens at nine o'clock Monday morning. HEAVY MOVEMENT OF GRAIN CROP

Texas Routes May Precipitate a Rate War, Is the Opinion of New Orleans Daily Newspaper

THOUSAND CARS IN TEN DAYS IS RECORD

Santa Fe Diverts Eastern Grain to Galveston—Fort Worth Has a Big Business in Such Shipments Through Texas Ports.

(From the New Orleans Daily States.) The movement of grain for export to points of shipment continues to be a burning question. Grain men are interested because it means to them the loss or gain of business, but the railroads running east and south from the great producing sections of the northwest are the factors most deeply interested in the proposition right now.

GERMAN SYRUP We want to impress on our readers that Boschee's German Syrup is positively the only preparation on the market today that does relieve and cure consumption. It contains the specifics, such as pure tar, extracts of gums, etc., which have been so highly indorsed for the cure of coughs, colds and consumption by the great medical congresses. The consumptive, whether his disease is in the throat or lungs, must have rest at night, and be free from the spasms of dry and racking cough in the morning. The diseased parts want rest, healing and soothing treatment, and the patient needs fresh air, good food, etc. German Syrup will give free and easy expectoration in the morning with speedy and permanent relief. Small bottles, 25 cents; regular size, containing nearly four times as much, 75 cents. At all druggists.

IMPORTANT RULING ON LAND REDEMPTIONS

AUSTIN, Tex., August 15.—The following correspondence between Comptroller Stephens and Assistant Attorney General Reese, with reference to redemption of land sold for taxes and bid in by the state, was had yesterday. Austin, Tex., August 13, 1902.—Hon. J. W. Stephens, Comptroller, Austin, Tex.—Dear Sir: We are in receipt of yours of the 7th inst., which is as follows: "On July 13 last, at the request of the commissioner of the general land office, this department reported to him a list of lands situated in unorganized counties which had been sold to the state for taxes by the comptroller and which had not been redeemed within two years from the date of sale. All of these sales were made between the years 1886 and 1891. Some of this land was originally granted by the state to counties as public free school land. "Since the publication of this list of lands by the land commissioner this office has received a number of applications to redeem them from said sales, and I will thank you to advise whether under the law redemption can be made. "Also advise whether in instances where county school lands which were sold by the counties to individuals and on which taxes accrued while the property of the individuals and which afterward reverted to the counties on account of non-payment of purchase money, would now be liable during the said time while held by the individuals. "If you hold these county lands not liable for the taxes under circumstances as above stated, please advise if this department will be authorized to cancel the sales thereof. "In reply you are advised that in our opinion there is no authority for the comptroller now to allow the redemption from tax sales of the lands referred to in your letter.

CHANGES A POLICY The Santa Fe for years had been practically boycotting everything in Kansas City, except a single firm, Richardson & Co. was the only firm that was given shipping accommodations on the route. This rule was in force until last week when almost simultaneously with the announcement that the Santa Fe was taking the initiative in the diverting of eastern grain southward, toward Galveston, the notice was issued that the route had changed its policy toward Kansas City and would accept grain shipments from all firms of that city instead of from only one. In consequence of this move 167 cars of grain for Kansas City dealers were handled by the Santa Fe in the twenty-four hours ending at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Following this the Santa Fe on Tuesday last took down the embargo it had maintained for years against the Kansas City Southern, the Missouri Pacific, Burlington, Wabash and Milwaukee, and now the system is not only receiving grain from all firms in Kansas City that desire shipment to Galveston, but is receiving cars from every grain carrying road that enters the Katy City. Prominent railroad officials and grain men have not been slow to understand the significance of all this. The fact of the heavy shipments of wheat through north Texas gateways to Galveston for export and the concessions that the Santa Fe has made at Kansas City in following its bid for the grain trade, when it is taken into consideration that the aggregate yield of the Mississippi valley is about stationary, is proof that the export trade is being diverted to Galveston. The assertion has gone out that the export grain movement is being diverted to "gulf ports." This announcement would indicate on its face that New Orleans, which has been sharing the export trade with Galveston, is getting its share of the diverted business, but apparently is not the

Studies in Natural History: American Tourist Dorothy Dix

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

THE American Tourist.—Reports from the British Isles and the Continent bring news of a curious animal that has made its appearance in such large numbers in these localities this summer that it threatens to overrun the earth, and timid people have become frightened lest the native inhabitants of the country be driven out altogether. Provincial writers, who are much worked up over the matter, describe it as an ill-mannered brute that is a cross between a donkey and a megaphone, and so loud that you can hear it coming for miles before you can see it.

This is, without doubt, the American Tourist, the most rabid of which is known as a Cookie, and is so violent that it has to be personally conducted, but even this precaution does not prevent it from chipping off portions of the scenery and swiping the tablets in Westminster Abby. Another obnoxious variety is the Skipworth Leagust, that may be traced across Europe by the buns and sandwiches on which it subsists, and which it eats at ungodly times and places. Another species is called the Family Bunch, but this is comparatively innocuous, as it devotes itself to chewing up guide books and wandering around cathedrals, wondering why it came.

The American Tourist is of comparatively recent origin, the first one having been discovered by a gentleman named Columbus, or Colombo, in 1492, who didn't know the value of his find, or realize any dividends on his luck. For a long time Europeans did not know how to milk the useful domestic animal and realized little profit from it. Of late years, however, they have gotten wise to the method, and now, either fresh or canned, the American forms the chief staple of diet of many cheerful workers in London and Paris, who but for Providence having provided them with this manna would have to eke out a precarious existence.

The American tourist in its perfection is indigenous only to European countries, where it may be found occupying the best rooms in the hotels and paying two prices for everything. A specimen of it, it is true, is occasionally found in the United States, but this is of a poor, weak, mean variety; that is not for a moment to be compared with the magnificent specimen that one may see daily being skinned along the Rue de la Paix or Bond street.

Beyond the general classification of Dampgoods, naturalists, have been unable to assign the animal to any individual genus, owing to the immense number of different varieties, each with its distinctive earmarks, that compose the species. There is, for instance, a variety that suffers itself to be held up and robbed by anybody with a title (genus easy markis), another that loudly demands the most expensive food and wines and the best table in the swell restaurants (genus blowhardis), and another that haggles with the waiters over tips and secretes the candle ends in its luggage (genus pikeris). Attention should also be called in this connection to the peculiarity that in this species the females far outnumber the males, and exercise a dominating power over the males that has caused European waiters to declare them to be the finest specimens extant of the Genus Henpeckis.

The appearance of the American Tourist is so distinctive as to be readily recognized at sight. The females may be distinguished by their shirt waists and short skirts, and the males by their bored expression. Both sexes, however, go around with red guide books under their arms, eyes bulging out and their lower jaw dropped. This frequently gives them a formidable appearance, but they are really quite harmless, and if you will stop one in the nave of St. Peter's and ask it, "How's things at Squeedunk?" it will fall on your neck and weep with joy.

Concerning the habits of the American Tourist far too little is known. This is to be attributed to the fact that it sprints so fast from place to place that it is impossible for scientific observation to record its movements. From the authentic data at our command, though, we learn that it can do the Louvre in thirty minutes, Notre Dame in fifteen minutes and forty-six seconds, Versailles in twenty minutes. The Moulin Rouge and Les Folies Bergere take longer, especially with the males of the species, who do not appear to be so conscientious about weeping at the tombs of people they never heard of as the females do.

Another habit of the American Tourist that is worthy of study is the tendency to crow. This wakes the Europeans up, and causes them to lodge complaints against it in the columns of the Times. Fortunately this has no effect, and so the American Tourist goes about proclaiming that it is the cock of the walk, and pointing out the superiority of trolley cars to buses, and exposed plumbing and porcelain tubs to tin basins, and elevators to climbing stairs. After having been roused up by hearing this noise the English have found difficulty in going to sleep again, and they are complaining of insomnia.

The chief amusement of this strange animal is kicking. It is estimated by careful scientific calculation that the strength of an American Tourist's leg is 8,765,439 foot pounds. It kicks because it can't get buckwheat cakes for breakfast on top of the Matterhorn; it kicks because the Germans speak German instead of Bowery; it kicks because the cathedrals are not steam heated and the beer and the champagne are; it kicks at everybody and everything that is different from the way it is at Jayville, and then, when it has exhausted itself kicking, its lets dressmakers and milliners and hotelkeepers pull its leg. It is believed that no other animal exhibits this phenomenal power of endurance.

The steamship companies announce that a large consignment of American Tourists are headed this way, but by the time our patient government gets through with them at the dock they will wish they had stayed abroad.

Life By Mrs. John A. Logan

Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.

IT is not all of life to live or all of death to die."

This maxim should be indelibly impressed upon every human soul, but unfortunately far too many live as if their only obligation consisted in eating, sleeping and existing their allotted time of three score and ten years.

They seem to think that it is no fault of theirs that they are in the world and that they are much abused in having been born to suffer, to live and die, as all mortals must sooner or later.

This is a most absurd position, and is unworthy of anyone of intelligence, and betrays a most ungrateful spirit to Almighty God for the blessing of life, liberty and the privilege vouchsafed to all of working out a far greater and eternal wealth of glory in that blissful world where neither sickness, death nor sorrow can come than can be won in the great world in which we live, move and have an existence.

It was never intended that mankind should spend their lives on flowery beds of ease, but that all should work out their own eternal salvation. The parable of the talents illustrates the degree of responsibility resting upon every creature; none are guiltless who have wasted any of life's precious moments.

It is within the power of every soul to change its environments. Poverty may embarrass but cannot crush out the divine spark that is inborn in every human heart.

Innumerable difficulties may surround everyone, but if one makes untiring effort and exercises the right kind of judgment he will usually overcome everything and find himself victorious. It may take patience, forbearance and desperate exertion, but the conditions encompassing one can be changed.

It depends absolutely upon the conception which every human being puts upon life, its responsibilities and its possibilities. If his range is limited by the few brief days of mortality and does not extend to immortality after life's fitful fever is over, he fails to appreciate its full meaning or the transcendent glory that may be achieved in this world and in the heavenly world to which we are still tending.

He who suffered as men suffer and died an ignominious death on the cross has furnished an example for the life that all-creatures should imitate. "He went about doing good," revealing himself to man that they might learn of Him "ways of pleasantness and paths of peace."

Selfishness, covetousness, penuriousness, unrighteousness, idolatry of material things, make their impression upon the human heart, and out of its fulness the mouth speaketh, the outward expression being always the reflection of the inward soul.

Who has not seen individuals in whose countenance there was a light that could only come from holy living or the innocence of childhood.

And again who has not had a shudder pass through him in looking upon faces distorted by crimes committed and the evil that possessed persons with hideous faces?

Some lives may be fuller than others, as some have greater talents than others; but the simplest life may be pure and undefiled while the greater genius may, by his mighty power, arouse the whole world and bestow upon mankind the benefits arising from the achievements of superior ability. Behind all ambition must be a noble purpose for the good of all mankind, or it will perish in its inception.

The all-wise Creator works in no narrow channel. His plans are for the universal happiness and welfare of all his creatures, and he would that none should perish or fall short of the glory or happiness all may attain.

The innumerable moral codes laid down for living out correctly one's life are useless if in the very beginning one's heart is not right. Be sure that all evil is rooted out of your heart and all will be well. The good will dominate and right impulses spring forth spontaneously.

Once the mind is filled with pure thoughts there is no danger of degeneracy, no matter how powerful the influences of evil may be that compass one.

The philosophical adjustment of one's self to whatever lot the fates have decreed is of primary importance to every individual and will spare them much unhappiness. The envy borne toward the rich, the effort to imitate them in their excessive extravagance, the desire to copy them in their idleness, the wish to eat and drink as the gourmands do, are the causes of much misery to hosts of people, and could they know how little of health and happiness these same rich people enjoy their envy would turn to pity.

Idle-born pleasure seekers are the least to be envied of all people. They have exhausted all sources of pleasure and destroyed the fountain of health by their indolence and self-indulgent lives. Their minds are occupied with schemes for selfish gratification, and are therefore dwarfed and unproductive of good to themselves or for mankind.

Those, on the other hand, who earn their bread by the sweat of their brows, as God intended all men should, are healthy and happy in the thought that they are doing something for the betterment of the world. They have no time to magnify the ills of life. They are indifferent to physical indispositions and by activity of mind and body overcome the ills that beset them.

No great human benefaction has ever been born in the brain of the indolent heir of millions.

Let every man born of woman imitate the example of Him who hath redeemed the world from the curse inflicted through Adam's fall and his life will be full of joy and usefulness, and his triumph over death and the grave the beginning of eternal life in mansions above the skies which He went to prepare for all who follow Him.

Studies in Natural History: The Millionaire Dorothy Dix

Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.

THE Millionaire—Perhaps there is no other animal concerning which the general public feels such an insatiable curiosity as about the Millionaire. Indeed, so great is this interest that the Sunday newspapers are forced to run a live stock column, illustrated with pictures of this strange beast, and describing how it is fed and groomed, and where it made its last appearance. These details are eagerly read by people who have never had the privilege of seeing a live specimen of this species.

Ministering to this morbid curiosity to see freaks, every year enterprising showmen corral together a number of Millionaires at the Horse Show and Metropolitan Opera House, where they are exhibited in their boxes, and for a small admission fee the common people may have the pleasure of pointing them out to each other, and commenting upon their looks. Occasionally a man or woman meets one of these wonders of nature on the street, in which case he, or she, goes home and brags about it, but few people are ever lucky enough to touch a Millionaire to any considerable amount.

Undoubtedly these powerful brutes are of extremely ancient origin, and although in former ages they were not so numerous as they are now, they were much larger, prehistoric research showing that at one time there was one so big it owned the earth. This would make Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Morgan, the two finest specimens now known, look like thirty cents.

The Millionaire is indigenous to the fauna of all countries, but it finds its most rapid growth in America, and is more numerous here than elsewhere. It is also worshipped with a pure, single-hearted fervor that it enjoys in no other land, and nothing could be more touching than the simple faith with which we offer up our manhood, and womanhood, and principles, and street franchises, upon the altar of this animal, which is the god of our idolatry.

Although the most learned scientists have devoted much attention to the subject, it has been found extremely difficult to classify it, owing to the necessity of dividing the species into two distinct classes, which vary widely in their characteristics. The first of these is a hard-working beast of burden, known technically as genus doughgrabus. The other is a gorgeous young creature, much resembling the ass in looks and conduct, and is known as genus doughspradis. To this latter class belong the females of the species, whose ability, especially in America, at getting away with the long green is simply marvelous.

The appearance of the Millionaire varies greatly, making it difficult at times to recognize it at sight (see Hetty Green and Uncle Russell), but fortunately the Western Millionaire is always so new that it rattles as it walks, so there is no possibility of mistaking it. The females, of whom you can generally see a great deal at the opera, are adorned with quarts of diamonds, and are frequently quite pleasing to contemplate. There are exceptions, of course, but as it is esteemed sacrilegious to criticize what one worships, these are invariably spoken of as "young and beautiful," no matter what sort of a fixed face or pudgy figure they have.

It is generally supposed that the habits of the Millionaire are very festive and that it leads a gay and joyous life. This seems to be erroneous, as is also the belief that it lives upon terrapin and champagne. As a usual thing by the time one has reached middle life it has devoured so many undigested securities that it has acquired dyspepsia, and is forced to subsist upon a diet of stale crackers and milk. It is also tormented by the thought that no matter how much it has got, it hasn't got everything, and this causes it to lie awake nights trying to devise methods of annexing everything in sight.

Although this strange creature is of a gregarious nature, and always travels in herds, it apparently does not really enjoy the society of its kind, and takes refuge from its boredom by associating with monkeys, cats and dogs.

Careful observers who have had an opportunity of investigating the habits of Millionaires tell us that one of their most interesting peculiarities is the way they conduct their courtships. In the case of an elderly Millionaire this is done by going to a female and shaking money before her until it wins her, while the young male Millionaire matches bank accounts with the female he has picked out for a wife, until it persuades her to unite their fortunes and form a trust.

It is likewise notable that among these animals the females frequently do the wooing. Many of them scour Europe until they find a mate who has a title in hock that he is willing to sell. Unfortunately, the domestic instinct seems to be very little developed among this species, many of whom spend so much time away from home that they do not know their own offspring.

The principal amusement of the Millionaire is getting divorced and ruing people down with an automobile. In both of these pastimes it is very successful, and shows much skill.

New York has the finest collection of Millionaires in the world. They give daily exhibitions to the public of gobbling everything in sight, and thus afford much innocent amusement.

Christianity By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.

A FACT frequently forgotten is that Christ was only the name of the Great Teacher who taught love and unselfishness for a "creed."

What is the true meaning of the phrase, "A Good Christian?" Does that only apply to a believer in Christ?

Couldn't a person be called a good Christian, be he Jew or Gentile, if he be pious, charitable, good at heart, etc.? By replying, you will more than oblige one that is anxious.

He gave no name to His philosophy. It is virtually the same religion which has been the central thought of every great religion and the world has ever known. Any careful student of the older religious faiths of the human race can prove this by a little research and study.

Robbed of their cruder and more barbaric features, all religions have taught that love of the Creator and one's fellow men and unselfishness and morality were necessary to salvation.

Christ, the last and greatest of all the teachers, simplified these truths and impregnated them with His own wonderful personality.

Much of His teachings was done by parables, and when He found His audiences ignorant and skeptical He resorted to working miracles merely to attract their attention and so lead them to listen to higher truths.

The world has called the philosophy which He taught "Christianity." Priests and apostles and clergymen and translators have perverted much of His teaching, and distorted many of His meanings.

The generally accepted idea of the term "Christian" is one who believes Christ to be born of an immaculate conception, and to be the only being ever so born, and to demand that belief from each soul before it can be "saved." This is the orthodox Christian.

But Christ Himself would, if upon earth, most assuredly call many great and beautiful souls who existed before Him

"Christians"—since they followed after love, truth, unselfishness and morality.

I have known Buddhists, Brahmins and Jews who lived lives as nearly ideally unselfish as is possible in the body of clay, and I am sure the gentle and selfless Christ would class them among His "Christians" were He here with us. It was the spirit, not the letter, of faith that He stood for. He knew that He was absolutely unselfish and that He had only universal good at heart, and because of this, that He and the Father were one—therefore He said "I am the way."

Only by the way of absolute unselfishness of life can we be "saved" from the sure punishment which selfishness always brings. It has been truly said, "We are punished by our sins, not because of them." They are our "hell fire"—to which we supply the brimstone.

"The way" to salvation lies in dropping them, growing out of them, and believing in unselfishness and love—the attributes of Christ.

Whoever possesses these attributes and lives that life is a "Christian." Not an orthodox Christian, to whom a clergyman or priest would administer the sacrament, maybe, but a real Christian, whom Christ would accept.

To love your Creator with all your heart, and your neighbor as yourself, to do good to those who despitefully use you—that it to be "a Christian," no matter whether Jew, pagan or gentile.

A GOOD SHOWING

The Telegram has just let the contract for its new newspaper home at the corner of Eighth and Throckmorton streets. The purchase of the two lots at this important and busy thoroughfare by this company marked the first step in a new and substantial career for The Telegram.

The letting of a contract for a brick building with all the modern improvements known to the newspaper fraternity to go upon these two lots marked the second period for the immediate future. The moving into the building about December 15, with the erection of one of the fastest and biggest of modern presses, equipped to print in colors, will mark an important third epoch in the near future.

The Fort Worth Telegram Company has every occasion to be proud of its record of a year. Taking the property when it had been for many years but a yawning, capacious grave which had gathered into its embrace the hopes and aspirations of one publisher after another and reconstructing it so that in a year's time it has risen to the top most place in the good graces of the people of Fort Worth and to an important position among the papers that have a state wide reputation for progress; the building of a circulation from a bare 2,000 copies to over 7,000 daily average; the putting of the paper from the bad to the good side of the ledger in the book keeping department; the buying of the first big perfecting press to come to Fort Worth and the construction, now, of a home of its own; the accomplishment of all of these things—and at that without the assistance of a single dollar of Fort Worth capital—and done within the small compass of a twelve months' time is a record of which The Telegram believes it has every reason to be proud.

And the beginning is only yet. Within another year there will be improvements in The Telegram as a newspaper that will be as marked as has been within the first year's possession by the present management. To stand still is to go backward. The Telegram will never stand still.

BRYAN FAVORS COCKRELL

Now that Mr. Bryan has intimated that he has a choice for the Democratic nomination for president, and has declared upon whom the honor of his favor rests, there is no longer suspense. The Commoner says: "Why not Francis Marion Cockrell of Missouri for president? His Christian character, his long experience, his great ability and his unquestioned integrity make him worthy to be considered among those eligible to a democratic nomination. As one who has been in harmony with his party on every question, he would be acceptable to the Kansas City platform democrats, and yet what reorganizer could find a personal objection to him? His long service would disarm criticism and his popularity would spread as he became better known.

"He is 63 years of age, but young enough for service yet. His service in the Confederate army would not weaken him, first, because the war is over, and second, because his record has been such as to commend him to those who wore the blue as well as to those who wore the gray. The Commoner has already mentioned several available men and has others in reserve, but it takes pleasure in proposing Senator Cockrell."

Mr. Bryan appears to want to stick to the West for the standard-bearer. He evidently does not subscribe to the theory that to carry the eastern vote—which is the all important vote—sectional differences must be recognized, and that recognition demands an eastern man for the nomination. Some day, when the democratic party has succeeded in convincing the people of this country that republicanism misrule and centralized government is not to the best interests of the country, it may be that a western man may sit in the White House, but just at this time it cannot be accomplished. Senator Cockrell is a strong democrat, and is worthy of every honor which Missouri has conferred upon him, but Senator Cockrell's boom will never land him in the chief office. He lived too early to see the West furnish a democratic president.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE

The August issue of R. G. Dun and Company's Review is one of the handsomest numbers ever issued. There are several articles of more than the usual interest in this number. The discussion of the unprecedented foreign trade of the United States shows that the trade for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, far surpasses all previous records, the total value of merchandise exported and imported reaching the phenomenal sum of $2,445,610,417. The most striking gain occurred in imports which rose above a billion dollars for the first time in the nation's history, the exact figures being $1,025,127, an increase of $122,298,179 over the preceding year, which in turn eclipsed all earlier records. These statistics indicate, says the Review, what a splendid market this country is furnishing for the world's commodities, and incidentally testify to the rapid pace at which consumption is increasing, since domestic production has not only been maintained, but in most industries very extensively enlarged, new plants having been erected in great number and facilities increased at old furnaces, mills and factories. Meanwhile exports valued at $1,219,991,290, which exceeds the previous year's figures by $38,271,899, and compares favorably with every preceding year, with the single exception of the twelve months ending June 30, 1901, when special factors were much in evidence and home demands less urgent.

Representative Curtis Hancock proposes that Pat Neff of Waco be elected speaker to succeed himself. Mr. Hancock is handling a difficult proposition when he makes such a suggestion. In the history of Texas legislatures but one man has been elected speaker of two houses—John Cochran was speaker of the Fourteenth and the Twenty-third. Sixteen years intervened between his first and second incumbency of the position. It is an honor that comes to few men, and then only once in a life time. Mr. Neff is not such a great man in Texas that he can hope to break the precedent.

Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, made an address to the International Typographical Union in an effort to show that President Roosevelt is a friend of the laboring man. If Mr. Moore was as good on "guessing men" as he is in "guessing weather" he would know that politics do not enter into the principles of the typographical union. That organization has been able to hold together, to be a power for the craft and to maintain an excellent standard, because it has not gone into politics, and it will not at this late date take the matter up. The printers' union is for the printing trade.

Russia has sent a squadron to convince the unspeakable Turk that the murderers of the consul must be punished, etc. They have executed one man for the crime, and as but one was guilty, what more does Russia want? But then it takes a great deal to satisfy the czar.

With a line of automobiles between Fort Worth and Arlington Heights the street car company may find it interesting to meet competition. The Northern Texas Traction Company may have a franchise across the Seventh street bridge but the autos will make the trip just the same.

The Tyler Courier is very emphatic in its silence since The Telegram asked for proof of corruption which it charged. The Courier evidently knows nothing, and was but making a statement which it thought would be popular.

If Attorney General Bell succeeds in having his opinion that a public officer cannot be a notary public, sustained, the notary job will be too warm for aspirants for public office to reach for.

If the Harris county jury will back up the Houston Chronicle in its demand for the punishment of those who have been careless with the school fund, it will be a lesson to others who are honored with a public trust.

GRAUSTARK

By ... GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

SYNOPSIS.

Greenfall Lorry, an American, wealthy, globe-trotter, meets by accident charming young lady foreigner while traveling from Denver to Washington. Taking exercise on the station platform during the temporary stop of the train, they are left by the flyer. He telegraphs to hold the train at the next station, procures a wagon to drive four miles. They separate at Washington; she goes to New York with her uncle and aunt. The finishing business, he tries to meet them in New York. Reaches there in time to see the young lady, Miss Guggenlocker, sail. She waves to him from the steamer. Then follows a chase. Lorry leaves for Europe with a companion and starts a continental tour in search of her. One evening while rambling about the grounds of the castle where dwells the court of the Princess Graustark. They overhear a plot to abduct the princess and resolve to capture the plotters red-handed. Following the conspirators, Lorry finds himself in a room he bears from designating as that of the princess. Lorry tells the princess of the plot. Mutual recognition; she is Miss Guggenlocker. Lannox, the guard, is in the abduction plot. He tells Lorry with a terrible blow. Anguish to the rescue. Lorry quarters in the castle. The princess visits him, but forbids all talk of love. Graustark is bankrupt and owes the neighboring principality of Aphrain $200,000. The creditor demands cash or the cession of the richest districts of Graustark. The Prince of Aphrain offers to extend the loan if the princess will marry his son Lorenz. Prince Gabriel of Dawsbergen also bids for the princess, hand with offer of a loan. Yetive tells Lorry that she belongs to her people and will marry Lorenz. Lorry discovered kissing the princess with she is seated on the throne. He quits the castle by royal command. Betrothal of the princess to Lorenz. The American recognizes Gabriel as chief conspirator in the abduction plot. Lorenz dashes the princess lightly in a cafe. Lorry is more than glass from his hand. Challenge to a duel. Lorenz assassinated. Lorry charged with the crime. Princess Yetive commits Lorry to prison. All Graustark rejoices at the princess' escape. Lorry escapes. Aphrain offers Graustark a consideration to have Lorry executed before Nov. 20. Yetive offers a reward for the capture of Lorry. Lorry prevails upon Quinox, an emissary of the princess, to conduct him secretly to the castle. He will surrender himself to save the realm. The princess spurns the offer of Gabriel. Gabriel surprises the princess and Lorry in secret consultation. The princess claims to have captured Lorry and brought him to the princess. Lorry surrenders to Aphrain. Yetive demands a fair trial. "Because I love him," Anguish fastens upon Gabriel the murderer of Lorenz. Lorry free. The lords of Graustark sanction the union of the princess with a plain American.

It is the only way. Quinox will assist you to escape tonight. Go. I implore you: as you love me, go. Your life is more than all to me. Gabriel's story will not be entertained, and he can have no proof. He will be torn to pieces, Quinox says. Do not think of me. Go. You are a man. I would lose everything to save you.

He smiled sadly as he burned the "pardon." The concluding sentences swept away the last thought he might have had of leaving her to bear the consequences. "Do not think of me, but save yourself, I would lose everything to save you." He leaped against the stone wall and shook his head slowly, the smile still on his lips.

CHAPTER XXV.

"BECAUSE I LOVE HIM."

THE next morning Edelweis was astir early. Great throngs of people flocked the streets long before the hour set for the signing of the decree that was to divide the north from the south. The whole nation, it seemed, stood before the walls awaiting with bated breath and dismal faces the announcement that Yetive had deeded to Bolaroz the lands and lives of half of her subjects. Shortly before 9 o'clock Harry Anguish, with his guard of six, rode up to the castle. Captain Dangloss was beside him on his gray charger. They had scarcely passed inside the gates when a cavalcade of mounted men came riding up the avenue from the Hotel Regenetz. Then the howling, the hissing, the hooting began. Maledictions were hurled at the heads of Aphrain noblemen as they rode between the maddened lines of people. They smiled sardonically in reply to the impotent signs of hatred, but they were glad when the castle gates closed behind them and the vast, despairing crowd, in which the tempest of revolt was brewing with unmistakable energy.

Prince Bolaroz, the Duke of Mizrox and the ministers were already in the castle and had been there since the previous afternoon. In the royal palace the excitement was intense, but it was of the subdued kind that strains the nerves to the point where control is martyrdom. When the attendants went to the bedchamber of the princess at 7 o'clock, as was their wont, they found, to their surprise, no one standing guard. The princess was not in her chamber, nor had she been there during the night. The bed was undisturbed. In some alarm the two women ran to her parlor, then to the boudoir. Here they found her asleep on the divan, attired in the gown she had worn since the evening before, now crumpled and creased, the proof positive of a restless, unquiet night.

Her first act after awakening and untangling the meshes in her throbbing, uncomprehending brain was to send for Quinox. She could scarcely wait for his appearance and the assurance that Lorry was safely out of danger. The footman who had been sent to fetch the captain was a long time in returning. She was dressed in her breakfast gown long before he came in with the report that the captain was nowhere to be found. Her heart gave a great throb of joy. She alone could explain his absence. To her it meant but one thing—Lorry's flight from the castle. Where else could Quinox be except with the fugitive, perhaps once more inside St. Valentine's?

Preparations began at once for the eventual transaction in the throneroom. The splendor of two courts was to shine in rivalry. Ten o'clock was the hour set for the meeting of the two rulers, the victor and the victim, Her nobles and her ladies, her ministers, her guards and her lackeys moved about in the halls, dreading the hour, brushing against the hated Aphrain guests. In one of the small waiting rooms sat the Count and Countess Halfont, the latter in tears. The young Countess Dagmar stood at a window with Harry Anguish. The latter was flushed and nervous and acted like a man who expects that which is unexpected by others. With a strange confidence in his voice, he sought to cheer his depressed friends, but the cheerfulness was not contagious. The somberness of a burial hung over the castle.

Half an hour before the time set for the meeting in the throneroom Yetive sent for her uncle, her aunt and Dagmar. As Anguish and the latter followed, the girl turned her sad, puzzled eyes up to the face of the tall American and said: "Are you rejoicing over our misfortune? You do not show a particle of regret. Do you forget that we are sacrificing a great deal to save the life of your friend? I do not understand how you can be so heartless."

"I think I can explain satisfactorily when I have more time," he said softly in her ear, and, although she tried, she could find no words to continue. He left her at the head of the stairs and did not see her again until she passed him in the throneroom. Then she was pale and brave and trembling. Prince Bolaroz and his nobles stood to the right of the throne, the Graustark men and women of degree to the left, while near the door on both sides were to be seen the leading military men of both principalities. Near the Duke of Mizrox was stationed the figure of Gabriel, prince of Dawsbergen. He had come, with a half dozen followers, among a crowd of unsuspecting Aphrainians, and had taken his position near the throne. Anguish entered with Baron Dangloss, and they stood together near the doorway, the latter whiter than he had ever been in his life.

Then came the hush of expectancy. The doors swung open, the curtains parted and the princess entered. She was supported by the arm of her tall uncle, Caspar of Halfont. Pages carried the train of her dress, a jeweled gown of black. As she advanced to the throne, calm and stately, those assembled bent knee to the fairest woman the eye ever had looked upon. The calm, proud exterior hid the most unhappy of hearts. The resolute courage with which her spirit had been braced for the occasion was remarkable in more ways than one. Among other inspirations behind the valiant show was the bravery of a guilty conscience. Her composure sustained a shock when she passed Alode at the door. That faithful, heartbroken servant looked at her face with pleading, horror struck eyes, as much as to say: "Are you going to destroy Graustark for the sake of that murderer? Have pity on us—have pity!"

Before taking her seat on the throne she swept the thrilled assemblage with her wide blue eyes. There were shadows beneath them, and there were wells of tears behind them. As she looked upon the little knot of white faced northern barons her knees trembled and her heart gave a fresh throb of pity. Still the face was resolute. Then she saw Anguish and the suffering Dangloss, then the accusing, merciless eyes of Gabriel. At sight of him she started violently, and an icy fear crept into her soul. Instinctively she searched the gorgeous company for the captain of the guard. Her stanch ally was not there. Was she to hear the condemning words alone? Would the people do as Quinox had prophesied, or would they believe Gabriel and curse her? She sank into the great chair and sat with staring, helpless eyes, deserted and feeble. At last the whirling brain ended its flight and settled down to the issue first at hand—the transaction with Bolaroz. Summoning all her self control, she said: "You are come, most noble Bolaroz, to draw from us the price of our defeat. We are loyal to our compact, as you are to yours, sire, yet in the presence of my people and in the name of mercy and justice I ask you to grant us respite. You are rich and powerful, we despoiled and struggling beneath a weight we can lift and displace if given a few short years in which to grow and gather strength. At this last hour in the fifteen years of our indebtedness I sue in supplication for the leniency that you can so well accord. It is on the advice of my counselors that I put away personal pride and national dignity to make this request, trusting to your goodness of heart. If you will not hearken to our petition for a renewal of negotiations, there is but one course open to Graustark. We can and will pay our debt of honor."

Bolaroz stood before her, dark and unpromising. She saw the futility of her plea.

"I have not forgotten, most noble petitioner, that you are ruler here, not I; therefore I am in no way responsible for the conditions which confront you except that I am an honest creditor come for his honest dues. This is the 20th of November. You have had fifteen years to accumulate enough to meet the requirements of this day. Should I suffer for your faults? There is in the treaty a provision which applies to an emergency of this kind. Your inability to liquidate in gold does not prevent the payment of this honest debt in land, as provided for in the sixth clause of the agreement. All that part of Graustark north of a line drawn directly from east to west between the provinces of Ganlock and Doswan, a tract comprising Doswan, Sheltoz, Varagan, Oeswald, Sosmal and Gattabaton. You have two alternatives, your highness. Produce the gold or sign the decree ceding to Aphrain the lands stipulated in the treaty. I can grant no respite."

"You knew when that treaty was framed that we could raise no such funds in fifteen years," said Halfont, forgetting himself in his indignation. Gaspon and other men present approved his hasty declaration.

"Am I dealing with the Princess of Graustark or with you, sir?" asked Bolaroz roughly.

"You are dealing with the people of Graustark, and among the poorest, I will sign the decree. There is nothing to be gained by appealing to you. The papers, Gaspon, quick! I would have this transaction finished speedily," cried the princess, her cheeks flushing and her eyes glowing from the flames of a burning conscience. The groan that went up from the northern nobles cut her like the slash of a knife.

"There was one other condition," said Bolaroz hastily, unable to gloat as he had expected. "The recapture of the assassin who slew my son would have meant much to Graustark. It is unfortunate that your police department is so inefficient." Dangloss writhed beneath this thrust. Yetive's eyes went to him for an instant sorrowfully. Then they dropped to the fatal document which Gaspon had placed on the table before her. The lines ran together and were the color of blood. Unconsciously she took the pen in her nerveless fingers. A deep sob came from the breast of her gray old uncle, and Gaspon's hand shook like a leaf as he placed the seal of Graustark on the table, ready for use.

"The assassin's life could have saved you," went on Bolaroz, a vengeful glare coming to his eyes. She looked up and her lips moved as if she would have spoken. No words came, no breath, it seemed to her. Casting a piteous, hunted glance over the faces before her, she bent forward and blindly touched the pen to the paper. The silence was that of death. Before she could make the first stroke a harsh voice, in which there was combined triumph and amazement, broke the stillness like the clanging of a bell.

"Have you no honor?" The pen dropped from her fingers as the expected condemnation came. In sheer desperation, her eyes flashing with the intensity of defiant guilt, bitter rage welling up against her persecutor, she half arose and cried: "Who uttered those words? Speak!"

"I, Gabriel of Dawsbergen! Where is the prisoner, madam?" rang out the voice. "The man is mad!" cried she, sinking back with a shudder. "Mad, eh? Because I do as I did promise? Behold the queen of perfidy! Madam, I will be heard. Lorry is in this castle!"

"He is mad!" gasped Bolaroz, the first of the stunned spectators to find his tongue. There was a commotion near the door. Voices were heard outside. "You have been duped!" insisted Gabriel, taking several steps toward the throne. "Your idol is a traitress, a deceiver! I say he is here! She has seen him! Let her sign that decree if she dares! I command you, Yetive of Graustark, to produce this criminal!"

The impulse to crush the defier was checked by the sudden appearance of two men inside the curtains. "He is here!" cried a strong voice, and Lorry, breathless and haggard, pushed through the astonished crowd, followed by Captain Quinox, upon whose ghastly face there were blood stains. A shout went up from those assembled, a shout of joy. The faces of Dangloss and Alode were pictures of astonishment and, it must be said, relief. Harry Anguish staggered, but recovered himself instantly and turned his eyes toward Gabriel. That worthy's legs trembled and his jaw dropped.

"I have the prisoner, your highness," said Quinox in hoarse, discordant tones. He stood before the throne with his captive, but dared not look his mistress in the face. As they stood there the story of the night just passed was told by the condition of the two men. There had been a struggle for supremacy in the dungeon, and the prisoner had won. The one had tried to hold the other to the dungeon's safety after his refusal to leave the castle, and the other had fought his way to the halls above. It was then that Quinox had wit enough to change front and drag his prisoner to the place which, most of all, he had wished to avoid.

"The prisoner!" shouted the northern nobles, and in an instant the solemn throneroom was wild with excitement. "Do not sign that decree!" cried some one from a far corner. "Here is our man, Prince Bolaroz," cried a harem.
