SECRET IS DISCLOSED BY HAYNE

Inside Facts of Famous Cotton Corner Are Made Public

BROWN GOT THE CREDIT

But He Held Only a Third Interest in the Greatest Cotton Corner in History

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—For the first time the inside history of the famous New Orleans pool in cotton which has been a world-wide sensation for three months, was made known today by Frank P. Hayne, who held a 70 per cent interest in it.

Mr. Hayne has remained in the background, letting W. P. Brown, the New Orleans broker, and second largest owner of the pool in cotton wear the crown.

But here is his story: "Cotton merchants of New Orleans were the first in the whole world to realize last year, that the crop would be too small to supply the consumption and early in the season they began buying options for July delivery. I began buying when July was under eight cents. There was very general buying on the part of the spot merchants by the time the option had reached $2.25.

They thought it impossible for us to finance the deal. They found however, that we were able to do so by borrowing money abroad. Liverpool and Bremen were searched for cotton by our opponents and both shipped thousands of bales to New Orleans only to be shipped right back to European ports by us at a profit.

At the end of July, spot cotton in New Orleans had nearly all been sold, and Mr. Brown and myself came to New York to dispose of the 150,000 bales which we had accepted on contracts. In addition to the 150,000 bales which we had on hand there were 4,000 bales shipped to us from Liverpool and the continent, but early in September, we had reduced the New York spots to 100,000 bales. The new crop being phenomenally late, we were able to dispose of our entire holdings the first week in September.

THEY THINK DEAL WOUND UP

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—People who have had the chance of watching the cotton pool's speculative performances at close range believe that the corner deal has been practically wound up, and that its profits will range between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000. Usually, the operations of such a pool extend on a large scale through contracts for delivery in future months.

Other speculators are induced to promise to deliver at that time, to the corner manipulators, more cotton than the market will provide. This pool's operations were entirely to spot cotton and to manipulation of the current or spot option—that is, the contracts for delivery during the month in progress. The settlement involved purchase of 30,000 bales, with one lot of 20,000 bought in private at 12.4 cents per pound by a firm of spot dealers, which had originally been sold at an average of 12 1/2 to 11 cents.

The corner manipulators cleared over $200,000 on this settlement alone. Other victims of the operation were foreign dealers in spot cotton and Wall street dealers who sold up almost to the close. Corner of spots in the first month of a new crop's arrival in the market is a very rare occurrence, favored, this time by nature, and probably not confidently expected by the pool itself, ten days ago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—After chasing William Hayes Bonner, alias William Bernard, a negro, formerly a butler in the home of Alexander Niedeckhaus, a wealthy paying contractor of St. Louis, to Cleveland, and from there to Chicago, detectives last night arrested the man. He is wanted for the theft of diamonds valued at $4,000 and $100 in cash from Mrs. Niedeckhaus.

CITY'S FINANCES IN GOOD SHAPE TO MEET BUDGET

Annual Interest Charges $15,000 Lower, While Income From Taxes and Water Rents Is Nearly $50,000 Greater

Now that the annual budget of the city is being made up for submission to a special meeting of the city council next Saturday afternoon, a brief resume of the progress of Fort Worth in recent years from a financial and municipal improvement standpoint, becomes opportune.

Perhaps the most interesting thing in this direction at this time is the new artesian water supply, just completed and to be turned into the city mains within a few days, in fact as soon as the million-gallon reservoir shall be completed and connected with the intake well.

SOME FIGURES. Some interesting figures were gathered by The Telegram yesterday in regard to the new water supply. Its total cost to the city will be in the neighborhood of $110,000. The income of the city water works department from water rentals in the past few years forms an excellent basis for finding out the value of the new artesian system to the city in dollars.

It was in the first quarter of the year 1903-1904 that the value of the artesian system from a monetary standpoint became strongly apparent. This was the quarter beginning with April when the city's fiscal year begins. In that quarter the water rentals jumped to $18,928. But the July quarter was the one that proved beyond all doubt what the new system is destined to do.

FURY AND LUST OF BARBAROUS SOLDIERS HAS NO PARALLEL IN MODERN TIMES

(Special Cable to The Telegram. Copyrighted, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) BY GEORGE LYNN MONASTIR, Oct. 3.—There is no question that the Turks have been practicing brutalities upon the Christians in Dubnitza. I saw hundreds of refugees, who had fled from their homes through the forests from the destroying Turk. They visited a hut occupied by the remnant of a family. Entering, I heard the wailing cry of a suffering child. A woman seated on the floor was busy smoking tobacco, two children were crouching near her.

RARE BOOTY FOR A GRIP THIEF

German Catechisms and Hymn Books Reward His Efforts at Stealing

All the bad words in a sneak thief's vocabulary were likely let loose on the afternoon air yesterday, when the fellow who took Rev. H. F. Hellmann's neat alligator grip from the Texas and Pacific station, sprung the lock and got a good view at the contents.

For instead of the articles one would likely imagine to be found in a gentleman's handbag, the thief discovered a choice selection of baptismal certificates, hymn books, catechisms and school readers, all of which were printed in German. Rev. Hellmann and Rev. F. M. Rudi, the latter of Iowa Park, had been in Dallas attending a conference, and stopped here awhile waiting for the northbound Denver passenger. They left the station at noon, leaving their grips unchecked. Returning from lunch, they found Rev. Hellmann's grip had been stolen. The minister had purchased a supply of books for use in his congregation at Vernon and as these furnished practically all the contents of the grip, he was greatly vexed at the loss. He reported the matter to Depot Master Fulford and the latter succeeded in catching a man in the act of stealing a grip, about half an hour later. He was turned over to the county authorities and is believed to be the same one who stole the grip with the books. Later Rev. Hellmann got his grip and a few of the books from a saloon keeper who had advanced a loan of $1 upon them, are expected to get the remainder before leaving the city last night.

A FAKIR'S REVENGE

In India the term "fakir" does not mean a cheat or a fraud, but is applied to the so-called holy men who carry out certain vows. Of all the fakirs known to the decade between 1860 and 1870 Gunga Gee of the province of Hyderabad was the most prominent. He was a holy man and one who did strange things.

In the line of jugglery Gunga Gee could do wonderful things, and the English were awed and the natives made afraid. One day he gave an exhibition in the suburbs of Hyderabad and performed such wonderful feats that General Cluet, commander of the military post, decided to imprison him and destroy his prestige.

In some mysterious way word got out that on a certain hour of a certain day Gunga Gee would leave his prison in spite of his guards, and when the time arrived 25,000 natives were gathered in the streets.

If the reader is inclined to doubt that this thing happened he can find corroboration in the civil and military records of Hyderabad. The matter defied the fakir in the estimation of the natives, and the English became alarmed. Charges were preferred against the guards, the governor of the jail lost his place, and it was pretended that a conspiracy was unearthed.

Three months after Gunga Gee's escape a grand military review was held at Hyderabad. There were eight regiments in cantonments there, and many high officers were present to witness the maneuvers.

It was estimated that there were 75,000 people massed on the grounds when the trumpets sounded for the review to begin. As a preliminary the general was to ride up and down along the front of the regiments, followed by his staff.

When the general who had imprisoned him had been degraded before all that multitude Gunga Gee walked back among his people and was swallowed up in an instant, while the general continued his antics and was jeered by thousands.

The passenger department of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company has taken up anew the matter of inducing immigration to Texas, particularly along the line of the Texas system and as a result it is expected to see many hundred substantial farmers and stock raisers located during the next twelve months.

Referring to the past efforts of the Rock Island to induce Texas immigration, the records of Immigration Agent Jackson show that the Rock Island has done an excellent business and that the company anticipate greater results in the future.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup.

When the general who had imprisoned him had been degraded before all that multitude Gunga Gee walked back among his people and was swallowed up in an instant, while the general continued his antics and was jeered by thousands.

LITTLE CHANGE IN CONDITION OF THE CROP

Katy's Weekly Report Shows Slight Difference From Last Week

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 2.—The Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway company issued its weekly cotton crop report this evening.

Galveston.—No change in cotton crop condition. Hillsboro.—No change in cotton crop other than stained some; will not be as large as first thought; cotton being marketed very fast.

Houston.—Cotton situation considerably different last report. Number of places which three or four weeks ago reported for two-thirds to three-fourths the crop now place estimates at one-half; have had several rainy days this week which are very unfavorable.

Jefferson.—Local showers past week will stop shedding and former estimate of one bale to five acres in good. La Grange.—Cotton stand good and plant fine, but fruiting very poor; boll weevil have made appearance and have been doing great damage; hot dry weather needed; yield one bale to five or six acres will be made; picking not at all good.

Rockwall.—Cotton crop unchanged; need dry weather. Seelye.—Cotton doing very well; boll-cuts the yield short; weather dry and hot; no damage from insects, estimated average about one-third bale per acre.

San Antonio.—Crop conditions are practically unchanged in this territory; we are having favorable weather for picking, not too late in the season; though there will be no more cotton after this picking; have had good rain since last report.

Temple.—No change in cotton condition, Taylor.—Yield for this vicinity one-fourth bale per acre. Wichita Falls.—Cotton crop light; dry weather.

Waco.—Cotton condition unchanged. Waxahatchie.—Cotton same as last week; two days' rain stopped picking, but will benefit crop when it clears up.

GHOST DIDN'T WALK FOR THE TEACHERS

All day yesterday an interesting if somewhat mysterious case was being investigated in the office of City Secretary John T. Montgomery.

Be it known that Mr. Montgomery's bailiwick at the city hall is the all-powerful market after the first council meeting of each month, for then Mr. Montgomery and the assistant secretary, W. J. Estes, hand out the warrants in settlement of the city payroll.

At Friday night's session of the council the city payroll was allowed and warrants ordered drawn for same, but one department was overlooked. By the oversight of somebody the payroll of the city schools was not allowed.

To go without pay for a few weeks would be a hardship on nearly any city employe, but in the case of the school teachers who have drawn no salaries for three months—well, it really was too bad.

The teachers entered the office wreathed in smiles, but their joy, to put it mildly, was not apparent to the city clerk, who they were informed that there was in effect, nothing doing in the ghost line.

ROPES AS FIRE ESCAPES.

An Experience Which Shocked One Man's Conscience in Them. "Yes, I know that most of the boys carry a rope around with 'em," said the commercial traveler, and the time was when I would not have taken the rope without one, but I gave mine to my wife for an extra clothesline three or four years ago. I read occasionally of a rope saving somebody from a burning hotel, but I don't care to be saved that way. "But you don't want to be burned with the hotel, do you?" was asked. "Of course not, but if I can't get away by the stairs or the iron fire escape I'll take my chances on a mattress or a woman's ladder." "But what's the matter with a knotted rope?" "I didn't think anything was the matter for many years. I used to go to bed feeling as safe as a baby in his crib, and if I found a traveler who didn't carry a fifty foot rope in his grip I set him down as a very reckless man. One day when I was in an Indiana town a lot of us got to talking about ropes and burning hotels, and a well eyed bluffer offered to bet me $5 to $1 that I couldn't slide down my rope from a third story window and not half kill myself. Of course I jumped at the bet, but he knew what he was doing. He had a knot for a head at one end and sharpened to a point at the other. Their successors of today undergo a surprising variety of operations before they are considered fit for use. In comparison with the size of the object manufactured the operations seem bewilderingly numerous, but if there be one process more remarkable than another it is "papering the pins." The papers, having been passed through an ingenious machine which, at regular intervals, according to the size of the pin, pinches up a fold and pricks a hole in it, are ready to receive the pins. For this purpose there is another machine, worked by two children. One feeds the pins, the other the papers. The first part of the machine is a box about twelve inches long, six broad and four deep. The bottom is composed of small square steel bars, sufficiently far apart to let the shank of the pin fall through, but not the head. These bars are just as thick as the space between papered pins. The lower part of the bottom of the box is made to detach itself as soon as the row of pins is complete. Row after row, at regular intervals, is received and passed down a corresponding set of grooves until it reaches the ready pricked paper. By the nicest possible adjustment these pins come exactly to their places and are pressed into them. By this method two little girls can in one day put up many thousands of papers.—Kansas City Star.

A GAME BETWEEN LOVERS ENTR' ACTE

[Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure.] "Of course you knew all along." He was tearing the edges of the programme into shreds and did not look at her. "I did not, you silly boy. How could I? You never said a word." "But I looked." "Lots look." "Harvey?" "He looks lovely." "How do I look?" "Bertie! You big, silly, silly kid child!" "Don't laugh at me, then. It isn't a joke." She leaned over the plush rail of the box and let a rose leaf flutter, lighter as a baby butterfly, down to the tier below. "You girls must have loads of proposals." "Why?" "Why? You all take it so easy. You just laugh at a fellow and look pleasant and all that." "Have you asked so many Bertie?" "Ten. Scored, didn't you? Honest, though, I haven't, Gwen; just you, dear." "There was that Ferris girl." "Who? Madge—little Madge-Ferris? I wasn't in love with her. We just chummed. You know, Gwen. She was a great chum." "Did you ever kiss her, Bertie?" "Not since she was old enough to fight. That isn't anything. I've kissed you, Gwen." "Dead silence; orchestra plays 'La Paloma'." "Gwen, the tip of your ear's awfully pink. Turn around, won't you? I don't care. I did. It was down at Farway Beach, that summer. Member, Gwen? You were an awfully funny little gawky kid those days. Fuzzy hair and big eyes." "You used to call me a walleped frizetop," she said over her shoulder, and her eyes were full of dream light and her voice was low. "It was ages ago." "And I chased you that day. You could run as fast as my boys. Way up the beach, past the cottages and the hill road, up to where the rocks began." "There was a cave with shells in the sand, and seaweed tangled in the rocks." She bent nearer with parted lips of expectancy. "The Green Dragon's cave, you called it, member. And I caught you there and kissed you hard, didn't I, Gwen? And you said it wasn't fair, 'cause you turned into a mermaid as soon as you reached the cave." "And you said you were a wave, then, and could follow. Wasn't it fun?" "Great fun. Gwen, Gwen, darling. I wish I had you there this minute." "I slapped you." "And then I held your hands and kissed you again. I was good those days. Returned a kiss for a blow. And you didn't slap that time. You laughed and kissed back." "It was ages ago." She bent over the rail again away from him. His eyes were so full of something—something—it unnerved her, and the others were watching. She could almost feel Harvey's gaze. "But, dear, I've been loving you all the time. I'm not a kid, Gwen. Listen to me. Turn your head again. You're afraid." "Of what? They tell." "Your eyes. They tell." "After a pause: "Dare you to, Gwen?" She turned her head slowly and looked at him. "You silly boy?" "Sweetheart!" "I'm not, Bertie, don't! Mamma's watching!" "And Harvey? Is he so very rich, Gwen? Say, Gwen, don't he look like a frog in his evening suit? Gwen, look at that old fossil and then at me. Love me, Gwen?" "The curtain will go up in a minute, Hush!" "Gwen!" "Hush—dear!" "You darling! Say it again!" "Dear, dear, dear! Now will you be have?" "If I could tell him for sure, Gwen—dad, I mean—that I had you for sure you know, dear, he'd stand by us; I know he would. He isn't like the women. All they think of is landing a fellow like Harvey and his cash. Dad knows I love you. He'd give me a start, dear heart. It would be fun starting together, wouldn't it, Gwen? You're young, and I'm young. I would do anything in life with you to say 'Go ahead,' Gwen!" "The curtain is rising." "Never mind. The rest will look at the stage. Just give me your hand if you're afraid, sweetheart—just your hand for answer. When I bend forward put your hand down, and they won't see. Please, Gwen. Then I'll be good to dear. Just to be sure. Your eyes told anyway. Oh, you darling!" Curtain rises. Her fan falls. IYOLA L. MERRIFIELD.

COMMITTEE ON STREET CARS MEETS MONDAY

Alderman J. F. Henderson, chairman of the special committee appointed by the city council at its meeting last Friday night to conduct an investigation into the causes that have thus far prevented the Northern Texas Traction Company from providing comfortable and adequate service to the citizens of Fort Worth, announced yesterday that the committee would get together on Monday morning. The other two members of the committee are Mr. Waggoner of the Second ward and Mr. Dyeus of the Eighth.

CHICKENS ARE WORTH MORE THAN GOLD MINES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The value of the annual egg product of the United States exceeds that of the combined gold and silver output of the country. The poultry and eggs raised and eaten in the United States last year were worth more than all the gold or the silver produced in the world in the same year. These are a few of the interesting facts about the poultry business that have been unearthed by one of Secretary Wilson's experts in the department of agriculture. According to the latest available tables, the value of all flocks on farms is $25,094,000. About $15,000,000 is deducted to include the flocks under the age of three months, so that the balance represents the breeding stock to the latest available tables. PAPERING THE PINS.

An Ingenious Operation That is Performed by Machinery. The first pins made in this country were very crude indeed, merely a bit of wire twisted into a knot for a head at one end and sharpened to a point at the other. In comparison with the size of the object manufactured the operations seem bewilderingly numerous, but if there be one process more remarkable than another it is "papering the pins." Yale Has a Soft Snap, But Princeton and Harvard Have Narrow Escapes

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 3.—Yale made a merry romp down the field against the University of Vermont today, piling up 48 points in the quarter hour halves. The Green mountaineers were not guilty of holding the Blue on downs. HARVARD BARELY WINS. CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 3.—Mike Farley, home coach of the Harvard eleven, which was defeated by Yale last fall, redeemed his reputation today, when, with a little team of players from the University of Maine, averaging fifteen pounds less to the man than his opponents, he virtually held the much-vaunted Crimson eleven to a standstill. One touch down was the best Harvard could do. That was made almost at the beginning of the game, on a sensational fifty-eight yard run by Nichols, who broke around Maine's left end and assisted by the wonderful interference by Parkinson, carried the pig skin over the line and planted it squarely behind the post. GEORGETOWN SCARES OLD NASSAU. PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 3.—Princeton ran up against a hard snap today in the Georgetown eleven and were lucky to escape with a victory by the close score of 5 to 3. The visitors gave Princeton a big scare in the first half, when they had possession of the ball on the one-yard line; had McClave had dropped a punt, Captain DeWitt's men, however, took a break and held for four downs.

WEST POINT DOES BETTER

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 3.—West Point redeemed themselves for the poor showing they made last Saturday against Colgate, by defeating Tufts by a score of 12 to 6. Both the aggressive and the defensive work of the soldiers showed a great improvement and their interference and general team work was good.

YOKUM WILL DOMINATE THE SEABOARD LINE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The situation of Seaboard Air Line at the moment may be defined as follows: The control of the property is in the hands of the voting trust, irrespective of stock ownership, the voting trust will hold power for several years. The voting trust is composed of practically the same men who comprise the executive committee of Seaboard Air Line, of which B. F. Yokum is chairman. The new syndicate holds an option on a block of Seaboard Air Line and preferred stock amounting to 135,000 shares at price of about 20 for the common and 25 for the preferred. The option has nearly twelve months yet to run. Other stocks owned or held by the syndicate will bring the average cost of Seaboard stocks down to considerably below an average of 20 for the common and 25 for the preferred. The status of the syndicate and the railroad property respectively has not changed since early in August when Mr. Yokum and others became interested in Seaboard contrary reports notwithstanding. For the present the road will be administered along the lines of other railroad enterprises in which Mr. Yokum has been prominent. It is intended that whatever possibilities in the system shall be fully developed, and that its place in the development of the South shall be made fully as important as it has been in the past which will result greatly to the interest of all the southern country.

B. B. BURNETT HOME

Says His Name in Connection With New Packing Company Unauthorized. B. B. Burnett of the 6655 ranch has just returned home after spending several weeks looking after his stock interests on the ranges. Mr. Burnett was seen by The Telegram last night and asked as to his connection with the new independent packing house enterprise that was recently launched at Kansas City. It will be remembered that he was placed on the directory of the company which organized with a capital of $5,000,000 for the purpose of building several packing plants at different live stock centers in the south and west. "You can say for me that my name was used in connection with the directory of the company without my authority," said Mr. Burnett. He added that he had nothing whatever to do with the enterprise and knew nothing about what is being done or what will be done in the future by the company.

POPE PIUS X ISSUES FIRST ENCYCLICAL

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) ROME, Oct. 3.—Pius X's first encyclical is published in the Osservatore this evening. His holiness says he accepted the pontificate reluctantly, knowing himself unworthy to occupy the holy see, after the grandeur of his predecessor. He has no other program than just "Amare Omnia in Christo." His appeals for cooperation to all bishops in re-establishing the empire of Christ on earth and enjoins them to maintain intact the dogmas of the sanctity of the marriage tie, of education, of property, of duty to their rulers who hold power solely from God. Only bishops, he says, ought to impart the precepts of the church. He approves the formation of Catholic secretaries for working against the enemies of religion, but enjoins absolute obedience to bishops. In conclusion, the pope claims for the church liberty and independence.

DEMAND SHOWS A LOSS

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—Currency is moving to the country in larger volume than before—about $300,000 a day during the past week. There is an increasing demand from the south, but hardly a normal inquiry from the grain section, unless it is from the northwest. One reason for that slow demand is that the decline of 7 to 9 cents from the top prices of corn, within the past month, has lessened offerings of corn by farmers. In the northwest there are reports of increased offerings these past few days which indicate expanding receipts of wheat next week. But in the corn belt, farmers who have been getting prices close to 50 cents per bushel are not inclined to sell while prices are down to nearly 40 cents at loading stations.

A PEACE POSTAGE STAMP

Special of Alliance of Women for Peace Has Novel Request. (Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, Oct. 3.—The next congress of the Universal Alliance of Women for Peace is to be held in St. Louis next year, during the exhibition. The invitation was extended by the delegates of the American Peace Society to the congress recently assembled at Rome. Princess Miszniewsky, the president and founder of the society, will present a petition to the next congress, asking for authorization for a peace postage stamp. She will request that such a stamp have currency in all countries belonging to the postal union. The princess says it will be a one-cent stamp and will facilitate the correspondence of peace societies.

A new cabinet officer is needed. A department of grafting should be established to which the shortcomings of republican officeholders may be referred. The president and his cabinet are busy men and they should not have their time taken up in the whitewashing of this or that department. Let a head whitewasher be appointed at once. The Transcript nominates Mr. Hitchcock in whitewashing his own department, but he has a large bucket and a wide brush, and it appears that he will finish within the time limit. —Terrell Trancoso.

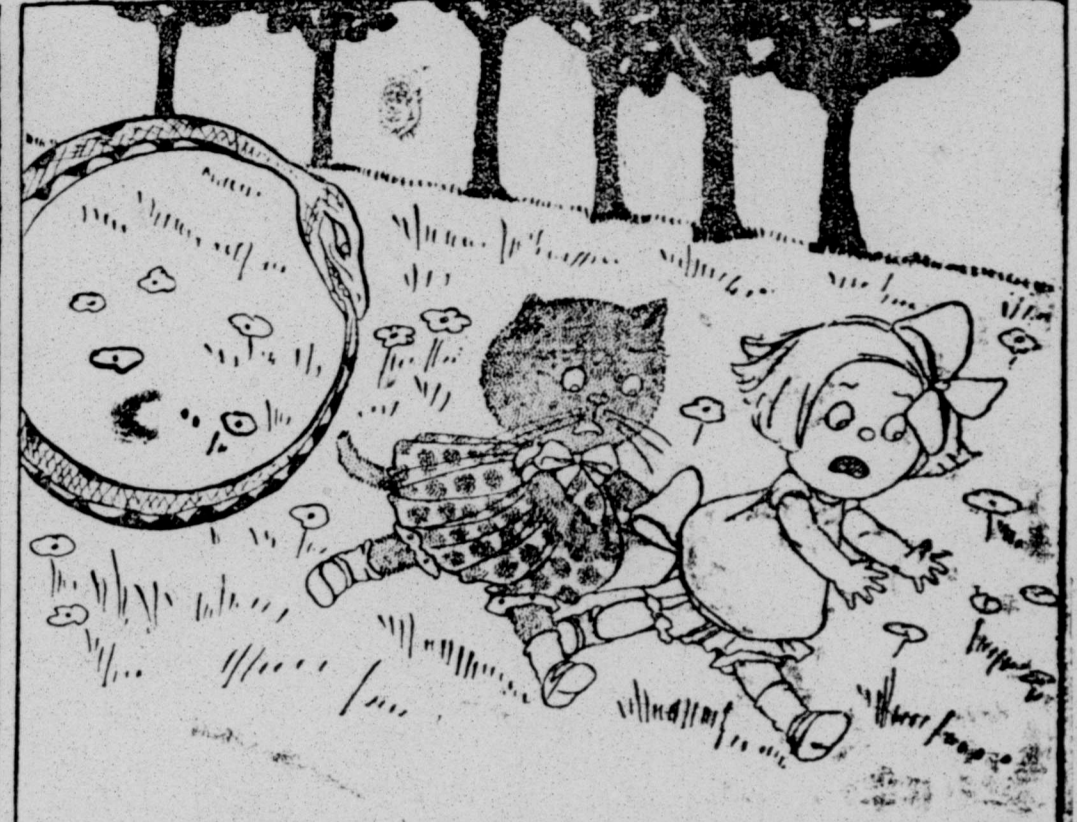

The Strange Adventures of Pussy Pumpkin and Her Chum Toodles!

1. The Lion, as you all know, is the King of the Animals. On his last birthday Pussy Pumpkin and Toodles each brought him some flowers because they liked him very much. And he was so pleased with the flowers that he said, "I will always be your friend. If any animal ever bothers you, come straight to me and I will punish him."

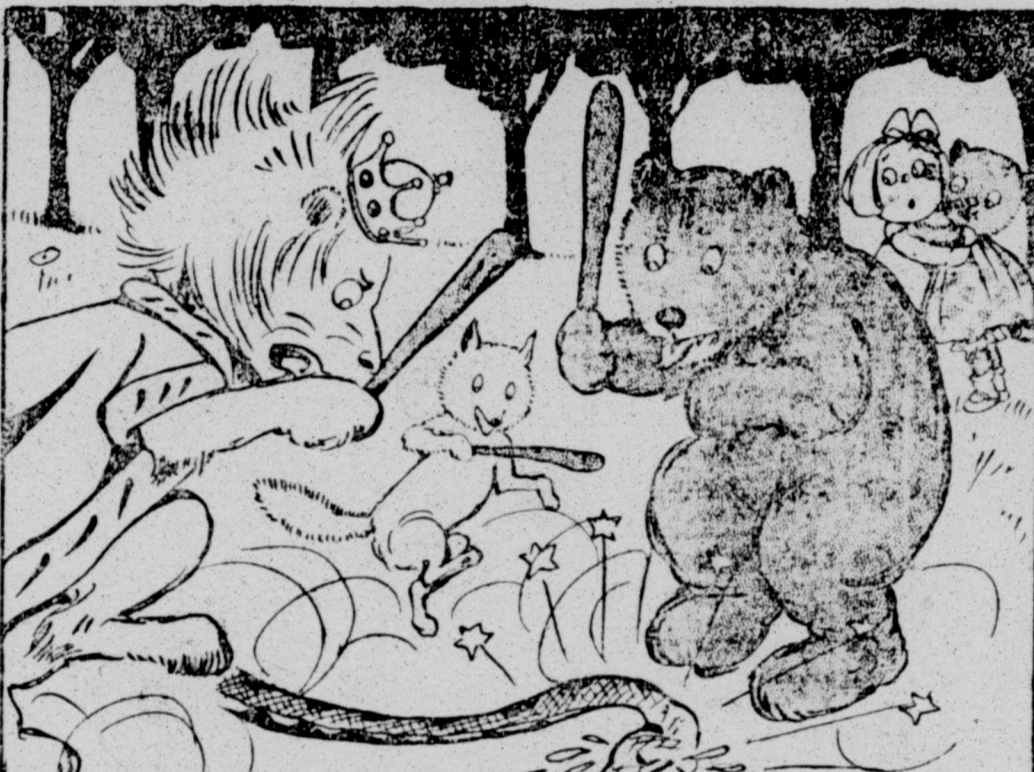

2. That very same day, while Toodles and Pussy were picking apples, who should come jumping out of the tree but a great big Snake! Oh, how frightened Toodles and Pussy were! Because the Snake was making a terrible hissing sound which meant "I'll eat you up!" It was really dreadful.

3. They ran away as fast as they could and cried, "Help! Help!" But the Snake took his tail in his mouth and made a big hoop out of himself, and in this way he started to roll down hill after our little friends. If a Snake ever runs after you like that all you have to do is to turn around and run up hill. Then he cannot follow you. But Toodles and Pussy did not know that.

4. At last they came to where King Lion was sitting on his throne. "Oh," they cried, "a terrible Snake has been running after us. Here he comes now! We are so frightened." The Lion was very angry and said, "How dare that Snake frighten my dear Pussy and Toodles? I will give him such a beating that he will never do it again!"

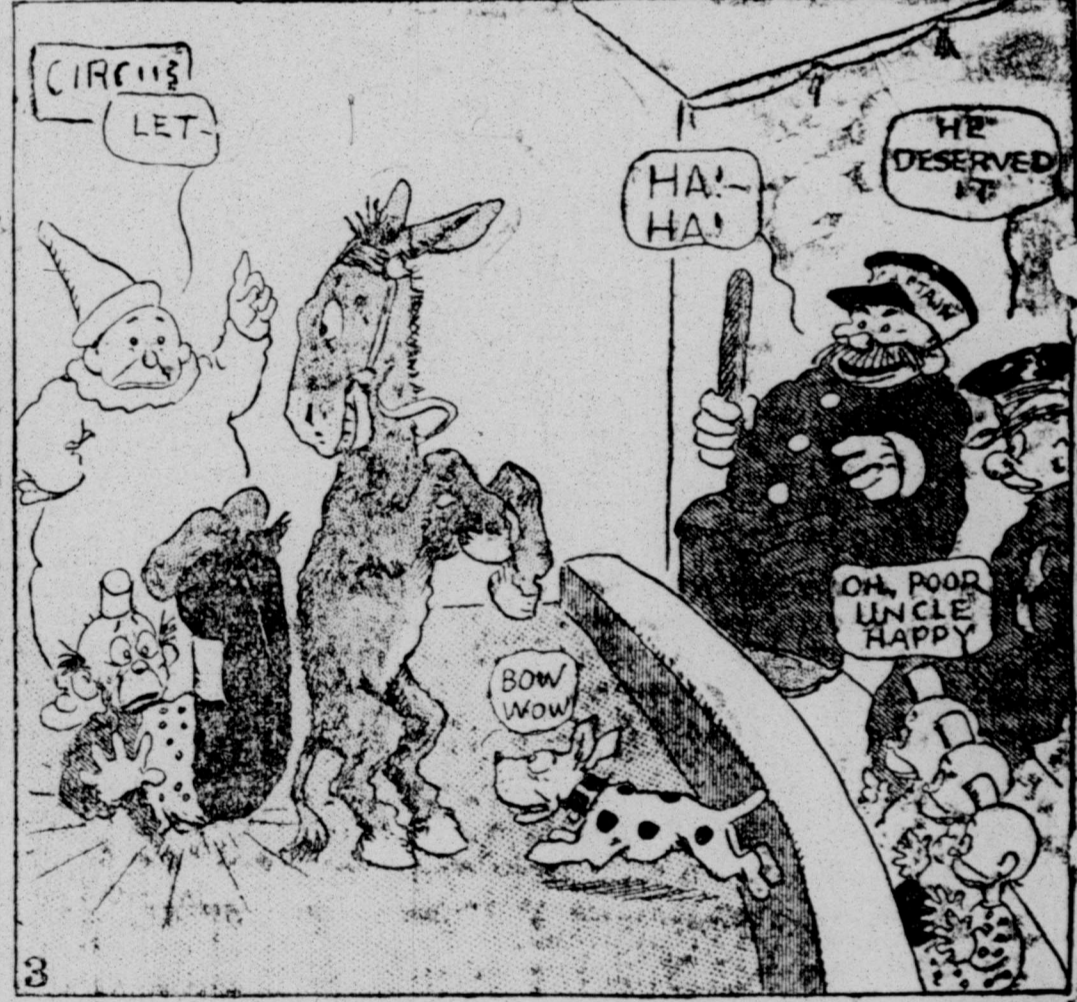

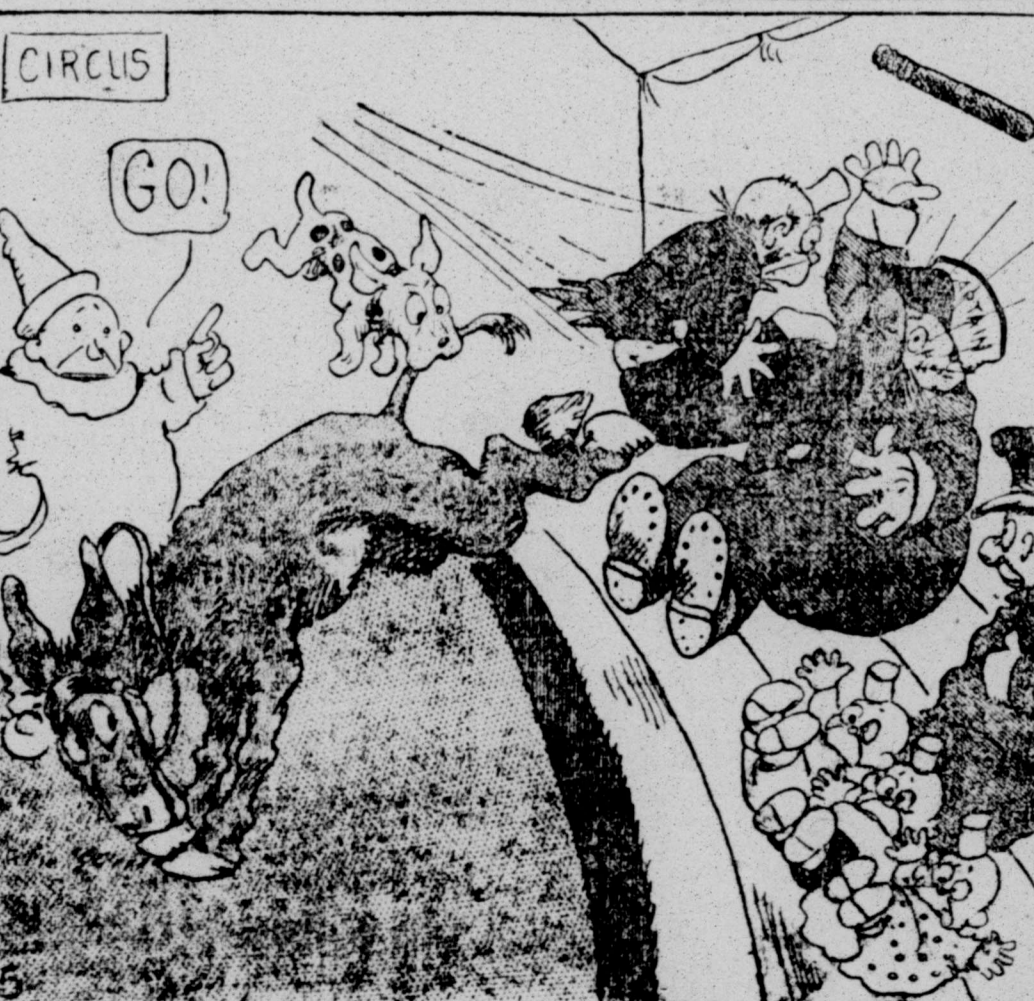

5. Then the Lion and the Bear and the little Fox all took a club and began to beat the wicked Snake. They hit him on the head until he began to see stars. He cried and promised never to do it again, but the Lion said, "Let us keep on beating him a little while longer!" And they kept it up until they were tired.

6. Then the Lion sent for two little monkeys and made them play skipping rope with Toodles and Pussy. They took the Snake for a rope, and turned him around and around, and Toodles and Pussy had a fine game. The Snake kept crying "Ouch!" because he was getting tired, but nobody was sorry for him. When it was all over the Snake went home. And he never frightened anybody again.

HAPPY HOOLIGAN TAKES HIS THREE LITTLE NEPHEWS TO THE CIRCUS. His Brother Gloomy Gus and His Dog Flip Are Also Among Those Present.

THE PAYMASTER'S RIDE

[Original.]

This is a true story related to me by the brother of the man principally concerned. Only the name is changed.

Many years ago, when California was inhabited largely by people of Spanish descent, John Nolan was an officer of a lumber company at Sacramento. It was one of his duties to go among the lumber camps of the company in a little two seated wagon and pay off the men. One evening while riding from one camp to another Nolan saw the figure of a woman standing in the road ahead of him, evidently waiting for him to come up.

"Will you give me a lift, signor?" she said when he reached her.

"Certainly. Get up beside me, or, if you think it too crowded on the front seat, take the hind one."

"Thank you, signor," replied the woman. "I will take the seat that gives the most room." And she climbed in at the rear.

"H'm" said Nolan to himself. "She has an eye to correct behavior." And he drove on. "It's a fine night," he remarked by way of opening a conversation. "I think the moon must be at the full."

"A fine night," repeated the woman without adding any thing further. Nolan tried with several remarks to draw her into conversation, but, failing, relapsed into silence. The moonlit plain over which he was driving, the serene heavens through which the queen of night was slowly moving, the glittering stars, were far more attractive than a woman who would not talk. Nolan drove on, occupied with his own thoughts, and was gradually forgetting his companion, when, happening to turn his head sideways, he caught a flash of moonlight reflected from some polished surface behind him.

Now, there was nothing in the light of the round disk in the heavens to stir any emotions within John Nolan except those of the most serene character. Why, then, should these few reflected rays, this momentary glitter, cause his heart to stand still and a cold shiver to run down his back? What passed through his mind was even quicker than the flash of moonlight. It was this: He was riding alone, with a large sum of the company's money in his possession. He was known far and wide as the company's paymaster, and this woman was sitting behind him ready to plunge a knife into him in order to obtain the money.

He was armed, but what use a weapon at his hip in plain sight of the woman behind him? At the first move of his hand to grasp a foot of cold steel would be thrust between his ribs. There was but one chance for him, and that a remote one—he must appear to be without suspicion and invent some artifice to secure an advantage.

Turning partly sideways, he addressed a remark to her, keeping in that position as if to converse the more readily, but without in the least appearing to be aware of her purpose. As he turned, her arm that had been raised sank and her hand found concealment in the folds of her dress. One of Nolan's eyes was strained to watch her, while the other was cast ahead at a forest they would soon enter. He knew that in the struggle which was inevitable he would have an advantage on the open plain. Within the shadow of the wood there would be no ray of moonlight to reveal to him an overhanging dagger. He must devise before they reached the wood some expedient either to get rid of the woman or force her to show her hand.

"Get up, you lazy beast," he said to his horse. "At this rate we'll be out all night." And, striking at the animal with his whip, he contrived to drop it in the road.

"Whoa!" He pretended to try to stop the horse at once, but took pains that he should leave some interval between them and the fallen whip.

"I've dropped my whip," he said to the woman. "Would you mind getting it for me?"

The woman hesitated a moment, then got down and went back for the whip. The moment she picked it up Nolan lashed the horse with the reins and started on. The woman, seeing that she had been tricked, ran for the wagon.

Then began a race which Nolan feared was one between life and death. His horse, which was merely a hack, broke into a lope, but made no great speed. The woman, on the contrary, ran swiftly and in a few minutes caught hold of the tailboard of the wagon. Nolan seized the weapon nearest at hand, the seat the woman had been sitting on, and began to belabor her over the head. But her head was hard, and she was persistent. While she ran she was making efforts to climb over the dashboard and get into the wagon. Finally in one of these attempts her foot left the ground, and she was poised on the tailboard.

Now, Nolan even in self protection had no stomach for killing a woman. Thus far he had neither shot at her nor made any effort to stab her. But when he saw her about to force an entrance he used the next most effective weapon to the sent—his boot. With a kick under the cheek he laid her unconscious in the road. There he left her to hurry on to the lumber camp.

Later when a party of lumbermen stopped where the affair had occurred they found the fallen robber still lying in the road.

"That's no woman," said one of the party, peering at the face upturned to the moonlight. "That's that Mexican gambler Yerez. He went broke yesterday and evidently tried to recoup by robbing the paymaster."

Contestants who are interested in this contest should take advantage of this condition and secure as many votes as possible between now and the above date. All the contestants are now on equal standing, with the exception of one or two, and their lead is not so great but that the others by a little extra effort, a little hard, energetic work, may be able to overtake them in a very short time. Make this next day count. Any young lady who lives in any town or city outside of Oklahoma City, in the two Territories, can be nominated as the most popular lady in Oklahoma and Indian Territory. The reason that Oklahoma City is excluded from the contest is that it is too large a town and puts the young ladies in smaller towns at a disadvantage. It requires no money at all to make a nomination; send in the name of any young lady whom you would like to see get one of the handsome awards, and THE TELEGRAM will publish her name. If you wish to cast any votes for a nominee, at the time of nomination or afterwards, you will be allowed four votes for every cent paid between now and midnight, November 5, 1903. Hustle some votes for your favorite. DO IT NOW! The contest will close at midnight, December 26, 1903.
