TERRITORY TORNADO DEMOLISHES A TOWN

Practically Every House in Hydro, O. T., Is Wrecked By the Storm

THREE ARE KILLED AND MANY INJURED

Last Night Remarkable for Peculiar Atmospheric Disturbances

AURORA BOREALIS TIES UP TELEGRAPH

Fort Worth Visited by Short But Violent Storm Early This Morning - Wind Attains High Velocity

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Oct. 31.—A tornado last night demolished most of the houses at Hydro near here, killing three persons and fatally injuring several others.

Hydro is a town of 100 inhabitants in Caddo county, 37 miles northwest from Anadarko, and is off the railroad.

TELEGRAPH LINES BADLY AFFECTED

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Serious electrical disturbances said to be due to an aurora borealis caused great inconvenience to telegraph companies today. Telegraph wires in all directions from Chicago felt the effect which in some localities caused a total cessation of business.

EUROPEAN LINES AFFECTED NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The French Cable Company gives notice that owing to the extraordinary electrical disturbances, they are informed by the European administration that business will be subject to a heavy delay.

STORM AT ARDMORE ARDMORE, I. T., Oct. 31.(Special).—A heavy rain fell here yesterday morning, accompanied by an electrical storm. Lightning struck Contractor L. R. Marston, who was standing on his back porch, knocking him almost senseless for a while. Ed Thomas' house was also struck, knocking out a corner in and burning up some wires inside.

BIG RAIN AT WACO WACO, Texas, Oct. 31.(Special).—A heavy rain, accompanied by a severe electrical storm visited here this morning.

THE STORM LOCALLY There was a local thunder storm in this vicinity last night, accompanied by an electrical display, the wind blowing only about thirty-four miles an hour. The rainfall was .93.

When customers of the Fort Worth Light and Power Company failed to get a response in current when the motors were tried this morning they at once came to the conclusion that the storm had played havoc. Observer Geo. Reeder of the weather bureau says a storm of this character is natural at this season of the year. It is caused by the cold temperature coming down from the Rocky Mountains, but is never serious. The rainfall, however, on this occasion was extended and is reported from all parts of Texas, from the territories and Arkansas. The wind was from the west and the rain is moving eastward and will cross the Mississippi valley this evening. The Panhandle counties report excellent rains.

The greatest damage was to the plant of the Fort Worth Light and Power Company. The company has two 300 kilowatt machines. One of these was burned out during the night, and the second one, which is an exact duplicate was called into service. About 6 o'clock this morning the belt on the duplicate broke, and the company was without power for the motors which it supplies in various parts of the city. The company is repairing the damaged armature, and in the meantime the belt has been patched up and at 10:30 o'clock this morning the company was ready to start up.

The telephone company suffered no damage, except that about thirty phones were put out of business for awhile.

Neither of the telegraph companies were damaged in any particular.

The excellent construction of the system of the Northern Texas Traction Company is pointed to as being shown by the fact that no damage whatever occurred to the line during the storm.

There was a relay of the Postal service at Armour's burned out last night. The Telegram was delayed this morning in starting its mechanical plant, because of the accident to the Fort Worth Light and Power Company.

WACO HAS AN $18,000 FIRE EARLY TODAY

Doctors' Offices Destroyed, Drug and Book Stores Badly Damaged by Fire and Water. Insurance Adequate

WACO, Texas, Oct. 31.—(Special).—At an early hour this morning fire destroyed a number of doctors' offices at Fifth and Justin streets and the drug store of W. T. Bohanner was ruined by water and smoke. H. H. Godber's book and stationery store was damaged several thousand dollars worth by the water and smoke. It was insured. Bohanner's loss is $11,000 and insurance $7,500.

The total loss by all parties is about $18,000, fairly well covered by insurance.

BALL AT REDMEN'S HALL

First of a Series Last Night is Largely Attended

The first of a series of balls to be given during the present season by the directors of Red Men's hall, was given last night. The committee in charge was much gratified by the large attendance, there being fully 150 couples in the grand march, which was led by Jeff D. McLean and Miss Zimmerman. The decorations of the hall were elaborate and tasteful. Luncheon was served in the banquet room. The balls are being given for the purpose of raising funds with which to furnish the hall. The second one of the series will be given the latter part of November, the date to be announced later.

GAVE WARDJON A WATCH

W. M. Wardjon, national organizer for the United Mine Workers of America, left this morning, having just returned from a visit to Thurber. He is to go to Colorado to take part in the labor troubles there. During his visit to Thurber he was presented with a handsome gold watch by the members of the local union which he organized there. It was suitably inscribed and told the story of appreciation of the members of the union for the good work he did for them in Thurber and vicinity.

Mrs. A. W. Hughes

New York, where the sculptor-artist is widely known, is awaiting the developments promised when the matter comes to trial for the second time. Mrs. Hughes was alleged to have received male visitors in a pink silk wrapper, which garment was the most widely discussed feature of the case, which was widely publicized.

EXTRA SESSION IS FOURTEENTH IN OUR HISTORY

Previous Occasion on Which Congress Was Assembled for Special Reasons—Hard Times Caused Two

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(Special).—President Roosevelt's call for an extra session of congress to meet Monday, November 9, to consider Cuban reciprocity will be the fourteenth extraordinary session of congress in the 114 years of our national existence. The power vested in the president by the constitution as to the convening of congress on extraordinary occasions has been exercised by eleven presidents since the adoption of the constitution, namely, John Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Van Buren, William Henry Harrison, Pierce, Lincoln, Hayes, Cleveland, McKinley and now by Roosevelt.

IN JEFFERSON'S TIME

President Jefferson again found it necessary to call an extra session two congresses later, this time in relation to the British attack upon the United States frigate Chesapeake and the seizure of alleged deserters from the English navy under the "right of search" claimed by his majesty, George III. Jefferson's famous "embargo act" was promptly passed and liberal appropriations were made for a navy and harbor and coast defenses. The country was preparing for our second war with Great Britain. Four years later, in 1811, Madison convened the Twelfth congress on November 4, to consider our strained relations with the mother country. The war spirit was strikingly shown in the election of Henry Clay to the speakership over Bibb of Georgia, who was a peace candidate, by 75 to 28. During this session preparations for the inevitable war with England were resumed on a greater scale. Customs duties were doubled, $5,000,000 of treasury notes was authorized and a 2 per cent loan of $11,000,000 was floated so that when the Madison war proclamation was issued this country was not yet prepared to meet a foe with such resources as the English. Special attention was given to the building up of an American navy, while the army was totally neglected. An oversight that cost this nation dear. The undisciplined American forces met defeat with regularity, while America became the mistress of the seas. It was left to Andy Jackson, with his brave and hardy boys from the Kentucky and Tennessee mountains, to save the young republic, and it was he who drove the pride of Wellington back into the sea at New Orleans. The session of congress in 1814 began with an extra session to consider negotiations then on foot with Great Britain for a return of peace or to order a more effective prosecution of the war. The congress which convened September 15 was under distressing circumstances. The city had been sacked by the British invaders. The capitol was charred and blackened. The White House was in ruins, and desolation reigned. There was disappointment in the New England states over the express desire of some of the leaders of the president's cabinet to still further prosecute the war. But the repeated successes of Jackson's arms in the south and severe reverses to the English navy on the seas brought an end to the war and the bird of peace was again evident. Had it not been for the return of Napoleon, England's arch enemy, from Elba to resume the dictatorship of Europe, Great Britain would not have been brought to terms so easily. So the country was again saved much blood and treasure by events which finally brought about the fall of its old friend, the French government.

FINANCIAL EMBARRASSMENT

Not until 1837 was there again any need for an extra session of the American congress. President Van Buren, however, convened congress on the 4th day of September, 1837, for the purpose of taking cognizance of a deficit in the treasury. The only measure of relief offered by the president was the plan of the sub-treasury, thereby divorcing the government and all its operations from banks. While his proposition failed, treasury notes were issued, though less in amount than was recommended by the president, and it brought temporary relief. Again on May 21, 1841, an extraordinary session of congress was called, on this occasion by President Harrison, to take up matters in relation to the finances of the country. And it was during the Twenty-seventh congress that the first distinctly national bank act was passed. The Thirty-fourth congress having failed to make an appropriation for the army, an extra session was called by President Pierce, meeting three days after the close of the first session of that congress.

THE NINTH SESSION

The ninth extra session opened the famous Thirty-seventh congress, and was called by President Lincoln on account of the opposition to laws of the United States on the part of certain southern states who were in secession. During this session many important laws were passed, increasing the military and naval establishments, revising the tariff and leaving a direct income tax. Sixteen years later, in 1877, President Hayes called the Forty-fifth congress together in an extraordinary session, because of the failure of the Forty-fourth congress during its second session to make appropriations for the army. The final adjournment of the Forty-fifth congress, without making the usual appropriations for the legislative, executive and judicial departments, and the support of the army, caused President Hayes to convene the Forty-sixth congress with an extra session on March 13, 1879. The twelfth extra session was convened by President Cleveland, August 8, 1893, for the purpose of repealing the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver act. The Fifty-fifth began with an extra session, convened on the proclamation of President McKinley, to revise the Wilson-Gorman bill, passed by a preceding congress. This is the story of the extra sessions of the United States congress from the birth of the republic.

FREIGHT RATE WAR

A freight war is about to break out anew between the lines plying between New York, Atlantic coast and Mississippi river points, which was settled some time ago. The first-rate class has already been cut 5 cents per hundred pounds. The trouble arose over a special rate between New York and Shreveport, La.

JUSTICE NOT LAGGING IN MARTIN CASE

Negro Indicted for the Sweckheimer Murder Yesterday to Be Put on Trial Next Week. Dead Farmer Buried

The Tarrant county grand jury yesterday evening returned an indictment against Rufus Martin for murder. Martin is accused of killing and robbing Charles Sweckheimer, a German farmer, who resided near the Masonic widows' and orphan's home, last Wednesday evening. Justice is moving swiftly in his case. The murder was committed at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. At 1 o'clock next morning Martin was in jail. Later in the morning Judge Dunklin of the Forty-eighth district court ordered the grand jury to be summoned. It convened yesterday morning and yesterday afternoon returned an indictment against the negro. It is announced that the case will be set down for next Thursday, for which day a special venire will be summoned. The trial of the case probably will consume Thursday and Friday and by a week to rest. Rev. G. E. Winfield of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, of Handley, conducted the funeral.

THE OIL FIELDS AT BEAUMONT

Wert Paddock Says They Are Satisfactory, But Prices Are Lower

Wert A. Paddock, who formerly lived in Fort Worth, now engaged in the oil business at Beaumont, is in the city to visit with his parents, Captain and Mrs. B. B. Paddock, for a few days. Mr. Paddock was asked for a report of oil conditions at Beaumont and replied that everything was looking well in the oil fields at Beaumont and Sour Lake and that conditions were satisfactory in a business way. The output, he says, is about 12,000 to 15,000 barrels a day at Spindletop and about 25,000 barrels daily at Sour Lake. Regarding prices of oil he said that it was selling in pipe lines at Beaumont at from 40 to 45 cents per barrel, while at Sour Lake the price was from 20 to 35 cents per barrel. Regarding the building of the Santa Fe into Saratoga, Mr. Paddock said that the extension is to be made, although no definite steps have been taken by the company.

22 BALES OFF 25 ACRES

Good Cotton Crop in Ellis County. Money in Hogs

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Oct. 31.—(Special).—J. C. Reynolds, a farmer living in the western part of Ellis county was in Waxahachie a day or two ago and said that he would make twenty-two bales of cotton on twenty-five acres of land this fall. Mr. Reynolds is a farmer who keeps books on his cotton crop, and to date this year he has sold from the twenty-five acres mentioned 10,458 pounds of lint cotton, or 42 pounds less than 21 bales. He will get enough to make 22 bales when his crop is all picked. J. V. Clark of Italy the other day sold four big fat hogs at 6 cents per pound, realizing from the sale $107.04. The combined weight of the four porkers was 1,784 pounds, or an average of 446 pounds each. The heaviest one tipped the beam at 514 pounds. R. K. Erwin, who travels for the Continental Oil Company, owns two good farms near Waxahachie. He has several acres of alfalfa on each farm and so well pleased is he with the results obtained that he will this fall plant several additional acres. Mr. Erwin has also had one acre of land prepared which he will plant to white Bermuda onions. Mr. Erwin says this onion is very prolific and with proper cultivation he estimates that $700 can be realized from one acre.

In the United States the distance of the average railway journey is 23 miles; in England it is scarcely 10 miles, while in Germany it is 15 miles, in France 21 miles and in Russia 65 miles.

TWELVE PERSONS KILLED IN A WRECK ON THE BIG FOUR

Train Carrying Purdue Football Team Ditched Near Indianapolis

A DOZEN BODIES HAVE BEEN FOUND

Eleven Was on Its Way to Play State University Football Team

WRECKED JUST BEFORE END OF THE JOURNEY

Wreck Occurred on the Edge of the City But a Short Distance From Where Game Was to Have Been Played

(By Associated Press.) INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 31.—The Big Four train carrying the members of a football team of Purdue University from Lafayette was wrecked this morning at the edge of this city. The team was scheduled to play with the Indiana State University this afternoon. Twelve bodies have been taken from the wreck.

and told me that he was coming to see me and that his wife would be with him and that he was going to make me get down on my knees and apologize to her. I told him, as I had previously told her, that if any remark of mine had been misunderstood, or wrongly construed into a reflection upon her character, I would apologize. I also told him to keep away from my office. 'You'll be walking into death if you come to get me,' I said. Yesterday afternoon I was sitting in my office when I saw them approaching. 'When they got to the yard, I understood Mrs. Tackaberry to say: 'There he is, Will; get him.' Tackaberry had his hand in his hip pocket. I told him to stop and pulled my pistol. He was in the yard. I did not want to kill him—I earnestly hope and pray he will recover—but when he pulled his hand out of his pocket I thought he was drawing a pistol. I shot at his right hand as he drew it from his pocket. I then fired one more shot. He turned from me and said: 'Don't shoot any more; I am unarmed.' I then quit and turned my pistol over to a bystander at the same time requesting that he be searched.

TACKABERRY HOVERING AT DEATH'S DOOR

Dr. Miller Says Wounded Man Has Only One Chance in a Thousand—Nowell Is Out on Bond

Will Tackaberry, who was shot twice by Price Nowell yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, is hovering between life and death at St. Joseph's infirmary.

"From the nature of his wounds he has about one chance in a thousand to recover," said Dr. R. E. L. Miller, the attending physician, today. "His gameness and vitality give him the only chance he has. The shot which entered his body near the navel penetrated the intestines and lodged in the muscles of the back. The intestines were punctured in twelve places. The operation last night consumed two and one-half hours. He stood the shock remarkably well."

TROUBLE OF LONG STANDING

That trouble between Nowell and Tackaberry had been brewing for some time, is shown by the fact that Nowell yesterday called at the office of County Attorney Lattimore and said that his life had been threatened. At the same time he exhibited a letter which he had received from Fort Scott, Kan., dated October 18, in which the writer made certain allegations and added that if there was anything wrong, he would return and that if he did "hell wouldn't be very far away."

"I don't know how seriously he was wounded, but I am sure he has a pistol. From what had passed between us I did not think it possible that he would come around the way he did—unarmed. As soon as he sat down I asked some of those in the crowd to do something for him. Then I was arrested. I engaged Judge Shropshire as my lawyer and he obtained bond for me. Friends called on me all night long wishing to go on my bond if I needed their help."

W. B. Edgington, Ben O. Smith and J. A. Ault went on Nowell's bond, which was fixed by Justice Rowland at $1,500. Following the shooting, Tackaberry was removed to the office of Dr. R. E. L. Miller at Seventh and Houston streets, where he was given an anesthetic of ether. Later he was removed to St. Joseph's, and there last night was operated on. One bullet passed through his intestines and the other through the groin. He is not in condition to make a statement.

MRS. TACKABERRY TALKS Within a few minutes after the shooting, Mrs. Tackaberry was seen by a writer for The Telegram. She was at the time rather hysterical, and was in the reception room at the office of Dr. R. E. L. Miller.

"He had no right to shoot Will," she said. "Will had done nothing to him, but had gone there simply to get an apology to me. Oh, I will make him pay for this. I guess I am the one who ought to have been shot. Will went there to ask him to apologize to me. He had no right to say the things about me that he did and I told him so."

The wounded man showed a great deal of nerve. As he was shot he eased himself to the ground, and waited without a murmur for the ready hands to bear him to the physician's office. As he was being carried across Seventh street an acquaintance came up and he spoke to him quietly as if nothing had occurred. While on the operating table at Dr. Miller's office he turned to the writer for The Telegram and remarked: "I don't think he should have shot me. I was not armed and simply went to ask him to apologize to my wife for what he said. He did not give me a chance to say for what I came, but shot me at the door."

MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN

Hillsboro Politicians Are Already Beginning to Get Busy HILLSBORO, Texas, Oct. 30.—Hillsboro is to elect a mayor and four aldermen in the election to be held next April and it already begins to attract attention. The interest was increased by a call by the retiring chairman of the city democratic executive committee, E. B. Hughes, for a democratic mass meeting. It will be held in the district court room and for the purpose of electing a chairman and committee for the ensuing two years. It is learned that the question of a double primary will be discussed at this meeting. No candidates have announced yet but announcements will be forthcoming in a few days if the double primaries are determined upon.

At 6 o'clock last evening Frank Ryan, a youth of 16, was knocked off of a Katy handcar. The wheels ran over his thigh and he was badly hurt. He got on the car two miles south of town to ride in, and getting too near the lever was in a necked off. The enrollment of the public schools for the school month just ended shows an attendance of 852 pupils, as compared with 793 for the same month last year. Of this increase twenty-five are white and thirty-five are colored.

TO LOCATE A FACTORY

Cleburne Stands Good Chance of Getting New Industry CLEBURNE, Oct. 31.—(Special).—W. G. Tice of Weatherford wishes to locate a hosiery factory here which will employ fifty hands at about $300 per month. Bishop A. C. Garrett will make his regular Cleburne visitation to preach and administer the rite of confirmation Sunday, Nov. 22. Pat Cleburne camp will also invite the bishop to address them.

FIVE YEARS IN THE PEN FOR JOHNSON

Shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the jury in the case of F. M. Johnson, a former Confederate soldier, who was charged with murdering J. P. Robinson, who also was in the Confederate army, returned a verdict finding the defendant guilty in the second degree and assessing his punishment at confinement in the penitentiary for five years. The defendant is over 60 years old. The scene in the court room, when the old man was consoled by his aged and grief-stricken wife was pathetic. The jury was out from noon until 4 o'clock. On the first ballot it stood eleven for conviction and one not voting. On the second ballot it stood twelve for conviction. The killing took place September 13, 1902. It is understood that a motion for a new trial will be filed.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

FORECAST

The forecast for Texas east of the one hundredth meridian, issued at New Orleans, is as follows:

WEATHER CONDITIONS

Forecasters George Reeder issued the following report of the weather conditions this morning:

The moderate disturbance which was centered in the Texas Panhandle yesterday morning moved slowly eastward. It has no well defined center this morning, but has spread out in area of low pressure extending across Texas and the territories in a trough shape, and is more noticeable for its precipitation than any other feature.

The cold wave that was following in the storm's wake is fast breaking up. The line of freezing temperature skirts the eastern Rock mountain slope.

CALL FOR MASS MEETING ARDMORE, I. T., Oct. 31.—Mayor R. W. Dick of this city and the mayors of Marietta, Davis, Dougherty and Berwyn have issued a call for a mass meeting of the citizens of the twenty-first recording district to meet in Ardmore on November 3 to select twelve delegates and twelve alternates to attend the convention ever called to meet in the Indian Territory, for the reason that there is no division of opinion as to the necessity and importance of having a delegate to represent it in congress.

DENTON'S STREET FAIR Good Attractions Promised for Week Beginning November 16. DENTON, Texas, Oct. 31.—(Special.)—Denton will have a street fair for one week, beginning November 16 and lasting for one week. Messrs. Schultz and Bell, members of the Denton fire department, returned yesterday from Ardmore, where they went for the purpose of completing the arrangements for the attraction. They were well pleased with the exhibitions which are being given there this week and are enthusiastic in their opinions that it is going to prove a drawing card for Denton.

The aggregate receipts of hogs in sight at the three principal markets today was light, and to make a good close for the week the small supplies were taken early, all markets closing for the week strong and active. Chicago paid a top of $5.45, with the bulk at $4.85@5.20. Hogs at both Kansas City and St. Louis touched $5.40, with the bulk of sales largely at Chicago's prices.

On the local market supplies were light, only one car of butcher hogs and one load of stockers and feeders showing up for today's trading. The First National bank of Cushing, Ok., had in one load of choice quality medium weight hogs, averaging 150 pounds, which sold to Armour & Co. at $5.35, with fourteen pigs cut from the bunch, averaging 123 pounds, selling at the same price.

Hog receipts for next week are estimated at 5,500 head, with prospects for a small continuous decline throughout the week. Choice sorted hogs are quoted at $5.25@5.30; good quality butchers, medium weight, at $5.15@5.20, and pigs and lights at $5@5.25.

General Sporting News

Strenuous as have been the days to date for big football eleven, all the more so will they be from now on.

Up on South Field, Coach "Bill" Morley, the "best coach Columbia ever saw," as the collegians sing, is showing his men some new tricks.

Princeton's warriors are preparing for Cornell's sturdy and fighting eleven, while up at Cambridge the Harvard eleven is getting ready to take the scalps of the Indians.

The results of these big games are being looked forward to by football enthusiasts with much interest, as they will virtually decide the championship honors of the big eastern colleges.

With the close of this week but two of the "Big Four" remain undefeated. Pennsylvania, the promising and the beautiful, fell once more into the former rut and went down in inglorious defeat.

BUTTERWORTH ON NEW CODE

According to Butterworth, the old Yale player and the present director of football affairs at Northwestern University, the new rules have not had much effect so far, beyond causing some trick plays.

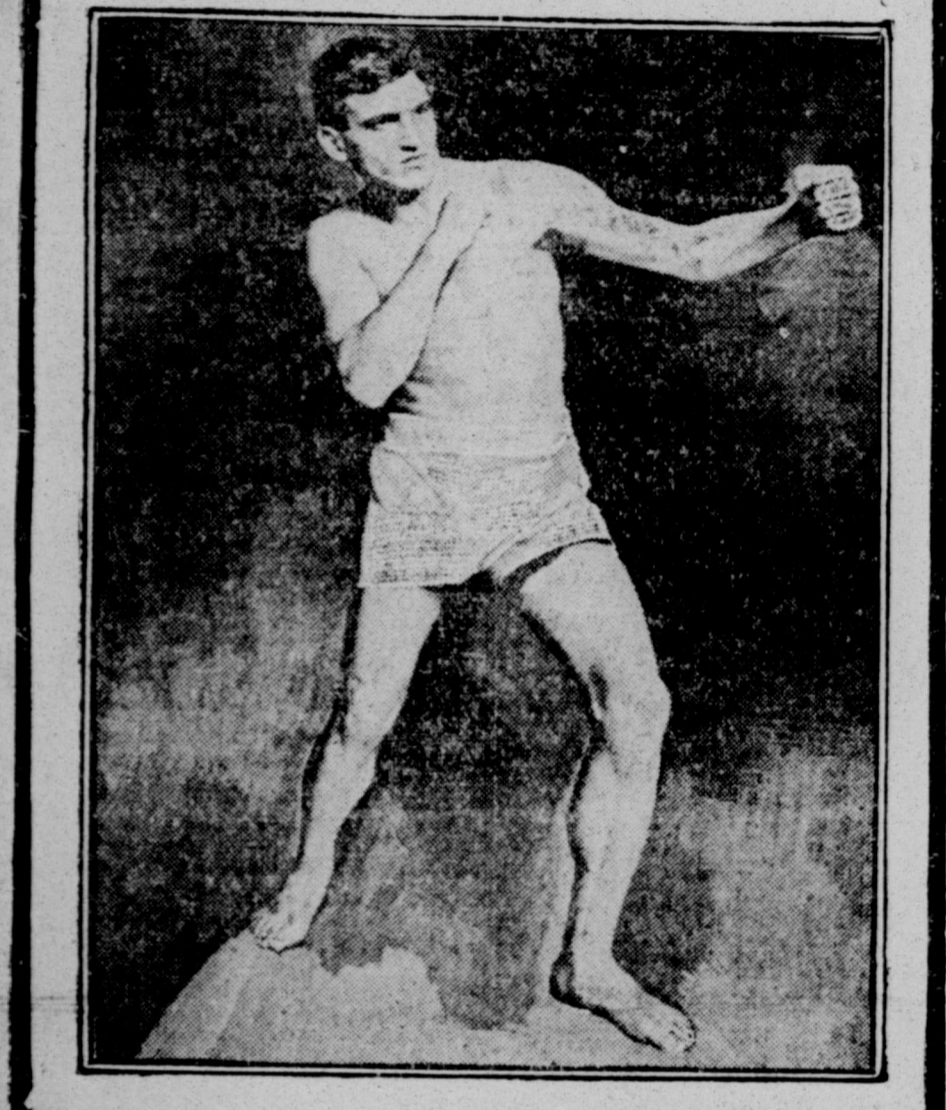

He contends that the new code helps a light team, and illustrates this by showing that a high school eleven scored on Northwestern in the first game played by the Evanston team this season.

Of the big eastern events, Cornell and Princeton only have clean slates with no scores against them, but the meeting between the two today may reduce the number to zero.

THE TUESDAY ELECTIONS: There are to be elections next Tuesday, and the general public will watch the result with interest. While it is an off year nationally, there are national matters involved, as there are to be legislatures elected which will be called on to select United States senators.

The issue in Ohio is not so much Tom Johnson for governor as it is an anti-Hanna legislature, and to that end the mayor of Cleveland is working with all his might.

The Massachusetts contest will decide to what extent Olney will figure in national affairs. If the Old Bay State can be thrown into the democratic column by the election of Gaston it will increase the popularity of Richard Olney as a presidential possibility. It is claimed by some that when the votes are counted the republicans will be much surprised, as there are chances of it being another "Russell" year.

Last year Rhode Island went democratic as far as the governor was concerned, and he is a candidate for renomination. Opposing him is the head of the rubber trust. If the democrats can re-elect Garvin there is chance to capture the state next year for the democratic candidate for president.

Maryland is an important factor. Senator Gorman is charged with the democratic plan of campaign and the proof of it turns on the issue of white supremacy in the state government. There are only 40,000 negro voters in the state, but they are the votes absolutely necessary to republican success. The republicans say it is silly for the democrats to alarm the people with cries of "negro domination," but the democrats reply that a negro balance of power is as dangerous to Caucasian civilization and good government as would be a negro majority electing a negro official. The election of a senator is involved and adds large personal influence to the democratic side of the fight, while the probable candidacy of Senator Gorman for the democratic presidential nomination gives the campaign a national interest. The election betters book the democrats as sure winners.

In Iowa the fight is being made on the tariff issue. The contest will be decided by the farmer vote and it remains to be seen whether Secretaries Shaw and Wilson and Senator Aldrich can hold them in line.

The election in New York city is the one in which President Roosevelt is taking the greatest interest and his anxiety in that contest is very strong. A great effort is being made in New York to secure better government. Seth Low has been renominated for mayor with two democratic associates on his ticket, and a so-called fusion party has been formed, consisting of republicans and as many independent democrats as would consent to join the party. The registration has risen to 641,000. In the fall of 1902 the democrats carried New York by 85,000 majority. It is an enormous disparity to overcome. Nevertheless, Low's friends are working hard to elect their candidate. They may succeed, but the chances are decidedly against their success, because many democrats who were first inclined to support Low have been whipped into the traces by the Tammany leaders and they will now vote the regular democratic ticket. Tammany nominated for mayor George R. McClellan, a son of the late General McClellan, a reputable man, but of such soft material that he would be putty in the hands of the Tammany leaders. Mayor Low has issued an interesting leaflet to the voters of New York, showing how much the reform movement has accomplished for better government. He concludes his appeal by pithily stating, "In this contest there can be no neutrals. The voter who is not against Tammany is for Tammany."

Carl Schurz has taken sides with the Low movement and is haranguing the Germans. The present leader of Tammany is Charles Murphy, who made a fortune running six saloons. He is a good sample of a Tammany politician. At the present time the bets are about even as to who may win, but if Low does beat Tammany, it will be almost a miracle and will render Low one of the most eminent men in the United States.

It must also be borne in mind that if Low wins it will go far to insure the presidential vote of New York for Theodore Roosevelt.

The entire country will watch the result of the elections. If prognostications are correct, the democrats have the best of it—but votes count.

The New York Herald has hitherto been remarkably successful in its ante-election poll of voters whether in the city or the state of New York. Hence its poll this year has been awaited with a great deal of interest. The system on which it works has been endorsed by experts, and while, of course, there is nothing really conclusive about it, it possesses at least a decided interest.

According to the Herald the vote in the coming election will be divided as follows: Manhattan and the Bronx—McClellan, 151,940; Low, 159,938; Devery, 14,912; McClellan's plurality, 2,094.

Brooklyn—Low, 123,057; McClellan, 85,509; Devery, 817; Low's plurality, 37,548.

Queens—McClellan, 15,148; Low, 14,276; McClellan's plurality, 872.

Richmond—Low, 8,061; McClellan, 5,533; Low's plurality, 2,468.

This would give Low a plurality of 27,149 in Greater New York. The Brooklyn Eagle has, however, also taken a poll which very nearly reverses that of the Herald. For instance it gives McClellan a plurality of 42,741 in Manhattan and the Bronx, and 4,325 in Queens; while Low has a plurality of 10,803 in Brooklyn and 1,567 in Richmond. According to the Eagle's figures, McClellan would have a plurality of 54,756.

The report comes from Dallas that George D. Armistead, since 1896 political writer for the Dallas Times-Herald and North Texas correspondent of the Houston Post, is to go to Washington to represent those papers during the next session of congress. Mr. Armistead is in his element when with the politicians of Washington. He is thoroughly posted on political conditions in Texas and he will be able to give the Texas people an idea of what is going on that will interest them. He is decidedly wedded to Senator Bailey, however, and there is a possibility that he will put too much in type about the junior senator. But George is a good writer, and he will be known in Washington.

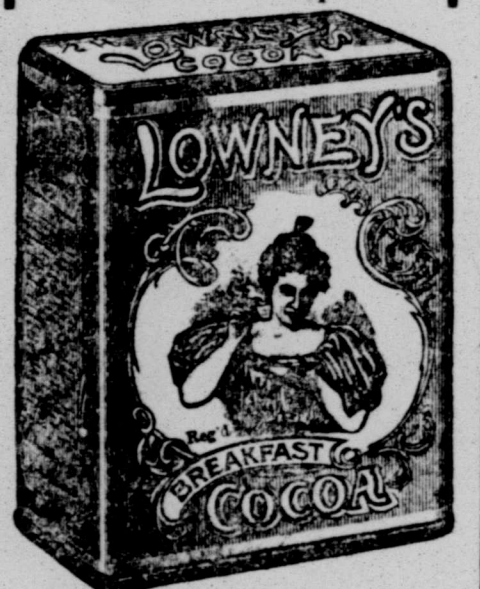

City Judge Prewett has taught the pistol toter a lesson. A fine of $75 was imposed yesterday on one who was convicted of carrying a pistol, and it was none too high. In fact, the law provides a higher penalty and there is a possibility that Judge Prewett will think of the higher amount next time. The way to stop so much killing is to stop so much pistol carrying. The hump under the coat shows who has the gun. Let the officers make the arrests and the judge will do the rest.

The meeting of the State Federation of Women's clubs in this city has been postponed until November 24. This gives a full month of conventions. First comes the Methodists, then the State Federation of Labor and then the Women's clubs. Fort Worth is truly the convention city.

TERRIFIES WOMEN BUT A REPETITION

(Original) Aunt Mary was very old. She was stone blind, but like most people who make up for one deficiency with acuteness in another, she could hear everything that was even whispered in her presence, and some people vowed she could hear more.

The Rev. Mr. Bogle, a very young minister, whose duties as assistant rector were principally to visit the poor of the parish, usually got round to a call on Aunt Mary about 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. Jennie Pixley, who sat spellbound in church on those rare occasions when Mr. Bogle was permitted to preach one of his rhetorical sermons, but had found few opportunities to be alone with him, knew that he visited Aunt Mary on Wednesday afternoons, for she watched him from behind the blinds going past her house to do so.

One Wednesday afternoon shortly before 4 o'clock Jennie knocked at Aunt Mary's door and, being bidden, entered, finding the old woman knitting socks in a high backed rocker.

"I am Jennie Pixley, Aunt Mary. I've often thought how lonely you must be here by yourself and just came in to have a little chat with you."

"That's very kind of you," said the old woman. "I can't see you, but I can hear you, and you have a sweet voice—a kindly voice. I'm sure you must be very unselfish to come and see a poor old woman like me."

Jennie felt a little guilty at this, because in timing her visit she had only allowed five minutes before the usual arrival of the clergyman. Indeed, she had barely time to express a little sympathy before he came in. Jennie looked very much put out at being caught and expressed wonder how it was that they happened to meet at the same hour of the same day. Mr. Bogle, who had seen Jennie's fresh young face and melting eyes looking up at him when he occupied the pulpit and had been longing to meet her, remarked that it was always pleasant to cross the path of those engaged in the Lord's work, whereupon Jennie wondered how he could be always ready with such speeches. Together they talked with Aunt Mary and the clergyman took out his notebook to put down what she required, Jennie volunteering to supply most of the articles. Then after many expressions of sympathy they left the house together.

The next Wednesday afternoon Mr. Bogle was hurrying past Jennie's house, when a sudden thought struck him and he turned and rang the bell. Jennie was watching him through the blinds and knew what he wanted. Indeed, her hat was pinned on to her head preparatory to going with the assistant rector if he should ask her. He did ask her, announcing that Aunt Mary had been ill and was rapidly falling.

When they reached the house they found the old lady in bed and not especially alive to what was going on. They stood over her and looked down upon her commiseratingly.

"She's very feeble, poor soul," said the rector.

"Very," assented Jennie. "I think we had better sit down and talk over what it is best to do in the matter. She needs attention."

"I can stay this afternoon," said Jennie, looking down demurely.

"I did, and I said more than I have repeated."

"What more?" "I said, 'She has a soul as pure as a pearl, a heart as true as the holy gospel and as tender as the tear of a repentant Christian.'"

"What more?" "I said, 'What lovely rosy cheeks, what shining hair, what soft eyes, and the mouth is pretty enough to'—He paused."

"What?" asked Jennie, looking up into his face, a picture of wonder. Jennie's face was near the clergyman's, and her parted lips were irresistible. For a moment there was the stillness of well, of the sick chamber, and then there was a smack loud enough to wake. At any rate, it aroused Aunt Mary. She uttered a moan. The two arose from the seat on which they had been consulting as to her requirements, went to her and stood over her.

"Aunt Mary," said the clergyman, "do you want anything?"

"I was dreaming. Was I dreaming, or was it real? It can't be real, because I'm not eighteen; I'm eighty. Mother was sick upstairs. She died that night. Arthur came in, he said, 'to ask after mother,' but I knew he wanted to see me. We sat down on the sofa, and he began to tell me of his love. 'I can't listen to it now, Arthur. I said, 'with mother dying upstairs. It is awful selfish. We should be there ministering to her. That's the work the Lord expects of us.' But he held me for a moment while he told me he loved me and then gave me my first kiss. 'Now let us go to your mother,' he said. 'We can love each other and her too.' He kissed me just now, and I heard it as I heard it then."

The couple who stood listening turned and looked into each other's eyes, breathing at the same time a sigh of relief. They ministered to the old woman till midnight, when she died.

WHAT MRS. LAVIGNE FEARED IS FELT BY MANY OTHERS

An Unnatural Decline Made Her Think She Was Going Into Consumption, Until She Acted Upon the Advice of a Friend

"I was going into an unnatural decline," says Mrs. Charles Lavigne, of No. 1317 Third avenue, Detroit, Mich., "and my health was seriously low when I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They cured me."

"I was weak and thin, nervous and without appetite, took cold easily and was afraid of consumption. I could not sleep, I was always tired and worn out, my color all went away and I felt miserable. Good doctors treated me but failed to do me any good and I was discouraged of ever getting better, until a friend told me of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I began to take them and kept on till I had used three boxes. By that time I was an entirely different person. The nervousness had all gone, I could eat and sleep, I gained in weight and felt strong and well. My friends began to remark on the color in my cheeks and I told them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done it and had restored me to health. That was several years ago, but from that day to this I have retained my health and strength."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not only of inestimable value to women, but restore to health men, women and children who are thin, pale, nervous and depressed. They embody Dr. Williams' wonderful discovery and have cured stubborn cases of locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents a box, or six boxes for two dollars and fifty cents (they are never sold in bulk by the dozen or hundred) by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

BUT A REPETITION

(Original) Aunt Mary was very old. She was stone blind, but like most people who make up for one deficiency with acuteness in another, she could hear everything that was even whispered in her presence, and some people vowed she could hear more.

The Rev. Mr. Bogle, a very young minister, whose duties as assistant rector were principally to visit the poor of the parish, usually got round to a call on Aunt Mary about 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. Jennie Pixley, who sat spellbound in church on those rare occasions when Mr. Bogle was permitted to preach one of his rhetorical sermons, but had found few opportunities to be alone with him, knew that he visited Aunt Mary on Wednesday afternoons, for she watched him from behind the blinds going past her house to do so.

One Wednesday afternoon shortly before 4 o'clock Jennie knocked at Aunt Mary's door and, being bidden, entered, finding the old woman knitting socks in a high backed rocker.

"I am Jennie Pixley, Aunt Mary. I've often thought how lonely you must be here by yourself and just came in to have a little chat with you."

"That's very kind of you," said the old woman. "I can't see you, but I can hear you, and you have a sweet voice—a kindly voice. I'm sure you must be very unselfish to come and see a poor old woman like me."

Jennie felt a little guilty at this, because in timing her visit she had only allowed five minutes before the usual arrival of the clergyman. Indeed, she had barely time to express a little sympathy before he came in. Jennie looked very much put out at being caught and expressed wonder how it was that they happened to meet at the same hour of the same day. Mr. Bogle, who had seen Jennie's fresh young face and melting eyes looking up at him when he occupied the pulpit and had been longing to meet her, remarked that it was always pleasant to cross the path of those engaged in the Lord's work, whereupon Jennie wondered how he could be always ready with such speeches. Together they talked with Aunt Mary and the clergyman took out his notebook to put down what she required, Jennie volunteering to supply most of the articles. Then after many expressions of sympathy they left the house together.

The next Wednesday afternoon Mr. Bogle was hurrying past Jennie's house, when a sudden thought struck him and he turned and rang the bell. Jennie was watching him through the blinds and knew what he wanted. Indeed, her hat was pinned on to her head preparatory to going with the assistant rector if he should ask her. He did ask her, announcing that Aunt Mary had been ill and was rapidly falling.

When they reached the house they found the old lady in bed and not especially alive to what was going on. They stood over her and looked down upon her commiseratingly.

"She's very feeble, poor soul," said the rector.

"Very," assented Jennie. "I think we had better sit down and talk over what it is best to do in the matter. She needs attention."

"I can stay this afternoon," said Jennie, looking down demurely.

"I did, and I said more than I have repeated."

"What more?" "I said, 'She has a soul as pure as a pearl, a heart as true as the holy gospel and as tender as the tear of a repentant Christian.'"

"What more?" "I said, 'What lovely rosy cheeks, what shining hair, what soft eyes, and the mouth is pretty enough to'—He paused."

"What?" asked Jennie, looking up into his face, a picture of wonder. Jennie's face was near the clergyman's, and her parted lips were irresistible. For a moment there was the stillness of well, of the sick chamber, and then there was a smack loud enough to wake. At any rate, it aroused Aunt Mary. She uttered a moan. The two arose from the seat on which they had been consulting as to her requirements, went to her and stood over her.

"Aunt Mary," said the clergyman, "do you want anything?"

"I was dreaming. Was I dreaming, or was it real? It can't be real, because I'm not eighteen; I'm eighty. Mother was sick upstairs. She died that night. Arthur came in, he said, 'to ask after mother,' but I knew he wanted to see me. We sat down on the sofa, and he began to tell me of his love. 'I can't listen to it now, Arthur. I said, 'with mother dying upstairs. It is awful selfish. We should be there ministering to her. That's the work the Lord expects of us.' But he held me for a moment while he told me he loved me and then gave me my first kiss. 'Now let us go to your mother,' he said. 'We can love each other and her too.' He kissed me just now, and I heard it as I heard it then."

The couple who stood listening turned and looked into each other's eyes, breathing at the same time a sigh of relief. They ministered to the old woman till midnight, when she died.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

LOOK FOR THIS TRADE-MARK ON EVERY BOTTLE. MEDICINE FOR ALL MANKIND.

Mr. Elias Hartz, widely known in Reading, Pa., as the goosebump prophet, says: "I have been taking Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for a number of years as my only stimulant and tonic. I am now 87 years old, hale, hearty, and as vigorous as a man of forty, and have every reason to believe I will live to a much riper old age if I can always have a supply of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which is my only medicine. I never have colds or indigestion, or any organic trouble. I know that it is your valuable whiskey that has kept me so free from sickness. I was troubled with rheumatism before I used it, but now I can sleep as restfully as a baby. I feel no weakness from my old age, and I heartily recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to anyone who wishes to keep strong, young and vigorous."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey contains no fusel oil and is the only whiskey recognized by the Government as a medicine; this is a guarantee.

CAUTION.—When you ask for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. Unscrupulous dealers, mindful of the excellence of this preparation, will try to sell you cheap imitations and malt whiskey substitutes, which are put on the market for profit only, and which, far from relieving the sick, are positively harmful, which contains medicinal, health giving qualities. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is sold in sealed bottles only; never in flask or bulk. Be certain the seal over the cork is unbroken. Beware of re-filled bottles.

Sold by all druggists and grocers, or direct, $1.00 a bottle. Interesting medical booklet postpaid to any address. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, New York.

A PAGE OF LAUGHTER WITH M. QUAD'S FUNNY PEOPLE

THE GRAND PROMOTER

No Ready Cash Now, But Millions in the Near Future

The German tailor had made a timid call on Major Crofoot, Grand Promoter and General Schemer, with a little bill for repairs to a suit, and as the Major received and glanced at the bill he said:

"My dear Mr. Schwartzhammer, this bill is made out in a business way and footed up correctly. It specifies that I owe you 90 cents for services rendered. I do not dispute it. On the contrary, I admit the indebtedness, and will now proceed to discharge it and show my gratitude at the same time. I propose to take you into one of the most gigantic schemes of the age with me, and divide the profits."

"I like my 90 cent," replied the tailor, as he looked puzzled and perplexed. "You shall have them, my dear man, and millions more on top of them. Listen to me. I am about to contract for the entire huckleberry crop of next year at 7 cents a quart and raise the price to 20."

"You mean I vhas to gif you one honnered dollar?" stammered the creditor, as his hair fairly stood up.

"Yes, that will do at present, provided you want to make about $250,000 during the next year. Perhaps, however, you don't want to waste your time on such small potatoes. If not, let me call your attention to another sure thing, strictly original with me. It is to buy 20,000 acres of New Jersey marsh lands and cultivate celery."

"Certificates of shares will be out next week, and you never saw finer printing in colors. If you can bring me in $150 this afternoon as your half of the expenses of incorporation and buying postage stamps, I will be ready to select the land and close a deal next week. What do you say?"

"I don't understand her," replied the tailor. "You owe me 90 cent, but you don't pay."

"That is a concise statement of the case, my dear Mr. Schwartzhammer. That is, I do not pay ready cash, but in place of it I offer you a fortune in the immediate future. Perhaps you do not care to go into huckleberries or celery? We all have our little idioms, you know."

"I now call your attention to 'The Great American Matrimonial and Trust Company.' A person, either male or female, desiring to enter into the bonds of wedlock, calls at the office and leaves name and particulars and pays a fee of from $25 to $50 to be guaranteed. No sparring, no jealousy, no loss of time. Marriages brought about within one hour if so desired. Parties afterwards supplied with money for the bridal tour and set up in housekeeping on the installment plan. Dispositions most positively guaranteed. No fear of marrying a drunkard on the one hand or a bleached blonde on the other. Mothers-in-law kept at a safe distance, or put out of the way entirely. Every marriage warranted for ten years, if rules and regulations on my friend?"

"Just so; but let us continue a little farther and see where our millions are coming from. There are in the United States at this moment 478,245 marriageable girls. Make the average fee $50 and you see what there is in it? A dividend of at least 25 per cent. can be declared every year. Keep your eye on this scheme until you can unload mining and railroad stocks and come in out of the wet. Certificates of shares will be put at $5 each, so that all can invest. Divorces procured for grass widows at reasonable figures and without unnecessary delay. How do you like it, my friend?"

"Don't—don't I get my 90 cent?" asked the tailor in a helpless way, as he pointed to the bill lying on the desk.

"You do, my dear creditor—you get it a hundred thousand times over. That's what I'm working for. You have had confidence in my financial integrity, and I wish to prove my gratitude. If you don't fancy what I have mentioned why not join me in my little Florida scheme and be able to buy a national bank within two years?"

"Ten thousand acres of swamp lands can be bought in Florida for $1 an acre. Each acre will furnish pasture ground for 12,000 frogs. At one year old each frog will sell right there on the ground for a dime. That is, his hind legs will, while the rest of his body can be fed to 10,000 ducks and geese being raised for market at the same time. No machinery to get out of order about this scheme. Requires no ice in summer and no cold storage in winter. Capital stock only $25,000, and monthly dividends of 50 per cent. guaranteed. Bound to go with a jump—bound to. Cannot be consolidated with any gas company nor sold to an English syndicate. Title not yet selected, but will probably be 'The Great Southern Frog and Fowl Raising Company.' Trustees holding funds for orphans are asked to look into this scheme for richness. Can you bring me $75 by 4 o'clock this afternoon as your share of the preliminary expenses?"

"By tunder!" gasped the tailor, as he walked about with the perspiration standing out on his face. "You are a hard man to suit, but I still have something to offer you," placidly continued the Major, as he looked for and lighted the stub end of a cigar.

"Do you want to make money enough in a week to buy the earth? All right. Bring me in $200 by tomorrow noon and I will admit you as an equal partner in my latest and perhaps most profitable scheme. It is to seize Canada some dark night and sell her to the United States. The capital required is only half a million dollars, and Uncle Sam would jump at an offer to pay $50,000,000 cash on the nail. Clear profit in a week or so $49,500,000. Wanted—A first-class seizer who is not afraid of work, and has had some experience in seizing countries. Apply at the office of the Great American Seizer Company. Canada is right over there, waiting to be seized, and Uncle Sam is right over here, waiting to buy. You might run some little risk in frogs, but this thing is spiked down and can't get away."

"My dear Mr. Schwartzhammer, come in with me—come in out of the dampness. There is a chance to shove millions down your hind pocket, and no chance to fail. Shakespeare says—"

"I like to know if I get my 90 cent," interrupted the tailor, with many gestures.

"I have still one more scheme—" began the Major as he walked around the room, but his creditor cried out:

"I vhas oop here mit a bill, but you don't pay him!"

"As I was saying—" "Und you cheat me!" "As I was saying, my friend—" "Und you vhas some dead beats, und I go und haf three lawsuits on you!"

The tailor flourished his arms and looked his indignation and disgust and stalked out of the office, and the Grand Promoter looked after him and sighed and shook his head and said to himself:

"I would have made a Rothschild of him within a year, but, alas, he is wedded to his goose."

(Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.)

The other day at 2 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Bowser drove up to his gate with a horse and buggy, or, rather, was driven up by a horse-looking man, who said to him as they got out of the vehicle:

"Well, you've picked out the bargain of your life. If it wasn't that I need money worse than at any time in the last ten years I'd not part with this rig at any price. Indeed, I promised my mother, who owned this horse when a young colt, and had the greatest affection for him, that he should never pass out of my hands. I don't know how to explain matters to her. Be kind to the horse, Bowser. Be kind to him."

"I assure you that I will," was the reply.

"He's got a sensitive nature. If you cuss and swear at him it will hurt his feelings as much as if he were a woman. Should you ever hit him with the whip it would break his heart. I have always made it a point to treat him more like a human being than a horse, and I hope you'll keep it up. I also hope that you'll drive around to the stables every day or two and let me pat his nose and speak to him. I don't want him to quite forget me."

"I appreciate the sentiment and will favor it all I can. What did you say his name was?"

"Oh, didn't I tell you? His name is P. D. Q."

"That's an odd name," said Mr. Bowser, as he cudgelled his brain to remember where he had ever heard anything like it before.

"Yes, rather odd. He was named by a cousin of mine, who is a leading minister in Pittsburg, and I hope you won't change it. Well, so long. I suppose you are anxious to take your wife out for a little spin."

"What is it now?" asked Mrs. Bowser, as her lord entered the house with the whip in his hand and a 2.30 clip in his eye.

"I was offered that family rig out there for $150, and it is worth $350 at the lowest calculation. I picked it up to save $250 and get my health back. The doctor was telling me yesterday that what I needed was country air, and I propose to take a temple ride every morning before breakfast. I want you to go out with me this afternoon to give the horse a trial. I know you'll be delighted."

"Have you paid for the rig?" "Of course."

"And have got to keep it?" "Naturally. Why not? You don't seem to be a bit enthusiastic. Perhaps you were expecting me to buy a camel or a yoke of oxen."

"I wasn't expecting you to buy anything. Why didn't you say something about it? If you were bound to buy a horse I should have liked to look him over first."

"What! You look at a horse over! What on earth do you know about a horse? Don't get one of your sulky fits on, now, but put on your things and come along. We haven't had a drive for ten years. What are you hesitating about?"

whose first impulse was to use the whip. "That is, I didn't want a stone or a wooden horse. That playful spirit is always a good sign in a horse, same as in a human being. Now we are off for a delightful spin, and you can lay back and enjoy yourself. By George! but this beats riding in a palace car all to pieces! Isn't that a splendid gait he's got? Starts right off as if he had twenty pounds of steam on."

Mrs. Bowser didn't lay back and enjoy herself. On the contrary she sat up and watched the horse closely. There was a slight limp to one hind leg; he pulled to the right as if blind in the left eye; there was a constant click as he over-reached and struck a front shoe. Added to these things his ears were laid back close to his head and held there, and now and then his teeth grated on the bit.

She also saw that Mr. Bowser held the reins with a careless hand and seemed anxious to use the whip. She refrained from saying anything, however, until the buggy had been drawn over a sand-pile on one side of the street and a heap of brick-bats on the other, and then she gently remarked:

"If you intend to bump into any of the shade trees along the street, please give me a few seconds' notice."

"What do you mean by that?" demanded Mr. Bowser. "I thought it was about time you got off some mean remark. The horse is going all right, and I'm doing all right, and—"

His name is P. D. Q.

And the horse suddenly steered out of his course to graze the hind wheel of a peddler's wagon and almost cause a smash-up.

Mr. Bowser wasn't going to make any excuse at all at first, but, on second thought, he concluded to say that it was all the peddler's fault, and that there ought to be a law to prevent a cross-eyed man from driving anything but a rhinoceros on the public highway.

Mrs. Bowser would have consented to go without hats or shoes for the next year if she could have been safely transported back home, but her only resource was to hang on and depend upon Providence.

Durn your old flea-bitten hide.

Mr. Bowser had driven two blocks further when the horse bore to the right and took the wheel of a banana push-cart, and then sauntered across the street and rubbed the nose of a grocer's horse, and got the grocer's yell and shouts.

"Are you going to get us both killed?" exclaimed Mrs. Bowser, as she got her hat straightened again.

"There you go!" replied Mr. Bowser, as he narrowly missed running down an old woman. "Do you want the horse to walk? Shall I tie him to a post? I never held the ribbons over a better goer, and yet you are finding fault about everything."

"He's either unsafe, or else you don't know how to drive."

"That's it—that's it! By John! but why was I fool enough to bring you along? That horse vicious? He's like a lamb, and as far as my driving is concerned—"

ways of his own which must eventually lead to a smashup. He was looking pale, and was all of a tremble as he leaped out and grabbed the beast by the head, and just then a policeman came up and said:

"You'll get fined $5 for driving on the sidewalk in this way."

"But I didn't drive him up here."

"Then how did he get here?" "The infernal old beast took a shy yourself. I was watching you as you came down the street, and I saw that you knew nothing about driving. It's a wonder you didn't hit another vehicle or run over somebody. How did you happen to come out with the horse?"

"You talk as if I was a boy three years old!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser, as his anger began to boil and a crowd began to gather. "My driving was all right, but my wife was nervous and afraid and kept speaking to me."

"I'll bet she can drive better than you can, when it comes to that. How are you going to get this old brute home. He's aching to run and kick, and you are not the man to handle him."

"Can't I hire some one to drive him back? The man warranted him to be as gentle as a lamb, and I can't see what's got into him. Whoa, you old villain!"

Half a dozen men stepped forward with offers to drive the vehicle back to the Bowser residence for $1, and Mr. Bowser was about to close the deal when the policeman backed the rig clear of the walk and handed the lines to Mrs. Bowser, and said:

"You'd better walk home, old man, while your wife drives. As a guardian of the peace it is my duty to save your life if I can do it."

A feeling of recklessness seized Mrs. Bowser, and, although she realized that years and centuries and epochs would pass away before Mr. Bowser could forgive or forget, she picked up the reins and drove off, and though the three cheers and a "tiger" given her by the crowd of men and boys left behind started the horse into his fastest gait, she managed to steer him a straight course and skip all the ice wagons and moving vans.

Mr. Bowser's departure from the same point was not at all heroic or satisfactory to his pride. The policeman smiled sarcastically, the men advised him to slide down a cellar door for a change, and the hoodlums rubbed it in as only hoodlums can when they have a fair show.

He footed it home to find P. D. Q. tied to a tree in front of the house, and looking as humble as a rabbit, and his first action was to walk up and give him a hearty kick and exclaim:

"Durn your old flea-bitten hide, but I'll kill you with a crowbar and sell your body for soap grease!"

Then he followed the one kick by two more, and turned and entered the house. Mrs. Bowser and the cat were there and waiting, but it is best to drop the curtain right here. There are some things too strenuous for public print, and Mr. Bowser has shown the public that he can be strenuous on occasions.

SETTING UP SHOP.

He had come down from one of the mountain camps to get the goods to set up a drug store of his own, as he explained, and when asked if he had had any experience as a druggist, he replied:

"Not an hour, but I don't figger that I need any. I've run a saloon and a poker game, and the boys are willing to trust me to run a drug store. Any pointers you kin give me, however, will be dooly appreciated. The first thing is to stock up with castor ile. I'm posted on that, at least, and there's no fear of makin' a mistake."

"You ought to have some sulphur," suggested the druggist.

"Hans," says Mr. Voglestein, as he comes in my place der odder day mit some old hats on his head, "do you hear what happens to me last week?"

"Maype you vhas in shail," I says. "Don't be some fools. Eaferybody tells me dot I should cause some museums mit my soda water works, und so last week I put him in. Der first thing as you go in vhas a stuffed lion. I put a sign on him, 'Der king of beasts,' und last week a man comes in und looks aroundt und looks ugly und says:

"I vhas no man to take a bluff. Who told you dot lion vhas der king of beasts?"

"I read it in some books."

"Vhell, I dispute it. Take off dot sign or I shall knock him out in one round. I vhas der king of beasts myself."

"I tried to argue mit him dot he vhas no beast, but he kicks dot stuffed lion af oafar my museum, und den cuts off his tail und walks away mit it. For $50 I buys a wax figure of Napoleon crossing the Alps. He vhas climbing up mit his feet und waving a flag in his hand, und it gif me great pleasure dot all der people praise him. More ash one tousand persons vhas delighted when a young man mit a black eye comes in und limps aroundt und spits oafar his shoulder und says:

"Vhell, I don't believ you haf sooch cheek till I see him. How dare you make me oop like dot und call me Napoleon?"

"My frendt, don't you know somethings?" says I. "Dot figure vhas der great Napoleon, und he vhas walking oafar some mountains. Don't you neffer hear of Napoleon?"

"Neffar in all my life. Dot vhas my hair und eyes und body. If you don't give me feefty dollars I shall make him tired."

"I speak mit dot man more ash ten minutes, but he gets madder all der time. By und by he chumps in mit a right-hand swing und knocks dot Napoleon all to pieces, und he also kicks me three times before he goes out. Nopody finds Napoleon in my place any more. I fix him oop ash well ash I can und mark him: 'Der Tomb of Shakespeare.' If somebody comes in und claims he vhas der Tomb himself I can't help it und shall call on der police to put him out."

"Der vhas badt for me, Hans, but two weeks ago a man makes me der figure of Queen Elizabeth, und she vhas so grand dot eaferybody vhas full of praise. Three days ago a man comes in my place und sees dot figure und says:

"Who vhas dot old girl in der corner, eh?" "She vhas Queen Elizabeth."

"Vhas she deadt?" "Of course."

"How long vhas she deadt, eh?" "More ash one honnered years."

"I can't believ dot," he says. "If she vhas deadt one honnered years why does she flirt mit me? Don't you see her wink her eyes? I guess I go oafar und talk to her."

"I laght at her, but she goes out und gets her husband, und he reises sooch a row ash neffer vhas. He gif dot Shakespeare an upper-cut on der chin und avhay goes his headt und vhas in twenty pieces in a minute und can neffer be fixed oop again."

"I don't believ I shall stay in der museum peesness, Hans. It vhas too much ooplain all der time, und der peoples vhas too strenuous for me. I might do for you, however, and if you say so you shall haf her for haf year und I put him in your back room tomorrow und you vhas a great man ash some busts on you."

ARIZONA KICKLETS.

Mr. Voglestein Drops in to Tell of a New Experience

und if we don't haf some liberty vvas in shail most of der time for making troubles. George Washington vvas no liar. Maype he vhas der biggest kind of a liar if he lives long enough und see a few more politicians, but he dies shunt in time to escape hier. More ash ten tousand men haf tried to be like George, but it vhas no use. If you stand before him in my museum you feel dot you like to be great und good und control der price of sugar in America. Two days after he vhas standing oop mit a sword in his hand a loafer comes in und sees him und says:

"Hello, you have got Mark Hannah here, I see?"

"Dot vhas Washington, I says. "Washington be hanged. I work for Mark Hannah for five years, und I guess I ought to know him. He owes me $2 und don't pay, und now I shall put a head on him."

"He chumps aroundt und vhas going to his oofit when I pays him $1 to let oop, but he may come back some day und knock George all to pieces. It makes me awful tired if folks don't know somethings. I haf a bulky figure dot vhas Christopher Columbus on day und Judas Iscariot der next. Two days ago he vhas Judas. A man comes in und looks at him a long time und den says:

"Who vhas dot man here?" "He vhas Judas."

"I thought so. I vhas down on Judas for more ash ten years, und now you shall see how queek I vhill knock his headt off."

"But he vhas only wax, I says. "Dot vhas no deference to me. He goes back on a friend of mine, und wax or no wax he vhas a licked man in two minutes."

"Und he hauls off und knocks Judas by der middle of next week in one round, und when I want damage he knocks me after Judas. I fix der man on again und make him Shakespeare, und yesterday a woman comes in und says he vhas der man who winks at her on a street car."

"I laght at her, but she goes out und gets her husband, und he reises sooch a row ash neffer vhas. He gif dot Shakespeare an upper-cut on der chin und avhay goes his headt und vhas in twenty pieces in a minute und can neffer be fixed oop again."

"I don't believ I shall stay in der museum peesness, Hans. It vhas too much ooplain all der time, und der peoples vhas too strenuous for me. I might do for you, however, and if you say so you shall haf her for haf year und I put him in your back room tomorrow und you vhas a great man ash some busts on you."

The Editor of "The Kicker" Does Not Have Time to Get Lonesome.

As a citizen we are a good fellow and train with the boys. As editor and owner of "The Kicker," we affect considerable dignity and keep half-breed Indians at a distance. As mayor we feel about as big as the President of the United States, and we propose to run this town and run it according to the rules laid down. The public can settle down on this as our policy, and the sooner they settle the better it will be for all hands.

Our esteemed contemporary came out last week with the announcement that we were leaning in the Red Front saloon on a certain evening to the detriment of our dignity. His statement lacks truth. As editor of "The Kicker" we went in for a nip. As mayor, after the nip had been disposed of, we took a loaf around to see if any of the ordinances were being violated.

The editor of "The Kicker," who he ourself, and the mayor of this town, who is also ourself, are in receipt of invitations to attend the opening of the Pacific Poker Rooms next week. As editor of "The Kicker," we shall accept the invitation, but as mayor we shall decline it. This will probably give us a chance to go as a private individual without hurting anybody's feelings.

As will be noticed in another column, Colonel Tom Taylor is no more. He died at his residence on Sherman avenue Thursday night, passing away so peacefully that his wife didn't know that the grim destroyer had entered the house until after the Colonel had been dead for some time. He was a good man, as men average. Don't haf to shoot him about once in a month to let him understand that he didn't own and run "The Kicker." We always paid the doctor his bill, and we always paid the doctor his bill, and we always paid the doctor his bill, and we always paid the doctor his bill.

ORDINANCE NO. 886

An ordinance fixing the weight of contents of vehicles passing over Jennings avenue viaduct—

Be it ordained by the city council of the city of Fort Worth: Section 1. That it shall hereafter be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, their employes or agents, to drive or permit to be driven on or upon the viaduct on Jennings avenue in the city of Fort Worth, any vehicle of any kind, which with the contents thereof shall exceed in weight two thousand (2,000) pounds per wheel upon which such vehicle moves, that is vehicles and their contents moving on four wheels shall not exceed in weight eight thousand (8,000) pounds. Vehicles moving on two wheels and their contents shall not exceed in weight four thousand (4,000) pounds. That this enumeration of vehicles and their contents is intended as an illustration and is not intended to exclude from the operation of this ordinance on other vehicles and their contents moving on or over said viaduct on different numbers of wheels than those herein enumerated.

Sec. 2. Any person violating the provisions of section 1 of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor and, on conviction thereof, shall be fined in a sum not less than five dollars ($5), nor more than fifty dollars ($50), for each infraction thereof.

Sec. 3. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith be and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 4. That this ordinance take effect and be in force from and after its publication as required by law. Filed October 2, 1903.

JNO. T. MONTGOMERY, City Secretary. Passed October 16, 1903.

Recorded in ordinance book E, page 74, October 21, 1903.

JNO. T. MONTGOMERY, City Secretary.

This ordinance not having been approved nor disapproved by the mayor within three days after its passage, as required by the charter, takes effect the same as if approved.

MURDERED IN PHILIPPINES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—United States Vice Consul Kaiser of Mazatlan who has just arrived there, tells of the murder of an American miner named Dumbacher near that city. It was thought robbery was the motive, as $5,000 which he was known to have was missing.

BACK TO FIRST LOVE

The news received in Fort Worth yesterday afternoon that Charles B. Sloat has decided to return to railroad work, was welcomed by his many old friends and associates in this city, who have known him many years. It will be remembered that while general passenger agent of the Chicago, Rock Island and Texas, headquarters in Fort Worth, in January, 1902, Mr. Sloat resigned to engage in the rice business in South Texas. He has been in that part of the state since, but recently his health began to fail and Mr. Sloat concluded that a change of climate was necessary and decided to locate in Colorado. He will become city passenger and ticket agent of the Rock Island at Pueblo on the 15th of November. Mr. Sloat does not relinquish his business interests in South Texas.

CARTER TAKES NEW WORK

Today is the last day of J. W. Carter's connection with the Chicago, Rock Island and Texas, having resigned as live stock agent some ten days ago. Tomorrow he will assume the duties of traffic manager of the Fort Worth Stock Yards Company. He will be succeeded by T. F. Short who has been traveling auditor of the company for some time.

ROCK ISLAND EMPLOYEES HERE

The regular monthly assembling of commercial and freight men of the Rock Island is taking place today, and as a consequence the general offices of the company is entertaining many of the boys, among them Commercial Agent T. H. Wilhelm of San Antonio; Commercial Agent C. D. Golding of Houston; Commercial Agent E. M. Gleason of Dallas; R. E. Egan, traveling freight agent, of Dallas; and S. J. Tucker, city ticket and passenger agent of Dallas. The meeting of these employees is for a general conference with the officials of the departments with which each is connected.

CHANGE OF CENTRAL TRAINS

FROM A SAD MISISON

L. L. Hawes Returns From Kentucky, Where He Buried His Mother.
L. L. Hawes returned to Fort Worth today from a sad mission which called him to Maysville, Ky.—the death of his mother, Mrs. J. B. Hawes, who died at Louisville, Ky., October 26, at the age of 62 years. The death of Mrs. Hawes occurred a few hours before her son preached Maysville.

Returning home, Mr. Hawes stopped a few days in St. Louis and says that he reached that city just in time to witness the great run made on the Trust Bank, where he saw thousands of depositors crowding around the front doors of that institution. There was great excitement and commotion. Before starting back to Texas, Mr. Hawes visited the World's Fair grounds. He says that the work of construction is going ahead with great rapidity.

TERRIBLE DAMAGE DONE BY TORNADO

OKLAHOMA CITY, O. T., Oct. 31.—(Special.)—A cyclone swept over the country north of Hydro, O. T., last night.

The dead:
FRANK AND MARY BROWN and children.
The injured:
William Brown and wife; William Beachel, wife and four children; Mantell Beachel, stomach crushed, may die; Mrs. Melham, seriously injured.

The cyclone destroyed fifteen farm houses and fences, killed several hundred head of stock and ruined crops. The property damage is estimated at $75,000. Surgeons and hundreds of people have gone from Hydro and Bridgeport to render aid.

TEXAS MAN IS IN THE LIST OF THE DEAD

R. J. Howell of Corpus Christi Killed in Big Four Wreck at Indianapolis This Morning. Many Are Injured

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 31.—There are still a number of bodies in the wreck of the Big Four passenger which was dived at the edge of this city early this morning. Some of the killed and injured are members of the Purdue football team which was on its way to this city to play the State University this afternoon. So far the list of identified dead is as follows:

- E. J. ROBINSON, Indianapolis.
- WALTER R. ROUCH, Pittsburg.
- L. E. RUSH, Pittsburg.
- R. J. Howell, Corpus Christi, Tex.
- SAM SQUIRE, Lafayette, Ind.
- W. E. HAMILTON, Huntington, Ind.
- J. HAMILTON, Lafayette, Ind.
- GABRIEL S. DROLLINGER, beheaded.
- JOSEPH COATES, sub-player.
- W. H. GRUB, Butler, Ind., sub-player.
- WALTER FURR, Corpus Christi, Tex., sub-player.

The wreck is still being searched for bodies. The list of injured is forty. Twenty-four are seriously hurt. Injured thus far found:
Joe Knapp, Evansville.
John Miller, both legs broken.
Dr. Biting, seriously injured.
W. J. McManus, both legs broken, Davenport, Ia.

Clark Myers, Monticello.
T. Q. Bailey, Richmond, Ind.
H. O. Wright, Pendleton, Ind.
William Spau, Sandusky, O.
Irving Long, Louisville.
Charles Fausman, Cincinnati.
Walter Taggart, Owen, Ind.
Fred Reibul, Indianapolis.
W. H. Leslie, captain team last year, seriously hurt.

Captain Osborne, team, seriously hurt. The accident was caused by cars run down from a gravel pit at Eighteenth street. The engineer of the students' special saw the cars approaching and jumped from his engine. The first coach was cut in two and the engine was thrown aside. Many students who were in the rear coaches of the train were badly shaken. The car occupied by the Purdue band was telescoped.

The electrical storm of this morning played havoc with some of the machinery of the Fort Worth Light and Power Company and a number of the plants of the city which take power from this company were without the life-giving current during the early hours of the day.

The Telegram was one of those who were greatly inconvenienced by this lack of power and for a little while it looked as though the paper might have to go back to those days when there was no Saturday issue. But the Citizens' Light and Power Company came promptly to the rescue and a wire was run into The Telegram building and the machinery put into motion. The quick work that the latter company did in supplying the paper with power was commendable. The Fort Worth Light and Power Company was doubly unfortunate last night. The storm burned out one of the big electric machines and hardly had this disaster overtaken them when the big main belt which drives the duplicate machinery broke and left the company helpless. The troubles at an early hour this afternoon had been partly overcome. The Telegram is very fortunate in being able to present to its readers this evening as complete a paper as it has. It might have been better. It might have been a lot worse.

JOHN DOWIE GRIEVES OVER ABANDONMENT BY HIS SON

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from Essex, Ia., says: John Murray Dowie, crushed by the attack made upon him by his son, John Alexander Dowie, says: "The statement that I am not the father of John Alexander Dowie is the greatest myth ever uttered by the mouth of man. It is scandalous that my son should repudiate me after I have done so much for him. He is my son and was born in lawful wedlock. No one can deny it. The records may be had at the great register offices, Princess street, Edinburgh, Scotland. I have always lived a quiet, peaceable Christian life and it breaks my heart to have this trouble come toward the end."

MRS. "BOB" BURDETTE HAS HARSH WORDS FOR SMART SET

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Robert J. Burdette of Los Angeles, Cal., has made a scathing arraignment of the "four hundred class" in an address delivered before a local woman's club. The "Smart Set" is nothing but an exorcism on real society," said Mrs. Burdette. She declared that no such aggregation could ever be other than an insignificant factor in the life of a great nation. "When asked to consider the society woman," said Mrs. Burdette, "a large proportion of the not over thoughtful will immediately hang on the eye of their mental picture gallery a portrait of a chameleon-like creature that baffles recognition as she reflects the horse show, the ball room, the street, the banquet hall, the boudoir, the automobile, as a creature that is all things to all men and nothing to any man. "She is a creature whose favorite companions of what is called the sterner sex are insipid and brainless creatures, who are called men only because they are not women. She is a woman whose whole life is one of questionable gaiety, who smokes at dinners with men and who drinks rather too much at times. The announcement of her engagement brings a smile with the uplifted eyebrow and her divorce suit is accepted as a matter of course."

MISS MARCH LAYTON REPORTED TO HAVE CONFESSED TO EMBEZZLEMENT OF $37,000—ACQUIRED A CRAZE FOR CABS

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—March Layton, who was arrested a few weeks ago and pleaded guilty to charges of embezzlement, brought by officers of the United States Playing Card Company, is reported to have made a complete confession, showing that she diverted from the company's bank account $37,000 while acting during six years as confidential clerk in the New York office. Miss Layton is now awaiting sentence. The confession was made first to Assistant District Attorney Sandford and later to Agent Kimball of the prison association, who, under instruction from Judge Foster, is making an investigation. The woman has turned $5,000 back to her employers, all the money she saved. In her confession she mentions the name of a prominent officer of a New York corporation who, she says, profited by her stealings. She alleges that the man got her to cash checks and in that way she got rid of a good deal of the money. The balance went in high living. "I got a craze for cabs," she said: "It was cabs morning, noon and night. It got so that I could not walk about New York. No human being can imagine how I have suffered all these years. I knew the day would come when I would be detected."

WEDDING IN HIGH LIFE

Couple Married on Top of Montauk Lighthouse
NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—For the first time in seventy-five years a wedding has been celebrated in the top of Montauk Lighthouse at the extreme east end of Long Island. The groom's father, C. E. MONEY MARKET IS TIGHT

Withdrawals for Benefit of St. Louis Show Their Effect
NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The money market has grown tight during the week as a result of the heavy withdrawals of currency due to the emergency at St. Louis and to supply the crop moving needs both from the cotton and the grain districts. Sterling exchange has broken nearly to the gold import point, but some apprehension is felt that stringent money may intervene before the arrival of gold imports will afford relief. The stock market has become exceedingly dull and apathetic as a result of these conditions. Although the demand is paralyzed, there was little pressure to sell in spite of a growing tendency toward a decline in activity in various branches of business.
