Reputable Citizens Tell of Seeing the Negro in Swackhammer's Wagon Just Before the Murder and Robbery—Tell-Tale Powder Soot on the Defendant's Pistol—Jordan Thompson on Witness Stand Recalls Martins' Threats Against Murdered Man

From 9 o'clock yesterday morning until 5:05 o'clock yesterday afternoon County Attorney Lattimore was busy forging links in the chain of circumstantial evidence connecting Rufus Martin with the murder of Charles Swackhammer.

It was a trying day for Judge, jury and counsel. The court room was thronged at both morning and afternoon sessions by a crowd which followed every word of testimony as closely as if it and not Martin were on trial for life.

The defense put several witnesses on the stand when the state closed and at 6:10, seeing that it was impossible to finish last night, Judge Dunklin adjourned court until Monday morning.

It is for the jury to judge of the strength and completeness of the state's case against the man who is being tried for murder of the honest and industrious German farmer ten days ago, but it cannot be gainsaid that it seldom has been possible for the state to produce too many reputable witnesses whose testimony so closely fastens the guilt upon the accused, and no other, in a case where there were no eye witnesses to the crime.

THE STATE'S CASE. Witness after witness testified to having seen Martin in Swackhammer's wagon on the night of the killing and up to within a few minutes before the shots rang out across the fields in the neighborhood of the Masonic Home, which marked the ending of Swackhammer's life.

CRIME COMMITTED THREE YEARS AGO. Hope of Locating Perpetrators Given Up Long Ago By the Police

SECRET REVEALED IN ST. JOSEPH, MO. Confessor Says He Worked With Crowe and a Man Named Johnson—Trio Surprised to Get the Ransom

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 7.—(Special).—Goaded by his conscience, Patrick Costello has confessed that he was one of the abductors of Edward A. Cudahy, Jr., in Omaha on the night of December 18, 1900.

"The kidnaping of Cudahy's boy was planned by Pat Crowe," said Costello. "At that time Crowe had been conducting a meat shop for Cudahy in Omaha and was working in the packing plant. We took in a man named Johnson, who is now doing time for a train robbery in Washington territory. We worked under the direction of Crowe."

"All three of us looked at the pony before we bought it, and it was my watch that was pawned for the animal. Then Crowe rented the vacant house in the suburbs and we had everything in readiness."

"Johnson secured a cast-off suit that had been used by a letter carrier and wore it the night he kidnaped the boy saying as he took charge of young Cudahy that he was a runaway girl from school. The boy was taken to the vacant house, where Crowe and myself were awaiting them."

"I wrote the letter to Mr. Cudahy demanding the ransom of $25,000 for his son. We did not expect to succeed, and were greatly surprised when we found the $25,000 in the bag on the road where we had directed it to be placed."

"We would have released young Cudahy the next day had the ransom not been paid that night. We did not intend to harm the lad."

Costello has written a letter, which he says is exactly like the one sent to Mr. Cudahy demanding the ransom, and in the same hand-writing. The letter has been sent to Mr. Cudahy for identification, and he will come here to see the prisoner and send others with his son to identify him.

MANY WITNESSES DRAW COILS OF GUILT AROUND RUFUS MARTIN

Reputable Citizens Tell of Seeing the Negro in Swackhammer's Wagon Just Before the Murder and Robbery—Tell-Tale Powder Soot on the Defendant's Pistol—Jordan Thompson on Witness Stand Recalls Martins' Threats Against Murdered Man

He told them that he was the one who would pay them off and said that he would not take his cotton to Arlington to sell it until the following day.

Thompson testified that after Swackhammer left Martin said to him: "That damned old scoundrel wants us to pick this thin cotton for him and then he'll pick that good patch himself. I get me a man or two every fall; it's easier to get money that way than it is to work hard this way for it, and I think I'll lay for this man and get his money."

Thompson said that Martin "made his brag" that he had "got a man" in Denton and another in Hardin county and one in Fort Worth, and also had stolen many horses. The old negro further said that on Wednesday morning, on the evening of which Swackhammer was killed, he told his wife that he did not like the way Rufus was talking. He said that Martin wanted him to go with him on that morning.

ASKED FOR THEIR PAY. On Tuesday when the two men quit work, they went to Swackhammer and asked for their pay. Swackhammer told them that he did not have the money and would not have it until he sold the cotton, but if they wanted it right away he would try to borrow it for them.

When the two men had left Swackhammer's place and were approaching the Brockman home, Martin got out his pistol and waved it in the air and told Thompson who was ahead of him to stop, testified Thompson, but the latter refused to stop and went on to his home. Martin following, Thompson said that Martin always carried his pistol, even when working in the cotton field.

The last time he saw Martin until he saw him in jail was when he left the Brockman place Wednesday morning, after having spent Tuesday night there. He did not play dominoes there Wednesday afternoon and evening, according to Thompson.

Thompson was put through a searching cross-examination by Attorney Simmonds. He said that he was born and reared in Louisville and left there to go "strambolting" when he was 15. Afterwards he worked in the cane fields of Louisiana, then railroaded and picked cotton in Texas, finally coming to the Fort Worth neighborhood, where he lived eight or nine years; then he went away for awhile and came back again. He said he was arrested twice in his life; once in New Orleans, when he was a boy, he was arrested for stealing what he called "Washington pie"; his second arrest took place at Wichita Falls, where he was charged with disturbing the peace.

He denied positively that he was in Fort Worth with Martin on the night of the killing. He was asked why he did not tell on Martin when the latter made his threat to get Swackhammer's money. He said that he did not tell his wife that he did not like the way Rufus was talking, but he did not think that Martin intended to kill Swackhammer. Further than that he could not explain why he did not report the matter. He identified the pistol in evidence as the one Martin carried.

HONDA TESTIFIES. Sheriff Jones took the stand at the opening of the afternoon session. He told of receiving telephone message advising him of the killing. He went to the scene and a few minutes later telephoned to the city informing his own men and the police department to apprehend Rufus Martin. He then told of his return to the city. At 12:30 a. m. he was informed of the arrest of Martin and went to police headquarters where he questioned the man. He warned Martin that what he said would be used against him. Martin said he had not seen Swackhammer since Tuesday. His other statements made to the sheriff did not differ materially from those made to Detective Thompson.

WHERE HE MET MARTIN. Thompson is the husband of a daughter of "Old Frank Brockman, a negro who lives on the Tandy place, not far from the scene of the murder." His home is about 100 feet from Brockman's. He was in Wichita Falls last summer and there first met Martin. He returned to his home near Fort Worth last September. In October Martin came to this city. A week ago last Monday found the two men picking cotton for Charles Swackhammer. They picked cotton all of that day and also the next morning, quitting work Tuesday morning after "two weights." While they were in the field that morning Swackhammer told them to work a certain portion of it and said that he would finish the job, as if they picked it all there would be nothing for him to do.

He gave each of them $2 and told them that he would give them the balance on the following day. He still owed Thompson something over 40 cents and Martin 10 cents. He promised to leave the money for them at Culp's store the next evening.

Charles Rose of Arlington testified that he saw Swackhammer receive the money at Arlington. It was mostly in $5 bills.

He testified that she was on her way to Arlington on the day of the killing. She saw the prisoner on the road, going towards Handley. It was 4:30 or 5 p. m.

She passed her son on the road. He was in his wagon. She talked with him about 10 minutes. She passed two other wagons. Mr. Leatherman was in a wagon about 100 yards ahead of the one in which her son was riding. She did not know the man in the other wagon. They passed the defendant first and the wagons later on.

Edwin Sweet, son of Tax Assessor Sweet, was in the buggy with Mrs. Gray when they passed the defendant. After that they passed two wagons before they met Swackhammer's wagon. They talked to the latter about 10 minutes.

SWACKHAMMER'S LAST RIDE. T. R. Leatherman, who lives a mile east of the Masonic Home, next testified. He said that on the day of the killing he was in Arlington. He knew Swackhammer and saw him that day at Arlington. He saw him after he left Arlington, about two miles west of that city. Swackhammer and witness talked one another several times along the road. There was another man in a wagon driving the same way. This was Mr. Bond.

Witness remembered passing Mrs. Gray on the road.

Witness said that while passing a thicket near Handley one of his horses took fright, but he did not see anything or anyone to frighten it. After going on some distance he looked back and saw another man in the wagon with Swackhammer. The man was standing back of Swackhammer. The last he saw of Swackhammer was Handley. The latter passed him in that town. They exchanged remarks, Swackhammer saying that it "looked like rain." The man was still in the wagon with Swackhammer. Witness could not identify the prisoner as the man who was in Swackhammer's wagon as he was not close enough to the wagon to get a good look at the man. He thought the man's hair was red. Martin's is light colored. He said that Martin resembled the man.

PARKS' TESTIMONY STRONG. Willis Parks, a white boy, 16 years old, who picked cotton for Swackhammer, said that he picked cotton in the same field with Martin and Thompson. The negroes asked Swackhammer when he was going to Arlington to sell his cotton and how much he would get for it. He said that Swackhammer told the negroes he was going to Arlington on Wednesday. He saw Swackhammer on the wagon a mile east of Handley with Swackhammer, to Culp's store. The negro, Rufus Martin, was in the wagon at the time. Witness left at Culp's store. Swackhammer and Martin also left the wagon there. Martin got back into the wagon before Swackhammer did. The latter showed a roll of currency at the store, when paying a bill. Swackhammer and the negro drove away together, that was the last time he saw Swackhammer, who was his half-brother, alive. Swackhammer was on the seat of the wagon driving. The negro was standing in the wagon behind him. Witness did not ride further than Culp's store.

CULP, THE STOREKEEPER. Taylor Culp, keeper of a store on the Handley road, saw Swackhammer driving to Arlington with a bale of cotton and saw him return that night. Culp identified Martin as being in the wagon with Swackhammer that night. He said Willis Parks left the wagon at his store. The negro went away with Swackhammer in the wagon; he did not see the negro get out of the wagon at all. When Swackhammer paid the bill he shoved his roll of bills into his vest pocket; he was standing in the door when he put the bills in his pocket and witness said that the negro, Martin, was looking at him when he did so. The negro was in the wagon at the time; the wagon was drawn up to the porch of the store.

STORE KEEPER'S WIFE. Mrs. Ida Culp next identified Martin as having been in the wagon with Swackhammer. The latter paid his bill at the store, giving two five-dollar bills and receiving about $3.50 in change. He counted out 50 cents and taking it out to the wagon handed it to the negro. This was the sum that Swackhammer owed Martin and Thompson for picking cotton. Mrs. Culp was the sister of Swackhammer.

J. R. Smith, who runs a store half mile west of Culp's store, next identified Martin as having been in the wagon on the evening of the killing and Swackhammer bought some soap at his store.

"Billy" Brockman, a negro, said that on the night before the killing, Martin slept at his brother's house. On Wednesday morning Martin was at his house, but he did not see him after 6 o'clock that morning as he (witness) was away at work.

He got to his house at 9 o'clock Wednesday night. Jordan Thompson was at his house that night, but he did not see Martin at that time.

He was shown Martin's pistol and said it looked like the one Martin carried.

WITNESS FOR DEFENSE. Dr. E. D. Capps, by special permission, was then allowed to take the stand. He was subpoenaed by the defense. He was asked whether suggestion would cause a person to commit a crime.

"Suppose a man were to say that he would not go to Arlington to sell his cotton on a certain day, but would wait until the following day so he could make an early start, as he wanted to get back home before dark, being afraid that he would be held up and robbed; might that not suggest to and cause the commission by a weak-minded or insane, or predisposed person, of a crime such as this?" was asked.

Dr. Capps thought it might have that effect if the person were dishonest or predisposed to commit such a crime.

Clara Brockman, a negro, said that she saw Martin get on an interurban car going east, at stop 5 1/2, on the morning of the day Swackhammer was killed. It was the 11 o'clock car. She did not see him any more than day; he was not at her house playing dominoes that day;

BLACKS ARE IN DANGER OF THEIR LIVES

Citizens of Pass Christian, Mississippi, in Frenzy of Excitement

A CORONER'S JURY JUSTIFIES LYNCHING

Unmentionable Crime Committed on Millionaire's Wife

SWIFT VENGEANCE ON GUILTY NEGRO

Aftermath Is a Wave of Popular Indignation That Threatens to End in General Riot Against the Negroes

PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss., Nov. 7.—(Special).—Mrs. Peter Labouisse, the beautiful young wife of the famous cotton millionaire, Peter Labouisse, is tonight in a state of absolute collapse. Her husband is with her and admission is denied to even the most intimate friends.

Attempts to gain an interview have failed and every effort is being made by Mr. Labouisse to subdue mention of the affair.

The palatial home of the young couple is closed as if a death had entered there, and hardly a sign of life is visible anywhere on the premises. The town of Pass Christian is just beginning to feel the full horror of the awful crime committed on the beautiful and brilliant young wife, and the residents, male and female, are in a state of frenzied excitement.

On every hand particularly among the admirers of the gifted young aristocrat, are heard deep voiced oaths that the negro population of this place shall be wiped off so that a repetition of the fearful crime of Mrs. Labouisse shall be impossible. The contagion of excitement approaching almost to anarchy and riot has reached even to the courts of justice, and today the coroner's jury, sitting on the body of the dead assailant, has declared for the first time in the history of the southland that criminal assault justifies lynching.

Never before has a coroner's jury rendered such a verdict as that which was read in tumultuous tones over the body of the negro, Sam Adams, sitting on the body of Sam Adams, colored, find that he came to his death at the hands of the male citizens, both white and colored, of Pass Christian, who were organized and determined to finish said Adams for the crime that meted death wherever perpetrated.

The crowd that listened to the official finding of the jury carried the news about the town and as the day dawned on there seemed to come a general determination on the part of the population to wipe out the negroes far and near.

FRIEND OF FAMILY TALKS. (Special).—There is not a man, woman or child in this place tonight that does not openly denounce the awful crime of Sam Adams and openly advocate the permanent driving of the negroes from the community. One of the most violent of the denouncers is a person and friend of Labouisse and the leader of the mob which did the lynching. In a statement given, out tonight to the Examiner, he said:

"I took a hand in the capture and the lynching of Sam Adams, first, because I believe that a violation of the sanctity of southern womanhood should meet with a swift and sure death. It is the only punishment which offers any guarantee of the final stopping of such crimes. On every hand there come reports of similar assaults, but there has never been one made on a more prominent or more beautiful woman since the days of Lucretia Borgia. The assault was a worthless scoundrel, who was once run out of the country and who, I understand, has been watching his opportunity for weeks. As a friend of Mr. Labouisse I cannot but deplore the fact that the matter has become public, but now that it is the talk of the country I hope that the publicity will serve to the effect of arousing both whites and blacks to the danger which presents southern womanhood. God help our men to be on the watch and God save our women from such fiends."

One of the negroes who helped Adams, denounced in terms as unmeasured as those of his white co-laborer, the fearful crime of the negro Adams.

METHODISTS APPROVE MANAGER'S RULING

Determination to Close Exposition Sunday Pleases the Conference

THE STATE DEFICIT IS NOW NEARLY $200,000

Number of Warrants Registered to Date 1604—Order Regarding Receiver for Insurance Companies Issued

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 7.—(Special).—At the Methodist conference today W. J. Johnson and New Harris were appointed curators of Southwestern university. The conference expressed pleasure on determination of the managers to close the World's Fair at St. Louis on Sundays.

Sterling Fisher and W. F. Renfro were appointed delegates to the Sunday conference to be held during the fair. Various committee reports showed various enterprises in the state to be prosperous. Pulpits of other denominations will be filled by ministers attending the conference tomorrow.

An order was issued from the Twenty-sixth district court today in the case of E. B. H. Schneider against the Continental Fire Insurance Company of Fort Worth, and the Texas Home Fire Insurance Company of Austin, ordering the receiver to make a complete report of liabilities by December 1, at which time the affairs of these companies will be settled up.

The railroad commission has ordered the time for the building of crossing at Stoneham by the International & Great Northern and the Santa Fe to be extended until March 31, 1904.

The charter of the Mart Literary Society has been filed for record in the state department.

Today 192 warrants were registered by the state treasurer amounting to $14,250. The total number of warrants registered to date is 1,604, making the present deficit in the general revenue funds $197,728.

In the application of C. E. Ferguson, general freight agent of the Texas & Fort Smith railway at Texarkana, for an order of the railroad commission to regulate switching charges on interstate shipments of freight, Commissioners Storey and Mayfield hold that they have no jurisdiction over interstate shipments of freight originating from foreign points. They refer to the case of Fielder vs. Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway. From this ruling, Commissioner Colquhoun, in a lengthy opinion, dissents, holding that switching charges are merely for delivery.

Mayor Pro Tem of the City Council Determines to Resign

RESULT OF INCIDENT AT LAST MEETING

Question of Priority on a Motion Causes Breeze in the Council and Lehane Takes Exception to Mayor's Ruling

J. F. Lehane, alderman for the Fourth ward, is to resign as mayor pro tem and already has his resignation prepared and will present it to the city council at the next meeting.

Mr. Lehane was seen last night and asked what prompted him to take this action. He replied that the little episode that came up in the council Friday night in which the mayor and himself were the principals, led to it.

Asked further regarding the matter, the Fourth ward alderman said: "Regarding the unfortunate controversy that occurred during the council session Friday night between the mayor and myself, I deeply regret that I was not given an opportunity to explain my position correctly. My attitude was as follows: Mr. Waggonman made a motion to adopt the resolution to build the bridge, which motion did not meet with a second at that time.

THE FARMERS REAPING BENEFIT

One Time in History When High Cotton Prices Helped Them

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The near approach of prices to the 11-cent mark during the past week has stirred the cotton world from center to circumference. During the recent summer corner, the high prices were established at the tail end of the season and affected only a small proportion of the mills and a relatively small part of the crop. The present advance, coming at the beginning of the season, affects practically the whole crop and benefits directly the producer and the farmer. Last year the farmer saw a few speculators alone profit by the rise of 33¢ per bale after his crop had been sold, but this year he is alive to his opportunity and so far has demonstrated his ability to market his cotton in a way to get full value for it. With his immediate financial wants satisfied by proceeds of sales already made, he is not likely now to change the tactics so successful thus far, and the spinner and exporter must therefore be resigned to pay the price demanded by the producer. Just at 9 cents and at 8½ cents there was a certain amount of cotton for sale, so now holders are willing sellers at 10 cents in the interior. With each higher level, their ideas of price are expanding and the extremely low crop estimates now being circulated are calculated to still further influence producers to hold for much higher prices. Many even dream of a permanent level on some such basis as the extreme prices of the past mid-summer. While estimates of yield even below 10,000,000 bales are being seriously discussed, Mr. Ellison's estimate of consumption of 10,877,000 bales makes the South's case still stronger, while we have good reasons for believing that the world's needs are fully 200,000 greater than Mr. Ellison's estimate. We shall not quarrel with his figures, for we are equally convinced that the mills.

A TEST EXPERIMENT

Peculiar Power Possessed by a New Medicine

Of new discoveries there is no end, but one of the most recent, most remarkable and one which will prove invaluable to thousands of people, is a discovery which it is believed will take the place of all other remedies for the cure of those common and obstinate diseases, dyspepsia and stomach troubles. This discovery is not a loudly advertised, secret patent medicine, but is a scientific combination of wholesome, perfectly harmless vegetable essences, fruit salts, pure pepsin and bismuth.

These remedies are combined in lozenge forms, pleasant to take and will preserve their good qualities indefinitely, whereas all liquid medicines rapidly lose whatever good qualities they may have had as soon as unopened and exposed to the air.

This preparation is called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and it is claimed that one of these Tablets or lozenges will digest from 300 to 3,600 times its own weight of meat, eggs and other wholesome food. And this claim has been proven by actual experiments in the following manner: A hard boiled egg cut into small pieces was placed in a bottle containing warm water heated to ninety-eight degrees (or blood heat); one of these Tablets was then placed in the bottle and the proper temperature maintained for three hours and a half, at the end of which time the egg was as completely digested as it would have been in a healthy stomach. This experiment was undertaken to demonstrate that what it would do in the bottle it would also do in the stomach, hence its unquestionable value in the cure of dyspepsia and weak digestion. Very few people are free from some form of indigestion, but scarcely two will have the same symptoms. Some will suffer most from distress after eating, bloating from gas in the stomach and bowels, others have acid dyspepsia or heartburn, others palpitation or headache, sleeplessness, pains in chest and under shoulder blades, extreme nervousness, as in nervous dyspepsia, but they all have the same cause, failure to properly digest what is eaten. The stomach must have rest and assistance, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give it both, by digesting the food for it and in a short time it is restored to its normal action and vigor. At the same time the Tablets are so harmless that a child can take them with benefit. This new preparation has already made many astonishing cures, as, for instance, the following:

After using only one package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets I have received such great and unexpected benefit that I wish to express my sincere gratitude. In fact, it has been six months since I took the package and I have not had one particle of distress or difficulty since. And all this in the face of the fact that the best doctors I consulted told me my case was Chronic Dyspepsia and absolutely incurable, as I had suffered twenty-five years. I distributed half a dozen packages among my friends here who are very anxious to try this remedy.

MRS. SARAH A. SKEEL,
Lynnville, Jasper Co., Mo.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents for full sized packages. A little book on Stomach Diseases mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

with the best will in the world, cannot consume 10,877,000 bales this season for the good and sufficient reason that such an amount of American cotton has not been grown this year and therefore cannot be spun. The problem which the trade has to work out is what price will check consumption sufficiently to bring it down to the size of the supply available. Whatever that price may be, it seems probable that it will be established early in the season and that manufactured goods will also advance to a parity with such a level. Once the trade knows that a stable basis has been reached business will proceed in a steady fashion, but, of course, at a reduced rate, in proportion to the reduced supply. Everybody is looking for a reaction; many are praying for it, and, according to all precedent, one is due, but while knowing spot needs are so urgent, any falling off in the demand will be but temporary and any reaction in prices short-lived. The census report, showing 3,706,248 bales ginned to October 18, was not understood. The verdict was that it permitted no deduction to be made of any kind as to its significance. The amount brought into sight to October 25 was 2,061,000, which was 1,600 less than the amount ginned to October 18.

Music and Drama

At the opera house yesterday afternoon and night two large audiences enjoyed the performance of "Way Down East," by a company which tours under the direction of William A. Brady. This is a pastoral drama of more than the usual merit, and its production on this occasion was none the less enjoyable because it was something "we had seen before." This company is a strong one, David, the "squire," Mrs. Brewer, Anna Moore, H. Holler and the constable were all in capable hands, and it was one of the strongest organizations which has been here this season.

The third act was the most entertaining part of the play. The snow storm was a fine showing of mechanical effects, but the audience did not give it all the applause, because it was in this part of the play that the real emotional acting of the piece is brought out. In this Anna, the "Squire," Mrs. Brewer and David have an opportunity to do a fine bit of acting, and so pleased were all, that certain calls followed. There is a great deal of "business" in this act. It represents the pastoral home of the Brewers, one of those homes which is open to every friend of the family, at any hour of the day and night, and to sit at meat a cordial invitation is given without the words being spoken, because "every one in these parts know."

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Owing to the unusual interest already manifested in the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Kennedy in "As You Like It," at Greenwald's opera house next Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee, Nov. 13-14, I would suggest that theater patrons secure their seats as early as possible.

Seats go on sale at box office Wednesday 8 a. m.

PHIL W. GREENWALL,
Manager Greenwald's Opera House.

FIRST OF THE SEASON

Chrysanthemum Social to Be Given by Naomah Council

Naomah Council No. 11 will entertain Tuesday night, Nov. 10, at Redman's hall, the decorations will be chrysanthemums and the "family album" will be displayed. The album will be in charge of Mrs. H. K. Zimmerman and Agnes Geer. A program will be arranged by Miss Dora Norvel, which will include music and dancing. Refreshments will be served.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

A meeting of the teachers of Tarrant county was held yesterday in the rooms of Superintendent Moore, in the court house. There was quite a large attendance. Professor W. T. Hammond presiding.

Texas history was discussed by J. N. Johnston and others. Social relations between teacher and community was the subject of a discussion by J. J. McCook of Marine, and G. D. Ramsay of Mansfield discussed the social status of pupil and teachers. The Fort Worth teachers attending were G. R. Hammond, R. L. Paschal, A. E. Burnett, Cullen Grimes, J. S. McGhee, W. M. Moore.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING

Rev. W. M. Harris, pastor of the First Baptist church of Galveston, has been invited and will likely speak at the men's meeting at the Young Men's Christian Association at 4 p. m. today. The quartet will sing. All men invited.

MEN WHO WILL BE HEARD FROM IN THE COMING SESSION OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—When the speaker's gavel taps to order the Fifty-eighth congress tomorrow, the 288 men who rise in their seats for the chaplain's invocation will furnish an interesting study. There will be those who return to the national capital year after year and their services here have made their names household words throughout the land, but there will be many new faces that will have to make their impression upon the public.

The old graybeards of legislation, like Payne, Cannon, Dalzell, Hepburn and Grosvenor and the oratorical wonders like Cousins of Iowa, Champ Clark of Missouri, Williams of Mississippi, Littlefield of Maine and Burleson of Texas, will be sure to attract the attention of the galleries, but before the session is closed, from among the members whose names are now meaningless to the great mass of the American public may come personalities whom fame will claim as her own. Certainly a cursory glance at the list of candidates leads to the belief that the lower house is to be enriched by no small number of interesting and original figures.

THE TEXAS DELEGATION

Texas, which has the distinction of always having one of the strongest delegations in the national legislative chamber, has seen fit to send seven new members to Washington for a try-out. They are Beall of Waxahachie, Scott Field of Calvert, Gregg of Palestine, Gillespie of Fort Worth, Garner of Uvalde, Smith of Colorado and the successor to Congressman Ball who was just elected.

MISSOURI'S DEBATORS

Missouri will again be much in evidence. Champ Clarke, DeArmond, Cowherd, Benton and Lloyd, all will return to Washington. This quintet is regarded as the most formidable array of debating statesmen in the lower house and their names have become known the continent over. There will be three more democrats added to that delegation which abounds not only in quantity but quality as well. Their names are as follows: Hamlin of Springfield, who it is claimed is an orator as well as a worker; Hunt of St. Louis, who has been a stonemason all his life, whom the democrats saw fit to honor with the nomination and congratulate after he defeated Joy, one of the most popular republicans of the last few congresses; and Lamar of Houston, a lawyer of no mean ability.

New York city will send "Big Tim" Sullivan and Editor Hearst to the democratic side of the house. The former for one reason or another must be observed with interest. From selling newspapers in the streets of Gotham, he graduated in the saloon business. Having laid aside a little pile he decided to go to the state senate of six or seven terms. Of course this program was filled out and it was his famous East Side constituency that stood by him and finally sent him to Washington.

He looks after them like a father after his children. Pays for their food and clothes, pays doctors' and undertakers' bills, loans, gives bail and pays fines of his friends who happen to get entangled in the meshes of the law. The broad indiscriminate philanthropy is upon which the power of his is based and a very substantial foundation it is. The new congressman is no orator but talks plainly and to the point.

Hearst, who will succeed Amos J. Cummings, is sure to be of great influence to his party in Washington because of his journalistic property. He, like Sullivan, is not an orator, but has a knack to reach the essential point without delay. He is strong on anti-trust legislation as well as tariff revision and will undoubtedly be heard loud in the discussion of these vital subjects.

Minnesota will manage to keep herself well to the front by the changes and additions she has made to her delegation. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the election out in that state last fall was the return of ex-Governor John Lind to Congress after an absence of some years. His course will be watched closely because it has been predicted that though elected as a democrat, he will take an independent attitude. Mr. Lind is a self-made man, and is a ready debater. He is a native of Sweden but has been in this country since childhood. It is thought that he has his eye on the United States senate, as the successor of Knute Nelson, with whom he has had strife for a long time. In John Lind many northern western democrats see good presidential timber and it would not be surprising if he made himself formidable as such by his course in the Fifty-eighth congress.

The prophets see in J. Adam Bede of the Duluth district the wit of the next house. Bede's career, like Lind's, is a varied one, especially his political end. Beginning as a prohibitionist it did not take long to throw a hand-spring into the democratic ranks and from there the republican party was reached by him in easy stages. President Cleveland appointed him as the compromise candidate for United States marshal at Minnesota.

He wrote his acceptance of the appointment on a piece of birch bark and from that time has been known as "Birch Bark" Bede. Bede comes to congress under republican auspices. He is a newspaper man, formerly wrote editorial paragraphs for a Washington newspaper and now is running a weekly, the subscription price being but 25 cents a year, and consequently is taken by all politicians in the northwest. In 1899 he made a speech in a political convention that stamped him as a humorist. His friends say he just can't help from being funny and that he will make a bigger hit than did "Private" John Allen of Mississippi, whose retirement to the shades of Tupeola robbed congress of its leading performer in this line.

Halver Steenson will be pointed out as the man that once seconded the nomination of James G. Blaine in a national convention. He is a lawyer more than six feet tall, of a striking appearance.

ANOTHER NEWSPAPER MAN

California sends in the person of E. J. Livernash, elected by democratic and union labor votes, a man who is bound to attract attention. Livernash is small, nervous and swarthy, with bushy black hair and piercing eyes of the same color. He, too, is a newspaper man, being employed on Hearst's San Francisco Journal and will doubtless be very close politically with the New York newspaper proprietor.

Of course Judge Birdsall will be pointed out as the man who stepped in and won out handsomely in Speaker Henderson's district when that distinguished lowan withdrew from the contest. He is a good lawyer, and should make a good congressman. George Shiras, III, comes here from Pittsburg as a democrat. He is a son of Justice Shiras of the United States supreme court and has been for a long time a figure in the politics of the Smoky City. D. D. Granger, the democrat who succeeded in breaking up the solid congressional delegation of two from Rhode Island, is a former mayor of Providence and a gold democrat.

H. O. Young, republican, of the Twelfth Michigan district, is a mine operator.

A. H. Jackson, who defeated Representative Norton, democrat, in Ohio, was formerly a pedler and circus man. Judge Badger, dem., who succeeds Representative Thompkins, is the man who pulled the nose of former Representative Lentz, who once represented the district in congress.

Alva Adams, democratic congressman-at-large, from Colorado, was formerly governor of that state.

Frank B. Brandegee of the Third Connecticut district is one of the most popular republicans in the state and the son of a former member of the republican national committee.

Ollie James of Kentucky, democrat, is a physical giant with a baby face, and altogether a picturesque figure. John A. Sullivan, who had the distinction of defeating E. N. Foss, brother to the chairman of the house naval affairs committee, in a republican district in Massachusetts, is a popular democrat who has long figured in politics and won a reputation as a vote getter. With these may be classed "Billy" Lorimer, former street car driver and present republican boss of Chicago, who returns to the house after a term spent out of congress, in which he won celebrity as the successful manager of Representative Hopkins' senatorial fight.

OLD LEADERS BACK

Nearly all the old leaders of the last house have been returned to the Fifty-eighth congress. All the chairmen of important committees in the present house were elected with the exception of Loud of California, chairman of the postoffice committee, and Mercer of Nebraska, at the head of the committee on public buildings and grounds. A large proportion of the old members have seen exceptionally long service in the house. General Harry Bingham of Pennsylvania will be the "father" of the next house as he was of the last one, and at the expiration of this term will have seen twenty-six years of continuous service there. Two or three other members of the house have been members longer than General Bingham, but their service has not been continuous. General Ketchum, a most appropriate name for a soldier, of New York, was first elected to congress fifty years ago and at the expiration of the coming term will have served thirty-two years in the house.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon who will be the next speaker has been a member twenty-eight years, but his service has not been without a break as he was defeated for election for the Fifty-second congress in 1890. Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, the most formidable opponent to Cannon, has been in the house sixteen years. General Grosvenor of Ohio came to Washington two years before Dalzell. Mr. Hitt of Illinois has served for twenty-two years, while Hepburn of Iowa has a record of sixteen years' membership. Two members have retired from long service in the lower body. They are Mr. Grow of Pennsylvania and Hopkins of Illinois, the latter being promoted to the senate. Mr. Grow who retires voluntarily from public life, was first elected to congress fifty-two years ago, and ten years later was speaker of the house. He has served altogether twenty-two years, having re-entered the house in the Fifty-third congress after an absence of thirty years. Mr. Hopkins has been a member for eighteen years, two years less than former Speaker Henderson's service.

While there will be a large number of new faces in the house it will also contain a very large proportion of members of long service. The western and southern states especially have been in the habit of returning their members to congress after congress. The east, however, is very changeable in this respect.

MADE YOUNG AGAIN

Funny People

Many funny people coming to Fort Worth to be cured of stammering. Some of them can't tell who they are, but Dr. G. W. Randolph, who is now at Mansion Hotel, puts the most of them to talking all right in one or two days. He cured hundreds of stammerers in Dallas three years ago. Leading papers all over the South are loud in his praise.

EXACT KNOWLEDGE OF MEXICO

Is a sealed book to most people in the United States; yet it is the most attractive neighbor America has. Its fertile soil produces cotton, corn, tobacco and tropical fruits in abundance, while its mining regions are rich in treasure. There are but five cities in the Republic of Mexico not reached by the Mexican Central Railway. Excursion tickets sold the year round with nine months' limit and stop-over privileges.

MANY WITNESSES

she would have seen him if he had been there that afternoon or evening. On cross examination she said she didn't know what day it was that Martin got on the car. She was positive Jordan Thompson, her brother-in-law, was not in Fort Worth on the night of the killing. She did not see Martin again after the day he got on the 11 o'clock interurban car. Sallie Brockman, also colored, was next called. On the morning of the day Swackhammer was killed Martin was at her house. She saw him get on the interurban car at stop 34; she did not see him after that. AT THE SHAMROCK. Mart Davis of the Shamrock saloon said he saw Rufus Martin at his place on the night of the killing. It was 9 o'clock or later. Martin bought two rounds of drinks at the Shamrock. He had a roll of bills; one of them was a ten-dollar bill. He told Davis that he had picked cotton and made some money; that the man for whom he worked had "beat him down" from $13 to $8 in paying him, but that he had taken the $8 and made it a hundred by gambling. Shannon Trezevant, bartender at the Shamrock, said Martin was in the saloon about 11 o'clock on the night Swackhammer was killed. He told the bartender he had been in a cotton patch out about Arlington, had been gambling there and "made himself a hundred dollars about dark." Maggie Hill, a negroess, saw Martin at the Shamrock. She also saw him near Fourteenth and Main streets on the day after the shooting. She found no bullet holes in the wagon. He traced the course of the wagon across the field, near Swackhammer's house, and told of finding the dead man's whip. This was found half way across the field, beside the wagon tracks, at the point where the wagon left the road across the field. Deputy Purvis was cross-questioned at length regarding the wounds in Swackhammer's body. He said they looked like they were made by 45-caliber bullets. Jordan Thompson, whose testimony is given in the foregoing, was the last witness for the state. It was 5:05 when the state rested its case. FOR THE DEFENSE. When County Attorney Lattimore announced that the state's case was before the jury, the defense recalled Mrs. Swackhammer to the stand to testify in regard to some minor points. By agreement the testimony of a man named Noel who was not present, was admitted. It was to the effect that on Oct. 22 he paid Martin something over $5 and the week before that $5, for work done. George Chappell was called. He testified that Martin never worked on his place; never cut wood for him and that he never had trouble with a negro during which Jordan Thompson interfered. Martin he said might have done some work for a man who leased from him. Frank Dawson, a negro, testified to Martin's having worked in August and September in Wichita Falls and having received sums of $6.55 and $8.50 for his work. Jordan Thompson also worked at Wichita Falls. Witness did not know whether Martin had any money when he left Wichita Falls in October.

COOK AT DOBBINS'

Izo Sloan, cook at Dobbins' restaurant, where Martin was arrested, said that Martin was in the restaurant between 10 and 11 o'clock on the night of the killing. He said that Jordan Thompson was with him. He admitted on cross examination that Dobbins' wife was kin to Martin. He thought that Thompson wore a light colored coat on the night he was in the restaurant with Martin. He did not remember whether he had whiskers; did not know what color of trousers he wore or what sort of a hat. He did not know him at that time and had only seen him once before. He said that part of Martin's clothes had been changed when he came back the second time that night. Rob Morris, bartender at a saloon on Thirteenth street, near Jennings, testified that Martin was in his place on the night of the killing, accompanied by another negro. Thompson was brought into the court room. Morris looked at him a minute and then said he looked something like the man who was with Martin, but he could not identify him as being the man.

Attachments were issued for George McConnell and Ed Bell who are wanted by the defense as witnesses. The court granted permission to the lawyers for the defense to have a private conference with Martin and he was taken by them into a jury room. The conference lasted fully 15 minutes. It was 6:10 when the lawyers and Martin emerged from the room. Judge Dunklin at once announced that it would be impossible to conclude the case last night and adjourned court until Monday morning.

Attorney Davis was asked if he intended to put Martin on the stand. "I don't know; lawyers don't like to tell what they are going to do," he said, succinctly.

Fort Worth As It Is Today

In the first place Fort Worth is the most essentially American city of its size in the United States. It has 4 per cent colored population, 6 per cent foreign-born and 90 per cent American-born white population. Fort Worth possesses the purest water in the world. It is artesian and is obtained by a tunnel system from 900 feet below the earth's surface. Fort Worth is situated on a high bluff overlooking the beautiful Trinity River, the West and Clear forks of which converge at this city. Until the artesian system was installed Fort Worth's water supply came from the Trinity in part and from artesian wells in part. Statistics show that Fort Worth in proportion to population, is the second healthiest city in the world, and with the introduction of artesian water it is certain to become the most healthful. Although young in comparison with other leading Texas cities, Fort Worth is rapidly overcoming the advantages its rivals had by reason of their earlier starts. Fort Worth today is acknowledged to be the most rapidly growing city in Texas. If you are interested in Fort Worth, read the following: Population, 43,000. Good newspapers. Rural mail routes. Free kindergartens. A $100,000 city hall. A healthful climate. Beautiful residences. A $75,000 county jail. Many women's clubs. The Commercial Club. Five artificial ice plants. Four express companies. Reasonable city taxation. Forty acres of public park. Eighteen wholesale houses. Several messenger services. Annual business $29,900,000. A $500,000 county courthouse. Four railroad machine shops. Bank deposits over $5,000,000. A teachers' training institute. Two local telephone systems. The natural live stock market. Five loan and trust companies. Seventy miles of water mains. Over 150 miles of public streets. A $50,000 public library building. Several hotels of various grades. Bradstreet's Commercial Agency. Freedom from labor disturbances. Annual pay rolls of over $4,000,000. Several energetic historical societies. Sixty-eight passenger trains, all daily. Two long-distance telephone systems. "The finest Country Club in the South." Real estate valuation about $17,000,000. Seven national and two savings banks. One company of Texas National Guard. The Board of Trade, with 235 members. Many philanthropic and charity societies. A splendid surrounding agricultural region. The gateway to the panhandle and the west. G. D. Dun & Co. report 950 business houses. Unsurpassed advantages as a business center. Unrivaled facilities as a manufacturing center. An commodious and well-equipped natatorium. Over forty-five miles of underground sewerage. Five and two-thirds square miles of territory. A $175,000 postoffice building, about to be enlarged. Sixty-eight miles of paved public thoroughfares. Postal and Western Union Telegraph companies. Unequaled attractions as a place of residence. One handsome theater and several vaudeville houses. Headquarters of only literary magazine published in Texas. More fraternal organizations than any city of its size in the south. Most efficient police force of any city in the state. Lowest per centage of losses by fire for any city of the size in the south. Population of over 100,000 reached by electric car service. One extensive gas and three large electric lighting companies. The largest and costliest freight depot of any city of its size. A $100,000 steel viaduct across the Texas and Pacific reservation. Two well-equipped hospitals and a third under course of construction. Forty-two churches, nearly all of striking architectural beauty. Young Men's Christian Association, about to erect a costly structure. Twenty-two miles of modern street car lines, not including the Interurban line. A new foreign merchants and wholesalers' association, with fifty-six members. One of the seven complete roundhouses in the United States and four other roundhouses. The finest passenger station in the world for a city of its size; also a second line passenger station. Over 200 artesian wells, supplying pure water for domestic, factory and fire protection purposes. The home of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association, the richest association of cattlemen in the world, the National association not excepted. A paid fire department of eight companies which is the most thoroughly trained department in the southwest. Medical department of Fort Worth University which has graduated 1,200 students in the past ten years. Headquarters of the Eleventh division of the Railway Mail service, comprising Texas, Arkansas, Indian Territory and Louisiana. Many clubs devoted to social, athletic, literary, musical and dramatic objects, panics, forming the best fire department in the southwest, besides several factory besides a large number of lesser social organizations. Twelve public and one parochial schools, all of high order; the Fort Worth University, Polytechnic College, St. Ignatius' Academy for girls and several business colleges. One Grand Army of the Republic post, one Woman's Relief Corps, one Confederate camp, one Sons of Confederates, one Daughters of the Confederacy, one Children of the Confederacy, one Mexican Veterans' Association, and one Dames of '46. Eleven railroads, all trunk lines, including the Texas and Pacific, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe (Atchison system), Houston and Texas Central (Southern Pacific system); Fort Worth and Rio Grande (Frisco system), Transcontinental branch of the Texas and Pacific, Fort Worth and Denver City, Chicago, Rock Island and Texas; St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt), St. Louis and San Francisco, International and Great Northern. "Sloanhurst Stock Farm" is one of Fort Worth's important business enterprises. At this stock farm one will find facilities for the breeding and management of pedigreed swine that are unequalled by those of any similar institution in the South. The best brood stock known is to be found here. The farm consists of 400 acres, nearly all of which can be utilized for hog raising. Over 100 manufacturing establishments, including the Armour and Swift packing-houses, the two most modern and finest packing plants in the world, representing an investment of $5,000,000 and having an annual pay roll of $1,500,000; the largest brewery in the southwest, a large candy and cracker factory, two flour mills of a total of 2,800 barrels per day capacity, four foundry and machine-shops, two bed spring and mattress factories, one suspender factory, one furniture factory, two harness and saddlery factories, one horse collar factory, one shirt factory, one baking powder, one starch and two bluing factories, one large whole and retail coffee-roasting plant, two blank book plants, one pickling factory, one bar and office furniture factory, one broom factory, two confectionery plants, three cigar factories, two tombstone and marble works, one proprietary medicine plant, one macaroni factory, one wire fence factory, two grain elevators, one cottonseed oil mill, eight steam laundries. There are three state banks in Texas. One of them is located in Fort Worth.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE Caused the death of Doctor Bright. Bright's Disease is simply slow congestion of the Kidneys. In the last stage the congestion becomes acute and the victim lives a few hours or a few days, but is past saving. This insidious Kidney trouble is caused by sluggish, torpid, congested liver and slow constipated bowels, whereby the Kidneys are involved and ruined. Drake's Palmetto Wine is a foe to congestion of Liver, Kidneys and its congenial organs. It promptly relieves the congestion and carries it out of the Liver, Kidneys, tissues and blood. Drake's Palmetto Wine restores the mucous membranes to health condition, relieves the membranes throughout the body from inflammation and Catarrh and cures Catarrh, Constipation, Liver and Kidney disease to stay cured. It gives relief immediately, builds up vigor and health, prolongs life and makes it enjoyable. A trial bottle always gives relief and often cures. A trial bottle will be sent to every reader of The Telegram who will write for it to Drake's Formula Company, 400 Drake Building, 109 Lake St., Chicago, Ill. A postal card will bring this wonderful tonic Palmetto medicine to you absolutely free. It is a boon to diseased, laden, pain-ridden men and women.

THE LATEST IN RAILROAD NEWS Date for Consolidation of the Rock Island Lines May Be December 1 While no authoritative statement has been made as to the date when the final consolidation of the Rock Island lines in Texas will be, it is well understood that it will be December. All details have been arranged for the merging of the three properties into the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf Railroad Company, and it is understood that the auditing department of the Choctaw & Gulf will be transferred from present headquarters at Amarillo to Fort Worth, and that after the first of next month only the traffic department of that line will be maintained at Amarillo. The general offices of the Chicago, Rock Island & Mexican at Dalhart are also to be abolished, and hereafter general headquarters of the Rock Island system in Texas will be at Fort Worth. It was also intimated yesterday that en

UNITED STATES READY IF WAR WITH COLOMBIA OCCURS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(Special).—The United States has mobilized thirteen ships of war, some of which are already at the Isthmus of Panama. These vessels are the battleship Maine, which will be in Hampton Roads tomorrow morning for necessary repairs, and will proceed under full steam for Colon; the Olympia, protected cruiser, which was ordered today from Norfolk to Colon; the Prairie, with three hundred and fifty marines, ordered from League Island to Colon; the Boston, on route from San Juan Del Sur, on the Pacific coast; Panama; the monitor Wyoming; the cruiser Marblehead, and the Concord, also from the Pacific coast; the cruiser Albatross, ordered from San Domingo for Colon; the Atlanta, the Dixie and the Nashville are already in Colon, with the avowed object of preventing Colombia from attacking the insurgents.

The president's private yacht, the Mayflower, will leave here tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, with Rear Admiral Cogan and Consul General Gudgeon on board for Panama. Roughly stated, it will be about five or six days before any of the new vessels under orders to the front will reach Colon or Panama. The question was asked the navy department today why the great battleship Maine and the Olympia were ordered post haste to the Isthmus. The naive reply was made: "O, the Maine had nothing to do and we thought we could send her and the Olympia to Colon."

The collier Hannibal has been ordered to the front from Guantanamo, to supply coal to the United States vessels, which are investing the Isthmus, and it is now extremely probable that many other vessels will be sent to the Isthmus as soon as they can be gotten ready.

The ordering of the Maine and the Olympia is said to be only the result of news received today that Colombia proposed to fight the alleged republic of Panama. If Colombia fights the United States must make good its threat to keep the peace, and this will bring the United States marines and sailors who will go ashore in armed conflict with the Colombian troops and will be thus begun. It is estimated that within a week the United States will have 1,000 marines ashore in various places in the "republic of Panama," and the suspicion is growing hourly that the government is getting ready to send a part of the army to the Isthmus.

"And, in consequence, the United States also guarantees in the same manner the rights of the sovereignty and property which New Granada has and possesses over the said territory."

COLOMBIANS ARE VERY INDIGNANT

Many Merchants of New York City Express Their Disapprobation

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(Special).—Among the many Colombian merchants in this city engaged in the exportation of coffee and other products and in the commission business, much indignation was expressed today at what they considered the manifest desire of the United States government to see the revolution succeed.

They pointed out that the presence of American warships at either end of the Isthmus, taken with the general belief prevalent in Colombia and on the Isthmus that the Roosevelt administration was friendly to the cause of the seceders could not but be regarded as a strong moral encouragement to the rebels whether the United States' guns or sailors took any active part in the trouble or not. Pedro Lopez, a large coffee importer, of 24 State street, said today that in Colombia, according to his advice, the government received information several weeks ago that the revolution was about to break out in Panama, backed by American capital and with an assurance on the part of the capitalists that the United States government would furnish support.

been heavy purchasers of Atchison stocks. The allied interests control the Northern Securities Company, the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific and the Atchison, thus having within their grasp every trans-continental route which leaves the St. Paul as well as the Northwestern, out in the cold. It is pointed out that since the organization of the Northern Securities Company the proportionate increase in the St. Paul and the Northwestern have been much smaller than the increase of the Burlington, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and the Union Pacific. The reason why the St. Paul and Northwestern have not greater gains is because they are hemmed in. With St. Paul building to a north Pacific point, it will give the Gould-Rockefeller lines terminals equal to those of the Harriman-Morgan-Rock Island-Northern Securities interests.

was menaced with murder. He denied the threats and continued his espionage. He suborned the mistress of a noted Nihilist, Petrovskik, and obtained much knowledge of the goings on of the Nihilists here, including liberal annuities to postmen to deliver him letters addressed to certain Nihilists. It is believed that several postmen yielded. One informed the public prosecution with the result of the arrest. The Russian government dreading revelations of its system of espionage through-out Switzerland sent a special envoy from St. Petersburg to Geneva to beg that Rabinewsky be expelled and not prosecuted. The government refused. Plausible disclosures are assured.

MRS. BARSE ASKS ATTORNEY'S FEES

Wife of Wealthy Commission Man Applies for Temporary Alimony

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 7.—(Special).—An application of Mrs. Belle M. Barse for temporary alimony began today before Judge Slover in the circuit court. Mrs. Barse is the wife of George B. Barse, the wealthy live stock commission merchant. They were married fifteen years ago. She was his second wife. He had eight children by a former marriage.

The divorce suit was filed by Mr. Barse last June. In her application for temporary alimony Mrs. Barse stated that her husband was worth one-quarter of a million of dollars, and that his income was $2,000 a year. She asked for $2,500 for attorney's fees, $2,000 for other expenses and $500 a month.

REIGN OF TERROR STILL CONTINUES

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hears.)

SOFIA, Nov. 7.—The Bulgarian government reports from Adrianople Vilayet and Monastir, confirm my private reports that a reign of terror continues there. Recently in the village of Armeskok district of Florina, after the relief commissioners distributed money, giving villagers about one lira each, the Turkish soldiers pounced upon the village, beat the villagers and compelled them to give them the relief money. The Turks also looted the church, taking the church fund of 1-200 piastas.

The villagers, with difficulty, reported the robbery to the Austrian and Russian consuls in Monastir. The Turkish government took no action. Twenty-five inhabitants of Smardess were arrested because they could not produce the riles the Turks accused them of possessing. A number of peasants who were refugees from the town of Podimechem, were forced to go out in order to compel them to return to their ruined homes, where shelter and food were impossible to obtain.

At Perlep, Turkish soldiers looted the shops. Seven shopkeepers, who closed their houses in self-defense, were arrested, tried and sentenced to three years' imprisonment. One got six years.

In the vilayet of Adrianople conditions are as bad as ever. During the past couple of months 20,000 persons have been forced to take refuge in Bulgaria. Reports convince me that instead of there being a cessation of the campaign of extermination, it continues furiously, but the Turks are taking precautions to prevent the news getting out.

Turkish peasants are joining the soldiers in persecuting the Bulgarians. In Penka and Boenbressa women were maltreated and houses in the villages burned. The bishop of Adrianople sent a priest to Rossrats to relieve the poor. The priest found difficulty in distributing the funds, because Turkish soldiers pounced upon the villagers and stole the relief money. These are stubborn official facts, and prove that the Turk continues his brutal operations.

GEORGE LYNCH.

GARDNER GOING AFTER THE TURF

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(Special).—"Win or lose with Fitzsimmons, George Gardner will go straight to Memphis from 'Frisco, after his battle, and will look after the racing game for a short time before fighting any more," said John Bright, partner and trainer of a string of horses that George Gardner has invested his surplus winnings in.

The Gardner horses reached Montgomery Park, Memphis, recently from Chicago. The string consists of four horses, including St. Cuthbert, the aged sprinter, and three yearlings.

"We will invest more money in running horses," continued Bright. "Gardner's colors will probably be seen on the turf in Hot Springs. If he wins his fight against Fitzsimmons he is under contract to Billy Brady for several weeks at $1,000 per week. If he loses, he will go to New Orleans and dabble in the racing game until Hot Springs opens up."

Corbett to agree. The latter has repeatedly said he is through with the ring fight, and on that account it is not likely that "Monologue James" will change his mind. Fitz is determined to force Corbett to fight him. He claims Corbett called him a good old "has-been" in Chicago, and he wants revenge for this remark.

ABOUT $15,000 RAISED THUS FAR

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 7.—(Special).—At the State Baptist convention Rev. Dr. Bimar preached eloquently tonight in behalf of Buckner's Orphan Home, and another shower of money was forthcoming from the zealous audience. The statement was made tonight that approximately $15,000 has been raised in voluntary contributions for the various funds since the convention was opened—$7,000 for state education, $2,500 for ministerial education at Baylor, $2,500 for theological seminaries and $3,000 for Buckner's Orphan Home.

SOME PLUMS COMING

Senator Hanna Will Reward Cuyahoga Republicans

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 7.—(Special).—Something is to be done for the hungry republicans of Cleveland by the coming legislature. Some law is to be passed to wrest the patronage of Cleveland from Tom L. Johnson, even if it should be necessary to enact an entire new municipal code. Senator Hanna has intimated as much to some of the leaders since the election. He has a double purpose in view. First and foremost, he wants to deprive Johnson in future contests of the power that patronage of a city like Cleveland gives. Secondly, Hanna wants to substantially reward the Cuyahoga republicans for their victory.

RUMOR ABOUT ST. PAUL

Story That It Will Extend to North Pacific Coast Again Reported

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(Special).—That which has long been a rumor to the effect that the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul has been secretly planning to build an extension to the north Pacific coast, was at last assumed a tangible form. The informant is one did not wish his name mentioned. It is did not wish his name mentioned. It is shown by this authority that all the big combinations of capital antagonized to the Harriman and Gould interests are not friendly and have

NO BIG GAMES WERE PLAYED IN THE WEST

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 7.—(Special).—No football games that will have any bearing on the championship in the "big nine" were played in the west today. Michigan and Minnesota did what was expected—won their games handsly. Chicago University got a scare from the Haskell Indians, beating them by a close score after a hard fight. In the east the interest centered around the Harvard-Pennsylvania game, and Princeton did not show as well as expected. Neither was the Princeton victory up to expectations in point of score. Following was the results of today's games:

- Minnesota, 45; Lawrence, 0.
- Chicago, 17; Haskell Indians, 11.
- Michigan, 35; Ohio State, 0.
- Ames College, 41; Grinnell College, 5.

MAN WAS RUSSIAN SPY

Arrest in Switzerland May Lead to Startling Disclosures

PETER PETERS OUT SUDDENLY

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 7.—(Special).—Peter Maher of Ireland quit suddenly and without excuse in the fourth round of his so-called fight against Jack Munroe of Butte, Mont., tonight. Munroe is the miner who stayed four rounds with Jeffries and his showing tonight proves conclusively that he is only a miner and never will be a fighter. His swings throughout were wildly at the air and only by accident connected with Maher's body. Evidently there was something in this occurrence that made Maher feel badly, for he staggered over to a well lighted part of the ring, lay carelessly down on the floor and refused to arise. The referee kept counting just the same and it was Maher out. But it was not a famous victory. Munroe is not even a fourth-class heavyweight and he has as much chance of whipping James J. Jeffries as a cow has of flying.

PARKS' DOWNFALL QUICKLY HEADED

New York Unions Take Power of Handling Money From Walking Delegates

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Quick to follow the advice of Sam Parks regarding "money" transactions, the Housewives and Bridgemen's unions have taken from his walking delegates the power of handling any of the money in any manner, shape or form. Parks had hardly arrived Friday before his union adopted unanimously a resolution reading that: "No walking delegate shall collect on behalf of any union any money from any employer, no matter under what pretense. That no walking delegate shall be permitted to pay off workmen who are assigned to picket duty; that all money transactions shall be dictated wholly by the union itself." In every way the resolution so hedges in the walking delegates as to make them essentially servants of the union and not the leaders.

TOEPPERWEIN BREAKS RECORD

Wonderful Work of San Antonio Marksman Saturday Afternoon

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 7.—(Special).—Adolph Toepperwein this afternoon broke his former world's record with a rifle of 983 class balls out of 1,000, when he broke 1,500 blue rocks without a miss. He stopped on account of the darkness with a clean score. The rocks were thrown in the air thirty-five feet from where he stood.

TO DIVIDE RESPONSIBILITY.

General Staff of the Army is Considering New Plan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(Special).—The general staff of the army is giving serious consideration to a proposition for a radical change in the administration of military affairs. The proposed plan contemplates the division of the United States proper into three great military divisions, that of the east, that of the middle and that of the Pacific. The troops would be constructed into the fourth military division with three or four departments. Under this plan each military division would be commanded by a major general and each department by a brigadier general.

The new plan would increase the responsibility of the major generals and make the brigadiers subordinate to them.

Positively Magnificent Sale Begins Monday 10 a.m.

And will continue until every box is sold. Join the crowds that will surge here Monday to buy the boxes. Never before has such an opportunity presented itself.

Two $50 Watches Will Go Monday in Box Sale at..... 50c

They may be seen in our show windows, together with many other elaborate and costly articles, every one of which goes to somebody in Monday's Box Sale, for only a petty 50 cents.

Several $10 to $65 Watches Monday in Box Sale Each..... 50c

There will be articles widely diversified, and every box will contain some article which might be given to some person as a Christmas gift; so any article not actually suited to the purchaser's needs can be used for the coming holidays.

Fine $10 and $15 Clocks, Monday at the Box Sale only 50c

There will be manure sets, manure articles, toilet articles of silver, spoons, knives and forks, hollow silver ware, rings, chains, buttons, brooches, pins, hair ornaments, etc.

$6 to $15 Silver Spoons, Monday at the Box Sale 50c

The Jewelry Event of the Year!

The most surprising and most heroic trading effort ever known in the city of Fort Worth. A matchless and masterly merchandise plan that stands without peer or precedent in the history of the city's store doings.

Details of the Box Sale Plan:

2000 CARDBOARD BOXES, each containing an article of jewelry or jeweler's sundries, hundreds of articles that range in regular retail value from 50c up to $50.00. An immense percentage of values range from 50c to $5.00, and the scope and variety of goods is tremendous. You purchase for 50 cents any box you choose and the article it contains is yours for 50 cents. In cases where the article is too large to go in the box a card designating the article has been placed inside, and upon opening the box you select from our stock and the box articles displayed just what your card calls for. Every box carefully wrapped—not any one indicating by any mark what the box contains. A fair, square advertising proposition, fair and honorable to one and all alike. Customers cannot shake or handle boxes, which will be elevated out of reach and must be pointed out with a cane.

Absolutely Bona-Fide Sale Opens 10 a.m. Monday

In offering this Box Sale we wish every person to thoroughly understand that we positively guarantee that the retail price of any and every article sold in the boxes is 50 cents or higher, and it is needless to say that there will be a rush. Come early and see the surprises. Enjoy a sale that will stir all the city.

A $50 Diamond Ring will go Monday in Box Sale for 50c

Study carefully the plan—there is no misrepresentation. There could be none at this, the leading and reliable

COTTON REPORT THE BEST YET

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 7.—(Special.)—The weekly report of the condition of the cotton crop along its lines, issued today by the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad Company, is about the best report issued thus far this season. Some places report larger yields than last year. Good weather prevails generally. Picking is being pushed vigorously and heavy movement is reported from nearly every station. The report follows: Celeste—Cotton and other crop conditions unchanged; cotton opening very slow. Denton—Cotton about same; crop about half picked and marketed; upland cotton about finished and planters are working bottom lands. Dallas—Weather very favorable for picking and marketing; yield very good; many farmers report three-fourths of bale per acre, and average for Dallas county will be near this figure. Receipts at Dallas up to today about 3,000 bales, which is much less than up to same time last year, but it is probable the receipts for season will be in excess of last season. Denton—Weather past week very favorable for picking and cotton is being marketed fast as gathered. Fort Worth—Weather very favorable for cotton picking and receipts good as last year. Greenville—Heavy rains on 31st delayed picking and damaged cotton to some extent; conditions, however, improving over last report. Receipts heavy; think crop will be as good as last year, except in timber district, where the decrease will be about 10 per cent. Gatesville—Good rain fell Saturday, October 31, and ground dried sufficiently to resume picking by Monday; cotton receipts heavy this week. Condition of crop same as last week. Houston—Cotton all done but the picking; estimate still behind last year's figures; rice threshing going on under splin-

did conditions; crop nearly all cut; cane season just opening, with prospect for large yield of sugar and molasses. Hillsboro—No change in condition of the cotton crop; weather continues cool and clear and favorable for gathering and marketing; estimate from three-quarters to a bale per acre is conservative. Jefferson—Former estimate of one bale to five acres will be average yield of cotton; no top crop; picking well advanced and being marketed fast. La Grange—Cotton stand good and weed large, but fruitage has been poor, account boll weevils, which appeared early in season and destroyed over half normal crop; crop about three-fourths gathered; yield approximately about one bale to five or six acres. Mineola—Conditions unchanged; estimated yield for this vicinity about 25 per cent short of last year. McKinney—Cotton unchanged; estimated yield half bale per acre; 65 per cent of crop marketed. New Braunfels—Cotton made; farmers have nothing to do but gather what remains in field. Pittsburg—Cotton crop estimated half crop, or 150 bales per acre; daily receipts very light, which proves crop to be short on account of good price of cotton. Rockwall—Early cotton about all open and will be gathered in about three weeks; favorable weather; late cotton, if weather remains warm, will yield more than expected. Smithville—Cotton crop is advanced to stage where no climatic condition can assist; all cotton in this section nearly picked; prospects for future very dark. Sherman—Weather has been fair and cotton opening rapidly; yield so far is very satisfactory. Sealy—Cotton crop about three-fourths picked, and probably two-thirds shipped; no top crop expected; yield about one-third bale to acre. San Antonio—Have had very favorable weather for picking cotton past week; very little cotton will be picked after 15th of this month; there will be more cotton marketed in this territory this year than there was last year. San Marcos—Cotton conditions unchanged; very little remains in field; weevils damaged about all fruitage that would have opened in October and November; no cotton being held over, but sold fast as ginned. Taylor—Cotton unchanged; plant will yield no more; about 80 per cent picked; estimate for season still exceeds last season's figures; receipts to date over 2,000 bales ahead. Temple—Warm days and cool nights with but very little rain since last report; cotton being rapidly gathered and yield will fully equal, if not exceed, last year. Wichita Falls—Cotton crop is made. Waxahatchie—Received to date 14,843 bales of cotton; this estimated one-half of receipts; continues dry; picking active and movement of cotton is heavy. Waco—Cotton picking delayed on account heavy rain first few days, but movement heavy since Monday; it is difficult to determine just what crop will be, owing to numerous conflicting reports; east of here crop almost a failure, while west and south crop is fair; some sections above average; there will be no bolls opened after this picking, account worms.

CLIMATIC CURES
The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free experimentation in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night-sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warm climate, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. TWENTY TONS OF PAINT

Required to Protect Capitol Building From Weather
WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The United States capitol is just about twenty-tons heavier today than it was when congress adjourned last spring. Paint weighing that much has been applied in the recess of congress. The task has not been completed, but it will be by the time the lawmakers assemble in extra session a week from Monday. When the representatives and senators who have looked upon the dingy old walls of the committee rooms and corridors for so many years enter the building in about a week from now they will hardly know the place, because of the wonderful change effected. Not only has the inside of the building been benefited by the woman of the brush whippers, but the huge dome and the Goddess of Liberty have also received a new dress. The goddess was not painted, but was given several coats of varnish to prevent her flowing robes from corroding and turning green. In round figures, it required just 42,000 pounds of paint, seventy men and 250 brushes to accomplish the task. Fourteen hundred gallons of paint was used on the outside of the dome, and it now looks like a structure able to stand all kinds of weather without showing it.

AN ORIENTAL WINDOW

We call your attention to the south corner of our show window, where you can see some of the Oriental Rugs and Draperies made in this country. Years ago our manufacturers came to the conclusion that if they could master the art of coloring, the United States need not take rugs and draperies from the Orient. A few years ago they imported skilled laborers from the Orient and established plants where, with the trend of civilization constantly improved on barbarian ideas, they are producing Rugs and Draperies the equal of anything ever imported, at about one-fifth the cost. Beginning with—

CARED FOR EMPLOYEES
And Because It Was Old-Fashioned Failed to Make a Living
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—A receiver has been appointed for D. Landreth & Sons, seed merchants. The liabilities are about $150,000 and assets much less. The house is one of the oldest in the country, having been founded in 1784 by David Landreth, who came from England. The business has been conducted by members of the family. The firm owns extensive seed farms in Bucks county, Pa., Burlington, N. J., and Lancaster county, Pa.
Counsel for the firm said the business had been conducted along the old lines, employees cared for through the winter and pensioned in old age instead of being dismissed, and that the competition of newer houses could not longer be faced.

TO A BENEVOLENT PUBLIC
Over in New Mexico there is a training school for Mexican girls, which is in great need of a few school books—either new or second-hand—such as geographies, histories, arithmetics, readers and natural studies. In many homes these books lie unused and would be a great blessing to this school. If you will communicate with me I will be glad to forward such books to these people and thus send them on another career of usefulness.

Tuesday, Matinee and Night, Nov. 10th, "Her Only Sin"

In The Theater

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE WEEK.
Monday night—Arizona.
Tuesday Matinee and night—Her Only Sin.
Saturday Matinee and night—Elizabeth Kennedy in "As You Like It."

Howard and Dion Boucicault laid the corner stone of that institution's foundation.
"HER ONLY SIN."
The term, "Emotional play," has become so synonymous with that which is risqué or frankly immoral, that it is with relief it is noted Lincoln J.

their lines and forms, dissolving into air and light, and rainbow showers?—a mountain streamlet, now smooth as a mirror in which the skies may glass themselves, and anon leaping and sparkling in the sunshine—or rather to the very sunshine itself? For so her genial spirit touches into life and beauty whatever it shines on.

Everything about Rosalind breathes of "youth and youth's sweet prime. She is fresh as the morning, sweet as the dew-awakened blossoms, and light as the breeze that plays among them. She is as witty, as voluble, as sprightly as Beatrice, but in a scale altogether distinct. In both she is equally unconscious, but in Beatrice it plays about us like the lightning—dazzling, but also alarming; while the wit of Rosalind bubbles up and sparkle like the living fountain, refreshing all around. As her vivacity never lessens our impression of her sensibility, so she wears her masculine attire without the slightest impingement of her delicacy. Rosalind has in truth "no doubt and hose in her disposition."

Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, the beautiful and gifted young Southern actress, who last season won renown in "Captain Jack of the Horse Marines," will appear here on Friday and Saturday nights, Saturday matinee, Nov. 13-14, at Greenwall's opera house as Rosalind in a magnificent revival of "As You Like It." She has surrounded herself with a splendid company of some of the best known Shakespearean actors and actresses, and her appearance will doubtless call out a representative audience.

PLAYS GOING SOON.
Sherlock Holmes, the dramatic success employed by Mr. Herbert Kelle and Miss Effie Shannon for this season, is being presented on every continent of the globe.

Two companies in England, one in South Africa, one doing the drama in India and the English settlements of China and the Peking peninsula. It has been translated into French and is now touring the interior departments of that Republic. Germany and Denmark have not been overlooked as it has been produced there with considerable success. This record for a drama has never been equaled with the possible exception of Uncle Tom's Cabin.

THE SILVER SLIPPER.
The greatest reigning musical production of New York past season was undoubtedly John C. Fisher's stupendous production of the English musical comedy, "The Silver Slipper" by the authors of "Floradora," which for six consecutive months filled the famous Broadway Theatre (probably the largest in seating capacity of any of the New York theatres), and whose long engagement was brought to an end on account of future bookings.

"The Silver Slipper" is by all odds one of the present season's greatest novelties and will receive its first presentation here.

The Reading, Tenn., Eagle, says: Mr. Hanford is about the only exclusive Shakespearean star left of a bright galaxy of names, the others making only temporary incursions into this field.

His "Petruchio," while not strictly a creation, is a scholarly conception, well thought out, and acted with the spirit and devil-may-careness belonging to the part. His reading of the lines is clear and forceful to a degree, and he holds his audience firmly in the leash of his impersonation.

If there is any virtue in newspaper commendation, and if the endorsement of the public at large, for the past eight years is to be taken as a criterion, then "Human Hearts" is certainly entitled to take rank as the Great American Drama. During the many years that "Human Hearts" has been presented in this country, the praise accorded it by newspaper critics and the general public has been universal. There have been no dissenting voices; the verdict of approval has been unanimous. Even rival managers have graciously acknowledged that "Human Hearts" is a "mighty good play."

"The Two Johns," which was one of the big farce comedy hits of a few seasons ago, opened an engagement of a half week at the Grand opera house last night, says the Wheeling Register. Aside from the reputation of this clever fun-making vehicle, there was additional interest in the production here, arising from the fact that Wheeling's famous dramatic tenor, Mr. Herman Steinmann, is a member of the company. His friends were in evidence last night, and heartily applauded his meritorious work, and the singing of the Garden City Quartette, of which he is a member. Messrs. Cannon and Begley sustained the title roles, and proved themselves fitted by nature and talent to equal the work of the creator of the funny parts. The comedy is of an order that is certain to dispel the most aggravated case of the "blues."

DOWIE SUED FOR BOARD

By New York Woman, Who Presents Bill for $500

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—John Alexander Dowie, who is to depart for Zion City Monday, has been served with papers in a suit by the keeper of a Lexington avenue boarding house for $500 unpaid board, alleged to have been contracted for by Deacon Cole, acting as an agent for the restoration host. Dowie's legal representative declares no such contract was entered into for the members of the host.

BARN BURNS

WACO, Texas, Nov. 7.—Fire early this morning destroyed the storage barn of Cal Shotton and 10,000 bales of hay, with a lot of corn. The loss is $3,000, with insurance $1,900.

SCENE IN "ARIZONA"

one in the theatrical world, and it has been an enjoyable one. Murray and Mack led off Monday night with "A Night on Broadway." While the performance was not up to the Murray and Mack standard, it pleased a large audience. Then for two nights came a company in which Jack Campbell is the star. He is a good comedian and entertained in "A Stranger in New York" and "A Trip to Chinatown." Next came the Al G. Field minstrel, greater and grander than ever. The attraction this year was over the ordinary and was a fine show. Friday night the "Chaperons" pleased a large number. It is a big attraction. Last night closed the week with "Way Down East." Way Down East is too well known to require a story of the play. It is a drama which appeals strongly to sentiment, and in competent hands is well received. Last night the company gave a very good presentation, and the large audience attending enjoyed it to the utmost.

"ARIZONA"

Much of interest will attach to the engagement at Greenwall's opera house of Augustus Thomas' new play, "Arizona," Monday night, Nov. 9th. When Augustus wrote "Alabama," the ablest critics in America said he had written the best American play. On the morning of September 11th, three of the best newspaper critics in New York declared "Arizona" a greater play than "Alabama." The logical inference is evident. "Arizona," as the name would indicate, is a stage-told story of the lives and loves of men and women living in that picturesque section of our national domain, which is now knocking at the doors of congress with the demand for the dignity of statehood. The characters are typical of the sturdy civilization of a new country. Canby, a splendid old frontiersman, who dominates the Arapahoe Valley, is kind-hearted, but peppery tempered; wife, their two beautiful daughters, children of the plains, veered with San Francisco culture; the officers and soldiers of a frontier cavalry post—these are the principal types that move and live in a play said to be one of the best contributions to the American stage since Bronson Carter's recent success, "Her Only Sin." The leading role sounds the highest and lowest depths of emotion, and yet withal portrays only the best and purest that is in human nature.

Julia Gray has the leading role. "Her Only Sin" comes to Greenwall's opera house Tuesday, matinee and night, Nov. 10.

The Ottumwa (Iowa) Democrat said: "Lincoln J. Carter's latest and strongest play, 'Her Only Sin,' was presented at the Market Street Theatre last evening by Miss Julia Gray, assisted by John T. Nicholson, and supported by a very strong company. The play is a very beautiful and affecting one, on the style of the Frohman plays, and in it Mr. Carter, the author, has a play which is destined to make a great hit with the play going portion of the country wherever it is presented."

"The play is in four acts, and presents a beautiful and devoted woman married to a brute of a husband who is a drunkard and shamefully abuses her. He has a wealthy brother, and when the drunkard dies the brother is made guardian of the young son and proposes to make him his heir. The boy is about to be taken from the mother, when she commits the sin of lying and declaring that she was not married to the boy's father when he was born, and the rich uncle releases the child."

There are some thrilling scenes throughout, as well as beautiful scenery and on the whole it is one of the best new plays which has been put on the stage for some time, and the company headed by Miss Gray is competent to present it in a manner which makes the play a favorite wherever produced." Matinee prices, adults 50c, children, 25c; night prices, 25c, 35c, 50c, 75c.

ELIZABETH KENNEDY.

Rosalind, Shakespeare's most delightful heroine, is like a compound of essence, so volatile in their nature, and so exquisitely blended that on any attempt to analyze them, they seem to escape us. To what else shall we compare her, all enchanting as she is? To the silvery summer clouds which, even while we gaze on them shift

CAUGHT AFTER A LONG CHASE

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Canadian detectives, after a long chase, have arrested Frank Frappier in Brooklyn on a warrant charging him with the theft of $40 from the Canadian Pacific Railway. The detectives say that this charge is technical and allege that the prisoner robbed the company of many thousands of dollars by means of "dummy" pay rolls and a check system which he devised for paying employees at distant points on the line while he was employed as a section foreman.

Frappier said he would fight extradition. He was traced by the detectives through his wife, who led the men a chase all over the New England states. Finally, by a most circuitous route, she entered a boarding house in Brooklyn. At the door the husband met her. A few minutes later he was under arrest. Besides being in the employ of the Canadian Pacific, Frappier owned a large hotel in Montreal and was said to be quite wealthy. He was arrested three months ago but fled. When his wife sold the hotel and prepared to leave, she was followed. The detectives say they had great difficulty in keeping trace of her movements, but were only a few minutes behind at the end after a chase of hundreds of miles and leading through a dozen large cities.

PLAN A BIG CORNER IN THE WHEAT MARKET

Would Buy Up Insurance on Cereal in St. Louis Elevators
ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7.—A novel plan to corner the St. Louis December wheat market by the buying of all possible insurance on the wheat in elevators, both on the east side and in this city, is outlined in information given to the Republic by insurance men.

Corwin H. Spencer, John T. Milliken, Thomas Akin and Herman Kuehn are mentioned as the leaders in the movement which was begun last September. Of the 120 insurance companies taking business in St. Louis it is said that every one of them has written policies on St. Louis and East St. Louis elevators aggregating about $3,500,000. The insurance far exceeds the visible supply in the elevators, but by taking out insurance for the full capacity of the warehouses at the marginal price of wheat, the bulls hope to make it impossible for outsiders to store their grain which would preclude them insuring it, and necessarily prevent the borrowing of money on the part of the shorts, who would practically be frozen out of the market.

BUSINESS MEN SAY

That Draughon's Colleges Give THE BEST Course of Instruction, and Have THE BEST Facilities For Securing Positions

How Some Business College Proprietors Mislead the Public Would, Make ANANIAS ASHAMED of Himself

Draughon's Practical Business College, located at corner Seventh and Houston streets, this city, one of a chain of Colleges owned and conducted by Draughon's Practical Business College Co., a company which has identified with it merchants, bankers and others all over the South, reports a large increase in the attendance over the corresponding months of last year. Draughon's Colleges are conducted upon a high plane by business men. The president of Draughon's Colleges claims that, not to his knowledge, has it ever been contradicted that his company, which conducts an Employment Department for securing positions for its students, for which it makes no charges, is the only Business College, company, or Business College that has advertised or agreed to open its letter files to the public to show that it is constantly receiving calls for bookkeepers and stenographers from reliable business firms. But, on the other hand, some of said colleges making the greatest claims as to number of positions filled, refuse to furnish prospective students with the evidence to sustain their claims.

ANANIAS WOULD SURRENDER

If Ananias were living today and could read some of the advertisements inserted by some of the Business College proprietors, making great claims as to the number of calls received for bookkeepers and stenographers, number of positions filled in certain length of time, etc., and could have full access to the records of the so-called applications for bookkeepers and stenographers of some of these institutions, he (Ananias) would be willing to surrender the distinction which for so long has been conferred upon him.

DRAUGHON WANTS YOU TO INVESTIGATE

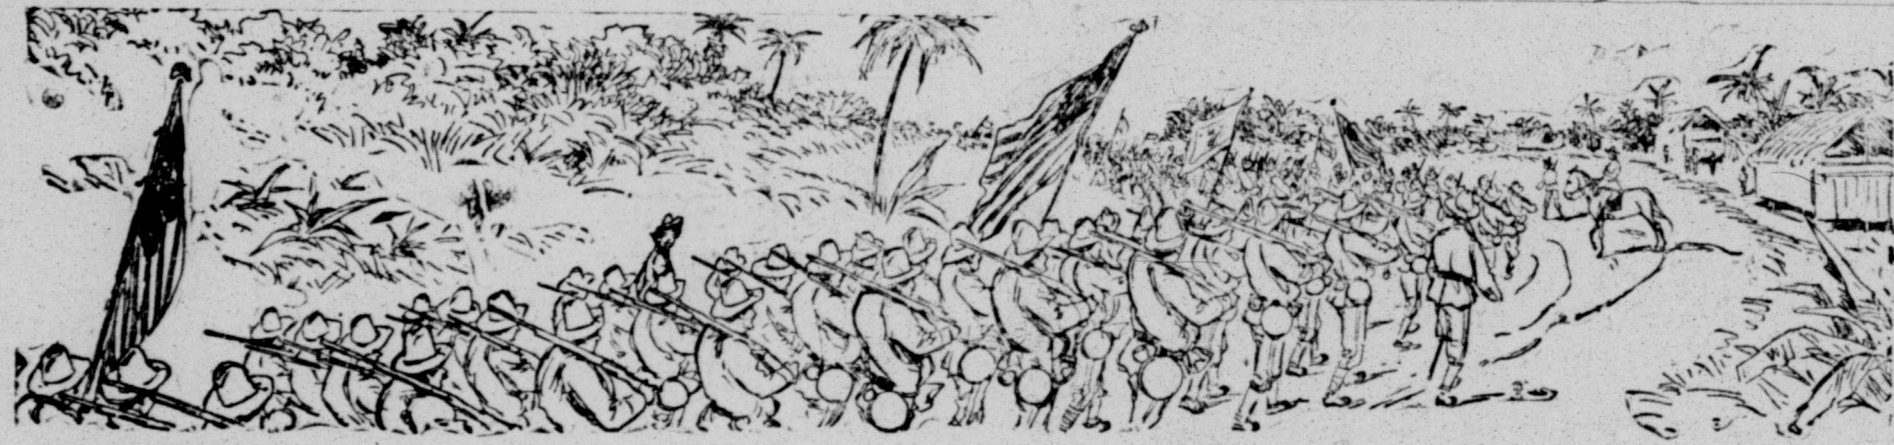

The managers of Draughon's Colleges not only invite the public to visit the office of the Employment Department and examine the records, and, if they desire, to communicate with business men who have applied to the college for office help, in order to test the genuineness of the applications received, but when it is not convenient for those at a distance who are interested, to visit the office in person, they may select any one who is on the ground to make this investigation.

TO ATTEND A BUSINESS COLLEGE EXPECTING TO SECURE FOR YOU A POSITION AND NOT EXAMINE THE RECORDS TO SEE IF THAT COLLEGE IS ACTUALLY RECEIVING CALLS FOR BOOKKEEPERS AND STENOGRAPHERS, IS VERY MUCH LIKE BUYING A PIECE OF REAL ESTATE WITHOUT HAVING THE TITLE EXAMINED.

L. Toro de la Selva

During the war thousands of men in Khaki, under the Star Spangled Banner, came to Porto Rico and looked things over. They discovered L. Toro de la Selva, the great Porto Rican Brevia, made in an old factory in San Juan. Its distinct individuality won their favor, and since the removal of the duty, L. Toro de la Selva has become the popular 5 cent cigar throughout the United States.

When the duty was removed from L. Toro de la Selva Cigars, the demand over-taxed the capacity of the factory, leaving room for a flood of inferior, so-called Porto Rican Cigars. Be sure you get the genuine L. Toro de la Selva Porto Rican Brevia.

THE SOCIAL SEASON

12 Minutes for Lunch.

That is the average time spent in a large city restaurant by three thousand lunchers. It takes three hours to digest a fresh egg soft boiled. In fact, three hours is about the time required to digest the average twelve minute lunch. The object of the busy lunch is to let the busy man get back to his office work. But when the brain is active, the stomach is inactive for lack of necessary blood. The natural consequence is indigestion and indigestion opens the door to many diseases.

Indigestion is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

$3,000 FORFEIT will be paid by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. "I had stomach trouble from childhood and suffered with it more or less as I grew up." writes Mr. Willis Seaman of Washington, D. C. "At the age of 26 I was broken down with dyspepsia. My suffering was terrible. I could not eat without distress, and only a few certain things and was not able to work half the time. Everything I tried only made me feel worse. I was finally persuaded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets. I took six bottles of the Golden Medical Discovery and two of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I then felt so well that I stopped taking medicine."

bowls soon after the contents were tasted.

"What on earth is it?" asked my son. "When I explained that it was pot liquor and dumplings, the choicest edible on the table of the plantation folk before the war."

"Well, we are living in Texas now, and I'll take cream tomato soup next time if you please."

"After dinner I poured the contents of the tureen into the dog's dish, but it was treated with even more contempt by our canine pet. He sniffed it and then looked around in the most puzzled way, saying as plain as words could do: 'What is this stuff you are expecting me to eat?'"

"After this I felt somewhat subdued. Evidently the memories of youth are for secret musings and are not to be shared with the twentieth century Texan man or dog. Secretly I was a little disappointed in the dumplings myself, but I would not acknowledge it."

"But I have moralized considerable since."

One of the benevolent minded women of Fort Worth asks for a word in behalf of a charity that has come to her attention and that makes a direct appeal to the heart of every mother. It is the needle work guild of America, a non-sectarian organization with numerous branches in the different sections of the country. Its special object is to collect and distribute good, new clothing to meet the needs of the hospitals and homes. The following extract is from a circular sent out by the association:

"There is hardly a city or town in our land where such an organization would not be a power of good. It will not supplant or in any way interfere with the work of any society, but it is so designed that it may include and stimulate the large number in every community who do no systematic work."

"There is room in it for everyone—for invalids and others with limited time and strength, for the grandma and for the school girls, and the good which may be accomplished by these united efforts is beyond estimate. What a blessing it must be to a weary, overworked mother to receive new, comfortable garments for her little ones. It is said that a mother failed to recognize her pretty baby whom she was accustomed to see bundled in an old shawl when it was brought to her in a whole new suit of guild clothes; and also that a little boy when given a new shirt asked eagerly, 'Is it all for me?' because up to that time by way of treat he had occasionally worn one in turn with his brother."

"Follow women, we don't know what it is to be poor—so poor that when the children are in rags hatred comes up in the mother's heart toward the easy-going, prosperous 'sisters' who never think of the roots of the trouble is lack of thought. We all have hearts when our hearts are aroused."

"There are many who make semi-annual pilgrimages to the garret and return laden with the cast off garments for the poor. Some do this in self defense, others because they recognize the divine command to 'clothe the naked.'"

"By all means keep up these attacks upon the garret. There is use for all the decent old clothes, and there are organizations to receive them. But only new garments are accepted by the needle work of guild America. Workers among the needy claim that a moral influence is exerted by new garments."

"The guild supplements the work of the hospitals whose warm beds the out-going patient must leave often to go hence to cold, cheerless homes with such scant clothing that relapse or another form of disease finds them an easy prey. It will aid the homes for children, the aged and the feeble, and many other organizations that will so earnestly for warm, serviceable clothing."

"An effort will be made to organize a branch of the organization in Fort Worth."

To the southerner old enough to have memories of the old times in the old states Polk Miller was a delight beyond words. There is not before the pillow any one who has the negro dialect, the negro expression, the negro attitude and has this accomplished herculean task and story teller. To the northerner or the young southerner he must speak in a strange tongue. He is somewhat of a philosopher also and the friendship for the ex-slave is expressed in every tone and word. His philosophy and friendliness is both told in this simple remark: "Freedom spoiled a mighty good negro, and didn't make a white man out of him either." But the southerner is turning against the negro, and it may be a question if in a few years there will be any negroes who will cure to hear the negro spoken of with affectionate remembrance. The new kind is becoming more and more exasperating, and their characteristics have none of the virtues of the old time darky, and all the vices of the white trash he so despises and at the same time imitates.

Mrs. Joseph Wolston Hertford's reception Wednesday afternoon, in honor of Walter Scott Beales, Mrs. William Glen-Walker, Jr., and Miss Jean Glen-Walker, was one of the occasions which dwells upon with delight. The beautiful decorations, the handsome gowns and the charming of welcome of an unusually gracious hostess and house party combined to make the tour of the reception suite a succession of joyful greetings and admiring glances.

The ball, wherein stood Mrs. S. M. Gaines, Mrs. Beverly West and Mrs. J. E. Mitchell, was attended with white chrysanthemums, an ornamental stand crowned with the choicest product of the eastern garden. The colonial fire place was flanked with palms and on the staircase and on stands of Leweb's pottery were long fringed sword ferns. In an alcove with Indian draperies was the punch bowl, with Mrs. Loebnitz serving its refreshing contents.

In the parlor suite stood the hostess and the receiving line. The white "mums" were repeated here, with variation only in clusters of American beauties and the La France roses in ornamental vases. Mrs. Hertford received in a beautiful gown of blue crepe de chine, with white roses and diamonds, while Mrs. William Glen-Walker, Jr., wore her wondrous gown of white, crepe de chine with duchesse lace and diamonds. Mrs. Beales' gown was of white embroidered chiffon with Honiton laces and bonnet. Mrs. Glen-Walker wore a yellow chiffon gown with bonnet and white crepe de chine. In the receiving line also were Mrs. Craft, Mrs. Beales, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Egan, Mrs. White, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Van Dusen, Mrs. Temple and Mrs. Bert K. Smith of Houston.

The dining room had, besides the very handsomest chrysanthemums, the finest could produce, the sweetest and prettiest gifts to be found. The table had a center piece of snow balls, of "mums," a white and blue, red, white tapers and cut glass. Bombardiers held white confetti. The serving of the solids and sea was done by Misses Tariton, Miss Elizabeth Dalton, Miss Daniels, Miss Ella, Miss Taylor, Miss Loomis, Miss Edgett, Miss Lantz, Miss Spencer, Miss Brown, Miss Murray, Miss Ethel Sebrick and Misses White, Miss Saunders and Miss White.

After the house party was entertained with the addition of a number of gentlemen friends, including Messrs. Wardlaw, Ridgway, Beck, Manning, Clement, Ben Martin, Robert Martin, Lydick, Finks, Wayne, Walker, Henderson, Adams, Collett and Kolp, who joined in a game of cards.

Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Sablin of Beaufort, N.C., announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary, to John Tucker Adams, Jr., and Mrs. Ancona will be at home here after December 1. Mr. Ancona is a prominent Elk and club man, and Mrs. Ancona, while visiting here last summer, made many friends, who will welcome her most cordially. All their friends are awaiting with friendly interest their arrival.

A most delightful birthday party was enjoyed by the little friends of Miss Lulu Rodick on Thursday afternoon of last week, it being the occasion of her tenth birthday. The parlors were very artistically decorated and an orchestra rendered sweet music during the entire afternoon. Games dear to the childish heart, including an old fashioned "taffy pull" and dancing, were participated in by her little guests. From the many tokens of love received by the little miss, it was the place she holds in the hearts of her little playmates is an ideal one. Those present were as follows: Lulu Rodick, Anna Ault, Ethel Ramage, Charley May, Williams, Katie Welch, Hellen Welch, Gertie Welch, Ledelle Stewart, Helen Johnson, Anna Jewel, Ellen Jewel, Clara Jewel, Laura Winstead, Geraldine Jones, Ethel Burlingame, Mary Clarkson, Zennie Hunt Pritchett, Virginia Pritchett, Marguerite Pritchett, Cecelia Combs, Kathleen Combs, Joe Johnson, Gills Johnson, Charles Inman, Walter Nicks, Ernest Nicks.

SOCIETY PERSONAL.
Mrs. A. B. Richards of Sherman was the guest last week of Mrs. F. D. McKnight.
Mrs. H. H. Halsell of Decatur is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Mitchell.
Miss Ethel Murray, who has been visiting Miss Spencer, returned home yesterday.
Miss Nona Leach, who has been ill for several days, is convalescent.

The following program of the piano recital was given by Ruby Hays at St. Ignatius academy, Fort Worth, Friday, Nov. 6, to a large and appreciative audience:

1. Bach's Invention No. 8
2. Kinderstucke
3. Mendelssohn Op. 72, No. 3
4. Frohe Erwartung
5. Eduard Randa Op. 62
6. Nocturne
7. F. Chopin, Op. 9, No. 2
8. Impromptu
9. Francis Thome, Op. 59, No. 2

The Better Halves met with Mrs. Harvey Hubbard last Tuesday afternoon. Numerous pieces of needle work of utility and beauty being on exhibition. A two course luncheon was served to Mesdames Van Zandt, Kline, Brown, Stanley, Triplett, Rozelle, Lake, Jaccard, Parks, Howell, Swann, Miss Spencer and Miss Murray.

Mrs. Alex Abey entertained the members of the 72 Club last Wednesday with a noon day dinner which though it was proclaimed old fashioned had only the midday hour for its service to entitle it to that distinction. The tables were arranged in T figure and were beautiful in decorations of roses, smilax and ribbons, the ribbons and smilax hanging from the chandelier in graceful lines. Around the dining room on side board and cabinet were vases filled with gorgeous bloom of deep-hued hibiscus.

The courses included turkey, salads, all the delicacies that vegetables could be made into, with cake, whipped cream and fruit and rose petal confections as dessert. Those who enjoyed the triumph of cookery were Rev. and Mrs. Charles Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Drumm, Gen. and Mrs. Peora, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bridges, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Nash, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wheeler, Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. William Utley.

The rehearsal of Gounod's Gallia, directed by Rollin M. Pease, with Guy Pitner, at the Broadway Presbyterian church last Monday evening was largely attended and was productive of much profit and enjoyment. The public performance will be given some time in December and will be a musical treat. Miss Downing will be the soloist.

"Will not some one please get up a bowling club and ask me to join?" is now the cry of a score or more of ladies who were the guests of Mrs. Godwin, Friday afternoon at her bowling party. Every one succumbed to the fascination of the spheres as they rolled wisely or willfully toward the coveted "strike," and more than one lady regretted to see the time go to another bowling party to which they are to be invited.

The bowling alley was given over entirely to Mrs. Godwin and her guests, and handsome games ruled, even though the "strike" was "the thing." An orchestra kept time to the rattle of the spheres, and salted almonds, cake and ices were served at the close of the afternoon.

Mrs. Godwin's guests were: Mesdames Charles Shannon, Grammer, Dunn, Templeton, Robert Anderson, Conroy, Dawson, Davis, Littlefair, Matthews, Andrews, Beney, Laushe, Childress, Berry, Lyons, Capps, Dickinson and Harding; Misses Hogsett, Laura Hogsett, Bradley, Anderson, Field, Louise Zane-Cetti and Bostick.

Mrs. George Robson and Mrs. George B. Johnson will entertain next Thursday afternoon from 3 to 6 at the home of Mrs. Johnson, 229 Garretson avenue.

Fort Worth friends have received announcement of the marriage in Thibodaux, La., of Miss Jeannette Woodward to Arthur Chester Chamberlain. Mr. Chamberlain is the chief engineer of the Texas and Pacific for that division and Mrs. Chamberlain is a former resident of Fort Worth, where her friends include all who ever knew her. The news of her marriage is followed by sincerest congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain reside at Boyce, La.

Mrs. Joseph Fielding entertained the Kensington Klub Thursday afternoon, her beautiful home finding a new charm under deft touches which combined autumn leaves and gorgeous masses of red ze-

State of Ohio, County of Butler, ss:

Personally appeared before me, a Notary Public, in and for the County and State, Jacob Martin, known to me, and who deposes and saith: That on Friday, May 25, 1894, at 3:30 p. m., he built a fire in a heating stove marked "Estate Oak Radiator," and numbered 514; that he then weighed up and charged forty pounds (40 lbs.) of Jackson County soft coal into said stove. Deponent further saith that said stove was connected to a first-class flue, which, together with the stove pipe, has a total length of about fifty feet, and that no other person but himself had access to said stove during the trial test he was making. Deponent further saith that the said fuel continued to burn in and keep said stove hot, and that said fire was visible therein, beginning on Friday afternoon, at 3:30 p. m., May 25, 1894, until 6:30 o'clock a. m. on Monday, May 28, 1894; or that in other words, said fuel maintained fire and heat continuously within said stove for a period of sixty-three (63) hours.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 31st day of May, 1894. JACOB MARTIN, Notary Public.

A two-course luncheon was served to Mesdames Judd, Covert, Clayton, Hoover, Shropshire, Frost, J. J. Melton, J. H. Melton, Lassiter, Wardlaw, Jordan, Ryan, Moore, Hart, Williams, Hurlburt, Quigg, Sooble, Dexter, Perry, McVeigh and Miss Melton.

A happy marriage, beautiful in its simplicity, was that of Miss Lillie Louise Rintleman to James Earl Burton at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Rintleman, last Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock. Beyond the generous use of roses and palms throughout the wedding suite, there were few decorations. In the dining room the handsomely appointed table held the wedding cake, which was cut by the members of the family; there being no guests besides relatives at the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. J. B. French.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton left immediately after the ceremony for New Orleans. The bride wore her wedding gown of blue zibeline, lined with white satin and trimmed with wood silk lace. On their return they will be at home at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Rintleman, corner Galveston and Lueda.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton have a large number of friends, who join in mutual congratulations on their happiness and best wishes for the future.

Yesterday, at noon, at the Worth hotel, Hon. A. P. McCormick, associate justice of the United States circuit court of appeals, and Mrs. McCormick, entertained DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed, it has a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, unless cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. The Elks will hold a meeting Tuesday evening to decide on details for an elaborate dance to be given in a short time.

CLUBS

The Current Literature Club met with Miss Bowdry Wednesday afternoon. The first three acts of "The Taming of the Shrew" were read and discussed. The club will meet with Miss Magruder next week, the same play will be concluded.

The local board of federation is called to meet next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in the rooms of the Women's Wednesday Club in the Carnegie library. The chairman of all committees are requested to attend this meeting so as to present to the board their full reports. All who are giving active aid to the federation are also invited to be present.

The History Club in beginning their work for the year met with Mrs. L. H. Burney, who will direct the art studies of the club for the first term concluding with the December. The subject, "American Sculpture," called for Mrs. George B. West, a paper on the "Technique of Sculpture." Two new members were elected, Miss Mabel Davidson and Miss LeRoy Chaff.

After the program there were musical numbers, Miss Loney of Colorado Springs, Miss Edgington and Miss Callaway contributing songs. The very pleasant afternoon closed with an exchange of cordialities over a cup of tea.

The local chairman of the entertainment committee of the federation, Mrs. John D. Covert, announces that all names of delegates must be handed to the committee not later than Sunday, November 15. Only club delegates will be provided for and the committee ask that the names of alternates be withheld, as it is confusing in making the necessary arrangements.

The members of the Jewish Women's Council met with Mrs. H. Braun Monday afternoon and discussed the best ways of contributing towards the building of a synagogue here. It was decided that the celebration of the feast would be one way of putting in motion their plans. The council will therefore give a ball on the 14th of December, the feast of Chanukah, and on other dates will have suitable festivities. The afternoon teas still to be concluded. The Calanthe Club will meet next Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. J. V. Douglas on Wheeler street.

The New Century Club held a business meeting in addition to the regular literary program last Wednesday afternoon. Miss MIT Wakefield Hall was elected vice president; Miss Clota Terrell, corresponding secretary; Miss Mary Martin, parliamentarian, and Miss Jones, librarian. A paper on "Emerson Among the Poets," by Miss Ethelene Boaz was the feature of the meeting.

The '93 Club at its meeting Monday elected Mrs. W. D. Thomas vice president to succeed Mrs. Vincent, who has moved to Denver. The study of Julius Caesar was continued. A paper on "Shakespeare's Interpretation of Julius Caesar" was read by Mrs. Comer. Art IV was given a critical reading by the club.

The Monday Book Club resumed its meetings last week with Mrs. Buchanan presiding in the absence of the president, and at the request of the vice president, Mrs. Price and Miss Hornby were elected to membership.

The members of the Entertainers and associates enjoyed an exceedingly pleasant musical afternoon with Miss Hope Chase last Tuesday and heard a program instructive and entertaining. Miss Alice Lathrop was the director for Beethoven afternoon, and to her musical knowledge and enthusiasm was due largely the excellent numbers prepared. A paper on the art of Beethoven was read by Miss Lathrop. It was scholarly and original in its treatment of a great subject. Beethoven's methods of conducting was explained by Mrs. Price. Mrs. Googin sang with exquisite expression the "Dance of the Gipsy King" and afterward Mrs. Stanbery read Beethoven's will. Mrs. Bertram A. Rose read a sketch of the life of the great composer and Mrs. Duncan A. Ross closed with a critical analysis of the Nine Symphonies of the master. This paper was replete with musical knowledge and understanding. The program closed with a duet, the Second Symphony by Beethoven, admirably rendered by Mrs. Dietrich and Miss Hope Chase.

Those present were Miss Chase, Miss Edgington, Mrs. Googins, Mrs. Jaccard, Mrs. Hunt, Miss Lathrop, Miss Laner, Mrs. Price, Mrs. Duncan Ross, Mrs. Bertram A. Rose, Miss Roy, Mrs. Stanbery, Mrs. C. D. The Woman's Club met in the Elks' hall yesterday, the courtesy of the B. P. O. E. showing itself in thus opening its hands, some rooms to the Woman's Club, which is at present without a place of permanent meeting. The reports of the officers were read, as well as reports from the chairman of the departments. The art department is preparing an exhibit of its work and at a near date, possibly during the meeting of the federation, will be prepared to place it before their friends for inspection. The following were elected to membership: Mrs. J. H. Barwise, Miss Janie Stewart, Mrs. Felix Galtner, Mrs. Clinton Humphreys, Mrs. Walter S. Hart, Miss Kate Black, Miss Annie Black. A program, consisting of a violin solo by Miss Louise Zane-Cott, with Miss Sanguiet as accompanist, a piano solo by Guy Pitner, a reading by Miss Clemons of the university, and a vocal solo by Miss Lanier, with Mr. Pitner as accompanist, concluded the exercises of the afternoon. The year books were distributed and their artistic appearance and exhaustive outlines of the work undertaken by each department caused much favorable comment.

A letter received from William A. Armstrong, the well known baritone, announces that owing to family reasons he will not return to Fort Worth this year. He has located in Buffalo for the season but promises to return to Texas next year. His studio is 481 Franklin street, Buffalo.

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 7.—Dr. William R. Phillips, who is preparing an exhibit of the mineral and building stone resources of the state, and Dr. William L. Bray of the University of Texas, who will set up an exhibit of the state's timbered resources, returned Thursday from a brief visit to St. Louis, during which they made final arrangements for space in the buildings in which their exhibits will be exhibited. Both of them got some valuable ideas as to the manner in which the exhibits will be made. The mineral and building stone exhibit is in an advanced state, but the first steps have yet to be taken toward gathering the materials for the exhibit of the timber resources. This work, which will be under the direction of Dr. Bray, professor of forestry, will be begun at once. Dr. Bray has already made a study of the timber of Texas and begins his work well equipped to make the best showing possible. There are at least forty varieties of timber of commercial value in Texas, Dr. Bray says, and he hopes to make a full exhibit of all of them. TIMBER EXHIBIT The manner of presenting the exhibit has not been determined in every particular, but it has been decided to get logs of all the soft and hard woods. On one side these logs will be shown with the bark on, on another it will be sawn; on the third, it will be partly dressed, and on the fourth the wood will be given the highest possible finish. It is also the purpose to have various articles made of Texas woods, and it is also hoped to have made a table which will be composed of every wood found in Texas. It is probable, also, that the whole exhibit will be inclosed with a railing which will be made of most, if not all, the woods found in the state. It has also been suggested that the facade of the exhibit, reduced in size, be made of a large variety of woods and used as the front of the space allotted to Texas in the forestry building. As to whether this will be practicable has not been determined, but it is under consideration. The chief of the department of forestry of the exposition Company was unable to tell Dr. Bray just how much space he can give Texas, but he assured him that it would not be less than 100 feet. The total space for the exhibit building is far in excess of that which will be available, and it will therefore be necessary to curtail all the requests. Dr. Bray says the timber resources of

Both of them got some valuable ideas as to the manner in which the exhibits will be made. The mineral and building stone exhibit is in an advanced state, but the first steps have yet to be taken toward gathering the materials for the exhibit of the timber resources. This work, which will be under the direction of Dr. Bray, professor of forestry, will be begun at once. Dr. Bray has already made a study of the timber of Texas and begins his work well equipped to make the best showing possible. There are at least forty varieties of timber of commercial value in Texas, Dr. Bray says, and he hopes to make a full exhibit of all of them. TIMBER EXHIBIT The manner of presenting the exhibit has not been determined in every particular, but it has been decided to get logs of all the soft and hard woods. On one side these logs will be shown with the bark on, on another it will be sawn; on the third, it will be partly dressed, and on the fourth the wood will be given the highest possible finish. It is also the purpose to have various articles made of Texas woods, and it is also hoped to have made a table which will be composed of every wood found in Texas. It is probable, also, that the whole exhibit will be inclosed with a railing which will be made of most, if not all, the woods found in the state. It has also been suggested that the facade of the exhibit, reduced in size, be made of a large variety of woods and used as the front of the space allotted to Texas in the forestry building. As to whether this will be practicable has not been determined, but it is under consideration. The chief of the department of forestry of the exposition Company was unable to tell Dr. Bray just how much space he can give Texas, but he assured him that it would not be less than 100 feet. The total space for the exhibit building is far in excess of that which will be available, and it will therefore be necessary to curtail all the requests. Dr. Bray says the timber resources of

Veteran Grateful.

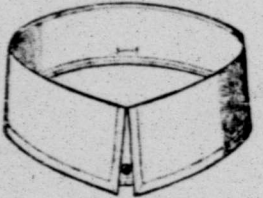

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure
Effected Cure.

Heart disease is curable, but in people of advanced age it does not readily lend itself to ordinary treatment. There is, however, hope for all sufferers in Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, which we know from watching hundreds of cases and from the letters of grateful sufferers, will cure where all else has failed. It is not only a wonderful cure for weak and diseased hearts, but it is a blood tonic, a regulator of the heart's action and the most effective treatment ever formulated for improving the circulation of the blood.

"During the Civil war I contracted heart disease, and in 1865, while living in the grand old town of Lexington, Va., I grew so much worse, I left there with my wife to visit my sister-in-law, Mrs. T. A. Kirby, at Roanoke, Va. While I said nothing to anyone I never expected to live to return to the dear old town. On reaching Mrs. Kirby's she insisted I should try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I procured a few bottles of it, also the Nervine and Tonic. After using one or two bottles, I could see no improvement, and I despaired of ever being better, but my faithful wife insisted on keeping it up, which I did. Improvement soon began in earnest and I took in all fifteen or sixteen bottles. I was restored to perfect health and while I am 70 years old, I am comparatively a boy. You are a benefactor, and I cheerfully recommend Dr. Miles' Heart Cure to suffering humanity."—J. L. SLAUGHTER, Salem, Va.

EMPEROR OF CHINA BUT A TOY— IN THE HANDS OF HIS AUNT ANN

He Has Lost All Interest in Government Affairs and His Health Is Said to Be Failing Rapidly

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—It is stated in Russia that Huan-Su, emperor of China, is only a toy in the hands of his widowed aunt. Formerly the young emperor was a great advocate of reform. He studied carefully European progress and was a staunch admirer of the reformer, Kun-Yu-Wei-Yuo. All this is changed now, as shown by the orders issued on his last birthday by his all-powerful aunt. She gave the strictest orders to avoid anything approaching reform. The attendants of the emperor say that he has become very sullen of late, and he appears to have lost all interest in governmental and social affairs. His health also is falling very fast.

It is stated that sometimes a nervous restlessness overcomes him, and when in these spells he burns and destroys valuable manuscripts from the imperial library.

NEW FAITH HEALING

A new form of faith healing, called "Apostles' Faith," has sprung up in Berlin, and is propagated by Mrs. Seal, an American lady.

The theory is anti-medical. The patients after paying a high fee are treated spiritually through faith healing and continual devotional prayers. How long this new method will be tolerated by the police and allowed to hypnotize the pockets of the poor is to be seen.

Many doctors are already up in arms and complaining to the board of health regarding this system of treatment, which they call quackery.

SERBIA'S FUTURE

It has been discovered that the horoscope of the present king of Serbia was cast in the year 1888.

At that time the inhabitants of a Serbian village were roused to consternation by a peasant who ran through the streets shouting at the top of his voice: "The king is being murdered." A short time afterward the news was received that King Michael Obrenowitch was found murdered.

The peasant was called to Belgrade, where, after much questioning, it was learned that not only this death had been shown to him in a vision but he related the following events which were to happen in the future. He said: "I have seen in my vision a king who will raise his people, to revolt through his ill-ruling, and will marry unhappily (Milan)."

"I see further a son of this king beginning his rule while yet a boy and later contract a marriage which will cause him and his consort to be murdered." (Alexander and Draga.)

"He will be succeeded by a king out of another dynasty, and who also will die an unnatural death. (Peter I.) Then strangers will plier the land and the Servians will bemoan and lament their fate on the graves of their dead."

"A leader will rise among them and save their country, and their lamentation will be turned into joy."

It is to be hoped the king is not superstitious, or these prophecies might disturb his equanimity.

A GERMAN JOKE

At the recent art exhibition in Berlin the jury rejected for admittance a painting of a young artist, as not being up to the standard.

The crestfallen artist, however, called on one of the jury, stating that if allowed to exhibit he would donate the painting thereafter to a charitable institution, adding: "You may name the institution," to which the humorous jury member replied: "Well, send it to the blind asylum."

PIQUED KAISER JAILS EDITORS

Betrayal of Court Secret Leads to Imprisonment for Clever Writers

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—A most sensational trial has just ended at Berlin in which the editors of the Vorwaerts have been sentenced to imprisonment.

The complaint raised against Messrs. Leid and Kaliski was that of lese majeste, for having published an article hinting of secret plans being made in court circles for the erection of a fortress called "Kaiser Insel" (Emperor's Island), on an island called "Richterwerder," not far from this city. This fortress, it was alleged, was to be built in the middle of the island and surrounded by strong fortifications. The interior was to be well stocked with arms and ammunition. This was to serve in the event of revolution as a refuge for his imperial majesty.

The plaintiff produced during the trial a manuscript without signature in which the entire project was indicated to him on authority. Court Marshal von Trotha was the principal witness called by the defense and on hearing

THE STRENUOUS LIFE

A Great Strain

No one disputes the fact that we are living in a "rapid" age; it is rush, rush, from morning until night, and competition is so fierce that the struggle does not cease until the machine is worn out.

Women, too, even when surrounded by every comfort, become infected by the common spirit, and what, with their clubs and many social duties, have no time to give thought to their physical well-being, until they are suddenly brought to a sharp realization of the fact that nothing in their lives is so important as attention to correct or rational living.

It may surprise the reader to learn that women are more prone to piles than men, and in most cases because it is difficult to impress upon them the importance of regular movements of the bowels; irregularity means straining at stool, and straining means piles, with the certainty (under the usual methods of treatment) that the sufferer will "have them always with her," by "usual methods" is meant the application of salves and lotions, or (as a last resort) a surgical operation.

If there is a complaint which entails more distress and suffering upon those afflicted than piles or hemorrhoids, it is not known to the writer; fortunately, however, these are learning that there is a remedy that effectually cures all forms of piles; it is known as the Pyramid Pile Cure, is in suppository form, is applied directly to the parts, and does its work quickly and painlessly; it is sold by druggists at fifty cents a package, or will be mailed by the makers to any address upon receipt of price.

Mrs. L. M. Joffe, Parisburg, Ohio, says: "I feel it my duty to acknowledge the great benefit I have received from the use of Pyramid Pile Cure. For several months I suffered untold agony from the bleeding piles, and was finally advised by a Columbus doctor to get Pyramid Pile Cure at once, which I did, and one box completely cured me. I advise all sufferers to use it." Write the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book on the causes and cure of piles.

ing his evidence the court sustained the charge of lese majeste.

Mr. Leid was sentenced to nine months and Kaliski to four months imprisonment.

OLD STREET FOUND

An old Roman street has been unearthed while building a new road between Dounouse and Hadal on the French and Italian frontier. The street was found at a depth of about sixty centimetres below the surface. The width is six metres.

The road consists of three layers of stone, eighty centimetres deep, covered with a layer of cement fifteen centimetres thick. It is supposed that this is a part of the road built by the Romans and which led from Langres to Esgareat. A large number of Roman antiquities have been found from time to time along this point.

A NEW ARMAMENT

It is reported from authentic sources that there will be a complete new armament adopted for the German field batteries.

The improvement of the gun consists chiefly in the construction of the muzzle. The greatest secrecy is being observed, and the only thing that could be learned is that the new model will not be tried before 1905. Every gun will be provided with a protecting shield.

The new gun, it is said, resembles greatly those in use in Switzerland and Norway.

A PRISONER'S BIRTHDAY

One bears and reads often enough of a birthday or jubilee celebration or a silver or golden wedding, but seldom of the anniversary of the founding of prison or institute for the reform of criminals celebrated.

The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the institute for the reform of female criminals forming a branch of the prison at Vienna has been celebrated. It was erected under the patronage of Queen Karolina of Austria, whose attention was drawn by Countess Hahn-Hahn, who pointed out to her the necessity of such an institution. It accommodates 230 convicts. These female convicts are under the direct supervision of the Sisters of Mercy, whose moral influence and uplifting power has been of great assistance to these outcasts of society.

GIFT FROM THE POPE

Pope Pius X has commissioned the German paper delegate, Wilpert, to present to his imperial majesty, William II, a valuable souvenir.

This gift is a true copy of the chronicles and paintings of the catacombs of Rome. It is in Italian language, and consists of two volumes, one containing the written history of the catacombs, copied from the original parchments, of which only fragments exist. The other gives the ornamental designs of the walls of the catacombs, illustrating the lives of the early Christians, embossed in gold leather. Both volumes were magnificently bound by special order of the pope by George Huebe of Hamburg.

The front cover bears the imperial and papal coats of arms, while the back cover carries the inscription: "Anne McMill."

"Philadelphia" Tommy Ryan's "Fight" at Omaha Stopped by Police

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—A dispatch to the Record Herald from Omaha, Neb., says: "For participation in a palmaris 'take' fight, 'Philadelphia' Tommy Ryan and Billy Rhodes of Omaha were arrested as the gong clanged for the end of the sixth round of their ten-round go last night."

The attendance was large, the fighters standing to clear $300 apiece. An unsuccessful effort was made to secure the release of Ryan and Rhodes on bail. They will be arraigned in a police court on the charge of vagrancy.

WITTE QUIETLY VISITS ENGLAND

Russian Financier Is Now Out of Favor With Czar
Nicholas

(Special Cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

London, Nov. 7.—M. De Witte, the ex-Russian Minister of Finance, has been in London for the past week with his daughter, but so careful was he to avoid all notice that Londoners, with the exception of a few city magnates, were quite unaware of his presence.

One of the exceptions was Mr. Leopold de Rothschild, with whom M. de Witte had a long interview.

The Rothschilds have introduced much British capital into Russia, and before M. De Witte's downfall, which was brought about partly through the hatred of the Minister of the Interior, M. de Pirille, and partly through the financial indiscretions of his beautiful wife, which led to her being divorced and exiled, there had always been a great bond between M. De Witte and the city of London.

Although M. De Witte's visit is said not to have the slightest political significance, those who know Russia believe that the ex-Minister still exercises great influence over the Czar. He is one of the cleverest financiers in Europe and shares with the Czar the desire for peace at almost any price.

INNSKEEPING BY WOMEN.

Innskeeping as a profession for women is a new departure and one which promises good results.

It has been started in the south of England by two ladies, both well educated, who were enterprising enough to go to Switzerland to learn their business, and who are now in possession of a bright little hostelry, where good food well cooked and served can be had at a price below that charged by the ordinary provincial inn with its ill-cooked meals and unmade beds.

It is an idea which may well be taken up by women who have a little capital and a great deal of energy, and ought especially to be a comfort to cyclists and motorists who too often find the combined discomforts and exorbitant prices of country inns a drawback to their pleasure.

CUT GLASS OUT OF FASHION.

The solid cut glass which was the pride of our grandmothers has almost entirely disappeared, and it is now quite out of fashion. It is replaced by flimsy looking Venetian crystal, which is very frail and equally expensive. The Duchess of Marlborough has lately acquired a set, each piece of which bears the dual coronet and arms. It is worth a small fortune, and was especially made for her by a well-known Venetian glass worker.

Over one thousand five hundred British vessels plying in Eastern waters are manned by Chinese crews.

THE STRIKE AT DENTON

The Employees of the Brick Company Are Still Out

DENTON, Texas, Nov. 7.—(Special).—The strike among the employees of the Denton Press Brick Company is still on, and with the exception of some half dozen men who returned to work yesterday morning for the purpose of looking after the two kilns of brick, the company had on their hands, the work at the yards is at a standstill.

Mr. Lanier, one of the managers of the yards, said this morning that these men who had gone back to work only did so in order to save the company trouble in regard to the brick already on hand. It seems that these men are now employed in caring for and looking after the brick already in the kiln, and that they have not obligated themselves to work all the time. They are working only nine hours a day. The managers, so the men state, have agreed to let them all return to work temporarily, at nine hours a day, until some understanding can be had, provided the local union is willing. Mr. Weeks is out of town today, and it is hoped to have a settlement when he returns home.

REVIVAL AT ARLINGTON

The revival meeting at Arlington conducted by Rev. R. R. Hamlin of the First Christian church of this city, assisted in the song service by John Bradley, closed last night. There were eleven additions to the church, and Rev. Mr. Hamlin speaks in praise of the nice attendance on the services and the good treatment received at the hands of the Arlington people.

HERE IS RELIEF FOR YOU.

The Shakespeare,
PHOENIX, ARIZ., May 22, 1903.

I had been suffering with inflammation of the womb for more than four years. I wished a hundred times to die rather than endure the pain. I spent my money on medicines only to find that it was time and money wasted. When I noticed the testimonials of Wine of Cardui I decided that I would try it, little dreaming what a blessing it would prove.

Little by little the pains disappeared, so slowly and gradually that I hardly noticed the improvement at first. But within seven weeks I was able to go out as usual, could eat heartily and sleep soundly. But I kept up the treatment three weeks longer and then I was entirely cured. I have been in good health now for several months thanks to your preparation.

WINE of CARDUI

That Wine of Cardui brought Mrs. Smith relief and permanent health when she was in such a terrible condition shows it is the right cure even in the worst cases of female trouble.

Even when the doctors give up hope there is always some relief in Wine of Cardui. And this relief has come to women who wished for death as Mrs. Smith did—to women who did not have any tolerance for Wine of Cardui and took it in order to satisfy their friends—to women who had gone through operations one after another for severe chronic troubles.

Wine of Cardui is a medicine which cures all the ailments peculiar to women no matter how simple or how severe. It is the medicine for daughters, mothers and grandmothers in any trouble peculiar to their sex. Can you refuse to give this medicine a trial?

You can secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from any druggist.

her tenth year, leaving her and her half-sister, Cora, to the guardianship of a crabbled old bachelor who had been his father's lawyer. This lawyer was morose and peevish, but he was never positively unkind. The two years the sisters seemed happy enough when, suddenly and somewhat peremptorily, they were separated, Veronica being sent to a western school, where she remained, seemingly without a single visit east, till she was seventeen. During this long absence Miss Tuttle resided in Washington, developing under masters into an accomplished woman. Veronica's guardian, severe in his treatment of the youthful owner of the large fortune of which he had been made sole executor, was unexpectedly generous to the penniless sister, hoping, perhaps, in his close, peevish old heart, that the charms and acquired graces of this lovely woman would soon win for her a husband in the brilliant set in which she naturally found herself. But Cora Tuttle was not easy to please, and the first men of Washington came and went before her eyes without awakening in her any special interest till she met Francis Jeffrey, who stole her heart with a look. Those who remember her that winter say that under his influence she developed from a handsome woman into a lovely one. Yet no engagement was announced, and society was wondering what held Francis Jeffrey back from so great a prize, when Veronica Moore came home, and the question was forever answered. Veronica was now nearly eighteen, and during her absence had blossomed into womanhood. She was not as beautiful as her sister, but she had a bright and pleasing expression with enough spice in her temperament to rob her girlish features of insipidity and make her conversation witty, if not brilliant. Yet when Francis Jeffrey turned his attentions from Miss Tuttle and fixed them without reserve, or seeming shame, upon this pretty butterfly, but one term could be found to characterize the proceeding, and that was, fortune hunting. Of small but settled income, he had hitherto shown a certain contentment with his condition calculated to inspire respect and make his attentions to Miss Tuttle seem both consistent and appropriate. But no sooner did Veronica's bright eyes appear than he fell at the young heiress' feet and pressed his suit so close and fast that in two months they were engaged and at the end of the half-year, married, with the disastrous consequences just made known. So much for the general gossip of the town. Now for the special. A certain gentleman, whom it is unnecessary to name, had been present at one critical instant in the lives of the large hotels in Atlantic City, a fellow whom nobody knew and nobody liked accused him of knowing on which side his bread was buttered, and that certainly it was not on the side of beauty and superior attainments, Jeffrey got angry. Heedless of who might be within hearing, he spoke up very plainly in these words: "You are all of a kind, rank money, worshippers and self-seekers, or you would not be so ready to see greed in my admiration for Miss Moore. Disagreeable as I find it to air my sentiments in this public manner, yet since you provoke me to it, I will say one and for all, that I am deeply in love with Miss Moore, and that it is for this reason only I am going to marry her. Were she the penniless girl her sister is, and Miss Tuttle the proud possessor of the wealth which, in your eyes, confers such distinction upon Miss Moore, you would still see me at the latter's feet, and at hers only. Miss Tuttle's charms are not potent enough to hold the heart which has once been fixed by her sister's smile." This was pointed enough, certainly, but when at the conclusion of his words a tall figure rose from a near corner and Cora Tuttle passed the amazed group with a bow, I dare warrant that not one of the men composing it but wished himself a hundred miles away. Jeffrey himself was chagrined, and made a move to follow the woman he had so publicly scorned, but the look she cast back at him was one to remember, and he hesitated. What was left for him to say, or even to do? The avowal had been made in all its bald frankness and nothing could alter it. As for her, she behaved beautifully, and by no word or look so far as the world knew, ever showed that her woman's pride, if not her heart, had been cut to the

The FILIGREE BALL

SYNOPSIS. The story, which deals with the mystery of the old Moore house in Washington, is told by a detective sergeant, who was drawn into the case by a call from "Uncle David" Moore. The detective, accompanied by Mr. Moore to the old house, where three mysterious murders had been committed. On the way he tells the detective of the murders and of the determination of Miss Veronica Moore to have her wedding ceremony performed in the abandoned house and of the tragic death of a strange man, who was found on the hearth of the mysterious room on the day of the wedding. Uncle David and the detective see a light in the old house, and on entering the detective finds the dead body of Mrs. Jeffrey, formerly Veronica Moore, on the hearth where the stranger had been found dead. The case looked like suicide. He noticed on the wall of the room a faded picture, which fascinated him, and, while he believed in the suicide theory, he determined to discover the secret if possible. Leaving the others in the house, the detective crosses the street to pay a visit to the uncle of the dead woman, "Uncle David" Moore. He learned from the files of the Washington papers that the stranger found dead was W. Pfeiffer, a well known Denver citizen, but no explanation could be found as to his reason for being at the wedding.

a tragedy, the result of which had been to enrich him and impoverish them? Certainly a most serious and important question, and one which any man might be pardoned for attempting to answer, especially if that man was a young detective lamenting his obscurity and dreaming of a recognition which would yield him fame and the wherewithal to marry a certain clever but mischievous little mix, of whom you are destined to hear more. But how was that same young detective, hampered as he was, and held in thrall by a fear of ridicule and a total lack of record, to get the chance to push an inquiry requiring opportunities which could only come by special favor? This was what I continually asked myself, and always without result. True, I might approach the captain or the major with my story of the tell-tale marks I had discovered in the dust covering the southwest chamber mantel-shelf, and, if fortunate enough to find that these had been passed over by the other detectives, seek to gain a hearing thereby and secure for myself the privileges I so earnestly desired. But my egotism was such that I wished to be sure of the hand which had made these marks before I parted with a secret, which, once told, would make or mar me. Yet to obtain the slight concession of an interview with any of the principals connected with this crime would be difficult without the aid of one or both of my superiors. Even to enter the house again where but a few hours before I had made myself so thoroughly at home would require a certain amount of pluck; for Durbin had been installed there, and Durbin was a watch-dog whose bite as well as his bark I regarded with considerable respect. Yet into that house I must sooner or later go, if only to determine whether or not I had been alone in my recognition of certain clues pointing plainly toward murder. Should I trust my lucky star and remain for the nonce quiescent? This seemed a wise suggestion and I decided to adopt it, comforting myself with the thought that if after a day or two of modest waiting I failed in obtaining what I wished, I could then appeal to the lieutenant of my own precinct. He, I had sometimes felt assured, did not regard me with an altogether unfavorable eye. Meantime I spent all my available time in loitering around newspaper offices and picking up such stray bits of gossip as were offered. As no question had yet been raised of any more serious crime than suicide, these mostly related to the idiosyncrasies of the Moore family and the solitary position into which Miss Tuttle had been plunged by this sudden death of her only relative. As this beautiful and distinguished young woman had been and still was a great belle in her special circle, her present homelessness, if not penniless, position led to many surmises. Would she marry, and, if so, to which of the many wealthy or prominent men who had openly courted her would she accord her hand? In the present egotistic state of my mind I secretly flattered myself that I was right in concluding that she would say yes to no man's entreaty till a certain newly-made millionaire's year of mourning had expired. But this opinion received something of a check when in a quiet talk with a reporter I learned that it was openly stated by those who had courage to speak, that the tie which had certainly existed at one time between Mr. Jeffrey and the handsome Miss Tuttle had been entirely of her own weaving, and that the person of Veronica Moore, rather than the large income she commanded, had been the attractive power which had led him away from the older sister. This seemed improbable for the charms of the poor little bride were not to be compared with those of her maturer sister. Yet, as we all know, there are other attractions than those offered by beauty. I have since heard it broadly stated that the peculiar twitch of the lip observable in all the Moores had proved an irresistible charm in the unfortunate Veronica, making her a radiant image when she laughed. This was by no means a rare occurrence, so they said, before the fancy took her to be married in the ill-starred home of her ancestors. The few lines of attempted explanation which she had left behind for her husband seemed to impose on no one. To those who knew the young couple well it was an open proof of her insanity; to those who knew them slightly, as well as to the public at large, it was a woman's way of expressing the disappointment she felt in her husband. That I might the more readily determine which of these two theories had the firmest basis in fact, I took advantage of an afternoon off and slipped away to Alexandria, where, I had been told, Mr. Jeffrey had courted his bride. I wanted a taste of local gossip, you see, and I got it. The air was fully charged with it, and being careful not to rouse antagonism by announcing myself a detective, I readily picked up many small facts, which eminently fitted her to conduct the large establishment of which she had been made mistress, he was forgiven his lack of taste. Little more was said of his peculiarities until, his wife having died and his child proved weakly, he made the will in his brother's favor, which has since given that gentleman such deep satisfaction. Why this proceeding should have been so displeasing to their friends report says not; but that it was so, is evident from the fact that great rejoicing took place on all sides when Veronica suddenly developed into a healthy child and the probability of David Moore's inheriting the coveted estate decreased to a minimum. It was not a long rejoicing, however, for John Judson followed his wife to the grave before Veronica had reached quick, by the one man she adored. With this incident filling my mind, I returned to Washington. I had acquainted myself with the open facts of this family's history; but what of its inner life? Who knew it? Did any one? Even the man who confided to me the contretemps in the hotel parlor could not be sure what underlay Mr. Jeffrey's warm advocacy of the woman he had elected to marry. He could not even be certain that he had really understood the feeling shown by Cora Tuttle when she heard the man, who had once lavished attentions on her, express in this public manner a preference for her sister. A woman has great aptness in concealing a mortal hurt, and from what I had seen of this one, I thought it highly improbable that all was quiet in her passionate breast because she had turned an impassive front to the world. I was becoming confused in the maze of my own imaginings. To escape the results of this confusion, I determined to drop theory and confine myself to facts. And thus passed the first few days succeeding the tragic discovery in the Moore house. VIII. SLY WORK. The next morning my duty led me directly in the way of that little friend of mine whom I have already mentioned. It is strange how often my duty did lead me in her way. She is a demure little creature, with wits as bright as her eyes, which is saying a great deal; and while, in the course of our long friendship, I had admired, without making use of the special abilities I saw in her, I felt that the time had now come when they might prove of inestimable value to me. Greeting her with pardonable abruptness, I expressed my wishes in these possibly alarming words: "Jinny, you can do something for me. Find out—I know you can, and that, too, without arousing suspicion or compromising either of us—where Mr. Moore, of Waverley Avenue, buys his groceries, and when you have done that, whether or not he has lately resupplied himself with candles." The surprise which she showed had a touch of naivete in it which was very encouraging. "Mr. Moore?" she cried, "the uncle of your very—"

Experiencing from this moment an increased confidence, not only in the powers of my little friend, but in the line of investigation thus happily established, I cast about for means of settling the one great question which was a necessary preliminary to all future action: Whether the marks detected by me in the dust of the mantel in the southwest chamber had been made by the hand of him who had lately felt the need of candles, albeit his house appeared to be fully lighted by gas? The subtlety by which, notwithstanding my many disadvantages, I was finally enabled to obtain an unmistakable answer to this query was the fruit of much hard thought. Perhaps I was too proud of it. Perhaps I should have mistrusted myself more from the start. But I was a great egotist in those days, and reckoned quite above their inherent worth any bright ideas which I could safely call my own. The point aimed at was this: To obtain without Mr. Moore's knowledge an accurate impression of his fingertips. The task presented difficulties, but these served only to increase my ardor. Confiding to the lieutenant of the precinct my great interest in the mysterious house with whose suggestive interior I had made myself acquainted under such tragic circumstances, I asked him as a personal favor to obtain for me an opportunity of spending another night there. He was evidently surprised by the request, not cherishing, as I suppose, any great longings himself in that direction; but recognizing that for some reason I set great store on this questionable privilege,—I do not think that he suspected in the least what that reason was,—and being, as I have intimated, favorably disposed to me, he exerted himself to such good effect that I was formally detailed to assist in keeping watch over the premises that very night. "I think that it was at this point I began to reckon on the success which after many failures and some mischances, was yet to reward my efforts. As I prepared to enter the old house at night-fall, I allowed myself one short glance across the way to see if my approach had been observed by the man whose secret, if secret he had, I was laying plans to surprise. I was met by a sight I had not expected. Pausing on the pavement in front of me stood a handsome elderly gentleman whose appearance was so fashionable and thoroughly up to date that I should have failed to recognize him if my glance had not taken in at the same instant the figure of Rudge crouching obstinately on the edge of the curb where he had evidently posted himself in distinct refusal to come any farther. In vain before me was no less a personage than the willow butt of all the boys between the capitol and treasury building—signaled and commanded him to cross to his side; nothing could induce the mastiff to budge from that quarter of the street where he felt himself safe. Mr. Moore, glorying in the prospect of unlimited wealth, presented a startling contrast in more ways than one to the poverty-stricken old man whose curious garb and lonely habits had made him an object of ridicule to half the town. I own that I was half amused and half awed by the condescending bow with which he greeted my offhand nod and the affable way in which he remarked:

"You are making use of your prerogatives as a member of the police, I see." The words came as easily from his lips as if his practice of affability had been of the very longest. "I wonder how the old place enjoys its present distinction," he went on, running his eye over the dilapidated walls under which we stood, with very evident pride in their vast proportions and the air of gloomy grandeur which signalized them. "If it partakes in the slightest degree of the feelings of its owner, I can vouch for its impudence at the free use which is made of its time-worn rooms and halls. Are these intrusions necessary? Now that Mrs. Jeffrey's body has been removed, do you feel that the scene of her demise need hold the attention of the police any longer?" "That is a question to put to the superintendent and not to me," was my deprecatory reply. "The major has issued no orders for the watch to be taken off, so we men have no choice. I am sorry if it offends you. Doubtless a few days will end the matter and the keys will be given into your hand. I suppose you are anxious to move in?"

He cast a glance behind him at his dog, gave a whistle which passed unheeded, and replied with dignity, if but little heart: "When a man has passed his seventh decade he is not apt to be so patient with delay as when he has a prospect of many years before him. I am anxious to enter my own house, yes; I have much to do there."

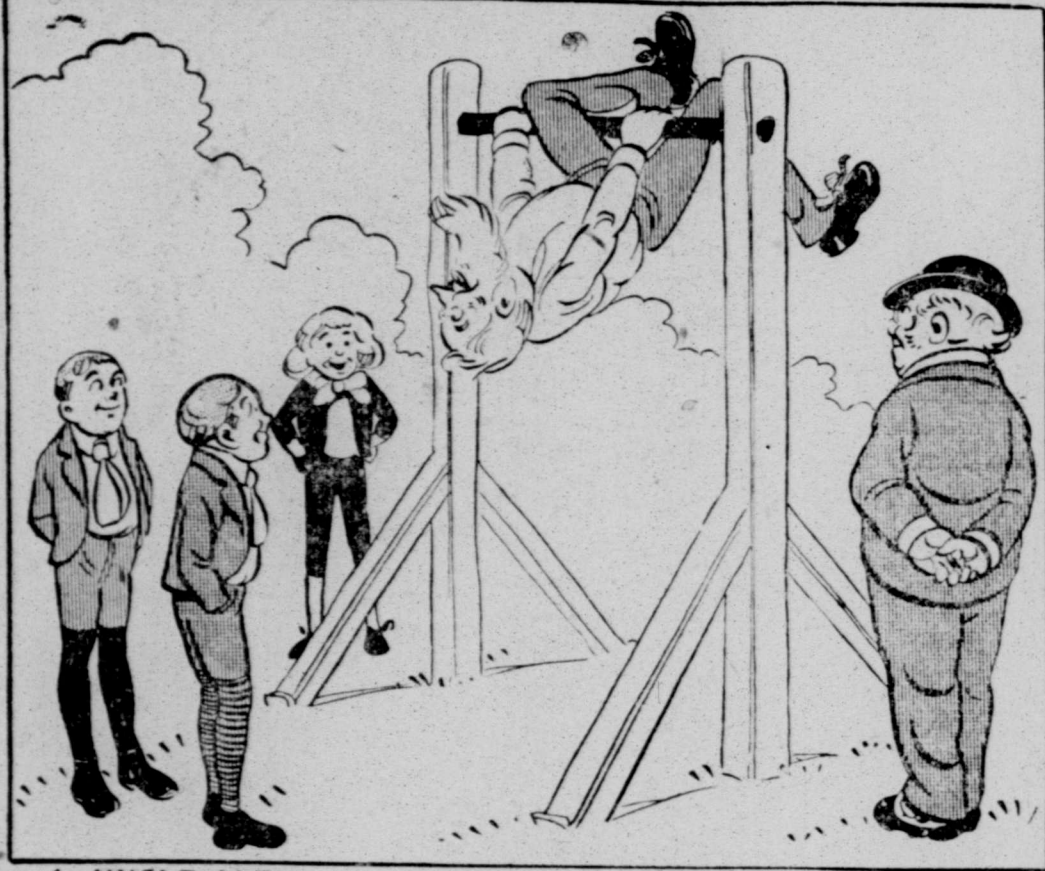

"I came very near asking him what, but feared to seem too familiar, in case he was the cold but upright man he would fain appear, and too interested and inquiring if he were the whitened sepulcher I secretly considered him. So with a nod a trifle more pronounced than if it had been affected by either hypothesis, I remounted the steps, carelessly remarking: "I'll see you again after taking a turn through the house. If I discover anything—ghost marks or human marks which might be of interest to you—I'll let you know." Something like a growl answered me. But whether it came from master or dog, I did not stop to inquire. I had serious work before me; very serious, considering that it was to be done on my own responsibility and without the knowledge of my superiors. But I was sustained by the thought that no whisper of murder had as yet been heard abroad or at headquarters, and that consequently I was interfering in no great case; merely trying to formulate one. It was necessary, for the success of my plan, that some time should elapse before I reapproached Mr. Moore. I therefore kept my word to him and satisfied by own curiosity by taking a fresh tour through the house. Naturally in doing this, I visited the library. Here all was dark. The faint twilight still illuminating the streets failed to penetrate here. I was obliged to light my lantern. (Continued in next Sunday's issue.)

A STARTLING TEST To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt of North Mehoopany, Pa., made a startling test, resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes: "A patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often used Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles, so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in fourteen months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only Sold at W. J. Fisher, Druggist and Apothecary.

2. BOYS: "Oh, yes, Uncle Alex will show Gran'pa some new stunts."

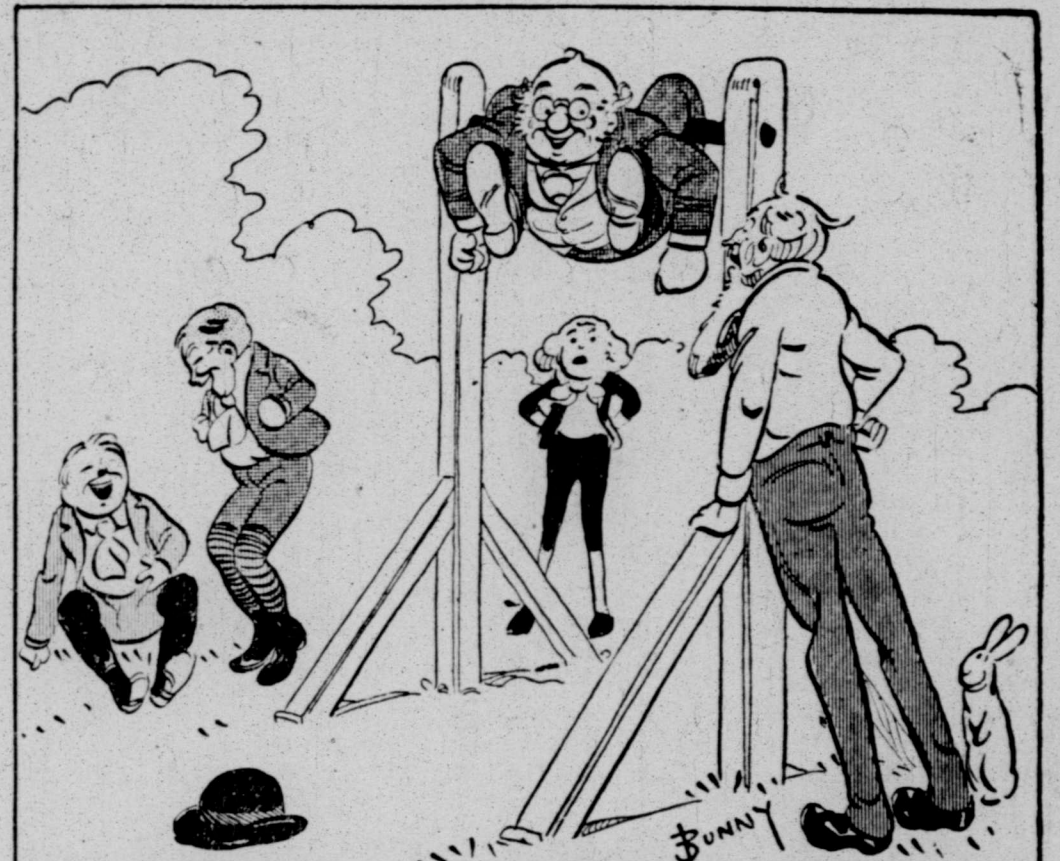

3. UNCLE ALEX: "I'll come down now and give you a chance, Grandpa, but you must try something easy at first."

4. GRANDPA: "Now careful, Alex. I'm afraid that I am getting a little stiff in my old age."

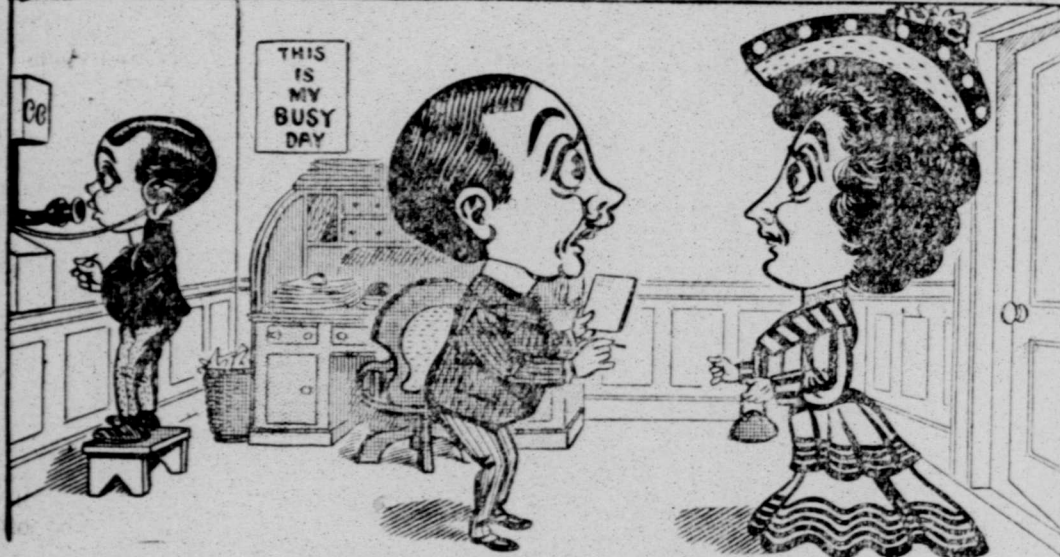

5. UNCLE ALEX: "It's too bad, Grandpa, about you getting stiff in your old age."

6. GRANDPA: "Well, Alex, is there any other little stunt I can do for you?"

1. LULU: "Oh, Leander, I happened down town and I thought I would drop in and have you take me out to lunch."
BOY (at telephone): "Yes, yes! Stocks tumbling head over heels! Lost four points! Hot Air ten points."

2. LULU: "Why, you don't appear glad to see me."
LEANDER: "Why—er—oh yes I am, Lulu. What was that last, boy? Certainly we'll go to lunch. D., X. & M. down seven points, did you say? Yes, yes, sit down a few moments, Lulu."

3. LEANDER: "Yes, I am very busy, Lulu, but I will be delighted to go."
STENOGRAPHER: "Mr. Leander, I have worked hard and steadily all Summer. Can't you give me two weeks' vacation?"
LEANDER: "NO!"

4. LULU: "Oh, Leander! How can you be so mean? Give her THREE weeks. I am sure she needs it."
LEANDER: "Er—yes, all right, Miss Thumper; take THREE weeks."
BOY: "Great excitement! Skinner & Docem have made an assignment. U. S. Sawdust drops fifteen points on last sale."

5. LEANDER: "Yes, you see, Lulu, the stock market is in such a fearful condition that—"
CLERK: "Mr. Leander, I wish you would raise my wages. I"—
LEANDER: "NO. I'LL DO NOTHING OF THE KIND!"

6. LULU: "Why, Leander, I never thought you were so extremely mean. What does two or three hundred dollars a year amount to? You MUST raise his salary."
LEANDER: "All right, Mr. Inkum. Tell the cashier two hundred more."
BOY: "American Bubble gone to smash! D. U. P. E. preferred drops twenty points."

7. BOY: "Panic on 'Change! Bottom drops out of the market! Gilt edged stocks sacrificed! Pandemonium reigns!"
LEANDER: "Good heavens, Lulu! I can't leave the office one moment! Panic in the stock market! I'll not be able to take you to lunch to-day."

8. CHARLEY ONTHESPOT: "Hello, Leander! Why, how do you do, Lulu? Things ARE going my way, old man, aren't they? I told you to be a 'bear.'"
LULU: "Yes, and that is just what he IS—a 'bear,' a MEAN bear. He thinks more of his office than he does of me, his fiancée, and will not take me out to lunch."

9. CHARLEY ONTHESPOT: "Oh, well, Lulu, perhaps Leander IS 'too busy, but I am never so busy that I should deny myself the pleasure of asking you to take lunch with me."
LULU: "Oh, Charley, you are so kind. Good bye, Leander."

THE SEPARATE APARTMENTS.

The Houston city council has recently passed an ordinance providing for separate compartments on the street cars for negroes and whites.

It has been reported to the Houston Electric company that the churches and other negro societies have organized the boycott and are perpetuating it by financial aid.

It is further reported that the negro churches have threatened their members with expulsion and excommunication if they venture to ride upon the cars of the Houston Electric company.

In this connection it may be mentioned that the Houston street car company employs about 300 negroes.

Just how far the negroes will go in this, it is hard to say, but they are directing their efforts against the wrong corporation.

THE TILLMAN JURY

While newspapers are considered a necessity, and the public watch for their daily coming, yet there is very little evidence at hand to show that any man is ever punished for violence toward a newspaper writer.

So it is shown it is the custom in South Carolina, when the jury turned James H. Tillman loose, after Tillman had killed the editor of the Columbia Daily State.

I wish to be polite in this matter and show more wisdom than you did in writing up the Lexington count that tried James H. Tillman.

The Post very properly calls down the Index. The Mineral Wells paper is the only pessimist among the Texas newspapers.

The quick and wholesome application of the law to all cases of law-breaking is the greatest remedy in the world to cause respect for the courts and laws.

The Transcript's proposition is a good one to compel the railroads to furnish transportation to legislators, or better still for the state to pay the actual mileage for legislators and allow nothing for going to and returning from the capitol.

No candidate for the next legislature is not opposed to the acceptance of free passes by any state, county or precinct official, the penitentiary being the penalty, ought to be elected next year.

Fort Worth, which twenty-three years ago, when the writer first saw it, was a "frontier" town with one railroad and no good buildings, now has nine hundred and fifty business firms.

And they are increasing. It is because Fort Worth has such good counties as Wise in her trade territory that she is improving.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat."

Gleanings From the Exchanges

The Fort Worth man who wants the government to coin 12 1/2-cent pieces has a level head for finances.

It would save a fellow 2 1/2 cents every time he takes a drink by himself and that amounts up in the course of a day.

Despite the fact that the colored supplement has been awfully condemned by the Mineral Wells Index, 75 per cent of the leading papers of the United States are delighting their readers with it every Sunday morning or Saturday evening.

The little ones play a large part in one's home life and there is scarcely a man in this broad land who would not infinitely rather have his children happy than be happy himself.

YOUR MONEY WORKS WHILE YOU SLEEP Our famous corps of track sharps are up at break of day, "clocking" the horses in their morning trots and while you sleep they spot the winners that bring you steady income.

Again we scored heavily for all of our clients last month. Again we landed the money and landed it in chunks. Three years of organization, with the best facilities that money and brains can procure to make our service of picking and backing winners at the horse races the most accurate and profitable in the land.

Here is a complete statement, showing the result of a $10 play on each horse given in our "Discretionary Series" during October. (Note: A capital to begin with of $50 is required by us, as a matter of conservatism, to make a $10 play on each horse that is considered by us a good betting proposition.)

Table with columns: Day, First Week, Second Week, Third Week, Fourth Week. Lists winning horses and amounts won/lost.

The above showing is no improvement over that of September, and is not remarkable, since we have excelled it time and again during the past three years of our uninterrupted operations.

OUR CLIENTS WON A MILLION DOLLARS The system we employ to locate winners is identical with that used by "Pittsburg Phil," John A. Drake, John Gates, W. Langdon, Joe Yeager and other famous plungers who win hundreds of thousands on the turf every year.

As it is well known that our clients have collectively won as much as a million dollars at a single race meeting, it is sometimes asked: "Why do not Maxim & Gay simply sit down and back their own selections instead of running a considerable clerical force and spending large sums in advertising in newspapers throughout the country?"

THE ANSWER IS SIMPLE ENOUGH IF ONE STOPS TO CONSIDER THE SITUATION. Maxim & Gay, by dint of ability, energy, organization, capital and advertising, have secured an enormous clientele, which means the command of immense capital.

A FEW OF HUNDREDS OF RECENT ENDORSEMENTS OF THE PRESS Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune, March 1, 1903. Maxim & Gay, who have been so successful in selecting winners at the New Orleans races, are in a class by themselves and have no relation in their system of operation to the "get-rich-quick" schemes that have recently gone to pieces disastrously in those who patronized them.

NEW YORK MORNING TELEGRAPH, February 23, 1902. Since the incorporation of the Maxim & Gay Co. the casual racegoer can possess himself of as much if not more knowledge of the comparative merits of horses, and their chances of success, as the "regular," who burns the midnight oil studying from charts.

CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR, March 2, 1903. The Maxim & Gay Co. well known purveyors of turf information, should not be confounded with "get-rich-quick" turf investment or concerns of similar character.

MEMPHIS EVENING SCIMITAR, March 2, 1902. The advertisements that appear from time to time in the columns of various newspapers with reference to the turf plan of Maxim & Gay Co. tell a story entirely different from the exploits of the defunct "get-rich-quick" concerns.

JOIN OUR WINNING ARMY. The greatest race meeting in the history of the South begins at New Orleans within a fortnight, in magnitude it will eclipse all other turf gatherings of the East.

THE MAXIM & GAY CO. (Incorp.) 928 Canal St., New Orleans, La. In accordance with the terms of your Discretionary Series, I enclose $100.00 Dollars.

Practical Modes for Modern Housewives

finished by a bias band of figured satin or taffeta, or made entirely of plain velvet or satin, unbordered with pannes, is very good style. Lace flounces do not admit of trimming. While to lovers of conservative dress the beauty of the lace is apparent at a glance, to the majority the far less costly trimmed lace is infinitely more desirable. A. T. ASHMORE.

The Closet of Madame.

Nowadays madame's closet has to be as dainty, as comfortable and as practical as her surroundings. In the first place it is desirable to have as much cedar in the wood-work as possible to guard against moths, many dainty gowns having a touch of fur about them. The walls are draped in tapestry effect with a pretty flowered cretonne, which tones with her bedroom and boudoir. This is not only to be decorative, but for the purpose of protecting the garments hanging against the wall from the plaster. The hooks must stand out well, fully a foot from the wall, in order that the gowns may hang quite free, and on each hook is tied a small sachet bag, toned in color with the flowers of the cretonne of the walls.

The sachet may contain the pet perfume that madame effects, but the daintiest is a combination of orris root and wood violet, which gives to the gowns a sweet something, delicate and undetectable. The gowns are then suspended on forms from the hooks, keeping in mind well the figure and arranged to hang straight, so that the lines may not sag out of shape. The coats are also put on shoulder forms and great care is exercised as to the perfectness of the fit. A second row of hooks at a proper distance is for a curtain of the same cretonne as the tapestried wall, which hangs in front of the gowns, completely covering and protecting them.

The first shelf, which runs around three sides of the closet, is like a double section tray of a trunk, upholstered in the same cretonne, with an interlining of cotton, on which is sprinkled thickly with lavender. Into these compartments go madame's bodices and blouses, whose shape is carefully kept in good lines by a profuse stuffing of tissue paper in body and sleeves. The third shelf is devoted to a succession of pigeonhole boxes opened by dropping down the front side. These dainty cretonned boxes are destined to contain a pleasing variety of hats, from the plain tailored affair to those for full dress occasions, each in its individual case, which has a stand in the centre to hold the hat so that the face-trimming and drooping plumes will not be marred. In these hat boxes are also numerous little sachet bags.

Madame's shoe box is a dream of beauty—a long narrow affair of happy colored china, brass hinges and many bright brass nails. It contains all the shoes and slippers in a row on trees, without which no unused boot or shoe keeps its shape. All the bureau drawers have pads made to fit exactly and interlined with cotton sprinkled with orris and covered with China silk the color that madame affects on her lingerie. Sweet grass baskets for handkerchiefs, socks, veils and mailine make an agreeable addition to madame's wardrobe.

The Woman Who Argues.

Said a well-known Philadelphia club woman recently: "At times it seems to me as though woman's proverbial love of argument is only another instance of the inevitable 'longing for the unattainable.'"

"Woman has learned many things, but she has not yet learned how to argue properly."

"To receive courteously from others opinions which differ from their own is a point which even the most advanced of our sex have not yet reached."

"The woman who would argue should remember that:—

"Those who do not think exactly as she does may after all be fairly intelligent people."

"In order to refute an argument it is always well to first know what it is—not interrupt when it has been half stated."

"To assert a thing emphatically is not necessarily to prove it."

"To call an opponent an ass is merely to prove yourself one."

"A sneer proves nothing against any one—except the person who is guilty of using it."

"Sarcasm and wit may soften an argument, but facts alone are convincing."

"Adjectives have not nearly the strength of nouns and numbers in an argument."

"It is not a woman's opinion that she has no place in an argument, and lastly that:—

"Though to have the last word is a woman's prerogative, it is obviously impossible when several women are arguing together for all of them to enjoy that privilege."

The modern outfit, whether for summer or winter, must needs include such a number of different gowns that the ingenuity of dressmakers and designers is severely taxed devising new styles. Fortunately, fashion now permits the wearing of all sorts of fabric at any time of the year. For summer dress gowns and wraps were considered suitable if the day was cold. Now materials once only thought possible for midsummer wear are made up for winter, not only for evening, but for afternoon and theatre wear.

It takes an experienced eye, indeed, to discover whether the gown is a summer or a winter one, so closely do the two styles resemble each other, and were it not for the better linings there would really be no difference between them. Taffeta, instead of India silk, and a light weight of satin are used for lining the thin winter gowns, thus giving a heavier appearance and perhaps a little more warmth to them. White batiste would seem to be emphatically a summer fabric, but it is used in tea gowns and house gowns in winter. White mousseline de laine, white chiffon and the thinnest qualities of white velveteen are a practical for any season. These fabrics are charmingly effective when made up in the graceful styles that seem so especially adapted to them.

Lace and finest embroideries are the favorite trimmings for such gowns, and when a bit of color is desired it may be introduced in the bands of embroidery, or as is often seen, the design of the lace is worked over in colored silks.

Many seasons have been popular. The flounced-skirts, having the flounces pleated or gathered, are exceedingly smart, and there is a dainty finish of narrow lace or ruffling on each flounce that gives the gown a marked individuality which the accordion-pleated skirts do not possess. In putting on the flounces care is necessary that they shall be so arranged as to give the effect of a horizontal line higher at the back than in front, but not in the exaggerated straight front line of last year. There are some women to whom flounced-skirts are so unbecoming that the fashion is an impossible one unless these lines are carefully studied. Even then they sometimes look so badly that it is better to take a simpler design and flounce, shaped wider at the back than in front.

Difficult to Remodel Last Year's Gowns.

Only in the autumn it was said that there would not be any marked change from last year's styles, but as time goes on it is evident the assertion was a little premature. There are many points of difference, though last year's gowns can be remodelled. Not without considerable trouble and expense, however, for the newest designs show a most radical change as regards skirts and sleeves. The general effect of this autumn's costumes is much the same as last year's. There are short jackets, both loose and tight fitting, made with attached skirts or cut in one line from the shoulder, but the sleeves are decidedly original. They are large and drooping in effect and finished below the elbow more often with ruffles than with puffs, and with the trimmings placed at the top of the sleeve as well as at the wrist. They show long lines of braid or embroidery.

Rows of shirring and puffs, bands of embroidered velvet or lace are set around the foot of yokes, which are plain, shirred or corded, from which fall either narrow or wide plaits. All these are in decided contrast to last winter's styles, yet are very smart. The skirt with rounded yoke which is apparently all one-piece is a great favorite, and is made up in all materials. A narrow edge of satin or velvet outlines it in an exceedingly dainty and effective way. Narrow bands of satin embroidered in pretty buttonhole silk are used in this style of trimming around the yoke, down the sides of the front breadth and then to outline each plait. On a mixed chevilot this mode of trimming can be in black, or if a touch of color is desired either red or a bright blue may be used. Of course, the buttonhole finish must be worked by hand; the machine work, even if the best, is not thought correct in this fact.

Checked and plaid effects in chevilot are for the moment more fashionable than stripes, although the hair line of white or a lighter color is always in style. Most useful and extremely smart are the cheviot costumes made up on simple lines as shown in the illustration, and there is a great variety of colorings to choose from. The tans and browns, the gray with black or white, and the old favorite—blue and green—furnish enough difference in coloring to insure the selection of a becoming effect if care be taken in the choice. With such materials it is always a mistake to use elaborate trimmings. The narrow scalloped band of satin already described, rows of braid or velvet ribbon, or rows of machine stitching, are the only suitable ornaments. Now there are so many clever ways of arranging the material itself to obtain bias and straight effects and combinations of these that it looks as though there were two or three different fabrics utilized.

Wide Belts Are Modish.

The broad belts of satin or velvet so fashionable this autumn are in keeping with this style of gown, and look particularly well with the short jackets. These belts require careful fitting and shaping to the figure; they are rounded at the top and finished below with a decided point. At the back the belt has narrow ends of the material turned under and fastened with steel or rhinestone buttons. Liberty satin or velvet make the best belts of this description, but there is a soft finished taffeta that is in great demand. With the plaid or check chevilot the dark belts look much the best, and black is appropriate with every color. The lighter colors should, however, be reserved for the more elaborate gowns, such as are intended for afternoon or evening wear. The velvet elastic belts, fastened with narrow fancy buckles, are also worn with the chevilot gowns, and these are invariably of black, no colored narrow belt being considered permissible.

Black lace gowns, made up over white, are again to be fashionable this winter, and may be either plain or flounced in the skirts. Lace flounces and lace shawls show off to greatest advantage in these designs, but, oddly enough, the much less expensive laces known as silver design are more fashionable, especially if intended for theater gowns. The favorite model, or rather the favorite models, are shown in the illustration. The flounced skirt, with each flounce

Upon with expectation, women await the great word from the shops as to what the winter headwear shall be. Only an occasional hat has been given thus far to the feminine public, but the fashion writer, following behind the scenes, has received the confidence of the importer and behold the delicious confections as they were lifted from their nests in swaths of tissue fresh from the packing case.

The Paris milliners have formulated two distinct ideas for the coming season. The first idea is to be very large and walk-out-hats quite small. All the elegance will be absorbed by the carriage and reception hats, though many of these importations are superb; the tailor made hats are many of them things to dream about, with their exquisite tones and severe lines. The new color is emerald purple, the pinky purple which nearly approaches magenta, but the pronounced favorite in colors is blue, the importers declaring strongly for this shade.

In the large hats a very noticeable feature is breadth. The broadness of the crown of the hat is increased frequently by an effect in trimming. Very noticeable is an effect in trimming. Very noticeable is a beautiful creation in brown shirred velvet. The hat has a broad rim faced with cream colored astrakhan, a beautiful contrast to the golden brown. The back of the hat is caught up snug from the hair with castor satin ribbons, which end on the front brim in a buckle of cut steel and rhinestones. And over the right ear drop two white plumes, one curling forward and the other back. The effect of these feathers is most beautiful, both from the back and side, and from the front the effect is to greatly increase the size of the hat, making it a queeny headgear.

An importation of the emerald purple shade is a gorgeous affair of shaggy beaver which sets well off the face. The upper part of this large hat is a plateau of purple beaver. The facing is in two shades of purple velvet put on the under side of the rim which curls up from the hair in front and around the sides in a gentle oval. The velvet is arranged in a ropelike effect of twists instead of being shirred. The crowning feature of the affair is a superb plume which is fastened in the centre of the hat well forward with a buckle of cut steel and which hangs directly down the centre of the hat, curling over the hair behind.

Of the large hats none is more universally becoming than the high crowned, broad brimmed black velvet importation. The high crown is quite pronounced after the flat hats of the last two seasons, and the rim is finished elegantly with a banding of black silk braid a quarter of an inch in width. This beautiful hat has but two decorative trimmings. Directly in front, on the edge of the broad brim, is laid what might be called a bow of sable plumes. One plume sweeps to the right, two to the left in a horizontal line, while the point from which they spring is cunningly covered with two tiny tips. The other decoration is a beautiful sach of shirred chiffon, which is laid around the crown, hanging in two long, free ends worn either down the back or loosely draped about the neck. No buckles mark its distinguished simplicity.

A very decided shape in small hats is the pointed toque, a flat hat about three inches is a small affair built of cloth which sets well back and off the hair, prettiest when worn with a high pompadour. This hat is shown in scarlet, a lively pleasing color, sure to strike a most cheerful note on a cold brown day of autumn or a frosty one of winter. The edge of this toque rolls up about three inches, faced with shirred scarlet velvet. The top of the hat is completely covered by a bird of the same bright color, the head nesting forward against the brim. The bird is handled in a curious way. Its wings are drawn through the velvet and pressed against the sides of the hat where they may sweep the hair. They are caught with buckles of steel and rhinestones on either side. At the back of the hat the tall plumage of the bird again hangs down upon the hair. This hat follows the decided tendency of the new winter hats, in that the back of it is shaped abruptly to the contour of the head. This is a most charming little affair to brighten a sober gray or brown tailored suit.

Not entirely new with this season, though it has not been seen for several previous years, is the draped toque. This hat is made of shirred taffeta on a framework and then bent into a graceful swirl at the right side. It has almost no ornament outside its graceful shape, only a knot of velvet with a buckle at the side. It is made in gun metal color, a new and popular color of the year.

Feathers are to be worn more than ever, but flowers have not yet appeared in much favor, though later importations from Paris may tell a different story. Some charming things are done with dabbins and chrysanthemums, which properly belong to the conventional forms of the cloth hats.

Whatever may have been said about styles of wearing the hair, the new hats, like the old demand, the hair must be tight to the head behind and worn bouffant in front to set off the fetching new styles.

YESTERDAYS' OF FASHIONS FOR THRIFTY LADIES

How the wise woman may go gowned magnificently and cheaply - coronation dresses for a song.

OFFERING $500 FOR $30

How can a woman who is moderately well-to-do dress well on $300 a year? Undoubtedly any magazine devoted to women's interests would map out an elaborate programme, fixing every detail of attire that would carry her through the twelvemonth. The question may be answered more briefly. Buy your gowns at a second hand store. For $500 a year you can be the envy of every woman in your set. And for $1,000 you can dress as well as any member of the "500"—in fact, you can wear their clothes, and you need not put on a gown that has not the name of Worth, Paquin or Redfern on the waistband.

No line of trade has shown so marked progress as that of second hand clothing, especially for women. The day of the old clothes man has gone, so far as New York is concerned. You may find him on the lower east side, where he picks up castoff garments to convert into shoddy or paper, but he no longer does the thriving business that was his of yore. He belongs to a past era and a slower community.

Things are done on a larger and different scale now. What do you think of a second hand dealer with branch stores or agencies in Newport, Saratoga, Washington, Chicago and San Francisco who sends to Paris twice a year to pick up the newest old things? What do you think of one little second hand shop handling in the course of one year clothing that cost the original wearers an aggregate of $200,000? And how would you like to buy for $30 or $40 a dazzling gown no more soiled than when it came from Paris that cost at least $400? Yet this can be done in two or three shops in New York, and perhaps it offers one explanation for some of the elaborate costumes seen on the stage.

Facing Longacre square is a little shop—you might call it a "hole in the wall," so dingy and forbidding is its exterior. Its environment is all the more uninviting because of the proximity of a blacksmith shop next door. Once inside, however, you forget all about the surroundings. You have entered the inner sanctuary of the Goddess of Fashion. And the gracious deity does not present the slightest appearance of being shopworn. Everything is order and system. If you expected to see the confusion of a junkshop you should have gone further down town on lower Sixth or Seventh avenue.

Neatly arranged in cases with glass doors and suspended from clothes hangers is an array of gowns that would arouse the enthusiasm of the most callous bargain hunter to the highest pitch. Silks, velvets, satins, robes of real lace and gold thread web, crepe de Chine and spangled nets; modish tailor mades, yachting and golfing costumes that never were worn except perhaps once to the club house, all are there in bewildering profusion. Where do they get them? Who buys them? How can they sell them so cheap? These are questions for the dealer to answer.

said one of the young women who conduct the establishment. "We have to guard the names of our patrons, both those who buy and those who sell, with the greatest care. We buy most of our gowns from the members of the wealthy sets in New York, Washington, Chicago and San Francisco."

"Our harvest always comes after some great social event, like the Horse Show or a particularly brilliant season. When Lent is near we can gather up all we can take care of."

"In the first place these gowns become a nuisance after being worn two or three times. The appearance of a society woman is always noted too carefully to permit her to wear the same costumes too often. It is not the thing to do, and she tries to avoid it. A woman who is not noted for her attire can wear a dress indefinitely, but the costume of a leader of fashion is scrutinized down to the finest detail."

"Now, what is she going to do with the dresses that accumulate? Give them away? If so, to whom? You might suppose that some poor but worthy person would appreciate such a gift. And what would that poor and worthy person do with a gown of gold thread web that cost $500? She could not wear it to church. At no party she attended could she display such a creation. It would be absolutely incongruous."

"So the only thing left is to sell them."

"You must not think for a minute that we get these gowns without close bargaining. Frequently the negotiations partake of the nature of haggling. We do not see the owners themselves until we are ready to come down to business. The preliminaries have been arranged by the maids. But when we are prepared to make an offer mildly often appears, and her husband, even if he be the shrewdest sort of business man, could drive no closer bargain."

"I wouldn't care what the gowns brought, if the money did not go to charity," they say. And then in the name of sweet charity they get as much money as we possibly can afford to pay."

"We always attend the public events where we have reason to think fine gowns will be worn. There is not a night of the Horse Show or afternoon, either—that some representative of every high grade second hand clothing firm is not in attendance taking note of the costumes."

"You ask why these women wear a gown only two or three times. Simply because if they are of much social prominence their clothes get so much advertising that they are old in a day."

"Now, who buys these second hand gowns? One dealer summed up our business in an epigram, and here it is:—We buy from the Four Hundred and sell to the Four Thousand." So you can see it isn't everybody that gets this fiery Arcturion and the upper middle classes furnish our best custom. Women who live in good hotels, whose husbands are living nearly up to the limit of their incomes, find us their friends. In a large hotel or apartment house with a cafe attached the women have to dress well. They could not afford as much variety or elegance in attire if they had to pay full prices.

"As for the actresses, they have come to depend on us for many of their stage costumes. They can make a greater display with less money. And display they must have, whether they have the money or not."

"How about the fit on such short notices? With stage gowns it isn't so essential that they fit perfectly, as they are not subjected to close scrutiny. If they have the effect of gorgeousness and don't hang too badly the most critical person in the audience is likely to ascribe any defects to the haste in putting it on."

"You suggest that some of the gowns might be old fashioned. We buy nothing that is not at least one year in advance of the styles on the streets. You see, so society women are perfectly willing to be daring when it comes to getting a fashion."

Here the dealer slid back the glass door of one of the cases and took out a gown of blue panne velvet. It was severely plain, with the exception of its embroidery of real pearls on the bodice and sleeves. It was worn at a reception given to Prince Henry. In spite of the fact that it is almost two years old, it is still in style, so expensive was the mode. It cost $1,000.

Some of the pieces would arouse the laughing indignation in the heart of the most staid woman. For instance, there is one gold thread web gown applied in black that cost $600. It is for sale at $35. A real lace gown, empire style, that cost originally $500, is marked $10. These prices are not exceptional. They are the rule. The gowns have to be sold and they must be put within reach of the middle classes. Yachting and golf costumes that cost anywhere from $150 to $200 go for $12 at a tenth of that sum, simply because there is not much demand for such costumes among the people who buy."

Another source from which second hand gowns come is the varied models of the great department stores in New York and the establishments of Redfern, Worth and Paquin in Paris.

Another up-to-date second hand establishment has for sale a corset of a costume that cost, with accessories—st-kings, s-p-p-para, etc.—$2,700.

At the shop there is a tempting display of second hand dresses. So far as that is concerned, nearly all the pieces are second hand, and some of these are priceless. They are rented to responsible persons who cannot afford to buy them.

A Downtown Shop for Society Women

Such pieces as these are the up to date second hand shops, conducted on thoroughly modern principles. Downtown, in Seventh avenue, however, is the first shop of its kind to cater to the trade of society women. In this shop are to be seen the old in those premises, though. There is a hopeless jumble of crockery, men's suits and gowns that represent a small fortune. The proprietor has a clientele that more energetic competitors have tried in vain to take away from him.

On Bleeker street is the Protestant Episcopal Mission, where second hand clothes are sold for the purpose of aiding the poor. Many rich women send their clothes here, but they really look strangely out of place with the sordid surroundings. The mission has clothing given for the purpose of sale for charity. The officers also purchase clothing at auction and sell it again at a small profit to the patrons of the establishment. The place is patronized by the respectable poor, those whose aspirations lead them to present a good appearance, but who would not be able to do so if they had to buy everything new. They also get a better class of goods and at lower prices than they can at the ordinary second hand store.

It may be true that one-half of the world does not know how the other half lives, but if there is a bridge across the gulf that divides the rich and the poor it is the second hand clothing store.

If a long needful is used it is not only wasteful, but liable to pull the work and become frayed or knotted before you have used it all. Crewels manufactured with a twist are considered bad. No doubt a twisted crewel wears well, but they are gloss and takes the dye well.

Gold Thread, &c.

There is a good deal of Japanese gold thread used both in ecclesiastical and domestic work at the present time. The great advantage is that it does not tarnish, while the so-called real gold thread does discolor. Where silk embroidery wants a gold outline, the Japanese gold thread answers that purpose well. When the best gold thread is desired, the following list may be of some assistance.

Passing—A bright, smooth thread.

Tambour—Dull.

Rough Purl—Like passing, but still smoother.

Smooth Purl—Bright.

Pearl Purl—In effect like small beads strung together.

Bullion—The largest size of purl.

Plate—A flat gold 1-6 inch wide.

There are twisted gold cords of various thicknesses.

Purl may be in either gold or silver. It is made in a series of continuous rings rather like a corkscrew, can be cut to the required lengths, threaded on the needle and fastened as desired. Plate is a narrow, flat piece of gold or silver, and is stitched to the material by means of threads of silk, which pass over the metal. Gold and silver passing and tambour are the kinds of threads, which can either be used by working through the material or can be laid like Japanese gold.

Spangles—Sometimes of pure gold. There are in the market at the present time a number of fancy colored metal spangles.

Fabrics Used as Grounds for Embroidery.

Linens—Hand made linens make useful grounds for all kinds of embroidery. The colors and textures are beautiful in quality and admirable for embroidery purposes.

Flax is an unbleached brown linen.

Kirtleman's twist is a fine twilled linen made at Quilrennair.

Sail cloth is a stout linen of yellow color. Linen and is grayer in color.

Smock linen is even green cloth.

There are endless varieties of fancy linens, and most of them can be worked in the hand.

Cottons and Woolens.

Serge, soft or super serge, takes embroidery well.

Cricketing flannel is of a fine creamy color, soft, and can be easily worked in the hand.

Diagonal cloth can be used for table linen, curtains, &c.

Velveteen is good for grounds and can be worked in the hand.

Utrecht velvet, suitable for crewel or tapestry wool embroidery.

Velvet faced cloth is a rich, plain cloth, without gloss; useful for altar cloths.

Felt is sometimes used for the ground for curtains or altar cloths.

Genevieve velvet is very rich in quality and color for grounds. It should be backed with cotton or linen lining if it is to be heavily embroidered.

Silks and Satins.

Silks and satins are usually embroidered in a frame. Both are suitable as grounds for fine stitching.

Silk sheeting of good quality, suitable for plain coverings, panels, &c., can be embroidered by hand.

Tussah and Corah silks are beautiful, but will carry only light embroidery in silk or floussé.

Brocades make admirable foundations. The woven pattern gives, if well chosen, a pleasant contrast to the embroidery. There are also a number of silk and linen mixtures procurable which are suitable for grounds.

Clots of gold and silver are metal threads woven with silk. They are chiefly used for heraldic and ecclesiastical embroidery.

Baudouin is that sort of costly cloth of gold which took its famous name from Bregdad.

Dorbeck is a name given to an inferior kind of damask work wrought of silk, wool, linen thread and gold in Flanders. Towards the end of the fifteenth century it was used much for church furniture.

Hints for Those who Love Fine Stitchery.

Implements and Materials Used in Embroidery.

Needles—It is a mistake to use a very fine needle. The silk thread or crewel must pass easily in the needle. Unless the eye is relatively large, than the silk it does not make a sufficiently large hole in the material, and the silk is then roughened and pulled out of shape each time it is taken through the small hole.

Scissors—short, sharp and finely pointed.

Prickers for gold embroidery are necessary, also in some forms of cutting they are useful for arranging the lay of the thread.

Thumbies—Workers sometimes prefer ivory or vulcanite. Two thumbies are used for framework.

Crewels—Never take more than about half the length of a skein in your needle.

TATTOOING POPULAR WITH ENGLISH WOMEN

Odd Fad Is Increasing in Society as Well as in Lower Classes—Rita Scores Smart at Slang

(Special Cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Duchess of Manchester, who was not so very long ago Miss Zim, a member of the aristocracy, is effecting many changes at Kilmore Castle, the vast mansion in Connemara, which the duke has just acquired for his principal country seat. She is having all the large rooms altered, pulling down some of the walls, and having every modern comfort introduced, with a perfect system of heating.

The dual offering, which as yet consists only of the "fant" Marquis of Kintobolton and a baby, are being provided with a special suit of apartments arranged as nurseries and playrooms. The Kilmore estates are very extensive, and as they stand would set a great deal to keep up. Under the new land act, therefore, the duke is selling the farms and small holdings to the tenants, retaining only for himself quite a small shooting, which will mean great economy in the upkeep of the property.

LETTERS OF QUEEN VICTORIA

The most interesting book to appear this publishing season—in, indeed, it can be expected so soon—will assuredly be the letters of Queen Victoria, which are to be collected and edited by Lord Escher and A. C. Benson.

Lord Escher, who is the son of the late Baron Escher, master of the rolls, holds the official position of first commissioner of works, and as such was responsible for the structural arrangements in Westminster Abbey and elsewhere in connection with the coronation last year. He was also a member of the famous war commission.

Mr. Benson is one of the most popular masters at Eton, and is spoken of as the probable successor to Dr. Warre, the present headmaster. He is a son of the late archbishop of Canterbury and brother to E. E. Benson, the novelist. He is, however, a pretty constant contributor to the magazines, has written a life of his father, and his school songs are sung and appreciated by the Etonians. In appearance Mr. Benson is a typical Saxon, standing six feet three, good looking, and with a strong resemblance to his father. All the Benson family are cultivated musicians, keen athletes and thoroughly intellectual, sane, practical men.

CZAR WRITES POETRY

According to a St. Petersburg message in a London paper, the czar has written some verses of a melancholy and despairing character, under the pseudonym of "Olaf," and his imperial majesty's lacerations have been set to appropriate weird music and published by a German firm.

Nicholas II, the correspondent hints, is so dissatisfied with his lot as autocrat of all the Russias that he is compelled to give poetical vent to his deep despair under cover of an alias.

It is quite possible for a monarch to be a poet, as is demonstrated by several living European rulers. King Oscar of Sweden is the royal poet par excellence, but the kaiser has thrown off a few little things of his own, and several minor potentates have made excursions—more or less of the conducted order—up the slopes of Parnassus.

With regard to the czar, he has not hitherto been suspected of literary gifts, but the "Olaf" story is sure to make the song sell.

John Calcott Horsley was born, in the same year as C. F. Watts (who is still alive), but they can scarcely be classed together, for Watts' pictures are for all time, while Horsley was essentially a member of the utterly out of date school of Ward, MacIver, Eastlake and Leslie. Mr. Horsley exhibited his first painting in the year before Queen Victoria's accession, and his pictures were extremely popular about the middle of the last century, being of the domestic genre description, which at that time was one of the highest aims of art.

Perhaps Horsley is best known to the present generation by the part he took in the famous Nude versus Draped controversy some ten years ago, in which he vigorously attacked the "Altogether" school and was nicknamed by Punch "Clothes-Horsley."

He was also the inventor of the Christmas card, having circulated a greeting card of his own design in 1846. From 1882 to his retirement six years ago Mr. Horsley was treasurer of the Royal Academy, and he also acted as selector of pictures for the winter exhibitions of old masters held by the academy. Since laying down his brush Mr. Horsley had been engaged in writing his reminiscences, which are announced for immediate publication. The deceased artist was a lovable and sweet-tempered old man, with white hair and pointed beard, and of a slight and spare figure. His two sons, Walter and Gerald, are both well known in the art world as painter and architect, respectively.

TATTOOING IN LONDON

Tattooing as a feminine fad is making great strides in England.

Alfred South, who may be described as the pioneer of this curious art, has during his career operated on upward of 15,000 persons, including about 900 English women. Some of the designs are very elaborate. Perhaps the most striking of all are representations of two celebrated paintings, "The Crucifixion" and "Eve Home." One woman has depicted on her skin an artistically rendered flight of birds.

Portraits of husbands and lovers are popular with women, and there are several instances of soldiers' wives having been tattooed with their husbands' regimental crest. Some women have a fancy for the inscription of mottoes in various strange languages, such as Assyrian, Chinese or Arabic. There are instances where ladies have had the inscriptions on their wedding rings tattooed in their fingers beneath the ring.

Bitchings of bracelets in yellow encircle the arms of many. Some up-to-date women have had their skins adorned with pictures of automobiles.

SMART SET SLANG

The well-known lady novelist who hides her identity under the pseudonym of "Rita," is continuing her crusade against the intricacies of the "Smart Set" in society. Having fagallated their numerous vices and weaknesses, she proceeds in her latest contribution to the Gentlewoman to criticize their slang.

"Wherever a slang term can be used," she says, "it is accepted for the formal word. Invention has run riot in the formation of expressions of which smart society holds the copyright." The following specimens are quoted: Two-est, dearest; My Twoe, my dear; Dicky, disgusting; Nigittie, fix; Scary, frighten; Terri, a royal person; Deevie, delightful; Teagle, teagown; Pils, friends; Expie, expensive; Batin', scolding; Cracks, celebrities; Run Dry, hard up. "The slang of the stables," continues "Rita," "is common enough now on 'smart' women's lips, as common as their cigarette cases or their betting books. The vulgarisms of the lower ten thousand are by no means excluded from the salons of high life. What is ill-bred or vulgar below stairs becomes merely piquant from 'smart' lips."

The rather babyish expressions above quoted seem harmless enough, and to be indulgently regarded as the fable of an idle, playful and not too intellectual set of people. With regard to "Rita's" more serious allegations, it must be remembered that she is essentially a "sensational" novelist, and that, therefore, sensationalism in her non-fiction is rather to be expected in her non-fictional writings.

PREACHER WORE VICTORIA CROSS

The Rev. James W. Adams, who has just died, was unique among English clergymen in wearing the Victoria cross.

Mr. Adams was by birth an Irishman, and was 61 years old. He won his Victoria cross during the Afghan campaign of 1879, when he was a chaplain with Lord Roberts' army during his famous march to Kandahar. Two troopers of the Ninth Lancers, with their horses, had fallen into a mullah or ditch, and were struggling at the bottom with their animals on top of them. Lord Roberts has described how the men were rescued by Mr. Adams' gallantry and muscular strength.

The rescue was effected under a heavy fire from the enemy at short range. "Without a moment's hesitation," says "Hobs," "Adams jumped into the ditch. He was an unusually powerful man, and by sheer strength dragged the Lancers clear of their horses. The Afghans meanwhile were so close to the ditch that I thought my friend the padre could not possibly escape. I called to him to look after himself, but he paid no attention to my warnings until he had pulled the almost exhausted Lancers to the top of the slippery bank."

The men were in danger of being drowned, as the ditch was full of water, and the "padre" was up to his waist in water while he was pulling them out.

Possessing all the modesty of the real hero, this ideal specimen of muscular Christianity was adored by "Tommy Atkins," not only as a self-sportsman. He served for many years as an army chaplain in India, and besides his Afghan campaign, saw service in Burma. Returning to England after the latter campaign, he spent the remainder of his life quietly as a country parson, and at his death was rector of Ashwell, Rutlandshire. punctual housemaid to keep her appointment.

Sunday nights in London are not exhilarating at any time, but now the picturesque meetings of soldiers and their sweethearts at such places as the Marble Arch and Albert Gate, which brightened up the streets, as well as the lives of the household drudges, are things of the past.

The troops in London are said by the military attaches from other countries to compare more than favorably in regard to their behavior with those stationed in the big cities of the Continent, and the only explanation given of this strange order is that pressure has been brought to bear upon Lord Roberts by a small and fanatical band which has before now influenced the Commander-in-Chief.

The punishment meted out for loitering is very severe—seven days' confinement to barracks and the stopping of a month's leave. In order to carry out the order a large number of military police, wearing red caps, have been greatly added to the indignation among the rank and file.

The net result of the order has been a great falling off in the number of recruits for the guards, whose battalions are already far short of the proper standard.

A remarkable feature of the great fiscal campaign which is being waged in the country by the opposing parties is the impetus which it has given to London Club life.

Venerable looking old gentlemen of the old Tory school who only visit London once or twice a year have left their rural retreats to stay in town for the sole purpose of spending their evenings at their clubs and entering into the "for and against" free trade arguments which have soured so many hitherto angelic dispositions.

The influx to the clubs was much needed. Of late years money has not been spent freely at any of the big clubs and some of the smartest of them are in by no means a flourishing financial state.

The real old Tories who buttonhole defenceless people and tell them that "the country is going to the dogs" "it is, by gad, sir," are expressing their horror at the manner in which the happenings at Cabinet meetings are openly described by ministers. It is certainly an extraordinary sign of the times. The Duke of Devonshire, Mr. Balfour, Mr. Ritchie, Mr. Chamberlain and nearly every minister in the late or present Cabinet has been telling crowded meetings exactly what took place at such and such a Cabinet meeting, even descending to a description of the little personal encounters between ministers.

Such a thing has never before happened in the history of the country, and many people are shaking their heads in doubt as to the wisdom of the new policy of giving the nation these biograph pictures of Cabinet meetings.

The London County Council has disappointed those who hoped that there was to be one beautiful thoroughfare in London which could frankly be admired by Continental visitors.

The Council had a splendid opportunity in the new thoroughfare, "Kingsway" which is to connect the Strand with Holborn, and the chance has been thrown away for reasons of economy. Instead of taking the advice of eminent artists and architects, who advised the construction of a really fine street, with a width of 155 feet, the Council has decided to make it only 100 feet.

The London County Council have spent enormous sums of late. It is true, and have decided not to borrow any further large sums for the present, but every one feels that the making of a great thoroughfare which will be used, and it is to be hoped, admired, by countless generations to come was worthy of a big sacrifice.

The new Gaiety Theater, which is at the corner of what is to be a magnificent crescent, giving access to the new thoroughfare, and which was opened with a great flourish of trumpets the other night, is a rather severe but very tasteful example of renaissance architecture, and if the buildings in Kingsway are an improvement upon the theatre then Londoners will have something to be thankful for.

Last winter moleskin was the fashionable for worn by the smart woman. This winter moleskin will be worn by all, and sundry hundreds and thousands of these tiny animals have been slaughtered and their skins sent to London.

Many agriculturalists, curiously enough, still cling to the old idea that moles are pests, which ruin lawns and destroy young shrubs, and for years past farm laborers have been paid a halfpenny each for a dead mole.

Spruce Soldiers No Longer Slowly Stroll London Streets With Simpering Sweethearts Sunday Nights

Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hurst.

London, Nov. 7.—The War Office, which has been steadily abused for a year by all members of the community, from the peppery colonel at the club to the seedy Hyde Park orator, is now being denounced more bitterly than ever in the "servants' hall."

"Mary Jane has a very large bone to pick with the Commander-in-Chief. A few weeks ago Lord Roberts issued an army order to the effect that any soldiers quartered in London who loitered about the streets or the parks in uniform after dark would be promptly arrested."

There have been scores of arrests since the order was issued, and the troopers of the Household Cavalry and the privates of the Foot Guards are as indignant as the domestic servants. They can no longer gaze into a shop window while they wait for the un-

DE LACY'S CIN-KO-NA AND IRON MOST POWERFUL STRENGTHENING TONIC IN THE WORLD

And an Absolute Cure for Rheumatism, Catarrh, Malaria, Blood Diseases and All Nervous Troubles.

Its action is almost instantaneous—you feel the magic effects of the very first dose. You regain your appetite the first day. You begin to get color in your face, your pulses are again regular, your liver and kidneys begin to work as they should; in fact, you can almost see yourself grow stronger. It is being used today and strongly indorsed in Fort Worth and the entire country by more than a million business men, clerks, lawyers, ministers, physicians, laboring men, society women, stenographers, dressmakers, salesladies, and men and women in all stages of life. Its record of cures has never been equaled. A few of the thousands who indorse DE LACY'S CIN-KO-NA and IRON.

A Prominent Member of Joplin Typographical Union, No. 359, and Foreman of one of the Largest Printing Offices in Southwest Missouri, Says:

"I was terribly run down, could not sleep, had no appetite and my entire system was full of malaria. I had about given up, and decided a change of climate would be my only cure, for I had tried everything. About this time I saw an advertisement of 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' and decided as a last chance to give it a trial; so I got one bottle, and after four or five doses I began to feel better. I have taken about one and one-third bottles up to the present time, and am glad to say that the malaria has been entirely driven from my system. I eat well, sleep well and feel well. I haven't been in as good health in ten years. 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' is certainly a great medicine and a fine, stimulating tonic, and I most heartily recommend it to all who may be in need of its curative properties."

A PROMINENT ST. LOUIS BUSINESS MAN

Mr. F. T. Bentley, Vice President of the Gately Credit Clothing Co., 812 N. Broadway, Cured of Dry Catarrh After Suffering for Years.

Mr. Bentley says: "I have been a sufferer for years with dry Catarrh in my head, hard substances in my nose. I not only tried several well known so-called Catarrh remedies, but was treated by some of the best specialists in the country, but received but precious little relief. I began taking De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron and less than two bottles has effected an absolute cure, and today I am perfectly free from it for the first time in years. I not only strongly and most heartily indorse De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na, but will take pleasure in answering any questions from parties who are interested and troubled with Catarrh. Very truly, F. T. BENTLEY, St. Louis, May 27, 1903.

A Letter from Rev. Dr. Bolster, Pastor Baptist Church, Danville, Ill., With One from Mrs. Wilson, His Wife's Mother:

DE LACY CHEMICAL CO., St. Louis, Mo.:

Gentlemen—Mrs. Wilson is mother of Mrs. Bolster; her home has been with us for several years. Little more than two years ago she suffered a slight stroke of Paralysis. She began the use of your Cin-Ko-Na and Iron as a nerve tonic. The results were surprising—not only were her nerves strengthened, but her long-deranged stomach was so restored as to enable her to eat with comfort. I do not wonder that she thinks it the greatest medicine in the world. It has surely done what many other remedies utterly failed to do.

Mrs. Bolster has taken it as a nerve tonic with very gratifying results. Very respectfully, A. E. BOLSTER.

DANVILLE, ILL., September 15, 1903.

For many years I have been a great sufferer from palpitation of the heart, would have it every few weeks, at times nearly every day, but since taking De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron I have not had a bad time of heart trouble in fourteen months. Also was troubled with catarrh of stomach; sometimes could not eat solid food, but after taking Cin-Ko-Na and Iron I am much better, can eat solid food and feel free from pain. I would advise those affected as I was to try De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron. MRS. AMARILLA WILSON.

"DE LACY CIN-KO-NA" MOTHER AND BABY

Mrs. F. D. JOHNSON.

A REMARKABLE CASE OF THE GREAT STRENGTHENING TONIC EFFECTS OF "DE LACY'S CIN-KO-NA AND IRON."

"I was so thin and nervous after our baby was born that I thought I would never be well again. I was so bad that as soon as I was able to travel Mr. Johnson sent me to the springs, but I could neither eat nor sleep and kept getting worse and he came after me and brought me home. I was not only a nervous wreck, but a living skeleton. I had no milk for the baby, and baby food did not agree with him, and was so worried for fear we would lose him. I began taking De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na, and before I finished my first bottle I was wonderfully improved, and I had plenty of milk for the baby. I have taken three or four bottles and am still taking it, and today I am as strong and healthy as any woman in St. Louis. The baby has cut two teeth and we have not lost a hour's sleep. Mr. Johnson and myself both give our most hearty indorsement for DE LACY'S CIN-KO-NA as a godsend to weak, nervous, suffering women. MRS. F. D. JOHNSON, 396 Bates St., St. Louis, Mo., July 15, 1903. 'The above are the true facts in my wife's case.' F. D. JOHNSON, Foreman Feldbush-Bowman Printing Co.

A KANSAS CITY WOMAN.

Read this Letter:

MRS ANNA RUFFNER, 2423 East Ninth St., Kansas City, Mo.

"Had Malaria and felt no account all the time until I began taking 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' and I feel like a new woman." So says Mrs. Anna Ruffner of Kansas City, Mo. For a year I most feel like giving up. I would ache all over and had no appetite and at times I would not sleep at night. I began taking "De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron" four times a day and one of "De Lacy's Little Fruit Wafers" at night, and in less than three weeks the Malaria and that tired and worn-out feeling entirely left me and I began to eat well and sleep like an infant, and my complexion, instead of being a muddy hue, cleared up, and I could do more work in a day than I did in three, and have life and ambition. I feel that I can not recommend "De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron" too highly. My mother, who is 60 years old, never acts herself to be without "De Lacy's Laxative Fruit Wafers," as they cured her of stomach trouble and sick headache after suffering almost constantly for more than fifteen years. MRS. ANNA RUFFNER, 2423 E. 9th St., Kansas City, Mo.

A PINE BLUFF, ARK., MAN

From George C. Morris, Foreman of the Commercial, Pine Bluff, Ark.

"Four months ago I was in a dreadful state of health. My liver and stomach did not act, had no appetite, and I was simply growing worse from day to day. I tried every known remedy, but could get no relief, and finally I had to give up my position. I took a severe cough and lost over 35 pounds, and my doctor told me I had incipient consumption, and had better leave Arkansas for a more healthy climate. This I could not do, and decided to try De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron as a last resort. I only took one and one-half bottles when I was able to go back to work. My appetite improved, I gained flesh, and am today as well as ever. I believe De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na saved my life."

A SAVANNAH, TENN., MAN

From F. H. Winship, Savannah, Tenn.

De Lacy Chemical Co., St. Louis, Mo.: Dear Sirs—I believe I will be doing my fellow beings a good turn by telling what I know about De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron. You know we have lots of malaria down here and I want to tell you that you have the only malaria cure. I guess I know of fully a hundred who have been cured of malaria with De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na. I am never without a bottle on my desk. When I feel tired and worn out I take a dose, and I want to say I am gaining in flesh, in appetite and in strength. A single dose does you good and you improve with every dose. That's our experience here. I most certainly wish you abundant success. Very truly, F. H. WINSHIP.

A PARIS, TEX., WOMAN

Mrs. Reede, of Paris, Texas, Says:

"I suffered with catarrh in my head for years. It gave me severe headaches and affected my brain. I tried many advertised cures and two physicians, but was getting worse. De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na was recommended by a lady friend so highly, I concluded to try it, and before I finished my first bottle I was wonderfully improved, and am now taking my third bottle, although two bottles I guess was all I needed. I cheerfully recommend De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na to any one suffering from catarrh. It is also a fine general strengthening tonic and is so pleasant to take." MRS. AMY REEDE, July 1, 1903.

A Letter From One of St. Louis' Popular Firemen, E. J. Doering, Company No. 3.

As every one knows, a fireman's life is very trying on the nerves, having to be up at all hours, day or night, when duty calls. I find nothing equal to De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron to build me up and give them vim and energy. It has done me a world of good, and I know of a dozen or more firemen who recommend it very highly. As a tip-top good bracing tonic, to put a man's blood in shape and give him an appetite, and generally build up his whole system, De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron can't be beat, at least this is my experience, and I know of so many of my friends who speak of it as I do. Very truly, F. J. DOERING, Fire Dept., Co. No. 3, Broadway and Salina St., St. Louis, May 9, 1903.

DR. SAUNDERS

A Prominent and Well Known St. Louis Physician and Surgeon, Cured of

RHEUMATISM

After Suffering Eight Long Years, After Taking Two Bottles of

DE LACY'S Cin-Ko-Na and Iron

Read the doctor's letter, which is given below, word for word:

"I suffered from rheumatism for eight long years and was so bad off I had to have my wife help me on with my shoes in the morning and take them off at night. My suffering at times was so intense that it was almost unbearable. I tried everything that is known to medical science, but could only get temporary relief. After carefully examining the formula of 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron,' and finding nothing of an injurious nature in it, I concluded to quietly give it a trial. I was both gratified and astonished at the result, for I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking two bottles regard myself as being absolutely cured. I never felt better in my life than I do today, and can honestly and truthfully say that 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' is a harmless, safe and infallible cure of rheumatism in any part of the system, and I have given it to over 100 of my patients, meeting with the same result as I personally did. Fraternal yours, DR. J. S. SAUNDERS, St. Louis, Mo., May 7, 1903.

MR. JOHN F. OESTEREICH Says:

"I Am a Veteran of the Civil War and Have Lived in St. Louis Fifty-eight Years."

"I have suffered from Rheumatism and Catarrh for 15 years, and have doctored almost continuously during this time. Have tried almost everything I would hear of in the way of liniments, inhalers, and also been treated by four or five prominent St. Louis physicians, but received only temporary relief. I visited my son and his wife one evening and found they were both taking De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na, and they insisted that I try it, which I did. I am now taking my fourth bottle and am entirely free from pains, and feel fully 20 years younger and as active as any man of 35 or 40. I eat well, sleep well and feel well, all of which I owe to the good derived from De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na. I am never too busy to say a good word for De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na, and I guess I have recommended it to at least a hundred or more of my friends, the same as my good son and daughter did to me." JOHN F. OESTEREICH, 2620 S. Eighteenth, St. Louis, May 15, 1903.

MRS. S. M. WATSON

Of Kansas City Strongly Advises Every Lady Who Is Weak, Nervous and Generally Run Down to Take "De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron."

Read Mrs. Watson's experience and advice: "I certainly think and do not hesitate to say that for a woman who is weak, nervous and of a malarial temperament, feeling tired all the time, that De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron is an ideal remedy. The first few doses braced me up wonderfully, gave me a fine appetite, made me sleep peacefully, quieted my nerves and made me feel good all over. It is certainly a very pleasant and nice preparation to take, and from my experience I feel that it will do any woman good who needs a general toning up of the whole system, and I advise all women to take it, for it is splendid." MRS. S. M. WATSON, June 1, 1903. 329 Nebraska Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

"De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron" Has Cured Thousands of Cases of the Most Stubborn Nature of Catarrh, Rheumatism, Nervousness, Grip, Coughs,
