

IS THREATENING

Alexander Is Believed to Be About to Cause Trouble Between England and Russia Because of Red Sea Seizures

HE STEPS INTO POWER

Pacific and Conciliatory Policy Was First Impulse, But May Be Changed by His Influence With the Emperor—His Interests Cause of War

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Russian infatuation at the seat of government increases rather than diminishes, despite the steady approach of a great crisis at the seat of war. The reply to Great Britain's protest concerning the Red Sea seizures and the passing of the Dardanelles by vessels of the Russian volunteer fleet—if inspired forecasts are reliable—will bear unmistakable signs of the authorship of Grand Duke Alexander, chief of the Antipodes, leader of the war party among the nobility and decidedly the largest shareholder of the Yalta Timber Company, whose aggressions were the immediate cause of the war.

This grand duke, availing himself of the interregnum at the office of the ministry of his interior, and of his high rank in the navy, has virtually assumed the place Plevh held in the czar's councils. It is Alexander who is for the moment dictating Russia's policy as to crucial questions. It is Alexander who has been able thus far to frustrate M. De Witte in his attempt to effect a compromise between the two parties whose rivalries nullify the peace wishes of Nicholas—the reactionaries whom Alexander leads, and the moderators whose chief is De Witte. Nothing could better illustrate the perplexity of Nicholas than the contrast between the approval he gave in the first instance to Lamsdorff's conciliatory reply to the British protest and the approval he has given, or is about to give to a defiant pronouncement bearing the hallmark of Alexander. Serious trouble between Great Britain and Russia is not to be looked for unless Russia's infatuation with reactionary influences repeats the original incidents pending judicial settlement. Even in that event there will be an offer to send the trouble to the Hague tribunal.

THE CZAR TO ALLOW A PUBLIC COLLECTION

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.)
WARSAW, Aug. 6.—Though this is an age on modern infatuation over the world it is not without difficulties to erect a monument in Russia. Two years ago people in this city began to collect money for a statue of Chopin, but as people were afraid that they might be asked to contribute to the monument by giving money to a monument for the famous Polish composer, the money did not come in very fast.

As the czar's representative limited the collection, the government would make no difficulties, but even this failed to swell the fund.

A committee has now, however, been formed under the presidency of Paderewski, who has asked the czar to permit a public collection, and as the government under present conditions is averse to hurting the feelings of the Poles, this permission has not only been given, but the czar himself has donated a large amount, so that it now looks as if the efforts of the music loving commission would succeed in raising the necessary 100,000 roubles.

THE GLOOM OF WAR PUTS END TO SPORT

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.)
ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 6.—In spite of the light-heartedness which is one of the characteristics of the czar himself, the gloom of the war is rapidly settling over the city, and has put an end to all gayety and sport.

This is being felt even at the race tracks, where under ordinary circumstances fortunes are lost and won daily. Races are still being held at Carskoe Zelo every day, but the number of visitors is rapidly decreasing, and the owners of the track, who make book on the races themselves, are complaining bitterly, having lost more than 100,000 roubles during last week.

It is expected that the czar, who has always been opposed to gambling in every form, and who is deeply grieved to see that there are still Russians who care for pleasures in these dark days, will issue a ukase in the near future forbidding racing all over Russia.

SHE WAS A SPY FOR THE JAPANESE

MILAN, Aug. 6.—An examination of the private papers left behind by Countess Della Torre, who was assassinated by an American in this city some time ago, proves that she for some time had been in the service of the mikado as a spy.

When it became evident that a war with Russia was unavoidable, the countess was sent to Port Arthur, where she soon won the love of a high Russian officer, who was a son of the governor of St. Petersburg.

Well supplied with money, she soon gathered all the officers of the garrison around her, and her balls and dinners were the most sumptuous ever seen in that gay city, and there was no military secret which she did not undertake to discover.

In this way the Japanese war department was made aware of everything which happened in Port Arthur, and no one suspected that the beautiful woman received 2500 from Japan for every word of the long cipher dispatches which she almost daily sent to Tokio via China.

Immediately before she left Port Arthur was bottled up in Italy with a comfortable fortune, only to be murdered at the hands of an Italian American, who killed her in a fit of jealous rage because she who had known him in former years declared that her love for him was dead.

BOURSE GAZETTE HAS REPORT OF BATTLE

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 6.—A dispatch to the Bourse Gazette from Liao-ping another great battle has been fought in the neighborhood of Houtsiatze on the railroad about forty miles west of Liao Yang in which the Japanese losses are estimated to have been from 10,000 to 15,000 and the Russian losses insignificant.

The dispatch to the Bourse Gazette, which is dated Thursday evening, says: "There has been fierce fighting Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The Japanese made a vigorous attack on the center of the Russian position at Houtsiatze. The enemy was fifty-four battalions strong, thirty-three of which were regular troops and the balance reserve men. General Kuroki employed the reserve men in the attack, while the regulars carried out feints to distract the Russians. The reserve men attacked with desperation. Their ranks were decimated by the Russian fire each time they advanced, but vacancies were quickly filled up with fresh men. The Russians ultimately slowly retired to a suitable position, where they inflicted great losses of life. The Japanese losses are estimated at 10,000 to 15,000 men. The Russian losses were comparatively insignificant."

KUROPATKIN TELLS OF JAP ADVANCE

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 6.—General Kuropatkin reports that the Japanese advanced ten miles north of Hai Cheng Thursday and that they also are advancing in considerable force from Puhai (Kutzia) on the Russian's eastern flank. The Japanese are concentrated in the neighborhood of Hulingou and in considerable force the Japanese at Houtsiatze and Sikseyan crossed the right bank of the Taitse river, but were driven back.

PART OF CARGO HAS BEEN CONFISCATED

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 6.—Russia has communicated to the United States the decision of the Vladivostok prize court of Aug. 4 in the case of the Portland and Asiatic line steamer Arabia captured by the cruiser Gromobol of the Vladivostok squadron July 22, confiscating such part of the cargo as was consigned to Japanese ports. The prize court is carefully considering the objection raised abroad in regard to Russia's list of contraband, but no decision has been reached.

DO NOT BELIEVE IT

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 6.—The report of the fall of Port Arthur was received from Nagasaki and does not obtain greater credence at the admiralty and war office here than previous telegrams on the same subject.

A COLLISION IN THE CHICAGO SUBWAY

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 6.—Apparently through gross carelessness of a motorist, thirteen persons were injured, seven of them seriously, that they had to be taken to the hospital.

Two electric cars closely following each other on South Clark street came into collision in the Fifteenth street subway. It is supposed that the forward car slackened speed and the motorist on the car following did not notice it in time to avoid the collision. The compact crushed the rear platform of the forward car and the front vestibule of the rear car. The passengers were thrown violently from their seats, and beside being injured, many of them were cut by flying glass.

SATOLLI RETURNS TO ITALY

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Among the passengers booked on the outgoing steamships for Europe today is Cardinal Satolli, formerly the apostolic delegate at Washington and now the prefect of the congregation of studies.

Cardinal Satolli arrived in this country some five or six weeks ago, his visit, it is said, being due to a special mission with which he was intrusted by the pope. The nature of this mission remains unknown to the general public. If the cardinal came to America to investigate or settle the various church questions which have divided the American hierarchy for some years the fact has not become publicly known. It is certain, however, that he returns to the Vatican with a thorough knowledge of the situation here as a result of his interviews with Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Quigley, Archbishop Ireland and other leading prelates of the Roman Catholic church in America.

A WRESTLING MATCH

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 6.—In the wrestling match held here between Golch of Iowa and McLeod, Nanaimo, this country, for the championship of America, Golch defeated McLeod, getting two falls out of three. The first fall was about twenty-four minutes by a half Nelson and croch, McLeod winning. The second fall went to Golch by a half Nelson and the third also went to Golch, through a half Nelson and croch.

TORPEDO FOR PRESIDENT

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 6.—President Orandez, while driving with his family today, had a narrow escape from death, some person unknown exploding a hidden torpedo alongside of his carriage. Luckily the force of the explosion was downward and no one was hurt.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 6.—Charles Lewis of San Antonio, a consumptive, this afternoon attempted suicide in the rear of a saloon, slashing his throat with a knife. The prompt interference of bystanders was all that saved him. He will recover. Despondency over his condition caused the rash act.

THE RUN HAS CEASED

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—This afternoon the run on the bank had almost ceased, hardly a dozen persons being at the paying tellers' windows.

IT IS A CRISIS

Sultan of Turkey Is to Feel Mailed Fist of Uncle Sam Unless He Guarantees Protection to Americans

FLEET SAILS MONDAY

Will Reach Smyrna Wednesday and the Admiral Will Communicate With Minister Leishman—It May Be Necessary to Seize Turkish Port

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—There is no longer any doubt that the sultan of Turkey is again to feel the mailed fist of Uncle Sam.

The European squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral Jewett, at the Ville Francaise, is under orders to sail to Smyrna as soon as possible. The work of coaling his fleet began today and will continue tomorrow. It is expected that the fleet will start Monday and reach its destination Wednesday. This is the information that came from the navy department today, corroborating in every detail previous dispatches presenting the crisis which has been developed between the United States and the sultan of Turkey.

The United States government considers the repeated refusal of the sultan to take up the questions of indemnity and discrimination against American subjects to be more than an unfriendly act. Rear Admiral Jewett has a fairly strong fleet, the Olympia, his flagship; the Baltimore and the Cleveland. While it is not expected that Turkish ports will be seized, it is not among the impossibilities. Admiral Jewett will not lack for aid.

Rear Admiral Barker's battleship squadron has been ordered home when it was thought that the sultan had at least yielded to the imperative demands of the government. He is nearing Gibraltar. When he reaches there he will find awaiting him instructions to hold his fleet in readiness for departure for Smyrna. It is believed that the appearance of the cruiser squadron at Smyrna will so impress the sultan that he will at once take up for adjustment the serious questions that have been pressing for a year or more. Should he not do so the port is likely to be seized and held until every question is settled.

Possibilities of serious complications exist in this situation. War with Turkey might involve the United States in conflict with Great Britain, Russia, Germany and Austria, each of which is directly interested in maintaining the integrity of the Ottoman empire. For this reason Rear Admiral Jewett has been instructed to act firmly, but with the greatest caution and to keep in constant and frequent communication with the government at Washington.

It is understood he will proceed to the Eastern Mediterranean, somewhere near the Black Sea. The destination of the fleet is Smyrna. This place is selected because it will afford direct cable communication with Washington and only three hundred miles distant from Constantinople. The trip will probably be made in three days, and when he arrives there Admiral Jewett will himself communicate with Minister Leishman.

SALARIES TO INSPECTORS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The department of commerce and labor today announced the salaries of local inspectors of hulls and local inspectors of boilers for the ensuing year, which began July 1.

There were adjustments as follows: Twelve hundred dollars for the inspection in the district of Memphis, Tenn., and Galveston, Texas; $1,800 a year for inspectors of the districts of St. Louis, Mo.; $2,250 a year for inspectors in the district of New Orleans, La.

CONSUL IS ATTACKED BY MOB

United States Representative Is Injured and Flees to British Legation for Safety

ANTI-REYES MEN RIOTERS

They Blame Recently Elected President for Failure to Get a Large Sum for the Loss of Panama

PANAMA, Aug. 6.—A report has reached here that a mob yesterday attacked the United States consulate at Bogota, Columbia, and injured Alaban Snyder, the United States consul general. The report states that Mr. Snyder was only saved from serious injury by the prompt action of the Bogota authorities, who sent a guard of soldiers to protect him. The report has caused a sensation here and further details are eagerly awaited.

PANAMA, Aug. 6.—Columbia is in a state of revolution, if the accounts which have reached here are to be believed and serious rioting is taking place in Bogota.

A stormy demonstration is reported to have been followed by an attack upon the United States consulate in which Consul General Alaban G. Snyder was injured and he and his official staff, together with such Americans as were in the city, have been compelled to take refuge in the British consulate. Little information can be secured here as all telegraph lines leading into Colombia are in the hands of the Colombian officials who have established a severe censorship. The result is that wild rumors are current here which it is impossible to confirm.

According to the rumors which seem to be well founded, the Colombia congress met a few days ago and it then became known that a large majority of the members were disposed to annul the recent election by which General Reyes was elevated to the presidency. So soon as the session was opened reports were taken by the anti-Reyes followers to declare the election null and void. General Reyes has been unpopular with the leaders of his party since his return from Washington, he being blamed for Colombia not securing a large sum of money for the loss of Panama. When he arrived in Bogota he was greeted by a stormy street demonstration but throughout he preserved his equanimity and it was thought that he would be able to rally all of the disgruntled politicians to his banner. He failed, however, to quell the discontent among the old line politicians although the rank and file made him their idol.

When it became known that an attempt was to be made to depose him he rallied to his support many of the army chiefs with the result that he was enabled to enforce his ruling. The attack on the American consulate is said to have precipitated the trouble and after the Americans had taken refuge

IS PASSING AWAY

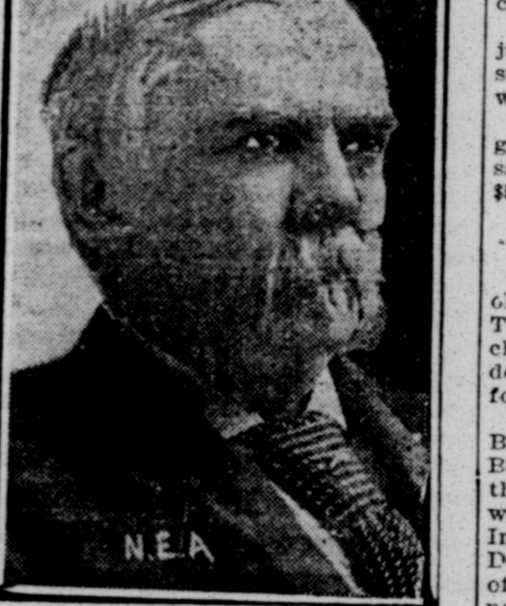

George Graham Vest, Former Senator From Missouri, Is Gradually Sinking—Doctor Gives No Hope

BUT A FEW HOURS MORE

He Was Known as the Little Giant in the Senate—Lived Simple Life and Its Close Finds Him Poor Man—Was a Statesman of Strength

SWEET SPRINGS, Mo., Aug. 6.—Dr. Jarvis, attending Senator Vest, has at last abandoned hope of prolonging the life of the distinguished patient and says the senator will pass away within twenty-four hours. For several days he has gradually been sinking into a stupor. He is no longer able to articulate and has not taken nourishment during the day. The physician's bulletin issued at 9 o'clock tonight gave his temperature as normal, pulse 124, respiration 24.

Senator Vest was born at Frankfort,

GEO. GRAHAM VEST

Ky., Dec. 6, 1820, and graduated from Central college, Kentucky, in 1848. He completed his law course at the Transylvania university in 1853, and moved to Missouri the same year. He was in the Missouri senate when the war broke out. He went with the south and became a Confederate senator.

He was elected to the United States senate in 1879, and served until December, 1903, when, on account of failing health, he retired to his daughter's home, at St. Louis. He made the same gallant fight for life that has always marked his battles in public, but odds were against him. He was small in stature, slow and deliberate in movement, and never lost his temper. In the senate he was regarded with veneration, and whenever he arose to speak every member hurried to his place to listen. He had as many republican friends as democrats, for all recognized that Vest was of the type of statesman who would rather die than do the slightest dishonorable act.

Vest was always old-fashioned in his ideas and dress. He lived simply and modestly. He was addicted to old-style frock coats, broad slouch hats and long ties. His linen was aggressively immaculate and his ties invariably black.

During the last year he had been sinking rapidly. All day long he sat in his great leather chair, his pallid face on his breast, his ashenshades folded in his lap. Once in a while his great mind—once Titanic in its power—flashed up again for a moment, only to fade again.

In Washington, as in his home state, he will always be remembered as the "Little Giant," a term given him by loving friends who admired his prowess when, in the heyday of his health and strength, he made campaign speeches all over Missouri.

To the old-time southern element in Missouri, to which Vest always looked for support, he is as dear as ever. The ties that bound them together when they suffered for the "lost cause" have never been broken. During the past twenty years he has been so much away from his state that he was out of touch with the element now dominating the state. He belonged to the old-timers, he cared but little for the others and he viewed with complacency the angry battles fought by unworthy men anxious to succeed him.

Vest was the most brilliant member of the famous "Big Four" that has been such a powerful political factor in Missouri for over thirty years. The others are Senator F. M. Cockrell, United States District Judge John F. Phillips and ex-Governor Thomas T. Crittenden.

Vest and Cockrell were Confederates. Phillips and Crittenden Federal officers during the war. When the war was over the famous Drake constitution of Missouri disfranchised Confederates, and Vest and Cockrell, both good lawyers, were unable to practice.

Cockrell became a "silent" partner with Crittenden at Warrensburg, and Vest took a "silent" place in Phillips' office at Sedalia, and they earned a living until the Drake constitution was knocked out.

During the years of association they became great friends, and about 1870 they began to plan for getting something for themselves out of politics. Indicative of their success, it may be stated that since then Vest had twenty-four years as senator, Cockrell will have had thirty years when his term expires, Phillips has been six years in congress, two years supreme court commissioner, four years on the appellate court, and fourteen years federal judge on a life appointment; Crittenden had four years as governor, four years in congress, four years as consul in Mexico and now holds a life appointment in Judge Phillips' court.

Vest and Cockrell had Phillips made judge, and Phillips appointed Crittenden, so the "Big Four" is still operative. Vest was the first to retire.

Their office holding combined aggregates nearly 100 years, and the combined salaries drawn amount to more than $500,000.

WINS A GOLD WATCH

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 6.—Harold B. Bend of St. Paul today won the Trans-Mississippi Golf Association championship in the final of that event, defeating John T. Stewart of Omaha four up and three to play.

It was a thirty-six hole match play. Both men played brilliant golf but Bend's superior putting coupled with the fact that he was more familiar with the course, enabled him to win. In the consolation Warren Dickinson of Des Moines, Ia., beat Walter Fairbanks of Denver one up. C. T. Jeffrey of Minnesota scratch won the handicap event with a score of 75, which is five up on the bogey of the course.

WINS A BOAT RACE

ST. CATHERINES, Ont., Aug. 6.—Constance S. Titus, former champion oarsman, was defeated by Frank B. Greer of East Boston in the final heat of the senior singles in the Canadian annual regatta here today.

This is the second time recently that Greer has beaten the New Yorker, the other defeat being registered in the American championships at the World's Yorker all the way, staying off Titus well known formidable spurt at Titus' finish in good shape. A distance of a little more than ten yards separated the two oarsmen at the finish line.

A STRIKE BREAKER SHOT

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 6.—Negro strikers and strike breakers engaged in a pistol duel in which three were shot about 11 o'clock tonight. The trouble was precipitated by John Willis, a strike breaker, shooting into a crowd of negro strikers. The fire was returned and Willis was placed under arrest, pending investigation. The strikers say Willis had no provocation for shooting.

MONEY FOR THE FAIR

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 6.—John H. Kirby and Louis J. Wortham addressed a mass meeting of the citizens here tonight in the interest of the Texas World's Fair exhibit. A couple of thousand dollars was raised in no time.

CHAMBERLAIN

"Once Upon a Time There Was a Man" in England About Whom People Talked, But He Is Now Forgotten

IS LOSING HIS HOLD

Conservative Candidates Do Not Get the Support of Voters and the Protection Policy Fails to Get Support at the Polls

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Englishmen who have been away for a few months, express amazement on their return at the much smaller place Joseph Chamberlain holds in the public eye. A year ago he was the dominating figure in English politics and almost in Europe. Today Europe has almost forgotten him and in England he is regarded as hopelessly sidetracked from the big current of affairs.

His coming out at once for protection made a tremendous sensation, but though he captured the conservative party machine he could not get the voters. There was no real sentiment in favor of a change. At the critical moment Chamberlain's health broke down. Without a single lieutenant of first-class ability, his campaign went to pieces. Since his return from Egypt he has been unsuccessfully trying to mend the break. But in recent by-elections the conservative candidate would have none of him. Chertsey division was fought on the issue of Chinese labor in South Africa and scarcely a word was said about tariff. In the Oswestry division Chamberlain led the conservative candidate to stand firm and square for protection. All these circumstances were in his favor. The normal conservative majority was a thousand and the majority of the voters were country squires and farmers who are naturally Tories and whose opinions change slowly. Only a few times in recent years did the liberal party put up a candidate to contest this division at all. They regarded it as hopeless. Even in the present canvass the voters did not dare to gather around the carts of the liberal speakers until after dark for fear they would be seen and arouse the anger of the squires. Small farmers were afraid to lend their carriages to the liberal candidates for the same reason. But despite all the pressure Chamberlain and protection the district went liberal by a majority of 325.

Chamberlain is now 68 years old, in falling health, and it looks as if the tide could scarcely turn in his favor in his lifetime.

THE TAX VALUES IN HALL COUNTY

MEMPHIS, Texas, Aug. 6.—The new tax rolls for 1904 have just been completed by Assessor Powell and show a value of $1,739,879, as against $1,838,331 in 1903, yielding a total state and county tax of $1,106,444, against $1,595,744 in 1903. The total value of the county has fallen off about 10 per cent of the year. This can be accounted for in the shrinkage in cattle and cattle values, as the roll shows a loss of over $150,000. There are, however, thrifty signs in the showing. The number of hogs has increased nearly half, the merchandise has increased, the bank values have more than doubled, the money on hand nearly doubled and the credits two and a half times what it was by the last year. Another good sign is that six dogs were rendered as against two the previous year. Hence all around the roll shows a generally improved condition of affairs in the county. The taxes are not high and still the schools are permitted to run fairly good length. The country districts will suffer more this year by the loss in cattle than the Memphis district, as there were but few cattle in the latter, while the increase in banks and merchandise will perhaps increase the funds of this district slightly over last year.

ONE IS DEAD AND TWO INJURED

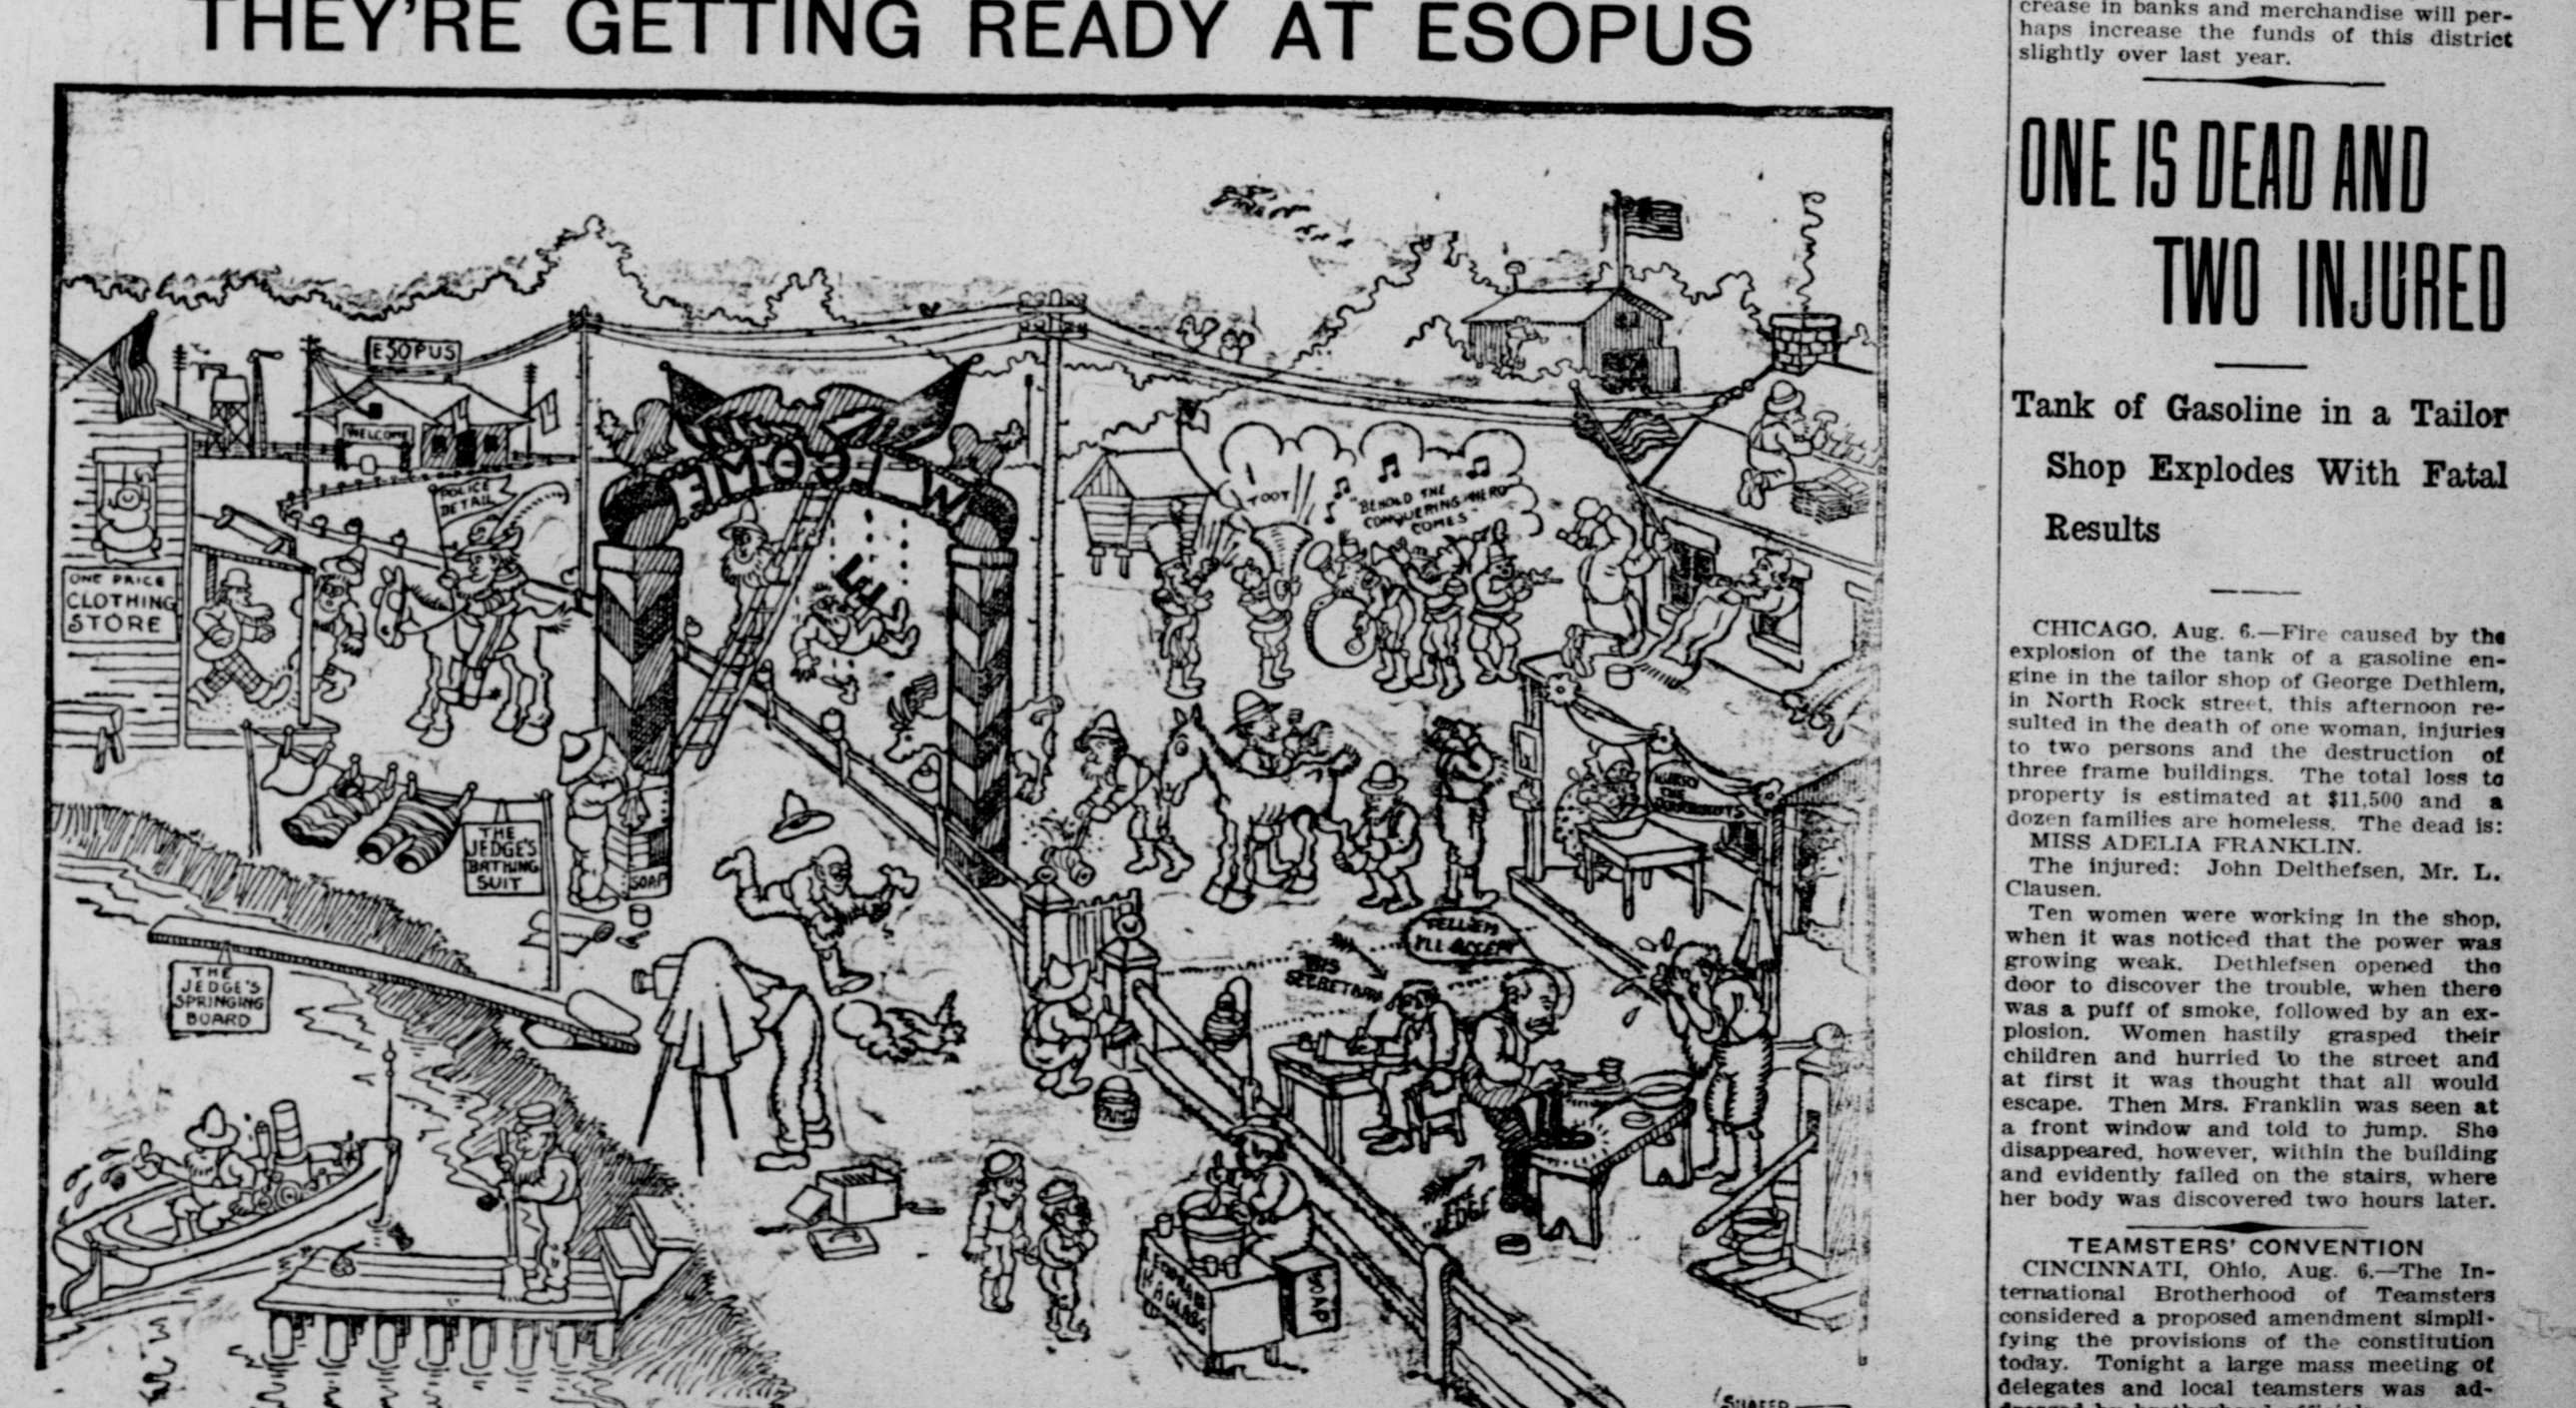

Tank of Gasoline in a Tailor Shop Explodes With Fatal Results

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Fire caused by the explosion of the tank of a gasoline engine in the tailor shop of George Dethlefsen, in North Rock street, this afternoon resulted in the death of one woman, injuries to two persons and the destruction of three frame buildings. The total loss to property is estimated at $115,000 and a dozen families are homeless. The dead is: MISS ADELA FRANKLIN. The injured: John Dethlefsen, Mr. L. Clausen.

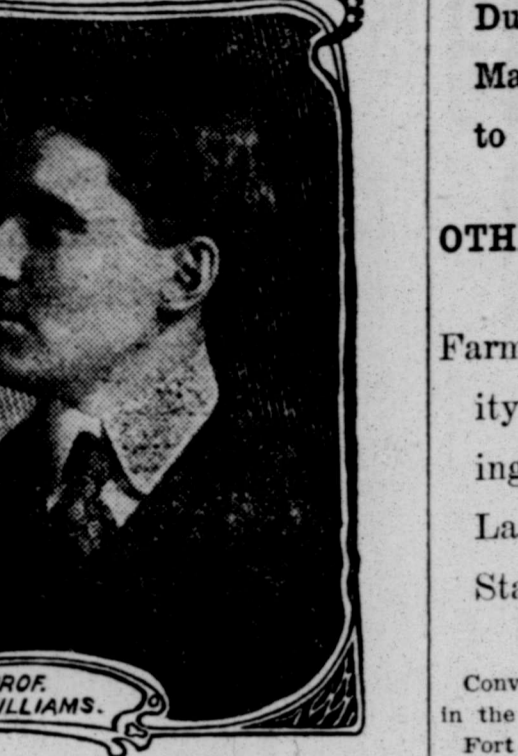

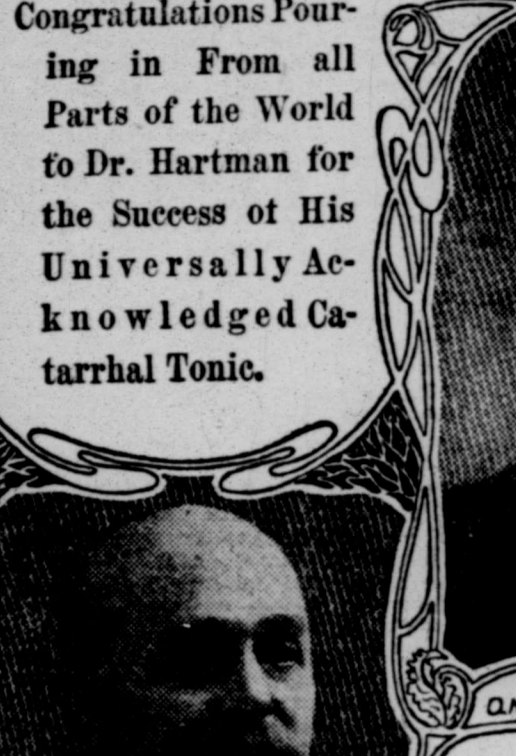

Ten women were working in the shop, when it was noticed that the power was growing weak. Dethlefsen opened the door to discover the trouble, when there was a puff of smoke, followed by an explosion. Women hastily grasped their children and hurried to the street and at first it was thought that all would escape. Then Mrs. Franklin was seen at a front window and told to jump. She disappeared, however, within the building and evidently fell on the stairs, where her body was discovered two hours later.

TEAMSTERS' CONVENTION

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 6.—The International Brotherhood of Teamsters considered a proposed amendment simplifying the provisions of the constitution today. Tonight a large mass meeting of delegates and local teamsters was addressed by brotherhood officials.

PE-RU-NA. CONQUERS DISEASE WHILE DOCTORS DISAGREE.

Congratulations Pouring in From all Parts of the World to Dr. Hartman for the Success of His Universally Acknowledged Catarrhal Tonic.

Mr. Henry E. Moss, No. 73 Congress St., Troy, N. Y., Deputy Grand Chief Ranger Foresters of America, writes: "Two years ago I suffered with a kidney trouble. I was a physical wreck, and life looked very gloomy, but Peruna came to my relief and made a new man of me, and now life looks very different and I gladly testify to the merits of Peruna, hoping that some one who is afflicted will read this and be cured."—Henry E. Moss.

A person who has chronic catarrhal difficulties and has not given Peruna a fair trial is unfortunate indeed. To be afflicted with chronic catarrh and not try Peruna is as foolish as to have the old fashioned chills and fever and refuse to try quinine, or to have a broken bone and not allow the doctor to set it. Peruna has come to be so universally recognized as a specific cure for catarrhal affections, acute or chronic, that it is amazing that any one should continue to suffer on with such a persistent malady, neglecting to take a remedy that is sure.

A Diplomat's Letter. Dr. W. Godfrey Hunter, U. S. Minister from Guatemala, ex-member of Congress from Kentucky, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes: "I am fully satisfied that your Peruna is an efficacious remedy for catarrh, as I and many of my friends have been benefited by its use."—W. G. Hunter, M. D.

Mr. George Livingston, a prominent architect and builder of Los Angeles, Cal., writes from the Census Office Building, Washington, D. C., as follows: "I do not hesitate when I see a friend or acquaintance suffering from a cold that is stubborn and threatening to become chronic, to recommend Peruna. It relieved me from a long and distressing catarrhal trouble and brought back the strength the disease had taken away. I recommend it as a cure and a tonic that cannot be surpassed."—Mr. George Livingston.

A Congressman Praises Pe-ru-na. Hon. G. R. Brown, Martinville, Va., ex-member of Congress, Fifth District, 50th Congress, writes: "I cheerfully give my indorsement to your Peruna as a cure for catarrh. Its beneficial results have been so fully demonstrated that its use is essential to all persons suffering from that disease."—Hon. G. R. Brown.

Prof. O. N. Williams, Professor of Music, Vocal and Instrumental, Merango, Iowa, writes: "With my manifold duties, I am often compelled to resort to medicine in order to keep up my health and strength, and of the many remedies I have taken all have been found wanting except Peruna, and that seems to fit the requirements of my case exactly. A deranged liver and bad stomach, combined with loss of appetite and sleep, will soon tell on any system, and mine was no exception to the rule. "However, Peruna soon proved to me that it was the medicine and put me on my feet in a fortnight. I am enthusiastic in its praise."—Prof. O. N. Williams.

The day when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains true to-day of most proprietary medicines. But Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low stations, that no one hesitates to see his name in print recommending Peruna.

A free book on catarrhal ailments, written by Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, will be sent by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio. All correspondence held strictly confidential.

CONVENTIONS

Will Be Three in This City During Coming Week and Many Visitors Will Be Here to Attend Them

OTHERS WILL BE LATER

Farmers, Populists and Majority Rule Are to Be Here During the Next Six Days and Later Come the Republican State Affair

Convention week of a convention month in the convention city.

Fort Worth is the natural home of state gatherings and is so used to such assemblages that the mere occurrence of one or two a week causes no unusual flutter in her business and social pulse. But three conventions in one week has excited even her convention acclimated citizens.

First of all the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative union with over a thousand delegates and 100,000 banded agriculturists throughout the state will open a session in the city hall Tuesday morning. On the same day the Texas Non-Partisan Federation for Majority Rule will open its sessions at the Labor Temple and upon the day following the state populist convention will convene at the court house.

Following these later in the month will be the republican state convention, the sessions of which will be held in the city hall and the Confederate Veterans' reunion at the park outside the city.

FARMERS' CONVENTION

On August 9 and for three days there will be held one of the most important gatherings of farmers from many sections of the state ever assembled in Texas. It will be the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative association, composed of active farmers, those who till the soil and make farming a practical business.

Already quite a number of the officers and members of the executive committee have arrived and have headquarters in the Mansion hotel, where a suite of rooms has been fitted up for the comfort of the officials.

There are at the Mansion the following officers: C. W. Adams, president; J. B. Morris of Point, ex-president; C. M. Compton of Pittsburg, lecturer; J. M. Mallett of Cleburne, chaplain; F. W. Davis of Gainesville, conductor; R. I. Templeton of Pilot Point, doorkeeper, and Virgil Rogers of Henderson, executive committee man. All these latter gentlemen will be here by the time the convention proper opens.

President Murray was seen by The Telegram yesterday afternoon at Kingston, leaving his hotel for a jaunt over the city, and said, in response to a question as to the object of the organization, that it was primarily to benefit the farmers all over the state—that is if they be members of the association; to teach them the verification of crops, the growings of crops and the proper and best methods for marketing them when they are raised. In fact, the objects of the association is to acquaint its members with the better methods of farming in a general way.

"You can say that the organization is strictly non-political and has nothing to do with politics in any shape," said President Murray when parting company with The Telegram representative. It is expected that at least 200 delegates will be in attendance on the Fort Worth meeting, possibly more. By Sunday night the greater part of the delegates will have arrived.

Judge Eugene Williams of Waco will present to the convention a cotton warehouse system and is sanguine of its adoption. Badges of the organization have been adopted and are expected to be distributed freely during the convention. Stump Ashby, the noted orator, is scheduled to address one of the sessions.

MAJORITY RULE CONVENTION

The Majority Rule convention will be composed of members of all parties who desire to participate, an invitation having been extended to all persons believing in a strict majority rule by means of an initiative and optional referendum vote.

A special request has been made for the attendance of delegates from labor organizations and for members of the majority rule committee of the Texas State Federation of Labor. Candidates for the legislative body have also been sent to attend the sessions.

John R. Spencer, chairman of the federation, and the secretary, R. C. Johnson, will be present.

FEEL RIGHT

When You Feel Right You know one always feels "very fit" when the head and nerves swing along peacefully and with that certain sense of power that is unmistakable.

But when overwork or anxiety breaks down the soft gray matter in the brain and nerve cells (anxiety will do it quicker than overwork) faster than the food you have been using replaces it, then to save yourself from that horror of darkness, nervous prostration, you must change food and take on some sure builder. That's the mission of Grape-Nuts, made of the selected parts of Wheat and Barley containing the natural Phosphate of Potash which combines with Albumen in the human body and makes the soft gray filling of the brain and nerve centers.

Another thing to be considered is that Grape-Nuts is "processed" in making and the starchy parts converted into a form of sugar, exactly as the process of digestion in the body. So Grape-Nuts has really passed the first act of digestion and therefore the food is quickly assimilated in the most perfect manner by babe or athlete.

POPULIST CONVENTION

The populists who will probably hold their sessions in the court house, have elected delegates from all sections of the state. Many of the delegations, including that from this county, have announced in favor of putting a full state ticket in the field, and an effort to do so will be made at the convention. This convention, which convenes on Wednesday, is expected to remain in session only upon that day.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the gathering is as follows: Messrs. E. O. Moodie, E. B. Daggett, T. O. Evans, H. T. Musick. The Tarrant county delegation to the convention has been named as follows: H. S. P. Ashby, Abe Harris, T. O. Evans, Sam Evans, J. E. Martin, E. B. Daggett, S. O. Moodie, Dan Peeler, W. Wellens, F. W. Yates, D. H. Hightower, F. V. Evans, H. T. Musick.

STATE REPUBLICANS

The State republican convention is to be held here August 22, and from what can be learned now the attendance will be very large and the proceedings intensely interesting, as there is to be quite a lively fight for the chairmanship of the state. Cecil A. Lyon of Grayson county, who is national chairman from Texas, said to be the strongest man for the place, but Lowden of Abilene and McGreor of Houston are in the race and have considerable backing. However, there seems to be a belief that Lyon will be elected. His friends claim that he already has a large vote while there are some eighty delegates instructed for other candidates, and the remainder will come to the convention uninstructed.

Another feature of the convention which will develop much interest is as to whether the republicans should put out a state ticket. The consensus of opinion is that a state ticket should be named and a fight made to land at least a portion of it by the assistance of the populists, which would mean a fusion. There are republicans here who object to a coalition with the pops or anyone else, for that matter, preferring to either sink or swim by themselves.

Leading republicans are now casting about for available timber to head the ticket. Whoever is talked of for gubernatorial honors on the republican ticket is being kept dark for the present at least.

Fusion with the populists is also being discussed.

CONFEDERATE REUNION

The Confederate reunion to be held later in the month is expected to prove the center of attraction to an even larger gathering of the old soldiers than attended the first reunion held last year.

As upon that occasion the affair will be held at the Confederate park and will remain in session from August 22 to August 27.

An unusually interesting program is being prepared for the reunion, and invitations for addresses have been sent to Congressmen Sheppard of Texas, Governor Lanham, Senators Culberson and Bailey, Judge E. D. Barr, president of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, Colonel E. P. Turner of Dallas has been appointed chapman general on the staff of the Confederate Park association, and it will be his duty throughout the reunion to see that the ladies are properly entertained.

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN LEAGUE

The following call has been issued for a meeting in Fort Worth: To the Officers, Members and Friends of the Republican League of Texas:

The regular bi-ennial session of the national republican league of the United States has been called to meet in the city of Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 5 and 6, 1904, and Texas is entitled to send to this convention six delegates from the state at large and four from each congressional district, and a meeting of the Texas republican state league is hereby called to meet in the city of Fort Worth at 10 o'clock a. m. August 23, 1904 (the first day of the regular state convention), for the purpose of electing delegates to the Indianapolis convention, new officers for the state league and transacting such other business as may be deemed necessary.

We would urge upon the officers, members and friends of the league in the various congressional districts, to get together at once and select their delegates to the state league convention at Fort Worth. Send the names of all those selected and those that will go to Indianapolis, to the state secretary and write him that you will be at Fort Worth.

Over a Thousand Dollars Has Been Collected of the Fund to Provide a Market for the Farmers

Over a thousand dollars has now been collected by the committee appointed to gather funds looking to the improvement of the city as a cotton market.

W. T. Ladd, one of the committee, reported yesterday that they were meeting with flattering success. "Already the subscriptions amount to $1,075 after having been out only five hours."

The committee reports that they find the merchants in all lines, both large and small, of the accord that this is the one thing most needed by the city.

The committee also feels gratified at the interest being taken and especially the willingness of each one in subscribing.

TAKES HER TRUNK LEAVES CHILD AND HUSBAND. Pathetic Scene at the Union Station When a Wife and Mother Go Back Home

Maternal love is supposed to be the strongest affection known, and may even be noticed in animals. A woman's love for clothes is also a well established fact. At the union station yesterday morning it was demonstrated that a woman can care more for the latter of the two—the clothes.

A husband and wife were at the station preparatory to a separation, had had a domestic fisticuff and now the wife was going home to "mother" in Greenville, Texas. The woman had a boy baby and a trunk; in the trunk were the woman's clothes and wearing apparel, in the child were centered her hope and joy, yet she calmly boarded the train leaving the child with her deserted spouse.

The scene was a lively one from start to finish, for the husband not only wanted the child but the trunk in the bargain. In vain he besought the baggage master to refuse to check his wife's baggage. In vain he called on Officer Thompson, who was at the station at the time, to stop his wife; in vain he plead with the woman. She was determined—she had the trunk and she was going to "ma," he could keep little James or Joe or whatever the child's name was. She had her ticket and her trunk and they had had a fight, so to say.

A number of persons at the station witnessed the affair, which was highly amusing despite the pathos. With keen interest they watched the family proceedings, expecting every moment to see the wife relent and to witness the usual "grand finale"—kiss and make up. They were disappointed.

THE MAN WAS EVIDENTLY A WORKING man, for he wore the clothes of a laborer and to all appearances had just left home where the trouble originated. When he saw his wife go he seemed to overcome to speak and was hastily taking the child in arms made his way home.

APPENDICITIS IS CAUSED BY ROUGH RIDING. Driver in the Fort Worth Fire Department Is for a Time Disabled Because of an Operation

A most peculiar case has come under the observation of physicians in this city in the case of H. C. Clawson, who was operated on for appendicitis a short time ago by Dr. W. A. Durringer.

Clawson is a foreman at No. 5 station and drives the hose wagon. It is the opinion of physicians that the appendicitis was caused by the jarring motion of the wagon, loosening the abdominal muscles and disturbing the bowels.

The Telegram saw Dr. J. H. McLean in regard to the matter and he stated that several cases had come under his observation when at Bellevue hospital in New York city, where appendicitis was caused in a similar way.

"Anything that tends to disturb the bowels may cause this disease," said Dr. McLean. There are numerous puss germs always in the bowels and anything which disturbs these organs tends to give the germs headway.

"In that way the veriform appendix is inflamed, puss collects and appendicitis results." Mr. Clawson, who was operated on in July, is slowly recovering. At the meeting of the city council Friday night Chief Maddox of the local fire department asked that body to grant Clawson half pay during his illness. The council will take action later. In the meantime doctors are talking of the man's peculiar case. It may not be long until automobilists will be taken down in the same way.

Market Quotations

NORTH FORT WORTH, Aug. 6.—An unusually heavy Saturday supply of cattle was received for the local market today and, notwithstanding the liberal run, the market in spots ruled strong to even higher, compared on basis with Friday's trading.

Before the close of the morning market close around 1,400 cattle had been unloaded and driven in from nearby points. Good cows and steers were in best demand, with sales of common and medium stuff slow and dull, and a practically dead market on calves, more than 400 head being included in the general offering.

Charles E. Hicks of Hicks Meadows topped the cattle market with one load of choice heavy steers of 1,182 pounds average, which sold to the Houston Packing Company at $4.20, shipped to be made this evening. Several loads of good steers, ranging around 900 to 1,050 pounds, sold on an active market at $3.40@3.95.

One load of good killing cows, averaging 1,000 pounds, went at $2.40, with the medium to fair kinds at $1.65@2.15. Most of the heavy consignments of calves were forwarded out, leaving only a few sales to local packers, who bought at prices ranging between $1.65@2.3.

On the cattle market today five straight loads of calves were offered, the total supply exceeding 450 head. The calf market during the first of the week showed a big loss in values, but with Wednesday's improvement in prices was noticeable.

Charles E. Hicks, the well known horse and mule man, and an extensive feeder of cattle, was represented on the market today with a consignment of choice heavy steers, which sold to the Houston Packing Company at $4.20. Mr. Hicks has probably topped the market this year more times than any other individual feeder in the state and his shipments are always backed by good grade and quality.

Today proved an off day with hog shippers, only one car being recorded. On the other hand sheep were better represented, both in quality and receipts, a few decks of the best selling at $3.82 1/2, with the medium kinds around $3.57 1/2.

John F. Lyons, assistant secretary of the Cassidy-Southwestern Commission Company, is in Albany, where he went last week. He is expected home within a few days.

COTTON
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 2 points on August and of 8 to 11 points on later positions, this being barely a response to lower Liverpool cables and generally favorable weather reports. Following the call there was a renewal of short covering in fear of further bull manipulation, and with some support from bullish sources the market rallied a few points, but showed irregularity rather than firmness and toward the middle of the morning ruled quiet and rather easier. Late reports from the south indicated heavy rains in some sections of the belt, but the general situation as a whole was fairly promising. Estimated receipts at the ports today, 500 bales, against 4,652 last year and 4,000 last year. For the week 10,000 bales, against 7,811 last week and 15,431 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans, 72 bales, against 2 last year, and at Houston, 452, against none last year. The market for futures closed quiet and steady, middling 10.45c, middling Gulf, 10.70c; sales, 1,163 bales.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The stock market today was a dull, half-holiday affair, without much interest or significance. A generally firm undertone prevailed and, as a rule, prices were slightly higher. No further announcement was made regarding gold exports and the bank statement was received with indifference. Sugar refining advanced further on the renewed activity of the bull clique. American Cotton Oil rose over 2 per cent on the suggestion of possible dividends as a consequence of a probable bumper cotton crop this year. A little firmness also attached to the Virginia-Carolina Chemical stocks. In the railway list St. Louis and San Francisco issues continued to advance. Pacific coast second preferred rose 2 per cent from its last price, but gamated was firm and steel preferred ruled higher. The market showed an increasing disposition to activity in the late dealings and closed decidedly stronger. Government bonds were unchanged, other bonds were strong.

GRAIN
CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Wheat was erratic today, but the adding volume of trade was much smaller than in the previous session. Prices were irregular and averaged lower, the close showing losses for the day of 3-8c to 5-8c. Corn was also erratic, closing 1-8c to 1-4c lower. Oats lost 1/2c to 5-8c. Weakness in this market was accentuated by heavy offerings from the new crop. Provisions suffered a sharp decline, but recovered somewhat before the close, which showed losses of 1-2c for pork, 1 1/2c for lard and 2 1/2c to 5c for ribs.

Wheat—The market for wheat opened with an excess of offerings, the crowd still laboring under the disappointment of not having the spring wheat crop cut down to the ruinous extent that some of the crop reporters in the northwest had led them to expect. Receipts were again liberal in the southwest, and even the foreign news was of a somewhat bearish character. Liverpool reported futures from 1-3c to 1-4d lower and Manitoba wheat on the spot half pence down. Paris repeated the previous day's quotations. The English visible decreased 5 1/2c, bushels increase compared with 1,718,000 bushels increase the like week of last year. Minneapolis market, after an early break, became very strong again and advanced beyond the price it closed at yesterday. In the meantime the traders here had gotten heavily short and when it became known that the market at the northwest were more emphatic than at any time before as to the seriousness of the rust damage, not only in its effect upon quality but quantity as well, there was a quick rally, and the range of old September was from 97 1/2c to 96 1/4c, after selling as high as 96 3/4c and as low as 95 1-8c.

Corn opened weak in sympathy with the decline in wheat at the same time and the generally favorable character of the weather. Great sensitiveness existed, however. There were plenty of buyers on the early decline and when it turned upward there were more and sufficient to ward the price back to where it was at the close of the previous session. September sold from 51 1/2c to 52 3-8c, closing at 52 1-8c. The highest for December was 45 5-8c, the lowest 45 1-8c. The close was 4 1/2c@5-8c.

Oats acted heavy. The receipts were not liberal and the proportions of them insuring contract too heavy to permit of continuation of bull feeling. September closed at the bottom, after selling as high as 33 7-8c, December sold from 34 1-8c down to 33 5-8c, closing at the latter price.

Rye—An easy tone prevailed in the rye market, speculators holding off on weakness in wheat. September was without trading, closing at 67c sellers and 66c bid. Barley was held quiet, with hardly enough trade to make a market.

Provisions—The provision market was steady around the opening by the firmness of the hogs reported from the yards. There was a lot of products for sale, however, by brokers that usually act as Cudahy, and as the market yielded from that selling others took a hand in the same direction.

Pork—Flax seed was dull and quiet with no trades reported. Timothy seed unchanged and without features.

DIRECTRESS ST. MARY'S ACADEMY

(Original.)

A boy of fourteen stood before a tent with a bucket of water in his hand that he had just brought from the stream below. He was much excited. A woman came out of the tent, and the little fellow said to her: "Mother, there are panther tracks on the trail to the river."

"Sure?" said the woman, paling. "Sure?"

Two little girls came out with frightened faces. They had heard the news and, young as they were, understood it. The Maxcy family were pioneers who had come to the country to settle, but had not yet built their cabin. The father had gone to the nearest county seat to enter the land and would not be back till the following day. The mother and son consulted what they should do. The panther would likely be back again, and there was no certain defense. True, little Tom Maxcy had his rifle and for a boy was a fair shot, but supposing the panther should come upon them suddenly or that Tom should miss him? In that case the family would be at the brute's mercy. The little girls watched their mother's face and, seeing the anxiety depicted there, clung to her skirts.

Since there were no neighbors to help, there was nothing to do but make the only preparation possible—that is, gather wood for the purpose of building a fire. Tom got his rifle in good shape, but it was of small size, and his mother feared to have him use it lest its tiny ball would only enrage the panther. Tom worked all the morning gathering wood and spent the afternoon seeing that the pens containing the cattle were secure.

The sun went down, and darkness stole over the land. An awful dread came upon the family as night drew on. Would the panther find another meal and let them alone? They hoped for the best. Tom lighted the fire, which he had laid directly before the tent, and he had driven a forked branch into the ground on which to rest his rifle. The little girls were put to bed, and Tom and his mother kept watch.

There was stillness except the occasional snapping of the fire or the cry of a distant loon. Hour after hour the mother and son sat waiting for the night to pass, and soon after midnight the boy fell asleep. He was awakened by a thud upon the earth a short distance away, as of some heavy animal jumping from a tree. Opening his eyes, he saw terror in his mother's face. She caught his wrist and held it as in the grip of a vise.

"Look!" she cried. Tom, on following the direction of her eyes, saw two glaring balls out in the darkness. Tearing himself away from her, he kicked the burning logs, sending up sparks and flame that illumined the dark figure. He hoped that this would drive it away, but he was disappointed. The panther was doubtless hungry and loath to give up his prey. Tom went to his rifle.

"Mother," he said, "throw a firebrand at him." Tom, on following the direction of her eyes, saw two glaring balls out in the darkness. Tearing himself away from her, he kicked the burning logs, sending up sparks and flame that illumined the dark figure. He hoped that this would drive it away, but he was disappointed. The panther was doubtless hungry and loath to give up his prey. Tom went to his rifle.

But Mrs. Maxcy was not equal to such an act, and Tom, resting the butt of his rifle on the ground, seized a brand and, first waving it over his head, threw it straight at the beast, who shrank away for a time, but it was not long before Tom saw those two glaring eyes again fixed upon him. Again he tried the expedient of tossing a brand, but this time the panther paid but little attention to it.

The realization of the horror threatening them was what paralyzed the mother. One of the blessings of youth is the absence of such realization, which accounts for the absence of fear, and Tom Maxcy was at an age when one doesn't picture dreadful things to come. His faculties were all bent on his work, which was to drive the panther off or kill him. But the beast declined to be driven off. Indeed, Tom noticed a certain undulatory movement of his body, which was stretched flat on the ground, that indicated he was crawling gradually nearer for a spring. Tom seized a last brand—a big one—and threw it with so true an aim that had not the panther dodged it would have struck him, then the boy without waiting to see the result sprang for his rifle. Mrs. Maxcy rushed frantically into the tent and hugged her little girls to her. Their cries seemed to whet the panther's appetite, and Tom saw him rising on his fore paws ready for a spring. The boy's eye was looking down the barrel of his rifle, bringing the two sights in line with the center of the brute's eye. The distance was not great, not more than a dozen yards. He had a rest, and his young heart was beating scarcely more rapidly than usual. He was sure if he fired before the panther sprang he could hit his head and believed he could hit the eye he aimed for. At a moment when the beast was perfectly still and the bead at the muzzle of the rifle in line with the breech sight and the panther's eye Tom pulled the trigger. The animal gave a spring into the air and fell back motionless.

Tom waited to see if he would stir, but as he did not he called to his mother that he had killed the monster, then walked forward to inspect him. When he came near enough to see a stream of blood pouring from the eye he knew surely that he had pierced his brain.

The little marksman vainly endeavored to induce his mother to come and see for herself, but she would not. Neither would she go to sleep with the horrid form lying so near the tent. But it was not long till daylight and the terrible night had passed.

EXHIBIT BRINGS A MAN HERE TO SEE TEXAS

G. G. Gans of Pennsylvania Saw the Star Building and He Came to the State

G. G. Gans of Uniontown, Pa., for many years engaged in the hotel business in various parts of the Keystone state and West Virginia, is in the city registered at the Worth hotel, having been attracted to this city as a direct result of the Texas exhibit at the World's Fair.

To use Mr. Gans' own expression, he was at St. Louis seeing the fair and from the Texas exhibits there decided he wanted to see this state and its resources. Although coming with no definite view of locating at any certain point in the state, Mr. Gans stated last night that he was always on the lookout for good business ventures and would probably spend several days in different parts of the state before returning to Pennsylvania.

Before coming to this city he stopped off at several points in the territory and also spent a day in Chico, Wise county. Mr. Gans has also been looking over several ranch properties in the state and if he does not locate in business permanently he may, nevertheless, take up a cattle ranch in this section.

Since his trip to this state, Mr. Gans is enthusiastic over its prospects and although saying he is not sure of the Alleghenies nevertheless thinks it a beautiful farming country.

Mrs. Gans, who accompanied Mr. Gans on his trip, is also pleased with the state and its people.

Women's Walking Skirts At Manufacturer's Cost

At this writing (Saturday afternoon) there has come to us eighty-six Women's Skirts from a New York manufacturer, whose reputation for making reliable, well-fitting garments is as well established as that of George Washington's and Abraham Lincoln's was for honesty. These Skirts are here at Three Dollars and Ninety-five Cents, because of someone's mistake. Not one of them ever sold for less than Five Dollars heretofore, and the greater part of them have brought Six and Seven Dollars, in the majority of stores where they have been on sale throughout the United States. To our knowledge, not one has ever before been shown in Fort Worth, though they may appear similar to others in pattern and design—yet there's a difference in both the texture of the material and the hang, which any observant person will readily detect. The cloths are wool crash and fancy mohair in light and dark patterns, as well as plain black.

THE STRIKERS LAUGH They Are Drawing a Weekly Benefit From the Union and Say They Are Comfortable and Do Not Intend to Interfere With the Owner

His guards have orders to shoot on sight any one approaching nearer than a furlong from the outer line of defenses around his $2,000,000 Zeigler coal mines.

HOW THE AMEER PUNISHES A THIEF

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The latest from Kabul, Afghanistan, is that the Ameer has refused his brother, Nasrullah, permission to go on a pilgrimage, telling him that he must attend to public business. The Russian frontier office has sent back to Afghanistan, with many friendly assurances Mirza Durwah, who having been deputed by the Ameer to collect revenue at Indral, escaped into Russian territory with his family, taking with him 300,000 rupees ($100,000). The Ameer sent his thanks to the Russian officers concerned and ordered them to be entertained and their escort rewarded. Mirza Durwah and his servants were sent to Cabul. Their eyes were cut out and their ears cut off.

NORTH SIDE AND ROSEN HEIGHTS

Men Who Bought Homes on the Installment Plan Are to Be Allowed Time While on Strike

WASH FURNITURE COMPANY

A number of the men who went out on strike at the packing houses bought homes on the installment plan. These men were considerably alarmed regarding future payments. They were afraid that they would lose the property as the most of them were without any means. A report of the firms handling North Side and Rosen Heights real estate said that as long as the strike was on and the men were unable to meet their obligations that they would not pursue the policy which is being pursued by the real estate dealers certainly redounds to the credit of them all and to say the least the sons of toil are indeed grateful.

G. Remfo of Rosen Heights is sick with typhoid fever.

Mrs. E. A. Hoover has gone to Ohio to visit her parents. Her husband, who has been employed here as an operator for the Cotton Belt, has been transferred to Galveston, which place is to be their future home.

Pipe is being laid from the well near the Rosen power house over the heights territory. This is the first step toward the installation of the elaborate water-works system that Sam Rosen is to build.

It was expected that the wire bridge would have been finished last night and opposed for travel, but the rains of Friday and yesterday so delayed the work that it will yet take several more days to complete the repairs.

Rains of the past week have made this portion of the country a huge mud puddle. As there are but few walks people have to waddle around like so many ducks.

Meetings have been held throughout the week at the Marine school house. Each meeting has been largely attended and the strikers are as enthusiastic as ever.

The sociable that was to have been held at Collier's grove last night was postponed on account of the rain.

A valuable house belonging to John Lee, the market has been largely attended and P. P. Jones is to erect a new business house on Rosen Heights.

Dr. Crenshaw has just had turned over to him by the contractor a neat cottage, which he had built.

SOME ANXIETY OVER RUPTURE WITH ROME

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Considerable anxiety is beginning to be expressed in administrative circles in Paris over the rupture with the Vatican. The authorities, it is said, are not ready to face the consequences, just as they were not prepared when the first phase of the association's law caused the closing schools, hospitals and asylums than could be replaced with any degree of promptness.

Instead of reducing the whole proportionately, it has been decided that five francs shall be knocked off the house tax of tenants for every child under sixteen years, or person over 60 in the household.

Statistics show that from 1801 and 1899 more than two hundred and thirty periodic comets have been observed with precision. Of these, however, there are only fifteen whose return has been actually observed.

THE MONKEY AND A GLASS OF BEER

For the last week a man has been about town with a pet monkey. The monkey for awhile attracted much notice on account of its attentions to a little kitten that it carried about.

Last night the owner visited a Lower Main street saloon and the man proceeded to entertain a crowd that had gathered by giving the monkey beer to drink, which he drank with apparent relish. Soon the effect of the beer on the dumb brute was seen and Mr. Monk went to sleep, probably dreaming of the forests and vines of his native land. When seen at midnight the man was carrying the animal up the main street and Mr. Monk was dead to the world.

FROM PROMINENCE TO A FELON'S CELL

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Once a banker, later a prominent lawyer, promoter of a great state deal and proprietor of a fashionable hotel, and now a convicted criminal, sentenced to a term in jail on a charge of forgery. Such is the record of Paul Knefel, who, after enjoying the respect of his associates for forty years in this city, has resorted to misdeeds which have thirty times caused his indictment, only to serve on an indefinite sentence in the penitentiary. The offenses alleged were the passing of forged checks.

FOR THE VETERANS

Mrs. Moore Murdock Has Arranged for the Mexican War Veterans to Visit World's Fair Next Month

TRANSPORTATION FREE

Texas and Pacific and the Iron Mountain Have Agreed to Give Passes to All the Survivors Who Will Attend—Pullman Car Furnished

Mrs. Moore Murdock, alone and unassisted, has the proud honor of having secured free transportation for the Texas Mexican War Veterans and their wives to the World's Fair during next month, and plans for their going are now being looked after by that lady.

Mrs. Murdock has always been solicitous over the welfare of the Mexican veterans and has never left undone that which would in any way add to their enjoyment. She conceived the idea of getting the old veterans, if possible, to provide transportation. For this purpose she addressed to General Manager Thorne of the Texas and Pacific and a letter was also sent to General Passenger Agent Townsend of the Iron Mountain road, asking them, if possible, to provide transportation. Both responded and gladly placed at their disposal "free rides" to St. Louis for the remnant of Mexican war veterans in this state. There are not over 400, and of this number Mrs. Murdock has hopes of inducing about 100 to go. There will be about twenty or twenty-five of the veterans' wives accompanying their husbands to the World's Fair on this trip.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has also signified its willingness to carry any old veterans east of the Mississippi river to the fair, and an effort is now being made by John A. Hobson of Greensburg, Ky., who is Mrs. Murdock's assistant secretary, through her suggestion, carrying on negotiations to induce the Kentucky roads to follow the generosity of the management of the Texas and Pacific, the Iron Mountain and the Baltimore and Ohio, and it is believed that Mr. Hobson will succeed in his effort.

In addition to all this generosity on the part of the railroads named, Mrs. Murdock has also secured from the Pullman company their agreement to tender the veterans the use of one of the special sleepers from Texas to St. Louis and return, which tender has been kindly accepted.

Letters have been written to most of the roads in the state, asking them to give the veterans and their wives free rides from their homes to either Fort Worth or Dallas, as the point of concentration, prior to the start for St. Louis, and the replies received by Mrs. Murdock indicate that they will gladly comply with the request. "I had a good time and shall try to go every year after this. Many of the settlers remembered me and treated me royally."

The veterans' party, accompanied by Mrs. Murdock, will leave either here or Dallas on September 12 in time to reach St. Louis on the morning of September 14 to attend the opening of the national encampment of the Dames of 1846 in East St. Louis. They will also attend the meeting of the National Association of Mexican War Veterans in East St. Louis on the 15th of September, and on the 16th, which is "Mexico Day" at the World's Fair, the Texas veterans and the members of the Dames' Association will be the guests of the Mexican government.

Probably one of the most interesting meetings of the veterans to be held while in St. Louis will be the reunion of both veterans from this country and those from Mexico—the Texas veterans and the members of the Dames' Association will be the guests of the Mexican government.

A week ago yesterday Mr. Morton was nominated for the place and he received the unqualified endorsement of the congressional committee promising it would lend him its assistance in making the race against the incumbent, Judge McLachlan.

The committee has gone on record pledging to support him and will do all it can to place behind him a united party and in every way aid him in making an aggressive fight.

The committee announced that it considered Mr. Morton one of the strongest of the many men who are ready to serve their party and in every way qualified to fill the position sought.

While a resident of this city Mr. Morton never espoused politics, but occasionally went on the stump in behalf of the democratic party in this county. He comes of good old southern stock, having been born 35 years ago in Fayette county, Alabama. In early boyhood his parents moved to Texas and located in Wise county. Mr. Morton passed most of his boyhood days in Wise and Parker counties. He attended school at Springtown, Parker county and was a schoolmate of Martin W. Littleton, of Brooklyn, who made the great speech nominating Judge Parker for the presidency.

A few years later Mr. Morton came to Fort Worth and became financially embarrassed. He then studied law and was admitted to the bar in this city and subsequently became a law partner of Judge W. R. Bond of the city. His practice was always successful. In December, 1902, he removed to Los Angeles, where it seems that he has made rapid strides up the ladder of fame.

Since locating in Los Angeles, Mr. Morton has been associated with several important criminal cases and in each instance was successful. The tender of the candidacy for congress by the congressional committee was made several days ago, but Mr. Morton withheld his answer until further pressed by the committee, when he finally agreed to accept. Judge Booth of this city yesterday wired him congratulations.

will be headed by George P. Finlay of Austin, president of the Texas Division of the Mexican War Veterans' Association, and among some of the more notable members will be Alfonso Freeman of Weatherford, who has attained the ripe old age of 92 years, and Colonel Abe Harris of Fort Worth, who has always been active in the ranks of the veterans.

Mrs. Murdock says that it is confidently expected that there will be a total of at least 500 old Mexican war veterans from various sections of the United States. There are surviving in this country 5,942 of the old men, who fought for their independence from Mexican bondage.

Mrs. Murdock states that she has received letters from members of the Veterans' Association from many of the foreign countries, among them far-off Hawaii, Belgium, England, Scotland and Alaska. The hope is expressed by the writers that they can be present and many of them may be.

Speaking of the encampment of the Dames of 1846, Mrs. Murdock said last night that there would be present some of the most prominent women of America. She thinks the attendance of delegates will reach as many as 300, possibly more.

Mrs. Murdock has just been made an active member of the Maryland Veterans' Association, as a slight recognition of her valuable assistance in behalf of the Mexican veterans throughout the United States.

It is understood that at the East St. Louis meeting an effort will be made to bring the national association meeting to Texas next year. The car in which the Texas veterans will leave for St. Louis will be appropriately decorated.

INDIANS PASS HERE ON RETURN TRIP

They Have Been to a Reunion at Dublin and Are Now on Their Way to the Fair

Jack Bullvar, chief of the whole tribe of Arapahoe Indians, was in Fort Worth last night. He had with him his squaw and three children, beside Sleeping Bear, a warrior of many years, dressed in the true costume of his forefathers, his squaw and little papoose.

These people have been attending a reunion at Dublin of old settlers and also visiting at Stephenville. They are on their way to St. Louis to the fair, from whence they came by way of their homes in Oklahoma. The government induced them to attend the fair and granted them this trip.

Both of the men were in the late 70s in the government service as scouts and served much of the time in Central and West Texas. That is the reason they went back last week to mingle with their old-time friends, the pale-faces.

Chief Jack made a speech while at the reunion. He is one of the best educated men of all the Indians. He aims to raise his family in the same way and only speaks in the English tongue to his children. When asked about the reunion he said: "I had a good time and shall try to go every year after this. Many of the settlers remembered me and treated me royally."

W. ONA MORTON IS CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

Former Attorney of This City Is Nominee of the Democracy in Los Angeles

W. Ona Morton, formerly of Fort Worth, now a practicing attorney in Los Angeles, is about to break into congress and if the provisional congressional committee of the seventh congressional district of California is any assistance to him, he will probably succeed.

A week ago yesterday Mr. Morton was nominated for the place and he received the unqualified endorsement of the congressional committee promising it would lend him its assistance in making the race against the incumbent, Judge McLachlan.

The committee has gone on record pledging to support him and will do all it can to place behind him a united party and in every way aid him in making an aggressive fight.

The committee announced that it considered Mr. Morton one of the strongest of the many men who are ready to serve their party and in every way qualified to fill the position sought.

While a resident of this city Mr. Morton never espoused politics, but occasionally went on the stump in behalf of the democratic party in this county. He comes of good old southern stock, having been born 35 years ago in Fayette county, Alabama. In early boyhood his parents moved to Texas and located in Wise county. Mr. Morton passed most of his boyhood days in Wise and Parker counties. He attended school at Springtown, Parker county and was a schoolmate of Martin W. Littleton, of Brooklyn, who made the great speech nominating Judge Parker for the presidency.

A few years later Mr. Morton came to Fort Worth and became financially embarrassed. He then studied law and was admitted to the bar in this city and subsequently became a law partner of Judge W. R. Bond of the city. His practice was always successful. In December, 1902, he removed to Los Angeles, where it seems that he has made rapid strides up the ladder of fame.

Since locating in Los Angeles, Mr. Morton has been associated with several important criminal cases and in each instance was successful. The tender of the candidacy for congress by the congressional committee was made several days ago, but Mr. Morton withheld his answer until further pressed by the committee, when he finally agreed to accept. Judge Booth of this city yesterday wired him congratulations.

REAL ESTATE IS DOING WELL IN THIS CITY

Several Deals Have Been Made in the Last Few Days in and About Fort Worth

Real estate deals in the city still continue to hold up strong, and during the last week big sales both in city and rest-of-the-county are reported.

John C. Phelan and wife sold to D. C. Campbell of this city a lot 160x170 feet, on the corner of Ballinger and Presidio streets, Wednesday. The price paid was $12,000.

Another big sale comprising a number of lots in McConnell's addition was made by K. E. Collett to the Home Improvement company. Consideration $10,000.

Farm land in the vicinity of Fort Worth is also selling well. J. M. Warren recently sold to W. E. Payne a 697-acre farm three miles east of the city for $40,000. This is one of the biggest sales of farming land that has been made lately.

The general situation Real estate and building interests were never better in Fort Worth than they are at present. Despite the fact that building material is high, structure after structure continues to go up, which speaks well for the prosperity of the city.

And not only are new buildings going up, but the property holders are improving their old structures. Several buildings throughout town are being enlarged, and new store fronts, show windows and minor improvements are becoming so common as not to be noticeable. Merchants, too, are advertising heavily, which shows a general prosperous condition.

LAUNDRY WORKERS

The question of the organization of the laundry workers of the city is also being agitated, several of the labor leaders having been approached on the subject. This movement, it is learned, is due directly to reduction of wages in some of the laundries of the city, none of which are organized, with the exception of the wagon drivers. No definite steps have been taken as yet in the matter.

COL. R. M. WYNNE
 Discusses Organization of Capital and Labor and Conflict Which Is Going on All Over the Country

gold. I believe organized labor is sometimes unreasonable in its demands, but never as much so as organized and aggregated capital. I know that the working man who toils with his hands, and plans with his brains, produces the wealth of our country, fights her battles in times of war, and pays the taxes to support the government in times of peace. I also know that all our great railroad systems, and, in fact, all other works of material development which place our country in the forefront of the nations of the world, have been fashioned by the brains and wrought by the hands of the toiling masses of America.

A UNION SYMPATHIZER
 Believes the Men Should Get What They Demand and He Counsels Them to Put Down Every Violent Argument—Should Be Orderly

As we travel the public highways upon the wings of steam and electricity and enjoy the blessings, the results of their toil, we are too apt to forget the humble men to whom we owe it all, or at least the greater part. I know that, notwithstanding the man who toils with brain and muscle and brain, has done so much for us in these wonderful developments, capital has reaped and is reaping the rewards, and not always enough of them. This is not right between man and man, or before God and justice, and can never be so regarded until the starless night of the laboring man undoing by the oppression of capital shall have blighted the prospects of this country, and men no longer have the hearts to contend against oppression and shall have sunk into abject slavery.

HOTEL WORTH
 FORT WORTH, TEXAS
 First-Class, Modern, American plan. Conveniently located in business center.
MRS. W. P. HARDWICK, O. P. HANEY, Managers.

To The Telegram: The indications point to an irrepressible conflict between capital and labor, and what must be the final results are questions forced upon the minds of thoughtful men.

The sooner the man who lives by the sweat of his face realizes that the workman's cause is his cause and all act together, will these inequalities in the distribution of the joint acquisition of capital and labor cease. We who are non-combatants, so to speak, in this conflict, though in fact deeply interested, stand by the hands and give our sympathies to the working people in this conflict, while they are contending for their rights, and as long as they act within the scope of the privileges of American citizenship, the citizens of Fort Worth, as largely the cattle raisers of this state gave them a large bonus to locate their packing plants in Fort Worth, and no sooner had they organized and begun operating, did they begin and scheme to organize independent packeries to control the prices of cattle, hogs and sheep so that all went down to the lowest mark, and meat products of every character went up to the highest, and now the great cattle interests of the country are forced to organize independent packeries to save themselves from utter ruin by these packing house trusts, and I am proud that when they attempted to grind the faces of their employees by the same methods of organized oppression that the manhood of this country rebel and show to the world that they are not dumb driven cattle, and it seems to me all good men should bid them God speed in their contest.

DELAWARE HOTEL
 M. D. WATSON, Prop., Fort Worth.

The anthracite coal miners' conflict with the mine owners in the winter of 1903 and the magnitude of the suffering caused by the same is of such recent date, when coupled with the strike now pending by the gold miners at Cripple Creek, Colo., and the conflict between the packhouse trusts and their operators as to impress the thoughtful man with just apprehension for the continued and permanent prosperity of this country, if not indeed the perpetuity of our institutions.

The revolving spectacle presented by the mine owners of Cripple Creek, backed by the governor of that state with armed militia, driving the helpless miners from their homes and families at the point of the bayonet, challenges the just resentment of all patriotic and liberty-loving citizens, and must be recognized as but a forerunner of what this country is suffering at the hands of organized and predatory wealth, once it is permitted to lay its iron hand upon the liberties of the toiling masses of this country. The greed for gold is the most consuming passion which enters the human soul. It seems to dwarf all the nobler impulses of the heart and blights every sense of generous manhood. What more forcible illustration of this absorbing passion than the contest now being waged between the meat trust and their employees, for a difference of the pittance of 1 cent per hour, they permit their poorly paid operatives to leave their employ, and in the blind determination to dominate and dictate, they inflict an irreparable injury on the whole people, all for the sum of 1 cent per hour increase in wages demanded by their employees. Innocent women and children are made to suffer without thought or consideration for a sum so insignificant that their officers and bosses would spend in one night banqueting in honor of their victory.

When or where is this to end? Brave and brave men are seen idly walking the streets with bitterness and despair in their hearts, and on the other hand special armed deputies and employes with deadly revolver, brandishing in open defiance of the law and a proper regard for peace.

As for myself I do most sincerely hope they will accomplish their laudable purpose. Candor compels me to admit, however, that I very much fear they will fail, because of what occurs to me to be the inconsistent action of non-union men in accepting employment from these conditions existing under this strike. It does seem that a moment's reflection would convince them that their acts in so doing, are in effect to reduce in the end the price of labor, and for only temporary employment being themselves, and the cause of labor an irreparable damage. I cannot understand why all men who have to labor with their hands for a living do not join the union or at least act with them, and acting together better their condition.

PURVIS & COLP

There may be honest differences as to the respective rights of the contestants in particular cases, but there surely can be but one mind in the conclusion that the man who toils with his hands does not get a just proportion of the fruits of his labor, and while this condition exists there will not be, there can not be any permanent peace, prosperity or progress. When the end will be no man can know, but one thing is as sure as that night follows the day, in the end the laboring people will triumph, seventy-five millions of people raised in a free country, enjoying the blessings of liberty, culture, education, thought and refinement, will never submit to be enslaved by thirty-five thousand, the estimated number of men who control the wealth of this country.

There is another great danger that is to my mind apparent and that is that the union men and their sympathizers are likely to, in fact have already made the inevitable mistake of resorting to violence, which will bring inevitable defeat, for once violence is in any form resorted to, the strikers lose all sympathy, and in consequence must fail, for it is only by the company of the public, that non-union men can be influenced to refuse employment from the packing house trusts. The union men if they ever hope to succeed must recognize the right of every man in this country to work for whom he pleases, and on what terms he chooses, and the only right they have is to persuade, and convince non-union men that the interests of working people are the same and that when they take the side of the strikers they but injure themselves.

TAKE A PLUNGE IN THE SURF!

ON SATURDAY, AUGUST 23 the excursion of the year will be operated from points north of Temple on the Santa Fe to Galveston.

As a true friend of organized labor let me admonish them to keep perfect order in all their contests, do no violence in act or word to any man or his property, and they will win this fight for right and justice are on their side. I am heartily in favor of all labor organizations, and hope to see the day, and that speedily, when all laboring people shall be completely organized, the farmers as well as the toilers. I can see no hope of release for them in any other way, and in my judgment once thorough organization of the people is effected, the trusts and combines can no longer dictate the price of labor of the fruits of the farm. Organization is the only way to secure concert of action on the part of the laboring people, while the corporations and trusts act as one man, in all matters affecting the common interests, and when the labor people see that they have all the power if once organized for the wheels of commerce cannot move or a spindle turn without their aid; not a grain of produce sold, monopolies must die.

Ask The Santa Fe
 Agent, he knows.
W. S. KEENAN, G. P. A. Galveston

WE need no longer indolge the delusive hope that trusts and monopolies will be destroyed by legislation. They have grown so powerful that they control legislation. The only power that can ever reach them and destroy them is the organization of all the working people in a grand federation. Not by violence and law breaking can they then hope to succeed for every act of law breaking tends to retard the growth of organization, because it destroys the sympathies of that large class of our citizenship, who while they would love to see labor have its just reward fear anarchy and lawlessness. It is only by high and lofty conduct on the part of the laboring people can success be achieved. The ballot, and not the budgeon, by argument, facts and logic our victory come and all be induced to join the mighty organization for self preservation, and not for destruction. God speed that hour is my earnest benediction.

THE SUBSTITUTE FIREMAN IS A BUSY BOY
 He Must Learn the Business Thoroughly Before He Goes on as a Regular Man

Domino playing and story telling are not the only things that a man must learn who aspires to be a fireman, although to the average person the fireman appear to spend more time at the two mentioned accomplishments than at fighting fires.

The fire boys, however, have no "cinch," for though they do spend some of their time in idleness around the stations, their life is a hard one, as any of them will tell you from the young "sub" to the grizzled veteran of many fires.

The "sub," perhaps, has the hardest time of any, for on him together with the difficulty of learning the business, fall all the petty trials always imposed on the great multitude of men who start for the fire entirely forgetting the small matter of clothes.

Chief Maddox of the local department tells of a fellow, who, in the excitement of going to a fire, invariably forgot his shoes, and to remedy the matter finally solved the problem by tying to his big to a string.

Three substitutes are kept on hand by the Fort Worth fire department. These men call up the different stations every morning to see if they are needed, and whenever a man quits or takes a vacation these substitutes are called into service.

A new man, however, can not become efficient by simply knowing up with the company. He must be privately schooled and drilled, and to this end he is put through a regular course of training at specified intervals.

The "sub" is tutored in making hose connections, he is taught to handle the big hose, he must learn to be quick in getting dressed and down the pole. Moreover, he must understand horses, must know how to hitch and unhitch them rapidly; but above all he must have nerve and staying qualities, and be able to race danger without a whimper. As one old veteran rather tersely expressed it, "He must have nerve."

One of the first things that a captain does to a new man is to take him to a big fire to test these qualities. The first big fire that occurs the "sub" is forced into the thick of it, and even if his eye brows are signed or if he chokes with the heat and smoke, he must not flinch or his future as a fireman is blasted.

After a year or so of this hard life, trial and testing, the sub becomes a full-fledged, blue-flannel shirted fireman. Then if he sits at his ease at the station house, it is because he knows his business and has been through the course from start to finish.

HE IS HELD UP

Two Negroes Attack Pete Anderson Early in Night and Wound Him Severely, Taking all the Money He Has

HE GIVES A CHASE

Pursues the Negro Who Gets His Money and Claims to Have Recovered All of It But a Few Dollars—Badly Cut and Has Fractured Arm

"Well, I got the coin back, anyway," were the first words he said as he drew from his pocket $95 in currency and $3 in silver.

Anderson, however, did not give up, and despite his injuries gave chase. He pursued the negro with the money down Throckmorton street and after a hard chase through a wagon yard on Fifteenth street finally overtook and knocked him down, getting back $98 of the money.

After this terrible ordeal Anderson made his way to Pangburn's drug store in search of medical attention.

As the physician worked on him, though in a dazed condition, the man did not murmur, although the fracture of his arm was a compound one.

Persons hearing Anderson's story of how with a broken arm he pursued and got the money back were inclined to doubt the truth of the statement, and were induced to believe that the man was out of his head as a result of too great excitement and physical strain.

Dr. C. O. Harper, however, stated that Anderson was known to him and that the story could be relied upon.

"I have treated his brother, Jim Anderson at the Eagle Bakery and known this man to be his brother," Anderson stated that he was employed at the Fort Worth Furniture factory.

About 9:45, nearly an hour before Anderson walked into Pangburn's drug store, cries of "robbery" were heard in front of the Catholic church.

Police headquarters were notified and Officer George in company with a Telegram reporter went to investigate the matter.

Persons at the Fort Worth Telephone company stated that a man was calling for the police, but that they did not know what the trouble was.

Fifty-five minutes later Anderson told his story, stating that he was called by the police when first attacked but no one responded, he pursued the thieves alone.

first night the new operator occupied the office there, a crowd congregated on the outside, and a rock was thrown through the window, hitting the operator on the chin, and making a very ugly wound. However, he was not seriously hurt.

Mr. McDowell further stated that the Katy had made an increase of about $6,000 in its pay roll last December, and offered $5,000 more at the conference previous to the strike, but the employees wanted an increase amounting to $15,000, taking into consideration time, rules and actual increase in wages.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Leveritt of Stephenville, Texas, Pass Through Here En Route to Their Home

Mr. Leveritt is a farmer of the Stephenville community and with his good wife, the aged couple being seventy-two and three years respectively, started for a trip back to the old home, but the wreck to the Frisco's Meteor Thursday at Vinita, I. T., caused them to change their plans, and return home.

When seen last night and asked concerning the accident Mr. Leveritt told the following story: "We left home last Wednesday to go to Huntsville by way of Memphis for a visit to our old home. We never dreamed of an accident. As we neared Vinita suddenly and without any warning at all we found ourselves in a heap in a ditch, the coach, the first chair car of the train, lying on its side. Of course everyone in the car, myself and wife included, could hardly realize what had happened.

When the coach turned over, confusion prevailed. People were hurt and some very badly. My wife's face was full of streaming blood and mine was bruised and torn in several places. She also had her limbs squeezed in some manner. Women in the car started to scream. Some fainted and periboniam was rejected.

"The tender of the engine, the baggage and mail coaches and the first and second chair cars were turned on their sides. People in these coaches were helpless, many of whom were seriously hurt. Men from the sleeper and rear coaches came forward and with the train crew started to rescue the passengers imprisoned in the coaches. Windows had to be broken to get them out.

The railway company had men sent to the nearest telegraph station and telegraph for medical assistance. This came to us from Vinita. Everyone injured was taken care of and then taken to the company hospital at Springfield, Mo. My wife and I were taken there. We have no complaint to make of our treatment for we were given the best of attention possible by company representatives. Nearly thirty were hurt and the scenes just after the wreck are indescribable, but fortunately none were so seriously hurt that they will die.

"We were undoubtedly a very lucky lot of people. The accident was an unavoidable one and no one can be blamed. It was probably caused by the giving of a rail.

The couple returned to Stephenville on the 2 o'clock Frisco this morning grateful that they are still alive and not wishing to again have a similar experience.

SURGEONS ARE TO DEMONSTRATE A NEW SYSTEM

New Yorkers Are to Be Here Today and Will Show Use of Cocaine in Operations, at St. Joseph's Infirmary

Visitors to the city today will be Dr. J. A. Bodine and Dr. Kent of the New York Polyclinic College, and during their stay here there will be a demonstration of an improved method in surgery, to which the physicians of the city will be invited.

These surgeons, who are among the best in New York City, have abandoned the use of anesthetics which produce unconsciousness in the patient and now use cocaine at the point of operation, leaving the patient in possession of all his faculties during the time he is on the operating table.

While in the city the two visiting physicians will be guests at the residence of Dr. R. Chambers, city physician of Fort Worth, and the physicians of the city are invited to attend it.

train service permitting, he would make a visit to the villa Sunday. Presumably the entire presidential situation will be thoroughly discussed and both callers are expected to scan Judge Parker's letter of acceptance, which is now completed. It is likely also that the Lamont gubernatorial boom will be broached though Judge Parker will not commit himself to his guest to this or any other possibility.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Chairman Taggart of the democratic national committee called on Senator Gorman early today and then visited several buildings which are under consideration for headquarters in this city. Arrangements are completed for assembling the Parker notification committee in this city next Tuesday for the trip to Esopus Wednesday morning.

NO NEGROES TO BE NEAR THE GEORGIANS

Governor Merrel Says Would Not Let Them Leave the State if Races Mixed

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 6.—"There will be no negro soldiers in camp at Manassas, at least there will be none near where the Georgia troops are camped."

The statement was made by Governor Terrell in answer to the question if there would be any negro troops in the same brigade with the Georgia soldiers. For some reason or other, nobody knows why, the report was started several days ago that there would be a negro regiment alongside of the Georgia soldiers.

As soon as the report became circulated many of the soldiers who had agreed to go to Virginia began to notify their commanding officers that there would be very few men in their camp if such a state of affairs was allowed.

Governor Terrell took the matter up with the authorities at Washington and has received the information that there will be only one negro command at the encampment, and that will be in the Connecticut brigade, and no where near the Georgians.

"If any negroes were to be camped near our boys I would not give them permission to leave the State. I won't stand for anything like that. The Georgia men must be camped with white soldiers or they do not leave this state."

The governor also made that statement about the matter. It is therefore, a settled fact that there will be no negro troops anywhere near the Georgians or any of the other southern troops.

that the rain is general over North Texas. J. C. Duke, manager of the John Deere Plow Company, stated this afternoon that he is somewhat apprehensive about the results following this rain. He is of the opinion that it may cause the boll worm to get in its work. Rain is favorable to the boll weevil also, he said, but outside the cotton crop the rain will do no harm.

SOCIALISTS MEET NEAR GRAND SALINE

GRAND SALINE, TEXAS, Aug. 6.—The socialist state convention was held in the woods a mile from town today and nominated a state ticket.

W. D. Simpson of Dallas was chosen chairman of the convention and W. C. Holloway of Alva secretary.

A resolution was adopted favoring a state constitutional convention.

The following were nominated: For governor, Word H. Mills. For lieutenant governor, L. L. Rhodes of Van Zandt.

For attorney general, W. D. Simpson of Dallas.

An interesting half hour was spent by Lieutenant Schofield, in charge of the navy recruiting station, before the party finally closed up their office in this city.

A mysterious woman played a prominent part in the proceedings, appearing before Lieutenant Schofield and protesting against the enlistment of one of the men secured by the party upon the ground that he was her lawful husband.

Standing his ground in the face of tears and threats, Lieutenant Schofield insisted that the man's papers were regular and that therefore no course was left open for him, but the enlistment of the man, Dr. Duncan, examiner for the party, also came in for an interview with the mysterious and beautiful woman, who, finding her efforts unavailing, finally left with a threat to secure the services of a lawyer and take legal steps.

Shortly after her departure with this ostensible purpose, the cause of the trouble appeared upon the scene. The case was at once stated to him and the question put up to him whether or not the woman was his wife.

This the recruit denied, and told another side of the story, equally interesting, if not so filled with tears and pleadings.

His story was that he had become engaged to the woman, and that his enlistment was a last resort to rid himself of the power she held over him. The statement that he was married to the woman he denied absolutely.

The woman failed to appear with a lawyer as threatened, and thankful for her men-appearance, the party with the recruit in tow left the city without further incident.

CONSUL IS ATTACKED

In the British consulate President Reyes sent a detachment of soldiers to arrest all the leaders who were opposed to him. They had trouble in carrying out the orders owing to the fact that the accused leaders were surrounded by an armed body guard which resisted the military and severe fighting ensued.

It is reported that a large number have already been killed on both sides and that the fighting still continues.

Tomorrow is the date set for the inauguration of General Rafael Reyes as president of Colombia. When General Reyes was sent to Washington in the hope of effecting a change in the policy of the United States and securing the restoration of Panama he was the choice of the government party for president.

Of course it is reported that a large number have already been killed on both sides and that the fighting still continues.

THE TELEGRAPHERS

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 6.—The local situation in the O. R. T. strike on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas system remains unchanged. Both the company and the telegraphers who walked out are confident of ultimate victory and both sides are making claims. The Katy management stoutly asserts that men are being found in numbers to take the places of the strikers, while on the other hand, the operators claim that those who are employed are either incompetent or are men who can only act as station agents and not telegraphers.

The railroad's through freight and passenger trains are being operated about on schedule time because the movements of these trains are directed by dispatchers who have not gone out. Freight is accumulating very rapidly at some of the smaller stations, and if the strike is not ended soon the company will be put to serious inconvenience to handle it, it is claimed.

The effects of the strike is being indirectly felt by many farmers and merchants at small stations along the lines of the Katy.

T. S. McDowell, general superintendent of the Katy system in Texas last night claimed that the walk out had caused the road no special inconvenience and had not delayed traffic at all.

"Of course," said he, "we have experienced some little inconvenience in breaking in new men, but all the stations are opened except a few smaller ones, and these are not open simply because the traveling auditors has not had time to get around to them. There are two or three stations where the people are boisterous, and there is no hurry to open them.

"Nine of the old men have returned to work. If the road will accept them no disturbances of any consequence have resulted except at Brookshire, a small town near Houston. On the

RAIN WILL CHECK WEEVIL DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 6.—A drizzling rain began falling at an early hour this morning and has continued, with the exception of brief intervals, nearly all day. At noon a hard downpour began and continued for some time. Farmers state that the rain will serve as a check for the boll weevil and while the cotton does not need rain in this vicinity, it is nevertheless welcomed by the planters. It is reported that the rain is general over North Texas. J. C. Duke, manager of the John Deere Plow Company, stated this afternoon that he is somewhat apprehensive about the results following this rain. He is of the opinion that it may cause the boll worm to get in its work. Rain is favorable to the boll weevil also, he said, but outside the cotton crop the rain will do no harm.

The Summer Life of Mrs. Roosevelt And Her Children

SIDE VIEW OF ROOSEVELT HOUSE AT OYSTER BAY

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S DOGS

BY WALDON FAWCETT.

The annual vacation of the First Lady of the Land begins about July 1 of each year and continues well into October, or perhaps as late as November. There have been mistresses of the White House who discontinued their hospitalities with the close of the so-called "official season" at the advent of Lent, and were, consequently, ready to leave the capital ere the spring had well advanced; but Mrs. Roosevelt is very conscientious in the discharge of her social duties and prefers to remain at the capital. In order to lend her aid and influence to the social activities and the many entertainments for charitable purposes which are held in the morning of the year. Indeed, it is not too much to say that Mrs. Roosevelt has been largely responsible for the brilliant "spring season" which has become during the past year or two a distinctive characteristic of Washington life.

All the members of the Roosevelt family are particularly fond of country life, and especially that form of it which finds exemplification at their own "farm" on Long Island, and thus young people are more eager for the time when they can hurry away to their favorite playground on Long Island Sound. In order to gratify this impatience the junior members of the household, in charge of trusted servants and accompanied by their ponies and pets, are sent to the Oyster Bay estate as soon as the school year closes, but Mrs. Roosevelt, who is nothing if not a devoted wife, prefers to brave the heat of Washington until her husband can accompany her to their vacation retreat, and it is usually about the first of July ere the President can leave his office at the White House.

The Roosevelts usually journey from Washington to their summer home in one of Uncle Sam's private yachts, the Dolphin or the Mayflower, and thus enjoy the double boon of a pleasant voyage and the convenience of being landed at their own dock. Mrs. Roosevelt, of course, spared the rather disagreeable experience of "getting settled," which is the bane of many a housekeeper's life. The Roosevelts have a very capable superintendent, Mr. Noah Seaman, who has been in their service for 17 years, and he, with his helpers, make it a point to always keep the house at Sagamore Hill, as the Roosevelt estate is known, ready for occupancy at short notice. In addition to this, a number of servants from the White House are each year sent to Oyster Bay in advance of the family, in order to complete the preparations and even the family carriage, which waits to convey the Roosevelts to their "home" upon their arrival, is drawn by horses from the White House, and on the box are the coachman and footmen who serve the presidential household in the same capacity in Washington.

There has been an element of anticipation in the home-coming of the Roosevelts this year, for their beloved abode by the seaside has undergone quite a number of changes since last they said good-by to it. To be sure, the improvements which have been made are by no means pretentious from an architectural standpoint, but they are designed to extend the capacity of the accommodations for guests and servants, and this is what is sought by the lord and lady of the manor. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt are instinctively hospitable, as has been eloquently proven in Washington, where the White House cook says in desperation that he never knows half an hour before how many will sit down to dinner, and they are now in a position to gratify for the first time their most ambitious plans for the adoption of this same bounteous policy of hospitality at their vacation home. The Roosevelt home, at Sagamore Hill, on the "north shore," would not, in the eyes of the superficial observer, be called impressive by any means, and yet no person could look at the great rambling frame house, with its broad verandas, and not appreciate that it was built for comfort and rest and relaxation, and that all of these may be found within its shelter. The Roosevelt home will especially appeal to persons who find a certain degree of solitude and isolation conducive to rest. President Roosevelt says that he abhors the idea of living "in my neighbor's pocket," and so he has set down his charming country home where there is no other house in sight and where his privacy is insured by the protective expanse of an estate which covers nearly a hundred acres. Of that covers nearly a hundred acres are in this holding perhaps forty acres are in woodland, affording the wood chopping opportunity for the wood choppers which he finds so pleasurable a diversion. About fifteen acres are in lawn, with numerous flower beds, which have the personal care of Mrs. Roosevelt. Then, too, there is a garden which covers nearly three acres—and well might any housewife envy Mrs. Roosevelt's possession. Here are raised vegetables that would be likely to prove prize winners at any county fair, and indeed, bunches of asparagus and other appetizing vegetable offerings sent from Oyster Bay to the White House early each spring serve to add very materially to the impatience of the Roosevelts to reach their "farm home."

Mrs. Roosevelt's round of duties and pleasures form a long day when she is at Sagamore Hill. Breakfast is usually served at 7 or 7:30 o'clock, and often it is set for an even earlier hour if there is an excursion of any kind on hand for the day. This meal concluded, Mrs. Roosevelt devotes the morning to the same close inspection and supervision of household affairs which characterizes her management of the domestic side of the White House. She has a conference with her housekeeper and sometimes she drives to the village to do some bit of shopping in person. Mrs. Roosevelt's mail also requires considerable time for perusal and the indication of the nature of the replies to be made. Of course, the President's wife does not, when on her vacation, receive as many communications as come to her at the White House during the height of the social season, but there are nevertheless dozens of letters in each day's mail from people who make requests of every imaginable description. Mrs. Roosevelt insists that her social secretary shall have a portion of each summer for rest and recreation, and during the absence of her assistant the First Lady of the land finds it necessary to devote an increased amount of time to her correspondence.

The outdoor life of the Roosevelt family at their Oyster Bay home has become famous, and it is not too much to say that Mrs. Roosevelt is quite as enthusiastic as are any of her children regarding it. With the mother, as with the junior members of the family, horseback riding is pre-eminently the favorite diversion. Mrs. Roosevelt has a splendid little Kentucky bred saddle mare, and she often accompanies her husband on long rides along the excellent roads that are to be found on Long Island. The President always brings his favorite hunter to Oyster Bay from Washington, while Miss Alice, when she rides, uses her mother's mount. Archie has his famous Iceland 85 him by Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock, and the other younger children take turns in riding old Diamond, a black polo pony, now thirty-two years of age, upon which every one of the young people, from Miss Alice to Quentin, learned to ride.

Mrs. Roosevelt seldom ventures into the water, but all the children are excellent swimmers. Long-distance walks and aquatic sports of various kinds all receive their full share of attention. One of the attractive features of the summer life of the Roosevelt family at Oyster Bay is found in the oft-repeated exemplifications of a charming "chumminess" between the President and his wife. All the world knows that the engrossing cares of politics and his varied interests have not served to draw the President away from the close companionship with his children, in which he has always found such delight, and a glimpse at life at Sagamore Hill will serve to convince any person that there is yet much of the lover's devotion in Mr. Roosevelt's attention to his helpmate. Time and again during the summer Mrs. Roosevelt packs a basket with the articles for a favorite luncheon menu, and she and her husband go off for a day's outing. Very often the journey is by water, and in such event the President handles the oars while Mrs. Roosevelt sits in the stern with the heavily laden basket. Old-fashioned family picnics in which all the children participate are also a feature of the summer life at Sagamore Hill.

Any observant feminine visitor to the

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S RIDING MARE

OLD DAVIS VETERAN COLORED GARDENER

Roosevelt country house should not be long in fathoming the secret of the adoration which Mrs. Roosevelt's sons manifestly feel for their mother. To employ the boy's vernacular, the First Lady of the Land is not "fussy." She has given her sons a room in the attic for a "museum," and she is never perturbed by the fearful and wonderful array of bugs and rocks and other "treasures" which they bring to this stronghold. She is equally unmoved by the "menagerie" which is maintained at the stable, and, furthermore, tradition states that Mrs. Roosevelt did not even manifest any symptoms of hysteria when, on one memorable occasion, Archie fished out of his pocket when at the dinner table a pet rat which he wished to show to a visitor who had made inquiry regarding some of his strange pets. Mrs. Roosevelt has, furthermore, endeared herself to her neighbors in the little village of Oyster Bay by her refreshing democracy. Many of the women were her friends in the old days before her husband attained to high official position, and they continue so today. The boys, too, apparently choose their playfellows, remembering their father's injunction, "There are short boys and tall boys, and good boys and bad boys, and that's all the kinds of boys there are."

Sanitary Clothing for Children.

Although much money is spent by even comparatively poor people on the clothes for the little ones by the proud mother and father of the young hopeful, yet no class of human beings is so frantically ill-treated in the matter of health creating and fostering garments as the children. And no persons require more care in the selection and patterns for their garments than the young people. In the child the body surface is larger comparatively than in the grown individual as far as skin area is related to heat-producing ability. This explains why a child catches cold more easily than a grown person when both are equally healthy. The child's heat-producing qualities are comparatively feeble. For this reason the child requires loose clothing, which, while light in weight, should be of pure wool. By wearing real wool next to the skin children are enabled to do without cumbersome outer wraps and comforters. This very wrapping up makes the tendency shown by the child to catch cold stronger in later years, and frequently is responsible for the chronic invalid, who is a nuisance to others and only a misery to him or herself.

Uncle Sam's Fair Helpers.

The aggregate number of women on the payroll of the United States Government is growing continually and rapidly. Much has been said of late regarding Uncle Sam's seeming preference for masculine employes in the government departments at Washington, and it must be admitted that in some lines of work partiality has been shown to members of the sterner sex, but this is by no means universal and new recruits are continually being added to the army of feminine toilers at the capital. Few persons have been shown to members wide in the scope of the service which Uncle Sam's fair helpers—by no means all of them located in Washington—are rendering. The tasks assigned to them include everything from the delivery of mail on lonely rural routes to the detection of the tell-tale flaws in the clearest counterfeit which are put forth, and it must be admitted that in almost every sphere of governmental activity they have proven themselves worthy to rank with men of equal experience.

The women of the country may be gratified to know, also, that there are women in some of the big workshops at the seat of government whose ability represents the very highest order of skill to be found anywhere, even in this age of specialization, who do work that it has been conclusively proven no man can successfully undertake; and who are as nearly indispensable as it is possible for any employe to be in this age. So well is this realized in certain cases that the government not only pays very high salaries to these women, but ministers to their comfort in every way in order that their health may be preserved and that they may continue at work even when somewhat indisposed.

Moreover, new needs of activity for women in the government service are just opening. Uncle Sam is sending out women teachers to look after the needs of the little folks in Porto Rico, the Philippines and our other new possessions, and ever since the Spanish-American War the War Department has maintained a permanent organization of the Corps of Army Nurses. There are on an average fully 200 women in this service, and they are caring for sick soldiers in the Philippines and at various camps and hospitals scattered throughout the United States. It is some of the women who receive their practical training in army nurse work who are now with the Japanese Army in the Far East.

Hints For The Home Dressmaker.

Here is a decidedly stylish gown of very light pink crepe de Paris, trimmed with inset white thread wheels, edged with pink satin ribbon ruching. The foundation is white India silk. The broad girdle is ornamented by a large steel buckle in front.

Children's Dress Fabrics.

For children's dresses shot tafetas and Louisines are being very much used for expensive costumes. These fabrics seem to gain and hold their favor because while just as cheap as the French cashmere and nun's veiling they hold their shape much better and do not need to be elaborately trimmed with expensive materials. The silks are rich enough in themselves and with a little lace can be made wonderfully attractive. Many of these girl's dresses are made entirely of one color, but from two different materials, one with a bright and the other a dull finish which gives a sharp and stylish contrast. If preferred a broad sash of broad ribbon with a bow and long ends can be worn now and then with such costumes and will give a welcome variance to the effect.

Grip Pains

It would be utterly impossible to imagine anything more distressing than La Grippe pains. They are simply indescribable and seem to be composed of all the misery sensations known. Yet they can be relieved, and in a very short time, by taking the greatest remedy on earth for pains of any kind. This soothing influence upon the nerves is felt throughout the entire system.

"I had La Grippe pains all over me, and I was in such distress I thought I could not endure it. I thought of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and after taking 3 doses the pain disappeared, and I slept peacefully. My brother has a swelling on his neck, and uses them, as they ease the pain, and leave no bad effects like quieting powders."

DELAY OF THE MAIL

Complaint Is Made in Southeast That Hundreds of Sacks Arrive Many Hours Later Than They Should

GAINES INVESTIGATES

Superintendent of Eleventh Division Went to New Orleans During Past Week to Study the Situation and Apply Remedy for Delays

Superintendent S. M. Gaines of the railway mail service has spent a portion of last week across the Mississippi, looking into improvements of the mail service, Louisiana being in the Eleventh division, which is under his charge.

From the business men in large cities of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi complaints have recently been lodged with the postmaster general with regard to delays in forwarding northern and eastern mails to various points in these states.

Articles in the southern newspapers not only give details as to congestion of mail bags in the post offices, but give pictures of existing conditions. In a late issue of the Atlanta News there is a drawing of a scene in the Atlanta postoffice, showing 100 mail bags awaiting to be assorted, and the explanation is printed under the picture, "One hundred bags of mail from the north and east bound for Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, thirty-six hours overdue."

The amount of mail was brought by train No. 37, running between Greensboro and Atlanta, and it was stated that the postal clerks on that run were overworked and had complained of the long journey of ninety-three miles with a single crew; that they had applied for relief by asking for another crew, but their request was not entertained by the postal authorities.

The records of the postal department show that the matter set forth in the article in the Atlanta News was correctly reported, and the delay was concerned. Train No. 3, which connects with train No. 37, brought in some of that mail destined for Louisiana points on the evening of the 18th of July, when it ought to have been received twenty-four hours previously.

The railway mail service officials are just now actively engaged in improving the forwarding and delivery of mails all over the south. Superintendent Gaines was in New Orleans Thursday and called on Postmaster Behan and Captain John Day, chief of the railway mail service in New Orleans. Superintendent Gaines is making a tour of inspection throughout his division to ascertain how to apply needed reforms and improvements. He was accompanied by Superintendent Terrell of the Fourth division. Already the force of clerks on certain runs has been augmented. Wherever the superintendent has found that the men were too few in number to handle the business he has recommended and obtained an increase in the force. At one time, about a month ago, the mails going into New Orleans were delayed because of their bulk and the fewness of the railway postal clerks, but that inconvenience has been promptly remedied and there have occurred no more delays. The postoffice department is willing to help the expediting of mails by putting more men on the trains as soon as the increase in business shall demand it.

The force of clerks on the Louisville and Nashville, the Illinois Central and the Southern Pacific will be added to in time for the rush expected to begin in the fall of the year.

VIOLATION OF THE CONTRACT LABOR LAW RUMOR

It Is Charged That Mexicans Are Being Brought Into the Country for Work

Nearly every incoming train from the west into Fort Worth brings a number of Mexican laborers with their families. They are being shipped to points in Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri, as well as in the northern part of Texas.

It is claimed that these men are being brought into the United States from Mexico in direct violation of the immigration laws. The men are being sent to the points enumerated to work in railroad gangs. They will work for a small amount a day and are much more dependent than the American laborer on the track work of a railroad.

The claim is made by some that these men are contracted for by agents of railroads and construction companies, who go into Mexico for that purpose. They are then brought across the line at El Paso and Laredo and shipped north. The matter is receiving the attention of the immigration inspector, W. H. Robb here, who has written to his superiors for instructions.

Labor, that is, common labor, in the land of the Aztecs is a dearth on the market. The peon of Mexico has always been noted for his laziness. A man in that country hiring labor pays them almost nothing for he expects to get so little out of them. The last several years large numbers of Chinese and Japanese have been imported. The men are different from the Mexicans. They work hard and are nimble and quick at almost any task that is put to them. Then, too, they work for almost nothing, even less than the greater. The consequence, the Mexican has no job, so when an agent comes along he is ready to come across the border for a promise of most any wage at all.

THE "DON'T WORRY" CLUB
The "Don't Worry" Club will run its third excursion over the Cotton Belt route, leaving Fort Worth Saturday morning, August 13, at 10:30. More than one hundred people have already enrolled for the trip. Members of this club have a positive guarantee of 60 cents a day for rooms and 25 cents for meals. You do not have to deal with rooming agents after you get there. The rooms are reserved NOW, and are in the Kensington apartments, the nicest part of St. Louis and in easy walking distance of the Fair Grounds. The Epworth League and Christian Endeavorers have used these apartments and know just what they are. Party will be furnished with badges and buttons and looked after by competent person. The Knights of Pythias will leave on the same day for Louisville, and a large number of the prominent members of the order will use this train. Ladies and families are especially invited to go on this occasion. Call at City Ticket Office, Cotton Belt Route, in new Fort Worth National Bank building, and see John M. Adams, C. P. and T. A., who will arrange for these special privileges, and the tickets only cost $13.50. Parties can leave St. Louis as late as Saturday afternoon, August 20, at 5 o'clock.

IN POLITICS

Republicans Will Make an Effort to Carry Legislative Districts in Missouri in Order to Elect United States Senator

THE TIME IS NOW RIPE

Some of the Democrats, It Is Charged, Are Dissatisfied Because on the Ticket With Folk Are Men Who Belonged to the Old Machine

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 6.—A local state committee man is authority for the statement that the national republican committee is to turn over to the state organization of the party a large sum of money to be used in a score of legislative districts and in the Twenty-four senatorial districts considered close enough to be influenced by money in an effort to carry them.

The term of Francis M. Cockrell, senior senator from the state, expires in 1905. The republicans hope to carry enough of these doubtful districts to hold a majority when the joint caucus of the assembly is held to determine his successor. It is probable for them to do it. The state legislature was under republican control in 1894. The time is ripe for this action, the local committee man says he has been told, because of dissatisfaction felt throughout the state over the nomination of men for state offices by democrats who were affiliated with the old "machine" which was held responsible for much of the fraud discovered by Joseph W. Folk, democratic nominee for governor. The fact that Folk has acquiesced in running on the ticket which contains two men he denounced by inference on the stump in his campaign nomination, is thought to render the democratic position even more unpalatable. The term of the senator expires in 1905 and if the republicans show strength in this campaign these men will hold over, and if the project fails the committee man is assured that republican control will come in time to oust Stone or other suspected democrats. R. C. Kern, who has almost assumed control of the state, will be the active candidate for Cockrell's mantle.

THERE MAY BE A STRIKE AT STRAWN

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 6.—It is stated that there is a likelihood of a strike at Strawn among the coal miners in the near future and the miners are preparing for a long siege. The company at that place recently reduced the wages of the men 54 cents per ton for coal mined and the men have made a counter demand of a raise of 10 cents per ton.

It is stated that the operators at Strawn are not fearing a strike because of the offers made by northern operators to fill their contracts should the strike take place. At present the miners at Strawn are in an ugly mood and it is feared that they will quit work at any time.

Strawn is a short distance from Thurber, where the Thurber Coal Company became involved in a strike last September.

The commands we give to the horse and our call to the cow are the same used by the prehistoric men of our race. In all probability the Arab calls to his camel in the same words now as in the days of Abraham or Noah.

It has been suggested that a grand entertainment be given some time during September, the initial steps toward it will probably be taken tomorrow night and the committees appointed to carry it through.

Last night was another threatening one, but there was a very large crowd at Lake Erie to witness the vaudeville performance which has been running at that popular summer resort during the present week despite the rain. The program last night was well received. Beginning Tuesday night of this week there will be a change in the bill, which will be a versatile one, including numbers that will be

FOR VIOLATION OF THE LOTTERY LAW

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 6.—For violating the lottery laws, Max Guiraud and Emile Keifer were given $10 or ten days each.

Guiraud and Keifer are cigar dealers, and in order to draw trade organized a kind of monthly drawing of prizes. They did not sell tickets, but gave each customer a ticket for every 5-cent purchase, which entitled him to a chance in the drawing. Some time ago cigar and tobacco dealers who were either averse to violating the law or did not desire to offer such an inducement to their customers complained to the district attorney that their trade was suffering from the practice indulged in by the other dealers, and Mr. Luzenberg decided to test the law in this respect by an appeal to the courts.

HOSTS AND HOSTESSES

MRS. W. M. MANCHESTER
At the residence of Mrs. W. M. Manchester last Wednesday afternoon, from 8 to 11:30 p. m., the house was brilliantly lighted and pretty lanterns were hanging over the lawn. There were plenty of tables on the lawn for games. Miss Minnie Mae Smith was the hostess and Miss Nelly Gathens was the guest of honor.

MISS LELIA HARRISON
Miss Lelia Harrison had for guests Friday a dozen winsome maidens, inviting them in honor of her friends from Cleburne, Miss Bennie Brown and Miss Annie Stratton. The house party lasted only a day, but it was delightful in its arrangements. The pleasures of the day were shared by Misses Stratton, Brown, Jeanne Marie Roe, Jessie Binyon, Maud Guthrie, Hazel Walker, Roberta and Edna Maddox, Mary Alice Thompson, Marguerite Adams, Ethel Evans and Mrs. J. C. Hearne.

MISS MAY LARIMER
A bevy of maidens every one of them eligible for a place in Burr McIntosh's magazine, with some other things that the Burr McIntosh girls do not always have (can you guess?), were the guests of Miss May Larimer Wednesday. The occasion was especially for Miss Larimer's guest, Miss Lee of San Angelo, and for all was a game of cards in the forenoon, a course luncheon, and music, cards, dancing and fun making generally in the afternoon.

MR. AND MRS. BENNETT
One of the most elaborate dinners yet served at the country club was on Wednesday evening in the private dining room and was given by Mr. and Mrs. George Bennett for their son, Walter. Not only were the decorations unusually tasteful but the dinner itself a European triumph. Eight courses constituted the menu, and an orchestra played during its service.

EARL PAWKETT
Earl Pawkett was the moving spirit of a skating rink party last Wednesday evening and a number of "rollers" enthusiastically accepted his invitation for a try at that fascinating sport. Those in his party were Mr. and Mrs. Burns, Dr. and Mrs. Lord, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Van Zandt.

MISS VERA DANIELS
Miss Vera Daniels entertained informally last Wednesday evening with a list in honor of her guest, Miss Faught of Dallas and Miss Teagarden of Austin. The tables were set upon the lawn, where also the refreshments were served. A burnt leather case went to Charles Crenshaw and a box of stationery to Miss Esther Connell.

AFFAIRS OF THE CLUBS

THE PROGRESS WHIST
The Progress Whist met with Mrs. Rosenthal Thursday morning, Miss Hattie Weltman who played as substitute for an absent member, winning the club prize, a drawn work center piece. As she was also a guest, she won the guest prize, a lace turnover. Both prizes were especially handsome. Mrs. Lederman will be the next hostess.

THE S. C. C. AFFAIR
Miss Vartier Hall was the hostess of the S. C. C. Tuesday morning and as there were a number of guests, the club prize was duplicated for the guest winner. Mrs. Kaufman was the lucky guest and Mrs. Slack the club winner. Those present were Mesdames Slack and Miller, Misses Elser, Hunter, Pendleton, Andre Anderson, Barton, Grace Hollingsworth, Juanita Hollingsworth, Washburne Newlin, Frances and Elizabeth Tarlton for the club. The out-of-town club members were Mrs. Kaufman, Mrs. Henry Williams, Misses Genevieve Tarlton, Will Ross, Bragg, Ella Hogsett, Florence Smith, Marguerite Adams, Mabel Bradley and Virginia Van Zandt.

THE NAT CLUB
The Friday Evening "Nat" Club were out in force last week and triumph of swimming lessons mastered marked the enjoyment of several of the timid beginners. The experts shared their knowledge and instruction with the "skill-less" and between times made use of the "shoot the chutes" and other deep water facilities. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Ball, Mrs. Walker of Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Turner, Mrs. Fakes, Miss Grace Fakes, Miss Stripling, Miss Larimer, Miss Buckley, Miss Wilcox, Messrs. Mitchell, Collett, Griffith of Terrell, Haywood and Burd, beside a number of young people for good measure.

AT THE COUNTRY CLUB
There was a hint of rain Thursday evening, but that did not discourage the Country Club members from enjoying their weekly dinner with club comfort. There were a few absentees, but the at-

CHATELAINE AND BRACELET

Fashion still favors the chataleine bag, but in new designs. The circular bag of gold, studded with precious stones and suspended from the belt by a plain, polished chain, is the proper thing. The fine wire links graduate in size to a disc of solid gold about the size of a five-cent piece in the center.

A fad of the season in ornamental jewelry is a golden snake bracelet which coils about the hand, with the head of the serpent resting at the wrist. Tiny diamonds or emeralds represent the creature's eyes. The bracelet here reproduced is a flexible coil of woven solid gold wire. It is much in use by smartly dressed women at the seashore. This kind costs from $35 to $150. Designs and material vary widely.

THE LONG WHITE SEAM

As I came round the harbor buoy, The lights began to gleam. No wave the land-locked water stir'd, The crags were white as cream; And I mark'd my love by candlelight, Sewing her long white seam. It's eye sewing ashore, my dear, Watch and steer at sea. It's reef and furl, and haul the line, Set sail and think of thee. I climb'd to reach her cottage door; O sweetly my love sings! Like a shaft of light her voice breaks forth. My soul to meet it springs As the shining water leap'd of old, When stir'd by angel wings. Aye longing to list anew, Awake and in my dream, But never a song she sang like this, Sewing her long white seam.

...has Friday night and left the dance early in order to catch the 11 o'clock car for that city.

THE LITERARY TWELVE

The Literary Twelve is an organization of young women in this city who devote their time to the study and perusal of literature. At least one would infer from the name that that is their purpose. Whether they carry out to the letter their literary aspirations has not been determined. At any rate, it is known that most of the young ladies of the club are

Hon. Charles A. Culberson, senior senator from this state in the United States congress, was a guest Friday night at the dance at Lake Erie, given by the Literary Twelve of Fort Worth. The Literary Twelve is composed of a dozen Fort Worth young ladies, who are not yet debutantes. They are noted throughout the state for their beauty, and promise after "coming out" to be the social favorites in Texas. Senator Culberson is one of the most polished and dignified gentlemen in Texas, and his presence at the affair gave it an éclat which is out of the ordinary at summer social affairs at Lake Erie.

LITERARY TWELVE ENTERTAINS SENATOR

"Yes, sir, I feel as young as they do, and I suppose I really ought to join in and dance." The above remark was made by Senator Charles A. Culberson, United States senator from Texas, at Lake Erie Friday night, where he was the guest of the young ladies of the Literary Twelve. Senator Culberson came from Dallas on the 5 o'clock interurban car Friday afternoon to take dinner with his brother-in-law, W. B. Harrison of this city. At Mr. Harrison's residence the senator was informed by Miss Lelia Harrison, Mr. Harrison's daughter, that the Literary Twelve, of which she is a member, would give a dance at Lake Erie, and that they would be delighted if he would go. The senator, ever ready for a good time, in company with Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Harrison, boarded the 8:20 interurban car for Lake Erie. Besides Miss Lelia Harrison and a few other members, but few of the young ladies of the Literary Twelve were aware of the senator's presence. On the car all unconsciously chatted away, not knowing that they were to have the lion of the season. Great was the excitement when they found that a senator was among them, and those who had talk'd so freely before either became silent or blushed profusely. One young lady remarked: "Why, goodness me! Senator Culberson sat right next to me and I didn't even know it. I'm sure he heard me say that I didn't see why so many old folks came to our dance, as long as they didn't join in." At the dance the senator complimented the mothers and fathers on the beauty of their daughters, and pronounced the Fort Worth girls the belles of the state. Despite his remarks that he felt "as young as the young folks," the senator did not dance, but spent the time in conversing with the elders. Several prominent Fort Worth lawyers were present, and with them the senator spent a good deal of his time. Senator Culberson is a great admirer of the fair sex, and is a judge of beauty and profuse were his compliments of some of the coming debutantes. Senator Culberson was forced to return social favorites and society belles as a rule do not spend sleepless nights in search of true literary knowledge. One thing is sure, however, the Literary Twelve are well posted in regard to giving dances and to them are due the laurels of the season. The wreath is theirs, for they have entertained the lion of the year, Senator Charles A. Culberson, and moreover, the senator said they were pretty, and what he says he usually means. The members of the club who delve in literature and entertain senators are as follows: Marguerite Adams, Bessie Wombell, Ethel Evans, Marguerite Canty, Mabel Spencer, Daisy Kerr, Jessie Binyon, May Wilson, Mildred Pollock, Maud Stewart, Lelia Harrison, Vera Callaway and Madge Hosmer.

COMING SOCIAL EVENTS

Miss Eva Mae Scott will entertain with an informal dance next Monday evening. The shadow of ended vacations is lengthening. The next few weeks will see several parties given for the girls who will soon leave for school. Miss Marguerite Cantey will give a dance on the 19th for Miss Annie Newlin, who returns home after two years abroad in a Paris school for young ladies, and Miss Mildred Pollock and Miss Mae Wilson, who go to Boston next year. Among the St. Mary's Institute girls will be Misses Marguerite Cantey, Marguerite Adams, Clay Allison, Mabel Long, Blanche and Nell Connell. There will be a skating rink party next Friday evening. The guests will be from among the younger smart set. The Sans Parlei have issued invitations for a dance at Lake Erie on the evening of the 17th. The Commercial Club and their friends will dance at Lake Erie Monday evening, the 15th. The entertainment that was to have been given last Thursday by the ladies of the Cannon Avenue Presbyterian church will take place next Thursday evening at the church.

THE AMERICAN SUMMER GIRL

GOLF GIRL TOES IN

The girl that plays tennis, the girl that plays golf. The summer girl. Why does she toe in? It is invariably true that she does, but why does she? What is there about the game that makes it necessary? Toeing in must be a method of concentrating strength and energy. The most remarkable examples of the disease, if disease it may be called, are found when the body is prepared for vigorous action.

If these sports continue, the women of America continue to become more and more infatuated with the games, what will be the effect upon future generations? The child inherits the physical defects of the parent. With pigeon-toed mother, what is going to be the angle marked by the toes of the infant?

Would several centuries not tend to carry the right foot to the left side and the left to the right side? Thus the toe-in right foot would become a toe-out left foot, the toe-in left foot would become a toe-out right foot.

The evolution of the foot would have then completed a circle were it not that the great toe, in such an event, would be growing on the wrong side of the foot. This possible result of centuries of athletic women is enough to make the golf girl pause to consider how her toeing in will affect the woman of the year 25,000.

As several of the members are temporarily out of the town it was decided that friends of the members who want to play, yet do not care to belong to the club, can do so by notifying Miss Ella Hogsett, the president of the club, and by paying the weekly club dues. The morning club will disband in October, when the regular clubs will organize.

WAREHOUSE PLAN IS PROPOSED BY A WACO MAN

Statement of Procedure Which Is Suggested by Hon. Eugene Williams, an Attorney of That City

WACO, Texas, Aug. 6.—The following is the Eugene Williams plan for warehousing cotton, submitted by the Business Men's Club of Waco and the Farmers' Institute of McLennan county, Texas, to cotton producers—the farmers, merchants and bankers of the cotton states and territories.

It was unanimously endorsed by the Texas Farmers' Congress at its sessions of July 7, 1904, and the Farmers' Convention of North Carolina at its sessions of August 2, 1904, and has received the support of the press generally. The estimated annual value of the cotton crop is over $600,000,000. The crop leaves the hands of its producers, under present wasteful methods of marketing it, without its value being realized. A system is needed to aid in marketing the crop throughout the year that the estimated annual loss of over $100,000,000 may be saved to its producers.

The plan is:

1. Local warehouses, established in cotton centers of every county and controlled by a board of local directors, would offer safe storage.
2. Warehouse receipts would offer the best collateral, upon which banks would be pleased to make conservative loans to meet pressing demands of farmers until the crop is marketed upon demand for actual consumption and not speculation.
3. The system growing out of these local warehouses under the control of a company organized by the producers themselves, would aid in marketing the crop throughout the year so as to save the estimated annual loss of $100,000,000, and correct many abuses, which can be reached only through a strong organization of the producers themselves.

Shares of capital stock, $10 each, will be offered throughout the cotton states and territories which will require only a small subscription from each of the producers of the vast annual income of $600,000,000 to provide ample capital upon which to organize the proposed company.

Stockholders in each county will select proxies an annual interstate meetings of such proxies at New Orleans. Such interstate meetings will annually select thirteen directors, approximately one from each cotton state and territory, to be men of the highest business ability and integrity, who are intimately associated with the production and marketing of cotton.

The directors will annually select a general manager of the best executive ability acquainted with all the details of classing, weighing, storing, marketing, shipping and caring for cotton, to whom under the closest supervision of the directory and its executive committee will be committed the working out of the details of the organization and the conduct of its business affairs.

RAILROAD NEWS

AN EXTENSION TO THE GULF

The comparative value of a railroad from Durango to Mazatlan and a road from Uruapan to Manzanillo is a proposition being considered by the national lines of Mexico, but it is said it will be some time before work will commence on either of them, but that a road will run eventually to one of these ports is very probable.

No survey has been made by the national lines for a road from Uruapan to Manzanillo, but the suggested route is from Uruapan to Colima and from there to Manzanillo. Several surveys involving considerable expenditure of money has been made from Durango to Mazatlan and there is a tendency on the part of the National company to favor this route. To build by either route would cost an immense sum of money. The construction of either route would be an engineering feat surpassing any that has been done in Mexico.

One advantage offered in favor of the Manzanillo route is that port works are now being built there that will make the harbor facilities greatly superior to those of Mazatlan.

An advantage offered by the Mazatlan route is that it is through a district that would give much local business. To secure eastern traffic is the real object in building such a road, and it is probable that at some time every railroad in Mexico has speculated on the construction of a transcontinental route.

Numerous branches have been built in that direction, but no road has yet been able to get across the barriers presented by the Sierra Madre mountains.

DENVER BELT LINE

The building of a belt line around Denver to handle freight, the erection of a large depot and the inducing of other roads to use its terminals, is some of the work the Northwestern railroad company has set about to accomplish.

The company is an adjunct of the Denver, Northwestern and Pacific railroad, and was formed for the purpose of securing adequate terminal facilities.

The Union Depot company, composed of the Union Pacific, Denver and Rio Grande and the Colorado and Southern companies, asked the Moffat road $18,000 yearly for the use of a track running into the Union depot.

The Burlington, Rock Island and Santa Fe are said to be dissatisfied with the arrangements they have made with the Union Depot company, and a new use of the Moffat tracks and terminals if a convenient one is secured.

If the right of way can be secured through Denver to a track at Fifteenth and Delany streets owned by the Burlington company, the terminals will be located there.

G. A. R. OFFICIAL ROUTE

The Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad has been designated as the official route for Texas to the nation's centennial of the Grand Army of the Republic which meets in Boston, August 15 to the 25th.

The Katy is to be used from Texas points to St. Louis, from St. Louis the Wabash to Buffalo, from Buffalo the route will be over the West Shore to Rotterdam Junction, thence over the Boston and Maine road to Boston.

The Katy train will leave Fort Worth on the evening of August 12, 7:45. A tourist sleeper will be provided for the trip.

MANY OFF FOR ST. LOUIS

The trains leaving here yesterday for St. Louis carried quite a large delegation of the World's Fair. Among those who went over the Frisco are Captain B. B. Paddock and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Armstrong. Others who left the city for other points using the Frisco are L. P. Robertson, who goes to Crowley, La., to attend the bedside of a sick relative; Miss May Samuels, who is en route to Cold Springs, Mich., where she goes to spend her summer vacation; J. W. Chilton and a party of country merchants for Kansas City on a purchasing trip.

GREEN MAY GET IT

There is a report emanating from Tyler that in case F. H. Britton, president of the Cotton Belt, becomes successor to Russell Harding of the Missouri Pacific, W. E. Green, vice president and general superintendent of the Cotton Belt, is slated to take Mr. Britton's place with the Cotton Belt, and in this event he will take up his residence at St. Louis.

Mr. Green is very popular, not only in the circles of the Cotton Belt family, but in the Texas railway world, and his friends would be glad to see him receive a promotion like this one.

A TEXAS MAN IS GIVEN APPOINTMENT

The friends of the Peacock Military school of San Antonio are rejoicing over the detail by the war department of First Lieutenant C. C. Todd, U. S. A., as professor of military science and tactics in that institution, by which the school enjoys government recognition, government equipment and inspection. Lieutenant Todd is the son of Captain Todd of Jefferson, Texas, and is an honor graduate of the Texas A. and M. College, from which he went directly to the Philippines. The elegant catalogue of the school shows that Major Hart remains as commandant of cadets, while the military staff is enlarged by the engagement of Major Hope of the Virginia Military Institute and Major Koopman of the Ohio University. This is now perhaps the only school west of the Mississippi with so many military instructors in addition to the academic staff, all of whom are university men. The old A. and M. College boys will be glad to learn of Lieutenant Todd's appointment.

MAGNITUDE OF INDUSTRY
The strike of the packing house employees causes inquiry as to the extent of the industry. This information is supplied in a concise way by Channing A. Bartow in the following: "Though the packing and dressed meat business is commonly regarded as a monopoly, it is not so in every sense of the term. There are actually more than a thousand different firms in the United States engaged in the industry, and the capital now invested is considerably over $200,000,000. According to reliable estimates, the abattoirs and farmers slaughtering annually about 10,000,000 cattle and calves, 40,000,000 hogs and 40,000,000 sheep. That makes about 7,000,000,000 pounds of beef, 5,000,000,000 pounds of pork and 2,000,000,000 pounds of mutton. This makes an annual total of 14,000,000,000 pounds of meat. This estimate, of course, is exclusive of by-products. The most reliable estimate of the world's flocks and herds indicates that there are 310,000,000 cattle, 600,000,000 sheep, 100,000,000 hogs and possibly 70,000,000 goats. That furnishes 1,050,000,000 edible animals of these four classes to the 1,500,000,000 people in the world. Of this population 800,000,000 are grain eating Asiatics. For the 80,000,000 people in the United States there is an available live stock supply of 1,000,000,000 animals. That gives an allowance of more than two animals for every man, woman and child in the country. That would be, in round numbers, 500 pounds of fresh beef, 100 pounds of fresh pork and 134 pounds of mutton for each person. This estimate takes no account of edible by-products—they would increase the per capita average with another thirty pounds; so if all the stock in the country were killed and distributed equally each person would be entitled to about 654 pounds.—Sioux City Tribune.

year as last, but the stuff is in much better shape. The range is exceptionally good and there is plenty of grass. The lamb crop was a little short this spring owing to the severe storms of March and April, and the shipments will mostly consist of old sheep. Shepherds are ready to come on with their stuff and are only waiting the result of the strike or some settlement of the labor troubles before shipment. There was a good deal of rain through the state this year, the rains continuing into the month of June, a very unusual thing with us. There is also plenty of snow in the mountains. In fact, everything is in our favor and we are all feeling good."

HOLDING BACK CATTLE
A Miles City, Mont., dispatch says: "The butchers' strike in Chicago has set prospective cattle shippers in this locality to guessing. W. H. Hutchinson was in today from the round-up, which is working down Powder river, and is endeavoring to find out whether it would be wise to continue down the river with the herd, which is now near Trail creek, or to go over to Sandstone until advices from Chicago are favorable to shipping. Water is scarce, and makes an additional complication to the problem. L. W. Stacy was to ship a train from Fallon tomorrow, but is withholding the strike. A telegram from Chicago this afternoon caused a change in Mr. Stacy's plans, and he will not ship tomorrow, as he was advised against it."

TEAMSTERS' INTERNATIONAL OFFICERS
THE TEAMSTERS' INTERNATIONAL EXECUTIVE BOARD IS NOW IN SESSION AT CINCINNATI. Reading from left to right, on the top row are J. B. Fitzpatrick of Chicago, third vice president; Edward Gould of New York, first vice president; M. J. Dwyer of St. Louis, second vice president; Chas. Robb of Chicago, sixth vice president; Samuel Johnson of Chicago, formerly of Cincinnati, fourth vice president. Lower row, from left to right: J. H. Warner of Hoboken, N. J., seventh vice president; E. L. Turley of Chicago, secretary-treasurer; Cornelius P. Shea of Boston, international president; N. W. Evans of Bloomington, Ill., traveling auditor; H. K. Sullivan of Evansville, Ind., fifth vice president.

MONTANA RANGE DRY
A Helena, Mont., dispatch says: According to Director R. F. Young of the Helena weather bureau, in all the northern counties east of the divide, drought is seriously affecting the ranges and unirrigated crops, and stock water is becoming scarce. In the Yellowstone and Musselshell valleys generally west of the divide, conditions are decidedly better, but in all sections rain is much needed. Haying was carried on under very favorable conditions. Cattle and sheep are in good condition, but in some sections they are showing the effects of scarcity of water.

CANADA'S RANGE MOVEMENT
Alberta, Canada's range cattle country, according to the Montreal Star, has 40,000 fat cattle ready for export. The movement eastward has already begun. Practically all these cattle must find a market in Great Britain and the output market is competition for American export grades of beef.

BEEF FOR JAPAN
A million pounds of Japanese canned beef, for the use of the Japanese army, was successfully delivered at Seattle and loaded on the steamship Shawmut for transportation to Yokohama a few days ago. The shipment is the largest single order ever sent across the Pacific and was handled from Chicago in special trains of four or five cars. Every precaution was made to avoid publicity.

YOUNG COUNTY HORSES
B. J. Mitchell of Greenville has been here during the week buying horses. He shipped a car of good horses yesterday. He paid good prices, and completed his car before the time set to depart, but will return in ten or fifteen days.—Graham News.

BOUGHT YOUNG CATTLE
L. M. Kokernot reports a deal by which he purchased 400 head of fine young cattle from Mr. Stewart of Waelder. The cattle were in the Jones pasture near Dilworth.—Shiner Gazette.

NEW MEXICO STEALING
A dispatch from Las Vegas to the New Mexican says that Pierce Rossa has been appointed as an additional cattle inspector in Luna county. The dispatch says there have been many thefts of cattle reported. It is a mystery why anyone should want to steal any New Mexico cattle these days. There are none fit to ship, or to make beef, and if a thief should gather up a bunch of cattle he would have had the hardest time in the world to get enough water to keep them alive. The average cow thief has got more sense than to steal cattle when the cattle, the range and the watering places have been in the condition they were during the past few months. Cattle stealing under these circumstances would have been more foolish than buying a law suit.—Lordsburg Liberal.

weighed about ten pounds, with several smaller ones, blue cat and perch. The guests at the Cobb hotel declared them to be the finest fish of the season. Christoval is now noted far and wide as a health resort. There were two ladies and one gentleman from Houston spending a month at the Cobb hotel. There is a big dam across the river just above the San Angelo and Sonora road that makes a big lake three miles long on the river from which several farms are irrigated below town. My friends A. A. and Mrs. Cobb set up splendid meals, nice clean rooms. If you ever pass this way they will make you glad if you stop with them. On Wednesday evening I hit the mail back for San Angelo, a distance of twenty-two miles. A beautiful country to behold; no farming done off the river valley, all pastures; grass fine and stock of all kinds fat and sleek. This is Pom Green country. A part of the county is rapidly developing into a stock farming country, a number of the big ranches are being cut up and sold to the man with the hoe. There is a great deal of cotton planted the past year in Pom Green county. OUR BRITISH COUNSINS
The meat strike in the United States has frightened English meat eaters more than it has their American brethren, says the National Provisioner. They depend so largely upon American beef for their supply that the curtailment of exports due to the strike gives them some anxiety. Carried as they are, however, they are wise enough to resist the temptation to let down the quarantine bars to Argentine beef. A request was made in the house of commons that the Board of Trade take action to secure the admission of live stock from Argentina to insure the country against the danger of meat famine. It was explained that the board of agriculture was under statutory obligation to prohibit the landing of Argentine cattle during the continuance of foot and mouth disease in that country.

REPORTS OF HORSES
Horse exports have increased over last year, while the mule business has dropped off a little. For the eleven months ending with May there were exported from this country 37,474 horses and 3,858 mules, as compared with 29,846 horses and 4,062 mules the same period of the fiscal year of 1903.

EAST TEXAS COW

COL. POOLE ON THE WING

Our Traveling Representative Has a Thrilling Experience Down in the Concho Country. Progress of That Section

Last Monday morning I again boarded the mail back at El Paso headed for Christoval, twenty seven miles away, a due north course. After passing down the table lands two miles out from town we struck the headwaters of the south Concho river. Our road led down this beautiful valley all the way. Fenced three farm or ranch houses on the route. The country is dry and needing rain. However, stock of all kinds are in good shape and doing nicely. The grass is dry enough to pile on the yellow, yet a little short. We arrived in Christoval at 12 o'clock sharp, which is situated on the banks of the beautiful south Concho river. I said to myself, old boy, take a lay off and go fishing, for all work and no play is not good for the newspaper tramp. After partaking of one of Mrs. Cobb's good dinners, I rustled up a long cane pole and line and bought a dime's worth of new hooks and bait out for the river. After chasing three frogs until I was tied in the face I finally caught two of them. The first when I did after baiting my hook was to fall in the river where it was about five feet deep. I moved down the river five or six hundred yards to a secluded place, got off my clothes and money and spread all out to dry. I was having a good time all alone until I heard a voice call out from the opposite bank. "Jane, you ladies fish up that side of the river and I'll work up this side." I dropped my pole and ready a dive for the thick brush. Oh, but those mosquitoes were hungry; those laughing sweet voices, too, were getting nearer than I liked. I made two or three squeals like a panther and I heard some more squealing by those sweet voices flying down the river. That settled it. I was left all alone. I didn't catch anything except a good bait and went up the river and made a good catch. The largest channel cat to keep me away from the cooking pit is to put on a smoother marshal than that one was. All the meats were served on the tables hot. All the ladies came with well filled boxes and baskets and they were big ones. My old friends, W. P. Cushman introduced me to his good wife and charming daughter, Miss Charlie with them sampling Miss Charlie's cakes and pies, which were superb. She and her mother are typical Kentucky ladies and know the art of entertaining and good cooking. Ladies, I thank you for the nice attentions.

I met a number of old friends here, who gave me a hearty greeting. Among them Sam Brookshire, Ned Thompson, W. E. Fisher, B. W. Smith, W. C. Gay and others. Brookshire ranches and farms four miles west of town. Fisher is a rancher near Cent, in Runnels county. Broder Cushman ranches one mile east of town Kentucky horses.

This is an up-to-date little business town, four years old. Seven mercantile houses, doing a flourishing business, surrounded by rich, fertile lands, good water, a desirable country to live in. Lands are selling at from $4 to $20 per acre, according to improvements. Sayre & Willis are the leading land agents in this vicinity and are always ready to sell all kinds of lands, from a small farm up to a good-sized ranch. Write them for information. At 7:30 that evening the conductor called out, "All aboard!" the cars were loaded down, all standing room being taken. This was the jolliest crowd I have ridden with in a long time. Every one was in a good humor. I just could not keep from looking at three pretty girls a little. We arrived at Angelo at 9 o'clock, the hub of the Concho country. At 7 o'clock the next morning I hit the Sterling City mail back. The road leads up the North Concho river valley. All the way grass was fine, but very dry. At 11 o'clock the engineer called out, "Water Valley," where we took dinner and I assessed J. G. Cooper, a well-to-do stockman, the required amount for the riding one year. After getting out of the fine grass in their neck of the woods, Broard and rock are in fine shape. Mr. Broard is a well-to-do stockman. N. B. Fisk, who ranches on the headwaters of Sterling creek, reports everything lovely out his way. Fisk is now handling sheep in connection with cattle. He said the wool comes in at a season of the year that is mighty handy. He has 1,600 head of sheep in his pastures. Just enough to keep the weeds down, and does not interfere with his cattle business at all. Late yesterday evening I took a walk over to his residence in town. He has a nice orchard of peach trees, all loaded down with luscious new fruit. I think I am a judge after sampling as many of them as I did. He and his good wife made my stay a pleasant one. He said: "Keep The Journal coming. We could not keep house without it."

This town, Sterling City, is putting on airs. Captain William Martin of Comanche has the contract for building a nice court house here and has a large force of men at work. It is 8x88 feet, three stories high, twenty-six rooms, fire-proof vaults, etc. He is using white limestone from top to bottom. It will be a beauty when completed. Captain Martin is extensively known over the state as a successful contractor and gives universal satisfaction. The town has a nice rock school house, two stories high, cost $4,000 and supports a good school ten months in the year. My friend, Bill Kells, who is editor of a good country paper here, extended me the right hand of fellowship, with many nice attentions. Yet he denies knowing anything of my dog.

CATTLE RANGE DECREASING
The cattle range in the southwest is decreasing in the vigor of the officials of the department of agriculture stationed in that section is telling. Sabies in both cattle and sheep is decreasing rapidly in many sections and has been totally exterminated in others.

FAIR WHEAT CROP
Reports from Minnesota and the Dakotas indicate an average yield of somewhere about eighteen bushels of wheat to the acre. The reason is supposed to be that the condition will be lowered to some extent at least before the grain is gone to the thrasher.

CANADIAN CALF CROP
A Calgary, Alberta, dispatch to the Montreal Star, says: "The round-up in the Calgary district is completed. The calf crop is said to be 20 per cent heavier than for several years. The loss in the herds during the past winter has been much less than normal. This is not true, however, of the ranch stock east of Maple Creek. There the winter was unusually severe, and the loss in many instances is estimated as high as 30 per cent."

RANGES SHOULD REST
In an interview in the Douglas and Bisbee papers, J. J. Riggs is quoted as saying that if necessary to restore the former prosperous conditions of the range in the southwest, he for one would be willing to advocate giving the range a complete rest for a period of ten years, removing from it all stock, that the grass may have an opportunity of receding itself, or in case of a failure to do this, that grass seed may be sown at proper times. Those who looked upon the Arizona range twenty years ago when a bountiful crop of wild hay could be cut almost anywhere, would like to again see the return of these conditions.—Arizona Stockman.

CANADIAN RANCHMEN SELLING
Ranch cattle from the Canadian Northwest have commenced to come forward for export to the British market. Some 40,000 head of finished beefs will have left the ranges within the next two weeks. This is about 15,000 more than came out of the Canadian west last year. A feature of the Canadian cattle trade is the fact that Toronto dealers have operated freely in the west and have made large purchases at 4c per pound on the ranch, fully 1/2c per pound higher than last year.

GLANDERS CAUSING TROUBLE
Secretary Morris of the Oklahoma live stock sanitary commission announces an abundance of glanders in both Woods and Greer counties. On account of the continued illness of Dr. Sanders of Oklahoma City the territorial board of health has dragged without the knowledge of the board, but will be attended to promptly now.

The disease is incurable, the only remedy being death. Only recently Dr. Sanders ordered five horses and mules killed near Blackwell, in Kay county, and it is said the outbreaks in Greer and Woods are the worst known in the territory for some time. The disease is generally brought in by horses and mules from other states. Secretary Morris says glanders causes the board more trouble than any other disease among Oklahoma live stock.

The disease in Greer county was located by a deputy inspector from the farm of T. M. Murray near Mustang, on the Salt Fork. Murray recently purchased a team of mules at Altus and drove them home. Sick afterward both became mysteriously sick and died. Almost immediately one of the horses became sick in the same manner and the deputy inspector pronounced it glanders.

THE WYOMING MOVEMENT
A Wyoming cattleman estimates that the shipment of cattle from his section of the state will begin about the first of August and that the movement will be materially heavier than it was last year.

HASKELL COUNTY STEERS
W. Lanier was here this week and purchased of Messrs. S. S. Cummings and W. L. Hills 700 head of 1, 2 and 3-year-old steers, and of various other parties 500 head. The cattle are to be delivered at Amarillo at once.—Haskell Free Press.

MISSOURI IS LIBERAL
Missouri's liberality in behalf of its live stock industry is unparalleled. The last legislature appropriated $100,000 to be awarded to Missouri exhibitors of live stock at the Universal exposition at St. Louis. This is almost twice the aggregate amount offered by the other states which have made appropriations for their respective breeders who exhibit at St. Louis. In providing such a comprehensive list of liberal prizes for its breeders Missouri has shown wisdom. It will never spend $100,000 to better purpose. In subsidizing its breeders it will augment its own revenue and grow in commercial magnitude.

VISITING EUROPEAN HERDS
Prof. C. H. Eckles of the Missouri experiment station is in Europe. He will visit the leading herds of dairy cattle in England, Holland, Germany and Switzerland and make a special study of dairy bacteriology.

RAINS IN ARIZONA
The press of Arizona is filled with mention of the generous rainfall which has visited all sections of the territory, and continues at short intervals, doing much good to the country that had been parched and barren of food for the herds and flocks.

Reports from every county in Arizona tell us of the great change that is already visible because of the rains. Plains and hillsides that were absolutely bare of vegetation of an sort are now turning green with grass and other forms of vegetation, and already the difference in live stock

REVOLUTIONISTS

Police of Paris Are Investigating Secret Societies in That City in an Effort to Get at the Bottom of Plots

UNITING IN THE WORK

Anarchists of All Countries Are Making Common Cause Against Rulers of Various States and the Plans Are Being Shaped Daily

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, Aug. 6.—The conspiracy of nihilists which culminated in the assassination of the Russian Minister Von Plehve at St. Petersburg last week is suspected to have emanated from a gang of Russian and Finnish revolutionists with headquarters in this city and Geneva, and the police are busy trying to investigate the numerous secret societies of Russian students and refugees in this city.

Important discoveries are said to have been made showing that the revolutionists of all countries are united and working in unison in their merciless war against the crowned and uncrowned heads of states.

The anarchist group at Paterson, N. J., originally despised by the more highly educated nihilists of this city and Geneva, and the police are busy trying to investigate the numerous secret societies of Russian students and refugees in this city.

There are indications, however, that the ground is becoming too hot for the apostles of dynamite and pills to even in this city and Switzerland, and a general exodus of anarchists and nihilists to the United States would not surprise the French secret police.

It is strongly hoped here that the United States will join in any international measures which may be adopted by European countries for the extermination of these dangerous criminals, to whom the life of no prominent man is sacred.

FINDS AN OLD RECORD A letter received here from Addis Ababa in Abyssinia states that M. Hugues Le Roux who at present is on mission to the United States, has made a most important find which is of the greatest interest to Orientalists.

He has discovered the oldest record of the relations of the queen of Sheba with King Solomon in its original form. At present he is engaged in co-operation with an Abyssinian sage in translating this invaluable papyrus manuscript.

As soon as this is finished he has received permission from the negus to make a thorough search of the islands in the lake Zonal, where the Abyssinians buried all the antiquities during the Moslem invasion, and hopes to make many valuable discoveries in those places, which, as far as known, have never been visited by any white man before.

WORK ON FINE TAPESTRIES The French gobelin factories, though still very busy with the work on the magnificent tapestries ordered for the Palais Elisee and the residences of the French ambassadors at Washington and Vienna have found time to start a most interesting tapestry, representing the battle of Poytenoy, which is to be an exact copy of a famous work from the eighteenth century.

This work of art, which will surpass anything ever made at the famous factory, has not been ordered by anyone, but is due solely to the initiative of M. Guiffrey, who recently discovered an excellent painting of the battle, and who hopes to demonstrate to the world that the gobelin industry of today stands as high as ever.

LOOKING FOR A SWINDLER The French police are anxiously looking for an international swindler, Count Villamarina, who may, however, have eluded his pursuers, and by many is supposed to be in America by this time.

Under the pretense of having received a valuable concession from the French government, the count has swindled people here and in England out of half a million dollars.

For years a well known but still mysterious person in English society, Count Villamarina, who claimed to be long to one of the bluest blooded families of Italy, succeeded in making many men in the financial and aristocratic world believe that in return for certain secret services which he had rendered the French government, M. Rouvier, the French minister of finance, had given him the right to impose a tax of 2 centimes on every stock transaction taking place on the market, as district from the market of the Paris Bourse, on the condition that he make a deposit of something over half a million dollars in the Bank of France, and that he pay one-third of the proceeds of the concession to the French government.

He showed documents in French purported to be signed by the French minister of finance and sealed with the grand seal of France, and in this manner duped many prominent people, from whom he received large amounts of money varying from $1,000 to $50,000. He was found out by a prominent English broker, who wrote to the English consul in this city, but who let him off when he returned the money he had received from him.

The count had a confederate in the ministry of finance, who had access to the official paper and seals of the minister and who is now under arrest.

Count Villamarina was last seen at the Gare de Lyon, where he is supposed to have taken a train for Italy, where he probably got aboard a steamer at Genoa or Naples bound for New York.

WILL SOLVE PROBLEM Colonel Renard, the famous inventor, who is in charge of the military aeroplane at Mendon and who has long been experimenting with dirigible airships, has succeeded in constructing a motor which promises to solve the problem of aerial navigation.

The motor which is now in the possession of the French admiralty is very powerful and exceedingly light.

The colonel is constructing an airship which he says will be able to carry several people at a speed of twenty miles an hour in the teeth of a strong wind.

When the Japanese army crossed the Yalu river one soldier was killed for every 100 shots fired. The record for deadly firing was until then held by the United States soldiers who, in the battle of Santiago, killed one man for every 250 shots.

In the Franco-Prussian war it took 200 bullets to kill a man. In the battle of Solferino, in 1859, 700 shots were fired for every man killed, while it took 2,500 shots to kill a soldier during the Napoleonic wars. The world is certainly progressing.

LADY SOMERSET

She Draws a Picture Contrasting Paul Kruger and Cecil Rhodes, Both Statesmen and Patriotic to a Degree

EACH MAN WAS A GENIUS

One Was a Type of English Squire of Fifty Years Ago While the Other Was a Man of Present Day Ideas and Intensely Imperialistic

BY LADY HENRY SOMERSET (Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.)

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The two great figures of the closing days of the last century have both now passed away—President Kruger and Cecil Rhodes—the one standing for ultra-conservative principles, representing a system of limited oligarchy; the other with all the modern ideas of progression and expansion; the one shrewd with primitive wisdom, whose ideas of government were derived from Hebraic traditions; the other full of the modern restless spirit, with no thought save of developing railways, telegraphs and mining enterprises.

Each was a genius, but as Mr. Stead very truly said years ago: Paul Kruger was a peasant and his ideas were those of a "rough" squire of fifty years ago, while Rhodes stood for everything that imperialism represents.

And yet there is no denying that Oom Paul, whose manners would have been impossible in a drawing room, had in him all the qualities that constitute a gentleman, for his treatment of prisoners during the recent war put the Englishman to shame.

Both men were patriots, and both men were ambitious for their country on much the same lines.

In the early days, when Cape politics were hazy, it was Kruger who conceived the scheme of seizing the interior and of stretching his republic across to Valdeia bay, and these schemes he proposed to carry out without a sixpence in his treasury. "I regard him as one of the most remarkable men in South Africa," said Mr. Rhodes of his great opponent in 1888, long before the events which led at last to the downfall of the Dutch republic; and the same admiration which was aroused in the Englishman's mind at that time must be felt today with even greater emphasis by the man who stood firm to what he believed to be for the best interests of his country and saw the schemes of a lifetime wrecked around him.

In 1855 the burghers in the feverish valley of De Kaap were overwhelmed with joy at the discovery of a seam of gold, which would raise their country from poverty to wonderful prosperity. They came elated with their news to the old president, and told their joyful tale; but Oom Paul remained silent, lost in thought, and then replied as follows: "Do not talk to me of gold, the element which brings more dissension, misfortune and unexpected plagues in its trail than benefits."

"Pray to God, as I am doing, that the curse connected with its coming may not overshadow our dear land. Just after it has come again to us and our children."

"Pray and implore Him who has stood by us, that He will continue to do so, for I tell you today that every ounce of gold taken from the bowels of our soil will yet have to be weighed up with rivers of tears, with the life-blood of thousands from our best, in defense of that same soil; from the lust of others yearning for it, solely because it has the yellow metal in abundance."

It seems to me almost as though the spirit of prophecy which inspired Jeremiah and Isaiah came to this rough old Dutchman, when he spoke words which apply not only to the gold fields of the Rand, but to that just for gold which is the great curse of the days in which we live.

TO ADMIT WOMEN At a meeting of the representative church council of the church of England, held at the church house, Westminster, a proposal was brought forward this week that the initial franchise of lay electors should be extended so as not to exclude women.

The debate was an interesting one. The proposal had the support of the bishop of Worcester, Dr. Gore, who holds a position of great influence, owing to his learning and to his hospitality to new ideas. He pointed out that there were a great many women church wardens throughout the country, and that it was a very great injustice to say that those women who acted as church wardens ought not to be allowed a share in church franchise.

Women had a large share in the progress of the active life of the church, and to exclude them from the franchise would produce a ranking sense of injustice and cruelty.

Lord Hugh Cecil, son of the late Marquis of Salisbury, took an opposite view. "We do not rest on the sovereignty of the people," he said. "We do not have much regard for the rights of any persons whatever."

"Our conception is a much higher one. We believe that we are a theocracy essentially; that our sovereignty is in the heavens, and that instead of having to regard the vocations, and those only, women," he continued, "are capable in administrative work, but the function of the council is deliberative, and not administrative."

It seems to be a strangely illogical argument. We are distinctly told that "in Christ there is neither male nor female," why, therefore, such sharp distinctions should be made in this theocracy we are unable to understand.

Probably this is owing to the fact that women are illogical. It is good, however, that a scholar like the bishop of Worcester fails to understand it also.

SOCIETY IS ANTAGONISTIC The Hon. Mrs. Lyttleton's play, entitled "Warp and Woof," has excited the antagonism of "Society." The principal criticisms made upon it were first that the girls who worked for the fashionable dressmakers were never overworked, and that the exigencies of smart ladies were easily met without any undue pressure being placed upon the dressmakers' hands.

Mrs. Lyttleton was severely blamed and her case was supposed to be much over-stated. In this week's papers, however, a summons came before the magistrates, when so narrowly resembled Mrs. Lyttleton's play that it almost seemed as though some of the characters had stepped from the stage on to the boards of real life.

summons came before the magistrates, when so narrowly resembled Mrs. Lyttleton's play that it almost seemed as though some of the characters had stepped from the stage on to the boards of real life.

One of his majesty's inspectors found that in a certain well known dressmaker's on the Monday before the Assot races, Madame —'s girls were kept late at work to finish a fashionable costume to be worn at the races. In these dressmakers' establishments, work according to law is supposed to cease at a quarter of 10:30, and the skirt hands until 11:30, all having started at 8:30 in the morning.

The explanation given to the inspector was that the lady for whom the dress was intended did not come to be fitted until the last moment, and the orders had consequently to be given the hands were to continue to work until the dress was finished, and delivered in order that it might be worn the next day.

The words of the overworked girls in Mrs. Lyttleton's play, "Warp and Woof," recur very forcibly to one's mind in reading this drama of real life. "I have seen," said the girl, "my sister faint away to-night. Do you think she was allowed to go home? Certainly not. Her ladyship's gown must be finished."

"Then comes the inspector, and asks us all questions. Any one who speaks the truth is dismissed. Her ladyship's gown has got to be finished or I lose my week's wages as well as my place. Oh, don't say of 'fancy your gowns are made of silk and satin only."

"Our life and strength go into them, too. Do you think we don't want to live and breathe and feast a little, also? Sometimes the chance of it comes very near us—in an ugly way."

"Do you think it is always easy to resist, when you are dead tired, and your life is choked with work? Don't your silk skirts in some days, lazzars was to be held on St. George's in the east, the proceeds of which were to help that needy parish."

Will the rustle of the ladies' skirts sometimes give him this message, and bid the think of the girls who sew their strength with their stitches?"

GRACIOUS AND KINDLY No more gracious and kindly act was ever done by the queen than the little episode which sent her to the parish of St. George's in the east, one of the poorest and most populous in that densely crowded East London.

The queen was to open a flower show in the People's palace, a huge building, which is the direct outcome of the writings of Sir Walter Besant's book, "All Sorts and Conditions of Men," which so aroused the interest and the conscience of London that his ideal materialized.

On the same day, lazzars was to be held on St. George's in the east, the proceeds of which were to help that needy parish.

The clergyman was in despair on discovering that the date for the flower show was the same as the date for his bazaar, and he wrote to appeal to the queen to know whether it could not possibly be changed, as the burden of raising $60,000 per annum falls directly on the rector.

The queen, with that quick sympathy which characterizes her, immediately grasped the situation, and answered that though she could not change the date of the flower show, which was in connection with the London hospital at the People's palace, she would visit the bazaar in order that the interest might be maintained, and that the funds should not suffer.

A large proportion of women workers have, no doubt, recently made incursions into territories hitherto held by men.

THE WOMEN WORKERS The last census returns show that we have 86 women auctioneers, architects, 29 bailiffs, 316 blacksmiths, 2,877 brickmakers, 3,850 butchers, 54 chimney sweeps, 1 dock laborer, 5,170 goldsmiths, 9,693 printers, 745 railway porters, 117,640 tailors and 3 veterinary surgeons.

It is fair to say that there are a great number of women in business now who are highly successful. The trouble, however, is, to my mind, that woman has not yet a clearly defined place in the industrial world.

From one point of view she is an object of charity; from another point of view she is still a social menace, largely on account of the fact that she works as a makeshift, always looking to marriage as the ultimate end, for the permanency of woman in the industrial world is as a class, but not as an individual, and

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional treatment requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. the fact still remains that woman's work is sought because it is cheaper than men's.

The formation of a trades union by the telephone girls of London, which is an outcome of the recent strike, is, however, an indication that women are beginning to understand that if their work is now an established fact and that the demand for women employees is increasing they must unite in order to give themselves the protection which men acquire by the art of combining.

A NEW INDUSTRY Miss Ethel Robinson, the clever concert director, whose name is now familiar as an agent to all musicians, has opened a new branch of industry to women.

Born of a wealthy family, her father lost his fortune in the failure of the Bank of the Cape of Good Hope, and Miss Robinson, with characteristic bravery, determined to lighten the burden which had fallen upon her father's shoulders.

She has an undoubted gift for organizing, and her calling is the direct result of the fact that one of her artist friends requested her one day to give her the benefit of her help in organizing a concert.

The result was so successful that Miss Robinson determined to devote herself to this calling. She has had for some time the entire management of the Joachim concerts and is now the sole agent for a large number of well known artists. She has undertaken the Festivals festival, and has been agent to that clever artist, Marie Hall.

Business increased so fast that it became necessary for Miss Robinson to take a partner, and with singular wisdom she determined to take her husband, whom she married three and a half years ago, into business partnership, and these "two heads in counsel" are now among the most successful concert directors of our time.

ABOUT BALLET GIRLS It is always unwise to generalize and never more so than by condemning a class or calling without sufficient information. Many excellent people really believe that to be a ballet girl is synonymous with being a woman of bad character.

I do not intend to enter into any defence of the profession, but I am perfectly certain that such criticism is unfounded. There have been occasions to see behind the scenes of the ballet girl's life, and I know in how many instances to a girl of independent temperament, the calling has had attractions, largely on account of her love for music and dancing.

A great proportion of the London ballet girls are drawn from classes that are well brought up, but some misfortune having befallen the family, they have sought this means of earning a living as the easiest they knew. For years the calling has been terribly overstocked, and hundreds are now out of employment. How little is the tragedy of life understood by those who watch the graceful, gaily dressed figures of the smiling girls.

Many have relations dependent on them, widowed mothers, paralyzed fathers, or little brothers and sisters. There is one man here who stands in a sort of father to his profession, to whom the ballet and chorus girls never hesitate to pour out their troubles.

Mr. William Forbes has worked in season and out of season to better their condition and help them spiritually and physically. He has organized picnics and teas, he has taken large parties into the green glades of Epping Forest. He knows their histories, their successes, their failures. Good it is to feel that these girls, whose lives are so often assailed by trial and temptation can thus count a godly man as their second father.

Kaufman county farmers are going to sprinkle their cotton with Bearmont oil as a remedy for the boll weevil, and it appears that the South Texas product is rapidly becoming a panacea for many evils.

THE FINAL CHARGE

THE ASSAULT AND CAPTURE OF KIN CHAU HEIGHTS

There is much anticipation regarding the opening of the theatrical season in this city August 15, when the Greenwall opera house will present for a week the Albert Taylor stock company in repertoire.

Among the principals in the big company, several are well known by reputation, although never having sung in the south. There is Joseph Sheehan, the greatest living "High C" tenor, and Gertrude Remson, whose bell-like soprano is a favorite in Washington, whose Desdemona in Verdi's "Othello" has caused her to be compared favorably with Mme. Farnes.

The Savage company will have a repertoire of a dozen operas, including such works as "Lohengrin," "Tannhauser," "Othello," "La Boheme," "Carmen," "Tosca," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci," and revivals of "Il Traviatore" and "Bohemian Girl."

Business Manager Frank C. Payne was in the city this week, calling on music lovers and making preliminary arrangements for the big tour of the Savage company.

The actual route to be taken by the Savage Grand Opera Company has not been definitely settled, but it will be heard in this city. We are much encouraged by the friendly attitude of your music lovers, who are not wholly unfamiliar with the nine years' history of this company.

"We hope to introduce ourselves so favorably that an annual festival can be offered hereafter. The Savage company asks no guarantee beyond the good will of all classes of opera goers. Give us a chance to show our grand opera productions, and we feel sure the English artists will become favorites."

can't bend to kiss the children, so wrapt up in national affairs he hasn't time to say, 'foes he can't whisper in the ears of men—that about covers the senator's case. Men who have worked in politics with Fairbanks know that he can be jugged. But when he faces a crowd, the ice begins to form.

The democrats are laying a deal of stress on their chairman's hold on the heartstrings of the people. They are inclined to believe that Taggart may be able to win votes for Parker and Davis on the strength of his own personality. It has won votes for him in municipal campaigns.

A great many republicans took advantage of the wealth of Vice Presidential Nominee Davis to make sarcastic references to "hoodlums." The entrance of Daniel Reid, the multimillionaire tinplate magnate, into the republican race for senator gives democrats the opportunity to hint at "bar's," etc.

Reid is dead set on getting Fairbanks' toes. The democrats are circulating the report that the republican campaign committee will draw heavily on Reid's barrel, in order to assure a republican legislature.

Indiana politicians of the ward-heeler class are looking forward to a golden harvest. It is around Reid's candidacy that most interest centers now. The rumor is current that Reid has the encouragement of the state committee and also of some of his rivals for the senate. It has been known for some time that the republicans were not positive as to the source of a fund for campaign purposes.

Knowing gentlemen say that the republicans expect Reid to supply the wherewithal on the grounds that first of all the state must be carried before any one can go to the senate. What may happen to Reid after the election is left for chroniclers of political news in days to come.

Leaders might suddenly arrive at the conclusion that it would never do to send a trust magnate to the senate.

At the moment when Prince William, the oldest son of the kaiser, left the imperial palace on horseback to take part in a military maneuver, an elegantly dressed young lady, holding a small baby in her arms, descended from her carriage and knelt down in front of the crown prince's horse.

The young prince stopped his horse and the lady handed him a petition, in which she asked him to commission a court official who had seduced her and who was the father of her baby, to marry her.

The names of both the young lady, who is said to be of an excellent family, and her faithless lover have so far been kept secret, but since his return from Norway, the kaiser has ordered an investigation and has promised the girl to see justice done.

The city of Munich has the honor of having the first female hotel porter. Among the numerous hotel porters who meet the travelers on incoming trains two beautiful young girls, in the livery of a first-class hotel, have attracted general attention.

Their male colleagues are very bitter against these new competitors for trade, who have been remarkably successful, and are complaining that they are in danger of losing their positions because the female porters carry off all the desirable guests, and grumble at women-haters, who are neither very good customers for their hotels nor very liberal in the way of tips.

The famous old Hohenzollern castle, Aalenberg, in the village of the same name, near Nuerberg, is advertised for sale, and it is feared that unless the reichstag makes an appropriation to buy the castle it may be snatched up by some American multi-millionaire, who would probably be delighted to acquire the castle where the founders of the noble family of Hohenzollern were born.

The castle, which in its present form was built in the eleventh century, was the "Stammeschloss" of the Burggraves of Nuerberg, from whom the Hohenzollerns descend. It is more than improbable that the reichstag will see any reason to appropriate money to buy the castle, and the kaiser is said not to be in a position to pay for the large and costly estate out of his own pocket.

"the Great," and that Bismarck and Molke were only his tools, who carried out his plans, it is easily understood how furious this book has made him, written by a man who stood in the very midst of the events when he himself was hardly out of his swaddling clothes.

That he will take revenge on Count Mittenbach in some way no one doubts, but how he will do it is the question which now occupies the German mind.

Immediately after the assassination orders were received from the kaiser, who fears for the life of his friend, Czar Nicholas, that every political suspect in Germany, as well as every person of no commercial standing, who receives or sends mail to Russia, must be closely watched, and that the mere mention of the name of the "hoodlums" of the hundreds of people are now under close surveillance and many houses have been searched, whereby thousands of pamphlets threatening the lives of both the czar and the kaiser have been discovered.

A large anarchistic printing establishment was found in a cellar, but the men themselves succeeded in making their escape. It is thought that this establishment was connected with the gang of anarchists who were recently tried at Kolmsberg on a charge made by the Russian consul general of having conspired against the life of the czar.

The lawyer defending these pleaded that his clients ought to be acquitted on the rather novel grounds that Russia is not a civilized country and that there was no German law to forbid plotting against the lives of any rulers but those of civilized nations.

The czar's government maintained agents in the Balkan states to create disturbances, and also that Russia was responsible for the assassination of King Alexander of Serbia and Prime Minister Stambouloff of Bulgaria.

The author, who is a most conservative man, some time ago went to America, where he worked as common laborer in a brewery and a bicycle factory in Illinois without any one having any idea of his true position.

"I went to America," Councillor Kolb writes in his book, "with the intention of gathering material for a book in which I had hoped to prove the injustice of the demands of the working classes, but my practical experience entirely changed my view of labor questions."

I found problems of whose existence I had no idea and I can not deny that my sympathies are no longer with the employers, and must admit that most of the demands made by the unions are just and fair.

These and other similar expressions with which the book abounds, written by a man who was formerly ultra-conservative, have, of course, been greeted with great satisfaction by the socialists, who claim that every fair-minded person under similar circumstances would come to the same conclusion.

An ENORMOUS SENSATION All Potsdam is discussing an incident which happened the other day and which has caused an enormous sensation at court.

At the moment when Prince William, the oldest son of the kaiser, left the imperial palace on horseback to take part in a military maneuver, an elegantly dressed young lady, holding a small baby in her arms, descended from her carriage and knelt down in front of the crown prince's horse.

The young prince stopped his horse and the lady handed him a petition, in which she asked him to commission a court official who had seduced her and who was the father of her baby, to marry her.

The names of both the young lady, who is said to be of an excellent family, and her faithless lover have so far been kept secret, but since his return from Norway, the kaiser has ordered an investigation and has promised the girl to see justice done.

A THUNDERBOLT AT SEA

[Copyright, 1904, by C. B. Lewis.] This was the situation at 10 o'clock of a fine June morning many years ago: A big English sailing ship called the Kangaroo, one of the last of the Australian packets, was lying becalmed off the African coast to the south of St. Helena, and three miles away was a rakish brig, also without movement. The brig had crept out from the coast during the night under the influence of airs too light to flare a candle.

As was afterward known, she was a Spanish rover called the Celeste. The Kangaroo would not have been put in a state of defense but for the passengers. Many of them became nervous at the sight of the brig, and to quiet them and at the same time exercise the crew the guns were cast loose, small arms served out, and the peaceful packet was turned into a man-of-war.

There was a providence in it. When the stranger saw that he was suspected he threw off all disguise. Of a sudden his decks were alive with men running about, and later on four boats were lowered and filled with armed men. They were coming to attack the Kangaroo. They must have known that she was armed and had a strong crew aboard, but the pirates of old were men to take long chances. When the boats left the brig's side we counted fifty-two men in all, and it seemed as if as many more were left behind. The black flag was hoisted, and there could no longer be a question as to the sort of men we had to deal with.

The passengers of the Kangaroo to a man volunteered to assist the crew, and we were presently prepared to give a good account of ourselves. We could not long before the pirates reached us that they comprised several nationalities and that they were a desperate lot. The boats divided as they came on, and when within a mile of us the fellows began cheering.

Our first shot was from one of the big guns and could not have been better. It struck one of the boats far on the stem and split her open full length, and of those not killed outright only two or three were picked up. The disaster only made the rascals the more desperate. Raising a yell, the three remaining boats dashed at us and were soon so close that the big guns were of no further use.

We met them with bullets and buckshot, and we have cold shot into their boats as they hooked on, and no gang of pirates ever got a harder drubbing. Although we lost two men killed and several wounded, not an enemy got aboard, and only two boats and eighteen men returned to the brig.

That night the damaged spars were replaced, shot holes plugged up, and there was no reason why we should not safely make the Cape. When daylight came we congratulated each other over our victory, and the captain had just decided to make a sort of holiday in honor of the event when a thunderstorm came racing up behind us, and in the midst of the black cloud was the pirate brig. Instead of sailing away in search of a haven or other prey when she had repaired damages she had picked up our trail and was going to give us another brush.

Such grim persistence at first brought a feeling of fright, but this soon gave place to one of grim determination to fight her to the death and show her no mercy. When we had her crippled the night before we could have destroyed her, but Captain Wilson simply sailed away. He now promised the crew to sink her if he could, and there was cheering as the men went to the guns.

Down came the black cloud, and with it down came the pirate, with his black flag flying, and as he ranged up on our port quarter at half rifle shot he opened fire. His first shot struck a gun and killed three men, and his second wounded five men. Then the storm broke, the sea increased, and, although the firing continued, no great damage was done on either side.

Daylight was turned into evening by the storm. There was heavy rain, with gusts of wind and the keenest of lightning and the loudest of thunder. Our decks were ankle deep, but every man stood to his gun and continued to fight. As the darkness increased the brig crept closer to us, and during the last ten minutes of the fight one could have heaven a stone aboard of her.

One saw her in the play of the lightning and for an instant could almost look into the eyes of the men aboard, and then for a few seconds she would be lost in the darkness. So terrific and continuous was the roll of thunder that the reports of the guns were unheard. You felt the concussion along the deck, but the report was lost in the war of the elements.

Loading and firing every gun which would bear as fast as possible, the Kangaroo rushed forward on her course and, hanging to her quarter like a bulldog to his prey, followed the Celeste. Of a sudden there was a great crash aloft, and down came a fore and main topmast together. The men were called from the guns to clear the wreckage, and the ship was in danger of broaching to and being swept when there came such a flash of lightning as seemed to burn the eyeballs. This was followed by a thunderclap which seemed to lift the ship out of the water, and then fifty pairs of eyes saw a great spout of flame shoot up out of the sea. In the midst of the flame were masts, yards and sails and flying objects.

The brig had been struck by lightning, and her magazine had blown up. There was a puff, a boom, a gust of red flame, and that was the end. She was blown into matchwood, with her black flag whipping in the gale and her crew working at the guns, and the last pirate craft to plow the south Atlantic was no more. M. QUAD.

HUMAN INTERESTS

Yes, it is hot. The office seems stuffy and your temper is human. You can hardly see the figures at times. The dust from the street sifts in and fills your lungs; there is a queer ache in your back and your heart.

You, a worker, wonder why a man slaves and dyes and toils, and the next day and the days that come after goes through the same old routine.

At home it is lonesome. You touch the piano and the notes sound ghostly. The place seems like a funeral. It lacks the human touch that only the presence of a woman and children can give.

TAGGART AND A TIN PLATE MAN

If Fairbanks is Elected Vice President a Trust Magnate Will Succeed Him in Senate

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 5.—If it were a question of resigning popularity in the presidential campaign in Indiana, Thomas Taggart would win hands down over Senator Fairbanks. Taggart has so many friends in the state that he makes no effort to court them. The best he can do is to keep a small pocket memorandum of the few members of his own party who, through personal ambition, have tried to ascend without his permission.

Taggart has spent all the years of his life in Indiana making friends. He begins with the head of the family, irrespective of politics, and continues down the line until the youngest baby feels the imprint of a Taggart kiss.

Senator Fairbanks does not mean to be cold. It's just his way. So tall that he

A TENDER SPOT

Wurtemberg Minister of State Has Written a Life of Bismarck Which Touches the Present Emperor

IT CRITICISES KAISER Iron Chancellor Glorified and Demand of Emperor That Is Spoken of in Terms No Way Complimentary

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—Germans are wondering what will happen to the Wurtemberg minister of state, Count Herman von Mittenbach, who in his book on the life of Prince Bismarck has touched the kaiser's tenderest spot.

The book, which has just appeared, and the title of which is already exhausted, not only glorified the late Iron Chancellor, but it severely criticises the kaiser for his treatment of Germany's greatest statesman and diplomat, whom he rudely told to resign in 1900, when he was still a hot-headed young man, evidently jealous because Prince Bismarck put him completely in the shadow.

In biting sarcasm the count attacks the snobs at court who tried to win the favor of the young kaiser, by humiliating the fallen statesman in every possible manner as soon as they saw that his power was gone.

There is no doubt that several courtiers now very close to the kaiser are smarting under Mittenbach's merciless lashes, and some of them are even said to think of challenging him to a duel.

But this is not all. The count, who probably more than any other German played the chief parts in the creation of the German empire, takes away the halo with which the present kaiser laboriously has surrounded the head of his grandfather, the first German emperor, Wilhelm der Grosse. Without directly saying anything about the first Hohenzollern bearer of the imperial crown, he proves that Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was a most mediocre person, without any special gift or talent, who was carried to power on the shoulders of Prince Bismarck and Field Marshal Von Moltke, to whom all honor for the creation of the empire justly belongs.

When one knows how much work it has cost the present kaiser to install it into the minds of his subjects that his grandfather had every claim on the title of

FIRST FEMALE PORTER

The city of Munich has the honor of having the first female hotel porter. Among the numerous hotel porters who meet the travelers on incoming trains two beautiful young girls, in the livery of a first-class hotel, have attracted general attention.

Their male colleagues are very bitter against these new competitors for trade, who have been remarkably successful, and are complaining that they are in danger of losing their positions because the female porters carry off all the desirable guests, and grumble at women-haters, who are neither very good customers for their hotels nor very liberal in the way of tips.

CASTLE FOR SALE The famous old Hohenzollern castle, Aalenberg, in the village of the same name, near Nuerberg, is advertised for sale, and it is feared that unless the reichstag makes an appropriation to buy the castle it may be snatched up by some American multi-millionaire, who would probably be delighted to acquire the castle where the founders of the noble family of Hohenzollern were born.

The castle, which in its present form was built in the eleventh century, was the "Stammeschloss" of the Burggraves of Nuerberg, from whom the Hohenzollerns descend. It is more than improbable that the reichstag will see any reason to appropriate money to buy the castle, and the kaiser is said not to be in a position to pay for the large and costly estate out of his own pocket.

TO MAKE A GIFT The city of Rome, which recently, very much against the will of the majority of its citizens, was embellished with a great Gothic monument, has decided to take revenge on the kaiser and present him with a similar gift.

Money is now being collected for an imposing statue of the famous Italian poet, Dante, which, it is hoped, will give the people of Berlin as many unpleasant hours as did the kaiser's present to the Romans.

NOBILITY IS INDIGNANT The Polish nobility is highly indignant at the recent sentence to prison of one of its members, Count Berlin Binskiy, for playing with marked cards at the house of the German count, Popinski.

They declare that the convicted man is innocent and have boycotted all members of German aristocratic families in Poland and declare that they will not rest until they have driven them out of the Polish provinces.

JAPAN NEEDS MONEY Japan must be in need of money, is the conclusion at which Germans have arrived after the receipt of the news that a Jew has been made a real marquis by the mikado.

This first Jewish marquis is Dr. Emil Rothmann, for years physician to the imperial family at Tokio.

Should the mikado make up his mind to be liberal with his marquis titles, there are any number of German Jews who would readily supply Japan with money enough to carry on the war indefinitely.

A MODISH SET

BLACK WITH TEA ROSES

ARTISTIC ENSEMBLE

SORTIE DE BAL

Description of Above Models.

An Artistic Ensemble.

There is an air of modish smartness in this street costume, which is due to the harmony of the different items. The gown, which was part of the exhibition of the International Society of Dress-makers, and to whom courtesy for the reproduction is due, is in Havana brown voile with trailing lace appliques, touched up with Empire green, the same tint furnishing the foundation silk and showing faintly through the meshes of the voile. The hat, a black crinoline straw which tones itself with the brown of the broad brim, lifted in the Gainsborough manner on the left side. Long black ostrich plumes are posed around the crown and under the brim, where they rest on the hair. The extremely stylish fichu is in a very faint biscuit tint, which tones well with the brown of the gown; the inner portion is in ruffled tulle and the border in velvet, black, coq feathers and chiffon pleating, long streamers of velvet ribbon making a smart finish at the front. The parasol is in the same tint.

Sortie de Bal.

This quaint and old-fashioned hood is cleverly combined with a hint of a shoulder cape, to which long stole ends are applied in the front. There is a chiffon foundation to the hood, the outer part shirred and ruffled all around the portion which comes next the face, and the "curtain" hanging cape fashion over the shoulders. The long ends are in chiffon shirred at intervals, and the point d'esprit silk net is edged with a chiffon ruche.

Set Of Hat, Boa And Muff En Suite.

The liking for matched sets is one of the newest features of the current fashions. In the illustration the hat is made of pleated silk, mounted upon a wire frame having a bell crown and smartly upturned brim. A huge Napoleon rose in black velvet, set with a jet buckle, is posed on the flap of the left side, and loops and ends of the same ribbon hang at the back. Jet sprays completing the garniture. Both boa and muff are fashioned upon a silk foundation, and the liberty mouslin is shirred with alternate satin and velvet baby ribbons, the long stole ends of the boa being repeated at each side of the muff. The silk net will readily lend itself to any costume, for the touch of black is just as piquantly modish as it ever was.

Draped With a Lace Mantilla.

There is rather more than a hint of the romantic possibilities of the Spanish mantilla, famed in song and story, in the disposition of the lace upon this picture hat. The large, splashing bow of black velvet ribbon is spread over the flat crown, and beneath the brim a paradise plume falls toward the back. Tea roses in the natural tint are posed on each side of the front, and lend the only color relief to the otherwise all black hat.

All Black With Tea Roses.

Here one of the plateau shapes is mounted upon a velvet-covered bandeau and dented becomingly in front, so that the brim curves gracefully over the face. A large, splashing bow of black velvet ribbon is spread over the flat crown, and beneath the brim a paradise plume falls toward the back. Tea roses in the natural tint are posed on each side of the front, and lend the only color relief to the otherwise all black hat.

A Fascinating Set.

For garden party or fete champetre this quaint set of hat, parasol and fichu, all fashioned en suite, will be distractingly pretty. The hat is an adaptation of the poke bonnet, which we have been hearing so much about, but seldom see. Made altogether of shirred chiffon, both crown and inner brim are encircled with a wreath of tiny button roses and forget-me-nots, and the long white satin strings are brought around and tied demurely under the chin. The fichu of supple white satin and lace has a thick garniture of the small flowers, and long lace-edged sash ends tie in front. The parasol is likewise of chiffon and lace, mounted over white satin, and sprays of the flowers are artistically disposed over the canopy portion. The long handle is in natural boxwood.

Home-made Floor Stain.

For the economical housewife who wishes to darken floor boards innocent of any coloring a good and very cheap staining can be gotten by buying five cents' worth of permanganate of potash which, when mixed with two quarts of water, will stain a floor nicely. The cost of coloring a room need not be over two or three cents aside from the labor of applying the permanganate to the wood. Be sure and wash your floor carefully and then allow it to dry thoroughly. If you want a darker color than results from the first coat of staining, let it dry well and repeat the operation. This staining will take a splendid polish from beeswax, and turpentine or hard oil can be used, but the home-made staining and the beeswax and turpentine can be made to do the work for almost nothing aside from the extra trouble of preparing the articles.

By Our Special Correspondent, MIRIAM SPIER.

Shoulder fol-de-rols occupy a large place in the fashionable woman's toilet this summer. They are of all shapes, including such time-honored styles as the mantilla, dolman, shawl, fichu and the like. Chiffon, taffeta and lace are made up into some of the quaintest little garments. There are all sorts of little wraps which have sprung up like the dandelions that may contribute greatly to the limitless extravagance of the up-to-date summer girl. The bolero, eon, blouse, dolman, cape and pelerine are the original types to which these pretty garments owe their origin. Two-piece gowns of the thin, sheer materials and silks will be worn with little loose outdoor shoulder coverings of silk or lace. By preference both silk and lace are of the same shade as the frocks. For example, with a gray-green taffeta, shot with self-colored jacquard figures, there is a lace bolero dyed to match exactly. This is trimmed with narrow fringe and the tiny shirred bands of the silk, which are introduced on the deep Spanish flounce of the skirt and also on the waist. To make skirt, waist and bolero one in scheme was the plan. A gown of gray crepe de chine had the most fringed of little wraps, made of plain taffeta of the same tone. On this were used the same ribbon fringe and flowered wattleau discs as appeared on the waist. Plain taffeta is used in a similar way, with figured silks, the color of either ground or design being matched to a nicety. The broad, drooping effects that characterize this season's modes have led to the rage for whimsical shoulder draperies, which will be seen in all their variations at the leading fashionable summer resorts. The stole of many evolutions yielded its place to the pelerine, which in turn has given way before the fichu and dolman shapes, closely followed by the old friend, the cape. Demurely crossed fichus and surplice effects are always contemporaries, and this season is no exception. Some of the newest wraps, like the gowns, are distinguished by their richness. They are of white, black or champagne colored lace, chiffon or net, accordion pleated and overlaid with motifs of heavy lace. The points and leaves on these are frequently interlaced with knotted narrow ribbons. The wraps are kimono shaped and collarless. Many show the new flat bows of velvet ribbon. Some are unlined, others show through their transparent material a lining of flowered silk or chiffon, and flower petals to match for a fringe along their edge. Deep flounces of knife-plaited lace or chiffon fill the sleeve opening and peep from beneath the lace border below. An elaborate carriage wrap for an afternoon drive is rather long, made of string-colored louisine and plaited chiffon of the same tint, and is voluminous in shape and trimmed in tiers of twine fringe. For summer costumes there is nothing that will rival the little bolero or eon in the shape of a serviceable wrap. And so many pretty fancies can be adapted to it. Below yokes the fronts and backs hang in accordion plaits, side plaits and box plaits or in no plaits at all, but with all sorts and conditions of points and scallops and waved lines. With girlish figures, the little coat, as a rule, reaches only to the upper edge of high girdles. With matronly figures a waist and length is preferred. For dress occasions there are seen at the largely attended dances of the leading hotels no end of variations on the little Louis XVI. wraps, and all are made as airy and frivolous as possible with frills and plaits, ruches and puffings. For these small accessories thin silks in pretty shades are being very much used. For shoulder "throws," lace scarfs and fichus are lined with chiffon and mouseline de sole plaitings. Women who have to study expense are making the inexpensive little liberty silk flat ruffs found at the neckwear counter presenable and becoming by topping them with little fancy collars of lace or embroidery. As much in evidence as ever is the greatly favored feather boa. Nowadays it is long and flat, and tends to give a broad look across the shoulders. The marabou is very soft, but is only suitable for evening wear. One would think that, after so many years, the boa would take a much-needed rest; but since it is graduated into the stole it has taken a firmer hold than ever, and the chances are that it will last through a good many seasons. Other tones come and go, but the stole in black and white outlasts them all. There are hosts of possibilities in little shoulder wraps which may be produced at moderate cost. A pretty little affair made of a softly tinted silk dotted gauze net is a dainty convenience for cool evenings on the veranda and other occasions. The net is shirred at the top and bottom of the cape, which extends half way to the elbow, and the full shirred tabs fall from the throat to the knees. The entire edge is finished with a double ruching of the same net, which is shirred also. The first warm spell has brought out capricious little wraps in great variety and they are made of every material which is modish. With elaborate costumes of silk or wool (of course very light weight) the fancy little bolero is the leader. It also graces the smart linen suits so much in evidence in this year's warm weather wardrobe. This diminutive garment is abbreviated or amplified to suit all figures, its lines knowing no restrictions. The bolero, in fact, of this day of grace, runs the gamut of the once popular zouave and Eton and encroaches on the domain of the blouse, in name at least. Then there are all sorts of plays on cape and pelerine effects, so after a connoisseur has taken the second look at many of the most fashionable wraps she is still uncertain whether the sleeve is a sleeve in fact or in appearance only. No daintier attire for a young girl, or, for that matter, for the pretty matron, was ever invented than the flowing sleeve bolero, with its dainty lingerie blouse and undersleeve. Accompanied by trig fixings, wide, crushed girdle and becoming hats, many such getups are every whit as attractive as the canvases the artists display. A stunning little bolero of changeable blue taffeta is trimmed with a galloon which mingles blue, black and gold. The shoulders are very low. The flowing sleeve falls over the lingerie sleeve frills of the blouse. Brass buttons and black cord trim the front. The same buttons also finish the sleeves and the deep suede girdle. A pretty Parisian idea, and fascinatingly attractive, is the combination of the shoulder wrap, picture hat and parasol to match. This thought can be charmingly carried out this season at the many elaborate affairs held at the leading fashionable resorts where garden parties and other appropriate occasions afford the display of magnificent attire, particularly of the important accessories which are essential in completing the toilette. Strikingly beautiful was a set combining hat, parasol and fichu. The hat was designed in the new poke bonnet shape and made entirely of shirred white chiffon. Within the edge of the inner brim, also on the crown, were gracefully arranged wreaths of tiny button roses and forget-me-nots. Long, white satin strings, brought around from the back of the bonnet and tied loosely under the chin, add a quaint touch. The fichu has a double ruffle of the super white satin, which continue in two long sash ends at the front. The ruffles are edged entirely with a dainty accordion-plaited Valenciennes lace, which idea is continued upon the ruffle of the parasol. Both fichu and parasol are strewn with sprays of the small flowers. The long sash ends are carelessly, though artistically, tied below the bust and extended just to the knees. The same materials are employed in the parasol, the handle being in the natural wood and straight. The hats that accompany these beautiful pelerines of chiffon lace and flowers are great Gainsboroughs, trimmed with birds of Paradise and exquisite drooping arrays of flowers, or with graceful plumes that seem a very part of the picture hats. At a big garden party held recently in London's social circles many of the hats worn were enormous. They may suit the taste of the English woman, but are extraordinary, nevertheless. True, the general effect is good; and, after all, that is the only test of a chapeau. The Louis XVII, which is so very broad across the face, has been a favorite model. One immense rose, with a little foliage, is all that some of the hats are garnished with. The shepherds are much worn, but it takes a severely beautiful ensemble to set off the shepherdess to advantage. No doubt these hats will suit the women who will wear them, for the English certainly have a peculiar style. After a while one becomes accustomed to their loose way of dressing, but it causes rather a shock at first. When flowers are the fashion the hats are always more or less pretty. This year any woman with a little taste may trim her own chapeau successfully. All that is necessary is a becoming shape. She may select flowers to be arranged as advantageously as possible. Nine hats out of ten have no other trimming than flowers, and surely nothing could be prettier. Half the well-dressed Parisiennes trim their headgear themselves. That is why we meet with such an infinite variety of hats on the street. If all were entrusted to the artistes there would be a great monotony. As it is, every woman is her own milliner, and we are treated to a great and agreeable diversity. Feathers, in spite of the existing summer mists and humidity, are very much used. A large shaped picture hat of fine white straw is trimmed with shaded violet ribbon and a long plume in the palest tint brought from the back of the crown and artistically drooping over the brim at the side. Another hat of the Louis XVI. order is rather large and of black straw. It is wreathed with pink roses. These are veiled with a chantilly scarf which knots at the back. In a hat of black velvet, lace the entire crown is composed of small roses. At the side roses and foliage mingle. The enormous roses which made their appearance a fortnight or so ago have changed into the flat variety, which are much prettier and more becoming. Now, one big rose with a little foliage is sufficient in decoration for any chapeau. The hats this season are, unfortunately, very heavy, made so from the quantities of flowers employed. Then, the straws are by no means light, so that, together with the garniture, the woman who escapes headaches by wearing one an hour will be difficult to find. Some of the best hats in straw are colored over the face, while the top of the brim is cut steel and duty. Soft straws are no longer in vogue, but those presenting a hard, stiff surface. This effect is very trying against the face, and the woman who shuns this must adopt the lace or embroidered chapeaus. These are dainty and most becoming to young faces, but the woman whose visage shows that she has passed middle life had better leave the capeline alone. The hats this season are undeniably pretty, but they are pre-eminently for young women. However, the well-dressed woman understands her business, and after giving the matter long thought (as such cases are duty she owes herself as well as others) decides which will suit her style best. In the picture hat there is more opportunity for adaptation to individual becomingness than in almost any other fashion. lends itself agreeably to "the lace drapery" that is so prominent a feature of the new modes, and to the youthful face is generally becoming. Button roses are the crown of these hats and also over the bandeau. Picturesque in the extreme is a directoire hat made of black chantilly lace associated with cream white lace. Black velvet ribbon and a cut steel buckle are the only trimming. The black lace covers the low crown and also the wide brim. On the brim it is draped in veil fashion, with a curtain effect at the back. Wide black velvet ribbon encircles the crown and is tied in a bow with long loops and ends that fall over the lace at the back. The buckle is placed in front against the crown, the ribbon velvet being passed through in soft folds. Vells are fashionable, particularly lace vells of the mesh chantilly is much used, also d'esprit and thread laced, by those who have family heirlooms. The object of the veil appears to be to serve as a decoration to the hat rather than as a face protector. Indeed, all the picture hats have vells, which are deftly and coquettishly manipulated.

For the warm days, when the veil over the face is likely to prove oppressive, the veil is draped in just the same style as though it is to be worn down all around, and then the front is thrown back over the crown of the hat, while the back hangs down in curtain fashion, thus conforming to the latest style. The chemise-dotted vells are shown with a tape border, this latter sometimes in contrasting color, which affords an added firmness to the selvage.

TEXAS DEMOCRACY. The democrats of Texas have held their state convention adopted their state platform, elected their state chairman and executive committee and gone home. CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—The strike leaders in the big packing house walk-out have been leaving nothing undone to prevent violence. Not only by word but by example have they sought to restrain their men. One of the means used by Donnelly and his lieutenants was the payment of strike benefits in food. The unions opened commissary stores, where the regular weekly strike benefit was paid out to the wives and children of the strikers in food. The offer was declined by the unions.

"Set a Thief to Catch a Thief"

(Original.) "I don't like this trip, Archie, at this time especially, so soon after having been married. Besides, Carlotta knows no one here. I wish you'd do what you can for Carlotta while I'm gone."

"Certainly, Bob. Doesn't she know any one at all?" "A few women and one man—that fellow Reynolds. I don't like him, and I should prefer to have you monopolize her time rather than that he should have a chance to do so."

"But, my dear boy, why not leave it to her?" "She's young, unsophisticated and a woman. I don't believe in temptation for any one. How do we know that if you or I—"

"Rats! We're not women. I'd trust you or myself anywhere. But I'll do my best for you, old man."

Robert Young left on a two months' journey, and on the evening of his departure his bosom friend, Archie May, called on his wife. He had barely been seated when Mrs. Young raised a pair of mild blue eyes to his and said: "Bob told me before he went away that I was to be guided in my associates by you. I think you'd better tell me just whom to avoid."

"What a child!" thought May. "One would suppose I was her papa." Then he told her he wouldn't presume to do such a thing.

"I'm very anxious," she said, "to so conduct myself that you can conscientiously make a good report of me to Bob when he returns. If there is any one he would have me avoid I wish to know it."

May fenced with her for awhile, but she coaxed and teased till at last she got the secret out of him that Martin Reynolds was the man of all others to be avoided.

Now, there was nothing against Martin Reynolds except that he was a very attractive young man and a general favorite. May kept his promise to his friend to take care of his young wife by calling regularly three times a week. At the end of ten weeks the nights when he didn't call became a bore to him. Then one evening he called and found Reynolds in his place. May looked sternly at Mrs. Young, who cast down her eyes in a self reproachful manner, but when Reynolds left she explained that circumstances had led to Reynolds' visit and she couldn't have avoided inviting him without appearing uncivil. May still appearing dissatisfied, she began to coax him not to blame her, at last begging him to excuse her with tears. That ended May's fatherly sternness, and he forgave her on condition that she discourage any further visits from the objectionable man. The coolness between May and the lady was followed by a very happy reconciliation.

Ten days after this episode a friend of May's said to him: "Seems to me Mart Reynolds is getting pretty thick with that little Mrs. Young."

"What makes you think so?" "Well, my sister has been in to see her two nights during this week, and my cousin has been there another night. Reynolds has been there all three evenings."

May was startled. He had been to see his charge every alternate evening, therefore Reynolds must have been to see her on every other alternate evening.

When May went to see Mrs. Young again there was a scene. She admitted everything, but declared that she was a victim of circumstances. May was convinced that she needed protection from Reynolds, and his blood boiled to protect her. Mrs. May begged him not to tell her husband of Reynolds' attentions and managed to find an opportunity to bring in an admission that she infinitely preferred him (May) to Reynolds. This mollified May, and the danger from Reynolds seemed less terrifying. From this time very tender relations existed between May and his charge till a day or two before Robert Young's return. Then May and Reynolds met at Mrs. Young's, and she turned the cold shoulder on May, devoting herself exclusively to Reynolds. May deliberately insulted Reynolds by ordering him out of the house. Mrs. Young, after vainly endeavoring to restore peace, begged them both to leave, which they did.

The next morning Mrs. Young hired a detective to watch the two men and report every movement. At noon he brought her in a report, and she sent him to a telegraph office with a dispatch for her husband, to which a reply was received that he would be at home by the midnight train.

At 3 o'clock the next morning he was awakened by his wife, and half an hour later they were in a carriage driving to the suburbs, the detective on the box. Just before sunrise they turned into a wood and soon came to an open space shut in on all sides by trees. A small party was there, including May, Reynolds, two friends and a surgeon. Mrs. Young held her husband back till May and Reynolds were placed facing each other with pistols in their hands, when she rushed forward and threw herself dramatically between them.

"What in thunder does all this mean?" exclaimed her husband, coming up.

"It means, Bobby, dear, that the next time you go away and leave me in care of one of your fascinating friends to keep off one of your fascinating enemies you'd better put a watch on them to keep them from shooting one another. Come, gentlemen, this has gone far enough. Get into your carriage, and we will do the same. I've ordered a sumptuous breakfast to celebrate Bobby's return, and we'll all go and eat it."

toilet that long sought balmy Southern shores. But morning and afternoon cootimes, simple as to treatment, elaborate, as occasion requires, will be in evidence during the summer. As to linen waist dresses, ones last summer saw only the ushering in of them. This summer, it is feared, will see them over-

Shirtwaists are still very much in evidence, and the materials used for their development are shown in great variety.
While the extremely heavy vestings are no longer seen, there are many attractive specimens of mercerized goods of light weight and having a rather coarse basket weave that will become popular and that will be worn with the pink, blue and cream, while old blue, outing or shirtwaist suit. The lustrous finish of this new mercerized fabric, which is termed lotus cloth and is shown only in a rich cream tint, makes it like silk and the pliable quality is a feature worthy of consideration, as present modes demand materials of this sort.

Estimates and volles are no longer confined to wools, but are shown in the new cotton and linen and some of these effects are most attractive. A cotton voile has a chine surface mingling soft old red or gray, green mixture with white are among the prettiest of the linen estimates. The smartest of morning or afternoon shirtwaist dresses are fashioned from these novelties. There is a great array of wash fabrics for the shirtwaist toilette; different styles in woolsens are reproduced in these materials; among the most popular of the recent importations are the dotted voiles and linsens, the border in many instances being almost half the skirt's length and in rich brooch or lacquered designs. These novelties are adapted to

The separate shirtwaist, from the standpoint of the "exclusive trade," is a tailor built affair that varies little in cut and finish from year to year; this summer its shoulders have increased in length an inch or less, and its cuffs, in some cases, have taken on a slight elaboration; but even these concessions to la mode are scouted by conservative dressers, who claim that "a shirt is a shirt" and they attempt to stick to it is out of good taste; among this class of waists linen is the leader, closely followed by muslin and other weaves in cotton. Out of this order, fine linsens and cottons and thin silks prevail. An especially pretty fabric partially edged by the bands which continued straight, half way down the waist from the shoulder, and the lower edge of the yoke was finished with soft four-in-hand and flowing ends, made of the plain colored silk; the sleeves were full and plain with the exception of the deep lace cuff, which gave it a very chic finish.

Shirtwaist dresses, as are called the more elaborate ones, are now such an important feature in the fashionable outfit that a lot of time and thought is expended in planning them so that they shall be becoming and at the same time smart, not always the same thing, be it understood. To wear with dark cloths, silk or velvet costumes, while fashion commands there shall be a waist to match the skirt, there must be as well an attractive white waist; these can be fashioned of muslin, lace, batiste, satin or silk and are elaborate in design. The fashion of wearing a waist made of wash material, either embroidered or trimmed with lace over a fitted silk lining, is quite a popular one, and certainly the clean, fresh waists look most attractive with the darker skirts, while it is possible to have a great variety of styles now that embroidered waists are so fashionable.
The prices asked at some of the shops for the fancier waist, also called shirtwaist, even in these days of high prices is rather overwhelming. Originality of design, costly lace and fine hand embroidery is the ostensible reason given for the cost, but fortunately for the majority of womankind who would fain be fashioned according to the latest orders, these same waists are copied for infinitely less price, and, furthermore are perfectly possible of home manufacture if a clever seamstress is employed.

Accordeon pleated chiffon and crepe de chine waist, matching exactly the color of the gown with which they are worn, are extremely useful and will be as fashionable as ever during the summer.

For the plainer shirtwaist, white linen, white lawn and dotted Swiss are particularly favored for midsummer wear; also in great demand are the endless styles of lingerie waist, whether in net lace, crepe de chine, white China
Such waists are dressy enough for the morning or afternoon social gatherings at the resort. Waists buttoning at the back are in great evidence; the mode of trimming is such that it becomes necessary to have the waist button at the back if the style idea is to be retained in its perfection. Cuffs are mostly tight, but they are of infinite variety, both as to the shape and trimming; indeed, it might be added that the cuff is generally entirely composed of trimming; the narrow band is seldom seen excepting on the tailored waist.

The use of a somewhat wider cuff brings the sleeve puff a bit further up the arm, and this is an improvement;
the sleeve puff is bound to remain moderately large on account of the development of the open sleeve for the summer suits; jackets; the lace or lingerie ruffles used in the majority of suit sleeve requires a puff in the waist sleeve to fill out.

"Glisha" Shirtwaist of Bourretted Linen and Lace.

Here the yoke is fashioned with long stole ends, which are stitched down with Honiton lace, and appliques of the same lace are posed at intervals on the yoke and sleeve top; this latter being banded with lace to simulate an extension of the yoke. The fronts are pleated to this yoke and fastened under a fly.
The sleeves are of the familiar shirtwaist pattern, with straight cuff fastened with wash buttons. The silk belt has a Hosiand adjuster cleverly consigned with the buckle, producing the desired long-waisted effect.

sleeves from this are full, having the puffs just at the elbow, if the lace cuff happens to be broad enough. Around the skirt are two bands of the shirring, the first just a little below the hips and the other a trifle below the knee; the may also be another row of the shirring at the top of the skirt. Over the hem should be laid two bias folds. This, while finishing the skirt, also makes it flare out better. A broad belt of the same material is now much worn.
It is rather difficult to say just where the fulness of the sleeve should come.
Although in all the French papers the sleeve is still largest below the elbow, with quite a narrow wristband, still on some of the smartest gowns to be seen the sleeve has the large puff almost at the shoulder. Perhaps we are returning to the immense sleeve worn 10 years ago; and, if this be the case, it would seem as though one would only have to turn "upside down" the sleeve on the gown worn last summer.

Linen frocks are the most interesting of all the displays yet made for the summer costumes. The linsens used for them are of many grades, from fine handkerchief quality below the weaves. And they are in all shades and colors. Combinations of linen and Irish point are as yet among the choicest appearances. One model of this kind had a skirt of the lace in which the fan pleats of the skirt, starting below the knee, were of the blue linen. The bolero was of linen, and the blouse, with balloon sleeves falling below the short, flowing sleeves of the bolero, was of the lace. An old ivory-tinted butcher's jacket, indeed, are frequent accompaniments of linen costumes; to bring them in unison with the suits they are trimmed with the linen of the skirt.

With suits of all linen the daintiest lingerie blouses are used; two shades of linen, one as foundation material, the other as trimming, make up many smart

MIRIAM SPIER.

Very brilliant as regards the display of toilet was the opening day at the Paris Horse Show, and though the type of dress was almost without exception of the tailor-made order, several new and interesting details were to be noted. One of these was the unusual quantity of more or less fancy textiles, such as pointilles, snowflakes and moulines, employed for the construction of checks, chiefly in soft shades of gray.
From all appearances, the newest tailor-made is distinctly feminine in its mannish air which held sway some years ago.

Too much importance cannot be given to the soft, sheer fabrics that lend themselves so readily to the graceful, flowing lines of the season's fashions.
The softest, gauziest voiles and veilings employed not only for dressy afternoon toilettes, but for severely finished costumes as well. While plain voiles are preferred, there are many charming fancy effects. Embroidered toilettes will be much worn in the dressy tailored gowns. The taffeta silk founda-

harmonizing color, though self-colored lining is the better choice.

A marine blue voile is made with an instep-length full skirt having three deep tucks in the lower part and a short eton or bolero distinguished by a soft stridle of silk in the same shade and a vest of white linen embroidered in pistache green and finest gold threads, with fine, narrow lace in jabot effect down the front. The sleeves end just below the elbow, a deep cuff with lace ruffle inside falling over the hand. This costume is made over taffeta in a slightly lighter shade, which gleams through the open meshes. With this smart street gown was to be worn a "Glisha" waist made of sheerest white batiste elaborately trimmed with embroidery and very fine lace.

Among the fashionable silks for shirt-waists and shirtwaist dresses are Louisines and taffetas in tiny checks strewn with wafer dots in contrasting colors.
Patterns showing tiny black and white checks with the wafer dots, which are thickly scattered over, in turquoise, lilac, pale green or bright red are beautiful. Bands of silk to match the dots, with French knots in black worked over them, may be introduced in the dress trimming.

Waterproof taffetas that are soft as foulards are a recent importation and it would be difficult to imagine a more charming shirtwaist costume than one fashioned from this silk in light blue and white pinhead checks and strewn with tiny white dots, or in black and white checks. The fact that this silk is waterproof will at once make it popular. A watered or gleaming moire finish distinguishes other samples of this material, and the summer girl will rejoice that she has discovered so practical and at the same time so attractive a fabric for her shirt-blouse and dress.

That fancy effects in linen are very popular is indicated by the great assortment exhibited; never has there been such a variety. The newest of these, called barotte cloth, has a coarse canvas weave and a napped or raised effect over the surface in self or contrasting color. Black and white and brown and cream are stylish combinations in this material. Plaid linen canvas makes exceptionally pretty and stylish shirtwaist dresses, while the almost invisible stripes and mixtures are used for the jacket and skirt costume.

Besides the printed cotton in Scotch tweed effect there are the mohairs and

The best dressed women in New York are strong advocates of the tailored silk suit to be worn with a smart lingerie waist. They contend that it can be worn on almost any occasion, morning, afternoon or evening, with the proper amount of separate waists. Entire costumes, both in dressy and simple garbs, are the first choice. The shirtwaist dress, consequently, is very much to the fore, the natty little costume that London and Paris dubbed as "too American," but have adopted at last with open arms.

Foulards and pongees will always be most popular, but this year so many new silks are to be seen, and these all so attractive, that it would seem as though for a while, at least, foulard would have to divide its popularity with taffeta or Louisine silk. Again, while in foulard a few new colors may have been introduced, the designs are very much the same as those worn for the last few years—polkadots of various sizes and many Japanese looking patterns. In the different silks there seems to be a far greater variety of patterns.

In the checks and plaids, blue is always a most popular shade and is particularly good for harder wear, as it will always look smart, and one never seems to tire of it. Unfortunately, there are some to whom dark blue is not becoming, and by these must be worn the gown of brown or that of black and white, for let it be understood that no matter how elaborate the frock, if the color is not becoming to one's own particular style of beauty

the gown will never look smart.

The shirtwaist dress must not be elaborately trimmed. On the contrary, it should be made up quite as simply as the present style will permit. In making a gown it should always be borne in mind the purpose for which the dress is to be used, and in accordance it should be elaborate or plain. For the dress to be worn traveling and during the summer at the resort this shirtwaist suit must, to begin with, be short—that is, should just clear the ground all around.

A walking gown for a slim person is one made quite simply, trimmed only with a little Irish lace and band of shirring. The waist has a transparent lace collar and cuffs and may or may not have a small unlined yoke of the lace. There are two bands of shirrings across the front and back of the waist and at the top of the sleeves. The

BISHOP POTTER ENDORSES THE NO-TREATING SALOON OPENED IN SUBWAY OF NEW YORK

THE "NOT WATER WAGON" BAR.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The Right Rev. Henry C. Potter, D. D., LL. D., bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, opened the "Subway Tavern" with prayer and at the conclusion of the opening exercises the doxology was sung. The Subway Tavern is a saloon, fashioned and conducted after a new idea, at the corner of Mulberry and Bleeker streets, not far from the Bowery. The bishop made a speech in the bar room, standing on a beer case, praised the new saloon and declared that it represented more progress toward temperance than the efforts of temperance leaders for fifty years.

The Subway Tavern has been financed by certain members of the City Club, who believe that, in addition to the predicted 5 per cent dividends, the saloon will work a reform among drinkers. Any man or woman can buy anything from a glass of soda water to a rye highball in the place so long as he or she does not "treat."

When Bishop Potter arrived in the saloon to conduct the opening exercises he approached the bar and spoke to the barkeeper, remarking about a picture on the wall showing some sportive nympts in rather negligee. The bishop apparently was not overpleased with this feature of the saloon.

To a crowd of members of the club and a few stray wanderers from the Bowery, who happened in, Bishop Potter made his speech. "We have the great multitude of people whose daily life is one of toil to consider," said the bishop. "When the day's work is done what is to become of them? I belong to the Century, the Metropolitan and a half dozen other clubs, and I can go to one or all of them for my entertainment and my pleasure."

"But what is to become of my friend who lives in two rooms with his wife and five children? It's all very well to go to your club for lunch when the day's work is finished, but where is the man going who does not belong to these clubs? Inevitable necessity drives him to the saloon."

"Gentlemen, I hold the effort to shut up the saloon as the most tragic and at the same time the most comic failure in modern history."

"The temperance question is as far from solution today as it was fifty years ago. In a high-handed way have led to an untold amount of hypocrisy. Gentlemen, this movement of ours today must be taken into account by all if they wish to save the republic. We must make the home of the workingman cleaner and brighter, and we must see that he gets his recreation."

The saloon is divided into two sections, the "Water Wagon" and the "Not Water Wagon." They are separated by a partition. Women who want to be served from what looks like a sado fountain on the "Water Wagon" side. The bar proper is in the second room and that is exclusively for men. Any sort of a drink can be had, but each customer must pay for his own drink. The idea is to raise the standard of drinking rather than attempt to abolish it. It is not altogether new. Earl Gray tried to revolutionize the dram shops of London by just such a scheme. The Subway Tavern, its promoters say, is to be made a pleasant, comfortable place, where the drinker can be surrounded by a moral atmosphere and where first class beverages will be dispensed cheap. Regular 15-cent whisky is sold for 10 cents per glass and other drinks in proportion.

Bishop Potter put himself on record a number of years ago as being the friend of the workingman's saloon. He recognizes it as the poor man's club.

ON RIO GRANDE A LOT OF WORK IS TO BE DONE

United States Government Is Investigating the Underflow and Will Determine Relief

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 6.—That the United States really means to do something for this section of Texas in the way of storing water for irrigation purposes is demonstrated in more ways than one. In addition to the location here of B. M. Hall, engineer in charge of the reclamation work for the Rio Grande valley, Engineer Schlichter, a diamond drill expert, has arrived to begin boring to ascertain the exact force and quantity of the underflow of the river. The test is being made opposite the big smelter north of the city, where the river runs between two mountain ranges and where it is narrowest.

The engineers believe that the flow is so strong that if a submerged dam is built it will raise the water and afford plenty for all irrigation purposes. Surveys are also being made for a dam to catch and store the flood waters of the river during the rainy season, but the engineers think they may be able to secure a flow of water in a less expensive manner by simply catching the underflow. This would only require a dam of but little capacity above the surface, but it would have to go to bedrock in order to stop the underflow. It would catch the water as it came down the stream, bring it to the surface and send it off down the irrigation ditches, instead of allowing it to flow under the river bed through the sand, as at present.

The investigations are very interesting and the work of the engineers is attracting attention from all over the United States. If it is found possible to get water near El Paso to reclaim the lands below this city it will be necessary to build the dam in New Mexico, to also reclaim land above El Paso, or a special appropriation must be made by congress, as for work done in states and territories in which the United States owns public lands the geological survey has money to carry it on, but as Texas owns her own public lands she can get nothing for herself unless congress decides to put up

There are many thousands of acres of fine land below El Paso that once yielded great crops of grapes, wheat, apples, pears and all sorts of garden truck, when the river ran full and the acquias and irrigation ditches had water in them, but a great deal of this is now lying idle for lack of water, except in cases where the owners have installed pumps and engines to lift the water from below, commonly called the underflow of the river, the water which the government is now figuring on catching in a dam above the city and sending through the ditches as of old.

The same conditions exist on both sides of the river and the Mexicans suffer as much as the Americans. This affords one of the arguments in favor of a dam at this point of government construction, the Mexicans and the El Pasoans arguing that the water that once flowed down the river is now taken up by irrigators in New Mexico and Colorado and that El Paso and her Mexican neighbors are therefore damaged to the extent of many millions and should be recompensed by the government by the construction of a dam to catch the water when it comes down in the flood season. The Mexican government has taken up this matter with the United States and is pressing the claims of its people.

No torture to that of a rheumatic. Prescription No. 2851, by Eimer & Amend, quickest relief of all. E. F. SCHMIDT, Houston, Texas, Sole Agent.

Description of a Bunco Game Which Generally Lands a Sucker and His Money

Detective Al Ray, formerly connected with the police department of this city, has described the working of another common confidence game known as the "lock game," from the employment of a small lock in working the graft.

Speaking of it he says: "This game is practiced very extensively by the small confidence men, and is almost a sure game for making the victim put up his money."

"The play is as follows, the victim or sucker is approached in the usual manner and is invited to take a short walk. Any place will do to play this game, provided it is not on a principal street or where there are too many passers."

"While taking this short walk the 'steerer' or 'con man' apparently finds a small toy lock—the kind that is usually used on small dog collars, etc. The favorite way of finding this lock is to stoop quickly and apparently pick it up in the 'sucker's' footsteps or at his heels. The 'con man' will then hand it to the sucker, making some comment about not having a key. In a few seconds the sucker discovers the modus operandi of opening and closing the lock, which is done by moving the pin in key hole either to right or left, the lock never having been intended to be opened with a key. Any time found convenient after this, the locks are changed."

"About this time the 'copper' must come on the scene and of course sees the lock and makes a nice talk about what a good watch charm it would make if there was a key with it. When told it can be opened without a key he offers to bet there is not a man in the world that can open it without a key. This remark is made in a bragadocia way and from that on there is no way to keep Mr. Sucker from betting, as he has already generally wants to bet more, too. He, of course, as the story is known, is stealing from a simple minded fool according to his idea and when he loses the first thing he says is someone snatched his money out of his hands. For this reason the third man used, often plays the part of officer and gives Mr. Sucker a good scare about trying to swindle some innocent honest man. This usually has the desired effect and before the sucker figures out the affair as it really happened, the spoils are divided and the men have 'blown' to some other place."

SWIFTSURE BARELY ESCAPES EXPLOSION

LONDON, England, Aug. 6.—It has just leaked out that the British battleship Swiftsure a few days ago barely escaped a similar accident to the one suffered by the United States battleship Missouri at Pensacola. While practicing with a ten-inch gun some twelve seconds after a fresh charge had been rammed home, a volume of black flame was observed to issue from the gun. For a moment the gun crew awaited an explosion, by some miracle it was avoided. Now it is hoped to reduce the danger by following the practice of the French navy officers, ramming home the projectile and then using the hose to wash out the chamber of the gun, instead of washing out before the shot is rammed home, as is the practice at present.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

EVERY PROGRESSIVE MERCHANT appreciates the value of advertising and its possibilities for good. Many also appreciate how little they know of "the proper way to do it." They know its power to benefit is mighty, but they also know that lots of advertising is simply money wasted.

The best advertising medium is the cheapest; the publication that circulates where you want to create interest is the one to use. The Fort Worth Telegram has the largest circulation of any publication in the Fort Worth field, and presents all advertising matter in equally favorable manner. The cost per thousand of circulation is very much less than the charge would be to reach the same number of buyers through several other publications. Let us talk to you about it.
