

RUMOR HAS IT THAT RUSSIAN IN RETREAT

Story Reaches St. Petersburg, But Official Headquarters Do Not Confirm It—Reports of Field Marshal Oyama Indicate That Russians Have Been Hard Pressed Before Extended Front of the Japanese Army—St. Petersburg Says Kuropatkin Pitched the Gage of Battle, Assuming the Offensive and Is Making Headway Against Kuroki

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 3.—A report has just reached St. Petersburg that General Kuropatkin is in full retreat. The war office admits such a rumor came from the seat of war, but declares it is not official.

11 a. m.—The war office declares it is still without official information in regard to the result of Kuropatkin's flight with Kuroki. It reports the Russian commander-in-chief is retiring turns out to be true it is considered possible here it may be due to the appearance of another flanking movement of the Japanese higher and from the west. The reports the Japanese are moving up the Liao river toward Shimintin were persistent just before the fighting began.

CONTINUES TO GIVE GROUND
TOKIO, Sept. 3, 10:30 a. m.—The Russian force confronting Field Marshal Oyama's left and center continues to slowly give ground in retreat, and crossing to the right bank of the Taitse river a portion of the Russian army occupies the line of defense work extending northwest from a point south of Liao Yang. The Russians also hold an eminence northeast of Nutchang, on the right bank of the Taitse. This is evidently intended to shield the general retreat of both left and center.

The Japanese armies continued to press the Russians yesterday. They moved forward and occupied a line extending from Tatejifi to Yunchialiatun. Oyama telegraphs he hopes they will reach the right bank of the Taitse this morning.

General Kuroki, after serious fighting, succeeded yesterday in taking a portion of the eminence near Heylentat. The details of this fighting has not been received. The Russians again appear to be retreating in the vicinity of Yenta and coal mines, twelve miles northeast of Liao Yang. Possibly another great battle will occur. The present trend of movements indicates possibly the Japanese will move past Liao Yang temporarily, leaving the city untouched.

OYAMA REPORTS A ROUT
LONDON, Sept. 3, 11:30 a. m.—A dispatch from Tokio to the Japanese legation here says Field Marshal Oyama reports as follows: "The enemy in front of our left and center armies continued to retreat on September 2 to the right bank of the Taitse river, except a portion of his forces occupying the defense works from the south to the northwest of Liao Yang and the heights northeast of Nutchang, our armies continuing the attack. Our right army occupied on the morning of September 2 part of the heights west of Heylentat."

SQUADRON MAKES A SORTIE
ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 3.—Advices from Port Arthur, dated August 31, announce Rear Admiral Okutomsky's squadron went out August 29 and shelled the Japanese positions. The squadron consisted of the battleships Ratvigan and Perseket and the cruisers Bayan and Palada. The vessels put to sea at 6 o'clock in the morning under cover of the batteries and returned safely after accomplishing their mission. The messages adds the Japanese are bombarding the fortress daily and nightly, but are not causing any serious damage. The inhabitants seeking refuge in bomb-proof. This message, which was sent from Chefoo, declares the Japanese continue to provision the armies from their fleet and Chefoo, loading steamers outside those ports.

ADVICES IN BERLIN
BERLIN, Sept. 3.—Foreign office official advices from Tokio say General Kuropatkin's position today is by no means desperate. The main portion of his army is still heavily engaged and the part of drawing off was done successfully. The Russian army is not encircled.

SIX DAYS' BATTLE
MUKDEN, Friday, Sept. 2.—(Delayed in transmission)—After six days' battle, on the last three of which the heaviest fighting occurred, the Japanese Wednesday last abandoned the direct attack on Liao Yang in favor of flanking movement. The Russian artillery fire was greatly aided by sending up balloons southeast of Liao Yang, thus overlooking the Japanese batteries. The Russians were compelled to abandon a number of guns, being unable to remove them through the mud. On Wednesday the Japanese shells reached the railroad station and railroad bridge near Taitse river. Others fell as far north as Yenta. The railroad is being used almost exclusively by the hospital trains for the transportation of Japanese prisoners. The latter are in a dreadful state of exhaustion, many of them having been without food for two days, during which downpours of rain filled the trenches. Their shoes and clothing are in tatters.

WAR OFFICE HAS REPORT FROM THE SCENE OF THE BATTLE
ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 3, 12:30 p. m.—A bulletin just issued by the general Kuropatkin assumed the offensive and was massing artillery and bombarding the Japanese Friday noon, preparatory to an attack on Kuroki's flanking army on the north side of the Taitse river.

General Kuropatkin, telegraphing under today's date, describes the change of front resulting from General Kuroki's flanking movements, says the Russians

IS KIDNAPED

Fort Worth Girl Disappeared From Care of Her Parents While They Are Visiting in Denver

PRETTY IRENE BASSHAM

Family Lives in North Fort Worth and The Telegram Special Service at Denver Advises That Disappearance Was Reported Friday

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 3.—The parents of pretty little Irene Bassham say she was kidnaped shortly after noon yesterday.

Chief Delaney received the report from J. R. Bassham, the excited father, just as the afternoon detail of patrolmen and detectives were leaving headquarters, and gave orders that the child be found if in the city.

The Bassham family came to Denver two weeks ago from Fort Worth, Texas. Their residence is in North Fort Worth. The child was playing in front of the house the last seen of her by her mother. The parents have no good reason to advance why she should be kidnaped, but the girl has not been found.

OWNS BILLIARD HALL HERE
J. R. Bassham lives at 1202 Lake avenue, North Fort Worth, and is one of the proprietors of the saloon and billiard room at Main street and Central avenue.

Inquiry there this morning showed that no news of the incident had been sent to that city. It was stated, however, that the Bassham family is at present at Denver. Mrs. Bassham, accompanied by her daughter, a beautiful child about 2 years of age, having gone there early in the summer, while Mr. Bassham left for Denver about two weeks ago.

So far as can be learned Mr. Bassham had no enemies who would take this means of injuring him and the general impression prevails in North Fort Worth that the kidnaping must have been done under a view of obtaining a ransom.

George W. Bassham, an uncle of J. R. Bassham, when seen in regard to the reported kidnaping, said that he had no idea why any one should kidnap the child. Her parents, he said, were not wealthy and therefore expectation of a ransom would seem to be out of the question.

Mr. Slye, the father of Mrs. Bassham, lives in Denver, and they were visiting at their home when the child disappeared. They were married in this city about four years ago. Bassham at that time being employed at the packing houses. He later bought an interest in the saloon business with which he was connected until a short time ago, when failing health decided him to sell out. He still retains his home in North Fort Worth.

PICKLED SKINS TO PAY IMPORT DUTY
NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Notice from the treasury department has been received by the collector of customs that hereafter pickled sheep skins shall be classified as partially manufactured articles calling for a duty of 20 per cent.

This ruling upsets a decision of the board of United States general appraisers rendered in March, 1899, after one of the most exhaustive hearings in the history of the board.

Pickled sheep skins have been coming in for years, free of duty, as raw skins, and in 1899 an attempt was made to collect duty on them. Between THIRTY AND FORTY WITNESSES, HOWEVER, testified that the pickling was not a process of manufacture, but was merely done to preserve the skins during the voyage and that the pickle had to be all washed out before they were tanned.

Firms in the leather trade, which are deeply interested in the matter declare they will make a test of the ruling, but it probably will be a year or two before the case can be tried.

INSURES HER LIFE FOR PHILANTHROPY
CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—The Record-Herald today says: When the $300,000 life insurance policy for which Mrs. Pauline Harriott Lyon has made application is written, a local banker will advance $100,000, with the policy as collateral, for building the new home of the Woman's Athletic Club, of which Mrs. Lyon is secretary.

It is expected that with the success of this novel scheme work on the structure will be rushed, a large sum of money already having been pledged by the members. In addition to the $300,000 obtained on the policy it is stated that a mortgage also is to be given on the building.

Two hundred thousand dollars already has been pledged through the efforts of club members, bond holders and others interested in the success of the organization. In addition to the club quarters the new building which is designed to be twelve stories, several floors are to be devoted to commercial purposes.

THE RANGERS THINK THEY HAVE A MURDERER
James C. Dunham, Who Is Wanted for Many Crimes, Is Reported Captured at Town of Naco

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 3.—A report is in circulation here that Captain Thomas Rynning of the Arizona ranger force has reported to Governor Ervold from Douglas, on the Mexican line, that he has captured James C. Dunham, a Californian accused of wholesale murder.

Dunham has been diligently sought for all over the country for the last eight years. Rynning also reported, according to the story, that Dunham had been fully identified and that he had confessed to the commission of the crimes charged against him. There is a standing reward of $1,000 for his capture, dead or alive.

Dunham's alleged crime was committed May 26, 1895, at a ranch house between Los Gatos and San Jose. The victims numbered six persons, three men and three women, all members of Dunham's family and employes of the ranch.

BOY KILLS HIS FATHER
WACO, Texas, Sept. 3.—Lee Levi, a negro boy, 12 years old, and small for his age, is in jail here on a charge of shooting his father to death with a shotgun. A pair of negroes were in a wagon and the boy claims it was an accident.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 3.—Sheriff Langford has received a dispatch which convinces him that the Naco, Ariz., suspect is not Murderer Dunham. The suspect is described as being of light complexion and but five feet nine inches tall, while Dunham's complexion is medium or bordering on dark and his height is five feet eleven and a half inches.

STATE CHURCH

Premier Combes of France Has in Mind Establishment of a Religious Organization Under Control of Government

THE VATICAN TROUBLE

Bishop Geay, Who Is in Favor in Rome Is to Be the Head of the Organization in Event Head of the Ministry Succeeds in His Effort

PARIS, Sept. 3.—France is, if general gossip is to be credited, on the eve of establishing the national church so long talked of, and its head would be none other than Monsignore Geay, bishop of Laval, whose name was put forward in this connection some three years ago, and who, while never acknowledging these intentions, has at the same time carefully refrained from denying them.

Bishop Geay's position at the present moment, after open rebelliousness to the pope's orders which has severed all direct communication between the vatican and himself, and which, if the ecclesiastical trial now being conducted in Rome turns against him, will lead to his excommunication, is so peculiar that if he is to remain in power it must necessarily be in a practically independent position, and as out of principle the French government has formally forbidden him to retire, this seems about the only possible solution. Bishop Geay was believed to have a colleague for the French national church in the person of Monsignore Le Nordez, bishop of Dijon.

It is now certain, however, that Le Nordez will not stand beside Geay, should the latter attempt to found an independent church, but there are other bishops on whose loyalty Rome does not count, and were a schism to be created, Geay would surely not be the only bishop to take part in it.

The difference between Bishop Geay and the vatican dates from the time of Leo XIII, and is said to be of many years' standing, although the first public evidence of it came only in the autumn of 1900.

There were facts in Geay's private life which on several occasions had elicited the censure of the vatican, and Geay not having mended his ways, great resentment was felt against him. The matter, while familiar to all local clergy, was not, however, generally known to the public, and Rome, fearing to provoke a scandal, continued to use discretion in the hope that some day good results might be attained.

As time went by, portions of his congregation turned against him. Parents refused to allow their children to be confirmed by him and priests declined to receive ordination from him.

When the question of an independent French church was raised as a possible result of the associations law, Geay's name everywhere was mentioned as the probable leader of the movement should it ever be started.

Monsignore Geay has taken no one into his confidence as to his ideas or intentions, but it is certain that since that period he has made no efforts to conciliate Rome, and the breach has steadily widened. The concordat gave the French government a voice in all matters of church administration, and Geay, wherever an unpopularity arose, he continued to use discretion in the hope that the ministry of public worship, which is a department of the ministry of the interior and was, consequently, under Waldeck Rousseau's control before passing to that of Combes, might be brought against

Meanwhile, the charges brought against

Geay were becoming graver and the scandal more notorious. Finally, a few weeks ago, a letter was written from the vatican giving Geay the paternal advice to tender his resignation. Geay, however, did not want to resign, and referred the letter to the government. The latter, in virtue of the concordat, demanded a retraction of the letter by Rome, instead of which Rome ordered Geay to come to the vatican for the charges against him to be examined.

The case of Bishop Le Nordez of Dijon having come up in the meanwhile, he, also, had been advised to resign, and afterward ordered to come to Rome. Facing the authority of the government above that of the vatican, both held their ground firmly until Le Nordez, yielding to it is not known what pressure, suddenly fled to Rome before the French authorities could stop him.

Bishop Geay thus remains alone in the glory of his independence, and the eyes of all France are turned upon him, wondering what will be the next development. The pope who has been defied, can not sanction his remaining in power. The government, which has been obeyed, could not tolerate his disgrace. The rupture of diplomatic relations between France and Rome, precipitated by the remarkable case, may cause the situation to remain unsolved for a time yet, since no further steps can be taken until the concordat has been formally denounced by parliament in its next session this fall, and a definite attitude thus reached.

A TRAIN BURNS

Farmer and Boy Discover Fire on Trestle Few Miles South of Fort Worth—One Fights Flames, Other Warns Train

HEROISM OF A LAD
All Passengers and Trainers Escape Injury, But Costly Equipment of the Katy Is Destroyed While Standing on Burning Bridgework

To a mere lad, seven years of age, name unknown, the passengers and crew of Katy train No. 1 have much to be thankful for. He saved the train from almost certain destruction by crawling over a burning trestle, through the fire and smoke and flagging down the fastly moving train, which was going at a rate exceeding forty miles an hour.

This act of heroism was performed by the lad at a crossing and near a burning just five miles south of town, near a siding called Bethel, yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

As Engineer T. B. Murphy, one of the oldest engineers in the service of the Katy on this division, was speeding engine 278, one of the finest on the Katy system, a 100-ton machine, out of Fort Worth last evening towards Hillsboro, pulling behind him a train composed of a mail, baggage, smoking chair car and a first class reclining chair car, he noticed when a few miles out smoke several miles ahead. He thought that grass and weeds along the right of way were burning and just as he called attention to the rising smoke afar off, a fire started along a trestle with his eyes on the track ahead and anxious to make up several minutes lost in getting out of the local yards, he kept opening the throttle and a little more as each few hundred yards was left behind. When the train was rounding a curve about five miles out and about a hundred feet from a wooden trestle over which he had safely carried many trains, he saw a small boy running toward the train frantically waving straw hat. At once the engineer put on the air and saw ahead of him that the wooden trestle was on fire. To have applied the full air instantly would have meant throwing the entire train off the track into the ditch down a ten-foot dump. So slacking up he ran the train out on the trestle and stopped.

Ten feet ahead of him the fire had so kinked the rail with its heat that if they were bent out of shape, it was the engine jumped the track and ran almost a hundred feet on the ties. The train was now standing over a seething mass of flames and could not go ahead or back. Instant action was necessary and on the instant the engineer and his fireman, J. N. Cowan formed a bucket brigade and started to fight the flames which had started fire underneath the coaches.

HEROIC COACHES
The passengers on the train were for a time unaware of the danger about them. Most of them thought the train had stopped for a small station or a snag. In several minutes they discovered the nature of the emergency and all climbed out of the coaches. The engine, mail and baggage coaches were on the south portion of the trestle where the fire had nearly been extinguished by the small boy and his father who left the train after the fire had fought it when No. 1 came along. Both refused to tell the passengers their names.

Flames from the burning trestle, which was a wooden structure about sixty feet long and back over the bed of a dry creek, set the smoking car and the two rear coaches on fire. Passengers at once took all their personal effects from these cars and all turned in to fight the burning flames. The smoking car was cut after an end of the coach had been burned. The wood work of the other two coaches was entirely destroyed despite the efforts of the train crew under the guidance of Conductor Thomas Murphy and the passengers.

All helped to fight the flames with three buckets by carrying water from the engine tank forming a regular bucket brigade. Shovels were gotten out and dirt was thrown on the fire, being very effective. Women among the passengers turned in an effort as valiantly as the men, but no avail in saving the last two coaches.

TRANSFER OF PASSENGERS
Several hours after the accident to the train the Katy Flyer from the south came to the other end of the destroyed trestle and passengers were transferred to it and taken south to Burleson. The Flyer was north bound and came in several hours late, detouring over the Santa Fe tracks at Alvarado with a load of passengers.

A call was made to the Texas and Pacific officials here for their wrecker, as the Katy's was at Denison and could not reach the scene for many hours. The other road granted the request and sent it to the scene at 10 o'clock last night, helping to clear away the debris. Men were at work all night fighting the flames and repairing the trestle. At 6 o'clock this morning the Katy wrecker reached here and relieved the Texas and Pacific crew. The engine and tender were gotten back on the track and at noon the debris was so well cleared away and the track repaired that trains are running the same as usual.

Trainmaster W. W. Miller, with headquarters at Denison, and Superintendent R. J. Sullivan, of the division, reached the scene at an early hour and both took personal charge of the work, adding every way possible.

CAUGHT FROM GRASS
It is supposed the grass near the trestle was set on fire from sparks of an engine pulling a freight train into Fort Worth about 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, but it is not known in the case. No section men tagged over the track there during the afternoon.

TO MAKE BERLIN BIGGEST CITY IN THE WORLD

Baron Hammerstein, at Kaiser's Command, Is Now Getting Points in London and Paris

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—The Prussian minister of the interior, Baron Hammerstein, is inspecting London and Paris to get ideas for a great scheme for transforming Berlin into the biggest city in the world.

At present Berlin as a municipality possesses many remarkable features. It has the best system of drainage, the most efficient system of tramways, the best organized method of pauper relief, the greatest number of hospitals in proportion to the population of any town in the world, and by far the cleanest streets of any existing municipality.

Berlin's educational facilities are unrivaled all the world over and the external appearance of the city compares favorably with that of most other great centers of population.

The finest street is the famous Unter den Linden, which is three-quarters of a mile long and 210 feet wide. It consists of four parallel avenues, divided by trees, two of which are for traffic, one for horsemen and one for pedestrians.

Berlin possesses 5,186 factories and 82 immense beer breweries supply the beverage most in demand.

The Friedrich street, which runs in a straight line for three miles, contains more liquor shops than houses, the explanation being that in houses there are different taverns on different floors.

Berlin is poor only in churches, of which there are only 52 Protestant, seven Roman Catholic, and eight Jewish synagogues. This is approximately one place of worship for every 30,000 inhabitants. Eighty years ago Berlin had 200,000 inhabitants, and the population is now close upon 2,000,000.

Berlin is surrounded by a chain of towns which were formerly quite separate places, but now through the extension of the city are no longer divided from it except in name and municipal administration.

The biggest of Berlin's satellites is Charlottenburg, a city of 150,000 inhabitants, which contains more millionaires than any other German city.

In addition to 16 great-sized towns, Berlin is also surrounded by a number of villages, all of which have outgrown their original dimensions. One of them, Wilmersdorf, has a population of 28,000, and others are approaching the same figure.

The project now contemplated is the absorption of all these towns and villages by Berlin, a change that would result in an immediate increase of Berlin's population to more than 2,000,000. Berliners decree that in a decade Berlin will be bigger and better as a municipality than New York or London or any other place in America or Europe.

Brooklyn Employees Watching the Outcome in Manhattan With Interest, Although Not Involved in It

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Motormen and other employes on the Brooklyn Elevated Railroad and the Kings County Elevated Railroad, which are a part of the Brooklyn Transit Company system, are watching the developments in Manhattan, but there is little apprehension on their part that they will be drawn into the threatened strike here.

The Brooklyn motormen form a branch of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, but the conductors, gatemen, ticket choppers and other employes on the Brooklyn Elevated road are not members of the Amalgamated Street Railroad Employes or of any other organization. The Brooklyn motormen receive $3 a day for ten hours' service, considerably less than is paid on the Manhattan lines.

Dear Sir: Ever since I was in the army, I had more or less kidney trouble, and within the past year it became so severe and complicated that I suffered everything and was much alarmed—my strength and power was fast leaving me. I saw an advertisement of Swamp-Root and an advertisement of Swamp-Root and wrote asking for advice. I began the use of the medicine and noted a decided improvement after taking Swamp-Root only a short time.

I continued its use and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured, and strong. In order to be very sure about this I had a doctor examine some of my water today and he pronounced it all right and in splendid condition. I know that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable and does not contain any harmful drugs. Thanking you for my complete recovery and recommending Swamp-Root to all sufferers I am, Very truly yours, I. There are probabilities that North Fort Worth or Rosen Heights is to have a new Catholic school or university. Father McKee of the Catholic church in North Fort Worth is working with the establishment of a school in view. He is at present in San Antonio in conference with the Sisters of the Incarnate Word and what will be the result of his visit there of course can not now be predicted. Sam Rosen was seen this morning by a Telegram representative and asked concerning the establishment of a school on the Heights. Mr. Rosen said he knew but little regarding the proposed school, but would be glad to have an institution of such a nature built. He said he was willing to make a suitable donation in the way of a desirable site if that would decide the matter of building. Father McKee has been given out by charge and nothing will be given out by the several other parties interested until the return of the reverend gentleman from San Antonio.

MUCH COTTON THERE

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Sept. 3.—There was probably never a time in the history of Ellis county when there was as much cotton open in the fields the first of September as is now open. The stalks are white with the staple from the bottom to the top and picking is progressing rapidly. All the gins in the county are behind and in the event of a rain it would require them two or three days to catch up. An account of buyers waiting for the bureau's monthly report sales were slow for the day were heavy. But not many sales were made until after the bureau report was received in the afternoon. The decline in price after the report was posted resulted in a great many farmers storing their cotton in the various yards. They are hopeful of an advance within the next few days. The total receipts in Waxahachie for this season are about fifteen hundred bales.

OLD SETTLERS

Plans to Be Completed Next Week for Annual Reunion, Which Will Be Held Third Week in September

THE OLDEST SETTLER

Thomas A. Neace at Keller Came Here in 1847—Only Those Locating in Ante Bellum Days Are Eligible to Membership in Organization

Plans are to be inaugurated next week by the officers of the Old Settlers' Association of Tarrant county for the annual reunion of that organization in this city September 22.

The members of this association are those who located in Tarrant county prior to the breaking out of the Civil war. Only these are eligible. The membership is not large, as but few of this class of early settlers are left on the scene of action.

The president is Colonel H. C. Holloway and the secretary, John F. Zinn. Rufus Bell is first vice president and Dan Parker second vice president.

Another interesting feature will be the appearance of Mrs. John A. Mitchell, aged 90 years, who will render selections of music. Mrs. Mitchell was the first teacher of a Fort Worth school and has been a resident of this city almost ever since it has been a town. The oldest settler now living in Tarrant county is Thomas A. Neace, who lives at Keller, where he presides over the duties of the office of justice of the peace. He located in that part of the county in 1847—fifty-seven years ago—and has resided there ever since. Other old pioneers who came to this county in the early days are: Col. John Harris, who is the second oldest resident. The colonel settled in Fort Worth when the place was nothing but a small military post under command of Major Ripley Arnold, who was afterward killed by a drunken surgeon near this city. The remains of Major Arnold now rest in the old city cemetery. Col. Harris located here in 1848, one year later than Esquire Neace. The next oldest settler is Ed S. Terrell, who lives in Jack county, where he went many years ago. He was once captured by renegade Indians a mile from the packing houses, but escaped from them without having been injured. Col. H. C. Holloway, Dan Parker and Captain J. C. Terrell came to this county in 1858 and have remained here since.

BOGUS CHECKS ON A BANK HERE IS THE CHARGE

Detective Thomason Makes an Arrest in Dallas of Man Who Left This City After Cash-ing Paper

Detective J. W. Thomason arrested a man in Dallas yesterday charged with passing bogus checks in this city. The Telegram saw one of the checks this morning, which was made out on the Farmers and Mechanics' Bank of Fort Worth, and was for $40. Detective Thomason stated that the man, who was a resident of this city, had some money in the above-named local bank, the amount being about $200. He drew this money out of the bank, however, and then gave out the checks, saying that he still had a deposit in the bank. Persons to whom he gave the checks were refused payment when they attempted to cash them, the bank authorities stating that the man who signed them had no money there. In the meantime, the signer of the checks went to Dallas, where he was arrested by Detective Thomason. Thomason said this morning that the man had confessed everything.

THE MORMON PROBLEM

Late advices from Washington are to the effect that the Reed Smoot investigation is not to be pushed for fear that it will lose the republican party three of the western states that have become permeated with this damnable doctrine. It seems that the republican party is acting on the suggestion of Smoot himself, made direct to President Roosevelt, and it is a very humiliating spectacle to the Christian men and women of this broad land. A political party that will thus sacrifice principle for the sake of prestige deserves nothing but contempt at the hands of the fathers and mothers of this land, who will not be slow to resent the action taken. Mormonism and polygamy, its cardinal principle, are taking a deep hold in a portion of the west, and the troubles of the past will pale into insignificance by comparison with those of the future, unless steps of the most vigorous and determined nature are taken to cope with the problem. The Christian women of America are engaged in fighting the setting of Reed Smoot as a member of the United States senate, just as they are leading in the great fight that is being waged against Mormonism. The following extract from a lecture given by Mrs. J. Engstrom of Oskaloosa, Iowa, shows how the Christian mothers regard the situation:

"The admission of Utah to statehood was the most gigantic fraud in the history of the United States. The condition of its admission was that polygamy should be abolished, but I know that polygamy is as much the backbone of the Mormon church today as it ever was. Joseph F. Smith, the head of the church, testified before the highest tribunal of the country that he had five wives and forty-two children, with a what-are-you-going-to-do-about-it air, and other members of the church are still living in plural wedlock.

"Mormonism is menacing seven of the western states and if something is not done to check its growth its power will be felt throughout the country. In those states of which Utah is the center, the Mormon vote under the direction of the elders turns the scale in favor of the party decided on by the tribunal. Whole bodies of people are sent from place to place by the officers of the church to turn the political current and they vote without any individual choice. The church system is the most absolute monarchy in existence. The president, the first presidents, the seventy elders, deacons and teachers is the line down which the orders go. President Joseph F. Smith is the biggest boss in the United States and his word is absolute, even to the lives of his subjects. The teachers go into every Mormon house in their district and they know the condition of every man, woman and child in the territory. Their reports go to the next higher officials and so on, so that the supervision is absolute.

"The condition of the Mormon women is pitiable. In the old days many of the wives protested bitterly against their lot, but the younger women of today, having been in many cases born in the faith, believe in the teaching that they only have a hope of heaven through marriage to a Mormon. He is their absolute master and so great is their fear of him that they are little better than slaves, believing as they do that their future happiness depends entirely on his whim. To show how deeply rooted in his belief, a friend of mine, a woman medical missionary, went out to work in Salt Lake City. Several of the Mormon women became much attached to her. Finally one of them asked the missionary to marry her husband and she saved. Greatly shocked and mortified, she went to another Mormon woman of her acquaintance. The latter laughed at her chagrin, and said, 'Marry my husband; he is much nicer.'

"The only way this terrible evil can be stamped out is by the adoption of an amendment to the constitution of the United States, making polygamy a criminal offense. Petitions for that effect have been widely circulated throughout the United States and will be sent to the States, especially by the women of the nation. If the matter is brought to a definite issue the wives and daughters of this country will be responsible for it, just as they were for the unseating of Congressman Roberts."

In marked contrast with this expression from a noble American wife and mother, is the following from a book just issued by Princess Charlotte of Meiningen, a sister of Emperor William of Germany. In her book the Princess says:

"It would be right to grant the right to marry a second wife after the old one has ceased to be attractive, under certain restrictions, because such a law, by graduating (more or less) the divorce habit, is desirable for the protection of the wife that has become obsolete, is intended to protect the rights of the children and should be an aid to morality."

Shelby Abrahams, Jacob and David up as illustrious examples of her creed. She continues: "As a correction of the evils under which women and children are suffering nowadays, divorce is wholly inadequate. The Catholic can not get a divorce under any circumstances, and there are hundreds of thousands of good natured Protestants and Jews who can not bring themselves to divorce the woman who has proved a beloved companion while young and beautiful. There is no use in denying the fact that a man between his fortieth and fiftieth year undergoes a thorough change in taste and habits. Every day he sees a dozen women more than prefer his own wife, with whom he would like to begin life anew, to have his own and the world's profit. But it can not be done without robbing the woman he once loved of home, position and friends, sometimes, so he leads a double life, that means disgrace for the woman of his second choice, and her children likewise—days of anguish, storm and stress for the first wife. In cases of this kind we advocate legalized plurality of wives, on the ground of morality, decency and common sense."

The Princess says that only rich or well-to-do men, able to take care of two wives and their children, should be allowed to take a second wife, while women might be privileged to guard against the introduction of a second wife during their life time by inserting a clause to that effect in their marriage contracts. Permission to take a second wife, she says, would very largely reduce the surplus of unmarried but desirable women; at the same time it would help the working classes by removing competition from women who are now denied matrimony because there are not enough men to go around.

Is it any wonder that the Mormon emissaries who are working in every country in Europe experience no difficulty in loading ships with converts when European royalty is teaching such abominable and execrable doctrine as this? Truly, morality and all of the kindred virtues must be at a very low ebb on the other side of the pond when such doctrine as this is taught by the sister of the War Lord of Europe.

A combination between the republicans and populists in Texas this year can be productive of but one good result, and that is to obscure the smallness of both parties to the combine.

The manner in which Dallas is now engaged in making love to Fort Worth suggests what a long old honeymoon we could have all been enjoying if our sister city had not grown callous. It is gratifying that she has shown a disposition to be more lovable in the future, and as Dallas grows more lovable, Fort Worth can be depended upon to become more loving.

THE PASS QUESTION

The custom followed by the railways of the country in the distribution of passes indiscriminately is contrary to the teachings of Scripture, as The Telegram is prepared to demonstrate without fear of successful contradiction. To the doubting Thomas we respectfully refer the following quotations from the Good Book: "Thou shalt not pass."—Numbers xx. 12. "None shall ever pass."—Isiah xxiv. 10. "Suffer not a man to pass."—Judges iii. 23. "The wicked shall no more pass."—Nahum i. 15. "This generation shall not pass."—Mark xiii. 30. "Though they roar, yet they can not pass."—Jeremiah v. 22. "So he paid the fare and went."—Jonah i. 3.

William J. Bryan has offered his services to the democratic national committee to campaign for Parker during the month of October, and expresses his preference for work in the west. The republicans have hatched out a story that Bryan has been promised the position of secretary of the treasury in the event of democratic success. But the story is very improvable.

The people of Portland, Oregon, sat down on the independent packing house plan as formulated by Promoter Charles E. Martin, but are going ahead on a proposition of building an independent plant of their own. It is said that enough money has been subscribed to insure the success of the new enterprise, and work will soon begin.

Mr. Redmond is with us again from Ireland, and tells us again that home rule for the downtrodden "ould sod" is not far away. It is to be hoped that his prognostications are correct, for if there was ever a country on earth that is entitled to home rule it is the green isle of Erin.

It is no use for the eastern papers to continue to prate of the lynchings that occur in the south. As long as there is a necessity for lynchings they will continue, and that will be the case so long as there is a cause. It has been noticed that the cause can produce the same effect, even in the effete east.

Again the Russian commander has the honor to report that the Japanese forces are pressing him uncomfortably in the rear, and the rear elevation is about all of the Russian army that is visible to the plucky little Japs.

There can be no question that the republican party is just as fully responsible for the advance in the price of cotton as it was in the wheat deal, and we all know that Roosevelt is the man who elevated wheat.

Another scandal connected with the present state administration, whether it be big or little, is but placing additional campaign material in the hands of the republicans, who profess a great desire to have a look at the books.

The ex-sultan of Turkey is dead, after having been kept in confinement by his brother, the present sultan, for a number of years. In the meantime, A. Hamid himself, continues the sickest man in all Europe.

If that interurban road is not built to Mineral Wells it will not be the fault of the newspapers. The building of the line would be worth much to Fort Worth, but it is hardly probable for several years yet.

The report that a liars' congress is to convene at St. Louis during the World's Fair, is no doubt giving undue prominence to a small and unimportant assemblage of newspaper war correspondents.

This terrible silence on the part of Teddy Roosevelt must certainly be the forerunner of an awful explosion in that coming letter of acceptance.

NOTORIOUS CHARACTER DIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—John Brady, who under the sobriquet of "Yakee Yake," was for some years notorious as the leader of the Cherry Hill gang—a gang of toughs on the East Side constantly engaged in battling with the police—is dead in Jersey City. Active prosecution drove him to New Jersey some time ago. Brady was a cooper and owned two prosperous shops here, which he continued to operate from a distance. He was only 29 years old, but had figured in the police annals since boyhood.

Despite his many encounters he never was sentenced to prison.

In the matter of wages there has been no change, but there have been changes in the conditions under which the mines are to be operated.

A large force will begin work on the extension about September 10 and it is expected that connection with Sherman will be made not later than October 1.

This affording communication over a competitive line with Texas and Shreveport and other cities of commercial importance. It is the intention of the company to extend the line a little later from Belts to McKinney.

At The Rising of The Sun
By Carroll Watson Rankin

(Copyright, 1901, by the Frank Leslie Publishing House.)

Virginia Winthrop, in her night dress, without stockings and without a chaperon, was walking, at dawn, up the main street of the little town with Marshall Gordon of Boston. To be sure, the night dress was concealed beneath an opera cloak of conspicuous length, and the small, stockinged feet were covered by a pair of high-heeled French slippers; but the wearer of the cloak and sandals was far from satisfied. She knew, if her companion did not, that her costume was inadequate to the occasion.

It was customary in the quiet town in which Virginia spent her summers with a relative for all the inhabitants to turn out hastily, and at all hours of the night or day, in response to the call of the fire alarm. They had, poor things, no other way of amusing themselves. Being in Rome, Virginia was simply imitating the Romans. It is one thing, however, to steal half-dressed from a sleeping household in the dead of night, or in that dark moment that is said to precede the dawn, and quite another to return, an hour later, by the pitiless light of day.

When Virginia, roused from a sound sleep by the clatter of the insistent gong, had pulled aside her curtain, the outer world had been of midnight blackness. To be sure, in the east there was a faint roseate glow that might have warned one accustomed to seeing the sun rise daily that the sheltering darkness was to be of short duration; but Virginia was not an early riser, and failed to notice the symptoms.

Without looking at her watch, she threw on her cloak, pulled on her slippers and ran lightly down the stairs where she joined a hurrying throng of villagers bent upon the same errand.

A bright red glow toward the south indicated the direction of the fire, which seemed dangerously near; but the ever-deceptive, and the distance to the burning building was fully a half mile further than it had at first appeared. Virginia, thrilled with the excitement of the moment, hurried on with the increasing crowd.

The work of the village fire department was always crude and often ridiculous. Virginia was watching with unbecomingly delighted and upper lip heretically hurrying crockery from an upper window to the brick pavement beneath, when a voice that she had last heard in Massachusetts exclaimed:

"Why, Miss Winthrop! Is this really you? Am I to believe my eyes? I arrived by the early train less than ten minutes ago, and here I am face to face with you, of all people!" It's a happy omen! I followed the crowd and came straight to you. But is it quite safe for you here? These volunteer firemen are apt to be reckless with their hose."

"Still," said Virginia, with an embarrassed glance to her unstockinged feet, "there are times when too much hose is preferable to no enough. What brings you to this sleepy town?"

"As if you didn't know," replied Gordon obstinately. "Are you sure you won't take cold without a hat?"

"Oh," thought Virginia with a sigh of relief, "I was so afraid he was going to say 'without stockings.' Evidently he realized that something is missing, but so long as he thinks it is only a hat I am safe."

"Business brought you, I suppose," said Virginia aloud.

"Yes," assented Gordon, "business of great importance. What delightful morning it is! These spring days—"

"Mornin'!" gasped Virginia. "What time is it, anyway?"

"Almost 4. I should imagine; my watch has stopped. See how bright the sky is getting over there; it will soon be daylight."

"Oh!" exclaimed Virginia in dismay. "I supposed it was not later than midnight. I must go home at once. I am staying at Mrs. Benton's; you may come there to luncheon today if you like—and I be glad to see you. No, no, you mustn't think of coming home with me. The fire isn't half out. Do stay here and watch it."

But Gordon, who would have deserted a dozen conflagrations for Virginia, was not discouraged.

"It isn't much of a fire, and I shan't know where to find you later if I don't go with you now."

"It's awfully far," demurred Virginia, glancing askance at a telltale white rifle that showed at her wrist. "I'd advise you to stay right here and rest. You must be tired after your long journey."

"A walk is just what I need," said Gordon obstinately. "In fact, I think I really came here for the sole purpose of taking some such walk with you. The fire was distinctly providential, wasn't it? Do you go to all the fires?"

"Every one. It's the only excitement we have here," said Virginia, walking where the grass grew thickest and hoping here were no snakes. "Do notice the scenery. How odd the trees appear in the half light! Just look at the sky."

"I'd rather look at you," replied Gordon, suiting the action to the word. "You are beautiful this morning—indeed, you are always beautiful; but today you seem somehow different—more approachable, perhaps. I'll confess I have sometimes been a little afraid of you, but this morning there is something lacking—"

"Oh, heavens! My stockings!" thought Virginia.

"From your usual manner, a frigid something that held me at arms length all last winter and kept me from saying the words—"

"Would you mind keeping just one step ahead of me?" interrupted Virginia, whose eyes were glued with increasing horror upon two twinkling, triangular spots that showed below the straps of her slippers. "You see, there are sometimes owls along this road—and I think I should feel safer."

"I don't see any," said Gordon, glancing about. "As I was saying—"

"There's a table to dart out at any moment," fished Virginia, keeping discreetly in Gordon's shadow, "the cows here are so sudden, you know; they rush out when one least expects it. There, that's settling lighter—I mean it's nearer time for the cows—"

"I do anything for you," averred Gordon, obligingly quickening his pace. "But how am I to say the words I came so far to say if I am compelled to rush along in this absurd fashion, with you tagging at my heels?"

"Couldn't you say them when you come round or ask questions. I'll explain later when we're married, perhaps. But if you do look around—well, what happened to Lot's wife won't be a circumstance to what will happen to you."

Gordon wisely obeyed; and just as the sun reached the horizon, Mrs. Benton's door closed discreetly upon Virginia.

"You see, Mrs. Benton, explained Virginia later in the day, "I've always vowed I wouldn't accept the very first man that happened to ask me, so I've been holding him off all winter to give the others a chance."

"Did they take it?"

"They haven't so far," admitted Virginia, "and I should never have given in this time if I had had my stockings on."

ALDERMAN LEHANE MOVES THAT SPRINKLING BE DISCONTINUED

Sharp Tilt Over Passage of Measure Establishing a Fountain Without Reference to the Waterworks Committee En- livens Proceedings of Council—Police Matron Question Remains in Statu Quo—Ladies Are Present

"Your honor, I make a motion that we discuss the city sprinkling, commencing with tomorrow," said Alderman Lehane last night at the conclusion of one of the liveliest tilts that has ever marked the sessions of the city council.

Every one gasped for breath, the reporter wrote like mad, but no second to the motion came and the incident was closed.

The startling motion came after a petition from the W. C. T. U. had been granted, on motion of Alderman Waggonman, ordering the secretary of the water works to connect a drinking fountain for people with the fountain at the court house. Having been granted this, the women left, and scarcely had the last petticoat rustled down the stairs until Alderman Lehane was upon his feet.

In angered tones he expressed surprise that the members of the council should pass a motion of that sort without the courtesy of a reference to the water works committee, and scored Alderman Waggonman for attempting to make a grand stand play in front of the women.

"We know the condition of the water works," he declared, "and I want to tell you we're not going to put in that pipe for all the resolution."

Alderman Waggonman was on his feet again and explained that no slight was meant to the water works committee and referred to the fact that it was seconded by a member of that committee.

"However," he said, "if this council has the nerve that pipe will be put in by Mr. Calhoun."

"All right, we'll put in the pipe," declared Lehane, getting the floor again, and then followed that declaration with his motion.

"If any one doubts the reasons for the motion," continued the alderman, "I can show them right here in two minutes how we are voting away the water supply of the city, and I can show the whole condition."

"Oh, yes," he continued, "I'm ready for a fight right now."

As second to the motion being made at a word from the mayor, the city secretary continued the order of business, while the two aldermen kept up a crossfire which caused them to be frequently called to order by the mayor.

At the close of the session he left the room again and Alderman Waggonman explained to the body that no slight was meant the committee and that he had no intention to anger Alderman Lehane. He then moved a reconsideration of the previous vote and a reference of the petition to the water works committee. This action was accordingly taken.

MRS. JARVIS WAS THERE

All through the early part of the session the W. C. T. U. played a prominent part. Headed by Mrs. Jarvis, they appeared upon the scene early and announced their joy that the body had not yet adjourned. At this juncture a number of the aldermen appeared and a roll call was taken, failing, however, to show a quorum. All sat down patiently to wait further arrivals and the matron was informally discussed in this way. In a few minutes Alderman Moreland appeared upon the scene, his presence and the filling of the quorum being greeted with loud applause.

The regular order of business was suspended after the reading of the minutes and the women were invited to address the council. Mrs. Jarvis acted as spokeswoman and declared they had come to hear, not to talk.

"We want to hear the report of the finance committee on the matron question," she declared. She then suggested that the revenue derived from the dog tax recently imposed be devoted to the matronage expense.

NEWBY AND ZURN GO WEST

Alderman Newby replied, detailing in beautiful language the pilgrimage being made to California, Utah and Salt Lake City by two members of the body, Messrs. Newby and Zurn, with the sole view of investigating the police matron question. Alderman Newby, he explained, was investigating the work of city matrons, while Alderman Zurn had reluctantly assumed the task of seeing how the young ones did their duty.

Mrs. Jarvis, who did not appear to appreciate the necessity for plumes, swords and other regalia in an investigating mission, was pleased to learn that the aldermen were bearing their own expenses on the trip, but thought it needless to leave Texas to get light upon the subject.

A report from City Engineer Hawley was then read, stating that the present corporation room could be fitted up as a female detention ward at a cost of $600 to $700. A room for the matron, he suggested, could be made by using the present quarters of the city electrician. If suitable provision could be made for him, elsewhere, he did not know.

Alderman Waggonman moved that the report be referred to the electrical committee, and suggested that if the women would wait patiently for about twelve months, the matron question would be settled.

LEHANE TELLS THE TRUTH

Alderman Lehane then secured the floor and said: "Why don't you tell the ladies the truth. Don't give them taffy when you know this council is going to vote down the proposition. I'm against it as long as the city has no more money at present, and I want to tell them so honestly."

Alderman Waggonman insisted that his motion go before the house, and Alderman Henderson then announced himself as also opposed to the proposition, declaring that until every section of the city had sewer connections, until the fire protection was increased, the debts of the city paid and a larger and better paid police force secured, he was opposed to the outlay. Quoting Solomon, to the effect that the way of the transgressor is hard, he announced himself as opposed to making it soft.

Alderman Lehane offered as a substitute for the motion sending the matter to the electrical committee, leaving the matter as it stood. This motion was seconded and carrier and the women then departed, after leaving their drinking fountain petition, the innocent cause of the "doings."

The finance committee made a report, recommending the issuance of a note for the amount of interest due upon the city bonds. A report was also submitted by them, approving pauper expenditures by Chief Rea to the amount of $151. Both reports were adopted.

Claims were allowed on recommendation of that committee to the amount of $12,806.05.

A bill for street sprinkling for the last quarter, amounting to $1,316, was submitted with the approval of the city engineer and ordered paid.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS

An ordinance was then introduced and passed, providing for the improving of Cannon avenue from Henderson street to Sixth avenue, under the usual third payments by the abutting property owners and the city.

Another street ordinance providing for the graveling of Jennings avenue from Terrill avenue to Hawthorne street was passed under a suspension of the rules.

An ordinance was introduced by Alderman Waggonman, making it unlawful to establish any cemeteries within the city limits or to enlarge any of the cemeteries already established. Another clause of the ordinance makes it unlawful for a cemetery company to permit the interment of a body outside the limits of their grounds as now fixed. A fine of $200 for each daily offense is provided in the ordinance, which was passed under a suspension of the rules.

A resolution was next adopted, instructing the city engineer to notify the Santa Fe and Katy roads to improve their street crossings.

An ordinance providing for a change of the names of Broiles street and Park Place to Travis avenue was introduced and referred to the streets and alleys committee. The measure states that at present the one thoroughfare bears three distinct names throughout its course, causing confusion, and asking for the naming of the entire street Travis avenue. At present, the street is known from Pennsylvania to Terrill avenues as Broiles street from Terrill avenue to Rosedale street as Park Place and from that point on is known again as Broiles street.

A bill against the Carnegie library by their proportionate part of the cost of paving Houston street was submitted to the council by the board of the library and referred to the finance committee.

A communication from Mayor Powell was read, stating that an invitation to attend the World's Fair during Texas week and especially upon Fort Worth Day, September 12, had been received from President Francis, and advising that a suitable resolution of appreciation be passed calling upon the people to attend the fair if possible during the time. Such a resolution was accordingly adopted, following which the council adjourned.

WEATHER FORECAST

Heavy rains fell throughout the Panhandle yesterday and last night, estimated to be of wonderful value to the cotton crop in that section. Although the precipitation was heaviest and most general in the Panhandle other sections of the state also report good rains proving highly beneficial.

The stock country, too, received rain, Abilene reporting a fall of .22 inches. The heaviest fall occurred at Corsicana, where the precipitation was 2.30 inches, Nacogdoches had 1.74 inches, Taylor, 1.30 inches; Palestine, .48 inches; Longview, .59 inches; Waxahachie, .68 inches and Weatherford .40 inches. Other places in the state including this city, Dallas, Galveston, Greenville and Cleburne, had lighter rains. At the last place the rain lasted for several hours.

Van Alstyne reports the heaviest rain of the season. It accompanied the storm which is thought to have damaged the cotton in that vicinity. Copied reports a high wind storm, such as the rain and offsetting the benefits of the moisture by the damage done. The rain at Waxahachie is said to have come too late to be of appreciable value. McKinney also reports a heavy shower yesterday afternoon.

Rain was still falling this morning at Corsicana, Nacogdoches, Palestine and Tyler, while many other government stations reported cloudy weather.

Scattered showers and cooler weather are predicted for tonight, followed by warmer weather.

Frost occurred yesterday at Lander, Wyo., the minimum temperature being 24 degrees.

FORECAST

The forecast for Texas east of the one hundredth meridian, issued at New Orleans, is as follows:

East Texas (north)—Tonight and Sunday, scattered showers, cooler tonight, warmer Sunday.

East Texas (south)—Tonight and

LEARNING THINGS
We Are All in the Apprentice Class

When a simple change of diet brings back health and happiness the story is briefly told. A lady of Springfield, Ill., says: "After being afflicted for years with nervousness and heart trouble, I received a shock four years ago that left me in such a condition that my life was despaired of. I could get no relief from doctors nor from the numerous heart and nerve medicines I tried because I didn't know that the coffee was daily putting me back more than the doctors could put me ahead."

"Finally at the request of a friend I left off coffee and began the use of Postum and against my convictions I gradually improved in health until for the past six or eight months I have been entirely free from nervousness and those terrible sinking, weakening spells of heart trouble."

"My troubles all came from the use of coffee, which I had drunk from childhood, and yet they disappeared when I quit coffee and took up the use of Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Many people marvel at the effects of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum, but there is nothing marvelous about it—only common sense.

Coffee is a destroyer—Postum is a re-builder. That's the reason.

Look in each pkg. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

FOR BOARDING SCHOOL WARDROBE

For the girls who are going to boarding school only a few and simple dresses are needed. To buy many new gowns means to wear the home gowns during the entire year. The styles and fancies of the new gown and of the collars and school make it sensible to start out with few garments and add to them during the year. Here is a challenge for dinner. The yoke and cuffs are of cream colored challie. The ground of the gown is cream colored; the figure is a dainty shrimp pink. A little frill of cream outlining the collar and cuffs. The bands and the belt match the pink figure, and are of velvet. The buttons are covered with cream challie. This ecilar is becoming only to the full chested girl.

Sunday, scattered showers, cooler in west portion.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

D. S. Landis issued the following statement of weather conditions this morning:

The central portion of the country and northward to the Pacific is under the influence of high pressure, with clear weather and decreasing temperatures. Frost is reported from Lander, Wyo., with a minimum of 34 degrees. The southeast quarter of the country is generally cloudy with rainy conditions and thunder storms. Raining this morning at Memphis, Palestine and Fort Worth. Thunder storms occurred at Fort Worth, Little Rock, Abilene, Palestine, Cairo and Dodge City.

The cotton belt is generally cloudy except in the extreme southeast portion. Texas is partly cloudy to cloudy. Raining this morning at Fort Worth, Corsicana, Nacogdoches and Tyler.

Heavy rains in Texas—Corsicana, 2.30; Nacogdoches, 1.74; Tyler, 1.30.

TO TEACH FILIPINOS

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, St. Louis, Sept. 2.—Arrangements have been completed for teaching the Igorrotes, Moros and Negritos the English language, and a school will be regularly conducted at the Philippine reservation until the close of the exposition. The first class will be held next Monday morning and instruction will be commenced with the Moros. The Igorrotes will comprise the second class and the Negritos will be taken last.

The Negrito is one of the most primitive races known to the ethnologist and efforts to instruct the members of the tribe in English will be watched with interest.

St. Louis and Kansas City
The management of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition has provided a most elaborate and attractive program for MONDAY, SEPT. 3, LABOR DAY.

The exercises will be so arranged as to emphasize the important part organized labor has played in the rapid and wonderful progress of mankind in every branch of industry.

The various branches of labor from all parts of the country will be represented, and it is the intention to make this the banner day in point of attendance, since the opening of the exposition.

In order that Texas labor may be fittingly represented, Cotton Belt has arranged special coach excursions to St. Louis, on Saturday and Sunday, September 3 and 4. Special trains will be run, each section of which will be given a limited number of cars enabling them to make schedule time without difficulty. Enough sections will be run to insure comfortable accommodation for all and each train will be in charge of a representative of the passenger department.

For trains are composed of new equipment, high back coaches, free chair cars, elegant 1st class cars. Special World's Fair and standard sleepers are also carried and may be used by those holding long limit tickets.

The rates will be exceedingly low, only about two-thirds of the one way fare for the round trip. Excellent rooms may be secured at sixty cents per day (not more than four in a room) this rate being available only by members of our party. These are strictly first class in every way, located in the best residence district of St. Louis, and within easy walking distance of the fair. Good meals can be had within one block at very reasonable prices.

We have handled several of these excursions to the World's Fair with the greatest degree of satisfaction to our patrons. It is no experiment with us. We know we can give you good service, and see that you are well located in St. Louis.

PETER SELLS THE SHOWMAN IS VERY ILL

His Name Has Been a Household Word for Many Years—Traveled the United States Over Many Times

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 3.—The name of Peter Sells, the veteran showman who lies at his home in this city probably stricken with apoplexy, is about as familiar to the child of 50 as to the child of 10.

PETER SELLS.

and indomitable spirit, coupled with a tutelage under John D. Rockefeller, should become a millionaire. Peter Sells was one of 11 children of Peter and Hannah Ranney Sells, pioneers of Franklin county Ohio.

Peter’s first money was earned in carrying a route for the Cleveland Leader. He went into the Leader’s office in 1862, remaining until 1867, three of which years he was the paper’s circulation manager.

Sells was sent to the oil fields of Pennsylvania to take charge of the shipping interests of Rockefeller & Andrews, the parent firm of the present Standard Oil Company.

From the last named employment he went to Burlington, Ia., to work for his brothers, Louis and Al, who were auctioneers. From there he went to Chicago and out of Chicago he and his brothers peddled dry goods.

Peter Sells has traveled about as many miles and knows about as many different people as anybody on earth at the present time.

Peter Sells’ chief characteristic has been indefatigable application to business. He was always thinking, always planning and always studying human nature.

FOR FALL WEAR

Any medium weight wash material can be employed in reproducing this school dress. It can be worn by little girls from six to eight years old. The sash is of ribbon and matches the figure in the material. A light button-hole stitch worked over a blind hem finishes the straps and sash guards. French knots are added. Both knots and embroidery are in thread matching the figure in the material. The hair ribbon should match the sash. It is such little things that make the child well dressed.

The rafflesia of Sumatra is said to be the largest and most magnificent flower in the world. It is composed of five roundish petals, each a foot across and of a red color, covered with numerous irregular yellowish white swellings. The petals surround a cup nearly a foot wide, the margin of which bears the stamens.

HOGG REFUSES

Superintendent of Schools Will Not Give Out Book Information, Although Agent Was Here a Few Days Ago

CONTRACTS ARE CLOSED

Ginn & Company Selling the "Mother Tongue" to Fort Worth Dealers and Assuring Them the Book Will Be Used in the Schools

Although the opening of the public schools of Fort Worth is but a few weeks ahead, and the parents and guardians are anxious to know what books must be provided for the pupils, Superintendent Alexander Hogg of the schools refused this morning to give The Telegram the changes which have been decided upon, insisting upon withholding the information.

It is understood that the book committee of the schools held a meeting yesterday afternoon and decided upon the changes to be made. Although this decision of the committee will of necessity have to be approved by the school board before it is final, Superintendent Hogg stated to The Telegram this morning that the school board had recently agreed that it would adopt the recommendation of the book committee, and therefore the changes decided on by the committee would stand.

The book dealers of the city have been very anxious to know what books would be needed. They must get in their orders to the publishing houses so the books can be shipped in time to reach here for the school opening. They experienced the same delay in getting a Superintendent Hogg withheld the list from them until the last moment, and in some instances books were not here in sufficient numbers for the opening day. These book dealers have been endeavoring to get the list and all the information they have been from verbal statements of the members of the board and some of the dealers have taken chances. They have placed orders with the publishing houses for certain books to be packed and held ready for shipment upon telegraphic order. Another way they have learned of changes is through the fact that the agent of Ginn & Company, a publishing house, has been here recently and has convinced them that certain books published by that house have been decided upon for the Fort Worth schools, and the dealers have ordered from that agent on the strength of his information. These books are not in the accepted list order can be countermanded. Therefore it appears that from some source of information the publishing houses are advised.

The Ginn & Company books which are to be put in the schools are Kittredge and Arnold's Mother Tongue. These books come in two volumes, to sell at 50 and 45 cents respectively. They displace Harvey's language course, which sells at 35 cents and Little's Elementary English which sells at 25 cents, the new books being worth together $1.05 against 70 cents for the old books. The exchange price on these two books is one of the old books and 20 cents for the smaller of the new and one of the old and 30 cents for the larger. These books have been ordered by dealers, and in one instance it is understood that Ginn & Company also included in the shipment "Educational First Literature," but for what reason book men do not know, as with the many rumors going around about new books they have no information that such a book is to be used in the schools. Peterman's civil government is dropped from the list of books in use in the schools.

Williams' Chemistry, which has been in use in the school is dropped from the list and its place is taken by Rouse's Chemistry. Williams' Chemistry sold for $1 and the new book sells for $1.20, which is an increase in the expense of the pupil for this class of school literature.

Another new book in the school will be one called "Makers of Texas History." The book men here know nothing of this book. It is not listed with them at all and they do not know its price. They have been told it came out of Austin, but beyond this they have no information. Whether it takes the place of a good book or is an addition they do not know.

There is some discussion of the Whitney and Leckwood English Grammar, but the general impression is that it will stay in the list. However, they have no information on this subject.

This morning Superintendent Hogg addressed a letter to the book men in the city, Mr. Caruthers, Mr. Benz, Mr. Connor, Mr. Dillon and Mr. Green and asked them to meet him at the high school building this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The communication gave no information further than that he would grant an audience to the business men who are dependent upon the patronage of the patrons of the schools.

While Superintendent Hogg has withheld the information regarding new books from the book dealers here and the newspapers, it is evident that some one has the information, else Ginn & Company's agent would not have come to Fort Worth to close contracts for the "Mother Tongue" book. This raises the question as to who is entitled to the first information—the people of Fort Worth or the book men who are manufacturing the higher priced product which is to be sold to the school children.

Later—At 2 o'clock this afternoon Superintendent Hogg recalled the notice that he would grant the book men an audience. He gave as his reason that the board will discuss the matter further. He states the school board meets Monday and the book list will be submitted then.

SHIPPING COIN TO PAY PICKERS IN THE FIELDS

The Express Companies Carry Much Money to Those Towns Where Many Cotton Hands Are Now Employed

Cotton pickers throughout the state have an unwritten law which must be implicitly obeyed by all men who hire them to work in the fields. The rule is, on every Saturday night those who have picked in the fields during the week must receive a settlement in full at the close of the week. To do this sometimes causes the planters considerable difficulty in getting together silver and small money for that purpose.

The country banks during the season make requisition on the city banks for that purpose. On Friday afternoon and Saturday morning the express companies handled large shipments of silver and pennies. This morning several trucks loaded with small coins in sacks was sent out on the morning trains.

It was handled as if it was so much ordinary matter and was shipped in many small sacks, being hauled to the various express cars on trucks over which were pieces of canvas. The employes of the companies guard this money and "woe be unto the man" who gets too close to one of the trucks, if he isn't known. They are on the instant told to move and move they do instantly.

MEMPHIS, Sept. 3.—A fire of unknown origin destroyed the six story building occupied by the Oliver-Finnie Company, wholesale grocers, on Front street at an early hour this morning, causing a loss estimated at $300,000, partially insured.

POPE PIUS IS TO HAVE AN AUTOMOBILE
ROME, Sept. 3.—The pope has purchased an automobile for his personal use in taking daily rides through the vatican gardens.

Cardinal Ferrari, archbishop of Milan, the only cardinal owning an automobile, and who was much criticized for it by other members of the sacred college, is responsible, it is said, for this step taken by Pius X toward modern comfort and progress.

He submitted plans to the pope for a brougham and Pius was so greatly impressed with the cardinal's enthusiastic description that he ordered one of the vehicles forthwith.

It will be painted in the paper colors, white and gold, with the interior upholstered in red silk damask. The papal coat-of-arms appears on each door. The electric plant of the vatican will be used to charge the storage batteries.

NEW BUILDINGS OPEN

SHERMAN, Texas, Sept. 3.—The beautiful new buildings of the North Texas Female College, known as Lois Thompson and Annie Green halls, were formally thrown open for the public's inspection yesterday. The two, one a dining hall and the other a dormitory building, replace those destroyed by fire last winter, and are models of elegance and convenience, costing with furnishings about $40,000.
