MOUNTAIN FIGHT

The Russians, Beaten at Every Turn, Flee Before Pursuing Japanese, Who Are Making Bayonet Charge

GENERAL OKU IN DANGER

After Three Hours' Slaughter the Japs Retake Tun Pass, But Russians Are Being Reinforced and Thinned Lines May Be Wiped Out

LIAO YANG, Oct. 15.—With the two bitter battles raging to the east and west of the railroad, the Japanese center under General Nodzu has left its strong positions on the northern slopes of the Tung-shankow hills and is advancing to meet a Russian reserve force of more than 50,000 men who are entrenched in the mountainous section north of the Russian reserve to the right and left of this cache have already moved southward to the end of the imperilled fighting lines, and but for the center reserve the road to Mukden is practically open. Two columns of Kuroki's army are engaged with three Russian divisions in the hills east of the railroad. The latest news received here of this conflict is to the effect that the Japanese reported the fleeing Russian lines fourteen miles east of the Penshu, where Kuroki had isolated them, driving them to flight. The pursuit was immediately taken, the Japanese infantry charging with bayonets, preceded by seven companies of cavalry, in the face of a withering fire of the rear guard of the fleeing Russians. The outcome of the engagement is not known. No further news has been received from the extreme right, where General Kuroki has practically taken the command out of the hands of the regimental commanders, and at last accounts was reported to be out of sight with three divisions whom he intended to extricate the Japanese enveloping movement. Russian prisoners brought here say that the general had a presentiment that he would not survive this week's fighting and that he designated Lieutenant General Sakahara to succeed him should he be disabled or killed. In the event of Sakahara's death, Kuroki orders that Lieutenant General Beldering is to assume command. After three hours' unparalleled slaughter, the Japanese have recaptured the Tun Pass, taken by them on October 12 and retaken by the Russians with frightful losses on the 14th. The Japanese are now occupying every position in the vicinity of the Pass, but their lines have been thinned by the awful losses of the past two days, and the arrival of reinforcements from the south is awaited anxiously. Two regiments have been almost wholly annihilated and the remaining regiments have lost ten officers and a large number of soldiers. If the Russians succeed in taking the Pass again, the entire position of General Oku will be in extreme danger of being flanked and the road to Yental will be opened to the enemy.

Kaiser Believed in Ownership by Government

He Is Adopting That Method to Defeat the Trusts, as He Does Not Think Legislation Will Do It

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—It develops that ineffectual efforts on the part of the government to acquire the ownership of the Hibernia coal mines of Westphalia, which created a boom in mine values on the Berlin exchange for the last two months, were the first steps in the Prussian policy to nationalize the coal mines.

The Prussian minister of commerce, M. Herr Muller, co-jointly with the Dresdener Bank, opposed the competing banks and trust magnates so clumsily that the resulting failure may lead to Muller's resignation. The Kaiser attaches great importance to the matter.

In reality, the fight is between the Kaiser and the trust leader, August Thyssen, German's Morgan and Carnegie rolled into one. The Kaiser is quoted as saying: "The question is whether Thyssen or I shall rule in the future in Germany." The Kaiser's government, considering that trusts are a technical and economical necessity, does not think they can be controlled by law and believes that the only way to check their evil tendencies is to inaugurate state ownership of railways, canals, coal fields and ore deposits. The failure to acquire this mine will only temporarily arrest the Kaiser's new policy.

HOPE OF REFORM IS HOLDING PEOPLE BACK

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 15.—Talk of a revolutionary movement is again heard on all hands, but this is likely once more to soothe the nerves of the chagrined and anxious nation. The officials are flooding the provincial press with favorable versions of Kuroki's retreat. The stories are made much of by provincial editors, largely because of the good effect of Prince Sviatopolk-Mirski's policy of conciliation. Reports from field centers are disheartening to the partisans of expansion in the far east, being the civil and military administration. It scarcely too much to say that the government's saving hold on the nation during the present great crisis is due to the hope, which has spread even to the most remote districts, that the czar's new minister of interior intends to accomplish real reforms in behalf of the people.

RUSSIAN FORCES ARE RETIRING ON MUKDEN

TOKIO, Oct. 15.—At Shahopao Kuroki's main army faced the Japanese right thrust. The Japanese troops pressed forward and after some heavy fighting occupied Shahopao. A fierce assault was made on the Russian divisions in the direction of Benshu. The Russians fell in disorder to the northeast. Crossing the Shin river this morning, the left column of General Nodzu's army at the center pressed on the enemy to the left of the Shin river. The Russian forces in the direction of Japanese right are retiring on Mukden by the Fushan road. A conference was held at the imperial headquarters this afternoon.

Senator From Georgia Says the Senator From Illinois Has Violated All Rules of Courtesy and Hospitality

MR. HOPKINS DENIES IT

Says He Has Not Said What Is Charged, But That He Did Say if a Negro Attempted to Vote in South Carolina Would No Doubt Be Shot

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—With all his Southern blood boiling with wrath and with no words adequate to express his contempt for the junior senator from Illinois, Augustus O. Bacon, United States senator from Georgia, arrived in Chicago today. He claims that he has been insulted by a fellow member of the senate, Albert J. Hopkins. Not only has he been insulted, but he has been slandered and vilified, and his honor as a gentleman has been called in question. More than that, the senator from Illinois, he says, has outraged all laws of hospitality. Mr. Bacon is denouncing Mr. Hopkins publicly as a lightweight, the "lightest man in the senate," and other terms quite as emphatic.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 16.—It is reported in official circles that the Seventh army corps suffered most. So many of its regiments were next to annihilated that the corps had to be reinforced several times.

HIS SITUATION SERIOUS

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Rome correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company wires that a cipher telegram has been received through diplomatic channels, describing General Kuroki's position south of Mukden as of the gravest nature. One of his chief difficulties is obtaining provisions owing to lack of transportation facilities east of Harbin. For this reason the dispatch of further Russian reinforcements to the front has been temporarily suspended.

TAKING TALKS ON THE TICKET

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 15.—Two speeches, each a dissection of the Democratic platform and the party's claims, were delivered tonight by former Secretary of War Root and Senator Lodge at a largely attended republican rally held in the Academy of Music under the auspices of the Union League.

Mr. Root spoke first, and after he had concluded his long, vigorous laudation of President Roosevelt, and his lawyer-like exposition of what he claimed was the weak spots in the Democratic platform, there was little left for Mr. Lodge to say. The former secretary well maintained his reputation as the safe and sane logician of the republican party.

Senator Lodge spoke in a happy vein, keeping his 4,000 hearers smiling constantly by his witticisms and his sarcastic references to Judge Parker's tactfulness.

Mr. Root said: "It seems to me the campaign on the part of the democrats thus far has been a campaign of pugnacity. It is almost impossible to learn from the platform or from the speakers of that party why it is that people should withdraw their confidence from us and give it to them."

Mr. Root said that Judge Parker was a man of high character, but that he had failed to give the people any opportunity to judge as to his personal qualities.

"We believe," he added, "that we have done better for the country than he will do. The situation is like that which the grizzled old Senator Sawyer referred to when he declared, 'What, those fellows run the government! Why, it is as much as we can do to run it ourselves.'"

Defending the expenditure of public money under the Roosevelt administration and showing that it was wisely spent, Senator Lodge said: "The coast defenses, and the American navy are the country's insurance of absolute peace."

He also said: "There never was a time in our history when the protection of the lowliest one at home or abroad was so thoroughly manifest as it is today."

TAFT IN BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 15.—Secretary of War Taft was the star of the republican mass meeting here tonight. President Roosevelt, he said, was not an obstructionist. No man, the secretary claimed, had so little pride in his own opinion as Mr. Roosevelt, and when he followed this up by declaring that Roosevelt was an American, the audience applauded vigorously.

The reference to ex-Governor Hill's objection to the acquisition of the Panama canal, the story of the transaction and all the facts that led up to it were then handled. He insisted that the president did the right thing and acted within his constitutional power.

Pension order No. 78 was considered, and Mr. Cleveland was charged with having established a precedent in fixing the age limit.

SHERIFF HONEA ARRIVES HOME WITH FORMER CASHIER EVAES

Sheriff John Honea reached Fort Worth last night at 9 o'clock over the Texas and Pacific from St. Louis, having in custody W. R. Eaves, who was arrested today. Honea, who is an indictment alleging embezzlement from the Citizens' National bank of that place.

Eaves was first seen in St. Louis by County Judge Milam, who was attending the World's Fair, Saturday, October 8. This fact was reported to Sheriff Honea, who, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Hamill Scott, left for St. Louis the following morning. With this information and other "tips" gathered by Sheriff Honea, after a diligent investigation in many parts of the country, he was able to identify the man who was able to identify Honea, and several long trips to different places, he was able to readily identify him when he met him at the Delmar race tracks in St. Louis. Sheriff Honea secured the service of Detective J. M. Cordell and the three officers repaired to the race course. The first day's visit resulted futile, but on the second day he spotted Sheriff Honea spotted his man and placed him under arrest.

"I am not Eaves," said the prisoner. "My name is Robert E. Reed, of Covington, Ky.," he quickly replied. But this contention had no weight with the Texas officers, and they took Eaves in.

When arrested he was in the act of playing a race, a thing he admitted to Sheriff Honea. He had been doing ever since he left Texas on the 27th day of January last, but with indistinct success, for he stated that the officers had taken the entire amount of money he had with him, but had landed to the good in the sum of $2,695, which amount he had on his person when placed under arrest. Besides this he also had a $20 Mexican gold piece. This money was turned over to Sheriff Honea, but was afterward deposited in a bank in the names of both Eaves and Honea. When asked the name of the bank where the deposit was made, Sheriff Honea was reticent.

When Eaves left Arlington he went direct to Shreveport, La., where he purchased a ticket for New Orleans. He remained there only a short time, and then went to Mississippi points, but later drifted to Kentucky, landing at Covington, where he remained for five months. He

AMERICAN WHO HAS BEEN SELECTED TO COUNSEL KING OF KOREA IN HIS REFORMS WILL HAVE A HARD TIME OF IT AS ENEMIES ARE ON EVERY SIDE

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The British government has made minute inquiries relative to the intentions of Japan and Korea in the event of ultimate Japanese success in Manchuria and the reply has come without dodging from Tokio that the mikado will establish a protectorate.

Great Britain is satisfied with this program and the United States, it is believed here, will interpose no objection. No other powers need be considered. It is appreciated here that Japan's vehement desire to retain control of Korea is prompted not so much by business, as has been the case in the case of the protectorate in Manchuria, as Korea has been styled by a Japanese statesman, flowed Japan's early civilization.

Great Britain expects considerable commercial advantages once this protectorate has been established and for this reason the development of the situation under the guidance of American Counselor Durham White Stevens will be closely watched. The government has already received advices of one turn things are taking. One of these reports has been loaned to the "Publishers Press correspondent" for perusal. The author, a high English official, expresses the opinion that Mr. Stevens' task will be a hard one, that he may accomplish it, but that it will take years before the first gratifying report can be sent by him from Seoul.

The compiler of the report states without mixing of words that Korea is more barbaric than China, the Koreans, he says, have all the virtues of the Chinese without their redeeming virtues of ingenuity and industry. As a race, he considers them cowardly, and, according to the testimonies of the best informed foreigners he could obtain, of very limited intelligence.

It is understood that Mr. Stevens has already begun to lay his axe to the trunk of this rotten forest and that he has already encountered opposition which would be likely to discourage a less determined man. What makes his task more difficult is the fact that he is in Seoul by Japanese authority and the Korean hates the Japanese, as the latter hates the Russian, notwithstanding all that has been said and written about Korea's pro-Japanese leanings.

Mr. Stevens, the report says, will have to keep a watchful eye on more than one pretended friend to defeat the attempts that will constantly be made to defeat his efforts.

As to the status of Korea among the countries of the world, the report says that she will undoubtedly be permitted to retain her autonomy and independence. Nominally she will conduct her own foreign relations, even after Mr.

FAIR

Stevens' task has been accomplished, but the dependent position in which she is being forced towards Japan in commercial matters will make her country's Egypt. The absolute assurance has been received by the British agent that Japan does not intend to wall Korea in by a high tariff but on the contrary, existing restrictions are more than likely to be removed in order to invite foreign capital.

MILWAUKEE AT MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 15.—The largest audience seen at any campaign meeting thus far this season, turned out to hear Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, republican candidate for vice president, at the Pabst theater, held under the auspices of the regular republican state committee. It was the first campaign gun of the state and national campaign in Milwaukee. Assistant District Attorney McGovern presided.

On the stage and in the boxes were many distinguished citizens of the state and city. Governor Smedley Dearborn occupied a box. Senator Spooner, though in the city, did not attend.

Senator Fairbanks devoted a part of his speech to refuting the charges of extravagance made against the administration. He showed that the money was expended for good purposes, such as the extension of the free delivery. He made a great hit when he added: "It is a great blessing that this money could be thus expended and the republican party is responsible for having this money to spend. We did not have to borrow it, there have been no bond issues."

The Government Has Taken a Firm Stand Against the Missionaries and They Must Depart

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The Hungarian government has taken a firm stand against the introduction of Mormonism. Two young Americans, Pingree and Wetzel, who recently arrived in Temeswar and founded a Mormon city, after legal proceedings from the city, after legal proceedings involving the liberty of religious professions, appeal to the minister of the interior was returned yesterday with an adverse decision and the two Mormons will have to leave the city within forty-eight hours. It is doubtful whether they will be permitted to settle in other portions of the country.

ENGLAND HAS NOT KEPT HER PROMISES

LONDON, Oct. 15.—From Bloemfontein comes the news that the Burgeois of that city and neighboring towns are contemplating the organization of a league of municipalities for the purpose of discussing their grievances. Resolutions were discussed at a meeting held on Thursday, in which the government came in for considerable criticism. It has so far failed to pay the compensation guaranteed for services by the Burgeois and judgment was given recently by the government in a petition of the Boers, and they will have to fight for their rights.

SCOTTISH RITE IS TO BE CONFERRED

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 15.—The second semi-annual reunion of the Scottish Rite bodies, domiciled at Dallas, will be held here October 24 to 27 inclusive. All the degrees from the fourth to the thirty-second inclusive, will be conferred in full form. Appropriate costumes and elaborate stage paraphernalia and accessories have been prepared, which will add much to the attractiveness and impressiveness of the ceremonies.

Meetings will be held in Turner Hall, beginning Monday morning, October 24, at 10 o'clock.

If possible, arrangements will be made to lay the cornerstone of the Scottish Rite Temple, which is to be built at the corner of Harwood and Wood streets, during the initiatory ceremonies. This building, to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000 and it will be modern in every respect.

About 100 candidates, in all, are to be initiated in the different degrees during the ceremonies next week.

TALKS OF PHILIPPINES

Condemns Republican Party in Very Emphatic Language and Insists That Only Honorable Way Is to Give Philippines Independence

ESOPUS, N. Y., Oct. 5.—By way of inaugurating his announced plan of speaking from his Rosemont veranda to visiting delegations, as a substitute for a tour, Judge Parker today addressed two contingents of about 200 men, and took occasion to denounce in violent terms the Philippine policy of the Roosevelt administration.

It is evidently the intention of the democratic nominee to make such delegations as those the vehicles upon which he will carry his pronouncements upon the issues of the campaign to the public. Today's speaking was given up entirely to the Philippines and the Filipinos, all three speakers condemning the powers that be for the holding of the one and for the treachery of the other. The delegations represented the Parker Independent Club and the Avon Beach Club of Brooklyn. The independents were made up of New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts men, and among them were Charles R. Codman of Boston, President Walter A. Wickoff of Princeton and Professor Henry Hardon of New York.

The contingents arrived together upon the 8 o'clock train and walked the mile from the station to Rosemont. The individuals were introduced by Colonel Codman and Professor Hardon and immediately after congregated upon the lawn facing the south end of the veranda, from which the speeches were made.

Both Colonel Codman and Professor Hardon in their speeches to the nominee dwelt entirely upon the Philippine issue. Colonel Codman said it was the least preparation for the treachery and deceit shown the natives of the Philippines to give them the independence. He said the Parker independents and their clubs pledged to the ticket the votes of those who believe that the honor, principle and welfare of the nation were above party aggrandizement.

Professor Hardon said that the republican party has a great opportunity when it refused to deal as honestly with the Filipinos as it had dealt with what is now through the grace of promises kept a free republic. Judge Parker was cheered as he stepped forward to reply.

JUDGE PARKER'S SPEECH

Judge Parker said: "The importance of the issue to which you refer cannot be over-estimated. It is attracting the attention of the patriotic people all over the country. Permit me to call your attention to a portion of the democratic platform relating to it. No government has the right to make one set of laws for 'Those at Home' and another set of laws absolutely of their character for 'Those in the Colonies.'"

"Wherever they may exist, a people incapable of being governed under American laws, inconsistent with the American constitution, and giving territory that people ought not to be part of the American domain. We insist that we ought to do for the Filipinos what we have already done for the Cubans and that it is our duty to make the promise now and to give the guarantees of protection to citizens of our own and other countries resident there at the time of our withdrawal to set the Filipino people upon their feet, free and independent, to work out their own destiny."

"The declaration of independence, born in the brain of the father of democracy, says the same thing in effect, for it declares that governments derive their 'just powers from the consent of the governed' and giving before said that we may not disregard the responsibility imposed by the possession of the Philippines and that responsibility would best subserve by preparing the islanders, as rapidly as possible, for self-government and giving it to them with the assurance that it will come as soon as they are reasonably prepared for it."

HOPE OF FILIPPINES

"This means independence for the Filipinos in the fullest sense of the word. When prepared they may govern themselves, as the Cubans do; unassisted, unless asking help; untrammelled by our politics; unencumbered by our politicians and uncontrolled by us. When the battleships of our great republic destroyed the Spanish war vessels, the Filipinos hoped the freedom for which they had struggled so long was finally approaching."

"After our utter defeat of the Spaniards, the republican administration paid to the viceroy oppressor of the unconquered Filipino $20,000,000 for his uncertain option on his victims' lands, tenements and hereditaments. In the attempt to bolster the option, he wasted over $5,000,000 more of the people's money, sacrificed over 200,000 lives and the waste of money and the sacrifice of lives are not yet ended, if the policy of the administration is to be continued indefinitely."

"That policy refuses to promise independence to the islanders now or at any time, or upon any condition. It does not even leave open the door of hope."

"The administration rails at the democratic party because of its promise to them of independence as soon as they are prepared. Indeed it suggests to the millions of intelligent people that such a promise would stimulate the vicious to be more vicious instead of encouraging the improvement which would secure them what they most desire on earth—freedom. I but state the proposition. It figures itself. If our people agree that the administration is wrong in threatening by its silence that which it undoubtedly intends, namely, perpetual bondage for the Filipinos, the remedy is in their hands. We could have donated to Spain a number of millions of

An Ideal Medicine.

MISS LOUISE MATHER, 13 Church St., Burlington, Vt., Vice-President Bureau of Exchange, writes:

Your medicine is an ideal woman's medicine and by far the best I have known to restore lost health and strength.

I suffered for several years. My back ached, I had bearing down pains, and frequent headaches.

I would often wake from sleep in such pain that I would suffer for hours before my eyes would close again. I dreaded the long nights as well as the weary days.

I consulted two physicians, hoping to get relief. Finding that their medicine did not seem to cure me, a friend advised me to try Peruna.

I am certainly glad that I followed her advice, for Peruna was the only medicine for me. Every ache and pain disappeared in four months and I am in perfect health now.

My earnest advice to suffering women is to try Peruna, for I feel sure they will not be disappointed in it.—Miss Louise Mather.

Enjoying Splendid Health.

Mrs. L. E. Tyler, Santa Monica, Cal., Secretary Santa Monica Musical Society, writes:

I was troubled for over three years with systemic catarrh, complicated by female weakness and inflammation.

This induced frequent headaches, nervousness, hysteria and sleeplessness, which nothing could relieve until I tried Peruna.

I began to feel better after I had taken the first bottle and improved from week to week until at the end of about eleven weeks I was entirely well.

I am pleased to say that I have enjoyed splendid health now for nearly a year. I have a fine appetite, enjoy sound sleep and do not suffer from any more headaches or other pains.—L. E. Tyler.

Completely Regained Her Health.

Miss Edith Reams, 726 North Main St., Dayton, O., writes:

I suffered for some time with both lung and female troubles.

I had been under the treatment of a good physician for about nine months without obtaining any relief, when Peruna was recommended to me. After taking twelve bottles of this medicine I have completely regained my health.

I am pleased to recommend Peruna to any one suffering from the above ailments.—Edith Reams.

Candidate for Vice President Reaches Huntington in His Own State Just as Speaker Cannon Is Leaving the Town

West Virginia People Do Not Take Kindly to the Speaker, Who Pokes Fun at Their Favorite Son—D. B. Hill Discusses the Negro Question

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 15.—H. G. Davis, democratic vice-presidential candidate, spoke here this afternoon and tonight was given a royal reception by enthusiastic admirers.

The Davis party, composed of Senators Hill and Dandridge and former Governor White of Maryland, the principal oratorical champions of democracy, reached here just as Speaker Joseph Cannon, who had been delivering a republican speech in the afternoon, left for Point Pleasant, where the Davis party had preceded him.

Speaker Cannon had an audience of 1,800 people. He scored the democrats in general and Judge Parker and D. B. Hill in particular. He implored the people of West Virginia not to allow the desire to honor their distinguished citizen for the sake of pride to compel them to vote against the prosperity of millions of people.

His remarks in general were well received. Senator Davis characterized the democratic spokesman of your state who thinks he is running for the vice presidency.

The audience did not take kindly to the remark and all suggestions in regard to the age of Senator Davis and "his honest record" failed to provoke enthusiasm. Representative Hughes, the republican congressman of the district, presided at the republican meeting, and in the evening at the democratic rally was an honored guest on the platform.

Senator Hill spoke on the negro question. He said: "The republicans in their platform have seen fit for purposes of their own to inject in this campaign, not directly but indirectly, not openly and manly, but covertly and cowardly, the race question, which has been so fruitful in the past of countless woes to the country. The proposal espoused in the platform must be viewed with more complacency and less sensation had not the present occupant of the White House, since his incumbency, been that of a complicated hostility to these people of color. The plank is a miscellaneous one, even if not a dangerous one."

They were my cattle this fellow said, weren't they?

The crowd assented.

"Then I reckon this fellow is my prisoner since I'm the injured party, isn't he?"

"Yep," remarked the crowd in unison.

Get Him at Liberty.

"Then I decree that he goes free," said Bridges, and, suiting the action to the word, he cut the bonds about the cattle thief's wrist and the fellow, who was astride his horse, preparatory to riding beneath the fatal tree where several of his comrades already hung, dug his heels into the pony's flanks and raced out across the plains.

Bridges stepped back and faced the crowd, with his hands resting lightly on his hips, near to his brace of six-shooters. There was no objection, however, and after completing "work" the cattlemen rode home, but it was quietly found, upon comparing notes, that Bridges and that "cattle rustler" looked enough alike to be brothers.

One spring Bridges was caught out in a blizzard, and, hardened as he was, he contracted a cold which set, never recovered. When he knew that he could not last much longer, Bridges called all his cowboys into the room where he sat, wrapped in a blanket, in a rough-hewn armchair.

"Boys, I'm going to die," he said, "and I called you in to hear me make my will. I'm not going to write it down, but as a friend to each of you I expect you to respect my wishes and see that they are carried out as I would like."

"Big Den is to have the south ranch and 1000 head of cattle. Oscar is to have the little ranch on Beaver creek. It's smaller than the others, but there's more water there, and he, too, is to have 1000 head of cattle."

So on down to line to the five men with whom he had been closely associated during his life in the West did he give each a ranch and the cattle to stock it. To the men with whom he had not been so closely allied, but who worked for him, he gave cattle by the hundreds, and then, dismissing all but his five friends, he said:

"Boys, beneath the head of my bed you'll find an iron box. It's locked and here's the key. I want you to take that key and throw it into the creek now. When I've cashed in I want you individually to see that that box is buried with me—unopened, mind you. I think I can trust you, but for god's sake don't look so glum."

As they filed out the door they heard him humming a border town song, the first deep words of which were, "Oh, bury me deep on the lone prairie—" solitary grave is a bright spot in the history of a locality where monotony is king. In the first place, Bridges was not his name, but it was all the name the "boys" of the "cow country" knew when he came among them in the early '70s. He had money, a good physique and could shoot and drink; these were his passports.

It wasn't considered polite in that country in those days to inquire for more than a man's present well-being. That the man they knew as Bridges came of a good family "back East" and had been a short time before graduated from college the fellows found out, and to a close acquaintance Bridges one time remarked that he and his family couldn't agree.

Men Died Young There.

The Texas Panhandle is still considered somewhat crude, but it is a veritable cradle of refinement now compared with what it was then. Men drank deep, shot straight and died young. It was into such a godless society that Bridges was cast, and, while evidently a man of some culture, he became at once one of the "boys." The night was never too dark to go if a friend was in trouble or need.

In a short time he gathered a good sized bunch of cattle, and, as he paid his "riders" good wages and fed them well, they swore by him to a man. As a result his herds prospered and he grew wealthy, until at last he became known as "Bridges, King of the Range." Riches did not change him one white, however, and he was the hall fellow he had been when a tenderfoot.

Unlike other men of his stamp, Bridges never cared to go back East and see his "folks." He seldom even visited the larger towns in Texas, and when he did several of his "punchers" went with him—"for company."

Whether all this was because of a more sinister motive none knew. One time, it is related, he accompanied a bunch of cattle from one of his ranches to Dodge City, Kan. While there a distinguished looking old gentleman wearing a silk hat and snow-white burnside alighted from a train and with a sweet-faced old lady marched arm in arm up and down the platform.

One cowboy, a little drunker than the rest, raised his revolver to puncture the "stovepipe," when Bridges, with an oath, "covered" the facetious comrade, saying:

"Put that down, you fool, and remember your own mother."

It was noticeable, however, that he kept out of sight of the couple until they climbed back into the train, and he never could be persuaded to go to Dodge City again.

All the ranches in those days experienced considerable trouble with cattle thieves, known as "rustlers," and Bridges was no exception. But he waged a relentless war against them with considerable success. At one time, after a chase of several hundred miles, a band of these desperadoes was cornered and forced to surrender. The ethics of the country demanded that they be hanged at once to the nearest tree.

Captors and captives had reached the favorite spot which boasted a tree, when Bridges interrupted the impending ceremonies with a remark that he wished to speak to the leader of the band. The noose was already around the fellow's neck, but it was withdrawn, although his hands were still tied behind him. He and Bridges walked a short distance from the others and conversed in low tones. At length they came back and to the expectation of the bridges said:

"They were my cattle this fellow said, weren't they?"

The crowd assented.

"Then I reckon this fellow is my prisoner since I'm the injured party, isn't he?"

"Yep," remarked the crowd in unison.

Get Him at Liberty.

"Then I decree that he goes free," said Bridges, and, suiting the action to the word, he cut the bonds about the cattle thief's wrist and the fellow, who was astride his horse, preparatory to riding beneath the fatal tree where several of his comrades already hung, dug his heels into the pony's flanks and raced out across the plains.

Bridges stepped back and faced the crowd, with his hands resting lightly on his hips, near to his brace of six-shooters. There was no objection, however, and after completing "work" the cattlemen rode home, but it was quietly found, upon comparing notes, that Bridges and that "cattle rustler" looked enough alike to be brothers.

One spring Bridges was caught out in a blizzard, and, hardened as he was, he contracted a cold which set, never recovered. When he knew that he could not last much longer, Bridges called all his cowboys into the room where he sat, wrapped in a blanket, in a rough-hewn armchair.

"Boys, I'm going to die," he said, "and I called you in to hear me make my will. I'm not going to write it down, but as a friend to each of you I expect you to respect my wishes and see that they are carried out as I would like."

"Big Den is to have the south ranch and 1000 head of cattle. Oscar is to have the little ranch on Beaver creek. It's smaller than the others, but there's more water there, and he, too, is to have 1000 head of cattle."

nexed Cuba with equal justice and less suspicion of imbecility than we displayed in acquiring the Philippines. Secretary Taft has said: 'A promise to give ultimate independence will be construed by the major element of a promise to guarantee independence in the present future and during the present generation. The success of the experiment we are making in the Philippines depends upon making the Filipinos believe that we are there for their benefit but we expect to stay there indefinitely in order to work out the good we propose.'"

"The issue clearly defined is here. The republican party stands for the subjugation of a defenseless people. Democracy stands for freedom. We relieved Spain of this thorn in her flesh—the Philippines—to plunge it into our own. We paid and are paying enormously for the privilege of performing the operation."

LOVE OF LIBERTY "Every true American would despise a man who would not fight to the last gasp for the land of his forefathers and the birthplace of his babies. We perpetually point with pride to our love of liberty. The republican platform asserts that fifty years ago the republican party came into existence, dedicated among other purposes, to the task of restricting the extension of human slavery. Are they? That sounds well. But it speaks for the virtue of another generation. All the leaders of the republican party of that day have passed away. In their places have come very different men."

DUTY TO CUBA "We have done our duty to Cuba. We have left her to work out her own salvation—to take her place in the march of civilized nations. "Should we force the Philippines to hope for independence? Shall we prevent their building up their own civilization and try to force ours upon them? Civilization is a growth, not a disguise. "Our duty to the Philippines demands a promise of independence, but if it did not our own interests demand that we be relieved of the Philippines just so soon as they are reasonably prepared for self government."

"A colony holding nation is ever subject to expensive wars with other nations and with its colonies. This necessitates strong garrisons and powerful navies, and draws heavily upon the treasury, and history records no instance of a nation receiving from her colonies anything like an adequate return for the blood and treasure spent. "England's national debt was doubled by the revolt of the thirteen colonies it had cost her so much to secure. "The American expansionists, following European argument, allege that annexation of the Philippines must promote progress for the commerce and introduce the leaven of civilization into a backward and inferior race. The evidence of history is to the contrary. "Every race must work out its own civilization in its own way. Certainly the claim will not be made that we can ever get the money that has been taken from the pockets of our tax payers and wasted on the Philippines. And it is alike certain, that, but two classes of our people can hope to be benefited by the acquisition of the Philippines. The class which is always hunting for special government privileges and the class which seeks to make of office holding a means of livelihood. "The latter class in the Philippines comprise some officials, of whom a student of conditions there recently said: 'Of the character of many in office too little can be said. At the best they have been inefficient; at their worst dishonest, corrupt and despotic. The islands seem to be held in and in some places unable to get work. The country is overburdened with taxation; disease is prevalent, the farm animals dead, the towns in many places in ruins, whole districts in the hands of Ladrone, the price of products poor and unremunerative. "NO FREE EXPRESSION "Public opinion has no free expression. Newspapers are bought up or driven into silence. Men of influence who do their duty are ostracized, the plays produced are censored, there is not an organ of expression of the popular voice that is not controlled. In private life men are subjected to a complete far-reaching, thorough system of espionage, detectives appear in the guise of servants and the oath of a single one is enough to destroy a man's reputation, liberty or even life itself. "This country should hasten to the relief of that situation. But aside from the duty we owe the Filipinos to aid them in preparation for the object of the blessed provisions we promise, we should guard against the danger to ourselves of an imperialist policy. History teaches that from republicanism to imperialism the movement is gradual and unperceived by the people. Its ominous progress, when discovered, leaves open but two courses, submission or resort to violence. "Our people who were never before compelled to choose between these fearful alternatives should hear our prayers; but we should work as well as pray, and our work should guard the foundation on which our government rests. Its basis is that of declared ideas, ideas that are stronger than battleships and armies, ideas which for more than a century have stimulated our development and which have given promise that our world mission shall be not to seize the territory of distant peoples and rule them with a rod of iron, but to establish truth, honor, justice and peace among the nations. "I ask the republican party whether the administration of the United States government should be continued in its hands, it is proposed to undertake to apply any remedy? Will it enact for the Philippines proper statutes regulating the affairs with some view to their independence? Will it give their perishing shipping interest relief? Will it give them tariff regulations under which they can exist?"

WARNS THE REPUBLICANS "We hold the Philippines. Have we taken the proper steps to fulfill the obligations therein assumed? Are the Philippine Islands today a self-supporting community? Are not their eyes toward acquiring such position embarrassed at every turn by the legislation we have forced upon them? I warn the republican party that it is not and on—be it understood—that an oppressed people should be revived, however splendid. "Continue, as we are doing, to oppress these people and one of the vexatious questions that this nation has against the republicans who voted for him will confront us. We must choose whatever in our borders the base of government shall be in idealism or materialism, which is the sure precursor of dissolution, for no nation can endure upon a basis of materialism. "Tolerance requires that the choice be made in time. The time is over."

BRYAN APPEALS TO ALL TO VOTE TICKET

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—The speeches of Mr. Bryan this afternoon and tonight were mainly appeals to democrats to vote for Judge Parker and for the democratic nominees for congress, but he deviated from this in some localities by urging the populists who voted for him in two campaigns to stand by the democratic ticket because it represents constitutional government at home and abroad.

One peculiarity of his speeches today, which excited some comment because of its repetition, was that he did not consider the democratic platform nor its candidate ideal, but that they are better than offered by the republicans, and for that reason he is supporting them. In one of his speeches he referred to the appointment of colored postmasters in the South, and the failure to appoint such men to office in the North, but it was even stranger that the republicans, claiming to have freed the black man, would go 7,000 miles across the sea to enslave the brown man at the behest of corporations. He said the republicans deprecated talk about independence while war was in progress in the Philippines because such talk would prolong the war, and now, when the war is over, one must not speak of independence because it may cause war.

The week's meetings closed with a speech tonight at Seymour, at which thousands were present. Mr. Bryan will resume his speaking tour Monday.

DIRECT LIVE BEEF The Canadians are still working on their pet scheme to ship range cattle to Great Britain and fatten them there. The Irish farmers are as strongly resisting the removal of the restrictions which will enable these North American cattle to come in. Just now the men of Erin have the whip hand.

In the meantime some American farmers are trying the experiment of shipping prime steers direct from the farm to the English market. H. C. and Earl Cleveland of Oregon, Ill., recently sent over 267 head via Portland, Me. The feed in transit was $809 for the lot. They realized $90 per head. The shippers claim a net profit of $20 per head. This was during strike times and may not be a normal profit."

COWBOY'S FRIEND

Shaft Erected in the Texas Panhandle to the Memory of Jim Bridges, Who is Revered by Many of the Old-Timers in That Section

"Jim Bridges, the cowboy's friend," is the inscription on a grave in the Texas Panhandle not far from the Oklahoma border. It is fully twenty-one miles to the nearest human habitation and even then it isn't much of a place, yet the grave is well kept and each year the iron plate fence which surrounds the grave is given a new coat of black paint. The grave is in a slight depression like the arena of an amphitheater, and the loving hands of "rough men" have platted there a small grove of hardy trees.

The story of Jim Bridges and his exploits in the cowboy world is too long to tell here.

TREATMENT OF PILES Permanence of Cure the True Test. Many so-called pile remedies will afford the user slight temporary relief, and the majority of those afflicted do not expect more than this.

The average sufferer, after having tried every preparation recommended for the cure of piles, comes to the conclusion that there is no cure except by operation, and rather than undergo this "last resort" he suffers on, resigned to the situation, so far as may be. The attention of those interested is invited to the following experience: "After ten years of suffering from blind, bleeding and protruding piles, and after using every remedy I could hear of without any benefit, I finally bought a fifty-cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure, and used it with such good results I bought next a dollar box, which finished up the job. That was nearly six years ago, and as far as piles is concerned I am cured, and have never felt a symptom of them since."

"Many others have used this remedy by my advice, with the same results, and I always recommend it to sufferers with piles." C. H. Fotts, Burlington, Kan.

Testimony like this should convince the most skeptical the Pyramid Pile Cure is not only a cure, but cures to stay. It is in the form of a suppository, can be applied in the privacy of the home, directly to the parts affected, and does its work quickly and painlessly.

Druggists generally sell this famous remedy for fifty cents a package and sufferers are urged to buy a package now and give it a trial tonight. Accept no substitutes.

A little book describing the causes and cure of piles is published by the Pyramid Drug Company, Marshall, Mich., and same will be sent free to any address for the asking.

Did you buy your hair at an auction? At any rate, you seem to be getting rid of it on auction-sale principles: "going, going, g-o-n-e!" Stop the auction with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It checks falling hair, and always restores color to gray hair. Sold for over sixty years.

SUPREME CHANCELLOR NAMES COMMITTEES

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 15.—Charles E. Shively of this city, supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, today made public the list of standing and special committees to serve during his administration of affairs. The chairman include the following: Judiciary—C. M. Hanson of Maine. Ways and means—D. S. Woodworth of Massachusetts. Grievances—J. B. Gallagher of Montana. Finance—W. E. Matthews of Kentucky. Credentials—J. H. Scott of Delaware. Reports—William Ladew of New York. Mileage and per diem—D. M. Pace of Ontario. State of the order—J. J. Brown of Illinois. Written work—A. B. Gardner of New York. Written work—J. J. Boyne of Arkansas. Warrants and charters—W. L. Hollowell of Kansas. Rules—Frederick Adolph of Louisiana. Review—W. E. Chappin of Wyoming. Endowment rank—L. B. Henley of Iowa. Uniform rank—W. E. Hitchcock of New Jersey. Subdivision and reference—A. H. George of Vermont. Revision—Tracey R. Bangs, past supreme chancellor. Amplified first rank—J. W. Sullinger of Virginia.

SAFEST FOOD In Any Time of Trouble Is Grape-Nuts. Food to rebuild the strength and that is pre-digested must be selected when one is convalescent. At this time there is nothing so valuable as Grape-Nuts for the reason that this food is all nourishment and is also all digestible nourishment. A woman who used it says: "Some time ago I was very ill with typhoid fever, so ill everyone thought I would die, even myself. It left me so weak I could not properly digest food of any kind and I also had much bowel trouble which left me a weak, helpless wreck."

"I needed nourishment as badly as anyone could, but none of the tonics helped me until I finally tried Grape-Nuts food morning and evening. This not only supplied food that I thought delicious as could be but it also made me perfectly well and strong again so I can do all my household, sleep well, can eat anything without any trace of bowel trouble and for that reason alone Grape-Nuts food is worth its weight in gold." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Typhoid fever, like some other diseases, attacks the bowels and frequently sets up bleeding and makes them for months incapable of digesting the starches and therefore pre-digested Grape-Nuts is invaluable for the well known reason that in Grape-Nuts all the starches have been transformed into grape sugar. This means that the first stage of digestion has been mechanically accomplished and therefore no matter how weak the stomach, can handle it and grow strong, for all the nourishment is still there.

There's a sound reason and 10 days' trial proves famous little book, "The Road to Wellville" in each pkg.

LIKE YOUNG FEEDERS O. H. Nelson of Port Mason, Iowa, and Anson, Texas, manager of the Western Stock Yards, was here today. He reports the recent sale of Texas feeders at his yards a success, but unfortunately, owing to washouts in the Peeco valley and Panhandle sections, calves exclusive to the sale did not arrive in time, but the purchasers were there. Calves and yearlings were most in favor, but fair prices were realized on Panhandle 2s and 3s.

There is a pronounced sentiment in favor of calves and yearlings in Iowa and Illinois," said Judge Nelson. "Feeders are realizing that maximum profits are possible only by handling young stuff. Early in November we will have a sale of 1500 yearlings and calves exclusive."

Meanwhile, the usual Friday and Saturday private sales will be held. "Asked about the feeder outlook, Judge Nelson said: "When the feeder becomes satisfied that the price of corn will not be prohibitive, there will be a liberal movement of this cattle toward feed lots. So far the feeder has been afraid of 50-cent corn. In my opinion, feeders in the territory west of Chicago will not have to pay an excess of 35 cents this winter. Corn has been contracted in Oklahoma at 29 cents, in Kansas at 25 cents and in Missouri at 25 cents, and this during the recent dull movement. Feeders show a disposition, however, to fill up at bed rock prices and this has been largely responsible for the delay. Good feeders will undoubtedly sell higher."—Chicago Live Stock World.

KENTUCKY STATE 42, BEREA O LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 15.—The Berea eleven suffered a disappointing defeat in the hands of Kentucky State College today, the latter winning 42 to 0.

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect. Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proved that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium Sulphide and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver, and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists, and for that reason, tabbed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called "blood purifiers," will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

NEGRO HURLS ROCK CRUSHING SKULL OF WHITE BOY

Two Inches of Bone Removed by Physician and Lad Will Recover - Preparing Plans for Waterworks

While engaged in a fight with a colored lad, the 8-year-old son of James Dennis of Granbury, Tex., had his skull crushed in North Fort Worth late Friday afternoon.

The boy, with his parents, had come to the city to see the circus, had returned from the show to North Fort Worth, where they were visiting friends, and while walking along Central avenue became engaged in the altercation. During the fight, the negro boy hurled a large rock at the white boy, crushing his skull and felling him to the ground. Medical attention was at once summoned and he was removed to the Protestant Sanitarium, where it was found necessary to remove a piece of the skull over two inches in length.

This delicate operation was performed by Dr. Walker and the boy was yesterday reported resting well and in a fair way to a complete recovery. The negro boy being only 7 years of age no arrests were made in the case by the North Fort Worth officials.

WATER WORKS PLANS

City Engineer Hall of North Fort Worth who has just returned from St. Louis, states that active work will be begun next week on the plans and specifications for the water works, although the receiving of bids and commencement of work is scarcely expected to be begun before December 1. The first work taken up will be a survey of the drainage area of Marine creek, it being possible that a storage basin will be included in the water works plans. The main plans will consist of grounds, buildings and wells. All information necessary to secure the approval of the secretary of state has been sent to Austin with the exception of the statement of taxable values, which will be submitted within a few days.

The re-survey of the city, including the running of the city limits, as recently requested by the city council, will also be begun within a short time.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

The Baptist social which was held Friday night at the residence of F. B. Carson, North Fort Worth, was a success as to numbers and reflected credit upon the management. Piano numbers were furnished by Mesdames Williams and Carson and vocal numbers by Mrs. and Mrs. A. Haney. Recitations were given by Misses Betts and Dunn, after which refreshments were served. Mrs. E. P. Reynolds of Roanoke spent circus day with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Williams, returning on the night train.

Mrs. A. C. Chase and Mrs. L. L. Knight were in North Fort Worth Friday afternoon. "Billy" Williams, the gentle and faithful pony who is so well known around the stock yards, got tired of waiting for the circus to pull out, rubbed his bridle off and started out grazing by moonlight, necessitating a walk home by his owner.

Nellie Williams spent Friday night with Miss Camille Mays. A number of young people of Rosen Heights are preparing for a W. C. T. U. gold medal contest.

J. F. Williams and wife are spending Sunday in Roanoke with their daughter, Mrs. E. P. Reynolds.

Mrs. J. L. Mock and S. F. Reynolds of Saginaw attended the circus and visited friends Friday.

Friday evening as Dr. G. W. Eastham was returning from town, he had a collision with a wagon and had a very narrow escape from serious injury. However, he escaped with a few bruises.

OF INTEREST TO THE STOCKMEN

Captain J. T. Lytle, secretary of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association yesterday received the last of the weekly report from the inspectors of the association throughout the state and the territory country, all of which show conditions of stock and range to be first-class. From only one section of the state came a report that was not most satisfactory. Secretary Lytle said to The Telegram last evening that cattlemen could not wish for a more general good condition than now prevails all over the state, and that it is his candid opinion that a better time is in store for the cowman in Texas in regard to advanced prices.

He says that there is an acknowledged shortage over the country of matured stuff and for this if not for other reasons there is bound to be a satisfactory reaction. Particularly does he think that from the first of April to the 15th of June there will be considerable fat stuff move from Texas, for between these periods marketable grass cattle can not be had in any great numbers except in Texas.

The fat stuff from the northwestern country will have been marketed by November 1 and Secretary Lytle's information furnished by the territory inspectors is to the effect that about the last of the pasture-fed cattle from that country will have been run to market by the 20th of this month.

Because of these conditions he believes that the demand for fat Texas cattle will begin to pick up and that there will be quite a movement to the markets from this state at greatly increased prices. When the beef stuff from the above named sections has been moved, Texas will then have the attention of the buyers.

S. S. Conway, general superintendent for Armour & Co., with headquarters at Chicago, accompanied by George Pratt, head buyer for the same corporation, was in North Fort Worth Saturday on a tour of inspection which will include all the plants of the company. A large part of yesterday afternoon was spent at the local plant of the company. While here Hog Buyer Pratt, who has been watching the conditions of the different markets upon the trip, prophesied four and one-half cent hogs at Chicago by the middle of December or January 1. He says the packers here are paying too much for their hogs. Speaking of conditions generally, he stated that the Northern corn states had had unusually good yields of that article and that that section was full of hogs. The hog crop he states is late and is not being marketed with any great rapidity. When asked regarding the prevailing prices in the Fort Worth market he declared he had found them in line with those of other points. From this city he and Superintendent Conway will likely return North.

One of the firm of E. P. Swensen & Sons, the well known bankers and financiers of New York, was in the city yesterday on his way to Abilene, where the company has heavy landed and cattle interests, for the purpose of visiting the property. While in North Fort Worth Mr. Swensen stated, when asked by a Telegram man for his opinion on the presidential situation that he was not in the least alarmed over the outcome and that in his judgment Roosevelt will succeed himself. Further than this statement Mr. Swensen did not care to discuss politics.

The Fort Worth Horse and Mule Company will hold their next big Auction Sale of Horses and Mules on week, Oct. 21, to 22. Write them for terms.

SCHOOLS SHOW INCREASE IN ATTENDANCE

Arrangements Have Been Made for a Number of Talks on Nature Studies at the Public Library

The highest number of actual attendance since the beginning of the school in 1882 has been reached by the public schools of Fort Worth—4,617 pupils. Last year this number was 4,610, or seven less than last week. The maximum number this year will be reached in November. There are now forty-two pupils to the teacher.

The number of pupils last week over the week previous is 27, and over the corresponding week last session 13. The most substantial gain of the schools is seen in the relation of the grades. For years 25 per cent was in the first grade, 75 per cent in the four first grades, and less than 10 per cent in the high school. The relation now shows that 29 per cent is in the first grade, 61 per cent in the four first grades and 12 per cent in the high school. These figures demonstrate two things: First, that the pupils are better satisfied, they remain longer, and, second, that the increased requirement of better scholarship is appreciated by the pupils themselves.

Last week being circus week the absence and "dismissed too early" reports show a terrible demoralization. Two buildings show "dismissed too early" 101 in 1,000.

The monthly cards will be sent out this coming week, and parents are earnestly requested to examine carefully these before returning them.

The following is the report for the week ending October 14:

The public school has added to its curriculum the study of nature. From the child's first year at school he is taught to observe the familiar animal and plant life about him. Through the different grades he is led from the familiar to the less familiar object until he is ready for the more mature work of the high school. Anything that teaches the child to observe the natural wonders by which he is surrounded must mean much to both his intellectual and spiritual life. It is safe to say that it will not be possible to say of the Fort Worth child, that, like Wordsworth's "Peter bell," "A yellow primrose by a river brim, a yellow primrose was to him, and it was nothing more."

To stimulate the interest in the new work and to direct the attention of the young people, their parents and teachers to the many books in the library on the subject, a series of talks has been arranged. The first talk, "How Children May Make Our Homes Beautiful," will be given by Dr. MacAdam, president of Fort Worth University, in the young people's room of the library on Saturday morning, November 12, at 10 o'clock. The talks are intended for not only the young people, but their parents, teachers and friends are cordially invited to attend.

In connection with the talks, lists of books in the library on nature, birds, flowers, animals, insects, astronomy and geology are being prepared, and will be published each Sunday. These lists are carefully graded, the numbers to the right of the titles indicate the grades for which the books are suitable.

The following are the lecture dates: November 12—"How Children May Make Our Homes Beautiful," Dr. George MacAdam.

November 19—"Flowers of the Way-side," Miss Ward.

November 26—"Our Native Trees," Miss Geta MacFadden.

December 3—"Our Native Birds," R. L. Paschal.

December 10—"Birds of Prey," R. L. Paschal.

December 17—"Homes Without Hands," R. L. Paschal.

January 7—"How to Attract Song Birds," R. L. Paschal.

January 14—"The Starry Firmament," A. E. Burnett.

January 21—"Insects of the Household," C. F. Webb.

January 28—"Insects of Garden, Field and Forest," C. F. Webb.

February 4—"Insects Beneficial, Beautiful and Interesting," C. F. Webb.

February 11—"Some Little Enemies (Bacteria)," Dr. J. H. McLean.

TEXAS EXHIBIT IS TO WIN PRIZES IN ST. LOUIS

T. Graham Has Returned From the Fair and States That Immigration Will Be Attracted to This State

T. Graham, who has had charge of the Texas agricultural display at the World's Fair, is in the city for a few days on private business, but will return to St. Louis soon and resume his duties looking after the welfare of Texas at the World's Fair. During his absence the Texas exhibit will be in the hands of Captain McNeill.

Mr. Graham, when asked if the display of Texas products and manufactured articles would result in doing any good to state, replied that they certainly would, as he had already noted many flattering results of the displays. He believes that as a result of the people of this state sending samples of the soil and manufactured articles, immigration will flock to the state during the coming year.

"It can not help but do good," said Mr. Graham, "for those who have heretofore known very little of the fertility of Texas soil are now convinced by seeing the exhibits that everything can be grown in this state that can be raised elsewhere."

Mr. Graham states that the official list of premiums that have been prepared will soon be given to the public. He says that the list will show Texas up to good advantage.

RAILROAD NEWS

Commissioner Mayfield Will Create a Breeze in Railway Circles Monday by a Motion He Will Make

MUST MAKE REPORTS Failure to Do So Subjects Each Line to a Penalty and He Will Seek to Have Attorney General Bring Suit for Recovery

AUSTIN, Oct. 15.—Commissioner Mayfield will create a breeze in railroad circles next Monday. All the roads except seven have made annual reports to the commission this year as required by law. A penalty of $500 for each day roads fail to report is imposed. These seven roads are now liable for this fine from September 15. Commissioner Mayfield will move to instruct the attorney general to file suit against these delinquent roads at once to recover penalties.

NEW PANHANDLE ROAD.

Captain Lock, who is projecting a new railroad to be built from Abilene north to Amarillo on the Fort Worth and Denver City road, and also to be constructed south to San Antonio and thence to the gulf, has the undertaking well in hand. At Abilene the yards and depot grounds are being put in shape for tracks and buildings, while the road is graded several miles in either direction from Abilene.

The road is known as the Abilene, Northern and Gulf. From information received here from John Fullwider of Abilene, who is in the city, it is learned that Captain Lock has backing for the enterprise. The money for the building of the road is to be furnished by capitalists of New York and Kansas City.

It is further learned that construction material for the road has already been bought and is expected to arrive at Abilene in time to be used when the terminals have been put in shape at that point. The line will be a valuable one for the people living in West Texas; it will provide railroad facilities for cattlemen who ship to the Northwest, as it will give them a most direct route to all the Northwestern points to which West Texas cattle are shipped every year. Connection will be made with the Fort Worth and Denver City road at Amarillo.

The line will also cross the Texas and Pacific and will prove to be a valuable feeder for that road which will also furnish traffic for the new road for the Northwest.

SANTA FE LINE OPEN.

Superintendent J. W. Robins of the Santa Fe advises that the line of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe is now open to California via Albuquerque, and all embargoes placed by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe lines are cancelled. No information is furnished as to the conditions of the territory over the Canadian river.

NO MEETING HELD.

No meeting of the Rock Island stockholders was held in this city yesterday. Vice President Hovey announcing that it had been impossible to get a quorum together for the transaction of business. This failing, no meeting of the board of directors, which was to have been held immediately after the stockholders' session, was had. Up until the present time no date has yet been fixed for the third attempt to hold the meeting and but little interest seems displayed in the matter. So far as can be learned, no changes in the board of directors are contemplated, and no matters of special importance are pending.

DENVER SCHEDULE.

Official schedules were issued yesterday from the passenger department of the Denver road, announcing that effective upon that date, train No. 7, formerly leaving here at 8:30 p. m. will hereafter leave at 8:35 p. m., arriving at Amarillo at 9:05 a. m. Returning the train will leave Amarillo at 7:20, arriving here at 7:25 a. m.

The notice further states that trains Nos. 7 and 8 will run only between Fort Worth and Amarillo, instead of through to Denver.

COTTON BELT FIXTURES.

City Ticket Agent Adams of the Cotton Belt is in extraordinary high spirits and possessed of a certain amount of justifiable pride over the new fixtures placed in their offices in the Fort Worth Bank building.

These fixtures, dividing the various departments by partitions, are formed of the finest quartered oak, highly polished and prettily designed. The Cotton Belt fixtures, Mr. Adams now declares, are equal to any west of the Mississippi, and much finer than those of any city ticket office in St. Louis.

EDWIN GOULD COMING.

Word was received in this city yesterday that Edwin Gould will reach this city tomorrow over the Cotton Belt but it cannot be learned what length of time he will remain.

It is not known who will be with him on the trip, those composing the party, which includes George Gould, being scheduled to split at Texarkana. George Gould will then go over the Iron Mountain route. Edwin coming here over the Cotton Belt. The trip is said to be the regular one of fall inspection.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

C. S. Thompson, commercial agent of the Illinois Central, with headquarters in Dallas, was in the city yesterday.

General Freight Agent Sterley of the Denver returned last night from a trip up the line.

Traveling Freight and Passenger Agent Keane of the Over Leaf lines was in the city yesterday.

Live Stock Agent Comer of the Katy has returned from a trip up the Denver lines.

BY A MISTAKE

At Small Town in Bell County Young Man Fires at Friend, Believing Him to Be a Highwayman

ELMER HUGHES IS DEAD

Rode Up to the Door and Seeing the Store About to Close Called to the Clerk to Wait—Clerk Mistook Him for Robber and Began Shooting

TEMPLE, TEX., Oct. 15.—A terrible tragedy was enacted last night at Vitas, a small country town about 17 miles southeast of Temple, according to information which reached here today from residents of that section.

A young man, son of a preacher, but whose name could not be learned today, was in charge of a store at Vitas, and was just about to lock up the place last night, when a man rode up on horseback, calling "hold up." In the semi-darkness the clerk became panic-stricken and his first thought was that he had been ordered to throw up his hands. Drawing a pistol that he had with him he fired three times at the approaching man, causing the man to pitch off his horse dead.

Investigation revealed that the clerk had committed a horrible blunder and that the dead man was Elmer Hughes, a well known and respected citizen of the community and the close personal friend of the slayer. It is reported that Hughes was on his way to the store to make some purchases and seeing the door about to be closed, called "hold up" to attract the other's attention. This he did, with fatal results to himself. The entire community is pained in deep sorrow over the sad occurrence and the young man who did the shooting is prostrated with grief and remorse. It is not likely that any prosecution will result, as the affair was undoubtedly an accident, and one of those unfortunate occurrences for which no one is strictly to blame.

FREAK PUPPIES ARE BORN HERE

Owned by F. D. Livingstone, Who Will Exhibit Them at the San Antonio Fair

Frank D. Livingstone has in his possession in this city two of the strangest animal freaks ever exhibited here, the specimens being two black and tan puppies, neither of which has forelegs, and one of which has a head of almost human shape and a distinctly marked hare lip.

The animals were born in this city September 16 and are now in a healthy state with every prospect of attaining full growth.

They were obtained by the present owner from an Italian woman living in this city and although several offers have been made for them, they have been refused.

Both puppies are bright little fellows and except for their inability to run about are as active as ordinary dogs of their age. They will be taken to the San Antonio fair for exhibition there.

Several scientists have examined the dogs in this city and declare that they like has never been known before.

REPUBLICANS

Conference of State Committeemen Held Behind Closed Doors and Nothing Is Given to the Public

POLITICAL CIRCULARS Have Been Prepared and Were Submitted to the Committee—McGregor Is Not in Favor of a Retrenchment Policy—Congressmen Claimed

DALLAS, Oct. 15.—The republican state executive committee held a secret conference in the T. P. A. rooms of the Oriental Hotel this morning for the purpose of outlining the campaign that will be commenced by the state candidates next Monday. The reporters were not allowed to be present during the conference and they were referred to the state chairman by the executive committee who were approached for information.

It is known, however, that State Chairman Cecil A. Lyon has had prepared some political circulars which he submitted to the committee for its approval. These were carefully read and it is needless to say that as Lyon has had them prepared, they were approved.

A number of prominent republicans, who are not members of the committee, attended the meeting and made suggestions as to the proper manner for conducting the campaign.

Witnessed by a reporter this morning Mr. Lyon said: "This is a little private conference that we are having. It is nothing that the general public wants to know about. We want to put a little ginger in the boys on our side, so that they can put the same kind of stuff in their opponents on the democratic side. I forget whether we are going to carry eleven or twelve congressional districts, but we are willing to give the democrats one district, just to show that we are all right. Honestly, we have a fine chance in several congressional districts and several counties are going to flip to the republican side this year."

H. F. McGregor, candidate for congress from the Eighth district, who resides at Houston, is one of the republicans from South Texas here today. He said to a reporter: "I think that I have an excellent chance of being elected. You Dallas people are interested in my election, too, because you want the Trinity river improved so that you can have navigation. My democratic opponent is advocating retrenchment policies, while I, as a Texan, want no retrenchment policies adopted by Uncle Sam. I think that the Texans, who want to see needed improvements in this state, are with me on that proposition. Now it might be a good plan for the democrats to adopt retrenchment policies in the state government. However, I think that we have been too niggardly in our state administrations. A little higher tax rate would not hurt anybody, and if the funds are spent judiciously it would be a great help to the Lone Star state."

DELAYS THE OPENING.

Owing to the unavoidable absence of James G. Lowden of Abilene, republican nominee for governor of the state, the opening of the republican state campaign, which was scheduled for tonight at Turner Hall, was necessarily deferred until Monday night, and instead of being in Dallas will be opened at Fort Worth.

Quite a crowd of Dallas citizens gathered at Turner Hall at the hour indicated for the opening of the meeting, 8:30 o'clock. Chairman Cecil A. Lyon called the meeting to order, and made a brief talk in which he informed his audience, with much regret, that he had received a telegram from Hon. James G. Lowden, late in the afternoon, in which he advised that circumstances over which he had no control rendered it simply impossible for him to be in Dallas to attend the meeting. Mr. Lyon stated that in view of the fact that Mr. Lowden was the nominee for the chief executive of the state, he felt that it was no more than was due him that the opening of the campaign be deferred until Monday night, at which time Mr. Lowden will be at Fort Worth.

Mr. Lyon informed his hearers that several speeches would be made in Dallas prior to the November election, the dates of which will be announced later. He urged all republicans to make it a point to bring out some Democrat to the speaking, to not waste their time on voters who had already "been saved," but to get after the "unsaved." He stated that he was a republican from no selfish motive, but that because he had been reared in the state and Texas was first in all things with him, and he believed the conditions of the state would be in better hands if the republicans had charge of its government.

AWARDED TWO GRAND PRIZES.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—(Special.)—H. J. Heinz Company are awarded at the World's Fair the grand prize for excellence of their fifty-seven varieties of pickles and food products. They also received the grand prize for industrial betterment work among employees.

PHYSICIANS LOOK INTO THE POISONING

Mention was made several days ago in The Telegram of the poisoning of a number of persons by eating meat at a restaurant in the city. Dr. Chambers, the city physician, since that time has been making a careful investigation of the matter.

During the investigation, he has been assisted by Dr. M. E. Gilmore of North Fort Worth. The two gentlemen have been going over the entire situation to see if they could trace the cause of the sickness and to ascertain if the persons had really suffered from bad meat. They expect to ask Dr. Harry D. Paxson, the United States inspector of animal industry at the packing houses, to assist them in the investigation.

So far, the two physicians have been working on the clue that cattle which are known as "downers" at the packing houses have been taken from the plants with the understanding that they were to be taken care of before being slaughtered for the market.

Dr. Gilmore as city physician of North Fort Worth has been investigating recently a violation of the law against selling such meat and when he notified the Telegram that Dr. Chambers had a poisoning case on hand, he immediately went into the matter with him.

HOW THEY SLIDE A 6000-TON TUB OF STEEL FROM LAND TO WATER

BATH, Me., Oct. 10.—Several thousand people perched on the tops of buildings and standing along the docks in the yards of the Bath Iron works were in a flutter of suppressed excitement.
A stillness almost deathly was broken only by the snarling rat-tat-tat of 200 sledges upon as many blocks of oak. The steel shell of a monster of the sea was shivering and shaking on the launching ways.
A man's voice suddenly arose above the din of the sledges, exclaiming in the order: "Saw!"
Two men ply a cross saw to an oak plank. There is a snapping noise like the crack of a pistol.
A fair hand is thrust out from a little stand erected near the prow of the vessel and a bottle of fine wine crashes against the red steel and pours out along the vessel's side.
Six thousand tons of steel, fashioned to the shape of a ship, begins to move and like a living thing slides swiftly, majestically down the greased ways and with a tremendous splash finds its berth in the tossing ocean.
The crowd cheered as though mad. Women waved small flags and handkerchiefs. Bands played, cannon roared, the crowd kept on cheering, steam whistles sounded the chorus and the whole volume of sound spread out and resounded like a clap of thunder.

That was the scene at the launching of the big battleship Georgia, the new queen of Uncle Sam's navy. It is one thing to build a ship and quite another to place the tremendous weight safely in the water. It is questionable if one of a thousand people who saw the Georgia slide gracefully into the sea had even a fleeting thought of what it meant to transfer those 6,000 tons from land to water.
To tell the story of just what happened to make it possible for the Georgia to make the descent requires a return to the time when her long keel was laid. In the first place it was necessary for the builders to select a piece of beach which had a decline to the water's edge of three-fourths of an inch to the foot. The entire building operation had to be done upon this basis of foundation angle.
Then plings were put down into the sand to insure a perfect foundation. With this complete, a row of blocks were set up high enough so that the builders could work from beneath. The two conditions taken into consideration at this time were to have the vessel high enough so that work could be done under her bottom and at the same time not so high that she could not be got off into the water when her shell had been formed.

The Georgia might be likened to an eight-story building. She stands as high as the average building of that size, and 1,400 men found employment in putting her shell together. As the work of building went on every act on her downward course and "pivoting," with the danger possible of her turning over on her side and, besides being totally wrecked killing or maiming the hundreds of men aboard her or at work on the docks.
At the point of pivoting, the vessel, which was then shooting along the ways for her baptism at the rate of 14 miles an hour, suddenly began to rise to her own buoyancy. In another instant she was floating.

The ways were constructed of 12x14 timbers, bolted together. These rested upon the pilings and were surmounted by heavy yellow pine timbers with a weight capacity of two and a half tons per square foot.
Made fast to the bottom of the vessel, from prow to stern, was her cradle of heavy timber, built to dovetail and run in the ways. The vessel's plates never touched the ways, being protected by this heavy cradle, which was packed tightly around the metal sides and held in place by great chains.
Nearly 10,000 pounds of grease, beef tallow, stearin and a composition very much like vaseline, was spread over the bed of the ways and it was over this slippery mass that the cradled ship slid.
When all was ready for the launch, the first order given was to drive the oak wedges, which had the effect of lowering the vessel and cradle into the ways. Then the other supports were knocked away. The ship might have slipped down without warning at any moment had it not been for a precautionary measure. This was in the form of an oak sole piece, six inches thick, which had been set into the sliding ways and bolted and lashed to the ground ways. This little piece of timber was all that held back the ponderous structure. It was when the two men were sawing this sole piece, having cut through four of the six inches, that it snapped off with a cracking report, due to the weight of the vessel upon it.

Then, with nothing to hold her the Georgia, 40 per cent a completed product, took her sensational dive.
In the event of the vessel being caught on the ways, it would have been pushed on its downward flight by hydraulic pumps.
Gaining tremendous impetus as she sped along, the vessel ran 4,000 feet in the water before a tug caught her and towed her back to the dock, where she is to be fitted with engines and her fighting equipment.
When she is complete she will have cost the government something like $5,000,000.
The cradle, which was built in two end sections, was released after the launching by simply drawing pins at points on either side and about amidships. Tugs easily drew out the sections from fore and aft, and the big engine was left floating on her own bottom.

CURES WINTER COUGH
J. E. Gover, 101 N. Main St., Ottawa, Kan., writes: "Every fall it has been my wife's trouble to catch a severe cold, and therefore to cough all winter long. Last fall I got for her a bottle of Horehound Syrup. She used it and has been able to sleep soundly all night long. Whenever she coughs I give her two or three doses stops the cough, and she is able to be up and well." 25c. 50c, $1.00. H. T. Pangburn & Co.

SHEEPMEN AND CATTLEMEN AFFILIATE IN NATIONAL ORGANIZATION

At a meeting of the board of control of the National Live Stock Association, just held in Denver, it was unanimously determined that there would be no successor appointed to the late Charles F. Martin, as secretary until the January meeting of the association. It is understood that quite a number of applications have already been filed for the position, but a committee consisting of Fred P. Johnson, George W. Ballantine and George Goulding has been appointed to take charge of the affairs of the organization, and Mrs. Helen Kennedy, who was Mr. Martin's stenographer, has been placed in charge of the secretary's office as clerk. Some radical changes in the organization are in contemplation, which will be taken up at the next annual meeting. These changes contemplate bringing the cattlemen and sheepmen together in some kind of a compact agreeable to both interests. At present these two interests are more or less at variance, and the majority of the members of the association are sheepmen. As a national body the sheepmen have the National Wool Growers' Association, and the cattlemen last May organized the Interstate Cattle Growers' executive committee. It is now planned to get these two interests together, each to maintain their respective organizations, but to also be represented with the railroad and other mutual interests in the national association. It is expected that the January meeting of the association will be one of the most largely attended in the history of the organization. The National Wool Growers meet in Denver at the same time, and there will be delegates to both conventions from all over the United States. Harmony is expected to be brought about as a result of the two conventions. In discussing the general situation, President Hagenbarth of the National Live Stock Association says: "The live stock industry is undergoing a great evolution, especially in the west. There seems to be a general feeling among stockmen that the time has come when the National Live Stock Association must become a more active factor than it has been in the past in securing results for the industry. At no time since its birth as the necessity of a strong organization been so apparent to every one. We seem to have reached the point where there are no longer any sheepmen or any cattlemen, but we are all stockmen, and the only proposition now is, how to secure the best and most practical results for the good of our industry. Range business has already changed entirely from what it was a few years ago, and no one can say where it will finally end. There are many great questions connected with the proposed changes at the next convention and all who have their money invested in live stock are anxious that an organized effort be made to bring conditions to a more settled basis. The meeting in Denver in January will bring together not only prominent live stock representatives, but will aim to attract as well all the varied allied interests correlative to the live stock business. In the past it was generally understood that we were coming for a good time but now the character of the meetings is greatly changed and the coming convention will be a strictly business proposition from start to finish. Of course, the boys will not object to some entertainment as not to conflict with the business of the convention."

LATE RANGE CATTLE

Range cattle are still being marketed continuously. ROBBED THE GRAVE

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue was coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents. Guaranteed at Matt S. Blanton & Co., Reeves' Pharmacy.

PUT IN MOTION

Cattle Growers' Interstate Executive Committee Sends Representative to Washington to Begin Campaign

Frank Barry, representing the Cattle Growers' Interstate Executive Committee, has gone to Washington to begin the campaign inaugurated by that organization for an amendment to the interstate commerce law giving the commission power to fix maximum rates and to enforce its edicts. Mr. Barry, in a Chicago interview, said: "That conditions governing the transportation of live stock are becoming intolerable is generally conceded by all who are engaged in that business. All branches of commerce and trade are similarly affected. The question of a remedy is one of paramount importance and constantly growing interest.

"There is an apparent lack of information regarding the facts and causes producing these conditions which is unfortunate and which has delayed the accomplishment of relief. It is generally agreed by the shipping public that the existing law is futile to remedy transportation abuses, and that prompt remedial legislation by congress to strengthen the powers of the interstate commerce commission is imperatively necessary. The strong demand for broad legislation of such legislation does not arise from any desire to injure or do injustice to the transportation interests of the country, which have done so much toward building up our commerce and manufactures, opening up vast tracts of territory to settlement and production and contributing so materially to the greatness of our nation.

"The prosperity and growth of our railroads are essential to the country's welfare. The interests of shippers and carriers are too intimately related for one to seek the injury of the other. The shipper, however, has rights that he must protect, and, suffering encroachments upon these rights, he must invoke the restraining power of the federal government.

"Our laws have always drawn marked distinction between the rights, privileges and duties of the railroad or common carrier and those of the business man or contractor. The latter is employed by all, and upon all it must depend. Its property has been constructed and extended under public franchises which have empowered it to take possession of private property, even homesteads, for the public benefit and use upon the theory that it will thereby be enabled to render public service. The railroad becomes, of necessity, a monopoly in many localities.

"We have an excellent opportunity to secure remedial legislation at the approaching short session of congress," said Mr. Barry. "Meanwhile let every one interested in live stock write his congressman urging him to support the bill."

THE FUNERAL OF DR. E. L. HANN OCCURS

DENTON, Texas, Oct. 13.—All that was mortal of Dr. Ed. L. Hann was laid to rest in the Old Fellows' cemetery here yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Hann's death was the result of an accident which occurred Tuesday afternoon in his dental office on the south side of the square, where his body was found with a gun lying at his feet and the cleaning rod across his knees, having been engaged, it is supposed, in cleaning a gun when it was accidentally discharged, the load entering his breast and killing him almost instantly. Dr. Hann was a member of one of the prominent families of this section. He was the inventor of several patents for guns and was a crack marksman, having taken part in many interesting competitions of that character.

WORK FOR YOUNG HORSES

It may be considered that a horse is fairly termed young until it is 8 years old and after that it ought to be expected to accomplish any reasonable amount of work asked of it without injury. I often think we are inclined to ask too much of our young horses; we work them too hard with the same effect that working children too hard has; it stunts their growth and prevents them from accomplishing what they should when they reach maturity. Feeding young horses is one of the serious problems of farm work and one which each horse owner must earnestly work out for himself. We have found it not only economical but good policy to feed the young horse a moderate quantity of corn, about one-fifth of the ration, but we always feed cracked corn and thus avoid any serious bowel troubles. However, we learned after some years of experimenting that to get the best results from feeding a ration in which cracked corn was used we must feed more or less succulent food. For this purpose we have used root crops, a moderate amount of silage or stemmed clover hay, and had the best results from the root crops. During the summer we always permit the young horses to get enough grass to supply the green food needed to keep them in good condition.—American Tribune.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless this inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Interesting Facts

For Nearly Every Man, Woman or Child.

A short time ago we published an article recommending to our readers the new discovery for the cure of Dyspepsia, called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the claims then made regarding the wonderful curative properties of the remedy have been abundantly sustained by the facts. People who were cautious about trying new remedies advertised in the newspapers and were finally induced to give Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a trial were surprised and delighted at the results. In many cases a single package costing but 50 cents at any drug store made a complete cure and in every instance the most beneficial results were reported. From a hundred or more received we have space to publish only a few of the latest, but assure our readers we receive so many commendatory letters that we shall publish each week a fresh list of genuine, unolicited testimonials and never publish the same one twice.

From James Yemmelser, La. Crosse, Wis.: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are doing me more good than anything I ever tried and I was so pleased at results that I gave away several boxes to my friends who have also had the same benefits. From Jacob Anthony, Fortmurray, New Jersey: I have taken Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets with the best results. I had Dyspepsia for 6 years and had taken a great deal of medicine, but the Tablets seem to take right a hold and I feel good. I am a farmer and lime burner and I heartily recommend to everyone who has any trouble with his stomach to use these Tablets.

From Mrs. M. K. West, Preston, Minn.: I have received surprisingly good effects from using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I gave one-half of my last box to a friend who also suffered from indigestion and she had the same good results.

From Mrs. Agnes K. Raiston, Cadillac, Mich.: I have been taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I am very much better, and feel very grateful for the great benefit I have received in so short a time.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a certain cure for all forms of indigestion, but are not claimed to be a cure-all, but are prepared for stomach troubles only, and physicians and druggists everywhere recommend them to all persons suffering from Nervous Dyspepsia, sour or acid stomach, heartburn, bloating or wind on stomach and similar disorders.

 buys a Buck range—

Here is the story of "10c a day"

We will tell it to you in as brief a manner as possible, but it's a mighty interesting one. Read of it:

By a special arrangement with the Buck's Stove and Range Co., in order to put a great Buck's Range, Cook Stove or Heater, in the big majority of homes in Fort Worth and suburbs; in order to handle four times as many of these great stoves and ranges as we have ever handled before, we make the following remarkable, before unheard of offer:

For 10c a day we will sell you—yes, put up in your kitchen or parlor—any Buck's Steel Range, Cook Stove or Heater.

There are absolutely no strings tied to the proposition at all—no "conditions," no nothing; ten cents, one dime per day—puts you in possession of any Buck's Stove or Range. We can't say it any plainer. That's all there's to it.

Was such an offer ever made before, by any store, in any city? Why, it's the most astonishing, the most remarkable trade move in the history of modern merchandising; but it's "the Ellison" way of doing things. Just imagine being able to buy "Buck's" the best bakers in the world—the line of stoves and ranges that have been giving more than satisfaction for 57 years, at 10c a day.

Now this sale starts with the opening of our store tomorrow morning, Monday morning, at 8 o'clock. There will, of course, be extra salesmen, extra teams and extra stove men to set up the stoves, and we expect to handle every order in the promptest manner; but, we are going to ask you not to expect impossibilities, and to be as lenient as possible with us. Realize that we will sell a great many Cook Stoves, Ranges and Heaters per day on this offer; and that they can not all be delivered and set up on the day they are bought.

So, then, if you have any thought at all of buying a new stove of any kind, here is an opportunity that has never been offered before, and probably will never be offered again. Monday Morning is When the Sale Starts.

Rates Charged by the Railways on Tonnage on the Hoof and Again on the Product Are Compared

Some of our readers have asked us to state the comparative rates on live stock and their products in cents per hundred pounds instead of the percentage method adopted in our open letter addressed to Hon. W. P. Hepburn. We adopted the percentage method because that is in use by the railroads. The suggestion, however, we take as a good one, and we therefore follow it.

The average rates in cents per hundred pounds on live stock and dressed meats from Chicago to New York by rail, as given in the Yearbook of Agriculture of 1902, page 677, are as follows: Cattle, 28 cents; hogs and sheep, 30 cents; dressed beef, 45 cents; dressed hogs, both in refrigerators and in common cars, 45 cents.

It is interesting to know just how this anomaly, which we believe is probably in no other part of the world, has come into existence. Fifteen or twenty years ago the published rate from Missouri river points to Chicago was 25.5 cents for cattle, hogs, dressed beef and packing house products.

According to Mr. Stickney, who ought to be good authority, the actual rates, by reason of rebates, were about 16 cents per hundredweight while the rate on cattle and hogs was maintained. He then entered into an agreement with the packing houses at Kansas City to carry a certain per cent of their products for five years at 18.5 cents per hundred pounds.

Distress After Eating

Nausea between meals, belching, vomiting, flatulence, fits of nervous headache, pain in the stomach, are all symptoms of dyspepsia, and the longer it is neglected the harder it is to cure it.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Radically and permanently cure—strengthen and tone the stomach and other digestive organs for the natural performance of their functions. "I had dyspepsia twenty-five years and took different medicines but got no help until I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Have taken four bottles of this medicine and can now eat almost anything, sleep well, have no cramps in my stomach, no burning and no distress."

Simply because the packing interests being so to speak, a group by themselves, are able to club the railroads into carrying their freight at these rates while the farmers and stockmen, having no organization, have been compelled ever since to pay the 25.5-cent rate not only from Missouri river points but also from the other points on the Missouri river. The rate from this distance drops down quite slowly to the Mississippi river.

For example, the rate on cattle from Galva Junction, on the east bank of the Mississippi river, is 11 cents on cattle and 15 cents on hogs, while from Dubuque, on the west bank, it is 14 cents on cattle and 15 cents on hogs, and from Onida, Iowa, 15 cents on hogs, and from Onida, Iowa, 15 cents on hogs, and from Onida, Iowa, 15 cents on hogs.

The question arises: What are Missouri and Iowa farmers going to do about it? Frankly, we do not see how they can do anything until their representatives in congress so amend the interstate commerce law that the interstate commission shall have power not merely to say the present rate is unjust but to state what a just rate will be, and then enforce it by their decisions.

On the docks of London in one year 76,800 rats have been destroyed, but the medical officer of health for the port is doubtful whether that was as much as the natural increase of births over deaths, and more vigorous measures are to be taken.

One of the interesting exhibits at the American Royal Live Stock Show to be given here October 17 to 27, will be what is declared to be the biggest steer in the world, which will be shown in a pen next to one in which one of the smallest of steers will be on exhibition.

The little steer is the property of J. K. Southey, a commission man at the stock yards. It is the same age as the big steer and weighs 227 pounds, about the weight of the ordinary 2-months-old calf.

A letter was received yesterday from Joseph Watson, a member of the firm of Joseph Watson & Co., of Kansas City, who will send them for exhibition purposes to show what Kansas can do.

REV. W. CALDWELL IS OPPOSED TO PRESBYTERY

Vote Was a Close One, Some Questions of Doctrine Entering Into the Discussion—Not Much Given Out

All day session of the Fort Worth presbytery was held at Venus yesterday, the pastors and delegates from this city returning home last night.

A portion of the sessions was devoted to the examination for admission to the presbytery of Rev. William Caldwell, who was recently elected pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city.

Following the admission of Rev. Dr. Caldwell, the presbytery made the following appointments for the installation services: Rev. Mr. Price of Files Valley, installation sermon, Rev. Henry Austin of Weatherford, charge to the people, and Rev. W. K. Johnson of Cisco, charge to the pastor.

Following the business session of the presbytery, Dr. Sampson, president of the Theological Seminary at Austin, delivered an address upon "Church and Christian Educational Work."

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH A Pleasant, Simple, But Safe and Effective Cure For It

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a bloated sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing.

Mr. R. S. Workman, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach."

NO REST FOR PROF. BRENTANO

THE MAN WHO READS THE LIVES OF PEOPLE IS BUSY DAY AND NIGHT

HIS WONDERFUL POWER

The Expounder of Clairvoyance, Psychic Influences and Occultism Remains But a Short Time in Fort Worth. Is at the Speer Flats.

Without a doubt one of the greatest known clairvoyants in the world today is Professor Brentano, the distinguished clairvoyant and psychic, who has just come to Fort Worth from the east.

The marvelous manifestations of his wonderful power are as far superior to the ordinary palmist and fortune teller as the perfected automobile is to the wheelbarrow.

Those who come to scoff may not remain to pray, but they go away with a puzzled look on their faces, wondering mightily. Perhaps you laugh at first, when you see the rather peculiar methods used by the professor in telling a fortune, but when he commences to talk and piles up fact after fact, which you know to be true, even to the smallest detail, your laugh dies away, and you gaze in amazement.

dent. "Luck," like every other effect, has a cause. Mr. Brentano has made a life's study of the forces and influences that rule the destiny of men and women. Magnetism, mental suggestion, the power to control by will of mind, to sway—that's luck. It's in everyone, it's a power all possess, but few know how to use.

Were it not for the fact that secrecy must be exercised in his profession, he could refer the skeptical to numerous well known citizens who have profited by his advice, and who have been made contented and happy by his readings of their past and future.

His strictly private office is at the Speer Flats, corner of Fifth and Throckmorton streets, with entrance on Throckmorton.

ISLAND OF CRETE IS LIKELY TO BE A COCKPIT

Prince George's Rule Is Denounced as Autocratic and Another Insurrection Is Now Brewing Against Powers

CANEA, CRETE, Oct. 15.—This quarrelsome little island, just released from Turkish oppression, is now groaning under the most complicated and ineffective form of government ever devised by the ignorance of man.

Greek is the language of the island, and most of the inhabitants are Greeks. The natural solution of the difficulty was for the powers to consent to annexation to Greece.

So Prince George was installed, and the admirals, glad to be rid of their unaccustomed job, sailed away.

PRINCE GEORGE

Moreover, he filled all the well-paid places with imported Greeks and Cretans had only the savings.

This island was poor after centuries of oppression, and the Turkish inhabitants, who had all the wealth there, went back to Turkey as soon as the sultan's flag was pulled down.

Lately Prince George has been making a tour of Europe to explain things to the powers who put him in office.

One incident he has had to explain is the imprisonment of M. Jannaris, a college professor.

One of the prince's defenders, writing to a French paper, denies most of the charges, though he says, strong and iron arbitrary rule was necessary.

London Bureau of The Telegram. LONDON, Oct. 15.—It is not generally known that the Empress of Russia is a strong suffragist. She believes in the higher education of women, in women's clubs and in women's rights to enter any of all professions. Of all the royal women of Europe, she stands out the most strongly as the champion of her sex.

English woman engaged. An English woman is to have the responsibility of training the newly-born heir to the Italian throne. The lady to whom the care of this precious life has been confided is Miss Dickens, who has already had in her charge the two little princesses, the daughters of King Victor, and has justly earned a reputation for her kindness and her firmness. This well known Italian, Dr. Querico, has had much anxiety in the selection of a foster-mother for the new-born prince.

No-December Designer Just in Belding's Embroidery Silks Standard Patterns Store News

(Written for The Telegram by Enos A. Mills, Coach Ft. Worth University.)

He who plays football enjoys the most fascinating of sports. It is no longer a mere contest of physical strength, but has become a test of mental ability, and the player now relies upon his brains as much as muscle.

Regular hours, exercise and diet enable him to reach a high physical and mental standard of strength. The game compels decision and keen alertness for one must, at times, be a strategist, a good general and a brave fighter.

The fact that he is a "standard" is shown by the demand for him in our big colleges, where he is almost as important as the president of the institution.

If he is a good player he is usually near the top in other things, for the game is really a measure of ability; indicating how far a player relies upon himself.

The ovations he gets upon a psychological effect upon him, and it is but natural for him to aspire to equal meritorious praise in other things.

As a social being he is cool, manly and thoughtful of others, he has a mind of his own and is not easily intimidated. The cases with which he copes with difficulties or meets an emergency is admired by all who know him. He is publicly criticized and secretly admired.

The reason he possesses these qualities is: First, the game requires absolute concentration of his faculties and demands that his brain and body work simultaneously. Second, it requires patience to become great in anything, especially football, and years of study and of practice are required before he becomes a through player.

Time of time and danger are the only objections urged against the game. The danger is now almost eliminated by changes in the rules governing the game, and by having the player in condition accidents are few and serious ones rare; reliable statistics show that football is not as dangerous as bicycling, motor riding and other sports usually considered safe.

On October 8 the Fort Worth University played the Dallas medical school. The only man injured on either team was one who did not play, but was severely injured chasing a car.

finish wain at least a year of the man who does not indulge in games at all. When the player comes upon the field he is in thorough physical condition and is not long catching up with the man who came out of school weak and puny and had to put in most of his time getting a rest or taking vacations for his health. The player is in demand in the business world, because he can do things and meet emergencies and put vim and life into those with whom he associates.

HOW THE SEASON LOOKS

Another week of the 1904 football season has gone by without any feature of passing consequence as to new formations or new plays. True, Harvard coaches tried what was called a diagonal tandem where the backs were placed in a straight line at an angle with line men. This was done in order to allow the use of the fifth man in the tandem and who had to be outside the end. This play necessitates such wide openings that it was soon done away with. So far the privilege of the first man receiving the ball to run with it, provided he run out five yards from the point where the ball was put in play, has been exercised less this year than last, although he can do it in any part of the field instead of only between the 25-yard marks. However, as the season advances something new in offensive formations may be expected of the eastern coaches.

THE EASTERN SITUATION

The time of the big games is rapidly drawing nigh; in fact, the first real contests were played yesterday when Princeton and Harvard met the navy and army cadets respectively. Next week produces the annual Columbia-Pennsylvania game, and after that at least one game will be played a week. Princeton will undoubtedly have a good eleven. The material is there and the army of coaches daily found on Osborne Field can be depended upon to develop a strong aggregation. There are eight coaches there daily including such stars as DeWitt, Hillebrand, Poe, Davis, Holt, King, Bannard and Edwards, of which six were varsity captains in their day. She has a fast back field to run with the ball and also two heavy veterans, Short and Cooney, to use in plunges through the line. The line from tackle to tackle averages 200 pounds, the heaviest in years. At Yale gloom was thrown over the situation this week by the announcement of an injury to Rockwell, the star quarter, who has strained his back seriously and may be out of the game for good. The Yale line already plays a fine defense, but is very weak on offense, allowing the opponents to break through repeatedly and throw the runner for a loss.

Harvard and Cornell are both working at new formations, the chief of which at both places is the old-fashioned wing shift, two backs going into the line and two linemen dropping back to carry the ball. At Harvard this seems to work well as the heavy line men are able to plunge through better than the light backs. Cornell, however, is minus the weight and the shift does little good. Cornell is already practicing in secret and things may be looked for there when they line up against Princeton in two weeks.

Pennsylvania is woefully lacking in heavy line men and unless the present Columbia men may do great damage in the coming game. The fundamental principle upon which Rugby football is constructed is a line of men sufficiently heavy and powerful backs until the opponents and protect backs until the latter can have reached the line of scrimmage. A back field is absolutely powerless if its protecting bulwark is crushed before the runner has received the ball and started forward.

PENNSYLVANIA 6, BROWN 0

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—Luck proved a large factor in the victory of the University of Pennsylvania over Brown today at Franklin Field. Pennsylvania won 6 to 0, gaining their touchdowns a few minutes after the game was started. Although Pennsylvania was strengthened by the addition of Williams and Stevenson, the new players, yet they found Brown too strong a foe. Pennsylvania's play was very slow and Reynolds to be the weak spots in Pennsylvania's defense. Brown threw repeated attacks showed forward work ended Reynolds to be the weak spots in Pennsylvania's defense. Brown threw repeated attacks showed forward work ended Reynolds to be the weak spots in Pennsylvania's defense.

Touchdowns—Smith. Goals from touchdowns—Reynolds. Referee—Corbin of Yale. Umpire—Edwards of Princeton. Line men—Whitting of Cornell. Time—25 minutes each half.

INDIANS TOO STRONG

CARLEISLE, Pa., Oct. 15.—Albright was no match for the Carlisle Indians in the game here today. The visitors could not handle punts and the Indians still fumbled. Hawley Pierce, the star fullback of '98, played today and will stay in the game. Shelton made about three seconds. Albright's manager stopped his men when the Indians had scored a century. The Indians were penalized several times for off work.

PERDUE 6, WABASH 0

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 15.—Purdue defeated Wabash College on Stuart Field to day 6 to 0. The game was a fierce one throughout, the secondary college team giving Purdue supporters a scare. The touchdown was made by Ellis of the Bollermakers, early in the first half, but they could do nothing later in the game against the strong defense of the Presbyterians.

A. & M., 5; BAYLOR, 0

WACO, TEX., Oct. 15.—In the football game here today between Agricultural and Mechanical College of Bryan and Baylor University of this city, the former was successful. The score was 5 to 0. The visitors scored a touchdown in two minutes of play in the first half of the game, and failed to kick goal. The second half was also in favor of Baylor. The ball being within two yards of A. and M. line when time was called. Considering the fact that A. and M. had much advantage in weight, Baylor's showing was excellent, every one expecting a much larger score.

NEBRASKA 40, OMAHA 0

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 15.—Nebraska trampled upon Weighon's aspirations for a recognized position in the football world by defeating the Omaha team 40 to 0 in twenty minute halves.

CORNELL 21, BUCKNELL 12

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The most interesting and sensational football game of the local season was played today when Cornell defeated the heavy Bucknell team by a score of 24 to 12. The game was full of spectacular runs and brilliant plays, but was marred by repeated fumbling by the Cornell backs. The two scores secured by Bucknell were the result of dropped balls, although the visitors offensive work deserved to tally. Cornell scored twice in the early part of the first half on long runs by Rice and Birmingham.

HARVARD 4, ARMY 0

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 15.—In a hotly contested football game here today between the army team and the Harvard Giants, the latter won by a mere scratch, the final score being 4 to 0. Parker brought about the small victory by a place kick. West Point has a good opportunity for a goal from the field, but let it pass in an attempt to break through Harvard's line and lost the ball on downs. There was only one instance during the game that West Point's goal was endangered and that just before the place kick made in the first half.

ANNAPOLIS 10, PRINCETON 9

ANNAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 15.—The Annapolis midshipmen today surprised all their supporters by actually defeating the Princeton Tigers by the score of 10 to 9 in a game which they had entered with the betting odds against their even scoring.

YALE WINS FROM SYRACUSE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 15.—Syracuse scored twice on Yale at the Yale field today, getting a goal from the field and a touchdown. It came in the second half against Yale's substitute men, but makes it none the more pleasant for the backers of the Blue. Against Yale's 'Varsity, minus Kinney and Bloomer, whose places were taken by Erwin and S. Turner, Syracuse could do nothing. Twice the visitors managed to get first down in this half, but their total gain by rushes was twenty-three yards against 186 yards by Yale. Three times Yale carried the ball over the goal line, the first touchdown coming with ease within the first five minutes' play. Cates and Sherwin were the only so-called 'Varsity men who played during the second half. Throughout the half the ball was practically entirely in Yale's territory and Syracuse made sixty-three yards by rushes against Yale's thirty. Punting was frequent. Once Syracuse took the ball from Yale on downs and eight times Syracuse made her first down in this half.

CINCINNATI 48, MIAMI 0

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15.—The boys of Miami University were completely outclassed in the game with the University of Cincinnati today, the locals running up a score of 48 to 0.

KENTUCKY 42, CENTRAL 0

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 15.—The Kentucky University team did pretty much as they pleased with the Central University line and won by a score of 42 to 0.

OHIO 31, MICHIGAN 6

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 15.—Ohio State scored on the Michigan eleven today on University Field and the state university routers went wild with joy. The score was 31 to 6 in favor of Ohio.

CINCINNATI WINS IT

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 15.—The Cincinnati National League team easily defeated the International Harvester team today 12 to 0. Score: R. H. E. Cincinnati.....0 6 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 2 2 Inter.....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 6 Batteries, Hahn and Schlei; Dwyer and Sugden. Umpire, Niles.

FORT WORTH WINS FROM WACO IN A GOOD GAME

University Eleven Takes Hard Fought Contest From Texas Christian College at the Fair Ground in Dallas

Fort Worth University won in their game with the Texas Christian College team of Waco at Dallas yesterday afternoon. The score was 4 to 0, and the game was one of the best of the season.

The players from here were the pick of the large number of athletes in training this year at the college. Every one of the men went into the game to win, and win they did, but by a score that no more than settled the question.

The game was called at a few minutes past 4 o'clock at the State Fair grounds, only a small crowd being present. It was decided at the beginning of the game to play twenty-minute halves. The Waco team kicked off. Fort Worth got the ball on the fifteen-yard line and returned it ten yards. Both sides entered into the game with a dash and a vim that only trained athletes could display. By a series of end runs and blocking the line Fort Worth carried the ball to their forty-yard line. There the team was held on downs. The Fort Worth boys then kicked the ball to their ten-yard line. The Waco boys then got the ball on the five-yard line, and lost four yards, and then punted on the second down to the middle of the field. Fort Worth then got the ball in the middle of the field and was forced to punt. The ball went to the Waco twenty-five yard line. Then they kicked to Fort Worth and after two downs Fort Worth was forced to kick to the Waco team. At this point of the game the Waco men took a brace and steadily advanced the ball into Fort Worth's territory. The half ended with Waco in possession of the ball on Fort Worth's five-yard line. The calling of time at this point probably saved the Fort Worth team from having a touchdown scored against them.

The second half Fort Worth kicked off. The kick was made to the Waco team's ten-yard line. At this point the ball was fumbled and went out of bounds, but was brought in and remained their ball. They punted on the second down and a fair catch was made by Fort Worth on the forty-yard line. Then Fort Worth tried for a place kick, but they were blocked and succeeded in recovering the ball and advanced it fifteen yards. Fort Worth then tried for another place kick, but was blocked by the center of the opposing team, the ball going out of bounds on the fifty-yard line. Fort Worth then went to the Texas Christian College, who returned the punt and Fort Worth caught the ball on a fair catch on the forty-yard line and tried for another place kick from the field. The ball going low, but was fumbled by the Waco players and recovered by Pease of the Fort Worth team, who ran forty yards before being downed. This play was the most brilliant of the game. After two short gains by Fort Worth they again tried for a place kick, and this time they succeeded and the ball went to the Waco team, who ran forty yards before being downed. The Waco team then kicked to Fort Worth, who by a series of line runs and line punts, advanced the ball into Waco's territory. Fort Worth was forced to punt, and after two downs the Waco boys returned the kick and kicked to their own ten-yard line, where a fair catch was made by Mills of the Fort Worth team and a field goal attempt which was wide of the posts. Waco kicked out from their twenty-yard line and Mills caught the ball and an exchange of punts followed and the time was called with the ball in the possession of Fort Worth near the center of the field.

Both teams put up a plucky game and showed that they were very evenly matched. Both teams wanted to come together again this season, but they have so arranged their schedules that it will be impossible unless the game is arranged for after the Thanksgiving game.

The star plays of the game were made by Waco by Masters, the center, and Muse, the captain. All the members of the team played with a snap that kept the Fort Worth boys on the jump to finish. For Fort Worth, Pease, the center; Charbonnet, full back, and Mills, the quarter back.

Fort Worth University last night was proud of the score and the way the team played. During the first half Mills, the quarter back for Fort Worth, and the team's coach, got the sound of his right hand broken, but he pluckily stayed in the game to the finish.

The officials of the game were Schulze of the Dallas Medical College, and their cousin, who refereed, and Forest of Dallas, who timed. The officials were fair and Fort Worth boys are glad they had the men to rule the game they did.

POLYTECHNIC LOSES TO AUSTIN COLLEGE

The colors of the Polytechnic College football team were wiped in the dirt yesterday evening by the husky team from Austin College, Sherman.

To say the least, the home team is now broken in sorrow at the defeat by a score of 29 to 6. The visiting college team wiped up the earth with the "Polys," and did the job in a manner that leaves no doubt among the school boys on the hill that they hit the wrong proposition.

From the beginning to the finish of the game the Austin team showed the home team that they were simply not in it at all. From the very start of the first half until the last minute of the last the visitors were making touchdowns. The first touchdown was made a few minutes after the game opened and the last touchdown was made when they had but one minute to play.

The visitors went to Weatherford last night, elated at their victory, while the members of the Polytechnic team have all gone to cover and no discussion of the game can even be heard on the campus.

CHILD IS INJURED.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 15.—In a collision between a delivery wagon and a light express wagon, Jesusita Casillas, a 14-month-old Mexican child, was thrown out with its mother. The baby was run over and probably fatally injured. The driver of the delivery wagon, a negro, was arrested on a charge of murder.

A GIN FIRE.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 15.—Fire today destroyed the cotton gin of Felix Hermann, near Senior, and also other property. The gin was insured for $2,000.

NEW YORKER IS ANXIOUS FOR HIS WIFE

Temple Ladies Find Clothing on the River Bank and an Investigation Is to Be Start- ed at Once

TEMPLE, TEX., Oct. 15.—Last Sunday a party of Temple ladies visiting Miller Springs, a picnic resort two miles from Belton, on the Leon river, came upon two piles of garments belonging to a woman and child, lying on the river banks as if the owners had disrobed and placed them carefully there while they went in bathing. The discovery of a bottle half-full of chloroform and an empty one labeled carbolic acid lying with the clothes, horrified the party and aroused the suspicion that probably there was something unusual about the occurrence.

The report of the matter was sent out through the press, and today the editor of the Temple Tribune received the following telegram from the New York World, which would indicate that there is something behind the affair after all:

"New York, Oct. 14.—Editor Tribune, Temple, Texas. C. A. Bettman here thinks clothing on river belonged to his wife. She has long scar under upper right arm and lump at base of spine. Boy 3 years old. Answer if identified at our expense. NEW YORK WORLD."

Nothing further had developed in regard to the matter, and no investigation has been made so far as known. The receipt of the message, however, will no doubt stir the authorities to action and cause them to clear the matter up.

HAWLEY AFTER THE KATY IS RUMORED

Wall Street Understands That the former Associate of Sully in the Cotton Deal Is Trying to Buy a Road

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Wall street heard today that Edwin Hawley, the new wizard of the street, had secured a commanding vote in connection with the management of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway.

Whether this is strictly true or not, Mr. Hawley's dealings in the stock have been large during the week and there is a general opinion that if he has not obtained control of the road it is a mere question of time before he will do so. About 60,000 shares of the stock were dealt in one day this week, and it was common belief that of these at least 20,000 went into the possession of Hawley. Not long ago the same financier successfully engineered a deal whereby a majority interest in the Chicago and Alton was purchased for the Rock Island road. Two years ago he was an important factor in the Louisville deal. He is the owner of a group of lesser roads, and may be easily developed and extended into a first-class system. He was in with Sully on the cotton deal in which Sully went broke and Hawley realized handsomely. That some gigantic plan is forming in his brain everyone believes, and every day is expected to bring out this plan.

A NEW NAME.

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 15.—The committee selecting a new name for the Midway of the San Antonio Fair this afternoon decided on the name "Joyway."

Pecan street was entered sometime yesterday evening early and some wearing apparel stolen from the house. The party or parties who committed the act are undoubtedly the same people who have robbed six residences in the past three days. In each case only wearing apparel has been taken.

The Ahavath Zion is to hold a meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Jewish synagogue on Taylor street.

French Lick Springs Hotel, French Lick, Ind., American rest and health resort "On the Monon." Send for free booklet.

Officers Speight and Clearke arrested Charles K. Carter late yesterday afternoon as being a deserter from the United States army.

Inspector Walls of the El Paso immigration station spent last night in Fort Worth. He is going east for a thirty days' vacation.

George M. Hall, superintendent of the bridges and buildings on the Rio Grande division of the Texas and Pacific, with headquarters at Baird, is in the city.

Murray Harris, the civil engineer in charge of the large work being done in the Texas and Pacific yards, has gone to Baird to spend Sunday with his family.

Clay Hembrick, colored, was arrested at 7 o'clock last night on a charge of aggravated assault. He is charged with throwing a brick at a negro woman.

Miss Maude Becker, formerly of the A. F. Hardie Dry Goods Company, has gone to Dallas to accept a position with the Titcher-Goettinger Dry Goods Company of that city.

"Man was ever a tool-using animal," and in business the "edged-tool." Publicity is the most useful one—as it is sometimes the most dangerous for clumsy people to handle.

Those interested in the liberal and philosophic discussion of spiritual thought are cordially invited to meet at the Temple on Taylor street near Seventh, at 7:30 this evening.

Money is the fuel used on the engine of publicity—no other fuel will produce a more powerful steam. Publicity is the engine which pulls your store; and a good engineer will tell you that to save on the fuel is to slacken the speed.

Little Helen, the 5-year-old child of Station Master Pemberton of the Texas and Pacific depot, who has been seriously ill with typhoid fever, is reported as being better. The little one has suffered for over twenty-three days.

Two men representing commercial organizations of the territories were here all of yesterday gathering cotton pickers for the north. The men who went to points south of here are now returning to go to the territories, as they can get a better price for their labor and have longer work on the first pickings of cotton.

The special car Michigan was attached to the rear end of Texas and Pacific train from the west last evening. The car contained a party of northerners returning from a trip to the Old Mexico. The train also carried the private car of Second Vice President Charles D. Eddy of the El Paso and Northwestern road with his family, bound for a trip to the north.

Former Governor J. S. Hogg, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ima, was in the city last night en route from Dallas, where he attended the great Kaliph ball, on his way to Decatur to visit his brother, a leading stockman of Wise county. The ex-governor had nothing to say politically. He was asked if he intended taking part in the present campaign and if he would make any speeches. He replied that if he did he would speak in Texas only, and not in any of the eastern or northern states.

There was a bunch of eighty cotton pickers at the union station last night from along the Katy route. They took the 11:30 train for Vernon, where they have been promised three months' work at 75 cents per hundred. They were in charge of C. H. White. Another bunch of cotton pickers came in from Hill county and left over the Rock island for points in the Indian Territory. They say they will be paid 80 cents.

Mrs. H. L. Plekner of San Francisco is in the city visiting Mrs. G. F. Hart.

A district convention of the Electrical Workers will be held in this city Monday morning. The session is expected to last but one day.

SURRENDER TO OFFICERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Acting on advice of counsel, Richard Van Cotte, son of Postmaster Van Cotte of New York, and Bankson Avery, cashier in the general postoffice, surrendered themselves late today in order to avoid arrest on charges of colonization in the Fifth assembly district. Bail was fixed at $2,000.

The hearing was set for Wednesday afternoon. Postmaster Van Cotte is the republican leader of the Fifth district and his son is running for assembly.

If the Shopping Tide

today set a little too strongly toward "the other store," this evening would be a good time for you to make a study of "the other man's" advertising, comparing it with your own with judicial candor. Then inject as much "ginger" into your own campaign as it needs.

Price vs. Quality

In the Matter of Clothes

The shrewd buyer is not attracted by price inducements—that time has gone—today it is a question of quality.

Value stands for good quality and fair price, while cheap price means cheap quality.

The man who really secures the best bargains seeks quality first.

We offer the best clothing values in Fort Worth. Our prices are absolutely the lowest, quality considered, and your money back on that proposition every time—that's fair.

FLOOD THREATENS MILNER FORCED PORTION OF THE TO RESIGN BY BORDER TOWN PRESSURE

Rio Grande River Is Within a Few Inches of the Highest Mark in History and Much Damage May Be the Result

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 15.—The railroads are recovering somewhat from the floods of this section, but the Santa Fe still has twelve miles of track out of operation here and Albuquerque. The Rock Island has a big iron bridge out at Canadian river, but is transferring passengers. The Rio Grande is within a few inches of the highest mark in history, and is still rising, threatening the lower portion of the city.

The expert engineers of the United States geological survey decided today to recommend the construction of a reservoir at Elephant Butte, N. M., to reclaim 175,000 acres of land, forty thousand acres of which is in Texas below El Paso. The money is available. The geological survey approves the project.

PRIVATE TUTOR IS NOT TO BE ALLOWED

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Premier Combes of France has issued a decree, according to which no one is permitted to employ a private tutor for his children unless he has permission from the government to do so.

This step is directed against the Monks, who have been trying to earn a livelihood by giving private instruction in French families of means, thereby regaining their foothold lost during the recent agitation. Bitter protests have been registered against the ruling and the matter is likely to be brought to the attention of parliament in the near future.

A man of Halifax, Nova Scotia, wanted a vacation so badly that he pawned a cemetery lot in order to pay the expense of one.

We Show the New Automobile Hats and Veils

About New Furs

It is not a bit too early to talk Furs. One can never tell just when a "norther" will strike us, and when it does come, you will be glad to be prepared. The new Furs are here—a large collection to choose from—beautiful garments they make—and an almost endless variety of styles—from the small 24-inch Scarf to the large, handsome 8-foot Boa. Sable fox, black martin, black lynx, mink and red fox skins, made up into Scarfs, Boas and Isabella Scarfs with long stole ends, and priced as low as $5.00 and up to..... $50.00

Pres De Soie

Like Taffeta in everything but price. It does a Taffeta service in many ways—makes a better wearing petticoat—shows to equal prettiness as a slip-skirt, and means a superior lining to an overgarment, because it won't pull, break or lose its luster; it is soft and silky, lustrous and serviceable. Its price is much less than Taffeta, and its dependability more certain than silk. Made in black and colors; per yard..... 29c

Blanket Time Now

Does the cooling off of the weather bring anything up in your mind like Blankets? Isn't it high time that you were laying in the winter supply? You will find that you have made a mistake if you pass this item by. For tomorrow: 50 pairs of all-wool, 11-4 Blankets, single and double plaid, of black, blue, brown and tan; regular $6.00 values; on sale tomorrow, special..... $5.00

A Waist Special

A new and stylish Waist, of some heavier material than you have been wearing, will prove a welcome addition to your wardrobe just now. These specials tomorrow: Waists of Brilliantine or Flannel, neatly tucked and stitched; colors are brown, blue and white; price is only..... $1.75

Waists of Mohair, in navy blue, brown and white, tucked front and sleeves, stock collar; priced at.... $3.25

Cliffon Taffeta Waists, in popular new styles and the season's prevailing colors—brown, blue and green; priced at..... $3.25

Women's Popular Suits and Coats

Day after day women are thronging our ready-to-wear department in search of the newest things in Walking Suits and other Dresses. The daily additions of new things from the manufacturers keep the stocks constantly fresh and attractive. More styles are shown than ever before. No matter what your taste may be, you will have no trouble in making a selection from our large showing, which includes the popular Tourist styles, the Waist Coat effects, the Blouse Coats and nobby Norfolk Jackets, in all lengths from 22 to 45 inches. The skirts of these suits are of the very latest side and box plaited models, with numerous foot and knee kilts. Materials of all kind are used, popular among which are Tweeds, Cheviots, Covert Cloth, Mannish Suitings, Broadcloths and Novelty Mixtures. All sizes and colors in stock.

Newest Runabout Suits of Novelty Mixtures, black and white and blue and white; also in Cheviot, in blue, brown, black and gray; short fitted back and Norfolk Jackets, collarless and trimmed with braids, plaits and buttons; also the popular tourist coat style, with belted back; skirts are plain or plaited effects, ankle length; garments that usually sell for a third more; tomorrow..... $10.00

Tailored Suits at $18.95
A particularly handsome collection of well tailored Suits in Novelty Mixtures, Cheviots and splendid Serges, made in the very popular loose tourist coats, belted back or in the half-fitted back military coats; come in the season's colors of blue or brown; skirts are in walking lengths, plain and plaited, as well as kilted effects; very special for tomorrow at..... $18.95

Walking Suits at $15
In this lot of new Fall Suits you will find five distinct styles—made of Covert Cloth, Mannish Mixtures, and Cheviots, in gray, blue and brown mixtures or solid blue, black and castor. Jackets are fitted backs, with straps, braids and buttons for trimming—also loose Tourist Coats in short and medium lengths; skirts are the prevailing round lengths and full plaited. Values are $16.50 to $20.00. As a leader, tomorrow we will sell them for..... $15.00

Tailored Coats at $5
Season after season, Coats of Covert and Melton add to their universal popularity, and tomorrow we offer you an exceptional opportunity to purchase stylish garments. Firty Tailored Coats in tan, castor or black, Coverts and Meltons, short coats with loose tourist or half-fitted strapped back, collarless or with regular coat collar; usually the price is $5.50 and $6.95; tomorrow, special at..... $5.00

Tailored Suits at $25
There are ten different new fall styles in this collection of Suits. Materials are Broadcloth, Cheviots and Novelty Mixtures, in popular fall colors. Jackets are fitted back, silk lined, with fancy vests, and trimmed with Persian braid and fancy buttons. An over style has very dressy full cape collar; round length, full plaited skirts. These garments are beautifully tailored throughout, and we ask you to look for yourself and see if you can match them under $27.50 to $30.00. Tomorrow the price will be..... $25.00

Now for Autumn Silks

The beautiful new Silks are loudly clamoring for recognition. They've been kept in the background while we have been exploiting other fabrics, but they are no longer to be denied, so tomorrow we make a first showing of some of the new colorings and weaves. Women will notice a reversion to quaint old shades—colors that have long "gone out" are now restored to popularity. Terra cotta, for example, in rich shades; leather and light onion browns; Chartreuse, from the pale-green liquor of that name; "Coque de Roche," a vivid shade of burnt orange, and so on.

Among the newly arrived Fancy Silks, these are worthy of attention: PAILLETTE DE SOIE FACONNE—A soft, rich fabric, with woven self-colored figures, covered with tiny flecks of white, brown, and navy blue grounds. Two widths—19 inches wide, 79c; 27 inches wide..... $1.19

"ABIS" MESSALINE TAFFETA—Very sheer and light material, in all the new shades; an imported fabric for handsome gowns; per yard..... $1.00

NEW MESSALINE SILK—A soft and lustrous weave, in all popular colors, to be had in patterns only..... $17.50 and $18.95

The New Neckwear

Women seldom pass our neckwear department without stopping to admire the interesting showing. We have lately received many new lines, which will be displayed tomorrow.

Fancy Stocks of silk and linen, fagoted and trimmed and embroidered in Swiss knots, all colors, 25c to $2.75

Duchess Lace Collars, white or black, 89c and $1.35

Linen Turnovers, embroidered in white, black, blue and red..... 25c

The little guests departed, wishing him many happy returns of the day.

COMING SOCIAL EVENTS

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Taylor Street Cumberland Presbyterian Church will give a literary program at the church Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. "Children of the Orient" will be the lesson theme, and Mrs. Van Zandt will direct the program, which will include scripture lesson led by the director, "The Hawaiian Islands," Mrs. Robert Fender, "The People of Hawaii," Mrs. J. C. Foster, Piano solo, Miss Nina Yeates, "The Philippines," Mrs. G. F. Spear.

AN EVENING WITH CARDS.

Mrs. W. M. Evans and Mrs. H. Veal Jewell will issue cards early this week for the afternoon of the 25th in honor of Miss Mattingly of Kentucky. The afternoon will be devoted to cards and the guests will be entertained at the residence of Mrs. Evans.

SANS PARIEL DANCE.

The Sans Pariel will give a dance in the Imperial Club rooms on the evening of the 29th. This will open the winter's social season of this popular club.

A CHURCH SOCIAL.

The ladies of the First Congregational church will give a social at the home of Mrs. Goodner, corner College avenue and Rosedale, next Friday evening. All friends are invited.

A PATRIOTIC CELEBRATION.

The Daughters of the American Revolution held a business meeting last Thursday and decided upon giving a reception on November 3. Mrs. Warren Galbreath opened her home to the chapter for the event and her hospitality was accepted. Three hundred invitations will be issued.

AN ART RECEPTION.

Miss McLean, art teacher of the University, will give a reception to the public in the parlors of the Hotel Worth next Thursday afternoon. All lovers of the beautiful are invited to be present and to inspect the china and oils that Miss McLean will have on exhibition. The ladies assisting Miss McLean will be Misses MacAdam, Irvy, Dunklin, Ferdinand, Jaccard, James Anderson, Emma Fakes, William Robert Thompson, F. D. Thompson, William Bryce, M. A. Barnes, R. E. L. Miller and Miss Shelton.

A FALL WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Foster announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Kate Martin, to Robert Harrison Harkey, Jr., the ceremony to be performed at the residence next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. No invitations have been issued in the city, as the ceremony will be witnessed only by relatives and a few intimate friends.

THE KERAMIC

The Keramic Club had a full attendance at both the morning and afternoon sessions at the studio of Mrs. Clifford Sharon, the director, last Thursday. As the club year is just beginning, Mrs. Sharon, who is the dictator, will open the studio to the public next Wednesday afternoon and evening, from 2 to 10. Refreshments will be served to all callers. Mrs. Sharon's home is one of great beauty and a glimpse at its artistic arrangements will be enjoyed by all art lovers. In addition to her own work, the work of the members of the club will be on exhibition. There are no cards being issued, but the invitation is to all interested in art, especially in china painting.

THE S. S. C.

Mrs. Thomas Slack entertained the S. S. C. last Wednesday afternoon, her guests being Misses Beall, Pendleton, Grace Hollingsworth, Grace Elser, Andrew Anderson, Mary Terrell, Florence Smith and her cousin, Miss Smith of Kentucky. Mrs. Newlin, Mesdames Sansom, Triplett, Hefley, S. E. Miller, John Sparks, Wharton and E. E. L. Miller, Miss Beall were the prize and the club plays next with Miss Pendleton.

THE OLIVES

The Olives held no meeting last week, the gayeties in Dallas and the advent of the circus combining with other reasons to make the postponement necessary. Mrs. Bert Stanley will be the hostess this week, entertaining on Thursday.

OTHER SOCIAL AFFAIRS

A LAWN SOCIAL

The ladies of the Broward Presbyterian Missionary Society gave a pleasant lawn social at the residence of Mrs. J. C. Ingram last Thursday evening from 7:30 to 11. There were delightful refreshments of beer and cake as well as a musical program, all being enjoyed by a large number of members of the congregation and their friends. The society, of which Mrs. E. H. Carter is president, assisted in receiving.

A CIRCUS PARTY

Mrs. Pendleton, chaperoned a circus party Friday night, composed of Misses Binyon, Pendleton, Beall and Van Zandt, and Messrs. Tillman Bibb, Perry Francisco, Elias Van Zandt and Gus Teas.

SKATERS SEE THE FOOTBALL

The young ladies of the skating club met at the rink Thursday afternoon and then moved in a body to the university grounds to see the football game between the university and the high school eleven. As the high school boys won they were quite well satisfied with the afternoon.

TALLY-HO AND MUSIC

LIFE
BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

On a bleak, bald hill with a dull wind under,
The dreary world of the Commonplace,
I have stood when the whole world seemed
A blunder
Of dotard Time, in an aimless race,
With worry about me and went before me—
Yet deep in my soul was a rapture spring
That made me cry to the gray sky o'er
me:
"Oh, I know this life is a goodly thing!"

I have given sweet years to a thankless duty
White cold and starving, though clothed and fed,
For a young heart's hunger for joy and beauty
Is harder to bear than the need of bread.
I have watched the wane of a sodden season,
Which let hope wither and made care
thrive,
And thro' it all, without earthly reason,
I have thrilled with the glory of being alive.

Where love and beauty feed heart and eye,
The brilliant light of the sun grows tender
As it slants to the shore of the by and by,
I prize each hour as a golden treasure—
A bead Time drops from a broken string,
And all my ways are the ways of pleasure,
And I know this life is a goodly
thing.

And I know, too, that not in the seeing,
Or having, or doing the things we would Lies that deep rapture that comes from being
At one with the Purpose which made all good,
And not from Pleasure the heart may borrow
That rare contentment for which we strive,
Unless through trouble, and want, and sorrow
It has thrilled with the glory of being alive.

THE LITTLE MAID'S GOWN

Here is a child's dress for cold weather. It is made of a rich golden brown cloth, with a white collar, white cuffs and white belt. White buttons are used, though brown cloth buttons are quite as effective.

THE KALIPH BALL

The Kaliph ball in Dallas Friday night is said to have surpassed any of the efforts at entertaining yet made by the Dallas order. The introduction to the dancing was the procession of the Kaliph and his retinue, including the queen, matrons of the court, knights, etc. In addition, there was a procession of symbolic figures representing the seasons. All the gowns worn on the floor were extremely handsome, while those seen in the boxes were no less so. Several thousand guests were present from out-among some of the social leaders of other sections a bit of rivalry that may well be forgiven in view of its origin. Fort Worth is satisfied for her reputation as to the matter this to rest with Mrs. Saunders and her house party.

A partial list of the Fort Worth visitors includes Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Camp, Mrs. Wyse, Mrs. Rawlins, Misses Stripling, McLean, Edgington, Hunter, Martin, Newlin, Barton, Hollingsworth, Edmondson and Proctor, and Messrs. Edelman, Alf Luckett, Marshall Spoons, Ray Nixon, C. D. Reimers, John Miller, Frank Scheuber and Robert Eagon.

In character this ball differs from anything seen in Dallas before. The ball room, representing the Field of the Cloth of Gold, was fairy-like, yet gorgeous in its beauty. The rustic setting effecting a contrast with the brilliant assemblage as imposing, if in a different way, as the historic event of which this miniature woodland was a replica.

The pillars of the hall represented great tree trunks, and through the overhead tangle of leafy green thousands of iridescent lights twinkled, casting a gleam over the stronger and brilliant lights arranged higher over the tree tops.

In the distance a lake scene was depicted, and nearer to the face of the rostrum was the rustic throne set in a grove of great bronzed trees, the boughs of which were glittering with miniature lights in the Kaliph's colors, yellow, green and white. A canopy of gold lace and cloth overtopped the throne, and over the whole was an expanse of blue sky. Bordering the rostrum, a fern bank of boulders twinkled with vari-colored fairy lights and the approach was formed of stone.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON MUSICAL.

A delightful quarterly musical was given Saturday afternoon by the pupils of Miss Leona Lytton's class at the residence of Mrs. M. B. Harding.

There were present some fifteen or eighteen of the pupils. Following the numbers, refreshments were served.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY

Quite an enjoyable Saturday afternoon was spent with Herman Adams at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adams, in commemoration of his eighth birthday and many little friends came to help him enjoy the occasion.

After music, games and a general good time refreshments were served, consisting of ice cream and cake, after which

THE RED RIDING HOOD CAPE

The newest thing in evening wraps is the Red Riding Hood cape. The cape may be made of cloth of any soft color and lined with a contrasting satin. Quantities of soft ruffles make the garment becoming to any woman. The cape here shown is of cream colored broadcloth lined with a delicate shrimp satin with laces matching the satin in shade. The hood makes a fascinating frame for a pretty face.

Fort Worth will be represented at St. Louis this week by a most gracious hostess and a number of assistants of personal charms and intellectual brilliancy. Mrs. Bacon Saunders, who will be the hostess at the Texas building this week, accompanied by Miss Saunders, left for St. Louis Friday. Joining her there will be Dr. and Mrs. William Robert Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Keeler, Mr. and I have had the Coil and accessories mounted in an especially constructed room, and am now prepared to do any kind of diagnostic or radiographic work as cheaply and as satisfactorily as it can be done anywhere in the North or East. Correspondence solicited.

The following letter was received by me from the builders of this magnificent machine: Chicago, Sept. 14, 1904.

DR. J. H. TERRILL, Dallas, Texas:
Dear Sir—The X-Ray and The Electrotherapeutic apparatus which you purchased from us recently was manufactured by us especially for exhibition purposes, and was exhibited at the Fourth Annual Meeting of the American Roentgen Ray Society in St. Louis, Mo. It is the finest apparatus of its kind ever exhibited at any time. It is capable of producing pictures of the deepest parts of the human body and will do anything known to X-Ray Science. Yours very respectfully,
W. SCHEIDEL & CO.

LEAD SUNDAY DRAMATICS
Monday Matinee—The Sign of the Cross.
Monday Night—The Sign of the Cross.
Tuesday Night—Amelia Bingham in "The Climbers."
Wednesday Matinee—The Frisky Mrs. Johnson.
Wednesday Night—A Modern Magdalen.
Thursday Night—Tried For Her Life.
Friday Night—McFadden's Row of Flats.

The past week has been a pleasant one in the dramatic line. Tim Murphy came for two performances and he was enjoyed. Devil's Auction came Friday with a good performance and last night the week closed with "The Girl From Dixie," which is one of the prettiest and most entertaining plays ever here.

Next week is the cream week of the first of the season. Not only will Amelia Bingham be here with all her fine wardrobe, the handsome stage settings and good company, but there will be three performances. The Sign of the Cross comes Monday night, "Tried For Her Life" Thursday and McFadden's Row of Flats is on Friday.

THE SIGN OF THE CROSS

"The Sign of the Cross," Wilson Barrett's religious and historical drama, has had a phenomenal record. It has been running for over eight years in England and America. The subject of the play deals with the inhuman persecution of the early Christians by the emperor Nero, and the author has built on this scheme an interesting and absorbing drama. The effect of such a play presented by a strong company of well known actors, under the management of Fred G. Berger, is greatly enhanced by a series of magnificent stage pictures that are historically correct. The organization comprises twenty-two people, and loads of scenery and costumes are carried.

The Philadelphia Record of November 23, said: "The Sign of the Cross" is one of the most remarkable plays of the age." The Washington Times recently said: "It is a wonderful production, leaving a strong impression on all who witness it." Clergymen in every city of the world have unanimously endorsed this production. It is without doubt the strongest and most elaborate drama the stage has ever produced, demanding a large cast of splendid ability and requiring scenery, costumes and effects unequalled for splendor and magnificence. This entire production will appear at Greenwall's opera house, matinee and night, Monday, October 17, with Walter Law, the eminent young English actor, as Marcus Superbus, prefect of Rome.

AMELIA BINGHAM

Amelia Bingham is a force and energy made woman. Think of a woman who produces plays, manages a company, acts a role, rehearses her players, superintends the construction of scenery, designs the dresses worn by herself and the women in the organization of which she is the head, furnishes ideas for advertising devices, plans the style of her "printing," supplies sketches to the lithographers for the posters used in heralding her appearances, reads manuscripts, paints in oil and water color, trims hats, carves in wood, keeps in touch with current literature, exercises a personal supervision over her investments in real estate and securities, conducts a large and well ordered household, entertains often and elaborately, lectures at women's clubs, organizes benefits for stricken actresses, goes in for driving and riding, gives her attention to an enormous personal correspondence and still finds time in her life for all the joys that go to make up the happy existence of less busy people. And when the average, pressed-for-time individual gasps "how?" Miss Bingham replies "system."

Miss Bingham believes that system alone has simplified her life and permitted her to indulge in the many pursuits to which her fancy inclines. One of her strong objections to acting one night for an entire season and having no other concern in the drama or its production, was due to the fact that it left too much time for play and play became perilously near a habit, work a bore.

Since her attainment of the unusual position of America's only actress-manager and her establishment in the front rank of theatrical producers, through the successes won by "The Climbers," which she will present Tuesday night, October 18, at Greenwall's opera house, "A Modern Magdalen," Wednesday night, October 19; "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson," Wednesday, October 19, Miss Bingham has become versed in the knowledge of the cost of merous flattering notices, since it started on its tour through the South this season. Special emphasis is laid on the excellence of the cast, as is evidenced by the following excerpt from the criticism in the Age-Herald of Birmingham, Ala., October 6: "The company was so evenly balanced that no real fault could be found with any of them. Lester Loneragan, as Eugene Marchbank, acted the role of a flighty, love-sick fool in masterly fashion. Alice Treat Hunt, as Candida, had all the ease and naturalness that characterizes real art, and David Murray, as the Rev. James Morell, was at all times effective. In fact the company was exceptionally clever, so clever that there was not a hitch in the play. It is doubtful if there will be another play in Birmingham this season better acted than 'Candida.'" Candida will be scenery, printing, transportation from one city to another; in fact, all the thousand and one details incident to the conducting of large theatrical enterprises. When her often-dreamed-of project to become a manager—not a star in the accepted sense of the term—was realized, she welcomed the outlook for her mental activity to be found in the many duties of the position. Today she claims that she has "not been so happy since the time when my days were mapped in to hours and crowded with French, German, arithmetic, geography and history classes."

"TRIED FOR HER LIFE"
"Tried for Her Life" will be the attraction at Greenwall's opera house Thursday night, October 20.

The Fort Scott (Kan.) Daily Republican had the following to say of this play:
"A fair sized audience witnessed the opening of the theater season at the Davidson last evening. The play was 'Tried for Her Life,' being founded upon Dickens' 'Oliver Twist,' and under the management of W. H. Hout. Last night's performance was the fourth that has been given by the company, and considering this fact, it was an excellent production. The scene at the death of Nancy could not have been more realistic, and the rain storm in the second act could not have been surpassed. Probably the most exacting roles were those assumed by Leno Hout and William F. Scheller, but they all filled their parts admirably."

"McFADDEN'S ROW OF FLATS"
"McFadden's Row of Flats," brightly, new and furnished with a glittering outfit of scenery, costumes, music, jokes and pretty girls, will be the welcome attraction at Greenwall's opera house Friday night, October 21. This clever farce comedy, written by E. W. Townsend and Glen Mac Donough, as is well known, was suggested by the famous pictures and sketches known as the "Yellow Kids." It has been one of the most successful entertainments ever staged and has made a fortune for its management, who has therefore not hesitated at a lavish expenditure on this season's production. No farce ever written has enjoyed such a wonderful career of popularity. Unique in its conception and clever in its execution. It has made millions laugh and is one of the standard attractions that never grows old or stale. In the company are such well known and clever artists as the celebrated Speck Brothers (the original Yellow Kids), Billy Barry Jr., Joseph F. Willard, Otto Brothers, Harry Fentell, Lizzie Conway and Cussie Nelson. The management also promises a grand chorus of twenty most beautiful young women.

The Canadian authorities are delighted over the success of their experiment in instructing their fishermen in the Scotch methods of catching and packing herring. A shipment to New York of Canadian herring put up by Professor Cowi and his Scotch fishermen at Canso, brought from $12 to $15 a barrel, which is equal to the highest price obtained for Scotch or Norwegian herring. The ruling price heretofore received for the Canadian catch has been from $5 to $8.

OUR LAY SERMON.

Let the one of you who is without sin cast the first stone. Such was the language attributed to the Lord Jesus Christ in dealing with the Scarlet Woman, and it is an expression that is well worthy the Son of God.

The way of this world is a strange one and an unjust one in dealing with the erring woman. Back in the olden days there was a general disposition to stone her, and in thousands of instances death itself has been meted out to her in a most shameful manner, while the partner in her sin has been permitted to go free.

Why is there forgiveness for the man and shame for the woman? Is not the claim generally made that woman is the weaker vessel, and that she is easily led astray by man? Why do we stone her and lionize him? Why not stone him and endeavor to reform her?

But the world is full of venom for the woman who has fallen. There is no milk of human kindness in its heart in dealing with her. She has made her bed, and the general dictum is that she must be kept in it. She is some poisonous, noxious creature, contaminating everything with which she comes in contact. There is nothing to do, in the judgment of the world, but to stone her.

But Christ says the first stone must be cast by the man who is free from sin. If that were literally the case, how many stones would be thrown?

The Telegram has no use for that form of religion which cannot stoop to an effort to reclaim any of God's erring creatures. If the woman has fallen, that is no reason why she cannot be reclaimed. Perhaps one-half the pleading that was required to lead her into a path of sin may be able to set her foot again in the path of virtue.

She is a woman, made after the image of the mother of our race, with all the natural instincts of a woman in her poor breast, and a soul that is just as precious in the sight of God Himself as that of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Is it not your duty, my brother, and my sister, to try to save souls? Does the Word of God anywhere within its pages specify any particular kind of soul that must be saved? Not once. All souls are precious in the eyes of the Master who are professing to serve, and it is as much your duty to labor for the salvation of that erring woman as it is to lead to Christ the pure and spotless offering of a little child's heart. But you are not doing it.

Rev. John B. Shaw, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Chicago, tells of a case that recently came within the scope of his observation that forcibly illustrates at least one feature of the situation. It was feared that a young lady member of the flock was walking in dangerous ways and a good female member of the church was appealed to to see the girl and warn her of her danger. She promised to do so, but after one month it developed that she had not done so. He went to other good members of his church with the same request, like promises were given, which were not fulfilled, and finally a good old sister was found who did what was requested of her, only to find she was too late.

The erring girl had donned her robe of scarlet. Perhaps one word at the proper moment would have saved her. But the idea of breathing even the same air as a woman reputed to be unchaste is so repugnant to the chaste woman, that she cannot condescend to give even one word of friendly admonition.

One breath of suspicion is all that is necessary to array the entire feminine world against a member of their own sex, and perhaps damn the unfortunate one forever. And all this in the face of the fact that the Bible itself teaches us there is but one unpardonable sin.

The only sin that God will not forgive is that of unbelief. But we who are only human, with nothing of the divine in our natures except that we are made after the image of God, we set up a code for ourselves and make an unpardonable sin of that which God Himself extends a full and free forgiveness.

And are we more immaculate than God, the Father?

Again the Telegram asserts that it has no toleration for that form of religion which seeks to elevate itself above and beyond God. The kind of religion that this world needs is vastly different from the brand that the majority of us is keeping in stock. What the world needs is a practical form of religion, which discards that "I am holier than thou" form of sanctimoniousness, and gets down to the level of the demands of the times. If the world was so good that no people were in the gutter, then the situation would be different. But so long as the human family will wallow in the mire of infamy, so long has religion got to get down off its high horse and wade in after it.

But, no. We must stone the woman and receive the reprobate who accomplish her downfall as the salt of the earth. He may have some reputation as a rake, but that only adds to the piquancy of having him in the polite set, for it savors just a little of danger and daring. The victim of his machinations is weak and frail, but she is strong enough to bear all the odium. We do not care that her heart is full of contrition and remorse for the terrible error she has committed. She has placed the brand of a Scarlet Woman on her own brow, and she must bear the consequences.

We have no forgiveness for the Scarlet Woman. Lucky for her that God has. If we could influence Him, perhaps we would whisper that we wanted the Scarlet Woman to reap all the bitterness of Hell in the hereafter.

We do not stop to consider the Hell broth she is drinking here. What the world needs is a little common sense in dealing with this problem. It needs to learn that the woman in the case is the least guilty of the two, for there has never been a good and pure woman who has deliberately gone astray of her own free will and accord. Women are moulded along different lines from that.

Give her at least an opportunity to reform, and if an example must be made of someone, deal out the hyssop to the partner in her sin and the cause of her sorrow.

SENSIBLE NEGRO DOCTRINE

The following expression from Booker T. Washington is worthy the careful consideration of every member of the negro race. If the race could be induced to settle down along these lines without entertaining false ideas and false hopes, it would find itself in much more satisfactory condition. That portion of his message to which we refer is as follows:

We negroes must demonstrate more and more to the world that we are not only successful in religious organizations, but also in business and commercial enterprises. We will be judged in the future not so much by our ability to make abstract arguments, but by our efforts in constructive and progressive directions. In the growth of a race complaints, condemnations and attract attention with our oratory, but by our efforts in constructive and progressive directions. In the growth of a race complaints, condemnations and attract attention with our oratory, but by our efforts in constructive and progressive directions. In the growth of a race complaints, condemnations and attract attention with our oratory, but by our efforts in constructive and progressive directions.

The first and most fundamental thing is to give more attention as a race to the public schools in the south. The average negro child in the south is in school less than five months annually. In one state in the south less than one-fourth of the negro children attended any school at all before last, and that one-fourth were in school for a period of less than four months. The school houses in which many of our children are taught are not worthy the name.

The negro race will never have again in this country such opportunities for securing land as it has today. The land is gradually increasing. If, in the southern states especially, we do not become landowners in this generation, it will be more burdensome for the next generation to do so. The time is not far off when the tide of foreign immigration will turn rapidly to the ragged edge, so far as ownership of land is concerned, if we do not profit by our present opportunities.

We should strive to become in larger proportion a commercial and business race. We should organize and operate more banks, more stores, own more farms and construct and own more and better houses. A race is judged largely by the character of the houses it occupies. The negro should not only wear shoes, but make and sell shoes. The negro woman should not only wear attractive hats, but make and sell hats. Every center of negro population there should be a business league to encourage and lead our people in commercial and business directions.

While there is much discussion about the difficulties in the south, it is true that the fields of commerce, business, industry and labor are open to us there as they are not perhaps in any other part of the country. In proportion as we lay the foundations in these necessary directions we shall find our home and our present and our future opportunities for negroes in school, college and university training enhanced.

A race can succeed which is ashamed of itself. I have never been prouder of belonging to the black race than I am today. I am proud of our people, and our present and our future unbounded faith in our future.

It must have been extremely galling to Thomas A. Edison to have to request the United States authorities to issue a fraud order against his son, but he was equal to the emergency. Young Edison's only real ambition seems to be in posing as the son of an illustrious father.

The newspaper correspondents no longer regale us with accounts of Judge Parker's daily swims in the classic waters of the Hudson. Is it possible the judge has quit bathing, or has the campaign now progressed to the point where these matters of mere detail may be safely omitted?

The republican claim of four congressional districts in Texas does not anger well for the party's success nationally, if the claims are all predicated upon the same kind of a foundation. The republicans have no more chance of carrying one congressional district in Texas than they have of electing their entire state ticket.

That Alabama congressional aspirant who would toss a bomb under the mahogany that was being graced by the president and Booker T. Washington is out of place in America. His home should be in Russia, where such practices are common and more congenial with the surroundings. America is no place for the man who believes in squaring any kind of account with the bomb.

West Texas is making a fairly good cotton crop this year, and that section has as fine range prospects as were ever known at this season of the year. Fort Worth rejoices at the success and prosperity of her great ally, and would be pleased were conditions infinitely better. Prosperity for West Texas means continued prosperity for Fort Worth.

The Terrell election law is coming in for a great deal of comment on the part of the state press, and the general opinion seems to be that the law in its present form is too bunglesome. It requires the services of a first class lawyer to expound it, and what the state seems to need is a simpler law capable of general construction by those who have to be guided by it. It is a conceded fact that the Terrell law has accomplished some needed reforms, and is a step in the right direction, however.

At the various fairs and carnivals held this fall the roning contests formerly so much in vogue have been largely eliminated. The cattlemen all complain of this form of amusement, alleging it is very injurious to the cattle, and a determined effort will be made to have legislation enacted by the next legislature making such exhibitions illegal.

Hon. A. S. Hawkins, the democratic nominee for the state senate from the Abilene district, says he has a hard race ahead of him, for the reason that there is pitted against him a grandson of Sam Houston. But he need not be alarmed. The veneration that exists in Texas for the name of Sam Houston is not sufficient to excuse or atone for the republicanism that is extant among his descendants.

The Houston Chronicle, it is announced, is about to begin the publication of a Sunday morning paper, which will give it seven issues every week. The Telegram has found its Sunday issue perhaps the most popular one of the week, and it fills a long felt want. The people are rapidly learning that the afternoon publication with its Sunday morning issue, is just what they need to keep fully abreast with the events of the day.

One of the first measures that should be passed by the state legislature when it meets in January should be a law that will knock the free pass business higher than Gilroy's kite. The best interests of the people and railways alike demand that this should be done. Give us a law that can and will be enforced, and make the penalty so severe that no public official can afford to tamper with the seductive influences of these popular blandishments.

Gleanings From the ...Exchanges...

Citizens of Dallas city paid Rev. George Stuart $600 for holding a two weeks' revival in that city, but Tyler a long time ago did better by Sam Jones. It paid him $1,000 for holding a two weeks' meeting. Some people contributed who never think of paying their local preacher one cent.—Tyler Courier.

And here are lots of Texas congregations complaining now of a lack of interest in church matters, that have undergone the same experience with the professional evangelist. He is the gentleman who comes in and reaps the coin, together with credit for the harvest of souls, while the pastor in charge hears all the complaints of a lack of enthusiasm and waits for the back salary he has coming. Such is the way of the world.

Representative T. B. Love is talking about amending the Terrell election law to make it perfect. We don't often bet but we would like to place a little money that it will not reach that stage in the next legislature. Too many doctors.—Beaumont Enterprise.

Friends of the Terrell election law will find many a knife unsheathed for that measure in the next state legislature. It does its work too well for the peace and comfort of the average political grafter.

Senator Bailey was compelled to stump Texas to find where he stood with the voters. Cut out the senator's eloquence and personal magnetism and his standing would not be very much. But Bailey is one of those men who can trash the people and make them love him.—Mineral Wells Index.

Senator Bailey is a very popular man with the people of Texas, for they recognize his faithful service and signal ability. As an expounder of the federal constitution he has no superior, and the people are now clamoring for a return to a constitutional form of government.

The Transcript has it on excellent authority that there are smooth negro politicians at work in this congressionvote for their candidate. It is alleged that the plan of this "gum shoe" artist is to work stealthily so as not to excite the minds of the democrats. His purpose is evident. He expects a large part of the democratic vote, which is apathetic by reason of its big majority, to remain away from the polls on election day. By having the negroes thoroughly organized he hopes to take the democrats by surprise. This is but another of the numerous reasons urged by the Transcript why the democrats of Kaufman county should turn out en masse on election day. They should bury this sable-headed offspring of Rooseveltism beneath an avalanche of votes and mash him into the semblance of a pancake.—Terrell Transcript.

For ways that are dark and tricks that are in vogue, commend us to the republican management in Texas. Chairman Lyon is a pretty smooth piece of politics, but he is not near smooth enough to deliver to his party those promised four congressional districts.

The great generals of the democratic party are doing their duty in the campaign. It now remains for the man who earns his bread by daily toil to hearken to these men, fall in line with them and do his duty by himself, his family and his country by aiding to set President Roosevelt aside for a man who thinks more of his country and people than of himself and "war's wild alarms."—Corsicana Sun.

The leaders of the party have all done their duty, and the result rests with the rank and file. If the people are true to their best interests there is going to be a complete routing of the republican cohorts.

New York and the whole east have as much idea of Texas geographically and otherwise as if it was in the mountains of Heplizdam. Their declarations as to floods in the sheep range of the Pecos region affecting the cotton yield is amusing. There is only one thing that the east really knows about Texas and that is that it is bounded by the aurora borealis and sunset and is democratic from the Panhandle in the northwest to perdition in the southeast.—San Antonio Light.

Perhaps the eastern papers had reference to several thousand acres of cotton that were ruined in the irrigated district located along the Pecos river. Is it possible the Light does not know that cotton is successfully grown out in the Pecos country?

Senator Hanger has announced that he will introduce and champion three bills in the next senate—one to prohibit railroad passes, one to compel the assessment for taxes of money and another to make it a condition of a saloon keeper's bond that he will close his place of business at 12 o'clock each night and not open until 6 o'clock next morning and keep closed all day Sunday. Senator Hanger is one of the ablest members of the senate, but the work he has put upon himself would tax to the limit the ability of half a dozen senators.—San Antonio Gazette.

There is no doubt but that Senator Hanger has a full grown contract on his hands, but he has tackled the situation with a full knowledge of what is involved. He is a worker, however, and a man's determination is always half the battle.

A contemporary alleges that few newspaper readers read editorials. As a general proposition, the editorial department that is habitually slighted by the reader is on a par with the sermon of the candidates on the ticket. The editorial department that is uniformly worth reading is read.—Austin Tribune.

The average reader turns to the editorial columns of his favorite newspaper as religiously as the preacher does to the pages of his bible. He learns to look to that source for many of the inspirations he needs in daily life, and the conclusions drawn by his favorite editor are nearly always accepted as facts. The Tribune is right. The editorial department of a paper that is worth reading is always read.

The strike is over, but the price of beef will not come down until a democratic president gets after the beef trust with the common law.—Houston Chronicle.

It looks like the beef trust has the situation by the tail and a down-hill pull. The more the situation is investigated the more apparent it becomes that these people have both the producer and the consumer by the throat.

Debt is the child of extravagance and it becomes the fixed habit of many men early in life, clinging to them like leech clear through the stretch of time to decrepit age. It is well enough to be "in the swim," provided you are able to pay as you go, but it is far more desirable to be on the shore of the swim than to be a vampire living upon the toll of others. The downfall of many men in all situations of life is directly traceable to living beyond their means. A reckoning must come sooner or later and it is always followed by humiliation and penury.—Honey Grove Signal.

If the world could manage to keep out of debt it would be a great deal better off, but the world cannot do it. Few of us practice the principles of self-denial, and the majority of us would buy a bull elephant if we could obtain the animal on a credit.

If it's an honor to be caricatured in the great humorous sheets such as Puck and Judge, then our Texas Jim Hogg is honored. Truth it is that a man has to be considered of national importance to be in the very fore rank of leadership to get position on the front page of Judge. The last edition of Judge so places Hogg, and the great Governor Hogg is a man who attracts attention everywhere. He is a man of national reputation, and is known as one of the brainiest men of the day. Eastern papers are not all admirers of Hogg, but they know him to be a man with the courage of his convictions, and a fighter from away back.

Governor Hogg was one of the speakers at the democratic banquet at Dallas last night, and he had a great deal to say about corporation control in Texas, and the esteemed Dallas Journal states that he answered questions concerning Judge Parker, but falls in its duty to the reading public to tell us what those answers were. So long as Governor Hogg sticks to his attitude of opposition to corporation control in Texas, he will receive democratic applause—but when he floats into a stream of criticism of the nominees of the democratic party, he will get a dull, dead silence from democrats—no matter what the populists say or do. It is also worthy of note that Governor Hogg takes issue with his esteemed friend and supporter, the fat knight of McKinley, and says enough to indicate that he is capable of doing as much as Senator Bailey and even goes so far as to say that had the Panama canal failed in the senate the Texas senators would not have been returned.—Denison Herald.

Governor Hogg has stated repeatedly that he desires no office within the gift of the people of Texas, and that his only interest in Texas politics is to see that the state does not pass under corporate control.

Defeat threatens the republican ticket in Montana because the Hon. F. Meyers, candidate before the people for the nomination for United States senator, kissed a girl in Butte when she wasn't looking, and she hollered. That aroused the indignation of folks, and the republican party in Montana has refused to stay in the field unless he pulls off, and the leading republican paper in Eastern Montana has taken his name out of its columns and demands that he come off the ticket. Meyers says he won't, and these are the dickens to pay in republican politics. The girl that hollered at Meyers kissing her says now she is sorry she hollered. O, woman, woman! How many the most unbecoming and fust things up!—Orange Tribune.

Yet with all her faults and frailties, God bless her heart, we love her still. Without her, even politics would lose its zest, and life itself would not be worth the living.

The personal damage shark, like the ward politician, is on his rounds, and there will be no let up to the first when the second one is laid on the shelf to try until another election looms on the horizon of the candidates on the ticket from more than bull wealth is this frequently recurring election and this intervention of the shark lawyer into the business of the carrying company with his levy for trumped up damages. If the pastor and the shark lawyer and the elections could be shelved for about ten years it would be a great gain.—San Antonio Light.

Of the three evils, the damage suit promoter is, perhaps, the worst, as he is continually stirring up trouble in the community in which he is permitted to reside. The people of Texas should determine that all lawyers of this class shall be retired from business.

Hon. James B. Wells of the Rio Grande has reconsidered. He is a candidate for governor and will announce at the proper time. With four or five men in the race, the men who work the "system" should be able to land their man without trouble. Colonel Wells has an army of friends throughout Southwest and South Texas, and a sprinkling of followers in West Texas. As he has never visited in North Texas, he is not so well known here. Some upon some time he managed to get as far north as Waco, and there he drew the line.—Dallas Times-Herald.

Judge Wells falls from a section of the state that does not cut much ice from a political standpoint, and he is going to find the path leading to the gubernatorial chair of Texas thickly bestrewn with rocks and thorns.

About the morning independent citizen in Texas is the farmer who has his barn full of provender, his horses and mules and cows fat, plenty of blooded animals in the pen and a few bales of cotton stacked in the woodshed and waiting till the price suits his fancy. He has a corner on the meat market, the bread trusts and the transportation trusts and the money trusts—don't have to have the things the trusts control—and there is an ever increasing number of that kind of farmers.—Bonham Favorite.

The man who is independent at all times is the one who lives at home. Texas farmers are rapidly reaching that position, and when they are independent the balance of us feel that we are on the high road to prosperity, too.

Urgent Appeal to the Ministers of Christ

Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst. Great Britain rights reserved.

The subject of divorce confronts us every day in the newspapers. It forms a department of news, like the list of marriages and deaths. It appeals us in the social circle, when the whisper reaches our ears that those who are esteemed its ornaments have been divorced. It is an evil which seems to be increasing among us, which gradually reconciles us to its presence and educates us into condoning its guilt.

"Separation," as the law terms it, "from bed and board," or limited divorce, which does not permit either party to marry during the life of the other, may be a stern necessity at times to secure the defenceless from outrage and injury and threatened death, but absolute divorce, the setting husband and wife free by process of law under the authority of the state, ought to be a thing unknown, or an occurrence so rare that it would occasion universal surprise and distress when it took place.

I say this boldly, because our Blessed Lord speaks explicitly on the subject and publishes the law, which, with one possible, not probable, exception, forbids divorce for any act committed after marriage.

facility with which divorce may be secured varies in different states of our Union, and in some the ambition seems to be to make the process of severing the marriage bond as easy as possible.

The consequences of thus making the word of God of no effect by national decrees, and invading and polluting the sanctities of an institution which is divine, not human, and which God has guarded with His edict of perpetuity, these consequences are not at once seen in their ultimate results of corruption, degradation and ruin. Like God Himself, they are far above of the people's sight, and, therefore, they rush madly on, counting all to be well so long as they have their way and gratify their lusts and passions.

The sanctity and perpetuity of the marriage bond are the palladium of home, and the safeguard of society. Destroy these, domestic and social life in their integrity and purity, and you relegate mankind to anarchy, to a condition worse than that of the brute. One cannot easily exaggerate the horrors which must follow such a state of things where family ties are broken and social bonds loosed. Yet such is the fate which we as a people are inviting to overtake us by the madness of our legislation and the folly of our habits and the laxity of public sentiment. Can there be no check upon this downward progress in life and morals? Can we not cry, halt, somewhere and to some parties, who are unconsciously helping to degrade and ruin us?

I will make the attempt, and I address the clergy, my brethren in the sacred ministry, first, to whom I have a right to speak, and all others to whom my words may come, whom I entreat in the Lord's name to hear me. The ministers of the various denominations of Christians are, to some extent, culpably responsible for a proportion—we cannot say how large a proportion, but still a proportion—of the divorces which disgrace us as a nation.

Let us see how this comes to pass. Divorce implies marriage, and marriage raises the question: How was the marriage brought about? Where was it celebrated? When, under what circumstances, and by whom? The answer to these inquiries frequently brings the minister of the Gospel into view, and presents him in a very unenviable light.

The minister of the Gospel, I maintain, ought to be a custodian of parental morals and an upholder of parental authority, and a protector of childhood in its innocence and purity. He ought to be a sentry to challenge every stranger who approaches and seeks admission to the intimacies of home, the best and holiest hospitalities which our poor earth has to offer.

Every minister of Christ ought to be, in the absence of natural parents and of accredited guardians, the protector of the woman. He should regard himself as holding a trust that that of an agent of the civil authority to celebrate the marriage for any parties whom it may permit him to marry and to pocket the fee and be rid of the whole affair.

He ought to consider himself as a trustee for parents and guard its interests; a trustee for parents and relatives and friends as brought into relation with their treasure, to watch over it for them and save it, perchance, from fearful risk, if not ruin; and as a trustee for the would-be bride whose happiness and salvation, perchance, are for a few minutes placed in his keeping.

I am well aware that the answer will be by our brethren whom we address: "The parties bring the license issued by the state, and we do not feel called upon to go behind that certificate of permission from the civil authority."

But I reply, as bearing Christ's name, as acting or assuming to act under His sanction, and as invoking His blessing in prayer, behind the license of the state: "What does the state know of parents or circumstances or life or morals? The state is simply responsible for compliance with certain legal conditions, and when these are satisfied the license is issued and then, so far as the state is concerned, all responsibility ceases.

But how is it with you? There stands before you a young girl, fresh, perchance, from home, bringing into your view the loveliness and innocence of childhood, and the brightness and refinement which education and culture and care have added as charms to nature's gifts. Years of watchfulness and care have been bestowed upon her, and parental love has poured its best and choicest offerings into her lap, in garments and jewels, and possessions pledged in bequests, making her, in expectation, rich.

There she stands in your presence, away from home, without the knowledge of parents, beside a stranger, I may say, for she, artless, innocent creature, does not know the world in its evil, its treachery and deceit. There she stands, and you, in any view of your vocation, have made yourself your brother's keeper.

God made you such by nature, and you have added to the obligation by your own voluntary responsibility for your brother's safety and well-being. Where she stands, and she, I repeat, TWO, MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE you regard her as your sister, and you, forgetting your sacred character, your holy trust, your duty to God, society, parents, and the dear girl herself, you rest upon the state's permission and celebrate the marriage, and become the agent of bringing misery upon the unhappy maiden and inflicting anguish and disgrace upon her family.

In the sad sequel of that wretched married life, the same woes which are unutterable, at the end is often divorce. Behind that married pair who are seeking the dissolution of the marital bond there is a background, and on it rests a dark shadow; it is the shadow of the minister of God, who lent himself to serve the purpose of some designing adventurer, who stole the heart of some guileless girl and imposed upon her his name and his presence, and squandered her wealth, and deserted her when youth and beauty and money were gone and left her in poverty and disgrace to bear the burden of a family of children.

I have touched upon only one class of cases which swell the volume of our divorces. I might go on and present in dark array other classes, representing all grades of society and conditions of life, until we would have before us a large proportion of the divorces which disgrace us as nominally a Christian people, and in many of them it would be found that the evil began in hasty, ill-considered, or otherwise marriages, and for these often the minister of Christ was responsible, since on his part refusal to perform the service, a word of paternal counsel to the girl, or a message to parents or friends, would have prevented the marriage.

In view of these facts, is it not time to call "halt" to our reverend brethren, and beg them to consider what

GRAND SEMI-ANNUAL OPENING AT THE DAYLIGHT STORE!

THE Fall Opening at The Daylight Store This Season will Remind One more of the true season of the year than any event which has ever taken place in this grand old State of Texas. Many things have come along in the Mercantile line this season to more closely combine colorings in their loveliness to the season of the year than ever before. Each season brings with it new styles, new colors, and this season we are blessed with two or more of nature's own rich hues, Burnt Orange and many Shades of Brown. As the fall approaches we are blooming into nature's arms, with her own rich colors. There is but one thing more beautiful to behold than the forest, when in the October month, the foliage is here and there spotted, with the once green leaf turning to the beautiful brown or burnt orange, and that is the display which will meet the eye upon entering The Daylight Store at this great opening.

In Our Millinery Department We feel we have out done ourselves, and in order to have you agree with us a cordial invitation is extended to each and every one to call on our Opening Day, Monday 17th, inst., and see the beautiful New York and Paris Styles and many of our own production which will take an expert to discern the difference. Never do we think were the styles so beautiful and becoming as this season.

In Our Suit Room You will find a sure enough dress-up parlor, one beyond doubt unequaled in lateness of style, cut and make-up of garment. Some beautiful things here are found no where else. Our buyer was very late in the Eastern Markets, and we have a better right to have the pleasure of knowing that in presenting to you this department, that what you buy will be of the newest, latest and best the world can produce, and not at the fabulous rich man's price, but a very close to cost price to every one.

Our Dress Goods & Silks Dept.

Never presented itself to the buying public with so many new, choice things as it does today. Every new weave and color in Woolens and Fancy Suitings will here be found. Silks in profusion. Really our silk stock is so complete, that the most fastidious surely could not pass us by. Nothing, we feel, has been left undone that should have been done to make this the ideal shopping dress goods store in all Texas.

Our Trimming Stock

Represents one of certainly the most beautiful collections of Dress Trimmings to be found in any market, and has recently been rearranged so as to make it more convenient, and we especially ask your inspection in its new location.

Our Art and Stamped Linen

Department was never so well stocked and had so many new things to make a home a real palace as it is today. It really makes one think of being in a place of nothing but home beauties, tempting in every detail, and surely this is where the pride of any housewife should fall.

Gloves, Hosiery and Handkerchiefs

All new and up-to-date. Nothing in this department but what is useful and at prices such as were never placed so reasonably close before on strictly first-class merchandise.

Ladies' Autumn Underwear

Ladies Underwear for the early fall wear will be on display, and these cool mornings will no doubt cause you to want a few garments for yourselves and children. Remember, there is no stock so large or so well selected as this and the prices we guarantee to be the lowest for the best.

We Are Headquarters for Housefurnishings

and our linen stock is unequaled in this State. Pillows, Blankets, Comforts, Sheets, and in fact, anything in the way of household goods, will be found here in any quantity. Carpets, Matting, Linoleum, Curtains, and Art Squares. Many other things too numerous to mention.

SALE STARTS MONDAY, OCT. 17TH

THE YELLOW HOLLY

BY FERGUS HUME, AUTHOR OF "THE MYSTERY OF A HANSOM CAB," ETC. Copyright, 1903, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

An evening party. Woman mysteriously murdered. Mystery as to cause of death. A question of title and rank. Police investigate. No clear found. At the party a woman had given another piece of yellow holly. Near dead woman similar piece found. Fried knows of interest one present had in woman, as he thought she could tell Brendon of his birth and title, which had been denied him. This friend, Leonard, questions Brendon about the twig. Does not suggest that he committed the crime. Mystery ensnarms the whole affair.

"I am aware of that," began George, "but—"

"Wait," cried Mrs. Ward, raising her hand. "I have not yet done. Notwithstanding all these disadvantages, I made up my mind to place no bar to your union with my daughter, as she seems to like you—"

"She loves me, Mrs. Ward." "Nonsense. Dorothy is too young to know the meaning of the word. I say she likes you, so we can let it stand at that. But in spite of your poverty and obscurity"—Brendon winced, for Mrs. Ward's tone was insolent in the extreme—"I am not willing that you should marry Dorothy, unless"—She hesitated.

"Unless?" queried George, looking steadily at her. "Now we come to the point. Unless your character is above suspicion."

"What do you mean?" "You know well enough. Here you go to a house, and while you are there the mistress of it is murdered."

George rose with some indignation. "Good heavens, Mrs. Ward, you don't suspect me!" he cried. "Oh, dear, no. But it would be unpleasant for my daughter to have a husband mixed up with such a shady affair."

"I am not mixed up with it, Mrs. Ward." "It's unpleasant," said Mrs. Ward, willfully holding to her opinion. "I don't like it. Find out who killed that woman, and I say nothing. But until you do find out, and until the assassin is brought to justice, I must ask you to discontinue your visits to Dorothy."

Brendon saw that she was simply making an excuse to rid herself of his presence so as to leave the way clear for Walter Vane. But he was too strong a man to be fooled in this way and speedily made up his mind how to act. "Shall we leave the matter to Miss Ward?"

"That means you wish to see her," said the mother cleverly. "Oh, well, there is no reason why you should not. But it will be for the last time, remember. Your character must bear inspection."

"I think it does," cried George, rather nettled. Mrs. Ward, who by this time was nearly at the door, turned lightly and replied in her most kittenish way "Ah, my dear Mr. Brendon, I know more than you think. Lola Velez!" "Lola Velez?" George looked an uneasy.

"You change color. Oh, I have heard all about you and that dancer." "I assure you that my connection with that lady is perfectly innocent."

Mrs. Ward scoffed. "Lady?" she said, sneering. "What next? However, I do not wish to hear the particulars. Such creatures are nothing to me. And if you clear yourself of this very shady business in Amelia square by discovering the true assassin I shall overlook Lola Velez."

"There is no need to overlook her or me." "I think there is," said Mrs. Ward frigidly and with a wave of her slim hand. "There is no more to be said, Mr. Brendon. You know my decision, and as Dorothy's mother I have some power, I hope. Now I will send her to you, and you can say what you like—in fact, you can communicate to her the state of my feelings. But," added Mrs. Ward, shooting a Partisan arrow, "I should not mention Lola Velez if I were you. Goodbye. I shall not see you for many a long day, I expect."

"And hope," said Brendon, much mortified. "You are the last man in the world I should like for my son-in-law. Marry that dancer." And, with a shrill, unpleasant laugh, Mrs. Ward vanished.

Brendon paced the room, waiting for Dorothy. How Mrs. Ward had learned of his connection with Lola Velez he could not understand. Brendon was perfectly innocent, and what he had done for the dancer was dictated by pure kindness. But even if he explained the whole circumstances of his meeting and of his philanthropy to Dorothy, she was a woman, when all was said and done, and might not believe him. On the whole, he decided to take Mrs. Ward's advice and hold his tongue on the subject of the dancer. On some future occasion he might be able to explain, and at the present moment he had the satisfaction of knowing that his conscience was clear. He had just arrived at this decision when Dorothy entered the room. The next moment she was in his arms, and the two entered paradise at once.

"My dearest, I am so glad to see you," said Dorothy in her soft voice as they sat down. "I wrote, but you did not come."

"I was engaged, darling." Dorothy nodded. "I know, at the inquest which was held on that poor creature."

"Why do you take an interest in the case, Dorothy?" "Oh, because you went to stop at the house, and it was strange that she should have died on that very night."

"So your mother says," said George uncomfortably. "I really think she believes that I have something to do with the matter."

"Oh, that's nonsense," said Dorothy serenely, "but mother does not like you very much, George, and—"

"She hates me, and you mean?" "Well," responded Miss Ward candidly, "if you ask me to tell the truth, I think she does. But you know what my mother is. I—no, if I cannot say good of her, let me at least say nothing bad. But I love you, George, you know that."

"My own heart," and Brendon took her in his strong arms, thanking God for the gift of so steadfast a heart.

Dorothy was tall and slim and dark. Her dark beauty contrasted well with the fair comeliness of George Brendon, and seated side by side on the sofa they looked an extremely handsome couple. Certainly they might have appeared happier, for Dorothy was downcast, and in Brendon's blue eyes there lurked a worried look. He was wondering how he could communicate Mrs. Ward's decision to the girl. Dorothy looked at him and smiled.

"A penny for your thoughts, George," she said, taking his hand. "I'll sell them as bankrupt stock," said Brendon, drawing her closer. And then he took his courage in both hands for the necessary confession. "This may be my last visit, Dorothy," he said.

She looked at him in surprise. "Why do you say that?" "Your mother"—

"Oh, never mind my mother," broke in the girl petulantly. "I know she objects to our marriage, so—"

"On the contrary, she told me that she would not object if I could clear myself of complicity in this crime!"

"George! Did she accuse you of—"

"Not in so many words," interrupted the lover, "but I saw very plainly what she meant. The fact that I slept in that house on the night Mrs. Jersey was murdered is to her mind a proof that I have something to do with the matter."

"But you can prove conclusively that you have not," insisted Dorothy.

"Certainly. Mr. Train, with whom I was stopping, can prove that I did not leave my room. The key of the sitting room door was in his possession, and to get out I should have had to make use of him." George paused and thought for a moment. "But there is one thing—"

"What is it?" asked Dorothy, seeing that he hesitated.

"I don't know if I ought to tell you."

"Whatever concerns you concerns me," she said. "You know that I love you as dearly as you love me, and nothing you tell me shall ever part us."

"Oh, I don't think what I am about to say will have that effect," was Brendon's reply. "But I have a confession to make about my—my birth."

Dorothy looked at him in amazement. "About your birth?" she repeated.

"Yes. You may as well know all. And I know you will not betray me, even to your mother."

"To her least of all," said Dorothy vehemently. "Tell me quick."

Encouraged by her faith and by the tender clasp of her hand, George related to her the story of his birth and of his connection with Lord Derrington. Also he detailed how he had gone to seek Mrs. Jersey, and how she had been murdered before he could get the truth out of her. "Or even see her," finished George. "And now you know, dearest, why I do not wish you to repeat this story. If your mother knew it she might think—think—well, she certainly would not let you marry me."

"She has made her mind up already so far as that is concerned," said Dorothy quickly. "It is Mr. Vane whom she wishes me to marry."

"My cousin, although he does not know it," said George quietly; "but I want your advice, Dorothy, and will be guided by it. What shall I do? You see, now that Mrs. Jersey is dead there is no chance of getting at the truth."

"Why not advertise?" "I have tried that for some months in every country paper in the kingdom, but there has been no response. My father and mother must have been married in some out of the way village, in some lonely church. The parson and those who know about the marriage may be dead. In fact, it is extremely probable that they are. Mrs. Jersey was present as my mother's maid, and she might have been able to tell me where the church is. I only want to find the register of the marriage and get the certificate. Then I shall see Lord Derrington and insist on my rights being recognized. He can't leave either the title or the money away from me."

sell of this woman. Besides, I don't know if he is aware of her existence." It will be seen that Brendon was ignorant that Lord Derrington was the owner of the Jersey mansion and had allowed madame an annuity. Had he known this much he might have been able to shape his course better; but, being in the dark, he had to do the best he could with Dorothy's assistance. He had asked for her advice and she gave it.

"George, I should get back my birth-right if I were you."

"But I may be dragged into this murder case."

"No. Mr. Train can save you from being accused of that. It is only right that you should take your proper position in society. You owe it to your dead mother and to yourself to show that you have the right to your father's name."

"The first thing I shall do will be to see Mr. Ireland, my guardian. He took charge of me after my grandfather Lockwood died, and it was by his advice that I changed my name to baffle the inquiries of Lord Derrington. He will know all about the marriage and may be able to indicate where my parents went when they eloped. I have never asked him for a detailed statement, but I shall do so now. Once I find a clew I shall not rest until I prove my legitimacy. For your sake, my dear—for your sake," and he kissed her.

They parted at the door. Brendon was just stepping out into the hall when a thought occurred to him. He re-entered and closed the door. "Dorothy," he asked in a low whisper, "why did you give me the yellow holly on that night?"

She looked surprised. "It was to please you," she said softly, "and to tell you the truth, George, I thought that the holly was a proof that my mother was relenting toward you."

"How do you mean, Dorothy?" "It was my mother who gave me the holly," she explained. "I came from the park and told her you were going to stop with Mr. Train and that she could set her mind at rest, as I should not see you for a few days. She seemed pleased, and, taking the yellow holly from a vase in her boudoir, she gave me a sprig, saying that I could give it to you for consolation. Why do you ask me this, George?"

"There is no reason for my asking," he replied, suppressing the truth, "but yellow holly is rare."

"Very rare. I don't know where my mother got the sprig."

After this they parted, and Brendon walked thoughtfully away. Mrs. Jersey had been startled by the sight of the holly. Mrs. Ward had given the sprig to Dorothy, who had presented it to him. He asked himself if there was a reason for Mrs. Ward's action.

CHAPTER VI. AFTER his disagreeable experience in the Bloomsbury district Brendon was not very anxious to go there again, but it was necessary that he should do so if he wanted to see his guardian. From force of habit he still continued to call him so, although Mr. Ireland had long since ceased to act in that capacity. George had a sincere respect for him and frequently paid him a visit. Usually it was one of ceremony or of enjoyment, but on this occasion the young man went in search of knowledge.

Ireland was an eccentric character who collected posters. Most collectors turn their attention to stamps, to snuffboxes, to autographs and such like trifles, but Mr. Ireland hunted for those gigantic and gaudy pictures which make gay the thoroughfares of the city.

He was a tall old man with rather long white hair and a clean shaven, benign face. His usual height did away with the impression of his excessive stoutness. George often wondered at his size, considering that the man ate comparatively little. Mr. Ireland was dressed in glossy broadcloth scrupulously brushed and wore an old fashioned Gladstone collar. He had large blue eyes, rather watery, and a large mouth with full red lips. This hint of sensuality was contradicted by the serenity and pallor of his face and by his life, which was as correct as his dress and as methodical as his hours.

Never was there so methodical a man. He lived by the clock, and with him one day exactly resembled another. He rose at a certain hour and retired precisely when the hand on the clock indicated another. His meals were always regular, and he had stated hours for walking, when he went out whether it was wet or fine, sunny or foggy. The man was like a machine, and George, when living with him in his early days, had often found these restrictions irksome. It was 1 o'clock when Brendon called, and Mr. Ireland had just finished his luncheon. At 2 precisely he would leave the house for his one hour's constitutional. Brendon was aware of this and had timed his visit accordingly. Nevertheless Ireland looked at his watch and mentioned the fact.

"I can only give you an hour, George," he said. "You know my habits."

"An hour will be sufficient," replied Brendon, taking the one chair. "You are not looking very well, sir," he added, noting the fagged air of the old man.

"I have not been sleeping so soundly as usual," rejoined Ireland. "At my age—and I am now seventy-five—I can't be expected to enjoy my bed so much as a young person."

As time was short and Mr. Ireland would be sure to terminate the interview exactly at the stated hour George plunged immediately into the business which had brought him hither. "I wish to hear the story of my parents," he said deliberately.

"The clear fell from the fat fingers of Ireland, and he stared in amazement at the young man. "It is rather late in the day for that, is it not?" he asked.

"Better late than never," quoted George.

"A proverb is no answer," said Ireland testily.

"Then, if you wish to know, sir, I am in love."

"That is no answer either."

"It will lead to a very explicit answer," rejoined the young man coolly. "Love leads to marriage, and in my case marriage cannot take place unless I know that I am legitimate."

"Of course you are. I have always maintained that you are."

"What proof have you?" asked George eagerly.

Ireland hesitated and wiped his forehead with a red silk handkerchief. "Your father always declared that Miss Lockwood was his lawful wife, and treated her with every respect."

"Did my father ever tell you where the marriage was celebrated?"

"No; I never asked, nor did you grandfather Lockwood. It was not till after your mother's death that Lord Derrington denied the marriage. Then Mr. Vane was in Italy and never troubled about the matter."

"He should have done so for my sake," said George indignantly.

"Certainly, and I urged him to do so," said Mr. Ireland heavily. "I was in Italy at the time, and you were only an infant in arms."

"Who was my nurse then?"

"Jane Fraser, the Scotch nurse who afterward brought you to your grandfather Lockwood when Mr. Vane was murdered."

"Do you remember the other nurse, the first one I had?"

Mr. Ireland grew indignant and puffed angrily at his cigar. "I do, indeed," he said wrathfully, "a vulgar, forward hussy. She was not bad looking either and set up for being a lady." Here he began to laugh. "Would you believe it, George, my boy, she was in love with your father and showed it so plainly that he was obliged to get rid of her?"

"What was her name?"

"Eliza Stokes. And she was handsome in a bouncing way."

"What became of her?"

"I can't tell you," said Ireland, with sudden reserve.

"Did you see her after she was dismissed?"

Ireland turned his cigar slowly and did not look at George when he replied. "Yes, I did. When and where it does not matter."

"But it does matter—to me!" cried Brendon anxiously. "It is to know about her that I came here to see you today."

"I thought you came about your birth," said Ireland sharply.

"That among other things," he said. "But in what way was my—Mr. Lockwood pleased? You hinted that he was not quite angry."

"Well," said Ireland, "he was flattered that his daughter should have married into the aristocracy."

"Then there was no question of the marriage?"

"No. Lord Derrington said nothing till your mother was dead, and even then he said very little. It was when Vane was murdered at San Remo that he first decisively asserted that no marriage had taken place. He did so because Lockwood insisted that Derrington should acknowledge you as his heir. He refused to do so and said that his second son was the heir."

"That is Walter Vane's father?"

"Exactly. And now the father is dead. Walter Vane stands in your shoes. I wish you could prove the marriage, my boy," said Ireland, shaking his head, "but it will be a difficult task."

"I don't care how difficult it is," replied Brendon resolutely. "I am determined to learn the truth."

"Who is the lady?" asked Ireland.

"Miss Dorothy Ward. You don't know anything of her?"

Ireland shook his head. "I left the adoration of the aristocracy to Lockwood," he said, with something like a sneer, "but that's neither here nor there, my boy. To make a long story short, I met your mother in Paris, and shortly afterward she died, giving birth to you. Eliza Stokes was with her when she died, and you were given into the charge of that woman. Your mother was buried in Pere la Chaise. Vane put up a stone to her—oh, he behaved very well, I don't deny that, added Ireland, but with a dark face. "He was really fond of her, and I suppose there was a marriage."

"Did my mother ever say anything about it?"

"Never. You asked me that before. It was an accepted fact. After the death of Rosina her husband went to Italy. I was there, too, and it was at Milan that the episode occurred which led to the dismissal of Eliza Stokes."

"What was that?"

"Why, there was a young English waiter, quite a boy he was, who fell in love with Eliza when she was taking charge of you at the Hotel de Ville. She refused to marry him and hinted that she loved your father. Vane heard of this and taxed her with impertinence. The end of it was that Eliza said too much and was dismissed. And Jane Fraser was sent from England by Vane's mother to nurse you. That looks as though Lady Derrington believed in the marriage."

"It does," admitted Brendon hopefully. "She would not have sent a nurse had anything been wrong. On the other hand, if she had been quite certain about the marriage she might have offered to take charge of me."

"She did. I believe, but your father was so fond of you—your mother's sake—that he could scarcely bear you out of his sight. However, Eliza went and Jane came, and then your father went to San Remo. You were then two years of age."

"Did not my father return to England during all that time?"

"No. When he left England with your mother he never returned. She died in Paris, and with you in charge of a nurse, Vane wandered about the continent. I was twice in Italy and saw him—the second time it was at San Remo."

"If you disliked my father so much why did you seek him out?"

"To see you, George. You were her child, and I loved Rosina so dearly." Ireland stopped, gulped down his emotion, and proceeded more calmly. "Yes, I was at San Remo when your father was murdered."

"You never told me that before," said Brendon.

"I never told you anything before," replied Ireland dryly. "And I should not tell you now but that my health is getting so bad that I may not live long. I have an incurable disease, which will sooner or later carry me off—no, I don't want sympathy. Let me finish the story and then we need not refer to it again. I had intended to leave a written statement behind me for you, George, but this is better, as you can ask me questions about what you do not understand."

"I understand all so far," said George thoughtfully. "But about this murder, Mr. Ireland? Who killed my father?"

"That was never discovered. He went to a masked ball and was seen leaving the room in the company of a blue domino. His body was found on the stones of the beach early next morning. He had been stabbed to the heart."

"Who was the lady—the blue domino?"

"No one ever learned. She was cloaked and masked. The whole thing is a mystery. Your father's body was taken to England, and as Lord Derrington refused to acknowledge the marriage Lockwood took charge of you."

"I heard of that crime. But how do you identify Eliza Stokes with Mrs. Jersey?"

"My old nurse, Jane Fraser, told me. When I began these inquiries I looked up Jane, who now lives in a little Essex village. She told me all she could, which was not much. But she stated that when here one day on a visit to you she had met Eliza Stokes, and in spite of her age and gray hairs she had recognized her. Eliza told her that she was called Mrs. Jersey and had taken a boarding house in Amelia square. I then determined to speak to Mrs. Jersey, who I thought might have been present at the marriage or at all events might know where it had been celebrated."

"It is probable she did," said Ireland, "as she was with your mother as maid when the elopement took place. Did you see Mrs. Jersey, or Eliza Stokes, as I still regard her?"

"I saw her, but she was murdered before I could manage to speak to her on the subject. Did you know—"

"I know that Eliza Stokes had changed her name to Mrs. Jersey and was in Amelia square," said Ireland. "But I only learned this the other day."

"Who told you?"

"A woman called Miss Bull," said Ireland.

"Miss Bull," repeated George. "I remember. That was the boarder who foretold a violent death to Mrs. Jersey. But you read about that in the papers."

Ireland nodded. "I did," he said. "And I also saw that you were in the house when Mrs. Jersey was murdered. You were a witness."

"I can tell you about that. I—"

"There is no need to tell me. I have not the time," Ireland looked at his watch. "In ten minutes I leave for my walk."

George remonstrated. "But this is so important."

"Not so important as my health. I can give you only ten minutes, George. This Miss Bull called to ask me about the lease of the house to Mrs. Jersey. I knew nothing about that. When Lockwood died I sold the house to Lord Derrington."

"What to my grandfather?"

"Yes. But had I known he was the purchaser I should not have let him have it. He bought it through an agent. Since then I heard nothing more about the house. I did not even know it was a boarding establishment until it appeared as such in the papers the other day. I wondered what you were doing at the inquest."

"I can explain."

Ireland held up his hand. "I need no explanation. I know that Mrs. Jersey was really Eliza Stokes. I gathered that from the description given by Miss Bull in the course of our conversation. My suspicions were aroused by the fact that Lord Derrington had leased the Amelia square house to Mrs. Jersey."

"Why did he do that?" George spoke more to himself than to Ireland.

"Well," said the old man, rising, "it is my belief that Lord Derrington knows there was a marriage and assisted Mrs. Jersey so that she should hold her tongue. Now there is no more time. I must go out." And Ireland walked to the door.

"One moment," said George on the doorstep. "This blue domino connected with my father's murder—was she never traced?"

"No. There was no means of tracing her. Except that she wore a piece of holly she carried no distinguishing mark."

"Holly?" cried George, astounded. "Yellow holly?"

"Yes. I don't know how you come to mention it, but the holly worn by the blue domino with whom your father went away had yellow berries."

THE MARRIAGE QUESTION.

The professor who announced that love and romance die out with the sound of the wedding-bells, was the first to start the ball rolling. It would seem a brave woman who marries with this echo in her ears, we have not heard the year. There are many marriages during the year, but a large percentage of these unhappy homes are due to the excess of the wife, mother or daughter.

During a long period of practice, Dr. Pierce found that a prescription made up entirely of roots and herbs, without the use of alcohol, cured ninety-eight per cent of such cases. After using this remedy for many years in his private practice he put it up in a form that can be had at any store where medicines are handled.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a remedy such as no other remedy for the disease and weakness peculiar to women has attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now fully warranted in offering to pay back the legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures headache, backache, nervousness, dizziness and other consequences of womanly debility. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

PERFECT WOMANHOOD

The perfect woman is the well woman. Sweetness of disposition, beauty of face and symmetry of figure are never found with those women whose lives have been tortured by female weakness. Pain sears the face with "crow tracks" and wrecks the nerves. Menstrual disorders weaken the blood, which results in weakened muscles and loss of necessary flesh. This stoops the figure and makes women old before their time.

No, to be beautiful you must necessarily be well. Wine of Cardui is the medicine to make every woman well, and in bringing them health it will bring happiness and attractiveness.

WINE OF CARDUI

If you are suffering from disordered menstruation, bearing down pains, leucorrhoea, headache, backache and pains in the head, Wine of Cardui will bring you relief. This great woman's tonic is a specific for the troubles peculiar to women. It cures female weakness by regulating the menstruation, which when disordered is the cause of nearly all the trouble.

Over 1,500,000 women who were sufferers have secured the grateful relief Wine of Cardui brings. Don't let this hidden sickness make you an invalid. Health is easily secured by taking Wine of Cardui. You can secure a bottle from your druggist today and take the treatment in the privacy of your home and secure all the benefits that you could get if a doctor had prescribed it. And doctors do prescribe Wine of Cardui.

Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist and start the treatment today.

Teas, Francisco, Bibb, Adams, Elias Van Zandt, Robert Martin and Wilbur Hardwick made up the party.

ON THE TALLY-HO TO CIRCUS

D. E. Colp filled his tally-ho with a bevy of pretty girls Friday morning and let them see the circus parade on one street and down the other. He gave them a quantity of horns that he allowed them to make proper noises with, and after the parade he drove them to the grounds to watch the midway tent preparations. The young ladies were Misses Larimer, Binyon, Lucille and Bess White, Andre Anderson, Crowley, Pendleton, Virginia Van Zandt, Jessie Marklee, Crittenden, Beall, Hattie Mae Anderson, Bess Anderson and Taylor. Mrs. Colp and Mrs. E. D. Capps were the chaperons.

SHIRRING AND PLAITS

A combination of shirring and box plaits is a graceful interpretation of the 1830 skirt. The straps across the shirred material hold the fullness until it reaches a point just below the knee. The pointed bodice, caught with straps, is ornamented with a fall of lace across each shoulder, an allover lace undersleeve and a point d'esprit tucker with an allover lace collar. Any soft material, such as challis or crepe de chine is pretty made after this model. Green is an excellent color.

LATICE TRIMMING AND HOW TO MAKE IT

One of the prominent features of the fall gowns, for both street and house wear, is the lattice effect in velvet and chenille. The gown here shown is of mauve cashmere. The lattice work is of mauve velvet with mauve chenille. The girde is of mauve velvet matching the velvet in the lattice. The vest is of white cashmere with a faint tracery of hand embroidery in mauve silk.

To make the lattice trimming take a long sheet of stiff cardboard (see A and B) a little wider than the trimming is to be. To a white foundation of soft cloth baste the velvet ribbon, one on each edge, being careful to baste the ribbon in such a way that the stitches may be removed without leaving thread creases. After the ribbon is basted to the cloth, sew the cloth firmly to the cardboard, and thus secured the lattice work may be begun.

Let the chenille, for most dainty effect, be of a lighter shade than the ribbon and material of gown. Mark the cloth where the chenille is to be run through the ribbon and where it should be knotted to effect the lattice. Care must be taken in knotting, that the diamonds may be perfectly formed. Work with very large needles to keep the chenille from wearing. When one section of lattice work has been completed remove the threads and baste onto the cardboard a new section.

If jewels are worn with this gown nothing will be prettier upon the white vest than amethyst ornaments in brooch or pendant. If the shades are carefully chosen almost anyone will find the color combination becoming.

A GREAT SENSATION

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind., when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure. Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles." Price 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by Matt S. Blanton & Co., Reeves' Pharmacy, W. J. Fisher, druggists. Trial bottle free.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN TO PUT IN THE STUDY

Much progress has been made towards establishing the Bible instruction in connection with the State University, under the direction of the Christian Women's Board of Missions.

This work was made possible by a splendid gift of $10,000 by Mrs. M. M. Blanks of Lockhart, $9,000 of which is bearing interest for the support of the work and $1,000 in Austin city lots. A piece of property known as the Maxwell place, opposite the main entrance of the university, has been purchased to give the enterprise a local habitation and a name.

Two thousand dollars has been paid on this property, $1,000 raised by donations for that purpose and $1,000 by sale of lots mentioned above.

Professor W. C. Payne, Bible instructor in Kansas University, has been secured for a course of lectures, beginning about October 21. The ladies hope that the young men and women of the university will take advantage of this opportunity to become more thoroughly acquainted with "the Book that makes nations great," the Book that, taken simply as a book, has exerted and is exerting more influence over the world and the world's history than any other book ever written. Parents and friends having boys and girls and student friends at the university are urged to advise these to meet Professor Payne and attend the lectures.

The place is situated at No. 1409 Hemphill street. Will trade for other property up to the amount of $2,500. Price for this modern cottage, if sold at once, only $2,000, being $250 below market value. It is a brand new home, having been built less than two years. South and west exposure. One of the most modern and complete homes in the city, with all conveniences, including gas for cooking purposes.

Remember that we do a general fire, plate glass, liability and tornado insurance business and represent none but the best old line stock companies, the representatives of the United States, such as the following: Phoenix of Hartford, Connecticut, with a cash capital of two million and with assets double that amount.

Orient of Hartford, Connecticut, with a cash capital of a half million, and with assets five times that amount.

Camden of New Jersey, established in the year 1841.

American of Boston, established very nearly a hundred years ago, in the year of 1818.

When you place your insurance with such companies as the above you can rest easy at night and have your mind free, in case you should be so unfortunate as to lose your home or household belongings by fire or lightning it wouldn't be any longer that it takes to make up the profits of loss before you would have the cash with which to rebuild your home or replace your furniture.

When you have any good vendor lien notes or wish to borrow money on good improved city property, remember we do that, and let you have the money for several years at the low rate of interest of 3 or 9 per cent.

OUR OFFICE IS LOCATED IN THE VERY HEART OF THE CITY, AT 112 WEST NINTH STREET, BETWEEN MAIN AND HOUSTON STREETS, DOWN STAIRS. WE HAVE BOTH TELEPHONE NO. 523 3 RINGS, WE HAVE SOME BEAUTIFUL CALENDARS FOR THE HOLIDAYS, SO WHEN YOU ARE IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD, DROP IN AND IT WILL BE OUR PLEASURE TO GIVE YOU ONE OF THESE SOUVENIRS.

A. W. SAMUELS, FIRE INSURANCE AGENT, 112 WEST NINTH, BETWEEN MAIN AND HOUSTON, DOWN STAIRS.

GRAIN CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Wheat was nervously strong today, the chief feature of the trading being the greater demand for December, as compared with May and the growing premium for the earlier delivery. Not so long ago December wheat was at 3c discount; today it closed at 1 1/4c premium, besides being 3/4c higher than its final price yesterday.

STOCKS NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—There was no abatement in the buoyancy and activity which were the features of yesterday's stock market during the short session today. The bank statement was remarkably favorable, not so much as regards the gain in cash, which was unaccountably small, but in the great reduction of loans that was recorded.

1. LULU: "Yes, Leander, it's in these woods I saw the most beautiful Autumn leaves. We can get lots of them. Why, what's the matter with that poor little fellow?"
LEANDER: "It looks as if he were lost."

2. LULU: "Why, my dear little fellow, what is the matter? Poor child, he must have fallen into a mud-puddle."
THE LITTLE RUNAWAY: "Boo, hoo, hoo! Me's lost and me's tired!"
LEANDER: "He's got good lungs all right."

3. LULU: "Oh, I know where he lives, down the road about a mile. Leander, you carry the little fellow. But those Autumn leaves. I can't go in these woods alone."
THE RUNAWAY: "W-e-o-w! Me-wants-to-go-home! W-e-o-w!"
LEANDER (aside): "Ye gods! Does she think I'm a child's nurse?"

4. LULU: "Oh, here's Charley. Leander, you sit down on that stone and take care of our little friend. Charley will go with me to get the Autumn leaves."
LEANDER (aside): "Fiends incarnate! This is the worst ever!"
THE RUNAWAY: "W-e-o-o-w! Me wants to go home! W-E-E-O-O-W!"

5. LULU: "Now be kind to the little fellow. We will be back soon, Leander."
LEANDER (aside): "Great Green-Eyed Monster! There she goes off with HIM, and I have to sit here and hold this howling brat. KEEP QUIET!"
THE RUNAWAY: "W-E-O-W! Me-wants-my-Mom!"

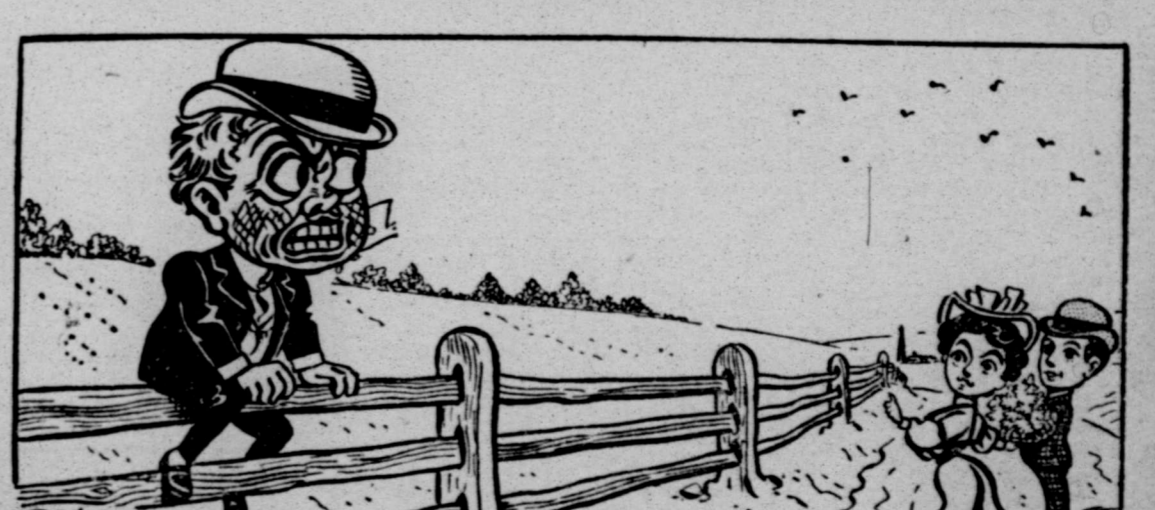

6. LEANDER: "Great Scott! This is becoming unbearable! You little tyrant, take your nails out of my face! W-h-o-o-p! There goes a half yard of skin off my countenance. Why DON'T they come back?"
THE RUNAWAY: "Me wants to go home! W-e-o-w! W-e-o-w! W-E-O-W!"

7. THE RUNAWAY'S MOTHER: "Don't tell me! You're a kidnapper, that's what you are. I'm going right back to the village and get the men folks after you, I am."
LEANDER (aside): "Ye gods! Here IS a mess!"

8. LEANDER: "What's happened to me? Why, that howling brat you gave me to hold. Not satisfied with clawing my face into mincemeat, his mother comes along and accuses me of kidnapping him. Going to get the men folks after me."
LULU: "Gracious alive, Leander! It will not be safe for you to go through the village NOW. You'll have to cut across the fields and into our house by the back way."

9. LULU: "Now be careful, Leander. You can find the way. Don't fall into any ditches. Charley will take me home safely."
LEANDER: "Did ever a lover get it so thoroughly in the neck? A three-mile walk over stubble fields and ditches, and they walking home together, Joyous and ev. Ye gods! If I fall into a ditch I've a notion to stay there."
