FORGOTTEN WILL BRINGS TO HER A FORTUNE
Early Prospector in Colorado Sells What He Thinks Is Worthless, But Later Proves a Bonanza

DENVER, Nov. 10.—A romance of love and riches of eight years was brought to light when a mining suit was filed in Mineral county district court Saturday.

Although the complaint begins: "Now comes Sadie C. Smith, nee Sara Plummer, through her attorneys, Wolcott, Valle & Waterman, and alleges that" for several long, dry, dusty pages, behind the legal forms lies hidden a story of rugged life on the plains, the fight against nature for her untold health, and the joining together of two hearts.

The suit is against the Commodore Mining Company, and the plaintiff seeks to recover damages for trespass in the sum of $75,000 and interest in the mines of the company.

A little over fifty years ago Haskell Rider, young and ambitious, came with the rush for the golden ground of the west. For years he searched and fought and worked, and finally, it is said, located the Manhattan lode, near Creede.

But he could not get the funds to work his claim, and in 1895 was an inmate of the Soldiers' home, Monte Vista. Here, it is alleged, the Commodore Mining Company searched him out and bought fifty-one one-hundredths of his rights, paying him $5,000.

With this money he left the place and went to the banks of Los Pinos river, near New Mexico. Here he bought a home and searched out his niece, Miss Sadie C. Plummer, and settled down to die.

The Commodore Company meanwhile had operated the almost forgotten mine, and revealed the hidden stores of wealth. Vast pieces of machinery were installed, great ore dumps erected, and it produced beyond the fondest dreams of its operators.

And then comes the romance. Rider, seeing the end approaching, summoned a young attorney, L. R. Smith, to draw up his will. Little mention was made of the forgotten mine, but while the attorney attended to the legal affairs of the old man he also found time to attend to his own heart affairs.

Eighteen months later Rider died, and a short time after the attorney married the niece.

Recently Mr. Smith, who is now the special counsel of the state land board, in delving through some forgotten papers, came upon the old will, which left all of the old man's possessions to his niece. Among the papers was a reference to the mine, and on investigating Mr. Smith found, he asserts, that almost half of the mine was his wife's.

Further investigations were conducted, with the result that the suit for interest and damages was filed last Saturday.

UNCLE SAM MUST SETTLE FOR THE INDIAN DEBT
Six Tribes Were Driven From Pillar to Post and at Last Despoiled of All They Possessed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—It seems that once Uncle Sam will have to give the Red Man a square deal. It took the Indian litigants something like twenty years to make their case in this instance, but they are now about to get what's coming to them.

The Indians in question are the Six Nations of New York, composed of the Mohawk, Oneida, Onondaga, Cayuga, Seneca and Tuscarora tribes. Up to 1713 they were known as the Five Tribes, and the Tuscaroras didn't belong. In that year they tired of fighting the Five Nations and made it Six. They were all industrious and thrifty and cultivated land in New York state which became very valuable.

The government needed some of it for settlement by the clamorous whites, and much of it was bought from the Indians at good prices. The Six Nations invested the proceeds of their land sales in timber lands in Wisconsin. This too, became valuable, and the government finally made a deal for it. It gave the Indians a large tract of land in Arkansas for the Wisconsin timber.

At this stage of the game Fort Lo got it in the neck good and proper. Again the government came around needing something, this time the Arkansas land. Without so much as "by your leave" to the Indians, the land was thrown open for settlement. Not a cent did the Six Nations get. Then they went into court and before congress, and finally congress appropriated $2,000,000 to reimburse them.

The court's decision has been adjudicating various matters pertaining to the distribution of the money. Counter-claimants have arisen, among them descendants of the Mohicans, Hudson and other Indians. Now the court is about to settle the last of these claims, none of which has thus far been found valid, and the Six Nations will get their money. There are about 5,000 of them altogether yet in New York and the distribution of the money will make them quite opulent.

HOW INDIANS TELEGRAPHED
Scouts Used the "Wig-Wag" Fires and Even Small Mirrors

It was a spot of interest. We were standing on one of the old signal stations of the Dakota Indians, in the very heart of what was once the buffalo country, and what is today a prosperous cattle range. Here and there fragments of charcoal proclaimed where the signal fires had burned, while in the crevices and weathered debris of the built-up summit the writer found war points and chips of obsidian, flint and moss agate, a few heavier points of flint that had once tipped hunting arrows, a flint knife and fragments of the scorched bones of the buffalo, elk, mountain sheep, deer, antelope, dog, badger and skunk. In every nook and cranny of the place small fragments of the creditable article of Indian pottery were found beneath the heavy soles of our hunting boots. More than a hundred snags have come and gone since that pottery was buried.

With their body robes of finely tanned buffalo hide held, raised, lowered, draped and swung in certain well known peculiar ways, the Indian scouts and watchers used to telegraph thence to the distant village of the presence of strangers or enemies in the country, of the approach of the buffalo bands, and of the return of war and hunting parties. If the camp was too distant for the blanket signal to be made out, the information was communicated by fires at night and by pillars and balloon-shaped puffs of smoke by day, discernible to the distance of at least fifty miles. When traders came up the Missouri river the Indian scout added the small circular hand mirror to his meager but all-sufficient outfit, and in time learned to communicate with his distant friends by flashes of sunlight. The first Indian hunter or horse herder who caught the danger signal from the lookout station, repeated it to the village by riding his horse furiously in a circle or by other forms of sign.

The sentry is there to prevent any one from entering the pagoda, which is his place of repose, and awakening him. His slumbers have lasted 4,000 years.

RAILROAD NEWS

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—The Tribune today says: Preliminaries are being worked out by the Pennsylvania interests for the complete reorganization of the Vandalla line, which recently was sold under foreclosure proceedings.

A new company will be formed to operate the "Vandalla Lines," which will be part of the southwest system. The Vandalla system will be enlarged under the new deal.

The lines to be consolidated under the new Vandalla Company are the Terre Haute and Indianapolis, St. Louis, Vandalla and Logansport and the Logansport and Toledo. The Terre Haute and Peoria, now a part of the Vandalla system, will not be merged in the new company, but will be operated under lease as heretofore. The Indianapolis and Vincennes, now a part of the Pennsylvania system, will be merged.

The total length of the lines to aggregate 850 miles.

A NEW TIME MAKER
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 10.—An engine that is expected to be the most remarkable time-maker ever constructed will soon be turned over to the Southern Pacific Railroad for a practical test. The engine is being built at the Corliss works in Providence, R. I.

The new engine is a power house on wheels. It is fireless, smokeless and waterless. It needs no coal, it drops no ashes and it throws no sparks nor cinders. Its builders say it would be able, with a clear track, to haul a 2,000-ton train from New York to San Francisco without a single stop. There would be no need of delays for fuel or water, for they say the locomotive will be able to carry enough fuel for a journey of 3,000 miles, and it needs no water for steam.

Theoretically, all this has been figured out to a mathematical certainty, and all that remains now is a practical demonstration. The locomotive uses a combination of compressed air power, fuel oil power and electrical power.

It is an application of the Diesel type of engine to locomotion. Joseph H. Headley, president of the International Power Company and organizer of the American Locomotive Company, and Walter H. Knight, chief engineer of the International Power Company, and formerly with the General Electric Company, are the joint designers of the new locomotive. In their design the Diesel engine, which heretofore has been used only in stationary work, will be used to drive a dynamo, which will provide the electrical power for the locomotive. A speed of 100 to 120 miles an hour is expected on the trial run. An average speed of 100 miles an hour could be maintained from the

WEATHER FORECAST

The song "In the Good Old Summer Time" and other of a like nature are entirely inappropriate today. The "good summer time" has evidently gone with the democratic majorities. This morning and last night the wind was a stiff norther and made one wonder what was done with last summer's wages. The thermometer went down the column to 49 above zero and if the skies will clear up today and all the big clouds disappear there are good prospects of a heavy white frost tonight and freezing point weather.

It was below freezing at Amarillo last night and the only thing that saved Fort Worth from the same kind of weather was the fact that the sky was filled with clouds. Up in Kansas and Missouri and some of the other northern states it was snowing last night. The weather is quite cold there and we may expect to get some of the stiff breezes here.

THE TEXAS STATESMAN

Who is the real Texas statesman? Why is the man in the public eye today most nearly representing the ideal of what a statesman should really be? That is a question that would perhaps evoke a multitude of answers embodying many of the men in our public life, but when it came to a selection of the real thing thousands of Texas voices would proclaim Charles A. Culberson, formerly attorney general, formerly governor, and now United States senator from this state.

Senator Culberson has long been the idol of the young democracy or the state. At the inception of his political career it was the young democracy that gave him his first honors, but it is an united democracy today that delights to do honor to this true and tried son of the Lone Star state. The people have ever found him ready to wield trenchant and effective blade in fighting their battles, and he has been true to every trust.

Nor is that all. Senator Culberson's fame is not confined to the boundaries of his state. Throughout the length and breadth of the land he is regarded as one of the strong men of this nation, and the nation itself appreciates him for his true worth. The services of Senator Culberson were greatly in demand during the recent national campaign. There was a call for Culberson from very nearly every state in the union, for he is a man of matchless eloquence and infinite power upon the stump. There is a finish and a polish about the Culberson brand of oratory that never fails to bewitch the hearer. He does not appeal to the coarser part of human nature and cause men to go wild with his platitudes and bombast denunciations of the evils alleged to afflict the body politic.

It is said that the new crown of King Peter of Serbia weighs thirty pounds, and no doubt there are times in the career of that distinguished assassin when it feels like the heft of it is equal to about thirty tons. The new republic of Panama has just celebrated its first birthday, and enters upon the second year of its wretched and checked career. It is a very promising youngster. Its officials will promise almost anything.

The annual income of John D. Rockefeller from his Standard oil trust is said to be $20,000,000 per annum. But there must be times when John feels as poor as any of us, for he squeezes mighty hard for a few more nickels. Stewart McDougall, a wealthy and eccentric citizen of Brooklyn says he has not eaten a particle of cooked food in twenty years. His wife must be a post-graduate of some celebrated cooking school.

cept this great trust, and the proud record he has already achieved in the senate will be added to until the time will come when Senator Culberson will carve for himself a name in the affairs of this nation that will be as enduring as time and as bright as the stars of heaven. He is today the real Texas statesman, typical of all that is brightest and best in the Lone Star state.

It was a landslide—but from under the feet of democracy. W. L. Douglass risked his awl on the Massachusetts gubernatorial campaign and won in a canter.

Tom Taggart? Oh, yes; he is the man who carried Indiana. Thought we had heard that name before. There is a time for all things and the time for politics has passed. It is now time to get down to business.

There are lots of men living in Texas who have no visible means of support, and they seem to be living well and enjoying life. The wife of the Japanese minister to the United States is serving in the Red Cross society, nursing the sick and wounded of her native land.

An Indiana girl who spent eighteen hours in a trance, claims that she spent that time in heaven. Who saw that girl while she was here in Texas? The question "does housework make women ugly" is answered in the negative by the number of men who find satisfaction in kissing the servant girl.

Out of consideration for his bravery in sinking the British fishing vessels, the czar of Russia has just raised the grade of the commanding officer to that of vice admiral. Governor Lanham may be a man of good intentions, but it is laying it on just a little too thick to expect us to feel very thankful under the existing circumstances.

The Star-eyed Goddess of Reform will spend the next few months in Europe. Colonel Watterson arranged that European trip to fit a very trying emergency. Sin we have had time to think of it, we have come to the conclusion that this country of ours does not need a constitution. It is big enough to get along without it.

The price of bread is going to be rather dear this winter, and until another wheat crop is made, but there is plenty of hominy in Texas if the bread gets beyond a poor man's reach. President Roosevelt can now conform no greater boom upon the west than to hurry up that beef trust investigation. The entire live stock industry of the country is seriously suffering.

Whenever there is a public announcement that an American girl is about to marry some titled foreigner, the world shrugs its shoulders and invariably remarks, "sold again." It is said that the new crown of King Peter of Serbia weighs thirty pounds, and no doubt there are times in the career of that distinguished assassin when it feels like the heft of it is equal to about thirty tons.

The new republic of Panama has just celebrated its first birthday, and enters upon the second year of its wretched and checked career. It is a very promising youngster. Its officials will promise almost anything. The annual income of John D. Rockefeller from his Standard oil trust is said to be $20,000,000 per annum. But there must be times when John feels as poor as any of us, for he squeezes mighty hard for a few more nickels.

Stewart McDougall, a wealthy and eccentric citizen of Brooklyn says he has not eaten a particle of cooked food in twenty years. His wife must be a post-graduate of some celebrated cooking school. For the next two months time may drag a little heavy in Texas on account of the cessation of all political excitement, but in January we will have the state legislature with us again. Then things will be lively.

It is now seriously suggested that the world set aside a land as the abiding place of the felons of all nations. But it would not work, as the English felons would soon get the upper hand and raise the flag of annexation. The cost of the American army and navy for the next year will be the very large sum of $215,000,000 and in the face of that fact, we have just led off in an invitation to the world to meet us in a great second peace conference.

Gleanings From the Exchanges

Have you ever noticed that those who criticize and condemn another's conduct never do anything toward making the world any better—they are too much wrapped up in their own posing before the public as great moralists, and can not endanger their "reputations" by stopping and talking to one not in their own "class."—Floresville Chronicle.

This world is full of capricious critics who are always willing to point out the mote without stopping to consider the beam. It is seemingly a part of human nature to assume the "I am holier than thou" attitude, but it often only serves to reveal the frailty of the poser.

Judge Reagan, it is reported, gives this advice to young men: "Do not enter the profession of law for there are now more lawyers than clients," and the judge generally knows what he is talking about.—Bonham News.

Judge Reagan's advice is most timely, and young men should profit by it. It is much better to be an honest and contented tiller of the soil than a shyler lawyer with no higher ambition than a seat in the Texas state legislature.

Stoessel has done all that he could. The bottled up fleet in Port Arthur is virtually no more, as the Japanese shells from the hills have sunk them or disabled them so that they are no longer serviceable. The garrison retires to the tail of the peninsula to take what the fates order and Russia has had her punishment for her rash conclusion that the Japs could not hold their own against the great northern bear. Now what will be done with the army at Mukden?—San Antonio Light.

Just leave that army at Mukden to the tender mercies of the Japs. They will soon make a final and effective disposition of it by placing it, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.

Said a well known minister the other day in discussing the divorce question as to whether the clergy should perform the ceremony for those divorced: "We do not unite them to be severed and we should not unite them after they have been severed." There is much truth, it seems, in what he says.—Terrell Transcript.

Ministers of the gospel are rapidly arriving at the conclusion that they should not again tie nuptial knots for parties who have obtained a severance in the divorce court. But their determination only seems to promise additional work for judicial officers. People who desire to marry will find a way.

The Hillsboro cotton factory was sold out the other day under the hammer and was bought in for $15,000. There is no indebtedness on the plant that will make the purchasers have to pay about $5,000 in all for the plant, but only about three years ago, cost $85,000. Corsicana's cotton factory went nearly the same way. Texas seems to be a place for cotton factories for financial investment by public subscription with a large number of stockholders a few individuals may make some money running them. However, the Corsicana Light is glad to see the Corsicana cotton factory start up and give employment to quite a number of people and wish the new owners success.—Corsicana Courier-Light.

The fact that some cotton factories have failed in Texas does not wipe out the further fact that a number of such enterprises are in successful operation. Perhaps the fault lies in the management. Men can not run cotton factories successfully who have no knowledge of the business.

The main question before the next legislature will be taxation. No matter what measures become laws the Panhandle can not be imposed on any more than at present. This section pays taxes on 75 per cent of the actual cash valuation of all property, while in central Texas about 35 per cent is the figure. If central Texas would do as well as the Panhandle the tax on taxation could be reduced by a third.—When and Where Index.

And when you get down in central Texas as the people are ready to swear they are bearing the heavy end of the taxation burden and will resist any attempt to increase the present tax rate. In the meantime, the expenses of the state are increasing and the hole in the state treasury is steadily growing.

HOW TO WIN A HUSBAND.

Woman's sphere in this 20th century is not limited any more than man's. She can occupy almost any business position of profession, and yet the popular view of it is that she best fits the position of wife and mother and head of the household. Every girl should know her heart and also know that her womanly system is equal to the strain of marriage. If a girl is nervous and irritable ten chances to one it is due to some trouble peculiar to womanhood.

Cupid has no place in a girl's heart if she is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down, worn out for no reason that she can think of. The weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes are only symptoms. Go to the source of the trouble and correct the irregularity. Stop the drains on the womanly system and the other symptoms will disappear. This can be done easily and intelligently. So sure of it is the World's Dispensary Medical Association, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that they offer a reward for women who cannot be cured of nervousness, female weakness, prolapsus, or falling of the womb. All they ask is a fair trial of the means of cure. After confinement I gained no strength, writes Mrs. A. Davis of Sweetwater, Ala. "Even when my baby was a month old I could hardly do any work. I don't know what to call the disease. I had a weak feeling in the pit of my stomach. It felt miserable all over. I was sick three months and a lady friend told me of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as it had done her so much good. I did so, and after taking three bottles was cured. This was about five years ago and I have had no return of the disease. Am very thankful for the remedy. I cannot praise your Favorite Prescription enough. It is a wonderful medicine for women." Dr. Pierce's Pellets are gently laxative.

THE YELLOW HOLLY

BY FERGUS HUME, AUTHOR OF "THE MYSTERY OF A HANSON CAB," ETC. Copyright, 1903, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

SYNOPSIS.

George Brendon attends social gathering of shabby London gentility at Mrs. Jersey's boarding house, with his friend Leonard Train, a boarder in the house. His object is to learn from Mrs. Jersey her supposed knowledge of his birth. Mrs. Jersey is mysteriously murdered during the night. Twice of yellow holly which Brendon wore in his buttonhole (given him by his sweetheart Dorothy Ward) found by Train, beside cold body. Inquest reveals nothing. Train and Brendon had slept together and though Train can not reason out how Brendon had passed out of the room during the night (because Train had locked the door in a way that Brendon could not get out) he suspects Brendon guilty of the murder. Dorothy's mother, who hates Brendon and looks on his suit for Dorothy's hand with disfavor, speaks of yellow holly in Brendon's presence. Brendon claims he is grandson and heir to Lord Derrington, but the latter denies claims because of belief that the mother's marriage had never been recorded. Lola Voley, a music hall dancer, loves Brendon because of service performed for her. Lola learns of Brendon's love for Dorothy and confesses that she has hired a detective, Bowdsey, to watch Brendon, because she, Lola, fears Brendon's success in proving his birth will draw him from her. At a dinner party given by Mrs. Ward, Derrington meets Brendon for first time. The latter thinking the former knows him not, Train to present at while Brendon and Derrington are testing each other Mrs. Ward draws Train's story of the night of murder and Train's conclusion of Brendon's guilt and the story of finding of yellow holly at side of body. Train inadvertently connects Brendon with crime. Mrs. Ward is now satisfied. The guests bid the hostess good night. Bowdsey goes to board with Miss Bull, who succeeded Mrs. Jersey as landlady. He secures rooms for Leonard and Brendon and occupies on a pretext. Tells fascinating tales of travel and adventure to Miss Bull. She likes him and shows him courtesies. Bowdsey requests Brendon to visit him at home. Brendon comes. Discovers crime. Mrs. Ward, Lord Derrington, Dorothy and Lola Voley. Bowdsey tells of love for woman and having been hired by her to watch him. Secrets revealed to Brendon by Bowdsey. Tells Brendon he is apt to be arrested charged with crime, if he doesn't leave the country. Claims of Lord Derrington and Mrs. Ward are both anxious to have him leave England.

Bowdsey tells Brendon of Mrs. Ward's information. Derrington admires Brendon. A party to see Lola dance. Dorothy meets Lola in park. A scene enacted. Mrs. Derrington advises Mrs. Ward, and she, in law, tells Mrs. Ward he saw her at San Remo, when Brendon's father was murdered. A very unpleasant affair for Mrs. Ward. Brendon invited to dine with Lord Derrington. The dinner of Mrs. Brendon's affairs and position. Brendon sees way clear to marry Dorothy. Lord Derrington helps to put him where his parentage should be. He claims him as his grandson. Some interesting confessions are made by Derrington. Miss Bull is found to be Mrs. Ward's sister. Some past history recalled. The story of San Remo. Bowdsey and Brendon meet. An interview is had. Bowdsey learns that he is in small favor with Mrs. Jersey. Bowdsey shown to have impersonated Lord Derrington on night of Mrs. Jersey's death. He wants Brendon to help him to marry Lola. Talk of the reward of £1,000. Brendon tells Bowdsey that he suspects that the same person who killed Mrs. Jersey killed his father. Bowdsey starts an interesting tale.

In continuing the story Bowdsey makes a few interesting statements. Bowdsey tells something of the murder of Mrs. Jersey and why he was in the house about the time the crime was committed. A newspaper with the story of a woman answering the description of Lola is at hand. She had been caught in the act of carrying from the parish register a page. This was at Wargrove, in Essex. Brendon now knows that this is the place where his parents were married and Lola had gone there to destroy the evidence of his legal father, so that he could marry her. Brendon hurries to the assistance of Lola and finds that she has not been taken to prison. Brendon and Lola meet and Brendon asks Lola to tell the story of her visit to Mrs. Jersey. The woman is repentant and does so. It is interesting.

(Continued from Yesterday.) "He did—once," said Bowdsey meaningly, "but Mr Ireland was not so young as he had been and dreaded lest his accident should be known. I'm sure Mrs Jersey would let him know that she was just round the corner. She always kept in touch with useful friends." "But why should he kill her so suddenly?" "Well, he might have heard that she had written out a confession, or even about Lord Derrington's visit. And then he would come round to ask her if she had incriminated him in her confession. He would ask her for a sight of it. Not having it, for she found the blue envelope empty after Lola left, she would deny that she had it. The stiletto left by Lola would be on the table. What was more natural than for Ireland to pick it up and kill her in a sudden feeling of dread?" "It strikes me that if he struck her blow he had a great deal of nerve," said George dryly. "But you go on a lot of suppositions. I do not believe Mr. Ireland had anything to do with the matter."

"Then who had?" asked the detective. "What would you say to Margery?" "What the niece—that half witted girl?" "Exactly. Half witted. She is more like an animal than anything human. She gets these sudden fits of rage. When Miss Bull fainted Margery rushed in and threatened me with her fists. Seeing what an uncontrollable temper she had, it occurred to me that she might have killed her aunt."

"But Miss Bull says that the aunt locked the girl in her room." "Of course, but Miss Bull may know the truth and may be shielding Margery. What if Mrs. Jersey found Margery gone down the stairs after Lola was gone and instead of rebuking her as Miss Bull said in the passage?" "At 11 o'clock, mind." "Later, I think," said George quickly. "You did not arrive till nearly 12, and the woman was just dead."

"She would were there no law to restrain her." "I dare say. She has the instincts of a female despot. But as there is a law she would not jeopardize her neck. No, I mean Ireland." "Derrington sat up. "Nonsense! Do you mean to say he is guilty?" "I don't think so, but Bowdsey has an idea," and George related the theory of the detective. Derrington grunted in a disgusted manner. "The man's a born idiot," he said. "Why should Ireland run the risk of getting his neck into a noose for a second crime?" "But failing Ireland," replied Brendon quietly, "there remains Margery." "That idiot of a girl! Yes?" George detailed his reasons for believing Margery's guilt. Again Derrington sniffed. "It's all supposition. If the girl came into the room, if the stiletto were on the table, if Mrs. Jersey scolded her into a fury. Pah! I don't believe it."

"And you really wish to find the assassin?" "I should like to know, out of mere curiosity. But if it is your opinion that things should be left as they are, why Bowdsey can take his thousand pounds and sail for America whenever he chooses." "After this conversation George took his leave. Dorothy was out of town, so he could not visit her. After the interview with Ireland in Derrington's library Mrs. Ward had found it convenient to go down the country. She felt that she was in an unpleasant position. Not that there was any danger of her being accused of murdering Vane, but if the police got hold of the story they might make inquiries—in fact, they certainly would make inquiries—and then the disagreeable fact would come out that Miss Bull was her sister. Mrs. Ward knew that she had not behaved well to Jenny and that if the truth were known her friends would blame her. As Mrs. Ward did not like blame and disliked to have her actions criticised, she went down the country, saying to Dorothy she desired a change of air. Lord Derrington wrote a note to Mrs. Ward after George had departed.

"I'll ask her to come up," said Derrington grimly, as he sealed the letter. "George will return in three days with the copy of the marriage certificate and with news of how that case has been disposed of. Mrs. Ward shall apologize to him and formally consent to the marriage." Meantime George went with Kowalski and Bowdsey to Chelmsford to see after Lola. Kowalski was in despair, for if Lola received a term of imprisonment his ballet would be brought to an untimely end. Now that Lola was out of the bill the hall was not so full as usual, and Kowalski foresaw that if Lola did not come back he would lose money. He therefore went down prepared to spend a large sum to set her free.

But there was no need for fear. Lola was brought up before the magistrates, and evidence was given as to her excitable nature. The old sexton produced the torn register and detailed how he had been assaulted. He thought the lady was queer, himself. Kowalski went into the box, also Bowdsey and George. The result of their evidence as to Lola's foreign ways was that the magistrate admonished her and inflicted a small fine. This was triumphantly paid by Kowalski, who returned to town with his principal dancer under his jealous eye. More than that, Kowalski made quite a story out of the events. It was known in London that Lola Voley had been arrested, as all the London papers copied the account of the trial which had appeared in the country press. Kowalski put it about that Lola had gone off her head owing to

HILL STREET IS TO HAVE A NEW BRIDGE SOON.

Interests Involved Agree to Erect a Cement Viaduct According to Plans Drawn by City Engineer

The Hill street bridge will be rebuilt according to the plans drawn by City Engineer Hawley and first published in The Telegram of November 4. Work will begin within ten days and the entire structure, it has been estimated, can be thrown open to public use within thirty days.

As stated in The Telegram of yesterday, a meeting of the various interests was held in the mayor's office yesterday afternoon, being followed by a visit to the site of the crossing, after a thorough inspection of which another consultation was had and the matter settled.

The new structure will be erected jointly by the Frisco, the Texas and Pacific and the Traction company. It will be 140 feet in length, touching the present approaches without change of grade, the railroad tracks being lowered instead. The roadway will be thirty feet wide, with a six-foot sidewalk on one side, the trolley track being placed at the opposite side of the bridge. Gravel columns and arches support the structure and will make it one of the most artistic in the state, the plans showing scroll work of great beauty. City Engineer Hawley will supervise the construction of the bridge.

Those who were present at the conference yesterday were: For the city, Mayor Powell, City Engineer Hawley and Alderman Waggoner; for the Texas and Pacific, Attorney George Thompson, Colorado L. S. Thorne, Chief Engineer Watson and Land and Tax Commissioner Abrams; for the Frisco, Trainmaster Sheehan.

HE NEVER HAD A POKER FACE IN HIS LIFE.

"Uncle Frank" Lubbock Tells Why He Never Played But One Game of Poker and That Was Years Ago

AUSTIN, Nov. 10.—Governor F. R. Lubbock in referring to an article in The Telegram of Monday in which it was stated that he had the pleasure of a personal acquaintance and enjoyed warm social relations with every president of the republic of Texas ever had and also every governor of the state of Texas ever had said, "That is literally true, and you might have added three other names to the list. A provisional government was organized in 1825 and Henry Smith, a Brazos bottom school teacher and a free man was elected governor. I knew him personally. When war was declared between the United States and Mexico in 1846, J. Pinckney Henderson was chosen to command the Texas troops. Henderson was the lieutenant governor, became the governor. I knew him personally also. For a few days 'Old Smoky' Henderson was governor of the state. I knew him well and a great man he was. 'So in addition to the four presidents of the republic and twenty-two governors of the state you might have included Henry W. Smith, Albert C. Horton and 'Smoky' Henderson."

City Engineer Hawley continued, "Speaking of Colonel Albert C. Horton reminds me of the first game of poker I ever played when as a young man I came to Texas. I thought I had to go all the gamuts. A poker party was held up one night in the old town of Columbia and I was invited to join it. I had never played the game, but accepted the invitation.

"We went into a room, arranged ourselves around a table and commenced the game, five cents ante. We played until after 12 o'clock, and when I balanced accounts I found I had lost $20. I did not have $20 at that time, but I took my medicine like a man, and made no complaint.

"The next day I met John A. Greer, one of the most prominent men in the state's early history. A poker party was held at his house and I was invited to play. 'I answered, 'you doubtless have some reason for giving such counsel, and out with it, if your reason is good.' 'Well, Mr. Greer said, 'my reason for advising you never to play the game again is because you haven't got a poker face.'"

"Well, I never could conceal my feelings very successfully. One night's experience had taught me how important it was when a fellow held a strong hand to keep his face straight, so I thought my friend Greer's words were very wise, and that's the last game of poker I ever played."

TELEGRAM ENTERPRISE MUCH APPRECIATED

Publisher Evening Telegram.

Please pardon me for writing you at this time when the newspaper business (apparently The Telegram Company's newspaper business) is on the rush. Myself and family feel as though we must compliment you on your enterprise in the "extra" early morning edition, which we received at our house at 4 o'clock this morning. Until the present time we have always taken the supposed breakfast table edition of the morning paper issued in this city. It has not been a breakfast table paper for us for the past two years. We have waited patiently and paid our monthly subscription regularly, living in the hope that they would do better by us. But this morning was the limit. When we found your "extra" at our place with all the latest returns from the election, so complete and accurate, we decided at once to try our best to struggle along the balance of our lives with an evening paper only. And in the future The Telegram will be the only paper for us. Again congratulating you on your splendid, up-to-date enterprise, we remain, first, last and always your friends and well wishers.

ROSEN CARS ARE UP TO DATE IS THE REPORT

Street Railway Journal Comments on the Rolling Stock for the New Street Car Line in This City

The Fort Worth and Rosen Heights Street Railway Company, of which Sam Rosen is the president, has been notified of the shipment of the four handsome new cars which the company has ordered from the American Car Company of St. Louis.

The Street Railway Journal in commenting on these cars has much to say regarding the several unusual features which they possess.

"The cars are built under the Brill patents. The vestibule Detroit platforms are among the interesting features of these cars. They are five feet six inches long and are well supported by tubular timbers reinforced by angle iron, and by angle-iron center knees which extend well back of the body bolsters. An automatic device is provided which raises the vestibule doors, preventing them from striking the dividing rail. The vestibule sashes are composed of single lights, and are arranged to drop into pockets. The sashes and panels of the cars are raised into roof pockets when not in use. Corner seats for three persons each are provided by extending the fixed panels from the double corner posts to the first side posts. The seats are of the step-over type and provided with brackets between the backs and the side posts, which serve as grab handles, making it unnecessary to use grab handles on the outside of the posts. The seating accommodation is provided for thirty-six passengers. The aisle width of the posts, three and three-eighths inches; distance between the centers of the posts two feet seven inches; thickness of the corner posts three and three-fourths inches, and of the side posts three and three-eighths inches. The side sills are four and three-fourths inches by six and three-fourths inches, and the end sills the same size. The sill plates are on the outside and are eight inches by five-eighths of an inch. The seats are thirty-six inches long, with of aisle twenty inches, height of platform steps sixteen and three-eighths inches and height of risers thirteen inches. The trucks are Brill 27-G, equipped with forty horse power motors. The wheel base is four feet and wheel diameter thirty-three inches.

"The new cars will doubtless prove as successful as elsewhere in the states, and by the comfort and protection which they afford at all seasons of the year, will attract traffic and help to build up business in this field, which is an excellent one for electrical operation."

A MILLION BALES OF COTTON TO GALVESTON

Statement of the Staple Which Has Been Shipped to the Chief Texas Seaport This Season

Bales.

Missouri, Kansas and Texas	192,255
International and Great Northern	233,693
Galveston, Houston and Northern	152,192
Houston Navigation Company	172,093
By schooners	621
Galveston and Interstate	100
Total	1,079,673

Commercial Agent Dillon stated in referring to the above movement that the figures are very flattering and that there was still quite a lively movement of cotton from over Texas to Galveston, although there is no rush movement as was the case during the first two or three weeks of the present cotton season. He states that after the first month of the season shippers are in no great hurry to get to market and as a consequence the railroads are not crowded to handle the staple to export ports on a lively schedule.

There is still a large amount of cotton yet to go, but the movement is now being retarded on account of the inclination of farmers to hold 12 cents, which they seem to believe they will get if they hold long enough.

CONCHO COUNTRY FALL WOOL IS DISPOSED OF

Unusual Secrecy Surrounds the Sale of the Clip, But It Is Said Advanced Prices Were Paid

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Nov. 9.—The entire Concho country fall wool clip was sold today to one firm, J. C. Williams & Co. of Boston. The clip, while aggregating some 250,000 to 400,000 pounds, was smaller by a considerable amount than last fall's clip. The price will not be given out, but it is known that the wool brought a better price than for several years past. Messrs. Walter C. Donald, A. Wallace Littlejohn, W. H. Marston, George W. Roope, W. J. Meadows and L. L. Downing, who are all the most perfect gentlemen, were here to bid on the clip besides one or two other buyers.

SCHEME IS DEAD

The statement has been definitely made within the past few days that the independent packing house project, about which the stockmen heard so much during the last two years, has been finally abandoned, and relegated to the shelf among the enterprises that have died of boredom. No further effort will be made to crystallize this one time pet hobby of certain western live stock luminaries.

The reason for the abandonment is given as the death of Charles F. Martin, secretary of the National Live Stock Association, in whose fertile brain the plan was evolved, and who was chief promoter of the scheme. But, as a matter of fact, the proposition died of inanition, although there were some stockmen who believed that the new enterprise would encourage competition in the market field, and thereby benefit live stock raisers, the majority of stockmen did not take kindly to the venture and were rather content to produce live stock for the market and let it sell to the highest bidder rather than to invest their money in the packing house business and thereby take the uncertain chances of deriving profit both ways.

LETTER TO WASHER BROS.

FOR THE GULF COAST TEXAS.

Dear Sirs: It took 10 gallons to paint your house last time with somebody else's paint, and takes 8 with Devoe. We save you $3 or $10; for painting costs two or three times as much as paint.

Mr. Ezra Rathmel, Williamsport, Pa., always used 11 gallons of mixed paint for his house; Devoe took 6.

But that isn't all; that's only first cost; how long will it wear?

The paint that goes furthest in covering, wears best, and costs least, is the best. All paint, true paint, and full-measure, are on one side; part paint, false paint, and short-measure, are on the other. What can you expect?

Yours truly,

PREDICTS HEAVY RECEIPTS

D. D. Cutler, general live stock agent of the Chicago and Northwestern, after a long tour of the territory served by that system, ventures the prediction that during the twelve months beginning with December, 1904, receipts of cattle and hogs at the Chicago yards will be the heaviest on record. He bases this on close observation of stock in the country. He discards the theory that owing to recent unprofitable seasons cattle feeding will be on a diminished scale and that the heavy winter will result in a heavy loss of stock. He says there will be an abundance, although they are a little backward. The average cattle feeder is merely desirous to buy his raw material so cheap that he will have a chance to get out.

Regarding range conditions in South Dakota Mr. Cutler said:

"Grass never was as good and range cattlemen never faced the winter with such excellent prospects. Barring storms, winter losses ought to be very light."

STAG AFFAIR IS TO HAVE NEW FEATURES

No Speaker Will Be Told Beforehand That He Is to Talk, and if He Fails He Will Be Fined

TEMPLE, Nov. 10.—W. Goodrich Jones, under whose fostering care the annual stag party of business men is pulled off each year with systematic regularity, reports that the party this year will borrow a few Grid Iron club features and be something out of the ordinary.

As an instance, the names of the toastmaster and the speakers of the evening are to be carefully concealed from all parties even the president, and themselves until the moment arrives for the banquet to assemble. No previous hints or intimations will be given of the speakers or their subjects and as the toastmaster calls upon each respondent and do justice to the subject assigned him. Those failing to toe the mark will be fined in a suitable amount and the sum thus collected will be devoted to charity.

The banquet this year will be held at the Harvey House and only 130 can possibly attend, as that is the limit of the dining-room capacity. Previous stag parties held in recent years at the time have accommodated twice this number, but there are no vacant business houses in Temple at the present time and therefore the membership will have to be restricted to accommodate the conveniences provided. The interest aroused over the party and the indications are that not half those who apply for tickets will get them.

COMFORT FOR THE BALD

A hairless head is no longer a thing to be deplored, but rather something to be proud of. It is a sign of active intellectuality, of strength of character and of progressiveness in modern life. In spite of cheap seats in the newspapers and the comic weeklies, the bald head is proud of itself. It has reasons to be. Various physicians and philosophers have convinced the world that baldness is a sign of development and high civilization. Not Absalom, but Mr. Henry Clews is the exemplar of the modern type. Women and some poets may exult in their length of locks, but the hair is sliding from the head of the strenuous and successful citizen. Just as the gas and electric lights kill the trees in the cities, so they and the friction of competition burn off and rub out the foliage of the masculine pool. The bald man is up to date.—Wichita (Kan.) Eagle.

Two pictures which were found in the old Roman Catholic cathedral at Leeds, and which were bought by a dealer for a few shillings, have been pronounced to be a genuine Rubens and Van Dyck. They are worth a large sum and will be sold by auction at Christie's. The dealer will give 25 per cent of what they may bring to the cathedral.

Mrs. Wynne, wife of the postmaster general, is one of the best known hostesses in Washington. She is a remarkably young looking woman to be the mother of ten children, but she was married when barely out of school and her first long dress was her wedding gown.

Rheumatism

Like Neuralgia, is now known to be a nervous disease. The kidneys become weak through lack of nerve energy, and fail to filter the uric acid from the blood; this acid attacks and burns the nerves and muscles, and consumes the oil in the joints, producing inflammation, fever, swelling—pain.

To cure Rheumatism, then, you must restore the kidney nerves and muscles, and neutralize the effect of the acid upon the joints and tissues with Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, a nerve medicine, which has made many cures of this painful disease. Nervine strengthens the kidney nerves and increases the circulation, and relief is assured.

"Before I took Dr. Miles' Nervine, I had been looking for a cure for Rheumatism for 25 years. The last time I was laid up for several months, could not get out of bed or set foot on the floor. I tried remedies to rub in, to drink, doctors' prescriptions, etc., but none of them had any effect. One day I read about Dr. Miles' Nervine and got a bottle. After the first dose I had a good night's rest, and after taking half a bottle the pains disappeared, and I went out and walked all around the town. In a week I went to work, and was perfectly cured, but continued to take the medicine for a time, to make sure the pains would not come back."

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

AMUSEMENTS

Standing room only was the rule at Greenwall's opera house yesterday at the night performance given by Al Field's minstrels.

The show throughout was one of the most pleasing ever seen in this city, the audience from the moment the scenic representation of the Palace of Muses met their gaze until the curtain went down on the allegorical and patriotic tableaux being either enjoying the audience straight to the courts of the olden monarchs.

The gorgeous costuming of the show was also a feature of the entertainment, the medieval minstrels whose performance opened the evening carrying the audience straight to the courts of the olden monarchs. Roosevelt and Fairbanks on the Washington road caught the fancy of the audiences both afternoon and night, the skit being given in its entirety in this city. Up until yesterday its place on the program had been supplied by Parker and Roosevelt. With the election returns received, however, the company proceeded to get right up in front of the new show arranged, rehearsed and yesterday morning at Greenwall's, and the audience convulsed with it yesterday afternoon. Tommy Donnelly as the president proved a great success, while Al G. Field himself impersonated Fairbanks, Harry Gosline with "Good Bye Little Girl, Good Bye," and Reese Prosser with "In the Shadows of St. Paul's," carried off the musical honors of the evening, while Billy Clark's coon songs caught the fancy in this line.

Al Field was as amusing as ever in his black face work, and the acrobatic and juggling were above the ordinary, the upright bar performance being a novelty.

"A MILLIONAIRE TRAMP"

Frequently people wonder why one play makes a success and another a failure, more especially when the unsuccessful production seems the superior of its more favored contemporary. The secret lies in this: While the play that has failed to "make good" has the greater literary merit, it lacks the necessary requirements to make it palatable to the masses. The author has sacrificed the tastes of the public at the shrine of art, and failure is his penalty. Herein lies the strength of Elmer Walters' successful production, "A Millionaire Tramp." The public has been given what they want, and have responded so thoroughly that it stands today at the head of its classes of attractions. This excellent attraction is booked at Greenwall's opera house tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

HARRY BERESFORD

It is said that an exceptionally good comedy has been placed on the road by Manager Coleman of the American theater of New York City to support the cause of New York City to support Harry Beresford in the merry farce, "Our New Man," from the pen of Charles T. Vincent. It may be said that no comedy on the stage today has been more productive of laughter than this one, and it does not seem possible that any other play could be found capable of infusing more naturalness into the part of the unsophisticated, awkward, lovable professor of physiology than does this young actor, who has been said to be so comically inventive and clear in his "business," spontaneous and great in his acting and artistic in his treatment of details and withal so thoroughly convincing and interesting that he commands the attention at all times, playing upon the human soul, while he appeals to the intellect. In this case, however, the emotions are only those pleasurable ones which act upon the sensibilities of the audience, with the result that all who hear that "odd fellow" go home at peace with themselves, each other and the world, for they have laughed away all their cares. This play will be presented here soon, and the occasion promises to be such a notable one that cur theater-goers should not fail to be present in force. Harry Beresford in "Our New Man," at Greenwall's opera house Saturday matinee and night, November 12.

"THE FORBIDDEN LAND"

One of the biggest novelties and strongest organizations coming this season will be the new Tibetan comic opera, "The Forbidden Land," which ran successfully last summer at the Illinois theater, Chicago. Comes to Greenwall's opera house Monday night, November 14. This latest and novel musical contribution is the work of Gus F. Stealy and Frederic Chapin, and is said to contain more breezy dialogue and more whistling music than anything written since the days of Gilbert and Sullivan. The cast is a large one, and the chorus seems to be a conspicuous feature, judging by the excellent notices received.

SOME LESSONS OF THE RUSSIAN-JAPANESE WAR

(Written for The Telegram by Will H. Brill.)

THE SMOKELESS BATTLEFIELD

But perhaps the greatest difference between the battle fields today and those of thirty years ago is the absence of smoke during the modern battle. I sat on a knoll three or four miles from the Russian position on the Shu-Sha-Po hills and although there were probably at least a hundred Russian guns in action all that time, not once, even with the strongest field glasses of the latest and most powerful pattern, did I locate a single Russian gun. Nor was I alone in this, for the same statement will be made by twenty other correspondents and nearly as many foreign military attaches representing nearly every nation in the world. Some of the Japanese guns, not more than half a mile away, we could occasionally locate, but only from the flash or from the dust kicked up by the discharge of the gun. The only smoke we could see on those days when before us there were more than three hundred guns, and there were times when all of these guns were in action at the same moment, was the smoke of the bursting shells and shrapnel. And when the infantry went into action, it was the same, not a particle of smoke was to be seen.

MODERN WARFARE'S GREATEST DANGER

This smokeless powder constitutes one of the most dangerous features of modern war. A soldier bears the thud of a bullet and sees the man next him fall, or hears the ping of another bullet as it passes within a few inches of his head, but he can not tell where those bullets came from. For all he can see there is not a living soul within miles except his own comrades about him. It gives a great opportunity for sharpshooters. They can creep up close to a gun and while in safety themselves, pick off the gun servers one by one without their having the faintest idea where the shots come from. Under modern conditions two or three sharpshooters can more effectively put a gun out of action at a range of a mile than could have been done in the old days by the sabers of charging cavalry.

The modern rifle and smokeless powder also make the accurate location of the enemy by cavalry reconnoissances practically impossible. A man on a horse makes a very good target and it is a very easy matter for a handful of men to lie behind a bush and prevent a troop of cavalry from getting near enough to the line of battle to tell where the trenches and earthworks are. All the cavalrymen know is that they are suffering from a most galling fire, then can not even tell and can hardly guess where the shots come from.

IMPROVEMENT IN FORTIFICATIONS

Modern methods of fortification have improved with the use of modern arms. A position, like that on the Shu-Sha-Po hills may be shelled for days with little effect. The men who remain in the trenches under heavy shell fire. Bomb proofs are prepared in the rear, connected with the trenches by covered ways, through which the men can go to and from the trenches with little danger to the covering artillery fire must cease because of the danger of killing the assaulters themselves.

These are only a few of the difficulties which present themselves to commanders in modern battles, and there is going to be a fine opportunity for theorists to propound new theories when the war is over.

a soldier can carry more than three times as much ammunition.

FOR A YEAR A DIVORCE IS TO STAND

In Granting a Limited Decree the Judge in Chicago Delivers a Sermon to Parents in This Country

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Judge Kavanaugh, in a novel decree in a divorce case, went George Meredith's idea of "limited marriage" one better by issuing a ruling for a limited divorce. He gave the contesting parents a chance to reunite within a year, and with great feeling delivered a sermon on the evil effect of divorce on innocent childhood.

The decision in which the judge instituted a new method in the divorce courts granted Mrs. Minnie Jacobs separate maintenance from her husband, George F. Jacobs, a cutter. It was given to her for the sake of their two little ones, to whom the court referred as "divorce orphans."

The two children, William and Edna, 6 and 7 years old, had played around the court room while the trial was in progress, running indiscriminately from their father and mother and watching the proceedings in innocent wonder. The happy infant faces had touched all in the court room and when Judge Kavanaugh gave his decision it was to them that he referred first.

"This case illustrates the evils of the divorce system," the court said. "Here are two little children, innocent, happy and trusting, who are going to be orphans, orphans of divorce. The orphanage of death is often preferable to the orphanage of divorce because the sting of shame comes only with the latter."

"The best heritage a child can have and which can always be cherished is the recollection of an early home life in which truth, peace, happiness, contentment and all that goes to make a family happy are the fondest memories. A trusting veneration for a father and mother is the greatest influence on the life of a man or a woman. These children are about to be deprived of all this."

"The highest possible duty of a man and a woman who have brought children into the world, their duty to each other, to men, to God and their country, is to have forbearance and to bear with each other for the sake of their children."

In discussing the evidence of the case in which it was shown that Mrs. Jacobs had fits of passion caused by jealousy, Judge Kavanaugh said: "No woman can constantly nag a husband and bear with her jealousy without a man tiring of it and losing his affection for her." After finding that the husband had been unduly tried by his wife's temper, but that notwithstanding she had been a dutiful wife and mother, the court declared that she alone was at fault for their separation.

"If this man's affections have gone from her she herself is guilty. If they have been transferred to another she is responsible. A man would have had to be almost an angel to keep his hands off of a woman when she spat upon him, when she humiliated him as has been shown by the testimony. She is the one to have the care of the children, for no one can take a mother's place. But she is now to feel the penalty of her transgressions, for she has forfeited her right to the large and generous support she has always received. The alimony will continue as long as she behaves herself and the custody of the children will remain with her as long as she treats them well. But I shall take the children away from her if there is any complaint and with the children will go the alimony. She has now, for the first time in her life, perhaps, to obey rules. Let them live apart for a year, and I hope she will learn a lesson of tolerance and forbearance and that this little family will then live together again."

A MEXICAN JUDGE SENDS MEN TO PRISON

It Was Believed Dr. Harle and Others Would Be Released, But It Appears the Authorities Will Not Do So

Information has been received here to the effect that Richardson, Mason and Harle, the alleged insurance swindlers at Chihuahua, Mex., have been sent back to jail in that city by the court, who tried them some time ago.

This case is of more than passing interest to many people in this part of Texas, as one of the defendants, Dr. Harle, was born and raised in Hood county, where his mother now resides, and is one of the most estimable women in that section of the state.

It will be remembered that a short while ago the supreme court of the republic decided to quash further proceedings in the case and liberate the three men who have been confined in a Mexican dungeon for at least two years. This action was decided on because twenty-five experts found no poison in the viscera of Devers and Mitchell, the alleged victims of the three American prisoners, who in connection with the charge of swindling the insurance company out of many thousands of dollars, are also accused of murdering Devers and Mitchell in order to become their beneficiaries.

Within the past few days the court ordered that the men be not discharged, and authorized that they be held for new testimony, which the government believes it has discovered. The insurance company which is pushing the prosecution believes that they have enough new testimony to convict the three men as charged.

SCHOOLBOY INJURED WHILE AT NOON PLAY

John Baker, who is a pupil in the Second ward school, was very badly injured by another boy while playing at the noon hour yesterday.

Young Baker was hit on the head with a stone which cut a severe gash, necessitating six stitches to close the wound. He was unconscious for some time after the injury had been inflicted. The boy was taken to his home on the West Side, where medical attention was given him. The wound healed freely and the accident caused much excitement among the school children for a while.

ELEVATOR DROPS WITH FULL LOAD IN THE COURTS

Loaded with clerks of the Denver road who were leaving the offices for the noon hour yesterday, one of the big elevators in the Fort Worth National bank building broke its cable at the fourth floor.

With a dart the big iron car with its load of human freight started for the ground. Within two feet, however, it was caught by the safety brakes and held suspended.

So quick was the catching of the car that the passengers did not realize the accident and their narrow escape until they were taken out of the car and looking up saw the broken cable strands.

But a short time was required to place new cables on the car and it was doing service as usual yesterday afternoon.

One of the passengers in the car declared this morning that the whole thing was over before he knew it. All were loud in praise of the safety device.

HUGH C. GLOSSON HAS AN ACCIDENT

Hugh C. Glosson, residence 502 Crawford street, driver of No. 5 of the Fort Worth fire department, while out hunting shortly after 11 o'clock this morning north of the city, accidentally discharged a shotgun, which he had resting with the barrel on the right foot. The discharge of the barrel tore away the shoe nearly up to the instep and so severely injured the foot that a portion of it will have to be amputated.

"Sadie" Glosson, as he is familiarly known by his associates and the many people who are acquainted around the fire station, is one of the pluckiest drivers in the Fort Worth fire department and if there was ever a man who knew his business it is "Sadie." Never has he been a bit backward in making a run to a fire or to answer a call. He it was who drove the Fort Worth team at the Dallas contest a short time ago and made the Fort Worth team come out an easy winner. The injured man is a favorite with all and this afternoon sorrow for the man's misfortune permeated the central station.

The injured man was taken to his home as soon after the accident as possible and the best medical attention is being given him in the hope that the foot can be saved. He was in company with Louis Ferguson and the two had gone out for an hour or two of sport.

Chief Maddox was very much broken up about the accident and was an early visitor to the home to render what assistance he could to the fireman. The chief spoke in the highest terms of the man and remarked that he was one of the best men in the service. The injured man has been in the fire department for nearly thirteen years and has always been one of the first when on duty to reach the scene of a fire.

W. S. KNIGHT TO COME HERE NEXT YEAR

W. S. Knight will shortly begin extensive improvement to his establishment in this city, where the headquarters of the Knight stores will be located.

At present Mr. Knight is closing out the store at Denton, where the headquarters are now maintained, and will transfer the offices of the company to this city.

A large number of stores are operated by him in the leading cities of North Texas and all of these will be managed directly from this city.

Mr. Knight states that extensive improvements will be made to the store in this city, work upon which will be begun within a short time.

The conditions here he regards as most favorable and declares that in his opinion the business of this year will be doubled during the coming twelve months.

DAMAGE TO HOMES BY THE FIRE YESTERDAY

The damage by fire to the residences of E. E. Fosdick, 1302 Lake avenue, and E. S. Beard, 536 Lake avenue, is estimated as being about $1,500 on the first named residence and $1,000 on the latter. How the fire started yesterday afternoon is not definitely known, but it is thought that children playing in the attic of the building set the Fosdick residence on fire with matches.

The fire, as reported in yesterday afternoon's Telegram, started at 3:15 and was for a time very hard to get under control. The buildings were both of wood and large affairs. The wind was blowing a regular gale at the time and it was mean to fight. Both of the homes are fully covered with insurance.

The properties were flooded with water and many trinkets and much of the household furniture soaked with water. Several narrow escapes were made by firemen in and out of the top stories of the homes in their efforts to check the fire's progress.

The fire department from the central station was called to 200 Hill street about 8 o'clock this morning, where a small blaze had started. It was the work of a minute to extinguish the flames and the apartment building was a damaged amounting to more than $5,000 had been done. The cold weather and the new stoves are making the firemen keep on the alert for fires, as this is the season when the firemen are oftentimes very much in demand.

WOODMAN GOES TO FRISCO TO ATTEND CONVENTION

C. W. Woodman, delegate from the Texas State Federation of Labor to the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which convenes in San Francisco November 14, left this morning for California.

Mr. Woodman will be the only representative from Texas at the convention, although Lem Husted, national organizer of the Bartenders' Association, will carry credentials from the Trades Assembly of this city, having been engaged by them to aid Mr. Woodman in the attempt to land the next convention for Texas, which means Fort Worth.

Before the convention Mr. Woodman will also bring up several matters of importance locally, one being a plan for the betterment of the men employed in the lumber camps and the other having reference to brick workers.

He has outlined plans for improvement in both industries, but declines to state them until he can outline them before the proper committee.

A committee of the Trades Assembly has been appointed to work from his end in conjunction with the efforts of Messrs. Woodman and Husted, to secure the next convention.

BUILDING WORK IN THIS CITY TO BE DONE

It is learned today that preparations are being made to begin the work of making extensive additions to the Metropolitan hotel. It is the intention of Winfield Scott to put on additional stories to the building, providing in all 100 rooms, with some thirty-five or forty baths. The expenditure will be quite large and will make of the Metropolitan one of the finest hotel properties in the state.

While nothing definite as to the total cost of this work has been made public by the parties interested, it is understood that something like $75,000 or $100,000 will be expended.

Plans for a new business house on the corner of Fourteenth and Main streets are being made, but declines to state them until he can outline them before the proper committee.

Father Guyot of the Catholic church is to build a fine two-story parsonage on the present site. It will be of brick and modern in every detail.

Contractors report that quite a number of other new buildings are in contemplation and will be built during the next few months.

It is confidently expected by realty dealers that since the presidential election is settled there will be a resumption of activity all over the city and that many fine homes will be erected.

AT WACO Governor— Pending a complete count of the vote in the election of Tuesday the fate of the amendments is not known so far as the vote in this county is concerned, but it is thought they carried by a small majority, though this is not certain. Some persons voted against them because they said they did not understand them. The boxes are still coming in from the country and the commissioners will make the count. The total vote in Waco was 1,442, which is very light, all things considered. One box in the county went republican, that of Nalley school house, while at Battle the democratic ticket was voted without a single exception. The prohibition ticket had a small vote, but the pros here are not dismayed. They say they did as well as they expected this time. The socialist ticket had a little less than half the vote of the prohibition ticket. Important results were given yesterday from this point.

WATCH THE URINE. Kidney diseases are not always painful in the early stages. They frequently gain ground before the victim knows of their existence. But an examination of the urine will always tell of the existence of any form of kidney trouble. Allow a quantity of urine to stand in the vessel for 24 hours. If any of the following symptoms appear, the kidneys are diseased: Brick-dust sediment; whitish, cloudy, or stringy settlement; offensive odor; high reddish color; or very pale, watery appearance; oily scum on the surface. Other urinary symptoms are too free or too scanty a flow; frequent desire to urinate; pain or scalding in passing.

WAXAHACHIE WAXAHACHIE, Nov. 10.—The total vote polled in Ellis county Tuesday was probably the lightest ever cast in a general election. Absolutely no interest was shown in the election. The democratic ticket in the county had no opposition. For this reason the voters did not turn out to the polls. No record was kept of the results at the different voting boxes and when the returns were completed they were placed under seal to remain until they are canvassed by the county commissioners next Monday. Ellis county now has sixteen votes in democratic convention, but a canvass of the returns will show that this number has been reduced. In this county only 796 votes were cast for governor, this being about one-third of the voting strength of the democrats. Of this number Lanham received 720 and Lowdon 76. The vote on the constitutional amendments was as follows: For the Internal Improvement amendment 416, against 122; for pension amendment 461, against 95; for state bank amendment 382, against 128.

Beall carried the county for congress Skinner for state senator and Alderdice and James for the legislature.

election all of the constitutional amendments received substantial majorities in the city of Temple, much larger than early indications pointed to. The internal improvement amendment carried by a majority of 81, there being 199 for and 118 against. On this amendment 140 voters did not express a choice. The pension amendment carried by a majority of 146, the vote being 241 for and 95 against. One hundred and twenty-one voters failed to express a choice on this question. The bank amendment carried by a majority of 152, the vote being 239 for and 87 against. One hundred and twenty-one voters neglected to register their choice on this question. As a general rule the voters were uninformed as to the merits of the propositions to be voted on which emphasizes the need of some system that will acquaint the voters of the state with the purport and intent of a proposed constitutional amendment, so that an intelligent expression can be had. The republican voters here supported all of the amendments almost unanimously.

MANAGER FOR HANFORD IS A VISITOR HERE

F. Lawrence Walker, manager for Charles B. Hanford, the celebrated actor of the legitimate school, who is popular in Texas, is in the city arranging for the coming appearance of his star in this city. There is no star in the dramatic world playing this circuit who is more popular with the playgoers than Mr. Hanford, and sharing with him that popularity is Miss Trofahn, associated with him in the production of each piece he plays. Mr. Walker says the season thus far has been one of much success, and he anticipates that on the tour of this state Mr. Hanford will have the excellent business which has always been accorded him.

MAKES YOU IRITABLE

Nothing more irritating than constant backache—that dull, heavy throb, which bothers you all day and prevents sound sleep at night.

Backache makes you fretful and nervous—keeps you "on edge" all the time. It carves plain lines in the face, and ruins a cheerful disposition.

Don't mistake the cause of backache. Overwork might tire your back, but should not make it ache and pain and throb. A man or woman with healthy kidneys can work hard, rest and sleep, and be ready to work hard again.

Backache is kidney ache. It tells you of an inflamed or congested condition of the kidneys, brought on by a cold, a strain on the back, or perhaps some other slight cause.

The danger is that kidney congestion never relieves itself and it so disturbs the blood-filtering processes of the kidneys that uric acid and other poisons collect in the blood.

These poisons should pass off in the urine, but instead are carried by the blood to every part of the body and cause painful and fatal diseases.

Health can only be restored by restoring the kidneys to health. This can only be done with a kidney medicine.
