MRS. CHADWICK SEES OLD HOME

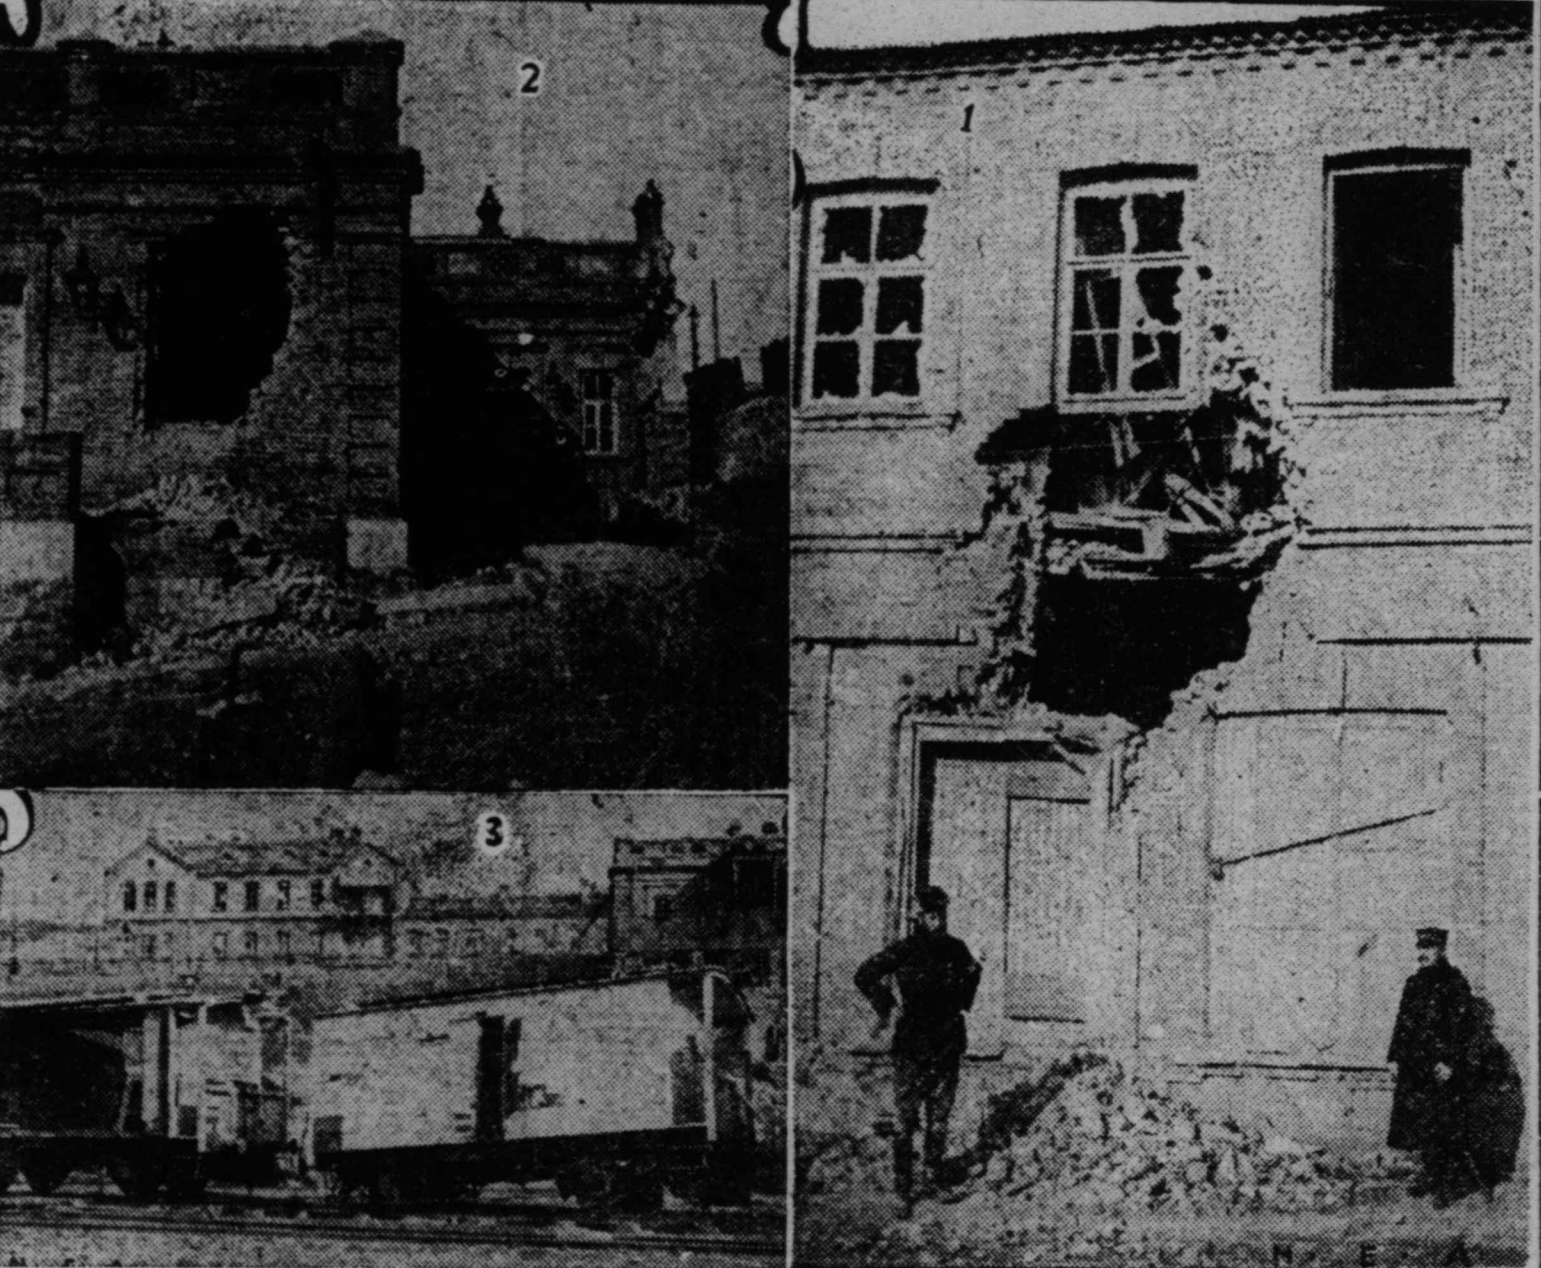

Pays First Visit Since Last November—Furnishings to Be Sold

CLEVELAND, March 16.—Mrs. Chadwick, accompanied by two deputies, left the county jail yesterday in a closed carriage and was driven to her old home for a farewell visit.

Mrs. Chadwick was granted permission by Judge Taylor of the federal court to visit her home today to decide upon what property she would retain.

It was her first visit to the house since last November, when she left for New York, where she was arrested. When Mrs. Chadwick had finally regained her composure she began a tour of the house, selecting such articles as she desired to keep.

Some Port Arthur Scenes Taken By Will H. Brill Since the City Was Occupied By the Japanese

CORRESPONDENT BRILL TELLS WHAT THE JAP SHELLS DID TO PORT ARTHUR

This is the first letter received from War Correspondent Will H. Brill of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, who is writing for The Telegram at the front with the Japanese, since he described the winter life of the Japanese soldiers in their trenches along the Sha river.

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 20.—It's a longish trip from the United States to Port Arthur. The time required to make the trip is 39 days and 15 hours. At least, that is the time it took me. To be sure, there was a hitch in my transportation and I missed connections in Tokio which delayed me nearly six months, and then I took a round-trip ticket to Port Arthur.

For two or three days after Port Arthur surrendered, the life of Field Marshal Oyama was not a happy one. He probably regretted that the place had ever fallen. It is not often that a man has to listen to such a clamor as was raised among the military attaches and correspondents attached to the Japanese armies in the north.

So at noon today, after an 11-mile ride from headquarters on indescribably bad Japanese horses, we entered the town. For fully half the way between headquarters and the town itself we rode through the district which was occupied by the Japanese troops.

building that was not struck by at least one shell. One apartment house has a ten-foot hole clear through it, and another has the entire corner taken off. Here as in the old town, many buildings are in use as hospitals. The big government hotel, which was never opened, is used as a hospital and so is the naval academy and a score of other big buildings.

PRISONERS LOOKING HEALTHY Just as we turned into the valley near the railway, we met a party of two or three hundred Russian prisoners marching out to the railway on their way to Dalny and Japan. They were all healthy, hearty looking chaps in new uniforms and in spite of the fact that they were all hospital patients, they looked as fit as could be.

ACQUITTAL ENDS TRIAL OF MOORE

Jury at Austin Returns Verdict of "Not Guilty" in Bribery Case

DEFENDANT THANKS JURY

Spectators Filling the Courtroom Applaud Outcome of the Case

AUSTIN, Texas, March 15.—Late yesterday afternoon the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of the State of Texas vs. District Attorney Warren W. Moore, charged by indictment with accepting a bribe of $12,500 to dismiss the anti-trust suit against the Kirby Lumber Company.

After order had been restored, the defendant arose and expressed his thanks. "Gentlemen of the jury," he said, "my wife and I shall be grateful to you as long as we live."

Mr. Moore walked into the district clerk's office and met his wife. It was an affecting meeting.

Jury N. B. Metz said that he desired to thank the court, the officers and all concerned for the consideration which had been shown to the jury.

After order had been restored in the courtroom, the Kirby case was brought up. The attorneys for the state made a motion to have the court change the venue in the case.

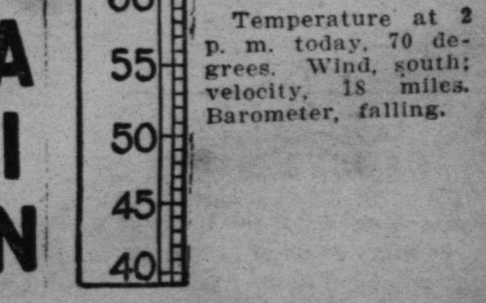

Mr. Kirby said last night, in commenting upon the verdict: "The verdict was not unexpected. Neither I nor any person for me or for any corporation in which I am interested ever paid Warren W. Moore a cent or authorized any one to pay him a cent, nor did anybody ever suggest to me that he should be paid a cent in the anti-trust suit or any other matter. My lips have been closed during this trial because the pending indictment against me renders me under the law an incompetent witness for the defense and the attorneys for the state declined to call me to the witness box."

LETTER FROM DAVIS Nephew of Franklin Pierce Discovers Rare Document

HILLSBORO, N. H., March 16.—A nephew of President Franklin Pierce has found an autograph letter written by Jefferson Davis to Pierce among documents inherited from his uncle. Davis wrote from the senate chamber under date of January 30, 1860, saying:

"The prospect for our country is not less gloomy than ever. I will stand by the flag and uphold the constitution whilst there is possibility of effecting anything to preserve and perpetuate the government we inherited. Beyond that duty and faith bind me to Mississippi and her fortunes as she may shape them."

For the expired eight months these exports were $123,984,490, against $134,908,699 a year ago, against $126,247,752 last year.

Exports of cattle, hogs and sheep for February were $3,857,922, against $3,500,337 in February, 1904.

Exports of provisions in February were $12,575,561, against $126,247,752 last year.

O. M. PEARSON

Build Up Your System!

Neglect and carelessness are the general causes of all disease.

People never become dangerously sick until after nature has given them many warnings.

The great mistake is not paying attention to these warnings.

When you feel "run down," "used up," "nervous," tired most of the time—it means that something is wrong and nature is warning you.

You need more nerve force to build up your system.

Strengthen your nerves, increase your nerve force and your health will take care of itself.

Science with its unerring methods of research has proved that the various organs and tissues of the body continue in health and perform their work properly as long as their nerve supply retains its vigor and strength.

But if the nerves degenerate or lose power from poor nourishment or any other cause, the entire physiological mechanism of the body is thrown out of gear and we have as a result some "run-down" condition or disease.

The heart, the stomach, the liver, all have their great nerve centres which supply them with the power to work properly. When these nerve centres are weakened these important organs cannot act properly.

"For five years I was in very bad health and the doctors and medicine failed to help me, until I became seriously ill, and then I began using Paine's Celery Compound. I derived great benefit from it at once. I commenced to gain in weight and gained thirty-nine pounds in three months. It gave me great strength and built up my entire system. I have recommended it to some of my friends and it did them a great deal of good."—O. M. Pearson, Seattle, Wash.

Prof. Phelps, of Dartmouth University, was the first physician to enunciate the principle which today is recognized as one of the foundations of the science of medicine—the great enlightening truth, that the nerve system rules all the body's health.

The nerves must have food to keep up their strength. Their food is not the same food that we usually know.

He sought and found the food that builds up and restores the nerves—his celery formula, which has become famous as Paine's Celery Compound—the celebrated nerve vitalizer and tonic.

Paine's Celery Compound is giving new nerve force to thousands every day by feeding and restoring the nerves to their full strength. It never fails to build up a run down system to full, ruddy health.

Two days' treatment proves its marvelous power. It braces you up. You feel better at once.

Sick headache, palpitation, dizziness, and heartburn are usually relieved by a single dose of Paine's Celery Compound.

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, and all reputable Druggists sell and recommend it.

THE MORMON CHURCH IS FIGHTING CANNON

Powerful Organization Trying to Excommunicate the Former United States Senator

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 16.—As a sequel to the bitter fight against the Mormon church waged by Frank Jenne Cannon, former United States senator from Utah, steps were taken this week to excommunicate him. Under the terms of the will of the late George Q. Cannon, member of the first presidency of the Mormon church and father of the latest "example," Cannon may lose his share in the estate worth over $1,000,000. The will specified that any of the heirs may be cut off by the executors from his or her inheritance for apostasy.

No action probably will be taken until the first week in April, when the semi-annual Mormon conference takes place.

The incident is the outcome of the fight between Thomas Kearns, former senator from Utah, and the Mormon church. When it became apparent that Kearns could no longer hold the senatorship, he commenced a most aggressive campaign against the dominant church in Utah. The American party was launched and Frank J. Cannon became one of its leaders.

He accepted the editorship of the Salt Lake Tribune and with tongue and pen poured hot shot into the Mormon camp in a fashion that fairly took away the breath of the saints.

Experience shows—but one outcome of the impending case. Unless Frank J. Cannon publicly apologizes, applies for re-baptism and pays up his tithing, he will be excommunicated and declared an apostate by the high council.

Owing to the extremely violent attitude of the Salt Lake Tribune against anything or person bearing the Mormon brand, this newspaper has laid in a stock of firearms and ammunition against any trouble that may break out.

A FEW SECRETS FOR WOMEN

HOW TO PREVENT PAIN, DISEASE AND THE ONSET OF OLD AGE AND WRINKLES

MAGNETISM OF SEX

The Secret of Increasing a Woman's Charms of Appearance and Personality

If you are very beautiful, I know you wish to remain so.

If not, you have other attractions, that may outshine those of mere beauty, which you wish to retain.

How to retain your attractions of beauty or manner, is what I propose to tell in this short article.

How to become attractive, if lacking, will also be explained.

Now, at the outset, let me explain. I have no secret to impart of a new cosmetic.

I have nothing to tell as to the care of the skin.

I thank goodness, the nature of the information I am about to give you goes deeper than the skin—eye—deep down into the innermost recesses of your life.

In four words, the secret I have to impart is this: I tell you how to renew your life-force.

Beautiful or not, a woman's attractiveness, whether to other women or to men, lies in the possession of what is known as "Charm."

And Charm can belong to every woman who makes up her mind to be charming.

If she is well.

If sick, the magnetism of life-force, the vital property of charm, is lacking.

If you wish to be charming, be well.

To get well, if sick, take Wine of Cardui.

It is a tonic for women.

It is a re-vitalizer of nature's natural forces.

It restores to sick women, their health, vivacity and charm.

By freeing women from disease, Wine of Cardui relieves them of all pain, and enables them to resist the ravages of time and disease.

No woman who is sick should fail to take Wine of Cardui.

It is for all sick women—young women and old. No matter what the trouble appears to be, Wine of Cardui will do you good, because it is, in brief, a woman's Pale, weak, bloodless women, need Wine of Cardui to make new red blood.

Nervous, irritable, neuralgic women need Wine of Cardui to build new nerve tissue.

Women who suffer pain—of every sort or degree—need Wine of Cardui to relieve the pain and tone up the sick nerves, so that the pain will stay relieved.

Women, especially, who suffer from the ailments peculiar to their sex, with dragging down sensations, womb disorders, irregular menstruation and similar female troubles, need Wine of Cardui to build up their special organs to a proper condition of health, where natural functions are resumed.

Mrs. Nancy Parker of Cairo, Ga., says: "I was a great sufferer for eight months with falling of the womb, indigestion, pain in my side, shoulders and head, heart palpitation and sleeplessness. Many a time I walked the floor all night. Doctors treated me, but I got worse. Six weeks ago I commenced your Wine of Cardui treatment and have improved wonderfully. I am now nearly cured, and have every prospect of being entirely restored to health and happiness."

I cannot say it too strongly, that every woman and girl needs Wine of Cardui, if her health is in any way impaired.

Try it. It will make you well.

Your druggist will sell you a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

Free advice, on any of woman's ills, is afforded by our staff of specialists. All letters confidential. Address, Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

LIVES DEARER THAN OUR VERY OWN

How many lives dearer to us than our very own have been placed in needless jeopardy by failure to provide against and forestall the great suffering which too frequently accompanies and follows the bearing of children? That we would do anything within our power to obviate the possibility of such an happening is too patent to admit of question; therefore—mark well this fact—a liniment, by name, has been devised, whose function it is to prepare in advance the muscles and tissues intimately associated with parturition.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

This liniment is for external application. By its use the parts are relaxed and enabled to withstand not only the actual strain brought to bear on them during accouchement, but also to rally from this ordeal and speedily regain their normal proportions and tonicity. It is not irritating to the most sensitive surfaces, and is applicable to all cases. It's not enough to call it Mother's Friend—it's the friend of the whole family. $1.00, all druggists. MATTER OF PURE FOOD

While there has been some opposition manifested toward the Blanton pure food bill pending before the state legislature at Austin, it is now thought that the existing differences have been harmonized, and some of the drastic provisions complained of have been eliminated. The retail grocers of the state have shown much interest in the bill, and express satisfaction with the new provision incorporated in the measure, which will allow them ninety days in which to dispose of such articles they now have in stock as will come under the ban in the event of the bill's passage. The action of the grocers in seeking this concession is within itself complete justification of the necessity for the new law. The fact that food stuff is being sold in Texas of an impure and adulterated nature in such quantities as to require ninety days for closing it out of stock, shows that the consumer has been grossly imposed upon in the past by unscrupulous manufacturers and to a considerable extent by the retailers. On the question of food adulteration, Dr. Wiley, chief of the United States bureau of chemistry, at Washington, says:

The most popular idea of food adulteration is a manipulation of food products in such a way as to make them injurious to health. It cannot be denied that the ultimate effect of many forms of food adulteration is harmful, but the immediate object of the food adulterator is pecuniary gain.

Dairy products have been more generally investigated for adulterations than almost any other kind of foods. The addition of water to milk is probably not very extensively practiced, but the abstraction of part of the cream and selling the residue as whole milk is still in vogue. A more common method of adulterating milk is to milk the cow only partially, leaving the greater portion of the cream in the udder. The part first obtained is sold as whole milk, and the remaining portion serves as cream.

The most common adulteration of butter is the use of artificial coloring matters. Formerly only vegetable colors, such as annatto were employed, but in late years the development of the chemistry of dye stuffs has offered to the deft dairymen many beautiful yellow tints, which are not only cheaper, but more easily mixed with the fat than the annatto and vegetable colors. In the United States, especially, has the sin of butter coloring been pushed to almost an unlimited extent, and it is difficult to find upon our markets uncolored butter, even in cheese.

It is not only artificially colored but sometimes the milk fat is removed and a fat of another kind substituted. The product is known as "filled cheese."

Honey is probably extensively adulterated as any other common food product. Glucose, made from Indian corn starch, and resembling honey in its physical characteristics is the most common adulterant. Sugar, which has been treated with an acid to make it resemble honey more closely is at times also used, or mixtures of the two. One method of adulteration is to place a small part of genuine honey in the honeycomb in a jar and fill the jar with glucose or a mixture of glucose and the sugar mentioned above.

The condiments, salt, pepper, and spices of all kinds have been made the subject of debasement to a large extent. The ground condiments are mixed with inert matter in order to increase weight and diminish activity. The manufacture of "fillers" resemble ground spices in color and texture is largely practiced.

It is a well known fact that almost every article of food stuff we can now buy is more or less adulterated. It may be true that many of the adulterants used are comparatively harmless, but that fact does not render them the less adulterants. The adulterants used are articles that can be used at much less cost than the article adulterated, else they would not be used for the purpose. It is a thrifty form of commercialism that prompts the manufacturer to use this cheap stuff and compel the consumer to take it into his stomach as food. It is a desire to make more money out of the manufacturing business and earn more money for the stockholders. Incidents have come to light which have served to disclose the fact that human life itself is held very cheaply in the estimation of some of these manufacturers, and if it were possible to devise some method of adulteration that would be cheaper it would no doubt be employed, even though its effect might be disastrous to the consumer. When a manufacturing concern engaged in the production of life preservers will deliberately add seven pounds of old iron to the composition of those preservers in order to make them weigh up to the standard, as was developed in a recent investigation, it serves to show how cheaply some manufacturing concerns regard human life when a matter of personal gain is at stake. It is true that life preservers do not constitute an article of food, but there is an analogy in the situation that well illustrates the point at issue.

The new Texas law that is pending proposes to make the manufacturers of food stuffs sold in this state hereafter give a guarantee of purity that will obviate the conditions that have heretofore prevailed, and it is unquestionably a move in the right direction. The old conditions have prevailed so long that Texas has become the dumping ground for a character of food stuff that will not be tolerated in other states, and if our people only could realize what they have been taking into their stomachs in many instances it would almost make them forswear the practice of eating. In the interest of public health, in the interest of right and justice and for the proper protection of the consumer, it is clear that a more stringent pure food law is one of the crying necessities in Texas.

It now seems to about all be over between Russia and Japan except the matter of indemnity.

The cattlemen will find Fort Worth doing business at the old stand next week and in the usual manner.

That citizens' meeting, called to endorse a candidate for city marshal Tuesday evening, seems to have been captured and conducted by the proper kind of citizens.

Andrew Carnegie telegraphed the prosecuting attorney in the Chadwick case his hearty congratulations on the conviction of the accused, and there is no reason to doubt the sincerity of those congratulations.

Editor Henry Watterson is now in Spain, endeavoring to drown the recollection of the recent presidential election by an indefinite sojourn in that dreamy, quiet land. It is probable that his stay abroad will be indefinite.

The effort that is being made to defeat the regular democratic nominee for city marshal will amount to nothing in the long run. Fort Worth democracy is of the kind that always stands pat when it comes to the support of a party nominee.

The present battleship Texas is soon to be placed on the reserve list as the vessel is now believed to be practically out of date. The next naval appropriation is expected to provide for a new and modern vessel to take the place of the present one, and by rights it should be the largest and best battleship in the navy. That is the way Texas always stacks up.

The effect of the recent decision of the United States supreme court in sustaining the validity of the Texas anti-trust law establishes the fact that a state can forfeit the charter of any corporation that disobeys its laws. It would seem from this that there is an adequate remedy already existing for the people of this state to cope with many of the evils of which they are now complaining.

Andrew Carnegie advises young men to get into business for themselves and not work for wages any longer than they have to. Ordinarily this is very sound advice, but does not always fit the occasion. There are many men who are earning more in working for salaries today than they would be capable of earning by striking out for themselves. When a man has pleasant and congenial employment at a fair salary, he will be wise if he stays with it.

The big packers may not be making any money, but that fact does not explain the high price of beef.

The national board of fire underwriters has held a meeting in New York and ordered the cancellation of all insurance policies in the state of Arkansas in return for some anti-trust legislation recently passed in that state. If every other southern state would follow the example of Arkansas perhaps the loss of business would bring those people to a realization of the fact that they are not in control of the universe. The fire insurance situation is one that should have attention.

LEADING NEWSPAPERS' COMMENT ON GARFIELD BEEF TRUST REPORT

WITH A SICKENING THUD

Commissioner Garfield's report of his investigations of the beef trust has fallen with a dull thud, and, except in Kansas, where the legislature quickly recovered its breath and went for the commissioner in public and in private, the people are wondering "where they are at." Why did the beef trust fight injunctions up to the supreme court of the United States and risk all kinds of punishment for contempt when the district attorney at Chicago is trying to put on the officers and employes if by opening its book at the beginning it could have convinced the government that it is barely making a living—an average 2 per cent on its sales? A callous public and a hard-hearted administration cannot expect a trust to do business on a smaller margin.

The mere bookkeeping department of trust operations having as many branches of activity as the beef trust does nothing but a hard-headed administration cannot expect a trust to do business on a smaller margin. The mere bookkeeping department of trust operations having as many branches of activity as the beef trust does nothing but a hard-headed administration cannot expect a trust to do business on a smaller margin.

GARFIELD NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITY

The commissioner had an opportunity in beef investigation to do a real service to the country, but he failed to do so, and he may be recalled that, in tackling the petroleum trust, he is mostly investigation field in which Miss Tarbell and others have done a work which he can scarcely hope to equal, even if he attempts exposure instead of concealment, as the beef trust magnates, we are inclined to believe that they have pulled the wool over the eyes of that gentleman—that is, unless he saved them the trouble by shutting them himself.—New York News (Ind.).

A DISTINCT DISAPPOINTMENT

The report of Commissioner Garfield of the department of commerce and labor on the beef trust is a distinct disappointment to the American public, and especially to residents of New York, both sellers and consumers of meat, who have suffered from the high-handed methods of the beef combine. Commissioner Garfield shows from figures furnished by the companies in the combine that they are making very little money, and his report suggests surprise that Armour, Swift and the rest have not long ago gone into bankruptcy. It is difficult to believe that men who are generally supposed to be worth millions, and live like millionaires, are really earning a dollar as hard as Mr. Garfield says they are. Notwithstanding the Sunday school proclivities of some of the beef trust magnates, we are inclined to believe that they have pulled the wool over the eyes of that gentleman—that is, unless he saved them the trouble by shutting them himself.—New York News (Ind.).

LAUGHING AT GARFIELD

The country is laughing at Commissioner of Corporations Garfield, and no wonder. It is at least even betting that no other sane citizen of the United States would have been fooled by the beef trust to the extent that he has been humbugged, apparently. We say apparently because we find it difficult to believe that the commissioner has not discovered more than he recites in his report. If there is nothing more to discover the beef trust is entitled to apology from pretty nearly everybody in the land, since it can readily prove that it is a much more honest business institution.

Of course there is more to discover. In fact, the public generally was, prior to Mr. Garfield's expensive inquiry, already in possession of information regarding the trust and its operations more important than anything brought out by the investigators employed by the bureau of corporations. Therefore, Mr. Garfield is being laughed at and his report ridiculed. An observation made by the New York

DEFENDS THE PACKERS

Earlier in the week, when wild-eyed Washington correspondents were sending out stories that Garfield had submitted to the president a showing that the beef trust had been violating the laws, it was stated in this paper that (1) the big packers had received a "clean bill of health" from Garfield; (2) among the irregularities collected against smaller offenders would be made public at this time; and the publication of that portion of the report given to congress bears out our information received at that time. It is a distinct disappointment to the public, Garfield's report reads more like a defense of the big packers against many of the charges made against them in the past, than a demand for the punishment of the "trust barons." To be sure, Garfield does show that the private car business pays handsome profits, but that has been known by the public for the past four months, as the Interstate commerce commission has been investigating the refrigerator car business pretty thoroughly.

There is one way, and only one, as the federal investigation will bring out later, to reach the meat sellers. That is by eating less beef of the choicest cuts. That is by no means to keep the price of beefsteak as high as it is, if people would only realize the fact. If there were only one beefsteak in the world, and everybody in the United States were bidding for it, the price would be a good deal higher than it now is. But so long as meat eaters will help their own way they must pay for it, as they have been paying for it right along. With the average American eating less meat, varying his diet more, the prices of beef would go down fast enough. The meat packers have to do business, and they can afford to sell lower than they have sold in the last few years. But they will not do so so long as the people will pay the prices they ask.—Boston Advertiser (Rep.)

WHITEWASHED BEEF TRUST

Commissioner Garfield, who is known to fame simply as son of a president, sent to congress the day before the session expired a report as to the beef trust. Why it was delayed to so late a day does not appear and for what purpose it was prepared does not appear. The commissioner whitewashes the beef trust and says in effect that it is a public benefactor. President Roosevelt issued orders for the prosecution of the trust on April 12, 1922, nearly three years ago. Since then, it is easy to believe, the packers have used every available means to cover up the evidence of their extortion and make an innocent appearance. It is quite possible they have kept two sets of books—one for private purpose and another for public inspection.—New Orleans Item (Ind.).

A LEGACY OF HATE By LOUIS TRACY Copyright, 1924, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

SYNOPSIS.

After a quarrel with his cousin David, Sir Alan Hume-Frazier is found murdered at Beecheroff Hall, near Stowmarket. Accused of the charge of murder, David requests Reginald Brett, lawyer-detective, to find the real murderer. Brett, however, is not occupied by the late baronet's sister, Margaret, and her Italian husband, Signor Capella. Capella secretly loves Helen Layton, David's fiancée. He quarrels with David, leaves the house and meets Helen, who is waiting for him and attempts to caress her. David appears and soundly thrashes him. Brett learns that Capella is familiar with Japanese weapons, like the one used to kill Sir Alan.

While a Scotland Yard detective, finds a man who saw the real murderer of Sir Alan and shows Brett a typewritten note supposed to have been written by the guilty person. Capella leaves suddenly on a secret mission to Naples, followed by Holden, one of Brett's men. Mr. Jiro, a Japanese, who knows more than he tells, is asked to translate an inscription on the weapon used by Sir Alan's slayer.

"I am tired," he said. "That was a good little snake. He knew his business." "Surely," said the barrister, solemnly, "you are not so utterly inhuman that at the very point of death you still maintain the attitude of a disappointed avenger. Why would you wish the people to demand your murderous hate?" Ooma seemed for a moment to rouse himself from lethargy. Once again the black eyes sparkled with their menacing gleam.

"It is you," he cried, "you, the thinker, who question me. I never gave a thought to you, or I would not now be slowly sinking into death. I might have guessed that a higher intelligence was at work than I saw. How did you know that I was a murderer, and yet failed to read his story. You ask my motives. Can a man explain heredity? Here—" and he threw a packet of papers on the writing desk—"are the proofs of my identity. It is not long ago, but I am his brother, since David was robbed of his birthright, and what is such a period to the old families of England and Japan? There are men living in Japan today who saw his son in the flesh. I am his last descendant. I came to England and resolved to be an Englishman. But I needed money. Do you remember our motto, 'A new field gives a small crop.' The first Japanese Hume did not prosper. He was a good thing, you saved me, but you applied to my family. I came here on the New Year's eve, and Sir Alan Hume-Frazier saw me walking up the avenue. He stepped out through that window to meet me. He was surprised, my appearance, and thought I was his cousin Robert, whom he had not seen for years."

At this remarkable statement the four listeners chiefly concerned looked wonderingly at each other. The main incident of the family feud was repeating themselves in a ghostly manner. Ooma paid no heed to their amazement. He staggered unsteadily to a chair and sank into it limply. It was the chair which David Hume occupied when he slept, and the family feud was repeating itself. He saw cause for suspicion in the act. Ooma was dying. His yellow skin was now green. His lips were white. His whole frame was sinking. At this phase he became a Japanese, and lost all likeness to the Frasers.

He continued, with an odd cackle: "I kept up the error. I demanded money as my right, and from his words I gathered that the Frasers had been at their tricks and defrauded another relative."

Robert started. "Do you hear?" he murmured to Brett. "That accounts for Alan's strange reception of me the same day."

Brett held up a warning hand. Ooma was still talking. "I taunted him with thriving on the plunder of his own people. That made him furious. He raved about the world being a hell, and that I was the only relative he loved, one who was more than a brother, had stolen the woman he wished to marry; his sister was a living lie; his cousin a blackmailer. I laughed. 'Do you disown your sister, then?' I asked. He took from his breast pocket a small paper—you will find them there on the table—and told me, in great anger, that he possessed proof that she was not his sister. It was cooler than he and saw the value of his admission. I pretended to waive it, but among the things I saw him walk about the library for nearly an hour. I meant to enter the house if an opportunity presented itself, and, trusting to my appearance, go to his bedroom. If he changed his clothes and went out, I would help him by placing his papers in the drawer which I afterwards broke open. I saw him meet you—he feebly pointed to Robert. 'I saw you arrive in the carriage,' and he indicated the night. I went back to Stowmarket, but where I left a portmanteau at a small hotel and changed my clothes. In England, at night, a man in evening dress can enter almost any house. When I returned I carried my bag with me. I made preparations for the ball. They helped me. David Hume's unexpected appearance at midnight upset my plans. Waiting near the gate, I witnessed Alan's fleeing with a girl in a white dress. While he was talking to her, I saw the house and found David asleep in the library. I resolved to act boldly. Even he would not know what to do if he suddenly discovered another Fraser in the room. I went toward the drawer I picked up the Japanese sword, and knew it was belonging to my house by the device on the handle of the Ko-Katana. The thing inspired me. I obtained the papers, and was going out when I met Alan. He had seen what I was doing. He called me a cur, and the memory of my ancestor's vengeance rushed on me, so I struck him with the knife, and left it resting in his heart as he fell."

A cold is always the result of undue exposure to low temperatures. The rapid cooling of the surface, when not balanced by proper reaction, produces the congestion and inflammation of the nasal and bronchial membranes, commonly called a cold. As the slightest cold predisposes the individual to attacks of the most severe and dangerous character, the necessity for its quick cure need not be emphasized. Take as soon as the first indication of the cold appears and all dangerous results will be avoided. It not only cures a cold quickly but counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. This fact has been fully proven during the epidemics of colds and grip of the past few years. No case of either of these diseases having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used, has ever been reported to the manufacturers or come to their notice, which shows conclusively that it is not only the best and quickest cure for a cold, but a certain preventive of that dangerous disease—pneumonia.

There is no danger in giving this remedy to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug. It is pleasant to take.

Gleanings From the Exchanges

Some negro preachers have got up a "gospel wagon" and are traveling over Texas for the purpose of saving "colored souls." At present they are rounding up souls at Dallas, and are having a merry time with their loud preaching by the "vangelists" and still louder singing by their jubilee singers.—Texarkana Texarkanan.

And they are certainly doing no harm. The negro is by nature very emotional and quite susceptible to religious influence. There are many colored brands yet remaining to be snatched from the burning, and the gospel wagon should be permitted to roll steadily onward.

Not long ago a press bureau proposed to send letters from Austin to the country papers, and the price was all right in fact very cheap. The editor of this paper received an offer with a sample letter. After reading the sample we thought pay should come the other way. So did not take advantage of the liberal offer. Since then the object of the bureau became apparent, it was to use the country papers to boost a candidate for governor. This plan is acting something on the order of a boomerang.—Quannah Observer.

The latter day politician is a man who is squarely on to his job, and it is a pity the Terrell election law does not extend to the press the same protection from the wiles of the politician that it seeks to exert in behalf of the man who seeks office.

President Roosevelt has appointed an ardent Georgia democrat federal prosecuting attorney in the Goobar state because, as Mr. Roosevelt says, "wanted the best available man for the place. Some of the appointee's friends say that, being a democrat, he should not accept appointment to office from a republican administration. It he doesn't accept he will be very foolish, and will in addition discourage the president from seeking the best man regardless of parties.—San Antonio Express.

If the president sticks to the rule of appointing the best available men to federal positions there are opportunities ahead for many democrats. There is a feeling among some of the old blue hen's chickens, however, that democrats should not accept office under a republican administration, but Old Garden Sage Cockerell seems to have settled that point in the affirmative.

Fort Worth is banking heavily on the success of her fat stock show. Fort Worth usually makes a success of what she undertakes in this line and there is every reason to expect that she will add to her laurels on this occasion. The stockmen of the southwest have a warm spot in their hearts for Fort Worth.—Denison Herald.

All the world loves a lover, and all the world applauds a winner. Fort Worth always wins in the things she undertakes from the fact that it is a way Fort Worth has. The cattlemen love Fort Worth as they love no other city on earth, and Fort Worth loves the cattlemen even as a parent loves his first born. The fat stock show this year will be an eye-opener and the biggest thing of the kind ever seen in the entire southwest.

"Down in the pan" they tell of the enormous loss of cattle in the Panhandle during the recent cold spell. If this is a fact it is certainly far beyond this section. It seems a preconcerted plan on the part of the people of middle Texas to create the impression that great loss is often sustained by pioneers in the Panhandle, when as a matter of fact no part of the state is more immune from trouble of this kind. In fact the only real freezing to death we have heard of in Texas was near Galveston, where many Texas were chilled to death by the damp freezing atmosphere. On the other hand all stock in this part of the state is hardy and well acclimated for standing the winters. The air is always in a measure dry and not so penetrating and all over-powering as it is in lower altitudes.—Memphis Herald.

The place where so many cattle died during the February bad weather seems exceedingly difficult to locate. The Panhandle indignantly repels the insinuation that it happened in that territory, and passes it up to South Texas. Lou Barkey discredits the statement that all the cattle died in that portion of the state, by declaring there are 500,000 four-year-old steers in just a portion of the territory referred to. This has in turn called forth a howl of too many steers from South Texas, and still the point remains unsettled. Perhaps it will only be safe to say that cattle really died in Kansas and Oklahoma.

ADMISSION TO BE FREE

Executive Committee Rescinds
Former Action Charging
Entrance Fee

All arrangements have been completed for the Fat Stock Show to be held March 21, 22, 23 and 24, final action being taken Wednesday evening, when the list of entries was compiled and a meeting of the executive committee held.

At this meeting held at the Board of Trade rooms, it was decided to rescind the former action, charging an admission fee for the show, and make it entirely free.

Judges of the show were appointed as follows: Fat cattle, Garrett King of Taylor; fat hogs, Tom Frazier of Morgan; sheep, J. A. Craig, Agricultural and Mechanical College.

A committee of three was appointed to meet with the executive committee of the Cattle Raisers' Association, arrange programs so no conflicts will occur.

Two additional prizes have been announced, the Cassidy-Southwestern Commission Company offering one of 50 for the best car of grass-fed cows, and W. W. Sloan Jr. offering 10 for fat hogs, class to be named by him later.

A total of 734 entries has been made for the show as follows:

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Dr. J. C. Ayer and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS Bears the Signature of

FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS OF FORT WORTH, TEXAS

The best indication of the business sagacity and acumen of a community is gauged to a very considerable extent by the prosperity of its banking institutions. When a community is prosperous, abundant wealth and contentment prevails.

The bank clearings for the year 1904—$188,484,095.02—show a marvelous growth over those of 1903—$168,907,238.56, an increase of $19,577,586.46. The year 1905, from the present healthy growth and commercial activity prevalent, shows that it will be the best year Fort Worth and Tarrant county ever had.

The integrity of a community is in its most healthy condition when its banks are doing a splendid business. Fort Worth banks given in this list are in such a condition.

Persons desiring information regarding prospective business locations, or financial investments would do well to seek information from these institutions. It will be cheerfully given.

RAILROAD HISTORY MAY BE REPEATED

Said That C. W. Strain Who Succeeded W. A. Tuley May Again Follow Him

Should the announcement made at St. Louis that General Passenger Agent Alex Hilton of the Frisco system has decided to appoint C. W. Strain as general passenger agent of the Frisco in Texas to succeed W. A. Tuley, who recently resigned, prove correct, Mr. Strain will succeed Mr. Tuley for the second time in his railroad career, he having followed Mr. Tuley as southwestern passenger agent of the company in 1902. Although no definite appointment has been made it is now believed here that he will be made the new general passenger agent, with headquarters in Fort Worth.

When Mr. Tuley resigned it was stated that his successor would be named by April 1, at which time Mr. Tuley relinquishes his position. Mr. Strain is now division passenger agent for the Frisco at Wichita, Kan. He began his railroad career as telegraph operator for the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis, now a Frisco line, and in 1893 he was promoted to city passenger agent at Kansas City. In 1898 he was made traveling passenger agent with headquarters at Dallas. In 1899 he was transferred to Memphis, Tenn., in the same capacity, and in 1901 he was again transferred to western passenger agent for the system, succeeding W. A. Tuley, in March, 1902, with headquarters at Dallas. Six months later was made division passenger agent of the system with headquarters at Wichita, Kan., which place he has held since.

Nothing definite as to his promotion has been heard at Frisco headquarters in Fort Worth today.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County, ss. Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J.
