

ROOSEVELT STARTS FOR SOUTHWEST

Special Train Bearing Presidential Party Leaves Washington This Morning—State Documents Cause Delay

VACATION TO LAST AT LEAST TWO MONTHS

President Will Attend Rough Rider's Reunion, Hunt Big Game, and Deliver Several Important Addresses

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—President Roosevelt left at 9:05 o'clock this morning on his trip for the south and west. He will be absent about two months.

President Roosevelt.

sent out of Washington, consists of three cars, the Rocket, the Pullman sleeper and the combination baggage and buffet car. The train is handsomely fitted and contains every known appliance to insure the comfort and safety of its passengers. The president was delayed at the White House for a few minutes signing some important papers. Even after he boarded the car some papers were handed him for his signature.

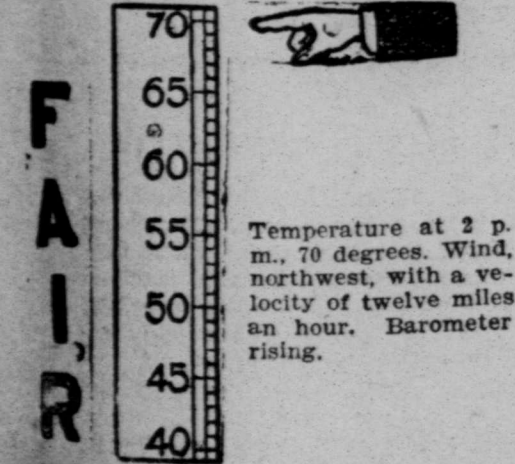

In the party beside the president are Secretary Loeb, General Young, Dr. Alexander Lambert, Lieutenant Fortesque, one of the president's aides; M. C. Latta and J. L. McGrew, stenographers to the president; H. A. Strohmeier, photographer, and representatives of the newspaper associations.

The trip is being made primarily to enable the president to attend a reunion of his old regiment of rough riders, which is to be held at San Antonio, Texas, next Friday, and to hunt big game in Oklahoma and Colorado. Incidentally the president will deliver notable addresses at several places en route.

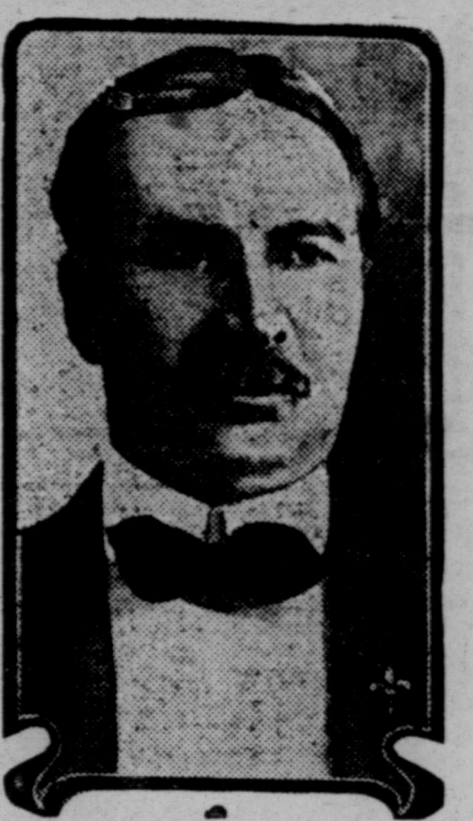

His first important stop is at Louisville, Ky., tomorrow morning, where he will be the guest of the city for three hours. He will go from Louisville direct to St. Louis and thence via the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad to San Antonio, stopping several places on the way, among them Sherman and Dallas. After leaving San Antonio the president will go to Oklahoma for a wolf hunt and proceed thence to Colorado to hunt big game in the mountains.

Unless it will be necessary on account of unforeseen circumstances to curtail the trip, the president is to be absent from Washington about two months. Details of the trip after he shall leave Oklahoma have not been made. While he expects to be in the wilds of Colorado for a considerable time, he will keep in constant touch by means of couriers to the nearest telegraph station with Washington. Dr. Lambert, who accompanied the president, was his physician in New York and has hunted throughout the country which the president will visit.

FEW IMPORTANT BILLS MADE LAWS

Fingers Serve for Counting Essential Measures Added to Texas Statutes

A hundred times and perhaps more, if correctly counted, has the term been written and printed since the present legislature passed by the legislature and approved by the governor is the only place where an actual record of the work done can be found. These books were blank when bought and are almost blank still.

In both branches of the legislature close to one thousand bills have been introduced. Of these the record shows that the governor has approved about fifty and allowed a few to become laws without his approval by limitation.

This would not be such a bad showing if all these were measures of general interest, but such is by no means the case. The great majority are merely local matters, and the locality to which they are made to apply could have survived for years if not for all time to come without their enactment.

As to the number of bills that have received executive sanction, of state-wide interest, they can be counted on the fingers of the human hand, and find it necessary to use all the fingers to count them, very broad and liberal principles of construction would have to be applied.

What has been said is true, but the legislature has not adjourned, and there is time enough for its self-redemption by the enactment into law of some necessary bills beneficial to the entire state, instead of some particular locality, county or community.

It is to be hoped "the present week will be unusually active in legislative circles," and that some of the measures that have been on the rack for weeks and are now half way through will be landed.

This, however, will prove to be a long deferred hope, unless the tangle between the two branches of the legislature over the intangible assets bill is quickly untangled. If the house refuses to concur in the senate amendments, and the senate stands to its guns, there will come the tug of war, the end of which no one can now foresee.

CITY OFFICE TO BE ABOLISHED

Council Will Likely Do Away with Water Works Superintendency

It is probable that the position of water works superintendent will be abolished at the regular meeting of city council Friday night. Since the death of Captain Scoble, who occupied the position at a long enough to enable for a period of time to be appointed. Since that time the duties of the superintendent have been performed by H. L. Calhoun, the secretary.

Alderman J. F. Lehane, chairman of the water works committee, said this morning that he would like to see the position of the superintendent abolished, and the duties thereof be performed by the city engineer, who occupied the position since the death of Captain Scoble. He said that the duties of the superintendent have been performed by H. L. Calhoun, the secretary.

Up until the present time no application for the position to be filled have been filed except by Dr. Lyman Barber for the position of city physician. All the present officials it is understood are candidates for re-election.

ISTHMIAN CANAL BOARD ANNOUNCED

Theodore P. Shonts, Former Railroad President at The Head

TO GET $102,500 YEARLY

Taft Suggests That Data Obtained Be Referred to Consulting Engineers

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—The personnel of the new Isthmian canal commission is as follows: Theo. P. Shonts, chairman; Charles E. Magoon, governor of canal zone; John F. Wallace, chief engineer; Rear Admiral M. L. Endicott, U. S. N.; Brigadier General Peter C. Haines, U. S. A., retired; Colonel Oswald M. Ernst, chief of engineers, U. S. A.; Benl. M. Harrold.

These names were announced at the war department today, and in connection with the announcement Secretary Taft gave out for publication a statement showing the allotment of salaries to the new commissioners and his own letter to the president and one from the latter explaining the plan of reorganization of the commission, the reasons therefor and the particular duties to be assigned to each commissioner. The first reads as follows: "The president has made an order allowing the salary of $7,500, with traveling expenses, to each member of the commission and to the chairman of the commission the additional compensation of $22,500, to the chief engineer the additional compensation of $17,500 and to the governor of the zone additional compensation of $10,000.

The head of each department is allowed the use of a furnished house upon the isthmus and his traveling expenses when traveling on business of the commission. The total is $102,500. Salaries and allowances under the former commission amounted to $120,000. The total compensation of the governor of the zone and the chief engineer is in effect unchanged.

Professor William H. Burr and William Barclay Parsons, civil engineers, are to be appointed as members of the consulting board of engineers.

SECRETARY TAFT'S LETTER
Secretary Taft's letter to the president follows:
WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., March 10.—Mr. President, in the matter of the reorganization of the machine by which the Panama canal is to be built I beg first to call your attention to the extreme importance of fixing a definite plan with respect to which you may feel reasonable certainty, first, that it can be practically executed and result in a navigable canal, and second, that the navigable canal be the one best adapted to the demands which may be required upon it by the commerce of the world.

The act of congress evidently contemplated a canal with locks, the cost of which will be in the neighborhood of $200,000,000, including the money already expended. It is quite within the possibility of the best form of the canal will be a sea level canal with a tidal lock only at one end and at a cost which may exceed the $200,000,000 in the mind of congress by at least $100,000,000 more.

The work of the engineering department of the present commission has been largely devoted to obtaining data upon which the plan of the canal must be determined. This data includes topographical measurements, borings, character of soil, flow of water in river, and occasionally with a particularly heavy volley the earth itself trembles. The roar has been so loud and so constant all day that our ears are becoming tired and the slightest cessation of the roar is painful.

Water in river with sufficient exactness to secure the closest calculations by experienced engineers, though not on the ground. It is probable within the next few months these data will have been so fully ascertained by the chief engineer, Mr. Wallace, and his assistants that they may be submitted to a board of engineers of high standing for a recommendation as to the best plan upon which to proceed with the work.

Mr. Wallace and the commission that whatever plans are likely to be adopted, the work of excavation and construction which would have been done under any plan may proceed without waste of effort for a period of time long enough to enable for a decision which is the best plan.

I suggest, therefore, the first work to be done is the appointment of an advisory board of engineers, say seven or nine in number, to be selected by the chief engineer, Mr. Wallace, and his assistants, to whom will be submitted all possible information with respect to the proposed canal, both that obtained by French engineers before by the chief engineer of the commission, together with all projects suggested for the solution of the problem.

FIELD HEADQUARTERS H. I. J. M. SECOND ARMY, on the Way to Mukden, March 1.—At last, after waiting for more than four months, we are again at work. A great battle has begun and by tomorrow or the next day we will be in the thick of fighting again. As I write the guns only a couple of miles from us are roaring away at a terrific rate, making so much noise that a man ten feet away from me has to yell to make himself heard.

Yesterday afternoon the bombardment, which we know is the first step in the general attack soon to be made, began. All along the line, six or seventy miles in length, the artillery opened and pounded shells into the Russian lines.

The bombardment of the Shushan-pu hills just six months ago was the greatest the world had seen at that time. A month later it was surpassed by the artillery duel at the Sha Ho. Today it is as if both those bombardments were rolled into one. The paper windows of the Chinese houses in which I am writing rattle like a drum, and occasionally with a particularly heavy volley the earth itself trembles. The roar has been so loud and so constant all day that our ears are becoming tired and the slightest cessation of the roar is painful.

And the big battle has begun. What will happen tomorrow no one knows. Russian and Japanese ideas on this subject probably differ. And after tomorrow, what is going to happen the next day and the next and again the next? The last battle lasted for nine days, this one bids fair to last even longer. What will the final outcome be? Probably another victory for the Japanese and then, let it be hoped, peace.

FACTORY CLUB MOVEMENT GROWS

Business Men Eager to Aid in Giving Plan Definite Basis

MEETING WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Call Circulated This Morning Signed by Over Fifty Names

Active steps for the formation of a "Factory Club" for Fort Worth as outlined in The Telegram of March 31, will be taken at a meeting to be held at the city hall Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

A call for the meeting was circulated this morning by Oswald Wilson and A. N. Evans, in the course of two hours signatures of leading business men and city officials being secured. The club is to be organized for the purpose of inducing the establishment of a large number of small factories in the city. Factories employing from ten to fifty hands will be sought especially, the idea underlying the plan being such factories using upper floors of large buildings, and small buildings can be operated here at great advantage. It is the intention to have the club act as an adjunct to the Board of Trade.

The call for the meeting and the signatures secured this morning follow:
Fort Worth, Tex., April 3, 1905.
We, the undersigned, believing the time now propitious for the citizenship of Fort Worth, Texas, to take into consideration means and methods whereby factories can be induced to locate in Fort Worth.

Do hereby issue this call to all public spirited citizens of the city to meet in the city hall on Wednesday night, April 5, 1905, at 8 p. m. for the purpose of considering this important question. We pledge ourselves to attend this meeting and to request all other citizens to attend with us.

CHURCH PROTESTS AT H. H. ROGERS' GIFT
Offer of $1,000 from Rockefeller's Partner Causes a Spirited Argument

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., April 3.—The Methodist church in Acushnet is agitated over the question whether it will accept a gift of $1,000 from H. H. Rogers, John D. Rockefeller's partner. The discussion over the Rockefeller gift of $100,000 to the board of missions of the Congregational church has raised a doubt in the minds of the members of the Methodist church concerning the Rogers offer.

The church was recently destroyed by fire and appeals were made to wealthy men for funds to reconstruct it. When Mr. Rogers' offer of $1,000 was received by the building committee there was a storm of protests.

It is pointed out by those who favor the gift that the question was settled when the Congregational church accepted the Rockefeller gift, but there are many who do not agree with this theory. The Methodist church, say the latter, does not accept its ethical doctrine from the Congregationalists, and in this matter of conscience it should follow its own theories, and these, say the protesters in conclusion, are distinctly against the acceptance of any gifts of money to which the least taint attaches.

Display of Bunting and Flags
On Occasion of President's Visit on Elaborate Scale
In order that the city may present a proper appearance in honor of the president's visit, the committee consisting of E. H. Lowe, Jacob Washer and John Homan, to whom the decoration was referred, began an active canvass of the merchants and business men this morning.

Main and Houston streets, over which the parade will move, are expected to present a mass of flags and bunting next Saturday when the procession moves from the Texas and Pacific station. The station itself will be suitably decorated and each business house is requested to put on similar gala attire.

The court house, Carnegie library, city hall and Federal building, which will be in the line of march, will also be suitably decorated.

to break it. I inquired what my fate was to be.
"That depends upon circumstances," he answered; then: "How much can you afford to pay?"
Unfortunately I was the possessor of only $120, not having received my pay from the Spanish firm for whom I had been doing business. Half of that amount I had the best of reasons for wishing to retain.
"Fifty pounds," I replied, putting my answer into the currency of the country. "If it would please your excellency to accept that—"
"Dog, and son of a dog! would you insult me?" he cried, half rising from his cushions. "Is it in thy mind that there may be no tomorrow for thee?"
For the life of me I cannot remember after this lapse of time what reply I made to this speech. I know one thing, however, and that was that I was prodigiously afraid.
"Where are the rifles?" he asked. "If you wish to save yourself, answer me truthfully. Otherwise you die."
Now in my particular line of business there is one rule which must never be broken. We take the risk and we charge doubly for doing it. On the other hand, we do not betray our employers.
I looked at the impassive face before me, and saw nothing but hatred and cruelty there. "My friend," I thought to myself, "I am very much afraid your day is done."
"Answer me," said the kaid, lolling back on his cushions. "Where have you taken those rifles?"
"If your excellency will condescend to explain—" I began in despair.
"There is no need for explanations," he answered. "I know everything. I can tell you the night you landed on the coast, how you reached the city, and with whom you have been in daily intercourse. With them I shall deal later; my business now is with you. Tell me now where those rifles are or, by the prophet, I will throw thy body to the dogs."
I could have strangled him as he sat there mocking me, and at one moment I was almost tempted to do it.
"Answer me, dog!"
"Excellency, I cannot answer you," I replied. "If your excellency knows everything, what need is there?"
"B'illah! If thou dost not answer I will have thy tongue cut out."
"I cannot tell," I replied.
"Then thou diest. At dawn tomorrow morning thy head parts company with thy body, and may it be a lesson to all unbelievers."
I was led back to my dungeon, but less than a half hour later I was again taken into the kaid's presence.
"Be it known to you," he said, "that great honor hath befallen thee. His majesty, the sovereign—whom may Allah bless!—is in the palace and will deign to see thy infidel face."
CHAPTER IV.
The news that I was to be conducted to the presence of the sultan came to me as a considerable shock.
"What am I to see him about?" I asked, trying to put as bold a face upon it as possible.
"Son of a pig, who art thou that thou shouldst ask what his majesty's business may be with thee? If he would but deliver thee into my hands, I would show thee what pleasures the kashah could present to thee."
I knew something of those delights—gaping wounds filled with red pepper, maiming of limbs, fishhooks run through eyelids, and little pleasantries of that kind.
But the situation had one good side—it proved to me that the governor was not to be allowed to work his will on me. "There must be something pretty big behind it all," I said to myself.
Calling in the guard, the kaid bade them take charge of me, and then went off to ascertain his majesty's pleasure. Meanwhile I waited with my own thoughts to keep me company. The guard eyed me with great disfavor. Without thinking what I was doing I took a step forward, whereupon I received the butt of his rifle in the small of my back with all the force that he could put into it. For the reason that my hands were fettered behind me I could not retaliate, but I gave him to understand in my most fluent Arabic that if ever I got out and chanced to run across him, I would repay the debt in such a way that he should remember the transaction all the days of his life.
The kaid reappeared and in a somewhat less aggressive tone ordered me to follow him. I did so, the guard bringing up the rear. Passage after passage we threaded until we reached a portion of the great building into which I had never penetrated before. Presently we found ourselves in a large room, at the farther end of which was a doorway handsomely decorated in the Madrapore fashion. This a man held open for us, the kaid going first and I following close behind him.

"I will remember thee in paradise then," I answered, with an assurance I was far from feeling. "Lead on!"
He did so, and we passed into a large bare room. Its sole occupant was an enormously stout man, whom I immediately recognized as the kaid's chief satellite and minion. Of all the men in Madrapore, with the exception of the kaid himself, he was the most hated.
To expect mercy from him would be as useless as to look for gold in a piece of flint. He lay back on his cushions, and looked me up and down. He chuckled maliciously and then, with a wave of his hand to the guard, cried:
"Take him to his chamber."
To such people as are acquainted with civilized prison life, the kashah in the city of Madrapore would come as a revelation. Picture yourself in a long, dark, stone-walled room; its dimensions perhaps fifty feet by twenty. The door was a wooden one, clamped with iron and discolored by the dirt of centuries. Into this black hole I was thrust. The room was crowded to its utmost capacity. There were Jews, Arabs, Riffians, and a wretched Italian who had had the audacity to refuse to pay the governor of the city 20 per cent of his income. Some were chained, others were not. All, however, were as miserable as mortal men could be.
I wonder if you have ever noticed that when a man has got to the end of his tether and knows that everything is lost, he feels an irresistible desire to turn round and laugh at everything. It was so in my case. No sooner had the door been shut behind me than I burst into a peal of laughter.
What did it matter? I had had my dance and now I was called upon to pay the piper. I had gone into the business of my own free will, and I should have been worse than a cur had I grumbled at being found out. Those who play for desperate stakes should surely be prepared to make desperate payment. Many folk may not agree with me, but that is the way I look at it.
From the few remarks that the guard had let fall, my companions in misery had learned that I was an unbeliever in disguise, and many and deep were the curses showered upon me.
One poor wretch, driven to the borders of madness by the cruelty practiced upon him, cursed me by all the gods in his calendar, and was about to spit upon me when I knocked him down. In a moment the place was in an uproar. Then the doors were thrown open and the guard rushed in. Somewhat to my astonishment they took my side, and the last state of my enemies was worse than the first. In less than three minutes order was restored, and several who would willingly have murdered me were lamenting the fact that they had ever been born. For sheer brutality, give men an Algerian who knows his work. He is not the man to boggle over trifles, but does his work conscientiously and to the best of his ability.
At last, and none too soon for my peace of mind, day broke. Looking back I can see it now. First the gray light of early dawn, then a pink flush through the grated windows, after-wards the daylight climbing the dirty walls revealing the huddled forms of the prisoners and touching the top-most leaves of an orange tree in the governor's garden outside.
Between 4 and 7 o'clock friends of the wretched prisoners began to arrive, bringing with them food and different drinks. By dint of bribing one of the guards I managed to procure something to eat.
I had scarcely finished this before a man entered and bade me follow him. I did not fail to keep my eyes open in the hope of discovering a means of escape. Not one, however, presented itself. The courtyard was surrounded by high walls which I could not have scaled even had I desired to attempt it. At the farther end was a gate which led into another and smaller yard. We crossed this, passed through a small orange grove and so into the palace itself.
Once inside the doors, I abandoned all idea of escape and resigned myself to my fate. After traversing several passages we emerged into a tessellated patio, surrounded on every side by galleries. I knew the place well, for on more than one occasion I had drunk my coffee there with the man with whom I was about to be confronted.
Desperate as it was, the situation had a decided touch of humor in it. More than once the kaid had described himself as my true friend; I was going to be afforded an opportunity of seeing what that friendship was worth.
Minute after minute went by and still the governor did not put in an appearance. In my own mind I had no doubt that he was delaying in order to torture me. At last, however, he entered the room.
One glance at his face was sufficient to show me that there was more than a little amiss. He was notorious for his bad temper, and on this happy occasion it had taken possession of him altogether.
He was a small, slenderly made man, and the possessor of a chin that invariably goes with selfishness, temper, and weakness. He threw himself upon his cushions and looked at me. His scrutiny of me may have lasted for 10 minutes or 20, possibly it might have run to more. All I know is that it made me feel as if lead water were trickling slowly down my back.
I stood before him watching his face and waiting for him to speak.
"What have you to say?" he asked.
"Only this, your excellency," I replied. "I am at a loss to understand why I have been brought here and confined in this fashion. Had I been permitted an opportunity of communicating with my consul, I think—"
The kaid laughed. He was quite aware that I was playing a game of bluff, and that for me to have appealed to my consul would have been as useless as to expect mercy from himself.
"Looking up at me through half-closed eyes, those dreamy eyes that contain all the wickedness of the world and yet seem to know so little, he said: "You landed 10,000 rifles on the coast last year."
"I did," I answered. Then with a touch of inspiration I went on. "It paid me very well."
"You bought them in Paris; they were shipped by Messrs. Dimonnet, and were consigned to a certain Spanish firm here whose name at present it is not necessary for me to mention."
He did not add that his reason for not mentioning the name of the firm in question was that he had received a substantial bribe for allowing them to pass through. I knew it, however, and he was aware that I knew it.
A long pause ensued. I was the first

THE CITY ELECTION

There is to be a city election held in Fort Worth tomorrow, Tuesday, and the chief issue of that election seems to be the determination of the question of whether or not it is the duty of democrats to stand by and support the regular democratic nominee for the position of chief of police. The Telegram thinks that the demands of duty in this particular instance are clear enough to require neither argument or insistence. It is the duty of every democrat in the city of Fort Worth to go to the polls and cast his ballot for the regular democratic nominee.

James H. Maddox is the nominee of the democratic party for this position, and as such has the right to demand and expect the support of every loyal democrat. The opposition that was manifest toward Maddox during the campaign should have closed when the primaries had been held.

Thomas Jefferson, the father of the democratic party, defines democracy as absolute acquiescence to the will of the majority. The majority of the voters participating in the democratic primaries said that Maddox was the man who should be honored with the position, and this action has been handed down to all members of the party with the force of a direct command. Under such circumstances, there is but one thing to do, and that is for every qualified democratic voter in this city to go to the polls and cast his vote for James H. Maddox.

There is one feature of the president's trip to Texas that calls for genuine commiseration. When we think of the number of the faithful who will follow that special train in the hope of getting a slice of pie, it calls for a feeling of genuine regret that this will probably be the only thing that will mar the pleasure of his coming. The hungry republican is usually a very determined individual, and the reputation of the president for strenuously will not serve to cast any damper on the occasion. He will have an opportunity to speak a word of encouragement to many of the boys who have fought for years in the grassless trenches.

It is gradually dawning upon the people that the trusts of the country cannot be wiped out by legislative enactment. All of the laws that could be placed upon the statute books of this state would be a dead letter if the officers elected to enforce those laws are not true to their oaths and to the people. Attorney General Davidson announces his willingness to start out on a trust busting expedition, and it is sincerely to be hoped that he will not weary in well doing. If the voice of the people means anything it must be apparent that there are trusts and trusts doing business in Texas.

The New York World is out with the prediction that Theodore Roosevelt will be re-nominated for the presidency four years hence and triumphantly elected. Perhaps so, but it will not be until after the most memorable struggle the president ever engaged in. By the time he runs the gauntlet of opposition in his own party and measures lances with William J. Bryan, he will realize that he has been in something just a little more strenuous than an average bear fight.

President Roosevelt has stated publicly and unequivocally that he would not be a candidate for re-election, but that fact does not deter the New York papers from insisting that he will be a candidate and again land the plum. President Roosevelt may be a man of some peculiarities, but even his most violent opponents must admit that he is a man of his word. When he says a thing it is generally understood that he means it.

Sully, the former cotton king, who has just been declared a bankrupt and who declares his intention of paying all he owes as soon as he can make it where he lost it, only owes a little matter of $1,999,000, and he ought to be able to clean that up almost any morning before breakfast. The cotton producers of the country are very anxious to see Colonel Sully get into immediate action, for he has a gentle way of sending the fleecy staple skyward.

Martin W. Littleton of New York, in an address before the state legislature on the problems confronting the democratic party, said that living issues must be met and changes in conditions recognized in order to accomplish party success. These facts are already recognized by the democratic party and will be apparent in the next national campaign. It is needless to add in this connection that the party will decline to recognize Alton B. Parker as a living issue.

The enemies stirred up by Representative Williams in the triumph of his intangible asset bill have been quick to introduce a measure in the state legislature providing among other things that no member of that body is eligible for the office of governor of this state until two years have elapsed from the time of service as a lawmaker. That is statesmanship with a vengeance, and is about on a par with some other proposed legislation submitted at the present session.

There are always two sides to every story, and President Castro of Venezuela says that the asphalt companies responsible for the present complications existing between his country and the United States have never complied with their contracts and have also been guilty of extending aid to revolutionists. If these allegations are true there is some justification for the little man in getting his back up.

Late press reports say that Japan is not inclined to treat with Russia on the implied terms of peace that have been furnished by the Russian government. And the Japanese government is right in the position it has assumed. The man who is licked has no right to prescribe the terms upon which he is to be released from the grip of his enemy.

North Fort Worth has let the contract for her system of waterworks and the system is to be completed within the next five months. An abundant water supply and adequate fire protection will give our sprightly little sister a considerable impetus forward. North Fort Worth, like everything else connected with Fort Worth, is a very live proposition.

When President Roosevelt goes on his hunting expedition into the Texas Panhandle, the bulk of his traveling party will remain in Fort Worth. The President evidently desires to be alone when he runs across and overcomes the great Texas Wampus, which is known to make its habitat somewhere in the Texas Panhandle.

Of course, Fort Worth will decorate for the coming of the president of the United States. This city will not take the hind seat in any matter that involves the proper display of hospitality. Fort Worth is just as patriotic as any city in the union, and is dead stuck on the president on account of his breezy, western ways.

The reported effort of the czar of Russia to commit suicide recently seems a case of very badly misdirected energy. There are thousands of men within the confines of his empire who would gladly undertake the job of preventing his majesty from ushering himself unbidden into the presence of his God.

The Love tax bill has passed the state legislature. Under its provisions the railways of the state are taxed 1 per cent of their gross earnings, but the law is to become inoperative in that respect when the Williams bill is in full force and effect.

Senator Hawkins throws a few choice bouquets at the state press for its fairness in dealing with members of the state legislature. The press of the state is usually more just and fair to the members of the legislature than that honorable body really deserves.

Four cattle inspectors are to be appointed by the governor of Oklahoma, and so far only fifty men have been patriotic enough to apply for the jobs. Oklahoma evidently has many mouths that are watering for pie.

Governor Herrick of Ohio, who has been visiting this state, expresses himself as charmed with Texas. It always has that effect on men of good judgment who are capable of recognizing a good thing when they see it.

John D. Rockefeller has been vindicated. The board of missions has finally decided that the smell of Standard Oil on that $100,000 offered for foreign missions was not too strong to preclude its acceptance.

The matter of making peace between Japan and Russia seems to be much more difficult than it was to get them to the scrapping point. And both nations ought to now be ready for the fluttering of white wings.

When an Ohio bank falls these days the announcement is promptly made that the concern has not been holding any of Mrs. Chadwick's paper. That is one charge no self-respecting Ohio banker is now willing to labor under.

The visit of the German emperor to Morocco has set the wise tongues of Europe to wagging, and as usual, the English press can see nothing in the War Lord's movements but a menace to the tight little island.

The secret of Oyama's fighting ability has just been disclosed by the discovery of the place where his family originated. Over in Ireland they spell the name O'Yama.

Governor Bob Taylor was very anxious to become United States senator from Tennessee, but his people seemed of the opinion that he had best devote his time and talents to vaudeville.

JOHN S. LONG.

"In busy centers the number of deaths due to nervous causes has increased twenty per cent in forty years. One-fourth of the deaths in cities to-day are from nervous diseases."—Dr. S. Weir Mitchell.

The clean, rich nerve-force that was behind the health and happiness of thousands upon thousands is literally burning itself up like the dry wick of an empty lamp. It is the "Strenuous Life," with a vengeance.

Can men who go to their work in the morning tired and with lax spirits give to their own affairs the electric touch of confidence and power upon which success depends?

Can mothers worn out and nervous, plodding dully or ill-tempered through the routine of homekeeping, bring into the family life that precious spirit of hopefulness and happiness without which the word "home" seems a mockery?

When you feel exhausted—when you grow tired sooner than you should—when you lose patience with the irritating cares of daily life—when you feel discouraged—when you feel that your hopes and ambitions are not as high as they used to be—when you spend a sleepless night—when you get up almost as weary as when you went to bed—when you are worried.

These are all signs that your nerve forces are burning low.

Neglect the nerves and they will make you feel this neglect in many ways, they control all of the organs of the body and must be kept healthy and strong to do their work properly.—tired nerves cannot keep the organs of the body working in that harmony which is essential to real health.

This is why Paine's Celery Compound is able to bring health in so many different forms. Paine's Celery Compound feeds and nourishes the nerves. It makes pure, rich blood, a clean active liver, a stomach that acts quietly and strongly upon all the food that is given to it, bowels that throw away promptly and surely all the ashes from life's engine room.

It makes the heart beat true and evenly, it makes the brain clear and vigorous.

The Nerve Force does this all, and Paine's Celery Compound makes the Nerve Force.

Best of all it makes that buoyant life-spirit, the thrill of health, that is the secret of happiness and the keynote of individual success.

Without Nerve Force there can be no health at all—no success—no joy in living.

John S. Long's case is simply one of thousands upon thousands. An average case and an object lesson to the average person.

"For nervousness and stomach troubles Paine's Celery Compound is the medicine. I was almost a physical wreck when I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound, and now I am as healthy as any man in the world, and I owe it all to Paine's Celery Compound. The first bottle I took helped me wonderfully, and by the time the second was used I was a well man, and I can cheerfully recommend it to any one as being the best medicine I have ever used." —John S. Long, Ballard, Wash.

Try Paine's Celery Compound to-day. It braces you up at once.

Take two days' treatment. See how much better you feel. See how much more easily the trials roll away.

For over 18 years Paine's Celery Compound has been the most universally used nerve vitalizer and tonic in the world.

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, Prof. E. E. Phelps, of Dartmouth University. All reputable druggists recommend and sell Paine's Celery Compound.

Gleanings From the Exchanges

It is conceded that our corn crop is being planted about three weeks later than last year, from which fact some are inclined to fear that we will run a greater risk from droughts and be more liable to man's failure, but when we remember that the crop was very generally injured by frosts in the latter part of March and again badly set back by a sharp frost as late as about the 12th of April last year, we have a reasonable basis for the hope that the final outcome will be equally as good as last year, when we made a bumper crop.—Boyd Index.

Corn in Texas is usually an uncertain crop, owing to the fact that seasons about the time it needs rain the most often prove uncertain. Last year the state made one of the largest crops in all its history, and the fact that planting has been delayed about three weeks this spring on account of the wet, cold weather, does not signify that the present crop will be a failure. Every farmer should plant corn just like he was convinced that the coming seasons will be altogether propitious. Texas needs all the corn she can raise in her business.

Counting round bales as half bales, the sensus bureau in its final ginners' report shows the cotton crop of 1904 to have been in round numbers 13,598,000 commercial bales. Secretary Hester of the New Orleans cotton exchange estimates the crop at 14,100,000 500-pound bales. Without reviving the controversy which raged when Statistician Hyde of the department of agriculture estimated the crop on Dec. 3 last at 12,162,000 bales, it is quite apparent that the crop was far too large for the demands of the world, and that the necessity for a reduction of acreage for this year's crop is imperative.—Houston Post.

Ayer's Hair Vigor. Always restores color to gray hair. We say, "always." No mistake about this. It stops falling hair, also. And there is no mistake about this, either.

The fact that the last cotton crop was larger than the world apparently needed was very unfortunate for the producer, for a reduction in the acreage this year will not materially affect the situation next fall, from the fact that the surplus will be brought over. Texas should be more interested in the matter of manufacturing cotton and developing markets for cotton products than in the reduced acreage proposition. If Texas reduces her crop this year, other cotton producing states will take advantage of the opportunity to produce a bumper crop.

Men and women truly great never have to tell you of their greatness. It is indelibly stamped upon their faces and figures. Have you never turned to look twice at some man or woman you chanced to pass on a crowded street? And you turned, not because some brightly-colored costume attracted your attention or to hear words loudly spoken, but because some indefinable something about the face and figure stamped them as being unusual, something above the ordinary. Such a person, if engaged in conversation, would never speak of himself. He never finds it necessary to tell who he is or what he has done.—Bonham News.

It has been very truly said that God Almighty places the stamp of character on every human being's countenance. We speak of men with a magnetic presence and a winning personality, but when we come to sift those terms to the bottom, we find they are only the apparent evidences of mind and character which naturally attract us to the individual. Strong men and women—those whom God has endowed with a high order of mentality do not have to bear a placard with them inscribed with the legend, "I am great." If they are great, or in any degree above the common herd, their Maker has placed such a mark upon them that it can be deciphered without the aid of magnifying glasses.

The supreme court of Connecticut says that the word "damn" is swearing. The court of Mississippi says it is not. Now, what are we going to do about it? As for ourselves, we think it depends upon local conditions, the frame of mind of the one using the ugly word, and the circumstances by which he is surrounded.—Graham News.

The word "damn" is not swearing. It is simply a profane expletive, and is regarded as violent among the strictly orthodox from its intimate association with the word that usually accompanies it. When we say that a play presented at the theater was damned by faint praise, we are neither indulging in profanity or swearing. When we remark that we could knock that damned cow's head off for eating our shrubbery, we are applying a violent expletive to the bovine that is somewhat shocking, but strictly speaking, not profane.

The farmers' union is being severely criticized because it has asked the Texas railway commission to reduce the present freight rate on cotton. It is answered by the head of the railroad lobby that it matters not how low the freight rate is the farmer will receive no more for his cotton. Then why not make the freight rate $10 per bale and packing $25 per bale and argue that the farmer would receive the same profit for cotton. If the cost of producing and getting the cotton to market has nothing to do with the price the farmer receives for his crop why have any fixed rates at all? The fact of the matter is the proposition is so ridiculous that it needs no discussion. If cotton is hauled to market for $20 per ton and the rate is cut to $1 per ton there ought to be some benefit derived to the over-taxed producer. If not there is a big stealage somewhere and those perpetrating it ought to be made to disgorge by the strong hand of a just law.—Georgetown Commercial.

The railways and their attorneys are always ready to show how a reduction of freight rates will not advance the common interest, while an advance is just the proper thing. Rates are advanced to the point where they are almost confiscatory on the flimsiest pretexts, but they are never reduced without the hardest kind of fight and predictions of universal misery. The cotton producers of the state are only asking for a moderate reduction.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad announces that from now on it will discontinue the practice of issuing passes to public officials, city, county and state. General Counsel Stowe says he is desirous of breaking up the system of influencing public officials by means of passes. If Mr. Stowe is correctly quoted he has given proof of the contention that passes are given to public officials for the purpose of influencing their actions. In this respect a pass is a bribe, and it is difficult to see how any public official can otherwise consider it.—The Commoner.

The time is not far distant when all the railways of the country will follow the example of the Louisville and Nashville, from the fact that they will find it the proper business policy to do so. The custom of giving such passes is a great tax upon the passenger department of every railway, and has only been permitted because custom has seemed to demand it.

A fellow who knows says: "A politician is a civilized savage. A few years ago he would have swooped down and seized the thing. Now the opposition of forces forbids and he has to do by legal means what the savage chief did by violence. His business is to convince, wheedle and cajole the people into voting for him. That in many instances he thinks he is sincere, there is no doubt, but the fact remains that the "ward boss" or the "district boss" is a man who studies the penal code closely, so as to keep out of jail. He is a bashibazouk, posing as the people's friend. His motto is, 'To the victor belongs the spoils.'—Bonham Favorite.

There was a time when the politician was much wilder than he is at the present time and indulged in much unseemly cavorting. Under the provisions of the Terrell election law he is now standing hitched.

MOTHERHOOD

Actual Sterility in Women Is Very Rare—Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes.

Many women long for a child to bless their homes, but because of some debility or displacement of the female organs they are barren.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound more successfully than by any other medicine, because it gives tone and strength to the entire female organism, curing all displacements, ulceration and inflammation.

A woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution. Is not that an incentive to prepare for a healthy maternity?

If expectant mothers would fortify themselves with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for thirty years has sustained thousands of women in this condition, there would be a great decrease in miscarriages, in suffering, and in disappointments at birth.

The following letters to Mrs. Pinkham demonstrate the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in such cases.

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice-President of Milwaukee Business Woman's Association, of 614 Grove Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I was married for several years and no children blessed our home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. For months I took his medicines, trying in vain for a cure, but at last my husband became disgusted and suggested that I

LETTER TO LANCE & KEENEY

Dear Sirs: Have you found this out? You need less of Devoo lead-and-zinc for a job than of anything else; less gallons; less money.

M. A. Thomas, painter, Lynchburg, Va., has found it out; he writes: "The first job I did with your paint I estimated 37 gallons; had 12 gallons left over. Since then I have not used any other kind of paint but Devoo lead-and-zinc; I recommend it to all my customers. When I commence a job, I take up a card reading as follows: M. A. Thomas, contractor; Devoo Paint.

Putting it on costs two or three times as much as the paint. Have you found this out? You can paint Devoo in less time; less money.

Have you found this out? Devoo wears longer than anything else.

MINISTERS WILL ERECT BIG TENT

Members of Pastors' Association to Place Canvass in Position for Union Services

Members of the Pastor's Association of this city will meet at the Texas and Pacific reservation Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, roll up their sleeves and personally erect a tent capable of holding 4,000 people, in which union Evangelical services will be held, beginning April 9 and continuing for several weeks.

Decision to personally erect the tent was made at a meeting of the association held this morning on the request of the arrangement committee, consisting of Rev. J. D. Young, Rev. S. G. Inman and Rev. J. B. French.

The report of the committee, which was adopted, provides that a tent be erected on the Texas and Pacific reservation, with a seating capacity of 3,000 to 4,000. All members of the association are called upon in the report to meet on the ground at 9 o'clock in the morning and erect the tent. The tent and all materials will be on hand and the work of placing the seats will then be taken up at once so that all will be in readiness for the opening service.

SUNSHINE AGAIN RULES

April Showers Leave Texas, Except Along Gulf Coast—Fair Weather to Continue

April showers have passed south over the state, Texas with the exception of the gulf coast being clear Sunday and this morning. Fair weather is the forecast for Tuesday. Rain was falling at Corpus Christi this morning, but North and West Texas is generally clear.

Freezing weather is reported in parts of Wyoming, accompanied by snow.

GAS EXPLOSION KILLS TWENTY

CARBONDALE, Ill., April 3.—A report from Ziegler, Ill., sixteen miles from here, says there has been a fearful gas explosion at Joseph Letter's coal mine. Twenty miners were killed and eighteen wounded.

According to reports received here the entire opening of the mine at the surface was wrecked. Although the explosion is attributed to gas, suspicion exists that there may have been another cause. Only non-union men were employed in the mine since the strike for increased wages some months ago, resulting in riots and the presence of militia and armed guards. The last of the troops were recently withdrawn.

GENERAL HOLIDAY OPPOSED

Urged That It Would be Useless and Deter Many Out of Town Visitors Greeting President

Suggestion of a general holiday on the occasion of the president's visit is meeting with little general favor. The fact that the party will be in this city on Saturday, thus insuring a holiday for the school children and the fact that the visit will last but one hour are urged against such a movement.

Speaking of the matter this morning a prominent merchant said that there was no necessity for the holiday as all employees of the business houses, which lie mainly along the line of march would have ample opportunity to see the president and view the procession.

Other disturbances are reported to have occurred. The streets had been patrolled throughout the day, the authorities having anticipated trouble.

Conditions here are causing much uneasiness and nervousness. Hand-printed proclamations have been found in the streets warning the public against walking near government buildings and other places, as bombs would be thrown in these quarters.

WARSAW, April 3.—A conflict occurred at 7:30 o'clock last night on Daska street, where a Jewish socialist society, known as the Bund, had organized a demonstration.

MUDDY TRACK FOR TENNESSEE DERBY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 3.—The Tennessee derby will be run over a muddy track this afternoon. Rain fell during the greater part of last night and has left the course in bad condition.

Horn, winner of the Montgomery handicap, will not start today and Whipcord will be a doubtful starter. This would leave only three horses to compete for the stake, valued at nearly $10,000. Aggie, owned by Captain Sam Brown of Pittsburg, by reason of an easy victory over John Smulski and Jack Lory on Friday, is the odds-on favorite for the race.

BAILEY COMMENDS ROOSEVELT POLICY

Tells Members of Legislature Anti-Trust Idea Was Taken from Democrats

AUSTIN, Texas, April 3.—United States Senator Joe W. Bailey today delivered an address to the legislature, in which he highly commended the anti-trust policy of President Roosevelt.

He declared that this policy was a plank of the democratic platform which the republicans had adopted after the campaign. He said the democrats would undoubtedly win four years hence, as when the people want good and pure principles of government they must find it in the democratic party.

Senator Bailey commended the Texas legislature on some of the laws it had passed, and said many of them are being adopted in other and older states.

Governor Myron T. Herrick of Ohio is expected here tomorrow. A resolution was adopted inviting him to address the house.

A resolution was presented in the house today providing for the appointment of three members of the house and two of the senate to make a special investigation of the Confederate Home.

A bill was passed finally in the house defining the method of computing the anti-trust tax of domestic and foreign corporations. A bill for the collection of back taxes from individuals and corporations since the year of 1884 is now under consideration in the house. The senate was not in session today.

CHICKEN THIEF CUTS FAITHFUL BULL DOG

A case of the faithfulness in a dog was evidenced at police headquarters this morning when E. P. Kehoe entered the station bringing with him a bull dog which had been badly cut about the head in an attempt to protect his master's chicken coop from thieves Sunday night. With some sharp instrument the thieves had cut the dog's head in a terrible manner, making it necessary to summon a veterinary surgeon, who sewed up and dressed the wound.

Mr. Kehoe, who lives at Galveston and Daggett avenues, said to the officers that on going in his back yard this morning he found several chickens missing. Evidences of the coop being entered were visible. In a few moments the bleeding dog made his appearance.

Chicken thieves have been operating rather extensively in the city lately.

JOHNS ABANDONS ALDERMANIC RACE

Candidate in Fourth Ward of North Fort Worth With-

draws his Name

John W. Johns, candidate for alderman in the Fourth ward of North Fort Worth, this morning withdrew from the race, leaving a clear field for his opponent, Joe Mulholland.

Mr. Johns said this morning that his withdrawal was made necessary because other business would not permit his giving the proper attention to the matter.

A race in the First ward with four candidates, two to be elected, alone remains, in addition to the fight for city recorder. Louis Blanko, in the Second ward, has no opponent and in the Third ward aldermen already in council hold over.
