SLEEPING SKIRTS PICK UP GERMS

Physician Says Trailing Dresses Aid in Spread of Disease

"Women should be prohibited by law from gathering the dust of the streets upon their skirts and carrying it home to infect and poison babies and children," said a physician today.

He was speaking about a statement that the cause of the spread of disease germs is due largely to the wearing of long dresses on the streets.

"A woman who has swept with her skirts the streets for only a block or two may carry home with her the germs of tuberculosis, scarlet fever and diphtheria," he said. "It makes no difference if the pavements are dry or wet. The germs live in the dust of the street long after the sun has dried the moisture.

"The question of the city charter, according to the Austin dispatches, is an issue that it is impossible for me to comprehend the trouble, if any, that exists with reference to the charter.

"It would seem that all of the amendments in which the council regarded the city as vitally interested have been included, those not specially mentioned being more formal changes which were not in the nature of necessities. If this is so, the question of publication cuts no figure, and until I should be informed as to whether or not the charter has been affected in any vital manner by reason of an alleged failure to publish, I do not think that it would be proper for me to enter into a discussion of the matter.

"As to why some amendments were published and others not published, if this should be so, I am not in a position to state. About the details of the publication, any way made, I am not informed and do not care to say anything.

"I am particularly careful about saying anything with reference to the charter at this time for the reason that she knows the situation that exists in Austin, any remarks that I make would be indulging in the purest speculation, and it would be very much out of place for a city officer in my position to deal with anything except known facts from which proper legal conclusions could be drawn."

MR. C. PUTMON—Cured of Consumption by Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky.

"I was flat on my back in Cincinnati. It was after ten long, hard months on the road as advance agent for theater companies. I had to be up early and late, exposed to all kinds of weather; often soaking wet and chilled to the bone. My system could stand it no longer. I caught a heavy cold and it settled on my lungs. Doctors dosed me as usual, but I was steadily going to a consumptive's grave."

"An old actor friend recommended Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky. I tried it. Felt better the first week. In two weeks doctor said he needn't call again, to keep on taking Duffy's and I'd soon be cured. And I am cured; strong, husky, never better in my life, and it took only four bottles. Have come through another season in perfect shape." C. PUTMON, care Billboard Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, July 30, 1904.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

Consumption seldom attacks until the system is run down and weakened by sickness, overwork, worry, exposure, or inherited tendencies. The secret of the marvelous success of Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky in curing and preventing lung troubles lies in the fact that it's the greatest strengthener and health builder known to medicine. It not only checks the ravages of the disease itself, but replaces the weakened, destroyed tissues; helps the stomach to more perfectly digest and assimilate food in order that more, richer, and purer blood will come from it; and regulates and governs the heart's action, so that the circulation will be strong and powerful, carrying health and vigor to every organ and part of the human body. The idea that a consumptive's only chance for life is to send him to Colorado or California to fret himself to death was effectually exploded at the Medical Association's Convention, a few months ago at Atlantic City, where leading consumption specialists declared that the only successful place to treat lung troubles was right at home, where the disease originated, and that Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky is the most effective means of fighting this awful scourge to the human race.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky is absolutely pure and free from fusel oil—the only whisky recognized by the government as a medicine. It has been prescribed by doctors of all schools and sold by reliable druggists and grocers everywhere for over 50 years. $1.00 a bottle. Every testimonial is published in good faith and guaranteed. Medical booklet free.

CAUTION—Be sure you get the genuine Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky, manufactured by Duffy Malt Whisky Co., Rochester, N. Y., and put up in sealed bottles, with the "Old Chemist" trade-mark on the label. It's never sold in bulk or bulk. Beware the many substitutes and imitations offered by unscrupulous dealers, because of the extra profit. They not only will not cure, but are positively dangerous.

What to Do For Heart Trouble

I Back Up My Advice With This Remarkable Offer: A Full Dollar's Worth of My Remedy Free to Prove That I Am Right"

I ask no reference, no deposit, no security, nothing to pay—either now or later. To any heart sufferer who has not tried my remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—I will restore one center, will surely restore them all.

The heart is about the size of your clenched fist. Open and close your fist a dozen times, every day. You will see the monstrous labor it will do for you.

The heart nerve is one of the most delicate of the system. It is so closely allied with the others that weakness or irregularity at any point is apt to spread to the whole system, arising from stomach trouble through sympathy, and kidney trouble may also follow. For each of these organs is operated by a branch of these same sympathetic nerves—the inside nerves.

The bond of sympathy between the nerves that operate the trouble organ has a useful purpose as well. For what will cure weakness in one branch will surely cure weakness in every branch—what will restore one center, will surely restore them all.

There is nothing new about this—nothing new phrasings, would you repeat. But it remained for Dr. Shoop to apply this knowledge—to put it to practical use. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the result of a quarter-century's work along this very line. It does not dose the organ or weaken it; it does not do so on once to the nerves—the inside nerves—the power nerve—and builds it up, and strengthens it and makes it well.

If you have heart trouble and have never tried my remedy, merely write and ask. I will send you an order on your druggist which he will accept as gladly as he would a dollar. He will hand you from his shelves a standard sized bottle of my prescription, and he will send the bill to me. This offer is made only to strangers to my remedy. Those who have once used the Restorative do not need this evidence. There are no conditions, no requirements. It is open and frank and fair. It is the supreme test of my limitless belief. All that I ask you to do is to write—write today.

BUYERS TEST LOCAL MARKET

Agents of Outside Companies Operating at Yards May Mean New Plants

Buyers kept on the local market for the past two weeks by Cudahy and the S. & S. company have caused much speculation around North Fort Worth and the Live Stock Exchange.

It is the freely expressed opinion of many of the dealers and leading cattlemen as well as realty dealers, whose wish may be father to the thought with them, that the placing of the buyers in the field is a test of the market with the view of establishing branches here within a comparatively short time.

Two buyers have been placed on the market by Cudahy, John McGrath of Kansas City and Jim Bowles of East Omaha. For the S. & S. company Charles Campbell of Kansas City has been placed in the yards.

Considerable buying has been done by both companies during the two weeks in which their men have been here, heavy car load shipments being made by them to the north.

Local commission men say that if the men have been placed here as a test the test will be found successful and will show the desirability of operation here. Cattlemen are also sanguine of coming additions to the packing industries and in the meantime are congratulating themselves over an increased market.

NORTH FT. WORTH AND ROSEN HEIGHTS

Plans for the construction of the Presbyterian church in North Fort Worth have been completed and bids are now being received for the construction of the building, which is to be located at Fourteenth street and Clinton avenue.

As announced in The Telegram of March 11, the church will be a frame structure costing approximately $3,500. A portion of the money needed for the church has already been subscribed and it is announced an active canvass will be made for the remainder immediately upon the acceptance of a bid.

Members of the building committee are Rev. A. M. McLaughlin, pastor; W. K. Newton, J. M. Burkett, L. Hunter and Dr. M. E. Gilmore.

J. M. Burkett of Rosen Heights has commenced the erection of an eight-room frame residence on Market avenue, to be built at a cost of about $1,000.

Born to Harry Skidmore and wife of Rosen Heights, a boy.

The building of several houses on Rosen Heights has been begun by Dr. Cranshaw.

Walter Giles, colored, was placed under arrest Thursday by Chief Mansker of the packing house police on a charge of stealing meat. He was taken before Justice Rowland and released under $200 bond.

CORRESPONDENT BRILL TELLS HOW THE JAPS ADVANCED ON MUKDEN

Fighting Began in Darkness of Early Morning on Great Level Plain

SORTIE IN SNOWSTORM

BY WILL H. BRILL Newspaper Enterprise Association.

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, H. I. J. M. Second Army, March 2.—During the night Chan-tan, the most important Russian position on the Hun river, was taken by the Japanese.

Another disadvantage in trying to see the battle is the dust and the snow. It has snowed hard all day today, although it has not been cold and this is the month for the north wind to operate in Manchuria.

At 2 o'clock the Japanese took another redoubt and occupied Li-ka-ka-ho and O-ka-ka-ho, two small villages on the east of the Hun, directly opposite Chan-tan.

BATTLE IN SNOWSTORM Early this morning occurred the most sensational event of the battle so far. A small detachment was sent from A-pa-tai to reconnoiter the enemy's position at Hu-an-de, a small village directly north of A-pa-tai.

the point of the bayonet. Before retreating the Russians got their machine guns to work, but it was too late. Many of the Japanese were killed and wounded, but the loss was small compared to the importance of the capture as it pierced the Russian line in just the point where it would do the most good.

But the Japanese did not stop with this success. They kept right on and late this afternoon occupied several small villages in the second line of the Russian defense, two miles north of the line occupied in the night.

RUSSIAN DEMORALIZED The turning movement seems to be a success. It now depends on the left army. If they are able to swing far enough to the north and strike the railway north of Mukden the battle will be won.

There is only one way to see anything of this battle and that is to accompany the advance line. Even in plain one would be able to see only a few yards on either side and would in all probability be carried back. Anyhow, the staff won't listen to such a thing.

A REAL HUMAN PLAY

Once upon a time there was a king who was very much interested in human nature. So intense was his curiosity upon the subject that every means was employed by his subjects to gratify it.

One day a theatrical manager, who was an original genius, presented himself at court. "Your majesty," he said, "with your permission I will entertain you with my latest production, which aims to portray all the various types of man."

"Delighted," said the king. "The curtain rose promptly, and the first actor came forward. "I am a real, genuine, selfish man," said he. "I care for nobody but myself. My own interest is the main thing with me."

"I am," said the third man, "honest, or at least I try to be. I love my neighbor and treat him as I love myself. He gave place to a fourth actor, who, without hesitation, said: "I am a natural-born liar. I deceive who I can and never tell the truth when I can avoid it."

DEMOCRATIC LEADERSHIP

Judge Augustus Van Wyck of New York delivered an address before the New York Democratic Club last night, on the occasion of its Jefferson dinner, and among other things he said:

Issues are not made by the declarations of leaders or their followers, but by the conditions and conduct which at times make it wise for a people to turn out on the party in power—not the present conditions alone, but that which will exist in 1908. How unwise for a man to attempt to fix issues depending upon the conditions of four years hence. Leaders should not mistake their mission—it is not to make now his platform for 1908 and say to the other leaders and to the masses that they must believe in the same or be considered outside of the breastworks.

Judge Van Wyck belongs to the eastern wing of democracy, which is just now resting under more or less suspicion on the part of the real democracy of the country on account of the miserable fiasco of the late national campaign.

Judge Van Wyck is a democrat of the Alton B. Parker school, and his declarations in this address strongly savor of a covert attack on William J. Bryan, who is the only man who is making any effort toward the rehabilitation of the national democratic party.

Judge Van Wyck need not be awake nights with the harrowing fear that democracy will show up in the next campaign without a leader. That great leader is already in the field and laboring with might and main to bring the fragments of disorganized and demoralized democracy into union and coalition for the impending fight.

William J. Bryan is the Bruce who will lead the democratic clans in the engagement, and this matchless exponent of true democracy and tried and true leader of the people will shirk none of the responsibility. His leadership may not meet with the unqualified approval of Judge Van Wyck and the other Parkers who were in control of the party organization when the blow fell that put the party out of business, but the masses of the democracy will have none other. Bryan may have his faults, but it is a sure thing he has always been true to the people. And therein lies the secret of his great political strength.

Just as soon as the beef producers of the country were slightly placated by a small advance in prices, the packers have seen fit to advance the price to the consumers in the east to a basis upon which it will get a half million dollars additional weekly out of the city of New York alone.

The only disappointing feature of the president's wolf hunt in Oklahoma was that no lobo wolves were caught by the hunting party. The lobes got wind of his coming and being in mortal terror of the Big Stick, tucked their tails between their legs and made a strenuous retreat into the Indian Territory.

The wife of the man Nan Patterson is accused of murdering his expressed opinion that the deceased took his own life, but that fact will not deter the New York authorities from a determined effort to convict the Patterson woman. They are still of the opinion that she was Caesar Young's Brutus.

An advance of two cents per pound in dressed meats sold in New York by the packers would seem to indicate that the desire to get rich quick still finds an abiding place in the beef trust's heart. What should be done at this time is to decrease the price to the consumer, in order that consumption of beef might be stimulated.

There is no danger of the governor of Texas being overworked by the consideration of bills passed by the present session of the state legislature. He could give close and earnest attention to the whole batch of new laws any evening after supper and still have time left to enjoy a good cigar.

Some of the papers of the state have said some very discourteous things about Senator Hanger of Tarrant county, but that gentleman does not appear to mind these vaporings. He has the consciousness of duty well performed, and that fortifies a man against almost any kind of an attack.

Secretary Loeb also planted a tree in Tarrant county, and says if it dies he hopes to come back and plant another. The people of Fort Worth will keep an eye on the Roosevelt tree, planted near the Carnegie library, and the hope is quite general that it will grow into a Big Stick.

The Fort Worth and Denver Road is said to contemplate the doing of some big things in Texas, and Colonel Yoakum is expected to arrive in the state some time during the present month for the purpose of setting the ball in motion. The first thing the Denver intends to do is to strike out boldly for the gulf.

Texas should send a few missionaries into Louisiana, Alabama and Georgia to remind the cotton planters of those states that they entered into a bona fide agreement to reduce the cotton acreage this year. That agreement is just as binding upon those states as it is upon Texas.

Colonel Cecil Lyon can now go to his home in Sherman conscious that he has done about all that could have been done for the entertainment of the president. The democrats of the state responded most nobly to Colonel Lyon's call in doing honor to the nation's executive.

President Roosevelt will be met at the state line of Colorado by the man who is serving as governor of that state in the place of Governor Adams. McDonald may pride himself that he is governor of Colorado, but a governorship attained under such circumstances as attended his elevation to the position is nothing to be proud of.

It might be stated for the satisfaction of those disgruntled Washington people that there was no politics in the reception given the president down here in Texas. When our people extend hospitality it is hospitality. When they go to the polls to vote that action is generally construed to be political.

English papers are advancing the suggestion to France that in the hour of the collapse of Russia would be a mighty good time to form an alliance with Great Britain. It is morally certain that the existing alliance with Russia is of no special advantage to the French republic.

Tom Lawson is now engaged in giving the people of Kansas some advice in the fight they are making against the Standard Oil Company, and if there is anything Tom really likes to do it is to give advice that he believes will result in reaching a vulnerable spot in the calloused Rockefeller hide.

In a telegram to Governor McDonald of Colorado, B. F. Yoakum says the intention is to immediately extend the Fort Worth and Denver to one, and probably two ports on the Gulf of Mexico. Just keep your eye on the Fort Worth and Denver.

At last accounts, Governor J. Storm-tossed Hogg was still standing pat on the declarations made in that recent Dallas speech.

A BID FOR FREEDOM

After inhaling several mouthfuls of smoke and expelling it through his nose, he continued: "Some day, maybe not soon, but still some day, my friend Valoochi will have his throat cut, and my dam good job, too." This with great emphasis. "My friend Senator Gaveson believes Ibrahim Hassan and his brother put up this job. I would like to see Ibrahim Hassan. He played me dog's trick two years ago in Algiers, and as you know, senators, Manalaki is not the sort of—how you call it?—individual to forget."

"We have made inquiries at all the shops she would be likely to visit in the streets," I said, "but without success. No one seems to have seen her."

"Where shall I see you, senator?" he asked, turning to me.

"It all depends on how long you will be gone," I replied.

WE STOLE TO THE BACK OF THE HOUSE.

"Who can say? Perhaps an hour—perhaps two hours, who knows? There must be no hurry!"

"Well, I will wait here for two hours, or, rather, I will wait back in two hours—that will be better."

"Very good. I too will come back—perhaps with good news," he remarked, with a grin that showed his fine teeth. Then he left us.

I donned my hat and went out into the street once more. Hoping for the possibility that something had been heard of her I went back to the government house. Nothing had been learned. It still lacked a half-hour of the appointed time when I returned to Maxwell's office, Manalaki had not put in his appearance.

Every minute that went by found me growing more and more impatient of the delay. When another half-hour had elapsed and still no sign of Manalaki, I began to feel as if I were going off my head. I got up and paced the room like a wild animal in a cage.

At last there was a quick step in the patio outside, a knock upon the door, and when it opened Manalaki stood before us.

"I have found them."

"Thank heaven," I cried, and grasped him by the hand. "And is the lady with them?"

"Ah! Zat is what I cannot tell you," he replied, solemnly shaking his head. "She may be or she may not, but zey suspect something, zat is sure."

"How do you know that?" I asked.

"Come with me tonight to a house that I will show you and we will catch them," he replied. "It will not be ze first time that we have had some fun together, and please God, had he lifted his eyes devotedly to the ceiling. 'It will not be ze last.'"

"But may they not escape in the meantime?" I asked, referring to the brothers Hassan.

He shook his head and gave us those watching them who would take very good care that they did not get away."

"In that case," I said, "I suppose there is nothing for it but to wait with what patience we can command. Confound you, Manalaki, you know how anxious I am to get to work."

"He laid his hand upon my shoulder. 'Patience, my dear friend,' he said, 'you must have patience. Much must be discovered before we can make ze attempt. It would not do for us to make a mistake.'"

"Very well, I will meet you at 8 o'clock."

I bade them "good-bye," and returned to government house, where I found my friends eagerly awaiting my coming.

"What news do you bring?" asked the commander-in-chief, as I entered the veranda. "Have you anything to tell us? For mercy's sake, man, don't keep us in suspense. We have been through enough already, and cannot bear much more."

"I am afraid I have not very much to tell," I replied. "But at least we are on the track of the two men whom I have the best of reasons for believing have been concerned in the business. I have arranged tonight to visit the house in which they are staying and to search it thoroughly."

"And I pray to heaven you may find her," said the general fervently, while the duke took my hand and said in a broken voice—"God bless you, Gaveson, God bless you."

"But what can the reason of it all be?" asked the general. "Is it brigandage? Kidnaping in the hope of obtaining a ransom? What do you think?"

"I could only shake my head. To have told them what I knew would have been impossible."

"You may depend upon it that's what it is," replied the duke. "It is a case of kidnaping. Oh, my poor girl, my poor girl! what would I not give to be with you!"

"I have taken the liberty, sir," I said, addressing myself to the last speaker, "of promising a reward to the man who is to accompany me tonight, provided he manages to effect her release. I hope I did not do wrong?"

"Offer him anything you like," replied the duke. "Tell him I will give him $500 if he can restore her to me."

less, while to endeavor to force an entrance would only be to put the enemy on the alert and to afford them an opportunity of conveying their prisoners elsewhere.

We stole to the back of the house, through a narrow lane. The windows on that side were barred; my companion, however, had brought certain tools with him with which he was able to force an entrance. I stood in the shadow watching Manalaki at work, and was struck by the dexterity with which he used his tools. No professional burglar could have been more expert at his work.

"When possibly five minutes had elapsed, he turned to me and, with a gesture, signified that all was ready."

"Look ere, Manalaki," I whispered, after we had explored the room after room and found no one there, "what does this mean? The house is deserted. There's nobody here. Yet you told me that you put your people on to watch it, and assured me that no one could leave without your knowing it."

"And I did tell them to watch it," he returned savagely. "Zat is ze truth. I say you by word, I will talk to them for this business, and they shall know what it is to play with Manalaki."

The moonlight streamed in upon us and much commotion and I stood and looked at each other. He must have guessed well what my temper was, for I saw his hand steal round to his back and a well known light came into his eyes. Then he gave a little laugh. It seemed to echo through the silent house.

"My friend," he said in English, withdrawing his hand as he spoke, and stroking his mustache, "do not let us make any quarrel together. You know me, and you know also that I would not play false to you. If it had been any one else I might have—here he shrugged his shoulders—'well I might have done it. With you it is different. They were here, but they are gone. And when I meet my two friends who were to watch this house—well, I promise you they will not make a fool of Manalaki again. Now we will—how you call it?—get out. We must look about."

"You're still prepared to help me, then?" I said.

He gave a scornful sniff, and then added with immense dignity:

"I have called you my friend. Is that not enough?"

I was determined not to return to government house until I should be in a position to make some sort of a report. We took counsel together in the deep shadow of the lane.

"See here," he cried, "I have a friend who lives not far from here, and it may be that he can help us. I will go to see him. I have been thinking and I have what you call a notion."

We accordingly threaded our way through some of the filthiest alleys of the native town.

"Egad! Manalaki!" I remarked, "your friends don't seem to live in savory places. This is as bad as the back blocks of Port Said."

"But not as bad as the kasbah in Mad-rasid," he answered with a laugh.

Gleanings From the Exchanges

The anti-nepotism bill is considered dead. It has passed the house, but there is strong opposition to it in the senate and it will not be difficult for its enemies to prevent action by filibustering. If such should be its fate, Governor Laubman should not hesitate to include the measure in his call for the extraordinary session. The platform upon which the governor was nominated demanded such legislation, and it is not only in accord with the highest standards of civil government, but has been rendered necessary by certain practices which have grown up in the departments at Austin.—Houston Post.

The statement was sent out from Austin some time ago that the legislature would not pass the anti-nepotism bill, from the fact that it might be construed as a slap directly in the face of the executive. If such is the case, there is not much probability of its being included in the measures that will be submitted to the extra session. The governor is not going to invite that kind of a slap.

The price of cattle is advancing so rapidly on all the markets that the opinion is getting rife that the beef trust has about made up its mind to get out of business. There is no question now but that conditions have greatly improved, and cattlemen hope the long-looked-for era of prosperity has arrived.—Fort Worth Telegram.

Does this all mean that the packing trust, when it sees a threatening cloud arising, can divert the storm by raising prices a little and having a few papers under its thumb state that it is going out of business? If the "octopus" has been getting in its work, can it, and will it not do so whenever it sees fit if unfettered? The promise to be good and the statement concerning the prosperity arrival had better be taken with salt.—Clarendon Chronicle.

The presumption is that the market manipulators have become alarmed over the agitation of the beef trust question and have relaxed their grip sufficiently to permit prices to gradually rise. It is not expected that the alarm of the trust will have any effect upon the pending investigation. When the packers get good they should be made to stay good.

Some wonder at the power that Hogg has, and yet when you come to analyze it, it is not so wonderful after all. The ponderous ex-governor is simply a person who has dared to be himself without reserve. It is not saying too much to say that the world will always heed the man who does things in his own fashion, one who does not first find out what the others think and then conform his actions to that. For the man who will be himself first, last and all the time, there will always be followers, and besides they will have the respect of the majority of the people.—Terrell Transcript.

Hogg is a power in Texas from the fact that he is a genuine patriot. On every issue that arises James S. Hogg always stands ready to give battle in the interest of the masses.

Amarillo is arranging to entertain a big crowd during the Panhandle Cattle-men's convention. If this association continues to prosper and grow in a few years it will rival the Cattle Raisers' Association, which met at Fort Worth this year.—Childress Index.

The Panhandle Association is not a rival of the great state association, but one of its most useful adjuncts. The meeting at Amarillo promises to be a very important one, and will no doubt be very largely attended.

THE BEST TONIC

When the system gets debilitated and in a run-down condition it needs a tonic and there has never been one discovered that is the equal of S. S. S. It is especially adapted for a systemic remedy, because it contains no strong minerals to derange the stomach and digestion, and affect the liver and bowels. It is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks selected for their purifying and healing qualities, and possesses just the properties that are needed to restore to the body strong robust health. When the blood becomes impure and clogged with waste matters and poisons the body does not receive sufficient nourishment and suffers from debility, weakness, sleeplessness, nervousness, loss of appetite, bad digestion and many other disagreeable symptoms of a disordered blood circulation, and if it is not corrected some form of malignant fever or other dangerous disorder will follow. S. S. S. builds up the broken down constitution, clears the blood of all poisons and impurities and makes it strong and healthy. The nerves are restored to a calm restful state, refreshing sleep is had again, the appetite returns and the whole system is toned up by this great remedy. S. S. S. is a blood purifier and tonic and acts promptly in this run-down depleted condition of the system. Book on the blood and medical advice furnished by our physicians, without charge.

I have used your S. S. S. and found it to be an excellent tonic to build up the general health and give tone and strength to the system. I have used other things highly recommended, but S. S. S. did me more good than everything else combined. As to its tonic properties it gives a splendid appetite, refreshing sleep, and the system undergoes a general building up under its invigorating influence. 548 Woodland Ave., Warren, O. Mrs. KATE BUCK, and if it is not corrected some form of malignant fever or other dangerous disorder will follow.

THE SPRING OUTLOOK FOR CATTLE IN THE WEST

At this time cattle conditions are interesting to any one who will take time to study the various western states. I have taken a good deal of trouble to get some correct information in various parts of the country, and it may be of interest and value to stockmen and feeders.

Up in the northwest—that is Montana, the Dakotas and northern Wyoming—the winter has been favorable, but it has been dry over a great part of the northwest, and grass will not start until warm rains fall.

The number of cattle in the northwest is large. We will certainly see a heavy run this fall of range cattle to Chicago. These steers have been held over some for two years over the average time and must go this season.

NEW TOXIN WILL CURE LAZINESS

Coming Over from Germany Just in Time to Combat Spring Fever

NEW YORK, April 14.—The antitoxin of laziness, which has just been discovered by Dr. Wolfgang Weichardt of Berlin, will soon be put to the practical test in New York. It was said today that one of the bacteriologists of the health department at the Willard Parker hospital has arranged with Dr. Weichardt for an elaborate series of experiments in this city. An ounce of the dried scales containing the active principles of the antitoxin of laziness is understood to be now on the way across the Atlantic. The experiments are to be kept secret until positive and conclusive results are obtained one way or the other.

Health Commissioner Darlington said today: "There has been a good deal of lively discussion at the health department over this so-called antitoxin of laziness. Undoubtedly every human being makes in himself a toxin which puts him to sleep and a toxin which makes him awfully tired. These toxins are supposed to be akin to those of strychnine, which is an active poison, a stimulant, and tends to wakefulness. Hence strychnine may be called an antitoxin of laziness.

REACTION TO BE EXPECTED
"But further experiments will be required to show whether or not Dr. Weichardt's antitoxin is not subject to the invariable law of reaction, which operates after the administration of all stimulating drugs. I myself believe the antitoxin of laziness, whenever administered, will be followed by the customary reaction. The law of compensation cannot be avoided, in my judgment."

Very wonderful things are promised for this antitoxin. It is produced as follows: A guinea pig is reduced, by physical exertion, to a state of absolute exhaustion and is then killed. From the muscles a "toxin of exhaustion" is obtained, which is dried into yellowish brown scales. Horses are injected with this toxin and they develop a sealy antitoxin. The latter may be absorbed into the stomach with food or injected hyperdermically.

EFFECT OF A DOSE
Dr. Weichardt reports that after taking four doses of the antitoxin of laziness, in pastilles, a young woman was able to lift twice as much as before. She showed greatly increased vigor and energy.

CORDIAL INVITATION

ADDRESSED TO WORKING GIRLS

Miss Abby F. Barrows

Girls who work are particularly susceptible to female disorders, especially those who are obliged to stand on their feet from morning until night in stores or factories.

Day in and day out the girl toils, and she is often the bread-winner of the family. Whether she is sick or well, whether it rains or shines, she must get to her place of employment, perform the duties exacted of her—smile and be agreeable.

Among this class the symptoms of female diseases are early manifest by weak and aching backs, pain in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach. In consequence of frequent wetting of the feet, monthly periods become painful and irregular, and frequently there are faint and dizzy spells, with loss of appetite, until life is a burden. All of these symptoms point to a derangement of the female organism which can be easily and promptly cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Abby F. Barrows, Nelsonville, Athens Co., Ohio, tells what this great medicine did for her. She writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"I feel it my duty to tell you the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier have done for me. Before I took them I was very nervous, had dull headaches, pain in back, and monthly was irregular, I had been to several doctors, and they did me no good.

"Your medicine has made me well and strong. I can do most any kind of work without complaint, and my periods are all right.

"I am in better health than I ever was, and I know it is all due to your remedies. I recommend your advice and medicine to all who suffer."

It is to such girls that Mrs. Pinkham holds out a helping hand and extends a cordial invitation to correspond with her. Her long record of success in treating woman's ills makes her letters of advice of untold value to every ailing working girl, and from her wide experience and skill she quickly points the way to health. Her advice is free, and all letters are held by her in the strictest confidence. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

NAN PATTERSON IN COURT

Not Permitted to Enter Plea to Charge of Conspiring With Sister and Her Husband

NEW YORK, April 13.—Nan Patterson was brought into the court of general sessions yesterday by her own consent to plead to a charge of conspiracy to get money from Caesar Young, the bookmaker. She was accused of having conspired with J. Morgan Smith and his wife, Miss Nan Patterson's sister, to extort money from the bookmaker.

She was not allowed to plead to the charge, however, as Assistant District Attorney Rand asked Judge Foster that she be not arraigned, holding that it is not necessary. Miss Patterson's counsel requested permission to examine the minutes of the grand jury which indicted her. This was refused by Mr. Rand, who asked for the delay of one day in order that Miss Patterson might be arraigned in company with J. Morgan Smith and Mrs. Smith tomorrow. Although Miss Patterson's counsel vigorously objected to the delay the court ordered her plea to the charge to be put over until today.

EQUITABLE AFFAIRS TO GET AN AIRING

Chairman of Directors Investigating Committee Asked Detailed Explanation of Expenditures

NEW YORK, April 14.—A complete record of all the financial transactions of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, its relations to other corporations and a full list of the society's employees, including all its officers, together with a statement of the salaries and emoluments received by them, is asked of the society's president, James W. Alexander, in a letter sent him by Henry C. Frick, chairman of the investigation committee appointed by the directors. The letter of Mr. Alexander was approved at a meeting of the investigation committee, at which Messrs. Harriman, Bliss, Ives, Ingalls and Frick were present.

Among the points on which Mr. Alexander is requested to furnish information are the society's holdings of interest in the Mercantile Trust Company of New York, or in any other trust or banking company; its loans to any of its employees, officers, directors or trustees, together with a statement showing who authorized the loans. Also a statement showing each item going to make up the total of $7,909,285 mentioned in the report of Dec. 31, 1904, for commissions, advertising, postage and exchange and how and where each was spent; also each item of the total of $7,179,318 in the same report for "all other disbursements" and how and in what the losses, if any, to the society since Jan. 1, 1900, on any property of any kind purchased by it, giving the names of the persons who sold the same to the society; a record of any transaction by which any officer, director, trustee or employee of the society has irregularly or improperly received money or other valuable thing from the society outside of, and not part of his regular salary; and also a monthly statement from Jan. 1, 1900, showing the cash balances of the society and where the same were deposited, and the terms of each deposit.

ROCKEFELLER OWNS STOCK IN SANTA FE

According to Vice President Kenna, Who Says Oil King and Associates Control 250,000 Shares

TOPEKA, Kan., April 14.—John D. Rockefeller and his associates own 250,000 shares of the common stock of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, or about 11 per cent of its authorized capital, according to Vice President E. D. Kenna, who arrived with other officials of the road from an inspection of the property. Included among the large holders of stock, besides Mr. Rockefeller, are H. H. Rogers, E. H. Livingston and James Stillman. These men, said Mr. Kenna, before the last annual meeting, desired to be represented on the board of directors, but the management decided that no representation would or could be voluntarily given to them if they were acting in the Union or Central Pacific interests.

Mr. Kenna made the important announcement that the road would spend $20,000,000 for new equipment this year.

One of the Popular Founts For the Summer Girl The Best Finest Quickest Line to "Cool Col." Is Via Rock Island R.R.

A Few Facts About the Great Rock Island System

The great Rock Island system has been an important factor in the development of tourist travel to Colorado. It is the greatest system in America, with over 17,000 miles of road. It was the great Rock Island system which first gave Colorado its popularity and attracted pleasure seekers to that state. In the matter of train service, it has also been a leader. As good a line as any other line from St. Louis and Chicago to Denver and it is distinctly the best line from Fort Worth to beautiful Colorado.

Denver, Colorado Springs, Manitou and Glenwood, which are reached by the great Rock Island system, are the best known and most popular Colorado resorts. From Fort Worth to Colorado, the Great Rock Island system penetrates the enormous territory which includes the garden spot of all America, the rich fields of central Kansas and Oklahoma, the black waxy belt of Texas, the fecund fields of eastern Oklahoma and all of Indian Territory. And, in fact, has the grandest scenery along its lines of any railroad running to Colorado.

The well known inducements which the Rock Island system always offers the traveling public find their most satisfactory expression in its Colorado train service, which is designed and managed with the consideration demanded by its importance on the line in all respects best adapted for the tourist en route to the wonder state. This season, as heretofore, at all times it is and has always been their aim to give studious attention to the comfort and general well-being of the passengers and another one of the most important objects is speed, safety and adherence to time schedule, and whichever train or route is used the passenger may feel assured that every precaution has been taken for their comfort and general delectation.

And this is the great railroad that the eight young ladies, who are winners in this popularity voting contest, will travel over from Fort Worth to Colorado and return.

How the Votes Count

For every cent received on subscription between now and midnight, Saturday, May 27, five votes will be counted for the lady of your choice; four votes between May 27 and midnight, Saturday, June 24; three votes from June 24 to Saturday, July 15, and two votes from July 15 to midnight, Monday, July 31. The contest will close at midnight, Monday, July 31.

It is true that Jefferson was opposed to legislation which would hamper the individual in the development of his powers, but no man pointed out more clearly than Jefferson that one man's rights end where the rights of another begin. No one has a right to injure another in his person or in his property and to Jefferson's philosophy, government is organized by the people to protect each individual in the enjoyment of his natural rights. While Jefferson believed that legislation might be carried so far as to discourage rather than encourage individual efforts, he always insisted that it should be carried far enough to restrain any hand uplifted for a neighbor's injury.

Another Jeffersonian doctrine which is being misinterpreted today is his protest against paternalism. He favored the encouragement of individual effort and opposed the undertaking by the government of work which the individual could do better. His words have been invoked against what is described as public ownership. In applying any man's language to conditions arising after his death, it is necessary to know, not only what he said, but the reasons for what he said. Nothing is more unfair than to employ words in such a way as to defeat the reasons which lie back of the words. Jefferson's aim was to protect the rights of the individual and to give him the maximum of stimulus. A private monopoly, such as public ownership, is intended to prevent, does not enlarge the sphere of the individual or inspire him to high endeavor. The actual effect of a private monopoly is just the reverse, and wherever the principle of private monopoly enters the government must operate the monopoly or violate all of the principles taught by Jefferson.

Nothing is more consistent with the support of Jeffersonian principles than the ownership and operation by the public of every industry which is in its nature a monopoly. Where competition is impossible the benefits of monopoly must accrue to the whole people.

The third Jeffersonian doctrine that is now being misinterpreted and misapplied, is his argument against long-time debts. He took the position that the earth belonged in succession to each generation, and that a preceding generation had no right to mortgage the earth beyond its occupancy of it. If his doctrine had been adopted it would be much easier to deal with the problems of today, but it is manifestly unfair to permit railroads and municipal corporations to mortgage the public for generations and then to quote Jefferson against the issue of bonds when a city attempts to rid itself of private monopoly.

Jefferson's love for mankind was his controlling passion, and it extended to generations unborn. As we celebrate his memory on the anniversary of his birth, we can say to those could say who lived when he did, "We love him because he first loved us."

BRYAN SPEAKS AT CHICAGO BANQUET

Praises Principles of Jefferson and Explains Misinterpreted Theories

CHICAGO, April 14.—William J. Bryan was the guest of honor and delivered the principal speech at the Jefferson anniversary dinner here last night.

Mr. Bryan said:

Thomas Jefferson, although not reared in the environment of royalty, was born and educated among the people who least sympathized with the rights and interests of the common man.

It was not that he was the first to conceive of democratic principles or to preach the doctrine set forth in the declaration of independence. That doctrine was not a new one; but he gave fitting expression to the doctrine at the time of its greatest triumph. The aspiration for self-government was born with man. It has been the insuring cause which has led people in all ages to struggle for freedom of conscience, freedom of speech, individual liberty and the recognition of the rights of man. Some individuals have found a selfish reason for applauding monarchy, but at no time has there been universal acquiescence in arbitrary power.

JEFFERSON AND THE PEOPLE

Jefferson also knew that the verdict of history was in favor of government by the people, rather than government by the few.

Jefferson early adopted this philosophy, and he never varied from it to the day of his death. To him the people were supreme. He knew their weaknesses and their sources of strength, and, without expecting perfection in man or in the works of man, he put confidence in the virtue of the masses.

ACQUIRING TERRITORY

On the subject of acquiring territory by consent, now favored by an influential portion of our countrymen, he said: "If there is one principle more deeply rooted than another in the mind of every American, it is that we should have nothing to do with conquest; and at another time he said: "Conquest is not in our principles; it is inconsistent with our government."

On the subject of taxation he ever insisted upon its limitation to the actual needs of government and upon its equitable distribution. He is on record in favor of the arbitration of disputes between nations, and no one who is familiar with his writings can doubt that he would favor arbitration today of disputes between labor and capital, and his views upon the encroachments of the judiciary and the value of trial by jury make it certain that he would, if living, oppose what we know as government by injunction. All his arguments in favor of making the government responsive to the will of the people can be adduced in support of the movement that has for its object the election of senators by direct vote of the people. On the subject of finance he not only favored bimetalism but he expressed his opposition to a bank currency and to the control of the national treasury by the financiers.

He lived before the invention of the railroad and before the country had witnessed the colossal centralization of wealth, but viewing as he did every question from the standpoint of the people and hating as he did every attempt to divert the profits of industry from the producers to the "idle holders of idle capital," we have a right to assume that he would today stand with the people for the regulation of railroads and the extermination of private monopoly.

No one can imagine Jefferson as tolerating the impudent claim of the railroad magnates that they have a right to determine arbitrarily and without appeal, the rate to be charged for the transportation of passengers or freight. What an opportunity the present contest would give him for the arraignment of human greed and for the defense of human rights!

That Jefferson's utterances support legislation necessary for the complete regulation and control of transportation lines is certain; and he expressly declared against national incorporation—a thing now desired by the great corporations. Whether his arguments could be quoted in favor of the public ownership of railroads would depend somewhat upon the extent to which competition is possible under private ownership, and his experience seems to show that effective competition between railroad lines is scarcely to be expected. While I have been quick to indorse the president's efforts to secure railroad rate regulation, I believe that regulation will ultimately lead to public ownership, and, in order to avoid the danger of centralization, I would prefer to see the trunk lines only owned by the federal government and the local lines owned by the several states.

On the subject of private monopoly Jefferson has spoken with no uncertain sound. So detestable to him was the thought of monopoly that it was with reluctance that he consented to a patent, for while he recognized the justice of allowing a temporary monopoly of the product as a reward for invention, he so feared the evil effects of the establishment of the principle that he insisted upon the strictest limitations. His fears have been justified and we are beginning to understand the dangers that he so clearly foresaw.

MONOPOLY ARGUMENTS

There are three arguments made by him which are now being used by the advocates of monopoly to defeat the application to modern problems of the principles enunciated by him. "Legislate as little as possible and leave the rest of the energies of a free people," said Jefferson, and the beneficiaries of monopoly now invoke this sentiment against restraining legislation. The mockery of Jefferson to first violate his injunction by the granting of special rights and privileges to a favored few and then attempt to use his words in opposition to restraining legislation.

WOMAN HAS SPENT 33 YEARS IN PRISON

NEW YORK, April 14.—After thirty-three years of imprisonment, Libbie Garbrandt, the only woman ever sentenced to life imprisonment in New Jersey, will be released tomorrow.

It was believed at first that she would stay in prison a short time, six of the eight members of the board of pardons are reported to have voted to pardon favorably on her petition for release. A number of the most prominent women in the state have interested themselves in her case and a petition bearing 40,000 names was sent to the governor a year ago.

Mrs. Garbrandt was sent to prison thirty-three years ago, having been convicted of poisoning her husband in a jealous rage. She was at that time only 17 years of age, and her youth was all that saved her from execution. For twenty years she has been pleading for a pardon, but never before has any of the petitions received favorable consideration. Heart failure now threatens to end her days at any time.

STOCK LAW CASE PUT ON TRIAL

Election Contestors Attack Many Phases of Recent Balloting in This County

Judge M. E. Smith of the Seventeenth district court has named this afternoon to pass on the legality of the stock law election recently held in this county.

A petition was recently filed contesting the election, alleging among other things that it is void because the petition presented to the county commissioners' court asking that the election be authorized was not signed by twelve freeholders from each justice precinct; that the order was made at a term of the commissioners' court when it could not lawfully be made; that an election of the same character had been held in the county and carried in favor of the stock law Nov. 7, 1903, and that no other election could be held until the expiration of two years from that date, and that consequently the election held April 1 is void.

The contention is also made that the vote cast at the late election was not by the character of ballot required by law relating to such special elections, and that by want of action on the part of the officers entrusted with the control of the election many legal voters were prevented from voting in the election who, had they been permitted to vote, would have voted against the stock law, materially changing the result, and that illegal votes were cast at the election by persons who were not freeholders in Tarrant county.

The style of the case is L. G. Williams, Real Williams and J. W. Ashburn against Jeff D. McLean, county attorney, et al., contestants.

NO TRACE FOUND OF MISSING MAN

Thursday General Passenger Agent Auer of the Rock Island received a letter from Mrs. J. R. Stith at Ayers Cliff, Quebec, stating that her husband, an account of whose disappearance was published in the Telegram of March 29, was still missing and urged further investigation.

Thus far the police of this city and of Chicago have been unable to find Stith, and the belief is that he has been killed for his money, as he was known to have carried $12,000 with him when he left here. It has been learned that Stith drew money from a local bank before leaving.

His wife lives at Ayers Cliff, Quebec, for which place Stith left Feb. 12 over the Rock Island. A box of freight consigned to him at Chicago remains uncalled for. Stith lived for two years on a farm near Rendon. He has sisters living at Sherman and Nacona, Texas.

Glen Echo, favorite at 7 to 10, carried the colors of Captain S. S. Brown to a hard-fought victory in the Tennessee Brewing Company Stakes at Montgomery Park yesterday.

Coming from behind, the Smathers cut, when fifty yards from the wire, closed in on Glen Echo and the race developed into almost a dead heat.

NEW INDICTMENTS FOR U. S. SENATOR

Five Counts Against J. R. Burton Included in Charge of Accepting Fees From St. Louis Firm
ST. LOUIS, April 14.—United States Senator J. R. Burton of Kansas has been re-indicted by the Federal grand jury on the charge of accepting fees to the amount of $2,500 from the Rialto Grain and Securities Company of St. Louis, in whose behalf it is alleged he acted as an attorney before the post-office department.
The new indictment contains five counts. The first three specify that Senator Burton made an agreement to accept $2,500 to look after the interests of the St. Louis concern. Count No. 4 charges that he received a $2,500 fee, and No. 5 an additional fee of $500.
Recently the United States supreme court reversed the case of Senator Burton, who was convicted of unlawfully accepting fees from the Rialto company, on the ground that the money he received was not, according to the evidence, paid in St. Louis and hence was without the jurisdiction of the St. Louis federal court.
The new charges contained in the indictment set forth that Senator Burton received $3,000 and made the agreements referred to in counts 1, 2 and 3 while in St. Louis. District Attorney Dyer said today that the re-trial of Senator Burton would take place some time in May.

FARMERS' DEPARTMENT STORE OPENED HERE

John Spencer & Co. Will Carry on General Merchandise Business at 1402 Houston Street, This City.
What may well be termed a farmers' department store has been opened at 1402 Houston street, but a short distance from the passenger stations, by John Spencer & Co.
The new establishment which has been thrown open to the public will carry on a general merchandise business, specialties being made of groceries, buggies, wagons and farm implements.
The company has been founded by John Spencer of 1108 East Leuda street, this city, who has been engaged for the past eleven years in the buggy and wagon business and who is at present treasurer of the Dallas Buggy and Wagon Company, the business of which will be continued distinct from the enterprise started in this city.
Captain Charles H. Pettit of this city is manager for the company, which he says has opened under unusually flattering prospects. The finest line of buggies and wagons from the leading manufacturers, he announces, will be carried, while a specialty will be made of the machinery of the John I. Case Company of Racine, Wis.
A new building has been secured for the store, which presents a neat and attractive appearance.

A. A. GLISSON BACK
General Passenger Agent of Denver Returns to Headquarters
A. A. Glisson, general passenger agent of the Denver road, who has been absent a month in the northwest investigating the prospects of the Lewis and Clark Exposition, which is to be held at Portland, Ore., has returned home in good spirits over the outlook.
Mr. Glisson said today that he looked for a large attendance from the fact that all the northwest would turn out en masse to see the great show. Beside these there will be a large movement of tourists to the northwest and the National Yellowstone Park this year, which will also add materially to the numbers who will visit the exposition, which he believes will be one of the best, and in some respects surpass the World's Fair, because the exhibits will be the best shown at St. Louis and will be centralized in a smaller space, enabling the visitor to see all that is to be seen without remaining a great length of time.

Speaking of the travel that will take place during the exposition, Mr. Glisson said today that the railroads anticipate a great movement and that the roads will have their hands full to accommodate all those who will go.
