PRESIDENT PRAYS FOR WORLD PEACE

Proposes Silent Toast to Ending of World's Wars, Before Jap and Russian Envoys

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—President Roosevelt today proposed a silent toast to the ending of the world's wars, before the Japanese and Russian envoys, when they were to dine at the White House.

MEET ON BOARD YACHT

Representatives of Rival Nations Lunch Together—Sail for Scene of Conference

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—President Roosevelt today proposed a silent toast to the ending of the world's wars, before the Japanese and Russian envoys, when they were to dine at the White House.

ARRIVED LATE IN DAY

It was shortly after 4 o'clock when the yacht carrying the Japanese party, consisting of Baron Komura, Minister Takahira and their entourage, got under way. Half an hour later the chief executive of the meeting having left the Mayflower amid the roar of a presidential salute, the latter ship, bearing the Russian envoys, M. Witte and Baron Rosen, likewise departed for the coast.

JAPANESE FIRST SUMMONED

The day's events began in this city in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, where since their arrival in New York the Japanese suits had been quarantined. Acting as the representative of President Roosevelt, Third Assistant Secretary of State Pierce called in the hotel at 9 o'clock, and, being formally welcomed by Baron Komura and Mr. Takahira, escorted the party to the yacht, which was driven to the pier of the New York Yacht Club at the foot of East Twenty-third street, where the delegates convened the conference.

NAVAL SALUTES FIRED

The Mayflower had preceded the other ships to Oyster Bay and was lying in the entrance to the harbor when the salute was heralded by the firing of ambassades of nineteen guns for each mission from the Mayflower, as well as the cruiser Galveston and dispatch boat Dolphin, which were waiting.

WEATHER INDICATIONS

ROGER Q. MILLS LEAVES POLITICS

One Time Party Leader Now Contents Himself With Farmer's Life

In the thriving little city of Corsicana where the great Texas oil field had its first beginning, is the home of Roger Q. Mills, a whilom Texas statesman who acquired a national reputation through the brilliancy of his intellect and the broadness of his statesmanship.

Senator Mills, while representing a people of rabid free silver state, was at heart a single gold standard man, and when the situation resolved itself into a show down, he followed the silver banner, even though he knew it would result in his political annihilation.

Colonel Mills left the United States senate a poor man, but he was not discouraged. Neither did he say one word of complaint concerning the action of his people.

Recently there was a movement started to bring Colonel Mills out as a candidate for governor of Texas. Suggestions to that effect were published in several Texas newspapers, and it was believed that these suggestions were put out as feelers to ascertain whether or not the people of the state would take kindly to the idea of Colonel Mills returning to political life.

A few days ago there appeared in the Texas daily press a column in the editorial expression from Colonel Mills to the effect that he does not desire further political honors, and all he asks at the hands of the people of Texas is the privilege of being let severely alone in his retirement.

She admits his splendid ability, his broad statesmanship and the manliness that caused him to stand up for principles contrary to those of his people, and says he must pay the penalty for his political dereliction.

The commander of the division calls the attention of the camps and comrades throughout the state to the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted at the Louisville reunion, and which have recently been sent out to the camps by General C. Irvine Walker of Charleston, S. C., chairman of the committee having the matter in charge.

"Whereas, At our reunion of 1904, our federation turned over to the Sons the sacred duty of raising the funds for the memorial to the women of the Confederacy; and

"Whereas, In so doing we never relinquished our deep and abiding love for the cause or our intention to aid and assist it by every means in our power; and

"Whereas, We have clearly shown this by our appointment of a committee to co-operate and by the work which this committee and many other veterans in all parts of the south have done during the past year; and

"Whereas, It will ever be our most earnest desire to see this tribute paid to our glorious women, and we are most anxious to further co-operate with and give substantial aid to our Sons in the performance of this sacred duty; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That each camp of the United Confederate Veterans, immediately after the adjournment of this convention and the return home of its delegates, shall appoint a committee to actively canvass its respective community to raise funds for this memorial to the women of the Confederacy, to which noble, worthy and just object this federation has repeatedly and solemnly pledged itself and its comrades.

"That in case any camp does not take action within one month by appointing this committee, it shall then become the duty of its commander to make appointment of such committee. If no action is then taken by the commander, any member of the camp who is enthused with that high sense of duty to his holy cause and desires to honor our godly women, is urged to personally take charge of the matter, secure the indorsement of his local camp or its officers and make such collections as he can from his community.

"That all funds collected under resolutions Nos. 1 and 2 shall be deposited in some home bank—at interest—to the credit of the chairman of the United Confederate Veterans' committee of co-operation, which were unanimously adopted at the Louisville reunion, and which have recently been sent out to the camps by General C. Irvine Walker of Charleston, S. C., chairman of the committee having the matter in charge.

CHINESE CHILDREN GRANTED PAPERS

Lee Yet Calls on Federal Court to Render Unique Service

Lee Yet, a Chinese restaurant keeper of this city and the proud father of three American-born children, Saturday afternoon received from the office of the Federal court in this city three certificates showing that the little Celestials were born in the United States.

Wishing to take a trip to San Francisco and from there to send his eldest son to China to school, Lee procured the papers to avoid conflicts with government employes and Chinese agents.

Certificates were given him for Ng Henry Yet, a boy aged 8 years, whom the father declares he will educate here in this country and in China; Ng Din Yet, a girl, aged 6 months, and Ng Leo Yet, a boy, aged 3 years.

The father explained that Ng was pronounced as if spelled ung. He used to illustrate that the names in English were not exactly according to the Chinese, but were the best translated possible in that language.

Lee is 40 years of age and came to this country from Hong Kong over thirty years ago. After staying a short time in San Francisco, St. Louis and Chicago, he came to Texas, in which state he has been for nearly twenty years. Yet's wife is named Joe Ah Yow. Lee keeps a restaurant in East Twelfth street.

WHY MAKE CHANGE IN ROWING COURSE

Georgetown Coach Favors the Change to Three Miles for Collego Crews

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The football coaches of the University of Pennsylvania have been working over the game for the last few weeks, and it is declared that a new system has been evolved which is revolutionary and startling.

The new rules have just been published in Spaulding's Football guide and show very few changes from last year's rules. One is radical and likely to really affect the game.

The possibilities of this change are great. Two guards may be back of the line, and yet be on it, according to the rule. Mass plays may be even closer than they were last year, and who is to decide if a player has his hand within one foot of the line?

"You just watch the players on the teams of the colleges represented on that committee. It is ten to one that there will be several with an extremely long reach. Changes in the rules have been made every year to fit the incoming teams of the colleges represented on that committee."

RECORD OF CHAMPION RUNNER OF ENGLAND

Shrub Coming to America for Portland Fair—Managers Want Opponent Worthy to Meet Him

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 5.—When Alfred Shrub, the champion long-distance runner of England, comes to America this month, it is doubtful whether he will find an opponent capable of giving him a hard fight.

The Englishman has been running for several months in Australia, where he made a clean sweep of that country's best athletes.

He has started for this country, and will compete in the athletic games in connection with the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, Ore.

Shrub holds all the English records from two miles to ten. Many of these marks are world's records. His time for two miles is 9 minute 11 seconds, while Grant and Schmitt could not go under 9:30.

Shrub made the first mile of the race in which he holds the world's record his time was 4:24-4-5.

He holds the world's record for three miles, which is his favorite distance, at 14 minutes 17-5-5 seconds, an average of about 4:45 for each mile.

Shrub is a member of the South London Harriers, one of the greatest cross-country organizations in England. He has only been running for about three years.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Some of the students of race tracks here in the east say that the admirers of Sponson and Artful must not throw the title of the three-year-old of the year at them until they have both met and defeated Waterlight.

As between Sponson and Artful, the question is open to debate. It is regarded as unlikely that Mr. Brady, phing for a meeting with either Sponson or Artful.

BERKSHIRE FAME IS SLOWLY REVIVING

Several Prominent New Yorkers Are Now Stabling Near Great Barrington

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Aug. 5.—Twenty years ago the Berkshires from Great Barrington to Pittsfield were dotted with breeding farms, and local communities were jealous of their reputation as producers of harness speed.

At Great Barrington were the breeding establishments of C. N. Gilbert, Farley A. Russell, Charles H. Kerner and others, and at Lee was Highland, the famous stud founded by Elizer Smith and long the home of Alcantara and Alcyon.

MAKE MORE CHANGES IN FOOTBALL RULES

New System Worked Out is Said to Be Startling and Makes Game Closer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Patrick Dempsey, coach of the Georgetown University crew, has followed Courtney of Cornell in favor of three instead of four miles for races for college crews.

Georgetown would welcome a change from the present four to three miles. Not having any representative on the board of stewards we cannot voice our sentiments officially, but I believe there will be a thorough discussion of the question during the next few months, which will finally result in the change being made.

Who would have thought in the old days, of seeing such early development in the cool and breezy Berkshires? The result is due to plugging trotting crosses on trotting crosses as well as to gentle breeding. The breeder who is not progressive in this period of intense rivalry is like to the ten lost tribes of Israel.

Kremlin, 2:07 3-4, who is now eighteen years old, who was the champion trotting stallion of 1902, and whose dam was the highest honors with E. H. Harriman's stallion, Stamboul, is well remembered, runs every day in a large paddock and there is no shrinkage of form or fitness.

LILLY BARNES ALLEN WINNING LARGE SUMS

Noted Racing Woman Cleans Up $25,000 in One Day's Play at Race Track

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Lilly Barnes Allen, who inherited the famous Racecourse and stock farm from the late Pierre Lorillard, won $25,000 in a single day on the races recently, and had Gold Bradd, her horse in the first race, come in first she would have cleared up $40,000 in a single day.

Running under the stable name of "L. A. Barnes," which is Mrs. Allen's racing name, the horse was a 100 to 1 shot. Mrs. Allen, sitting in the grand stand, surrounded by betting commissions, sent out the ring and backed the horse down to 10 to 1. Gold Bradd, bred at Racecourse, was one of the horses Mrs. Allen inherited from Mr. Lorillard.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL WANTS ATTENDANCE

Free Transportation to Induce Stockholders Attendance Instead of Proxies

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—A move unique in the history of American railroads has been made by the Illinois Central.

For the annual meeting, to be held at Chicago, Oct. 18, the company announces that it will issue free transportation over its lines to every stockholder who wishes to be present in person.

This action of the Illinois Central railroad is important in that it establishes a precedent quite contrary to the favored practice of corporation managers, which is to get all the proxies possible and to discourage stockholders from personally attending annual meetings.

It is believed other big companies will have to follow the Illinois Central in what it has done.

Thus it becomes evident that the Illinois Central railroad occupies a position so important that its present action may easily mark the beginning of a new epoch in corporation methods of treating stockholders.

MR. MOUSE IS MASTER

Presbyterian Meeting Broken Up By Pennsylvania Mouse

OXFORD, Pa., Aug. 5.—A mouse effectually broke up a prayer meeting in the Presbyterian church here. Just when the members were in a most devout line of thought the little creature tried to ascend Squire Fulton's leg and perch on his knee.

Elder Fulton handed the mouse a good worldly punch and the little bundle of gray fur landed in that zone occupied chiefly by the sisters. In record breaking time every fair worshiper was without the walls, their skirts tightly gathered.

In vain the brethren implored the fearful ones to return. The chain of medicine and prayer had been broken. The meeting abruptly ended, the sexton extinguished the lamps and the mouse held the fort.

Mr. Watterson said he had read the accounts of the scandal in the department of agriculture and added:

"I have often wondered how so many scientific men connected with the government at comparatively small salaries could live so well. It generally goes to show that the college man is not a success in politics."

Special Correspondence of The Telegram. NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—More than 1,000,000 immigrants from all the nations of the earth arrived in America and made this their place of residence during the fiscal year just ended, June 30.

All records have been broken. The alien influx continues today in most astounding numbers. The forthcoming year, from present indications, will sweep on our shores a tide of humanity equivalent to the population of any one of the great cities of America, with the exception of Chicago and New York.

AGED ITALIAN WOMAN—EXCLUDED TYPE.

LOOKING FOR FREEDOM
Why has this avalanche of squalid life descended upon American shores? The answer is the old one. They have fled from oppression, tyranny and hopelessness to free soil, where, whether they understand the truth or not, life will hold for them at least a measure of justice and opportunity.

Agents of the ocean steamship lines, despite the revelations following official investigations, are still sowing the seeds of deception throughout Europe and luring the ignorant peasants to their ticket offices with their glowing stories of streets flowing with milk and honey.

The steamships brought to the port of New York during the year just ended 2,294 poor unfortunates, victims of corporate avarice and unscrupulous individual greed, who were denied the right to live under the Stars and Stripes, and who, groaning under the scolding stamp of disqualification, were returned into the musty holds of the great liners and sent back to the places from which they had vainly attempted to flee.

This number were excluded because of physical disability, criminal tendencies, mental deficiencies or because they might become public charges.

Two men came for each woman. The emigrant officials say that the increase from all nations were about in proportion to recent foregoing years. Sixty per cent came from Italy, Austria, Hungary. Vast numbers were destined to the big cities of the country and there seemed to be a proportionate decrease to the northwest and the south.

An interesting development of the year, as shown in an argument in favor of emigration, was that only 56 emigrants were deported because within three years they had become public charges. So that out of 2,294,000 people less than six hundred failed to become assimilated and self-sustaining in their new home.

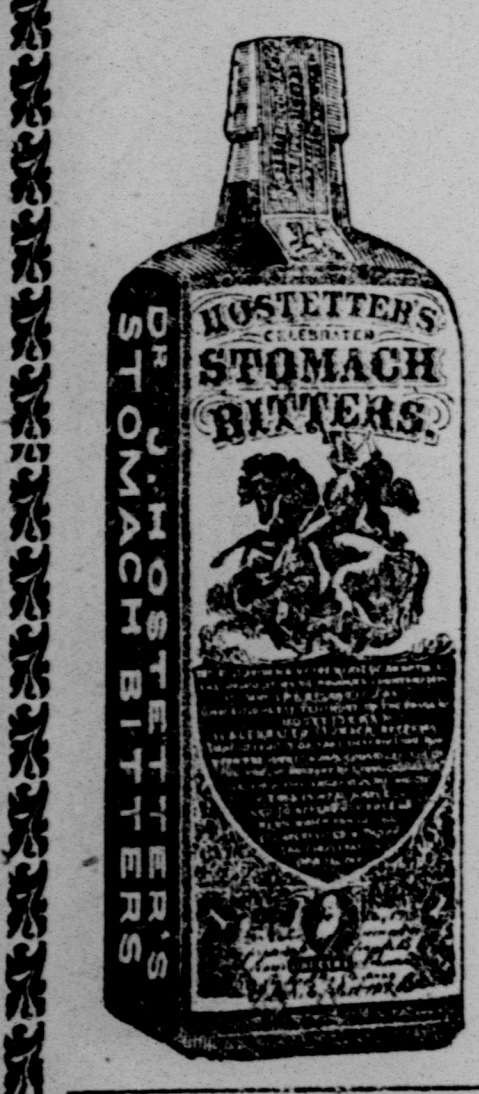

It has become a positively common occurrence for 6,000 emigrants to pass through the railed aisles of the Ellis island bureau in a single day. Polyglot throngs come dragging their bags and bundles and heavy boxes with new hope written indelibly on every face. Not one in ten, of course, has the slightest conception of the true meaning of American life, but the peasants know one thing surely—no longer will they know the scourge of the Muscovite or the tyranny of autocratic rule.

The Russian war has contributed a large number of refugees, but not as large as might be expected, on account of the strict Russian border surveillance.

HE'S AN OPTIMIST

Robert Wachorn, the new commissioner at the Ellis Island bureau, declared that the emigration officials more than anyone else were astonished beyond measure at the record breaking year. He said:

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR THE STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS IS HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

When the stomach gets "out of order" the liver and bowels are immediately affected and unless remedied at once, sickness results. SEVERE HEADACHES, COATED TONGUE, BAD COMPLEXION, POOR APPETITE AND SLEEPLESS NIGHTS are warnings that should be heeded. Get a bottle of the Bitters today and take a dose before meals and at bedtime, and good health is soon regained.

R. Moorehouse, Long Branch, N. J., says: "I suffered for years with indigestion and dyspepsia, but your Bitters soon cured me. It is now our family medicine." Daniel Fleming, Dublin, O., says: "Your Bitters cured me of indigestion, dyspepsia and liver troubles, and I willingly recommend it."

THESE ADVERTISERS DIDN'T PUT IT OFF UNTIL TOMORROW

REAL ESTATE BARGAINS FOR SALE—Newer than stop 4 1/2 on the Interurban at a very low figure; a beautiful site for a home. I have two customers for modern 5 or 6-room cottages on Southwest side, near Park, ranging in price from $1,800 to $2,500. Please list your property with me. Six lots, 50x140 feet to alley, directly west of packing houses, three blocks from Main street. I am going to sell them quick. Make me an offer. WALTER T. MADDOX, Real Estate Exchange, 302 Wheat Bldg., Phone 1545.

ELAS ROOF As Poor Richard says, "First see the land which thou intendst to buy." The bargain car, run out to 1419 Jones, North Fort Worth and see a good investment—50x90, five rooms, east front, near Main street, water connection—then call up the owner, 2553, old phone, who will sell 052, 18 TA

THIS IS NOT A SHEENEY BARGAIN, but a four-room house on Rosen Heights first fling, one block and a half north of the car line and two blocks west of the brick store, on a lot 50x140 feet, to a twenty-foot alley, and an east front, that can be bought for less than its actual value, and on easy payments. Will take some trade, such as a horse, horse and buggy, or a good milk cow. Price, $550. What have you to offer? M. L. Ray, 1405 Main street, North Fort Worth, Phone 2101-1 ring.

BEAT THIS IF YOU CAN—It is the prettiest little home in the southwest portion of the city; five rooms, front and back hall; bath room, porcelain tub; wash stand; sink in kitchen; transoms above all doors; iron fence; two-story barn; pretty lawn, shade and walks; house has been built eighteen months; lot 50x140 feet. The bargain can be had for $2,500; 500 cash, $200 each six months thereafter, without interest. Can you beat that? Fewel & Wallace, 210 Reynolds building, Phone 606.

FOR EXCHANGE—2,500 acres of good farming land in Childress county, good improvements, close to railroad town, 75 per cent tillable and bargain if you have good business property or land in Tarrant county to exchange for same. Do not answer unless you mean business. O. C. Jones Realty Company.

ON EASY TERMS—Lots on Bluff, North Glenwood addition, one minute from Interurban station, five minutes from center of Fort Worth, all fire and police blocks near Main street, artesian water. Houses built if desired, Cobb Bros. Reynolds building, phone 368.

RANCHES FOR SALE—If you want a ranch, write to me. I can suit you. Have a 60,000-acre sheep ranch (one-half leased land) at $150 per acre; now stocked with sheep and cattle. No better ranch near Main street. Write for particulars. K. William Brown, San Angelo, Texas.

FOR SALE—Beautiful five-room cottage, on State Street, convenient to car line, lot 75 by 120 feet; price $1,200; one-third cash, balance easy. J. E. Head & Co., room 410 Reynolds building, Phone 1422.

WHY PAY RENT when you can apply this now to the purchase of a home? A small amount added to your rent will buy a home in good residence portion of city. See A. D. Carpenter, with Glen Walker & Co., Phone 621.

FOR SALE—Nine-room, two-story frame house on Taylor street, near business district; east front; lot 70x100 feet; price $4,500. The lot is worth the price asked for this place. E. H. Head & Co., room 410 Reynolds building, Phone 1422.

about on his person, proclaiming that fact. If there is anything about an individual that is above low ordinary the world will soon find it out and accord him the proper rating.

There is a difference, however, between egotism and correct self-appreciation. The great trouble with the world is that so few of us know where to draw the dividing line.

It is about time some of those promised gasoline motor cars were materializing in Texas. If these cars are to be what the railways claim for them in the matter of passenger service, the people are getting anxious to see the claims verified.

While those invigorating Colorado breezes are putting new life into the many frame of Ex-Governor Hogg, that very excellent gentleman and astute politician will be formulating some new ideas concerning the best method of arriving at desired political results in Texas.

There is an activity about Fort Worth real estate which speaks volumes for the growth and development of the city. People do not plant their hard-earned kale seed in a cemetery.

Cotton all over the state is showing a slight improvement, but a dry, hot August is very essential to make the plant fruit properly. As matters now stand there is entirely too much weed.

ICELAND NOW HAS WIRELESS SERVICE

Daily Communication Between Lonesome Island and Denmark Is Established

(Copyrighted, 1905, by the Hearst News Service.)

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 5.—The people of Iceland are more than delighted with the new wireless telegraph service which has just been opened between this city and Reykjavik.

Before this service was opened the inhabitants of this island received news from the outside world only about once a month, and many sensational news stories reached them long after they had been forgotten in the other countries.

The government is now keeping the Icelanders pretty well supplied with news and among the things which they have been told of which they would otherwise be in ignorance at the present time was the death of the late John Hay.

DENVER'S BIG SHOW DENVER, Col., Aug. 5.—Interest in the big live stock show to be held in Denver next January is increasing, and the affair is commencing to take on the appearance of an event of national importance.

The finance committee will meet this week and get to work to secure the necessary funds, and the premium list will be made public in a few days.

It was agreed to admit stock from all of the west, taking the eastern boundary line of Colorado as the eastern limit.

and South Dakota and the Panhandle of Texas will be admitted. The competition will be open to fat cattle, feeder cattle and breeding cattle.

SHIPPING MEXICAN CATTLE

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 5.—Mexican stock is to find a market in South Africa. Shipments will be made from Tarnice by a company in which El Pasos are chiefly interested.

Associated with Mr. Maple are Colonel C. F. Hunt and Ed Pennington. Mr. Maple is in the city from Aguascalientes, and will leave in the morning for Mexico.

"It is too soon to say anything for publication regarding our plans," said Mr. Maple. "Within a few days I hope to be able to give more definite information regarding the outcome of our project."

"The first shipment of stock, it is said, will reach an aggregate value of $60,000. The project is the same as that in which Mr. Maple was interested a year ago.

THE STATE'S LAND

John Z. Means of Valentine is here on his way to Austin, where he goes to look after some land matters.

"I have been out there for twenty-one years," said he to the Express Thursday, "and this is the first time I have ever had cattle were fat in June, and usually they are just about ready at that time to hope that they will pull safely through another year."

Asked as to whether he was going to buy any land offered by the state at a minimum price of $1 per acre, he said: "No, there will be very little in my immediate section offered. There is a big territory out in El Paso county, mostly alkali flats, that goes with the 6,000,000 acres to be disposed of."

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Thrown into a fit of amnesia by a flash of lightning last Sunday, Josephine Donahue of Brooklyn was found last night wandering aimlessly about the street of Huntington, L. I., many miles from her home in Brooklyn.

CHAPTER I.

A man and a woman who had hurriedly crossed the rotunda paused before Judge Osterfield's court one afternoon in June and gazed anxiously through the oval glass panels of the swing-door as though undecided whether to enter or not.

chair, muttered something which sounded like "Proceed." No one at the counsels' table stirred. Judge Osterfield turned sharply toward the group of lawyers and repeated the word "Proceed!"—this time quite distinctly.

The student of the French revolution raised his eyebrows, glanced at the bench inquiringly, tore a strip from the sheet of paper by his side, placed it between the pages of his book and closed the volume. Then he packed it carefully into a leather bag and slowly rose.

"STOP, SIR! TAKE YOUR SEAT, SIR!"

quisitive clerk craned his neck to discover what volume was engaging his attention, he immediately looked up, held out the book so its title might be read, and resumed his perusal.

with his counsel and consulted various papers." The buzzing of the flies on the window panes was plainly audible.

The woman nodded comprehendingly as the lawyer resumed his reading and almost at the same instant the audience heard the creak of a swing-chair and observed the heavy-paunched visitor rise and depart.

Maddox leaned against the table, propped his body with straightened arms, and, crossing his feet in a lounging attitude, smiled good-naturedly, almost indulgently, at the dark face above the desk.

MRS. LORIMER ROSE FROM HER CHAIR.

it the statement of an undisputed fact. It must certainly be a relief to your honor to encounter every now and again in the desert of contradictions an oasis in the shape of an uncontroverted fact.

"The court has heard enough of this, sir—more than enough. Your levity is ill-timed. I should regret to work at cross-purposes with this court," answered Maddox, dryly.

"The court is not responsible for your understanding, sir." "I have no desire to overtax the court's responsibilities. On the contrary, I am suggesting that your honor shift responsibility by conforming to the established practice."

The speaker's face was perfectly grave, but his nostrils were slowly dilating, and Osterfield was conscious of a laugh in the irritatingly calm drawl.

"The court resents counsel's insinuations," he growled. "Insinuations, if the court please," he replied, still speaking affably.

"The interruption of which I complain," he began, in a more serious tone, "came at the crucial moment in my cross-examination of the most important witness in this case. I protested, but your honor saw fit to overrule me, and I know my remedy if your honor erred. But I desire that the fact of this interruption, its cause and duration, be noted on the record together with my objection and exception, and I also ask the court to take notice of the conduct of the witness, who has—"

A red-faced lawyer sitting near the speaker sprang to his feet. "If the court please," he interposed angrily, "I object to the statement of counsel that the witness has communicated with me. Mr. Delaplaine has never moved from the witness chair, and I have not crossed the rail which guards it. Not one word has passed between us."

"Actions sometimes speak louder than words," retorted Maddox, emphatically, without glancing at the attorney. "and I assert that the learned counsel and his own equally learned witness have exchanged signals—" cusations were denied. The court refused to entertain any issue of veracity between counsel, and the defendant's attorney once more objected and excepted. The court then announced, once for all, that the defendant's attorney could take an exception to each and every ruling made by the court.

"Do I understand that you rest your case—Mister—er—Counselor?" "No, sir; I retire from the room," Maddox stuffed the last papers into his bag and closed it with a snap.

Judge Osterfield wrote rapidly in his minute book—so rapidly that he broke his pen. But before he completed his memorandum and snapped out "Judgment for the plaintiff!" Maddox had passed through the swinging doors.

The words of the court crier announcing adjournment were lost in the buzz of excited comment and the sharp commands to "Pass out quietly!" were unheeded by the audience.

The outpouring from Judge Osterfield's court has swept the late arrivals far into the rotunda, where Jarvis Myrick left his companion and disappeared in the crowd. It did not require more than a glance for the rotunda habitués to discover that Mrs. Lorimer was young—scarcely more than a girl—and handsome.

"All ready! I've found a place." Mrs. Lorimer started as she recognized Myrick's voice, and immediately moved away with him. The court-room of Special Term, Part II, was vacant save for Van, the gray-haired clerk, who nodded to Myrick as the couple entered and then disappeared behind his high-topped desk.

"Well, what do you think of him?" he began in a low voice. "Of Mr. Maddox? I thought him quite handsome." "There's a woman's answer for you! I mean what do you think of the way he handled old Osterfield?"

"Right? Of course he was right. There are not half a dozen men at the bar, however, who dare beard the old rascal, and not two in the half-dozen who would gain anything except notoriety by doing it. But Maddox saved his case."

"I'm afraid I didn't understand the whole situation." "Well, I shouldn't have understood it myself if I hadn't happened to be in the court this morning at the beginning of the row. The story is simply this: Maddox didn't want to try that case before Osterfield, and fought hard to have it postponed, but his opponent, Fletcher, forced him to go on. Maddox no doubt feared that Osterfield and Fletcher—who are great pals—would beat him between the lines, and when Osterfield's caller spoiled his cross-examination Maddox probably jumped to the conclusion that the interruption had been arranged beforehand. You look surprised, but I tell you it isn't the first time a thing of that kind has happened in Osterfield's court. He doesn't have a man like Maddox to deal with every day—that's the only difference. I wouldn't have missed it for anything! Did you notice how beautifully he maneuvered? No, of course you couldn't appreciate that; but I tell you his tactics showed that he was sure of himself and knew his business, and that he had taken Osterfield's measure to an inch. You see, all he wanted was to plant a good exception in the record, and he played and worried and scared Osterfield until he did it. A good exception will upset an old decision, and once he had that Maddox could abandon his case and the old scamp do his worst. It took courage to make the move, but the calm nerve and cheek of the thing appealed to me. By jove, I shall never forget Osterfield's face!"

"But didn't he decide against Mr. Maddox?" "Of course; but he had no right to do so. Maddox will appeal and reverse him. Most of the appellate judges hate Osterfield. If Maddox had continued he would have lost his case 'on the merits,' as we say. Now he'll get a new trial and a new judge. Not only that, but he's heard the plaintiff's testimony and the plaintiff hasn't heard his."

his office now you are almost sure to find him in. You think he's the right man for your case—don't you?" Mrs. Lorimer did not answer for a moment. When she spoke it was without looking at her questioner.

"You're certain I have a case, Mr. Myrick?" "Certain!" he repeated in surprise, "Do you feel any doubt about it yourself? I advised you to get a divorce almost a year ago, but you wouldn't listen to me then. I understand you'd thought it all over and changed your mind. Didn't you say you'd rather die than live with Lorimer again? I certainly thought—"

"Yes, yes," she interrupted nervously, "but I'm not living with him—I haven't even seen him for months. I don't need a divorce in order to escape that." "No; but—"

"I don't like to speak of it, but you can't live without money, you know—unless you begin proceedings. I don't believe Lorimer will continue to contribute—"

"I told you I didn't want his money!" she interrupted, almost angrily. "I loathe him and his money, and his house and his family and everything that belongs to him. I can earn my own living. I have done it before, and not so very long ago. If you think that is my reason for—"

"I hoped it was not, Ainslee." Myrick lowered his voice and looked up quickly as he spoke, but Mrs. Lorimer was gazing straight before her and took no notice of his interruption.

"As long as I am married to that man," she continued, rapidly, "I have to use his name—I am constantly reminded of his presence; all my independence is fettered; I am conscious of the law gives him certain claims upon me—Oh, I can't explain it, if you don't understand; but the very thought of being bound to him in any way chokes me. I want to be free. Can't you understand? I just want—to—be—free!"

Mrs. Lorimer spoke in a low tone, but her voice trembled with excitement and her cheeks flushed. Van, happening to glance up from his work, wondered who Myrick's handsome client was, and Myrick, watching her, thought he had never seen Ainslee Lorimer look more lovely.

"I understand," he answered, sympathetically. "The words seemed to calm Mrs. Lorimer, for the flush faded from her cheeks and when she spoke again after a little pause her voice was steady and dispassionate."

"I want to be free, Mr. Myrick; but I must be sure I have a good case. I could not endure failure. Do you fear the outcome? Is that the reason why you will not represent me?" Her eyes met his as she put the question. They were wonderful gray eyes, fearless, searching and appealing—difficult eyes to lie to. Myrick spoke directly to them as he answered.

"You know it is not, Ainslee." It was the third time he had so addressed her, but Mrs. Lorimer's expression showed she had not noticed it before.

"You have been very kind, Mr. Myrick," she began, slowly, but— She hesitated, and her eyes again met his for an instant.

"You don't want me to call you Ainslee. Very well; I won't. I thought perhaps—perhaps you would rather hear it than—the other name." Mrs. Lorimer glanced gratefully at the speaker.

"I would much rather hear it," she admitted. "You are very thoughtful, Jarvis. You cannot act because you know Dick Lorimer and have been his guest. That is your reason, isn't it?" "That is one reason," he began, tentatively. Then he paused and glanced at his companion, but something in Mrs. Lorimer's expression warned him to omit further explanations.

"Yes, that is the reason," he said. Mrs. Lorimer rose from her chair. "I understand—I understand perfectly. You have been more than kind. I will see Mr. Maddox in the morning. Please give me his address again."

He wrote it on an envelope and handed it to her as they left the court room. (To be continued.)

love I'll be hanged if I'd let you have it," he said, scowling. Frank finished dressing and hastened from the room. Three-quarters of an hour later he was looking back toward the "L" station. The ring was in his pocket and, from time to time, his fingers touched caressingly the little square box that contained it. He knew, without asking, to whom it belonged; and he had often met this woman on Miss Laughton's hand. She had beautiful hands—slender and white, with fingers pink-tipped and tapering. Charlie must have held them. He shut his lips firmly on the thought. Charlie was his brother. If he were only steady he could bear it; but Charlie would break her heart. He shook his head, as if to chase away the torturing thought which crowded his brain and tried to lose himself in the rattle of the cars.

Beecher in the South. "Then," said Mr. Beecher, his face lighting up, "I want to offer you this right hand, which, in its own way, fought against you and yours years ago, but which I would now willingly sacrifice to make the sunny south prosperous and happy. Will you take it, general?" There was a moment's hesitation, a moment of deathlike stillness in the hall, and then Fitz-Hugh Lee was on his feet, his hand was extended across the footlights and was quickly met by the warm grasp of the preacher's. At first there was a murmur, half of surprise and half of doubtfulness, from the audience, then there was a hesitating clapping of hands, and before Beecher had unclosed the hand of Robert E. Lee's nephew there were cheers such as were never before heard in old Mozart, though it had been the scene of many a war and political meet. But this was only the beginning of the enthusiasm. When the notes subsided Mr. Beecher continued: "When I go back home I shall proudly tell that I have grasped the hand of the nephew of the great southern chieftain; I shall tell my people that I went to the Confederate capital with a heart full of love for the people whom my principles once obliged me to oppose and that I was met halfway by the brave southerners, who can forgive as well as they can fight."

A STORY FOR THE DAY

The Turquoise Ring

By Laura Gilbert Gunther—From American Grange Bulletin.

Frank Mantion stood in front of his dresser, raking over the contents of the little flat jewelry case. He was dressing for a dance at Miss Laughton's and his white outfit links were missing. As usual, when anything of his was not in its accustomed place, he searched his brother's belongings before overturning his own. Charlie's chiffonier stood in the opposite corner. He crossed the room, pulled out the top drawer and began overhauling a tangle of gloves, ties, socks and handkerchiefs. In the back part of the drawer was an overturned leather box. Under it, in a medley of studs, pins and buttons were the links. He picked them from the litter, roughly smoothed the top of the confusion into a semblance of order and was just closing the drawer when something caught his eye. It was a little pink slip. On it was written, in a coarse, stubby hand, "Turquoise and diamond marriage ring," and there was a loan of thirty-five dollars.

Love vs. Religion

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

We are told that Love goes where it is sent. But the stubborn and willful mind of the mortal man or woman is oftentimes the sender. It seems to be the nature of a certain order of men and women to desire what is difficult and dangerous to possess. A woman, brought up in the Protestant religion, has been thrown in close association with a Roman Catholic priest, and she has become infatuated. She imagines it to be the passion of a lifetime, and believes her whole earthly existence is to be made unhappy by this hopeless love. She has tried separation and absence, but the love still dominates her. "Is it right, is it natural, is it necessary," she says, "for this man to give up all ties of home, and wife, and children, to earn God's approval? 'Do you believe he is following God's will?' " "Does God make human beings with natural emotions and desires and affections, and then demand that they crucify them? " "Are they any better when they do this? " "This priest is the most sunny natured and cheerful man I have ever seen, but I cannot believe he is really satisfied with his life. It seems so unnatural to me! " "Do you think the vows of celibacy and poverty necessary to the living of a religious life? " In answer to these questions I can only say what my personal beliefs upon this subject are. I am neither a Roman Catholic nor a Protestant. I believe in a Ruling Spirit or Intellect, and Love, and a succession of lives. I believe in the immortality of ALL LIFE, and in the existence of innumerable realms above, and below us, where disembodied spirits dwell. And I believe that each man should worship the CREATOR of this universe in his own way and according to his own ideals and convictions. The Protestant clergyman who works among the poor and helps to the fallen, while he enjoys his home life and performs the duties of a good husband and father, is serving God in accordance with his ideals. The Roman Catholic, or the Hindu, or the Buddhist priest who takes the voluntary vows of celibacy and poverty AND KEEPS THEM, devoting all his vital powers to religious work and thoughts and aspirations, is serving his Creator in HIS way, and he ever tries to lead him from his resolutions IS DOING WRONG. This applies only to the priests who have voluntarily chosen this life; it does not apply to those who have been driven into it by parents, or by traditions, and compelled to take up a course which is distasteful to them or for which they are eminently unfitted. No man should become a priest unless from overwhelming convictions and a dominating desire to devote his whole life to spiritual things. Judged from a human standpoint, the vows are unnatural, and unless in Ireland we went about a good deal together in jaunting cars and extracted a lot of high grade Hibernian wit from the drivers. One day we were driven to our hotel in Belfast through a drizzling rain. When I paid the driver I said: "Are you wet, Pat?" With a merry twinkle of his eye he replied: "Sure, your honor, if I was as wet outside as I am inside I'd be as dry as a bone." Mr. Beecher's quickness of repartee, of which Americans knew well, was entirely equal to Irish demands upon it. One day in Ireland, after he had made an address to a Sunday school, a bewitching young colleen came up to where we stood chatting and said: "Mr. Beecher, you have won my heart." "Well," replied the great man quickly with a sunburst of a smile, "you can't get along without a heart, so suppose you take mine?"

Wit of Ingersoll. Ingersoll himself was as quick as the quickest at repartee. One day a malignant believer in an awful time for the wicked after death asked him: "Are you trying to abolish hell?" "Yes," said Ingersoll. "Well, you can't do it." "You'll be sorry if I don't," the celeb replied. Agnostic though he was, Ingersoll is frequently quoted by preachers, for in one respect he was very like the best of them—he never wearied of urging men to right living, not through fear of eternal punishment, but because goodness is its own excuse for being. No pastor was ever more severe than he in condemnation of everything mean and wicked in human life. In his lighter moments he was one of the merriest companions that any one could meet. No matter what he had to say, he would illustrate it with a story. One day he was talking of people who have a knack of saying the right thing at the wrong time and told the following as a sample: "A well-to-do merchant out west lived in a town not remarkable for much but malaria and funerals. His wives had a way of dying, and whenever he lost one he went into another county and married again. A loquacious lady in the healthy county kindly assisted him in finding young women who were willing to marry him and take the chances. About six months after burying his fourth wife he appeared again in the healthy county, called on his friend and was greeted with: "How's your wife, Mr. Thompson?" "She's dead," he replied sadly. "What! Dead again?" the woman cried.

Talmage and Cartoonists. The late T. De Witt Talmage never lost a chance to emphasize a point with a good story. As I knew him to be a good man and a first rate fellow, I used to be indignant at newspaper abuse of him, and particularly with some caricatures that were made of his expressive features. I took occasion to tell him of this, but he replied: "Marshall, I'm as thick skinned as a rhinoceros, and I never mind what is said about me. Some of the caricatures annoy me, but only because they pain people I love—my wife and family. You see, my boy, it doesn't pay to be too sensitive, for it breaks a man up, and that's the worst thing that can happen to him if he has any duties in the world. Besides, everything depends on the point of view. Once a German family emigrated to America and settled in Milwaukee. The oldest son, in his teens, concluded he would start out for himself. He 'fetched up' in New York and without any money, so he wrote home: 'Dear father, I am sick and lonely and without a single cent. Send me some money quick. Your son John.' The old man couldn't read, so he took the letter to a friend, a great strapping butcher with a loud, gruff voice and an arrogant manner of reading. When the letter was read to him the father was furious and declared he would not send his son a cent, not even to keep him from starving. But on his way home he kept thinking about the letter and wanting to hear it again, so he took it to another friend, a consumptive undertaker, who had a gentle voice with an appealing infection in it. When this man read the letter the father burst into tears and exclaimed: 'My poor boy! I shall send him all the money he wants.' You see, the same thing viewed from a different point takes on a different color." A Parkhurst Story. Rev. Dr. Parkhurst of New York is a delightful talker, full of anecdotes and reminiscences. He has no patience with narrow, hidebound denominationalists. He defined them by telling me a story of a minister who preached a sermon so touching that all his hearers were melted to tears—all but one man. When asked how he had succeeded in keeping his eyes dry the man replied: "Well, you see, this isn't my church."

Reggie sat by the door looking out. The rain was pouring in torrents, which fact Reggie in a bad humor, he had just finished some of his little comrades to play baseball that afternoon...

While Reggie was thus engaged his mother who was leaning in the doorway Reggie had just left—came to the door and saw what the little fellow was up to...

Reggie, scowling, sat in the big porch chair and watched the rain falling on the roof. He was leaning in the doorway Reggie had just left—came to the door and saw what the little fellow was up to...

Reggie discovered retouching his grandmother's photograph.

Reggie's mother locked the pantry door, put the key in her pocket and returned to the sitting room, leaving the door ajar with a very big hole in the wall...

While Reggie thus pondered his mother with a look of asking herself mental questions. Why was Reggie such a mischievous child, and how could she be so sure that he was doing her duty by her little boy...

Reggie's mother felt a little twinge of conscience. Why had she not understood the question of whether it had not been better for her to have spent more time entertaining and teaching her little boy than to have used up so much energy in reprimanding him for his mischievousness...

Reggie's mother said to herself, "I'll go and see what Reggie is up to." She opened the door and saw Reggie sitting on the floor, looking at a photograph...

Let's Have A Laugh

WHO WOULDN'T BE AN ARCTIC EXPLORER THESE WARM DAYS?

THERE WERE OTHERS.

As I was putting in a couple of hours loafing around the village store and post-office I got into conversation with a villager about the war in the East, and in speaking of the naval battle in the Sea of Japan I characterized Togo as the greatest hero of the age.

"Well, I dunno about that," replied the man. "We've got a few heroes right in this town who ain't so slow. Come down and lemme introduce you to the cooper."

We went down to the cooper shop and I was introduced, and when we were outside again my friend said:

"Don't look much like a hero, does he? But lemme tell you what he did. He went up to the city about a year ago and stayed over night at a hotel. Blew out the six gas jets in his room instead of turning them off, and the gas was going all night. Got up as chipper as a squirrel in the morning and turned two hand-springs. The hotel said they had lost $2,000 worth of gas, but the stuff never even made Bill sneeze. Come down and I'll introduce to the Blacksmith."

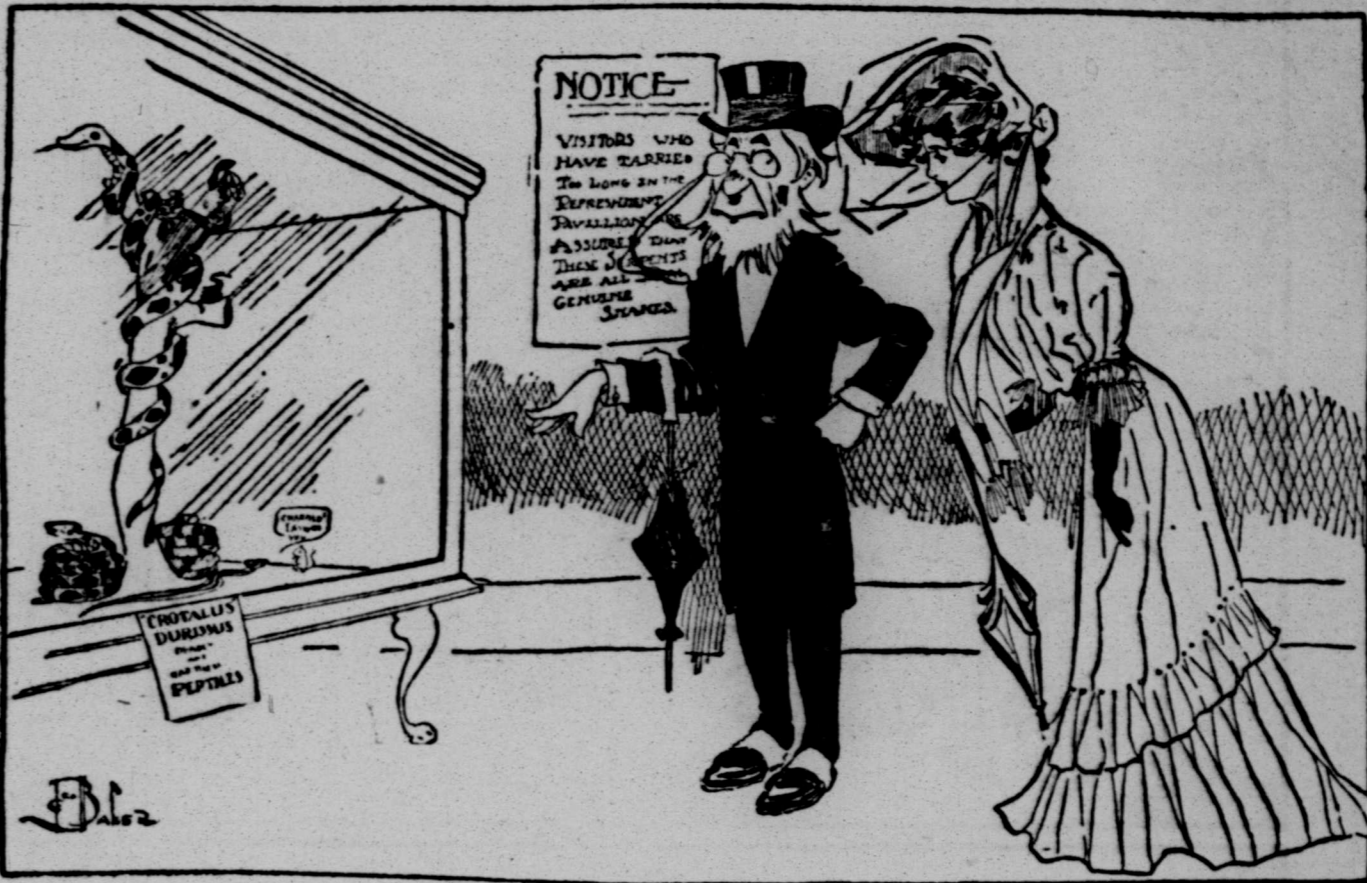

"Don't look much like a hero, does he?"

Introduction he clapped me on the shoulder and said:

"Nuthin' heroic about Jim's look, but lemme tell you sumthin'. He went away to Ohio to visit friends, and they put him in a foldin' bed. The foot ris up and caught him and stood him on his head. He was a prisoner for three days, but he never boiled. Just waited till the old bed got tired out and sunk down agin and then he crawled out. Let's go over to the sawmill and see George Coots."

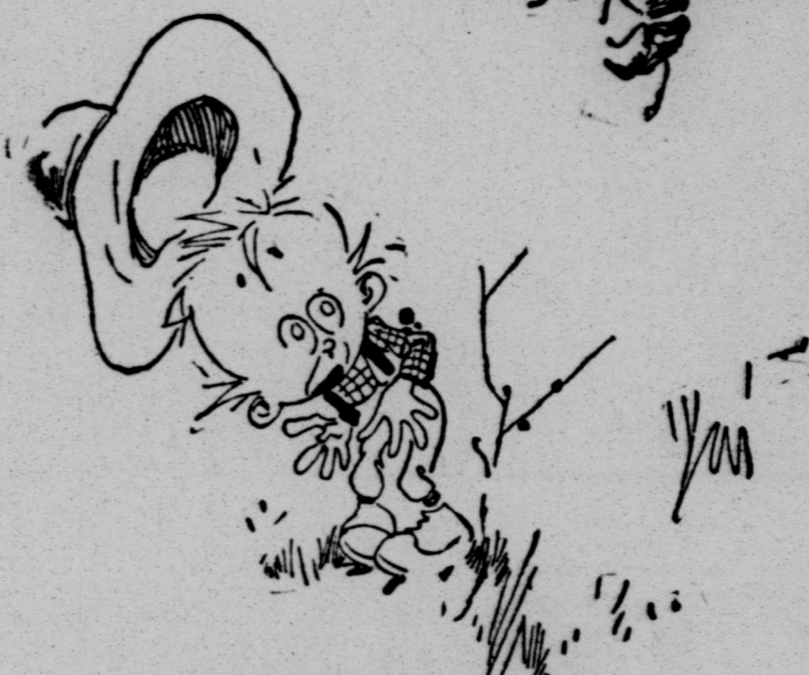

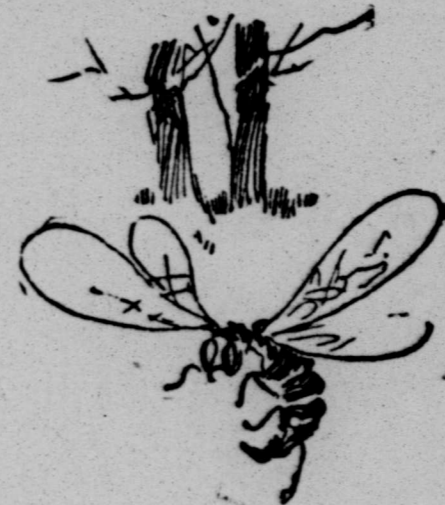

I went over to the mill and got a third introduction, and on the way back to the postoffice my friend said:

"George is cross-eyed and red-headed, but there are no flies on him. A tin peddler come along last summer and jumped seven feet. George took off his coat and spit on his hands and jumped six inches better and saved the town from goin' all to smash. Had to bust a lung and break a rib to do it, but that's the kind of stuff he's made of. I don't say that Togo isn't a hero, but when you are talkin' about 'em jest remember that Smithville has shoved three of them to the front within a year and has got more comin'."

SNAKEOLOGY.

Professor—In what order would you place snakes, Miss Radcliffe?
Miss Radcliffe—The moccasin at the foot, the garter somewhat higher, and the box near the head.

"I've heard it called the busy bee," remarked our little friend.
"I know blamed well he's busy, for I felt his business end."

A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

When the prisoner had been brought to the bar for disorderly conduct he told how "the other fellow" had pitched into him without the slightest excuse, and he was adding further particulars when the judge interrupted with:

"You have been arrested before?"

"Never, sir."

"Sixty days, sir!"

"But your face and voice are familiar to me."
"That's because I did some plumbing at your house last winter."
"Oh, I remember now. There was a pin-hole leak in a pipe, and you hung around for a day and a half. I have been wanting to see you ever since. Sixty days, sir!"

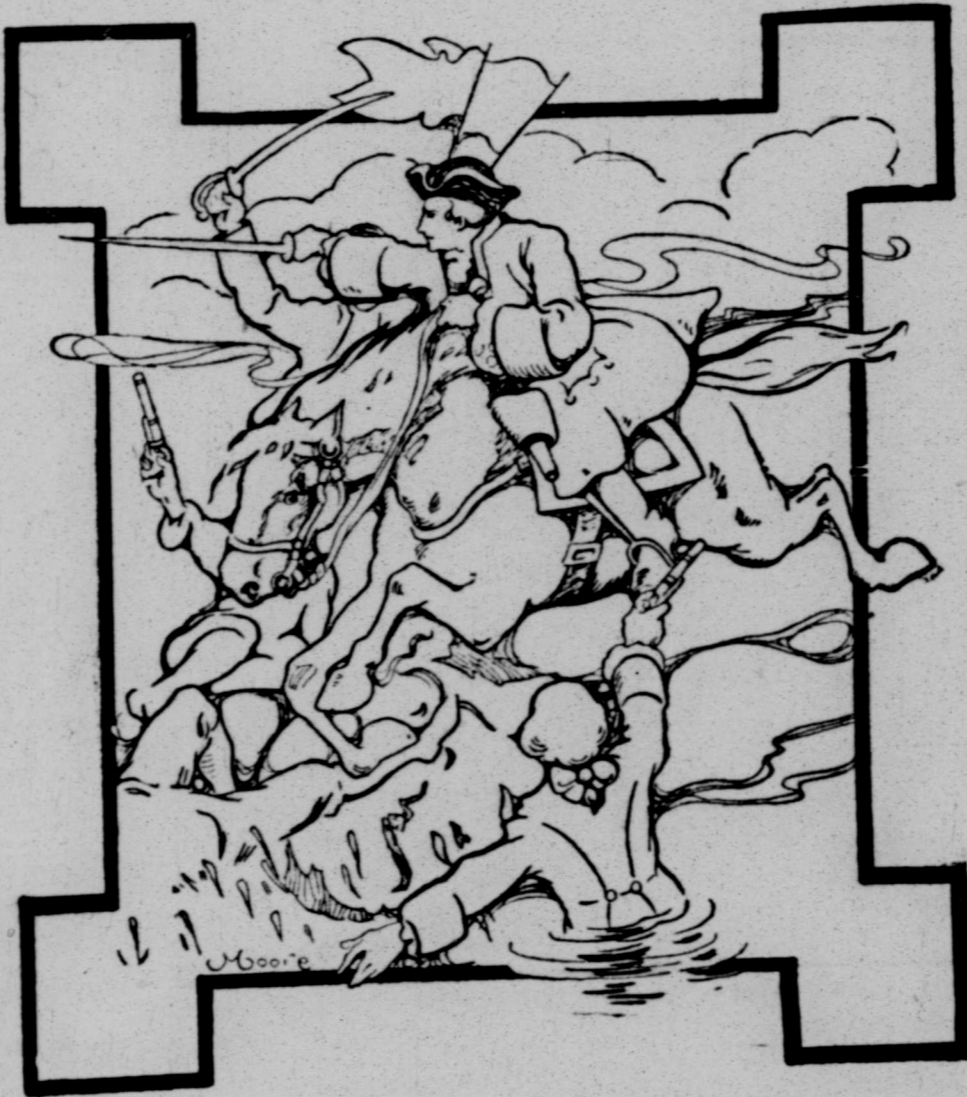

HIS ADVICE.

The Novelist—I can write a novel in a month, but I can't sell it in five years.
The Poet—Maybe if you wrote a novel in five years you might be able to sell it in a month.

THE REASON WHY.

Rimer (proudly)—Editors never send my verses back.
Miss Knox—You neglect to enclose stamps, I suppose.

FIND THE CAPTAIN.

They charge the enemy with swords,
And never do they fear
But what they'll win the victory
For their captain's somewhere near
The captain is as broad a man
As e'er brass buttons wore;
He's led his men through bitter wars
A dozen times before.

BOUND TO BEAT.

At the junction of two highways in a certain county in Iowa I found the directions on the guideboard all faded out, and, noticing a farmer at work in his field, I hitched the horse and went over to him and asked:

"Will you kindly tell me how far it is to Palmsville?"

"Have you asked anyone else?" queried the farmer as he leaned on his hoe.

"Well, then, it's 'leven."

"Yes, I asked a man back here about a mile."
"Was his name Bill Scorel?"
"Yes, I think it was."
"What'd he say?"
"I understood him to say that it was nine miles."
"Well, then, it's 'leven."
"I took his word for it and went on, but found the distance only seven miles. Returning that very next day I encountered the farmer mowing weeds along the highway and said:
"Why did you tell me yesterday that it was eleven miles to Palmsville? You must have known that it was only seven."
"Bill Scorel told you nine, didn't he?"
"Yes."
"Well, Bill Scorel thinks he's the biggest liar around here, and I told you 'leven to show him that he'd got a hard man to beat when he set out to git the best of Jim Watson."

"Was it green, Willie?"
"Yep, but not half as green as I was to tackle it!"

THOSE UP-TO-DATE FLYERS.

Wear—What yer doin' wid all dem straps, Rhodie?
Rhodie—Why yer have ter have dem if yer wants ter travel in style, so as you can fasten yerself to de trucks.

THEIR IDEA.

Russian Colonel—War is very expensive.
Russian General—Very; our bill for typewriter supplies this month was simply awful.

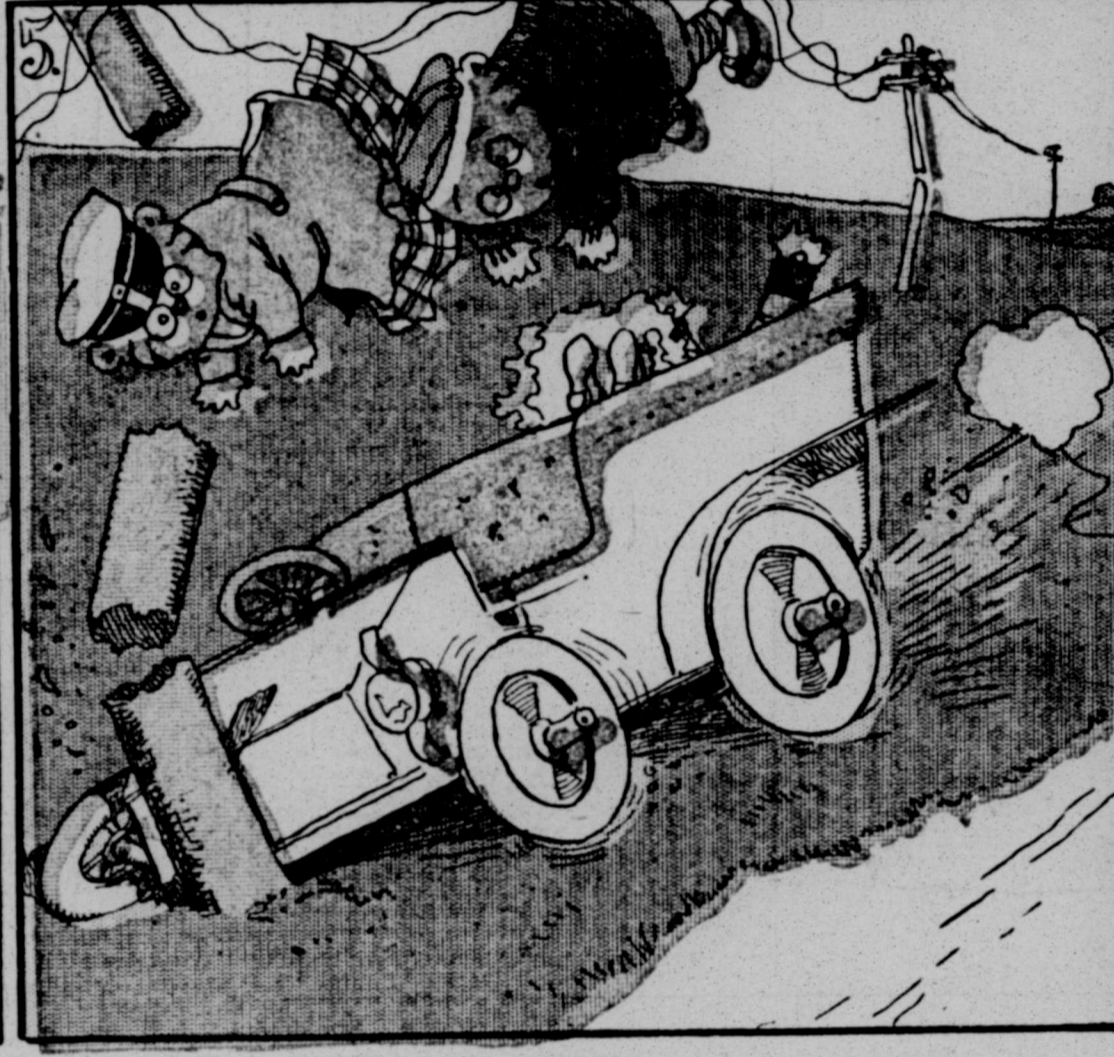

REVENGE.

He—Jackson is such a friend of the Japanese that he goes to almost any length to show his hatred of the Russians.
She—Indeed!
He—Yes; he even spells it with a small r.

FOXY GRANDPA

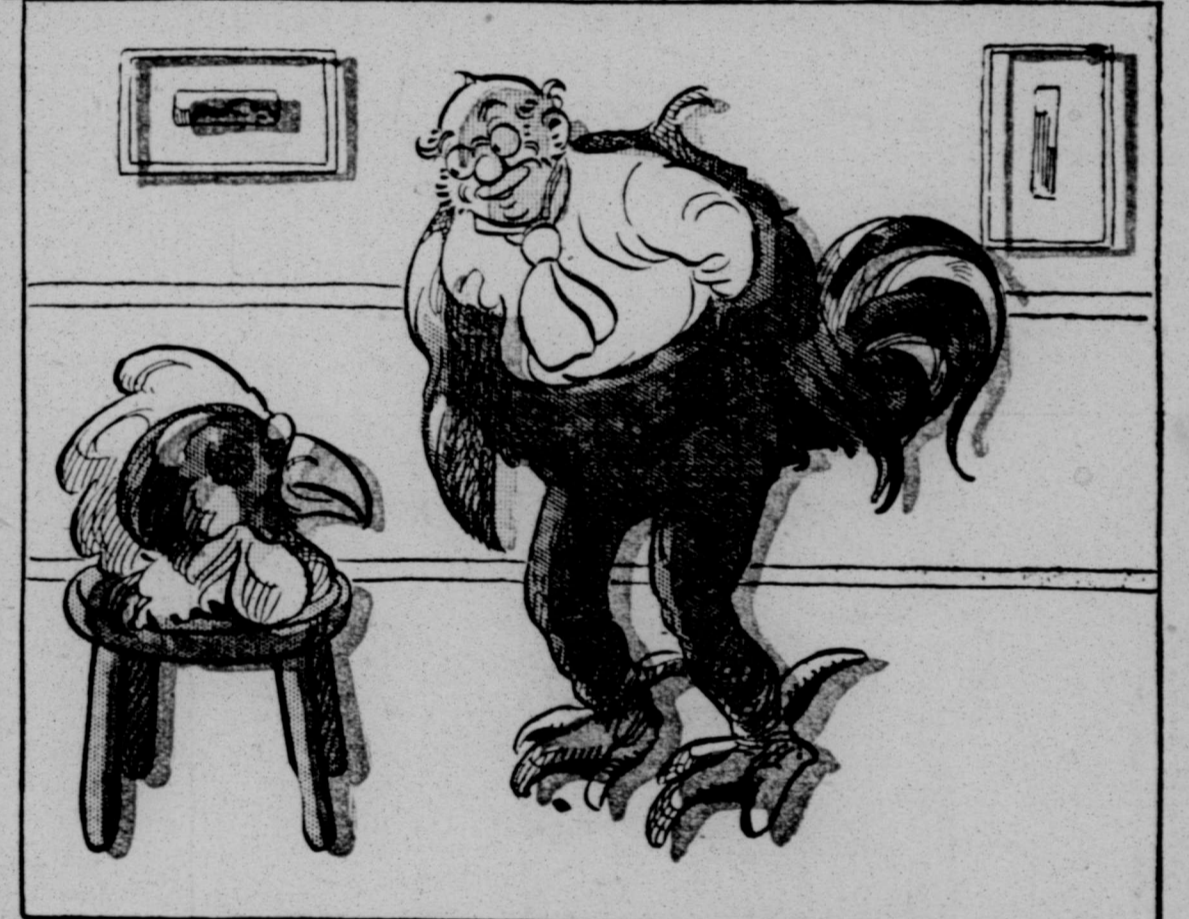

THE BOYS CHASE THE CHICKENS, BUT A TREMENDOUS ROOSTER NEARLY FRIGHTENS THEM OUT OF THEIR WITS

1. BOYS: "While Gran'pa's busy reading let's go out and have some fun chasing the chickens."

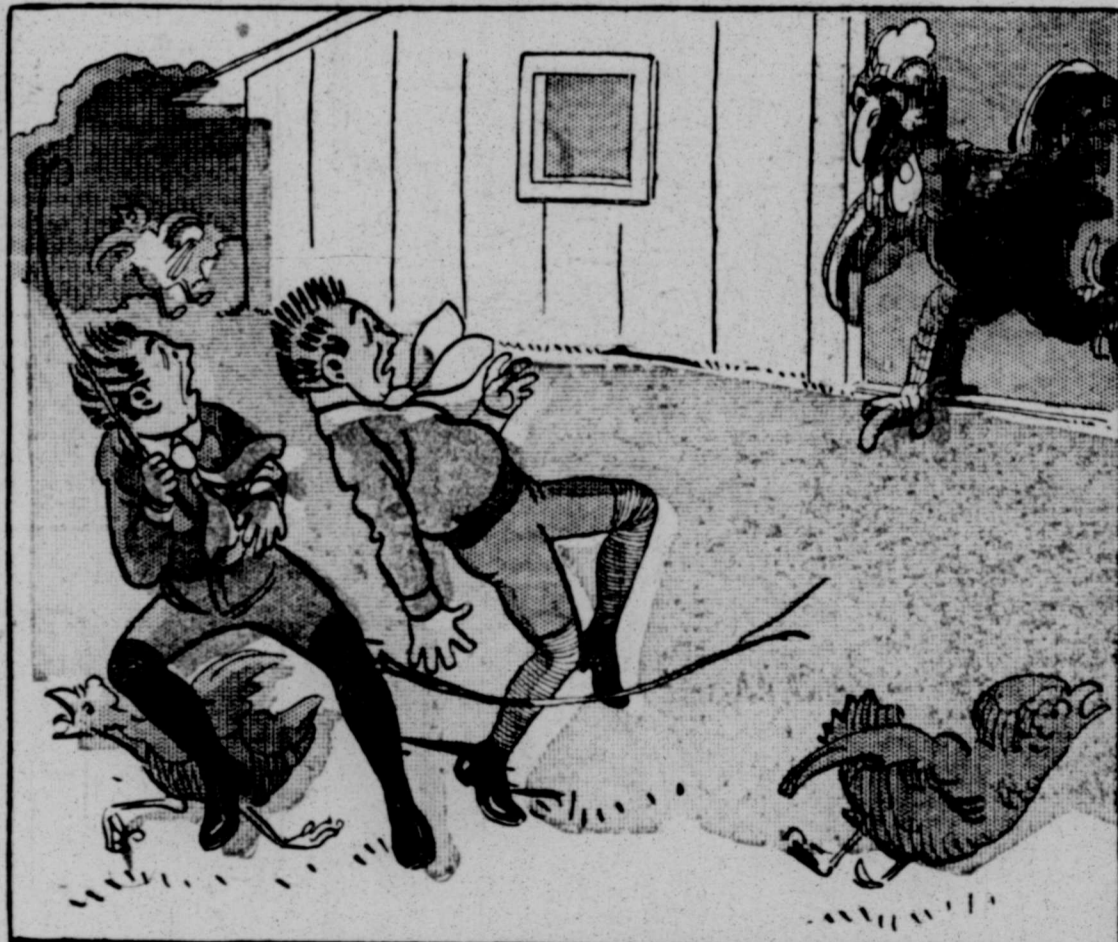

2. GRANDPA: "So those young mischiefs are going to chase my chickens. I'll soon put a stop to their little game."

3. GRANDPA: "How lucky I saved this old costume."

4. BOYS: "Hoop! Just see them run! Oh, but this is great sport."

5. BOYS: "Goodness! Look! What is this coming?"

6. GRANDPA: "Cock-a-doodle-doo! Well, I guess those youngsters won't bother my chickens soon again."
