PRINCIPAL IS CHARGED WITH ASSAULTING BOY

Punishment at School Being Followed by Trial in the County Court

J. Sampson McGee, principal of the Eighth ward school, was today placed on trial in the county court on a charge of aggravated assault, alleged to have been made March 31 upon Clarence Moore, a pupil of his school, aged 11 years.

Young Moore was placed on the stand this morning and told of the affair as it really happened. He said that he kicked an old can out of his way. That he was taken into a room along with three other boys and given a whipping with a stick that was a limb from a ledge.

Continuing Clarence said: "I was standing up part of the time and sitting down part of the time. I started to run when Professor McGee caught me and choked me until I couldn't get my breath. He wore the stick out on me and then got another and wore that almost out. Dr. West examined my body and I was then taken to a photographer where a picture of my injuries was taken. He whipped me because I kicked an old tin can.

"The trouble occurred at the close of the afternoon recess March 31. I cursed Professor McGee just once after he had struck me fifteen times. He took both hands to the switch, when I cursed him. He caught me by the throat and shoved me into a corner of the room. After the whipping was over the professor said he was sorry that he had to punish me as he had. He told me to take it back, and when I said yes, he hit me two or three times after that. Alex Moore, father of the boy, the next witness. He said: "I am a contractor and builder. My boy has always been delicate and under the care of a physician. I saw the boy on the afternoon that he was whipped. I found him most horribly beaten up. I brought him to the county attorney's office where the case was laid over for County Attorney McLean. There were marks on the boy's neck, shoulders, arms, body and legs. Yes, I believe in whipping in moderation. I never taught my boy not to talk a whipping in school, and have always taught him not to swear. He has not been in good health since he was so heavily punished. I don't consider him a sound boy since the whipping.

Dr. W. B. West, county physician, who attended the boy, was next placed on the stand. He said he examined the damages to Clarence Moore's person and found one large bruise just above the knee of the right leg, but the principal injury was in the right side. There were other bruises not so distinct. He did not think the bruises on the leg could have been made by a switch, and was most probably made with a heavier instrument.

Professor McGee testified that he whipped the boy with two switches, but denied the charge made by Alex Moore. He said further that the boy cursed him.

The taking of testimony will be continued on the resumption of court this afternoon.

BOX FROM HOME HELD TRAIN ROBBERS' LOOT

Daring Crime of Early Days Is Recalled by Texas Railroad Man

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 8.—"I never was probably never such another lot of cut-throats and desperate men gathered together in one bunch in any part of the world as those who followed the building of the Southern Pacific railroad between San Antonio and Texas," remarked Jesse Fry, traveling freight agent of the Iron Mountain, a few days ago. Mr. Fry was with the passenger department of the old Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio railroad, now a part of the Southern Pacific, in those days and to him fell the duty of opening up the new stations at the end of the line as construction progressed.

"I have read of the poker games and gun plays that used to occur in Dodge and Abilene and other frontier towns, but none of them were a patching to incident that we were of almost nightly occurrence in the construction camps 'at the end of the line,'" he continued. "You see, the riff-raff of Mexico and the United States was gathered along the Rio Grande border in those days. The officers of the law made slight pretense of regulating affairs. The hunted outlaws who had fled to the remote canyons bordering the Rio Grande came out of their hiding and hid things with a high hand in the railroad camps. None of the railroad employes expected to do any better than make both ends meet from month to month and from day to day. I know that in my own case I would no sooner get my monthly pay than I would sit in a poker game with some of the cut-throats. It made little matter whether I won or lost money. If I got up from the game with money in my pockets it would be gone before morning. The thieves were so bold about it that they would rob you no matter what precaution you took. It was a pretty crowd."

Was Expecting a Box

"I had a remarkable experience at Dryden, a new station at the end of the line, which I had just opened up. One morning a handsomely dressed fellow entered the little shack which I was using for telegraph office and station. He introduced himself to me by some name which I do not now remember and told me that he was going over into Mexico on a mining prospecting trip, but that he would have to wait at Dryden until a box of some kind of supplies, which he needed, showed up. He was a well educated, quiet and reserved sort of fellow and seemed quite out of place in that rough community. I took quite a fancy to him and there being no such thing as hotel accommodations at the front I invited the stranger to share my bunk in the little station building. He spent much time with me during the first few days and we got along famously together. It did not take long for me to discover, however, that he was not the tenderfoot that I took him to be. He ran up against some of the tough men of the camp in the course of our nightly prowls and he held his own with the best of them when they undertook to 'dress him down' in games of poker."

"He had been at Dryden about a week and seemed to be getting anxious about getting off on his prospecting trip. He said that his health was not the best and he thought that a year or so of roughing it in the mountains of Mexico would do him good. He made a few casual inquiries from day to day as to the arrival of the box for which he was waiting. The long-expected box came out on the mixed passenger train from San Antonio one evening. It was dumped off with a lot of other express matter and it almost escaped my eye until I saw the name of the stranger written across it. I took it into the office and pitched it over on a lot of other goods."

"That box came for you this evening," I said to the stranger when he came in after supper.

"That so," he said, without much show of interest.

PENNANT AWARD TO BE MADE TONIGHT

League Officers Called to Meet in This City for the Official Canvass

Official award of the Texas League Pennant will be made to the Fort Worth team at a meeting of league officials called to be held in this city tonight at 9 o'clock.

At the meeting the owners of the various clubs will canvass the results of the season and declare the pennant awarded. The Curtiss protest of the umpire to game on the ground of an erroneous decision was not carried before the league officers at the recent meeting held and is therefore considered dropped, going away with all doubt as to the result of the season.

Even had the decision been an incorrect one, which is denied by practically all persons present, the question of a balk is one of fact for the umpire to decide. His decision having been made, it would be impossible for the league officers to say it was incorrect.

The pennant will float over Haines park through the season of 1906.

or will you wait until morning?" I asked.

"Oh, tomorrow will be time enough," he answered. "Just let it stay where it is until I get ready to go."

"He sat up late with me that night and we talked of different things. "I will hate to leave you," he said when we had turned in and were lying together on the wide bunk, "but I must be getting away from here tomorrow. This is too tough a place for me. I want to get out into the solitude of the mountains."

"Next morning the stranger got up early and the sun was still low in the east when he rode up on a good horse. To the saddle was strapped a big supply of provisions and a blanket. He left the horse standing at the door of the station while he came in and told me that he was now ready for the box that had come the evening before. He signed for the box and when I handed it to him I observed the light that kindled in his eyes as he gave it a quick inspection.

"It is just a few things from back home," he explained. "It does a fellow good to get something from home when he is way out in this God-forsaken country."

"He strapped the box to the saddle and gave me a warm good-by, not forgetting to thank me for the kindness that I had shown him.

Crossed River to Mexico

"Dryden is within a hundred yards or so of the Rio Grande, which was easily fordable at that point at that time of the year. The last I saw of my visitor was when his horse was climbing the bank of the Mexican side of the river and turned into a canyon that led down on that side of the stream. The fellow turned in his saddle and waved me a farewell with his big sombrero.

"I was sitting at my telegraph instrument the following evening when I received the following telegram from St. Louis, Mo.:

"Hold box shipped by express, covered by way bill No. 347."

"That was the identical box which had come addressed to the stranger and which he had taken with him into Mexico. I wired a reply that the box had already been signed for and taken out of the office. Three days later a man got off the train at Dryden and introduced himself to me as the chief of detectives for the express company which operated on one of the roads running out of St. Louis. He informed me that the box which had come to the stranger and which had been covered off by him contained $50,000. This

PROSECUTING THE BEEF TRUST
The public is reassured that justice will overtake the infamously beef trust, now that Attorney General Moody is conducting the fight at Chicago in person. The criminal corporations which have violated the law are facing a relentless prosecution. Every corporation included in the trust is facing imprisonment and a fine.

There may be some difficulty in the mind of a layman, in grasping the idea of seizing a corporation and packing it off to jail. This, we feel sure, will not bother the department of justice for a moment. The distinction between corporations and individuals seems to be hopelessly lost by the common people. They confuse officials with companies, and cling to the obsolete notion that the acts of a corporation are the acts of its officers. In pending cases, for example, the common people seem to think an attempt is being made to prosecute persons who happen to be officers of companies forming the beef trust. Nothing could be further from the precedent established by the department of justice.

In the celebrated case of Paul Morton, vice president of the Santa Fe railroad company, it was explained by the department of justice that corporations, and not their officers, are the real culprits. This construction of the law was approved by the president, who pointed out that Mr. Morton, in frankly admitting the guilt of his corporation, had aided in exposing other criminals. The fact that nobody has ever been punished is neither here nor there. It is the construction of the law that we are discussing.

According to the Paul Morton case—and the department of justice will be consistent, of course, without respect of persons—the attorney general will concentrate his energies upon securing the conviction and imprisonment of the beef trust companies. The officers of the beef trust are in the same position as that occupied by Mr. Morton. Therefore, they are entitled to every consideration. There can be no personal vindictiveness in this business. Personally, the beef trust conspirators are entitled to immunity. The corporations, however, must pay the penalty laid down upon flagrant violators of the law.

The public cares very little how the result is reached technically provided the beef trust is summarily put out of business. The contention of the Washington paper to the effect that the case of Paul Morton furnishes a precedent for failure to convict the beef trust magnates is doubtless a piece of factious pleasantries predicated upon the action of President Roosevelt in scoring the Santa Fe railway company, while honoring and exonerating the individual who openly confessed his guilt. So far as the packers are concerned, personally, they are under personal indictments as well as corporate indictments, and if the Paul Morton precedent affords them immunity in one direction there is a possibility of conviction in the other.

The live stock producers of the country did not have much faith in the intentions of the government when the beef trust investigation was first inaugurated and later eclipsed by the celebrated Garfield report. But when the government began to weave such a strong web about the men and corporations charged with defying the law confidence grew stronger and has increased in strength with each subsequent development. The fact that the attorney general of the United States is engaged in making the fight for conviction personally and is not depending upon the efforts of a few incompetent subordinates, has greatly revived public confidence in the outcome. The further fact that the packers have been refused any clemency on a plea of guilty, is pretty conclusive evidence that the government is convinced of its ability to convict and is determined to inflict the extreme penalty in the event conviction is secured. Conviction is earnestly desired if the men are guilty, and the punishment should be fully commensurate with the enormity of the offense.

ment should be fully commensurate with the enormity of the offense.
There can be no questioning the alarm of the packers over the situation. The proposition to plead guilty on certain contingencies was ample evidence of the fact they realize they are in a tight corner. Now that the plan has been devised to fight the indictments on a technicality has been decided upon, it is evident that the old Scotch verdict of guilty but not proven is what the big packers earnestly desire. The cases against them have been postponed until Sept. 18, in order that they may have more time to prepare their pleadings, but it is believed they are going to be prosecuted to the limit at that time, and some lively developments are just a little bit ahead.

In the meantime, however, we should bear in mind that indictment is not prima facie evidence of guilt. The law presumes all men to be innocent until they have been proven guilty. The government has succeeded in indicting these men for alleged violation of the law, and believes it has sufficient evidence at hand to convict them. If the government is able to do this, then it will make good, and the result ought to be all that the producing element of the country could desire. But the cases are yet to be tried on their merits, and judgment must be suspended until that event transpires.

OUR PENITENTIARY POPULATION
It requires two large state penitentiaries to accommodate the men who have been convicted of crime in Texas, not that Texas is more prolific in crime than other states in the union, but because Texas is so much larger than any of the other states. The fact that both of these penal institutions are full to overflowing is also a fine commentary on the manner in which the laws of this state are enforced. The man who commits crime in Texas usually has to pay the penalty. Judges and jurors are not noted for the leniency they exercise in dealing with the average Texas criminal. There are now in the two state penitentiaries a total of 2,637 criminals, serving time for the commission of the following crimes:

Table listing crimes and their corresponding numbers: Burglary (1,081), Murder (965), Assault (775), Criminal assault and attempt (277), Forgery (142), Incest (28), Perjury (28), Swindling (28), Selling mortgaged property (11), Unlawful marriage (10), Bigamy (8), Assault to rob (9), Receiving stolen property (11), Obstructing railroad (11), Altering brands (6), Administering poison (6), Aiding escape (4), Concealing a criminal (4), Maiming (4), Seduction (3), Offering bribe (2), Illegal voting (1), Fence cutting (1).

It will be noticed that about one-half of the total is composed of people who have been convicted of some form of theft. The total number of such convictions is 1,856. Doubtless every one of these would insist upon interrogation that they are entirely innocent of the charges upon which they were convicted, but the law and the evidence speak to the contrary. Nearly one-third of the total is composed of persons convicted of murder, and the two crimes of theft and murder make a very grave showing. The simple act of stealing is not so heinous as that of murder, and while it is reasonable to suppose there are more rogues outside the penitentiary walls than inside them, the figures given serve to show that stealing is alarmingly common in this state.

When we stop to consider the fact that the roll of the penitentiaries contain the names of 965 persons convicted of murder, we may realize that it means nearly 1,000 people who have died violent deaths in Texas, where the use of the six-shooter has been entirely too free and liberal in the past. If we had enjoyed the benefits of a more drastic anti-six shooter law in the past the number of murders thus recorded would not show such an amazing total. It is sincerely to be hoped that the new law on this subject will operate as a detriment in this direction for the future.

The other crimes reflected on the penitentiary calendar are not out of proportion to the size of the state, perhaps, but it is to be hoped that as Texas continues to prosper and develop our penitentiary population will show a decided inclination to grow more beautifully less.

The little Japs are wanting to fight so badly that they are threatening to scrap among themselves. The popular outbreaks in Japan on account of the peace negotiations with Russia serve to show the martial spirit is very highly developed among the little yellow men.

There will be no tears in Texas over the resignation of Dr. D. E. Salmon, head of the Federal bureau of animal industry. The man who knew no more than Salmon as to the proper method of shipping cattle to market ought to retire from public life.

The farmers of the country are making a mistake in fixing an arbitrary price on their cotton. Speculation on the part of the producer is just as reprehensible as it is on the part of the gambler.

President Roosevelt did not act favorably on the suggestion made to appoint Hogg secretary of state, but when he appointed Bacon assistant secretary he came very near carrying out the Texas suggestion.

The Factory Club is getting down to business now, and proposes to wage a live and interesting fall campaign. And Fort Worth needs more smokestacks in her business.

New York City in opposition to Tammany may result in the nomination of District Attorney Jerome B. Shepley as the Tammany candidate will be Mayor McClellan. District Attorney Shepley was the only candidate mentioned for the head of the fusion ticket at the meeting. He was attacked by the radical papers and defended by the Citizens' Union, while the republicans remained non-committal. The fact was brought out that while Mr. Shepley has neither consented nor refused to accept the platform proposed by the Citizens' Union he has submitted to him for his approval and he has endorsed it. Municipal ownership of public service franchises, the municipal operation for city purposes of franchises which have expired, and the curbing of the public service corporations were agreed upon as the leading issues of the anti-Tammany campaign. Congressman Shober, proxy for the Citizens' Union, said that the fact was brought out that while Mr. Shepley has neither consented nor refused to accept the platform proposed by the Citizens' Union he has submitted to him for his approval and he has endorsed it.

THE DRIFT OF POLITICS AMONG EXCHANGES

The democratic organization in Pennsylvania seems destined to play an important part in the campaign in the state in 1906, no matter into whose hands it may fall. In discussing the subject of ex-Judge Gordon and his friends attempting to wrest control of the machine from Colonel Duffey, J. K. P. Hall and the men who now hold it, the remark was made by a former leader, "What's the use?" It was contended that under Guffey's manipulation and lack of real leadership there was a mere shell of organization left. That even were competent men to take hold of it, much money would be needed to get the machine into effective operation, and to organize the party and to recruit the men who have dropped out of the ranks back into the service again. The men to whom the proposition was made declared that while the democracy could be made a powerful adjunct to the republican majority of the state, they would insist upon interrogation that they are entirely innocent of the charges upon which they were convicted, but the law and the evidence speak to the contrary.

Berry's Campaign for State Treasurer

The fight for governor in Ohio, which at first was presumed to be a walkover for Herlick, has drifted into a most desperate contest. The republicans expect to win, but cannot see daylight at this time. The democratic candidate is John M. Patterson. The republican candidate is the Foraker man would come out on top as a rout would be a death-blow to the "old Hanna crowd," as Governor Herlick terms his followers. The situation in Ohio is peculiar and unlike any that has ever been before. In the past the republicans have always received the support of that portion of the prohibition and Anti-Saloon League vote which was not taken by the prohibitionists. This year, however, the conditions are exactly reversed, and the vote of the prohibitionists will go to Herlick, the Foraker man would come out on top as a rout would be a death-blow to the "old Hanna crowd," as Governor Herlick terms his followers.

Ohio's Fight for Governor is Mixed Affair

The fight for governor in Ohio, which at first was presumed to be a walkover for Herlick, has drifted into a most desperate contest. The republicans expect to win, but cannot see daylight at this time. The democratic candidate is John M. Patterson. The republican candidate is the Foraker man would come out on top as a rout would be a death-blow to the "old Hanna crowd," as Governor Herlick terms his followers. New Jersey Republicans Hunting a Moses

The republican party of New Jersey is looking for a Moses, or, to speak more plainly, for a "boss." Since the death of General Griegs, and the somewhat passive support of the liquor dealers, to make this support more certain for Herlick, the democrats nominated at their state convention Mr. Pattison, an avowed temperance advocate, who for years has been active in his work in behalf of prohibition. While this action was alleged to be a plain political move to help along the fight against Governor Herlick and catch the anti-saloon vote, it was argued by the leaders that the liquor men were democrats anyway, and could not be pulled away from the party. That argument, however, seems to have proved fallacious, for liquor associations all over the state have passed resolutions pledging support to the republican ticket and denouncing the action of the democracy. The anti-saloon league, doing it on the ground of expediency, has also declared in favor of Pattison.

To Change Time for Inaugurations

The movement to have the date for the inauguration of the president of the United States changed from March 4, when the weather is generally inclement and cold, to a later date, has assumed real shape. Philadelphia and Pennsylvania are greatly interested in this because they supply thousands of men for each inaugural parade. The part the Keystone state plays in the ceremonies is so great that the scheme will appeal to its citizens forcibly. The national committee of the District of Columbia has announced that the national committee on the proposed change of inauguration day from March 4 to a later date will be called together soon. It is composed of the governors of the several states and territories, with fifteen residents of the District of Columbia. The chairman has been in correspondence with the governors of states since the last inauguration, and has secured the written consent of forty-one of them to serve on the committee. The governors who agreed cepted service expressed sympathy with the movement, and some of them are emphatic in doing so. This indicates that they are prepared to bring the matter before the people and the legislatures of the states in a favorable light, as well as lend their influence to the operations of the national committee.

Gorman May Be Forced to Retire

Senator Gorman of Maryland has been alert to deny the story, widely circulated, that he intended to abdicate at the end of his present term, and that his health is broken. All of this is incorrect. The senator will be in Saratoga early next week with his son, State Senator A. P. Gorman, Jr. Senator Gorman's term in the senate will expire on March 3, 1907. The high days later will have reached the age of 70 years. While the immediate family circle and close friends of Mr. Gorman would be glad to see him throw off his political harness in 1907, Mr. Gorman has not given any thought to the matter of whether he will deem it advisable to be a candidate for re-election at the expiration of his present term in the senate. If Mr. Gorman should desire to retire, he would seek what Quay and others have endeavored to do, that is name their successors. In this instance Mr. Gorman seeks to make his son his political legate. It is not believed he can hold on much longer, as Raynor, his colleague, is younger and brilliant, and will soon overshadow his associate in the senate. Then again, Gorman's advocacy of the Poe amendment to the election law of Maryland, which would disfranchise hundreds of negroes and many whites, does not meet with favor in his own party. The independents of Baltimore county and city, who hold the balance of power in the state between the two great parties, are opposed to the amendment. It looks now as if at the end of his political career Mr. Gorman would go down to defeat. Governor Warfield has a strong opponent in Gorman, and their opposition will not end until he retires. Although Mr. Gorman declaims he has not given the subject a thought, he has not given up the fight for the nomination in Maryland. By the way, Senator Raynor is grooming his son in politics. William Raynor is seeking the democratic nomination for a seat in the house of delegates from Baltimore city. He would be in, the remarkable spectacle will be presented of two United States senators, having left their sons in the state legislature, where they can keep their fathers posted as to what is transpiring.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

As was to have been expected, the proceedings in Chicago in the arraignment of the officers, employees and directors of the large packing companies indicted in the federal court were short, but they were clearly indicative of the long and stubborn legal battle that will be waged to defeat the government's prosecution. The seven men under indictment charged with conspiracy in the violation of anti-trust and interstate commerce laws are: J. O. Armour, P. A. Valentine, A. M. Macdonald, J. M. McMillan, A. M. Charles, W. Armour, Louis F. Swift, E. F. Swift, C. H. Swift, L. A. Carton, D. E. Hartwell, A. H. Veeder, R. C. McManus, A. F. Evans, E. A. Cudahy, E. Morris and Ira N. Morris. Every one of these men is connected in some capacity with what is known as the "Big Four" combination of packers.

PACKERS WANT DELAY

So certain were the packers that the case would not be called for trial that not one was present save by attorney, although Attorney General Moody and his associates had journeyed all the way from Washington to attend the proceedings. J. S. Miller, representing the packers, immediately asked the court for a postponement of trial. His plea was characteristic of the able legal strategist hired to delay the processes of law. He said: "The district attorney has given me notice as well as the defendants to plead here today. The notice came Friday, Saturday was practically a holiday, and Monday being Labor day, we could do nothing. It is now Monday, and the defendants are away. As the attorneys, and we now ask that the government do not press the matter of the motion to plead until Monday, Sept. 18. If they insist on a trial today, I have decided what action to take, and in view of the 'unsettled' condition, wanted more time."

He does not know the value of the crop, but judging from the experience of other years, together with the splendid season so far, he is figuring on something like $40,000 for all products. Verses That Ring

A PALACE SLEEPING CAR
Have you loitered in the smoking room
Of a palace sleeping car?
Keeping tax upon the water tank
As you smoke your last cigar?
Have you observed the tumbler?
Has it occurred to you
The many different uses
That people put it to?
Here's a fellow with a collar—
His face is pale and drawn—
Pours paragon in it
And bids his pain begone.
Next comes a bilious drummer,
Who at the tumbler halts
And fills the vessel blithely
With a slug of Epsom salts.
He's followed by a person
With the customary whim
That a sedition powder nighty
Is just the thing for him.
And on his heels comes some one
Who fancies something hot
And takes a swig of Rodway
To touch the chilly spot.

RECEIVING VAULT URGED FOR CITY
Need of Structure for Cemeteries Is Being Urged by Ministers and Others

With the approach of winter, agitation is being taken up for the establishment of a receiving vault at the city cemeteries, where bodies may be placed in weather such as to almost prohibit immediate interment.

Many ministers of the city who have had experience in past winters and realize the need of the vault, are agitating the matter, and it is believed some steps will be taken before the winter is here to secure such a structure.

A number of instances are being pointed out in which interment has been made in the past under terrible conditions, due to heavy rains and frozen ground.

With the establishment of the vault arrangements could also be made, when desired, to have bodies placed in it even in good weather, avoiding the actual scene of interment found so trying at funerals.

Cost of erecting a suitable structure available for both the city cemetery and Oakwood, it is said, would be but little.

STREET PAVING CAMPAIGN IS ON
Work Begun on Another Cross Street Between Houston and Main Streets

Work preparatory to paving Fifth street between Houston and Main streets was commenced Thursday afternoon and will be pushed rapidly to completion. When this cross street has been finished similar work will be done on Fourth street between Main and Houston streets.

Surveyors were laying off the work Thursday and actual construction will commence today. Asphalt is to be used. Some time ago it was decided by the city council to order paving of cross streets between Houston and Rusk and they have been comprised in an improvement district upon which action is now pending.

The work commenced Thursday is the beginning of this general street paving of all cross streets extending from the court house to the Texas and Pacific passenger station.

The city stands its pro rata of the expense.

CATARRH A UNIVERSAL DISEASE
Catarrh usually begins with a cold in the head, but does not stop there. The mucous membranes all become inflamed and secrete a filthy, unhealthy matter which is absorbed by the blood and distributed to all parts of the body. The patient is then continually hawking and spitting, the nose is stopped up, the ears have a ringing or buzzing noise, the throat becomes sore, and as the unhealthy matter more thoroughly saturates the blood a general feeling of despondency takes possession of the system.

I had Catarrh for about fifteen years, and no man could have been worse. I tried everything I could hear of, but no good results. I then began S. S. S., and could see a little improvement from the first bottle, and after taking it a short while was cured. This was six years ago, and I am as well today as any man. I think Catarrh is a blood disease, and know there is nothing on earth better for the blood than S. S. S. No-body thinks more of S. S. S. than I do. M. MATSON, Lapeer, Mich.

SSS PURELY VEGETABLE.
Duce Catarrh. Nothing equals it can eliminate from the system all waste matter that will produce Catarrh. Nothing equals this great vegetable remedy in the cure of this disease. Write for our book and any medical advice you wish. We make no charge for either.
