SHAW'S PLAY REVEALS WOMAN'S GREAT GRAFT

"Man and Superman" Is the Sensation of Gotham's Theatrical Season

The theatrical sensation of the season is George Bernard Shaw's "Man and Superman," being produced for the first time at the Hudson theater, New York.

Fay Davis, in the role of a boresomely, as woman is described by Bernard Shaw.

wrought by his busy brain are expressed in the dialogue of his characters. Here's one:

Hector—Surely marriage should ennoble a man.

Tanner (dryly)—Get married and try. You may find it delightful for a while; you certainly won't find it ennobling. The greatest common measure of a man and a woman is not necessarily greater than the man's single measure.

Here is another gem: "Marriage is to me apostasy, profanation of the sanctuary of my soul, violation of my manhood, sale of my birthright, shameful surrender, ignominious capitulation, acceptance of defeat. I shall decay like a thing that has served its purpose and is done with; I shall change from a man with a future to a man with a past; I shall see in the greasy eyes of all the other husbands their regret at the arrival of a new prisoner to share their ignominy."

Shaw makes his chief character say to Lovelorn Octavius: "You think you are Ann's suitor; that you are the pursuer and she the pursued; that it is your part to woo, to persuade, to overcome. Fool; it is you who are the pursued, the marked down quarry, the destined prey. Why, man, what other work has she in life but to get a husband? It is a woman's business to get married as soon as possible, and a man's to keep unmarried as long as he can."

Miss Katherine Leckie herewith reviews the astonishing play, frankly admitting Shaw's principal charge against her sex, but justifying it by declaring that man has created the condition.

Artist Quig's Conception of the Playwright's Charge That Women Are Liars When Husband Hunting.

ROBERT LORAIN UNMASKS "HYPOCRITICAL" WOMAN IN SHAW'S NEW PLAY.

A WOMAN FRANKLY ADMITS IT

BY KATHERINE LECKIE

Staff Correspondence to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—It wasn't fair of George Bernard Shaw to give us away. Woman's business is to get married. It is only lately that man, great, noble man, has permitted us to do anything else. It's within the memory of our mothers when we were not permitted to do doctors, ministers, lawyers, typewriters or clerks.

The only profession open to woman was matrimony! Why, then, shouldn't she succeed in it? And if to succeed is to marry, of course, then, women are not going to be business failures, not a bit of it.

But the great feminine secret is being given away. "Man and Superman" is the play in which the deadly exposition is made. But the best part of the show is not on the stage. The women in the audience are the funniest part of it. Each and every one of them is wondering who told Shaw.

Ever since the early ages men have supposed that they wooed and won. They have considered themselves the victor and woman the submissive captives. It comes down that our prehistoric father went out with a good, stout club when he sought the little hand in marriage of our prehistoric mother. Women have never denied it.

Every woman in the theater knows in the first act that Ann Whitfield is going to marry Jack Tanner. She didn't get him until the very last moment before the final drop of the curtain, but the women knew which one she had selected to devour, though all the men in the play supposed that she was going to yield to moist-eyed little Tavy Robinson. Even Jack Tanner thought so. In pity of the coming doom of the youthful poet he delivered himself of some pretty strong sentiments in regard to Ann. He declared that she was a brazen, lying, hypocritical boresomely, and that she would swallow Tavy whether or no.

"I won't, won't!" cried Jack Tanner, when, in the last act, he vaguely realizes that the trap was set for him and the very woman significantly smiled and knew that his time had come.

Ann slightly raised her aristocratic arched eyebrows, lightly rested her small, plump, white hand upon her hip, gave an almost imperceptible quiver to her beautiful body, and it was all off. Tanner capitulated without conditions.

There are a lot of other things in "Man and Superman," good, interesting, and sometimes a bit shocking things, but the theme of it is that woman selects out her victim and marries him whether he will or not.

woers, and that it is unwomanly to go out in hot pursuit. The men suppose her an unwilling spinster, whom they have not elected to choose. It is not so. She is either one of two things. She isn't wise to the game of the other women or she may have ideals.

These she is taught by the ignorant writers of novels and poetry. Most of the former, to be sure, are written by women. They write of their own kind as the men want them, not as they are. The men write them as they want them to be, except now and again, when a man like George Moore or Shaw shows us up as we honestly are. The latter even tells us what we think, but we virtuously and loudly deny it while, in our innermost souls, we know it to be the absolute truth.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER AFTER EXCITING WEEK

Government Crop Report Leading Cause of Decline—Southern Markets Weak

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Developments in the cotton market during the week were sensational and under heavy general liquidation and selling on steep orders, as well as short selling, prices at the close of the week were at the bottom, showing a decline from Monday of over 2-4c per pound. The weakening feature was the government report on Tuesday, although the marshaling of cotton forces against what was considered an intrusion by Wall street bulls played a very important part in the decline. Liverpool has followed the weakness here and southern spot markets, which are not showing a full recovery, have weakened perceptibly during the week. The market this morning opened easy, although a little better than expected, in view of the sharp decline abroad, but quickly turned weak, selling down to new low records under further liquidation.

The reports of a storm developing along the Southern Atlantic coast caused some apprehension and traders generally are watching the weather map for any indications of a sharp drop in temperature, as the date of killing frosts will have much to do in determining the size of the crop.

The advice of Vice President Peters to sell cotton is counterbalanced by a dispatch from President Jordan, advising farmers to hold the cotton and claiming that the present depression is totally unwarranted; that the crop cannot be other than a short one and the present decline has been caused solely by manipulation and the inaccurate bureau report.

WHEAT SELLS LOWER

Final Prices Show Decline Despite Heroic Support

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 7.—Northwestern stocks and foreign shipments to Western European showed gains of too much prominence and wheat sold at slightly lower prices today in spite of the heroic support given to December by Valentine, the final prices being 1/2c to 1-4c lower for December, 1-4c to 3-8c for May and 1-4c to 3-4c for July. Mills bought 50,000 bushels. Opening 1-5c lower for December and 1-4c for May; wheat wore a weak aspect early in the day.

Valentine's purchases in the open market, personally taking all the December offered, checked the decline after prices broke 1-8c more for May and 1-4c to 3-4c for December, creating sufficient strength to carry the market up to 3-8c for December and 1-8c for May.

Corn was steady, closing prices showing a gain of half a cent for October. Opening 1-5c lower for October and unchanged for May, with trading only moderate in volume. Cash business here was 145,000 bushels.

Outs was in brisk demand in the cash crowd and futures closed firm in sympathy, ending 1-8c higher all around. Cash sales were 480,000 bushels here.

Pork closed 20c higher for October and unchanged for January, while lard was 2 1/2c lower for October and November, but December and January were 2 1/2c higher. Ribs closed 2 1/2c higher.

PIG IRON MARKET DULL

Near Deliveries Are Offered As Low As Sixteen Dollars

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The pig iron market was dull today and there was some disposition to sell, with near deliveries offered at $16 for both regular and foundry, although the more distant deliveries were held above $16. Bids were on a little easier basis, but it is a noticeable fact that recently there has been only moderate disposition to bid, bid sales have been close at the assured prices. The general situation continues very firm, however, and there is no pressure of iron on the market. Closing quotations: Cash $15.70 to $16, October $15.70 to $16, November $15.70 to $16, December $15.80 to $16.20, January $15.80 to $16.30, February $16.80 to $16.40, March $15.90 to $16.90.

London Stocks Unchanged

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Prices on the stock exchange were unchanged. Trading was dull. The Bank of France is likely to spare the American market some of its gold. Paris exchange on London 1 1/2 centimes. Berlin exchange on London 1 1/2 centimes. Berlin rates 3-4 pennings higher at 20 marks 4 1/4 pennings.

To the many friends and relatives who came so promptly to our assistance in the sudden fatal illness of our dear little Charlie, to his schoolmates of the Seventh ward, his teachers there and all those who gave such beautiful tributes of flowers, that he once loved so well; to our neighbors, for their thoughtful sympathy; to Doctors Brewer and Talbot, for their most persistent effort to save him from the clutches of the most dreaded disease, diphtheria, and especially to the members of the South Side Church of Christ, who came so quickly with ready offers of aid so badly needed, we offer our heartfelt thanks. May the Lord reward Mr. and Mrs. Ed M. Lightfoot, 1109 Helen avenue. October, 1905.

HOME ENTERTAINMENTS

A HALLOWEEN PARTY

BY EDITH A. BROWN.
(Copyright, 1905, by Joseph E. Bowles.)
Another fortnight—or a few days more—will bring Halloween, with all its fun and frolic for the young folks. For the Halloween entertainments there seems truly "no new thing under the sun." Apparently every idea worth while has been tried many times, and there remains nothing but the working over of the best of the old.

The near approach of the evening brings to mind a plan tried several years ago by a group of young women, and found of full weight in the matter of fun. The young women represented a group who had been school chums, and later had formed a society "set" of their own. The young men of the party represented the same class of friends, and the plans for the evening, therefore, could be made according to the basis of good comradeship—the only kind of a company to gather together for such a celebration as Halloween.

supposed to have been kept a secret from the young men, but the secret leaked out, and the young men, not to be outdone, came at the appointed hour in full make, also, and fearful and wonderful masks as well. This made matters even more complex than had been planned originally, for while the first intention on the part of the young women had been to mystify the young men, through masking, they had not reckoned upon being mystified in return.

The plans for the evening were unique. Carrying out the ghostly idea emphasized by the sheets and pillow cases, in which the young women were attired, it had been arranged that the whole affair should be "white." The home of every young woman in the group had been raided and called upon for donations, with the result that white rugs covered the dark carpets, white bedspreads took the place of portieres, white bits of silk drapery covered the bric-a-brac, and wicker furniture replaced the regular furnishings of the home. Instead of lemonade or punch, milk was served in an old water pail, of which both pitcher and glasses were of peculiar white, glazed ware.

After the arrival of the young men, and guesses as to the identity were rife on both sides, the dancing began. In this, also, a stroke of genius in the appreciation of novelty had been shown by the young women. Two of the blackest negro musicians to be found in the city had been engaged to play for the dance, and served as the only "dark spots" in the white surroundings.

The early portion of the evening had been spent in an effort to peer behind the masks—figuratively—and discover the maskers. Masks, too, are uncomfortable things to wear even when the wearing of them means fun, and the dance was made comparatively short. When this program was nearing its end, the door of the parlors opened, and a witch appeared. The young women in their ghostly robes were summoned to an adjoining room, and the young men were left alone. The meaning of this was not explained, not even when the witch appeared again with a small box, which was placed in the room where the young men had gathered. Presently, the early portion of the evening leading by the hand one of the imprisoned young women. The sheeted figure was placed on the box, and the witch began a recital of her good points. It was explained that the young man who offered the highest bid would, in this manner, purchase his partner for supper, which was to follow. A clever witch can make this part of the evening very interesting and filled with fun, for few young men will refuse to enter heartily into a plan of the kind—it embodies too much of the game of chance, in which most of them find delight. As the highest bid was reached, the "purchaser" led his "purchase" from the auction stand and another ghostly figure was brought in for sale.

At this particular entertainment most of the young women of the party were of medium height, and slender, and this added to the difficulty in rightly guessing their identity, individually.

In the dining room, of course, everything was in white, likewise. A light luncheon was served—cottage cheese and

FOOD AGAIN

A Mighty Important Subject to Everyone
A Breton lady talks entertainingly of food and the chances that can be made in health by some knowledge on that line. She says:
"An injury to my spine in early womanhood left me subject to severe sick headaches which would last three or four days at a time, and a violent course of drugging at the hands of old-fashioned physicians brought on constipation with all the ills that follow."
"My appetite was always light and uncertain and many kinds of food distressed me."
"I began to eat Grape-Nuts food two or three years ago, because I liked the taste of it, and I kept on because I soon found it was doing me good."
"I eat it always at breakfast, frequently at luncheon, and again before going to bed—and have no trouble in sleeping on it." It has cured my constipation, my headaches have practically ceased, and I am in better physical condition at the age of 43 than I was at 40.
"I give Grape-Nuts credit for restoring my health, if not saving my life, and you can make no claim for it too strong for me to endorse." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

JERSEY MILLIONAIRE HAS WIRELESS AUTO

Maj. Wetmore Keeps in Touch With Stock Market No Matter Where He Goes

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Major William R. Wetmore, a millionaire resident of Allentown, N. J., and the oldest member of the New York Yacht club, has contrived a scheme whereby he can keep in direct communication with his brokers in Wall street while he tours the New Jersey roads in his automobile.

A wireless telegraph instrument of his own construction has been placed in the tonneau of the car and a similar instrument in the railroad station at Allentown. There the station master, Fred Gerner, receives messages by wire from New York and transmits them by wireless to Major Wetmore.

It makes no difference where the major is he can keep track of the rise and fall of stocks in which he is interested. Station Master Gerner says the instrument will transmit a distance of twenty miles and it is seldom that Major Wetmore ever goes further than this in his automobile.

Gerner says that there is no reason in the world why every broker owning an automobile should not equip it with this arrangement.

He keeps in constant communication with his office when he is traveling in Long Island or in New Jersey. If the batteries are strong enough and the coil large messages can easily be sent forty and fifty miles.

The possibilities of the wireless automobile are so great that there is talk of forming a company to manufacture the instruments. The one in operation at Allentown is simple and compact, yet signals can be heard plainly for miles.

Young Gerner was of great assistance to Major Wetmore when he decided to try the experiment. Gerner is an expert operator and his experience made it possible to carry out the scheme. While the major worked on the batteries and coils Gerner rigged up a receiver and transmitter.

The transmitter is as crude as it could be. Two pieces of board are fastened together in the shape of a cross and copper wires are strung across these. The transmitter looks more like a lacrosse bat than anything else. The receiver is an ordinary telephone receiver.

Major Wetmore and Gerner are both telegraph operators. They understand the Morse code and the code used in the navy. Conversation is kept up from the time Major Wetmore leaves his home.

The wireless instruments were installed in the automobile and the railroad station three weeks ago. Although purely an experiment at first, the arrangement has proved of such

DRESSMAKER MOLDS CORSETS FOR MEN

Mrs. Linda Ross-Wade Says Lords of Creation Run Too Much to Paunch

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A masculine form divine has been discovered. Mrs. Linda Ross-Wade, who used to be in the dressmaking business, after looking around at New York men, has decided that they run too much to paunch. There are two cures for this lamentable condition. One is to curb the appetite, and the other is to wear the corset right now and stick to it as tight as women do. Their grandsons would be born with slender waists.

Mrs. Ross-Wade, who used to be vice president of the National Dressmakers' association, has concluded that about all had been done toward warring women that was possible, while men were becoming less shapely each succeeding year. Then, too, Mrs. Ross-Wade says, the future generations must be considered. If all men would take to the corset right now and stick to it as tight as women do, their grandsons would be born with slender waists.

not a few men in New York wearing them.

Plan of Men's Corsets.

"A man's corset is different from a woman's in that it is merely to cover the abdomen and hips. The same materials are used in making it, and it fastens the same. I have one customer who measured 43 inches around the waist when I took him just a few weeks ago. I have practically re-made that man. He is now sylph-like with his 37. And I hope for a couple more inches from him yet. The corset has also put a stop to that disagreeable habit my customer encouraged, and which is common among men, of hitching his trousers from the pockets all the time. Corsets for men? Why not?"

"The men who want to look well in corsets will discover that they will have to pay for it. They are made to order to fit the figure, and every time a steel breaks the wearer may say with accuracy, 'Darn it, there goes $15 to blazes!'"

Shocking! Shapeless. "Evolution, evolution, that's the thing," said Mrs. Ross-Wade enthusiastically. "Oh, if men only knew how perfectly wretched they appear with their bulky hips and barrel stomachs. I see them on Fifth avenue, gentlemen all bulging out of shape, and so grotesque as to be hideous in the sight of any woman who loves beauty in form and line."

"Why shouldn't man want to make himself beautiful just as women do? 'Wise men from all parts of the country have asked me to build corsets for them. There are plenty of corset makers in Europe, and many of the young lieutenants in the German army owe their good figures to this fact. Fashionable men in London and Paris would not think of appearing in public if their stay strings were not drawn tight, and, indeed, there are

BAPTIST CHURCH TO CALL PASTOR

North Fort Worth Congregation to Take Action Sunday Morning

THE ROOT OF THE MATTER

He Cured Himself of Serious Stomach Troubles, by Getting Down to First Principles

A man of large affairs in one of our prominent eastern cities by too close attention to business, too little exercise and too many club dinners, finally began to pay nature's tax, levied in the form of chronic stomach trouble; the failure of his digestion brought about a nervous irritability making it impossible to apply himself to his daily business and finally deranging the kidneys and heart.

In his own words he says: "I consulted one physician after another and each one seemed to understand my case, but all the same they each failed to bring about the return of my former digestion, appetite and vigor. For two years I went from pillar to post, from one sanitarium to another. I gave up smoking. I quit coffee and even renounced my daily glass or two of beer, without any marked improvement."

"Friends had often advised me to try a well known proprietary medicine, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I had often perused the newspaper advertisements of the remedy but never took any stock in advertised medicines nor could believe a fifty-cent patent medicine would touch my case."

"To make a long story short I finally bought a couple of packages at the nearest drug store and took two or three tablets after each meal and occasionally a tablet between meals, when I felt any feeling of nausea or discomfort."

"I was surprised at the end of the first week to note a marked improvement in my appetite and general health and before the two packages were gone I was certain that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets was going to cure completely and they did not disappoint me. I can eat and sleep and enjoy my coffee and cigar and no one would suppose I had ever known the horrors of dyspepsia."

"Out of friendly curiosity I wrote to the proprietors of the remedy asking for information as to what the tablets contained and they replied that the principal ingredients were aseptic pepsin (government test), malt diastase and other natural digestive which digest food regardless of the condition of the stomach."

"The root of the matter is this, the digestive element contained in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest the food, give the overworked stomach a chance to recuperate and the nerves and whole system to receive the nourishment which can only come from food. Stimulants and nerve tonics never give real strength, they give feebly strength, invariably followed by reaction. Every drop of food, every nerve and tissue is manufactured from our daily food, and if you can insure its prompt action and complete digestion by the regular use of so good and wholesome a remedy as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, you will have no need of nerve tonics and sanitariums."

Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been in the market only a few years, probably every druggist in the United States, Canada and Great Britain now sells them and considers them the most popular and successful of any preparation for stomach trouble.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Several philanthropic women are organizing a society to be known as the Infants' League of New York and controlled entirely by women. Sanitary outfits will also be sent to private houses on application of the attending physician.

Improving Roadbed

Cotton Belt Starts General Improvement of Line

Trainmaster Hutchins of the Cotton Belt is here from Mount Pleasant. He says that the Cotton Belt is making much needed improvements on the line at different points. There is a shoveling plan at work reducing the grade lines between Texarkana and Mount Pleasant, and making preparations for ballasting and otherwise improving the roadbed. In fact, the entire track from Texarkana to Tyler is being put in first-class condition. New concrete bridges are displacing those of piling.

RAILROADS BRING 2,500 SETTLERS

Movement to the Southwest Through St. Louis Exceeds All Expectations

The movement of homeseekers from the north and east to the southwest, principally Texas and the Territories, is very large. On Tuesday, the date on which the first homeseekers' excursions began, there were 2,500 people landed through the St. Louis gateway alone by the various lines radiating to the southwest.

The newcomers came south over the Frisco, Rock Island, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, Cotton Belt and Texas and Pacific connection.

GOULD COMING SOUTH

Head of Cotton Belt to Make Tour of Texas

It is learned here that President Edwin Gould of the Cotton Belt and several directors of the road, who have been attending the annual meeting of the company at St. Louis, contemplated making a trip to Texas and inspecting the company lines in the southwest, but on account of being summoned east on matters of importance, presumably with reference to the Ramsey-Gould Wash contest, the trip has been declared off for the present.

Following the annual meeting of the Cotton Belt directors a special meeting was held at which approval was given the proposition to use the bridge and terminals of the Shreveport Bridge and Terminal Company for $500,000. The period of the contract is fifty years.

GRAHAM TO HELP BROOKS

Unofficially Announced He Will Be Assistant Live Stock Agent

It is learned here that A. G. Graham, now soliciting freight agent for the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe at Waco, is to be appointed as assistant to Live Stock Agent F. S. Brooks of the Santa Fe lines in Texas. An official announcement has been made here, but it is said that it will be announced either today or Saturday.

WHO WILL GET IT?

Keenan's Successor Cause of Much Speculation

Speculation is rife here as to who will succeed General Passenger Agent W. S. Keenan of the Santa Fe, who is to be promoted to the head of the general passenger department of the system's lines on the coast. This change is made possible by the promotion of Passenger Traffic Manager George T. Nicholson to second vice president of the Santa Fe system, the position formerly held by Paul Morton. Mr. Keenan's headquarters will be at Los Angeles.

Considerable speculation is being made here as to who will succeed Mr. Keenan. It is said that the chances are very fair for the appointment to fall to Mr. Keenan's secretary, E. F. Adams.

The Rock Island Thursday night sent out a party of forty cotton pickers to Snyder, Okla., where they are to be given employment in the cotton fields surrounding that place. It is understood that another large bunch of pickers will go to the territory country today and tomorrow. Up to date several hundred pickers have been sent to Oklahoma points over the Rock Island.

The Denver Road is also forwarding large numbers of pickers to the Quana and Verona sections. There is said to be any amount of work for this class of laborers in the Denver road, as well as in the territory country.

REAR-ADMIRAL HICHBORN.

REAR-ADMIRAL HICHBORN is one of the best known admirals of our navy. His statement concerning Peruna will have much weight as it goes out into the world.

What he says is echoed by many other naval officers of high standing.

Philip Hichborn, Rear-Admiral United States Navy, writes from Washington, D. C., as follows: "After the use of Peruna for a short period, I can now cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy to any one who is in need of an invigorating tonic."—Philip Hichborn.

The soldier and the sailor are especially subject to catarrh in some form or phase. Exposed as they are to constant changes, subject as they are to various vicissitudes, and all kinds of climate, wet and dry, night and day, they find catarrh to be their most insidious and everpresent foe.

In the barracks and on the field, Peruna is equally efficacious. Taken in time, it will absolutely prevent catching cold.

After a cold has become established, Peruna will break it up quicker than any other remedy known to man. Even after a cold has become settled in some organ of the body Peruna can be relied upon to promptly dispel it.

Peruna will cure catarrh, whether acute or chronic, but a few doses taken in the first stages of the disease will be more effective than when the disease has become chronic.

If you suffer from catarrh in any form do not neglect it. Take Peruna at once. Delays in such matters are dangerous.

home," declared Mrs. O. H. McConoughey, in addressing the organization at its first meeting for the year. "I am always glad to hear such a reason," continued the speaker, "for I do not think Mr. Cleveland altogether in the wrong in his attack on woman's clubs, although I think we believe better and show better than he will admit. Ambition and the club will last. Baby won't, and I beg of you mothers that you won't neglect your babies for the sake of the club."

Milwaukee Man Charged with Beating Wife Says He Was Served Wrong Kind of Suds

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 7.—"My wife fed me on tar soap," said Joseph Pike, charged with wife beating in court, when asked how the trouble had started. "It was last Sunday. I thought the coffee had a rich, juicy flavor, and there was a peculiar little taste about it that I couldn't quite place. I didn't really know what was the matter with the coffee until the soap all turned to lather after I had swallowed it, and the suds started to ooze out of my mouth. I swallowed up so I couldn't wear anything but an old bath robe."

"When I saw the suds I knew it was soap, all right; besides, I could taste the tar then."

"I have used Peruna in my family with very satisfactory results for the last two years. Besides I have recommended it to all whom I think are in need of it."

A TYPICAL TESTIMONIAL.

"I have been a sufferer of catarrh of the stomach and kidneys for seven years. Doctors did me no good, and after taking Peruna for six months, at intervals, I believe I am cured. My appetite returned, I sleep well and work every day. I always have it in the house."

No remedy ever yet devised has received such unstinted eulogy from so many renowned statesmen and military men as Peruna.

UNDERSELLING DOMINATES INFLUENCE IN THE WHOLESALE MART

A transaction of magnitude and of considerable importance to Fort Worth women is here recorded. It involves our relationship with the leading knitting mills of the country; it strikingly indicates the force and favor of the Burton-Peel stores with the manufacturers. 150 CASES WOMEN'S AND CHILDREN'S WINTER UNDERWEAR were bought by this combination for the Burton-Peel patrons. It means 9,000 dozen, 108,000 garments. The majority of the purchase must be disposed of by the Fort Worth store. The magnitude of the purchase makes the prices, and tomorrow the distribution opens. Surely you'll be present when the store opens and lay in your winter supply. Cotton, cotton and wool, all-wool, silk and wool, all-silk, also silkene and lisle—from the lowest to the best made.

A Happy Combination Of Style, Price and Quality

It's hardly necessary to say much to the ladies about style in wearing apparel, for they're generally expert judges and know as well what's proper as the most expert buyer, so we content ourselves with saying—see for yourself. But it's hardly so with quality. Many things with the glitter of gold, so far as tailoring goes, beneath the surface are of the baser metals, and unless the tailoring be good, style is of slight importance, for it hardly lasts long enough to be apparent. Our ladies' garments are strictly tailored; made in every instance with workmanship as good as ever put into the best of men's wearing apparel. What we sell you will retain its shape and look as well after wearing as when you buy it. Attention is directed to the following:

- $25.00 LADIES' SUITS—A line of Suits that cannot be equaled under $32.50 to $35.00. Our ability to buy large lots enables us to make the $25.00 price. Made of new shades imported cloth and fancy mixtures; twenty-five different styles; long, medium and short coats; tight, loose or blouse coats.
- $10.00 LADIES' COATS—A special line of ladies' extra good quality light weight Kersey and Broadcloth Coats; all new shades; made as good as any $15.00 grade. Empire and three-quarter lengths; tight and semi-fitting; nicely trimmed; metallic buttons.

ATTORNEYS ATTACK RECENT STOCK LAW

Second Measure Passed in This County Upon Subject May Be Found Void

The new stock law passed to remedy one held invalid has now been attacked in the cases of the Texas vs. J. B. Williams and John F. Swayne, charged with permitting cattle to run at large in Tarrant county, after the legal adoption of the stock law in this county, which had a hearing before Judge Terrell Saturday.

The defendants admitted that their cattle had been running at large, but contended that the stock law had never been legally adopted in Tarrant county; that the commissioners court which ordered the election had no authority to order an election for the entire county because the incorporated city of Fort Worth, as well as Grapevine, Arlington and Mansfield were a part of Tarrant county, and the legislature has given exclusive control to said towns and cities over the streets, alleys, sidewalks and public grounds of those cities, thereby taking away the jurisdiction of the commissioners court to prevent the running at large of animals in such parts of such counties; that this being the law the commissioners court should have ordered the election for a sub-division only of said county, which did not include any such towns or cities.

Again it was argued the commissioners court ordered such election to be held in election precincts when the statute requires the election to be held in justice precincts.

Thus it was argued that the city of Fort Worth consists of wards and each ward is an election precinct, but it takes all of such wards, and more, to make a justice precinct, and the election was ordered for each ward or election precinct when it should have been ordered only for the entire justice precinct No. 1 embracing Fort Worth and other territory.

The authorities were presented to the court and he will likely render a verdict Monday.

The defendants were represented by J. S. Davis and McLean & Scott. District Attorneys Bratton and Simon appeared for the state.

TO COLLECT OCCUPATION TAX

Merchants who are delinquent in the payment of occupation tax are threatened with trouble.

County Collector John W. Walker announced Saturday that he intends to file suits against all who owe this tax during the present week. There are about 100 delinquents in this city, all the way from the third to the eleventh class. The largest number of delinquents belong to the latter class.

RECORD OF TRIALS

Following report will show the number of cases tried in both the Seventeenth and the Forty-eighth judicial district courts in this city for the past year:

In the Forty-eighth district for the period beginning Oct. 11, 1904, and ending Oct. 9, 1905, there were sixty-seven cases tried. Of this number thirty-one were civil and thirty-six criminal. Twenty-two of the thirty-six criminal cases were pleas of guilty, the remaining fourteen were tried.

The value of charcoal

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

teen being contested. Nine were convicted and five acquitted.

In the Seventeenth district for the year beginning Sept. 11, 1904, and ending Sept. 11, 1905, there were ninety-eight cases in all tried, thirty-six being civil and sixty-two criminal. Twenty-two of the criminal cases were pleas of guilty and thirty-eight contested, of which twenty-five were convicted and thirteen found not guilty. These figures show a very large increase over previous years in the way of criminal and civil business in both courts.

FORTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT

Judge Irby Dunklin will begin the October term of the Forty-eighth district court Monday.

The appearance and non-jury civil dockets will be taken up.

Tells the Story of Her Athletic Training.

(As the result of the athletic meet held at Mount Holyoke College, Miss Helen Buck of Manchester, N. Y., won the title of "America's Greatest Girl Athlete.")

Such widespread interest was aroused in the young woman's prowess and personality that she was prevailed upon to write a description of her athletic training. It is given below.—Editor.

BY HELEN BUCK.

My athletic training began as far back as I can remember. It was conducted along the line recently recommended by one of our college presidents; that is, up to my fifteenth year my physical education consisted in the out-of-door life of the natural, fun-loving boy. Such a life as this may not be possible for every girl, but it was very easy for one who was favored with four brothers and lived near daisied fields, bordering woods fragrant with wild flowers.

As my brothers were often my only playmates, it was but natural that their interests should be mine. I soon learned how to run, jump and throw the baseball in true boy fashion. I was proud to be considered "as good as a boy." To uphold my reputation, however, it was often necessary for me to exert myself to the utmost in order not to be beaten in any of our "stunts."

An impetus was given us all in our athletic interests when one of my brothers returned from college the proud possessor of several medals won at intercollegiate meets. He taught us the correct methods of running and jumping, so that this early I learned how to make the "starts" for running, and how to take the standing and running broad and high jumps. All of this knowledge I put in practice at every opportunity.

My out-of-door life, however, did not consist entirely in distinctly athletic pursuits. As was remarked previously, a boy's interests are many, and these led us, in the early spring days, to take long walks in search of wild flowers, or in the hot summer afternoons to chase butterflies over the meadows. Again, many a day was spent hunting for minerals, insects or different kinds of woods and leaves for our collections.

In the winter we rejoiced in the heavy snowstorms, lived like Eskimos in their rounded huts with tunneled entrances or protected the forts of the Massachusetts bay colony from the Indians. Coasting was our favorite diversion.

This out-of-door life resulted in my having a strong, healthy constitution, overflowing with energy. There were no sick headaches for me or absent marks on my school report cards. This life also tended to develop a love of nature and a pretty good stock of that Yankee trait of character which is called "grit."

I first began to appreciate the value of my athletic capabilities when I went away from home to a boarding school, for I found it very easy for me to master the gymnasium exercises given us there. These exercises consisted of much bending of the body, and of drills to develop the chest and the strength of the arms and legs. Their purpose was to bring into play all parts of the body proportionately. They served also as a preparation for the more advanced exercises which were given in college.

We had very little apparatus work. Of this I can only remember learning how to use the parallel bars and how to climb a rope. Besides doing the regular gymnasium work, I was allowed to join the fencing class of older girls. Fencing, I found, did not require so much physical strength as skillful judgment, a keen eye, a firm hand and a dexterous wrist.

The introduction of basket ball into the school worked wonders in the growth of a true athletic spirit. Previous to its reign tennis, golf and tether ball had aroused the interests of a certain few, but basket ball now claimed the interest of all. From the first I became very enthusiastic over this game.

Freshman year of college showed once more the advantage of such physical training as mine had been. My physical examination showed that in physical development I excelled nearly all of the members of my class. My previous experience, too, enabled me to enter upon the sophomore work in gymnastics. This work included the use of the horizontal ladder and bar, the parallel bars, the still bars, the vaulting bars, and the rope ladders. Practice with the dumbbells and in swinging the Indian clubs came a year later.

Although "form" had been emphasized in my previous practice, it was insisted upon even more in all of these advanced exercises. We found that here, as in the more essentially intellectual phase of our college life, there was no royal road to learning. Certain movements had to be practiced over and over again.

The gymnasium work occupied the winter months. In order to keep the athletic spirit alive, field day was held every fall or spring under the auspices of the athletic association. On this day the track teams of the four classes competed with each other in the 50 and 75-yard dashes, the running broad and high jumps, the hurdles, throwing the ball and putting the shot. The teams practiced especially for these events several weeks before the festival day. However, it was my custom to join the practice only long enough to become surer of the forms.

Although I tried my hand at tennis, bowling, rowing, field hockey and various other sports, I prefer basket ball to them all.

I also devote much time to walking, one of the best exercises. I wish every American woman might share in the spirit of sportsmanship in the larger sense in which it has so long been cultivated by our English sisters. Widening and healthful in its influence, it adds a fullness and joy to life that can be obtained in no other way.

HYMAN BELIEVED TO BE LOCATED

Chief of Police Communicates with Hot Springs Authorities in Effort to Learn His Fate

Pursuance of the investigation concerning the disappearance of aged Joseph Hyman from this city, as was reported by The Telegram, has led J. H. Maddox, chief of police, to the conclusion that the man has arrived safely at Hot Springs, Ark.

Learning of a well-defined report that Hyman had been seen on a Texas and Pacific passenger train between this city and Texarkana and that he had purchased a ticket for Hot Springs, the chief opened communication with the Hot Springs authorities regarding the man, furnishing them with his description. Up to a late hour Saturday night no reply had been received from the chief of police of Hot Springs.

Hyman disappeared several weeks ago, after having been seen with large sums of money. It was feared that he had met with foul play in an effort to rob him. To settle this he is being sought.

SPITTING ORDINANCE WILL BE ENFORCED

Educational Campaign to Take Strenuous Turn in Effort to Break Up Practice

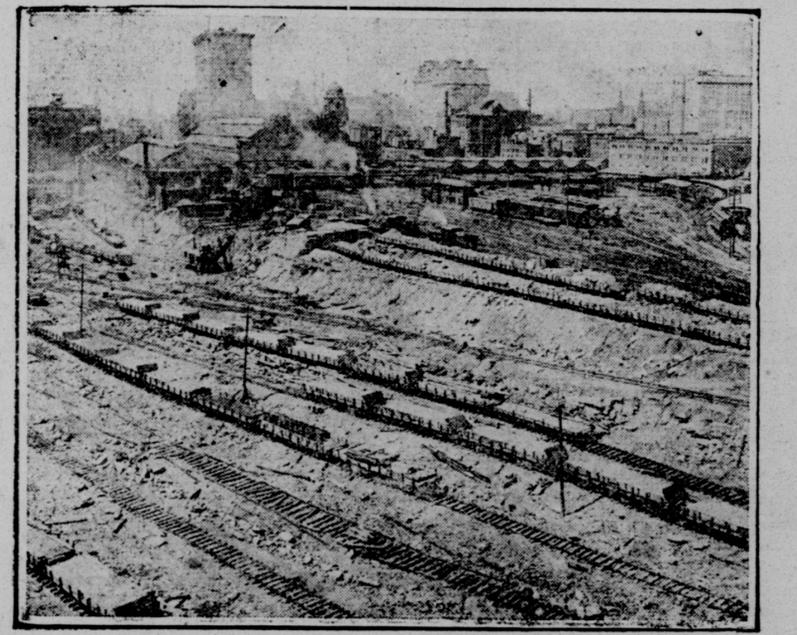

There is no existence in Fort Worth an ordinance against spitting upon the sidewalks.

It has been submitted that this ordinance has not been actually in effect. From the recent indications there are many people in Fort Worth who would like to see this law enforced to the letter, as it is, say, in Denver, Colo., where to spit upon the sidewalk in the presence of a policeman means to go to the city's bastle or to spit at all means to be looked on and probably spoken to as a bear and an interloper against the inflexible law made by the fathers of the City Council.

In an interview upon the question of this ordinance in Fort Worth, Chief of Police J. H. Maddox says that, in his opinion, the matter will be one of education, and that he believes the people will quickly learn in the matter and act accordingly. It is admitted, of course, that there are people whose only reason for not spitting upon the sidewalk or any place else when they have an ambition to spit the proverbial "Arkansas Traveler," will be necessity, but the greater portion of the self-respecting citizenship will control their salivary inclinations in accordance to the laws and general health of the city.

But the chief is of a mind that the law should be enforced, and, although probably inclined to be lenient in the

That investigation in New York of the big life insurance companies has given the American conscience a dreadful shock. Belief in the old life insurance companies has been shaken, especially the education of the youth with matrimonial intentions, and the discovery of financial jugglery of those masters of high finance, McCull, McCurdy, et al., has been heart piercing, and has given our national righteousness cause for fear shedding over the sins of the great in high places.

Our national righteousness is a particularly sensitive asset of our greatness, especially when it comes to sitting in judgment on the shortcomings of our neighbors. Witness England in Venezuela and Spain in Cuba. If any one had suggested that our righteousness had a speck hidden somewhere it would have occasioned indignation of the highest order. But here we are, face to face with these life insurance revelations. Not so long ago we had our attention called to certain leaks in the statistical bureau of the federal government concerning the cotton crop, and there the hints that all was not as it should be in the scientific bureau. In the mean time, lest we forget a few things, the beef trust is uncovered to the public gaze.

Another there seems to be enough in the situation to give our national conscience a jolt toward self-examination. Behind these humiliating conditions that must affect the American nation in the eyes of the world, lies a condition that cannot much longer be ignored. It strikes the heart of the American progress. What is needed now is a frank owning up those who have facts, facts in little things, the family, the school and in society. It has been these things that have fed and prepared the soil for these scandalous operations and disclosures of which have produced our searing widespread indignation.

A business woman in this city whose patronage are largely wealthy and tells of petty dishonesty occurring in her shop nearly every day. "A woman rushed in one day and asked for 25 cents worth of an article that I put up for her as quickly as possible. She was a stranger to me, but her haste and manner made an impression. As soon as I offered her the package she dashed for the door, exclaiming, 'I will be back in a minute.' She did not return, and I considered that momentary absence for two months afterward when she came in the store again. I recognized her and reminded her of the occurrence. She did not deny it, but remarked, 'Oh, I forgot all about it. I was not to get so far behind.' I had nothing less than a ten-dollar bill." "Of course I told her that I could have changed her bill, but that was not the matter." "It is not unusual for a woman to come in and ask for credit for 5 or 10 cents, and ask confidentially that it be not charged. 'I will come in in a few days.' We have ceased to make such credits. It invariably means that when the memorandum is presented for payment, the purchaser will claim to have paid the amount, or else fall altogether in recalling the incident.

The public schools of this country are its foundation. No one will dispute this statement. The percentage of the population that receives its fundamental instructions in institutions outside of those supported by the state are small. The public schools therefore share with the home the duty, privilege and obligation of forming the national character. This, too, is a premise that will find few objectors. But the facts of the public school system, its failures and weaknesses are seldom spoken of boldly. No subject is more delicate; none surer to raise a storm of criticism, and criticism and discussion are the last things the average citizen, whether parent, teacher, superintendent, school trustee or taxpayer, wants.

"Talking stir to exaggeration and that will be harmful," is the usual point of view. Those who have practical and intimate experience with school work, with teachers as well as with pupils, formulate certain regulations that are eloquent. The provisions against cheating in recitations and examinations in the school rooms are rigid. But they are seldom effectual and are not always carried out impartially.

The number of teachers who are dishonest in examination will not be known. There are not many who are dishonest. The records of summer normal examinations and the observations of summer normal directors sustain the suspicion that all teachers are not above evading the rules of strict honesty in securing credit. There is not a teacher of any experience who will not tell of the constant efforts made by students to get credits for work or examination marks that they do not deserve.

There are teachers who encourage their pupils to trickery in grade getting, there are pupils who are promoted by "exams," the answers of which they never wrote. Let a child or older young man or woman become known as a thief, purloining articles belonging to their schoolmates, and their quick detection and corresponding punishment. The other offense is certainly as grave and the dishonest getting of credit for knowledge not worked or studied for is overlooked, sometimes encouraged.

This is the condition existing in the school system all over the United States. It is not peculiar to one town or state or section. Why is it so? What can be done to remove, to reform it? Do the people interested want it reformed? Back of the public school system, child, parent, teacher, superintendent and state stands the parent. The parent is the civic unit that supports the federal government that is deeply concerned in the unfolding of the story of graft, trickery, corruption and mismanaged funds of corporations and of the government.

There is a correlation of facts and an endless chain of duty of parent and teacher to the school system, of the system to the child, the child to the state and the state to the citizen. The parent is the human nature, has bequeathed a sad streak in every son and daughter of Adam, but habit and public sentiment can do much to overcome this streak and hold the irresolute or the weak to an accounting, and the strong to suitable and effective self-control.

When the American parent becomes a bulwark of honesty toward his child, the teacher is supported by school authority in lessons of ethical as well as material honesty, when the child's conscience is trained to honest thinking, when the connection between honest thinking and honest action is fully recognized, there will be fewer McCull and McCurdy and Hydes. There will be an approximately honest civil service and a government. As a man thinks, so he is. Childhood is the period when habits of honest thinking become an integral part of character. The public school and the public school teacher have a tremendous responsibility. Who dare estimate the corresponding responsibility of the parent? The ladies who are getting up the auditorium circus are now busy explaining. They have been for several weeks on the lookout for talent and have an assortment of circus material that would look good to any in the business. So attractive did the announcement look to the agent of the Campbell Bros. shows that he has turned over to these local managers their complete show program. It is this arrangement that is calling for explanation. The renting of the Campbell Bros. shows was to insure to the purchasers of circus tickets a full return in sure and fitting show entertainment and to be protected against any article of the early fall weather. Northerners have been known to visit us at this season and even rain, it is said, has fallen before November. But the sure enough show equipments will not cause the management to leave out or change the program already under way. Practicing is well under way by all the feature and new "stunts" are added daily.

EVENTS OF WEEK

Following the tournament will be the May pole dance, in which nearly a hundred of the popular young folks will take part. There will be four sets of dancers, all under the drill of Miss Henderson, who is getting them ready for the event. One of the sets will be danced exclusively by members of the Imperial club and the young ladies who are known as the "Imperial Girls." Mrs. John F. Swayne, who has supervision of this feature, asks the Elks, the Sans Pareils and the Entre Nous to communicate with her in order that each club may have a pole around which the club members will make merry. The young men who will take part in the tournament are asked to meet Miss Saunders at her home Monday evening in order that she may confer with them concerning the selection of her maids. The full details of this event will be explained then by members of the circus committee, who will be present.

Those taking part in the contra dance will meet in the Imperial hall Thursday evening at 8 o'clock for a rehearsal. Major Cal Elliott will have a set of figures and calls. There will also be special music for the practice. The marriage of two popular young people, Miss Marionaux Haggart, daughter of Major and Mrs. S. B. Haggart, to Edward Hoffman, a young man widely and favorably known for his social and business qualities, attracted to St. Andrew's parish house a large number of friends last Wednesday evening. Rev. B. B. Ramage read the service at 7 o'clock. The bridal party consisted of the ushers, C. H. Elliott and Walter Haggart; the matron of honor, Mrs. A. J. Ferguson, the bride's sister, and the bridegroom was accompanied by his brother, Charles Hoffman. The bride followed the matron of honor on the arm of her father. Before the ceremony Miss Anita Larson sang "O Perfect Love," arranged to the bridal march from Lohengrin. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Professor Bauer. The wedding gown was elaborately trimmed with Mechlin lace, the deep double being inset with numerous rows of the lace, while the bodice was of the lace tuckings. The veil was fastened with white flowers. The reason of honor wore a lace-trimmed gown, made decollete, with V-shaped plastrons of lace front and back. Both bride and matron of honor carried bouquets of white roses. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman will return to Fort Worth after a two weeks' visit in Denver. The home of Judge T. H. Conner was the scene of a quiet and happy wedding last Thursday evening, when Miss Annie Conner was married to James A. Evans. No cards had been issued and only a few intimate friends and relatives were present. The bride, on the arm of her father, entered the wedding suite to the accompaniment of Mendelssohn's wedding march. Before her had gone the rose girls, Wanda Lawrence and Elsie Conner, strutting their path with rose petals. They passed through the aisle formed by ribbons held by Misses Frances Conner and Alma McKnight. The nuptial music was "Hearts and Flowers," a violin number played by Miss Callahan of Cisco, a cousin of the bride. The wedding was officiated by Rev. George West played the wedding march and accompaniment. The maid of honor was Miss Madeline Calhoun of Cisco, also a cousin of the bride. The groomsmen were Albert Evans and the ceremony was read by Dr. Alonso

Monk, the setting for the ceremony being palms and ivy festoons. Cream and cake was served in the prettily decorated dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Evans are spending several days at the Oriental hotel in Dallas, and on their return will live in their home at Polytechnic Heights.

Last Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Miss Beulah Johnson and Alfred H. Anderson were united in marriage at the home of Mrs. R. H. Harrell.

Miss Beulah is the only daughter of Mrs. J. E. Johnson and is very popular among the young people of Fort Worth. Mr. Anderson is a well-known young man. The bride wore a gown of white Prunella cloth, trimmed in lace, with hat to match.

Miss Kate Blanton accompanied the young couple to the parsonage. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Anderson went to the bride's home, where they met a number of friends. A delightful luncheon was served. After Oct. 8 Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will be at home to their friends at 715 East Weatherford street.

Mrs. Loehnitz gave a double birthday party to Miss Maurine Mitchell and her niece, Miss Estelle Hall, last Thursday. The birthdays of these maidens came adjoining each other, and to make them closer there were cakes and candies, roses, ribbons, pink candles and games shared in by about thirty of their friends.

A reunion of all the members of the family of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Binyon was held last Sunday a happy occasion. Seated at the dinner on that day were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Binyon and their children, Dr. and Mrs. Priestly Lipscomb of Denton, and Mrs. Lee Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Moller, Mr. and Mrs. Will Binyon, Miss Eula Binyon, James Binyon, Artie Binyon and Robert Binyon. All the grandchildren were present, and nothing was lacking to make the gathering an outpouring of family sentiment and affection.

The Elks' club room was as gay as ever it would be last Wednesday evening, a full orchestra and a number of their friends doing honor to the guest of Miss Saunders for several days. Miss Tarlton is always a favorite and though no longer one of our home girls, Austin having claim now to her residence, she received every compliment we can pay her on her brief but welcome visits.

Miss Andre Anderson had the S. S. C. for guests last Friday afternoon and as she had guests outside of the club, she had two prizes. Mrs. Rozelle won the pair for guests, while Mrs. Slaek was the lucky club winner. Miss Annabel Pendleton will be the next hostess.

The Olives have set the ball of hospitality to rolling. Miss Sue Smith was the hostess last Thursday afternoon. Miss Margaret Sweeney won the prize, a pair of silk hose, the players being Mesdames Camp, Terrell, Stanley, West, Smith, Triplett, Martin, Swann, Armstrong, Frazier, Hubbard, Van Zandt and Parker; Misses Sweeney, Hosmer, Swayne and Connell. Mrs. Sam Triplett will be the next hostess.

Fast Work Marks Game in Which Dallas Loses by Score of 23 to 5

Fort Worth University football defeated the Dallas Y. M. C. A. in the opening game of the season at the University campus Saturday afternoon, by the overwhelming score of 23 to 5, and that after the Dallas aggregation had scored first.

The game started rather inauspiciously for the university team when on the first play after the kickoff a Dallas man broke through for a seventy-yard run, and was only downed on the five-yard line.

After the next kick off Fort Worth started in to do things and only stopped for a moment when Peyton, aided by the superb interference of Mills, rounded left end for a twenty-yard run, and a touchdown.

After the first touchdown the university kicked off and the ball went over the line on a fumble. Dallas succeeded in recapturing the ball, however, and brought it back five yards.

A lighted store front attracts buyers to that street. It means increased trade. Electricity in the home means comfort, the correct lighting effects mean greater home enjoyment. Home decorative work is enjoyed by everyone and is produced at small cost. The Electric Light Office is essentially the best place to obtain full information, and our facilities are such as enable us to serve you promptly and advantageously. Suggestions and advice free. NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The announcement, made a few days ago, that young John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will permanently relinquish the leadership of his Bible class of 250 members is said to be one of the first steps taken in accordance Poisons and Poisons.

There are many deadly poisons. Some work quickly, some slowly. Some will kill a man in a minute; some in an hour; some in a month; some in a year; some take half a lifetime. Some work on the blood; some on the brain; some on the nerves; some on the will.

Tobacco

does all these, for Tobacco is a most insidious poison. It works slowly and often apace. It charms a man into the belief that it is even beneficial to him. Then it "has him" thoroughly. There is no antidote for him then but one—the one provided by nature—

Tobacco Specific

This is a marvelous vegetable remedy for curing the tobacco habit. It is the wonderful discovery of a Cincinnati chemist. It is composed of certain simple vegetable extracts. When absorbed into the human system it immediately sets up an active reaction against the poison germs of tobacco. It wars against tobacco throughout the entire body. It gradually causes the tobacco user to feel a distaste for the pipe, cigar or cigarette. This distaste develops into a positive and violent dislike for tobacco or even its smell in any form.

We declare it to be an absolute cure and preventive of the tobacco habit. It is practically without taste or odor and can be administered in tea, coffee or food without being discovered. It can be given secretly by women to their husbands, brothers with perfect success. Sometimes just a sample package will work a cure. Sample package free.

Read the following letters. These letters are very much to the point. They tell their own story.

This is to certify that I have used Tobacco-Specific as directed, and a few doses cured me entirely of smoking cigarettes. I cannot even hear the smoke or smell of Cigarettes. Tobacco-Specific is a remarkably effective antidote.

Rev. F. Kolaszewski, 185 Fremont St., Cleveland, Ohio. I had used tobacco almost 45 years and my cousin had used it 23 years. One package of Tobacco-Specific cured both of us of the tobacco habit.

Just send your name and address to Rogers Drug & Chemical Company, 6933 Fifth and Race Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio, for the FREE trial treatment of this wonderful Tobacco Specific. The Free treatment alone has cured hundreds—it may do the same for you. Forwarded by return mail in a plain sealed package.

with his plan to abandon, as far as possible, all pursuits that will interfere with him in his efforts to regain his health. His trip to Europe last winter failed to help him as he had hoped. Eminent specialists whom he consulted gave him little encouragement and advised complete rest.

His present illness developed last summer and was first noticed after the big fire at the Rockefeller home, Pocantico, at Tarrytown, N. Y. At that time his father was living at Forest Hill, in Cleveland, and in his absence young Rockefeller, overworked in his effort to save the valuable contents of the house.

He caught a severe cold, which continued to annoy him, and friends who noticed the pallor gradually showing in his cheeks advised the trip to Europe. But slightly benefited by the journey, he returned to the United States, and has spent a large portion of the time since then among the mountains. The air has helped him some, but he still has a distressing cough and apparently his lungs are affected.

The richest young man in the world, he has nevertheless been an indefatigable worker and has usually considered his physical welfare after his spiritual and business duties were performed. Not long ago, speaking of what he considered the four best things in life, he placed character first, friendship second, health third and success last. He was early taught that the true secret of happiness was labor and he has followed this instruction faithfully.

One of young Rockefeller's greatest sources of pleasure was his Bible class, the leadership of which he has now relinquished. Until his health failed he had missed scarcely a dozen meetings of this work, but never spoke of it in any manner to give it publicity. "I would prefer not to discuss the class work," he once said. "We are always glad to show by our actions just what we are doing. But it is a family tradi-

The course of study will be American history. "The Colonization of America," and roll call will be answered by events from 1600 to 1700.

The Tuesday Club met Tuesday at the home of the president, Mrs. F. S. Brooks. This was the first meeting of the club since the disbandment for the summer. Much business was discussed, as it was at the first meeting this fall, no program was rendered.

Those present at the meeting were Messrs. Moody, Eastham, Harrison, Williams and Brooks, Misses Babb, Mays and Williams. The next meeting will be Oct. 20, at the home of Mrs. R. G. Hall on the south side.

"The Merry Makers" were delightfully entertained by Mrs. C. L. Filippo Wednesday afternoon. The games were played, the winner's prize, a Japanese porcelain cup and saucer, going to Mrs. T. W. Hunt. The hostess' prize was a beautiful set of water glasses.

Refreshments of iced were served to Mesdames Lipscomb, Medley, S. Hunt, Filippo, M. Hunt, Edwards, Fowler, Bell and Daniel. Next Wednesday a week Mrs. T. W. Hunt will entertain the club.

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall. It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect. Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers are undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patients and physicians alike. Dr. R. M. Wilkins, while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists, and for that reason taboos many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

MEDICINE MAKER SUES

Peruna Drug Company Owner Wants $50,000 Damages Another maker of proprietary medicines has sued the Ladies' Home Journal for libel. Dr. Samuel B. Hartman of Columbus, Ohio, who owns the Peruna Drug Manufacturing company, demands $50,000 damages on account of the publication by the Ladies' Home Journal of a statement that a testimonial in favor of Peruna is spurious.

Dr. Hartman says he can prove that the letter is genuine. Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo has a suit pending against the Ladies' Home Journal because it said his Golden Medical Discovery contains alcohol. The paper published a retraction and explained that the analysis on which its statement was based was made many years ago.

Lubbock County Conditions

LUBBOCK, Texas, Oct. 7.—A cold, steady rain has been falling all day, unfortunate at this time, as a great deal of feed, cut during the last few days, is lying on the ground. Much of the crop, an unusually large one, both as to acreage and quality, is still uncut. There is also danger that the winter pastures may be seriously damaged by a rain so late as this. R. C. Burns, who lately sold his Hereford breeding farm, has decided that he cannot do better by leaving Lubbock county and has bought an improved ranch in the southwest part of the county, with the stock of cattle on it. The cattle cost him $11 around. The young steers of the herd had not been sold, making the average value rather better than that of most of the herds about here.

SENATOR CLARK'S NEW YORK CASTLE. Perhaps the most unique act in Thomas Lawson's history was when he called attention to his "Frenzied Finance" series, to Senator Wm. A. Clark's new home in New York in tremors of ridicule. Mr. Clark has an income of about $1,000,000 every thirty days. He also had a desire to plunge, and so, says Mr. Lawson, he builded in New York the "biggest, bulkiest, brassiest of all American castles. His castle, a pastry cook's nightmare in bronze and marble, adds a new horror to the architecture of New York."

THE LATEST FASHIONS

The Accepted Mode is Velvet

STREET COSTUME IN AMETHYST VELVETEEN

THE BEST CLASS MODE IN VELVETEEN

VELVETEEN AND QUILLED RIBBONS

WOLLERSTEIN MODEL IN CHIFFON VELVET

THAT MOST universally becoming fabric, velvet, is recorded the position of the leader in Dame Fashion's procession for the coming season, and surely nothing more flattering to each and every type of femininity could be selected.

Not that there is danger of monotony or of overdoing the thing in this selection, for there are as many classes of velvets—and nowadays this term must be understood to include the velveteens as well—as there will be wearers of them in plenty.

For toilette of formal intent the exquisite chiffon velvet is far and away the best choice. The exquisitely soft colorings, the peachy bloom of the surface, the slightly ribbed effect that makes for such a charming play of light and shade in the folds, and, above all, the beautiful background that it makes for such trimming devices as the designer may care to employ.

Real lace and velvet; velvet and real lace. The two seem to belong somehow to each other, and they will form the favored combination of the coming season for all formal occasions. Many of the oldtime laces have been most successfully revived, although the very high price demanded will make them prohibitive for all but the wealthy. However, the woman of slender purse may console herself with the fact that there are machine-made imitations of all of the best laces turned out today, many of which are such excellent copies of the handmade webs that they will deceive even an expert at times, not to speak of the average lace lover.

For one's "very bestest best frock," as the small folks of the nursery oftentimes say, those delicate tints in chiffon velvet cannot be excelled. There are some soft tones in the hydrangea lines in old pink, soft sage greens, and—of electric light use only—the pinkish tints of mauve that, combined with a touch or two of real lace, preferably in the yellowish tint that old lace acquires with the passing years, will lend an air of stately grace and distinction to even the most petite woman who wears them.

Many of the best makers of Paris are designing costumes that will include some sort of a wrap en suite in both the chiffon and ponce velvets, and velveteen as well. All of the new skirts are extremely full, and they one and all display more or less of a train. These are items of construction that assist marvelously in adapting the costume to more uses than one, since they ensure the dressiest of appearances in the cut to start with; and the instant vogue of the separate bodice is another adjunct which the well-dressed woman must be inclined to bless.

The petite and slender Parisienne clings determinedly to the coat of reasonably loose outline and the separate bodice. Garments modeled upon the Eton and bolero orders appeal to her more than anything else, and the development of these into smart little chasuble coats, caracas and other kindred garments is merely a caprice of the couturier who must vary his output if he is to keep his clients.

The latest of these skirts are fashioned to be just the least little fraction of an inch on the floor in front, a centimeter or two, if one follows the metric system of measurement. At the sides there are three or four inches on the floor, and the back length depends entirely upon the character of the gown. If intended as a general utility dressy frock, then the train may be of some eight or ten inches, seldom more, in length; but if it is to be an exclusively dinner or evening gown, then half a yard is none too much, and anywhere from that to a full yard may be employed. Of course, the height, the build, the size of the feet, has a very great deal to do with the length of the skirt; but for the average woman, the measurements quoted will produce the best effect.

The princess mode is one of the most successful of the new seasons, and it develops charmingly in both silk velvet and velveteen. The vogue of the guimpe and guimpe effects fits in charmingly with this mode, and there is no end to the clever effects that can be devised. One model that owes its inspiration to a prominent Parisian maker is in an amethyst velveteen, with real Irish crochet dyed—it almost seems a sacrifice to dip such beautiful work into the dye vat—to match. The skirt is of a full circular design, setting smoothly at the band, but so full is the cut that it ripples just the least little bit in the world over the hips, falling in full godet folds to the feet. At the hem the width in this instance is a full ten yards; and the drop skirt of amethyst tulle to match has an interlining of a featherweight princess haircloth, so that there is a triple of support to the very full folds of the soft-dulch velveteen. Over the skirt there is a folded celtic of the velveteen, the folds cut on the bias and applied in an overlapping shingle effect. The front has a cabler of the dyed crochet that is so planned it comes up over the girdle quite to the bust line, and so affords the straight, unbroken line down the front that is so characteristic of this mode. To this gown there are two bodices; one of amethyst chiffon over silk with amethyst velvet ribbons in brettele shape and caught here and there with beautiful oldtime paste buckles. The other is in a baby Irish crochet that accords well with that on the skirt; although that for the bodice is left in the natural creamy white tint, and is not dipped into the dye vat as is the other. Above the hem there are two rows of crochet spray inserted and these are backed with amethyst chiffon over white, so that the design shows up well for all that it is.

A charming Parisian conceit employs old and tarnished looking gold lace for trimming those velveteen gowns that are intended for reception and other house wear. These are items of construction that assist marvelously in adapting the costume to more uses than one, since they ensure the dressiest of appearances in the cut to start with; and the instant vogue of the separate bodice is another adjunct which the well-dressed woman must be inclined to bless.

Ribbons, too, in both silk and velvet are called upon to adorn those smart costumes. Plain, plisse, shirred, corded—in fact, pretty nearly every scheme and method of elaboration that a clever trimmer can devise is expended upon those same ribbons. Close little quillings, and thick puff ruchings find innumerable applications, and buttons and little buckles divide favor for the finishing touches. But the ribbons, popular and pretty though they be, do not shut out braids entirely from the trimming field. All sorts of fancy braids, from the narrow souache up to intricate tressed patterns that are some six inches wide, are used by tailor and dressmaker alike; and this season even the milliner cannot resist their attractions, for many of the hats that are to accompany those velvet and velveteen gowns rely upon broad braids in gold, silver or color, for their very best effects.

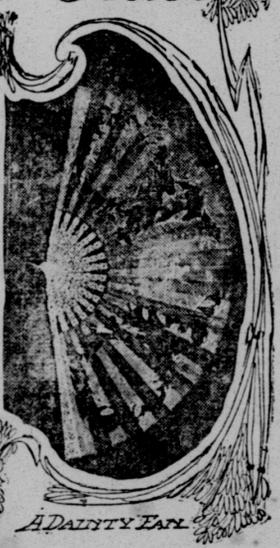

Poplin, the Irish poplin, is showing in a goodly measure that vogue which has been accorded to all things Irish in recent fashions. The real Irish poplin is not by any means an inexpensive fabric, the least expensive quality sells right on its native hearth for two dollars the yard. Five dollars is nearer what the better qualities fetch; and Queen Alexandra of England makes much use of a quality which commands ten dollars a yard, and this in single width, too. On this side of the Atlantic it must be remembered that the duty exacted by our Uncle Sam upon sartorial luxuries like this amounts to some 60 per cent., more or less, according to the weight and class of fabric, so that this vogue for Irish poplin, like that for the best Irish crochet, will be confined to those who can afford to pay the piper, and pay him well for indulgence in such whims and fancies of fashion.

PARISIAN NOVELTIES IN HANDBAGS

The fan and the handbag are, respectively, the finishing touches to the house and the street toilette, and nowadays art concerns itself with the one fully as much as with the other. Womankind are supposed to bewail and to bewail their pocketless condition—at least, so the editors of funny papers would have us think; but the fact that the handbag is intended to, and really does, take the place of many pockets is something that the funny man seems to overlook. And, in addition, the handbag is an outward and visible evidence of the fact that its wearer, or bearer, is right up to

OF INTEREST TO MADAME.

VELVETS AND VELVETEENS FOR PORTIERES, CURTAINS AND OTHER DRAPERY AND FURNITURE USES—ALL OF THE DULL OLD BLUES IN FAVOR—YELLOW VERY MUCH IN VOGUE—REVIVAL OF EMPIRE MODES IN FURNISHINGS—LITTLE FURNITURE, BUT EACH PIECE AN ARTISTIC EXAMPLE—SOME NOVEL WALL COVERINGS.

The trend of fashion in household effects, as in dress, is turning to the mode of both the first and second empires of France. Velvets and velveteens—in the very wide weaves that upholstery goods employ—are among the newest effects; and plain weaves are to be preferred to the brocaded surfaces that have held sway for so long now. Soft and dull tones prevail in these, and the effect aimed at is one of subdued richness, combined with a certain restful air that is most attractive. Very little elaboration is in vogue, but such trimming and finishing touches as are employed must conform to this idea of a subdued richness which is quite the correct thing just now. Nothing garish or glaring, no overcrowding of furniture and bibelots; a stately spacing of effects is what the empire modes in furnishings demand.

Some charming wall coverings are offered in conjunction with those fashions of a century ago. Physicians may rave and health specialists condemn the teal wall covering; but in spite of that fashion favors these effects, and those who follow fashion will have them. They argue, and, perhaps, not without some show of reason, that our grandmothers lived healthy lives in rooms whose walls were hung with velvets, satins and brocades, and why should not their descendants do likewise? However, the question of health and sanitary considerations aside, there are some very charming designs in textiles for wall coverings, and furniture pieces to correspond in color and scheme. Gilt furniture frames of stately and severe designs belong to the fittings of this period; and rich satins and velvets, chiefly in plain surfaces, are chosen for their upholstered coverings. In fact, so much gilt woodwork is included in the modern drawing-room that in order to produce the requisite effect the coverings and draperies must, of necessity, be of subdued though rich coloring.

All of the dull old blues afford a delightful effect in conjunction with a brilliant gold finish. Some of the curtains, door hangings and other drapery effects that do not come into direct contact with the brilliant gilt finishes are edged with a broad gold band, preferably of etruscan design, and of a somewhat tarnished appearance. The plain band finish without a fringe is preferred; and only on the huge floor cushions—essentially a French invention—do the gold tassels appear.

Yellow brocades are in the highest vogue for rooms whose aspect is northern or northeast, and that are so situated that much sunlight is not attainable. It is the fainter shades, though, the primrose, pale buff, Nankin yellow and such that are in favor; and color relief is not looked for nor expected when this mode of treatment is followed.

The lace draperies that adorn the windows are following the Empire mode likewise. Lace pieces made to fit the window frame exactly—they are run on a fine brass rod top and bottom—are what those who can afford such luxuries order, and then fleur-de-lis of France is usually a conspicuous item in the design. Then come full-length curtains of lace or net. A square-meshed bobbin net with border of point arabes in the natural coloring makes for a very rich effect, and those curtains are allowed to hang in straight, full folds from the top cornice—gilt cornices of Empire design are an integral part of the furnishings of a modern room and not looped back with tassels, as heretofore.

Then come what one might term the permanent curtains—those that accord with the door hangings and such other drapery effects as may be included in the furnishing plan. Velvet or self-colored brocades are favored for these, and the lining is almost invariably of white or cream upholstery satin.

It is an effect of lightness rather than massiveness that is aimed at in these oldtime revivals. While there is a perfect craze for old mahogany for dining-room and bedroom furnishings, and enormous prices are paid for genuine antiques, it is in the drawing-room that lightness is what is preferred. Mirrors, many and well spaced, are now included in the wall scheme; doors display mirror tops or panels, and cabinets in which "articles of dignity and virtue" are put for safekeeping and convenient display likewise present mirror backs and mirror shelves. Comparatively few articles of furniture, but each one an artistic example of its kind, is the law upon which modern drawing-rooms are furnished. Those alleged cosy corners are banished to the cluttering up of sofa cushions and pillows, and there is no danger of falling all over the furniture in the dim light which shaded glances afford.

Indeed, an indispensable accessory to the street or carriage toilet in these days of fashionable grace. There are bags of a solid gold wire mesh, with jewels inset in the frame, whose cost runs up to four figures, and substantial ones at that. And there are bags of leather, plain and severe, such as suggest in their outlines the correct accompaniment for a severely tailored costume, such as the clever dresser wears for a morning's shopping or a constitutional along the avenue.

With the craze for color that seems to have taken hold of the fashionable world this autumn, colored leather bags to match the costume are among the most modish effects of the moment. The later ones are more than a little larger than their predecessors of the springtime, and in fact, some of them suggest that their bearer is going away overnight, and that the bag holds a full complement of toilet requisites for such occasions.

Some exquisitely fitted street bags come direct from Paris, and their fittings depict the luxury of the toilet over there. The so-called vanity bag must, of necessity, be quite a sizeable affair today if it is to fill all the functions expected of it. The Parisienne who prides herself upon the perfection of her appearance carries a vanity bag that contains all of the requisites to minister successfully to her vanity after she leaves her boudoir. In addition to the mirror and powder puff, there is a cleverly devised little tube of moist hairbrush for the Parisienne tins her lips habitually and does not hesitate to add a little dab on her cheeks if she imagines that her own coloring is insufficient at the moment. Then there is a pencil and little brush for the eyebrows and lashes, a tiny straw-colored flask for eau de cologne or perfume with which to bathe the face when fatigued; a little folding fan, and even a skeleton pair of opera glasses. And all of this tucked away in compartments devised especially for each article.

But so far as the American girl is concerned, important as each one of these vanity bags that are commanding attention in the exclusive and expensive shops are usually minus those items. Their vanity bag that contains all of the up-to-date girl demands as a part of the fittings of her bag, and a little pincase, provided with several varieties of pins, is a frequent fitting in some of the later productions. Those girls who are blessed with ancestors are detaching the exquisite metal frames from the velvet bags that grandmother and great grandmother used to carry, and having them applied to bags of more modern make. It is quite a sad to have a copy of a Bevenuto Cellini mounting upon the bag that it made an suite with one's favorite velvet or velveteen gown this season, and those bags made from a piece of the costume material are so popular with the smart set that several silversmiths announce that special designs will be submitted, to be wrought out in some metals chosen. Hand-wrought silver, brass, bronze and royal copper are the most frequently ordered, and when one has a crest or coat-of-arms they are often included in the design. They are tremendously swaggy possessions, and their cost is likely to keep them from becoming too popular in this land where everything fashionable is cheapened in production, and all too rapidly becomes the property of the masses as well as the classes.

The fan as the finishing touch to the house or evening toilette is rapidly becoming quite a fad. For quite a long time the fan was employed only for theater or dancing use; in the house it was only the elderly or the invalid who was supposed to require its assistance. But as a fascinating accessory its possibilities are again in the foreground, and the fan as an alluring charm is being studied by the girl who is ever seeking to vary her fascinations.

With the revival of the stately and picturesque in dress those fans that were tean painted are being eagerly sought for, and fan-painting is rapidly replacing the fad for china and miniature work. It is quickly done, and is profitable besides. So the girl who possesses any skill with the brush need not lack for pocket-money this autumn, if she but turn her attention to fan-mounting.

The sticks may be of ivory, carved or plain. Amber and the lighter tortoise shell are sometimes seen, but they are not so popular as the darker shell. Mother-of-pearl is frequently used in connection with the real laces, and inlays of wrought work in gold or silver frequently appear on the sticks of expensive fans. The huge fan of ostrich feathers shaves in the popularity which the ostrich plume enjoys in every connection, and there are few effects which tell for so much as does a gracefully wielded ostrich fan in the hands of a pretty girl of a stately dame of matronly age.

Daring Frenchwoman Defies Death in Forty Foot Leap Through Space, Head Downward in Automobile

The Dip of Death Apparatus as it appears in the Barnum and Bailey Hippodrome Pavilion.

Sensation has followed sensation so rapidly in the circus world that the public is prepared to receive without incredulity the announcement of the most startling and seemingly impossible feat. During the past five or six years each successive season has produced something a little more daring and a little more dangerous than its predecessor. This year the same reckless sensationalism has apparently been reached. An intrepid Frenchwoman is to thrill the American public, and incidentally place her life in daily jeopardy, by "Looping the Gap" in an automobile.

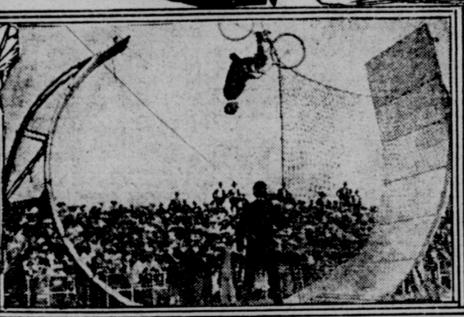

At the apex is a small platform. One side of the steel framework supports an incline that curves inward at its lower extremity like the tail of a monster letter S. The other section of the framework holds a curved runway that begins, half-moon shape, forty feet in air, and straightens out into an easy incline as it approaches the ground. Between the extreme end of the S and the second incline there is a yawning chasm of forty feet. It is this awful gap that the automobile must cross with its daring rider. And it must be accomplished with the machine literally upside down.

The Woman Who Dares
When the time is ripe for the "dip of death" the auto is raised to the elevated platform by means of a wire cable. This is done to afford the audience an opportunity to see the machine and study its construction. When the auto has been placed on its elevated pedestal, the automobilist ascends. Mlle. Mauricia de Tiers, "the woman who dares," in the Auto-Bolide is young, small of stature, but as beautifully formed as a model, and nature has endowed her with a face of unusual beauty and intelligence.

The automobile is placed upon the platform in such a way that its occupant may readily be seen from all parts of the auditorium, and the eyes of the crowd are riveted upon her as she takes her seat, grasps the levers and prepares for her thrilling flight. No unnecessary time is consumed in the preparations. The suspense is not prolonged. Almost before the audience has nerve itself for the ordeal the word is given and the auto starts on its perilous journey.

For two-thirds the distance down the incline the machine remains upright. As it strikes the loop of the S, however, its position quickly becomes reversed, and for a distance of thirty feet, although still following the curve of the incline, it is upside down. It is in that position when it leaves the S. It shoots through the air at terrific speed, with its wheels revolving in the air and pointing skyward, and with the automobilist riding head down; it strikes the second runway still Englishmen, Stanislaus Stange and Julian Edwards, Johnny and the girls will be along later in the season.

Broadhurst and Currie's "A Son of Rest" is on the road this season, with Billy Swor, a joint Fort Worth and Dallas product, who made good as the scarecrow in "The Wizard of Oz," as star. Swor succeeds the veteran, Nat M. Willis.

That quaint, staid old classic drama, "Virginia" will be seen again this year after many seasons' retirement, with Louis James in the title role. James for years has been a Fort Worth favorite and local admirer of the classic drama in its best sense will be glad to welcome him this season. With him will be Norman Hackett, who was missed last year owing to the separation between Wards and James, which brought one here in "A Daughter of Hamelin" and the other in the all-star cast of "The Two Orphans."

Wilton Lackaye will be seen here in the role of Curtis Judwin. Judwin is the typical American self-made man, the son of plain farming parents, who had cut short his school days in order to avail himself of a good business opening. Close attention to business and a few fortunate investments in real estate had made him independent at the age of 25. He was a "kindly man," to use the words of a lady who knew him well, and "generous and charitable," housing and supporting a whole tribe of poor kinsfolk, deeply interested in a mission Sunday school, which it was his ambition to make the biggest Sunday school in Chicago, and in a ward in the Children's hospital to be maintained for the benefit of its pupils—not at all the sort of man, one would think, to be caught by the fascinating possibilities of the pit. Nevertheless, he is caught, and encouraged by success after success, is drawn deeper and deeper into the whirlpool, until at last the fatal hour strikes, and he finds himself ruined in fortune and broken in health. A plucky wife, who has long mourned the absorption in business which has robbed her of the attentions of her husband, brings him back to life and hope and together they turn to the west, rich in each other's love and with hearts full of courage for a fresh start.

Mr. Lackaye will be seen here in Wilton A. Brady's much talked about production of "The Pit."

The play, which is presented on a very elaborate scale, is one of the greatest successes the American stage has known for years.

Harry Vokes and his new partner, Will West, are starring in that amusing satire on high life at the expense of the state, "A Pair of Pinks." Vokes is the same funny little Harold as of old, and West plays Percy as a broken-down "gent" and works along original lines throughout his entire conception. Margaret Daly Vokes is still making her "rube" songs and dances a leading feature of the performance.

"I suppose you can go where you like whenever you like in your new motor car?"

"My friend," answered Mr. Scudds, "you mistake. I am merely the owner. I am not the chauffeur."—Washington Star.

Albert Taylor, who has forsaken reputation for the legitimate, closed a week's end at Greenwall's Saturday night, having again played to big houses, and pleased his audiences as usual. Taylor has been making money all summer at 10-20-30c prices and started the season enough ahead to be able to afford the experiment in the legitimate at higher figures. If his big audiences continue to stick with him another year or two he will be wealthy enough to be called a genius.

Al. H. Wilson comes back early this year. He and his mellow voice will be at Greenwall's Tuesday night for a single performance of Sidney Ellis' "A German Gypsy." Whatever quality Wilson's voice possesses—haunting is not the word, but it comes nearer describing the quality than many others—it is enough to endear him to his audiences year after year, no matter the name of the play in which he appears. Al. Wilson in Deben's "Ghosts" would fill Greenwall's just as easily as in a play announced to have been written especially for him, provided Wilson would sing or croon or lilt his lines. The list of Wilson's new songs this year includes "Under the Harvest Moon,"

"Gretchen," "The Love Trust," "No Love Like Thine," "My German Rose," "The Girl for Me" and a German yodel.

Here is something about the play:

The scenes are located in the state of New York at the present time and the stage pictures representing an ancient manor house and grounds, a typical gypsy camp in the woods and a harvest moon are masterpieces of the artist's brush. The story deals with a band of Zingari Gypsies from Germany, having in their midst a young German. He is loved by the Gypsy belle, while he in turn has lost his heart to another and seeks to leave his roaming existence to become a house dweller. The Gypsy endeavor to reclaim him and partially succeed, but love conquers in the end and they are forced to wander away without him. Interspersed with the serious element are complications of a farcical nature and disclose the trials and tribulations of the young German. Men in his wild efforts to escape the matrimonial snares of a designing widow and the terrible jealousy of his highly tempered uncle, who, being in love with the girl, himself misinterprets his nephew's actions and seeks to annihilate him.

Murray and Mack are today the oldest team of farce-comedy stars now before the public, though probably the youngest in years. They have been starring continuously for fourteen years. When they started Murray was 19 years of age and Mack 20. Their first production was a skit, entitled, "The Irish Neighbors." From the beginning of their career they have been successful in their particular line. They have made many big productions, but this year they are fairly to outdo themselves. The production of their latest comedy, "Around the Town," which is said to contain more novelties than any farce-comedy of a similar nature, will be given.

The Norfolk Herald said:

"The two stars are equipped with an abundance of material for their unique methods, and the supporting company takes advantage of the numerous opportunities for hits, individually and collectively. The daintiest bit of human attractiveness in the company is Miss Van, who knows how to do everything that goes with the ideal soubrette—sing, talk and dance well, look pretty and dress dazingly. She shares honors with the stars, Baroness Van Zeller, who was at one time in grand opera, demonstrated last night her ability to sing. She was scored several times and could have continued singing much longer had it not been necessary to bring on the ensemble in order to avoid prolonging the performance to an unreasonable hour for the Casino's final curtain. Miss Purcell's baritone solo also made a hit and was encored several times. Listen to the Big Brass Band's well done, with Ollie Mack doing the comedy stunt. The real novelty of the production is in the last act. In it a swinging song and chorus, during the action of which the momentum of the swings carries the occupants of the seats some distance out into the auditorium over the heads of spectators in the front rows. The act is sensational in the extreme, and brings down the house. The setting of the last act is probably the prettiest ever mounted on the Casino stage."

★ STARS THAT ARE COMING ★

Harry E. Smith's Liberty Belles, musical comedy, will be seen at Greenwall's soon.

Black Batt's Troubadors are now in their tenth year. Forty singers are in the troupe this year. They will be remembered best by the "Lazy Moon," illustrated song, last season.

"McPadden's Plats"—ever hear of them?—are coming back. "Everything new but the title," says the advance man.

Charles Hanford, than whom no Shakespearean actor appearing in the south pleases his audience better, will be seen this year in "Othello." Frank Hennig will appear as Iago.

American and patriotic to the backbone, full of thrilling music and national sentiment, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" is nevertheless the work of two

AL. H. WILSON IN "A GERMAN GIPSY."

"Ma," exclaimed Bobby, "do you like any one to bite you?"

"No, dear. Why?"

"Well, Mr. Buttin just bit sister on the mouth and she put her arms around his neck and she tried to choke him. I guess she doesn't like it, either."—Puck.

ANGER AVOIDED JUST IN TIME!

That is what our many satisfied customers are telling their friends. How was it avoided? That is easily explained. They acted wise and got our prices before they placed their orders, and thereby saved the danger of paying a higher price elsewhere. We claim that we can save you money, and only a look through our stock will convince you of this fact. Get our prices and terms and you will proclaim with the many others that this firm is beyond a doubt the housekeeper's true friend and will stick to you when all others fail.

We have started out to make this month our banner month and if right prices and good goods will cut any figure we will reach the high water mark before the month is past. The last thirty days have been the largest in the history of the store in sales, but still we are not satisfied. We are anxious to do more, and more than anxious to have the good people of this and adjoining cities to come and reap the benefit of our great fall sale. We will do you good. We will have you go away feeling good and saying to your many friends, "It was good to be there, for they saved me money." Now, all we ask is your inspection, and if you are not convinced, then we will gladly take off our hat to the man that can prove to you he can sell cheaper than we do.

We will call your special attention for the coming week to our great odd dresser sale. We have placed in our windows dressers from $10.00 up that can't be duplicated. They are real live bargains. We have just received a car of nothing but odd dressers and if you need one, or are going to need one during the next six months, now is the chance of a lifetime. Be sure and see this great line of dressers.

New Line Library Furniture

We call your special attention to our handsome line of Library Furniture. We have a beautiful assortment of many patterns and designs of everything that makes a library complete. We have a very handsome line of tables, in golden quarter-sawn oak, mahogany and a very swell line in weathered oak, at prices that can't be beat. Leather Couches, Leather Chairs, Writing Desk, Rockers and in fact everything to beautify a library. Don't fail to inspect our magnificent line before placing your order. We would ask that you bear in mind that we carry everything that goes to make your home from the kitchen to the parlor and can and will save you money. Don't fail to visit our store during this coming week, for we are going to have many good bargains that are too numerous to mention. "Come and see us." Remember, we are the housekeeper's friend and bear in mind that we SELL FOR CASH OR CREDIT.

CAPITALISTS HERE TO ORGANIZE BANK

Option Secured on Fixtures for New Institution in Main Street

Piles 14 Years

Several northern capitalists have been in the city for the past few days, investigating the banking field here with a view of starting a new national bank in Main street. Judge N. B. Moore, secretary of the Factory Club, announced that the capitalists are in the city and are already negotiating with the view of locating on the south end of the street and that they fixed upon a site. The capital planned for the new institution will compare favorably with the best banking houses in this city. In case the new bank opens here it will do so in the shortest time possible, as they have already secured an option on some banking furniture that could be placed for them in a few days. The men that are here are the capitalists themselves and not agents, which indicates that they are in earnest.

SCHOOL DESKS ARRIVE

Equipment Here for Fifth Ward School, About Completed. Alderman M. M. Lydon of the Fifth ward has received word that the desks for the new Fifth ward school will be here on Tuesday. The work of installation will commence as soon as they arrive. As there are sixteen rooms, the work of setting up the desks will take a day or a day and a half. The work on the school building is almost completed now except for a few finishing touches which are being made here and there by the carpenters and painters.

"Are you going to entertain next winter?" "No," answered Mr. Cumrox. "We are going to keep on inviting a lot of people to the house. But I don't expect that there'll be any more entertaining than usual."—Washington Star.

Ross & Hever Co.'s System of Piano Selling

Our system of selling pianos approaches very closely to the ideal. It is the result of years of experience and successful dealing. We offer you the choice, side by side, of a number of the leading makes of pianos. We mean precisely what we say, for everyone knows that in their respective classes there is nothing to compare with the Henry F. Miller piano, Sohmer piano, Haddorf piano, Lindeman & Sons piano, Strohber piano, Hoffman piano, Brinkerhoff piano and other great makes we sell. All these great pianos are made at just one uniform price. They are bought direct from the factory and offered to the discerning purchaser in the keenest kind of competition with each other. It is for you to say which of the many individual instruments we show pleases you best and which you consider the best value. Nothing like the prices we quote can be obtained elsewhere on pianos of like quality, for instance, take the instruments at the two extremes of cost—the new Haddorf and Henry F. Miller upright pianos, which we offer for $425.00, are so much better than the pianos sold elsewhere for $160 to $200 that all competent judges view them with amazement. This is a strong statement, but it is the simple truth. On the other hand the new upright pianos we offer you for $198.50 to $298.50 ($10 down and $6 a month), are equally commanding in their position.

With every piano we give a double guaranty, that of the maker and that of Ross & Hever Co. If your home is not perfect in the matter of a piano, why not make us a visit of inspection. Old pianos taken in exchange at their actual value. We believe in honest merchandising and accordingly have marked each piano on our floor in plain figures. One price to all. We do not pay commissions. We employ no outside city salesmen. We have our pianos come to us in carload shipments, thus saving cost of box and enormous freight charges usually had on single piano shipments. We use every possible device to the economical marketing of the pianos we sell. We own our pianos at the lowest price that pianos of merit can be had. Each piano is marked in plain figures and at a competitive price with that price to everybody.

TEACHERS ORGANIZE FOR PRESENT YEAR

Officers Elected at First Institute Held Saturday—Many More Pupils

Organization of the City Teachers' Institute for the present school year was effected at the first regular meeting held at the high school Saturday. Superintendent Hogge presided at the sessions of the institute and Principal Burnett of the First ward school has been elected vice president, with Miss Christina Matthews as secretary. Program committee was appointed as follows: Professor Cales, Grimes and Misses Deason, Martin and Glenn.

A number of interesting topics were taken up at the meeting of the institute Saturday, among them being a discussion of the national education convention at Asbury Park by Superintendent Hogge. In the course of his remarks he spoke encouragingly of the outlook for better salaries for educators.

Miss Mary Malone of the high school faculty has returned from a summer trip through European countries. Professor Gulsinger, who will be in charge of the manual training work of the schools this term, has arrived from Florida, where he has been engaged in similar work.

Weekly School Report Superintendent Alex Hogge, in his weekly school report, says: "It will be observed that building No. 7 has fallen off in attendance. This is due to sickness in the ward. The actual attendance this week over the corresponding week for the session of 1904-05 is 443; over the session preceding that 594 and over the one preceding that 917, an increase of 453 pupils over last year."

Terrible Case Cured Painlessly With Only One Treatment of Pyramid Pile Cure

Free Package in Plain Wrapper Mailed to Everyone Who Writes "I have been a terrible sufferer of piles for fourteen (14) years, and during all this time you can have an idea of how many kinds of medicine I tried. But I found no relief whatever. I felt there must be something that could cure me without having to undergo an operation which might kill me. "Now, after trying but one treatment of your 'Pyramid,' I am free, free to tell all sufferers of this dreadful disease to try this medicine—the Pyramid Pile Cure. It will cure when all others fail. Sincerely yours, George Branch, Chicago, Pa."

Anyone suffering from the terrible torture, burning and itching of piles, will get instant relief from the treatment we send out free, at our own expense, in plain sealed package, to everyone sending name and address. Surgical operation for piles is suicide, cruel, unnecessary and rarely a permanent success. Here you can get a treatment that is quick, easy to apply and inexpensive, and free from the publicity and humiliation you suffer by doctors' examination.

Pyramid Pile Cure is made in the form of "easy to use" suppositories. The coming of a cure is felt the moment you begin to use it, and your suffering ends. Send your name and address at once to Pyramid Drug Co., 5082 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Mich., and get, by return mail, the treatment we will send you free in plain, sealed wrapper.

After seeing for yourself what it can do, you can get a regular, full-size package of Pyramid Pile Cure from any drugist at 50 cents each, or on receipt of price, we will mail you same ourselves if he should not have it.

crease of 22.3 per cent over actual attendance in 1902-03. This shows the growth of the city in population—a gain of over one-fifth. The increase of 443 pupils this year over last means ten additional teachers with adequate accommodations. By a division of some of the lower grades, the management has met, for the time, this deficiency.

"Persons having business with the principals or teachers are requested to see them in person and after school hours, and the same request is made for the superintendent—at the high school from 3:30 to 5 o'clock except Saturday. Transfers and requests cannot be arranged over the telephone."

TRAINED NURSE AT FOOT BALL GAME

Miss Marguerite Whiting Attends Contests on University Campus

Fort Worth University has introduced an innovation in football. Among the big eastern and western teams it is the custom to have a complete corps of doctors, trainers and rubbers on the field in case of accident, but it remained for the Fort Worth University to get them all one better and have a trained nurse on the field.

Miss Marguerite Whiting, the regular trained nurse of the university, is attending the games on the campus, ready to assist in any emergency. Saturday, however, her services were not required. Miss Whiting was loyal to the university and wore an orange and blue flag with F. W. U. tied about her right arm in place of the usual red cross emblem.

STUDENTS DISCUSS UNIVERSITY CHANGE

News of Dr. MacAdam's Resignation as President Received With Regret by Undergraduates

Arrival of The Telegram at the Fort Worth University campus during the progress of the football game between the university and the Dallas Y. M. C. Saturday afternoon conveyed the first intelligence to the students of the resignation of Dr. MacAdam as president of the institution and the appointment of Dr. William Fielder as his successor. Not one of the students had the slightest idea that there had been a change in the head of the university, and as the story spread, the interest in the football game lagged while the news was discussed by each and every student. All expressed the deepest regret over the departure of Dr. MacAdam, as he has made himself the friend of every student. Many hopes were expressed also for the future prosperity of the institution under its new leadership.

COMMITTEE NAMED FOR FAT STOCK SHOW

Leading Citizens Placed on Board of Trade Committee to Arrange for Annual Event

President D. T. Bomar of the Fort Worth Board of Trade Saturday appointed the committee that is to have charge of the National "Breeders" and Fort Worth Live Stock Show which will be held in this city next spring. The plans of the organization are for a show that will be far more pretentious and elaborate than the one that was held this year. Last year the committee in charge was not appointed until in December, and had but a short time to work up the necessary premiums and catalogue. The association will be made permanent, being incorporated under the state laws. The committee appointed is as follows:

Sterling P. Clark, F. D. Hovencamp, Marion Sansom, J. W. Montague, E. E. Baldrige, Jacob Washer, Stuart Harrison, J. B. Burnside and W. W. Sloan, Jr.

Why Furniture pieces make the best gifts—

WE hardly think it in good taste to try to argue with sensible people that "furniture pieces make the best gifts." This is on the face of the proposition. Yet some people do not think so. They will select some worthless or costly present that only gladdens the eye for the moment, then fades away and the recipient wishes it had been something more substantial. We are filling our immense building with everything for the home. You know that every home needs some piece of furniture—a Rocker, Center Table, Dining Table, China Closet, Buffet, Sideboard, Book Case, Secretary, Desk, Dressing Table, Library Table, Magazine Rack, Screen, Hall Mirror or Seat, in fact our space here is too small to enumerate further. We want you to come and see us when weddings, birthdays or any occasion arises in your life when you want to show your appreciation of a friend. Don't throw your money away. "I have found Wine of Cardui such a benefit to me," writes Mrs. Leta Forte of Toledo, Ill., "that I shall continue to use it. I cannot praise your medicine enough."

A tired or languid feeling is a sign of weak vitality, and this, in women, is nearly always due to the debilitating influence of female trouble. When your menstrual functions are out of order, they call upon the nerves for help, and your nerves answer the call by throwing into the weak parts all the blood force and vitality they can possibly get together. Of course this weakens the rest of your body. Of course you feel tired and languid. Of course you need outside help to keep up your strength and help to make you well. This necessary help you can get by taking Cardui, the pure, old, reliable, scientific remedy for sick women. For tiredness, weakness, irregular menstruation, monthly pains, dragging sensations, debilitating discharge, and all female complaints, a sure cure is

LAST TRAIL OF JESSE BOLAND

With His Old Friend, the Marshal, He Crossed Over the Great Divide
(Copyright, 1905, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)
Rapid City was an extreme example of a picturesque but unwholesome community. The incumbent of the marshalcy of Rapid City had won his exalted position solely because no one could recall a time when he had been either dilatory for a fatal moment or inaccu-curate for an effective hairsbreadth, in his manipulation of that product of the American desire for quick results. So when he issued an edict against carrying guns inside the "city" limits the cow-punchers took out their revenge in oaths and threats against the next election; and, from the very day after the edict, the place of the pistol knew it no more. Rapid City had managed to survive about a week of this uncomfortable, negative virtue, when Jesse Bolande, esq., rode into town at about 4 in the afternoon. He had been on his range all week, and as he stood at the unmirrored bar of "Keno Jim's place," he listened to the new state of affairs with many an oath of incredulous amaze.

The marshal was hardly above medium height. The marshal was rather below medium weight. The marshal and Bolande were old friends; they had once toiled on a ragged claim upon the mountains together; they had stood back to back in skirmishes with yelling savages in a howling wilderness.

When the marshal entered the saloon, he did not at first see Bolande's revolver, and there was an unstrained cordiality in the "How!" with which he greeted him, while the warmth of Bolande's answer strove with a pacificatory meanness.

When finally the glint of Bolande's dinky weapon struggled through the smoke of the room to the marshal's eye, he said quietly, that the others might not hear: "Jesse, stick your gun behind the bar till you're leavin' town. Can't let you tote your irons in this man's town now."

"Ownin' this place now, are you, marshal?" There was too little subtlety in Bolande's intonation to deceive the marshal in his portent, and he flung back a sharp reply, "Any skin off you, I do!"

And Bolande calmed before the other's frank resentment and shrugging himself again, murmured: "Nope. But the depth of his chest and whirled him completely about.

The marshal, a little cooler and a little readier for battle, had crooked his left arm into a shield for his heart and lungs, and in its elbow rested his busy revolver. Bolande's first shot went high and, seizing on his chin, carried away the flesh of half his jaw. The second missile flung low and nipped at his right elbow, shattering the joint and shaking the six-shooter from his grasp. As he bent in fierce haste to seize it with his left hand, Bolande shot him through the spine and paralyzing the lower part of him. But even as he quivered to the floor he grasped his revolver and, agonizing into a quick aim, fired again at Bolande.

The bullet fastened on Bolande's left leg and brought the giant thunderously down. And now the desperate marshal is crying in rabid impotence, "Raise me up, some of you! Raise me up, damn you, and give me another try at the..."

But Bolande had gathered himself into superb position, prone on the floor in the old fashion of Indian fighting. His pistol covered his frenzied adversary, and he said, with a paternal quietude of victory: "Marshal, I think we've hit our last trail. Neither of us is worth any more lead. Is it quits?"

Almost reverentially the partisans of each lifted his limp majesty from the sticky pool of his own blood, and both were carried upstairs to a little room in the hotel.

They placed a cot near the marshal's bed. Outside the red glory of the prairie sunset was thrilling the earth to a responsive flush. Within the room was a greater glory, the austere passing of two granite-couraged heroes.

The sinewy hands of the twain lay clasped outside the coverlet. Bolande was the first to find power for speech.

"Are you easy, marshal?" "Easy as a kid in a cradle, Jess. How're they comin' on your side?" "Same here, old man. But I'm goin' fast."

"You won't beat me out five minutes, Jess." At length the marshal looked a request, and one of the men bent over to hear his feeble mutterings, then went out and returned with two glasses of whisky on a cracked plate.

Across the marshal's face fluttered the wan ghost of a smile, as he spoke between fierce gulps of pain. "You—stood the—last treat, Jess. Have one—on me—now?"

"Sure—old boss!" was the grisly cordiality of the tortured Bolande. "Better luck—in—the—next country!"

"How!" was the marshal's acceptance; and they drank with panting effort.

"Well, it was a damned good fight, anyway!" Bolande squeezed the marshal's clammy hand as a last spasm wrung the clay dry of his soul, and he was dead.

A long two minutes of silence smothered life before the marshal breathed a faintness, half a sigh, half an answering whisper, "Good-by—Jess—or—is it—how?" And the sands of his life were run.

So they died, stern in wrath, stern in love, each content, rather than proud, that he—and his friend—had died game. They were Americans.

For the first time in his life little Ned heard the expression "blood relation." It kept buzzing through his head, and finally he was compelled to ask his mother for an explanation. She told him the meaning of blood relation, and after a brief moment of thought, the youngster exclaimed: "Gee, ma, you're the bloodiest relation I have, aren't you?"—Brooklyn Life.

Customer (who has fallen downstairs)—"Help! I've broken my leg." Shopwalker—"Yes, sir, you'll find crutches, bandages, etc., on the fourth floor front."—Birmingham Post.

NEW YORK LIFE CO. HAS MAN OF MYSTERY

Judge Andrew Hamilton, Much Wanted by Investigators, Somewhere in Europe

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—"Judge" Andrew Hamilton of the New York Life Insurance Company legal staff, confidential adviser of President McCall, and for ten years conspicuous as representing the interests of the company at the state capital, is missing from the front in the insurance battle. The blood mustache is curled nicely at the ends, he is always dressed in dapper style and among his companions is known as a "good fellow." Among those who knew him casually his business has always been more or less of a mystery. At the Hoffman House his politician friends declare that he owes his rapid advancement in financial circles to the friendship of Anthony N. Brady, millionaire. Hamilton met John A. McCall first when the latter was superintendent of insurance. Shortly after McCall became head of the New York Life, Hamilton became legal representative of the company. He frequently appeared before legislative committees dealing with insurance matters. His daughter was recently married to the son of Millionaire Brady. His wife and two children are now with him in Europe. "Judge" Hamilton has been a civil justice, clerk in the court of claims, and district attorney in Albany, where last heard of Hamilton he was somewhere in Switzerland. An attempt has been made to get word to him. His presence is much desired by Inquisitor Charles E. Hughes of the legislative insurance investigating committee.

Inquisitor Hughes would like to ask the "judge" what use he made of the $100,000 that Vice President Perkins says he received during 48 hours, in March, 1904, by order of President McCall. The books of the New York Life do not show to what fund, or purpose, this money was applied. It is alleged that the insurance company had a very heavy "lobby" account at Albany.

Hamilton has, through the insurance investigation, leaped suddenly from comparative obscurity into the limelight. He is 48 years old, 5 feet 8 1/2 inches in height, weighs 145 pounds, and has small round features. His he maintained a handsome home. He is the president of the Albany Club and a few years ago celebrated his return home from Europe, it is said, by uncorking $3,000 worth of wine for the club members.

"What are you crying for, my poor little boy?" "Don't take on so, my pet. He'll get better soon." "Sister saw him fall—all the way. I never saw nuffin'—boo hoo!"—Sporting Times.

"RAISE ME UP, SOME OF YOU."
That'll be some off the man that tries to take my gun away."
Almost pleadingly the quiescent marshal answered: "Jesse, I'll give you till 6 o'clock to put up your gun, or pull your freight out of this."
Still more unassumingly, but still more firmly, Bolande answered: "You'll find me right here at 6. Bring your nerve with you, marshal. Have a drink!"
"Don't mind if I do, Jesse. Here's 'low!" and they drained the martyrdom with unflinching gusto.
The marshal evidently thought it only right to give his old friend, three minutes of grace, for it was a little after the hour when his step was heard on the board walk outside.
As the marshal's searching look made out Bolande's form, and looking further, found his pistol under his arm, he said to him: "You've got to leave town now, Jesse. You've got to leave town now, Jesse. You've got to leave town now, Jesse."

OUR LAY SERMON

"Abide with me, lest falls the eventide.

The darkness deepens, Lord with me abide.

When other helpers fail and comforts

fly,

Help of the helpless, O abide with me."

Pure and clear, at first, rang the tones of the old hymn of faith and trust. A girl was dying on the white iron opera-table in a Chicago hospital. She was singing. And then fainter and fainter grew the voice until the song died away in a whisper. The girl was dead.

She had chanted her own requiem.

Beautiful and brave Clara Butler, soprano

of Morgan Park Baptist church,

Chicago, had been thrown by an accident

under the wheels of a train and was hurried to the hospital in the hope of saving her life by an operation—in vain.

Miss Butler knew that death was closing down on her life. She whispered a message for her relatives who were in an adjoining room and said with a smile,

"Tell them I am not afraid to die."

And then her glorious voice, a voice

that had wafted the souls of devout worshippers above the things of time and sense

floated through the operating rooms. Surgeons and nurses turned away to the windows as the dying girl sang over and over again the one stanza of her favorite song. Their eyes were wet. The girl's soul was in her voice that now filtered

and died away in a whisper as the dark waters closed about her.

"Abide with me."

"You don't believe as the girl believed?

Superstition? Deception? Reflex influence, etc. But she was brave! And something helped to still the awful agony

in the face of death."

Disbeliever, agnostic, or what not, are you not glad the girl got strength from some source as the life ebbed away from her poor mangled body?

You would no more take away

such a hope of dying faith than you would knock the crutches from beneath a cripple.

"Help of the helpless, O abide with me."

Are you quite prepared to say the prayer was unanswered?—Des Moines

News.

It would be very difficult for a Christian heart to believe that a prayer of that kind was not answered. That young girl, cut down in the blush and bloom of her glorious young womanhood, was just with love for poor fallen humanity that

He made this sacrifice, and God so loves

the world that His ear is never closed to the call of the believer who is willing even to be saved.

The dying thief, who was present during the agony that provided redemption for the world, prayed that he might be saved even while the death dew had settled upon his brow, and the Son of God—undergoing the agony that had been placed upon Him, promised that thief

that he should go with Him to Paradise.

Does any one doubt that thief was saved?

And if a thief who is being crucified

for his transgressions against the law, can be lifted up and saved in the few minutes that intervened before the launching of this soul into Eternity, can any one doubt or lack faith in the saving of this Christian heroine?

And the religion that can make such a heroine out of a young and tender girl

should be worth our most serious consideration.

That principle within our hearts that can cause us to forget such terrible suffering, such physical anguish and the pain of parting with those our hearts hold

dear, while the very soul is lifted up in rapture at the thought of soon being in the presence of its God, must be an attribute worth more than all else in this world beside. It must be something that is worth striving for and acquiring regardless of the cost.

And it is such a simple thing, after all.

It is true that the ransom of a king cannot purchase it—all the money that has ever been coined in the world and that that may be coined in the hereafter, cannot buy the privilege of even one brief

moment in the presence of Almighty

God. All the good deeds that can be done in an average life time will avail us

nothing when the summons comes, as it must come to every inhabitant of this earth.

The man of fabulous riches who has lorded it over all creation while he has permitted to lumber this earth, has to enter the Heavenly portals in the same manner as the thief who died with Christ

on the cross.

That thief believed that Jesus Christ

was the Son of God, that He had been sent here on earth as a sacrifice for sin,

and he accepted the Christ as his personal Savior and calling upon His Blessed

Name, asked to be saved.

Gentle reader, that is the official program.

That is the route each of us must travel

if we would bask in the sunshine of God's holy love. There is no short cut—no other method under high Heaven by which it can be done. God has provided the method. It is open to one and all alike, and the individual who seeks to break in by the back gates is going to find that way blocked with the countless thousands who have been guilty of the same error.

There is nothing else in this life so worthy of immediate attention.

In the pride of our health and strength

today, we are too prone to forget the duty

we owe to God and ourselves in this matter. We put off until tomorrow what we should do today, and when the summons comes to us unexpectedly we realize when it is too late; that we have lost all that the human heart can conceive of that is worth having.

We never know when the dread rider of the pale steed is going to ride in our direction. The summons often comes instantaneously and thousands are taken

who have not even time to chant a requiem and breathe a prayer for the soul's salvation.

Man—poor fallen man, is too busy preparing for the temporal things of this uncertain and transitory life, to give thought or attention to the most important thing that can come into his life—the welfare of his soul. Truly, it is an amazing condition, but it seems difficult to remedy.

The very simplicity of God's plan of salvation seems to condemn it in the eyes of those who should hail it with joy.

A LECTURE TO EMPLOYERS

Mr. Employer: You say good employees, competent, safe, able, conscientious, are scarce. Did it ever occur to you appreciate honest effort, fail to say

so. "It will never do, you know, to praise him. He might get the swell bride." At the same time if the employer has the slightest fault he never hears an end of the fault finding or criticism, or maybe, ridicule. That kind of employer of labor DOES NOT DE-

SERVE GOOD SERVICE. And he seldom gets it.

There are other directors of work who do not trust the people who are under them. They play the spy or get others to do so. Every indication displays distrust. They go about suspicious and watchful. They see only a disposition of the workers to shirk their labors. This sort of manager never gets co-operation. He doesn't even get respect. There is a secret war between the head of the house and the rank and file. He is not successful in holding his helpers because THE

SUCCESSFUL MANAGER KNOWS A

GOOD MAN WHEN HE SEES HIM.

And there is the boss who awears at his helpers. Do you think this sort of man is found only on the streets or over ditch workers? YOU ARE MIS-

TAKEN! Many a man supposed to be decent uses profanity to his employees. And not every man will stand for that sort of thing. If the employe endures

it it is because he must. Of a coarser type still is the man who drinks to excess. He is sure to impose upon his people.

Of another type is the fussy employ-

er. He cannot trust anyone to do things for him. He must always interfere. Every slightest detail must have his bossy oversight. He breaks into the plans of his workers. He puts them out of touch. Instead of giving them general directions and trusting in the intelligence of his employes, he wears them out by constantly breaking in. The employe who does this way

(and there are a lot of them) has no business to be over his better.

Another sort of employe always looks for cheap men. He does not seem to know that it is the ambitious man who is the efficient man. A

CHEAP MAN DOES CHEAP WORK.

He is dear at any price. In reality he is not a man, but a machine. He will stand almost any sort of misuse, but he will not do good work. It is not in

him. He will do as little as possible.

The boss holds him cheap and pays him

cheap. Why should he consider himself as worth much?

And so it goes. One might go on to specify the numerous failings of employers. It is sufficient to say that men do not always lose their jobs of their own fault. Many times the fault lies with the employe. As there are incapable, faithless and lazy workers, so also are there incompetent, tact-

less, suspicious, brutal and unappreciative managers. IF YOU CANNOT

HOLD YOUR PEOPLE, MR. EMPLOY-

ER, MAYBE THE FAULT IS WITH

YOU RATHER THAN WITH YOUR

PEOPLE.

Colonel Cecil Lyon has fallen in his attempt to induce President Roosevelt to again be the candidate of his party for the presidency. This must be very trying upon the exuberance of spirits usually manifested by Colonel Lyon, but it will not prevent him from soon breaking out in a new place.

Thousands of new people are now coming into the state and making new homes in this land of promise. As a rule, they errate the very cream of the citizenship of the older states, and are valuable acquisitions to Texas. To all such the

GRAFT HIGH UP IN GOVERNMENT

Officials' Families Given Dummy Jobs

U. S. FOOTS THE BILLS

Congressman Boasts of Supporting Whole Family From the Clerk Hire Fund

BY GILSON GARDNER Staff Correspondence to the Telegram WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 7.—Congress and the higher officials of the government are morally responsible for a large share of the petty graft which abounds in the public service.

ury department, under Mr. Shaw's administration, inaugurated the custom of using the colored messengers in his home also for butlers and waiters. The practice of using government employees as coachmen was exploited a year or so ago, and at that time this secretary and some other sub-officials lost the privilege of using the "official carriages" for making afternoon calls and doing marketing.

discarded, and the member merely makes the necessary certification that this sum has been expended, and puts the money into his pocket. The fact that he signs a lie does not trouble him. Last winter Representative A. J. Volstead of Granite Falls, Minn., made the boast that he was living and supporting his family on the $1,200 clerk hire allowance, and saving the $5,000 salary and the $125 allowance for stationery.

quicker and cleverly made answer: "We won't do it again, Miss Milton"—and for some reason there was applause as the dog was led off to the retirement of the stage. The following morning one newspaper remarked that: "Among the prettiest of the lighter touches was the Christmas tree in the first act, and the dog scene in the third act."

DAVID ARISES AGAINST TRUSTS IN NEW JERSEY

Edward Colby, Wealthy Young Banker, Makes Campaign on Limited Franchise Plank

BY MARLIN E. PEW. NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 8.—A blow has been struck at the foot which rocks the cradle of the trusts. Edward Colby, a wealthy young banker, doing business in Wall street, and living in this city, is the nominee from this district for state senator.

rupted him. His associates were millionaires' sons. "The people of my state are disposed to react against political grafting," he said, when he had got down to business. "I have made a three-month fight for my nomination. About 70 per cent of the voters participated in the primaries, a number unheard of before. The people are interested because I have promised them something. I have declared myself the enemy of the corporation which controls our legislature, making it grid out special graft as against the best interests of the many. My fight has been upon local issues, and has been especially directed against the Pennsylvania railroad, which seems to have tried to swallow the state, and against the street car trust, which has attempted to swallow my district."

much hope for a high moral tone among the subordinates. Few people have any idea of the extent to which government officials, and congressmen are accustomed to use employees who are carried on the government rolls to decrease their own private expenses. By employing government "charwomen" as cooks, or "messengers" as butlers or valets, the personal expenses of these public men are considerably reduced.

office, but he was not available, and was dismissed. Then he was saddled on the house of representatives rolls as clerk to the committee on fisheries. James A. Hemenway, lately chairman of the house committee on appropriations, but recently elected to the senate to succeed Fairbanks, has a brother, William I. Hemenway, on the house rolls as a messenger.

It was only very recently that Jim Watson of Indiana, a member of the ways and means committee, found it necessary to have a regular secretary. Representative Griffiths of Indiana had his wife or daughter as secretary, as did ex-congressman Robinson of the same state, while Holliday had his son.

Among the necessary acquirements for the actress is an unshakable self-control. She must never fly off at a tangent, because of some unheeded incident. She must not scream when the perennial gallery idiot yells fire. If there is an accident she must not turn and incontinently flee from the stage. If something is forgotten, she must try hard to hide its absence or invent a substitute. If anything unusual occurs I always incorporate it into the play if possible; as when in the school scene of "Miss Merton," I was astonished to see a large water spigot come trotting on the stage, waving his tall tail at me, as if we had been bosom friends for years.

CZAR, AFTER PEACE, AGAIN FEELS BRAVE

Takes Credit for Diplomatic Victory to Himself and Assumes Autocratic Role

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 18.—Since the ending of the war in the far east, the Emperor Nicholas has become a changed man. The diplomatic victory gained by Russia at the peace conference has put new heart into him. Where six months ago the lord of Peterhof was a despondent, invertebrate being, incapable of action and in despair, he is now energetic, full of life, and a constant surprise to his entourage. Peace has made him brave.

FRANK M. SUTTON. SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Oct. 6.—At the district conference of the Methodist church, at Hampton, was given over to discussion of the adventure of the Rev. Frank M. Sutton, pastor at Terril, who proved himself a hero by betraying no mention when a mouse ran up his trousers leg while he was in the midst of a sermon.

PASTOR KILLED MOUSE UP HIS TROUSER'S LEG

It was last Sunday that Mr. Sutton had his unique experience. He was preaching of the wise and foolish virgins and had reached a point where his voice was reduced almost to a whisper in an eloquent application of the lesson drawn from the text when he felt something run across his instep. Then he felt a tugging and clawing on his hose. His face blanched, but his voice never faltered as he went on with his sermon. He touched the spot where the disturbance had occurred with the toes of his other shoe. Immediately there was a scurrying upward, inside his trousers leg. It was plain that it was a mouse.

impossible to go on like this. We must use force. "I quite agree with you. We must take stringent measures," said the czar. The dowager empress, who was present, and who had attended the interview with M. Witte, here broke in, saying: "How is that you agree with two contradictory opinions? Such a thing is impossible."

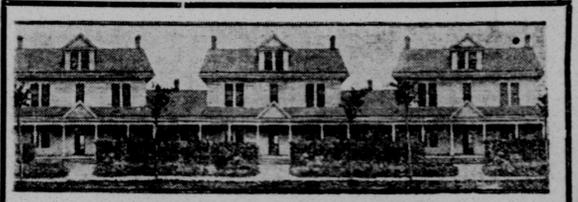

Nicholas is giving all his time to preparing for the first meeting of the new Russian popular assembly. It is his present hobby and he is as enthusiastic over the coming parliament as a scientist is over the discovery of a new element in the universe; for Czar Nicholas believes he has discovered a new principle in government—their is possible to retain an autocratic rule, and at the same time give representative institutions to a nation. Because, with representative government the Kaiser can force his own personality on every thing political in Germany, Nicholas thinks he can duplicate the feat in Russia.

When the crash comes and he finds that real representative government has been established in Russia, Nicholas will be as much surprised as he was when he found himself engaged in war with the mikado. Watching his autocratic throne being made into a rubbish heap, he will probably exclaim to Russia as he did to Japan: "You do not play fair; you took me by surprise."

He is, however, the most interesting political character in New Jersey today. Upon that ground I paid him a visit at his magnificent estate, near Seabright. My object was to find if he did, in truth, promise any genuine attack upon the corporation laws of New Jersey. Under these, as the world knows, the makers of trusts, for the payment of an incorporation fee of a tenth of 1 per cent, can obtain charters upon oceans of watered stock, laws which countenance "dummy" directors and all of the various underhanded invasions of the spirit of honesty in commerce and industry which the trusts operating under the statutes of this state have indulged in with impunity since the era of vast combinations.

ated that state leaders will adopt a conciliatory policy and may accept his views upon limited franchises. He is the dominant force in New Jersey politics. "What is it now?" "I wanna nother piece cake?" "No, Tommy; you've had enough." "Aw, mal Yer always telling me I don't eat properly, an' men you don't never gimme no chance to practice!"—Cleveland Leader.

Betty and Bunny Cottontail's Visit to Town.

BY MAUD WALKER.

"I'm so lonely! I'm so lonely! I'm so lonely!" And pretty Betty Cottontail nodded her head, shaking her long, delicate grey ears very emphatically as she declared her unhappy state of mind.

costed every little while, and were obliged to stop to chat a bit with each rabbit friend or relative. Not a few shook their heads dubiously when they learned that the pair of reckless youths were off to town, for that particular place held many dangers for the Rabbit Tribe, a fact well known to them.

never been heard by them. "Sick 'em! Sick 'em!" came the cries, answered by a terrible larking from the pursuing boys' four-footed companion. "Shoot 'em, Tom, come another cry, loud and commanding. Then—whiz!—whiz! went something so close to Betty's ear that she thought she had been struck. And such a roar followed quickly that it sounded in the two fleeing rabbits' ears like a nearby crack of thunder.

On, on, wildly on through the old field the two Cottontails flew, with the barking dog close behind. But Betty and Bunny could tell by the sounds of the children's voices and the barking of their merrier preser that they were outrunning them. Oh, how their hearts beat for joy at this! And in both little rabbit minds the resolution was quickly formed to return to their wild, safe life as soon as they could possibly do so. "If I live to get away from this danger," whispered Betty to herself, "I'll never go near civilization again—never!"

At last the barking ceased to sound in their ears, and dashing to turn round to look backward Betty and Bunny saw that the dog had given up the chase and was trotting back to meet the boys who had, evidently given up all hope of capturing or killing the Cottontails.

"Let us rest," said Bunny, sitting down and opening his mouth to fill his exhausted lungs with fresh air. "I'm about done for. Don't care to race with any more dogs."

hearl began to beat a bit faster than was usual with it, and she kept her eyes wide open that nothing strange might catch her unawares.

"Nothing to fear," assured Bunny, who observed that Betty chattered and laughed less. "I'm not the least apprehensive of trouble." But the gay-hearted fellow was not ignorant of the fact that now they were nearing the boundary line, beyond which lurked many forms of danger for his own kind. Still he meant to keep up his courage and go boldly forward.

At last, after a horseman had disappeared down the road, Betty and Bunny went on up the hill, from the summit of which they could look down on the town. They decided it would be safer to risk the fields than the open road, so they turned into an old cornfield that was dotted thickly with corn shocks. They had not gone very far into this field when the strange voices of children fell sudden, on their quick ears. Then came the barking of a dog. Although this was the first time either of the cottontails had ever heard human or dog sound distinct told them what these strange noises meant. "Danger!" whispered Betty, her long ears quivering with fright as they caught the ominous sounds. "What shall we do?"

"Oh, since you seem afraid we'll slip into this convenient shelter," answered Bunny, leading the way to a nearby corn shock. The truth may as well be told of the brave fellow that he had no wish to meet the creatures that were approaching and making such hideous noises. But Bunny would not yet have confessed his fear to Betty. Hardly had the two Cottontails hidden themselves inside the corn shock when nearer and nearer came the sounds of children's shouting and dog's barking, and just as Betty was praying with all her heart that the danger would pass them by there thrust itself right into their hiding place the cold, sniffling nose of a dog. Betty thought she would faint, but Bunny laid an encouraging paw on her arm and hoarsely whispered: "Come, follow me, and run for your life—as you never ran before!"

Then as the dog set up an awful barking, his bloodthirsty eyes peering into poor Betty's own wild ones, Bunny dashed out through the side of the corn shock opposite the place where the enemy held their bay, and took off across the cornfield with the swiftness of a deer. And Betty needed no further bidding; with her very heart in her mouth, so to speak, she kept close to Bunny's heels.

And such a shouting, yelling, laughing and barking as followed them through the harsh grass and corn stubble had Come, out with it." "A dog, a lot of murderous children and—oh, think of it—a gun!" cried Betty, finding that honest confession relieved her mind wonderfully.

"Oh, ho! Just as I feared," said Madam Cottontail. "Well, home and mother is not so bad—are they?"

"No, mamma dear," said Betty snugly against her parent's side. "And if you will forgive me for this past day's conduct I shall never go off from home again in quest of adventure. Home is novelty enough for me, and my own family, kinfolks and friends the only things I care to know. Now, let us all take a nap and be fresh for our early start tomorrow morning. I know we'll have a delightful time."

And five minutes later Bunny, Betty and Madam Cottontail were sleeping peacefully. Bunny and Betty dreaming of a pack of dogs led on by heavily armed boys, while Madam Cottontail dreamed of the return of two prodigal children.

How the Rainy Day Cleared for the Girls.

BY ANNIE JAMES.

"Oh, mercy me! It's pouring rain! Isn't it just too bad for anything?" And Jenny Burton sprang out of bed and ran to the window to look down on a street that was sheltered overhead with umbrellas and made disagreeable under foot by a beating downpour of rain.

"Well, I'm glad it's Saturday and we are not obliged to go to school," said half-awake Margaret, rubbing her blue eyes open as she sat on the edge of the bed. "My goodness!—it is raining pitchforks, isn't it, though?" And Margaret came to the window to see the splatter of drops that washed in a torrent against the panes. "We are lucky to be able to stay indoors—that's one thing to be thankful for." And she sat down to draw on her stockings. Margaret returned, yawning, to the bed.

"Why, goose, don't you remember today is the date set for our going to the woods to gather autumn leaves and cat-tails?" asked Jenny with some impatience in her voice. "I feel vexed enough to cry, so I do."

"Oh, so today is the day," replied Margaret, now getting fully awake. Then a cloud of disappointment spread over her pretty face. "Tshaw—! It is provoking!"

"Yes, it is," asserted Jennie. "I always feel blue when I can't get out. And I particularly dislike staying indoors on Saturday—the only day we can call our own during school session."

think it would scare me off, eh?" "Oh, you have nixed it up," cried Margaret, leading Cousin Ned into the sitting-room. "You came just because it is raining. You must have known all along that we would need you on this particular day—so we would not mind not getting to go to the country after cat-tails."

"Yes, Cousin Ned," said Jenny, solemnly, "if you had not come today I don't know how we could have got over a certain disappointment. We had planned for a week past to go to the country today for autumn leaves and cat-tails. Fancy our vacation when we awoke and saw the deluge of rain with a sky that said: 'I mean to keep this up all day.' Really I was on the point of crying when mamma came in to tell us you were coming; in other words, she told us the sun would shine regardless of the clouds. Why, everything brightened right away."

"That's right, Cousin Ned," affirmed Margaret, climbing on the big cousin's knee. "You take the place of the sun."

"Cat-tails?" asked Cousin Ned, laughing. "Well, it's a good thing to be of use to somebody or bodies, if it is only when the rain comes down."

"Oh, no, Cousin Ned, you don't take the place of cat-tails and autumn leaves," declared Margaret, "you take the place of the sun. As soon as we heard you were coming—why, the rain was entirely forgotten."

"Little flatterer," laughed Cousin Ned, pinching Margaret's cheek. But he felt that, after all, he was thankful to be the owner of a disposition that rain could not dampen nor clouds darken one whit.

An hour later, on entering his room and seeing how the little hands had adorned and decorated it for his comfort and pleasure he went to the head of the stairs and called down to two little girls whose chatter he could hear in the hall: "Say, kiddies, it pays to play at being cat-tails—see the sun—when by so doing one may have the joy of occupying a room made beautiful by the touch of magic fairies' hands. Think I'll make an appointment with you to rain in whenever there happens to come a cloud in the sky. Why, I'm lodged like a king."

"That's because you are so happy that you make everybody else happy," answered Margaret. And Jenny, looking up the stairs, said: "You are the king of all kings we love to entertain. You are the king of sunshine, Cousin Ned."

know you would be good and ready to return as soon as you got there. You've heard me tell often of the dogs that abound where people live. Now, away out here, five miles from any habitation, we are comparatively safe. But you, like all young blood, would run the risk of losing your life just to get a nibble of dangerous excitement."

"If you will only give your consent for me to go with Cousin Bunny tomorrow I'll promise you that I shall not run my head into any danger," said Betty, coaxingly. "You heard Cousin Bunny say that he means to spend a week in and about town. He isn't afraid of anything in the shape of people and dogs."

"But what about guns?" asked Madam Cottontail. "They are a bit more throat-cutting than things called people and dogs. A gun may be half a mile away from you, and at the same time put a little lead pill clean through your body." And Madam Cottontail shook her head wisely. "No, no, for me, I'm satisfied to stay in the wilds, away from what is called civilization. Civilization has nothing to offer me—kind—no you may depend on it."

"Oh, mamma, you are old and easily frightened," said Betty, lightly. "As for me, I mean to see something besides these prairie and wild woods and the river."

"Very well, go and see," said Madam Cottontail. "But whatever befalls you—just remember your old mother's advice. And don't forget the dogs."

"Dogs!" And Betty laughed heartily. "Why, mamma, you amuse me very much. Why, don't you know there never was a dog that could catch a Cottontail?"

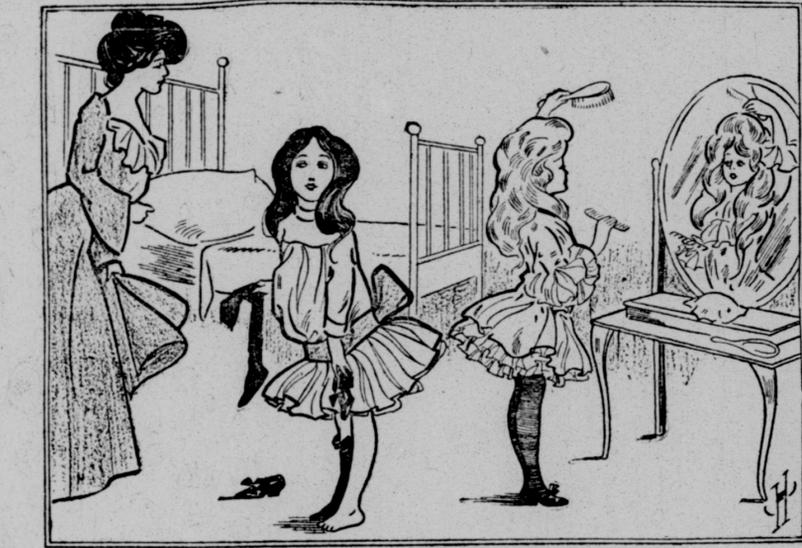

"All right, I tell you," said Madam Cottontail. "Go and have your own way."

The next day, bright and early, Betty Cottontail, in company with her cousin Bunny, came from a neighboring grove, set out towards the town, some six or seven miles distant. "Look for us back in one week, mamma dear," called back Betty, as she trotted along beside her gay young cousin.

"If you are not either killed or captured I'll look for you tomorrow morning," said Madam Cottontail. Then the old rabbit went out to get her breakfast. "Foolish youth," she said, as she looked after the disappearing pair, whose long ears could be seen dining and falling as they leaped along through the high grass.

As Betty and Bunny had several acquaintances living along the road leading towards the wild, Western town, that sat in a grass-grown valley at the foot of a high hill, the two Cottontails were

The Haida Indians and their Totem Poles.

The Haida Indians are divided into two groups of families, the Raven people and the Eagle people. It is forbidden for a man of the Raven group to marry a woman of the same group, and for a man of the Eagle group to marry in his group. Each of these groups is subdivided into a number of families. Most of these families bear the names of certain localities and were originally village communities, but are considered as relatives; therefore, marriage is not allowed among them.

Each family has a number of crests, most of which illustrate certain traditions of the family.

The illustration accompanying this article is sketched from the model of an original pole which belongs in the Museum of Natural History, New York City. It represents a memorial column erected in memory of several members of a family of the Raven clan. Both of the principal designs represent the persecuted snag. Above he is represented as sea lion, but with blow hole and dorsal fin. Below he has the shape of a whale. The banded shaft between the two is a drift-log.

It just too mean for anything—this horrid rain!" cried Margaret. "We had planned to have such a jolly time—and here is this horrid weather putting a stop to everything."

"Why, dearie, the old earth must have her baths regularly, or she would get bald-headed; that is to say, nothing would grow on her surface. We depend on crops for food and beautiful flowers. Those things depend on the rain to feed them. But—come, cheer up! I've got bright news for you. Since it is raining so that you must abandon your country excursion fate has been a good old dame and sent us a scrap of good news. Who do you suppose is coming today?"

Both little girls stopped in the midst of their toilets and began to guess. "It can't be—Cousin Ned?" And Jenny looked for answer in her mother's face.

"Oh, is it Cousin Ned?" exclaimed Margaret, her voice hopeful.

"No one else," said their mamma. "I just had a wire from him saying he would be here to spend Saturday and Sunday with us. He arrives on the 11 o'clock train."

"Oh, good, good!" cried little Margaret, dancing about the room with one shoe on and one foot bare. "I don't care if it rains snakes and toads—if only Cousin Ned will be here. Won't we have a jolly time?"

"Oh, it's a lot nicer to have Cousin Ned than sunshine and a trip to the country—he's always so jolly." And Jenny lent her enthusiasm to her sister.

"And why is it that everyone wants your Cousin Ned?" asked mamma. "Don't you think it is because he is always so bright and happy under all circumstances? Rain or shine, he finds plenty to do to entertain himself and any others who might be about him?"

"Yes, mamma dear, you are right," And Jenny brushed a stubborn tangle out of her fair hair. "I'm going to try to cultivate a 'Cousin-Ned disposition,' so I can."

"Now, I'm going to let you two girls fix up the guest chamber for Cousin Ned. That will keep you pretty busy if you get it done before his arrival," said their mother, who loves a cheerful room to keep in tune with his cheerful thoughts. I'll trust to your taste to make the apartment cosy."

After breakfast the two little girls ran up stairs to the guest chamber and began their preparations for the coming most welcome visitor.

"We'll put a lot of bright cushions on the couch and in the big chair by the grate," suggested Margaret. "And we'll bring one of the hall palms up for the bay window and a lot of flowers for the mantel."

"Yes, and all the late magazines from the library, so Cousin Ned may run through them while alone, if he wishes to," suggested Jenny, as she pinned a pretty tidy of her own making on the back of a rocker.

Little Biographies of Big Masters.

BY MARY GRAHAM.

Charles Dickens—oh, beloved household name! Father of darling little Nell, of dear David Copperfield, of poor Oliver Twist, of many Nicholas Nickleby—of too many gloriously grand brain children to name—was born on Friday, February 7, 1812, at Landport, England, a suburb of Portsea.

All children are doubtless familiar with the author Charles Dickens, but few know him as a child. And when one has been introduced to the little Charles one's heart goes out to him as the man, and one appreciates the noble works of his life the more from having known the boy. How hard, how very very hard was the path the little Charles was forced to climb that he might place the elder Charles on the pinnacle of fame. There was no hand stretched out to assist in the climbing, no voice to whisper words of encouragement. He was born with the burden of poverty on his back, and before he was scarcely old enough to be trusted in London streets alone he was put to earning his own living.

But as time wore on the elder Dickens seems to have lost all capacity for work, and was sent to the Marshalsea prison, a jail for debtors. At the time of this calamity Charles was 11 years old, and was sent to live with a cousin of his mother's, who found employment for him in a blacking warehouse. The other members of the family accompanied the husband and father to prison, where they shared his wretchedness and privation.

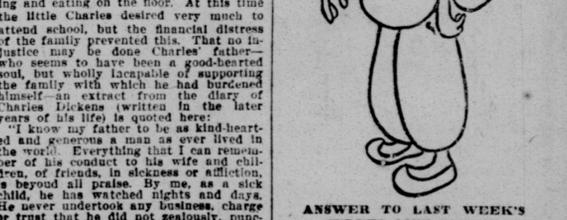

But after a short time the Dickens family came into a small legacy, which paid the debts against the elder Dickens, and thus restored to him his freedom. Then came an opportunity for Charles. He was sent to school, where he made the most of a few months' study, all the schooling he ever received, for it did not take his father and mother long to dissipate their little fortune.

At 15 years of age Charles determined to become a parliamentary reporter, and he studiously pursued the study of shorthand, which he mastered in a remarkably short time. After his working hours he would study and read far into the night, gaining by hard work and courage that which his parents had failed to give him.

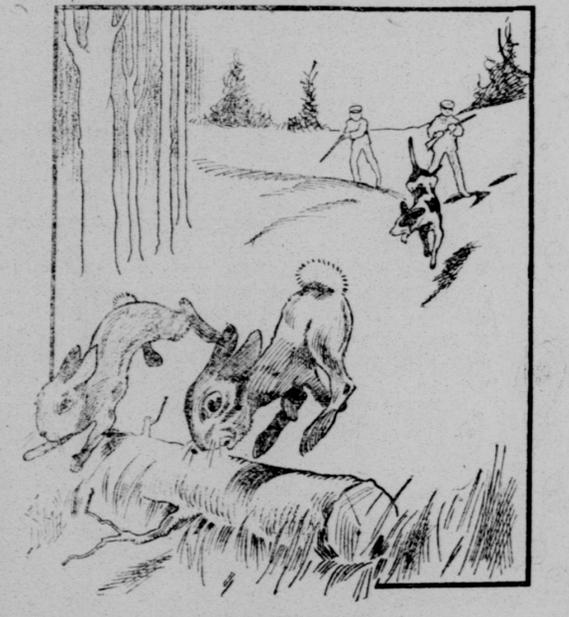

Thus through the mire of the slum, suffering every privation and degradation, the disgrace of his father's prison life hanging over him, did the heroic, genius child, Charles Dickens, lead his way, his eyes always above his surroundings—fixed on a star, a star of hope and promise, a star that led him onward and upward to his just reward at last.

As a child the little Charles was sickly, and it is said of him that he never participated in the harder sports of his play-fellows. When yet but a bit of a boy he read some old books that his father carried about with his other few household possessions. These were "Rodrick Random," "Peregrine Pickle," "Humphrey Clinker," "Tom Jones," "The Vicar of Wakefield," "Don Quixote" and "Robinson Crusoe." Charles had been taught to read by his mother, and had also profited by a few terms in school. While very young the boy displayed a decided talent for telling clever stories and singing comic songs. When he was about nine years old the Dickens family moved for the second time to London. But the elder Dickens was a poor man, and earned a salary quite insufficient to meet the simplest needs of the family. So they were obliged to live in poor, dirty tenement quarters, with barely enough furniture to prevent their sleeping and eating on the floor. At this time the little Charles desired very much to attend school, but the financial distress of the family prevented this. That no injustice may be done Charles' father—who seems to have been a good-hearted soul, but wholly incapable of supporting the family with which he had burdened himself—extracted from the diary of Charles Dickens (written in the latter years of his life) is quoted here:

"I know my father to be as kind and ed and generous a man as ever lived in the world. Everything that I can remember of his conduct to his wife and children, of friends, in sickness or affliction, is beyond all praise. By me, as a sick child, he has watched nights and days. He never undertook any business, charge or trust that he did not seriously, punctually, honorably discharge. His industry

Special to The Telegram.
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The distinct feature of the stock market today was the sensational upward movement in American locomotive. This issue showed remarkable strength throughout the brief session, closing within 1/4 of the high point of the day at a net gain of 2 points. Aside from this the general list ruled weak, closing at a loss on the day, the session being influenced to some extent by the anticipation of an unfavorable bank statement, and this when issued met the popular expectation.

Canadian Pacific lost 2 points on the day. New York Central declined 1 1/2 points. Reading is off 1/2. C. F. I. closed 1 point lower, others showed fractional losses.

MONEY RATES TOO HIGH
Tightness Killed Speculative Interest in Market

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Stocks showed some strength with the appearance of relaxation in the money market early in the week. But when money rates rose again to the highest level of the year speculative interest in the market was killed and prices wavered. The action of the money markets here and abroad caused a general conviction that immediate appearance of easy money is not to be hoped for and gave rise to apprehension of danger of occasional hurries in the money market, which might cause distress to speculative holders on margins.

GRAIN

Special to The Telegram.
CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 7.—While steady, the wheat market was exceedingly dull. Unresponsive Liverpool cables started a selling movement early, which was checked by open buying by the bull interest. News was scarce and such as came to hand was of but little importance. A good milling demand was reported from Minneapolis. The weather in the northwest could not be improved upon. World's shipments for the past week are estimated at 9,600,000 bushels. Liverpool closed unchanged to lower. Local receipts were 81 cars. Northwestern arrivals 79. Estimated receipts here for Monday 81. Winnipeg receipts 415 cars. Total primary movement 1,232,000 bushels. Clearances 81,000.

Corn was firm with the current delivery exhibiting noticeable strength, with the cash demand good for export and for domestic shipments. Receipts were moderate. No old corn is being sold by the country. Cables were 1/4 to 3/4 higher on small supplies and an improved demand. The strike in the Argentine has spread to the railway employees. The weather is simply perfect in this country. The Missouri state crop report makes the condition 88, compared with 85 a month ago. Local receipts were 200 cars, with 273 estimated for Monday. Total primary movement 400,000 bushels. Clearances 105,000 bushels.

Oats were strong on a moderate trade. The export demand is quite regular and the domestic demand is improving. Receipts fairly liberal. Local arrivals today 85 cars, with 456 estimated for Monday. Clearances 210,000.

A further demand for October pork was satisfied by somewhat higher prices, on account of leading low interest. The recent October lard bulls were liberal buyers of January lard and ribs and the market closed firm for the deferred deliveries. October ribs and lard were dull and about steady. Cash was fairly good, both for meats and lard. Hogs estimated for Monday at 34,000 and 145,000 expected here next week.

HORSE SAVES GIRL AND LOSES LIFE
 Leaps Aside to Avoid Running Over Child on Way to Fire and Has to Be Shot

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Big Frank, one of the horses attached to truck No. 24, in West Thirty-third street, has gone to his last fire. The truck was responding to an alarm and was going down the steep grade of Thirty-fourth street, between Lexington and Third avenues, when Big Frank threw himself on his haunches, then leaped aside, throwing his foreleg over the middle horse. He had seen a little girl in the street ahead of him and his sagacity had saved her life. He injured himself severely, and had to be shot.

For eight years Big Frank had never failed to answer an alarm until last night.

COTTON

Special to The Telegram.
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Liverpool cables were slightly disappointing. The local market was not affected by this, as the opening at a decline of 1 to 2 points was rather better than expected. During the early trading prices worked up a point or two, then broke to a net decline of 8 to 12 points, on active selling by both interests. Later in the day the market recovered partially, on some covering by scattered shorts. The close was barely steady, at a net loss of 3 to 5 points for near positions.

Spots held 10 points on the day, selling at 54 1/2. Partially. Fifty bales was the extent of the sales.

It was rumored here today that bulls had turned over their October interests at terms very favorable to the bears.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON
Special to The Telegram.
NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—The local market ruled very steady, considering the fact that the trade has been extremely bearish for the past few days. The opening was 3 to 5 points higher for active contracts. Demand was strong during the initial trading, causing a decline of 10 to 11 points, but later there was very little offering for sale and shorts were covering on a better inquiry in this market. When money rates rose again to the highest level of the year speculative interest in the market was killed and prices wavered. The action of the money markets here and abroad caused a general conviction that immediate appearance of easy money is not to be hoped for and gave rise to apprehension of danger of occasional hurries in the money market, which might cause distress to speculative holders on margins.

TRADE NOTES
 Indifference about bedding of the suckling pigs produces many disorders that the farmer is very slow to attribute to poor care.
 A sheep that is full of good, sweet food and is otherwise comfortable, will grow wool and lay on flesh every day.
 The most practical time for weaning a colt is when about five months old. To avoid worrying colts, it is within sight of dam to give some grain. Be sure that colt has plenty of exercise.
 The kind of corn-fed cattle that require eight to ten months to reach maturity may be relatively scarce, but there is an abundance of other kinds and receipts for September, October and November at western markets will tell the story.
 Don't forget that a good bed is necessary at all times, but more especially at the close of the year, and that it should be free from dust and dampness if you expect the pigs to thrive.
 If possible when weaning the lambs the ewes should be placed in a field out of hearing of the lambs.

LIVESTOCK

REVIEW OF THE WEEK'S MARKET
 The run of cattle at all the markets has been heavy, though not equal to the supply furnished in the preceding week, and opening at a price practically steady with the decline noted in the former period.
 Heavy calves have formed the bulk of the run in cattle to this market. Next in importance came good Panhandle cows with good feeder steers showing up well, and only one load of real extra heavy cattle. These averaged 1,250 pounds and sold at $4. As steers are now selling the following may be considered market prices: Thick fat steers, 1,100 pounds and up, $2.50@4; 1,000 to 1,100 pounds, $2.60@5; 900 to 1,000 pounds, $2.50@3. Common and thin steers sell from 50c to 75c under the above figures. The demand for the latter is very limited and they are hard to sell.
 Fat cows have been scarce this week and those have sold for $2 to $2.15, with a few good enough to land at $2.50. Cattle are still finding an outlet at $1.25@1.50.
 Bulls continue to sell steady with the bulk of feeders at $1.50@1.75, while the best bulls easily bring $1.85@2.10.
 The calf market has improved to the extent of 5c to 50c on good to choice, and around a quarter on the medium sort. Good and fat stuff is bringing $1.50. Heavy calves, weighing 200 to 250 pounds, $3@3.75. When the weights are from 250 to 325 pounds, the price is $2.25@2.50, while thin dogs bring $1.50@1.75, and east Texas practically yearlings drag along at $1.10@1.15.
 Hogs started in the week with tops at $5.35. The same class of hogs sold at the week's close at $5.30. Good hogs of the same class have lost 10c to 15c this week, and thin hogs from 20c to 50c. Pigs have recovered the early decline of the week and are closing steady. Stockers declined the same as thin and trashy hogs. Few stocker buyers are now on the market.
 No fat sheep were on the market. A few wagon lots of lambs sold steady. Sheep are quoted $1.25@1.45 for muttons, $5@5.50 for lambs. In all cases these must be fat.

AT THE DAYLIGHT STORE MONDAY

Once there was a boy who was sent to the store for a pound of tea. "Green or Black?" asked the store keeper. "Don't make any difference," replied the boy, "it's for a blind woman." In selecting their merchandise many stores seem to think that the lack of quality is of no particular consequence, as most people are blind to quality and only look at the price—but that's where they are wrong; the discriminating public does not stand in the same light as the boy and the tea. Knowing buyers of today look to quality first, and with this fact in mind, we select our merchandise accordingly. Quality first, price afterward. That's why the name, "The Daylight Store," is synonymous with the very highest standard of merchandise; that's why you prefer to trade here. That's why our business, day in and day out, shows such a marked increase.

Cotton up—up sky-high. Raw cotton is quoted at 11c a pound on the Cotton Exchange. When you consider that it takes a pound and a half of raw cotton to make a pound of cotton pure enough to go into our blankets, you may say then that blanket cotton is worth 16 1/2c a pound by the time it is cleaned and refined. That means that 16 1/2c a pound covers the weaving, carding, combing, finishing and selling expenses—also the profits of the manufacturer and of this store. Can you imagine a better store to buy blankets than this, or do you hear your friends tell of better blankets than ours? 10-4 and 12-4 size Blankets for

OF INTEREST TO THE CATTLEMEN

THE PACKERS PLEAD
CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Pleas of not guilty of one count were entered this afternoon by the seven men and five corporations indicted on charges of conspiracy to monopolize the meat

DON'T BORROW TROUBLE

It is a bad habit to borrow anything, but the worst thing you can possibly borrow, is trouble. When sick, sore, heavy, weary and worn-out by the pains and poisons of dyspepsia, biliousness, Bright's disease, and similar internal disorders, don't sit down and brood over your symptoms, but fly for relief to Electric Bitters. Here you will find sure and permanent relief of all your troubles, and your body will not be burdened by a load of debt disease. At Walkup & Fielder, Holland's Red Cross Pharmacy, Renfro Drug Co.

The charge is ambiguity, vagueness, uncertainty and indefiniteness against seven of the counts. Allegations are made that double counts are contained in two of the remaining counts. The first count, to which the plea of not guilty is entered, contains the following allegations:

The defendants unlawfully engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce among the several states of the United States, against the peace and dignity of the United States and contrary to the form of the statute in such cases made and provided.

The indictment then alleges the defendants had control of 99 per cent of the business above described, divided as follows: Armour & Co., 25 per cent; Swift & Co., 35 per cent; Fairbanks Canning Company, 20 per cent; and the Cudahy Packing company, 15 per cent. They should have conducted the proportions strictly in competition with each other during the period from July 2, 1902, until March 2, 1905. This competition would have existed, the indictment declares, but for the unlawful conspiracy. By pleading not guilty to the first count of the indictment the packers virtually admit, according to government officials, that at least one of the counts is good in fact and substance. The entire matter is to be taken up before Federal Judge J. Otis Humphrey Monday.

TAXING THE PACKERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—At the cabinet meeting yesterday, the proposition of Secretary Wilson to require the packers to pay for the inspection of meats was approved and it will be put into operation at once. It is expected that a saving of $50,000 a year will thus be effected by the government.

Secretary Wilson brought to the attention of the President and cabinet a determination he had reached regarding the inspection of meats. He indicated that under the law packers could not be forced to pay the cost of meat inspection. He had decided, however, that hereafter the packers should pay for the seals or tags placed upon inspected meats intended for export. This will bring a revenue to the department of $50,000 a year. The sum the secretary proposes to use in extending the inspection of meats to packing houses which have requested that they be given inspectors, but whose requests have not been complied with because the department had not had the funds with which to pay the inspectors. The idea of Secretary Wilson was approved by the cabinet and it will be put into operation at once.

SOUTH TEXAS STEERS

W. H. and George E. Cowden of Midland spent a portion of the day Wednesday en route home from a trip down to the Victoria country, where they went to receive about 3,000 head of steers bought some time ago for their Frio county ranch. It rained here yesterday, and from the looks of the clouds the whole universe was drenched. It is just such actions as this on the part of Jupiter Pluvius that has led more than one stockman from the more northern portion of the state to regard this section as prepared especially for them.—San Antonio Express.

THE OSAGE RESERVATION

W. O. Woodley, a representative of the stock yards company, who has been located at Elgin, Kan., since the first of July, arrived here Saturday afternoon. Mr. Woodley came up to confer with the federal inspection bureau with reference to arranging matters so that cattle might be shipped into the Osage reservation from other parts of the territory and Texas under what is known as the "open season." These open seasons apply to other states and territories, and for the reason that the Osage reservation is loaded down with feed and is short in cattle, Mr. Woodley is going to make an effort to have these restrictions removed for a short time. "Immense crops were raised in the Osage reservation this year," said Mr. Woodley, "and there is no stock to eat it. Cane fields, large pastures that are full of feed, and a bumper crop of corn is to be found there. Fewer cattle than usual were taken into the reservation last spring, and over three-fourths of these have been shipped out. Recently several cattlemen have been around buying up steers to hold over winter there. One sale of 3,000 head was made a few days ago, and others will follow before the end of the steers are gone. But it is the great difficulty of getting cattle into the reservation from all other points south of there that is the drawback. In an open season, such as exists in moving cattle from all parts of the south to northern points, could be had, it would enable cattlemen to take into the reservation cattle that would be wintered and made fat."—Kansas City Drivers Telegram.

CLEANING THE RANGE

Prediction of a heavy range cattle movement this year has already been abundantly verified. Montana, Wyoming and both Dakotas have been numerously represented at Chicago, and the brand inspection force has been seriously overworked. Since the inception of the movement prices have been sand-bagged. Last week witnessed declines of 20 to 25 cents and rose-rite forecasts sent out a few weeks ago by commission houses do not make good reading at this juncture. Last week witnessed the arrival of about 42,000 western cattle or double the normal weekly supply. The situation was further aggravated and demoralization accentuated by a big crop of natives. It now looks as though Chicago will receive 125,000 range cattle during September, even should last week's break restrain shipping. On the decline the bulk of grassers had to sell at $2.49 to $2.75 and only a handful got into the $4.00 class; in fact, sales above $3.75 were rare. September range cattle markets in former years have been in even worse condition, but it is a fact that affords little consolation. In September, 1889, for instance, the average price of rangera was $2.25 and only 55,000 were received, and in 1910, values dropping to a still lower level later. A new record for the month will be made if 200,000 head arrive this week. The heavy movement indicates a general cleaning up of the range, and while it may be checked temporarily the cattle must come before the snow flies.—Chicago Breeders Gazette.
