

SHERIFF TO TELL OF JAIL BREAK

Police Committee Asks For Investigation

SUGGESTION OF MADDOX

Judge Parker Instructed to Present Petition to County Inquiry Board

Following a meeting of the police committee of the Fort Worth council, with J. H. Maddox, chief of police, this morning in Chief Maddox's office, the grand jury will be requested by the police committee to make a full investigation of any and all evidence concerning the recent jail delivery from the Tarrant county jail, Sheriff Honea says he will appear before the grand jury to give testimony to that body.

The meeting this morning was asked for by Chief Maddox, who, in a statement to The Telegram last Friday, said that he had been advised rumors were in circulation in Fort Worth which he considered might lead to a misunderstanding between the police department and the sheriff's office and that he thought it would be to the best interest of all concerned to have the reports fully investigated.

When the committee met this morning in the office of the chief he stated to them briefly the objects he had in asking them to come together, his remarks being similar in nature to the call published in The Telegram Friday.

Ambassador to This Country Points Out That Peace Has Marked Time of His Reign

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 6.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Washington, D. C., says:

In the present tense condition of affairs in Europe, the statement made yesterday by Baron Speck von Sternburg, ambassador of Germany to this country, who has just returned directly from Berlin, where he had opportunity to discuss international questions with Emperor William, is important.

"The world has regarded Emperor William as a man of war. I tell you, he's a man of peace. He always has observed and is closely observing the traditions established by his grandfather, the great Frederick William, and those traditions call for the peaceful development of Germany and in international affairs adherence to those principles which are based upon the law of nations.

Only One Person Now Believed to Be Missing—The Loss Reached $100,000

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 6.—From the ruins of the Myar opera house, burned Saturday night, will rise a new modern theater. L. M. Crawford, lessee of the house, started yesterday from Kansas City and wired that he would at once begin the erection of a modern house and a temporary structure for the shows this season. Arrangements are being made to show the Eleanor Robson company, which arrives Monday night from Los Angeles, in the old El Paso Northeastern freight depot.

TODD MYSTERY TO EQUAL RICE CASE

Many New Developments in Aged Woman's Death

VALUABLE PAPERS GONE

Were Taken from Cabinet Day Mrs. Todd Met Death and Have Not Been Traced

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Coroner Scholer, who arranged to make formal demand today upon District Attorney Jerome and Police Commissioner McAdoo for aid in solving the mystery which surrounds the death of Mrs. Margaretta Todd, said last night:

"The case fairly bristles with suspicion, and my firm conviction is that future developments will put it side by side with the Patrick case in depth of interest and quality of crime."

It was expected that the financial obstacle to an analysis of the dead woman's stomach would be removed at a conference planned for today between Coroner Scholer and Sinclair Tousey, the authorized representative of Mrs. Todd's daughter, who it was said, would permit no question of expense to block the investigation.

MAID MAKES STATEMENT

For the first time since the tragic death of Mrs. Todd, her French maid, Marie Godard, made a statement yesterday. It brought to light one important fact—that Mrs. Todd, before leaving home the day of her death, took a package of important private papers from a cabinet and placed them in her satchel. That satchel was found beside the body on the Reading tracks in Philadelphia, but the papers were not in it.

GRANDSON INTERESTED

Milton Berolzheimer, grandson of Mrs. Todd, is watching developments eagerly. The will of 1902, filed by Lockwood, ignores his existence completely, but should this will be set aside the estate would be left as if Mrs. Todd died intestate and Berolzheimer would be entitled to his share.

His body was found pinned under the debris near the press, his head and shoulders crushed into the ground.

HEARST SUPPORT GROWS STRONGER

Campaign for Mayor Has Astonished New York

CHEERED FOR 20 MINUTES

Tammany Expected to Have Battle of Its History at Polls Tuesday

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Today will witness the closing scene of one of the most remarkable political campaigns in New York city's history. The variety of sudden and startling moves in the municipal checkerboard has overturned all precedents, upset all calculations and has rendered useless all systems for forecasting the probable outcome.

Two old party organizations have been invaded by a new and great force which, under the name of the Municipal Ownership League and William R. Hearst as candidate for mayor, has conducted a campaign so vigorous and so well managed that the city has been astonished at its strength.

At first it was believed that this movement was one born of momentary excitement and popular clamor due to the insurance revelations and other causes of public unrest, and that when Tammany Hall swung its great organization into line the Hearst movement would decline and collapse before election day. This belief has been dissipated instead of declining in force.

The Hearst canvass wound up last night in a spectacular meeting in Madison Square Garden, with the garden crowded to all it could hold and many thousands unable to gain admission. The gathering was so great that for several hours the struggling masses of people were beyond control and it was impossible for the police to keep the streets open.

When Mr. Hearst rose to speak he was greeted with an outburst of cheering that lasted for nearly twenty minutes. Another incident of the campaign in the Municipal Ownership League canvass was calling out of bed Mr. Hearst at 2 o'clock Sunday morning to speak at a Hebrew hall at the Grand Central Palace.

Mayor George B. McClellan, the democratic nominee for re-election, has based his appeals for votes on his record as mayor and the fulfillment of the promises he made two years ago. He closed active work of the campaign at a meeting last evening, the building being unable to accommodate by many thousands those gathered to hear him speak.

William M. Ives, the republican nominee for mayor, began his campaign with a general feeling in the city that he has no chance to win, but to this he refused to subscribe himself.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—A cable dispatch to the Herald from Tangier says: Raoul's appetite for foreign ransom has been so stimulated by the capture of Mr. Perdicaris, which brought in $70,000, and the capture of the French protege by which he netted $3,500, that he evidently decided to pursue this lucrative business, and his men by his orders captured yesterday a Moor named Abdeslam Akabon.

SUGGESTS REMEDY FOR REFERENDUM DEFECTS

Telegram Correspondent Urges That Franchises Be First Considered by Council

As a result of the Arlington Heights Traction Company franchise election last Saturday by which the right to use some of the most valuable streets of Fort Worth for a period of 25 years is conveyed to the company without any remuneration to the city for the privilege, a movement has been commenced looking toward an amendment to Fort Worth's charter at the next session of the legislature, whereby specific safeguards of the city's interests can be enforced in the case of every franchise sought by any company in Fort Worth.

As the situation at present stands, under the referendum clause of the new charter, any company seeking a franchise in Fort Worth has only to guarantee the costs of a referendum election, draw up an ordinance granting its franchise, and petition the city council to order a referendum election after due publication of notice that such election will be held. This city council has no alternative under the charter, can make no suggestions as to improvements in the franchise ordinance, and can take no steps to prevent the city from giving away valuable rights for nothing, provided the supporters of the franchise can, by any kind of argument, persuade a majority of the voters to support their measure, and at the same time prevent the voters who have a real, but sometimes careless, interest in the city's best interests from becoming sufficiently awake to the defects of the franchise, to turn out in large enough numbers to defeat the ordinance.

Would Modify Charter
It is now proposed, by those behind the new movement, to modify the charter so that the city council or a special committee from it will have the opportunity to pass on every franchise offered for passage.

A suggestion along this line has been received by The Telegram in the following communication:
Editor Telegram:

Our third franchise election is over, and the votes counted. By an almost six-to-one majority, the twelve hundred electors who look enough to matter in the public welfare (and private interests) to go to the polls, have given without money and without price, to people personally and otherwise unknown to most of them, a franchise for which no city should have received a large purchase price, and a good yearly revenue for a quarter century.

If there are any safeguards for the city's interests, in that shrewdly drawn document the writer is unable to discover them. The company will take some of our best paved streets; ruin that street which is now barely able to carry the heavy morning and evening travel between the two halves of town; and, if the public utility, by any freight cars over our choicest business and residence streets, and for twenty-five years do pretty nearly what they please.

Had the city council granted such a franchise public indignation would have risen to the "hanging bee" point, no matter who the grantees.

There was no chance for argument of details, no opportunity for modification of details, no possibility of eliminating objectionable features prior to voting. The voters were obliged to grant the franchise in its entirety or reject it as a whole.

Would it have been far better for the council to have had the power to receive the application for franchise. For the proper committee to meet with the applicants, go over each detail of route and construction, insist as in the Rosen franchise, on proper remuneration for the privileges granted, compromise mooted points, grant the franchise, and then, should fifteen per cent of the voters think the grant a bad one, and so state to the council, order an election for approval or disapproval of their action?

The writer is wholly and unqualifiedly in favor of that kind of a referendum, and any regulation which will give our people the right to veto the council's action in case corruption or indiscretion is manifest to a proper number of citizens, but in the name of all that is good and noble in our government, let us abolish the present farcical arrangement.

AMUSEMENTS

The A. C. Field Greater Minstrels will appear at Greenwall's Theater tonight. Newspaper notices speak in flattering terms of this popular organization, and it is safe to say that this season's offering will be better than the shows presented by the veteran minstrels heretofore. The first part, which is said to be drawn in gorgeous colors and elegantly dressed, has been named "The Grand Old Club." It is a burlesque of the famous newspaper men's club of Washington by that name. Considerable "business" is introduced in this act. This tends to lend a novelty to it, producing an effect which is entirely foreign to the old stereotyped first part. However, the gags and jokes of the end men and the interjections of the millman, diminish the comedy. It is said the solo and ensemble music are the best heard in minstrelsy in several seasons. Some of the song hits of the first part are "Nelle Dean," "In Dear Old Georgia," "When the Boys Are in the Mine" and "When My Sweetheart Mary Whispered, Yes."

Billy Clark will give the monologue in the club. He has promised a new edition of jokes and parallels. Instrumental and vocal music will be furnished by the "Quaker City Quartet." Their act is relieved by clever comedy. The Flood brothers, comedy acrobats, entertain their audience for ten minutes, when the performance closes with "The Dance of the Nations," a big song and dance act. This runs thirty minutes, introducing about ten dances typical of as many countries. There is a song to accompany each dance. The scenes are well dressed. Some of the dances presented are the highland fling, the sailor's hornpipe and Indian dance, a clog, the dance of the "pumpkin man" and a negro hoodlum and onchelle. Some of the songs are "A Peach Canon," "Possie of Dundee" and "The Pumpkin Man."

LOUIS JAMES IN "RICHELIEU"
Voltaire justly considered Cardinal Richelieu the true architect of the French monarchy, and great patron of French civilization. History presents him on the one hand as a vindictive, inflexible, crafty and unscrupulous man, whose subtle inventions, irrespective of the result, were always conceived either to gratify his unbridled ambition or advance his financial political aspirations; while upon the other hand he was one of the most devoted statesmen and patriots that have graced French history; who, irrespective of condition, state or creed, always selected his lieutenants from the ablest aspirants, and popularity, and still fewer who possess his vast experience. Little wonder, therefore, that his present tour has been the most successful in his entire career. He returns to Greenwall's Opera House Tuesday night, Nov. 7.

"HOITY TOITY"
One evening's unalloyed merriment with Weber & Fields' incomparable production of "Hoity Toity," on which it is said was lavished the unprecedented sum of $5,000, is worth a year of drugs to tired, worn-out brains and nerves, and the mere announcement that this gorgeous production, direct from a run of a solid year at Weber & Fields' own Broadway Theater in New York, will be seen at Greenwall's Opera House Wednesday matinee and night, Nov. 8, will, no doubt, be hailed with joy by the lovers of musical comedy. The music is melodious and wholesome, the chorus is said to be immensely good and comely, and as all the original dances and novel stage business by the greatest of all stage directors, Julian Mitchell, has been retained, it goes without saying that it is capitally trained.

"DU BARRY"
A dramatic production which must undoubtedly prove to be the success of the season will be produced here at Greenwall's Opera House Friday night and Saturday matinee and night, Nov. 10 and 11. This notable production ran a season in New York. The company is carefully selected, composed of many New York favorites, and the cast is an enormous one. The scenery and novel stage effects will be entirely new and of the most elaborate nature.

DOCTOR TELLS CAUSE OF FEVER IN CATTLE

Louisiana Veterinarian Discusses Effects of Ticks on Domestic Animals

BY W. H. DALRYMPLE, M. R., C. V. R.
The one and only cause of Texas fever is a minute or micro-parasite belonging to the animal kingdom (bacteria proper) belonging to the vegetable kingdom and the name given to it by biologists, as before stated, is the protoplasma bigeminum. It is a "two-host" organism. That is, it lives during its life cycle in the bodies of two individual hosts and does not seem to be able, naturally, to perpetuate itself in the absence of one or the other of them. These are the bovine animal (ox, cow, etc.) and the common cattle tick, in this country. When transmitted into the circulation of a susceptible animal, it multiplies in the blood, causing destruction of the red cells, reduction in their number, and produces the differential symptoms peculiar to the disease, known as Texas fever. When an animal recovers, however, its power of resistance becomes so strengthened against the effect of the parasite as, thereafter, so long as it is exposed to ticks, to remain healthy (immune), although harboring the parasite in its blood.

Ticks which have attached themselves and fed upon the blood of horses or mules will not, directly afterward, transmit the disease to cattle. The reason for this seems to be that the blood of these animals will not sustain the germ of Texas fever (it being purely a bovine malady), and either ceases to exist in the body of the horse and mule, or is not transmitted to its progeny, or if present is in such a non-viable condition as to be innocuous to cattle. Cattle ticks will, however, develop infection of cattle upon the same pasture.

The excessive tax & gross infestation of ticks is not only shown by the great loss of flesh of animals attacked, but in the slower development of ticks on animals intensely infested.

In connection with the two pasture methods suggested for the eradication of the fever tick, the period of greatest importance in the life of this tick are: First, the combined egg laying and incubation, which takes place upon the ground of the pasture, and second, the development of the tick upon cattle (from the time the seed ticks are collected from the pasture and attach through the two molting periods, to the engagement and dropping of the females).

Eggs hatch readily in from twenty to thirty days from May until early October. They deposited in the latter half of November, in December, January, February and early March hatch in April and May, earlier in exceptionally warm winters. These develop upon cattle in from about sixteen to thirty days in summer, and the longest winter development upon cattle is found to be forty days.

6. More eggs are deposited in summer than in winter. Many females succumb to the cold before depositing half as many eggs as females of the same size would deposit in summer.

7. Ticks possess remarkable vitality, having been found to be able to exist without food as long as two months in summer and over six in late fall, winter and early spring.

8. From a study of the life and habits of the fever tick two plans have been adopted for its eradication: First, a pasture rotation system, utilizing June, July, August, September and October to starve out the tick from pastures by excluding cattle, horses and mules; second, the adoption of the feed-lot method within a sorghum, corn, millet or other forage field conveniently located for water and shade.

9. Antia's south of the quarantine line may any time during the year be absolutely cleaned of female ticks in forty days or less by the feed-lot method.

10. Seed ticks hatched in late September and October, may infest cattle during any warm spell from late September until April.

11. While a number of substances are of great value in reducing tick infestation of animals, they are attended with some loss, considerable expense and much worry, and cannot be relied upon for complete eradication except when associated with the pasture rotation remedy.

Gives the Life History
Briefly the life history of the cattle tick may be stated as follows: The fully engorged female (the large tick most frequently observed in cattle) drops to the ground, and in some secluded place deposits between 1,500 and 3,000 eggs. During the summer months in our state these eggs hatch in from twenty to thirty days into a six-legged form, which, because of its resemblance to a drop of the blood of its host, is called the "seed tick." In this condition the small seed ticks bunch together in great numbers upon grass, weeds, etc., near the places where they are hatched. The passing animal coming in contact with a bunch of these ticks becomes thoroughly infested with them, and they become attached to their mouth parts of the animal's body. In the course of from six to ten days the young six-legged form molts (sheds its skin) and then becomes possessed of four pairs of legs instead of three.

From the time the small six-legged seed ticks attach themselves to the animal until maturity is reached there is little disposition on their part to change location, except at the very beginning of their parasitic life, or perhaps immediately after each molt, or in the case of male, to some extent, during their adult existence. Practically it means the death of the tick if removed from its host after being once well attached.

PAINFUL PERIODS

Suggestions How to Find Relief from Such Suffering.

Miss Nellie Holmes Mrs. Tillie Hart

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. If it is painful or irregular something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organism.

More than fifty thousand women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that it has cured their suffering. It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases.

Miss Nellie Holmes of 540 N. Davison Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

Your medicine is indeed an ideal medicine for women. I suffered misery for years with painful periods, headaches and bearing-down pains. I consulted two different physicians but failed to get any relief. A friend from the East advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and no longer suffer as I did before. My periods are natural, every ache and pain is gone, and my general health is much improved. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Larimore, N. D., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

I might have been spared many months of suffering and pain had I only known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now free from all my troubles and feel as well as I ever did. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

FIREMAN KILLED IN WRECK AT GALVESTON

Southern Pacific Passenger Train Partially Derailed at Sharp Curve in Track

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 6.—The southbound Southern Pacific passenger train, in charge of Conductor J. Lacey, leaving Houston at 1:30 and due here at 2:55 p. m., was wrecked in this city yesterday afternoon at the curve at Thirty-seventh and Postoffice streets.

The fireman, Henry Hans of this city, was fatally injured by escaping steam. The engineer, William T. Sick of Houston, escaped with a few severe scalds and other slight injuries.

Two or three passengers were slightly bruised, but none seriously injured.

The train consisted of four coaches and an engine, one of the coaches being a combination coach and baggage car, and all of the coaches were well filled.

The curve is a sharp angled turn from the southwest to the northeast at the intersection of Thirty-seventh and Postoffice streets, and a few feet from the track on the north side is a high board fence.

The engine, No. 1457, is the same fatal locomotive that caused the disastrous wreck at Harrisburg a few months ago. In fact, it is the same train and the same conductor. Just how the accident occurred is a question hard to decide.

At the west end of the curve is a switch, and it was just about this point that the engine shot from the track, and riding the soft ground for twenty-five or thirty feet, tumbled over on its right side.

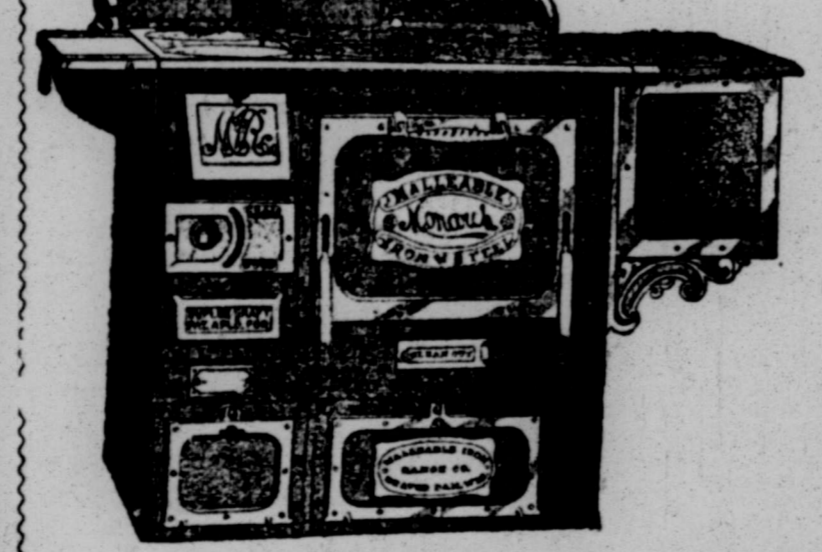

The combination coach and baggage car left the track and landed at right angles, but did not turn over. One coach was derailed and the other two coaches remained on the track.
