Big Bonus for Proof of Ballot Fraud

MORE BOXES ARE FOUND

Evidence of Gross Carelessness in Conduct of Election Is Accumulating

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Attorney General Mayer, before leaving his office after midnight this morning, arranged to appear before a magistrate in the criminal courts building today to prosecute several persons charged with violation of the election laws. Arrests, it was said, would be made at an early hour and the prisoners include one or more police officers. These arrests, it was said, would be the result of the accidentally discovery of an unlocked and unsealed ballot box, full of protested ballots in the rear of a barber shop that had been used as a polling place in an election district in the Twenty-first assembly district.

Today the matter may be put before the grand jury. It is said that it will not be a question of John Doe proceedings, but that direct evidence will be presented.

Policeman Brings Ballots

The first information of the finding of the ballot box came to the district attorney yesterday by a policeman who walked into Mr. Jerome's office with a bunch of ballots and said that he knew where more of the same kind were to be found, but that he had not dared to bring in all he had found until he had been assured of protection.

He was sent back with a county detective, who he escorted to the barber shop, where the ballot box was found. When the policeman returned with the ballot box wrapped up in a piece of ordinary newspaper, he was taken into Mr. Jerome's private office, where were also Attorney General Mayer, State Superintendent of Elections Morgan and several deputies. Later Assistant District Attorney Sanford and several stenographers were called in. Six Morgan deputies were sent out soon afterward with subpoenas. So far as could be learned this morning, the police have not reported any ballot boxes missing since the election. At the same time, there have been reports that unopened and unsealed ballot boxes have been found in out of the way places. There was one report that men on the tugboat Robert White picked up four ballot boxes floating in the river early yesterday.

Before going home this morning, Attorney General Mayer was asked if he had received any information of the finding of four ballot boxes in the East river by the tug Robert White.

"I have not had any such information," Mr. Mayer said.

"Have you been told of the finding of boxes in the North river?" he was asked. After some hesitation he answered: "Yes, the North river. I have had such information."

Stub Box Was Empty

At the headquarters of the Municipal League, it was announced that two ballot boxes had been found in a tailor shop window, next door to the old town hall, yesterday. This shop was used as a polling place on election day. The boxes, it is said, were discovered by Bernard Wayne, a representative of the league, who reported that one contained mutilated ballots and the other, supposed to contain the ballot stubs, was empty.

Evidence of Gross Carelessness in the Care of Election Returns Developed Yesterday

When the official envelope containing the official return and tally sheets for the Seventy-third election district of the Thirty-fifth assembly district was found in a baby carriage in the cellar of a house in The Bronx. How it got there no one in the house was able to explain. The tally sheet showed that twenty-six votes had been cast for William M. Pease, 99 for Mayor McCallahan and 139 for William R. Hearst. Both Mr. Jerome and Attorney General Mayer at once began an investigation. L. Archibald Hanson, a poll clerk, who signed the tally sheet, said he sealed the returns and gave them to the chairman of the election board. The latter when found said he had turned the returns over to a man named Dawson, who was to take them to the proper place. Dawson could not be found last night.

Hearst Offers $10,000 Reward

W. R. Hearst announced today an additional reward of $10,000 for evidence for the arrest, conviction and imprisonment of the first named district leader to be convicted of frauds against the ballot in Tuesday's elections.

This is in addition to the other rewards, aggregating $17,000 for proof of crimes against the ballot and registration laws in the election. This makes the total of rewards he has offered $27,000.

LAWYER DIES SUDDENLY

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Luther H. Dearborn, a prominent attorney, was found at the foot of the steps leading to his front door last night. It is not known whether he was assaulted by robbers, or was attacked suddenly by some disease.

He died a few minutes after being found. Mr. Dearborn was a member of the Thirty-seventh, Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth general assemblies, and belonged to numerous clubs and societies.

DR. AMOURETTE BEECHER DIES

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Nov. 10.—Dr. Amorette M. Beecher, daughter of David Beecher and a cousin of Henry Ward Beecher and Harriet Beecher Stowe, died here last night after a brief illness, aged 69 years. She was a prominent educator and philanthropist. Her remains will be cremated at her request.

POLICEMEN GUARD STATUE OF DEVIL

Detroit Contractor Unveils Grotesque Image and Mischievous Boys Almost Destroy It

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 10.—Two Detroit policemen late last night assumed the unique duty of taking up their station as guards at the site of a monument to Satan. The monument is fourteen feet in height from foundation to crown, a horned figure purporting to be Satan being shown in a sleeping posture behind a pulpit. The grotesque affair created a sensation when unveiled in the front part of Fernum's contracting stone mason at 38 Stanton avenue, and last night a mob of boys gathered around it and began a bombardment of stones that threatened its destruction. The two policemen finally dispersing the crowd and standing guard to prevent further attacks.

Explaining his action in erecting the monument, Mr. Menz said that he did not believe a word of the Bible, but that Old Nick told the truth. "He is my friend," declared the old man, pointing up at the image. "He spoke the first and last truth."

Around the neck of the statue, when it was unveiled, was a ribbon of the United States flag.

HUMAN STONE QUARRY

Four Thousand Pieces of Granite Taken From Minnesota Laborer

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—A dispatch to the Tribune from St. Cloud, Minn., says: John Janski of this city, aged 22, is a human stone quarry. Fourteen months ago he was the victim of an explosion in a stone quarry and ever since the doctors have been prospecting every time with good results.

Four thousand pieces of stone have been removed from various parts of Janski's anatomy. A piece of granite weighing an ounce came out of his arm in an operation yesterday and another of half an ounce weight was removed from the socket of his right eye, which was lost in the explosion.

Four times a week, Janski, without taking an anesthetic, submits to the knife.

DRAWBRIDGES SAVE RUSSIAN TREASURY

Medieval Fortifications Hold Kronstadt Mob at Bay in Riots There

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 10.—During the rioting at Kronstadt, the government treasury there, which is surrounded by a deep moat filled with water, was only saved from the mob of mutineers and rowdies by the removal of the bridges. Ethelbert Watts, the American consul general here, received the following dispatch last night from Consul Agent Peter Wilkins at Kronstadt: "Sailors added by a mob commenced rioting here and several houses were set on fire and shops looted. The situation remains critical."

MUTINY SUPPRESSED

KRONSTADT, Nov. 10.—The mutiny here is entirely suppressed and the mutineers who were holding out in the east section of town have been arrested. Disorderly elements are under thorough control.

ST. PETERSBURG ALARMED

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 10.—This city was in a fever of excitement all of yesterday and late into the night over the news of the mutiny at Kronstadt. Every one of the exaggerated reports of the attack received credence in many quarters and half the inhabitants of the capital believed that the mutiny was successful, and that the troops sent from here had joined in the revolt; that the entire garrison of St. Petersburg would follow suit today and that the town of Kronstadt had been burned to the ground together with the surrounding forts.

Every man or woman in Cleveland who is contemplating suicide is invited to write a letter to the anti-suicide commission and tell their troubles. The members of the commission will then make an effort to remove the trouble.

PRINCE LOUIS IS LOST

British Sailors Fail to Find North River Pier

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Prince Louis of Battenberg and about a dozen loads of officers bound for the St. George society dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, had an exciting experience as a result of their small craft getting lost in the North river last night. A strong flood tide was partly responsible, but the British sailors who manned launches could not find the West Forty-fourth street pier. A reception committee from the St. George society and a squad of five mounted policemen were at the pier before 7 o'clock to meet the prince and the other officers who were expected by that hour. All of the boats left their ships before 7 o'clock.

The skipper of Prince Louis' launch finally succeeded in locating the pier at 9 o'clock. Five other boats had straggled in at intervals before the prince.

When he got there, it was found that two boats were yet missing, but the prince was then so late that all hands got into carriage and escorted by the policeman, made for the hotel at a lively gallop. A rumor got noised about that two of the launches had been lost. This report proved untrue, for the two boats got in all right, but not at Thirty-fourth street.

After searching in vain for that pier the officers in the boats ordered their pilots to put in at any dock they could find. One of the boats made fast to a coal dock near Forty-second street and the other put in along Riverside drive. The officers in them did not get to the dinner until after 9 o'clock.

RAILROAD WINS SUIT

Love Bill Held Not to Be in Effect Last January

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 10.—Judge V. L. Brooks of the Twenty-sixth district court today knocked out the retroactive feature of the Love gross receipts tax bill in the case of the Paris and Great Northern Railway Company against the state.

The court held that the railroad company tendered all that was due under the law, when it tendered the payment of the tax from July 17 to Dec. 31, 1905.

The state maintained that the tax was due from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1905. This is a decided victory for the railroads and will save them about $50,000 in the payment of taxes under the law. Under this decision the state will not get more revenue from the act this year, even if the state wins in the higher court.

MAYOR TOM JOHNSON TO WAR ON SUICIDE

Appoints Commission to Dissuade Intending Self-Destructors From Purpose

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Cleveland, Ohio, says: Mayor Tom Johnson, alarmed at the official report that there have been eighty-six suicides in Cleveland in the last nine months, has taken steps to check the carnival of self-destruction.

He has appointed a commission whose duty it will be to attempt to dissuade would-be suicides from taking their own lives.

The commission is made up of Director of Charities Cooley, W. A. Greenland, a member of the charity bureau and State Senator-elect F. C. Howe.

Every man or woman in Cleveland who is contemplating suicide is invited to write a letter to the anti-suicide commission and tell their troubles. The members of the commission will then make an effort to remove the trouble.

GOVERNOR OTERO TO HAVE OPPOSITION

Office Seekers in New Mexico Looking for Places to Become Vacant After Dec. 31

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 10.—Office seekers are getting busy in New Mexico. It is expected there will be many aspirants for appointments to succeed the office holders whose terms expire between Dec. 31, 1905, and Jan. 30, 1906.

Governor Otero's term ends Jan. 25, next, and there is opposition to his succeeding himself. Among the other candidates for governor are D. S. Rodey of Albuquerque, H. J. Hagerman of Roswell and Nicholas Galles of Las Cruces. Secretary Reynolds is said to covet the job. The latter's term of office expires Jan. 13.

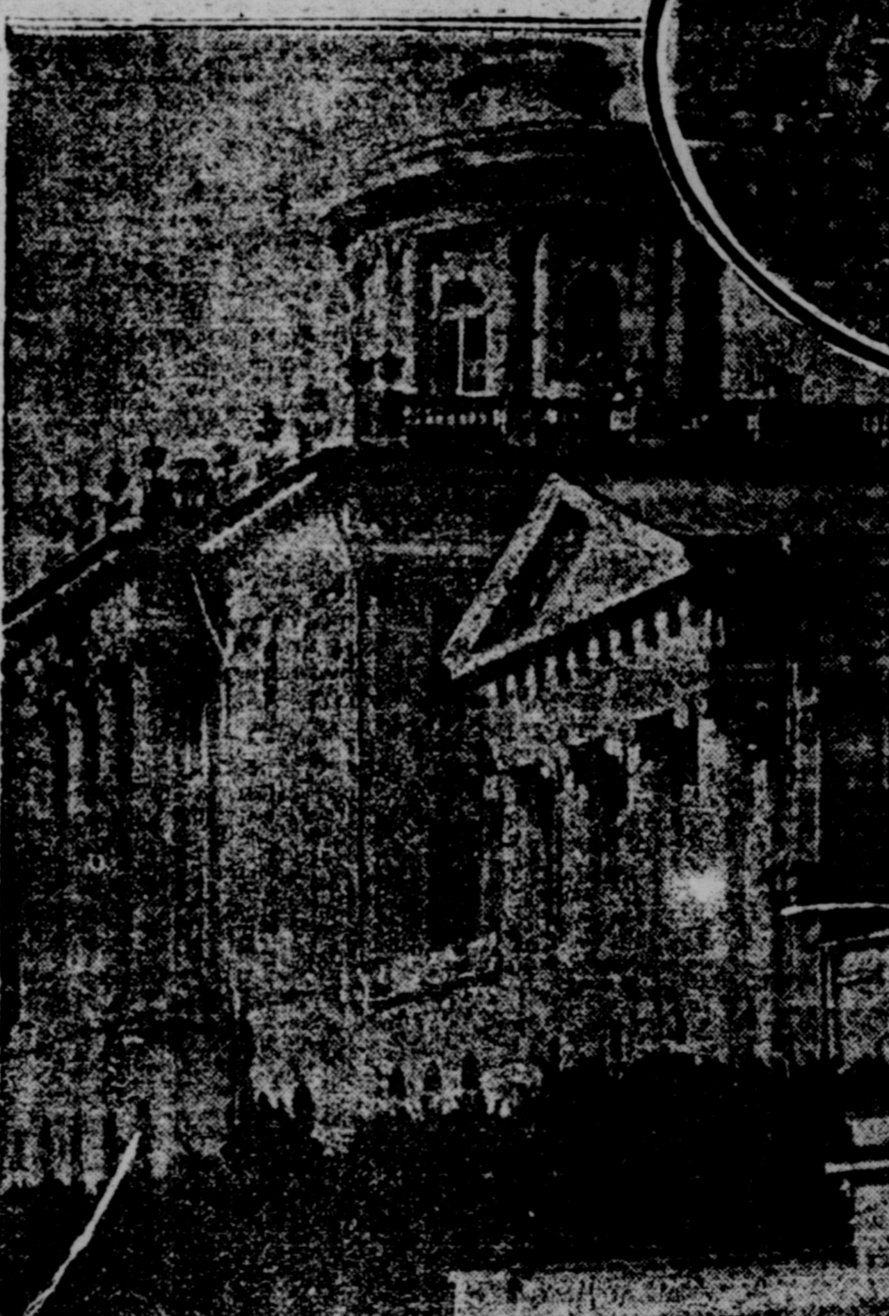

Chief Justice W. J. Mills, Judge John R. McFie of the First judicial district and Associate Justice Frank W. Parker of the Fifth district are officials whose terms expire Dec. 12.

The office of United States Marshal Foraker ends Dec. 5. He will very likely be re-appointed. He is a brother of former Governor Foraker of Ohio.

Surveyor General M. O. Llewellyn's term of office expires Dec. 21. The term of office of Pat Garrett, collector of customs at El Paso, ends in December.

All officials of the land offices at Clayton and Santa Fe will end their administrations in December, and it is very likely that the officials will all be re-appointed.

Secretary of Interior E. A. Hitchcock recently suggested in his annual report that the office of receiver in federal land offices be abolished, and it is possible that when the time comes for re-appointment for these offices only the office of register will be filled.

WHOLESALE MASSACRE OF JEWS THREATENED

St. Petersburg Report of Plans for Another St. Bartholomew's Day

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 10.—Stories are being industriously circulated that a regular St. Bartholomew massacre of Jews and intellectuals has been planned by the Black Hundred of St. Petersburg for Saturday night. It is declared all houses containing Jews are marked by a red cross. While it is undoubtedly true the lower classes would like to be let loose, no real danger is anticipated as the police have received most rigid instructions to suppress any attempt at uprising.

Count Witte has ordered a thorough investigation of all Jewish massacres and other disorders in the interior where police, troops and officials are charged with inciting or with abetting violence and he is determined to have all offenders removed or punished.

MINE OWNER MISSING

No Trace of John W. Tisdale Yet Found. Wife Critically Ill

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—In spite of an exhaustive search continued yesterday for John W. Tisdale a wealthy western mining owner who disappeared from the Hotel Seville Monday noon, no trace of him was found yesterday. So alarmed has his wife become that her condition is regarded as critical.

Despairing of obtaining a clue in New York, W. W. Corlett, Mr. Tisdale's stepson, left for Boston yesterday, where the missing man had planned to go on the night he disappeared to attend a meeting called for Tuesday morning of the directors of the Alaskan Smith-Sifton Mining company, of which Mr. Tisdale is president.

General Charles I. Wilson, who has known Mr. and Mrs. Tisdale for years, is at a loss to clear the mystery.

"It is the strangest thing I ever heard of," said General Wilson last night. "It has been erroneously reported that Mr. Tisdale wore a scarf worth $1,000 when he left the Seville. He had no jewelry on of any kind except a gold watch and as far as has been learned he had only $200 in money with him."

WASHINGTON TO AID

Mass Meeting Being Held at Capital for Jewish Relief

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—A mass meeting which will be held here this afternoon to adopt relief measures for the Jews in Russia will be non-sectarian and in pursuance of an appeal of Treasurer Schiff of the national relief commission in New York to raise money for that purpose.

Simon Wolf, former president of the B'nai B'rith Society, said today, regarding his letter of appeal to the President: "My letter to President Roosevelt must not be regarded as a direct appeal to the government to interfere in international affairs with Russia. President Roosevelt has a personal side. He possesses power and influence wholly apart and distinct from that which is vested in him as the chief magistrate of the United States. Knowing this, I therefore have taken the liberty of writing a letter to him in the hope he may be able, through the force of his own striking personality, to arouse talents and power to bring about some concert of action on the part of men as great as himself to put an end to the massacre of Jews in Russia."

"The situation of the Jews in Russia is indeed terrible. I almost failed to realize it at the outset. I have within the past twenty-four hours or so come to realize the massacres are deep and well laid plans of the persecutors to threaten liberalism in Russia just as Mikuloff predicted months ago."

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—At a meeting of the associated delegates of Jewish congregations and societies in San Francisco and cities around the bay, held here last night in Temple Emanuel, in response to a telegram from Jacob Schiff, the New York banker, making an appeal for aid to the persecuted Jews in Russia, immediate response was made to Mr. Schiff's appeal, both in the shape of liberal subscriptions and an address to the people of California, setting forth the conditions as they exist in Russia and the imperative need for help.

PANHANDLE COUNTRY BEING SETTLED FAST

Rapid Entry of Homeseekers Followed by Building of Thriving Towns

Alexander Jackson, general immigration agent of the Rock Island system, headquarters at Chicago, is here today en route to the Panhandle country. He reports that there is a great movement of newcomers into that section of Texas from the east and north most of them settling on the Houston and Texas Central lands recently put on the market at from $2 to $2.75 per acre in Hartley and Dallas counties.

There has been sold by the Central during the past six days 150,000 acres, 1st of the purchases have been in sections. Some have been half sections. These newcomers will engage in stock raising, but not to the exclusion of farming, especially the raising of forage crops. These people, who are locating in this part of the state, are from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Pennsylvania and New York, principally, but not a few are coming from other states in the east and north. To encourage this movement the Rock Island has put on a cheap round-trip rate, 75 per cent of the one-way rate from either St. Louis or Chicago and intermediate points.

Mr. Jackson says that since these lands were placed on the market the Rock Island has been flooded with inquiries from prospective newcomers from all over the country. During the month of October there were 1,500 letters received by the immigration department of the Rock Island about lands in the northwest part of the state. These lands are being sold direct to bona fide settlers, many of them those who have been enticed in the past for years, paying for their rentals from $7 to $15 per acre. The past season, said Mr. Jackson, has been successful in the raising of watermelons and cantaloupes in the territory that is being set up through the efforts of the Rock Island immigration department. Besides this the farmers have realized wonderful results in raising wheat, kaffir corn and milo maize. Excellent missionary work in the way of inducing others in the east and north to come to Texas has been done the past year by those who settled on lands in the northwest part of the state. As a result of this effort hundreds of families are now located and doing well.

There has been a big movement along the Amarillo branch of the Rock Island within the past two and a half years. Mr. Jackson says that at least 500 families have brought homes along the Amarillo line. They are principally Bohemians who are expert farmers and truckers. The little town of McLean, which was established about two years ago, already has several hundred homes along the Amarillo line. It is a good land, several business houses and a gin that has already gained 600 bales of cotton this season. Some of the other towns that are prosperous are Shamrock, Joplin and other towns in a thirty class of people settling in these places.

Mr. Jackson believes that Amarillo is going to be one of the best towns in northwest Texas. It is rapidly improving and everything points to success. One of the principal features of that place is the recent location by the government of an experimental farm.

Dubart and Stratford, towns on the main line of the Rock Island, are also booming and newcomers are settling in them from the east and north.

One the whole, Mr. Jackson says that prospects were never brighter for northwest Texas than at the case at the present time. He leaves for the Panhandle Saturday or Sunday.

TEXAS TURKEYS MAKE ALL NATION THANKFUL

Five Million Pounds of National Birds to Be Shipped From the State

Texas is not only considered the greatest cattle breeding state in the union, but it is fast coming to the front as a "turkey" state. Thousands upon thousands of these fowls are being shipped from Texas to California. San Francisco furnishing the best market for the Texas product. However, there is also a great demand for the Texas turkey north and east and the shipments to these sections are rapidly growing.

It has been estimated that 5,000,000 pounds of Texas turkey will be developed by people outside the state on Thanksgiving day. While these figures look pretty big, conservative shippers here say it is not far from the truth.

More than 100,000 pounds will go from this city alone and turkeys are being loaded in refrigerator cars at many points in central and north Texas, the majority of which will go to Los Angeles and San Francisco, Cal.

One firm in Waco is this week shipping two car loads of turkeys to the west for Thanksgiving—approximately fifty thousand pounds.

An army of turkey pickers are employed in this city and very fair wages are paid. Most of those who engage in this work are girls and boys, and for two weeks few idle boys were to be found on the streets of any city in this part of the state.

During the past two years farmers are paying more attention to raising turkeys and great drives of these birds are being made in every part of the state, especially in the black land country of central Texas.

The Telegram is the paper of and for the people, and in reducing its price to 2 cents per copy the main idea was to place the paper within easy reach of the masses. That no mistake was made in the Telegram's calculations is attested by the rapid and continued increase in circulation. The Telegram is without doubt the fastest growing proposition in all Fort Worth.

Aged Woman Cured of Consumption and Hemorrhages

Mrs. Mary Griffiths, of Albion, Pa., Restored to Vigorous Health by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, Recommends it as the Greatest Medicine for Weak and Aged People.

"I Was a Mere Skeleton From Consumption of the Liver and Hemorrhage, and Helpless as a Baby, but Now, at 64, I am in Perfect Health, and Duffy's is My Constant Medicine."

MRS. MARY GRIFFITHS.

"I have taken Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for almost one year, and I can truthfully and conscientiously recommend it to everyone as the best medicine for weak and aged people. One year ago last winter I was taken very seriously ill with what the doctors called hemorrhages and consumption of the liver. From February to the latter part of May, I could not turn over in bed, and was almost as helpless as a baby. I was a mere skeleton. I was advised to take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and it certainly is better than any medicine I ever took. To-day, at 64, I am in perfect health, and never have to call on a physician. Duffy's is my constant medicine, and I never will be without it."—Mrs. Mary Griffiths, Albion, Pa. May 24, 1905.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is the positive preventive of consumption, hemorrhages, bronchitis and all diseases of the throat and lungs, and hundreds who have suffered with these dread complaints say that their return to vigorous health is due to its prompt and regular use. It is prescribed by physicians of all schools as the sure cure for dyspepsia, indigestion and all stomach complaints. It is the greatest tonic-invalidator known to medicine, and thousands of old people the country over are kept healthy and strong by its regular use.

Duffy's is the only whiskey recognized by the Government as a medicine and is endorsed and recommended everywhere by ministers and temperance workers. Guaranteed to be absolutely free from fusel oil.

CAUTION—When you ask for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine. Dishonest dealers will try to sell you cheap imitations and substitutes, which are put on the market for profit only, and are positively harmful. BIG CROWD ATTENDS NEW STORE'S OPENING

Display at Turner & Dinger's Excites Admiration of All Visitors

Mud and rain failed to keep the public away from the opening of Turner & Dinger's new store Thursday afternoon and night. Throughout the hours set for the opening crowds of people thronged through the store, convincing themselves that the announcement that Fort Worth has a grocery store as excellent by any city of the country was well founded.

Probably the feature that attracted the most attention in the store was the cold storage system. This plant, the largest in a retail store in the country, is operated by a double motor engine insulating all possibility of suspension. The large refrigerators covering practically one side of the store and extending to the office gallery were cold as ice Thursday, despite the constant stream of people playing through the open doors. Operation of the system, however, does not stop with the refrigerators, where the meat is stored. Cold storage show cases with pipes covered with hoar frost running through the open doors. Another feature of the main floor is the women's waiting room at the northeast corner of the store, equipped with telephones and all conveniences for the comfort of shoppers.
Above the main floor is the office, fully fitted as the main store room in Flemish oak. The second floor is used as a store room. The basement is used for the machinery and store room purposes. An electric elevator connects all floors.

Here and there through the store is constant evidence that the plans have been made by an experienced grocer. Among these are the computing scales showing both weight and price of each article sold. The store has been equipped with these scales at a cost of $1,000. Three speed fans are found in all parts of the store.

Spacious show windows fronting on Houston street attracted equal attention Thursday with the main store room. In the north window is a complete display of canned and bottled goods, while in the south window a cheese display of unusual size and variety is shown. Among the cheeses is one weighing over 400 pounds, the largest ever brought to Texas. Size alone was not shown, however, the display of choice fruits and fresh vegetables was also seen at the entrance. A special display was also made in the rear of the store of pickles and olives, the equipment for this purpose being fully up to the standard maintained throughout the store.

At the front of the store are placed the cigar cases and cashier's desk, the display of goods in this line being equal to that of stores dealing exclusively in such lines.

A Fort Worth store Machinery and fixtures for the store are both Fort Worth products and represent a direct expenditure of $10,000 among the mechanics of the city. The machinery including the cold storage plant, was installed by the Van Zandt-Moore Iron Works and the fixtures by the Texas Fixture company, both Fort Worth concerns.

For the opening the store was specially decorated with smilax and chrysanthemums, adding to the general effectiveness of the display. Each of the employees wore carnations.
At the entrance Mrs. J. C. Van Zandt and Miss Mary Dinger served punch while just beyond sundown were distributed. These included biscuits, catsup, cans of coffee, packages of tea, Batavia banks, Artisan sausages and pickles. No sales were made upon the opening day and in fact the crowd thronging the store would have made sales practically impossible.

An orchestra played during the reception, rendering a well selected program under the direction of Klein Ault. The store building, just erected at 502-504 Houston street occupies the old location of the Turner & Dinger store, left several months ago to permit the erection of the new building. It is a handsome three-story building, 200x100 feet, and one of the most complete business buildings erected in the city.

FROST PREDICTED FOR TOMORROW
Frost is predicted for tomorrow. Partly cloudy and colder was the condition of the weather this morning, the sun coming out sufficiently to dry the greater portion of the paved district beginning about 10 o'clock.
Wind had a velocity of twelve miles an hour at 7 o'clock this morning, which was slightly increased before noon. Temperature here for the official day ranged from 46 to 53 degrees and the rainfall measured .17 inches. Galveston had 1.51 inches; there were slight traces of precipitation at Corpus Christi. Adelaide had .59, Amarillo .46 and Palestine .48 inches. Temperature at New Orleans ranged from 52 to 72 degrees, the wind having a velocity of fourteen miles an hour. There was 2.56 inches of precipitation there during the day. The coldest weather report comes from Lander, Wyo., where the thermometer registered a minimum temperature of 16 degrees.
Galveston had a wind velocity of twenty-eight miles an hour this morning.

Official statement of weather conditions is as follows:
"The southwest quarter of the country has low barometer conditions, causing rain over the east half of the cotton states. A high barometer area covers the Rocky mountain regions and the middle valleys of the Missouri and the Mississippi causing cool clear weather and heavy frost in the Arkansas valley."
"The cotton belt is cloudy and temperatures are decreasing.
"Fort Worth and vicinity may expect fair weather tonight and Saturday, colder tonight with frost in the morning followed by warmer conditions Saturday."
Forecast until 7 p. m. Saturday for Fort Worth and vicinity, issued at New Orleans, is:
"East Texas, north: Tonight fair, colder in east portion, with frost. Saturday fair, warmer.
"East Texas, south: Tonight fair, some colder; Saturday fair, warmer."

SALE OF HANDSOME Teneriffe Linens.

Bought from the Spanish Government by a New York syndicate of buyers

Monday we inaugurate the most important sale of Linens we have ever held. In point of variety, in beauty of styles, and greatness of values, it excels all previous occasions. These rare and beautiful Linens are made by the natives of the Canary Islands. The city of Teneriffe is the largest town, and the market place is an interesting sight. The natives have little booths where these fine Linens are displayed and single pieces have taken months of patient labor to produce, so fine and intricate are the patterns. The government often takes these Linens from the natives in lieu of taxes and other government debts. The foreign representative of this New York buying syndicate secured a collection of several thousand dollars' worth of Linens from the government and we will offer our share of the lot Monday for less than the usual duty.

MUDDY STREETS BOOM SIDEWALKS

Good Resolutions Caused by Present Condition of City Thoroughfares

Sidewalk need has taken on a new interest for the people of Fort Worth with the present rainy weather.

A walk of a few blocks in any part of the city Thursday or today was sufficient to convince the most backward that a city of Fort Worth's pretensions needs sidewalks and needs them bad.

Many a scowling glance was cast at the staring windows of a house without a sidewalk, while beneficent thoughts were showered upon the unknowing head of the thoughtful property owner who completed his residence with a suitable walk.

At the street crossings the city came in for its share of condemnation and a vote was cast at every step taken in the inch-deep mud. Voters in every ward thus waved, for even the favored First and Second could not boast absence of bogs where paving stones should be.

From the scant paving about city hall pedestrians westbound plunged into sinking gravel and plodded on. If they sought other routes, mud and water brought them back.

Muddy boots alone solved the problem of getting home.
And the only one who smiled was the bootblack.

UNIVERSITY CLUB PUT UNDER WAY

Committees Named to Arrange Constitution and Secure Quarters

Lack of street cars and the mud did not deter a number of the men interested in the University Club proposed for this city meeting at the Board of Trade Thursday night and taking steps for the organization of the club. Over sixty university and college men in this city have signified their intention to become members of the club.

At the meeting Clarence Ousey was elected temporary chairman and J. E. Head temporary secretary. The meeting lasted for about an hour, and after the discussion it was decided to have a permanent organization and then the following committees were appointed:

Location—H. J. Adams, John B. Hawley and E. W. Tempel.

Membership—Clarence Ousey, W. B. Paddock and J. E. Woodin.
Another meeting will be held at the Board of Trade rooms next Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock. The committees will report at that time.

NORTH FORT WORTH and ROSEN HEIGHTS
Miss Georgia Sanders of San Antonio, Texas, is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. J. Jary, this week.
Mrs. F. W. Swenney, state W. C. T. U. exchange, is being entertained by Mrs. Walter Tilley.
The Tuesday Club was entertained by Mrs. A. C. Chase this week, the occasion being the anniversary of the club's organization. There was a full attendance of members.
The revival in progress at the Rose Heights Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. J. E. Christian, pastor, continues to give in interest. Services are held twice daily, at 2:30 in the afternoon and 7:30 o'clock in the evening. Rev. W. Chamberlain and wife and Mrs. F. W. Swenney are conducting the special services and Albert Fisher, a well known evangelist singer, has charge of the music. Congregations are large and interest in religious affairs appears to be increasing as a result of the efforts being put forth.

OLD AGE BROUGHT NO INFIRMITIES
To "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."
Oliver Wendell Holmes, after eighty years of life had rolled over his head, declared that he was "eighty years young." "So may every man and woman in Fort Worth," said Druggist R. A. Anderson, "if they will take proper care of themselves, keep built up and their bodily tissues from wasting."
"We wish we could persuade every person in this vicinity who feels old, whether they are so in years or not, to take Vinol. It is by far the greatest tissue builder and invigorator we know of for old people. Vinol is not a patent medicine, but simply contains the body-coded liver oil actually taken from fresh cod's livers, and we guarantee that it will repair worn tissues, check the natural decline and replace weakness with strength."
"There are hundreds of old people in this vicinity who need just such a strength-maker and tissue-builder as Vinol. Their blood is thin, sluggish and watery, but we guarantee that Vinol will enrich and quicken the blood and build up and strengthen every organ in the body. Vinol contains no whisky or strong stimulants, which have a bad effect and weaken and break down, and we wish every old person in this vicinity would try Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if they are not satisfied." R. A. Anderson, Druggist.

Men Interested in Clearing Mystery of Mrs. Todd's Death

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Marie Goddard, a French maid, who dressed Mrs. Margaret Todd on the day she made the fatal trip to Philadelphia, where she was found dead on a railroad track, gave new and important information in the case, which, with the positive identification of the body of James A. Lyon, the Philadelphia transfer agent, has stirred the relatives of the dead woman to the point of making an attempt to have District Attorney Jerome's office take hold of the case, with the hope of clearing up the mystery.

Sunday, Max Alter, his lawyer, announced that he had not left the city. "We shall again apply for warrants," said he, "for the arrest of Mr. Tousey and his lawyers on the ground of trespass in taking possession of the Von Hoffman, and failing in obtaining these warrants, we shall apply for permission to take the matter before the grand jury. If we are denied that permission we shall go ahead with civil procedure."

ARRANGING WICHITA PLANS

Colonel Morgan Jones, president of the Wichita Valley railroad, accompanied by David T. Boman, general attorney for the road, and M. A. Spoons, left Thursday night for New York. There are several rumors about as to what takes these gentlemen east. One is that they are to transfer the property to the Yeakum interests. It is not known definitely here that this is the mission, but for some time it has been understood that the Yeakum-Hawley syndicate have had an eye on the road. It is also said that plans are to be consummated for extending the road to Stanford.

WHAT THEY STAND FOR. Now that each of the candidates for governor has announced what he would do if he were governor of Texas, the people of this state are afforded an opportunity to judge between the men and begin to line up in an intelligent manner for the impending state campaign.

Judge C. K. Bell, the distinguished candidate from Tarrant county, has declared clearly and unequivocally in favor of conservatism in all things, and vigorously repels the idea that there is graft prevailing in high circles in Texas.

Judge M. M. Brooks of Dallas county, who is generally credited with being the candidate of the prohibitionists of the state, has repeated his well known declaration of principles, and in addition thereto comes out with a declaration in favor of compelling life insurance companies to invest at least 75 per cent of the reserve required by law in Texas, for the better protection of policy holders.

Colonel T. M. Campbell of Palestine has reiterated his well known intentions of making the railways an issue in the next campaign, and favors the most drastic legislation in dealing with those great corporations. He further comes to the front with the suggestion that the taxable values now escaping taxation in Texas is something that is just simply frightful, and thinks that our whole state taxing system should be overhauled and reformed.

Commissioner O. B. Colquitt of Kaufman county covers so much ground that it is difficult to get at the real milk in his coconut. His platform as given to the public some months ago covers just about everything yet in sight, with the promise to further extend it as the opportunity justifies.

In the speeches made by these distinguished gentlemen at Dallas Monday, The Telegram believes that of Judge Bell is not a radical, and he is not infected with the belief that every other man and every other interest in the state is thoroughly dishonest. He stands for all that is good and pure and true in public life in this state.

PREDICTS GREAT POPULAR MOVEMENT. Walter Wellman, the well known newspaper correspondent, has adopted the idea suggested some time ago by a citizen of Galveston to the effect that President Roosevelt be his own successor as the unanimous nominee of both the republican and democratic parties.

East Texas is practically solid for Colonel Campbell for governor, and reports from Central and North Texas, better known as the black land country, are highly encouraging. As heretofore predicted in the Journal, the race is gradually narrowing down to Bell and Campbell, the former being backed by the administration and party organization, while Campbell has the people with him.

The collision of railway locomotives running under full steam is to be one of the attractions at the San Antonio fair. A good many people have been mixed up in collisions, but they have usually been so sudden and so unlooked for that the spectator in each case might have said: "I didn't see it good the first time."

West Texas is fast growing and developing these days, and the star of general prosperity is high in the western horizon. West Texas is firmly bound to Fort Worth by all the legends and traditions of the past, and has always been one of our staunchest allies.

Fort Worth has stood by the west during all the trying vicissitudes of the past. We have mourned with those good people during the years of their adversity and rejoiced with them in the pleasant hours of prosperity.

Let West Texas and Fort Worth continue to stand together. United they are invincible and all things are possible. Divided each must suffer. The Telegram rejoices at the prosperity that has come to that section, and it is proud of the new friends it is constantly making in that portion of our great and growing state.

While democrats may be excused for a little good feeling over the political victories that have been achieved in Ohio and Pennsylvania, they should not indulge in the belief that it means the overthrow of republicanism in those states. It must be borne in mind that those victories were very largely achieved through the medium of republican votes, and when it comes to a national election it will prove but another case of Ephraim remaining wedded to his idols.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

The Fort Worth Telegram is very confident that the people are going to rise in their might and assert themselves in the forthcoming state campaign. The Herald would be glad to note that its esteemed contemporary had called the turn, but it expects to see things much as they have been in the past.

apology to offer for this article. I believe it to be the truth upon which the very existence of the government and the liberty of the people depends. Until some thirty-five years ago the land in Japan was owned by a few. The government took a bold hand and made a change by which every one in Japan owns their own home, and under this system they have become one of the strongest and most patriotic people on earth; absolutely invincible.—La Grange Journal.

PEOPLE WHO SHOULDN'T MARRY

Where the young woman married is the young woman married—to paraphrase a well known saying—in the greater majority of instances she has only herself to blame.

Matrimony is not the raison d'être of every woman on the earth, only—fortunately for herself and her husband—woman does not realize this until after the fetters of wedlock have been forged beyond the power of human aid to break.

One type of girl by whom marriage should be avoided is the girl with an ambition—the girl who feels she was destined for some other and loftier calling than superintending the details of a household, guiding and guarding the frailties of a nursery, and generally caring for and comforting an oftentimes disagreeable, worried man.

Another man who ought to keep single is he who holds the opinion that marriage is a kind of partnership, wherein the contracting parties should equally share all financial and other responsibilities.

The best-intentioned, most devoted wife in the world soon wearies of the man whose sole interest in life is centered on menus.

The other members of the Kitchen Cabinet, we are told by the Washington correspondent of the New York World, are Gifford Pinchot, forester for the United States; James R. Garfield, commissioner of corporations; Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and one or two other close personal friends of the President.

VERSES THAT RING

WAITING. He went to the wars, my master, I followed him down to the gate; Then he turned and said, "Old Hector, Go back to her side and wait."

"Go back and tend on your mistress— She will need you now, old friend"— And I heard a sob at the window, As he passed out of sight round the bend.

I listened, they talked of the battles; I watched as the troops went by, And I followed my little mistress With many a wistful sigh.

She was brave and true like the master, But often when we were alone, I felt that her heart was breaking, For I heard every smothered groan.

Oh, the news, the terrible tidings Which came at the dawn of the day, I knew before it was spoken, Or my mistress had fainted away.

For I'd seen his shadow at nightfall Pass close to the open door, And I'd heard his voice—"Old Hector, You must tend her now evermore."

So they need not have told me of the sorrow, For I knew that my master was dead, And the heart in my poor old bosom Was heavy and cold as lead.

And I knew that he'd died in battle, As a hero is proud to die, For I saw the blood on his gauntlet, As his shadow was passing by.

So long as she lives I will guard her, For he said as he paused at the gate, "She will need you now, Old Hector; Go back to her side and wait."

MAN wants it easy here below and wants it soon and long. Most men get less than they deserve in the way of kicks.

Successful men believe in luck—backed up by their own efforts. It takes a born diplomat to disguise the interest he feels in himself.

A wise man lets his wife have her own way—otherwise she would have it anyway. Some society people prune their genealogical trees by cutting their poor relations.

Most men find it easier to get in debt than it is to get out, and some are unable to get in at all. A man will trust his wife with the care of the children, but not with the care of his prize chickens.

Silence doesn't always indicate wisdom. His satanic majesty probably doesn't think it necessary to waste any time on the man who loves his enemies.

Life is not so bad for the man who meanders down the path leading to eternity hand in hand with a sympathetic woman.—Chicago News. QUAKER REFLECTIONS. Temper is not always an indication of temperament.

SOME CHAPTERS FROM THE CAREER OF MR. EVERETT TRUE

DRIFT OF STATE POLITICS

THE RAILROADS AS AN ISSUE. The Journal reproduces the following extract from the statement of Hon. D. J. Anthony, the floral representative of Kaufman, Van Zandt and Raines counties, on the railroad question. It is given space on account of its liberal mindedness and because we believe there is much in it that has the right ring to it.

"I hope the time is not far off when a candidate for office will have to have some other qualifications besides cursing the railroads. The growing intelligence of the people demand something else. I have no apology for the railroad companies or corporations that overstep the bounds of justice. There are others. The acquisition of large bodies of land by a few is the greatest menace that confronts the American people today."

"According to recent government statistics, 40 per cent of the people in the United States are renters. I do not know how it is in other states, but in Texas a large per cent of the renters are in a condition that borders on serfdom, and the taxation of these large bodies of land is out of proportion to the small land owner."

"The land laws of the United States, as well as the land laws of Texas, have made it possible for unscrupulous men with money to acquire all the best lands. The same thing prevails in Texas today. In nearly every instance where you find good lands it is monopolized by the cattle barons and lumber kings, and in the rich agricultural parts of the state it is cultivated by tenants who, in the majority of cases, occupy very unenviable positions not calculated to inspire patriotism of country."

"I honestly believe that the time has come when intelligent people who do their own thinking look upon railroads as their best friend instead of enemy. The railroads are the greatest educators and civilization on earth, and unquestionably the best friend to the common people. We owe to them in this country all our prosperity. They are opposed to the large acquisition of land by the few and encourage immigration and settlements of small farmers along the line of their roads, and are vitally interested in the prosperity of the country. It is a physical impossibility for the railroads to prosper unless the country through which they run is prosperous. I have no

ENGLISH LECTURER TO BE HEARD HERE

E. Tennyson Smith a Forceful Speaker on Temperance Questions

E. Tennyson Smith of Birmingham, Eng., who commences a series of a week's temperance meetings in this city tonight, has for years been drawing crowded and enthusiastic audiences in London and other cities in England. His tour in Australia is reported to have been equally successful and his work was a powerful factor in the movement for prohibition in the countries of that island. It was his intention to spend only about a year in the country visiting the leading cities, but the demand for his services caused him to extend his visit for another twelve months, and the state prohibition committee encouraged and aroused to greater enthusiasm, and the existing organizations strengthened. He is reported to be an intensely dramatic speaker. He has been styled in England "the second John B. Gough." Temperance workers report in every city that he has been in this country the crowds have increased with each succeeding meeting and in a large number of cases people have been turned away from the doors. A large number of pledges have been taken, the temperance workers encouraged and aroused to greater enthusiasm, and the existing organizations strengthened.

The executive committee in its official circular emphasizes the fact that his advocacy has a Christian basis and is evangelistic in character. He looks to the Christian church to secure the abolition of the liquor traffic and his efforts, therefore, are especially directed to arousing Christian people and the churches to more aggressive methods. They point out that the remarkable religious revival in Wales in 1904 was preceded by a great awakening of the churches on the temperance question, which was the outcome of a two and a half years' campaign conducted by E. Tennyson Smith between 1900 and 1903.

He possesses a great advantage over most temperance speakers who have visited this country from Great Britain because, owing to the length of his stay, he has obtained a grasp of the situation in this country which renders him far better equipped for effective service among the American people. His presentation of the American temperance problem, from the standpoint of an Englishman is also specially interesting. He is accompanied by Walter C. Swengel of Dallas, field secretary of the state prohibition committee, who has charge of the tour in this state, and by F. Paige, secretary of the state prohibition committee, also of Dallas. Mr. Paige returns tonight to Dallas.

"When she went to Mississippi it was to a good home where she shows evidence of having been well cared for, but recently her foster-mother died, and she has been sent back. She started for Texas two months ago, but owing to the quarantine regulations could not get through until this week.
"I am now looking for a second home in which she can be placed."

CHARTER CHANGE DECLARED NEEDED

W. B. Paddock Points Out Difficulties Under Present Referendum Plan

W. B. Paddock, in giving his views on the referendum provisions of the present city charter, says:

"The discussion The Telegram has invoked through its columns ought to produce beneficial results and my regret is that the question was not in the same manner agitated when the legislation was proposed. The trouble in discussing the subject now is, that whatever is said is taken for granted to apply to the recent applications of this experiment in legislation by the people rather than to the law itself. However, the law may be considered and its merits or demerits illustrated by these three applications, the Armstrong franchise, the Davidson franchise and the Arlington Heights Traction company franchise.

"No Voice in Change
"Our entire plan of government is based and operated on a representative form; that is the people select their representatives to act for them in law making and law executing, and only in isolated cases do the people act directly to legislate for themselves. They do act for themselves in any change or modification of their constitution by virtue of what they expect as a body politic. However, what might be termed the constitution of the city, its charter, is amended, altered, modified added to and taken from without such changes ever being submitted to the people for their sanction or disapproval through a very limited notice of an intention to make such amendments does have to be published in advance.
"We govern and are governed through our representatives, not because we are originally unable to act for ourselves, so much as we are not in a position to do so. And therein lies the weakness of the referendum system as it now stands in the organic law of this city. An application to amend the constitution of the city for a franchise for an undertaking of an enterprise, wholly new and utterly strange to the great mass of the population, it is inconceivable to suppose that during the limited time the election is pending the people will vote will or could make the inquiry or investigation necessary to an intelligent comprehension of the merits or demerits of the question from the city's standpoint, to enable them to vote intelligently. For instance, in the Armstrong franchise: The provision for steam heating through a system of conduits under the streets, I venture to assert that not a dozen men in Fort Worth could give a reasonable estimate of either the expense of operating such business or the probable return or profits to be derived therefrom; and yet, the voters so ignorant of the trade which the law forced to consider are expected to act for the municipality in making the trade; yes, making it exactly as submitted or rejecting it as a whole. No chance to reason, debate or make or receive counter propositions; the motion as made cannot be amended.

Franchise Not Understood
"This same inefficient understanding on the part of the average man causes the consideration of franchise questions to become a matter of politics and personal influence, without regard to the virtue of the idea in the question. In the Arlington Heights franchise election, I fell on the side of the minority; I worked and voted against it, and the strongest arguments I had to meet were based wholly on the selfish interest of a selected few. The fact that the person speaking simply could not afford to vote against his friend who was asking for the franchise, who was its promoter, its agent or attorney or some other friend who rode on the heels of the wheels and would ride on the line if it was ever built. And to such an extent was this carried in a transaction purely a business one, that it went below all former records in means employed in the election of officers from the highest to the lowest. I merely use this as an illustration of the apparent tendency in the application of the referendum system, which should prove a warning.

Permanent organization of the Eighth Ward Civic League was effected Thursday night in the eighth ward school building, the following officers being elected: F. E. Dycus, president; J. N. Winters, vice president; Hodge Crenshaw, secretary, and W. C. Strong, treasurer.
Alderman Zurn addressed the meeting in reference to the situation of street car service as discussed in the initial meeting of the organization and said that he had conferred with the Traction company relative to the restoring of the old city belt line and the former manner of running the Hemphill street line. According to the alderman, the company intends to grant the request of the Eighth ward and return to the former manner of running cars on both these lines as soon as the Hemphill street extension has been completed.
The next regular meeting of the league will be held Thursday night, at 7:30 o'clock, at which meeting candidates for the office of mayor of the city are expected to be present and address the league.

resent and include a very large and extravagant net profit on the investment while that of other equally advising ad ministered and equally encumbering the public property would earn only a meager profit to its owners. Should these two pay the same proportion of their gross earnings for the privileges granted? I am not attempting to say how such income or franchise tax should be determined or regulated, nor on what basis it should be reasonably and equitably assessed. I mean only to call your attention to the fact that these questions have arisen and will arise in every franchise voted on by the people and that such legislation has not and will not have an intelligent and unselfish consideration under the law as it now exists.

Lobbying the People

"Men esteemed great in Texas today are demanding that lobbying in our state legislature for or against proposed laws shall be prohibited; many claim that such demand is well founded, and that, too, in a representative body where the voting is a matter of record and sees the light. Under our referendum system every known form of political trick may be invoked, and to such an extent that legislative lobbying, so loudly denounced, would in comparison appear as a most commendable virtue.
"As I said before, I am pleased that The Telegram has taken an interest in this matter, and I think the discussion of municipal questions, on their merits and not when an application of the law is pending, will result in a better understanding of the conditions as they exist, and hope if there is room for improvement, that the way may be found."

NEEDLE PARALYSIS

A CURIOUS TROUBLE TO WHICH ALL WHO SEW ARE LIABLE.

Mrs. Blacksten Tells How She was Crippled and How Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured Her.

The steady use of a particular set of muscles tends to chronic fatigue, which produces fraul or difficult motion, trembling, cramps and even paralysis. Writers, telegraphers, tailors and seamstresses are among the classes most threatened in this way with the loss of their power to earn a living. The only safeguard is to keep up the supply of nerve force through the blood, which carries to the nerves the food that support their strength. The following instance shows that nerve power may be recovered after it seems entirely lost, if the right means are taken. Mrs. O. S. Blacksten, of No. 584 North Bowman street, Mansfield, Ohio, says:
"For years my hands would become so numb at times that I would drop anything I attempted to lift. Later they became so bad that I could not sew any longer, and at last I could scarcely do anything at all with my hands. At night the pricking sensations would come on worse than ever, and my hands and arms would pain so that I dreaded to go to bed. My family doctor gave me some nerve tablets. They helped me a little, but only for a short time after I had taken them and if I happened to be without them for a day or two I would be as bad as ever before. Finally I got a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began to take them.
"The result was surprising. By the time I had taken the last pill in my first box I could see a gain. Few know how much it meant for me not to be able to sew, and when I first found I could not feel the needle between my fingers I was alarmed. Thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I am now all right. I can sleep undisturbed by pain, and for two years I have been as well as I ever was in my life."
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills feed the nerves by making new, rich blood and in this way have cured nervous diseases of every description from simple restlessness to paralysis. They have banished the torments of neuritis, the weakness of nervous prostration, the disability and awful pain of locomotor ataxia. They are sold by all druggists or direct by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Rochester, N. Y.

FIRST METHODISTS HOLD CONFERENCE

Stewards Chosen and Reports for Church Year Received at Meeting Thursday
Last quarterly conference of the First Methodist Episcopal church for this year was held Thursday night with good attendance despite the bad weather. Dr. Alonzo Monk, pastor of the church, opened the meeting, at which Rev. O. F. Sensabaugh presided.
Reports for the year showed an increase in membership of 163 persons making the total enrollment 983. Good financial condition of the church was also shown, as well as active interest in church affairs upon the part of the members.

Dr. Monk reported that a sum of $5,000 is on hand to make a payment on the church lot, recently secured at Seventh and Taylor streets, for the erection of a new building. Erection of this building, he said, will probably begin the first of the year.
Resolutions were adopted by the conference upon the death of H. N. Connor. His son Emmett R. Connor, was elected church trustee, succeeding his father. Thirty-one stewards, the number allowed by the church membership, were chosen as follows:
J. J. Massee, George Massee, T. H. Connor, O. T. Moreland, W. G. Newby, G. W. Wilks, H. B. Francis, Emmett R.

Connor, C. P. Brewer, W. F. Barnum, J. P. Grammer, R. P. Woltz, H. E. Gray, M. C. Cameron, T. M. Wadsworth, Green Taylor, A. E. Burnett, C. F. Webb, R. L. Warlick, J. E. Cloud, E. J. White, C. H. took the alarm at once, and I heard his eager question: "Who is it? Who is it, Maud?" She made him some reassuring answer, and, rising to her feet, came over to my table. "What are you doing here?" she asked. "I have just arrived from Braster," I answered. "I came here by accident to get something to eat. Is that—?" "I could not go on, but she finished the sentence for me. "Yes!" "I set my teeth hard and looked steadily down at the tablecloth. I felt rather than saw that her regard was compassionate. "I am sorry," she murmured. "I would not have brought him here if I had known. You two are better apart. Talk to me as naturally as you can. He has no idea who you are?" "Has he been ill?" I asked. "Very. I found him in a hospital." Even while we were talking I saw him toss off another glass of brandy which the waiter had brought him. And all the time his eyes never left my face. "I thought," I said, "that he had money." "It has all gone," she answered, "and—well, things are not very flourishing with him. Our mistake over here has not been successful, and they have stopped sending us money from Paris. How queer that I should be telling you this!" she added, with a hard little laugh, "you, of all the people in the world. Guy, take my advice. Get up and go. If he guesses who you are he will come and speak to you—and you are better apart."

"Then what am I to do?" I asked. "It requires consideration. I will see Lord Chelsford. You shall hear from me in the morning." "That was all the consolation I had from Colonel Ray." "At 10 o'clock the next morning the duke came to me in the study, where I was already at work. He was looking, even for him, particularly trim and smart, and he wore a carefully selected pink rosebud in his buttonhole. His greeting was almost cordial. He gave me a few instructions, and then lit a cigarette. "What is this about your resignation, Ducalnet?" he asked. "I do not wish to resign, sir," I answered. "I have explained certain circumstances to Colonel Ray, which it seemed to me might make my resignation necessary. He promised to confer with Lord Chelsford, and let me know the result." "The uncertainty slowly faded from the duke's face. "I am your employer," he said, coldly. "I do not understand why you thought it necessary to go to Colonel Ray." "It was entirely owing to Colonel Ray, sir," I answered. "That I received the appointment, and he has practically made himself responsible for me." "You are mistaken," the duke answered. "The responsibility is shared by all of us. Your unfortunate family history was known to the whole board." "Then I am less indebted to Colonel Ray, sir, than I imagined," I answered. "I am very glad, however, that it is known. Perhaps Lord Chelsford may not consider my resignation necessary." "The circumstances being—?" "I have seen and spoken with my father in London," I answered. "Your father," he said slowly, "is in London?"

CHAPTER XXXII (Continued.) They talked together earnestly for several moments. I fancied that she was reproving him for showing alarm at my presence. Very soon, however, she herself, after giving an order to a waiter, turned slightly round in her chair, and glanced with well-affected carelessness across at me. I saw her start and look apprehensively at her companion. He

STOP! WOMEN, AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in assessing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with woman's diseases covers a great many years. You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man. Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great. Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation: Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result. First letter. "Dear Mrs. Pinkham—For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month with my periods. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have ovarian and womb trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me." Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and E. Capitol Sts., Benning P.O., Washington, D.C. Second letter. "Dear Mrs. Pinkham—After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value and what you have done for me. As you know, I wrote you that my doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I then wrote you, telling you my ailments. I followed your advice and an entirely well. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I owe my life to you and to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I wish every suffering woman would read this testimonial and realize the value of writing to you and your remedy." Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and E. Capitol Streets, Benning P.O., Washington, D.C. When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women whose testimony is so unquestionable, you cannot well say, without trying it, you are ill. don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

to move. Mrs. Smith-Lessing had left the chair vacant. He sank into it and leaned across the table toward me. "It is Guy," he said in a shaking voice. "I am sure it is Guy. She has told you who I am. Eh?" "Yes," I answered. "I know who you are." He extended his shaking hand across the table. I could not take it. "Well, well," he said nervously, "perhaps you are right. But I came to England to see you. Yes, Guy, that is the truth! I have been a bad father, but I may be able to make amends. I think I know a way—waiter, a glass of brandy." "I am afraid," I said, rising to my feet, "that you must excuse me. If you have anything to say to me, sir, we can meet another time." He almost dragged me down. "Stop, stop!" he said irritably. "You do not seem to understand. I had an important matter of business to discuss with you. I may make your fortune yet, my boy! I have powerful friends abroad, very powerful." I looked at him steadily. She laid her hand upon his arm, and whispered in his ear. He only shook his head angrily. "Nonsense, Maud!" he exclaimed. "You do not understand. This is my son Guy. Of course, we must talk together. It is a wonderful meeting—yes, a wonderful meeting." "Well?" I repeated. "I am glad to hear," he continued, "that you are holding such an important position. Clerk to the military defense board, eh? Quite an important position, of course, but it might be made—yes, with care, it might be made," he added, watching me with nervous alertness, "a very lucrative one." "I'm satisfied with my salary," I remarked calmly. "Pooh! my dear boy, that is nonsense," he continued. "You do not understand me. It is an open secret. Maud, are we overheard here, do you think? Is it safe to discuss an important matter with Guy here?" I rose and took up my hat. Again she whispered in his ear, and this time he seemed to assent. "Quite right! Quite right!" he said, nodding his head. "Guy, my boy, you shall come and see us. No. 23 Bloombury street—poor rooms, but our remittances have gone astray, and I have been ill. Tomorrow, eh? or the next day? We shall expect you, Guy. We do not get out except in the evenings. You will not fail, Guy?" I looked down into his flushed face. His lips were shaking, and his eyes were fixed anxiously upon mine. I was miserably ashamed and unhappy. "I do not think that I shall care to hear what you have to say," I answered. "But I will come to see you." "I left them there. As I went out she was gently countermanding his order for more brandy."

CHAPTER XXXIII. THE DUKE'S MESSAGE. It was late, but I felt that I must see Ray. I went to his house. I was shown into the study, where he was hard at work with a pile of correspondence. "Well," he said, gruffly. "What do you want of me?" "I am busy. Speak to the point." "I have come to ask your advice," I said. "I am afraid I have a design upon my post. My father is in London. I have seen and spoken with him." "With that woman?" "Yes." "And you have spoken to him in a public place, perhaps?" "Yes." Ray was silent for a moment. Then he looked at me keenly. "Do you want to give it up?" he asked. "No," I answered. "But do you suppose Lord Chelsford and the others would be willing for me to continue—under the circumstances?" "Probably not," he admitted. "The duke would not, at any rate."

on the part of France. You don't answer. Quite right, quite right! Never commit yourself uselessly. It is very good diplomacy. The general scheme of defense is, of course, known to you?" "Naturally," I admitted. "With a list of the places to be fortified, eh? The positions to be held and the general distribution of troops? No doubt, too, you have gone into the railway and commissariat arrangements?" "All these details," I assented, "have gone through my hands." He dabbed his forehead with a corner of his handkerchief. There was a streak of purple color in his cheeks. He kept his bloodshot eyes fixed upon me. "I will tell you something, Guy," he said. "I will tell you something, Guy. You realize for yourself, of course, that such details as you have spoken of can never be kept altogether secret? There are always leakages, sometimes very considerable leakages. Yes, Guy," he added, "there are people, friends of mine in Paris, who are willing to pay a very large sum of money—such a large sum of money that it is worth dividing. Guy—for just a bare outline of the whole scheme. Foolish! Of course it is foolish. But with their money is no object. They think they are getting value for it. Absurd! But, Guy, what should you say to £5,000?" "It is a large sum," I answered. "He plucked me by the sleeve. His eyes were hungering already for the gold. "We can get it," he whispered hoarsely. "No trouble to you—no risk. I can make all the arrangements. You have only to hand me the documents." "Why?" he asked. "What need is there to hesitate? The chance may slip by. There are many others on the look out." "There is no one outside the military board save myself who could give these particulars," I said. "But my friends," he said sharply. "These are a foolish offer. They may change their minds. Guy, my boy, I know the world well. Let me give you a word of advice. When a good thing turns up, don't play with it. The men who decide quickly are the men who do the things." I thrust my hand into my breast pocket and drew out a roll of papers. "Supposing I have already decided," I said. His eyes gleamed with excitement. He almost snatched at the papers, but I held them out of his reach. Then with a sharp little cry the woman stood suddenly between us. There was a look almost of horror on her pale, strained face as she held out her hands as though to push me away. "Guy, are you mad?" she cried. The veins stood out upon my father's forehead. He regarded her with mingled anger and surprise. "What do you mean, Maud?" he exclaimed. "What do you mean, Maud?" he asked. "You have given me the papers." "He shall not!" she exclaimed fiercely. "Guy, have you lost your senses? Do you want to ruin your whole life?" "Do you mean," I asked incredulously, "that you do not wish me to join you?" "Join us! For heaven's sake, no!" she answered fiercely. "Look at your father, an outcast all his life. Do you want to become like him? Do you want to turn the other way whenever you meet an Englishman, to skulk all your days in hiding, to be the scorn of the men who employ you? Guy, I would sooner see you dead than part with those papers." "You damned fool!" my father muttered. "Take no notice of her, Guy. Five thousand pounds! I will see it paid to you, every penny of it. And not a soul will ever know!" "My father stood over her, and there was a threat in his face. She did not shrink from him for a moment. She laid her white hands upon my shoulders, and she looked earnestly into my eyes. "Guy, she said, 'even now I do not believe that you meant to be so very, very foolish. But I want you to go away at once. You should never have come. It is not good for you to come near either of us.'"

6177 Fancy Blouse with Bolero Effect, 32 to 40 bust.

The fancy blouse has become as completely an established necessity as the plain shirt waist and the demand for new and attractive designs is very nearly ceaseless. Illustrated is a charming one that gives an exceedingly dressy and quite elaborate effect while in reality it is simple in the extreme. As shown it is made of one of the pretty figured lousines with trimming of Valenciennes lace and matches the skirt, but the model also is a most desirable one for the separate waist, without which no woman can be content, and is available for all the pretty waists of the season as well as for materials suited to entire gowns. White lafeta, lousine and marseille are special favorites for odd waists of the sort and are exceedingly attractive trimmed with either Valenciennes or Cluny lace, but lingerie models also will be worn throughout the season and the design is adapted to them as well as to the silk and wool materials, while again such light weight wools as batiste and challie are being made in lingerie style. The waist is made with a fitted lining, which can be used or omitted as material renders desirable, and itself consists of the front and the backs. The front is laid in narrow tucks at the center and both the front and the backs are laid in wider tucks at the shoulders, which are stitched to yoke depth and provide fullness below. The trimming is applied over the waist, giving a jacket effect, and when liked the material beneath the insertion can be cut away. The sleeves are the well liked ones which consist of deep cuffs with full upper portions. The quantity of material required for medium size is 3 1/2 yards 2 1/2 yards 27 or 1 1/2 yards 44 inches wide with 4 1/2 yards of insertion and 4 1/2 yards of edging to trim as illustrated. The pattern 6177 is out in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inch bust measure. worth £5,000. Let me tell you what I came here for. I am a messenger from the duke of Rowchester. My father dropped his glass. Mrs. Smith-Lessing looked bewildered. "The duke," I said to her, "desires to see you. Can you come to Cavendish square this afternoon?" "Do you mean this?" she asked in a low tone. "I do not understand it. I have never seen the duke in my life." "I understand no more than you do," I assured her. "That is the message." "I do not promise to come," she said. "I must think it over." My father pushed her roughly away. "Come, there's been enough of this fooling," he declared roughly. "Guy, sit down again, my boy. We must have another talk about this matter." I turned upon him in a momentary fit of passion. "I have no more to say, sir," I declared. "It seems that you are not content with ruining your own life and overshadowing mine. You want to drag me, too, down into the slough." "You don't understand, my dear boy! The door opened and Ray entered. My bundle of papers slipped from my fingers onto the floor in the excitement of the moment. (To be Continued.)

THE TROUBLE ON SUN DANCE RANGE

On the Sun Dance range, freshly won from the Sioux and Cheyennes, and taken in a rush by the cowmen, there was constant trouble for several years.

At Bar-Two-Vs ranch ten line riders were employed, and extra men were constantly on duty to guard the ranch buildings and horse corrals. The limit of cattle range on the north was the boundary-line of the Crow and Cheyenne reservation. Rustlers, both red and white, were on the alert, and petty stealings of horses or cattle occurred nearly every month in the year.

But the thieves were not always content with small pickings. In a single raid in October Indians ran off six hundred head of cattle, scattered them among the mountains of the reservation and slaughtered them there.

When complaint was made at their agency, the Crows declared that the Cheyennes had done this wicked business, and the Cheyennes were equally firm in asserting that the Crows were guilty. "The Crows are always stealing," they said.

Nevertheless, it was noted that a good deal of beef was hung up to dry at their several villages. The attention of their agent was called to this fact, but that individual proved lethargic, and would take no action. Thereupon the half-dozen cowmen who had lodged complaint declared they would shoot his Indians on sight whenever any set foot upon their range.

"You'll have to get sight of them first," was the dry rejoinder.

So the Bar-Two-Vs men rode home in high dudgeon. Some days later two pony-riders drew rein at the door of their ranch-house and inquired if more men were wanted there.

"A regiment," replied Allen, the foreman, who chanced to be at the ranch. "How do you all size up against a bunch of reds?"

The two were young men, well armed and mounted. They laughed. "If you mean the Crows and Cheyennes," said one, speaking slowly and with a slight halt in his accent, "I think that we can keep them off your range."

"You can sure brag some," said Allen. "Light and set your teeth against bull beef."

So the young strangers, boys and brothers of 18 or 20 years, fell into the ways of the ranch. The elder gave his name as Hugo and the other as Raymond, which, as well as their carefully spoken English, marked them as foreigners. The etiquette of the range did not require any show of antecedents.

But the dress and armament of the newcomers were of the range, their ponies certainly cow horses, and their saddles of unimpeachable Cheyenne manufacture. In fact, as punchers, they proved wholly fit save in the one matter of choice precision in the use of English.

"Get a move on your chin!" was an injunction which each frequently heard, and which seldom failed to provoke a broad smile.

They proved valuable addition to the line-riding force, and each earned his good wages by honest and effective work. Thus matters ran on through the fall and winter months, and, as it happened, no stock was stolen from the Bar-Two-Vs people during these seasons.

"You fellows have sure brought good luck to this outfit," Allen admitted to them, at the spring roundup; and as usual the brothers grinned their appreciation.

About the first of June, however, the opinion they had won was rudely set aside. It happened thus. Hugo and two punchers named Farley and Morgan were riding the line on Oxus Creek, very close to the reservation boundary, when a number of horsemen were seen upon a ridge across the line.

"Injuns!" pronounced Farley.

"Sure," assented Morgan.

"Cheyennes," said Hugo, casually, and as the others rode on he stayed behind, apparently busy with his saddle cinches.

It was some time after they had rounded the next bend that the new cowboy came up with his fellows, and as the sun had set and their horses were tired, the three made a night camp on the bank of the creek. They made coffee, ate their supper, and chatted of old times on the range in Colorado. Hugo listened until it was nearly time to turn in.

"Fellows," he said, "I'll take a stroll down the creek. If that bunch of creatures I took for elk back a ways should turn out to be steers, they'd need looking after tonight. They'll have come down to water by this time."

He turned abruptly and was soon out of sight in the darkness. Something in his manner, an attempt perhaps to seem natural, caught the attention of Morgan, who was of a shrewdly suspicious nature.

"Say, Farley," he said, "that lad's got a bee in his bonnet. Why, he wasn't a quarter-mile behind us, and I could see the velvet on them bull elk's horns! An' how did he know them Injuns was Cheyennes? You watch the fire a spell an' I'll camp on his trail."

The suspicious cowman trailed along the creek with the stealth of a Sioux for a mile or more, and then his vigilance was rewarded. Just below a fringe of cottonwoods and at the foot of a long rise he saw, dimly outlined, a group of men standing and talking. He approached them, creeping through the grass of the creek bottom.

He halted within easy ear-shot, and then heard and saw his late comrade talking to a half-dozen Indians. The boy was speaking in Crow or Cheyenne, and in a lively manner.

Morgan watched and listened for a minute, and then stole back to his camp.

"Well, how's how?" greeted Farley.

"Where's the kid?"

"Oh, we're a daisy lot, we are!" declared Morgan. "The Bar-Two-Vs outfit's a lot of tender flowers, a-bloom in the spring, an' they look real pretty till the cows step on 'em."

"Close them remarks," said Farley, resentfully, "an' talk United States."

Thus admonished, Morgan told his story, while Farley sat poking the fire. "If the jay comes back, I reckon we'll surprise him plenty," was the only remark he made.

A half-hour later, when Hugo returned to camp, the two were rolled in their blankets, apparently sound asleep. An hour later he was roughly awakened, to find Morgan sitting on his legs, and his late comrades busily engaged in tying his hands. He struggled for a moment, and then gave vent to his astonishment.

"What's this about, fellows?" he asked.

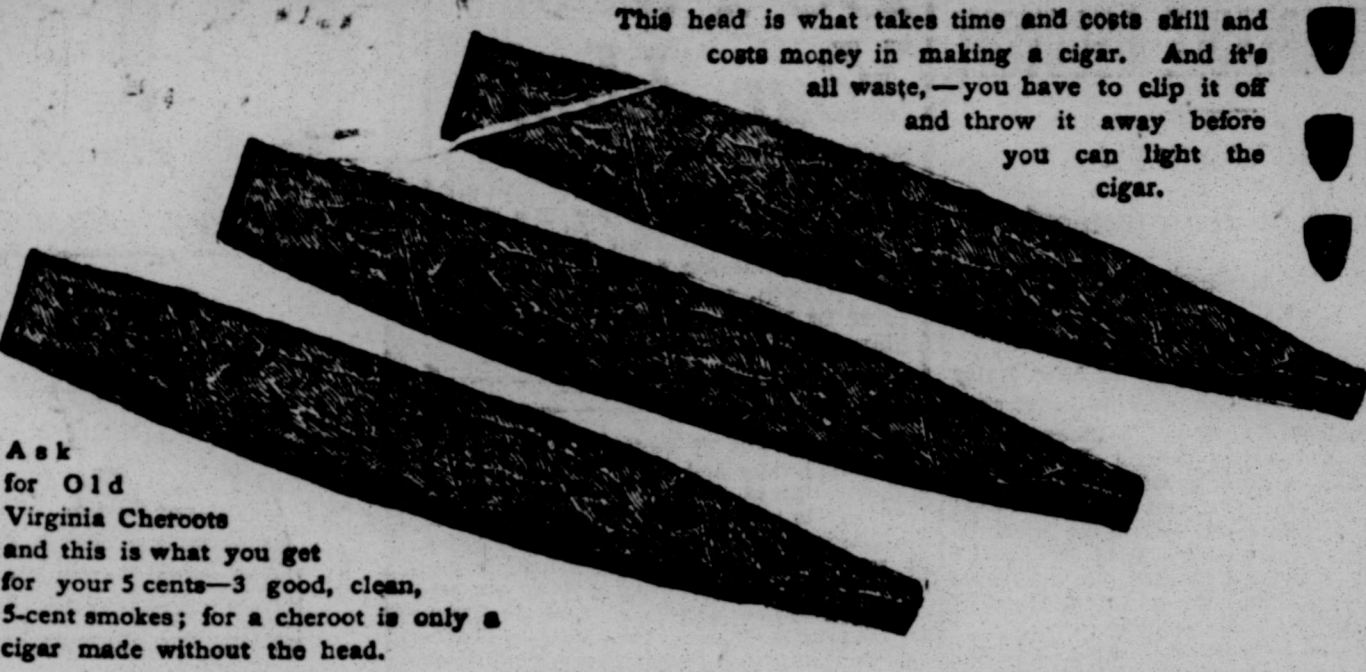

"Shut your chin, Mr. Half-Breed!" was the grim command. "You've played in big luck so far, but your game's up—savvy?"

The new puncher made no further effort to resist or to speak. He was put astride his horse and tied fast, and Farley set off for the ranch, at the time to find the men all in. Probably an angrier lot of punchers was never seen than those at Bar-Two-Vs when Morgan and Farley had given an account of the night.

They had been "taken in" by a couple of half-breeds, working among them as spies, two of the very thieves who had run off their stock the year before, and who were plotting with the Indians to make a bigger haul!

The brothers, looking sorry and grave enough, were allowed to eat breakfast, and then they were bound, were thrust into the bunk-room while the men considered what should be done. This was finally settled by Allen in his usual vigorous fashion. "We'll take our birds to the edge of their reserve," he said, "and hang 'em to their own cottonwoods, where the Crows and Cheyennes can savvy our sign talk."

At sunrise a cavalcade of eleven riders, two of them with wrists tied, left the ranch and rode swiftly down Sun Dance Creek. They stopped at several ranches, gathering what force they could. They thus picked up a re-enforcement of seven cowmen, all glad of an opportunity to teach the Indians a lesson.

With their ponies tied together, and with pale, set faces, the young captives rode in the midst of this relentless squad.

The party crossed over to the Oxus, reaching the creek before noon, and then went down its narrow valley toward the reserve line. The dust of their trailing could be seen far across the bad lands.

Their advance could hardly have flared to attract the attention of keen eyes on the watch, and the men had gone but a few miles down the valley when a single Indian appeared upon a bluff, and signaled them by waving his blanket. Their response was a volley of bullets, which pattered upon the crest of the rise.

The Indian dodged out of sight. The men were now near the point where Hugo had been bound, and the appearance of an Indian was not a matter of surprise.

The men halted. As they debated whether they should "rush the hills," Hugo spoke.

"Fellows," he said, "this won't do. There's theyennes enough below to eat you up, and they'll do it if you go to shooting. I know where their camp is, and I know what you intend going to us, but you'll never do it now. You can shoot us where we sit. Better let us go, and ride back to your ranches. There's no use of telling you so, but you've made the biggest mistake of your lives in taking us for rustlers."

The men listened, but their answer was a stern forward movement and a rattling clink as cartridges were thrust into magazine to barrel. They took the trail again, convinced that they were right and determined to go ahead.

As they filed on, the two brothers suddenly flung their bodies forward, and rode for a distance lying on their horses' necks. The punchers regarded this move with contemptuous indifference, although they well understood it as some sort of sign language of captives who could not use their hands. The "outfit," in fact, was spooling for a fight.

As they rode ahead, the valley of the Oxus narrowed until not more than a quarter-mile strip was hemmed between sage-grown breaks cut with washouts, gullies and deep ravines.

The still atmosphere of the nearby hills seemed charged with a hostile presence. The imminence of danger was something fairly tangible, and every man felt the electric tingle of it.

The cowboy troopers became rigid in their seats, and probably there was not a man of the mob drew a breath of relief when, out of the deep cuts on either hand, troops of wild riders launched themselves into the valley.

On they came, stringing out of the ravines until, at a guess, two hundred were aligned on the right and on the left. The cowmen halted. No one spoke for some seconds. Then Allen opened his mouth. "Fellows," he said, "I reckon we are all due to get our hair lifted."

By their silence and their level gaze at the hordes on each hand, his punchers gave assent. Then Billy Russell, foreman of the XL ranch, turned to Allen.

"Hank," he said, "we'd best have listened to the boy back yonder—he sure talked right!"

At this the prisoners laughed—a joyous, hearty laugh, that had in it the ring of honest triumph. The color had come back to their cheeks, and their eyes held the glint of hopeful courage.

"Now see here, men," said Raymond, "I guess the time has come to tell you who we are. You've all heard of Henry Catlin, Indian trader at Rosebud? Well, we're his sons. We'd been east to school for eight years, except summers, and last fall we wanted to try the range. As our mother is a half-breed Cheyenne, we were afraid you'd have it in for us as Indians, and so, as you didn't size us up, we kept still. That's the trouble chiefly."

"Last night when you fellows jumped on Hugo, he'd been trying to send a lot of Cheyennes about their business. Their camp is below here a little way, and they pretended to be hunting blacktails."

"When you brought us down here you were running straight into them. They'd seen your dust and sent out a scout. After you shot at him we let him know that we were with you as captives, and he made a run for his camp, and stirred 'em out. We've got friends and relatives among 'em, and they'll want to know what you're going to do with us. If you let us go it will be all right, and if you don't, well, you can guess what will happen."

"That's dead easy," said the foreman of Bar-Two-Vs. "I reckon this outfit ain't more'n nine or ten kinds of fools."

He rode alongside the brothers, and cut the strings from their wrists.

"Make your chin sign, brothers," he said, "and tell our friends that we sure mistook their scout for one of them thieving Crows."

With shouts of joyful laughter the brothers rode out to their Indian friends; and while they talked, making matters right for the cowmen, the latter went into camp, and ate their dinner peacefully on the bank of the Oxus.—Youth's Companion.

HARRIMAN DECLINES AID
President E. H. Harriman of the Southern Pacific has declined to join with Senator A. Clark and associates in the construction of the proposed railway between Las Vegas and Bullfrog, a distance of 113 miles. The result, it is said, will be the construction of a life independent of the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake, with the Southern Pacific having no interest whatever in the enterprise. Material for the line is already being received at Los Angeles and construction will soon commence.

THEORIES ABOUT FOOD
Also a Few Facts on the Same Subject
We hear much nowadays about health foods and hygienic living, about vegetarianism, and many other fads along the same line.

Restaurants may be found in the larger cities where no meat, pastry or coffee is served and the food cranked in his glory, and arguments and theories galore advanced to prove that meat was never intended for human stomachs, and almost make us believe that our sturdy ancestors, who lived four-score years ago, must have roared beef, pork and mutton must have been grossly ignorant of the laws of health.

Our forefathers had other things to do than formulate theories about the food they ate. A warm welcome was extended to any kind, from bacon to acorns.

A healthy appetite and common sense are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and meats is undoubtedly the best.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables or grains.

Dr. Julius Remmon, on this subject, says: "Nervous persons, people run down in health and of low vitality, should eat meat and plenty of it. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily corrected by the regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs or other animal food, in three hours, and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and distase necessary to perfect digestion, and every form of indigestion will be overcome by their use."

The large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its proper digestion by the daily use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, pepsin, diastase, fruit acids and salts, which actually perform the work of digestion. Cheap cathartic medicines, masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures, are useless for indigestion, as they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.

Dyspepsia in all its many forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food, and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the dyspepsia is to make like use at meal time of a preparation like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which is endorsed by the medical profession and known to contain active digestive principles.

"At four months old my baby's face and body were so covered with sores and large scales you could not tell what she looked like. No child ever had a worse case. Her face was being eaten away, and even her finger nails fell off. It itched so she could not sleep. At four months of age she could get no rest. At last we got Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The sores began to heal at once, and she could sleep at night, and in one month she had not one sore on her face or body. — Mrs. Mary Sanders, 700 1/2 Jay St., Camden, N. J."

RHEUMATISM AN INSIDIOUS DISEASE THAT BREAKS DOWN THE STRONGEST

STOCKS

Special to The Telegram. NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The monetary situation continues to dominate the stock market.

During the morning hours were made on the stock exchange at 11 per cent, 12 1/2 and 11 per cent. Another important factor was the expectation of a very unfavorable bank statement tomorrow.

The fact that London failed to respond to our weakness of yesterday, as shown by the strength of the early cables, tended to offset the bearish influences to some extent and fair support was accorded the market throughout the early trading.

NEW YORK STOCK QUOTATIONS. NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Stocks ranged in price today on the New York Stock Exchange as follows:

Spots are quiet and 15 points lower, with middling at 19.6c. Sales, 555 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON. NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 10.—Despite a weaker market for futures, the spot cotton market closed firm with sales of 800 bales and 1,250 bales f. o. b. Futures were affected to some extent by the government condition figures and closed 11 to 14 points lower.

EUREKA REPAIR SHOP LAYNOVER expert. Bicycles and car fitting, 107 West Ninth street.

SOMEBODY WILL BUY A PIECE OF REAL ESTATE ADVERTISED TODAY AND WILL MAKE IT THE CORNERSTONE OF A FORTUNE

TO THE INSURANCE POLICY HOLDERS OF TEXAS!

"HOW LONG, O LORD! HOW LONG?"

I Would Respectfully Submit to the Policy Holders of Texas in Meeting at Dallas Today:

At many of the recent meetings of policy holders in different parts of the country the insurance grafters' hirings have attempted to confuse and deceive policy holders by the following devices:

Upon the attempts to substitute local names for mine in proxies failing, they secure a sub-committee opposed to me to collect these proxies. After this committee has secured a number from friends of the grafters they offer to sell them to me for some ridiculously large figure and almost immediately notify me that my agent has taken and paid for them and then they proceed to spread the false report that I am paying for proxies and that any one with a number can sell them to me, all of which confuses policy holders and retards my movement.

I herewith notify all policy holders in Texas that in my opinion the man who would buy a life insurance proxy is a scoundrel as bad as the grafters. I would not pay $1 for 100,000 proxies.

I will give my time and money in all above board ways to assist policy holders out of the coils of the grafting thieves who have in the past and are now so foully robbing them, but I will take no hand in their sneaky and low-down tricks.

Further, I want no office, no money, no compensation of any kind for what I do, other than the satisfaction of driving another spike into the coffin-lid of the meanest sneak thieves in or out of State's prison; and further

All I want or will accept from policy holders is the proxy which runs to me with all the conditions and restrictions for fair play I have printed therein, and of which I am receiving daily thousands from all parts of the country—probably 100 times more each day than the combined grafters secure in a week; and further yet

If any one who attempts to secure a proxy running to any pretended agent or committee of mine, policy holders may know they are dealing with one of the grafters' liars.

I want all the assistance possible, but the only way an American life insurance policy holder can tell for sure the grafters' dummies from the only man who is working day and night for them at his own expense is to sign the simple, straight proxy I have devised to thwart the grafters.

One final word. I want proxies. I want them badly, for if I do not get an overwhelming majority I will not attempt the work I have laid out of compelling restitution and giving full punishment.

But, badly as I want the proxies, I will accept them only if the policy holders want me to have them. If they think they can put them into better hands they are welcome. I can stand it if they can.

For twenty years the Big 3 policy holders and the policy holders in other Big 3's have been robbed like chloroformed sheep and it's up to them to say whether they send me to the meetings of the New York Life and the Mutual Life Insurance Companies with a sufficient number to put the grafters into striped suits after first taking away what they have stolen, or send on special committees to sell the proxies they have collected to the highest bidder, who can only be the grafters, who also have control of the funds they have not yet stolen.

If policy holders needed an additional argument to get together quick they would have it in the circulars the Equitable policy holders are now receiving from the so-called trustees.

These circulars show the policy holders of the Equitable that after what these grafters' new agents are pleased to term a thorough reorganization a policy holder is given the right to signify to ex-President Grover Cleveland, whom he thinks would be the best seven men amongst the policy holders to join with six other men, whom the grafters name, to run the company for the ensuing year.

Policy holders are plainly shown by the circular itself that they have no right to vote, but that they can simply send on the names of seven policy holders for the seven trustees to look over. All the world knows there are 600,000 policy holders in the Equitable and that they are scattered over 600,000 or a million miles of the earth's surface and that it would hardly be possible for any one policy holder to send on the names of any other seven policy holders but those of his immediate neighbors, which means that the trustees will have the funniest collection of names ever gotten for any purpose. Equitable policy holders can rest assured that even though the trustees were doing their best for those having the greatest number of votes, it would be a farce to suppose that the men bearing the names could be found, identified and brought on to New York and be properly introduced to their new office duties before their term expired.

Seriously, in the proposition made by the trustees of the Equitable to the Equitable policy holders the farcical features are exceeded only by those insulting to their intelligence.

Later—As I telegraph this to the Dallas meeting and to the Dallas, San Antonio and Fort Worth newspapers, President Hedgesman of the Metropolitan Life, owned by the Big 3, is testifying before the Legislative Committee that his company insures thousands of working women and their babies and children; that the price of this insurance is double that which the rich policy holders pay; that it is so oppressive, and his scheme so perfect in its devilry that 51 per cent of all the policies lapse each year, and yet while these poor unfortunates are being moved down in this cruel manner, he has increased his salary from $15,000 to $100,000 a year.

Following investigation by The Telegram of "petition" appearing in the Record Saturday morning, Nov. 4, purporting to have been signed by the citizens of the Eighth ward and favoring the Arlington Heights Traction company franchise, members of the Eighth Ward Civic League have voted to investigate the "petition" in an effort to learn responsibility for its publication.

The article in question and the list of reputed signers is as follows: "Following the announcement of yesterday that a meeting was held in the Eighth ward Thursday night which passed a resolution against the Arlington Heights street railway franchise, some of those in the ward who did not have an opportunity to participate in the meeting, circulated a petition, which was generally signed as follows:

BETTER MINING LAWS ARE SOUGHT

Probably the most important convention ever held in Texas will be the American Mining congress, which meets at El Paso Nov. 14 for four days. Many matters of interest to the mining world will be considered at this meeting, but the most prominent will be that in the interest of securing a department of mining through the efforts of congress, the object being to obtain better mining laws and advance this great industry generally.

The constitution that will be adopted at the coming congress will provide for state organizations with power to elect delegates to the national body. This plan will change the present methods. Heretofore delegates have been named by governors, the President, the mayors and business organizations. The result was to collect yearly a heterogeneous body of men, many of whom knew nothing whatever of mining, and consequently were not competent to vote intelligently on any question of vital importance to the mining world.

The mining congress has never been run as a business organization, but if the present plans carry, it will be in the future.

The secretary of the congress has sent letters to United States senators and congressmen all over the country asking them to state their position on the proposal to create a department of mines and mining. In the majority of instances the proposition has been received with enthusiasm. Congressman William Sulzer of New York has notified the congress secretary offering to present the bill in the house when it is drawn up.

It is planned to eventually make Denver headquarters for the mining congress and erect a large building. It is believed that this will be done soon. The new constitution to be adopted will contain a provision for raising funds for this purpose.

Texas will send quite a large delegation to the El Paso convention.

Should Steel Ranges Be Made of Steel? No!

Sheet steel will rust just 300 per cent quicker than sheet iron, and it doesn't take a rust spot very long to work its way through, then in steel ranges there is trouble. Stove manufacturers know that almost every one believes that steel will last longer than iron, and if sheet steel costs less than iron why should they make any change. Iron is only one range made of sheet iron and the best of charcoal iron at that—the old stand-by, the MAJESTIC.

It may not be the cheapest, but it certainly is the least expensive to operate.
