

HEARST GAINS 408 BALLOTS

Municipal Ownership Candidate Continues His Fight on Tammany

GRAND JURY IS BUSY

Investigation of "Floater" Krup's Release Promises Disclosures

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The developments today in the local political situation showed these three important results, namely, that William Randolph Hearst has already gained 408 votes in the canvass of six assembly districts in New York county and two districts in Brooklyn; that Tammany Leader Murphy will probably be called before the grand jury next Monday in an effort to learn why $5,000 cash was put up by Tammany lawyers to secure Murphy's "floater," Krup, release from prison and as the re-count of the void and protested ballots proceeded today before Justice Giegrich, attorneys for William Randolph Hearst gained important legal victories that do much toward piling up a substantial count for the municipal ownership candidate.

The greatest victory scored during today by the attorneys for Mr. Hearst was the three decisions already rendered by Judge Giegrich. The first important ruling of Justice Giegrich as to the effect that all ballots not counted because they were torn should be counted where the intent of the voter was clearly indicated and where it was not shown that the tearing of the ballot had been done by the voter. This ruling affects a great number of ballots, presumably torn by the poll clerks in depositing or taking them from the ballot boxes. The second ruling was rendered in spite of the opposition of Attorney Knox for Tammany by Austin Fox, representing Mr. Hearst. This decision secured a strict construction of the statute relating to the cross used for marking the ballot by the voter, the majority of the defective crosses being on votes for the Tammany ticket.

Tammany Tickets Declared Void

A further ruling was obtained in declaring a vote for the Tammany ticket void because of an erasure on the ballot before the name of Jerome. All ballots containing erasures will therefore be declared void during the progress of the re-count. As all of the decisions were strenuously opposed by Tammany lawyers and as energetically fought for by Mr. Hearst's attorneys, it can be seen that the judicial rulings will go toward having Mr. Hearst sworn in as mayor on Jan. 1, next.

The gain of 408 votes for Mr. Hearst today was made slightly by comparison of the inspectors' returns with the original tally sheets and is independent of the re-count of the void and protested ballots which the municipal ownership league believes will be sufficient to seat its candidate.

By the canvass being made with the tally sheets which has shown the increase of 408 votes for Hearst, McClain has lost 38 votes. The gain for Hearst are as follows: Sixteen in several election districts of the First assembly district of Manhattan "Battery"—Fins; nine in election districts of Third assembly district, twenty-five in several election districts of the Fourth assembly district; 150 in the election districts of the Sixth assembly district; ten in the Fourth election district of the Fifth assembly; thirty-three in the Third election district of the Sixth assembly and 123 in the Second assembly district of Kings county. Such glaring discrepancies were found in election districts so far examined by the board of canvassers that counsel for the municipal ownership league will apply to the supreme court Monday to have all the boxes opened and the ballots counted.

Tammany leader Murphy and Charles P. Dillon, the Tammany lawyer, who secured the release of a fugitive "floater" voter, John Krup, will probably find it hard to answer some of the questions that will be put to them.

Attorney General Mayer said today that if Dillon persists in refusing to answer questions on Monday he will endeavor to have him sent to jail for contempt of court.

"We are in a fair way to obtain the information we want as to the 'man higher up' in this outrageous affair," said the attorney general to a reporter who saw him at his home.

"I cannot see how he can avoid answering our questions. He will answer them or come pretty near going to jail for contempt of court."

"I shall go before Recorder Goff and ask that he insist upon Mr. Dillon answering. For his own sake, Mr. Dillon should tell all he knows. Mr. Dillon's connection with certain high authorities in Tammany Hall is suggestive."

"It is quite apparent that some one attached extreme importance to what Krup knows, so much so, in fact, that he or they probably felt much better when Krup dropped out of sight. We shall spare no effort to get Mr. Krup. I am confident that he will be found."

Mr. Mayer intimated that persons who stand very high in Tammany councils and who have not yet been subpoenaed might be summoned before the grand jury.

Dublin Students Refuse to Allow Unusual Music Played

(Special Cable to The Telegram—Copyright, 1905, by Hearst News Service.) DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—An unprecedented scene marked the close of the proceedings on the conferring of degrees in the Royal University of Dublin. A large body of the students ascended to the organ loft and took possession of the instrument. From this point they sang "God Save Ireland" during the proceedings and declared they would not allow "God Save the King" to be played on the organ. The students could not be subdued and the members of the senate had to leave the hall amid the strains of the popular ballad commemorating the "Manchester martyrs."

TAFT TALKS ON PANAMA DITCH

Secretary of War Says More Money Spent the Better, Barring Waste

NEEDS MORE MONEY

Says Even Short Break in Funds for Workers Would Be Disastrous

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—William H. Taft, secretary of war, delivered an address before the members of the Commercial Club at the St. Louis Club house tonight, on the Panama canal. The address, which is the first public delivery on the subject since Secretary Taft's return from the Isthmus, is regarded as especially significant as expressing the views of the administration upon the work. The most stirring portions of his address were the following:

"It is important only that the money shall not be wasted by haste and that the country shall receive the worth of its money. Subject to this limitation, the greatest amount we can spend in a year in building the canal, therefore the better."

"One of the greatest obstacles to success in building the canal is the opposition of powerful persons and interests to its construction. So long as the work remains under my supervision I will visit the Isthmus once a year."

"It will be necessary, therefore, for congress to make an emergency appropriation to carry on the work without calamitous interruption. Nothing could be more disastrous than to have pay rolls go unpaid for even a few weeks."

"By the first of December we will have spent $50,000,000 in the course of acquiring a trans-isthmian canal. The number of laborers required will be perhaps 25,000."

"Panama history shows awful losses of life among workmen engaged in the construction of the railroad and the canal from yellow fever and malaria, and these two diseases must be stamped out."

"The fact that no white labor can be found to stand work in the tropical suns ought to remove the question from the forum of ordinary trade union labor disputes and lead to a solution free from the considerations which might properly have great weight in a more temperate climate and the conditions less resembling a national emergency."

LOCAL OPTION ELECTION

WEATHERFORD, Texas, Nov. 18.—The commissioners' court today ordered a local option election for Weatherford, to be held one month from today, on Dec. 18.

BAPTISTS REFUSE TO FORCE VOTE

Question Raised on Liquor License Opinions

SPECIAL TO THE TELEGRAM. DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 18.—On motion of Dr. George W. Truett, the Baptist general convention of Texas, decided at last night's session to hold until Monday morning before final adjournment is taken. The meeting Monday is to be held at the First Baptist church and the final session of the convention will be held.

The liveliest discussion in the entire convention was participated in at last night's session by a number of the prominent brethren as a result of the wording of a certain clause of the report on the liquor traffic. The clause in question was one providing for the expulsion from membership of all who indulge in dram-drinking, voting for license or renting property for saloons.

The more conservative element argued against depriving a man of membership for voting his mind and held that loving persuasion and pressure should be used to bring about a change of mind. It was argued that it is contrary to Baptist customs to attempt to force a man into anything. After exhaustive argument the clause was modified, the voting for license or renting property for saloons.

The secretaries gave out last night that the total collections made at the convention since its opening aggregated $115,468.

PLANS COLONY FOR OPPRESSED JEWS

New York Physicians Suggest Buying Tract in Texas

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—What would prove to be the most stupendous charity in the history of the world, if carried out, has been proposed by Dr. M. J. Burstein of 179 Henry street, this city, in an appeal to all the Jews of the world to give 10 per cent of their earthly possessions to buy land to colonize the members of their race who are suffering cruelly in Southern Russia.

Dr. Burstein's eloquent appeal for contributions to this end is printed in circular form and is being sent to every Jew in America and scattered to the four winds of the earth.

"We must have a home for all the Jews of Russia," he says, "and we must raise $1,000,000, $10,000,000 or $100,000,000, even $500,000,000."

"Nothing less than half a billion dollars and then the future history of the Jews will be a pride among the nations. I propose, my brethren, to agitate that every Jew living on the globe shall give up 10 per cent of his possessions—not of his yearly earnings, but of his capital or investments—at once. Then 10 per cent of his earnings for the next ten years."

"Negotiations shall be commenced at once with a government for the purchase of lands. The purchase shall be $500,000 acres, the sufferers to be transported, not one by one, but in numbers."

Dr. Burstein thinks that the 5,000,000 acres of land can be purchased in the United States, probably Texas or some of the territories. He says it can be paid for in fifty years. He thinks there will be enough money left after paying for the land and transporting the sufferers to buy the necessary foodstuffs, farming implements, machinery and also to build homes, school houses and public buildings.

Speaking of the locality of the colonization Dr. Burstein says: "I am against putting them in unhealthy climate, where the elements will finish the work of extermination. I firmly believe the Jewish race throughout the world is rich enough to act, is strong enough to act, clever enough to succeed."

Dr. Burstein says he is willing to subscribe one-tenth of his possessions for the cause immediately.

SON HELD FOR TRIPLE MURDER

Doctor Is Accused of Killing Mother, Father and Brother

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 18.—In his verdict filed with the county clerk today Coroner Kline finds that Dr. Oliver Haugh is guilty of the murder of his father, mother and brother. In his comments on the case the coroner stated:

"I believe that the officials of Montgomery county have to deal with a criminal so cunning and fiendish that he has seldom been equaled in this country."

The last witnesses that he examined, Jesse McCallan, who was one of the first arrivals at the fire, stated that the bodies were mutilated when he saw them in the burning house. People in the neighborhood believe the doctor dismembered them and filled the cavities with oil to hasten their description in burning the building. This afternoon the authorities succeeded in getting Haugh to talk. He gave an exact description of the rooms of the Haugh home and told this story of the fire:

"I ate supper at home the night of the fire. I was tired after supper and went to bed early. I did not hear my brother Jesse go to bed and do not know when the old folk retired. I was awakened by smoke. When I noticed the smoke I jumped up to find the house filled with it. I rushed outdoors to get fresh air. The first thing I knew my hair was on fire and I felt my leg on my leg. I started for a neighbor's, fighting the fire on my leg and head as I ran. I called Heitzman and Cook and then ran back to our house and into my parents' room, but heard nothing and ran out again."

He told a long story of details, but did not throw any light on the deaths. Many of his statements were contradictory, but he strongly denied that he had ever threatened his parents or brother. Mrs. Eckley Haugh, his wife, living here, says that her husband often threatened his parents and even declared that he would kill her.

THREE SPECIAL VENIRES USED

Trial of Negro at Waxahachie Creates Great Feeling

SPECIAL TO THE TELEGRAM. WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Nov. 18.—Never in the history of the courts of Ellis county has more intense public interest been displayed in a criminal trial than that shown in the case of Charles Albert Johnson, the young negro arraigned Thursday, charged with the murder of J. H. Taylor, near this place, July 3. So bitter was the feeling that a jury was not secured until late this afternoon and after three special venires had been exhausted. A hundred men had been summoned in each. The work of taking the testimony commenced this afternoon at 5 o'clock. The trial will probably be concluded Monday or Tuesday.

WITTE'S POWER IS INCREASING

New Russian Premier Gradually Gaining Control of Scattered Forces

STRIKERS YIELDING

Order Being Restored at Moscow and Odessa and Men Returning to Work

(Special Cable to The Telegram—Copyright, 1905, by Hearst News Service.) BY GEORGE FRAZER. ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 18.—Count Witte is gradually gaining the upper hand in the struggle with the radicals and reactionaries who have been endeavoring to discredit his efforts in the direction of popular representation in the government. There are signs of a break in the ranks of the strikers, although there are now upwards of 125,000 men out of employment. A strong opposition has sprung up among the ranks of the workers themselves, who are disgusted at the idea of being ordered out on strike to help a cause in which they are not interested, when the people who would be directly benefited, the Poles themselves, are withdrawing from the struggle and resuming their ordinary occupations.

Moderates Aid Premier's Cause

A delegation of the moderates has gone to Moscow to persuade the zemstvo congress to give its support to Mr. Witte by condemning the present strike as endangering the peace and welfare of the nation at large and to aid the government by every means in its power to restore tranquillity and introduce the new order of things provided for in the Imperial proclamation.

Count Witte has promised police protection to all storekeepers who wish to resume business and have been prevented from doing so by threats of strikers and agitators. This has already resulted in many storekeepers opening their stores.

Strikers Lose Ground

Advice from Moscow and Odessa says the strike leaders are losing ground there and that there is a disposition among the workers to return to their occupations, as the families of many of them are on the verge of starvation. Order has been restored at Odessa, except for the cessation of labor, and the Jews are gradually repairing the property damaged by the rioters. A strong military guard is still maintained in the Hebrew quarter, however. It was officially announced today that none of the Kronstadt mutineers had been shot or even sentenced and that none would be until the inquiry now going on has been concluded, after which there will be a court-martial of the leaders of the outbreak.

Count Witte had occasion to resent the imputation that German pressure had anything to do with the declaration of a martial law in Poland, and claims that his course was dictated solely by a desire to protect the integrity of the empire.

Some disquiet has been caused among the 6,000 sailors at Sevastopol by the reports from Kronstadt and Vladivostok, but it is not believed any outbreak will occur.

WORK KEPT SECRET

Never Castle Park Being Turned Into Tudor Village

LONDON, Nov. 18.—While the fact that William Waldorf Astor has in hand a scheme for transforming the park of ancient Never Castle, the home of Anne Boleyn, into a Tudor village, has already been cabled, it is only just now that the details of the scheme are carefully concealed work of transformation have become known. It is a fact that this work has been going on for the last three years. The greatest secret of the scheme is that it is allowed within the Never grounds without a special permit. Mr. Astor pays well and the workmen know well that the completion of his scheme will be rewarded. Consequently his instructions are rigidly adhered to. Since the commencement a body of men varying from one to three thousand has been constantly employed.

PROPOSE BOND ISSUE

Committee to Prepare Deficiency for the Isthmian Commission

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—Members of the ways and means committee (house), who have had knowledge of Secretary Taft's speech tonight at St. Louis, say that the Isthmian canal committee had exhausted its $10,000,000 and could not pay its December bills and are getting ready for an urgent deficiency bill to rush through at the earliest possible moment at the first meeting of congress. There is also some talk about the secretary of the treasury issuing the bonds for the canal which he is authorized by the act to do.

Some of the treasury officials, however, say that in all probability the bonds would not be taken up greedily by the banks because being 2 per cent and the tax being 1 per cent, the bonds might not even sell at par. It is very probable that before the emergency bill is passed there will be discussion in congress over the various items of expense incurred by the canal commission.

WANT TRAINS STOPPED

Not Thought Commission Will Compel Flyers to Make Hamlets

SPECIAL TO THE TELEGRAM. AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 18.—The railroad commission is in receipt of complaints from people living at small places in the state, principally the flag stations, to the effect that railroads will not stop their trains at these places.

To compel the fast trains to stop at all these flag stations would do all intents have the effect of abolishing these fast trains throughout the state, and it is not at all likely that the commission will grant any of these requests, especially as to the "Cannon Ball" and the "Flyer" trains, which have quite a fast schedule to run on.

"It is just as well to have no fast trains in the state," said Chairman Storey, "if they have to stop at every flag station in the state."

SEA LEVEL CANAL PLAN APPROVED

Commission Engineers Decide Against Lock

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The board of consulting engineers of the isthmian canal commission, at its meeting here today, declared by a majority in favor of a sea level canal.

This conclusion was reached after a long and careful study of the project. Since the beginning of September the board has held many long meetings, and in special sub-committees the plans, both for sea level and lock canals, have been the subject of careful study, the matter having received the greatest care at the hands of the members of the committee.

A trip to the isthmus will be made to enable the members to form a better idea of the physical difficulties, which are many and may require further consideration.

Yesterday the board voted on about twenty points of no particular importance, but which had all to be considered before the work progressed.

AUTOISTS TO SHUN SWITZERLAND AS PROTEST AGAINST EXTORTION

GENEVA, Nov. 18.—Confederation reigns in Switzerland, owing to the firm intention of the combined automobile clubs of the world to boycott this country as a protest against the many brutal and murderous attacks, the wholesale indignities and continual legalized robberies which have made automobile traveling in Switzerland almost insupportable.

As among the thousands of rich American, English, French and German motorists who have this summer filled the leading hotels of Switzerland, probably 80 per cent have brought with them motor cars, the boycott, if carried out, will mean the ruin of the hotelkeepers. The president of the Swiss Automobile Club, Monsieur de Naville, is doing his utmost to smooth the matter over, but he himself confesses that the Swiss authorities are to blame for permitting, if not actually, encouraging the police to persecute and rob foreign automobilists.

WHAT THE TOURIST DREADS.

In many places the police are in league with the carriage drivers and local horse owners, and day after day come complaints of automobilists who, after having inquired at the police station if the road is subject to motor car traffic, have advanced some miles only to be stopped by the police at some secluded spot. The travelers are then told that all automobile travel is strictly forbidden on that road and that the only way in which they can advance or return is by means of horses harnessed to their cars. If, say the police, the travelers will at once pay the fine which they have incurred of $5, $10 or $15 as the case may be, the police will find horses for them. The victims have no option in the matter and after paying the fine and possibly giving the police a tip to expedite their movements seek to their disgust a team of ready harnessed horses brought from behind a wall or clump of trees where they have been kept hidden in readiness.

Then comes a second unpleasant surprise, for the simple rustic teamster after harnessing his animals to the car, refuses to stir until the travelers pay an extortionate sum in advance. In his demands he is always, of course, strongly supported by his friends, the police.

SON LOST MOTHER

"Consumption runs in our family, and through it I lost my mother," writes E. B. Reid of Harmony, Me. "For the past five years, however, on the slightest sign of a Cough or Cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which has saved me from serious lung trouble." His mother's death was a sad loss for Mr. Reid, but he learned that lung trouble must not be neglected, and how to cure it. Quickest relief and cure for coughs and colds. Price 50¢ and $1. Guaranteed at Walkup & Fielder's, Holland's Red Cross Pharmacy and Renfro Drug Company's drug stores. Trial bottle free.

OPERA TROUPE SINGS REQUIEM

Archbishop Reads the Service Over Neapolitan Sailor

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Vincenzo Giordano, sailor on the steamship Koellen Louise, which docked yesterday, fell from the crew's nest on Wednesday and was killed. He was buried at sea. The ship was stopped, and although it was raining hard, many of the passengers stood bareheaded with the crew while Archbishop Riordan of San Francisco read the burial service and five members of the Milan Grand Opera Company, who are on their way to Mexico, sang the requiem.

After the services the archbishop took up a collection for Giordano's wife and four children, who live in Naples.

OBJECT TO SCHOOL

Comanche County Citizens Would Prevent Use of Fund at Lawton

LAWTON, O. T., Nov. 18.—A fight is on in Comanche county in which citizens of different portions of the county are seeking to prevent Lawton from petitioning congress to set aside $50,000 of the lot sale fund for the construction of a county high school building in this city. The burden of the argument appears to be that Lawton has had more than her share of the money already and that the school would not be centrally located if built here.

ARM GROUND OFF

Sausage Mill Cuts Man's Limb Into Small Strips

WACO, Texas, Nov. 18.—A horrible accident happened Thursday evening at the Brazos Packing Company plant. Val Salfanski had been working the sausage mill and thought it had stopped, but the wheels were in motion when he began to clean the machine. He was drawn in by a piece of rag held in his hand and his arm to the elbow was literally crushed and cut to pieces. It was taken off at once. He is now in the hospital, and the shock to his nervous system was so great that he will have to remain there some time.

LANDS FOR LEASING

Lawton Office Troubled by Misunderstanding as to Pastures

LAWTON, Nov. 18.—The register and receiver of the Lawton land office is receiving a large number of letters from various parts of the country written by people who are under the impression that the pasture lands of this county are to be opened for settlement rather than leased. Inasmuch as all these letters cannot be answered, it is quite probable that a large number of people will come here in December expecting the privilege of registering and filing on the lands.

Weak Kidneys

It is of but little use to try to doctor the kidneys themselves. Such treatment is wrong. For the kidneys are not usually to blame for their weakness or irregularities. They are operated and actuated by a tiny shred of a nerve which is largely responsible for their condition. If the kidney nerve is strong and healthy, the kidneys are strong and healthy. If the kidney nerve goes wrong, you know it by the inevitable result—kidney trouble.

INTERURBAN BUILDING

New Line Will Run From Sulphur to Davis, I. T. D. T. Finney, who owns a large ranch in the west part of the county, and who is also a prominent contractor, arrived Saturday from Indian Territory, where he is engaged in building an interurban line between Sulphur and Davis, a distance of about twelve miles. Grading on this line is now well under way. Mr. Finney said that it is the intention of the company building the road to have it completed and in operation by March 1 next. Dallas and Kansas City capitalists are back of the interurban project. "There is considerable activity in railroad construction in the territory," says Mr. Finney. "The Santa Fe is about to build an extension from Sulphur via Davis to Wichita Falls. The survey between Davis and Sulphur is now being run and from what is understood at Sulphur the Santa Fe intends to push the extension to an early completion. The distance from Sulphur to Wichita Falls, Texas, is about 100 miles. The line will run through an excellent part of the territory and would have first-class connections at Wichita Falls with the Denver road and the Wichita Valley line. Colonel Morgan Jones' road, which is now being extended southwest. Such an extension will give the Santa Fe considerable traffic that it does not now get, as it would penetrate a portion of country that does not have railroad facilities."

RULERS OF THE WORLD

Meat Eating Nations Are the Leaders in Every Branch of Human Achievements. The ruling nations of the world are meat eaters and history records that they always have been. Vegetarians and food cranks may explain this in any way they choose, but the facts remain that the Americans, English, French, Russians and Germans are meat-eating nations, and they are also the most energetic and most progressive. The principal food of the heroic soldier, known as Bilson, is a sort of dried beef, affording a great deal of nourishment in a highly concentrated form. The weak races of people are the rice-eating Chinese, Hindus and Siamese, regarded since the dawn of history as non-progressive, superstitious and inferior physically and mentally to the meat-eating nations, who dominate them. The structure of the teeth plainly indicates that human beings should subsist upon a variety of food, meat, fruit and grains, and it is unhygienic to confine one's diet to any one of those classes to the exclusion of another. Meat is the most concentrated and most easily digested of foods, but our manner of living is often so unvaried that the digestive organs refuse to properly digest meat, eggs and similar nutritious and wholesome food, but it is not because such food is unwholesome, but the real reason is that the stomach lacks, from disease or weakness, some necessary digestive element; hence arising indigestion and, later on, chronic dyspepsia. Nervous people should eat a variety of meat, crustaceans should make meat the principal food, hard-working people have to do so, and brain-workers and office men should eat, not so much meat, but at least once a day, and to insure its perfect digestion, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets should be taken after each meal, because they supply the pepsines, diastase and fruit acids, lacking in every case of stomach trouble. Nervous dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, gastritis, sour stomach, gas and acidity are very different names for indigestion, the failure to digest wholesome food, and the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cures them all because, by affording perfect digestion, the stomach has a chance to rest and recover its natural tone and vigor. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the real household medicine; it is as safe and pleasant for the stomach as the baby as it is for the imperious digestion of its grand sire. They are not a cathartic, but a digestive, and not a pill habit can ever follow their use; the only habit Stuart's Tablets induce is the habit of good digestion and consequently good health.

W. J. Bailey Asks Specific Performance of Contract. Regular meeting of city council will take place tomorrow night. Among the petitions which have already arrived at the office of the city secretary is one from W. J. CITY ESCAPES AN EPIDEMIC

Fort Worth has just escaped from an epidemic of diphtheria, according to City Physician Barber. During the months of September, October and November there have been 106 cases of diphtheria reported in this city and of these six have been fatal. It is only due to the strict measures taken by the health authorities that a general epidemic, from which the city is now practically free, has been avoided. In the face of the large number of cases that were reported the fact that only six deaths have occurred is considered a remarkable showing and is accounted for by the strict quarantine measures adopted and the use of antitoxin. All doctors in the city are supplied with postal cards which they are required, under penalty of $100, to return to the city health officer immediately following the first visit to a patient suffering from a contagious or infectious disease. This card must give the disease, date of inception, name, age and address of the patient. As soon as this card is received a strict quarantine is declared and a large card with the words "Contagious Disease" printed in red is immediately sent out to be tacked on the house where the patient is. If a pupil of the public schools is taken ill, the room where he or she attended is fumigated thoroughly. The desks and the floor are washed thoroughly with strong antiseptics and in case of several cases in the same school about the same time the entire school is fumigated in the manner.

THE CREAM OF 5 GREAT JOBBER HOUSES SLAUGHTER SALE COMES TO YOU

THE RESULT OF 5 GREAT ST. LOUIS JOBBERS

MEMBERS of the Retail Merchants' association who pay your railroad fare when you shop in Fort Worth. Write or see us for particulars.

UNLOADING SALE COMES TO OUR PATRONS

WE send you samples if you can't come to the store. Pay express charges and guarantee you'll do just as well as if you shopped over the counter.

LAST WEEK, in the city of St. Louis, occurred the most gigantic unloading of merchandise by five of the greatest jobbing houses, that was ever witnessed in the annals of the jobbing trade. Our buyer, as usual, was on the spot, bright and early, and secured the cream of bargains for the Burton-Peel stores. These astounding bargains will be distributed this week. They stand as incontestable evidence of thrift and commercial supremacy. They counteract the strongest emergencies that ever lurked in the path of progressive merchandising, and the potency of their power propels the trading industry. LOWEST PRICES MAKE THE MARKET

THE ST. LOUIS JOBBERS' SALE tells the story of lowest prices in the language of figures. "Too much stock" is the wail of all jobbers in the United States, who bought with a lavish hand, in contemplation of a big season. The five great St. Louis jobbers are among the number who suffered from overstock. But, unlike others, who tenaciously hold to stiff profits, they conceived this great sale and clipped their per cent of gain from their original cost, and charged the loss to the weather man's failure to provide more favorable conditions.

THE SECOND CHAPTER to this great sale will be in the Suit Room, and we can easily say it will be a sale of a character so phenomenal, so extraordinary, that nothing in the past can begin to equal it. Our buyer was fortunate enough to secure several very prominent New York makers' sample lines of Ladies' Suits, Misses' and Children's Suits, Skirts, Waists, Coats and Furs. The purchase totals up thousands of garments, embracing the season's best styles. Besides these special purchases we shall add many lines from regular stock, including the handsome, rich, imported gowns. The saving to you of a half and a third of regular price is assured.

Burton-Peel Dry Goods Co.

If goods were always distributed at such prices, then would dire calamity befall the United States. It is otherwise—profits to the jobbers and factories average well enough; it's only during a temporary congestion as now, when warm weather creates a glut of cold weather goods—that profits are temporarily thrown to the winds, to be gathered in by you and you and you. Let a few frosts create a demand for warm goods, and see how jobbers and factory owners will make good their present loss of profits. This Burton-Peel sale comes with abnormal conditions—it goes with the return of the normal.

COTTON TARIFF CALLED UNFAIR

W. D. Williams Says Texas Roads' Tariffs Discriminate Against Staple

GEORGIA MAN CITED Testimony of Atlanta Company President Used for Comparison

That the cotton raisers of Texas and dealers in the staple throughout the state are being discriminated against by excessive freight tariffs is the charge made by W. D. Williams of Fort Worth, representative of Tarrant county and now a candidate for state railroad commissioner.

Mr. Williams' charge is made in an open letter to The Telegram, answering an article by Chairman Storey of the state railroad commission, and based on a comparison between the prevailing freight rates on cotton in Texas and in Georgia.

In his letter the Tarrant county representative declares, basing his statement on the reported testimony of C. C. Hanson of Atlanta, Ga., that rates on cotton in Georgia are not only lower than those prevailing in Texas, but that in addition Georgia railroads in the majority of cases include compress charges in their tariff.

This difference, says Mr. Williams, shows unusual discrimination against those connected with the Texas cotton industry. He declares that freight charges on Texas cotton, which constituted 1.9 per cent of the total freight hauled by Texas railroads during the year ending June 30, 1904, paid 10.1 per cent of the total freight receipts of the railroads for that year.

Mr. Williams' letter in full is as follows:

To The Telegram. "There appeared in the Houston Post of the 7th inst. an article by the chairman of the state railroad commission, part of which is devoted to a comparison of Texas and Georgia cotton rates. There are certain inaccuracies, doubtless inadvertent, in some of the statements made in this article, and since it was reproduced in the Dallas News of the 12th inst. and stands to the present time uncorrected, it is certainly worth pointing out to call attention to the errors.

"In comparing the 100-mile rate in the one state with the rate for the same distance in the other, the author of the article omits to state that in Georgia, including compress charges, and sets the same against the Texas rate with compress charges excluded, and by this process shows the tariff in this state to be the lower of the two. The same error has been made in the comparison which he makes of the rate to Galveston from an interior point 165 miles north of Houston, and is especially noticeable in that portion of the comparison where our rate is contrasted with the Georgia rate over two connecting lines of road.

"In the same article the writer says: 'In Georgia the compress charges are paid by the shipper in addition to the freight.' C. C. Hanson's Testimony

"During the cotton rate hearing at Austin last spring the Dallas News, in its issue of March 24, 1905, published a report of the evidence given by C. C. Hanson of Atlanta, Ga., showing the compress charges in this state and by whom they were paid. Mr. Hanson was then the president of the Atlanta Company, which was operating some twenty compresses, and was also president of the Gulf Compress Company, which was operating a dozen more. He had formerly been a traffic officer for the Central railroad of Georgia and had had exceptional opportunities to know the situation in his state.

"Contrary to the statement of the chairman of the railroad commission, which has just been quoted, Mr. Hanson testified

"I received hundreds of letters like the following: 'I have been feeling so good I could hardly believe it, after suffering with piles for a year, to find that I am once more feeling like myself. I wish you could have seen me before I commenced using Pyramid Pile Cure and look at me now, and you would say I am not the same man. I have gained twenty pounds, and all on account of Pyramid Pile Cure.' Walter Sharkey, 56 Park street, Springfield, Mass.

that the railroads pay for the compression as a rule, though the law does not require it. And again he says that 'At the interior points the carriers pay for 95 per cent of the compression.'

"If this testimony was true, and I have not seen it contradicted, the chairman is in error in adding the supposed Georgia compress charges to the Georgia railroad tariff on cotton, and claiming that the shipper pays the total of both.

"If we calculate the cost of transportation alone, that being what the railroads actually receive for their services, and omit the compress charges, treating both states alike in this respect, then the cost of hauling a single 500-pound bale of cotton, the Texas bale destined to Houston, over one line only for 165 miles is 25 cents less in Georgia than in this state. Under the same conditions for a haul of 165 miles the difference is 40 cents per bale in favor of the Georgia shipper, and for 210 miles the difference is 15 cents against Texas.

"If the Texas cotton were destined to Galveston, the difference, calculated upon what the shipper pays for transportation alone, would be 55 cents a bale in favor of Georgia, on a single line haul of 160 miles, and for a haul of 210 miles the difference is 85 cents a bale against Texas. On a 210-mile haul, the Texas shipper would pay only 45 cents per bale more than the Georgia shipper.

Compress Charges Deducted "If the Hanson evidence is true, the Georgia roads not only haul the cotton for their tariff rates, but they also and without additional cost to the shipper, pay for compressing 95 per cent of all cotton from interior points. Therefore, the difference against Texas rates is greater on each bale by the amount charged for compressing the same. This amount is stated by the chairman of our railroad commission at 48 cents per bale, but Mr. Hanson testified that Georgia cotton destined for southeastern cotton mills was compressed at 25 cents, while 27 1/2 cents per bale was charged for that which was intended for the New England mills or for export. Evidently, in comparing the rates of the two states it is an error of some magnitude to add all the compress charges at 48 cents per bale in Georgia to the cost of transportation to the shipper.

"In this connection it will not be out of the way to throw some light upon the Texas cotton rate situation by the use of certain facts which are given in the report of the railroad commission for 1904, that being the last report which has been printed and opened to the public by distribution. From that report that for the year ending June 30, 1904, the average length of haul of freight upon the roads of this state was 155 miles, while the average charge made to the shipper for the transportation of freight was 9.47 cents per ton per mile, or $1,189 for hauling one ton for the average distance of 155 miles. Under the reduced cotton tariff now in force the charge for hauling one ton of cotton for the same distance is $2.90, which is at the rate of 4.57 cents per ton per mile, or more than five times the average charge made on all freight.

"The total gross receipts of Texas railroads for both freight and passenger business for that year amounted to $85,169,124.25, which produced an admitted net income of $12,211,863.25, and since both gross and net receipts were realized on the average charge of 9.47 cents per ton per mile, it is plain to the plainest of common sense that the average charge was itself remunerative and yielded a profit of about 20 per cent of the amount charged, or of about 25 per cent of the cost to the railroads of the transportation which they furnished. But, if the average charge was profitable, what then of a charge five times as great, made upon one of the principal commodities produced in Texas?

"The excess levied on cotton, over what it would have paid had the average charge alone been exacted, was 4.92 cents per ton per mile, which is equal to an excess of $612 on every ton hauled for the average distance of 155 miles. The total cotton tonnage of Texas roads for the year ending June 30, 1904, which includes the cotton season during the winter of 1903 and 1904, is stated in the commission report at 1,421,968 tons, but part of this probably came from Oklahoma and the Indian Territory, and another part is a duplication of tonnage hauled over two or more lines. The World Almanac gives the crop for that season at 2,415,000 bales, which would be equal to 2,415,000 tons. As the present tariff, which is lower than the one then in force, the Texas cotton crop of 1905 would have paid to the Texas railroads a total freight charge of $1,847,100.60 for transportation for the average distance of 155 miles.

"The total freight tonnage of that year is reported at 2,418,967 tons, of which the $1,847,100.60 of Texas cotton constituted 1.9 per cent, while it paid 10.1 per cent of the total freight charge, which was $18,747,665. This is plainly a disproportionate burden, and its continued imposition, year after year, must tend seriously to impoverish those who are thus discriminated against.

"For the year in question, the Texas cotton, at the rates now imposed, would have paid $1,647,400 for freight charges alone, excluding the cost of compression, while, if it had been carried at the average rate, which was itself profitable, it would have paid only $886,002.35. The excess by reason of the additional surcharge upon it was $761,397.65, which is part and only part of the tonnage actually paid by Texas farmers to the railroads. With the average rate itself yielding a fair profit, it is manifest that every cent

Buyers From Even the Far West Attend Big Five's Gigantic Sale

Retailers From Texas, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, Nebraska, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana and Washington Come to St. Louis to Purchase Their Stocks—Officers of Wholesale Houses Declare Clearance Greatest Sale in History of the Trade—Large Orders Placed.

Clipping from St. Louis Republic, Nov. 14, 1905. It is estimated that at least 1,000 merchants arrived yesterday. The officers of the five big stores are enthusiastic and attribute it all to advertising. One man said that the results of the advertising have been so splendid that similar sales are being considered. Wholesale merchants say the best part of the sale is that all the orders are liberal, and that many of the buyers are new to St. Louis trade, which the wholesalers consider most gratifying, for it means, they say, that St. Louis is growing as a distributing center. States as far west as Washington were represented and from Mississippi came a large number of retailers. The buyers were not from the smaller towns and country districts only, but many of the larger cities of the west and middle west were represented.

Clipping from St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Nov. 14, 1905. The greatest clearance sale in the history of St. Louis opened yesterday and will continue through the week. It is estimated that over 2,000 merchants and buyers will visit the city during the bargain days. Over 400 made purchases yesterday, and more than 200 names were placed on the registers of the Interstate Merchants' Association. The special trains from Mobile, New Orleans and other southern points reached St. Louis early yesterday, and before 7 o'clock Washington avenue was alive with prospective buyers. When the early men reached the wholesale houses they found crowds awaiting them. As soon as the doors were opened the rush began. It con-

A conservative estimate, averaged from the figures of the "Big Five" places the anticipated sales for the week at $1,500,000.

YALE WINS FROM PRINCETON EASILY

Idog Speed and Skill Too Much for Tigers

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 18.—The battle between the Tiger and the Bulldog was one of strength such as is only with speed on the gridiron where these two sportsmen romp, but the Bulldog was endowed with the ability to go faster as the Tiger weakened. That was a display of speed on both sides which increased for Yale as the dark blue warriors rolled the score higher and higher till the count was 23. Princeton's only figures were earned by brilliant presence of mind of their substitute quarterback, who in spite of the prospect of a very hard tackle by the big Yale ends, kept his wits about him. It was on a punt by Boone, just five minutes before the end of the game, that Tenny caught, neither Shevlin nor H. Jones being near enough to interfere.

The oval was then turned over to Tooker, who chose to drop-kick for the goal. He stood on Yale's forty-five yard line, took two steps and struck the ball with the proper accuracy to send it squarely between the goal posts into the hands of Hutchinson about five yards behind the post.

It was a surprise to the Tiger supporters when Yale started the game with a merry rush that never weakened. Down the field the orange and black was relentlessly driven after a slight resistance which was speedily broken up until Forbes was shoved over the line. Nearly every inch of the gains made was accomplished by heavy line plugging that simply could not be stopped. Then came the chance for the Tigers after a slight resistance which was speedily broken up until Forbes was shoved over the line. Fultz still has his jaw in bandages and a plaster cast in his mouth. Charlie Dexter, late manager of the Des Moines team in the Western League, is head of the Britt-Nelson fight club and is said to be an expert in securing publicity for them. "Pop" Schriver has been re-engaged as manager of the Wheeling club in the Central League. Jimmy Walsh of Boston, who recently defeated Ediger Stanley, the English lantern-lighter, has decided to go to England to take on Owen Moon, the English boxer, for the prize offered by the National Sporting Club of London. Hilt, the left-hand pitcher scouted by the New York Americans from the San Francisco club, is said to possess absolute control. He is big and strong, with many curves in his repertoire. His western address are confident he will make good in major company. "Columbia is right in deeming that Columbia's team would tough luck in the recent game with Yale," says a New York sporting writer. Probably this wise writer can explain how it was that none of Columbia's men were injured in the game, while half a dozen Yale players were so badly injured they were on the hospital list after the game. STANDS FALL AT ANN ARBOR

Spectators Injured at Michigan-Wisconsin Game

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 18.—Michigan won from Wisconsin today. The score was 12 to 6. The grand stand fell during the game, and 2,000 persons were thrown to the ground, without a single fatality, although many were injured. In fifteen seconds the members of the Michigan and Wisconsin teams tore the fence down and a crowd rushed in to help the injured. The stand went down so gradually that hundreds on the lower seats had time to throw themselves clear of the wreck. After the excitement had subsided and the people from the fallen stand had been given places close to the side lines, the game was resumed. There was no doubt about Michigan's superiority at any time. The Wolverines stepped more ground. They gained it faster and with a more varied lot of plays. The Wisconsin defense was at times nearly incapable of stopping Michigan's advance and only a number of costly fumbles prevented the score from being larger.

SIX WELL-KNOWN PRINCETON PLAYERS

TWENTY TO ONE WINS

Jack McKeon Wins Selling Race at Benning

BENNING, D. C., Nov. 18.—The fourth Bladenburg steeple chase of two miles, went to C. H. Buckamp's Expansionist, the 3 to 1 outside choice. He beat Woolgatherer, who opened at 5 to 5, favorite, in a desperate drive by three lengths. Dick Roberts, 12 to 5, heavily backed, fell early. The first two hooked up at the head of the stretch and fought it out to the end. The race occasioned no end of ugly gossip. It appears the inside steeple-chase set bet on Woolgatherer at the last moment. Heley rode Expansionist, Gallagher on Woolgatherer and Ray on Hogan did everything possible to kill Heley's chance. He and Expansionist held out a dozen times, but finally got clear and won amid applause. This time the inside favorites fell down badly. In the opening selling race, seven furlongs, Cannon Ball, the 3 to 1 favorite, was never a contender, finishing away back. Jack McKeon, a 20 to 1 shot, won in a romp. Starter Cassidy sent Riskey away flying in the second race. Riskey won in a romp by virtue of his lucky break. Nellie Marie, at 7 to 1, was second, just a good neck in front of Ediet, 19 (Hedge), 20 to 1, third. Time, 1:23.1-5. Second race—Five furlongs: Riskey, 106 (O'Neill), 9 to 5, won; Nellie, 106 (Hedge), 7 to 1, second; Ediet, 19 (Hedge), 20 to 1, third. Time, 1:14.4-5. Third race—Steeplechase, handicap, two and one-half miles: Expansionist, 149 (Heley), 3 to 1, won; Woolgatherer, 106 (Gallagher), 7 to 5, second; Tom Hogan, 149 (Ray), 3 to 1, third. Time, 5:05. Fourth race—Seven furlongs: Flip Flap, 114 (Shaw), 13 to 1, won; Disobedient, 107 (Vanderbilt), 8 to 1, second; Monterey, 119 (O'Neill), 20 to 1, third. Time, 1:27. Fifth race—Mile and forty yards: Race King, 107 (Miller), 7 to 5, won; Merry England, 107 (Romarelli), 5 to 1, second; St. Valentine, 107 (Dickson), 11 to 5, third. Time, 1:42.2-5. Sixth race—Handicap, mile and sixteenth: Louis H. 97 (Miller), 3 1/2 to 1, won; Peter Paul, 104 (Christy), 9 to 5, second; Sadler Boy, 91 (Springer), 9 to 1, third. Time, 1:49.

SHOT THROUGH WINDOW

Woman Killed Instantly By Bullet From Window

FREEMONT, Ill., Nov. 18.—Receiving a bullet while looking out of a window at her home in Freemont shortly after 10 o'clock last night, Mrs. Hiram G. Anderson was killed instantly. Her husband was hit a few feet away from her in the same room. He had just come upstairs from his room underneath. In an adjoining room four children lay asleep, the oldest 11, the youngest 2 1/2 years. In a distant part of the city, a mother, weighed down with years and prostrated at the loss of a daughter, is going out for vengeance. The murder, one of the most heinous in the history of Ogle county, has created wide indignation and this morning men gathered in knots, loudly denouncing that the perpetrators of the crime be summarily punished. Five men were held to await the verdict of the coroner's jury, which adjourned Tuesday morning when it is expected definite action will be taken. All of the men were taken to the county jail at Oregon by Sheriff Shiffert. They are Louis Swank, an ice dealer, and son of Supervisor Jack Swank, who is a deputy factory inspector of the state; William Balsbaugh, a butcher; Emos Bolcheider, saloonkeeper; Herman Anderson, a neighbor of the man whose wife was murdered; Chas. Hiteman, a bartender. Swank and Anderson were in the saloon early in the evening when the former had a dispute with the proprietor of the place. Swank was thrown out. Afterwards he came back with Balsbaugh and after he had made threatening remarks to the saloonkeeper, all went out into the street. The man inside receiving a bullet in the chest. He went upstairs and while he was removing his shoes and his wife was looking out the window a shot was heard. It struck the panel of the door of the saloon. Then Anderson saw the flash of fire coming from an opening in a high board fence between the buildings across the street and in a instant afterwards his wife fell dead in his arms.

HARVARD TIED BY DARTMOUTH

Crimson Played to Standstill on Soldiers' Field

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18.—Fighting feverishly over every inch of ground, Harvard and Dartmouth played a tie game on Soldiers' Field today in the presence of 22,000 people, 9 to 6 being the final score. The Dartmouth team proved a tartar to Harvard, the attack of the green backs wounding the crimson defense by a score of 12 to 6. It was a battle between teams of almost equal weight and strength during the first half, with each side forced to punt until Collins failed in his second attempt to drop-kick a goal, most of the playing was in Cornell's territory. Then the tables were turned and Cornell carried the ball back over yard after yard until she made a touchdown. Until Columbia tied the score it was the same in the second half, but after that Cornell's line gave way and it was easy sailing for the visitors until they won the day. It was the first goal line stand that Harvard has made this year, and it brought joy to the hearts of the Harvard rector. Both teams had their touchdowns in the first half, Dartmouth after she had rushed the ball straight through the crimson line for sixty yards and Harvard after the tandem had swept Dartmouth back for forty-five yards.

HARPER IS RECOVERING

Varsity Professor Alleges Contrary Reports in Error

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 18.—J. H. Boyd, formerly professor of higher mathematics at the Chicago University, received information today that President Harper of Chicago is making considerable progress toward recovery. He says the newspaper statements are quite in error in stating that he is not doing well.

W. M. Rea, former chief of the police department, has assumed new duties. He has been appointed assistant claim agent for the Northern Texas Traction Company and will investigate claims against the company. The assignment of all those will be largely with alleged personal injury cases. Chief Rea's wide acquaintance in Fort Worth is expected to be of special value in his new position.

NECK AND NECK FINISH

Lady Goodrich Wins Exciting Race By a Nose

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 18.—The Bladenburg Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth and the San Handicap for 2-year-olds were the drawing cards at Oakland today. The Hamburg resulted in a sensation race. San Nicholas, the first choice, led most of the way and in a furious drive to the wire to stall of Reservation, Davis on the favorite allowed Lady Goodrich to gain a couple of lengths by taking the rail. Lady Goodrich then poked her nose in front of Reservation under the wire. San Nicholas was a neck ahead of Reservation. Namzum was installed favorite in the San Handicap and won, St. Edward ran disappointingly. Four favorites won.

PRINCE HAS GOOD TIME

Meets Trick Elephant and Multi-Millionaires in One Day

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—I have enjoyed no most stupendous time of my life. I have been entertained with dinners, receptions and public functions and still survive, bemused and delighted at the cordial and genuine hospitality of my recent hosts. Admitted Prince Louis of Battenberg thus expressed his delight at the close of another crowded day, when he had had lunch with society, been photographed in company of a trick elephant and members of a hippodrome troupe, gaped with chorus girls, talked with fair box tamer, had another siege with his dentist, dined with multi-millionaires and had been smiled upon by Maxine Elliott at her performance of "For Great Justice." "An entente cordiale now exists between the United States and Great Britain which cannot be denied," continued Prince Louis. "I have observed it from the very beginning of my visit to your Young Corbett weighs 142 pounds, and the more he tries to reduce his weight the heavier he becomes. His fight with the heavyweight division for good. The rate at which he has been going back recently would indicate that he and the fighting game are getting ready to part company.

There is a strong probability that New York lovers of boxing will soon have a chance to see twenty-round bouts within easy traveling distance of the city. A club has been incorporated to pull off contests in Delaware county, Pa., out of the city limits of Philadelphia. Under the Pennsylvania law only six-round bouts can be fought in the cities, but twenty-round bouts are legal in the counties.

Coach Bell's strong belief against brutality and evasion of football rules has created a stir among the pigskin chasers. When such a high authority as Reid declares the intentional injuring of players and openly declares that playing rules are intentionally violated the effect is bound to be for the better. It means that definite, intelligent and decisive action must be taken by the sponsors for the game if it is to be preserved as a part of college life.

The protest against the present style of play is becoming too strong to be much longer ignored. Alie Latham should add to the gayety of the land where the sweet magnolia blooms. He is to play first base and manage the Jacksonville, Fla., team in the South Atlantic League. Latham has had a most successful season in the coaching line, but never an equal. During a game in St. Louis, when he was a member of Chris Von der Ahe's celebrated team, a steel chain slipped from its moorings in the grand stand, raising his arms, called upon the people not to be afraid. "What is it, Latham?" shouted a third fan. "It's nothing," replied Alie. "It's only Chris Von der Ahe in the dugout, counting his money." The quick safety was sprung with a roar of his hands, and the crowd settled back in their seats with all thoughts of danger driven from their minds.

Tom Loftis, who used to own the Columbia team, is of opinion that the baseball player is a man made. He says college education cannot give a ball player baseball sense, and that some of the thickest-headed individuals he ever saw had baseball sense that made them chieftains of the diamond. Experience only polished the baseball sense of the natural player—it exposes the weakness of the man looking in that needful commodity of the national game.

INDIANS WIN EASILY

Ninety-Yard Run for Touchdown a Feature of the Game

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 18.—The football team of the Carlisle School for Indians easily defeated the University of Cincinnati this afternoon by a score of 3 to 5. The game was played at the baseball park. The Indians won nearly all their points in the first half, the locals not being able to stop their headlong rushes and rapid-fire pass playing. A spectacular play was pulled off by Chase, the Indians' right halfback, who grabbed the ball on a fumble and tore away at an angle for ninety yards for the Cincinnati goal. Ninety yards distant, and made a touchdown. The same player kicked a goal from the forty-five yard line about ten seconds before the end of the first half.

Cincinnati played a stronger game in the second half and held the Indians better, limiting their points to touchdowns and goals. Near the end of the game the University of Cincinnati went wild when their heroes succeeded in crossing the red line for a touchdown. The try was a failure.

UNIVERSITY WINS

Second Team Defeats Business College

The University second team defeated the Draughton Business College eleven Salmira afternoon at the university campus by a score of 10 to 0, scoring one touchdown in each half. The feature of the game was an eighty-yard run made by Hobbs in the second half for a touchdown.

The university kicked off and held the business college for downs immediately and scored the first touchdown shortly after time was called. Keller carrying the ball over the line. Moore missed the goal.

Dr. H. H. Moore, who was on the coaching line, ran to the front of the grand stand, raising his arms, called upon the people not to be afraid. "What is it, Latham?" shouted a third fan. "It's nothing," replied Alie. "It's only Chris Von der Ahe in the dugout, counting his money." The quick safety was sprung with a roar of his hands, and the crowd settled back in their seats with all thoughts of danger driven from their minds.

TEDDY JR. GROGGY

President's Son Leaving Gridiron Drops From Exhaustion

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18.—In the annual Yale-Harvard freshman football game played on Soldiers' Field this afternoon, the Yale youngsters crushed their crimson opponents by the score of 16 to 0. Fighting valiantly with his red-shirted teammates to stem off the defeat that was being administered to them by a team faster, heavier and better trained than they, the son of the President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt Jr., after he had stood a terrific battering for three-quarters of an hour, reeled off the field, so groggy that he had to be led by his teammates and sank to the ground from pure exhaustion.

REAL ESTATE REVIEW

Deeds Recorded for Week Reach $114,000—Big Deals the Rule

The last week has been a quiet one in real estate circles of this city. There has very little going on in the market of sales that have been closed, although negotiations for several big deals are now being made and may be finished up within a very short time. The week closed during the week are about the average in total amount paid for all the land deeded, but there are no big transfers recorded. The total amount of cash paid on deeds filed this week was $114,000. The total for that week before the total amounted to considerable more, due to the fact that the deed for the Ellis' new lot was filed and also a deed for $22,000. The total for that week was $112,000. The total amount for transfers for the month to date is $121,000.

A WEEK WITH COUSIN HELEN. And the Lovely Little Creature Introduced as Miss Ray BY KATE BERRY.

Just about a year ago, perhaps a little more, I went to spend a week with Cousin Helen in the quiet but by no means dull country town in which she resided.

Helen told me that Fanny Ray was almost 21; that she was engaged to be married, and that she had never before been engaged, although she had had a great many offers.

The very day of my arrival Fanny's hero appeared at dinner, and a fine, manly looking fellow he was. Through the writer that followed I heard no tidings of Fanny Ray. Helen had been absent on a protracted visit with relatives, and our correspondence was irregular and interrupted.

"Do tell me about Fanny's marriage, where she lives and all. I suppose she and Hill are nicely settled and happy as can be."

BEFORE THE PILGRIMS CAME THE JEWS, SEEKING LIBERTY

BY OSCAR S. STRAUSS. Former Minister to Turkey and Member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague. The settlement of the Jews on the American continent antedates by fully a century the settlement of Jamestown and the coming of the Pilgrims. The world's history is linked together far closer than appears upon the surface. When the cross supplanted the crescent on the glittering cupolas of Granada, the same month that their Catholic majesties issued from the Alhambra the decree for the expulsion of the Jews from Spain, they commissioned Columbus on his first voyage of discovery. The treasurer general of Aragon, Luis Santangel, whose uncle was burned at the stake and whom the historian styled the Beaconfield of his time, was the patron of Columbus, and it was he who interceded for him with the queen, and when she protested that her treasury was empty, he said he would supply the money. That he did so is proven by his account books, which are still preserved at Seville. It is known beyond doubt that there were at least five Jews with Columbus, the interpreter, the doctor and the surgeon of the fleet, besides two sailors. Emilio Castellar, the statesman of modern Spain, and her president during the 100 days of her republican regime, as well as the historian Kayserling, certify that the closing chapter of the professors of Judaism on the Iberian peninsula was the beginning of their history upon the American continent. In 1504 Brazil was captured by the Portuguese from the Dutch. The acquisition was reaching out its arms across the Atlantic, and the fugitive Jews who had taken refuge in the Dutch colony of Brazil again took up their wanderer's staff. Of this number 23 landed in September of that year in New Amsterdam, which was under the administration of the Dutch West India Company, of which Peter Stuyvesant was the governor. It is the 250th anniversary of this event that will be celebrated by the Jews throughout the United States on Thanksgiving day. It is an undoubted fact that the Jews were not only among the first white settlers in large numbers on the American continent, but also that their first coming within the limits of the United States was only 34 years after the arrival of the Pilgrim fathers on the shores of New England. While their first coming was not of great significance in itself, the great events that impelled them was dyed in the blood of martyrs for soul liberty, and finds a fitting setting in the composite fabric of our continent's history and in the development of our civil and religious liberty. They participated in the war of the revolution and gave in proportion to their numbers more than their quota of officers, men and money to the patriot's cause. No less than 7,000 Jews, officers and men, participated in the civil war, and some 2,700 in the late war with Spain. While they have shared to the fullest extent the blessings of liberty under the stars and stripes, they have, not as Jews, but as Americans and lovers of their country, been ever ready to make all and every sacrifice that true patriotism demanded.

TO THE TELEGRAM

CARS ON CITY BELT

To the Editor of the Telegram. Some time ago a report was made by a committee of the Sixth Ward Club that Manager Mappleford of the Northern Texas Traction Company had agreed to run cars both ways on what is now the city belt, cutting the line in two at the corner of Magolia and Hemphill and making two lines of it. The report if I am not mistaken, said that the cars were to be in operation by the middle of this month, or Nov. 15 to be exact. I understand that the committee was continued but what I would like to know is whether the cars are to be run as they are now or changed according to that report? Nov. 15 has passed and the cars are still running clear around like they have been doing and the complaint of the citizens has not been answered. If the committee has made other arrangements with the Traction Company I think that it is time that the arrangements were published, as I for one have been expecting to see the cars running both ways before this. I have to admit that the Traction Company has since that time improved the line to the extent of putting more cars on, although I do not believe that the service has been improved very much as the cars are running around the loop in pairs with the result that the first car is often packed and the second car a block behind will have empty seats all the way around. An example of how much good this kind of a system does was shown to me last night when I was in a hurry to get down town. As I do not live directly on the car line I cannot sit at my window and watch for the car but must walk a couple of blocks to get a car to town. Last night while I was walking the last block two cars went by, one after the other, the first full and the second half full, and I had to sit down on that corner and wait eight and a half minutes before another car came by to get me. Now what I want to know is that if the

TRACTION COMPANY DOES NOT INTEND TO CHANGE THE SYSTEM SO THAT CARS CAN BE RUN BOTH WAYS WHY A CHANGE CANNOT BE MADE SO THAT CARS WILL BE RUN AT EQUAL DISTANCES FROM EACH OTHER AND THUS GIVE EVERY ONE THE SAME SHOW FOR A CAR NO MATTER WHAT MOMENT HE HAPPENS TO GET TO THE STREET ON WHICH THE CAR IS RUNNING.

Hoping that this may be published, I remain, yours truly, CITY BELT.

The superintendent's weekly statement of average number enrolled, in attendance, absent, tardy and dismissed too early for week ending Nov. 17, is as follows:

Table with 5 columns: Buildings, Number of Teachers, Average Number Enrolled, Per Cent in Attendance, Per Cent Tardy. Rows 1-12 and Totals.

On account of continued sickness, the falling off this week from last amounted to 193 pupils. Yet the total is 385 pupils over the corresponding week last session. It is hoped that pupils will return soon, because the second quarter's work is now just beginning in earnest, and every pupil wishing to do his part of the work of his class should be on hand to do his or her duty. Besides, there are scores of new pupils waiting for seats, and unless the absentees return shortly their seats will be given to other pupils. It is hoped that the "dismissed too early" column may be entirely eliminated in the future. There is no good reason for pupils being dismissed, and parents are urged not to do this. The new Van Zandt school building was formally opened today, with a large number of visitors. The mayor and three members of the school board and 663 pupils of the school were present. Principals of all schools are requested to meet at the high school building Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. ALEXANDER HOGG, Superintendent.

"Well," demanded Mrs. Starvem, at the back door, "what do you want?" "Why," replied the tramp, "I seen you advertised 'table board' in this morning's paper." "Well?" "Well," I thought mebbe yer was givin' out some samples."—Philadelphia Press.

THANKSGIVING'S DATE PUZZLING

Five Thursdays in November Cause Tangle of Plans

Five Thursdays in the present month of November have caused a tangle in many Fort Worth Thanksgiving plans. Even the preachers are puzzled. One minister who visited The Telegram office Saturday said that he had to call up three faithful pastors before he got his dates straightened out. He had figured on celebrating Nov. 30.

Then he had occasion to look up the story of the celebration in an encyclopedic, which gravely stated that according to popular custom the fourth Thursday in November is usually set apart as the day for fasting, prayer and fasting. Back to the calendar he went. There in black letters "Nov. 23, Thursday," started boldly at him. It was the fourth Thursday down the line, too.

He began calling up brother ministers, until one told him he had fled away the President's proclamation setting apart the fifth Thursday in November, the 26th, as the proper day for celebrating this year, and his doubts were ended.

DARING BURGLARS ROB FRISCO DEPOT

Heave Stone Through Window and Then Crack Till

A stone thrown through the window of the Frisco branch ticket office in Railroad avenue, near the south end of the Jennings avenue viaduct, aided daring burglars in the successful robbery of the cash drawer of the office at 4 o'clock Saturday morning while several railroad employes were in the building. The robbers got $118.40. Night Clerk Charles Marvel was seated in the ticket office along when the stone came crashing through the window at his side. He at once ran upstairs where other employes of the Frisco were at work, to summon help. During the few moments he was absent, the burglars entered the office, opened the cash drawer and took out all the money. He immediately notified of the robbery and Chief Maddox, together with Detective Allen and G. E. Littlefair, local freight agent of the Frisco, began an investigation early Saturday morning.

By noon they had arrested several suspects, including a number of boys. One of these, according to the police, made a partial confession, revealing that the money stolen had been hidden in a barn was searched and the missing money was found. Later the police turned over to the county authorities Matt Ingram, aged about 18 years, and Hugo Moore.

LASSITER OUT IN MAYORALTY RACE

Formal Announcement Made by Candidate's Friends

Elsewhere in The Telegram this morning appears the announcement of the candidacy of Newton H. Lassiter as a candidate for mayor of Fort Worth, subject to the action of the democratic primaries Dec. 14. That Mr. Lassiter would like to run was forecast exclusively in The Telegram several days ago. Following is a short sketch of Mr. Lassiter's life. Newton H. Lassiter was born on the farm of his father, Henry Lassiter, in Henderson county, W. Va., in 1852. He lived there until thirteen years of age, when the family moved to Lexington, Tenn., where Mr. Lassiter lived until he came to this city in 1875. He was educated at a private school in Lexington, later attending Lebanon University, from the law department of which institution he was graduated. He was licensed to practice law in 1882, his first practice being in the circuit and chancery courts of Lexington.

During the first eighteen months of his residence in Fort Worth, Mr. Lassiter was in partnership with R. B. Ayres. For three years he was attorney for the Texas Loan Agency, which company he represented until his partnership with him in devolving his time altogether to his law practice. In 1887, he was appointed local attorney for the Cotton Belt railroad, for Tarrant county, holding that position until 1900 when he resigned. In December, 1889, he was appointed general attorney for the Fort Worth and Rio Grande railway, holding the position until about two years ago, when the road was purchased by the Frisco. In June, 1892, he was appointed attorney for the Rock Island at Fort Worth and has been connected with the legal department since that time. About two years ago he was made consulting attorney for the Frisco in Texas and as-

COFFEE DID IT Put a Man Out of the Race

Coffee serves some people in a most atrocious manner. "I was a veritable coffee fiend, until finally my stomach rebelled at the treatment and failed to work," writes a gentleman from New York. "I then became blind, staggering headaches with vertigo about a half hour after each time I ate, and I finally grew so weak and became so thin that my mother advised me to stop coffee and try Postum Food Coffee. "I did not like it at first, but after experimenting in making it, mother soon got it just right, and I then liked it better than coffee."

My mother noticed my ill-humors stopped and I lost the trembling effect on my nerves; Postum did not stimulate me but seemed to exhilarate. I gradually regained my wonted good health; my old appetite returned, and today I am well—dispassionate, cheerful and vertigo all gone, and Postum did it. "When I began its use, I had been troubled for two years with all kinds of stomach trouble. I became a veritable walking apothecary shop, but I have not taken a dose of medicine since I commenced using Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

stant general attorney for the Rock Island-Texas lines, which position he now holds. Besides his connection with railways mentioned, Mr. Lassiter has an extensive practice among the various business interests of the city. Mr. Lassiter married Miss Bettie Davis, daughter of the late W. H. Davis of this city, July 9, 1890. Mrs. Lassiter was born in Fort Worth. Mr. and Mrs. Lassiter have two children, daughters, 10 and 12 years of age. In 1892 Mr. Lassiter was elected Alderman from the Fourth ward, succeeding John T. Montgomery, who resigned to become city secretary. After filling the unexpired portion of Mr. Montgomery's term he was re-elected and served two years in the council. Mr. Lassiter's father is dead. His mother resides in Texas, dividing her time between the homes of the two sons, the other being R. L. Lassiter of Bassett, Bowie county, Texas.

$10,000 CHECK FOUND IN STREET

Reward of One Cigar Paid for Its Return to Owner

A brown cigar with two holes in it is filed away in the desk of a Fort Worth agency manager, who has offices in a Main street building, as a reminder that he once found a check for $10,000. The cigar is also proof that the story the agency manager tells is not a pipe dream. The punctures have nothing to do with the story. The agency manager was walking down Main street when he found the five-cent check on the sidewalk. The finder recognized the name of the owner and started for his office to restore the lost bit of paper. At the entrance to the building where the owner has his office, the owner and the finder met. "Have a cigar," said the owner, when he had received his lost property. "Thanks," said the finder. "But he hasn't lit it yet."

HARRIS SPEAKS IN SIXTH WARD

Reviews City Affairs in Campaign Speech

Judge W. D. Harris, who is a candidate for the democratic nomination for mayor, addressed a citizens' meeting of the Sixth ward at the fire hall, on the corner of Fulton and Peter Smith streets, Saturday night. There were over a hundred men present. The speech made by Judge Harris was along lines similar to those he has made at previous meetings in the city. New statements were made regarding the past management of the city, chiefly in regard to the sprinkling contract. He said the contract for sprinkling that was made in Feb. 22, 1900, and which expires on the same day next year, having been made for a period of six years. Judge Harris said that there would never be a contract such as the one made by the council at that time again put into operation during his period of office if elected mayor of this city. He also made the charge that a city official drawing a salary of $1,500 a year for his services received $250 for advertising and expenses, rendered one of the council's committees.

JIU JITSU FOR PARIS POLICE

Protective Art of Japs to Be Taught in France

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The police force is to be taught jiu jitsu. M. Lepine, prefect of police, has had his attention attracted to this method of defense by several public and private exhibitions which have taken place here recently and now he has decided that the entire force shall be schooled in the Japanese art of self-protection. M. Lepine himself is a small man and most of his detectives are of short stature, being chosen according to the theory that small people attract less attention than large people. Unfortunately, however, when it comes to hand-to-hand encounters with criminals the officers of the law generally come off second best.

COS. MUST PAY FRANCHISE TAX

Revenue Agent Warns Concerns to Comply With Law

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 18.—State Revenue Agent F. S. Bell is now devoting his attention to delinquent foreign and domestic corporations of the state which have forfeited their rights to do business in Texas by failure to pay their franchise tax. He has been furnished a list of these delinquent corporations which embraces forty-one foreign and 630 domestic concerns and, during his recent trip over the state, he has been calling on these corporations to ascertain what they intend to do, as the law provides that they cannot continue to do business under the same corporate name while they are delinquent. Judge Bell said that he succeeded in collecting the tax from a number of these concerns, as many of the heads declared that they had entirely overlooked the matter, that they had no intention of evading the law. Those that did not settle, he warned that they were liable to a heavy penalty if they continued to do business without having paid the tax.

Old Rumor That Trains Will Change Depot Is Revived

Rumors are again being circulated in Fort Worth that the Santa Fe railroad has made application for the use of the Texas and Pacific passenger station at Main and Front streets, as a depot from which its trains may arrive and depart. The rumor could not be verified by local Santa Fe representatives and representatives of the Texas and Pacific station management were unable to give any light as to its truth. The Telegram's Dallas representative asked L. S. Thorne, vice president and general manager of the Texas and Pacific railroad, Saturday night as to the truth of the story. Mr. Thorne has just returned from New York.

MAY MAKE BRICK HERE

Factory Club Sending Sample of Clay to Investors

Secretary N. B. Moore of the Home Industry and Factory Club is busily engaged in the work of collecting samples of clay from several sections of the county close to Fort Worth in order to submit them to brick companies, one in Ohio and the other in Tennessee. The two companies propose to move to this city if it is found possible to get suitable clay to make bricks here. The samples will be sent to the two companies this week, and will be in sufficient quantities to enable them to make a thorough test of each sample and to analyze the properties of the clay.

BREWERS MAKE CASES

Affidavits of Violations of Law at Dallas Collected DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 18.—The county attorney here has prepared a hundred affidavits following the work of the detectives employed by the Texas brewers during the Dallas fair. The affidavits are said to be made against alleged gamblers, against whom evidence is supposed to have been collected.

Thomas J. Keogh Who Will Appear in Vaudeville at Majestic Opening, Nov. 27

Thomas J. Keogh, who is well known in the south as a star on the legitimate stage, having appeared last in the well known production of the "Silver Slipper" will appear at the Majestic in a very clever and artistic production, "The Way He Won Her." Mr. Keogh and Miss Marie Ainsworth have been playing as top-bills on all of the eastern vaudeville stages. Work on the new Majestic theater in Jennings avenue, near Thirteenth street, is developing into a race against time in order to have the building ready for opening night. The management is confident the work will be completed as planned.

JAP LOAN TO BE OFFERED MONDAY

$250,000,000 of Paper to Be Floated This Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—An important foreign development was the statement that the Japanese $250,000,000 loan will be offered on Monday and with trading in the new issue at London at a goodly premium. The foreign market showed heaviness and at London Russian bonds made a small decline. The general London market was moderately active, but firm, and with gains in Americans. Arbitrage business here was moderate and mixed. The bank statement today showed that the clearing house institutions had made good the $2,428,800 deficit of last Saturday and now hold a surplus of $2,915,150. This is to say, they have this amount in excess of the 25 per cent reserve required by law. One sensational feature of the exhibit was the $27,204,200 loan reduction, which was the heaviest contraction reported since Oct. 14, 1905, when the banks showed a loan decrease of $25,456,600. On May 14, 1902, the banks reported a contraction almost as large—$22,900,000.

STEAMFITTERS LOSE

Committee Refuses to Talk—Resolutions to Come Up Monday

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 18.—Much time of the Federation of Labor convention was taken up today by the organization committee before which much evidence has been presented in the jurisdiction controversy of steam fitters and plumbers. The committee is expected to report Monday. The committee is bound to secrecy because of the important interest of the steam fitters, which fought for a charter, but it is said on good authority that a decision has been reached which recommends against the steam fitters. Delegates representing that organization have not given up hope, however, that they expect more evidence to arrive tomorrow to discuss the situation. The committee will be asked that they may present arguments. The committee refused to make public statements. John Fitzpatrick said they had been oath-bound not even to discuss the situation. Building trades delegates waited anxiously outside the committee room. Upon the decision depends several big threatened strikes in Chicago, Indianapolis, New York, St. Louis and other places. The grievance committee is expected to report Monday to report on grievances of engineers and firemen against brewery workers. The fight brings out again industrialism against trades autonomy.

CONTRACT SECURED

Burlington Recognizes Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers

Locomotive engineers here have been notified that after nearly twenty years of opposition, the management of the Burlington has recognized the brotherhood of locomotive engineers and signed the first schedule with the engineers since the great strike of 1883. Heretofore all schedules for the engineers have been promulgated over the signatures of the railroad's managers, the brotherhood having no option in the matter of acceptance nor anything to say about them. This is the first schedule to be signed by the officers and by the members of the general committee of the brotherhood, after a three weeks' conference between the committee and the railroad officers.

Lovely Copley Square

[By Franklin H. Westworth.]

Copley Square! Is there one among the hundreds of thousands of Western boys and girls who owe to the city of Boston anything in the way of a completion of their education whose heart does not beat quicker at the name?

Is there any one of us who have tramped the pavements of Europe and come home with a curious sort of indignation, who, after the mind fog is over, cannot come into Copley Square and receive a new inspiration? Surely, one must go far in Europe to find a square which breathes such harmony. It is as satisfying to the art sense as a single picture by a great master. No matter the direction from which one enters it, not a jarring note meets the harmony.

It is a singular thing, perhaps, that in these days of commercialism, when every worthy ideal seems in eclipse, it is not quite extinct, there should have been evolved at a point in a great modern city so satisfying an architectural harmony. How can a period which gives to New York so hideous a monstrosity as the "flat iron" give to its neighbor city Copley Square?

All architecture breathes unconsciously the spirit of the purpose by which it is created. The "flat iron" was built to rent; its purpose is to get the greatest number of dollars out of the least possible ground space. It is because in Copley Square no one of the buildings which character is touched by the commercial taint, that it carries one back to the days when men built as they loved and loved as they built. It is solely because these Copley Square buildings were all conceived for the service of some sort of ideal that it was possible for them to be built, as they were, without reference to one another and yet of them being created for a gainful purpose, Copley Square must have been irretrievably marred.

Coming up Boylston street from the Public Garden, the Boston Library, with its noble and majestic lines, looms into view on the west side of the square. It is like a great epic poem cut into enduring stone. It expresses the aspiration of a free people. It is not the gift of a "tainted money" baron, and one turns to it in infinite satisfaction from the endless "gits" of this man and that, and feels an expansion of the heart as he reads along its matchless facade the words: "Built by the People and Dedicated to the Advancement of Learning." This, shown throughout the country as the most important of all American libraries, and which is admitted to be the most beautiful library structure in the world, is the pioneer of free libraries supported by general taxation. The idea of the people building and maintaining their own libraries is but one of the many contributions that Massachusetts has made to the country.

The Boston Public Library was founded in 1822, and the idea was so attractive to the people that by 1830 the old building in Boylston street, opposite the Common, contained more than 300,000 volumes. It was strained to bursting, and the trustees were in constant dread of loss by fire owing to the character of the surrounding buildings. It was the state itself that came to the rescue. The commonwealth of Massachusetts presented the Dartmouth street site, facing down Copley Square, and the city added something to it by purchase. The liberality of the state is tactfully and beautifully acknowledged by the inscription along the Boylston street facade, which reads: "The Commonwealth Requires the Education of the People as the Safeguard of Order and Liberty." Although the site was given in 1830 the present building was not begun until 1835. It shows its long foreground, no brought forth in a hurry. The study of plans was long and thorough by men who were devoted to the idea, and the architects were at last selected, the New York firm of McKim, Mead & White. Charles F. McKim was the actual architect, designing the building from cellar to roof.

Probably no one ever rose to any kind of eminence, either in literature or in art, when some envious person was not ready to accuse of plagiarism. If we have no sort of originality ourselves, it is hard for us to refrain from picking flaws in the other fellow's. It is a limited and deplorable philosophy, however, that fails to see that we all inherit and use over and over again the same principles of art. One is no less the artist for recognizing the special excellences in the work of another and using those excellences, altered by his own individual creative touches. Every life in the past has contributed to the entire sum of life today, and there is no more commendable honesty in the frank recognition of the race-obligation than there is in any attempted refutation of it. Mr. Rudyard Kipling's clever response to the usual charge of plagiarism should stand for all time and shame out of countenance the carping critics of noble performances:

"When o'er some smote his bloom in 1776,
"Eh heard men sing on land and sea;
And what a thot's might require,
"E went and took—the same as me."
It has been intimated that the facade of the Boston Library is a copy of the Bibliotheque Ste. Genevieve, at Paris. That the buildings belong to the same type is unquestionable, and that the Paris building mentioned was studied for ideas and suggestions is true, but in their proportions and details—the essence of architecture—they are absolutely different. The library in Paris has 19 arches upon its front instead of 13, which fact alone would completely change the relative proportions of the two buildings, and skill in the art of the architect is to make the arches heads to those windows instead of square; has one entrance archway only, and no platform—in all of which points it differs from the Boston Library. But besides this it is absolutely different in individual character. The two buildings resemble each other because they are of a developed organized type, but so far as similarity is concerned one might as well say that all churches are alike because they are equipped with spires. The single detail of the main doorway shows the assertion of an American idea of space and expansion, however influenced by the older model. The Boston Library design originally followed the Paris example in that it had only one entrance door. This was considered a mistake, as inadequately indicating the public character of the building, and after much study the three equal arches were adopted. They contribute dignity and an impression of amplitude to the entrance which the one door does not produce.

So perfect are the proportions of the building one is loath to believe that its height from the sidewalk to the top of the cornice is 70 feet. The material used is granite, quarried at Milford, Mass.—grayish-white to the first glance of the eye, but more closely, especially in certain lights, densely tinged with a delicate pink.

The main facade, fronting Copley Square, is in two stories, the lower heavily and plainly built, the rusticated masonry, with its conspicuous joints, giving the impression of solidity and strength in contrast to the upper story, which is arched for its whole length with 13 magnificent window-arches. Above is a rich cornice, and above that a purple tiled roof, showing a beautiful dark-brown in the sunlight. A low granite seal runs the entire length of the facade. The whole building is raised upon a low granite platform, broad and generous, giving it a dignified elevation above the flatness of the square. In front of the platform low buffer posts of granite are scattered at intervals along the edge of the sidewalk. The tops of these posts are carved with low-relief eagles, the idea being taken from similar posts at the foot of the staircase of the Piazza di Spagna, in Rome.

The platform extends entirely round three facades of the building. Elsewhere three steps high, the platform rises six steps in front of the main entrance. At the two corners of this six-step flight are two large pedestals, now vacant, but for which Mr. Augustus St. Gaudens, the eminent New York sculptor, is at work upon two groups of bronze statuary. The design of these groups is not yet definitely settled, but it is probable that they will be disposed in the following manner: On one side a single male figure representing Labor, flanked by two female figures representing Power and Religion; on the other side a male figure representing Liberty, flanked by two female figures representing Art and Science. All the figures are to be seated and are to be of heroic size. For these groups Mr. St. Gaudens is to receive $50,000.

On either side of the door-arches are large branched candelabra, four in number, of greenish wrought iron, which carry clusters of lanterns or electric lamps. The keystones of the side arches are very richly carved, and on the keystone of the center arch is sculptured the helmeted head of the Roman Minerva, the work of St. Gaudens and Domingo Mora. Immediately above is the inscription, "Free to All."

The three window arches over the entrance are occupied, below the windows themselves, by the seals of the library, the city and the commonwealth, sculptured in pink Tennessee marble. These, also are by St. Gaudens. In the design of the first, two nude boys, holding the torches of learning, act as supporters to a shield which bears an open book and the dates in Roman numerals of the founding of the library and the incorporation of the board of trustees—1822-1878.

Above the shield is the motto, "Omnia Lux Civium." Below are two twisting dolphins, introduced to signify the maritime importance of Boston.

To the right is the seal of the city, with its conventional view of Boston facing the harbor—the symmetrical slopes of Beacon Hill crowned with the dome of the state house, the dome which Dr. Holmes called "the hub of the solar system." To the left is the seal of Massachusetts with its familiar Indian and motto.

The elaborate arcade of the front turns both corners and continues down the side streets, Boylston and Blagden, preserving the beautiful lines of the Dartmouth street elevation and making the building beautiful from every angle. Its position is by all odds the most commanding of the square, over which it seems to preside in dignity and grandeur.

Opposite, on the east side of the square, facing the library, is Trinity Church, the church of Phillips Brooks. It is the masterpiece of the late H. H. Richardson, the best known of American architects. Its noble proportions make it a fitting complement of the library, the square being large enough to exhibit both in freedom and amplitude.

The cornerstone of this edifice was laid by Phillips Brooks with appropriate ceremonies on May 20, 1875. On February 8, 1877, the building was ready for occupancy.

Copley Square is practically all "made land." It was originally little more than a salt marsh of the Back Bay. The enormous weight of Trinity Church, the tower of which alone weighs nearly 10,000,000 pounds, introduced a foundation problem of some significance. It was found by testing that a compact stratum was overlaid with a quantity of alluvium upon which a mass of gravel some 30 feet deep had been filled in. To provide ence perhaps of the domes of Venice and Constantinople—was here fully developed; so that in many cases the tower became, as it were, the church, and the composition took the outline of the pyramid; the apex, transepts, nave and chapels forming only the base to the obelisk of the tower. It is in this effect that has been secured in the architecture of Trinity; the great tower broods over the whole structure, giving it a repose, a dignity, and withal a harmony which well equips it to face the beautiful library across the square.

Turning to the south side of the square one sees the beautiful facade of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, wholly different in design and material from its sister buildings above described. This building at its inception was a daring innovation. Terra cotta was almost entirely unknown as building material in America when it was selected for use in the construction of the Museum. The supply was imported from England after investigation, as a material which was durable, ornamental and not costly. During the time of its construction, covering a period of four years, and for several years after, it attracted much attention and called out great diversity of comment. Americans were not accustomed to such strong contrasts in color, which were declared to be harmonious, but the exquisite gothic modeling of the building received warm commendation.

As the years have passed the colors have mellowed; ivy has crept to the second story, still softening the contrasts, and today there are but few who fail to find a great pleasure in looking at the building. Even on the dullest days its rich red coloring gives an atmosphere of warmth and life to the square that will hardly miscue in the day of its demolition. That it is to be demolished before another decade is almost certain. The for the support of the church required the driving of 4,500 piles, over 2,000 of which were placed under the pyramids which make the base of the piers. These pyramids of solid granite, are 35 feet square at the base, 7 feet at the top and 17 feet high. From them rise the four great piers so conspicuous in the edifice. The stone used in the building was especially quarried for the purpose, the contractors opening up quarries in Dedham and Longmeadow.

In plan the church as it stands is a Greek cross with a semicircular apse added to the eastern arm. Its style of architecture may be characterized as a free rendering of the French Romanesque, including particularly the school that flourished in the eleventh century in Central France—the ancient Aquitaine—which, secure politically on the one hand from the Normans, the church, and the other from the Moorish invasions, as well as architecturally emancipated from the influence of classical traditions and examples which still ruled the southern provinces, developed, in various forms, a system of architecture of its own, differing from the classical manner in that while it studied elegance it was also constructional and differing from the succeeding Gothic in that, although constructional, it could sacrifice something of mechanical dexterity for the sake of grandeur and repose.

Among the branches of the Romanesque of Central France nowhere were the peculiar characteristics of the style so strongly marked as in the peaceful, enlightened and isolated cities of Auvergne. The central tower—a reminiscence Museum trustees have purchased a new site upon the Fenway—the salt swamp now transformed into a beautiful pleasure-land—and at the expiration of the present lease, in 1911, the art treasures will be moved into a new building whose light cannot be shut off by apartment hotels, and where its only danger from fire will lie within its own precincts. What the syndicate will do with the land is not yet given out, but it is doubtful if its owners can find any use for it commensurate with its site value that will permit the retention of the present building.

On the fourth side of the square, in the northwest corner, rises the exquisite tower of the "new" Old South Church. There are few towers in Continental Europe, the home of tower building, which give one a more satisfying feeling of their lightness and aspiration. The architect of this masterpiece can testify that tower building is no mean task; for his own first attempt failed signally. Not only must a tower-design have all the elements of aspiration, but the material out of which it is constructed must subtly harmonize. A man may do his best, as this man did, and yet come out of the experiment suffering the humiliation of a consciousness that his work is hopelessly marred. "The Church of the Holy Arrow," the street gains called his first attempt.

The Copley Square tower, leaves little to be desired. It has delicacy, lightness and dignity, and the main structure of the church is large enough to give it satisfactory balance.

Into this beautiful church moved, at its completion, the society, which for many years worshipped in the famous "Old South" church, one of the historic Boston landmarks, and which was seasonally guarded by the lovers of the past. Few tourists neglect to pay their tribute to this historic old structure, now in the heart of the business section in Washington street. It has delicate, lightness and dignity, and the main structure of the church is large enough to give it satisfactory balance.

After the Boston massacre, an overflowing town meeting waited till night, while Samuel Adams went back and forth to the state house and the sanctuary as a soldier and with the regiments; and here Joseph Warren delivered for the second time an oration commemorative of this massacre, three months before he gave up his life at Bunker Hill. In this house, on November 29, 1773, a meeting of 5,000 citizens resolved that the taxed tea should not be landed, and on December 16, following, a meeting of 7,000 citizens resolved that the tea should be destroyed. Copley Square is practically all "made land." It was originally little more than a salt marsh of the Back Bay. The enormous weight of Trinity Church, the tower of which alone weighs nearly 10,000,000 pounds, introduced a foundation problem of some significance. It was found by testing that a compact stratum was overlaid with a quantity of alluvium upon which a mass of gravel some 30 feet deep had been filled in. To provide

But a few steps down Boylston street is the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and upon the street, extending to the west, Boylston and Huntington avenue, are the New England Conservatory of Music, and all the principal dramatic schools of Boston, which every year attract hosts of young men and women from all parts of the country. Every hour of the day handsome youths and pretty girls may be seen walking leisurely through Copley Square with books and papers under their arms, their faces shining with health and enthusiasm. To such as these this artistic thoroughfare will remain a lasting memory. Surely its beauties have crept into their consciousness in these pleasant days of their growing artistic and intellectual life. Copley Square has become a part of all their pleasantest impressions, the arena of countless interesting encounters and experiences. And, unconsciously these four beautiful buildings, devoted as they are to high ideals of life, each one absolute and alone in its architectural design and grandeur of the slightest resemblance to each other, teach a moral lesson. They indicate that no matter how variant the type, no matter what the scheme of development may be, all high achievement meets upon a common high level and synchronizes in a common harmony.

RESOLVED!! THAT I AM GOING ON THE STAGE IN A NEW MUSICAL COMEDY WITH FIFTY OTHER SWELL COMEDIANS. BUSTER BROWN.

AT GREENWALL'S FRIDAY AND SATURDAY NIGHTS AND SATURDAY MATINEE, NOV. 24 AND 25.

TIPS ON THE COMING SHOWS

- 'Hooligan in New York'—Farce comedy. 'Woodland'—Pretty, pleasing fantasy; big company. Music said to be charming. 'Sowing the Wind'—Brings Suzanne Santje, one of the strongest emotional actresses ever seen in the south. Good supporting company. 'Worth seeing.' 'Buster Brown'—Clever. Has made a hit wherever seen. Latest songs, sprightly choruses and abundance of fun.

Last week we had two George Ade comedies, perhaps the successful playwright's best to date, 'The County Chairman' was given by a company in many respects better than the original cast. More attention was paid to the dramatic possibilities of the story than in the first production and the result showed the effort justified. 'The College Widow' was given by practically the original New York company. Dramatic possibilities were largely sacrificed to funniness and nobody expressed regret. The big crowd which filled the opera house had an opportunity of seeing what Broadway tempo means, and apparently liked the speed and dash with which the comedy was given.

This week there will be an opportunity of seeing a powerful emotional actress, new to Fort Worth, Suzanne Santje, who has "made good" in New York and is touring the country with success. 'Woodland' is Pixley & Luder's fantasy. The fact that it is a Henry W. Savage production promises a big attendance. Comes also 'Buster Brown,' who has had all kinds of success in cities large and small. It ought to be a busy week for the ushers.

THE INTRODUCTION SCENE IN "SOWING THE WIND," THURSDAY MATINEE AND NIGHT, NOV. 23.

Henry W. Savage's elaborate production, 'Woodland,' by Pixley & Luder's, comes to Greenwall's opera house Wednesday night, Nov. 23. It is aptly termed a musical fantasy of the forest, all of the characters being members of the feathered tribe and all sweetly warbled. Even the jay, the owl, the rooster and the parrot sing in song. The comedy

"HOOLIGAN IN NEW YORK"

James L. McCabe who, if one-half the good things said about him may be believed, is a comedian of unusual ability, will make his first appearance in Greenwall's opera house Monday night, Nov. 20, at the head of a company producing 'Hooligan in New York.' Mr. Wheeler was for a number of years prominent in the farce comedies produced by the late Charles H. Holt. He was in the original cast of 'Milk White Flag,' 'A Black Sheep' and 'A Stranger in New York.' He was with Weber & Fields when their company included such famous artists as De Wolf Hopper, Willie Collier, Lillian Russell and Fay Templeton. Last season he created the role of Hooligan at the American theater, New York, where the play had a run of 115 nights. Mr. Wheeler is peculiarly adapted to the part, which requires not only an unctuous comedian, but an actor who has the training and ability to enact heroic roles as well. The fact that he has scored the greatest success of his career in 'Hooligan in New York' would indicate that the production is one worthy of attention.

"WOODLAND"

Henry W. Savage's elaborate production, 'Woodland,' by Pixley & Luder's, comes to Greenwall's opera house Wednesday night, Nov. 23. It is aptly termed a musical fantasy of the forest, all of the characters being members of the feathered tribe and all sweetly warbled. Even the jay, the owl, the rooster and the parrot sing in song. The comedy

SUZANNE SANTJE IN "SOWING THE WIND"

One feature of the company which will present Sydney Grundy's drama, 'Sowing the Wind,' under the management of Al S. Roth, at Greenwall's opera house Thursday matinee and night, Nov. 23, has received from the critics high endorsement without any hedging—the work of the star, Miss Suzanne Santje. It is said that she is an actress who knows her art and has conquered by it. She is young and exceptionally pretty, and has a voice which, with that individuality of intonation, which is really a mannerism, captivates her hearers by its bell-like clearness. She is modest withdrawn, and when she enters upon a scene as the central figure of the play, there is a naive betraying that for the instant the artist is lost in the woman. Rosamond, the heroine of 'Sowing the Wind,' is perfectly natural, an every day sort of atmosphere envelops her, and in fact it does every character in the play—a typical Grundy virtue. Sydney Grundy, as is well known, is a past master in the art of developing finely drawn characters for stage purposes, and the note he strikes adheres with human nature as every man and woman knows it. Naturalism is his trade mark, so to speak, and on this line he has written 'Sowing the Wind.' All of the scenes of the play are unusually well treated, and present many charms of novelty in their construction. The company organized by Manager Al S. Roth to support his star, Miss Suzanne Santje, is said to be an unusually capable one, and is headed by that sterling actor, Edward H. Mawson, and otherwise consists of the following players: John W. Thompson, Henry C. Mortimer, Carroll Daly, John F. Dillon, Richard Strong, Thomas Carmody, William Hendricks, Mildred McNeil, Antoinette Hart and Julia Miller. The play is in four acts, and will be staged adequately.

"BUSTER BROWN"

The original company of 'Buster Brown' comes to Greenwall's opera house Friday and Saturday night, with Saturday matinee, Nov. 24 and 25. The Houston Post said: "Resolved, 'That you should see Buster Brown before he leaves Houston.'"

Buster, himself, couldn't make a better resolution for you than that; and note that would do you as much good to carry out. Buster and his show is by far the best thing that has been to Houston along the musical comedy line this season.

Sparkling wit and impudent humor drop from the child's lip at random, and set the house in a roar that cannot be suppressed. Buster is funny, Tige is funny, the choruses are the best trained and most neatly drilled that have been to this city in many a day, the specialties and vaudeville turns which are introduced from time to time are simply the cream of all such productions. In all sincerity, there is probably no company coming to Houston this year that will even rival the little man's support in provoking sheer fun and wholesome laughter.

Buster Brown is here, and his dog, Tige, heralded far and wide through Houston and Texas through the funny pages of the Post each Sunday, and the little Tige you laugh at on the printed page, winks slyly at you from the boards at the Houston theater this afternoon and evening.

It is simply fun, fun, fun, from start to finish; it is fun slipping out of the way it is mouth of Buster. It is fun in the antics of the lugubrious Tige; it is fun in the well sung songs; it is fun in the dances and variety turns—for they have a little bit of team work in this show that can't be beat on the stage anywhere—it is fun from the rind to the core, and on through the rind again. If you can go to Buster Brown, his show, and keep from laughing at least twice a minute, you ought to pose as a model in a tombstone foundry.

Master Gabriel, 22 years old, weighing about thirty-five pounds, and measuring some twenty-seven inches in height, plays the part of Buster; George All is the dog, Tige, encased in a mud-colored cloth imitation of a dog's hide, and working seven strings for the movement of the eyes, ears and jaws of the marvelous old animal. Both of these men are adapted to their lines, and play the parts perfectly. Gabriel gets all the ingenuousness and artlessness of the child into his lines, and yet leaves you that distinct knowledge that Buster's a very wise little fellow when it comes to knowledge of human nature and the ways of the world. But go see him; that is the only way to learn about him. You cannot expect to understand the keen, live humor of the actor from reading about him in a newspaper. Gabriel is a Buster such as Outcasts must have dreamed of. He is a living, breathing boy that has simply stepped out of a drawing and into our hearts. His rolling eye, his cunning little tricks of the voice and gesture, his infectious laugh, catch on with the audience as soon as he makes his appearance.

All, as the dog, performs what would at first seem an impossibility; he injects humanity into a canine character. And, oh such a gloomy, doleful phiz he makes over the job! He almost weeps at the humorous moments; he turns his large, awful eyes upon you, and you chuckle in raptures of delight. He is the "Pudus Achates" of Buster in more ways than one, and the prime way of them all is—humor.

Burt Jordan and Rosa Crech did some excellent work; it is a shame to have to call such work vaudeville, and it is a credit to vaudeville to be able to claim such supremely clever work as these two entertainers put forth last night. Their place is in musical comedy of the highest class, and they were found there last night.

Miss Josephine Relis, leader of several of the choruses, and cast for the part of the governess of the irrepressible youngster, is a very sweet-voiced actress, whose simplicity of manner and naive heart is distinctly refreshing. Her "Sweetheart" was a delightful piece de resistance work, very tempting array of dainty songs and dances.

A BEAUTIFUL LOVE STORY Although 'The Clansman,' Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s, new and successful play, is one of the most tense and powerful ever presented on the American stage, the more sombre scenes are relieved by a charming love story. 'All the world loves a lover,' and a more interesting play than 'Elsie and Ben' would be hard to find. As a matter of fact, the terrible tragedy that hangs over them and which nearly engulfs all their fondest hopes, adds new beauty to their ultimate happiness. 'The Clansman' is truly the epic of the south, and it seems destined to live as long a life on the boards as any play of modern times.

There are so many songs in 'Babes in Toyland' that every taste is gratified. Among the brilliant musical numbers which Victor Herbert wrote for this most pretentious effort is the new world-famous 'Toyland March.' And these must not be forgotten. 'I Can't Do the Sum,' over which New York raved; 'Beatrice Boreas,' 'Don't Cry, Bo-Peep.' There are many others, however, which charm everyone who hears them. 'Babes in Toyland' will be the event of the dramatic season here.

The company comprises a long list of comedians and comedienne, the principal being Hilda Thomas, Lou Hall, John Mylle, Esther Wallace, Charles Parcor, Edna Glover, Raymond Belmont, Nat Wilson, Harry Thornton, Burt Eaton, William Fuller, the famous 'Troubadour Four' quartet, the Rainbow sisters and thirty pretty and bewitching singing and dancing girls.

Jane Kennark's representation of Donno Roma in Hall Calne's 'The Eternal City,' which will visit our local stage this season, is one of the most interesting features of the dramatic world. Some opposition arose in Catholic quarters when this play was first presented, as the Pope appears several times in its course, but this was won overcome in an special note upon the program stated that the author has placed the action of the play in the future, hence no personal reference whatever is intended. The Pope of the drama is not supposed in any way to represent the present pontiff.

The company is an exceptionally strong one. William E. Bonney as David Ross does the best and most picturesque of his career. Emmett C. King plays the this great success of Victor Herbert's and Glen McDougough's here is headed by Budd Ross and Grace Hazard. There are seventy other people in the huge supporting cast and many of them for years have been prominent in New York theatrical circles.

The all-star cast which will present

'Babes in Toyland' travels exclusively by special train, four cars being used for the company's baggage and scenery. In reply to a recent request that he lecture on Shakespeare, Charles B. Hartford said: "It is too much to ask of a man who has studied Shakespeare all his life. He realizes the impossibility of finding anything worth saying that Shakespeare has left unsaid."

Sweet and wholesome, with an atmosphere that thrills like the scent of new-mown hay and a story that pleases old and young, rich and poor alike, are the combined elements that have made 'Elsie Elsie's' tour this season in Jules Murry's big revival of "Hazel Kirke" an endless chain of triumphant success. To see 'Elsie Elsie' in "Hazel Kirke" is to witness the performance of a great artist who sees the play is to listen to a beautiful and wholesome story, with unadorned, pure fun, and which "makes one feel better after having witnessed it," as a well-known clergyman recently remarked after having attended one of the performances.

B. C. Whitney's superb production of the latest success, "The Show Girl" or "The Music Cap," is described as a "Jolly bit of funfolery." The book is by the author of those foremost successes, "142," "Little Christopher," "Excelsior, Jr.," "The Girl from Paris," etc. H. L. Heatts and E. W. Corlies are responsible for the music, the tunefulness of which is largely due for the cordial reception accorded to it in New York, Boston and all the other large cities.

Among the musical numbers which have become popular and which have been receiving encore after encore are: "Come Down, Mister Man in the Moon," "Nellie Kelly," "That's the Way of a Sailor," "Sometimes, Perhaps," "I Don't Want to Be a Lady," "I'm the Manager," "Psyche," "Champagne and Terrapin," "Reggie's Family Tree," "One That He Loves Best," "My Whitewash Man," "Chingling Foo," "Hiram Green," "Only You" and others.

Mrs. Menefee entertained the Luncheon Club in her charming way last Wednesday, the guest of special honor being Mrs. John Phelps of Baltimore.

The guests were Mesdames Collett, Bury, Barron, Berney, Anderson, Ellis and Van Zandt.

Society turned out in its most beautiful gowns yesterday afternoon to enjoy the delightful afternoon with Mrs. T. J. Penniston, who entertained with a large and elaborate reception in honor of her sister, Mrs. Moore of North Carolina, and Mrs. G. W. Parker.

Cards were taken at the door by Misses Carrie Tom Penniston and Virginia Moore Spear, and the guests were greeted as they entered the hall by the chery voice of Mrs. D. B. Keeler.

On entering the hall the guests gave involuntary exclamations of delight, so gloriously beautiful was the reception interior. The massive mahogany stairway with its ornate carvings, the swinging vases filled with red chrysanthemums, the gorgeously handsome gowns of the receiving party and the guests seen through the flower framed doorways as they grouped in their effect in the parlors and dining room, was a sight to behold.

Pink was the color used in the parlors; white roses and chrysanthemums, with a touch of white here and there. Yellow prevailed in the dining room, and between the folding doors were vases filled with ferns and coral masses.

The hall had its red chrysanthemums reinforced with masses of garden flowers and geraniums of bloom in a dozen handsome jardinières.

Chicken salad, wafers and pickles were served, and Mrs. Waller and Mrs. George Jackson turned the tea at a small table at one side. The large dining table of solid mahogany had a handsome cover of lace with a cut-glass vase filled with yellow chrysanthemums and cut-glass compotes and candlesticks as artistic accessories.

The Friendship Study Club will meet with Mrs. J. E. Parrott, corner Rosedale and Galveston avenue, Tuesday, Nov. 21.

The Ladies of the Kindergarten Association announce that they will give a holiday bazar in the parlors of the Hotel Worth the first week in December.

The Auxiliary to the Railway Association met with Mrs. Sam Ray Thursday, Mrs. F. G. Wilson directing the study of the first act of "Twelfth Night." After the literary and business session, the guests were entertained with a drawing contest. Yellow "mums" were the souvenirs for each guest.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Rutledge at Sanginuit flats. The study of the second act of "Twelfth Night" will be conducted by Mrs. M. D. Beadle.

The concert of the Arions Thursday evening, the first of the season, delighted the biggest audience the Arions has ever had for a single concert. There were several reasons for satisfaction. The twenty-eight young men forming the chorus were all Fort Worth citizens. Director Ducker, a local singer without the begging or borrowing of even the finest talent of the Dallas music clubs. The director was also a local man, something Fort Worth friends of the Arions have thought worthy the matter of exacting policy, at least. The singing of the club was beyond criticism and every number was applauded with enthusiasm.

The feature that further accentuated the pleasure of the program was the reappearance before Fort Worth friends of Oscar Seagle, a singer well known and exceedingly well liked. Since first heard here he has developed wonderfully. His voice is freer in tonal quality and his interpretation of such numbers as the "Prelude to 'Il Paggiacci'" mark distinctly an advancement in musical understanding as well as of vocal improvement. As to the wonderful beauty of tone that nature gave Mr. Seagle, that could not be bettered. The method of his instruction has been to accentuate its beauty and purity.

A matter of interest to Mr. Seagle's many friends is that on returning to Paris he will become assistant to de Rozke, teaching the new students for the months necessary for "breaking in," as it were, to the master's methods.

The Idlewild ball in Dallas Friday night was an attraction to a number of Fort Worth people, who tell of the smart affair with certain enthusiasm. The ball this year was given in the majestic, the new Dallas hostelry, and the reports are that it quite distanced in splendor all the former efforts of this exclusive club.

Among the Fort Worth people there were Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Keeler, Miss Waples, Miss Saunders and Miss Barton; Messrs. Beck, Kauffmann, Paddock, McKee, Heimers and Gahagan.

A new musical club is about to be organized which ought to have the endorsement of all good music lovers and performers. It is an amateur orchestra of about twenty ladies and gentlemen. They have strung and wind instruments and are very anxious to add all obtainable amateurs in order to complete the orchestra and get down to earnest work as soon as possible.

This is an excellent opportunity for amateur players of any orchestra instrument to derive pleasure and practice. Any information about the club can be obtained by addressing E. H. R., postoffice box 484. Amateurs of fair ability, filled with enthusiasm for the work, ought to join this club, which has opportunity of becoming a source of pleasure and education to the people of Fort Worth.

Those who keep in touch with musical events are much interested in the coming to Fort Worth in concert of the William Beard, a singer well known in Chicago and in musical cities tributary to that center. Mr. Beard will assist the Trio Club in their first concert, Nov. 21, at Greenwalls opera house.

Mr. Beard has been called upon to fill the place of the late Miss Bigham and the critics pronounce him the equal of that great singer. He has been soloist for the Apollo Club of Chicago, a popular male singer in the city, the Arions of Milwaukee, the most critical club of musicians possible in the entire country, and he was also soloist for Theodore Thomas orchestra two seasons on tour. Lovers of music are promised a great treat in this engagement.

Mrs. H. Brann gave a tea Monday afternoon for the benefit of the Jewish Women's Council. There was a large attendance, and both financially as well as socially the occasion was one of great success. A program of unusual excellence was rendered. A duet by Mrs. Brann and Mrs. Gollinger was particularly enjoyed, while little May Joseph exhibited her remarkable talent in a recitation. Miss Hazel Brann was loudly applauded for her piano number, and Miss Eva Potshman was repeatedly encored for her songs beautifully sung. Today there are countless cured ones, the voice giving promise of becoming one of the finest contraltos in the city.

Mrs. Lloyd Pollock's tea for her sister, Mrs. J. D. McLean, Monday afternoon, set folks with a fancy for quotations to reading things bookish for a companion. The hostess in the "queen room" of the rosebud garden of girls, for Mrs. Pollock is one of the youngest matrons, and the beautifully appointed home, though not a garden, had such masses of flowers with accompanying charm in the young hostess and Mrs. J. D. McLean, the bride-sister being introduced, and there were such new and gorgeous autumn frocks worn by the guests that apt similes did not come readily even to those accustomed to pretty sayings. The afternoon was ideal and the party as perfect as anything social could well be. Heading the receiving line was the hostess in a dainty suit of pale blue radium, with Mrs. J. D. McLean next, wearing an imported gown of white lace over moire petticoat. Miss McLean was in white, a soft plisse frock of radium, while Miss Carter, a debutante of Mt. Pleasant, who is spending the winter with Mrs. Pollock, wore a white frock with lace flounce and bodice. Mrs. W. T. Humble wore a lavender reception gown with lace trimmings.

All through the house were masses of white "mums." In the big Queen Anne hall the fireplace was filled with them and the mantel was fringed with borders as feathery and graceful as white plumes.

The dining table was given over to beautiful silver, the vases for ostrich sprays of white mums, two for silver, as were the bonbon holders and tea service. Mrs. W. P. McLean Jr. and Mrs. J. D. Mitchell turned the tea with Mrs. J. R. Pollock, Mrs. Bertram Rose, Mrs. Julian Andrews, Mrs. Henry Williams, Misses McCart, Evans, Fakes and Waples serving. Misses Stripling and Larimer served the punch in the hall, the table being massed with apparatus ferns and white "mums."

William McLean III at the door received the cards of more than a hundred callers.

Miss Alice Lusk entertained yesterday afternoon for her guest, Miss Birdwell of Big Springs. The handsome music room was for once turned over to card use, as was the reception suite. Violet was very much seen. The decorations were of purple and white chrysanthemums, the score cards of violet, white and gold, and the prizes a violet pin cushion and a bunch of violets, the first being won by Miss Eva Mae Lewis and the second by Miss Ruth Hosmer. Punch was served, and white stick candy, tied with violet ribbons. Violet cream and cake were served at the close of the games. Scoring was by the hostess, Misses Nina Coppage and Willie Mayfield.

Those present were: Misses Birdwell, Rindeman, Layfield, Puller, Calhoun, Newlin, Dingee, Gardner, Williams, Bibb, Webb, Wombwell, Binyon, Hosmer, Ruth Hosmer, Coppage, Hutchings, Griffin Guile, Bunting, Sanginuit, Naugle, Saraguiet, Pendleton, Shropshire, Peacock.

CLUBS

The Monday Book Club met this week in the Arion study, beginning the study of American history from the earliest discoveries. Papers were read by Misses Bennett and Harrison. The round table talk was upon "Woman, the Hammer, Sex," Miss Waples being the leader. The Penelope Club held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon. Roll call quotation from the next meeting. One paper was read by Mrs. W. F. Sterley, another by Miss May Sterley, and under the directorship of Mrs. Ed Gamble the lesson was thoroughly enjoyed and also profited.

ter, Mrs. J. D. McLean, Monday afternoon, set folks with a fancy for quotations to reading things bookish for a companion. The hostess in the "queen room" of the rosebud garden of girls, for Mrs. Pollock is one of the youngest matrons, and the beautifully appointed home, though not a garden, had such masses of flowers with accompanying charm in the young hostess and Mrs. J. D. McLean, the bride-sister being introduced, and there were such new and gorgeous autumn frocks worn by the guests that apt similes did not come readily even to those accustomed to pretty sayings. The afternoon was ideal and the party as perfect as anything social could well be. Heading the receiving line was the hostess in a dainty suit of pale blue radium, with Mrs. J. D. McLean next, wearing an imported gown of white lace over moire petticoat. Miss McLean was in white, a soft plisse frock of radium, while Miss Carter, a debutante of Mt. Pleasant, who is spending the winter with Mrs. Pollock, wore a white frock with lace flounce and bodice. Mrs. W. T. Humble wore a lavender reception gown with lace trimmings.

All through the house were masses of white "mums." In the big Queen Anne hall the fireplace was filled with them and the mantel was fringed with borders as feathery and graceful as white plumes.

The dining table was given over to beautiful silver, the vases for ostrich sprays of white mums, two for silver, as were the bonbon holders and tea service. Mrs. W. P. McLean Jr. and Mrs. J. D. Mitchell turned the tea with Mrs. J. R. Pollock, Mrs. Bertram Rose, Mrs. Julian Andrews, Mrs. Henry Williams, Misses McCart, Evans, Fakes and Waples serving. Misses Stripling and Larimer served the punch in the hall, the table being massed with apparatus ferns and white "mums."

William McLean III at the door received the cards of more than a hundred callers.

Miss Alice Lusk entertained yesterday afternoon for her guest, Miss Birdwell of Big Springs. The handsome music room was for once turned over to card use, as was the reception suite. Violet was very much seen. The decorations were of purple and white chrysanthemums, the score cards of violet, white and gold, and the prizes a violet pin cushion and a bunch of violets, the first being won by Miss Eva Mae Lewis and the second by Miss Ruth Hosmer. Punch was served, and white stick candy, tied with violet ribbons. Violet cream and cake were served at the close of the games. Scoring was by the hostess, Misses Nina Coppage and Willie Mayfield.

Those present were: Misses Birdwell, Rindeman, Layfield, Puller, Calhoun, Newlin, Dingee, Gardner, Williams, Bibb, Webb, Wombwell, Binyon, Hosmer, Ruth Hosmer, Coppage, Hutchings, Griffin Guile, Bunting, Sanginuit, Naugle, Saraguiet, Pendleton, Shropshire, Peacock.

Mrs. Hutchins of New Mexico is visiting Mrs. H. A. Judd. Miss Alice Davis of El Paso is the guest of Mrs. W. A. Adams. Mrs. James L. Wright of Crowley, La., is visiting Mrs. L. P. Robertson. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cameron will spend Thanksgiving with friends in Paris. Miss Laura Fields of Dallas was the guest last week of Mrs. J. H. Cameron. Misses Mook and Ivers of St. Louis are visiting Mrs. M. A. Benton. Mrs. Garnett of San Angelo is the guest of Mrs. Frank Davis. Mrs. Zane-Cetti has returned from a visit of several weeks in New York city. Mrs. Cameron will visit in Cleburne to luxury and into her hands are entrusted the execution of many important pieces of statuary, for she is a sculptor. She is given to understand that her father, Prince Volonna, who, as one of the sons of the revolution, was exiled and died when his daughter was but a child, was the dear friend of Baron Bonelli, and the latter, on learning of the friendless and destitute condition of Prince Volonna's daughter, has sought her out, educated her, and in the process fallen madly in love with her.

The play opens in the loggia of Baron Bonelli's palace. A number of distinguished guests have assembled to witness the gorgeous procession of the Pope's jubilee, and some conversation is introduced among them about Donna Roma who has not yet arrived.

The action throughout is rapid, the scenes vigorously treated and the climax is stirring and the finale of the tale, in the book a tragedy, in the drama a happy fruition of love's young dream.

One of the prettiest and daintiest musical comedies ever presented here will be "The School Girl." This will be the first time "The School Girl" has been offered to the local theater-goers, but the production comes with a very high reputation and with the remarkable record of playing over four hundred nights in London and 150 nights in New York City to enthusiastic audiences. Positive assurance is given that we will see the entire original production just as it was presented in the two famous world capitals. The scenery is very picturesque, the costumes were furnished by London's most exclusive milliners, the company includes foremost players from several countries and a deep interest is centered in the romance of a convent girl, who runs away from school to seek the lover of her schoolmate chum, only to find herself in the bustling stock exchange in Paris, where she not only succeeds in locating her friend's fiance, but also puts an end to the rascally operations of a stockbroker and saves her father from a heavy pecuniary loss. Judging by the early demand for seats "The School Girl" will play a very successful engagement here. Wilton Lackey in William A. Brady's great production of "The Pit," the dramatized version of Frank Norris' famous novel, will be presented here in the near future. It is a story of Chicago, a strong and virile tale treating of speculation, the American fever for money gain, its evil social effects, but over and above all, presenting the picture of the great market of America, the wheat pit. It is a fine concrete real story of one of the centers of life in America that mean most and count most, and of the motive force in the heart of this center of life. The character of Edwin is an intimate study of the business man who has learned the game in its finest points and sacrificed nearly all other human interests to play it successfully, with millions as the stake of the transformation from normal nature and instinct into the automaton of the board of trade. The woman, Laura, his wife, left to her loneliness and longing for affection and companionship in the midst of her splendid life of luxury and leisure, serves as a suggestion of some of the social problems from which Chicago, city of divorces, has become notorious, and the story as a story is so filled with human interest and right feeling that it carries deep the message it has which in an abstruse paper of commercial and sociological learning would not have been read. This is not to accuse "The Pit" of being propaganda or purposeful beyond fiction limits. There is life in every scene, dramatic action and actual people.

Will Bring You the Help That Millions Have Employed

It is so easy to learn what Liquezone does; why does any sick one wait? Simply send us this coupon, and we will gladly buy you a bottle, as we have for millions of others. Scores of diseases have now been traced to germ attacks. A few years ago most of them were attributed to other causes. This new cause of disease calls for new treatment, and that treatment is Liquezone. Won't you let us show you—at our cost—what this germicide does in germ trouble?

Where It Applies These are the diseases in which Liquezone has been most employed. In these it has earned its widest reputation. In all of these troubles we supply the first bottle free. And in all—no matter how difficult—we offer each user a two months' further test without the risk of a penny.

What Liquezone Is The virtues of Liquezone are derived solely from gases. The formula is sent to each user. The process of making requires large apparatus, and from 8 to 14 days' time. It is directed by chemists of the highest class. The object is to fix and combine gases as to carry into the system a powerful tonic-germicide.

Contact with Liquezone kills any form of disease germ, because germs are of vegetable origin. Yet to the body Liquezone is not only harmless, but helpful. That is its main distinction. Common germicides are poison when taken internally. That is why medicine has been so helpless in a germ disease. Liquezone is exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying; yet no disease germ can exist in it.

We purchased the American rights to Liquezone after thousands of tests had been made with it. Its power had been proved again and again in the most difficult germ diseases. Then we offered to supply the first bottle free in every dis-

OUR LAY SERMON

The cigarette smoker is an individual who receives but little consideration in this world, and the tendency of the times is to give him still less. Business men are rapidly arriving at the point where they absolutely refuse to give employment to what is known as a "cigarette fiend." They declare that these unfortunates are absolutely not to be trusted, and the circle embracing the scene of their usefulness is rapidly becoming more circumscribed.

So strong is the sentiment against employing the cigarette smoker, and let us say in this connection that reference is had to the individual who smokes cigarettes to excess, that they are becoming marked people in every community. There are thousands of them all over this broad land of ours today who can find nothing to do but make themselves obnoxious upon passenger trains, in street cars, waiting rooms, parlors and practically everywhere else. The presence of ladies upon one of these occasions exerts no restraining influence upon the young man with the cigarette. In fact, he seems to imagine that he is making the biggest kind of a killing while some of the fair sex are watching his smoke and inhaling the noxious fumes. He makes himself so thoroughly obnoxious that occasionally he has to be led out and taught a little remembrance of good breeding. Fra Elbertus Hubbard, the renowned Roycroft philosopher, is one of those whose opinion of the cigarette smoker does not tower up in the blue empyrean. He says:

Cigarette smoking begins with an effort to be smart. It soon becomes a pleasure—a satisfaction, and serves to bridge over a moment of nervousness or embarrassment. Next, it becomes a necessity of life, a fixed habit. The last stage soon evolves into a third condition, a stage of fever and unrest—wandering of mind, accompanied by loss of moral and mental control. And finally a flabbiness of tissue results through taking smoke into the bronchial tubes, where pure air is required to oxygenize the blood, and a nervous weakness follows that leaves the victim unprotected, and a prey to any sort of malady or disorder to which he may be exposed or liable.

And here seems a good place to say that such silly tales that cigarettes are soaked in a solution of opium or belladonna, or that the harm of cigarette smoking comes from the arsenic in the paper, have no place here. The price of opium absolutely forbids its use in any form by cigarette makers, beside that it is not necessary—there is a sedative quality and poison enough in pure tobacco to answer all purposes. Beginning as a habit, the matter ere long becomes a vice. The first indication of degeneration is in your cigarette smoker's secretiveness. He feels his weakness, so seeks to present a bold front. "Bluff" is his chief characteristic. He tries to make an impression—he talks big, is full of promises, plans and confidential utterances. He confuses dates, times, incidents, and often will tell you he has done a thing when he only intends to do it. Then he forgets to do it.

Only the strong man is honest—only the hearty tell the truth. A lie is a disease of the will—hypocrisy is a symptom. When a cigarettist pays his devotion to nature he always passes the time away by rolling and smoking a cigarette, this being the only instance when he displays a zeal in improving the moments as they fly. He dreams over his work, dawdles indefinitely, picks things up and lays them down, and proves for us again and again the maxim that the strong man is the one who can complete a task, not merely begin it.

One marked peculiarity of the cigarette fiend is that invariably he makes a great discovery; it is that cleverness, astuteness, trickery, untruth, are good substitutes for simplicity, frankness and plain, common honesty. For physical exertion our cigarettist has a profound dislike. He calls a cab and pays for it with your money, and if he has only a block to walk he takes a car. Should you by much effort get him into an outdoor game he soon grows weary and stops to light a cigarette. When he rides he pollutes the morning air with smoke. Ere long he will grow as limp as a printer's roller in July; his vertebrae is God-year; all of his decision goes into smoke, and if you ever had any hopes for him they are ashes. The difference between mine and thine is a very hazy line to the cigarettist—meum and tuum are not in his lexicon. Larceny and lying are sprouts that grow from the same soil.

The cigarettist has an abnormal egotism—he has much faith in himself. If this faith wavers he rolls a cigarette—often in advanced stages half the day is given to rolling cigarettes. To find men who roll cigarettes for their own smoking for one or two hours every day is not difficult. To roll his own cigarettes gives the defective something to do. Nervous, clutching, scratching, searching, yellow-stained hands—hands that alternately play the devil's tattoo and roll cigarettes—

ENGLAND'S ENGULFING WAVE OF MISERY

All the monarchs of the earth envy one week's wages means to them lack of God's will, and that discontent is im-avoidable. Balfour was only able to hold out the people of other great English cities—of English cities, there is heard never a word of rebellion and scarcely a word man and who more than any other monarch is a student of social questions, is troubled as this rising tide of misery laps the steps of his throne. Kingdom there are nearly 8,000,000 people who live on this same "hunger line," together in the poverty-saturated streets of London and marched down the Strand, past the theaters, shops and great of England to the wall. More than one generation and more than one monarch or leader will be required for its solution. England will be fortunate if the problem can be solved without surgery and the letting of blood.

MOONSHINE AND MUSINGS

By SID BARTON. Some fellows think that because a thing wuzn't possible last week it won't be next week. If Thos. W. Lawson is arrested a few more times on the charge of libel he may get angry and abuse somebody.

WORK BUTTS IN ON LITERATURE

On account of being pressed with job work and the election just passed, we are compelled to put out just half the usual size of our paper this week. You may as well call it five hundred stick or half Thousandsticks.—Hyden (Ky.) Thousandsticks.

A Chicago paper calls attention to the fact that this has been a hard fall for Geo. B. Cox, Geo. B. McClellan and Geo. B. Shaw. They got the G. B. in more than initials.

THE JUDGE WAS BUSY TRYING A CASE

"Chicago has been abused by its own citizens," declares one of the prominent lawyers of that city. Naturally. It's own citizens know more about it than outsiders do. "Has the doctor given up all hope?" "No, but I have. He called in two more doctors last night." Vice President Fairbanks says reform is spasmodic. Nobody appreciates this better than Mr. Fairbanks. He has always been successful in his campaigns. A promoter is known by the company he forms. Yes, why is a bridge tender? "Have you found your college training of any value?" "Indeed, I have," he replied. "I was floor walker in a department store the first year after I left college." "I can't understand why the voters of this country tolerate bosses." "You forget that most of the voters are married." All the clerks in a Joplin, Mo., bank are women. Long experience with bonnets makes it easy for them to keep the accounts straight. "How do you find things, my man?" "Dull," he replied. "But that was the way he wished to find them—being a knife and scissors grinder."

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

The Panther City has two excellent newspapers in the Record, the morning paper, and The Telegram, the evening paper. They cover the field in a manner that leaves nothing to be desired. They are enterprising and progressive and constantly at work for the upbuilding of every interest of the city.—Denison Herald.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

The Telegram has always tried faithfully to correctly and properly represent Fort Worth, and that it has kept the faith is attested by the hold it has on the affections of the people. "Uncle Trav" Henderson, Lamar county's statesman, is down at Austin, but declines to talk about the political situation. The bees have not all been hived, and it is intimated that "Uncle Trav" can hear the buzzing inside his Stetson.—McKinney Gazette. The great trouble with Uncle Trav appears to be his inability to determine the nature of the bee that has found an abiding place in his bonnet. It may be a gubernatorial bee, a state treasury bee, or just a plain controller bee. It is a point, however, that remains to be determined. At the republican banquet in Fort Worth, one of the topics discussed was "How to Make Texas Republican." One way is to poison a quarter of a million democratic voters.—Houston Post. And that is about the only way it can ever happen. The state of Texas has had just about all the experience with the republican party that it needs in its business. Having a water front of several hundred miles, Texas is not so vitally concerned in federal control of railway rates as some of the interior states; still, Texas wants to be neighborly and do what she can to help Kansas and Iowa and the others whose lives are in peril.—Waco Times Herald. The Waco paper evidently forgets that Texas is the greatest cattle producing state in the union, and the great bulk of our cattle go to market as interstate commerce. It also seems to be ignorant of the fact that Texas cattlemen are the people who set the ball to rolling in favor of the great reform now under consideration. Burglars entered the home of a captain of the Salvation Army at Fort Worth the other night, while he was sleeping, and made an extensive search for valuables, but succeeded in finding nothing except a gold ring, which they took. They looked in the wrong place for the treasure, as the captain doubtless had it safely laid up clean beyond their reach—in heaven.—Texarkana Texarkanian. The greatest treasure in that house was the glad tidings of salvation. And this the thief might have had for the mere matter of asking. Men do not have to steal this thing, but can justly claim it as their inheritance. When a turkey sells for $3.50 to $4 the situation looks critical for Thanksgiving day, to everybody except the man who has the turkeys to sell. His cinch is as good as a graft. Think about twenty turkeys making ten bales of cotton by eating up the boll worms in the patch and then cashing themselves for $75.—Bonham Favorite. The turkey business is good all over Texas this year for people who have turkeys for sale. For the man who has his mouth set for Thanksgiving turkey the outlook is not favorable unless he has saved a goodly per cent of his last summer's wages. Hogg's declaration of principles, upon which he would go before the people as a candidate for governor, that is if he went at all, is the very best that was put out by any of the government expositors at Dallas in the symposium that was held there. The principles that were enunciated by Hogg would, if carried out, revolutionize Texas and make her a new state in all but name. Those words of his would do to frame and hang in the state house.—San Antonio Light. Hogg's utterances usually have the ring of true statesmanship. He has clearly established the fact that he is a true patriot in the estimation of every fair-minded citizen of the state.

VERSES THAT RING

SHE WOULD BE A MASON. The funniest story I ever heard, The funniest thing that ever occurred, Is the story of Mrs. Mehitable Byrde, Who wanted to be a Mason. Her husband, Tom Byrde, is a Mason true, As good a Mason as any of you; He is tiler of lodge Cerulean Blue, And tyles and delivers the summons due, And she wanted to be a Mason, too— This ridiculous Mrs. Byrde. She followed him round, this inquisitive wife, And nagged and teased him out of his life; So to terminate this unhalloved strife, He consented at last to admit her. And first, to disguise her from bonnet to shoon, The ridiculous lady agreed to put on His breech—ah, excuse me—I meant pantaloons: And miraculously did they fit her.

The lodge was at work on the Master's Degree The light was ablaze on the letter G; High soared the pillars J and B; The officers sat like Solomon, wise; The brimstone burned amid horrid cries; The goat roamed wildly through the room; The candidate begged 'em to let him go home— And the devil himself stood up in the east, As proud as an alderman at a feast— When in came Mrs. Byrde.

Oh, horrible sounds, oh, horrible sight Can it be that Masons take delight In spending thus the hours of night? Ah! could their wives and daughters know The unutterable things they say and do, Their feminine hearts would burst with woe; But that is not all my story. For those Masons joined in a hideous ring, The candidate howling like everything, And thus in tones of death they sing: (The candidate's name was Morey) "Blood to drink and bones to crack, Skulls to smash and lives to take, Hearts to crush and souls to burn— Give old Morey another turn, And make him all grim and gory."

Trembling with horror stood Mrs. Byrde, Unable to speak a single word; She staggered and fell in the nearest chair, On the left of the junior warden there, And scarcely noticed, so loud the groans, That the chair was made of human bones.

Of human bones! on grinning skulls That ghastly throne of horror rolls— Those skulls, the skulls that Morgan bore! Those bones, the bones that Morgan wore! His scalp across the top was flung, His teeth around the arms were strung— Never in all romance was known Such uses made of human bone.

The brimstone gleamed in lurid flame, Just like a place we will not name; Good angels that inquiring came From blissful courts looked on with shame And fearful melancholy. Again they danced, but twice as bad, They jump and sing like demons mad; The tune is Hunkey Dorey— "Blood to drink and bones to crack, Skulls to smash and lives to take, Hearts to crush and souls to burn— Give old Morey another turn, And make him all grim and gory."

Then came a pause—a pair of paws Reached through the floor up-sliding doors, And grabbed the unhappy candidate! How can I without tears relate The lost and ruined Morey's fate? She saw him sing in a fiery hole, "She heard him scream, 'My soul! my soul!'" And down the yells of mercy! "Blood to drink and bones to crack, Skulls to smash and lives to take, Hearts to crush and souls to burn— Give old Morey another turn, And make him all grim and gory."

The ridiculous woman could stand no more— She fainted and fell on the checkered floor, 'Midst all the diabolical roar. What, then, you ask me, did befall Mehitable Byrde? Why nothing at all— She had dreamed she'd been in the Mason's hall. —James C. Noughton.

QUAKER REFLECTIONS

Many a man is crooked because that is his natural bent. Lots of the best things in life cost nothing but an effort. When a fellow can't pay his bills there's the devil to pay. Even the fellow who wears patched shoes should put his best foot forward. To make a woman completely happy you must occasionally quarrel with her. Lots of people who think they are in the swim are not even getting their feet wet. It's the mean things we can do today that some of us do not put off till tomorrow. The man who can truthfully say that he has never made a fool of himself has never been in love.—Philadelphia Record.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

Arguments are nine parts tongue and one part brain. Elections are good things not to increase one's respect for his fellow men. There wouldn't be any fun in being bad if the preachers wanted you to be. A man ought to be ashamed of himself to marry for money when he doesn't get it. The only thing that can stand as much squeezing as a girl's hand in a man's is her foot in a shoe.—New York Press.

Secretary of Legation at Wash- ington Tells Purposes of Mikado's Government

BY EKI HIOKI,
First Secretary of the Japanese Legation.

Written especially for The Telegram. Now that the Japanese-Russian war is ended, the world seems to be vigilantly watching the next act which will be produced on the stage of Oriental politics. Some preach the "Yellow Peril," some question the ambition of Japan; others apprehend Japan's designs upon the Philippines. Some people go so far as to assert that Japan will control China, "proclaim the Monroe doctrine for Asia, and drive out from the East all the 'white devils' and exterminate the western influences within its borders. I can simply say that such an idea has not entered into the Japanese mind and such a policy has not seen even the symptoms of formation. On the contrary, the policy which has been persistently followed by Japan in the past, was to put her interests in closer and more harmonious touch with those of the western nations.

Rousing China. China has had a number of severe trials during her long intercourse with the western nations, but all the earlier complications appear to have had the effect of making her more repugnant to western intimacy. It has, indeed, been a hard and weary elephant from its long slumber. In 1894 she was licked by Japan. This sharply stung her pride, but the effect was only temporary. She was fast falling back into her old, sweet slumber. But the capture of Kiaochow by Germany as the price of the massacre of the two missionaries; the seizure of Port Arthur and Tientsin by Russia; the lease of Weihaiwei and extension of the Kowloon concession by Great Britain; the acquisition of Kwangchow bay by France, and other great events after the Japan-China war, were a little too much even for the lazy colossus.

The consequence was the event of 1900—known as the "Boxer trouble." Severely Prodded. This was a very severe lesson for China. For the first time in her history China was brought home to reality.

"Fears are entertained by some people that the Chinese may use western methods against the westerners. That may be, but when will that be? Not before fifty years at least. Or, even should such a time come sooner, nothing need be feared, for the improved means of communication of our days enables us to make ample provision for the common defense of common interests, as was done in the case of the Boxer trouble."—Eki Hioki, First Secretary of the Japanese Legation.

FOR THEATER WEAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—This very dainty waist was made entirely of ruffles of orange colored chiffon. The ruffles were made of a fold of the goods thereby doing away with a hem, and at the same time giving more body to them. The two edges were faced toward yoke was of embroidery of a fine pattern. Behind them and around the top the center, both in the front and the back. Behind them and around the top of the collar was a narrow band of heavy silk the color of the waist.

THIRD CHILDHOOD

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Nov. 13.—Miss Mary Scully, known to many people as the 19-year-old infant, has come out of her last infantile state, which lasted six months, apparently none the worse for her experience. On the occasion of two nervous attacks, she was in that condition only a few weeks. She is all right now and physicians believe the third attack will be the last one. During these attacks, which have puzzled the physicians, Miss Scully has exhibited all the natural inclinations of a child of a few years.

The Promise of the Orient. The Orient—with one-third the land area and one-half the population of the world—as yet takes only one-seventh of the world's commerce. It is increasing. From 1880 to 1903 Japan's foreign commerce increased from $58,000,000 to $300,000,000; China's from $271,000,000 to $355,000,000. Should the commerce of China grow to the present rate of that of the West—$27 per capita—it would reach $19,800,000,000, or about half of the world's commerce of today. The imports of Japan, China and Australia from all Europe increased by $45,000,000 during 1890-1903. During the same period the imports from the United States increased by $49,000,000. The European importations increased only about 22 per cent; the increase of the United States was 160 per cent.

ly feel foreign influences. Reform decrees were issued one after the other. Students began to be sent abroad in search of western knowledge.

China was awakening. Just at this juncture another dazzling event transpired in the territory.

of China, right under the nose of the Pekinese—that is the Japanese-Russian war. The Chinese watched this gigantic struggle with the keenest interest. The superiority of the western method was proved to them beyond all doubt. China is now almost awake, Japan's Primary class. A large number of Chinese students are now in Japan in search of western knowledge, as it is considered by them to be the quickest and cheapest means to attain the end. Japanese institutions are copied, Japanese books translated, Japanese instructors engaged by the Chinese. The next stage will be the sending of the increased number of Chinese missions and students to America and Europe, the construction of railways, improvement of water communications, introduction of machinery, spread of Christianity and the increase of the productive and buying powers of China. When 400,000,000 people begin to produce and consume the articles of foreign commerce as much as the Japanese people of today, the volume of the world's trade will be immensely augmented. Japanese influence in China is, after all, a westernizing influence which cannot fail ultimately to benefit the whole world. No Monopoly. It is absurd, however, to say, as some ventured to do, that in the course of a few years American goods will be crowded out of Chinese markets by Japanese competition. You know quite well how long it took for the United States, with all the advantages she had in natural resources and in better facilities for introducing foreign capital into the country, to recover from the effect of the Civil war. Japan has got to labor under an enormous disadvantage compared with the United States of that time. In our days of machinery the importance of cheap labor has become comparatively insignificant. There was a time when the same cry was raised in this country as to European competition on account of their cheap labor, but where stand your industries now? In addition, you have an immense advantage over other nations in your wonderful inventive genius. Besides, labor in Japan does not remain cheap. The effect of the China-Japan war to double the price of labor. The war with Russia must have raised it much higher. Japan's Attitude. Under these conditions Japan is willing to enter either into an alliance or rivalry of trade with any nation. Japan welcomes capital and material from any country. The United States is supplying materials for the important industries of ours. Why cannot she supply the capital, too? There exists between Japan and Great Britain a political alliance in the East; why can there not be a commercial alliance between Japan and the United States? With cheap labor and a comparatively superior knowledge of Oriental matters possessed by the Japanese, combined with the inexhaustible supply of American capital and materials, we can build up an impregnable commercial stronghold in the East which can defy the rivalry of the world.

IS CHINA DANGEROUS?

The Indian never liked work but he wanted his squaw to get well as soon as possible so that she could do the work and let him hunt, therefore he dug yarrow root for her, for that was their great remedy for female weaknesses. Dr. Pierce uses the same root—called Blue Cohosh—in his "Favorite Prescription" skillfully combined with other agents that make it more effective and protect the stomach from functional disturbance.

Dr. Pierce's FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION is not now ever was a "patent medicine," but it is the carefully wrought out and thoroughly tested real prescription of a real physician in a real practice. Dr. Pierce's unparalleled success with this remedy was such that more wanted to use it than any one doctor could attend to in a private practice. This induced him to manufacture it on a sufficiently liberal scale to meet the demand. By his own special processes, he extracts, combines and preserves the medicinal qualities of the several ingredients without the use of alcohol (using chemically pure glycerine instead), thus rendering it absolutely safe for any woman of any age and in any condition to use freely. The names of the ingredients are: Lady's Slipper root, Black Cohosh root, Unicorn root, Blue Cohosh root and Golden Seal root.

Miss May Rohrbach, No. 73 Amsterdam Avenue, New York City, Treasurer of the Woman's Progress Union, writes: "I had headache, backache, and was very nervous; scarcely able to sleep more than two hours at a time. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and was delighted with the result. Within a week I was sleeping soundly, continued using the 'Favorite Prescription' for eight weeks, and then stopped, for I was perfectly well. Ever since that time I have been my 'Favorite Prescription,' too. I recommend it to every one." Constipation although a little ill, begins big ones if neglected. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Cure cures constipation.

Why Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless; Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food; Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians Addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. W. L. Leister, of Rogers, Ark., says: "As a practicing physician I use Castoria and like it very much."

Dr. W. T. Seelye, of Amity, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria for several years in my practice and have found it a safe and reliable remedy."

Dr. Raymond M. Everts, of Santa Ynez, Cal., says: "After using your Castoria for children for years it annoys me greatly to have an ignorant druggist substitute something else, especially to the patient's disadvantage, as in this case. I enclose herewith the wrapper of the imitation."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in a heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

Dr. W. F. Wallace, of Bradford, N. H., says: "I use your Castoria in my practice, and in my family."

Dr. Wm. I. McCann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice, found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. Howard James, of New York City, says: "It is with great pleasure that I desire to testify to the medicinal virtue of your Castoria. I have used it with marked benefit in the case of my own daughter, and have obtained excellent results from its administration to other children in my practice."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Channing H. Cook, of Saint Louis, Mo., says: "I have used your Castoria for several years past in my own family and have always found it thoroughly efficient and never objected to by children, which is a great consideration in view of the fact that most medicines of this character are obnoxious and therefore difficult of administration. As a laxative I consider it the peer of anything that I ever prescribed."

Dr. L. O. Morgan, of So. Amboy, N. J., says: "I prescribe your Castoria every day for children who are suffering from constipation, with better effect than I receive from any other combination of drugs."

Dr. H. J. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. Wm. L. Bosserman, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I am pleased to speak a good word for your Castoria. I think so highly of it that I not only recommend it to others, but have used it in my own family."

Dr. F. H. Kyle, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "It affords me pleasure to add my name to the long list of those who have used and now endorse your Castoria. The fact of the ingredients being known through the printing of the formula on the wrapper is one good and sufficient reason for the recommendation of any physician. I know of its good qualities and recommend it cheerfully."

WHEN IT WAS DARK

By GUY THORNE. (Copyright, 1905, by G. Putnam's Sons)

Constantine Schuabe, a millionaire member of the English house of commons brilliant intellectually, of commanding figure, tremendous energy and a pre-eminently noble nature, is an infidel who has conceived a fierce and active hatred of Christ and his religion. Robert Llewellyn, an official of the British Museum, a man of great learning, considered the world's greatest authority on biblical antiquities. It is a sensualist who neglects his wife to bask in the smiles of Gertrude Hunt, a beautiful dancing girl. He lavishes upon her all the luxuries his income will provide, and more. He becomes hopelessly addicted to Schuabe, who, by canceling the debt and paying him an enormous sum, induces Llewellyn to conspire with him to bring about the downfall of Christianity. Basil Gortre, a curate, who is engaged to Helena, daughter of Ambrose Byars, is strongly impressed with the belief that the conspiracy exists, but knows nothing of its nature. He has just taken a charge in London and has rooms in Lincolnshire with Harold Spence, a journalist. Harold Spence hears him preach, desires to become a Christian, and sends for Gortre. He goes to her rooms, where Llewellyn, returning unexpectedly from his mission to Palestine, finds them together, but is forced to leave by the muscular preacher.

Just as Father Ripon laid down the TRANSLATION INTO ENGLISH OF THE INSCRIPTION.

CHAPTER III.
"I, Joseph."
At about 9 o'clock the next morning there was a knock at Father Ripon's door, and Lindner, Sir Michael's confidential man, entered.
He seemed slightly agitated.
"I beg your pardon, Father," he said, "but Sir Michael instructed me to come to you at once. Sir Michael begs that you will read the columns marked in this paper and then join him at once in his own room."
The man bowed slightly and went noiselessly away.
Impressed with Lindner's manner, Father Ripon sat up in bed and opened the paper. It was a copy of the Daily Wire which had just arrived by special messenger from the station.
The priest's eyes fell first upon the news summary. A paragraph was heavily scored round with ink.
"Page 7—A communication of the utmost gravity and importance reaches us from Palestine dealing with certain discoveries at Jerusalem made by Mr. Cyril Hands, the agent of the Palestine Exploring Fund, and Herr Schmoulder, the famous German historian."
Ripon turned hastily to the seventh page of the paper, where all the foreign telegrams were. This is what he read:
"NOTE.
"In reference to the following statements, the editor wishes it to be distinctly understood that he prints them without comment or bias. Nothing can yet be definitely known as to the truth of what is stated here until the strictest investigations have been made. Our special commissioner left

London for the East twenty-four hours ago. The editor of this paper is in communication with the prime minister and his grace, the archbishop of Canterbury. A special edition of the Daily Wire will be published at 2 o'clock this afternoon.
"MOMENTOUS NEWS FROM JERUSALEM.
"For the last three months, under a new firman granted by the Turkish government, the authorities of the Palestine Exploring Society have been engaged in extensive operations in the waste ground beyond the Damascus Gate at Jerusalem.
"It is in this quarter, as archaeologists and students will be aware, that some years ago the reputed site of Cavalry and the holy sepulcher were placed. Considerable discussion was raised at the time and the evidence for and against the new and traditional sites was hotly debated.
"Ten days ago Mr. Cyril Hands, M. A., the learned and trusted English explorer, made a further discovery which may prove to be far-reaching in its influence on Christian peoples.
"During the excavations a system of tombs were discovered, dating from forty to fifty years before Christ, according to Mr. Hands' estimate. The tombs are indisputably Jewish and not Christian, a fact which is proved by the presence of kokhim, characteristic of Jewish tombs in preference to the usual Christian arcosolia. They are Herodian in character.
"These tombs consist of an irregularly cut group of two chambers. The floor is coarsely moulded. Both chambers are crooked, and in their floors are four-sided depressions, one foot two inches deep in the outer, two feet in the inner chamber. The roof of the outer chamber is six feet above its floor, that of the inner five feet two inches.
"The doorway leading to the inner tomb was built up into stone blocks. Fragments of that coating of broken bricks and pounded pottery, which is still used in Palestine under the name of hama, which lay at the foot of the sealed entrance, showed that it had at one time been plastered over, and was in the nature of a secret room.
"In the depression in the floor of the outer room was found a minute fragment of a glass receptacle containing a small quantity of blackish powder. This has been analyzed by M. Constant Allard, the French chemist. The glass vessel he found to be an ordinary siliate which had become dehydrated and colored by oxide of iron. The contents were finely divided lead and traces of antimony, showing it to be one of the cosmetics prepared for purposes of sepulture.
"When the interior of the second tomb had been reached a single loculus or stone slab for the reception of a body was found.
"Over the loculus the following Greek inscription in uncial characters was found in a state of good preservation, with the exception of two letters: Just as Father Ripon laid down the through the great window of stained glass, where Christ was painted ascending to heaven.

The two elderly men said the creed over the priest in firm, almost triumphant voices:
"I believe in God the Father . . . and in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord. . . . The third day He arose again from the dead. He ascended into heaven. . . ."
And those two, as they came grave-ly out of church and walked into the library, knew that a great and awful lie was resounding through the world, for the Risen Christ had spoken with them, bidding them to be of good courage for what was to come.
The voice of Peter called down the ages:
"This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we are all witnesses."
CHAPTER IV
The Domestic Chaplain's Testimony
When Mrs. Armstrong came down to breakfast her hostess told her, with many apologies, that Sir Michael had left for London with Father Ripon. They had gone by an early train. Matters of great moment were afoot.
As this was being explained, Mr. Wilson, the private chaplain, Schuabe, and Canon Walke entered the room. The Duke of Suffolk did not appear.
A long, low room paneled in white, over which a huge fire of logs cast occasional cheery reflection, was used as a breakfast-room. Here and there the quiet simplicity of the place was violently disturbed by great gouts of color, startling notes which, so cunningly had they been arranged in alternate opulence and denial, were harmonized with their background.
A curtain of Tyrian purple, a sea picture full of gloom and glory, red light and wind; a bronze head, with brilliant, life-like enamel eyes, the features swollen and brutal, from Sabacio—these were the means used by the young artist employed by Sir Michael to decorate the room.
The long windows, hewn out of a six-foot wall, presented a somber vista of great leafless trees standing in the trackless snow, touched here and there with the ruddiness of the winter sun.
The glowing fire, the luxurious domesticity of the round table, with its shining silver and gleaming china, the great quiet of the park outside, gave a singular peace and remoteness to the breakfast-room. Here one seemed far away from strife and disturbance.
This was the usual aspect and atmosphere of all Fencastle, but as the members of the house-party came together for the meal the air became suddenly electrified. Invisible waves of excitement, of surmise, doubt, and fear radiated from these humans. All had seen the paper, and though at first not one referred to it, the current of tumult and alarm were knocking loudly at heart and brain, varied and woe-wy diverse as were the emotions of each one.
Mrs. Hubert Armstrong at length broke the silence. Her speech was deliberate, her words were chosen with extreme care, her tone was hushed and almost reverential.
"Today," she said, "what I perceive we have all heard, may mean the sudden dawning of a New Light in the world. If this stupendous statement is true—and it bears every hallmark of the truth even at this early stage—a new image of Jesus of Nazareth will be forever indelibly graven on the hearts of mankind. That image which thought, study, and research have already made so vivid to some of us will be common to the world. The old, weary superstitions will vanish for all time. The real significance of the anthropomorphic view will be clear at last. The world will be able to realize the Real Figure as it went in and out among its brother men."

She spoke with extreme earnestness. No doubt she saw in this marvelous historical confirmation of her attitude a triumph for the school of which she had become the vocal chiefness, that would ring and glitter through the world of thought. The mental arrogance which had already led this woman so far was already busy, opening a vista that had suddenly become extremely dazzling, imminently near.
At her words there was a sudden movement of relief among the others. The ice had been broken; formless and terrifying things assumed a shape that could be handled, discussed. Her words acted as a precipitate, which made analysis possible.
The lady's calm, intellectual face, with its clear eyes and smooth bands of hair, waited with interest, but without impatience, for other views.
Canon Walke took up her challenge. His words were assured enough, but Schuabe, listening with keen and sinister attention, detected a faint tremble, an alarmed lack of conviction. The courtier-Churchman, with his commanding presence, his grand manner, spoke without pedantry, but also without real force. His language was beautifully chosen, but it had not the ring of utter conviction, of passionate rejection of all that warred with Faith.
A chaplain of the Court, the husband of an earl's daughter, a friend of royal folk, a future bishop, there were those who called him time-serving, exclusively ambitious. Schuabe realized that not here, indeed, was the great champion of Christianity. For a brief moment the Jew's mind flashed to a memory of the young curate at Manchester, then, with a little shudder of dislike, he bent his attention to Canon Walke's words.
"No, Mrs. Armstrong," he was saying, "an article such as this in a newspaper will be dangerous; it will unsettle weak brains for a time until it is proved, as it will be proved, either a blasphemous fabrication or an ignorant mistake. It cannot be. What- ever the upshot of such rumors, they can only have a temporary effect. It may be that those at the head of the Church will have to sit close, to lay firm hold of principles, or anything that will steady the vessel as the storm sweeps up. This may be an even greater tempest than that which broke upon the Church in the days of the first George, when Christian- ity was believed to be fictitious. What did Bishop Butler say to his chaplain? He asked: 'What security is there against the insanity of individuals?' The doctors know of none. Why, therefore, may not whole communities be seized with fits of insanity as well as individuals? It is just that which will account for so much history tells us of wild revolt against Truth. It may be—God grant that it will not—that we are once more upon the eve of one of these storms. But, despite your anticipations, Mrs. Armstrong, you will see that the Church, as she has ever done, will weather the storm. I myself shall leave for town at mid- day, and follow the example of our host. My place is there. The Arch- bishop will, doubtless, hold a confer- ence, if this story from Palestine seems to receive further confirmation. Such dangerous heresies must not be allowed to spread."

and I agree with Mrs. Armstrong in the extreme probability of this news being absolute fact, for Hands and Schmoelder are names of weight— everything must be reconstructed and changed. The churches will go. Surely the times are ripe, the signs unmistakable? We are face to face with what is called an anti-clerical wave—a dislike to the clergy as the representatives of the Church, a dis- like to the Church as the embodiment of religion, a dislike to religion as an unwelcome restraint upon liberty of thought. The storm which will burst now has been muttering and gather- ing here in England no less than on the Continent. You have heard its murmur in the debates on the Educa- tion Act, in the proposed State legis- lation for your Church. Your most venerable and essential forms are like trees creaking and groaning in the blast; public opinion is rioting to de- stroy. But perhaps until this morn- ing it has never had a weapon strong enough to attack such a stronghold as the Church with any hope of vic- tory. There has been much noise but that is all. It has been a matter of feeling; conviction has been weak, because it could only be supported by probabilities, not by certainties. The antichristian movement has been gild- ed by emotions, hardly by principles. At last the great discovery which will rouse the world to sanity appears to have been made. Even as I speak in this quiet room—the whole world is thrilling with this news. It is awak- ening from a long slumber."

Then Schuabe took up the discus- sion. "I fear for you, Canon Walke," he said, "and for the Church you re- present. This news, it seems to me, is merely the evidence for the confir- mation of what all thoughtful men be- lieve today, though the majority of them do not speak out. There is a natural dislike to active propaganda, a timidity in combination to upset a system which is accepted, though founded on initial error. But now—

Walke heard his ringing words with manifest uneasiness. The man was unequal to the situation. He repre- sented the earthly pomp and show of Christianity, wore the ceremonial vestments. He feared the concrete power, the vehement opposition of the mouthpiece of secularism. He saw the crisis, but from one side only. The deep spiritual love was not there. "You are exultant, Mr. Schuabe," he said coldly, "but you will hardly be so long."

"You do not appreciate the situa- tion, sir," Schuabe answered. "I can see further than you. A great intel- lectual peace will descend over the civilized world. Should one not exult at that, even though men must give up their dearest fetishes, their secret shrines; even though sentiment must be sacrificed to Truth? The religion of Nature, which is based upon the determination not to believe anything which is unsupported by indubitable evidence, will become the faith of the future, the fulfillment of progress. It is as Huxley said, 'Religion ought to mean simply reverence and love for the Ethical Ideal, and the desire to realize that Ideal in life.' Miracles do not happen. There has been no supernatural revelation, and nothing can be known of what Herbert Speer- iger calls the Infinite and Eternal. E- very save by the study of the phenom- ena about us. And I repeat that the discovery we hear of today makes a thorough intellectual sanity possible for each living man. Doubt will dis- appear."

"Yes, Mr. Schuabe," said Mrs. Arm- strong, "you are right, incalculably right. It is to human intellect and that alone—the great Intellect of The Nazarene among others—that we must look from henceforth. Already by his unaided efforts man's achievements are everywhere breaking down super- stition. The arts, the laws of grav- itation, force, light, heat, sound, chem- istry, electricity, and all that these imply—botany, medicine, bacteria, the circulation of the blood, the functions of the brain and nervous system (last named abolishing all witchcraft and diabolic possession, such as we read of in the 'inspired' writings)—all these are but incidents in a progress never aided by the supernatural, but always impeded by the professors of it. Christians tortured the man who dis- covered the rotation of the earth, and in every church today absolutely false accounts of the origin of the world are publicly read. And as long as the world was content to believe that Jesus rose from the dead so long er- ror has hindered development."

"Yes," replied Schuabe, "all this will, I believe, inevitably follow the discovery of the professors in Pale- stine. And what does Christianity, as it is at present accepted, bring to the Christians? Localize it, and look at the English Church—Canon Walke's Church. At one time every one is a rigid Puritan and decries the bare ac- cessories of worship, at another a Rit- ualist who twists and turns every- thing into fantastic shapes, as if he were furnishing an esthetic bazar. At another time these people are sway- ed with the doctrines of 'Christian Science,' and believe that pain is a pure trick of the diseased fancy, and matter the morbid creation of an un- healthy mind. Then we hear priests who tell us that the Old Testament (which in the same breath they an- nounce to be witnessed by Christ and His Apostles and the unbroken continuity of the Catholic Church) is an enlarged and plagiarized version of the days of a fantastic god discov- ered on a burnt brick at Babylon. And others sit anxiously waiting to know the precise value which this or that Gospel may possess, as its worth fluct- uates like shares in the money mar- ket, with the last quotation from Ger- many! All this will cease."

The while these august ones had been speaking, Father Wilson, the do- mestic chaplain at Fencastle, had re- mained silent but attentive. He was a lean, dark man, monk-like in appearance, somewhat saturnine on the surface. It was Sir Michael's wish, not the chaplain's, that he should sit with the guests as one of them, and make experience of the great ones of the world. For he had but little in- terest in worldly things or people. Schuabe's voice died away. Every one was a little exhausted, great mat- ters had been dealt with. There came a little clink and clatter as they sought food.

Suddenly Wilson looked up and be- gan to speak. His voice was some- what harsh and unsympathetic, his manner was uncompromising and without charm. As he spoke every- one realized, with a sense of unpleas- ant shock, that he cared little or nothing for the society he was in. "It's very interesting," he said, turning to Schuabe, "to hear all you have been saying. I have seen the paper and read of this so-called dis- covery, too. Of course such a thing harmonizes exactly with the opinions of those who want to believe it. But go and tell a devoted son of the Church that he has been fed with sacraments which are no sacraments, and all that he has done has been at best the honest mistake of a de- ceived man, and he will laugh in your face, as I do! There are memories, far back in his life, of confirmation, when his whole being was quickened and braced, which refuse to be ex- plained as the hallucinations of a well-meaning but deceived man. There are memories when Christ drew near his soul and helped him. Strug- gles with temptation are remembered when God's grace saved him. He also says, 'Whether He be a sorcerer or not I know not; one thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see.' It is easy to part with one in whom we never really believed. We can easily surrender what we have never held. You have not a notion of the real Christian's convictions, Mr. Schuabe. Your estimate of the future is based upon utter ignorance of the Chris- tian's heart. You are incapable of un- derstanding the heart to which experi- ence has made it clear that Jesus was indeed the very Christ. There are many people who are called Chris- tians with whom your sayings and writings, and those of this lady here, have great power. It is because they have never found Christ. Unreal words, shallow emotions, unbalanced sentiment, leave such as these with- out armor in a time of tumult and conflicting cries. But if we know Him, if we can look back over a life richer and fuller because we have known Him, if we know, every man, the plague of his own heart, then your explorers may discover anything and we shall not believe. It is easy to prophesy as you have been doing all this meal-time—it is popular once more to shout the malignant 'Crucify!'—but events will show you how utterly wrong you are in your estimate of the Christian character."

They all stared at the chaplain. His sudden vigorous outburst, the harsh, unlovely voice, the contempt in it, was almost stupefying at first. Indeed, though the priest certainly no one from Sir Michael, had certainly regarded the silent, rather forbidding priest, in his cassock and robe, a dress which typified his reserve and de- tachment from all their interests, in the light of an upper servant, almost. Nor was it so much his interference they resented as his manner of inter- fering. The supreme confidence of the man galled them; it was patroniz- ing in its strength. Mrs. Armstrong heard the outburst with a slight frown of displeas- ure, which, as the priest continued, changed into a smile of kindly toler- ance, the attitude of a housemaid who spares a spider. She remembered that, after all, her duty lay in being kind to those of less power than herself. The speech touched Schuabe more nearly. He seemed to hear a familiar echo of a voice he hated and feared. There was something chilling in these men who drew a confidence and cer- tainty, sublime in its immobility, from the Unseen. He felt, as he had felt before, the hated barrier which he could not in no wise pass, this calm fanat- icism which would not even listen to him, which was beyond his influence. The bitter hate which welled up in his heart, the terrible scorn which he had to repress at these insults to his evil and devilish egotism, gave him almost a sense of physical nausea. His pale face became pallid, but he showed no other signs of the insane tempest within. He smiled slightly. That was all.

As for Canon Walke, his feelings were varied. His face flickered with in rapid alternation. He was quite conscious of the lack of life, fire and conviction in what he him- self had said. His own windy com- monplaces shrank to windy com- monplaces before the witnessing of the undisturbed priest. Before the two hostile intellects, the man and the woman, he had left the burden of the fight to this nobody. He was quick and jealous to mark the strength of Wilson's words, and his own failure had put him in an entirely false position. And yet a shrewd bold had been struck at Schuabe and Mrs. Armstrong; there was consolation in the fact.

Father Wilson, when he had fin- ished what he had to say, rose from his seat without more ado. "I will say a grace," he said. He made the sign of the Cross, muttered a short Latin thanksgiving, and strode from the room. "A fanatic," said Mrs. Armstrong. Neither Walke nor Schuabe replied. It was getting late in the morning. The sun had risen higher and flooded the level wastes of snow without. The little party finished their meal in sil- ence. In the chapel Wilson knelt on the chancel step, praying that help might come to men and imminent darkness pass away.

CHAPTER V. Deus, Deus Meus, Quare Dereliquisti. The prime minister was a man deeply interested in all philosophic thought, and especially in the Chris- tian system of philosophy. He had written two important books, weighty, brilliant contributions to the mass of thought by which his school labored to make them increasingly credible to the modern mind. He had proved the science, ethics and theology are all open to the same kind of metaphysical difficulties, and that, therefore, to reject theology in the name of science was impossible. It was fortunate that, at this juncture, such a one should be at the head of affairs. The vast network of cable and tele- graph wires, those tentacles which may be called the nerves of the world's brain, throbbled unceasingly after the tremendous announcement for which Ommaney had undertaken the responsibility. Most physics cause chronic constipation—or worse

Chronic constipation, piles, appendicitis and other such intestinal afflictions are more often caused by improper physics than anything else. The average physic, whether it is in the form of a water, candy, pellet, or pill, is intended to quickly and unnaturally move the bowels. Such an unnatural treatment so shocks and weakens the intestinal muscles that the continued treatment of stronger and stronger physics becomes necessary. This produces chronic constipation. Piles and appendicitis are caused by the violent manner in which these explosive drugs attack the intestines.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the ordinary sense is not a cathartic. It is a laxative but acts differently from all other preparations. It contains great tonic properties, which strengthen instead of weaken the intestinal muscles. It is pleasant to take, does not gripe or cause pain, and never creates a necessity for the continual use of any physic. All druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. Money back if it doesn't satisfy. Pepsin Syrup Co. - Monticello, Ill.

are a committee from a recent con- ference at Lambeth, and are proceed- ing to Jerusalem to investigate the alleged discovery in the Holy City."

This was the prominent announce- ment, made on the afternoon of the third day, which began to quicken the interest and excite the minds of the people in England.

All that evening countless families discussed the information with curi- ous unrest and foreboding. In all the towns the churches were exception- ally full at even-song. One fact was more discussed than any other, partic- ularly in London.

Although the six men who had left England so suddenly, almost furtive- ly, were obviously on a mission of the highest importance, no reputable paper published more than the bare fact of their departure. Comment upon it, more detailed explanation of it, was sought in the columns of all the journals in vain.

The next morning was big with shadow and gloom. A shudder passed over the country. Certain telegrams appeared in all the papers which struck a chill of fear to the very heart of all who read them, Christian and indifferent alike.

It was as though a great and ominous bell had begun to toll over the world. The faces of the people in the streets were universally pale. It was remarked that the noises of London, the traffic, the movement of crowds engaged upon their daily busi- ness, lost half their noise.

The shops were full of Christmas gifts, but no one seemed to enter them. In addition to the telegrams, a sin- gle leading article appeared in the Daily Wire, which burnt itself, as the extremest cold burns, into the brains of Englishmen.

"(1) TERRIBLE RIOTS IN JERUSA- LEM. "The French consul general and staff, who were paying a ceremonial visit to the Latin patriarch, have been attacked by fanatical Moslems, and only escaped from the fury of the crowd with great difficulty aided by the Turkish guards. A vast concourse of Armenian Christians, Russian pil- grims, and Aleppine Greeks afterward gathered round the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. The strange discov- ery said to have been made by the English excavator, Mr. Hands, and the German Doctor Schmoelder, has aroused the mob to furious protest against it. For nearly an hour fer- vent cries of 'Hadda Kuber Saldna, 'This is the tomb of our Lord,' filled the air. The Mohammedans and lower class Jews made a wild attack upon the protesting Christians in the court- yard of the church. Many hundreds are dead and dying. REUTER. "Later—Strong drafts of Turkish troops have marched into Jerusalem. By special order from the sultan to the governor of the city, the 'new tomb,' discovered by Mr. Hands and Dr. Schmoelder, is guarded by a triple cordon of troops. The two gentle- men are guests of the governor. The concentration of troops around the 'new tomb' has left various portions of the city unguarded. Naked Mo- hammedan fanatics, armed with swords, are calling for a general mas- sacre of Christians. The city is in a state of utter anarchy. By the Jaffa gate and round the Mosque of Omar the dervishes are preaching massacre."

ents from every European and Amer- ican paper of importance followed hot upon Harold Spence's trail.

Nevertheless, for the first two or three days the world at large hardly realized the importance of what was happening. Nothing was certain. The whole depended upon two men. To the mass of people these two names :—Hands, Schmoelder—conveyed no meaning whatever. Nine-tenths of the population of England knew nothing of the work of archaeologists in Palestine, had never heard of the ex- ploring society.

Had consols fallen a point or two the effect would have been far greater, the fact would have made more stir.

The great dailies with equal stand- ing with the Wire were making every private preparation for a supply of news and consensus of opinion. But all this activity went on behind the scenes, and nothing of it as yet was allowed to transpire generally. The article in the Wire was quoted from, but opinions upon it were printed with the greatest caution and reserve. In- deed, the general apathy of England at large was a source of extreme wonder to the unthinking, fearing mi- nority.

The mass of the clergy, at any rate in public, affected to ignore, or did honestly dismiss as impossible, the whole question. A few words of ear- nest exhortation and indignant denial were all they permitted themselves.

But beneath the surface, and among the real influencers of public opinion, great anxiety was felt. The patriarch of the Greek church called a council of bishops, and Dr. Procopides, an ephor of antiquities from Athens, was sent immediately to Palestine.

The following paragraph, in sub- stance, appeared in the leader page of all the English papers. It was dis- seminated by the Press association: "We are in a position to state, that in order to allay the uneasiness pro- duced among the churches by a re- cent article in the Daily Wire, making extraordinary statements as to the discovery in Jerusalem, a conference was held yesterday at Lambeth. Their lordships the archbishops of Canterbury and York, the bishops of Manchester, Gloucester, Durham, Lincoln and London were present. Other well known churchmen consisted of Sir Michael Manicheo, Lord Robert Verulam, Canons Baragwaneth and Walke, the dean of Christ church and the master of Trinity hall. The prime minister was not present, but was represented by Mr. Alured King. Mr. Ommaney, the editor of the Daily Wire, was included in the conference. Although, from the names mentioned, it will be seen that the conference is considered to be of great importance, nothing has been allowed to trans- pire as to the result of its delibera- tions."

This paragraph appeared on the morning of the third day after the initial article. It began to attract great attention throughout the United Kingdom during the early part of the day.

The Westminster Gazette in its third edition then published a further statement. The public learned: "Professor Clermont-Ganneau, the professor of Biblical antiquities at the French university of La Sorbonne, arrived in London yesterday night. He drove straight to the house of Sir Robert Llewellyn, the famous archae- ologist. Early this morning both gentlemen drove to Downing street, where they remained closeted with the prime minister for an hour. While there they were joined by Dr. Grier, the learned bishop of Leeds, and Dr. Carr, the warden of Wyckham college, Oxford. The four gentlemen were later driven to Charing Cross station in a brougham. On the platform from which the Paris train starts they were met by Major General Adams, the vice president of the Palestine Explor- ing Society, and Sir Michael Manicheo. The distinguished party entered a reserved saloon and left en route for Paris, at midday. We are able to state on undeniable authority that the party, which represents all that is most authoritative in historical re- search and archaeological knowledge, with closed doors." "(4) Rome—A decree, or short let- ter, has just been issued from the vatican to all the 'patriarchs, pri- mates, archbishops, bishops and other local ordinaries having peace and communion with the holy see.' The decree deals with the alleged discov- eries in Jerusalem. In it Catholics are forbidden to read the newspaper accounts of the proceedings in Pal- estine, nor may they discuss them with their friends. The decree has had the effect of drawing great at- tention to the affairs in the East, and has excited much adverse comment among the secularist party, and in the Voce della Popolo."

Quite suddenly, as if a curtain were withdrawn, the world began to real- ize the fact that something almost beyond imagination was taking place in the far-off Syrian town.

These detached and sinister mes- sages which flashed along the cables with their stories of princes and po- tentates alarmed and active, made the general silence, the lack of detail, more oppressive. The unknown, or dimly guessed at, rather, laid hold on men's minds like some mighty con- vulsion of nature, imminent, and pre- saged as fearful signs. Thus the Daily Wire:

"The story of the recent gathering of great churchmen at Lambeth has not yet been made public, but there can be but little doubt in the minds of those who watch events that it must eventually take a place among the great historical occurrences of the world's history. While the men and women of England were going to and fro about their business, the ecclesiastical princes of this realm were met together in doubt, astonishment and fear, confronted with a problem so tremendous that we find comment upon it presents almost insuperable difficulties.

"We do not therefore propose to take the widest view of probable con- tingencies and events, for that would be impossible within the limits of a single article. It must be enough that with a sense of the profoundest responsibility, and with the deep emo- tions which must arise in the heart of every man who is confronted by a vast and sudden overthrow of one of the binding forces of life, we briefly recapitulate the events of the last few days and attempt a forecast of what we fear must lie before us here in England. "Four days ago we published in these columns the first account of a discovery made by Mr. Cyril Hands, M. A., and confirmed by Dr. Herman Schmoelder, in the red earth debris by the 'Tombs of the Kings,' beyond the Damascus gate of Jerusalem. The news arrived at this office through a private channel, in the form of a long and detailed account written by Mr. Hands, the archaeologist and agent of the Palestine Exploring So- ciety. Before publishing the state- ment the editor was enabled to dis- cuss the advisability of doing so with the prime minister. A long series of telegrams passed between the office of this paper, the foreign office and the gentlemen at Jerusalem during the day preceding our publication of the document. Hour by hour new de- tails and a mass of contributory evi- dence came to hand. All these papers, together with photographs, drawings, and measurements, were placed in the hands of the Archbishop of Canter- bury. A conference of the greatest living English scholars was summon- ed. The result of that meeting has been that a committee representing the finest intellect and the most un- sullied integrity is now on its way to Jerusalem. Upon the verdict of Sir Robert Llewellyn and his fellow- members, together with the distinguished foreign savants, M. Clermont-Ganneau and Dr. Procopides, the Ephor- General of Antiquities in the Athens Museum, the Christian world must wait with terrible anxiety, but with a cer- tainty that the highest human intel- ligence is concentrated on its delib- eration. ## "A Whittier Luncheon"

(By EDITH A. BROWN.)
(Copyright, 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

All seasons very evidently held beauty and happiness for Whittier, but with his Snowbound, his Frost Spirit and other poems of like nature, the fact that his birthday anniversary comes on December 17 seems particularly appropriate. Whittier's centennial is not far away, the coming anniversary marking the ninety-eighth birthday of the poet, who died in September, 1892.

The nearness of the anniversary date makes Whittier the next in the series of birthday luncheons for American poets. The table of honor may be a play upon the poet's unusual middle name, in decoration. In his poem, "My Namesake," he takes this liberty himself, inserting the line, "A Greenleaf on your own green banks" in his first stanza. This may be chosen as the line of decoration for the first table, or merely the name of the poet may be used. For another use of cut flowers will answer to the half-line "breath of flowers" from "At Eventide," and still another table of cut flowers may be used with the line, "Blow from summer's blossomed land," from the "Prayer of Agassiz." If hemlocks or a like green may be secured "Snowbound's" "The somber green Of hemlock—" will make a pretty winter table. For the outside page of the folder-menu, water color vines of green leaves should be used. If a folder is not desired a heavy card with the leaves delicately painted and the menu printed over it is equally attractive. The dates December 17, 1807—September 7, 1892, should be printed immediately below the full name of the poet. If the folder is used this will be placed on the first page; if the card, at the top. For the second page of the folder, or immediately beneath the dates on the card, this line from "Peace-Autumn"—"Peace that sits as Plenty's guest."

If an opening course of oysters is served take the line, "Their scallop shells so many bring," from "My Namesake," for the description. For a bouillon course which may follow, another line from the same poem—"Imagination held in check"—will serve. Fish of any kind may be described as follows:

"gather Old Ocean's treasures in."
This comes from "The Fisherman." For the roast or meat course two lines from "The Drovers" may be chosen to serve: "No bones of leanness rattle," or—

"Stately heave bespeaks the hand That fed him unreplining."
Salad, with its bad reputation as a digestive, may be described by the use of the lines:
"Somehow smuggled in
To keep the thorns and thistles company."

This comes from "The Fruit Gift." If a game course is wanted the lines from "The Exiles":
"My life is hunted—evil men
Are following in my track" may be used.

Coming in the very shadow of the holiday time, and following so closely the Thanksgiving season, the regulation coffee, cakes and cream might be varied at this Whittier luncheon, and pumpkin pie, apples, nuts and sweet cider served instead. Before the serving of the pumpkin pie some one should read the poet's poem to the "Pumpkin Pie," which is vivid enough to make the mouth water even after so hearty a repast as the one outlined. On the menu should read:

"Thy life be as sweet, and its last sunset sky Golden-tinted and fair as thy own pumpkin pie."

Then, while the nuts and apples are eaten, and the cider sipped the whole or passages from "Snowbound" should be read. These lines from the poem should be found on the menu card: "The mug of cider simmered slow The apples sputtered in a row, And close at hand the basket stood With nuts from brown October's wood."

If, however, this last portion of the menu is not desired, and the regulation ice cream or ice is chosen instead, take the words, "Our hills of snow" from "Peace-Autumn" for the menu.

At the very bottom of the menu card, or on the last page of the folder use these words from "Flowers in Winter":
"It was a happy thought to bring To the dark season's frost and rime This painted memory of spring, This dream of summer time."

righteousness; for the democrats he predicted disaster unless they stood for the right. He commended the country press highly for its work for pure elections, its attitude towards fraud, and in other ways of serving the people. The newspapers, said the speaker, if they pursued a right course, could have the very best people as lawmakers and officers. The address was well received and heartily applauded. The newspaper people were guests of the flower show late in the afternoon and last night. The next meeting will be held at Cameron.

TERRELL TALKS TO PRESS ASS'N.

Author of Law Charges Irregularity in Engrossment

Special to The Telegram.
WACO, Texas, Nov. 18.—The feature of the meeting yesterday of the Central Texas Press Association was the address of Judge Terrell, author of the Terrell election law. The meeting was presided over by President Lee Jones of Caldwell, and nearly a dozen ladies were there. Judge Terrell spoke earnestly and forcibly of the election law, emphasizing the fact that gross irregularities had been practiced on section 120 when it was copied and became law. He called this a forgery, and said the legislature should by all means convene and set right the trouble, assembling if necessary without pay, and that he had received letters from all but fifteen of the members saying they were willing to thus assemble; even the pages, clerks and porters, almost without exception, had volunteered to assemble without pay and serve such a session. He said that the recent landlesides in many states showed that the people were in revolt against bossism, fraud and unrighteous practices and that the country needed more civic

Merchants COME to ST. LOUIS

The five largest Wholesale Dry Goods houses of St. Louis, for the purpose of disposing of all odd lots and surplus stocks in time for the retailer to market them, during the current season, have mutually arranged to hold their Closing Out Sales during the same period. These sales, having been held by the different houses, at various times during the past, made it impossible for the merchant to get the benefit of the competition that would be created were all the sales held at the same time. Therefore these five houses will make their offerings Nov. 13 to 18 inclusive, under the name of the

St. Louis BIG 5 Sales

The competition thus created will result in great benefit to every buyer. The stock carried by the St. Louis wholesale dry goods houses comprises the largest open stock of Dry Goods of any market in the United States. It is well known to the trade that the competition between the five large wholesale dry goods houses in St. Louis is the keenest and most active of any market, and that St. Louis is the largest distributor of dry goods of any city in the United States. Though held at the same time, each house will conduct its own sale in its own way.

The goods will be carefully grouped and classified to facilitate buying and merchants will find on sale at the several houses large assortments of seasonable merchandise. The competition offered by the different houses insures remarkable bargains, for on-the-ground purchasers, to make their selections from

This sale will prove of immense benefit to every merchant who attends. It will enable him, upon his return, to conduct a sale of the goods he has bought, reaping the benefit in his own store by giving his patrons REAL BARGAINS. The sale comes at a time of year when retail stocks are depleted and will afford every merchant an unusual opportunity to "fill in" at a big saving.

St. Louis wants a closer alliance with her "trade territory." St. Louis Dry Goods Houses have broken all previous sales records this year. They mean to shatter this year's records in 1906. This sale at the prices offered constitutes the first grand move for new records.

SALES OPEN 9:00 A. M. MONDAY, NOV. 13, AND CONTINUE UNTIL 6 P. M. SATURDAY, NOV. 18. "FIRST COME, FIRST SERVED."

To emphasize—Every merchant should attend this sale—it is an opportunity to "pull up" the year 1905 with bigger sales than he can see in his regular trade.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE WITH ALL RAILROADS TO DELIVER GOODS WITH UNUSUAL PROMPTNESS.

"The Cambridge Press, 1629-1692." A bibliographical account of the first printing press established in English America...

"The Declaration of Independence, Its History." By J. H. Hazleton. Limited edition, 100 copies, on special paper, with extra illustrations.

Dodd, Mead & Co. publish "My Life: A Record of Events and Opinions," by Alfred Russel Wallace, who is recognized as one of the leading scientific men of the day.

In a conversation with the author of "The Resurrection of Miss Cynthia," the question was asked: "How did you come to think of the plot?"

"Nedra" was not the title McCutcheon originally gave to his new novel. He first suggested Pootoo's Idols.

There has just been issued another Elsie book. Martha Finley has charmed many children, yet Elsie continues to be the most widely read about girl in America.

In spite of the fact that there are twenty-seven Elsie books, the first of which was read by the mothers of the present generation, there never were more Elsie book readers, there never were more Elsie books sold than today, and a new Elsie book is assured a hearty welcome.

"Great Portraits Described by Great Writers," by Esther Singleton, is just out. In this volume are reproduced the portraits of famous men and women of the world, and the illustrations are accompanied by the thoughts and impressions which great writers have expressed concerning them.

"Minutes of the Committee of Safety meeting in the City of Fort Worth, 27th August, 1874, to the 24th November, 1875." Carefully edited and annotated and illustrated with portraits, views and facsimiles. SMART SET.

"Bondage," by Edna Kenton, is the title of the complete novel, a story of a newspaper woman who marries a young and prosperous lawyer for the sake of the home he can provide for her, the awakening to a realization of her selfishness, her craving for a taste of her old life in the old surroundings, and her struggle against the influence of a man who had formerly loved her.

"Dale's at Eight," by Ralph Henry Barbour, is a story of a young bachelor at a theater on Christmas eve. "A Telephone Exchange," by Inez Haynes Gillmore, and "But Once a Year," by Ellis Parker Butler, are tales full of the holiday spirit.

"The Immoralist," by Frederic Fern. The essay is called "Little Journeys," by H. G. Dwight. Poems by Arthur Stringer, Clinton

Alice MacGowan and Grace MacGowan Cooke, Joint Authors of "Return"

The heroine of "Return," Diana Chaters, is the belle of the colonial city of Charles Town, S. C., in the early eighteenth century, and the hero is a young Virginian of the historic name of Marshall. Like "The Last Word," "Return" is first of all a love story, and shows exceptional strength in the purity and finish of its literary style as well as in its warmly human and spontaneous tone.

Scollard, Elsa Barber, C. F. Rooper, Virginia Woodward Cloud, Emma Bell Miles and Grace MacGowan Cooke, with the usual abundant supply of humor also appear.

THE TECHNICAL WORLD

Those who imagine that the automobile is a recent invention will be surprised to learn that it was invented over 125 years ago. Malcolm McDowell thus describes its early history in his article, "Anti-Auto Riots of 1820."

EVERYBODY'S

Effort has been made to make the Christmas number strong in fiction. The first installment of Rex E. Beach's romance of the Alaskan gold fields, "The Spoilers," indicates that this is a pretty close approximation of the long-sought-for "American novel." It is a stirring story, and it is not, as certain intriguing politicians will observe, entirely the product of Mr. Beach's imagination.

POPULAR

Commander McTurk is an officer of the United States navy, on the retired list, but his disposition isn't at all retiring, for he is constantly getting into scrapes and situations, all of which Cutcliffe Hynes describes. Other features worthy of special mention in the December issue are Louis Joseph Vance's fine complete novel, "The Craft of Kings," and the new serial by Richard Marsh, called "A Plunge into the Unknown." There are four other serials, of a sort well calculated to hold the attention of readers from month to month, which are: "The Mamelouk of Shinoburo," by Clinton Dangerfield; "In Chinatown," by Charles K. Mosser; "The Coming of Angel," by B. M. Bower; "Winslow, Navy Half-Back," by Philip C. Stanton; "Because of the Kid," by Dennis H. Stovall, and a half dozen other good, lively short stories complete the number.

AINSLIE'S

Edith Wharton has the beginning of a two-part story, which promises to be as extraordinary a piece of literary work as "The House of Mirth," which has just been published. "The Introducers," her new story, deals with another aspect of high society which Mrs. Wharton so graphically summed up in Lily Bart. Frederick Tilney and Miss Grantham belong to the same type of society people as the fascinating heroine of "The House of Mirth," a type of which the outsiders see and hear comparatively little and that little only vaguely, but of whom they must know much more after reading Mrs. Wharton's convincing and masterly descriptions, "The Introducers," following the publication of "The House of Mirth," will be the principal magazine event of a notable year.

There is a story by Lloyd Osborne which will probably be received as one of the best published this year. It is entitled "Mr. Bob," and has an immense advantage, besides that of being by Mr. Osborne, of being a genuine Christmas story far different from the general run of such tales. It is a narrative of pathetic interest and, though given an entirely original setting, is thoroughly convincing and life-like in every detail. It is also a story of absorbing interest.

May Manton Fashions

5200 Five Gored Skirt, 22 to 30 waists.

Every variation of the plaited skirt is greatly in vogue and each new one seems more attractive than the last. Here is one of the latest of all models that is made with a kilted flounce and plain upper portion and which will be found especially satisfactory for wear under the long coats, although it is desirable for every use of the season. As illustrated, the material is lightweight cheviot, stitched with holding silk, but all the skirtings and all the fittings that are not too heavy to be plaited successfully are appropriate. In addition to serving for the coat suit and for the separate skirt, it will be found a most desirable model for the simpler entire gowns for indoor wear, so that it covers nearly every possible use.

LET US FURNISH YOUR HOME

THE NEW HOME had been finished, every little detail had been looked into, the finishing touches had all been made, and now the furnishing time had come. As in almost every case, to build the house had cost more than the amount set aside; for this reason the owners sat up late trying to cut out many needful articles of furniture that had first been planned, thinking that they could do without, when this thought came to them: Why not go to the ELLISON FURNITURE AND CARPET COMPANY and select what we need, pay what we can, and then pay a small amount each month. They advertise that they will sell as cheap on credit as for cash---why not look into this matter? "But," says the wife, "suppose you should get sick, what then?" "Well, they say they will help us out; they will carry it until we can pay; in fact such propositions you never heard of. My friends all tell me to buy there. Then they carry everything we need, furniture, carpets, mattings, stoves, etc."

Pouting Polly, and How She Was Cured. By Maud Walker.

Polly was really not a bad little girl, but she often had spells of pouting. Perhaps there are other little girls and boys, too, who have formed the same bad habit. If so, let them read this story.

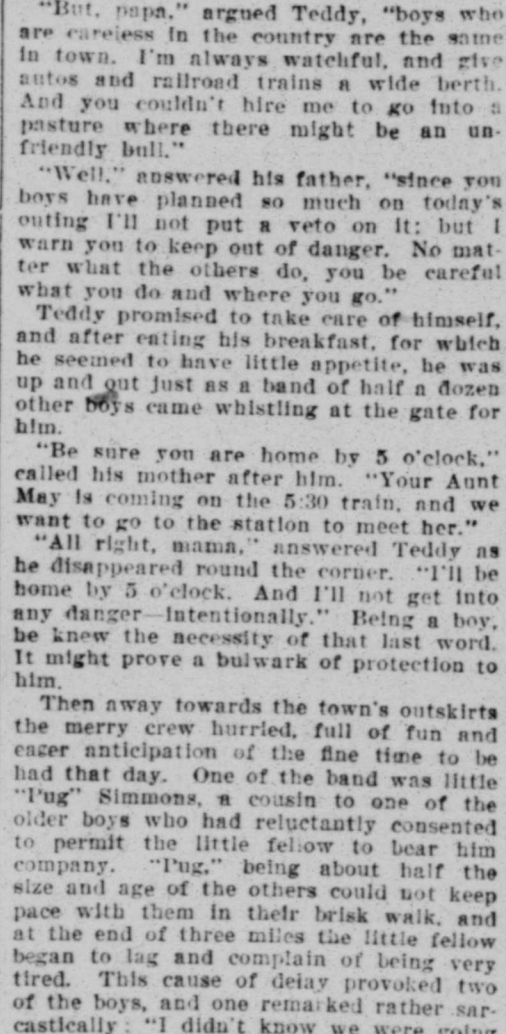

The little girl would slam the door and make a hideously ugly noise.

Now, Polly was the only child of a pair of loving parents, and, therefore, she was somewhat "spoiled"; that is to say, Polly had her own way in most everything, and on occasions when she was denied this privilege—well, she behaved quite naughtily, immediately indulging in her pouting spells. Sometimes she wanted too much sugar on her oatmeal—her sugar in great quantities was not good for Polly—and when her mama shook her head Polly would angrily throw down her spoon on the table, or sometimes on the floor, and stink her lips out dreadfully. Again, Polly would insist on running out in the rain without overboots and waterproof on, and when her mama objected to such conduct the little girl would slam the door and make a hideously ugly noise.

By correctly joining the above curved lines "Helpful Hester" will appear. Answer next week.

Courageous Teddy, and the Way He Saved the Life of Little "Pug". By William Wallace, Jr.

It was a splendid Saturday morning in early December. The air nipped one's ears just enough to make one know that old winter was only resting a bit before waking up to blow his breath furiously from the north with a roar.

"Crying Chris." Answer to last week's curved-line puzzle.

On Friday afternoon several of the public school boys had planned a long jaunt into the country the following morning if the weather was fine, and before sun-up Teddy Travers was out of bed and at the window to learn the prospects for the day's weather. "Out of sight!" he joyously exclaimed, and in another five minutes he was fully dressed and going down stairs astride the banister—a means of descent much more to Teddy's liking than the steps. "Breakfast almost ready, mama!" he cried, running into the dining room, where his mother was setting the table for the morning meal. "You know I want an early start, and all the kids will be here for me before I'm ready 'less I get a move on me."

Not a boy had anything to say to this. They all knew that when Teddy Travers said a thing he meant it, and wouldn't stand any meddling from others. So on they marched towards Stone Creek, still and very silent. On the banks of this timbered stream stood a huge sawmill and the miller's home nearby. At the farm house the boys intended to procure lunch, then, on to the mill and watch the logs being cut the great logs for an hour, and then take a turn through the woods

In search for allperry-elm. About noon the band reached its destination, and little "Pug" was about "tuckered out," as Teddy expressed it. The miller and his good wife gave the boys a cordial welcome and readily prepared places for them at the big dining table. After the meal, which was heartily enjoyed by the half-famished boys, they paid their bill and ran down to the mill for a visit. Once inside the big, noisy place little "Pug's" eyes became heavy with drowsiness, and Teddy advised spreading some coats in the corner of one of the rooms, where the little fellow might take a nap while the others roamed about the adjoining woods. Teddy spoke to the miller's son about "Pug," and told him they would soon return for him. More asleep than awake, his legs too tired to stand another step, and his small stomach bulging with the big dinner he had eaten, "Pug" was soon on the pallet and fast asleep.

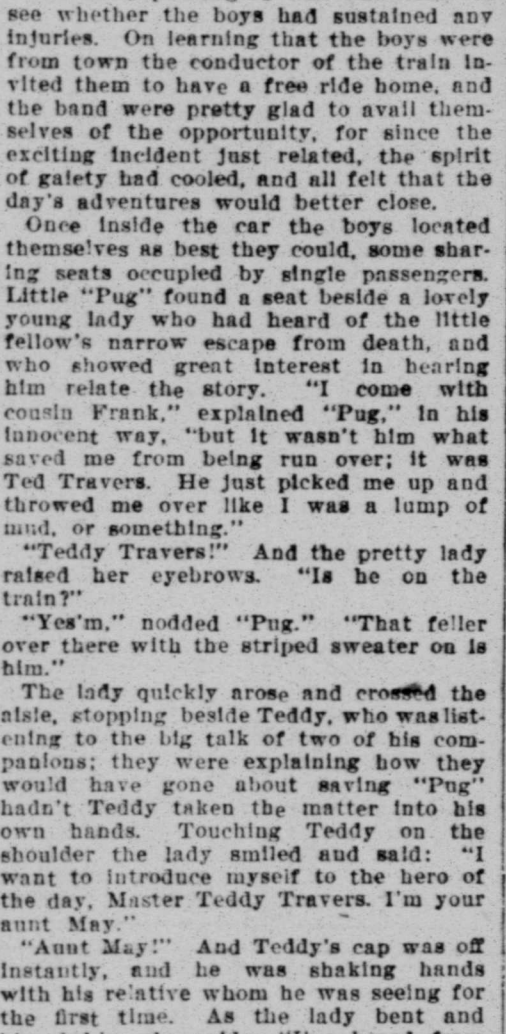

After quite a little nap "Pug" awoke, looking about him in a dazed way. Then he remembered where he was; but he did not remember that the boys were to come for him. In fact, he had been so exhausted from the long walk, and so sleepy, too, that he had not heard the plan discussed; and the miller's son had gone down to look after some logs on the bank, which left little "Pug" quite alone. Rising and rubbing his eyes wide, the little fellow looked about him and was now on their way home. Becoming frightened, "Pug" ran from the mill towards the speed of the flying train; but this seemed impossible, as they were running down grade. When the engine got within 200 feet of Teddy and "Pug," Teddy was seen to lift his companion in his arms and drop him over the side of the trestle-work into the swamp, 10 feet below. Then his own body quickly sprang, and he landed on his feet in the cold mud just as the great heaving, panting train dashed over the spot he had that instant vacated. The horrified boys ran to the spot where Teddy was picking "Pug" out of the mud. They all pressed around Teddy, trying in their boyish ways to express their admiration of his brave act. With tears flowing from his eyes, now that all was over, Frank folded his little cousin to his breast while he sobbed out his thanks to Teddy for having saved the dear child's life.

"Why, I didn't do anything to make a fuss over," said Teddy, pushing the boys aside. He was a modest fellow and prize caused him to become ill at ease. "Why, boy, you put yourself in danger of death," said "Pug's" father, "I declared one of his companions."

The Way We Mix Things Up.

Old Mrs. Winter, way up in the clouds, Was picking her geese one cold day; The feathers and down to earth fell fast, And she heard the people all say:

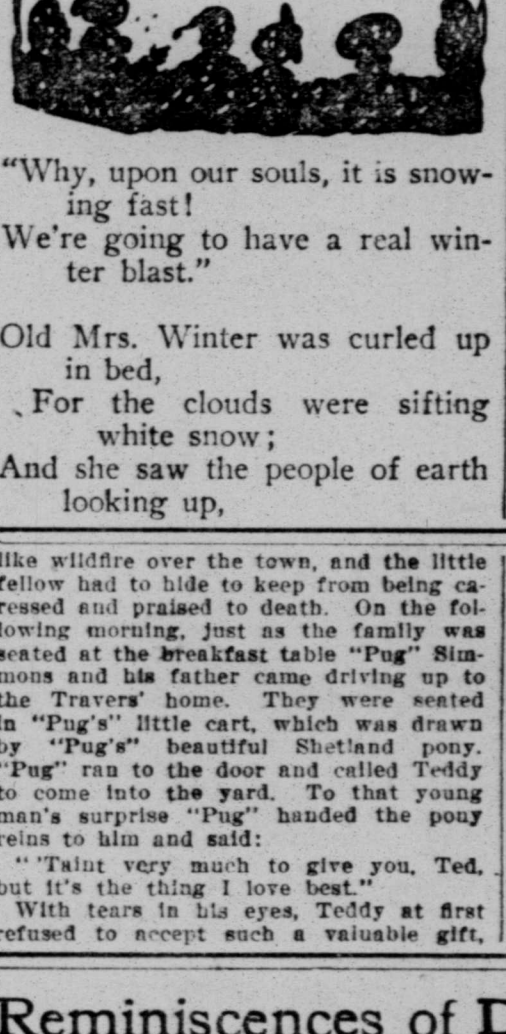

Why, upon our souls, it is snowing fast! We're going to have a real winter blast."

And she heard them laughing below, As they said: "The old woman's picking her geese; We're likely to have a bit of freeze." Then old Mrs. Winter smiled as she said: "I certainly would like to know Why snow is called feathers by people of earth, And feathers are straightway called now. Of all the strange things under the sun,

HELENA DAVIS.

Reminiscences of Davy Crockett, Pioneer, Hunter & Soldier. By Mary Graham.

Perhaps all children are familiar with certain historical data in the life of Davy Crockett, that strangest of strange figures that flourished in the United States of America during the early part of 1800.

Young Davy Crockett on his lone journey homeward.

And perhaps all children know that he was a brave hunter, a fearless Indian fighter and courageous soldier; that he was a man of unique character, possessing eccentric traits that he was unlettered and reared like a cub wolf by illiterate parents in the trackless forests. They must also know that he was a life of wildness and adventure in the midst of a primitive environment which was in this age of enlightenment and luxury, cannot conceive of; that he was elected to Congress from Tennessee; that he became the war personal friend of General Jackson; that he joined the Texans in their revolt against Mexico, was taken prisoner at Fort Alamo and massacred by Santa Anna in 1836.

But how many have read of the hardships and struggles of his boyhood? One incident from a volume full of such, is related here.

never manage to walk to the mill. Teddy hadn't said a word, but stood watching the face of little "Pug" which wore a dejected expression.

How little did poor "Pug" know of the swiftness of an express train. Just at this moment Teddy and his companions were returning to the mill for "Pug." They had come the same route followed by "Pug," and had just missed him at the approach to the trestlework. When the train whistled blew the boys ran up the bank to catch a sight of it in passing.

"It's the lightning express!" exclaimed Frank. "Get, see how she comes!—like the wind!" Then his eyes fell on the form of little "Pug," who was running along the ties. "For heaven's sake, look!"

Not a boy had anything to say to this. They all knew that when Teddy Travers said a thing he meant it, and wouldn't stand any meddling from others. So on they marched towards Stone Creek, still and very silent. On the banks of this timbered stream stood a huge sawmill and the miller's home nearby. At the farm house the boys intended to procure lunch, then, on to the mill and watch the logs being cut the great logs for an hour, and then take a turn through the woods

Dainty and Becoming Mode IN ALL OF THE FASHIONABLE BELTS

THE EMPIRE MODE IN CARACUL

The Empire Mode in Caracul. Nowhere more beautifully than in furs does the Empire mode declare all of its bewitching grace and charm. It goes without saying that it is the short and close-haired furs that are indicated in this connection; and of those there is none more modish at the moment than caracul. A really beautiful example of this is displayed in the illustration, in which a carriage coat of caracul is shown fashioned after the Empire style. The characteristically short body part has a high rolling collar, the fronts formed into shawl-shaped revers, and the skirts approaching a circular form in cut. Little touches of royal purple velvet, embroidered in gold and silver, are deftly applied; and the handsome buttons that make for a further decoration, as well as affording a fastening, are of this same royal genre. The sleeve is very full in the upper portion, tapering prettily from the forearm, and dropping into a velvet decked cuff at the wrist. A fancy black and gold passementerie—the gold predominating—is used to bind the front edges with excellent effect. The chapeau presents several points of novelty. First the tilt of the shape, the steep band on the back making a downward tilt over the forehead, and the smart disposition of the white plumes, those starting from the ribbon roses in the front, and the tips gracefully draped over a similar trimming in the back. The original is in a maroon, or chestnut-brown velvet, with black moire ribbons and the white plumes.

the smart hussar cords lend the last touch of style. The only trimming upon the chapeau is a bunch of ostrich tips posed at the left side, and the muffs left entirely without extraneous adornment.

SABLES AND VELVET

NO WOMAN that ever owned herself a daughter of Eve could resist the fascinations of furs. From the Esquimaux, way up at the North Pole, with their semi-civilized ways and habits, right on up the scale to the elegantes of our own country and civilization, one and all freely acknowledge the especial fascination that furs and furry effects declare for them.

All of the pelts that have established a certain amount of vogue for themselves again well to the front upon Dame Fashion's catalogue, and the furrier presents them in new and attractive guises so fetching, indeed, that one loses sight of the fact that the furs themselves present no novelty, but the mode and method of their making does.

Only in rare instances has ermine attained the same appreciation in this country that it does in its own home, Russia. While we Americans oftentimes imagine that we occupy the place of honor among the spenders of the earth, those who have lived in Russia and associated with that nation unobtrusively record them the palm for extravagance. Over these entire garments of ermine are by no means uncommon, and that in full adult sizes, too. Here it is made use of mainly for small pieces and for trimming effects, and costly enough it is, too, in even those small touches.

For carriage wear there are some delightfully modish garments fashioned together of this snowy fur, pliantly punctuated with the characteristic black and yellow tails. Deep capes are displayed in the exclusive furrier's show-cases, and there are some loose coats quite in accord with the present Parisian craze for the caraco, as they term the little short and loose jacket that touches the body at the shoulders only, and hangs loose and full from there.

The latest caprice of Miladi Modish calls for chapeau and furs to match. The former section of society lean mightily to ermine for this fall, and there are really charming designs displayed that carry out this caprice to perfection. The way that the milliner and the furrier are borrowing from each other's stock is marvellous, and more than one of the former whose names are accepted as a guarantee that their goods are of the finest, have put in a milliner as a part of their staff this autumn. It is not every milliner, however, that knows how to handle furs, and there is no doubt that many a clever one has taken a post-graduate course in the trade this winter in the furrier's workshop.

Quite after the Russian mode is a set in this same snowy fur. There is a short and conspicuously loose coat that comes well over the curve of the hip and displays for its sole trimming a group of spotted white silk hussar cords either side of the front fastening. A modification of the hussar toque, altogether in ermine, makes the chapeau, just a bunch of white ostrich tips nodding jauntily at the side providing a suitable trimming; while the muff, a flat, pouch-shaped affair of fully semi-circular shape, the left top is trimmed. The beauty of the fur is considered sufficient adornment, and the hint at trimming touches is barely enough to set off the fur, but not sufficient to distract attention from the chic plainness of the garments.

Caracul is the reigning favorite in what one might term utilitarian furs, and it is equally effective, no matter what the mode of its making. Unlike ermine, which, in spite of its widespread vogue, hardly seems suited for everyday and knockabout wear, caracul adapts itself to all occasions. Here it is seen chiefly in black, although the undyed pelt, a creamy white, is made much use of. A snooks gray and a canor brown, too, are highly fashionable, and with velvet and velveteen costumes it is quite a fad to have the caracul coat and trimmings dyed to match the gown. This tones in beautifully with some of the best shades in gray and brown on the color card. One was recently seen in dark green, but although the color itself was pretty, the effect, a green fur, was not altogether pleasing. It was too suggestive of a freak, and looked what it was—unnatural.

Moleskin is another hold-over from last season, but this year the embroideress has put in some of her most effective work upon this quiet and unobtrusive looking fur. Indeed, what with a milliner and more than one embroidery worker safely ensconced in the furrier's workshop, one tends to wonder just where the caprice of fashion will stop.

Persiana, a Persian lambswool, while not strictly among the furs, still resembles the Persian pelt so closely that even the furrier does not disdain to use it. In fact, anything and everything that looks like fur is made up after fur fashions this year. While a certain amount of technical skill is required to handle furs successfully—and hence the high price demanded for even the simplest alterations or making over of furry possessions—this Persiana can be handled by even the average dressmaker to good effect. All that there is to remember is that the rules governing the cutting of the velvet and velveteen be followed. The grain and the nap must all lie one way—that's all.

Some of the best shops are showing really exquisite garments in the fabric. The Empire mode is truly charming, and there is a grace and a dignity to the sweeping, unbroken lines presented. The short and loose little caraco, too, goes well in this, and there are Etons, military tunics and smart bagged blouse gowns to choose from.

Sealskin one does not see so much of this season; but squirrel is presented under so many guises that other furs are not missed. The dark gray squirrel is in high vogue for long garments, as well as for linings, and the sabled squirrel—it is dyed varying brown to copy Russian sable colorings, which it does to a miracle—is shown in all sorts of effective designs.

There are far fewer of what one might term the freakish—or the doormat—furs, as one clever observer terms them, this year. Quiet and dignified tones prevail, and while there are some very chic garments in Russian pony, sea lion, civet and coisskin, they are, happily, in the minority. Beaver is coming well to the front, and this not only for smart wraps, but for trimming purposes as well.

The muffs that the new season presents are so quaint, so fetching and so altogether charming that there will be difficulty in choosing but one from any good selection. In spite of the seeming extravagance of the modes, there is an underlying economy that cannot fail to commend itself to the possessors of choice furs. The latest muffs in sable or caracul have the whole skins draped over the down bed, or foundation, so that they are not cut into, and thus are available for other purposes when the mode changes. The cascade, or shower, muff is one of the newest conceits, and it employs whole sable or ermine skins after this mode, long tails hanging down in a cascade. A round dozen of skins are needed for this design, and the price is in keeping. Big pillows—and they suggest rather than pillows—and the semicircular pouch shape are still in good standing, and the scarf is seen in several shapes and sizes.

DESCRIPTION OF ILLUSTRATIONS

The combination of sables and velvet—or, for that matter, almost any dark velvet or velveteen—is even more highly approved this winter than ever before. Over an amethyst velveteen trimmed with real Irish crochet is worn a blouse of exquisitely dark and rich Russian sable, the roll shawl collar being faced with ermine, this bringing the flatteringly becoming soft and white fur next to the face. The back of the coat is closely fitted, ending in a smart postillion below the waist, while the fronts are softly bloused into a deep celture of brown velvet and gold braid. The sleeve a fashionably full, ending above the wrist with a loose hand cuff, and a lace ruffle finishing out the length to the hand. The muff is one of those new "shower" affairs, the whole skins draped over a down body, so that they are not cut into, and further whole skins, with extra sets of tails, forming the shower effect.

After the Russian Mode.

Ermine obtains an amount of favor in Russia that seems somewhat lacking for it in other lands. Whole garments of this snowy pelt, pliantly punctuated with the little black and yellow tails, are by no means uncommon among the Russian nobility and the wealthier of the middle classes. There is a Parisian air in the set pictured, the loose caraco, pillow muff and roose-shaped turban being all trimmed judiciously applied to the hat and coat. This coat follows the very loose and easy shape that is in such vogue just now, there being a graceful outward sweep to its lines from the shoulders down, the garment ending just below the curve of the hips. The standing collar is arranged with a scarf effect, the two tabs overlapping at the throat, and

FASHIONS IN FALL FOOTWEAR

DESIRABLE TYPES IN WINTER SHOES

FASHIONS in footwear occupy relatively as much attention as do those mutable and varying features in other departments of dress. In fact, the old French adage concerning good gloves and good shoes was never so obvious of application as it is just at this present moment.

The vogue of the walking skirt has done more to bring about this delectable state of affairs than any other factor. With the shoe—and when the modish pump is worn, the hosiery as well—so clearly on view, it behooves the clever dresser to take heed of the fact that those items are in strict accordance with the rest of the toilette, and are on a par with the prevailing and correct mode as well.

One point, if none other, will mark the very latest productions of the fashionable shoemaker, and that is the stout sole which he puts on all shoes intended for daylight and outdoor wear. It is a good, firm sole, extending slightly from the heel to the ball, and is always a dancing slipper that takes the paper-tin turned sole this season; and to wear such a betise. For once style and common sense go hand in hand, and comfort is the distinguishing hall-mark of a fashionable shoe.

The pump refuses to be banished with the summer time; and there are some very fetching designs in this addition to the shoe box. The newer ones are cut rather more than a trifle higher on the instep, and set in closely around the ankle. This is intended to obviate the tendency to slip-slip, which even the most enthusiastic advocate of the pump has had to complain of; and that it has worn out a startling array of stockings there is no denying, as more than one would-be fashionable is compelled to admit. However, the new cut is expected to silence this wail, and a good thing it is if it does, for the hosiery that the best shops are showing is far too exquisite to be recklessly sacrificed to the whims and caprices of a shoe that the shoemakers should know how to make behave itself.

The sliken stocking is what Dame Fashion commands, not only for wear with smart costumes of velvet or velveteen—where it seems to be the only logical style—but likewise with those practical tailors' makes that are worn for walking and general everyday knockabout use. This new pump is supposed to be worn right along throughout the winter by the woman whose ankles are not weak. The later days when the snow flies and the stormy winds do blow, smart spats or uppers are provided en suite with her street costumes to match the gown. This is a more practical plan than the French woman follows, for she has shoes made for each costume, the vamp of a shiny black leather and the upper of the material of the gown or to match it.

And, incidentally, so firm a place has the spat made for itself in current fashions that there are shoes made altogether of leather that display a strap under the instep to buckle on the inner side of the foot. The shoe dealer claims that this affords some support to the arch of the sole, and possibly it may. It looks, however, more like a little freak of fashion than anything else, giving the effect of a spat where none is worn, and tending to make the wearing of one such a clumsy affair, should it be needed with that shoe. However, the fad will doubtless find followers among those who take up each new thing enthusiastically. Novelty is the only merit in their eyes.

For this new pump the same square and stiff little Quaker bow of ribbon is retained; but there is still another loop added to it in its latest appearances. The bow comes higher up on the instep, too, which accounts for its increased size, and a dull gros grain has been accorded the pas. Ribbon lacings are shown in the smart shops for laced shoes; but the bow at the bottom of the lacing is already declared passe. Just the bow necessary to fasten at the top is all that a well-dressed foot will display.

There is quite a distinct vogue for the buttoned shoe—and, en passant, the buttons are much larger than heretofore—having a dull matte top and a very shiny japanned vamp. This vamp is without seam or toecap if it is to follow the very latest mode, and the toe is a trine pointed, rather than round. A square-toed shoe would not dream of showing itself in the present fashion, any neither would one of those toothpick-pointed affairs that were prominent some seasons ago.

The heel to the autumn and winter shoes is altogether a matter of individual preference, for which one should be thankful. The shape of the foot is the sole criterion. The very high Louis heel is quite a la mode for those whose instep and heel are so shaped, and this for street and walking purposes as well as for indoor and dress wear. The steeple heel is intended for the girl whose under instep is not so very much arched, but who, nevertheless, likes quite a high heel, and the Cuban and military designs are still in good standing.

All of the heels are quite a little higher this year, and even the ribbed boot is a sensible lift to heel and instep. And, incidentally, it is the black japanned boot that is nowadays the only correct thing for saddle and driving wear—just that kind of leather that one imagines might be treated and polished just as the glittering harness is. Ordinary kid or russet is quite out of the picture, so far as equestrian use is concerned.

The hosiery that accompanies all of those smart shoes is preferably of silk, as already hinted. For outdoor wear there are good, stout stockings of a two-thread silk that will outlast and outwear many pairs of cotton or cashmere. Just a simple clock up the ankle is all that is needed for their adornment, but the lengths of elaboration that the evening stocking displays more than amply makes up for the plainness of the other. All sorts of trimming schemes are indicated—lace insertions, tiny ruffles—embroideries hand-worked floral designs—pretty well scattered, be it noted—and occasionally a little openwork to vary the design. All of those are prominent in the current displays.

1. LEANDER: "What! Go around to the gate to get the water when I can climb right over this wall? Not much. Why, it is a mile walk around to the gate."
 POPPER: "Better take the walk all the same, Leander."
 MOMMER: "Oh no, he wants trouble, he does."
 LULU: "Now please don't be rash, Leander."

2. LULU: "Oh, Leander, do be careful. I feel some harm will come to you. Remember what kind of a place that is."
 POPPER: "Come down, Leander. We can get water further up the road."
 MOMMER: "It's trouble he's after—not water."
 LEANDER: "Oh, you people make me laugh with your fears."

3. LULU: "Oh! oh! oh! There he goes! Hear those awful howls. The inmates have dragged him over the wall."
 POPPER: "Hi, Leander, come back! Come back!"
 MOMMER: "Let him stay there. That's where he belongs."
 LEANDER: (A prolonged yell.)

4. LEANDER'S VOICE: "HELP! FIRE! POLICE!"
 LULU: "Oh! O-o-o-h! They are killing him piece by piece."
 MOMMER: "Only so they keep him there, I'm satisfied."
 POPPER: "Geet! It sounds as if something was doing."
 (Wild chorus on other side of wall.)

5. CHORUS OF INMATES: "Ha! ha! How dare you invade the Sacred Temple of Dippydip! Avaunt, base plebeian! King Solomon casts you out! The Great Dotty casts you out! We all cast you out from these sacred confines! Now give him the college yell. Dippy Dee! Who are we? We are the guests of old P-p-s-e-e! Whoopi! RAH! Whoopi! RAH! GEE!"

6. LULU: "You should be thankful you weren't killed. Never mind your clothes; you can put them on when we get away from this awful place."
 POPPER: "Yes, hurry up. That keeper threatens to arrest us for disturbing the inmates."
 MOMMER: "Hard luck! Why didn't they keep him there?"
 LEANDER: "Ye gods! This is worse than Dante's Inferno."

1. GRANDPA: "Now, Muddy, you climb over and put your head through the hole. I'll fasten on the doll's body, and we will fool the boys and have a good laugh."

2. GRANDPA: "Come on, boys, come on out and see Shorty, the wonderful midget, the smallest man on earth."

3. BOYS: "We will move the hive just a little closer, then for Gran'pa. The bees will soon get busy."

4. BOYS: "Goodness, Gran'pa how wonderful. We are sorry we did not hear you calling sooner. But what is the matter with him, Gran'pa? He looks nervous."

5. BOYS: "Oh, dear, look, Gran'pa, he is going to have a fit. Are all midgets so nervous?"

6. BOYS: "Oh, Gran'pa, it is only our friend Muddy Slowfoot. Why, you are just having fun with us as usual."
