SAILORS MUTINY AT SEVASTOPOL

4,000 Men Reported in Revolt Against Russian Authority

SEVASTOPOL, Nov. 27.—The long expected mutiny of sailors who have been on the verge of revolt for months has come and Russia's stronghold on the Black Sea is in danger of falling completely into their hands.

The situation is very critical. All the shore equipages, numbering 4,000 men, are in open rebellion, having driven away or taken their officers prisoners.

The Brest regiment of infantry has some over in a body to the mutineers. General Koptsev, the commander of the fortress, is a captive.

The Brest regiment, the only other regiment in the city, received the mutineers with cheers, but thus far it seems loyal.

Some of the artillerymen have also joined the men in revolt. Besides the Brest regiment, there are two battalions of artillery and a battalion of the fortress artillery here.

The Buxine fleet is standing in the offing and is still obeying the orders of Vice Admiral Chaiknin, but the crews are dissatisfied and there is grave doubt whether they can be restrained from joining the mutineers and greater doubt that they will fire upon them.

The Seventh army corps and the commander of the corps have been hastily summoned from Simferopol, eight hours distant.

There is every evidence that the mutiny was deliberate and perfectly planned by the social revolutionaries, who have been pushing their propaganda with great energy since the St. Petersburg movement was organized to save the Cronstadt mutineers.

The Associated Press is informed by an official of the admiralty that the reports received up to this hour showed there had been no conflict at Sevastopol yesterday. So far as the official knew, the crews of the Black Sea fleet were still loyal, but beyond that no information was forthcoming.

It is not known whether the troops which were ordered to proceed from Simferopol have arrived at Sevastopol.

WOMEN CAUSE ARREST

Female Residents Near Indianapolis Saloons Are Watchers

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Indianapolis says: Every woman who lives near a saloon in this city made it her business yesterday to assist the police in keeping the "lid" on. As a result seven arrests were made, one of them a grocer, for illegal sales of liquor.

Before noon women had telephoned the police of five violations of the law and in every case the saloon was found doing business on the sly.

Throughout the state there seems to be about the same vigilance as is exercised here and all cities and towns report that the "lid" is on to a degree that has never before been known.

ELIOT WILL NOT CALL A MEETING

Harvard President Not to Take Steps to Abolish Football

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 27.—President Eliot of Harvard stated last night that he would not call a meeting of university and college presidents to undertake the reform or abolition of football. A request that he call such a meeting was received by Professor Eliot in a telegram from Chancellor McCracken of New York University, after the death of Harold P. Moore of the Union College football team.

"I have not replied to Chancellor McCracken's telegram," said President Eliot. "I expect to write a letter soon, but I shall decline to take the action requested. I cannot see why such action should come from me. It should come from the board of overseers of the corporation."

When asked whether he thought such a movement was contemplated, President Eliot said: "I know absolutely nothing about it."

OLD TREATY FOUND

La Presna Publishes Alleged Russo-German Treaty Signed by Bismarck and Westmann

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The Herald prints the following cable dispatch from Buenos Ayres, Argentina: La Presna published Sunday a facsimile of a secret treaty between Germany and Russia ratified at Versailles March 3, 1871, and signed by Bismarck and Westmann.

M. Rouvier, to whom it was submitted, said that the document seems to be authentic, though nobody knew of its existence. It probably is the scheme of an alliance negotiated at Versailles between Bismarck and the Russian agent, Westmann.

It bears the seal of the secret chancellery of the Russian foreign office.

MYTILENE OCCUPIED

Orders of International Fleet to Seize City Sunday Were Not Countermanded

CONSTANTINOPLE, Via Sofia, Nov. 27.—Instructions to the commanders of the international fleet were to land detachments and occupy Mytilene at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon unless contrary orders reached them in the interim. P resumably, therefore, the capital island is now in the hands of the allied forces.

It was arranged in an interview between Twefik Pasha, minister of foreign affairs, and the British and Austrian ambassadors on Saturday, if by 8 o'clock Saturday night the ambassadors received written notification from the foreign minister promising the acceptance of the demands of the powers the ambassadors would telegraph to the fleet at Mytilene to suspend further operations.

Until Monday, however, no communication had been received, so the suggested instructions staying the hands of the commanders of the international fleet have not been dispatched.

MCCURDURY RESIGNS

President of Mutual Life, His Son and Son-in-Law Quit

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The World says: Mutual A. McCurdy, president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, has resigned. The date of his resignation depends only on the time required by the trustees to find his successor.

Quickly following the retirement of President McCurdy, his son, Robert H. McCurdy, general manager of the Mutual, and his son-in-law, Louis A. Thebaud, the general agent for New York, have resigned.

A tentative offer to head the company was made to James B. Forgan, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, who once was an Equitable director. His bank is one of the leading financial institutions of the middle west. Mr. Forgan declined to accept the offer.

Carnegie Criticizes Fees Paid by Syracuse Building Committee

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 27.—In a letter to the Syracuse public library board congratulating the city upon the completion of its new $200,000 library building, Andrew Carnegie, the donor, takes occasion to criticize the commission that erected the building for the expenditure of $13,000 or nearly 10 per cent of the cost of the building for inspectors' fees, attorneys' fees and architects' fees. Mr. Carnegie says he never heard of such a thing as attorneys' fees in connection with the building of his libraries and intimates that there has been a waste of funds.

Mr. Storey (an overseer of Harvard), according to the newspapers, is thinking of introducing a motion to abolish the game. However, he denied to me that he had any such intentions. He denied it to the newspapers, too, but they published it, nevertheless."

Fired Into House

Immediately fury was let loose, the soldiers took deliberate aim over the heads of the crowd and fired. The mob took up the cry, shouted, "They are harboring Jews! Throw down the Jews! Wreck the house!"

It was a trying time for us. We three were alone in the house, with several Russian servants, who were cowered with fright and who kept urging us to take refuge in the barn. MAJESTIC THEATER OPENS TONIGHT---ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM

THE NEW MAJESTIC THEATER.

The new Majestic theater in Jennings avenue, south of the postoffice, will be formally opened tonight.

A night shift of twelve men was used at the theater last night and by tonight the doors of one of the finest theater buildings in the state will be thrown open.

All of the actors for the opening bill arrived in the city Sunday.

Local Speakers to Aid

At the dedication exercises tonight Judge W. R. Booth, president of the Home Factory and Industrial Association, will act as master of ceremonies and will make an address.

The overture has been composed by Mr. Epstein and is a military piece entitled, "The Warrior's Dream."

Played With Theodore Thomas

Miss Josephine A. Jacoby is a remarkable girl violinist. She is a graduate of the Conservatory of Music at Leipzig.

Plays Part of Four Men

Thomas J. Keogh has struck what is to the "vaudeville" just the right thing—a rapid, breezy, original one-act play, susceptible of enactment within the usual vaudeville limit of twenty minutes.

The four male character parts of the play are interpreted by Keogh, who proves himself exceptionally clever in the protean feat of transforming his identity successfully from a unique lawyer to an eccentric German musician.

The little play is charming, and Mr. Keogh's earnest work is ably supported by the cleverness and intelligence of Miss Julia Ainsworth.

"The Way He Won Her" has added all sorts of fame and has filled Mr. Keogh's pockets with all kinds of money since he introduced this skit to the stages of the leading vaudeville theaters of the country.

The success of the Prosper troupe is only one illustration of the price foreign acts command in this country, when they are of the first class.

GRANT C. GODDARD, COMEDIAN.

some of the best positions on the comic stage.

The Original "Gloomy Gus"

Gus Bruno, who may be aptly called "The Eddie Foy of vaudeville," ranks as one of the best character comedians in the United States.

When a child, Miss Jacoby displayed remarkable talent as a violinist, and after appearing at a children's party in her home city at Racine, Wis., was offered a three years' course at Leipzig by a millionaire manufacturer of that city.

At the Way From Italy

Prospero Scrosoppi, Stefano Scrosoppi, Carmela Scrosoppi, Antoinette Scrosoppi and Jacinto Prieta are a long way from their sunny Italy when they show their wonderful proficiency in athletics at the Majestic.

These Italians, brothers and sisters, with the exception of Prieta, who is a cousin, constitute what is known professionally as the Prosper troupe of acrobats, one of those European novelties which are imported by the big theatrical agencies of New York and Chicago.

The Prosper troupe has been exhibiting in the United States, Canada and Mexico for two years, and this season chose their American experience. Under the direction of Prospero Scrosoppi, the family has accumulated a very neat fortune with which, like most Italians, they intend to make a home in their native lands against the coming of old age.

The success of the Prosper troupe is only one illustration of the price foreign acts command in this country, when they are of the first class.

MISS JULIA AINSWORTH, SUPPORTING THOMAS KEOGH.

A LIQUID AIR MARVEL.

$200 to $700 is a fair average of the salaries paid to these teams.

Last Season in Vaudeville

Orgerita Arnold, a new singer with a voice full of promise, will not be heard in vaudeville after this season.

The singer's very modest vogue since she arrived in this country from her home in Sydney, Australia, has kept her from asserting those vocal powers which have found her way in one bound, to higher triumphs.

It is equally as certain that few singers now appearing in public have the old world earnestness with which she invests her art.

The Little Australian woman has serious charms which is so winning in one for whom we feel greater triumphs are waiting. Patrons of the Majestic will have the chance to regard Miss Arnold quizzically because she may return to them later in a more resplendent setting.

Trained by Kindness

One of the most interesting things about Professor Rice's pony show is that Mr. Rice demonstrates plainly before his audience that animals can be trained entirely by kindness.

Professor Rice has in his collection a canine that has been starting the country for the past season with its feats. This dog mounts a ladder without assistance, to the height of forty feet, and makes a leap for life into a net held by attendants.

Another dog of the Rice show, rides ponies at breakneck speed, leaping from the back of the pony to the stage, and springing thence again to the back of the pony.

When the Mysterious Crucible, the liquid air feature of the opening bill, was shown in England, it attracted unusual attention.

RHEUMATISM THE TERROR OF WINTER Rheumatism is usually worse in Winter because of the cold and dampness and other changed conditions of the climate. The occasional twinges of the disease that are felt during the warmer weather are changed to piercing pains, the muscles become inflamed and swollen, the nerves get sore and excited, the bones ache, and Rheumatism, the terror of winter, takes possession of the system. Then the sufferer turns to the liniment bottle, the woolen clothes, the favorite plaster or some home remedy, in an effort to get relief. But Rheumatism is not a trouble that can be rubbed away or drawn out with a plaster; these things relieve the pain and reduce the inflammation, but do not reach the real cause of the trouble, and at the next exposure another attack comes on. Rheumatism is caused by a sour, acid condition of the blood. The refuse matter and bodily impurities which should be carried off through the channels of nature have been left in the system because of indigestion, weak kidneys, torpid liver and a general sluggish condition of the system. These impurities sour and form uric acid, which is absorbed by the blood and distributed to the different muscles, joints, nerves and bones, causing the painful symptoms of Rheumatism. S. S. S. goes to the root of the trouble and cures Rheumatism by cleansing the blood. It neutralizes the acids and filters them out of the circulation and sends a stream of pure, rich blood to all parts of the body. Then the pains cease, the inflammation subsides, the nerves are quieted, every symptom of the disease passes away, and the cure is permanent. S. S. S. is purely vegetable and does not injure the system as do those medicines containing Potash and other minerals. Book on Rheumatism and medical advice without charge. Texas soil. Thus was started the second grandest patriotic organization in the United States...

When the national organization of Mexican War Veterans met in Indiana, at Indianapolis, Mrs. Moore Murdock went there as a delegate from the Texas Mexican Veterans' Association.

She explained to the association the work she had done in Texas in organizing the congress and increasing the pensions for the old veterans...

Mrs. Moore Murdock's name and fame and ungrudging patriotism for the welfare and honor of these old veterans and their descendants will be remembered as long as there will be a true lineal descendant of the Mexican war veterans living, and she well deserves all the honor that is or can be conferred upon her.

E. D. SMITH'S ITINERARY
To The Telegram
WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Nov. 26.—R. E. Smith of Sherman, president of the Texas division of the Southern Cotton Association, writes me that it has been mutually agreed between the citizens of Sherman and Bonham that the date, Nov. 30, which was set for E. D. Smith of South Carolina to speak at Sherman, is changed to Bonham, where Mr. Smith will address the citizens of Bonham and Fannin county on Thursday, Nov. 30, 1905, at 1:30 p. m. instead of Sherman, as heretofore advertised.

The local papers throughout North Texas will please call attention to this change in Mr. Smith's itinerary.

Those who have heard Mr. Smith on this tour of sixteen appointments in different sections of Texas are delighted with his addresses, and strong organizations, composed of farmers, bankers and business men of each and every vocation, have been formed at the places so far visited.

The appointments yet to be filled by Mr. Smith are as follows: Cleburne on Monday, Nov. 27; Hillsboro, on Tuesday, Nov. 28; Waxahachie, on Wednesday, Nov. 29; Bonham, on Thursday, Nov. 30, and Paris, on Friday, Dec. 1. I have accompanied Mr. Smith to all the appointments he has so far filled, and I can assure my fellow citizens of Texas that, if they will turn out to the appointments here named and hear him, they will be highly interested and entertained and forever tenderer of our cotton state workers for the aims and objects sought to be attained by the Southern Cotton Association.

Here I wish to correct an error that frequently creeps into accounts of the meetings already held. This is not in any sense of the word a cotton growers' association. It is simply a cotton association formed at New Orleans last January by three thousand representative farmers and business men from each and every cotton growing state and looking solely to the planting and more particularly to the marketing of the greatest money producer on earth—"Cotton." Texas must and shall be organized and the men behind the movement, who constitute among the best citizens of Texas, say they will never let up until Grand Old Texas is thoroughly organized.

R. D. HUDSON,
Secretary Texas Division Southern Cotton Association.

GOING BACKWARD
To The Telegram
It is not often that the clock of civilization seems set back 5,000 years within a few moments, but such were the feelings of the writer when it was announced through the press that the Texas Synod sustains the complaint against the Fort Worth Presbytery in the case against Dr. Caldwell.

So reversed seems the old civilization timepiece that one feels inclined to look into the bowels of the earth for the time or century in which we live. Before going further the writer desires to say that he is not a member of Dr. Caldwell's church, but has had the pleasure of hearing his discourses on several occasions, and has always looked upon these discourses as being messages of love, charity and good-will to all mankind, devoid of sensational burrains and personal lambastings.

Base fight the sunlight and owls complain at the moon. When one soul says: "I grasp at deeper truth, I would understand more and more; I would drink deeper yet than my predecessors; this scripture is dark to me; I do not believe that it literally means what it is usually so interpreted to mean; the scriptures are not complete, but more yet will come, and the dark will be made light; parable and allegory will be laid bare and man-interpretations ignored," such a soul with such light and depths and heights must feel the pangs of groveling souls. Dr. Caldwell has felt these thrills because he plays not the Chinaman by ancestral worship or ritual worship when the spirit calls to higher and more useful things.

Bigotry is in the saddle on a high horse, trampling down that which kneels not to the beck and nod of arrogance. The "sainted I and the damned thou" have tipped from the hot dust and silent throngs of the days of Latimer and Luther and Huss and brazenly, hideously, savagely screamed, "Draw and quarter; hurl on to the spikes; imprison in the round tower; spike the tongue; cut the idle from the eyes, lest he read; not!" All this bigotry, goody-goody, egotistical, uncharitable, inhuman, unchristian and worse than pagan denunciation is in our midst, it is in the young life of the twentieth century, a carrion bird beaking the vitals of religious freedom, hedging God, paring Christ, tailoring the Holy Ghost in human rags. O, assumption! thou beast with a maw gusted with unclean things, leave out thy spew and purge thy sickened soul!

A man-interpretation of scripture is more or less questioned by his fellow, and the questioner is banned, pronounced as "not sound in doctrine." Lashes of the inquisition are yet waving and flourishing, falling where they dare.

Because one has said, from the honest depths of an honest heart, "These Bible stories are good, but the interpretation of them is a matter for our life, a lesson for the men, a literal thing, righteous (?) men raise hands in horror and cast a stone. O, professed followers of the Master, how your paths do warp! may not self-righteousness be sin? Who taught you to cast a stone, when He casts it not? A hidebound dogma is not religion. Is an ism of God? Hast thou, stonemaster, cornered the "straight and narrow way?"

The literal men, passing an eighteen hundred pound cannon through the eye of a cambric needle, stop, weigh not God and his Son, the Holy Ghost and the heart-works of man in the little squeaking balances of human invention poised over a point of profound ignorance. Surely Balaam left many asses in the world, for even unto this day should a shining angel of white pass by or poise to deliver a message the Balaam ass would always be near enough to bray forth his hee-haw.

O, clock of civilization, thy pendulum has swung back into the dark ages a moment, but the unnatural hands that swung thee shall fall palsied, and thy returning force shall beat into nothingness the strength, unchristian born, and thy upward pulse shall go into a new light and brotherly love be renewed by the bringing of the tidings that injustice cannot live and retaliation is as sure as the foundation of the throne of the Most High.

D. S. LANDIS,
Fort Worth, Texas.

POST PRAISES

BOY FAIRNESS

Says Proper Spirit Characterizes Younger Generation

C. W. Post of Washington, D. C., delivered an address on civic reforms at the Congregational church, corner of College and Pennsylvania avenues, Sunday morning.

Tendencies of the day in youth, illustrated by school life, and tendencies of government legislation through congress, illustrated by personal experience with lawmakers, to which were added general and specific propositions on proper management of human affairs in all lines, were discussed by Mr. Post. He said in part:

"Boys at school above all things should be taught a respect for fairness. In them should be inculcated those principles of fair dealing with their fellow man which form the foundation to American institutions. In the school room on the playground and at home fair play and honesty toward all with whom he comes in contact should be the rule from which he never varies, for the American boy is to be the American man and from the great crowd of young Americans are to come the helmsmen of the ship of state in the coming generations. Teach the boy that no man ever performed a wrong action that he did not, somehow, and somehow, pay for it, with compound interest. Teach him to grow up so that when a mayor is needed for a great and growing city like Fort Worth he will be a man that can be relied on to fill such a position with credit to himself and profit and prosperity to the city. Let him learn a true aversion for graft and a love for fair play and he is a man worthy of trust of the community and the offices of the public."

"Personal observation of the boys of this country has taught me that this sense of fair play is increasing and becoming to be the universal rule of action from the primary school to the last weeks at the university, showing that a great power for good is constantly at work underneath the surface of humanity."

"Sometimes the government needs a general and thorough house cleaning. If small abuses are not checked in time they finally grow into immense grafts and the cleaning is all the worse when it does come, as come it must. From the President down, the number of men ready to use the broom is increasing. And because the people demand it, I sometimes try a little sweeping myself and get a great many knocks for it, too. President Roosevelt turns the machine of government against several trusts that are operating against the interests of the people; immediately they are ready to cry him down. Lawson has been doing some good work in connection with the insurance business; he is involved intricately as a result. This character of work is going on all over the country."

"In my work at Washington I have discovered that there is crookedness underneath the surface and strongly entrenched. A representative of the people will hear a proposition, and if it is honest, he will probably agree with it in every particular, but when it comes to getting the bill through congress, you are likely to find him missing. It is sometimes said in more truth than humor that if a man should offer the government a handful of gold pieces it would probably take congress six months to pass a bill accepting the gift."

"When I investigated to learn who was blocking legislation for which I was working day and night I found a republican. When it was learned that I had certain knowledge in my possession, I was approached by members of the house and by senators and told that if I dared to tell what I knew the night life, that made me all the more strangled. It created a row, but the shot told at last. I don't mind telling you that the man was Senator Platt of New York."

Postage Payment
"Here is now a movement on foot to reduce the payment to railroads for carrying United States mails. The railroads now receive from $46,000,000 to $47,000,000 annually for transportation of mails, which makes about 8 cents per pound. This amount is believed to be very much in excess of what would bring a fair profit on the movement now proposed to reduce this amount to about $10,000,000 per year. There are ways to ascertain if this amount would be proper and I try to you that the latter figure would give the roads a handsome profit and thereby increase the scope of the postal department to the convenience of the public. But, when you want to reform measures through congress, the same old position invariably occurs, for the railroads, express companies and kindred interests not only have representatives at Washington to guard their interests, but have these men in the senate and house. I brought before the senate facts as to Platt, part of which he actually admitted, and the President pro tem of the senate refused to lay the matter before the senate. Only upon duly constituted orders did he finally introduce address, Mr. Post was careful to differentiate between the man and the method. He expressed pleasure at having been able to commend Senator Platt for some acts while opposing him for others. He then drew the distinctive between the physical and the spiritual man and expressed his conviction that there is a divinity in man which is real and indelible."

"I have in reverence to the Supreme Power and His incarnate Son, let us also take off our hats to the prince embodied in the common man." Mr. and Mrs. Post left Sunday night for the north.

FEW TRAMPS IN CITY
Officers Keep Fort Worth Well Cleared of Vagrants

Despite the usual winter migration of gentlemen of the road to the south, there is a decided absence of tramps in this city; in fact there has not been a time in the history of Fort Worth for the past decade where there were as few tramps, beggars and panhandlers as there is in the city at this time. These results are from a number of causes. One is the unremitting ef-

RESIDENCE ROBBED

Police Believe Organized Band Had Part in Entry of A. B. Cox's Home

The residence of A. B. Cox, 311 Wheeler street, was entered Sunday night between 8 and 10 o'clock and a watch, several gold rings and about 90 cents in small change taken after a thorough search of the premises for other articles of value. The matter was at once reported to the police and an investigation is being made. No arrests have been made.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox left their house about 8 o'clock to come down town, remaining in the city until after 9 o'clock. Upon their return home, they were surprised to find the front door unlocked. Investigation showed that the house had been thoroughly searched, trunks broken open, bureau and dressing cases rifled and their contents strewn about the floor. Nothing, however, was missing except the watch, rings and the small amount of car fare remaining in the purse of Mrs. Cox in one of the drawers opened.

Search was made today for several persons believed to belong to a gang that has operated and attempted several burglaries within the past few weeks. According to the police, a number of them are under arrest now, with serious charges pending against them and vigorous efforts are to be made to break up their operations here. Chief Maddox said this morning:

"The best we can do at present is to answer calls like this when notified of these things. The force is too small, as I have long contended, to properly guard the residence part of the city. It takes all the time of the men on duty to cover the business district."

TIME CARD TO BE CHANGED
Morning Westbound Train on Texas and Pacific to Leave Later

A new time card will go into effect on the Texas and Pacific railway Nov. 30. The only change in passenger train time is that of the westbound through train from St. Louis, Little Rock, Texarkana, Marshall, Dallas and Fort Worth to El Paso and California. This train formerly arrived in Fort Worth at 8:15 o'clock in the forenoon and left at 9:05. Beginning Nov. 30 it will arrive from St. Louis and other points named at 9 a. m. and leave for El Paso at 9:45 a. m.

This change makes the schedule the same as that in effect before the reduction in through service caused by decreased traffic resulting from fever quarantine.

At San Antonio, the hottest city in the country, the thermometer registered 86 degrees, and at Fort Worth 83 degrees, the hottest this month.

A wind of thirty-four miles an hour with a rainfall of .19 of an inch was reported at El Paso. Galveston also reported a trace of rain.

The Panhandle weather report, as given at the offices of the Fort Worth and Denver City railway this morning, shows that at Taxline the thermometer indicated 38 degrees, Amarillo 40 degrees, Childress 46 degrees and Wichita Falls 56 degrees. Partly cloudy and calm weather from Taxline to Wichita Falls.

COPPER BESTS INDIANA SCRIBE

Fort Worth Patrolman Carries Off Honors

Crowds in the Texas and Pacific station Sunday night watched with interest two broad-shouldered six-footers, comparing each other, feeling muscles, comparing heights and weights until Eph Cone, patrolman of the city police department, one of the men was acknowledged the physical superior.

His competitor was Oscar Nay of Johnson county, Indiana, one of the thirty-five Indiana editors visiting the state, who were in this city Sunday night. The Indiana had the local officer beaten in height, tipping his six feet three by a quarter of an inch. In weight the officer had him beaten forty-eight pounds, tipping the scales at a little over 249 pounds.

Cone is the largest man on the local police force and Nay is the largest man in the editorial party. The question of superiority having thus been settled, Nay promised for the party that they would not take advantage of their freedom from the Texas libel law and the city was turned over to them. The party was met here by local newspaper men and T. T. McDonald, local agent of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad.

The party, which came in from Waco, where a trip through the southern part of the state, left shortly after 9 o'clock for Wichita Falls. From there they will return to St. Louis and Indiana.

BODY TAKEN EAST

Miner Murdered in Mexico, Lived at Kent, Ohio

Mrs. P. H. Heffron arrived in Fort Worth Saturday night en route from Chihuahua, Mexico, to her home at Kent, Ohio, with the remains of her husband, who was murdered at his mine near Huixtola, in the republic, last October.

Mrs. Heffron said that it required two weeks to bring the body from the mine to the nearest railroad station, and that it was necessary to have the remains carried on the shoulders of peons through a rough country, and necessarily progress was slow.

It has not been learned who killed Heffron, but it is believed his life was taken by Mexican brigands who infest that section of the republic. The Mexican officials have given Mrs. Heffron assurance they will leave nothing undone that might lead to the capture of the murderer or murderers of her husband.

Mrs. Heffron went east from here over the Texas and Pacific.

AMERICAN LETTER (From Daily Telegraph, Sydney, Australia.) CHICAGO, June 23, 1905. We left Denver last Thursday on the Limited, and came direct to this city, making only one break on the journey. It was a splendid trip, most luxurious train, and as for the service it could not be improved. The country we passed through simply teemed with evidence of prosperity. On either side of the track, as far as the eye could see, were fields green with growing corn, or golden with the sheen of ripened wheat. Cheerful-looking homes, fat cattle seen on every farm, completed the picture. We broke our journey at Des Moines, the capital of the state of Iowa, which is one of the leading states in the middle west. Des Moines is an up-to-date city. Lots of push and go, streets wide, and in the residence section lined with beautiful shade trees. It struck us as most peculiar to see no fences, lawns coming down to the asphalt or cement sidewalk. In the business section are some splendid buildings, as good as we have seen anywhere. Perhaps the most noted structure in the city—at least the best known—is the famous Chamberlain Laboratory. It is one of the grandest buildings in the world. Mr. Chamberlain wants you to see it, for they are all very proud that it is in their town the well-known Chamberlain Household Medicines are manufactured. The building, the largest in the world used exclusively by any Proprietary Medicine Company, is certainly immense. It is shaped like the letter E, and if the sides were straightened out it would make one building one story high, one-quarter of a mile long. Our friends insisted on taking us through, and we were received in the grand Entrance Hall by a colored attendant, whose sole duty is to personally conduct visitors over the building. It makes no difference how many come—all are welcome. We were shown department after department, all the essence of cleanliness; were shown scores of machines so delicate and intricate that they were nearly seemed human; printing presses of all sizes; machines that make boxes, driving in the nails as though they were possessed; were taken into the main bottling department, and it was a surprise to see in that immense white room flowers and vines in the windows, showing that Chamberlains know how to combine beauty with business. But what created the most surprise, and it will no doubt be the most lasting, was the amount of space devoted to the comfort and welfare of their

DRUGLESS TREATMENT STOPS HEMORRHAGE

J. AUSTIN LARSON'S TELECONIC TREATMENT SCORES ANOTHER VICTORY IN FORT WORTH

Mrs. Everett, 914 Maddox St.

Physicians Pronounce Case Cancer and Incurable—Larson Upsets Their Diagnosis by Practical Demonstration

Mr. and Mrs. Everett of 914 Maddox st. are praising teleconic treatment as practiced by J. Austin Larson, on account of results accomplished on a long-standing complaint of Mrs. Everett.

For fourteen years Mrs. Everett has been a sufferer with a condition of weakness peculiar to women. The latter six months this became very aggravated and was pronounced cancerous by physicians. "I had a hemorrhage which lasted thirty days and which the doctors claimed came from cancer," said Mrs. Everett. "Mr. Larson stopped that within a week after I commenced his treatment, although the doctors claimed that there was no hope of stopping it. That has been almost five weeks ago and I have gained my strength back and am feeling well.

"I can't see but what I am entirely cured."

J. Austin Larson's work is growing in volume daily and there is a steady stream of visitors to his quarters in the Delaware Hotel. So great has been the rush that he has had to give up his trips to Waco and is giving his entire time to Fort Worth.

Good words are heard on every hand for his drugless treatment.

ODESSA STREETS

number of sporting guns, and the mob would undoubtedly have been driven mad by the sight of them.

The people ran into our front yard and scrambled up a ladder to the roof, expecting to find Jews there. They came down disappointed, and were about to storm our front door, when our janitor blocked the way, telling the mob there were no Jews inside. The mob took his coat from him and were about to brush him aside, when suddenly the crowd in the streets shouted, "The Jews are next door! We see them!"

This cry took the people from my house, and they burst in next door, where they found a Jew and stabbed him to death, amid howls of glee. His body was thrown into the street, and the janitor of the house next door phlegmatically washed the blood off the pavement, while the mob went howling away.

Later in the day the mob returned to the vicinity of my house and caught three Jews, whom they at once killed and robbed.

This is the way all Friday was spent. Firing hardly ceased for a moment. The sharp crack of rifles and revolvers sounded everywhere. Thursday was the day of loot, and Friday the day of slaughter.

Ambulances went about in the trial of the mob, like Red Cross wagons after a victorious army. People suffering from frightful wounds were picked up, sometimes five and six in a bunch, and then the ambulances raced back to the municipal hospital to return once more to the battlefield for further victims.

Streams of blood ran along the gutters to the sewers, and the street stones were dyed a deep red. There was a stench of drying blood in the air, and one of the friends in my house, who had been through the Boer war, declared his preference for a South African battlefield to an Odessa street. Unsafe on Streets

It was simply counting death for anyone not a workman or a rough to venture into the streets. The mobs

THE OLD WAY AND THE NEW
THE OLD WAY AND THE NEW
Some Important Facts Which May Prove Helpful

Thirty years ago old-fashioned cod liver oil had to be forced down a patient's throat. Invalids couldn't take it, and children wouldn't. But the doctors prescribed it, and it had to be taken by force. Yet when enough is taken into the system it was beneficial, for it has ever been the greatest of all tissue builders and general reconstructors known to medicine.

We are now anxious to have every one know that Vinol is a new form of this very old and valuable remedy, cod liver oil. It contains in a concentrated form all the medicinal elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, but by a new process it is made without oil or grease, and it is as delicious to the taste as a fresh orange.

Vinol does not upset the stomach like old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions; its strengthening and healing properties are remarkable, and both doctors and patients are delighted with its action.

Many wonderful cures right here in Fort Worth have been effected by its use, and we ask all of our customers to try Vinol on our guarantee to return money every time it fails to make rich, red blood, increase the appetite, cure stomach troubles, give strength and renewed vitality to the aged, run down, tired and debilitated, or cure chronic colds, hacking coughs or bronchitis. R. A. Anderson, Druglist.

DR. CALDWELL ASKS PATIENCE
Urges Congregation to Suspend Judgment of Synod

Dr. William Caldwell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who has just returned from Houston, where complaint against the action of the Fort Worth presbytery was considered by the synod, referred to the synod action at his service Sunday morning.

"His subject at this service was 'Charity' and he urged all members of the congregation to suspend judgment upon the action of the synod pending final adjudication. He declared the case was in the hands of a court and he did not care to be placed in the attitude of criticizing the action taken until it had been finally passed upon.

At the Wednesday night prayer service, he announced, he will make a statement of the case.

NEW MANAGER HERE
H. T. Edgar Arrives to Take Charge of Traction Company Lines Beginning Dec. 1

H. T. Edgar has arrived here with his family from El Paso and will be located permanently in their new home in Magnolia avenue.

Mr. Edgar is to be manager of the Northern Texas Traction Company, succeeding Blake A. Mapledoram, who resigns to become connected with the George Bishop company now constructing an interurban line from Washington to Baltimore.

Mr. Edgar will assume charge of the interurban Dec. 1.

Mr. Mapledoram will leave here soon after the first of next month and will visit friends in Denver before departing for the east. His successor has had charge of the Stone-Webster interests at El Paso several years and comes to the Traction company with much experience with electric car systems.

Originally, it was intended that the change in management of the lines was not to take place until spring. However, these plans have been changed.

Mr. Mapledoram will today make a trip over the line in the company's motor car. This will likely be his last inspection of the line.

VETERANS ASK CHANGE IN LAW
Seek Provision for Widows of Soldiers

Resolution calling for amendment to the constitution of the state to permit appropriation for a home for widows of Confederate veterans was adopted at regular meeting of R. E. Lee camp held Sunday afternoon.

The resolution was introduced by Judge C. C. Cummings, who said: "The first point is to make effective the new amendment to the constitution voted on and adopted last fall by making the proper appropriation for pensions to the class of indigent widows of Confederate soldiers married prior to the first of March, 1860—the old law embracing only those married prior to the first of March, 1866. The last legislature omitted altogether any appropriation embracing this new class. Why it did so has never been explained. This can be remedied by the legislature but the other two points would require another amendment of the constitution which was recommended as to the first, by the Confederate soldiers on Confederate day at the Dallas fair. This recommendation was to the effect that an amendment be submitted to the voters at the next general election authorizing the legislature to make suitable appropriation for the construction and maintenance of a home on the lot already secured by the Daughters of the Confederacy and located at Austin for indigent and dependent widows of Confederate soldiers.

"The third point is to allow wives of those Confederate soldiers who are inmates of the home, a place there with their husbands, thus preventing the separation of husband and wife, as occurs in many instances, giving the exclusive use of the home to the soldier and leaving the poor wife to scramble along as best she may. Equality is equity, and applies to all phases of society. This will require a special amendment and should be attended to while we may, for the comptroller tells us these indigent ones are passing off the stage of life very rapidly. Taffy is sweet, and epitaphy will do in its place, but cold cash is needed for this class of our devoted sisters to keep the wolf from the door."

The camp adopted an amendment to the constitution that in the future all officers shall be elected by a ballot vote.

REMAINS OF MAN KILLED NEAR SAGINAW INTERRED
A. Stokes of the First National Bank at Caldwell, Texas, came to Fort Worth Sunday to investigate the absence of his boy, who was known to have been in this city Monday and Tuesday of last week. Mr. Stokes saw a notice in the papers of the unknown young man who was run over and killed by a train on the Denver Road near Saginaw and from the description thought possibly he might be his boy. After reviewing the remains, however, he declared emphatically the body was not that of his son.

JEWES GIVE THANKS
Anniversary of American Migration Observed By Praise Service Held Sunday Afternoon

The Jews of this city Sunday celebrated the 25th anniversary of the landing of the Jews in this country. The program Sunday was one of the best that has been given here for a long time and was fully enjoyed by the large attendance that was present. U. M. Simon presided over the meeting.

Rabbi Joseph Jasin made the principal address of the afternoon and spoke first on the coming of the Jews to this country and of their success in the new country. He spoke of the growth of the race in this country and asked his hearers to follow the plan adopted by the first comers—to treat all men with consideration and honesty and to lead upright lives. He also spoke of the conditions of the Jews in Russia and asked in the concluding prayer for the deliverance of unfortunate brethren there.

Mayor T. J. Powell delivered an address in which he spoke of the honor that he felt in addressing such an audience upon such an occasion. He spoke of the Jews that were living in this city and said he considered them to be among the best citizens of the city and county. Mayor Powell continued, saying that the Jews of this country had cause to be thankful as they were free from the persecution that was following their brethren in other countries.

Rev. R. H. Cotton, pastor of the Trinity Episcopal church, said that he considered the invitation to address the meeting the greatest honor that had fallen to him during his nine years residence in Fort Worth.

Professor Alexander Hogue, superintendent of public schools, made a brief speech and complimented the Hebrews upon the fact that their children were among the best of the school children; that they obeyed well and were

NEGRO INJURED IN FIGHT
J. Clayton Seriously Stabbed Sunday Morning

Tor. Elliott, colored, 27 years of age, was placed in jail Sunday morning by Deputy Sheriff Kelsor, to whom he voluntarily surrendered. Elliott early Sunday morning during an altercation with three other negroes, stabbed Jim Clayton so seriously that it is feared he may die.

Elliott said he came to Fort Worth from Waller county, near Sealy. Jim Clayton, Sol Smith and a third negro, whose name he does not know, according to Elliott's statement, began gassing him Saturday night at the Shamrock saloon because he was from the country. Elliott told them he wanted no trouble, he says, and attempted to leave the saloon. Clayton shoved him back, he declares, and in the melee he was struck across the left eye and knocked to the floor, and as he attempted to get onto his feet again one of the other two negroes dealt him a stunning blow across the back of the head, which again sent him sprawling to the floor. At this juncture Elliott says he got out his knife and began slashing right and left. He says that he cut Clayton across the pit of the stomach. The other negroes were also cut.

During the excitement which ensued Elliott walked out of the saloon, leaving his hat behind, and went to his father's home. Later in the day Elliott gave himself up to the officers.

The Dollies' Thanksgiving Dinner

By Maud Walker.

Minna asked her mamma if she might have a little "sure-enough" dinner for her dollies on Thanksgiving Day. Of course her mamma said yes, for no mamma would refuse such a request. So, before the dinner was placed on the big table in the flower-bedecked dining-room—where company was to assemble—Minna ran into the kitchen and begged cook to put some bits of the many good things on a plate for her to carry to her room where her dollies were to be served.

Flossie, Pearl and Isabel were the names of her three dollies, and in honor of the occasion they were dressed in their Sunday best, Flossie being resplendent in blue silk, trimmed in white lace; Pearl in brown velvet, adorned with swansdown and gold buttons, while Isabel looked quite dignified and elegant attired in gray cloth stitched with scarlet silk.

About a little table covered with a great-sized white napkin sat the three dollies, smiles of contentment and anticipation on their pretty faces. On the table a dainty tea set was displayed, but for something more. Seeing the bell at the side of Isabel he ran round to it and grasped its handle between his teeth, giving it a quick turn. Doubtless he thought it quick to eat.

"Tinkle, tinkle, tinkle," went the little bell, ringing so loudly that its voice was distinctly heard in the dining-room below. Minna's mamma stopped speaking and bent her ears to listen.

"Why, who can be ringing that bell up stairs?" she asked, looking towards Minna. The little girl sprang quickly from her chair to run up stairs, then bethinking herself of her "company manners," she bowed gracefully to her papa and mamma and said very politely: "Please, may I be excused a moment? I wish to go up to my room and see who is there." Then as her mamma bowed her permission Minna hurried to her room, half-expecting to find one of her chums—who might have crept in for a joke and slipped up stairs—there a company with her dollies. But when she entered the room all was just as she had left it, save the food—which had disappeared! Minna looked about her, also a dear little delft china luncheon set lent artistic effect to the table with its center bouquet of violets, a bunch which Minna's mamma had given the little girl for the purpose.

And there can be no doubt that Flossie, Pearl and Isabel felt that Thanksgiving Day was a grand occasion, which, indeed, it truly was. And they watched with silent interest the spreading of the viands on the table by Minna. "Now, my dears," said that little girl, as she filled the plates with "sure-enough" food, "here's roast turkey with dressing. And here's a bit of scalloped oyster and some lamb. I'll bring the desert after you've eaten this course, you know. Hope you'll enjoy your dinner; if you wish anything please ring this bell." And Minna placed on the corner of the table beside Isabel a small, silver call bell. Then smiling indulgently on her pets, throwing a kiss to each, she excused herself and ran down to the dining-room where papa and mamma were already seating the company at table.

After Minna left her room the cushions on the sofa began to show signs of life. From their depths a small, black nose thrust itself out, then a pair of bright eyes peeped around the room, and next the form of Smut-nose, a pug puppy belonging to Minna's mother, crept out and jumped down to the floor. Minna had not been aware of his presence in the room, and supposed her three dollies were alone. But during the laying of the dinner Smut-nose had watched from his hiding-place the preparations for the lady dollies' feast, and the smell of roast turkey had sharpened his always keen appetite. But Smut-nose was no fool, and had enough gumption to remain in hiding till his young mistress had quitted the room. He had had dealings with her before and then scanned the faces of her dollies. But there they sat as speechless as sphinxes, their smiles on their faces and their hands folded in their laps. On the floor beside Isabel lay the silver bell.

Minna felt a little shiver pass over her. What mystery was this? No sign of a living soul in the room still—all the food gone and the bell had been rung as if for more. Suppose some spook had come in through the roof, or down the chimney? She had heard of such things. Minna was beginning to step backward towards the door, almost afraid to breathe and not daring to call, when her eyes were attracted by the cushions on the sofa. The cushions were moving—yes, certainly moving! Minna's eyes started from her head and her side heart thumped violently against her poor. Then from the midst of moving cushions came the wrinkled face of Smut-nose, his eyes looking very full of innocence.

"Oh, you—you—you!" stammered Minna, shaking her head at the naughty pug, who now came towards her wagging his stub of a tail. "Aren't you ashamed, you bad—bad fellow? Mercy, how I was frightened! And it was you, you pig, who ate up the dollies' dinner, and then rang the bell for more. But how on earth did you know to ring the bell? Well, stop wagging your tail at me. I've half a notion to whip you, so I haven't—then thinking better of the situation she said: "Come, you must go down stairs with me. I'll take you to the kitchen and tell cook to give you some cat, for I'm most thankful that it turned out to be you instead of a ghost or spirit that ate up the food."

And Smut-nose wagged his tail and blinked his eyes as if to say: "My dear little Miss Minna, I'm very thankful also that it was I who ate the know that her dollies were always considered first; then he—if there were any favors worth while left to bestow—was remembered.

Trotting to the table Smut-nose thrust his little black muzzle over to the plate containing the turkey, and in a most unceremonious manner gobbed it down without much time spent in mastication. Then he winked at Pearl and straightway took hold of the scalloped oysters in his sharp teeth. Presto—pass! Out of sight were the shellfish, gone to keep the turkey company. Then casting his eye on Flossie the saucy Smut-nose took the bit of lamb at a bite, licking his chops and glancing turkey, lamb and oysters, and I'd thank you for some more if you please. After all, I am a dog and enjoy food more than a stupid doll, who simply sits and smiles and never tastes a bite.

And Flossie, Pearl and Isabel looked at each other and smiled as the door closed behind Minna and Smut-nose. They probably thought it a great Thanksgiving dinner, this dining on like those—However, they never said a word about it to a living soul, and Minna let the matter drop.

On Thanksgiving Day.

There are many things throughout the year
That go wrong with the most of us,
And cause us to worry, fret and pout
And make a terrible fuss.
For dolls get broken,
And noses, too;
Cross words are spoken
By me—and by you.
We find long lessons so hard to learn
That sometimes we feel despair;
We think our friends more blest than we;
And often we do declare
That life is too full
Of troubles that vex;
And the problem we'd solve
Is sadly complex.
But once a year a time rolls round,
It is called Thanksgiving Day,
When the blessings we've had bestowed
Roll back along the way,
O'er memory's road,
And show us quite plain
That we've had much pleasure,
But so little pain.
'Tis then we know that the days of rain
Make clearer the days that are bright;
And the glorious morn is lovelier still
By following th' gloom of night.
Thus the many blessings
We receive along the way
A mountain make
On Thanksgiving Day.

"Snick" The Runaway.

A Thanksgiving Story for Boys.

By William Wallace, Jr.

His name was not "Snick," but Samuel; but when he was a little fellow his baby sister, not able to say Samuel, called him "Snick," so Snick he became at home and at school ever afterward. And that is the name by which he shall be called in this story which relates entirely to himself.

When Snick was 14 years old—and 16 years tall—he became restless in his quiet home life, which was passed in a small New York town half a day's travel from the metropolis. In this town lived an old man who had followed the life of a seaman for many years, and he would tell of his many thrilling adventures to Snick and Snick's companions. After listening intently to the old "sea-dog's" stories one day Snick decided to run away from home and become a sailor on the mighty deep. He had never been disobedient to his parents and teachers, and was what might have been called a model boy in many respects. He was also kind-hearted and affectionate, loving his parents and home dearly.

But at this point in Snick's life—feeling to go forth in the world and see and learn came over him, and he began to lay his plan in secret. He knew that if he were to ask his parents' permission to follow his desire they would emphatically refuse to grant it. Not wishing to disobey them and yet determined upon carrying out his plan he decided that he Sammy's Idea of Thanksgiving Day.

"Hurray! Thanksgiving Day is a holiday! Hurray again! A fellow doesn't have to go to school on that day. Double hurray!! Nor a fellow doesn't have to do any work, either. Everything is done up the day before, though; so, after all, a kid has double work to make up for the time spent in fun.

"In the morning you come in and wakes you and tells you to jump up quick and take a bath and get dressed for breakfast, after which you must go to Thanksgiving Praise Meeting and hear what a lot of nice things you have to be thankful for. It's surprising how few boys remember their many blessings. We are a bad, ungrateful lot, I guess. After the praise service you go with your ma and pe and sister to somebody's house for dinner. It's always at the home of some friend of your ma's who ate last Thanksgiving dinner at your house. They know enough to understand that 'turn about is fair play.'

"When the turkey—what has probably been cooking for a week, he's so big—done and you are called to dinner, ten to one you are seated beside a girl you can't endure. If so you don't care whether you have any dinner or not. But if your best girl is there and you are seated next to her—well, that's different, you know. Then you forget to eat your dinner for helping her all the time, and before you know it here pops the servant behind you and lifts your plate from under your very nose before you've hardly tasted the turkey.

"But what can you do? You are company and can't dare to do it again.

"But nobody can afford to miss a Thanksgiving dinner if he can afford it. First, there's the turkey—a whopper stuffed to bursting. Then comes the cranberry jelly that is so clear you can see yourself in it; and how it shakes as it passes it round! It makes your mouth water just to see it. And there are the vegetables, every kind that grows inside and outside the dirt. I just love sweet potatoes either to the railroad station or to a cemetery. There we seat ourselves and tell appropriate stories. If we go to the station we tell stories of travel; but if we go to the cemetery we tell ghost stories and scare ourselves nearly to death. Sometimes we've all run out shaking till our teeth chattered. We enjoyed it very much at such times, for we really knew there were no real, live spooks—only make-believe. But no kid likes to meet even that kind in a cemetery.

"Then, when evening comes, you are supposed to go home. That's the only fault I have to find with Thanksgiving Day. It isn't long enough. Whoever invented it should have made it longer—made it Thanksgiving 'Week' instead of Thanksgiving 'Day.'

"But it's all right, though, and I'm not going to complain. There's not another day in the year like it. Only—it would be nice if it had a twin."

Sally thought it time to enter and greet her brother.

all the experience I want on the sea—a sailor."

Tenderly his mother put her arms about him and whispered: "There's no place like home, is there, dear?" and his father, assuming a jovial manner, said: "Well, Snick, you've been a wreck, anyway. You had experience enough to lay your old seaman in the shade. His sea-

CONUNDRUMS.

"Why is a washerwoman like a sailor?"
Because she keeps crossing the line and going from pole to pole.
"Why is an active volcano like a talkative woman?"
Because both keep "spouting."

When are bad boys like grain? When getting thrashed.
