Miss Grain Sorghum of the Nation

Pageant Scheduled August 31

Annual contest for "Miss Grain Sorghum of the Nation" has been set for Saturday, August 31 announced Ed Coltharp, Chamber of Commerce manager today. Deadline for entering "Miss Grain Sorghum of the Nation" contest is August 17. Eligible girls age 17 and over who are interested in making applications should contact Castro County Chamber of Commerce or Bob Anthony, chairman of this year's contest. Each contestant will be sponsored by a civic organization or business firm. The "Miss Grain Sorghum" contest has been advertised in a 90-mile radius around Dimmitt says Coltharp. Contestants will be judged in the new High School auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The new air-conditioned auditorium seats 1,000. The lucky young lady chosen "Miss Grain Sorghum" will represent the grain sorghum industry in every way possible during her reign and will make appearances which have been approved by the committee says Coltharp. Applicants for the contest must be mailed to Bob Anthony, Box 924, Dimmitt, Texas, 79027. Miss Sandra Sue Stargel, 18 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Stargel of Memphis was chosen out of 34 contestants for last year's

"Miss Grain Sorghum." Some activities in which Miss Stargel participated were guest at Tri-State Fair in Amarillo, model in style show at High Plains Cotton Carnival in Plainview where she promoted "Miss Grain Sorghum" contest and grain sorghum industry, appearances for various seed companies to promote grain sorghum and a special guest at Castro County Chamber of Commerce banquet. Primary objectives of the Miss Grain Sorghum contest are to promote sale and production of grain sorghum and its related products," says Coltharp.

Grain sorghum is now used primarily as a feed product. Coltharp points out a sugar by-product of grain sorghum is widely used in manufacture of hard candies. "In some European nations," Coltharp explains "grain sorghum is used in manufacture of bread." This type of bread, which is similar to whole wheat variety is virtually unknown in the United States. "We hope to promote the use of grain sorghum in our area, and in other producing areas" Coltharp adds, "and we feel the annual contest is doing a good job in promoting it."

Burris McRee Likes Aviation

Tall, slender black-headed Burris McRee smiled proudly as he listed the various aviation licenses he holds at the early age of 18. He has obtained a commercial license, single and multi engine rating and flight instructor license. McRee has spent approximately 450 hours of his life in the air. On August 12, 1960 when he was 12 days over 16, McRee took his first solo flight. He received his private license authorizing him to fly light craft August 1, 1961 on his 17th birthday. McRee said, "This is the youngest you can obtain a license." This year has been outstanding for the flight-minded youth. On March 6, he received his commercial pilot license from Amarillo Service Flying in Amarillo. Then on June 12, McRee received his flight instructor's license from Tidwell Spraying Service in Dimmitt. McRee notes his latest success to be July 2 when he was given his multi-engine rating from Whiteface Aviation in Hereford. Presently, the young flying enthusiast is working toward an instrument rating. McRee spoke seriously. "I really enjoy flying planes. It is a challenge to mind and physical body." He said, "I've always liked planes." He related humorously his most dangerous moment while flying. He was spraying south of Dimmitt one evening and got caught in a thick soupy cloud beat California's best display and forced McRee to land on the highway. He laughed, "I couldn't see anything." He found the highway after some difficulty and made a safe landing. McRee was required to have 50 hours across country flight, 10 hours instrument flying, 10 hours of final dual and 10 hours of night flying to receive his commercial license. He had to take a written exam, practice spins and practice from the flight instructor's seat to obtain his flight instructor's license. Presently, McRee is flying spray planes for a local company here.

Hi Joe, I hear you are needing a new storage building! Why don't you check with John Nichols about the A and S Steel Buildings? This company makes any kind and size.

The big building with a glass front can be used for store rooms and garages. There is also a fine design for bowling alleys and auditoriums, however, you probably do not need that but there is the office building. It has eye appeal, color keyed and efficient floor plan made possible with the rigid frame buildings, no columns to get in your way. This would be good combination, office in the glass front, storage for cars or implements in back.

You may not have thought of a retail store made of steel; well go look at the plan. Then there are several plans for steel houses for the farm. The big shed for protection of Beef and Dairy cattle; small buildings for hogs, sheep and poultry and grain storage bins.

Our country men are very interested in good horses, and that horse needs a good stable to protect him from our winter cold.

John says these buildings will save you money for these reasons, insurance, less wind damage, also we hardly ever think of it out here in Castro county, but less water damage. You do not have unnecessary maintenance cost or storage fee's.

These are a few of the good things about A and S Steel Buildings. Flexibility of design—any width—length or height—clear span—less cost than comparable wooden buildings.

Every A and S Steel Building incorporates a wind brace-rod system, bolted rigid frame, designed to meet each man's needs.

Every A and S Steel Building has galvanized or pre-finished factory colored panels, never need to repaint. This makes for a much prettier area.

Why don't you see that pretty green building for your ranch, or how about the pink, now wouldn't Ferdinand like that color? The blue building would be fine for the office. Bye now. (P. Adv.)

VA Insurance Benefits Defined

VA Insurance Service recently announced approximately 165,000 Korean Conflict veterans have not yet taken advantage of the special dividend which is available to them if they convert their "RS" insurance.

The law providing this special dividend was effective September 13, 1962, and stated policy holder having "RS" insurance in force would be eligible to receive the dividend providing they changed their policies for those bearing the prefix letter "W" prior to September 13, 1963.

This law applies only to the Korean Veterans who obtained their "RS" insurance within 120 days after being released from active military service. This type of insurance was no longer available after December 21, 1956.

Since such a large number of veterans have failed to take advantage of this dividend following exchange of policies, it is obvious they either have not heard about it or they do not understand the provisions of the law.

Many of these policyholders seem to be of the opinion they will be hurting themselves to make this exchange of insurance. This certainly is not true.

If a veteran does not wish to convert his insurance to one of the permanent types offered by the VA then he may exchange his "RS" insurance for the Five-Year Limited Convertible Term "W" insurance which generally will cost him approximately one-third of what his insurance now costs him. The only disadvantage of this type of insurance is that it may not be renewed as term insurance after age 50. However, it can be converted to one of the low cost permanent plans of insurance at any time as long as it is in force. In order to compare the premiums of "RS" and "W" insurance, here is an example.

The average age of the Korean veteran is now 33 years. If a veteran of that age is carrying "RS" term insurance he is paying $38 per thousand per month or $45.10 per year total premium on full $10,000. If he were to exchange this insurance for the "W" Five-Year Convertible Term, his premiums would be $12 per month per thousand, or $14.20 per year total annual premiums for the $10,000 insurance. An eligible veteran can make this exchange at any time prior to age 50 but in order to the special dividend, which has averaged $100.00 per policy holder, he must make the change prior to September 13, 1963.

El Paso was the big surprise to me. The banks in that city show deposits of $327,930,338 or about one hundred million more than is on deposit in either Lubbock or Amarillo. Walter Rogers' WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER

After two days of debate, which no one would characterize as spirited, the House recently passed the major defense appropriation measure for the next fiscal year—a bill calling for expenditures totaling $47 billion. The sum represents more than half of all money to be spent by the government in the year which began July 1. After cuts were made in Appropriations Committee sessions and on the floor during debate, the appropriated amount was $1.9 billion less than the President had requested in his budget message and $1.25 billion under the actual similar expenditures for the fiscal year just ended.

The vote on passage in the House was 410 to 1. That the debate was so routinely conducted and the final vote overwhelmingly bears out what every American knows anyway: That there is simply no way around the Nation's vital need to maintain its military forces at an unequalled strength. There is no alternative if we are to preserve our sovereignty.

As my colleague from the South Plains, George Mahon, said at the debate opened: "All the bills which Congress passes are important to somebody. The bill before us today is important to everybody to everybody in the United States, and to all the peace-loving people of the entire world. This is true, because this is the legislation which, more than any other, enables the United States to maintain its position of military superiority over the Soviet Union."

Congressman Mahon said: "Our military strength will not necessarily insure peace, but insofar as military strength can avert and deter war, this Government has what it takes."

During the debate, one Congressman presented the 1962 Department of Defense payroll, military and civilian, and Department of Defense total expenditures for each state. The figures spell out just what military spending means to the Texas economy.

In Texas, the military payroll totaled $778,798,000 and the payroll of civilian workers for the Defense Department was $361,742,000—a combined total of $1,066,253,000. Total Defense Department expenditures in Texas were $2,146,793,000. Only one other state exceeded the Texas totals, California, with its heavy concentration of aircraft manufacturers, had a combined Defense Department payroll of $1,709,585,000, and that figure coupled with the enormous sums sent in California for procurement spent the total of Defense Department expenditures in that state to a staggering $7,702,829,000.

Military installations were placed in these states and military procurement contracts assigned to manufacturers there for good reasons. No one would argue that the economies of Texas and California do not benefit greatly from this situation. Almost as much money is spent by the federal government in these two states—for defense purposes only—as is taken out in total taxes. The taxes paid into the federal treasury from Texas, for example, totaled in 1962 $3,329,247,000 on defense payrolls and contracts.

Several Congressmen from Southern States expressed concern during the debate over what they regard as an implied threat that military installations in the South will be deactivated unless nearby cities do not act to desegregate public facilities. The objections raised by these Members of the House followed news reports that Defense Secretary McNamara had been ordered to investigate integration conditions in cities near military bases. If such a situation actually does develop you can be sure I will be among Congressmen speaking out in vigorous opposition. I concur wholeheartedly with my colleague from Alabama, Congressman George W. Andrews, who told the House: "Military bases were selected on the basis of what was good for the defense effort and not to appease minority groups."

This past week it was my privilege, as a member of the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, to attend the dedication of the Saline Water Conversion Demonstration Plant at Roswell, N. M. The plant is designed to desalt brackish underground water to fresh water at the rate of one million gallons per day. Fresh water produced by the plant will be sold to the City of Roswell, and the research work to be conducted there will help show the way to solutions—at least partial ones—of the Nation's vital water conservation problems.

I came to Amarillo last August and covered over 100 Amarillo roofs — ask the man who has me—
MY DUTIES — I lock on gravel — I seal roofs against leaks
I reflect 80 percent sun rays — reduce attic temp. 20 per cent lower cooling cost 50 degrees — white or pastel colors. I have asbestos fibers. I'm fire retardant.
