

per-ant fable applies in U.S.

As Chairman of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress I became convinced some time ago that it is important that government come with incentives to encourage Americans to substantially increase their savings.

It is important for two reasons. We had a baby boom after World War II, but in recent years birth rates have declined. As a result, at some point after the turn of the century the retired people — people who depend on savings, Social Security and pensions to people who are actively working — will increase substantially. It is projected that the ration will jump from approximately one retiree for every 3.5 workers to one retiree for every 2.5 workers.

Because of this we need to see an increase in the rate of savings. In the past several decades, the rate of savings has declined. A very important reason to increase the rate of savings is that help dramatically in the fight against inflation. Increased savings means increased capital which means increased productivity, and productivity is one of the most important factors in our effort to hold down the cost of living.

The Senate has approved, 94-4, Bentsen's small savers incentive bill which begins the process of reversing tax policies that penalize saving.

This legislation would exempt from taxes the first $200 a year in savings account interest — and investment dividends — for an individual; the $400 for a married couple filing a joint return.

This bill was approved as an amendment to the windfall profits tax bill which it may be cut out of the version of that bill, its over-approval by the Senate gives some indication that in coming months some form or other, this incentive will be passed into law by Congress.

The small savers incentive bill has put government tax policy on the side of the saver instead of the grasshopper. It also has an economic bonanza for Americans.

Tower: Union Message a of rehashed programs

The new 1981 defense budget Five Year Defense Plan have been gradually drawn up by the Administration. Close examination of these proposals clearly shows that what is advertised as new additions really only catch-up spending would be paid for largely by deferring other programs to the years beyond 1985 — a classic example of robbing Peter to pay Paul.

Just as disturbing are the President's words of praise for the SALT II treaty. The Administration has ignored objective analyses which reveal serious flaws in that treaty, including the fact that the Senate Armed Services Committee that concluded the treaty is not in the best interests of our national defense.

As for the domestic policy aspects of the President's message, they reflect the Administration's continuing dependence on unworkable ideas and a tendency to believe spending more with or without having effective programs will solve any problem.

There is nothing of the shift in attitudes and direction that is required if we are to effectively address the problems of inflation and energy.

The Congress faces great responsibilities this year. It would be easier for Congress to meet the challenges with wise and effective leadership from the Administration even if that leadership fails to appear. Congress has the power, and it has the will, to take decisive action to improve the American position in the world, to start on the road to solving our domestic problems.

praises national rd appointments

Stenholm said, "and continue to believe in the importance of its role in continued research and promotion. But, I am aware of the distrust in the program that some producers have developed during the past months."

"Cotton Inc. is solely supporting investments of producers and ultimately their own company," Stenholm continued. "As a member of the House Cotton Sub-committee and a producer, I am particularly interested in seeing to it that the program is administered effectively and that producers are getting the most for their investment."

Stenholm said the Cotton Subcommittee has scheduled hearings on Cotton Inc. issue in Washington on February 26 and 27. "I expect the issue will be dealt with thoroughly at that time," Stenholm said, "and then we will either lay the matter to rest or see that whatever steps necessary are taken that will restore producer confidence in their cotton company."

Wilson Photography exhibits in Plainview

Invitational Exhibit at The Shop in Plainview is currently showing color photography by Chuck Wilson, Master of Photography, and other members of Wilson Photography. The exhibit can be seen there from February 16 and includes landscapes, scenes, pets, and other subjects.

Wilson recently returned from Mexico, where they attended the Western Professional Photographers Association Convention at the SA Center and the new Marriott Hotel. They were on the registration committee, and also attended the first Provisional Judging Workshop held by officers of the Professional Photographers of America. This training is in preparation for being qualified as a national print judge.

Joyce entered four prints in the Southwestern print competition and all four received Honor of Exhibition awards and two of them, "Solitude" and "Tom, Dick, and Harriet" received the seal of approval, qualifying them for receiving merits at the National Professional Photographers' Association Convention in Atlanta this summer. More than 670 entries were received and only 90 received this seal.

Chuck recently served as instructor at the winter session of the Kansas Professional Photographers' Association convention in Topeka. He gave lighting and posing demonstrations and explained uses for the many pieces of equipment he has constructed for use in the camera room and lab. In recent months he has also given programs at the state conventions in Oklahoma, Arkansas, New Mexico, and at numerous area meetings in Texas. Last September, he also was an instructor at the Texas School of Photography held in Dallas.

Lockney library has new service, new books

The new service of the Lockney branch library is the file which is a collection of uncataloged pamphlets, maps, clip-pictures, catalogs, travel post cards, programs and handbills stored vertically in a filing cabinet. In the files may be found articles and magazines available to the public. For example, stories about gasolines make an interesting read.

A new group of books has been placed on the shelves of the library branch of Floyd County. The titles include:

- Genealogical Sources Outside the National Archives, Genealogical Records in the National Archives, Parents Organizing to Improve Schools and Collective Bargaining and Teacher Strikes. The last three booklets are published by the National Committee for Citizens in Education.
- From the U.S. Department of Energy are these drafts: Nuclear Proliferation and Civilian Nuclear Power (Report of the Nonproliferation Alternative Systems Assessment Program).

For juvenile readers, the library has a new series by Marilyn Burns called the Brown Paper School. These are small books about big ideas, written and designed for kids and grownups together. Available at Lockney for the younger reader are "This Book Is About Time," "I Am Not A Short Adult (Getting Good at Being a Kid)," "The I Hate Mathematics Book," "God for Me!" and "The Book of Think (Or How To Solve A Problem Twice Your Size)."

Also for juveniles, other new books are "The Star Wars Question and Answer Book About Space" by J. M. Roeser with illustrations, "A Very Young Skater" by Jill Krementz, a picture and story book, "Sharks and Whales" by Burton Albert with illustrations, "Great Tricks of the Master Magicians" with illustrations by George Gilbert and Wendy Rydell, "The Smallest Life Around Us" by Lucia Anderson with illustrations, "The Great Big Book" by Elo Ann Hedley Norvell with photographs showing how to turn big boxes into everything, "The Great Gilly Hopkins" and "Bride to Terabithia," both fiction books by Katherine Paterson.

And more books for juveniles: "The Nonsense Book" of riddles, rhymes, tongue twisters, puzzles and jokes from American Folklore as collected by Duncan Emrich, "The Hodgepodge Book" containing all manner of curious, interesting and out-of-the-way information drawn from American folklore also by Emrich, and "The Whim-Wham Book," another Emrich book that is full of fresh and innocent mirth. "Honey, I Love," poems by Eloise Greenfield, "The Master Puppeteer, the Sign of the Chrysanthemum" and "O Nightingales that Weep," fiction by Katherine Paterson, "The Official Boy Scout Handbook," "Curses, Hexes and Spells" by Daniel Cohen, "Child-times" by Eloise Greenfield and Lessie Jones Little.

And one little book for elementary readers: "Wake Up, Jeremiah" by Ronald Himler.

Pioneer launches major poll of elevator operators; managers to be asked about transportation issues

DES MOINES, IOWA — Grain elevator managers in 16 agricultural states will speak out on grain transportation issues through a major poll launched today by Pioneer Grain International, Inc. The poll is directed to "Pioneer Elevator Managers," a group of elevator operators and managers who can help build a more efficient grain transportation system," Urban added.

The survey questionnaire will be mailed in February to more than 10,000 managers to explore a full range of transportation issues and possible solutions by asking for responses to more than 50 statements.

Urban said, "By completing his questionnaire, a farmer or elevator manager makes a major contribution to our common fund of knowledge about our grain transportation system and how it affects the agricultural community," Urban said.

"Going directly to the source will provide the best information available to help all of us make the right choices for a better transportation system in this decade," he added.

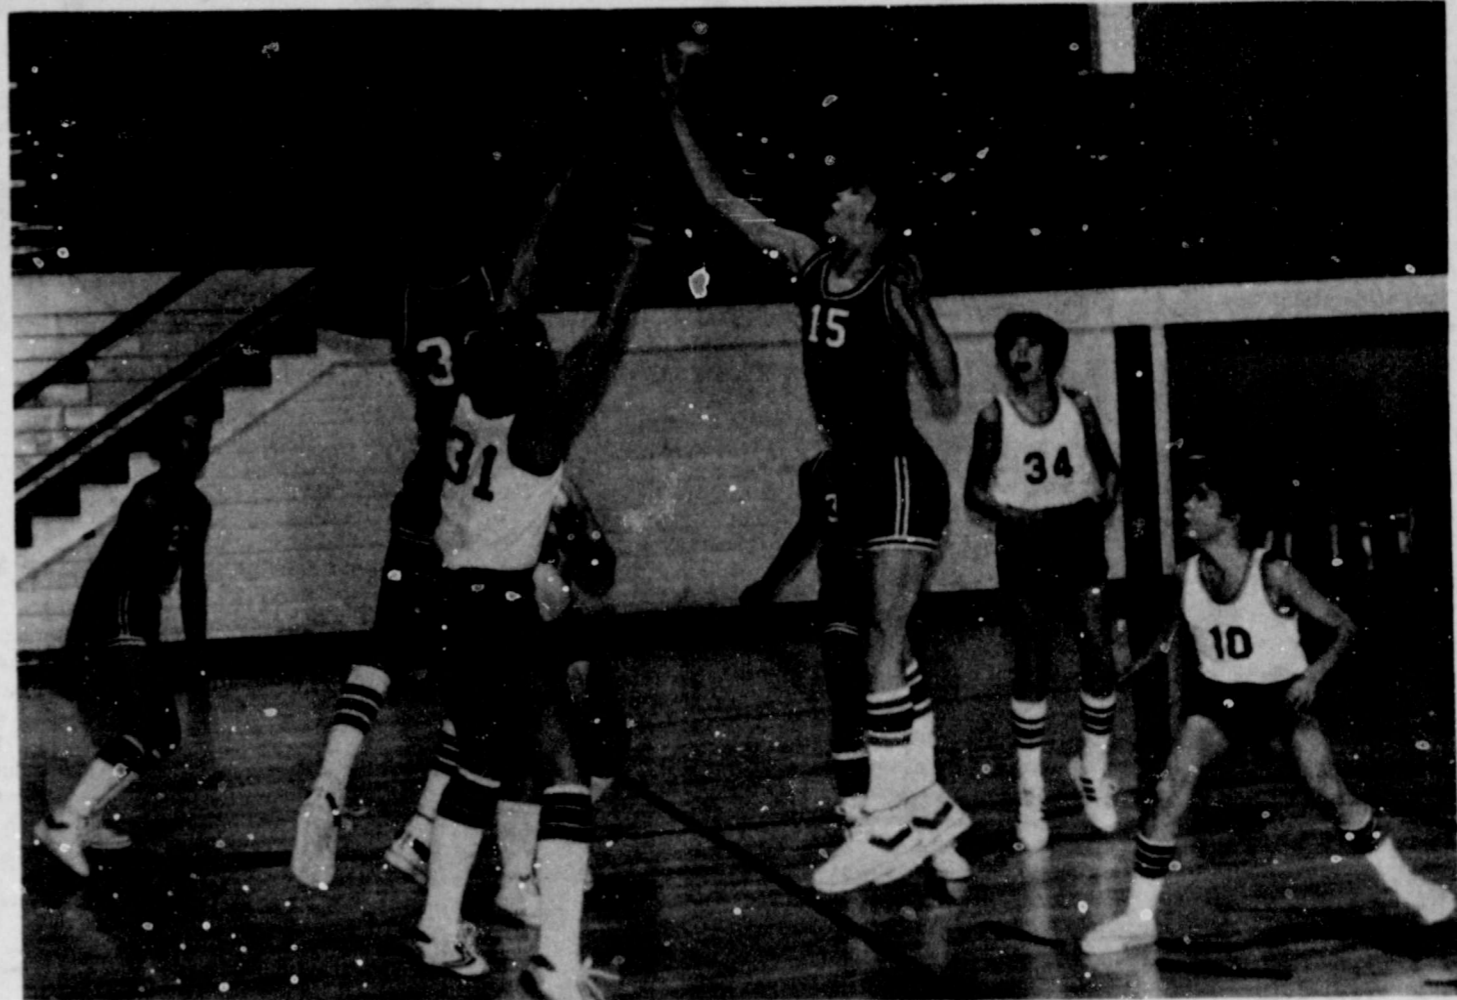

Survey questionnaire design was by Pioneer personnel with assistance of Dr. Phillip Baume, transportation specialist in the Iowa State University Department of Economics, Jefferson Davis Associates, Cedar Rapids, Iowa and Yankelovich, Kelly & White, Inc., New York, supervised questionnaire design and methodology.

igan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

A companion poll directed to grain producers is currently underway in these 16 states. Distributed and gathered by Pioneer salesmen and dealers, this poll is expected to reach as many as 65 to 75 percent of grain farmers and yield as many as 75,000 completed questionnaires.

Urban said, "By completing his questionnaire, a farmer or elevator manager makes a major contribution to our common fund of knowledge about our grain transportation system and how it affects the agricultural community," Urban said.

February 15 is bobcat pelt tagging deadline

The deadline for obtaining bobcat pelt tags and for tagging the pelts will be Feb. 15, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Every bobcat pelt taken in the state during the current tagging period (Nov. 15, 1979 to Feb. 15, 1980) must be tagged prior to purchase or sale. Pelts tagged during the legal tagging period may be purchased or sold at any time of the year, the department said. Pelts from cats taken prior to or after these dates will not be eligible for tagging under the Texas Bobcat Pelt Tagging Program. Untagged pelts cannot be sold.

The bobcat pelt tagging is a part of a program by the federal Endangered Species Scientific Authority to monitor nationwide bobcat harvest rates. Tagged pelts are eligible for export, except those tagged in a 28-county area of the High Plains, including Floyd County. These pelts may be sold only on the domestic market.

RECIPE CORRECTION: Last week Mrs. W.A. Lovell's bread recipe was printed in the cook of the week series. The ingredients should have read "1/4 tsp. of sugar" instead of one-fourth cup. Hope our error didn't cause any baking failures. Sorry 'bout that.

That means a minimum of 0.80 ounces and 1.6 ounces of meat per 16-ounce can, respectively. are by listing them in descending order of predominance by weight. Knowing what is in a processed product and how much meat and poultry it actually contains can help you plan well-balanced satisfying meals. For example, even though chili con carne has more meat than chili con carne with beans, both items are a good source of protein. HOW MUCH MEAT IN PROCESSED CHILI, STEWS AND SOUPS

With the nipping blast of winter, you may be reaching for hot and hearty soups, chili and stews to feed your family.

Processed foods offer quick convenience to busy schedules, but if you want to know what's in that package check the label.

Specialists with USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service check each name against the recipe to be used — before the name ever goes on the label — to see that it tells what's really inside the package.

For example, did you know you can expect about the same amount of meat in chili con carne with beans as you could find in beef stew? USDA standards require both items to contain at least 25 percent meat.

Usually, you'll find more meat in chili than stew and more meat in stew than soup.

In a 16-ounce can of chili con carne, at least 6.4 ounces or almost a half of the can will be meat. A can of chili sauce with meat may contain at the minimum one ounce of meat, since standards require at least six percent meat.

In Brunswick stew, at least two kinds of meat and/or poultry must account for 25 percent of the product and one of the vegetables must be corn. Poultry meat makes up at least 12 percent of poultry Brunswick stew, which also must contain corn.

At least 50 percent of packages labeled "meat and vegetables" must be meat. In vegetable stew and meat balls, only 12 percent of the total product must be meat. Ready-to-Eat and condensed meat soups contain

Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that no man put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in his brother's way.
The wise man learns that first impressions and quick judgements are more often wrong than right. Good judgements are carefully made, after time and consideration. The difficulty with judging one another is that we often do not give the other man his due, man his due.
If we like a particular person, we overlook small faults; we consider intolerable in someone not so favored. We are prone to help friends and make things difficult for those we dislike for some reason. This, of course, is not the Christian way — is not God's way.

PETITIONS DENIED: The U.S. District Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit has denied the cotton industry's petition for a rehearing of the cotton dust ruling. The National Cotton Council and other industry organizations have filed petitions with the same court to stay the ruling pending the review and disposition of petitions for writs of certiorari (calling up records) which will be heard by the Supreme Court. Barring a reversal of the ruling, the standard for the general industry will become effective in 1980.

Top soybean growers named

Texas' top soybean growers were recognized at the annual meeting of the Texas Soybean Association in Bay City Jan. 25.

State champion was Joe Schwartz of Rt. 1, Hale Center (Hale County), with a yield of 72.9 bushels per acre. He received a state plaque and a trip for two to Acapulco.

Second place winner was Worth Matteson, III, of Rt. 4, De Kalb (Bowie County), with a yield of 65.8 bushels.

Third in the state was Harold Weiblen of Rt. 1, Dunlay (Medina County), with a 64.8 bushel average.

Both second and third place winners received a state plaque as well as an area plaque and their choice of an amount of either Treflan or Surflan herbicide for being named top producers in their respective areas of the state.

Winners were announced by R.J. Hodges, agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, which conducts the production contest, and Jim Forrest, district sales manager with Elanco Products Co., contest sponsor.

The contest is designed to recognize top producers in each of the major soybean growing areas of the state—High Plains, Gulf Coast and South Texas, and Northeast Texas.

State champion Schwartz planted the R.A. 480 variety. Matteson reaped his award-winning yield with the Forrest variety, and Weiblen used the Bragg variety.

Joining Schwartz as top producers in the High Plains were Max Marble of Hart (Castro County) with a 64.7 bushel yield with the Mitchell R.A. variety and John Dee Walker of Olton Rt., Plainview (Hale County), with a 64.2 bushel yield with the Mitchell variety.

Along with being named state champion, Schwartz was also initiated into the Texas 70 Bushel Soybean Club. He was the only producer to break the 70-bushel mark in 1979.

A host of growers, including Matteson, Weiblen, Marble and Walker, were initiated into the Texas 60 Bushel Soybean Club. Others were Charles Noel, Rt. 1, Plainview, 63.5 bushels; Bill Williams, Plainview, 62.3 bushels; James Campbell, Hart, 61.8 bushels; Emmet Pittman, Star Pt., Kress (Swisher County), 61.62 bushels; Donald Lee Terrell, Plainview, 61.61 bushels; and Alfred Sammann, Rt. 4, Dimmitt (Castro County), 61.5 bushels. All are from the High Plains area.

According to Hodges, the soybean yield contest is sponsored annually by the TSA and Elanco Products Co. in cooperation with the Extension Service to stimulate soybean production by providing useful cultural information to farmers and to increase cooperation within the industry to improve production efficiency.

EXPORTS REPORTED: Sales of upland cotton for the week ended January 6 totaled 44,500 running bales. This brought the season's total to 7,895,200. The major buyers were Taiwan, 22,100 bales; Hungary, 7,200; and The Philippines, 5,500. The week's exports of 188,100 running bales pushed the total for the current marketing year to 2,940,300, compared with 2,114,800 a year ago.

TRY IT, YOU'LL LIKE IT

That's the message the Textile Research Center (TRC) at Texas Tech University and Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., are conveying to textile mills and cotton merchandisers about the 1979 High Plains crop of predominantly low micronaire cotton.

"And we have test results to show that this is no idle claim," emphasizes TRC Director James Parker.

A great number of people on the Plains and elsewhere early in the 1979 harvest season were surprised at the low micronaire readings from what appeared to be a mature crop. This plus fiber strength values that failed to register a proportionate decline, led to speculation that textile performance of the crop might not be as low as the poor micronaire would indicate.

Parker and Donald Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President, discussed this possibility with others in the industry and Johnson, who is also Chairman of the Natural Fibers Advisory Committee of the Texas Natural Fibers and Food Protein Commission, (NF&FPC) proposed that NF&FPC provide TRC with the necessary funds for spinning tests.

The Commission approved, NF&FPC funds were diverted from less urgent projects, and the test results will soon be in the hands of U.S. and foreign cotton mills and the cotton trade.

Ten bales ranging from 2.7 to 3.3 micronaire were processed at TRC on two different types of widely used open-end spinning equipment and a conventional ring-spinning frame. Three singles count yarns were spun, 8's 14's and 22's. Eights and 14's were run on the ring frame. Of the 60 different yarns spun, six from each bale, six earned a rating of "A" on the American Society for Testing and Materials yarn grading system, 39 graded "B" and 15 rated "C".

Data sheets show beyond a doubt, Parker told PCG, "that each of the bales produced acceptable yarns in every test. Strength, evenness, appearance—all were considerably better than is usually achieved from low mike cotton, and the strength of the yarn was in fact excellent."

Johnson believes there can be little doubt that the tests will open more mill doors to High Plains cotton this year, "and with the high volume of low mike cotton on the Plains it is doubly important to area producers that it move into the market as quickly and at the best price possible," he said.

GRAIN DRYING

The Wall Street Journal reported that McDonnell Douglas Corporation reported the development of an energy-saving microwave vacuum grain dryer. This device uses low heat within a vacuum to accomplish grain drying. The device is planned to be in production later this year.

AERIAL PESTICIDE APPLICATORS REGULATIONS

A "citizens interest group," Friends of the Earth, has filed a petition with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency seeking amendment to aerial pesticide applicators' regulations.

The petition is requesting that aerial pesticide applicators be required to get written permission from persons within a thousand feet of the field under contract to be sprayed before spraying operations begin.

In summary, the request is for the administrators to propose additional regulations that are more restrictive. Johnson believes there can be little doubt that the tests will open more mill doors to High Plains cotton this year, "and with the high volume of low mike cotton on the Plains it is doubly important to area producers that it move into the market as quickly and at the best price possible," he said.

CONSERVATORSHIP BOARD

January 9, 1980, Governor Clements appointed Frank Junell, Chairman of the Board of Central National Bank of San Angelo, to the newly created State Conservatorship Board. ("Conservatorship" is a broad legal term referring to persons who are appointed by law to be temporary guardians or custodians of property.) Mr. Junell's term would expire on January 31, 1981. Two members had been previously appointed to the three-member board: William M. Noble, President of the American Bank of Commerce in Victoria, on December 13, 1979 for a term to expire on January 31, 1983; and the Board's intended chairman, Jack N. Roper, Sr., President of Bearing Chain and Supply in Dallas, on November 30, 1979, for a term to expire on January 31, 1985. However, all three of the appointments will require the advise and consent of the state senate when the legislature returns to session. After the initial appointments, all subsequent appointments to the board will be for a term of six years.

The State Conservatorship Board came into existence when Governor Clements signed Senate Bill 1266 into law on June 6, 1979. The new law is found in Vernon's Annotated Civil Statutes Article 4413(203), Sections 1-12. While it nowhere directly defines the word "conservatorship" it gives the newly created board potentially great powers over any statewide executive agency, department, commission, board, or office created by statute and directed by an appointed officer, or officers.

Specifically, the statute requires the Legislative Audit Committee to notify the governor if it finds that a condition of "gross fiscal mismanagement" exists in agencies of the type described above. The Legislative Audit Committee consists of the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, the Chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, the Lieutenant Governor, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and the Chairman of the Senate Committee on State Affairs.

On receipt of the notice the governor by proclamation may order the State Conservatorship Board to act as "conservator" of the agency. "Gross fiscal mismanagement" includes failure to keep adequate fiscal records, failure to maintain proper control over assets, failure to discharge fiscal obligations in a timely manner, and misuse of state funds, all as determined by the Legislative Audit Committee.

While acting as "conservator" of a state agency, the newly created board may employ personnel for the agency, fire employees which it determines were responsible for the "gross fiscal mismanagement," make other necessary organizational or structural changes in the agency to achieve the purposes of the new law, contract with public or private entities or persons for management or administrative services, and delegate any part of its powers, other than rule-making powers to public, or private, entities or persons. The board's "conservatorship" of an agency continues until the governor issues a later proclamation declaring that the condition of "gross fiscal mismanagement" in the agency no longer exists, or until the Legislative Audit Committee determines and reports to the governor a similar finding. In both cases, the "conservatorship" is then dissolved, and presumably the state agency would then be back under the laws which created it, and previously regulated it.

OSHA DEVELOPMENTS

The United States Department of Labor has announced its plans for international involvements by OSHA in job safety and health activities for the year 1980. The plans include: an international workshop, joint technical meetings, conferences and seminars with the Commission of the European Communities, representing the nine member nations of Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, and the United Kingdom; participation by OSHA in the International Labor Organization hazard alert system and the United Nations International Registry of Potentially Toxic Chemicals; an OSHA-conducted seminar in Israel; the establishment of a joint research committee with the Israelis; joint seminars in Mexico in April 1980; special training sessions at the OSHA Training Institute in Des Plaines, Illinois, for specialists from Mexico in such fields as ventilation and noise control; and periodic exchange of visits by researchers and administrators with Japan, including experts in the handling of industrial accidents and disasters, and in epidemiological surveys of occupational cancer.

METRIC GAS PRICING

The Texas Department of Agriculture's Weights and Measures Division is proposing to adopt rules that will permit gasoline distributing agencies to use any one of the following three methods of pricing gasoline: (1) price per gallon; (2) price per half gallon and (3) price per liter. Gasoline is now being dispensed on the basis of price per gallon and price per half gallon. The change in current rules proposed by the Texas Department of Agriculture is scheduled to become effective on February 11, 1980. Anyone wishing to comment by way of telephone should call Mr. Charles E. Foster at A C 512 475-6577 or by writing Mr. Foster, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.
