County Gets Safety Grant

A Grant in the amount of $29,230 was received this week by County Judge Choise Smith from the Criminal Justice Division to defray costs of the life safety equipment being installed at the jail.

Smith began the paper work for the Grant application six months ago. The budget narrative and project description was first sent to the Precinct 2 Advisory Committee for review. Smith then applied to the Plains Association Board in Lubbock. The final application was made to the Criminal Justice Division in Austin.

"It would be costing the local taxpayers if we hadn't gotten this grant," Smith said, "I'm real proud to have gotten this money."

The life safety equipment requested through this grant will enable the Floyd County Jail to be adequately equipped in the event of an emergency and will be compliant with Jail Standards.

Total cost of the life safety equipment will be $48,628. Of this amount, local tax money will pay only $19,398.

Design Specialists Set Up Program

Do you feel like your house has the blahs? Are you tired of fighting the dandelions to see who gets possession of your yard first? Then grab your cap and come to the Massey Activity Center, at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

"Use Sense-Add Dollars To Your Home" will be the thrust of the program when five specialists in interior design and landscaping present the latest and most economical ways to brighten your home and yard.

Sponsored and planned by the Floyd County Family Living Committee, Extension Agents Marilyn Tate and Jett Major the activities of the day will begin with registration and coffee at 9 a.m.

Everett Janne, Landscape Horticulturist from College Station will begin the program at 9:30 when he presents "Landscaping with Maintenance in Mind."

Janne believes that no one can have a "maintenance-free" yard, but there are plants and trees for this area which require minimal maintenance.

Janne, as well as all the program personalities, will include a question and answer session, along with their presentations.

Beginning at 10:30, Dr. Bill Stewart, agricultural engineer - environmental control Texas A&M, will address the problem of home remodeling.

"Remodeling an existing home can provide a good alternative to present day housing costs and high interest rates," writes Stewart.

He will answer such questions as: "When should remodeling be considered and when should it be ruled out? What are the steps you should take in a remodeling project?"

Planning your landscape to help reduce energy bills will be discussed by Janne at 11:30. He will be placing emphasis on selection, use and care of trees and shrubs to help make your home become more energy efficient.

Fanette Deaton, who has worked as an interior decorator for the past 10 years, begins her presentation on "Interior Decorating: Begin With the Basics" at 1 p.m. Mrs. Deaton, now a decorating consultant with Sherwin-Williams in Plainview, will discuss the use of basics in wall coverings, carpeting and window treatments.

Ideas for inexpensive fabric decoration with minimal sewing skills will be the next session at 2 p.m. Paula Cawthon, Garza County Extension Agent from Post will present ideas for comforters, bedspreads, wall hangings and Christmas decorations, along with many other creative decorating ideas.

The final session at 3 p.m. will feature Lee Conley of Spears Studio of Interior Design in Lubbock who feels that with the cost of good furniture rising, her information on furniture selection, arrangement and mixing styles will be most helpful to all men and women.

"Use Sense-add dollars to your Home" promises to be an educational and informative day for people of all ages, newlyweds or singles, the consultants believe.

Those able to attend the full day of events are encouraged to participate in those which best suit their needs.

Chopper Pilot; Iranian Rescue Tough Break

lot more to go wrong with them than on conventional aircraft," Thomas pointed out. "You see, there is a tremendous amount of vibration with a helicopter, causing a lot more stress on the moving parts, so those machines wear faster and require a lot more ground maintenance," he added.

Questioned as to why, in such a critical situation, three of the eight machines should fail, Thomas could only shrug and explain that "these things happen, in spite of the maintenance you do. Even if these helicopters had been new, it could have happened, but they weren't new, I don't suppose. And like any other machine, that has been used and is worn, you can renew one part, just like one a farming machine, and something else can go out. It's just unfortunate that the electrical system failed on one of the machines, and in the darkness of the desert where they were operating, it was critical that they have electrical power for their navigational equipment and it was unsafe for them to operate without it. The second machine failed when its hydraulic system went out, I think I read in the paper, and of course that disabled that machine immediately.

Nothing that the third helicopter was damaged when it collided with one of the U.S. transport planes as both were maneuvering to take off, the Floyd County farmer-pilot said he could understand how that happened.

"You've got to remember that those pilots were nervous when they got the call to abort the mission, everyone was in a hurry to leave, it was black out on that desert. Also, those big choppers generate winds in excess of 190 m.p.h. when they are revved up and could have been throwing up clouds of sand, causing people to lose their visual reference. Put all these factors together—the tension and pressure, the blackness of the light, the blowing sand from the choppers, and you kind of get an idea of what it could have been like," Thomas explained.

"I think you have to commend the pilots who were on that mission. I assume they were all volunteers, top professionals, with thousands of hours in the air, and it wasn't because they were not well trained. Some time these things (accidents) happen, even if you have 4,000 hours of flying time.

Did Thomas feel the mission should have been attempted?

"Yes, I think they should have tried it. It's too bad it didn't work out, and maybe it should have been tried earlier than it was," he commented. "I suppose it can't be tried again now, with the dispersal of the hostages around Iran, but even so, the nights are shorter over there now, there are higher temperatures, which affect density at different altitudes which affects load efficiency of the aircraft in relation to the 'go or no go' aspect of the mission. All these things are factors."

But afraid readers would get the impression that helicopters were not dependable, Thomas hastened to add that "they (helicopters) are capable of carrying out missions like the Iranian attempted rescue, and have performed great service in the past. It's just the breaks on this time, they went against us," he said earnestly.

Thomas' background in flying stems back to his early years when he graduated from Floydada High School. He tried farming and then enrolled in West Texas State University and entered the R.O.T.C. program while majoring in Business Administration. Already a licensed pilot, he decided he wanted to learn to fly helicopters. After attending Armour Officer's Basic at Fort Knox, Kentucky, he was sent in 1970 to Mineral Wells for the helicopter training he wanted.

"There were more openings for helicopter pilots than for fixed wing pilots," he said, observing that he later became an instructor pilot for training pilots for Vietnam.

Thinking his chopper training might have some application for his return to civilian life, perhaps in the crop-spraying business, Thomas checked into this possibility.

There were so many pilots (helicopter) trained in Vietnam that there was no need for them when the war there ended. I remember that the (helicopter pilots) could only get $700 a month as pilots for owning choppers, etc."

Did he consider buying helicopters and using them for a crop dusting business in this area?

"Well, yes, but the maintenance costs and capital outlay was too high for that. I figured that it would take about a quarter of a million dollars to get into the business right, with a good plane and the necessary equipment. But I also found that the helicopters aren't used nearly as much in this area [Texas] as they are in the south eastern U.S. where the fields are much smaller. So, I didn't get into it because of that and the expense."

In spite of this, however,

KEITH THOMAS is a nephew of W.L. Thomas of Lockney.

Flemish Paintings On Exhibit

An exhibit of "The Dutch Flemish Collection of the Golden Age of Painting" from the Sarah Campbell Blaffer Foundation opens May 4 at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

The West Texas Museum Association will be host for a public reception from 2:30 to 4 p.m. Sunday. The exhibit runs through June 11. The exhibit of 40 Dutch, Flemish and German works dating from the 16th and 17th centuries are important examples of this era in painting and represent the styles and subject matter of the times.

The show contains a work believed to have been painted by Sir Peter Paul Rubens, master of 17th century Flemish painting. It is "The Mystic Marriage of St. Catherine," produced about 1615. Larger and considered more impressive is Abraham Janssen's "The Four Elements." Janssen was a follower of Rubens, and in this painting he interprets earth, air, fire and water as individual figures.

One of the most important is a portrait of a bishop by Sir Anthony van Dyck, a student of Rubens who succeeded his master as court painter to King Charles I of England. This painting at one time belonged to the Hermitage in Russia.

Of special interest is a 1520 altarpiece by Quentin Massys, one of the few 16th century Netherland altarpieces outside Europe.

Funding for "The Golden Age of Painting," like other Blaffer Foundation shows, is provided by the foundation.

Mrs. Blaffer to circulate art from her extensive collection to audiences who might otherwise not have a direct experience with original art. Previously shown at The Museum of Texas Tech University have been the foundation exhibits, "American Abstract Expressionist Paintings" and "Old Master Paintings."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

It is almost time for our "OLD TIMERS TO GET TOGETHER" again which means everyone, old or young, who ever lived around Conte, Mount Blanco, Lakeview, McCoy, Farmer (on and on we could go) but the most important part is getting the word to all of our friends and loved ones to meet us at the Cone school house, which is the Primitive Baptist Foundation.

The date is Sunday May 25. Bring your "grub," spread it with us, and we will guarantee you'll never be the same. You will see old friends and new friends and have something to talk about for years to come.

Each time we all meet we can't help wondering who will be the next one to be Promoted To Glory. As a friend said not long ago, "The first thing I do in the morning is read the obituaries. When I see my name is not there, I go back to my rocking chair and dream some more."

May God Bless and Keep us all.

April Court Cases

by Lu Ann Collins

Floyd County Court heard 11 misdemeanor cases during April. In each case, the accused was required to pay $58.30 in court costs for entering a plea of guilty and $60.30 for entering a plea of not guilty.

County Judge Choise Smith acted on seven cases of DWI, three cases of vandalism and one case of theft. Six of the seven DWI defendants pled guilty, were fined and sentenced. Fines ranged from $250 to $300 and jail from six to 60 days. All sentenced six to one year given six months to one year probationary terms in lieu of jail sentences. One case of DWI entered a plea of not guilty and bond was set at $500.

A plea of guilty was entered for three defendants charged with vandalism. Each defendant being fined $25 and sentenced to 30 days in jail but individual probationary terms of six months replaced jail sentences.

Accused of theft, one lone defendant entered a plea of guilty, was fined $1 and released.

Totals for the month of April were: fines $1,526, court costs $643.30, for a total of $2,169.30.

District Court Judge George Miller began proceedings on one case of perjury, and two cases of theft.

One defendant, accused of two counts of perjury, entered a plea of not guilty, was appointed a lawyer by the court, and trial was set for a later date.

A plea of not guilty was entered by two defendants charged with theft of property over $200 but under $10,000. Both were dismissed on State's motion one case dealt with restitution and insufficient evidence.

Two cases of burglary are awaiting court action.

4-H News

A special 4-H shooting sports camp will be held at Tarleton State University June 23-27 for 4-H members between the ages of 12 and 16, according to Don Steinbach, Fisheries Specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and a coordinator of the Texas 4-H shooting sports project.

Steinbach said arrangements had been made with the National Rifle Association for the organization and conduct of a special NRA Junior Olympic Training Program which will afford a selected number of 4-H members the opportunity to train in rifle marksmanship and trap shooting.

He said that Extension Officials were in the process of securing two top instructors to work with the 4-H members. Sixteen 4-H members will be selected for rifle marksmanship and fifteen for trap shooting.

The camp will be designed to encourage participation in the 4-H shooting sports project and to help beginning shooters learn to shoot properly, emphasizing sound basic shooting skills. Participants will be housed at Tarleton State University and training will take place on local shooting ranges.

Six volunteer 4-H shooting sports coaches will also be accepted to serve as assistant coaches and chaperones for the 4-H members. These coaches will receive special instructions on how to teach. 4-H members and leaders who are interested should secure an application from their county Extension agent. Deadline for submitting the application to the State 4-H Office in College Station is May 23.

Steinbach said that this is an excellent opportunity for both youth and adults to learn shooting skills and that the Texas Agricultural Extension Service was fortunate to have the services provided by the National Rifle Association to organize and conduct this camp.

MIKE ALLEN tied for second high individual shooter of the overall District 24-H Senior Rifle Team Competition on Saturday, April 26.

4-H Rifle Team Places Second

The Floyd County 4-H Rifle Team, coached by Harvey Allen, placed second in the District competition held Saturday. The team now advances to the state 4-H Roundup June 3-4 at College Station.

Team members Mike Allen, Norman Allen, Tom Ross and Ricky Heflin of Floydada finished just four points (out of a possible 900 points) behind the first place Lubbock team.

Mike Allen also tied for second high individual shooter of the overall contest.

The Floyd County Junior Rifle Team, coached by Teddy Porter, also competed in the District contest Saturday. Members of that team include Richard Porter, Dean Smith, Stacey Smith, Jerry Don Wilson and Hunter Smith (alternate).

Census Folk Hit Trail

Census takers for the 1980 Census of Population and Housing are easy to identify, according to Census District Manager, Mizzi Jordan.

They wear red, white, and blue cards with the U.S. Department of Commerce seal and "Census Enumerator, Official Credential" printed on them. Their cards also have their signatures, certifying that they have sworn to keep confidential all information they collect for the census. Any Census Bureau worker who breaks this oath faces a fine or imprisonment or both, but the Bureau's record on this is spotless, the manager said.

Census takers have started making their rounds here, calling at residences from which householders have not mailed back their census questionnaires. They are using the telephone to reach most of the householders who have mailed back questionnaires inadequately filled out.

Anyone without this official identification card who claims to be a census taker should be reported to the police or to the district office. Dial information for the local census number to call.

Lions Club Learns Aerobics

By Renee Sanders

"You all know how to jog, jog seven steps forward and clap your hands. Ready?" asks the young blonde lady. Aerobic dancing to the song "Happy Days", the members of the Lions Club got a taste of aerobics.

Mrs. Ann Fawver Johnston presented the program at the Lions Club meeting on Thursday, April 24. She started off her program by telling the history of the aerobic exercise program. She encouraged everyone to get involved in some sort of exercise routine.

After the discussion, Johnston asked for volunteers to assist her in the demonstration. So many men volunteered, (no one) she decided to ask the whole group to participate. Even though the group did not look very eager, they all seemed to have a very good time trying, and they all learned a little.

Mrs. Johnston is a student teacher at Floydada High School. She teaches one P.E. class and four English classes for Mrs. Fred Cardinal.

Mrs. Johnston is a graduate of Floydada High School. She has attended South Plains College, West Texas State University, and will soon graduate from Wayland Baptist College. She is majoring in Physical Education and English.

When asked if anything unusual or different had happened while she had been student teaching she said, "I video-taped aerobics class one day and have been offered various amounts of money for the tape. It's safely locked away. Some of the teachers offered more than the students."

Besides teaching class at school, she also teaches two, two hour aerobic dance classes at Lockney one night a week. The Johnstons have two small boys; Corey 2 and Casey 5 to keep her busy.

Mrs. Johnston became interested in teaching because she wanted to help people. "I think that everyone has a special talent and I think that this is mine." Working with the mentally retarded at the Lubbock State School inspired her to teach.

Mrs. Johnston tries to approach her English classes in a different way.

Many projects were used in her College prep. English class. Students were asked to write summaries of various acts and scenes in the play Macbeth. Different dialogues were used to summarize the act where Macbeth murders King Duncan. The class divided into groups and wrote in the following dialogues: Spanish, French, deep South Negro, and West Texas slang.

Another project was to act out a scene using the class as the cast. The scene chosen was the one where the witches employ their talents to make a brew and chant "Double, double, toil and trouble, fire burn and cauldron bubble." Three members of the class dressed in long black robes and danced around an imaginary cauldron. Other class members portrayed Macbeth and the apparitions.

From her experience student teaching, she felt that learning to deal on a one to one basis in the classroom with students was very important. This is something college education courses can't teach.

"I think she will be an excellent teacher, after all, she was one of my students," Mrs. Cardinal said jokingly. "No, really I think she has a great future as a teacher."

Reading Club To Begin

The Floyd County Library is among nearly 400 libraries throughout Texas participating this year in the Texas Reading Club. The program is sponsored by the Texas State Library and participating libraries.

Young readers will take part in activities built around "Sports Splash," the theme selected for 1980. The nearly universal interest in sports that range from solitary activities like jogging to team sports like baseball and football gives them appeal for most young readers. And libraries have books about sports that range from books through biographies of famous players to novels and stories with sports themes. Most important of all, young Texans who participate will sample the fun of recreational reading. Today's public libraries include a wide range of books and other printed materials for young readers. Summertime is vacation time, but skills honed by vacation time reading will be sharp for the year ahead.

FARM & RANCH NEWS

President Speaks For Less Control

President Jimmy Carter severely handicapping farmers to achieve so-called higher yields results in substantially lower costs, he added.

Propst questioned why agriculture is being singled out for special attention to its structure. He noted that in the nation's manufacturing sector, the largest 50 firms account for a fourth of all value added by manufacture. By contrast, the largest 50,000 farms account for only 36 percent of farm cash receipts.

"Is agriculture getting attention to its structure because it's more vulnerable to government manipulation than other sectors...and because government by threatening to withhold benefits like price supports, irrigation facilities, and others can more easily control?" Propst asked.

If government should succeed in gaining more control over agriculture and other industries, he questioned whether the result would be similar to the experience of the railroad industry "whose structure has been virtually controlled by government for many years and which now through necessity is being deregulated by Congress."

In its detailed statement, the Council supported the principles of the current market-oriented cotton program saying it has served the nation well and has allowed cotton's income and market position to improve.

Farm Bureau Facts

Editors Note:
After reading the following article, the Beacon contacted Ridge Pate, the author of news release for Farm Bureau.

Pate said that if tested the law should stand as written.

The main problem involved is that an individual grower would be unlikely to have the minimum amount ($200) in weight penalties necessary to bring a suit against a cotton buyer.

Pate said that a class action suit would probably be the only to test this law.

On August 3, 1979, FACTS FOR YOU discussed Articles 5679b and 5679c of Vernon's Annotated Texas Statutes.

These statutes state that if a spot cotton buyer charges any cotton bale weight penalty at all on a bale weighing 400 pounds or more -- or if he charges such penalty in excess of $1.00 on any bale weighing less than 400 pounds -- a seller or grower can get back double the excessive amount of the bale weight penalty the buyer has charged.

The procedure to be followed is apparently that which was allowed in 1933 for recovery by law for usury.

Also, Article 2226 of Vernon's Annotated Texas Statutes, as amended by the 66th Texas Legislature and approved by the Governor on June 6, 1979, reads in part as follows:

"Any person, corporation, partnership, or other legal entity having a valid claim against a person or corporation for services rendered, labor done, material furnished, overcharges on freight or express, lost or damaged freight or express, or stock killed or injured, or suits founded upon a sworn account or accounts, or suits founded on oral or written contracts, may present the same to such person or corporation or to any duly authorized agent thereof; and if, at the expiration of 30 days thereafter, payment for the just amount owing has not been tendered, the claimant may, if represented by an attorney, also recover, in addition to his claim and costs, a reasonable amount as attorney's fees. The usual and customary fees in such cases shall be presumed to be reasonable, but such presumption may be rebutted by competent evidence. In a proceeding before the court, or in a jury case where the issue of amount of attorney's fees is submitted to the court for determination by agreement, the court may in its discretion take judicial knowledge of the usual and customary fees in such matters and of the contents of the case file without receiving further evidence....This Act shall be liberally construed to promote its underlying purposes"

From this information, some possible methods for recovering cotton bale weight penalties, as well as reasonable attorney's fees, may be stated:

(1) The proper first step for the grower, after having paid the penalty under protest, is to present the amount of his claim, and its basis in state law, to the buyer. The buyer would then have 30 days to refund any penalties wrongly charged. After that, legal action against the buyer would be possible, and attorney's fees could be recovered if the action were successful.

(2) Article 2226 refers to "suits founded on oral or written contracts" and this would presumably include a suit alleging that the bale weight penalty provisions in a cotton sales contract are in violation of state law.

(3) Article 2226 refers only to suits brought in county or district courts. The amount of money in controversy, or the cotton bale weight penalties wrongfully paid, must exceed $200 in the former court, or $500 in the latter. Of course, a number of growers may join in the same suit on the same form contract against a buyer. Also, the minimum statute of limitations for a usury action in Texas is two years, so any improper deduction collected within the past two years, and of which there is evidence, could be pleaded and recovered.

(4) In 1933, a usury action could have been brought before a justice of the peace, who has no minimum jurisdictional amount and could thus have handled cases involving the penalty on a single bale of cotton. However, in 1979 the Texas Legislature amended the usury laws to make such actions impossible before justice of the peace courts. The 1933 usury laws may still control bale weight penalty suits, though, in which case an inexpensive recovery could be had through a justice of the peace.

Many of the issues discussed in this article are still open questions, and they will not be decided until a case to recover cotton bale weight penalties is brought under Articles 5679b and 5679c. Since 1933, no such case has yet been brought, but the Research and Education Department is aware that at least one case may be brought in the future.

Williams Brand Added To "Stairway"

The search is on throughout Texas for outstanding cattle brands to include on county panels at the Kleberg Center's "branded stairway" at Texas A&M University.

L.A. Mattox, chairman of the unique branding project, said that some 3,500 brands, or more, are expected to be imprinted on the 254 "county oak panels" in the University's new $9.5 million Robert J. Kleberg Animal and Food Sciences Center.

"County Extension agents are working with their local beef cattle committees to select eight brands per county, and with historical societies to select other brands for the panels," Mattox said.

Recently, a delegation from Floyd County added another local brand to the county's oak panel. The brand, belonging to the Jerry Williams Ranch, northwest of Lockney, was placed on the Kleberg Center's "Branded Stairway" by Larry Williams.

There are some 200,000 brands recorded in Texas and on file with the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association in Fort Worth. This is the state's most complete record.

The "branding" was an idea of Dr. O.D. Butler, for many years head of Texas A&M's Animal Science Department and now associate vice president for agriculture and renewable resources. He said that not only are cattle brands a rich part of Texas livestock history but a prized possession of ranchers in identification of their cattle.

"We felt that the branding ceremonies would bring about a closer tie-in between cattlemen and our animal science facilities on campus as well as with research and educational work throughout Texas," Butler said.

Mattox said that branding ceremonies will be conducted by Extension district groups until "all panels are branded."

Proposed For Cattlemen

Floyd Bentsen on Tuesday legislation that would prevent loan guarantees for hog producers.

"One cattle feeder I talked to this week had just sold a pen of steers on which he had lost $130 per head," Bentsen said.

"Beyond the national problems of low prices and high interest rates, much of Texas suffers from a severe drought, and Texas ranchers are reduced to depending upon an overworked emergency feed program which has already approved assistance for 5,419 ranchers who are trying to save over a million head of cattle," Bentsen said.

"The livestock industry lives on credit. Even when credit is abundant, bankers are reluctant to finance operations plagued by drought and low prices. This bill would save the younger, smaller producers who are hurt worst by this credit squeeze, and help them to get their feet back on the ground," Senator Bentsen said.

Cattlemen Association Tours Ranch

Teen Burleson hosted 50 members of the Oklahoma County Cattlemen's Association on a tour of the Burleson Ranch Tuesday. Burleson led the Oklahoma cattlemen to the north side of the ranch and through the foothill country to view his cattle operation.

They were especially interested in the Spotted Hereford breed, which most had never seen before.

The breed was started from a roan milk cow brought to the Silverton area about 1895 tied behind W.E. Burleson's wagon when he moved his family to a homestead from South Texas.

Burleson started breeding cattle and as far as the family knows the Spotted Hereford breed of cattle started from that one old cow, according to Mollie Burleson, widow of W.W. Burleson.

"Down the line of Burlesons, Doc, W.E., (both deceased) and now Teen, they have bred them into very fine cattle," Mollie said.

Other ranchers in this area have purchased some of the cattle and have begun their own herds.

The group stopped at the Burleson home at Mott Creek Camp, an old Matador line camp, for a barbecue lunch catered by Walter Jones of Matador.

From the Burleson Ranch the cattlemen left to tour the Pitchfork Ranch headquartered at Guthrie. They were to tour the Waggoner Ranch at Vernon the next day before returning to Oklahoma. The group has been making four-day tours similar to this one for 10 years.

"The group was a nice bunch and we enjoyed having them as their guests," Mollie said.

"We just have more customers than we have money," Armstrong said. He said the money currently available for loans has been committed because the Veterans' Land Program has become virtually the only source for long-term, low-interest real estate loans for small tracts in Texas.

Under the program, veterans are able to borrow up to $20,000 on a 40-year note to purchase 10 or more acres.

Veterans who now have applications will still be able to get a loan under the program, Armstrong said, provided they return the required papers before the expiration date on their applications.

ELECTRICITY FROM COAL...

It's good to know there's something we can depend on.

Almost all of us depend on electricity in our homes, factories, and offices to provide for more jobs... greater productivity... and a higher standard of living. Yes, electricity plays a big roll in the scientific and technological developments that make these things possible.

The constant striving for these innovative and advanced ideas and achievements of tomorrow means we will need more electricity. That's why Southwestern Public Service is continuing the building program of new electric generating plants that use coal as fuel. Because it's good to know there's something we can depend on.

Arthel Named Lockney Editor

Arthel, new editor of the Lockney Beacon and a Lockney resident, will assume the editorship of the paper on May 1, succeeding Huggins, who is leaving to accept a position with the Blanco Press in Blanco, Texas.

Sellmeyer, Texas A&M professor, is the Hesperian editor. He will be in Lockney this month while his personnel are in the area.

"I hope our Lockney subscribers will call in their events and activities, and let me know any news tips they have so I can cover them for the paper. We are also always interested in good news and feature pictures, and would like to publish all newsworthy pictures relating to the city and its citizens. This community deserves a good newspaper, which it has had for many years, and we plan to continue that tradition, with your help," the new editor emphasized.

Sellmeyer, who ran the Hesperian for a month in May of 1978 while Wendell Tooley was out of the city, is a former weekly newspaperman and came to Texas Tech

Lockney Elects L

The Lockney Future Homemakers of America, held its annual banquet Friday, May 2, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huffman, with forty in attendance.

The theme "Spring Showers" was carried out by room decorations of a large umbrella, rain drops and tables covered with brightly colored paper napkins, mint cups and miniature umbrellas, for plate favors.

The programs were decorated by hand and added to the festive air. The covered dish dinner was served from a table bedecked with a red and white checked cloth.

Tammy Adams, President gave the welcome, the invocation was given by Cindy Adams, parliamentarian.

The retiring officers 1979-80 announced the 1980-81 incoming officers, they are: 1979-80—President, Tammy Adams; Program Chairman, Sue Burt; Projects Chairman, Christine Huffman; Recreation, Paula Teuton; Reporter, Kristi Edwards; Sec./Treas., Kim Smith; Encounter, Bianca Balderas; Treasurer, Vickie Ortegon; Parliamentarian, Cindy Adams; Historian, Brenda Williams.
