Company notified the 63 West Texas City Plant for natural gas service to certain business customers September 4, 1981. Lockney will be effected.

average residential customer, the proposed new rate will increase the cost of a thousand cubic feet of gas by 63 cents, from $3.40 to $4.03.

new rates apply to residential, commercial, small industrial and large air conditioning units. The West Texas City Plant is owned by Energas. About 180,000 people in an area from Pampa to Odessa.

Energas officials said the decision to file for new rates was made after a study by an independent consulting firm revealed that revenues from the West Texas City Plant System in 1980 were $22.4 million less than the cost of service. The new rates are expected to increase Energas revenues about $18.5 million, they said.

"It has been three years since the last rate increase was requested in West Texas City Plant System rates," Charles Vaughan, Energas president, said. "During that time, the consumer price index has increased about 40 percent and our costs for material, labor and taxes have increased proportionally. These increases coupled with certain inadequacies in our purchased gas adjustment clause have produced a serious deficiency in earnings from the system."

Vaughan said that, while the new rates cannot change the imbalance between revenues and costs that occurred in recent years, they can restore the balance somewhat for the future.

"To provide the service our customers expect, Energas must be able to make commitments for gas supplies well into the future. To do that, the company obviously must have revenues that approximate its present costs," he said.

To the West Texas system customers affected by the change, the new rates will mean an average increase of about 18.5 percent. For an average residential customer on the system, using 107 thousand cubic feet per year, the typical monthly bill would increase $5.61, from $30.32 to $35.93.

After receiving notification of the rate change, the governing bodies of the 63 cities and towns on the system may take no action at all, in which case the rate change becomes effective September 4, 1981.

If the cities decide to act on the request, they are required by law to study the filing made by the Company and set rates accordingly. However, when the 1978 change was proposed, the cities formed a committee to study the request and to recommend what action be taken. Energas officials said it is possible that a similar procedure may be followed on the current rate request.

Energas Company is a division of Pioneer Corporation, a diversified energy resources corporation, headquartered in Amarillo.

It's Not Easy

CAROL LEA CLARK

I have my virtues, but not one of them. I don't think that if I want to do something, it will happen magically. I don't like to eat ice cream for dessert before.

It's silly, but that doesn't keep me from thinking about it. I don't like to stay awake at night and think about the world's record for about meeting a deadline on a project. If I just would get up on a chapter for my book, that closet, or run a few laps in the pool, it wouldn't matter so much.

It matters worse, I've always wished for things that will never happen. I don't know how patient I am. I've been about six-or-seven years when I decided that I would wear violet-colored eyes like Taylor. I thought that if I had enough stars I would wake up with violet eyes.

It's since forgotten exactly what I thought having violet-colored eyes would change my life, but I still remember my disappointment each time I ran to the mirror and saw the same old grey-green eyes looking back at me.

One time when I was a little girl, I needed to have ESP. I just thought hard enough I would be able to see the future, just like Jeanne d'Arc. I would lie awake waiting for a dream.

I'm a little older now, but I'm not too much wiser. I don't think I'm wishing for violet eyes or ESP, but I do find myself wishing for a snowstorm on a hot day.

One time, which was made famous in a movie, the English in Japan attempts to communicate the Japanese way by sitting quietly and drinking tea from a cup. Supposedly, if you tried to drink tea from a cup, you could really taste the tea.

Learning to drink tea from a cup would be easier than learning to have violet eyes. At least, if I could learn the technique, perhaps I could have ice cream from an empty cup. I might really have a surprise.

Five pounds might be almost nothing, but I'm having violet eyes.

'Horns begin practice Monday

The Lockney Longhorns' varsity and freshmen football teams will begin practice next Monday.

The varsity will hold two-a-day practices for two weeks at 8 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. The freshmen will practice at 10:30 a.m. each day.

Free physical examinations will be given at 3 p.m. Sunday at the fieldhouse.

Coach Dewayne Sexton said every-one planning to play football must have a physical. Sexton said those who do not have a physical examination will not be allowed to take part in practice sessions.

The varsity has 12 lettermen returning, including nine seniors and three juniors. The returnees include senior quarterback Jeff McCormick.

Sexton said he expects to see about 35 sophomores, juniors and seniors turn-out for practice next week with 20-25 freshmen turning out for the junior varsity.

The Longhorns were 2-8 overall last season and 0-5 in district 3A competition and Sexton said he anticipates, "a long fight with a short stick," this season.

Several problems are facing the Longhorns, Sexton said.

"Our enrollment is about 35 below what it should be for a class 3A school," Sexton said. "That gives us less kids to work with."

As a result, Sexton said, the Longhorns will have more players playing both offense and defense. Sexton said he anticipates having about 10 two-way players.

Experience will be another problem, according to Sexton.

"We'll have real young back-up players. If you have to take out a senior and put in a sophomore you lose a lot of depth and experience," Sexton said.

Any injuries would be a serious problem because of the lack of depth Sexton said.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor,

Earlier this month a group of thirteen 4-Hers and I spent a week with 4-H families in Floyd County. We had a super time!

We are from South Central Missouri, near the Lake of the Ozarks. Here at home we are surrounded by hills and water; both of which are scarce in Floyd County. However, while there we were surrounded by warmth and love. What a replacement!

The purpose of the 4-H Interstate Exchange is to experience different lifestyles and surroundings. I have mentioned the difference in terrain, but must admit though the lifestyles vary we were compatible. The host families and Agents worked very hard to assure that we enjoyed our stay. We appreciate their successful efforts.

The purpose of this letter is to let the non-4-H people in Floyd County know what a great thing they have and encourage them to get involved in the 4-H program; and, to publicly thank the host families—Chose Smith, G.L. Hight, Buck Ford, Buster Terrell, Bill Whitfill, Waylon Jones, Dean Morris, Eddie Foster, Kenneth Brose and Agents—Jett Major, Ken Langley and Marilyn Tate for their warm hospitality. We're looking forward to hosting them in Miller County, Missouri next year.

Best Regards,
Beth M. Wheeler

WHY FRUIT TREES FAIL TO BEAR

Your fruit tree normally will begin to bear fruit soon after it has become old enough to blossom freely. Nevertheless, the health of your tree and its environment, its fruiting habits, and the cultural practices you use, can influence its ability to produce fruit. Adequate pollination is also essential to fruit yield.

If just one of these conditions is unfavorable, yields may be reduced. Perhaps the tree will not bear fruit at all. As a grower, you can exercise some control over most of the factors contributing to fruit production.

Bearing Age

When you purchase nursery-grown fruit trees, their tops will probably be from 1 to 2 years old. The length of time from planting to fruit bearing varies with the type of fruit. Trees that grow at a moderate rate generally bear fruit sooner than those that grow either too quickly or too slowly.

The age (from planting) when trees can be expected to bear fruit are as follows:

Variety	Time In Years
Apple	2 to 5
Apricot	2 to 5
Cherry, sour	3 to 5
Cherry, sweet	4 to 7
Citrus	3 to 5
Fig	2 to 3
Peach	2 to 4
Pear	4 to 6
Plum	3 to 6
Quince	5 to 6

Dwarf apple and dwarf pear trees usually begin 1 to 2 years earlier than standard size trees.

Tree Health

Healthy trees produce good quality fruit. Weak or diseased trees produce fruit of poor quality or no fruit at all. The first step in fruit production is to keep your fruit trees healthy.

Two of the main problems involved are insects and diseases. Typical of diseases that attack and destroy leaves and young fruit on apple and pear trees is scab fungus. The fungus that causes brown rot kills blossoms on peach trees and plum trees.

Diseases, insects, and fungi can be controlled through application of spray mixtures recommended by our office or the USDA experiment station in Lubbock. These spray mixtures of fungicides and insecticides are usually effective against most fruit tree pests. When fruit trees are not sprayed properly or left untreated, diseases and insects may restrict the size and quality of the yield, although the tree itself usually continues to bear fruit.

Climate and Weather

Most hardy fruit trees need a certain amount of cold winter weather to end their dormancy and to promote spring growth. When winters are too mild, spring growth is delayed, irregular, and slow. These factors extend the period of blooming, and thereby increase the possibility of frost injury.

Hardy fruit trees grown in climates considerably warmer than their native ones often bear poorly because of insufficient winter cold. This problem can occur in areas with mild climates such as southern California and within 200 miles of the Gulf of Mexico.

On the other hand, extreme cold during winter dormancy may kill the fruit buds. Winter weather rarely threatens hardy apple, pear, plum, and sour cherry varieties. Sweet cherry trees, however, are relatively sensitive to cold until they become dormant. Peach trees are very vulnerable to cold weather. Their buds can be killed by midwinter temperatures around 10 degrees F.

As the fruit buds grow and open, they become more susceptible to injury from frost. The exposed buds can usually withstand temperatures near 24 degrees F. However, the open blossoms of practically all fruit trees may be killed if the temperature drops below 27 degrees F.

When a heavy frost is expected, covering the trees will sometimes prevent bud or blossom injury, provided temperatures do not fall too low and the cold weather is of short duration. Protective covering may be effective, and such things as cheesecloth and old bed sheets may be used.

During spring frosts, some commercial growers heat their orchards but this method is impractical for most home gardeners. After a severe frost, injured blossoms may appear normal, but if the pistils (center of the blossoms) are killed, the tree will not bear fruit.

Pollination

Most fruit trees need to be pollinated. Without sufficient pollination, they may blossom abundantly, but will not bear fruit.

Some species of fruit trees have "perfect" flowers. Both the anthers, which contain pollen, and the pistils, which develop into fruit, are located in the same blossom. Trees that bear fruit through self-pollination, or set fruit without pollination, are called "self-fruitful."

However, there are many types of fruit with perfect flowers that can not produce fruit from their own pollen. These require pollen from another variety and are called "self-fruitful."

Some species of fruit trees do not fit conveniently into either category. Persimmons and dates have male trees that produce pollen and female trees that produce fruit. To grow them successfully, it is necessary to plant at least one tree of each gender near each other.

Almost all citrus trees are "self-fruitful." Other self-fruitful types include quinces, sour cherries, apricots, (except Perfection and Riland), figs (except the Smyrna type grown in California), peaches (except the J.H. Hale and several others), and European-type plums such as the Stanley, Green Gage, and Italian Prune.

"Self-unfruitful" types include most apple, pear, sweet cherry, and Japanese and American plum trees. To pollinate adequately, plant two or more varieties near each other. Bees and other insects normally pollinate fruit trees. To insure an adequate supply of bees, furnish each acre with at least one colony. However, in small orchards surrounded by uncultivated land, enough resident pollinators may be present.

Biennial Bearing

Occasionally certain fruit trees, such as apples, bear heavily one year and sparsely the next. This is called "biennial bearing." The spring-flowering buds of most hardy fruit trees have actually been formed during the previous summer. Therefore, an especially heavy crop one year may prevent adequate bud formation for the following year.

Biennial bearing of apples is difficult to alter or correct. However, you can induce a return to normal yearly fruit production by early and heavy thinning during the year in which the trees are producing their large yield. About 30 to 40 healthy leaves are needed to produce 5 to 10 fruit per yard along the branches.

Cultural Practices

Fruit trees need full sunlight for best production. Inadequate sunlight delays the beginning of fruit bearing and may reduce the amount of fruit. Avoid placing fruit trees where they will be shaded by buildings or by other trees.

Your trees will grow more vigorously and bear better if they have adequate space to develop their root systems. Do not plant them where roots of forest or shade trees will compete with them for the same soil. To reduce competition from weeds or grass, cultivate, mulch or apply weed killer.

Prune young apple trees to develop a strong framework with a central leader and horizontal branches. Excessive upright growth will delay fruit bearing and reduce the quantity of fruit produced.

MEDITERRANEAN FRUIT FLY

The Mediterranean fruit fly situation in California currently is receiving a great deal of national attention. Concern over the Medfly is being brought about because of its potential impact on American agriculture. This Entomology Note is being issued to bring audiences of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service up-to-date on the Mediterranean fruit fly situation, as it applies to Texas.

Quarantine

The Texas Department of Agriculture on March 1 and July 15, 1981, promulgated a quarantine on certain fruit, soil and products from California moving into Texas which may be infested with the Mediterranean fruit fly.

The latest quarantine was imposed after an extensive outbreak of the Medfly occurred in California and the apparent spread of the pest within that state, even with a federal quarantine in force. In both instances, a judge has ruled that Texas could not impose a quarantine, because federal law preempts state law. The federal quarantine for the Medfly in the California covers Santa Clara, Alameda and San Mateo counties. Texas imposed a quarantine because it was concerned that the USDA quarantine action in California and the California eradication program was not adequate to protect agriculture outside California.

The Texas Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the USDA is conducting a trapping program for the Mediterranean fruit fly at major points of entry into Texas along interstate highways. This includes: major airports and points along the Texas Gulf Coast and the Texas-Mexico border. Currently, there are about 2,000 "Medfly" traps in place.

This includes: major airports and points along the Texas Gulf Coast and the Texas-Mexico border. Currently, there are about 2,000 "Medfly" traps in place.

Host Plants

The Mediterranean fruit fly, Ceratitis capitata (Wied.), is an important pest because of a wide host range and the difficulty of controlling it once it enters a host. There are at least 250, and possibly, as many as 400 reported hosts. Some of the plants in Texas which could serve as hosts to Medfly include all types of citrus, pears, persimmons, peaches, plums, avocado, sweet bell peppers, watermelon, cantaloupes, cucumbers, squash, pumpkin, egg plant, tomatoes, beans, and prickly pear. The Texas quarantine included: almond, apple, apricot, avocado, calamondin orange, cherries, citrus citron, date, fig, grape, grapefruit, guava, Japanese persimmon, kumquat, lemon, lime, loquat, mandarin orange, mock orange, mountain apple, natal plum, nectarine, olive, opuntia cactus, peach, pear, pepper, pineapple guava, pumelo, pomiform guajava, plum prune, quince, rose apple, sour apple, spanish cherry, strawberry guava, surinam cherry, sweet orange, tomato, white sapote, and yellow oleander.

The Mediterranean fruit fly is a recorded resident of Hawaii, Central and South America, most of Africa, Western Europe, and Australia. It has been in the United States eight times since 1929, and where following control measures each time was eradicated. One of the eradicated infestations was in 1966 at Brownsville, Texas.

Life Cycle

Mediterranean fruit fly eggs are laid just below the surface of host fruit skin, where from one to ten eggs are placed through each puncture. Each female can lay up to 40 eggs per day and may lay as many as 1000 eggs during her lifetime. Other fruit flies or Mediterranean flies may also oviposit at the same location.

Eggs are approximately 1 mm long, smooth, shiny white, round, and tapered toward each end. After hatch, larvae are about 1 mm long and prior to pupation, resemble a tube with one end tapered and the other blunt. Pupae are tan to dark brown, cylindrical, about 4 mm long and resemble a swollen grain of wheat. Adults are yellow, have distinctive wing markings, and are about two-thirds the size of the average house fly. The most distinctive characteristics of the adult are alternating bluish and yellow-orange lines across the abdomen, white line markings on the thorax and darkened areas on each wing. Also, the wings will droop slightly on live flies.

Larvae or maggots develop inside a host for 6-11 days at summer temperatures then come out and drop to the ground. They then burrow about 1/2 inch into the soil and pupate. The pupal stage lasts about 6-11 days after which an adult will emerge and work its way up to the soil surface. A 5 to 8 day pre-oviposition period follows emergence and mating occurs during this time. The average Mediterranean fruit fly life cycle requires about 28 days and there can be from 6 to 8 generations per year, depending on available hosts, weather, and temperature.

Malathion
The Mediterranean fruit fly control program in California includes the use of malathion. This insecticide is applied at the rate of 2.4 ounces per acre, liquid protein bait serves as a highly attractive source of food to the adult flies which are then killed by the malathion when they feed on the mixture droplets. The spray droplet size is large, about 800 microns in diameter with little or no drift. Repeated applications with low flying aircraft at altitudes of about 500 feet are required at 7 to 10 day intervals.

1981 soybean yield contest

Soybean producers once again have an opportunity to compete for top honors in the Texas Soybean Yield Contest.

The 1981 contest is being sponsored by the Texas Soybean Association and Elanco Products Co. in conjunction with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Texas A&M University System, announced Dr. Arlen Klosterboer of Beaumont, area Extension agronomist.

Each entrant must grow at least 50 acres of soybeans and designate at least five acres to be harvested. There may be only one entry per entire farm operation. Measuring of the land, harvesting and weighing of the soybeans will be supervised by a three-man County Soybean Contest Committee.

According to Klosterboer, awards will be presented to the top three producers in the irrigated areas, Northeast Texas and Coast Prairie. Then the state champion will be selected from among the nine area winners. Winners will receive appropriate plaques along with various amounts of Treflan or Surflan, depending on their placings. The state champion will receive a trip for two to Acapulco.

The agronomist also points out that entering the contest makes producers eligible for membership in the Texas 60 Bushel Soybean Club or the Texas 70 Bushel Soybean Club, should they reach either of these yields.

Interested producers should contact their county Extension agent for contest rules and entry forms, points out the agronomist. All entries must be in by September 1.

Malathion is one of the safest insecticides available today. It is 1/65 as toxic as DDT "Vaopona", the material used in flea collars for dogs and cats. Also, malathion does not persist for very long periods of time in the environment, having a half-life of less than two days.

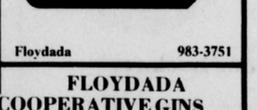

Malathion has been used extensively for over 30 years and is probably one of the most widely used pesticides in the home. Mosquito control programs throughout the State of Texas have been using malathion in urban areas for many years. In the late 60's and early 70's, the cities of Dallas, Houston, and Corpus Christi were spraying malathion by air for mosquito control to prevent outbreaks of St. Louis encephalitis and Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis. To date there have been no recorded problems involving human health associated with the application of malathion. National Cancer Institute-sponsored bioassays of toxic chemicals show malathion to be non-carcinogenic and non-mutagenic.

Ranching roundup in Del Rio

There'll be a big roundup in this Southwest Texas border city, Del Rio, next month. However, it won't be the traditional type roundup folks in this region are accustomed to seeing. Instead, hundreds of ranchers will be gathering August 11-13 to hear over 125 of the top ranching experts in the world.

Two dozen ranching enterprises, eight state-Federal agencies, numerous producer concerns, and 12 agricultural universities from as many states will be represented on the giant broad-based program.

It's all part of the International Rancher's Roundup which will be held at the city's Civic Center and high school.

Thus far, about 300 persons have pre-registered to take advantage of a pre-registration fee discount and make the tour deadline. About three or four times that number is expected to participate.

A 500-page bound copy of the proceedings containing most of the talks presented during the three day-long sessions will be available.

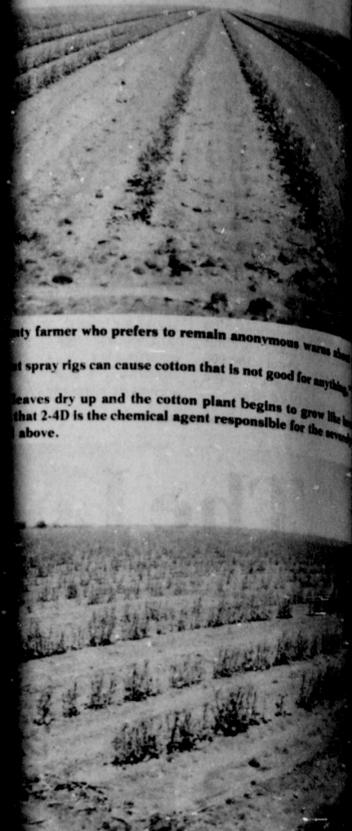

Ranchers who plan to attend but haven't pre-registered should make motel arrangements at their earliest convenience, suggests Hoermann. He said several motels in the Del Rio area are already filled and the expected last minute flood of participants may result in room allocation problems.

However, Del Rio Chamber of Commerce personnel are assisting ranchers locate motel rooms. Participants are urged to phone the Chamber office (512/775-3551) which maintains a daily log of vacancies.

Planners say response to the Roundup has been very enthusiastic with some activities already closed out, including the two ranch tours.

Monte Williams raises thoroughbreds for polo

BY DON STRASNER

Monte Williams is quick to point out that Texas Cowboys are as good or better than the gauchos of Argentina. And when it comes to polo, the world's "dark horse" contender for a professional spectator sport, Monte is certain that American players, on the whole, are superior to those bred in Argentina for the sport. Living in the living room of the old historical T-Bar Ranch headquarters 14 miles north of Floydada in Blanco Canyon, Williams admitted that the Argentines are the world's best polo players, but said "I'm a Texan. I'll argue about them as the world's best horsemen."

At the time of this interview was on leave from Ft. Sill, Oklahoma where he was a Pershing Missile platoon leader with the rank of 2nd Lieutenant in the U.S. Army. When he gets out in 1983, he plans to come back to the ranch and pick up where he left off, assisting his father, Q.D. Williams, in running the five-section polo operation — most importantly—raising thoroughbreds, working them as horses on the ranch until they are ready to turn over to a professional trainer and player to be trained for polo.

Williams became interested in polo when he was a student at Texas Tech and joined in a polo club there. Afterward he worked with world-famous polo player Harold Barry, of Truscott, intensifying his knowledge of training for polo.

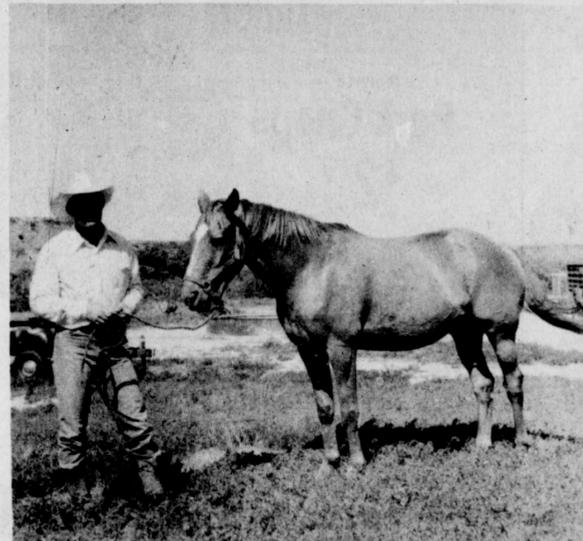

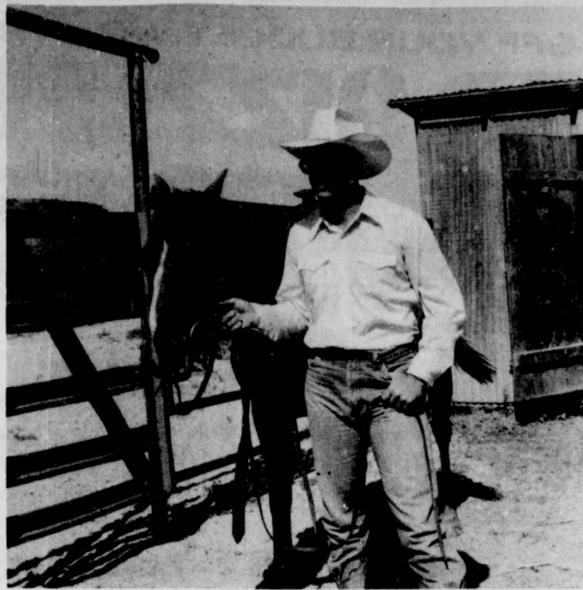

An established polo horse might sell for as much as $5,000 to $10,000. T-Bar Ranch was established by Civil War Veteran Thomas Montgomery in 1880. At one time it was free range. After homesteaders came in there were 14 sections decided to the ranch in Blanco Canyon. "The water level dropped in Blanco River in the canyon when irrigation came into use," Monte explained. Williams hired on as foreman of the ranch in the mid 50s for Tom Montgomery's daughter and J.S. Hale was in charge of the farming. Eventually W. Johnson sold the ranch to J.S. Hale and Q.D. Williams. The Williams' ran a cow-calf operation on four of the sections and lease the section of land to Howard Bishop.

Williams, the matron at the ranch, still cooks for the household, but has been helping with the T-Bar Ranch replica in the museum at Floydada, is active in civic affairs there and writes occasionally for publications. Monte's older sister, Nancy is married to Andrew Goodwin, a rancher at Ft. Oklahoma, Q.D. and Joyce are the grandparents of three, soon to be four children.

Williams patiently explained the game of polo: There are four players on each team. The object of the game is to hit the ball between the goalposts, which are 24 feet apart. Every time a score is made, the teams change directions. A game is made up of "chukkers" (periods) of play at 7½ minutes each. The field is 300 yards and 200 yards wide if unboarded and 300 yards long and 160 wide if boarded. The ball is scored each time the ball is driven between the uprights, which are set on both ends of the playing field as in football. The ball, of willow root, is about 4½ inches across and about 4¼ ounces heavy. Players use 50-53 inch-long mallets. The T-Bar Ranch the Williams' raise thoroughbreds, because as Monte said, "a quarter horse is built more for a burst of speed and a thoroughbred is for endurance."

Williams went out to the corral and Monte rounded up two polo horses (Monte said that they are no longer referred to as "ponies"), a six-year-old thoroughbred mare "prospect" and a 20-year-old retired veteran polo horse going to Harold Barry. Williams said the retired horse belongs to Barry and that Barry had used the horse to play twice, playing against Prince Phillip and Prince Charles of England; in Texas twice and all over the East and West Coasts. "He played 9 or 10 years more than the average," Monte said.

Williams takes two to three years to train a polo horse. "This horse," Monte said, "is big, powerful and fast. A polo horse has to have discipline and disposition and agility. We do our ranch on them first. When we sell them to a player they have a stick and ball practice on. Riders get out in an open area and hit the ball while riding them. We weed out here at the ranch all along the way. Some don't have the ability. They might have the stamina but not the ability. Or they might not like the stick. And some go lame."

Century III Leaders to award $200,000-plus in scholarships

More than 200 college scholarships, ranging from $500 to $10,000 each, will be awarded this fall to high school seniors across the United States in the Century III Leaders program.

Applications, which must be filed by October 16, 1981, are available through local school principal's offices. The scholarship awards will total more than $200,000.

Sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, which represents more than 35,000 secondary school administrators, the Century III Leaders program seeks to stimulate creative thinking among those young people who will be solving the problems of tomorrow.

The scholarship selection process begins at the local high school level. There, students are judged on their leadership abilities, community involvement and awareness of current events.

Advancing to the state level, each school winner then prepares a brief projection which outlines not only a particular need or challenge America is likely to face in its third Century but also how that problem should be solved. In each state (plus the District of Columbia) two finalists are awarded $1,500 scholarships and two alternates are given $500 scholarships.

These 102 finalists receive all-expense-paid trips to Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia, to attend the national Century III Leaders conference. During this conference, one student is selected for the top award of a $10,000 scholarship while nine others get $500 each, in addition to the $1,500 won at the state level.

All state finalists and alternates become members of the Century III Leaders Alumni Program. In addition to receiving a newsletter, alumni may apply for grants of up to $5,000 (beginning in their senior year of college) for post-graduate study or to support research in a public service agency. As many as six grants are awarded each year.

Funding for the Century III Leaders program is provided by Shell Oil Company, which has supported the program since 1976 when it was called "Bicentennial Seniors." The Century III Leaders program is an outgrowth of that project.

Additional information is available by writing: Century III Leaders, Box 1262, Arlington, Virginia 22210.

Social Security News

BY RAY PURCELL

One of the strengths of the social security system has been its ability to change over the years to meet society's changing needs. When the Social Security Act became law in 1935, the country was in the midst of a depression. The population of the United States was 125 million, about 100 million less than it is today. Out of a labor force of 53 million people, almost 11 million were unemployed.

The very magnitude of the problem precluded any of the remedies that private charitable organizations had been providing until that time. Some kind of income replacement on a massive scale clearly was needed.

It was against this background, and with the recognition that individuals are subject to economic conditions over which they have no control and for which they cannot adequately prepare, that the Federal Government began taking an increasingly active role.

The Social Security Act from the very beginning was intended as a piece of legislation that would evolve with the times. President Roosevelt referred to it as the "cornerstone in a structure which is being built but is by no means complete." So it should not be surprising that the program has been amended on several occasions during the 40-plus years of its existence.

The original Act was rather modest in design. In regard to social security, it established a Federal system of benefits for retired workers only. However, the program has been amended on a number of occasions as the country has decided that additional protection should be part of the program.

The first significant changes, in fact, were made even before the original Act became effective. Recognizing the need of persons other than the retired wage earner for some form of income replacement, Congress extended coverage to the dependents and survivors of retired workers. During the years following World War II, the same philosophy prompted further extension of coverage to include many types of jobs that had been excluded, such as regularly employed farm and household employees, self-employed persons, and, on a voluntary basis, employees of State and local governments and nonprofit organizations.

Through the years, other amendments to the Social Security Act liberalized the work requirement needed to qualify for benefits, increased payment levels, and provided more adequately for dependents of insured workers.

Even more significant was the addition of disability insurance in the 1950's, and health insurance for the aged—or Medicare—in 1965. Then Medicare was extended to persons who have been entitled to disability payments for at least 24 consecutive months, and to individuals who have permanent kidney failure. These changes were all designed to keep the social security system responsive to current needs. The fact that the program is subject to change demonstrates its dynamic nature.

Today social security is once more being called upon to adapt to society's changing needs. The system is being influenced by a host of economic and demographic factors—such as a high rate of inflation, lower birth rates, and the changing role of women in the labor force and the program will have to adjust to these new conditions.

It is this characteristic of adaptability to changing needs that makes social security as relevant for the decade of the 1980's and beyond as it was for the period in which it was enacted.

Any questions regarding social security and its program may be obtained by calling our toll-free number 1-800-392-1603.

South Plains News

Miltons attend farming convention

By Mrs. Julian South Plains, August 3rd: Mr. and Mrs. Grigsby Milton Jr. arrived home Saturday from their annual meeting with the Flying Farmers, which met this year at Calgary, Alberta, Canada. They flew from Floydada on Saturday of the week before, but due to rain were grounded two days at Scotts Bluff, Nebraska. The Flying Farmers group had a wonderful meeting and time at Calgary.

Mrs. Bonnie Moore left Sunday for Fort Worth to be gone several days on a business trip. We hope for her a safe trip both going down and coming home.

Mrs. Sterling Cummings (Gleynne Earle) had the misfortune to break her foot at her home Friday night and was taken to the Lockney hospital to be treated. She was sitting on the porch and the accident occurred on the porch swing. We hope this week finds her better, with the swelling gone down.

Bruce Julian came in from Dallas Friday afternoon and Saturday he and his wife Janet, and boys, Clay and Wade, who had spent the past week here with relatives went back home. They had been visiting relatives the past week while Bruce was in the seminar there at SMU. Janet celebrated a birthday Saturday, and enjoyed birthday cake, and homemade ice cream at her folks.

Visiting here over the week-end and this week at the parsonage with the Rev. and Mrs. Cecil Osborne are their daughter and granddaughters, Mrs. Linda Somers and girls, Jennifer and Jaime, of Mineral Wells — her father had gone down to bring them here on Saturday. Mrs. Corda Taylor of Muleshoe is also visiting here, and Mrs. Osborne had gone over to Muleshoe to bring her here last week.

Visitors at the South Plains Baptist Church on Sunday included Mrs. Ron Somers and girls, Jennifer and Maimie, Mrs. Alvin Nichols was a visitor with Mrs. Sylvin Kinnibrugh, who brought her.

The Rev. and Mrs. Cecil Osborne will be absent Thursday through next Sunday, and on Sunday night, Mark Morris will bring the message. Sunday morning's preacher will be announced later this week. The Osbornes will be attending a wedding in New Orleans vicinity.

Mrs. Alvin Nichols went to Lockney Sunday after church services here at South Plains, and later had birthday dinner at the home of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Johns Cox of Lockney. Johns was 74 years old.

Becky and Mike McNeese and their two children moved from our community while I was in the hospital in May and June. We have all been sorry to have them go. They are now living in Vernon, Texas. Mrs. Howard Staples with her children, Bill, Stacey and Kevin went to see them in their new home, and visited them two days. They left here on June 20th, and after spending two days with them, they went on to Arlington where they visited Mrs. Staples' sister and husband, Arlaine and Mike Berkes. They left there and Mrs. Staples took all the children for a visit to Six Flags Over Texas. They returned home on the 27th, after a good visit with the McNeeses family, her sister and the visit to Six Flags.

Mrs. Alvin Nicols attended the funeral on Saturday for Mrs. Sally Kimble, 94, with her services held at 2:00 p.m. in the Methodist Church at Floydada.

Mrs. Sylvin Kinnibrugh

left this Monday to go to Truscott and Vera where she will be staying with her sister, Mrs. W.S. Simmons. She will be returning the middle of the week. Bobbie's brother-in-law, W.S. Simmons has been ill at his home. Mr. and Mrs. Sylvin Kinnibrugh returned home on Wednesday of last week, after spending the week-end and until Wednesday at Ruidoso, New Mexico, since the rain occurred on Tuesday here.

Mrs. Letha Mulder and granddaughters, Candy and Ronda Taylor, enjoyed a visit Saturday from Mr. and Mrs. Don Dell and Gretchen Mulder of Albuquerque, New Mexico, also Mr. and Mrs. Shawn Mulder and wife Jo, and Celina, Don Dell's mother, Mrs. Alta. They were all in Tulia on Sunday for the 93rd birthday celebration of Don Dell's grandfather, Mr. Gardner who lives in Tulia.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Mulder, Cindy, Penny, Cory and Jimmy went on a short vacation leaving last Wednesday afternoon, going to Clovis, New Mexico to spend the night with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W.B. Blalock, and Thursday they drove to Ruidoso, and stayed in her uncle's home, and enjoyed the sights at Ruidoso, then the last day out they went to Roswell and let the children swim and relax at a motel. All the high school children are home again and back in band practice.

A Friend At Headquarters

Law and Order. Lately we've been making those words sound grim. Because we've all been painfully aware of moral deterioration in our society.

Actually Law is a friendly word. It connotes a sense of community in which each is willing to adapt his behavior to the common good of all.

And Order is a happy word. It represents millions of responsible people enjoying that common good.

Respect for Law and the desire for Order must be gained in childhood. Having a "friend at headquarters" helps.

But the heart of the matter is our early discovery of God. His love for us... His expectations of us... the hopes and promises that give life its highest meaning.

Headquarters for moral and spiritual growth is the Church, with its program of religious education. There can be found our most enriching friendships.
