Leases offered

Recent reports indicate that oil companies are interested in trying to find oil in various sections of the Palo Duro Basin of which Floyd County is part.

Sparked by the recent producing well drilled in Briscoe County, oil companies have been offering to buy oil leases from landowners in Floyd County. Only after sufficient land has been leased to form a solid block will the oil company begin to consider whether or not the three-quarters of a million dollar cost of drilling a wildcat well is Doyle Moore, Floydada, is a leasing agent for Gunn Oil Company, Wichita Falls, which is a "very strong and active" independent oil company.

"An oil company cannot afford to drill until they have a solid block (of leased land)." Moore said. "If enough people hold out and don't lease to the oil company it will keep them from drilling a wild cat well."

The usual size block is 3 to 5000 acres or more, according to Moore. The oil company would like to own 100% of the leases in that block before they attempt to drill a wildcat well. They may go ahead with 95% of the land leased but if there is a hole in the block (land that they cannot lease) they will try and get as far away from it as possible when they drill a wildcat.

"If people don't lease, they won't drill." Moore said.

"It's like putting out cattle. You lease 2000 acres of grass for 400 head of cattle. But you have to have the grassland leased before you put your cattle on it."

Moore went on to say that an oilman cannot afford to drill until he gets a solid block. "If enough people hold out and don't lease to him, it will keep him from drilling a wildcat well.'

The oilman has to keep a lease inventory so that he can have a place to go and prospect for oil, Moore said.

No one knows what the land is worth until a well has been drilled on it. Some areas are worth more to the oil company if geological information indicates oil possibility.

stated that the United States had become "the residual supplier of the "We have not won a war since the > Civil War." he said. "We always make concessions to buy friends." "Much of the surplus could be traded for higher prices to offset the commodity deficit, but to trade for a comparatively marginal value would not be good business," he added.

Cain said that wheat is being carried over in only a 20 day world supply, but cotton is being carried over by 6.7 million bales and that number increases every day. A reserve of corn in the amount of 10 million bushels is stored at Plainview right now.

He pointed out that with the change of admnistration brings the attitude that this administration is not responsible for this carryover, so their tendency is to dump it. Reserves and crops stored in the loan program always come back to haunt you, Cain explained.

The biggest weakness of the farmers. in addition to not being able to organize their efforts, was agreed upon by all as not selling themselves for what they really are. Farmers tend to just produce.

It was pointed out that one American farmer has increased his productivity over 50% in the last ten years and he feeds over 70 people now, whereas ten years ago he fed 45.

The American farmer has, through his efforts and efficiency, produced himself out of a job. Cain illustrated his point by saving that a bale of cotton raised by the farmer brought approximately $200 last year and would retail for as much as $25,000, depending on the garments manufactured from it.

Firm starts tax collection

Lockney School board members met for a regular session recently, combining their business session with a dinner prepared by homemaking teachers. Cindy Ford and Annette Weil, in the home ec lab. This traditional meal is observed in March as a special ocassion before the board membership is changed with the April election.

In business the board accepted a contract from an Amarillo law firm for collection of delinquent taxes. Perdue. Brandon, Blair and Fielder law office will send notices to persons on the delinquent tax list. Law suits will be filed where necessary after a suitable period of time has elapsed with taxes remaining unpaid.

Four resignations of teachers were accepted. They included: Mike Martin. head basketball coach for one year; Jim Ward, assistant football coach for two vears: Beth Ward, special education: and Elvin Lvon, agriculture.

Lyon has been with the Lockney school system for 32 years. He began his career as an assistant coach. He was head football coach before becoming ag teacher over 20 years ago.

Contracts were renewed for certified teachers, and secretaries were re-hired. Nora Martinez was hired to complete the school year as migrant aide.

replacing Bertha Martinez Hooten. The band, agriculture and athletic programs were reviewed in a report from Supt. W.H. Hallmark. He told trustees that the school lunchroom was operating in the black by $3,232.48 as of January 1, 1982, as opposed to the $64.71 deficit one year ago. He explained that the closing of the junior and senior high school lunchroom had made the difference since this allowed the hiring of two less lunchroom workers. The elementary school lunchroom now serves all students.

No decision was made on the proposed contract with the Floyd County Appraisal District for collecting the 1982

Maria Arellano, Merle Mooney and Kenneth Wofford were approved by the board as election clerks to assist election judge Mike Mooney.

The school calendar for the 1982-83 school year was adopted. School will begin on August 26, with teachers reporting three days earlier. One inservice day is scheduled for October 9. An in-service day on November 24 will. in effect, become part of the Thanksgiving holiday scheduled for November 25-26 for the students.

The Christmas holidays are slated for dismissal on December 22. resuming classes on January 3, 1983.

School will be dismissed on March 11 for sprink break. Classes will take up again March 21.

The last day of school will be May 20. followed by an in-service workday on May 21.

The April meeting is scheduled to be combined with a meal and board members, both in-coming and out-going will be accompanied by their wives. Retiring board president Tom Duvall will be presented a plaque.

The setaside program seems to be the Cain stated that Stenholm's opinion on the subject was that everyone would have to sign up by April 16 or completely abort the idea.

During the discussion a number of points were brought out that illustrated the setaside program had to be administered with certain emphatic guidelines. First, reduction of 15% of productive acres would decrease production by only 3%. All poor land and land difficult or expensive to cultivate would be among the first to be left out. And the surplus is more than 15%.

Over and over the comment was heard. "There is no overnight solu-

One farmer in attendance then suggested that a reduction of 40% be imposed for the next 2 or 3 years and the hurting would not last so long. Field representative Cain said that would be treading on dangerous ground since the synthetics would be readily available and the market for cotton could be badly impaired by allowing the supply to become depleted too drastically.

A representative from a banking institution also added that if that ratio were imposed on some of the farmers. the short run would catch them before the long run would bring them out.

Leaveout ground would have to meet the clean tillage terms and that would cost money. Farmers have bought equipment to farm 100%, so the alternative of too much leaveout would wipe out the small farmers or farmers not very well established.

Lyons resigns after 32 teaching years

Elvin Lyons, teacher in the Lockney school system for 32 years, resigned his position to become effective at the end of this year.

one period except his general ag mechanics class. It consists of two periods.

The one period class system had to be adopted several years ago to give time for the other subjects.

Lyons said he tried to stress leadership, animal science, soil science, plant science, and shop. Welding is taught in the general ag mechanics class.

Lyons laughed when he was asked if he had many farmers that had remained in the local area. He said, "Oh, I've got them all over." He started naming. "Jerry Williams, Eddie Joe Foster. Billy Bigham, Byron Brock, Sam Fortenberry. Eddie Joe Fortenberry. Louis Bybee, Martin Stoerner, Oh," he said,

"I have seen lots of kids pass through here." Lyons said. "Some of them have done real well." He gave Jerry Bigham as an example. Bigham is a doctor in Ohio State teaching soil science. He said. "I have a former student who is a professor in Oklahoma State. I have a very successful student who now resides in Houston, another one over here in Plainview. They are just all over the United States." Then with just a little hesitancy, he added, "I don't mean all because of my doing...but they were some of my former students and they have become very successful.' Lyons was questioned on his outlook for the future for the young people in farming. He immediately replied. "Farming is here to stay. We have got to have it! Farming has a real bright future. So do lots of other ag-related businesses."

"I'm not saving there is not going to be some really hard times, but when it comes back, somebody has to feed this nation. Somebody has to farm this has rented office space at 507 E. Missouri in Floydada.

They estimate that 20 to 30 families will be moving to the area soon for a stay of several months while the crews run geophysical tests of the area.

Another oil related business, Majestic based in Lubbock, has set up offices at the end of Missouri Street and will bring in an estimated 30 families. Majestic is bringing in crews to construct the gas pipe line that will run from the north end of Floyd County to the south end.

City officials expect more oil related businesses to move into the area bringing with them a boost to the economy much needed at this time of poor agricultural prices.

"The oil companies are definitely interested in trying to find oil along here," Moore said. "Co-operate with they will have an opp come in and drill a well.'

Our Mrs. Ethel Collins ... Her years are 92... Is a very lovely lady And always smiling, too!

BY VICKIE HUTTON

We celebrated spring in a very special way this week by having a Spring Luncheon for all our families and friends. The covered dish luncheon was a big success. We all enjoyed the fellowship between families and friends. The food was delicious. There was so much we couldn't decide what to cat, so we all sampled a little of everything. The luncheon was so enjoyable we are planning another one real soon.

After our luncheon the residents rested so they could enjoy the music and singing presented by Kim Sherman. She is really a talented lady and we all enjoy her cheerful smile.

Our lucky bingo winners this week were Marie Leach and Hollie Roberts. The residents really show their competitiveness during our bingo games. Thanks to our wonderful volunteers De Linda Glasson, Almeda Phillips and Linda Holley for taking time out of their busy schedule to be with us. Bingo was extra special this week because we had five extra helpers, Phillip and Jerrod Glasson, Karla and Tommy Hutton, and Coy Holley. We thank them for spending time with us during their spring break from school.

We celebrated St. Patrick's Day this year with a party given by the ladies of the First Baptist Church in Lockney. The refreshments were delicious and we feel very fortunate to have these ladies as friends.

During Friday's church service, we had the pleasure of meeting the new pastor of the Aiken Baptist Church, Bruce Kirby. His message really inspired all of us. We are looking forward to meeting his wife and children. We welcome them to our community. Our films of the week were "Smilley" and "Man of Iron - Soul of Fire." "Smillev" was about a boy and his dog and

"Man of Iron - Soul of Fire" was about the Statue of Liberty. The films were very touching and informative. Thanks goes to the Lockney Library for supplying the films.

Before we saw our movies, we had a Quiz Game. We all learned alot. Do you know why a rabbit runs faster uphill than downhill? Because his front legs are shorter than his hind legs! I told you we learned alot!

We send a special thanks to Margaret and Eleanor Schacht for donating the centerpieces for our table at the Spring Luncheon. They really added a lot to our table.

District II of the Texas Farmers Union to hold annual banquet, March 27th

District II of the Texas Farmers Union will hold its annual banquet on Saturday, March 27 at 7:00 p.m. Melvin Lowrey, District II Director said this year's banquet will be held at the Plainview High School Cafeteria in Plainview.

Lowrey said speakers for the banquet will be Mike Moeller. Texas Farmers Union President and Bob Krueger, former U.S. Trade Ambassador to Mexico and U.S. Congressman. Krueger's keynote address will be on the subjects of trade with Mexico and recent agricultural legislation and the possible effects of these topics on the agricultural community.

"We are already feeling the effects of the 1981 Farm Bill," Lowrey said, "and we need to know every alternative available to us under this legislation. We must make ourselves aware of all possible avenues open to us concerning the marketing of our products. This is a critical time for farmers and every farmer should be actively involved in helping himself to overcome this situation. I urge all our members in District II to come and bring a friend."

A buffet supper will be served at the March 27 banquet and tickets can be purchased at the door for $4.00 apiece. Also included in the activities will be drawings for door prizes. Everyone is invited to come for an entertaining and educational evening. The public is invited.

Poisonous range plants inflict losses of up to $100 million each year to the Texas livestock industry. These losses stem from animal deaths as well as reduced animal performance and increased management costs.

Livestock industry losses from poisonous range plants have tended to increase over the past 50 years, according to one official.

Dr. Allan McGinty of Fort Stockton, a range specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, believes that the trend over the past 100 years toward higher stocking rates and the change from open ranges to fenced pastures has had a lot to do with present poisonous range plant problems.

"High stocking rates generally have reduced range conditions and the carrying capacity of most Texas rangelands," he points out. "Use of fenced pastures has restricted animal movement and choice of forage. These two things combined have altered the diet selection of livestock so that grazing animals are more likely to consume significant quantities of poisonous plants."

McGinty says that good soil moisture conditions in late winter and early spring can bring an increase in poisonous range plants. If such conditions exist, he cautions ranchers to be on the watch for poisonous plants and to take control measures and follow certain management practices to keep livestock losses to a minimum

"Control measures include mechanical. biotic and chemical methods," says

Mechanical methods include cultivation in restricted areas, mowing, hand pulling, cutting, grubbing or burning.

Biotic methods include heavy grazing of limited areas by large numbers of livestock so that none are allowed to get a lethal dose, grazing of different classes of livestock, or deferring infest-

Various chemicals are available to control poisonous plants. This type of control is expensive but is effective in controlling large acreages of poisonous plants in a short time, notes the specialist.

Management practices that can influence the severity of livestock losses from grazing poisonous plants, according to McGinty, include the following:

1. Do not overgraze rangeland. Many poisonous plants will increase under low range conditions.

2. Be cautious livestock from another county or state. Such stock are more likely to eat toxic plants.

3. Do not put hungry stock on ranges infested with poisonous plants since they will not be as selective in their grazing

4. Make sure livestock have free access to salt, phosphorous and other needed elements. Deficiencies of any of these will reduce the selective grazing behavior of livestock.

7. Minimize grazing when poisonous plants are the most dangerous. Use flexible grazing systems to avoid high

8. Use the proper kind and class of livestock. One class of livestock is often more resistant to toxic plants than

9. Move stock carefully through infested areas, avoid crowding them, and make sure they have full stomachs when trailed or penned.

10. Be aware that special environmental conditions, such as periods of drought, extreme cold or wetness, may restrict animal movement or change diet selection.

11. Be cautious with livestock grazing areas recently burned or sprayed with a herbicide. Both practices can increase the palatability of toxic plants.

12. Be able to recognize toxic plants and watch for grazing use of such plants. Early detection can often keep losses to a minimum.

An orderly marketing plan can raise grain prices

A national marketing program is being developed that will raise grain prices one dollar per hundred pounds (56 cents per bushel) in a very short period of time, according to Elbert Harp, Executive Director of Grain Sorghum Producers Association. The 20-10-20 Orderly Marketing Plan, designed by Congressman Charles Stenholm (D-Texas), has been endorsed by

Under the 20-10-20 Plan. farmers would place at least 20% of their supply and production in the farmer-held reserve and use the Government Loan Program for the balance where financing is needed. Other provisions of the

1. Farmers would sell no grain until the price reaches the reserve "trigger" price which currently is $3.00 per bushel ($5.36 per cwt.) on sorghum and $3.15 ($5.62 cwt.) on corn.

2. After market prices reach the trigger, farmers would sell only 10% of their remaining stocks in any 30 day period during the first 3 months. This action will keep pressure on the market to raise prices.

3. After the first 3 month sales period, each farmer could sell 20% of his remaining stocks during a 30-day

4. Minimum sales prices will move up throughout the year as storage and interest costs are added to the Reserve

"This program will work," Harp said, "if it is coordinated with reduced planting when a surplus exists and if farmers are willing to cooperate to make it work." Harp urges grain farmers to carefully study the plan which is expected to have the support of most farm and commodity organizations.

Nail down your costs

Are you producing soybeans at a profit - or taking a loss? If you know how much it costs you to produce a bushel of beans, you know your personal profit margin from a glance at the latest sovbean price quote on the board at the elevator. And if you know your cost per bushel you can formulate both a production plan and a marketing plan — to help you optimize your profits for 1982.

In the march issue of Soybean Digest. American Sovbean Association economist Bob Acton urges farmers to develop production and marketing

"They should relate to each other to maximize production and income." says Acton. "While these plans by themselves cannot ensure vou a profitable year, they are an important first step.

"A good production plan will include varieties, tillage practices, chemical programs and a good estimate of your production costs.

"Likewise, your marketing plan will answer the what, when, where and how much you hope to sell and at what price levels. It's not too early to think about vour expected selling price for your 1982 crop," Acton reminds.

"Knowing your production costs and potential vield is the key to building good production and marketing plans," continues Acton. Identifying either is not easy. We can only estimate them based on recent trends. You may want to budget several options before vou finalize your production and marketing plans. Acton says. "The challenge is to shoot for maximum vield — vet control "Another point to remember: Your cost per bushel goes down as vields increase. If you can produce more beans per acre, your production costs don't rise nearly as fast as your return per acre since vou're producing more beans per acre." Acton adds.

"If you're trying to cut production costs. don't do anything that may reduce your yields. That will raise your cost per bushel - and reduce vour profit margin per bushel." he points

Acton cautions that while one should plan and strive for the best price the marketplace permits, it is interesting to note that net income increase more rapidly as you increase yield from 20 to 30 to 40 bushels per acre — than as your selling price increases from $6.00 to $6.50 to $7.00 to $7.50 per bushel.

For example: With production costs of $150 per acre and $7.51 beans, your net income with 22 bushel vields is $15 per acre. If you could push yields to 30 bushels per acre vou need only $5.51 beans to earn the same $15 profit. A 40 bushel yield, even at the $5.51 price would give you an even more respectable $70 profit per acre. Or you could shoot for both the higher price and higher yield and earn $135 per acre.

"The bottom line," concludes Acton. "is that you need to analyze your production practices in terms of potential vield and related cost. Then select the option that gives the net income per acre vou're shooting for.'

Early calving cows more profitable dollars per head at marketing time.

"Producers who only wean their calves at one specific time during the year need to be aware of the importance of early calving." says Dr. L.R. Sprott of Bryan, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Texas A&M University System.

"Late calving cows usually wean lighter calves which mean fewer pounds of beef going to market." he notes.

A demonstration on the Nash Ranch in Brazoria County bears this out. Heifers were bred from late May to early September, 1980, and calved from early March to mid-June, 1981. All calves were weaned in late September. Records show that the calves born between March and April had, higher weaning weights and sold at higher prices at marketing time. Sprott explains. Early born steers brought $72 brought $64 more.

To shorten the calving period of cows. Sprott suggests these steps:

1. Replace late calvers with early calving cows.

2. Take bulls out of the breeding herd 10 to 15 days earlier than the past year for three to four consecutive years until a 60- to 75-day breeding season is

3. Don't let cows get thin before calving because thin cows are slow to

4. Synchronize estrus to enable more uniform breeding.

"Shortening the calving season can be an important step in improving the efficiency of cow-calf operations." says Sprott. "And it's something producers can do with a minimum of manage-

Eye injuries among farmers stem from the use of chemicals and machinery from doing something as complex as spraying chemical fertilizers or something as easy as chopping wood, reports the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness. Some 3,000 farmers were treated in hospital emergency rooms for eye injuries in 1980. This figure does not include farmers who sought private medical attention.

Eye injuries from pesticides, fertilizers and other agricultural chemicals account for nearly one-third of the reported injuries. The remaining twothirds of farm accidents stemmed from work with hand-tools, threshing machines, combines, milking machines and numerous other farm tools and equip-

Among the most commonly used chemicals on the farm today is the fertilizer anhydrous ammonia. This important fertilizer also presents great danger to the eyes.

"Anhydrous ammonia has a natural affinity for water," explains R.E. Margo, M.D., State Medical Chairman. "The eye is about 80 percent water. Upon impact, damage to tissue is almost instantaneous, and often results

In addition to wearing tight-fitting chemical goggles when working with anhydrous ammonia and other agricultural chemicals, the Society recommends that farmers carry a plastic squeeze bottle filled with water in their shirtpockets. A five gallon tank of water should be attached to the tractors and applicators. All equipment should be carefully checked for possible leaky valves or faulty hoses. Protective eyewear should be worn when examining equipment.

"Immediate washing of the eve with fresh water is essential upon contact with chemicals. Water must be circulated on the affected area for at least 15 minutes, and then prompt medical attention sought," says Dr. Margo.

Cuts and punctures to the eye and eyelids from work with machines and farm tools are among the other most common causes of farm eye injuries.

If an unprotected eye is cut or punctured from work with tools or machinery, the Society recommends that the affected area be lightly bandaged, and a doctor immediately contacted. Unlike procedures for chemical burns, the eye should not be washed in case of a puncture, nor should an untrained hand attempt to remove any foreign object stuck in the eye.

"Industrial quality safety glasses and goggles should be used on the farm." Dr. Margo comments. "Farm eye hazards are not unlike their industrial counterparts. Industry has been using eve protection successfully for many years. The use of protective eyewear on the farm will likewise greatly reduce the number of senseless blinding injuries."

The potential hazards of working with anhydrous ammonia without safety goggles are dramatically depicted in the film. "For the Rest of Your Lfe." This movie is available for booking through the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness. P.O. Box 20/20, Houston, TX 77001. Pruning insures peak production, but wait until winter is almost over.

Since the average first frost-free day is considered to be April 11, this month can be thought of as an early spring month. Do not prune while wood is frozen since freezing causes brittle wood.

The possibility of selecting poorly matured wood for main branches is another reason for not pruning in the fall or winter months. This wood may then die in the winter. causing reduced yield the next growing season. After prolonged winter exposure, this dead wood is easily recognized and removed. On the other hand, late spring pruning may cause sap bleeding or weeping, but it is better to prune late than not to prune at all.

Why prune at all? First of all, pruning promotes large! well-flavored fruit. A plant cannot produce the quality of fruit desired when it's allowed to mature the quantity of fruit which it is capable of maturing. Pruning removes some of the fruit buds which would mature fruit. By growing fewer fruit, the tree can use all available nutrients for those few fruit, thus producing a large, juicy product.

The fruit grower must decide whether he wants many small fruit or an adequate number of high-quality fruit because a plant only has a certain production capacity.

Another valuable advantage of pruning is to establish a proper framework. A strong framework will support more fruit. This prevents tree breakage when fruit matures. Even distribution also enhances even ripening of fruit throughout the tree. Preventing tree breakage results in longer life and a more

TFU asks for setaside modifications by Texas farmers in the recently announced USDA crop acreage reduction program, Texas Farmers Union President Mike Moeller has asked U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block to consider two important changes in the

As outlined by the USDA. Garmer will be prohibited from putting his 1982 crops into the Commodity Credit Corporation loan program unless he reduces his planted acreage by 15 percent (using 1981 acreage as a base) for cotton, wheat, or rice or by 10 percent for corn or grain sorghum.

Moeller, who farms in Hays and Guadalupe counties, says that unless concessions are made in the set-aside program, most Texas farmers will be unable to participate in 1982. According to Moeller, "Most of us in Central and South Texas had already planted much of our 1982 crops before the set-aside program was announced. It's not fair to ask us to forfeit the $50 to $100 an acre we've already invested in planting this year's crop in order to participate in the program while farmers in the Northern states have not begun planting and can sign up for the set-aside without having invested any money in planting their

"Furthermore." Moeller said, "Many of us rotate our crops which means that, in most cases, we'll be drastically reducing some crops and significantly increasing others. Under the existing rules, many Texas farmers 1982 crops.

In an effort to increase participation will only be able to qualify about half of their 1982 crops for the program."

Moeller reiterated that Texas Farmers Union supports the need for a fair and equitable program to reduce surplus crops. "We fully understand that the situation requires a Federal setaside," he said. In order to be fair to Texas farmers and encourage them to take part in the program, TFU is calling for a change in the official method used to determine a farmer's "base acreage." For farmers who had planted their crops prior to announcement of the program, Moeller says their base acreage should be the acreage planted on the day of the announcement.

In addition, TFU is asking the USDA to reimburse farmers who had planted prior to the set-aside announcement for their planting costs incurred on the acreage they will now have to plow

Moeller said, "Most Texas farmers didn't have the luxury of waiting until after the set-aside was announced to plan and plant this year's crops. Unless the USDA will at least help these folks recoup their planting costs for the acreage to be set aside, many of them simply, won't be able to participate. "We're not asking Secretary Block to do anything that is outside his legal authority. All we're really asking is to be allowed to do our part in solving the economic crisis in agriculture without having to sacrifice any more or less than the other farmers in America."

Entries will be tagged and weighed the first day starting at 10 a.m.

According to Thane, the event will also feature a trade show beginning at 5 p.m. April 16 and a barbecue at 7 p.m. The trade show will continue the next
