FIVE WINDY DAYS

Mrs. Alice Baker, regarded by many as the Mother of Lockney, believed that rain would always follow five consecutive days of wind. She wasn't often wrong.

Even in West Texas, however, does the wind frequently blow five straight days; five out of seven, maybe, but rarely five in a row.

MILLIE MITCHELL'S WISHES

We were looking through a Port Aransas South Jetty newspaper while on the trip and ran across a beautiful "thank you" note in the paper. We'd like to pass it on to our readers:

"In memory of Millie Mitchell from our families, Mack and all of our children. This article explains Millie's wishes and feelings about eternal life.

"The day will come when my body will lie upon a white sheet tucked neatly under the four corners of a mattress, located in a hospital busily occupied with the living and the dying. At a certain moment a doctor will determine

DEATH SCENE — Lockney volunteer firemen labor to free the bodies of two Floydada men trapped inside this 1972 Chevrolet early Monday morning. Roberto Galvan and Joel Santos, both 24, apparently died instantly in the crash, four-tenths of a mile east of the Lockney city limits.

Lockney area polling sites

Registered voters in the Lockney area should be aware that Saturday, May 3, is the day set aside for the primary elections. Please consult this article for the polling place you should use to vote.

Those voting for county commissioner, Precinct 2, in which Floyd Jackson and Jerry Williams are seeking election, includes voting Precincts 7, 8, and 18.

Registered voters residing in voting Precinct 7 live in the Providence area and will be casting ballots at the Trinity Lutheran Church. Voters living in voting Precinct 8 are those that live in the Lone Star area and will vote at the Lone Star Baptist Church.

Voters voting in Precinct 18 are those residing in the west Lockney area and will be casting their ballots at Lockney High School.

In an earlier article it was incorrectly reported that voters of Precinct 18 would vote at the First United Methodist Church, however upon receiving inquiries that this could be wrong, The Beacon learned from the Floyd County Democratic Executive Committee that the voters should cast ballots at the high school.

Commissioners Precinct 3 consists of voting precincts 5, 9, 11, 17, and 24.

Voting Precinct 5 includes residents of the east Lockney area and ballots for these residents should be cast at Lockney City Hall.

Voting Precinct 9 includes the South Plains area and ballots for that area will be cast at the South Plains School. Cedar Hill area is included in voting Precinct 11 and those voting from this area will cast ballots at the Cedar Hill Baptist Church.

Not only will voters of the Lockney area be selecting a candidate for the general election in November for county commissioner Precinct 2, but they will also be voting on a district judge, district clerk, county judge, county treasurer, and a justice of the peace for Precincts 2 and 3.

As previously stated, Jerry Williams and Floyd Jackson are facing off as candidates for the commissioners seat. George Miller is seeking reelection and he is opposed by David Cave for the district judge's seat.

District Clerk candidates include Barbara Edwards, Linda Jackson and Kathy Green. Floyd County Judge Choise Smith is unopposed in the primary. Margaret Collier is also unopposed in her bid for reelection as Floyd County clerk. Glenna Orman is seeking unopposed election to her position as Floyd County treasurer.

Justice of the peace candidates for Precincts 2 and 3 include incumbent C.L. (Mike) Mooney, W.H. (Bill) Fewell and Garland (Kokomo) Sams.

Lions trying to implement alert system

The Lockney Lions Club would like to remind all Lockney citizens of the weather alert system they are trying to have installed in conjunction with the cable T.V. program in town.

As of Monday the Lions Club had raised about $1350 of the needed $3000 to install the system. About $1100 of this money was raised through the drawings for the cable T.V. subscription and the drawing for the VCR that was given away.

Also the Lockney Fire Department donated $250 to the project.

It will take about $1650 more before the system can be purchased and installed. Once installed the system would alert all cable T.V. viewers of threatening weather in the Lockney area.

Anyone or any club that would like to donate money toward the funding of this project may contact any member of the Lions Club or Danny Smith at Cablevision of Texas.

April 29 blood drive set by family of Tom Word

The family of Tom Word has organized a blood drive to be held in Lockney on Tuesday, April 29, at the Lockney Community Center from 4 to 7 p.m.

Recently when Word was diagnosed as having leukemia Lubbock Blood Services were "very good to the family and helped to see that he had all the blood he needed," commented daughter Lavern Munoz. "We told them (Blood Services) that we would try to help replenish the supply by having a blood drive in Lockney," she said.

The blood drive will not eliminate the cost to Word's family but it will help to replenish the blood supply for blood services. "Anyone who would like to give may do so as a memorial to Daddy if they want to," said Munoz.

Blood Services has seen a drop in donors due to "the AIDS scare that is sweeping the nation, however in no way may the donor GET AIDS from giving blood. All materials used in the blood donation process are sterile."

Blood Services supplies blood, not only to Lubbock hospitals but also to Lockney, Floydada and many other small hospitals in the surrounding areas. By helping to keep blood supplies on hand with Blood Services, you could be helping a friend or neighbor in need.

Voting in both Democratic, Republican primaries taboo

Voting in both the Democratic and the Republican primaries is a "no-no."

Not only is this practice in defiance of the Texas Election Code, but it also is a Class "C" misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $200.

In addition, one who has voted in the primary of one party may not vote in a primary runoff of another party. That individual is not, however, legally bound in the general election.

"It has come to the attention of the Floyd County Democratic Executive Committee that certain residents of the county propose to vote in the forthcoming Democratic Primary and in the Republican Primary as well," county newspapers were informed early this week.

"Unfortunately, by the terms of Sections 162.013 and 162.014 of the 1985 Texas Election Code, a voter having voted in the primary election of one political party in a particular year, cannot lawfully vote in the primary election of any other party in the same year; if he or she does so vote, his or her vote is void, and he or she commits a Class 'C' misdemeanor punishable by fine of not to exceed $200.

"Since the poll lists of both the Democratic and the Republican primaries, showing who voted in each such primary, will be filed in the county clerk's office, it will be a simple matter to determine if any person voted in both primaries."

School trustees hire five

Six faculty members retiring

In the regular monthly meeting of the Lockney school board the board voted to accept the resignations for retiring six teachers and principals from Lockney Elementary School, and hired five new teachers.

The board has accepted the resignations of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Waverly Washington, Mrs. Bradley, and Virginia Byrd. All are planning to retire this year.

The five new teachers hired during the meeting include: Linda Kidd, Shelly Brock, Charlyne Burson, Nancy Henderson, all for elementary school, and Cindy Stillwell for the high school homemaking department.

The board has also hired all the auxiliary personnel including lunchroom staff, janitors, bus drivers, and all aides. The aides are hired subject to funding.

In other action the board has approved the assignment of Phil Cotham as the varsity boys basketball coach. This past year Cotham coached the junior varsity boys basketball team.

The oath of office was administered to reelected board member Clar Schacht, and new board members Dickie Lambert and Paul Glasson. The board was also organized for the year. Officers of the board will remain the same with Kelton Shaw acting as president, Keith Jackson as vice president, Eddie Teeter as secretary, and Jim Bob Martin as assistant secretary.

In choosing a delegate and alternate for the November Texas School Board Convention, Paul Glasson will be delegate and Dickie Lambert will serve as the alternate.

In other action the board approved the minutes of the previous meeting, the payment of current bills and the making of investments. Tax report eight was approved, as were the results of the election.

Broseh-Owens band in final concert

In the fall of 1984 a group of freshmen newly arrived on the Clarendon College campus discovered a mutual love of country western music. They also shared an unusual amount of musical talent. Earl Broseh and Keith Owens of Lockney had been in a western band during their high school years. Troy Skarke's experience included performing in TEXAS and the Canyon High School Show Choir. Making music in his church choir and around home, however, was the extent of LeRoss Apple's expertise.

These young men approached the administration and requested a band class to allow them to develop their skills and abilities. Jim Stewart became their first music instructor, and the Clarendon College Cowboy Band became a reality. It has been a welcome addition to the college and people of the area these past two years. While Earl, Keith and LeRoss have remained the heart and soul of the group, others such as Russell Bingham, Becky Webb, Don Bode, Betty Sanderson, Barbara Collins, Willie Joe Gibson, and Kendall Benton, have made valuable contributions.

The past two years have been busy ones for the band and its members. They have appeared at many private and civic functions in the Texas Panhandle, representing Clarendon College and building the Music Scholarship Fund. Earl wrote and recorded "No Pass, No Play," a song satirizing one aspect of the infamous HB 72. The group also appeared on a national television network documentary about the Texas educational system.

Most of the band members will be moving on to universities and/or full time employment after graduation from Clarendon College this spring. However, as a farewell appearance, Thursday, April 24, the Clarendon College Cowboy Band will appear in concert "For The Last Time" at 7 p.m. in the college auditorium. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students. The program consists of country western, country rock, patriotic tunes, "No Pass, No Play" by Earl Broseh, and "Your Memory Follows Me" and "It Is So Hard To Let Go," by LeRoss Apple.

Proceeds from this last concert will go to the Clarendon College Music Scholarship Fund.

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

Like Phillip Habib, William Rogers is also a diplomat who is a trouble-shooter. Rogers is best remembered as Secretary of State in the Nixon administration, yet his government service started long before. Son of a paper-mill executive thrown out of work by the depression, he worked his way through Cornell Law School, then cut his legal teeth prosecuting racketeers under New York District Attorney Thomas Dewey.

As a Senate staff member, Rogers gained Senator Richard Nixon's favor. Nixon accepted his advice to pursue the case that led to the perjury conviction of Alger Hiss, who was accused of passing classified documents to Soviet agents. Vice-presidential aspirant Nixon heeded Roger's words again when he went on nationwide TV to deflate campaign

"slush fund" charges in 1952. As Attorney General from 1957 to 1961, Rogers made a name as an effective administrator and one who enforced school desegregation laws.

After eight years of private law practice, he was called back by newly elected President Nixon to be his Secretary of State from 1969 to 1973. Rogers won praise for arranging a Mideast cease-fire, but his tenure was marred by the continuing Vietnam War and the growing about of National Security Advisor Henry Kissinger, who replaced him.

Out of the public eye since 1973, Rogers has been a senior partner of Rogers and Wells in New York. He is credited with getting the Challenger inquiry underway fast and keeping the hearings from digressing.

Care Center Capers

The barbeque dinner for the Arthritis Foundation will be held Thursday, April 24 at 6:30 p.m. on the grounds, if the weather permits. The tickets are 2.50 each. There will also be balloons on sale for 75 cents each. The proceeds from the fashion parade, barbeque and balloon sale will be presented April 27 at the telethon in Lubbock, by two representatives from the staff and one resident.

Alice Hall from the R.S.V.P. in Plainview will be at the center on April 26 at 2:30 p.m. for the Retired Senior Volunteer Program recruitment party. There will be refreshments and lots of fun.

We would like to express our sympathy to the Mrs. Beulah Clark family. May God be with you.

J.C. Jones is home and getting back to his jovial self.

Late Friday afternoon Mrs. Miller brought her father Mr. Gray to join our happy little family. After a short visit, I think he is going to fit in really well, the other men were excited about having another guy, since the women outnumber the men.

Well, the kite flew on Thursday. It flew and flew because it got away. The residents and I really enjoyed that experience. Thanks to Joe Munoz for that idea. Some of the residents watched through the dining window, while Floyd Barber, Henry Merrill and Clyde Morrison braved the wind with me. Mamie Wofford really got a kick out of my first experience with kite flying.

The bus ride on Monday was enjoyable with the Dairy Queen treating ice cream and cokes. We drove out on E. 34th in the Seth Ward addition to where Jimmy Dean was raised. Of course, that house has been torn down and a trailer park took its place.

We also drove by the home he had built for his mother and is now owned and operated by his brother. The group included Betha Cunyus, Nina Loudermilk, Esker Pyle, Eva Cresswell, Henry Merrill, Edna Hunter, Earl Mercer, Bessie Hunt and Mary Jo Fielding.

It has been brought to my attention that the Main Street Church of Christ hosted the April birthday party instead of the West Side. I stand corrected. Thank you Main Street, sorry about that mistake.

The Baptist church brought a beautiful program on Thursday with a young man playing a harmonica. It was a pleasure to sit in on the singing.

May God be with you and yours until next week.

These young women were honored by the Lockney B&PW Club last Tuesday evening. Heather Holt is a second generation citizenship girl. Her mother, Jackie Lou Holt, received the same honor just over 20 years ago.

Four senior girls honored by Lockney B & PW Club

The 33rd annual Lockney Business and Professional Women's Club honored four graduating senior girls on Tuesday, April 15, at the West Third and College Church of Christ.

Honorees and their mothers attending the dinner included Rachelle and Ann Ford, Elizabeth and Mrs. Guerrero, Linda and Ruby Stephan, and Heather and Jackie Lou Holt.

All those attending were treated to a delicious meal prepared by the B&PW Club members. The young ladies honored by the club are selected by the faculty for scholarship, leadership, and citizenship.

The girls introduced each other and told of some of the accomplishments the girls have achieved during their high school year.

Rachelle Ford, the daughter of Ray and Ann Ford, has been active during her years as LHS.

She has played basketball four years and was on the varsity squad for two years. She was also in band for three years and served as a drum major during her junior year.

She ran track one year and has served on the student council as a representative of her class for two years. She also served as the Longhorn mascot during her senior year.

She has been a member of FHA for two years and she has also been a member of the National Honor Society for two years. This year she was voted by her class as a Miss LHS nominee.

For the past four years she has been active as a cheerleader, cheering the Longhorns in their various sporting events.

Elizabeth is planning to enter the cosmetology field and will probably attend school in Lubbock.

Heather is the daughter of Kenneth and Jackie Lou Holt and has been active in both supporting the Longhorns and being involved in athletics herself in her high school years.

An active cheerleader for the past four years, she has supported all phases of Lockney athletics and has been involved in them herself. She has played basketball and tennis all four years and participated in track for one year. She received honorable mention in basketball her sophomore and senior years and received the attitude award her junior year. She has also played in regional tennis matches in the past.

that my brain has ceased to function and that for all intents and purpose my life has stopped.

"When that happens, do not attempt to install artificial life into my body by the use of machine and don't call this my deathbed. Let it be called the bed of life and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

"Give my sight to the man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face or love in the eyes of a woman. Give my heart to the person who has nothing but endless days of pain. Give my blood to the teenager who was pulled from the wreckage of his car so that he may live to see his grandchildren play. Give my kidneys to a person who depends upon a machine to exist from week to week.

"Take by bones, every muscle fiber, every nerve and try to find a way to make a crippled child walk. Explore every corner of my brain, take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that someday a speechless boy will shout at the crack of a bat or a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her window.

"Burn the rest and scatter the ashes to the wind to help the flowers grow.

"If you must bury something, bury my faults, my weaknesses and my prejudices against my fellow man. Give my sins to the devil, give my soul to God.

Texas has done a fantastic job on highway improvements...for o t h e r states!

As is the case in most federal and state government situations, the tax-paying public is growing weary of such benevolence.

Lloyd Bentsen, the Lone Star state's senior senator, points out in a newsletter that Texas has been a "donor" state since 1956. Texas has contributed $2 billion more in taxes and fees to the Highway Trust Fund than it has received in federal highway funding.

Thanks to Bentsen's bill in 1982, Texas and other donor states began receiving some extra funding for highway construction or repair, but even that formula keeps Texas from receiving more than 85 percent of its contributions to the fund. Now, Sen. Bentsen reports, the administration is trying to limit the 85 percent returns Texas and other donor states get back by establishing a $250 million cap.

Even without this cap, Texas is giving away to other states 15 cents out of every dollar it pays to the trust fund.

With Texas' current economic dilemma, the state more than ever needs its share of federal highway funds. Bentsen says, and we agree, that Texas paid far more than its share for 30 years, and that's long enough.

Along the same vein, we're hearing more and more folks say that Uncle Samuel has been a Good Samaritan during the years he was able, but now it's time to look after number one!

SIMPLE SOLUTION

It's such a simple solution to such a major problem that I can't believe I'm the only one who ever thought of it.

Since Congress has refused to allow the U.S. to provide $100 million to the Contras in Nicaragua, why not call on our friend Ferdinand Marcos?

He could supply this paltry sum out of petty cash.

In repayment, the Contras could give Ferdinand the presidential compound for a residence when they overthrow the government.

Everybody wins. The U.S. gets what it wants, the Contras accomplish their mission, we get rid of an undesirable alien, Ferdinand gets a place to live—and Imelda has a place to place her shoes.-Haskell Free Press.

BURYING TEXAS PREMATURE

Texans are not going to get much sympathy from neighbors in the non-oil producing states over the collapse of the oil market and we shouldn't expect any. We've flaunted our booming oil-based economy for too long. Now the consumers in the East, and the South and the Mid-West who are enjoying comparatively-cheap gasoline prices for a change are also enjoying the idea that we're getting our come-uppance.

And the anguished cries of our Governor for the federal government to underwrite the oil market by imposing import taxes on foreign oil are falling on deaf ears in more places than Washington.

Outside the oil producing states the American consumers have little compassion for our situation. Why should they? Texans, especially, have a reputation for being boastful...and we've earned it. We've been inclined to repeat those Texas Oil Millionaire stories with relish, even though precious few of us have actually ever been TOMs.

And if we've been in the habit of exaggerating our prosperity, we shouldn't complain too much if our fellow Americans now are inclined to exaggerate our depression. Exaggeration, after all, is as American as Mom's Apple Pie.

So let's eat a little crow and do it gracefully, even mustering a little smile for the rest of the world, because our turn is coming again. The oil market is depressed because the Saudis and their buddies in OPEC are flooding the world with oil while they find out who will cry "uncle" first.

When their greed for dollars overcomes their gamesmanship, the price of oil will go back up...and we'll still have a lot of it in the ground in proven reserves. American oil will be more important than ever then, to keep the Middle East cartel from choking us to death with the lack of it just as they're choking us with a glut of it now.

The domestic oil industry may not be popular with a lot of Americans, but it is necessary to all of us. It wouldn't hurt us to learn a little humility about our mineral wealth, but we'll have it when we need it unless we allow the manipulators of our economy to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs, and we'll all be thankful for that someday.

In the meantime, let those who would bury Texas enjoy it now while they can, because Texas isn't going to dry up and blow away...it will still be here when it's needed and we'll all be glad of it.

And let's not go looking for sympathy now...we'll get something better when the time comes.-Ben Ezzell, The Canadian Record.

I am 46 years old and have spent all but six years of my life in Floyd County. I received my education in the Lockney school system and at WTSU. My three children have all been educated in the Lockney schools as well as my wife Kay, a lifetime resident of Floyd County, who teaches at Lockney High School. We have farmed and ranched in Precinct 2 for the last twenty-six years.

This community has been very good to me and my family. We have always been proud to be citizens of Floyd County.

It would be a privilege and an honor to serve you as your Precinct 2 Commissioner.

Sincerely,
Jerry Williams

Pre-school clinic: 36th year

By Gayle Jackson

The immunization requirements and the sponsoring group have changed, but the Lockney pre-school free immunization clinic has continued for 36 years to provide children an opportunity to enter school in good health.

Begun in May of 1951 by the C.N. Townsend School Parent-Teacher Organization with the late Mrs. Joe Foster as president, the clinic has been made possible by the cooperation between the community and the school.

The PTA directed the project for 20 years before turning it over to Athena Study Club in 1971. (Lockney PTA became inactive 1970 or '71, and was reorganized several years ago.) Through these two organizations, many people have been involved in helping with the registration and medical examinations of Lockney's pre-schoolers.

General chairman of that first clinic was Mrs. Loren Rhodes, assisted by Mrs. G.E. Tannahill and Mrs. Willis Reynolds. All three mothers had children who would begin first grade the next fall. Mrs. Rhodes recalls that the state was going to require vaccination and immunization against diphtheria, smallpox and whooping cough, and the PTA members believed that the free clinic would help more parents to comply. Also helping to organize the clinic was the PTA's health committee composed of Mrs. Alvin Yarbrough, Mrs. Robert Lee Smith and the late Mrs. R.H. Ford.

The Lockney Beacon of May 25, 1951, reports that 40 children were examined by local physicians Dr. K.O. Crum and Dr. G.A. McClelland, local dentist Dr. Wayne Greer, local nurse Mrs. Georgia Hitch, and Floydada school nurse Mrs. Wesley Carr. Lockney General Hospital furnished medical supplies.

The medical personnel all donated their time in 1951, and that tradition continued through the clinic held this past April 8. Giving examinations this year were Dr. W.J. Mangold, Dr. Gary Mangold, optometrist Dr. Stewart Webb of Plainview and dentist Dr. Ricky Cross of Plainview and Lockney. They were assisted by their nurses, and immunizations were given by nurses from the South Plains Health Provider group of Floydada. Immunization materials were donated by the Texas Health Department. Athena Study Club chairman of the event was Mrs. Buddie Robnett who scheduled the clinic and the doctors, and provided publicity. Club members assisted with registration and record keeping.

Some years, Lockney General Hospital nurses gave the shots.

As always, if the doctors find any medical, visual or dental problems, the parents are informed and urged to take those children to their own doctors or dentists for corrective measures.

This year, the immunizations required for school entrance were polio, DPT (diphtheria, pertussis—whooping cough—and tetanus), MMR (measles, mumps and rubella). Of the children who registered, 26 were given the oral polio vaccine; 24 took the DPT shot and only two needed the MMR shot. Sugar cubes are no longer used to give the oral polio vaccine. Smallpox vaccination had not been necessary for school entrance for several years as smallpox was certified in 1980 as having been eradicated.

For the second year, the medical screening was done in a different area from the school pre-registration process, both for convenience and for less confusion and less stress on the apprehensive youngsters. Hearing tests are not conducted during the pre-school clinic because the environment is too noisy and testing is too time-consuming.

Records kept by Lockney school nurse Evelyn Ulmer show that 46 children were registered in both 1985 and 1986. Mrs. Ulmer's records show the number registered each year since 1978 (34); 1979 (30); 1980 (33); 1981 and '82 (31); 1983 (30), with a jump in 1984 to 41. Pre-registration of the children is done during the clinic. This enables the school to have a good idea of how many children to expect in kindergarten the next fall. And with most of the children pre-registered, the confusion level on the first day of school is lowered.

The first clinic in 1951 was held in the basement of the old Methodist Church. Floydada's school nurse was a helper, but the next year, Lockney had a school nurse, Mrs. Billy Bean, who helped with the clinic. She was succeeded in 1954 by Mrs. Elsie Peckham. In 1961 Mrs. Henry Ansley became the school nurse. She retired in 1973 and was replaced by Mrs. Macon Ulmer. During Mrs. Ulmer's tenure, the clinic has been moved from the Methodist Church to the elementary school. In all, Mrs. Ulmer has helped with the clinic for 19 years because she gave shots at six clinics while a nurse with the Floyd County Migrant Health Services (a federal program which preceded South Plains Health Provider.)

Some interesting facts taken from the files of The Lockney Beacon since the pre-school clinic began:

May, 1951 — The PTA was giving aid to all people of the vicinity in helping to secure birth certificates. It was noted that birth certificates would be required for school entrance. In 1962 Mrs. Jimmy Stennett was the PTA clinic chairman. The clinic's location was moved from the Methodist Church basement to the church's new educational unit. Besides the small pox vaccination and DPT, a TB patch test was administered.

In 1963, immunization for polio was added to the clinic. Mrs. Delton Jack was chairman in 1964 when 86 children registered. Medical personnel that year included Dr. W.J. Mangold, Dr. Lane Glenn, Dr. K.O. Crum; dentists Dr. James D. Walston and Dr. C.W. Jennings; and optometrists Dr. O.R. McIntosh and Dr. John Andrews.

The Lockney Beacon reports that in 1968 the chairman was Mrs. Gene Handley, and that 73 youngsters were registered. That number was said to be down from the 1967 total of 110 children. The article mentions that immunization for measles was given for the first time.

Chairman in 1969 was Mrs. Jimmy Cummings, now a Hale Center resident whose daughter is Mrs. Ricky Hrbacek of Lockney. (Another daughter, Donna, soon will marry Barney Bill McCarter of Lockney.) Mrs. James Race was pictured with her son, Jeffrey, as he was being examined.

In 1970 Mrs. Wayne Bramlet was chairman. Bryan Emert was pictured as one of the 62 youngsters who were registered.

Athena Study Club took over the sponsorship of the clinic in 1971. On the planning committee were Mrs. Jim Reynolds, Mrs. Richard Wiley and Mrs. Jerry Williams. (A coincidence is that one of Athena's committee was Beth Reynolds, daughter-in-law of Bernice Reynolds, who was on the planning committee for the first clinic held by the PTA 20 years earlier.)

With the help of Athena Club members and school nurse Mary Ansley, 107 children were registered and examined by Drs. W.J. Mangold, T.L. Glenn, Hugh Ritch, O.R. McIntosh and Stewart Webb.

(As an extra note of interest, the school year of 1950-'51 when Lockney PTA began the pre-school clinic, enrollment at Lockney was listed as 705 students, with 186 in high school. That figure is nearly identical to the September, 1985 numbers of 704. However, the more recent figure includes about 20 early childhood students, 60 kindergarten students and about six special education students. No students in these three groups would have been enrolled in school in 1950. But it should be mentioned that migrants would have swelled the 1950 figures. In conclusion, the school enrollment at Lockney shows a drop of over 80 students from the 1950-'51 year to the 1985-'86 year, but for several years in the early to mid-1970's, Lockney's schools showed enrollment of over 1000 students.)

At the pre-school clinic, a permanent medical record is begun by school nurse Evelyn Ulmer. Information from the physical examinations is recorded, as is the height and weight of each child. Each August, Mrs. Ulmer reports when the teachers do and begins her re-organization of all the medical records of each child enrolled in Lockney schools.

Every fall, she weighs and measures each child through the third grade. She will do the same for fourth and fifth graders if requested by the individual teachers. Visual and auditory tests are done each year on fifth, seventh, and ninth graders. Mrs. Ulmer also does auditory testing on the seniors to be sure that any problems are caught which might hinder them in advanced schooling or work. She sees to it that scoliosis or spinal screening is done by coaches for sixth and ninth graders. Throughout the school year, Mrs. Ulmer reviews medical records to determine which students need booster shots, and sends notices to parents.

In the past, TB testing was done each year, but because of the low incidence of actual TB cases, annual testing has been discontinued. Mrs. Ulmer expects that the Texas Health Department will return to Lockney to do tests during the 1986-'87 school year.

As the pre-school clinic gave the children the opportunity to begin school in good health, Mrs. Ulmer does all she can to see that the student continues his schooling in good health.

FOR OVER 30 years Dr. W. J. Mangold has been examining Lockney youngsters in the pre-school clinic.

DR. GARY MANGOLD is a second generation pre-school clinic doctor who examines youngsters before they enter kindergarten at Lockney Elementary School.

DR. RICKY CROSS, Lockney dentist, has been participating in the pre-school clinic for the past two years. Cross returned to Lockney with a part-time dental practice in January of 1985.

"Great Texas Trash Off" planned to break habit

If 23 million Americans can stop smoking for one day, surely Texans can stop trashing out our roadways for just 24 hours.

At least that's the theory behind "The Great Texas Trash Off" planned for Saturday, April 26.

During the day, Texans are being encouraged to keep the trash off the side of the road and put it where it belongs.

"Littering is a habit, we're sure of that," said Don Clark, spokesman with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, sponsor of "The Great Texas Trash Off."

"If we get Texans to break the habit for one day, we'll be able to demonstrate how easy it is to put that trash where it belongs."

In the very least, we'll have cleaner, safer roads. That alone will save the taxpayers a bundle of money," Clark said.

Texas taxpayers spent a record $24 million last year keeping the state's highways clean.

Keep America Beautiful Week is April 20-26, and communities across Texas will be organizing local beautification and cleanup activities.

"We couldn't think of a better time to ask Texans to put the trash where it belongs - right after the roadsides, streets and public areas are all clean and spiffy, and before they get messed up again," Clark said.

"The Great Texas Trash Off" is part of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation's "Don't Mess With Texas" campaign.

Texas fatalities at lowest level since '76

Although the number of accidents increased almost 3 percent in 1985, the number of traffic fatalities has decreased to the lowest level since 1976.

Thanks in part to the greater use of safety belts and increased public awareness of the dangers of drinking and driving, the number of people killed on Texas' highways and roads reached its lowest level in ten years. A total of 3,682 lives were lost in 1985; a reduction from the 3,913 lives lost in 1984.

In addition, the number of infant fatalities decreased from 60 in 1984 to 47 in 1985; a 22 percent decrease. It has been written that the loss of one life is a tragedy while a million lives lost is a statistic.

"The tragic loss of life on Texas roads and highways is largely preventable. Take care of those you love and buckle your safety belt," says the State Department of Highways.

The buckles of some Safe & Sound II seats made between December 18, 1984 and April 3, 1985 were found by Collier Keyworth to have some potential to fail in a crash. The buckles in question have single-prong tongues with no writing on the back. Information on replacement can be obtained by calling the Department of Transportation's hotline, 1-800-424-9393.

John Bachmann, managing partner of the firm, said, "We're delighted Kevin has accepted our offer. An invitation to become an owner of Edward D. Jones & Co. symbolizes our recognition of his dedication to the continued growth of the firm."

Flatt joined Edward D. Jones & Co. in 1983 and has been serving the Plainview trade area for three years.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

By Kevin Flatt

Retirement Planning

Prior to the turn of the century, the philosophy of this nation was that people supported the government - the government didn't support the people. There were abuses and one of the abuses was poignantly dramatized by writer Upton Sinclair.

Sinclair identified alleged health and sanitation problems within the packing industry. He was so vivid and explicit in his descriptions of this industry in his book, The Jungle, that upon its release a government agency was immediately established to look into the industry.

Abuses were found, federal guidelines were established, and one of the first of many government agencies was established. This was in early 1900 - I need not make any comment on the number of government agencies in operation today.

The Social Security agency was created because people began to feel the job of the government was to take care of the people. But, in recent years, we have begun to see government cannot afford the task. Around the world we see governments in other countries having an even more difficult time trying to take care of its people. So, whether a republic or a dictatorship, democracy, or communistic society, governments do very poorly when it comes to caring for needs people should be providing themselves.

One of the major problems of this "government-will-take-care-of-me" attitude has surfaced in the retirement area. What about the Social Security system? Will it be around when you retire?

Better minds than I, have pondered that same question and have come up with conflicting answers. I'll not be so presumptuous to attempt to answer that question even now, but government statistics do indicate a vast majority will depend upon Social Security alone to support them in their retirement years.

Social Security is an insurance we've been sold by the federal government. We don't have a choice in the purchase - we're required to buy it if we work. (If you don't believe it look at your next paycheck and see what your monthly premium is. Double it because your employer is matching your contribution.)

If you become disabled and qualify for disability, or you die and your widow and/or orphans collect assistance, or if you live and at some future time are able to collect monthly benefits, no one is giving you anything - Social Security is something you've paid for as part of your financial future. It's part of your financial plan.

But the question is, is it enough?

LJH play wins first in UIL

The Lockney Junior High one-act play cast journeyed to Petersburg last Thursday to compete in UIL competition. The play contest was the last phase of junior high UIL events and, in addition to winning first place in the competition, the 40 points added to the Lockney total cinched Lockney a first place win overall.

The junior high play cast presented "The Freeway," which centers on a black woman and a white woman who are lifelong friends. They are forced out of their homes by the highway department, which has routed a freeway through their homes. The women are forced to leave the homes in which they have raised their families.

Lockney had outstanding actors in the cast. Cindy Cook and Phillip Glasson were named outstanding actress and actor and Shana Stapp was named to the all-star cast. Wesley Teeter and Tandi Gant were named honorable mention to the all-star cast.

With the first place win, Lockney Junior High added 40 points to the 132½ points already garnered in other UIL competition to put Lockney in first place overall in district. This is the first time in many years and possibly ever that Lockney Junior High has placed first overall in district UIL contest.

BBB warns of phoney invoices

The BBB of the South Plains, Inc. has learned that two companies by the names of CHEMGLO, INC. of Alledale, NJ and LITECHEM, INC. of Ramsey, NJ have been mailing invoices for 20-35 gallon drums of weed killer to golf club owners/managers and orchard and farm owners which were never ordered or delivered. Just last week, it was learned that a country club had paid invoices totaling over $5400 to CHEMGLO for weed killer only after they questioned a fifth invoice received from the same company for all-purpose cleaner in the amount of $1399.

The companies' response to complaints is that the invoice was sent in error.

The U.S. Postal Service filed suit against the company (P.S. Docket 22/59) alleging CHEMGLO, INCORPORATED and owner, David Glassman had violated federal law. On September 13, 1985, a cease and desist order was issued in connection with the company offering any product or service for sale by the mail. The company must cease and desist from falsely representing that the merchandise identified on the statement of invoice was previously ordered by the addressee; the apparent order for merchandise specified on the invoice represents a sales contract between the company and the addressee; and the addressee is obligated to remit to the company the invoiced amount of money. The company must also cease and desist from sending any solicitation for the order of goods/services that looks like a bill, invoice or statement of account due that does not comply with federal law.

BBB/South Plains urges bookkeeping staffs to verify that an order was placed and merchandise received before making payment.

Temporary FmHA employees approved to speed loanmaking

U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration has hired more than 1,000 temporary employees in 42 states to help process farm loan applications. Funds for additional overtime salaries also have been approved in the amount of $2,013,475.

According to information from the United States Department of Agriculture, 14 additional persons were approved for Texas.

"We need to be sure that needed farm credit—whether in the form of direct loans or FmHA-guaranteed commercial loans—reaches farmers in time for the planting seasons," says FmHA Administrator Vance L. Clark.

The additional personnel has been assigned to FmHA offices where the work load is greatest, Clark says. Employees include both loan specialists and clerical personnel.

Clark adds that FmHA offices in 39 states have been authorized to pay up to a total of $2 million during the next few months for overtime services of employees working additional hours to process loan applications.

Spring brings tractor accidents

Spring brings a sharp increase in agriculture activities, and that means more tractor accidents.

Overturns still cause the most tractor-related deaths, says Dr. Gary Nelson, safety specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Soft ground from spring rains combined with irregular terrain can trigger a tractor overturn," says Nelson.

Also, sudden bumps due to ruts and washouts can cause extra riders to fall off and often be run over by the tractor or a trailing implement. Of course, extra riders should not be allowed on tractors in the first place, he cautions.

The specialist points out that vegetation can hide a washout or deep rut. And slide slopes of hills require extra driving care even under the best of conditions. A sudden drop of just a few inches of the downhill wheel into a hole or rut can flip a tractor before the operator can react to the situation.

"A good defense against sudden tipping is to avoid irregular ground, ruts and holes while operating at reduced speeds," advises Nelson. "Speed can turn a small bump into a real trouble spot. Quick turns even at medium speeds on rough ground also can lead to overturns."

"Slowing down helps you see trouble spots while reducing the motion that can send you into an overturn," he says. "Also, if your tractor has a rollover protective structure, wear your seat belt to keep you inside the protective device."

Nelson gives these additional reminders for safe tractor operation:

1. Be prepared for a safe day at the wheel. Get enough rest. Take occasional breaks to reduce fatigue. Limit or avoid tractor operation when you are ill or taking medication. Dress appropriately for the weather and work conditions, including safety shoes or boots and a bump cap. If your tractor doesn't have a protective cab, you may need a dust respirator at times and acoustic ear muffs or plugs.

2. Give the tractor a safety "once over" before starting work. Check belts, lights, wipers, steering, tires and hydraulics. See that it's properly serviced.

3. Make sure that all youth and employed tractor operators are trained and competent. Only those with a driver's license should take farm equipment on the highway.

4. Do not allow riders. Keep children and nonworkers safely away. See that everyone is clear before moving.

5. Always hitch drawbar loads to the drawbar, not the axle or an elevated three-point hitch.

6. Match ground speed to operating conditions. Cut your speed on turns, when near ditches and obstacles, on rough, hilly or muddy ground, and when visibility is poor.

7. Always disengage the PTO and turn off the engine before unclogging or working on a power-driven machine. Keep all guards in place.

8. Turn off the engine before refueling. Set the brakes when parking and remove the key to keep children or thieves from starting the tractor. Never jump-start a tractor without making certain it's out of gear and the brakes are locked.

9. Make certain the tractor is securely blocked so it cannot fall when wheels are removed. Get plenty of help or use mechanical aids when handling big drive wheels as they can pin or even crush someone.

Ultrasound may improve cattle breeding techniques

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

Animal breeding techniques can be greatly improved by use of high frequency sound waves, called ultrasound, according to Dr. David Forrest, animal scientist engaged in reproduction research with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

"Results of ultrasound research are expected to provide methods to improve artificial insemination," Forrest says, "and to detect abnormal (cystic) ovarian structures in cows with ovulation failure."

"Ultrasound may also be useful in embryo transfer programs, to improve efficiency of superovulation, and to aid in selection of recipient cows for optimum pregnancy rates."

"We also expect to use this equipment to identify cows that will be most responsive to hormonal synchronization of ovulation."

The value of ultrasound has been recognized and used for more than a decade in human reproductive medicine. And in recent years, it has proved valuable on horse breeding farms; horses are notorious for reproductive difficulties.

Other uses with domestic animals have included early pregnancy determination in cattle, horses, and swine. Forrest says it's now possible to verify pregnancy as early as 28 days in cattle, 14 days in swine, and 12 days in horses.

For those not familiar with some of today's current techniques in animal breeding, Forrest explains that for a variety of reasons in artificial insemination, for example, it is desirable to induce all animals to come in heat within a very short period of time. Hormone injections make this possible and practical.

Non-surgical embryo transplant procedures, combined with superovulation, make it possible to greatly speed up the reproduction of extremely valuable animals.

Hormone injections can cause a valuable cow's ovaries to release many ova (eggs) instead of the one or a few she would shed naturally. These can be fertilized artificially and, after a week or so, flushed from the cows reproduction system.

Each tiny embryo can then be placed in a less-valuable surrogate mother to nurture and carry to birth. Even the surrogate mother's receptiveness can be determined by ultrasound, thus improving chances for the transplanted embryo.

The equipment used in this research is still too expensive, Forrest says, for most individual producers to purchase, but in the future, as research continues to develop additional techniques, it is expected that this type equipment will be used by embryo transfer facilities, commercial breeding enterprises, and veterinarians heavily involved in artificial insemination or embryo transplant.

Users of this equipment require training in its use and interpretation of what it shows. However, Forrest says, a technician can be trained in a relatively short period of time.

Use of this equipment is expected to become widespread fairly quickly because it greatly improves efficiency and will ultimately cut costs.

Extension cotton pest management programs pay dividends in Texas

Integrated pest management programs of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service have reached into many areas of crop and livestock production, but a major emphasis has been in cotton and the successes have been numerous, points out Dr. Mike McWhorter, Extension pest management program leader.

The Extension Service has been a partner with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Pest Management Association and cotton organizations in implementing IPM technology.

The Extension Service has helped prevent the westward spread of the destructive boll weevil into the High Plains, a major cotton-growing region. This has been accomplished with a fall spraying program before the weevil reaches the diapause state in which it overwinters. A continuous program since 1964, the effort has resulted in a savings of some $1.9 billion due to reduced insecticide treatments by farmers and increased yields.

Bollworm management strategies in the High Plains also have paid handsome dividends over the years. The bollworm problem has cost producers as much as $30 million annually in control costs and yield losses, but emphasis on field scouting and improved use of insecticides as advocated by the Extension Service have turned the tide. The strategy has provided an annual savings in cotton yield of some 32 pounds per acre over the region valued at about $7.5 million.

In the Rolling Plains where the boll weevil has plagued cotton growers for years, the Extension Service devised a management strategy in 1972 centered around a delayed uniform planting date. All cotton farmers in the region are encouraged to plant around May 20 (about a month later than normal) so that female weevils emerging from overwintering sites by mid-June do not find cotton squares for laying their eggs.

Since only a small percentage of the female weevils survive until cotton squares become available, damaging populations seldom develop until late in the growing season. This has kept insecticide use to a minimum and has generally allowed beneficial insects to keep bollworms and tobacco budworms under control.

This delayed uniform planting strategy has resulted in a 25-pound per acre yield increase and a reduction in insecticide, seed and labor costs, leading to an increased annual return of $21.36 per acre—an economic impact on the Rolling Plains region of some $192 million.

In far West Texas where pink bollworms have been a nemesis to the cotton producer, Extension entomologists and Extension agents have initiated pest management programs focusing on more efficient control techniques while improving environmental quality.

Educational efforts in that region have emphasized the need for farmers to destroy crop residue early to reduce overwintering populations of bollworms. During the growing season, field scouting, pheromone traps and a computer prediction model are all used to determine the need for insecticide applications. Extension staff have encouraged the adoption of a new application technique which has reduced per acre insecticide use 10-fold. In El Paso County alone, this effort saved cotton growers some $750,000 last year. Total savings in crop loss and pesticide application costs over a seven-county area are estimated at $1.7 million for 1985.

Boll weevils nearly devastated the cotton crop in the Rio Grande Valley in 1980. Since that time Extension efforts have focused on encouraging farmers to destroy cotton stalks early to reduce food and habitats for overwintering weevils. This led to a net reduction of eight pesticide applications over a five-year period for a net gain of $48 per acre in insecticide savings last year. At the same time cotton yields have increased 370 pounds per acre. Overall, farmers have realized an increase in gross income of $270 per acre for a total regional impact of some $31 million.

Pest management efforts have helped cotton make a comeback in the Coastal Bend area.

"These educational programs in cotton pest management have meant a lot to the Texas cotton industry," points out Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, Extension Service director. "However, such programs will be affected by decreased resources should additional budget cuts at the state level and proposed reductions at the federal level take place. While the Extension Service will continue to focus its efforts on high quality educational programs aimed at meeting the needs of clientele, budget restraints will definitely limit the scope of these programs," Carpenter adds.

This report of a successful educational effort clearly demonstrates that public funding for Extension is an investment which returns economic benefits in excess of funds committed to the Extension system, Carpenter notes.

Extension engineers focus on efficiency

Texas Agricultural Extension Service programs related to irrigation efficiency, farm safety and other areas benefit Texans in numerous ways, including reduced irrigation costs, increased water conservation, and reduced farm-related deaths and injuries.

"These educational programs, however, will be affected by decreased resources should additional budget cuts at the state level and proposed reductions at the federal level take place," says Extension Service Director Zerle L. Carpenter. "While the Extension Service will continue to focus its efforts on high quality educational programs aimed at meeting the needs of clientele, budget restraints will definitely limit the scope of these programs," he adds.

This report of a successful educational effort clearly demonstrates that public funding for Extension is an investment which returns economic benefits in excess of funds committed to the Extension system, Carpenter notes.

The key tool in helping farmers with irrigation efficiency has been an intensive demonstration program, points out Wayne Keese, Extension Service agricultural engineer.

Over the past 10 years, on-farm demonstrations or irrigation pumping plant efficiency testing have shown a tremendous potential for cost reductions in farm irrigation—pumping—$1.23 per hour on the average natural gas-powered pump for a furrow system, 56 cents per hour for the average diesel-powered pump, and $1.30 per hour for the average electric-powered pump.

"The typical irrigation pumping plant in the Texas High Plains, which boasts the largest irrigated crop acreage, operates about 2,000 to 2,400 hours a year," Keese points out. "Real savings are possible by keeping irrigation systems in good working order and by practicing other management techniques."

On-farm demonstrations with the Low Energy Precision Application (LEPA) irrigation system developed by a Texas Agricultural Experiment Station engineer also have shown the potential for reducing both costs and water usage. According to Keese, water application efficiency can be increased from 75 to 80 percent for a typical center-pivot sprinkler system to 97 percent with the LEPA system. "This means about a 20 percent reduction in pump operating time and total water use," he notes.

Also, the LEPA unit can reduce required operating pressure 15 to 20 pounds per square inch or more, reducing pumping costs by $1 to $1.25 per hour for a quarter-mile system, or $2,000 to $3,000 per year for the typical High Plains center-pivot irrigation system.

A statewide educational program in farm and ranch safety conducted by an Extension Service safety engineer has contributed to a reduction in fatalities and disabling injuries from farm and ranch accidents. Over the past five years, farm and rural accidents have decreased 28 percent from the previous five years, representing a decrease of 255 fatalities and 25,500 disabling injuries. This corresponds to a savings in medical costs alone of almost $13 million, says Keese.

Further, increased family income due to prevented fatalities is estimated at almost $32 million during this period. At a 15 percent tax rate, this means an increase of some $4,800,000 in federal tax revenues.

THIMET. TOP PERFORMANCE. LOWER COST THAN TEMIK.

Why pay more than you need to for insect control? THIMET® 20-G soil and systemic insecticide protects your cotton and saves you about $3 per acre over the cost of Temik.*

If you're one of the many growers that used THIMET last year, you know it does the job for thrips and other pests. Applied at planting, THIMET also controls other early season insects such as aphids, mites, leaf miners, leafhoppers, black cutworms and white flies. So stick with THIMET for proven protection.

THIMET is more convenient, too. It's concentrated in a 20-G formulation to help you cover more acres faster.

So for the best combination of performance and price, THIMET can't be beat. Ask your farm chemical dealer for THIMET today.

Social Security Report

By Terry J. Clements
 Everyone who applies for a Social Security number, including young children, must provide evidence of age, identity, and U.S. citizenship or lawful admission status.
 Parents sometimes have difficulty finding the required evidence for their children. They especially have trouble with the idea of providing evidence of identity.
 Proof of age is relatively easy—a public record of birth recorded before age 5. This document may also establish citizenship.
 Documents which will establish a young child's identity and which are usually available include: report card, school identification card, newspaper birth announcement, court order for name change, church membership or confirmation records, doctor or hospital records, vaccination certificate, day care or nursery school records, or child's membership in a youth organization.

 This is not an exclusive list. Any document providing identifying information such as a physical description, photograph, or signature may be used as evidence of identity.
 At least two documents must be presented, one to establish age and citizenship and one to establish identity. Only original documents or copies certified by the issuing agency can be used. They will be returned.

 The parent must also provide evidence establishing his or her identity and relationship to the child.
 For more information you may contact us at 1401-B West 5th street, or call us at 293-9623.
