Longhorns launch football season at Ralls

AIDS OR AIDES

A young Floydada schoolboy asked his dad one night about "AIDS." Obviously, the stunned father handled the matter delicately. The following evening, the youngster informed his father that Mr. (Principal Charles) Tyer had announced over the school intercom system that all teachers with "aides" should come to the office! Isn't word association amazing?

UNATTENDED TASKS

Well folks, summer is almost officially over. According to the calendar, Fall begins on Sept. 23. But if you ask any school-age child or teacher, summer is over when school starts.

So, if you were planning to do something this summer and have not yet accomplished the feat, now is the time to do it. Here's a list of some of the things my husband and I thought we could get accomplished this summer:

- *Paint the trim on the house. (Well, hallelujah, we have painted almost all of the trim, except for one corner on the north side of the house that is too tall for our ladder to reach, even if the painter is 6'3" tall and standing on the almost-top run. This painter — my husband — has promised me he will finish the trim when the roof is no longer too hot to lay prone on so he can reach over the top to paint.)

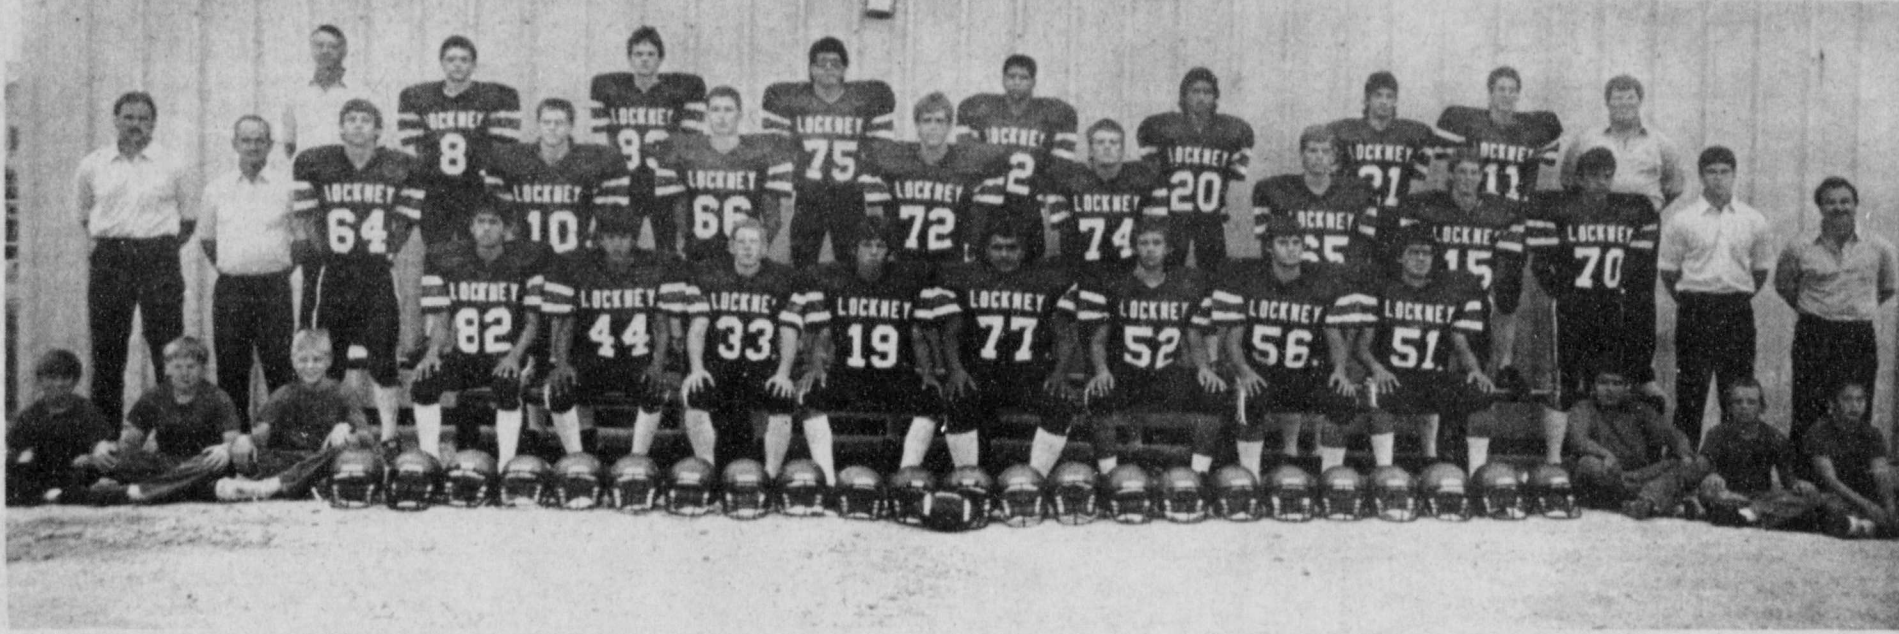

- We began our painting project with a big bang...actually a big plop. We hadn't brushed more than a few strokes of paint onto a window awning when my well-coordinated husband tipped a fourth of a gallon of paint over onto the once-beautiful white siding of the house. He muttered unprintable words while our children pointed and giggled and I made a mad dash for the water hose. It cleaned up rather nicely, if one likes dingy white siding.

- *Fix the holes in the patio roof (not yet accomplished). There are gaping holes in three of six corrugated plastic roofing sheets — why not wait til all six are in need of repair?

- *Set up the tent in the backyard so father and son can camp out one night. (The father is waiting for cooler nights, and the son is waiting for the father.)

- *Finish the dog house that my husband began construction on last summer. (This is one doozy of a dog house, folks, with at least a year of thought and planning going into the making.) At last report, the doggy

1987 Lockney Longhorns

Coach Jim Clark has been waiting for months for Friday, Sept. 4.

That night he leads the Longhorn footballers into battle against Ralls into the season opener. Kickoff is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Jackrabbit Stadium in Ralls.

The contest will mark Clark's debut as head mentor of Longhorn gridders and also as athletic director.

Lockney's Red and White expects to put a seasoned backfield on the field, but the line will be relatively inexperienced.

The Fighting Longhorns would love to inaugurate the '87 campaign as successfully as they opened last year, a 36-0 drubbing of Ralls. However, the Jackrabbits lost few seniors to graduation and return basically the same lads with a year of experience under their belts.

By contrast, Lockney's ranks were stripped of 15 standout athletes by graduation.

FOUND ARTICLES

Several items were left in the dressing rooms at the Floyd County Fair following the Little Miss and Queen's contests. If you are missing clothing items or accessories please contact Kim Lambert at 652-3412.

City officials have begun to insist that all Lockney residents must be in compliance with the building code for the city. This code will affect all new structures within the city limits.

Officials stress that any and all new construction within the city limits must have a building permit issued. Building permits are required by the city on any new construction or renovation of a structure and this includes carpools, shop buildings, new homes, old homes moved into the city, trailer houses and even playhouses.

Building permits are issued for any new structures, or any alteration of existing building, or for moving a structure into the city.

This is done to make certain that any structure within the city limits is built or altered to meet the building codes of the city.

Contained within this week's issue of The Beacon is an ad listing penalties for not complying with this city regulation. Anyone with questions as to whether and for what reasons a permit is necessary may direct questions to the city office in Lockney.

FIGHTING LONGHORNS

Boulter addresses rural doctor sanctions

Congressman Beau Boulter was in Lockney last Wednesday for an old fashioned town hall meeting with constituents in the Lockney area. The main topic of his address to Lockney citizens alluded to the sanctioning of Dr. W.J. Mangold and his efforts to have this problem stopped before it affected any more doctors in his congressional district.

Boulter commented to the more than 30 people gathered in the Lockney Elementary Cafeteria that "When I read what was happening to Doctor Mangold, I decided to go to war with the Texas Medical Foundation if necessary."

"First I went to Austin to see Bob King, director of the TMF. He would not let me see any of the information on Dr. Mangold or any of the other rural doctors who were chose for this sanctioning."

Boulter then went into action on his own by consolidating information gathered by him and his office and holding a meeting on the situation in Amarillo in February of this year.

"Bob King attended this meeting and resorted to serious name calling and cursing in a loud voice throughout the Amarillo meeting. However, no more doctors have been sanctioned since that time," commented Boulter.

Boulter said in all his contact with TMF and other offices involved throughout his investigation, no one could explain why all the negligent doctors were found to be in rural hospitals.

"It still amazes me that they were unable to find any negligent doctors in the large-town hospitals. They just seem to be picking on rural doctors and this really infuriates me. They are trying to take doctors away from the older citizens and this just isn't right and I intend to see that it is stopped," commented Boulter.

The biggest problem seems to be in education. "Doctors must be educated in the Medicare paper system rather than being sanctioned for not keeping up with those records. However, TMF was not given money for the education of doctors. They were given $18.1 million to sanction doctors who don't comply and the doctors were not given any chance to rectify the problems

Cash prizes, Cowboy tickets offered in grid contest

A bonus of two tickets to the Nov. 22 game between the Dallas Cowboys and the Miami Dolphins awaits the season winner of The Beacon's annual football contest. The encounter is to be played in Texas Stadium.

Contestants earn one point for each correct game they pick throughout the season. To remain in contention for the tickets, it is important for contestants to enter each week. The contest is scheduled for 11 weeks, but would be increased one additional week should the Longhorns qualify for the playoffs.

In addition to the grand prize, $20 dollars in cash prizes are being offered weekly in the contest: $10 for first place, $6 for second and $4 for third. Prizes are split in the event of ties. Every Beacon subscriber or individual buying a copy from a

Birth of first daughter leads Chuck Wilson to photography career

While studying at Texas Tech University and being a member of the "Goin' Band from Raiderland," Chuck Wilson was deeply engrossed in music. Becoming a professional photographer was the farthest thing from his mind.

"I had always had a camera, but it (photography) was not a burning desire as it is with some people," he explains. He says, "I got interested in photography when our first child was born."

But the "camera bug" bit him hard.

He and Joyce were residing in Germany at the time while he was fulfilling his military obligation. Wilson served six years in the U.S. Air Force, the last three in Germany.

He was "separated from the service" in July 1960 and the family arrived at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey on July 4.

"We came right back to Lockney, arriving here on July 9, and we opened our studio which was founded in 1960.

UNIQUE SITUATION

His situation is indeed unique. Wilson was awarded a Master of Photography degree in 1977 by the Professional Photographers of America and four years later earned a Photographic Craftsman degree.

"There are probably 400 dual degree holders in the U.S.," Wilson says. Few, if any, are based in a town smaller than Lockney.

In addition, the ultra modern studio is located "in the country," adjacent to the Wilson residence, 3½ miles northwest of town. Open house at the facility was held Aug. 26, 1984.

A number of professional photographers have visited the Wilson Studio and borrowed innovative ideas from the facilities.

The Wilsons have not always had the luxury of such a modern facility.

Their original studio was located in the building which presently houses Don Vernon's NTS office. The camera room was located in the rear of the structure, while the darkroom and dressing rooms were behind J.D. Copeland's office in the same building.

The studio was closed while Wilson, who owns a bachelor of music and education degree from Texas Tech University, served as director of Lockney school bands. It was reopened in the couple's family residence.

BAND DIRECTOR

He was asked to take the junior high band to contest during a year in which several band directors came and went.

"Johnny Mason (superintendent) and Dub Hallmark (principal) came down and asked if I would take the junior high band to contest," he recalls. Wilson consented to prepare the band for concert and sight reading contests in order that the budding young musicians could "retain their eligibility for the next year."

"I applied for the position the next year" and served two years — 1971-72 and 1972-73 terms — as director before Raymond Lusk returned from the military. Lusk was complimentary of the "health condition of the band," which earned sweepstakes honors the following year.

This concluded the ambitions to teach for the four-year member of the "Goin' Band from Raiderland." He served as drum major of the renowned band his senior year at Tech, 1953-54.

During this two-year hiatus, the Wilson studio was closed although the couple "made some portraits and did weddings during the sum-

North loved combat. He was in Vietnam for eleven months, and won a Silver Star and a Bronze Star with a V for valor, the nation's third and fourth highest combat medals. He also earned two Purple Hearts. "He was all guns, guts and glory," says Machine Gunner Randy Herrod, now an Oklahoma private detective. Herrod, like others, did not realize until much later that he was taller than the 5 ft. 9 in. North.

North's Silver Star owes as much to determination as to bravery. He was leading his platoon near the demilitarized zone when the lead platoon came under heavy fire. North maneuvered his men through the lines and led an assault against the North Vietnamese: "calmly braving the intense fire of the tenacious hostile soldiers," as his citation puts it. After regrouping his men and directing the evacuation of the wounded, he renewed the attack three more times before driving the enemy from the field.

When North's tour of duty was over he returned to Quantico to teach tactics.

Lockney Care Center

By Lanita Cantwell

Residents at Lockney Care Center were pleased to learn that they won the second place prize for their float. We still have door prizes that many people won at our booth. Please pick these up as soon as possible. Prizes not claimed before Sept. 10 will be forfeited.

Last week we were pleased to have Teresa and Brandy Pitchford help with the Bingo game. Bananas were given as prizes.

We were pleased to have all the morning singing and devotional groups back on schedule. Summer time is a time of vacations, gardening, canning, etc. and we miss some of our regular volunteers to these pursuits. However, the beginning of school will mean that no more young people will be coming to our morning programs. We will especially miss the Hunter children who have been pretty regular.

Some of the visitors we had last week were Johnnie Morrison and Ruby Chesberry of Quitaque, Lois Bedwell and Pat Lane from Plainview, Nors Errington of Amarillo and Alma McDonald's daughter was here several days. Come again!

Council sets tax rate at 35 cents per $100 valuation

The Lockney city council met Monday, August 31, at 9:00 a.m. at the Lockney city hall to set the rate for the 1987-88 year. Present for the meeting were mayor Dan Smith, and aldermen Jerry Johnson, J.D. Copeland, Ronnie Aston, and Kenneth Wofford. Gary Marr was unable to attend the meeting.

Motion and second were made to set the tax rate at 35 cents per $100 valuation, and all councilmen voted for the motion.

Other than council members the only persons present when the vote was taken were city secretary Erma Lee Duckworth and the Beacon reporter.

SANITATION SALES TAX

Mayor Dan Smith asked the Beacon to inform the public of a new law which requires the city to charge a sales tax of 7 percent on the collection of garbage by the city.

Smith commented "We would not be charging this sales tax if it were not mandated by the state; however they are insisting on compliance."

Citizens will begin to see the tax on their bills beginning October 1 as part of their sanitation charge.

Social Security News

By Terry J. Clements

Thinking about retiring? Or perhaps tapering off work gradually with a part-time job? If so, there are some facts you should know about Social Security.

To begin with, you can receive your full retirement amount at 65, or a permanently reduced amount as early as 62. For example, the reduction is 20 percent at 62, 13-1/3 percent at 63, and 6-2/3 percent at 64.

If you're past 65 when you apply, you will get a slight "bonus". Your monthly check will be increased by 3 percent for each year (1/4 of 1 percent for each month) that you did not get a benefit between 65 and 70.

Some Social Security work credits are needed before you can get benefits. For example, if you are 62 in 1987, you need at least 9 years of coverage (36" quarters of coverage") to be insured.

The amount of your monthly check will depend on your average covered earnings while you worked. A worker who retires at 65 in 1987 after having maximum covered earnings most years can expect to receive just over $789 a month. If he or she has eligible dependents, payments to the family will be substantially more.

Once benefits start, payments will increase automatically to keep pace with annual rises in the cost of living. The benefit increase will be tied to the increase in either prices or average wages, depending on the status of the economy.

Your retirement checks may be subject to Federal income tax if you have substantial outside income in addition to benefits. In no case, however, will you have to pay tax on more than one-half of the benefits. For more information on this, contact the Internal Revenue Service.

You and members of your family who are at least 65 have Medicare protection or help pay costly medical bills. You are eligible for Medicare even if you plan to keep working and not receive monthly checks at this time. You will, however, need to apply for it.

You can have some earnings from work and still receive Social Security checks. If you are 65 or older in 1987, you can earn up to $8,160 and receive all benefits; $6,000 if you are under 65; and no limit if you are 70 or older. If earnings exceed the annual exempt amount, $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the exempt amount.

If your plans are uncertain or you have questions, the best thing to do is "inquire before you retire." You may contact us at 1401-B West 5th Street, or call us at 293-9623. Appointments can be arranged if desired.

People in the local area who receive supplemental security income (SSI) payments have a very important responsibility to report any change in their circumstances that could have an effect on their eligibility for or the amount of their payment.

SSI is a Federal program that provides a basic cash income to people 65 or over, or blind, or disabled who have little income and own few resources. Although SSI is administered by Social Security, all funds come from Federal general revenues, not Social Security taxes.

A person who does not report a change may get too much money and have to pay it back. Or, on the other hand, the person may miss out on money if the change would raise the payment.

A persons must report:

*Any change in a savings account, Christmas club, certificate of deposit, or any other account. A person whose name is on any other person's account must report this, too, even if he or she does not use the money in the account.

*If he or she takes a job or goes into business, or any change in earnings, including cash, checks, food, or anything else received as pay.

*If he or she received any other income, such as annuities, pensions, workers' compensation, any benefit check, interest, prizes, gifts, awards, insurance money, support, alimony, strike pay or other union benefits, inheritances, rental income, and sick pay.

Have a good week!

Auffill attends ATPE workshop

Educators from across the state gathered in Lubbock Aug. 6 for the seventh annual ATPE Leadership Workshop hosted by the 42,500-member Association of Texas Professional Educators, the largest independent educators' association in the country.

About 100 local and regional ATPE leaders attended informative workshops and shared membership recruitment ideas as they prepared for the new school year.

Attending from the Lockney local unit was La Dora Auffill.

ATPE has expanded its leadership training program this year and will conduct a similar workshop Aug. 13 in Arlington. The association kicked off the program with a two-day workshop in Austin, where ATPE is headquartered, and also conducted a workshop in Houston on Aug. 4.

"This year's workshops are particularly successful because we have more leaders than ever getting involved," said Hazel Moye, ATPE's state president from McAllen.

"Our expanded program allows more leaders to attend, and the training they receive make them better able to serve our members and promote the association's philosophy," she said.

Highlights of the workshop in Lubbock included an overview of education issues in Texas' regular and special legislative sessions and a discussion of ATPE's professional insurance policy.

mer." Chuck and Joyce reopened the studio in the summer of 1973 and "we worked out of our home and did a lot of location portraits in other people's homes."

Typical of the innovative couple, they methodically planned each segment of their studio. He did all the cabinet work and camera room furnishings, while Joyce was in charge of staining the interior. The 1,800 square foot studio includes a reception area, camera room, two dressing rooms, work room and restroom, as well as his office in the loft.

An old barn near the studio lends itself to rustic backgrounds, and vegetation affords the opportunity for even greater flexibility in portraits.

JOINT VENTURE

Wilson emphasizes that his wife is an intricate part of the operation. "Joyce is a fine photographer in her own right," he adds, although acknowledging that she does not photograph clients. "She helps me," being particularly invaluable in working with children. "I couldn't get along without Joyce," he confesses.

As Wilson became increasingly astute with photography, his honors have abounded.

A member of the International Affiliated Jurors, "I can judge in any state or national competition where photographers are awarded merits toward becoming a Master of Photography. The United States has "about 80" portrait jurors.

The Lockney man's name appears on the jurors list as a portrait and wedding judge. He has served as a commercial judge and a portrait judge for numerous contests, including Oklahoma and New Mexico state conventions and at the Western States Convention in Reno, Nevada. He will be judging the Southwest Convention in Houston next spring and also is scheduled to judge Kansas, Illinois and Oklahoma state functions.

He has presented photographic programs for his peers in Minnesota, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Illinois and New Mexico. He has frequently been invited to appear before these groups repeatedly.

"That makes you feel pretty good when you receive an invitation to come back," he notes.

Although "We've taken wedding portraits in Houston, Fort Worth, Albuquerque and all points in between," Wilson says "most of our customers are from this area. This includes a line from Lubbock to Amarillo, and probably more in Plainview and Lubbock," as well as Lockney.

"I don't feel like I'm in competition with any photographer," he says and is complimentary of other area photographers.

He believes that "any person who sells merchandise or services which are purchased with discretion dollars" is somewhat in competition.

QUALITY STRESSED

"Each photographer has his/her individual style," Wilson points out. He points out that some studios are interested in "mass production," but this is not his style.

"I will not schedule more than one wedding a day," he relates, adding that he stresses quality rather than quantity. Chuck and Joyce Wilson carry a minimum of four cameras and three flash units to every wedding.

Despite their love for photography, the Wilsons have numerous other interests, not the least of which are their three daughters and grandchildren.

Lesla Wilson Bledsoe, a graduate of Texas Tech University, and her husband John are Arlington residents. She operates her own tax consulting business and he is employed as an investment planner.

Melinda Wilson Thompson, her husband Jeff and their three offspring are Plainview residents, which allows Chuck and Joyce the luxury of living near their grandchildren. Thompson is a seventh grade math teacher and coach at Coronado Junior High in Plainview. Melinda is "a pretty good dressmaker, who sews for the public."

The third Wilson daughter, Ruth

Elaine, is a 16-year-old Lockney High senior.

In addition to being "very active in our church," the Wilsons have a bevy of interests. They are vice president of the local Girls Athletic Boosters and support all school activities. "We think we have a fine school system," Wilson adds.

Wilson Photography has had a booth at the Floyd County Fair and Surrounding Counties 27 of the 28 years since the studio was opened. "I've served on the fair boards on two different occasions," he adds, including the year that Algene Barker was named the first woman chairman of the fair board.

ENJOYS MUSIC

Not forsaking his musical background nor his love for music, Wilson plays first chair trombone in the Westwinds Brass Band of Lubbock, the only community brass band in Texas. He and his wife also are supporters of the Plainview Community Concert Association and the Plainview Symphony Orchestra.

The former Joyce Carthel is a Lockney native, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Carthel, and resides near the house in which she was reared. Mrs. Wilson was graduated from Lockney High School and Texas Tech University.

Her husband attended school in Brownfield from seventh grade through his sophomore year. He enrolled in Lubbock High School for his final two years of public school, graduating from Lubbock High and Texas Tech University. He is the son of Mrs. Jane Wilson of Lubbock and the late Charles E. Wilson.

"Joyce and I were married in 1953," he relates.

The couple are now serving second generations.

Wilson relates that "I remember the first wedding we photographed. It was Janice Roberts and Kendis Julian. We have also photographed their children."

With their durability, the Wilsons might well embark on third generations in the future.

Can you put this on the front page? It's a common question around the newspaper, and my answer is always an evasive one.

The last time I promised someone that I would put a story on the front page was on November 22, 1963. I had told a Baptist preacher that I would run a story on a Thanksgiving service on page 1. At the time, I couldn't think of any local story which would be more deserving. Two hours later, history changed course. A picture of John F. Kennedy covered the entire front page of our next edition.

Some people and some events don't get the media attention that others do, even though they may be just as important. It's often a matter of timing. —Wendell Faight, Haskell Free-Press *****

WHO AM I?

I am more powerful than the combined armies of the world. I have destroyed more men than all the wars of the nations.

I am more deadly than bullets; and I have wrecked more homes than the mightiest siege of guns.

I spare no one, and I find my victims among the rich and the poor alike, the young and the old, the strong and the weak. Widows and orphans know me. I loom up to such proportions that I cast my shadow over every field of labor, from the turning of grindstone to the moving of every railroad train.

I massacre thousands upon thousands of wage earners a year.

I lurk in unseen places and do most of my work silently. You are warned against me, but you heed not. I am restless.

I am everywhere—in the house, on the street, in the factory, and at the railroad crossing, and upon the sea.

I bring sickness, degradation and death, and yet few seek to avoid me. I destroy, crush or maim.

I give nothing but take all. I am your worst enemy. I AM CARELESSNESS.

before they were sanctioned." That $18 million was spent sanctioning 18 rural doctors at an average cost of $1 million each.

"This is about to change. No other state has this problem and I have authorized legislation, which is expected to pass in October, which will bring due process back to the system and will eliminate the loss of doctors for our elderly in the rural areas."

Highlights of this legislation include that if a doctor receives notice that sanction is coming up he will have a hearing in 90 days and will still be able to practice medicine until that hearing. There will also be on-site reviews. "Also I will see that the contract with TMF is not renewed if they do not stress education in medical practices and in Medicare paper work," said Boulter.

"The danger comes from turning power over to people who are not qualified," commented Boulter in closing his address on the sanctioning subject.

In other discussion Boulter made a few comments on defense, budget, and increased government spending before presenting a slide show to those gathered. The slides were some which Lt. Col. Oliver North had wanted to present during the Iran-Contra hearing but was not permitted to do so.

There is a related story on Boulter's meeting in Floydada in this week's Hesperian section for those interested.

Fines for lack of liability raised Tuesday

As of Tuesday of this week a first offender who has no liability insurance will be fined $162.50 rather than the $88 charged in the past. This is just one of many fines which was increased as of September 1.

The new increase in fines for a driver with no liability insurance is a 46 percent increase over what drivers have had to pay in fines if they were caught and not in compliance with the liability insurance laws.

A first offense for not having liability insurance is a Class-C misdemeanor. Now all subsequent offenses are Class-B misdemeanors and will be tried in county courts which carries stiffer penalties than a first offense which is handled in justice of the peace courts.

In addition to increased fines, the state now requires that a first time offender must maintain proof of liability insurance for a period of five years, after having been found to have no insurance, or face automatic suspensions of drivers licenses and license plates.

Another portion of the new law provides that an offender will now be charged a $10 dismissal fee when appearing in court to prove that he or she does indeed have liability insurance. Before the new law change there was no charge for proving that one was insured.

Also according to the new law, anyone requesting a defensive driving course must now do so in person. No phone in requests will be accepted. A person may also request defensive driving by written request. These requests must be made on or before the appointed court date. The new law also states that anyone caught going 25 miles per hour or more over the posted speed limit may not take defensive driving.

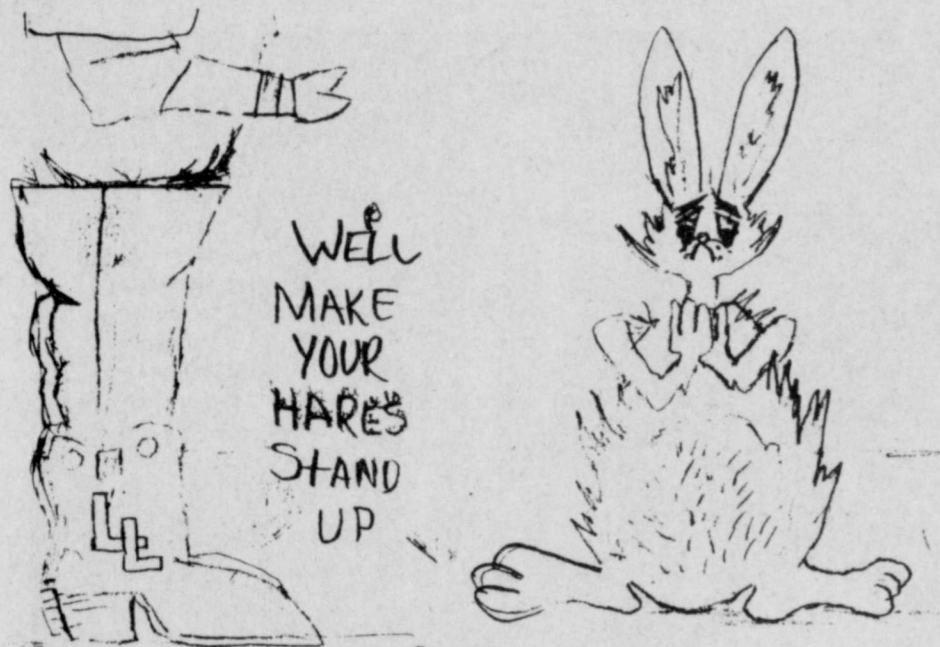

OTHER LAWS IN EFFECT SEPTEMBER 1

In addition to increased costs for violating liability insurance, several other new laws went into effect September 1.

Among these are those which make it illegal to drink and drive, for students to use any form of tobacco products on school campuses and for vehicle sales tax increases from 5 to 6 percent.
