

Candidates address issues at C of C public political forum

People of Floyd County had the chance Tuesday, October 18, to hear the views of those running for county and district political offices. Citizens were also given the opportunity to ask questions of those candidates.

The political forum, held in the Lockney Elementary Cafetorium, was sponsored by the Lockney Chamber of Commerce. Appearing before the public were: Fred Cardinal and Ray Macha, candidates for Floyd County Sheriff; Becky McPherson and Tom West, candidates for District Attorney, 113th district; Warren Chisum and Tom Christian, candidates for State Representative 84th District, and Larry Milner, Republican candidate for 13th U.S. Congress-sional District.

After a brief speech by each candidate, questions from the audience were asked of individual candidates by Clar Schacht of Floyd County Farm Bureau, moderator for the event.

The local race for sheriff started the evening with Sheriff Fred Cardinal, democratic candidate, the first to speak.

Cardinal stated that the sheriff's office got a lot of criticism for prisoners being on the street, out on bond, or parole. "That does not come under our part but under the judicial department and your parole board in Austin."

Cardinal stated he was not "real fond of probation, but it was a law we have to put up with."

Speaking on the expenditures of the sheriff's office, Cardinal said, "The sheriff does not have a whole lot to do with the expenditures. He has a budget to go by. Anytime he needs to use anything in the budget he has to go before the county commissioners and get their O.K."

Cardinal then stated that the sheriff had nothing to do with prisoners getting parole. They (prisoners) were out of his jurisdiction after taking them to the Texas Department of Corrections."

The expansion of the jail was explained by Cardinal who stated that the Texas Jail Standards Commission said they would have to expand the jail or let prisoners go, so the commissioners are remodeling it. Fourteen more bunks have been added which will supply room for 22 prisoners.

Speaking on employees and coverage of the county, Cardinal stated, "Labor laws have messed us up. We used to be able to work the whole county with four officers. Each officer worked a precinct. Now they can only work eight hours and you can't work them overtime because commissioners can't pay overtime. As a result it makes it hard to cover the county like it ought to be covered. So far we've been really lucky. We haven't had a lot of break-ins or many things stolen."

"We provide dispatchers 24 hours a day," said Cardinal, "and we employ four jailers who have to check both floors every hour and log it."

Ray Macha, Republican candidate, spoke next.

"I agree with the sheriff that he does have problems in appropriations of money from the commissioners, and I agree that we do need more money to run the sheriff's office, but I feel that the sheriff's office could be run more efficiently than how it is being run now, I think with some simple changes we could have better coverage of our homes and businesses.

"We need more cooperation between our departments. That is one of the things that is hurting us. It's not all Fred's fault and it is not all the other peoples fault but we have to work this out where we can all get along."

"Fred is not the enemy, I'm not the enemy. It's the criminal," said Macha.

"We need more coverage in the county, we need more parole. We need to place more responsibility in our jailers that we hire. We don't need as many people down at the jail during the day as we have at present. I would shift those deputies out into the street and put emphasis on crime prevention."

"I'm not going to allow trustees to wander around downtown as has been done in the past. I agree with Fred that we have no jurisdiction over people on parole but when they are in jail we do. I feel there has been some lax jail security in the jail. We have been real fortunate that no one has been hurt. "When a trustee is out free the sheriff is liable if that person commits another felony crime or in any way harms anyone. The county is responsible and that can bring on a lawsuit."

Macha closed his speech by saying that he had no personal vendetta against Fred Cardinal. "I don't hate Fred, I disagree with his policies...I like Fred Cardinal and I think he likes me, as a matter of fact he tried to hire me at one time."

Several questions were posed to the candidates and some had to be put aside because of lack of time. Cardinal was asked if it was true that his prisoners had been allowed to answer the radio, phone and run the teletype. Cardinal stated that it was true. When asked if this was illegal, Cardinal stated that he did not know if it was illegal or not, but when he called Huntsville to ask them, they said, "Who do you think runs them here."

Cardinal was also asked if he felt that considering his age and health did he believe he could complete another four year term. He replied that he had just had a physical and that he was in perfect shape. "I haven't been sick in 10 or 15 years, my health is perfect."

Macha was asked if he would cooperate with the media in providing information on crimes in the county. Macha stated that he had no problems in dealing with the press, and would like to write a weekly article informing people of what is going on and what people should be looking out for.

Candidates for the 113th judicial district race for District Attorney, Becky Bybee McPherson and Tom West were next to speak.

McPherson, write in candidate for district attorney, was born and raised in Lockney. She is the daughter of Donnie and Vera Jo Bybee and is married to Steve McPherson. They have two sons, Matt and J.W.

McPherson graduated from Lockney High School in 1975, West Texas State University in 1978, and Texas Tech Law School in 1982. She is licensed to practice law in the state of Texas and in the U.S. District Court.

McPherson said that she is a member of the Texas District and County Attorney Association, the National District Attorney Association, and is on the board of the Rape Crisis Center.

Having been an assistant D.A. in Hale County for four years, McPherson stressed her experience. "I am active in every aspect of that office," said McPherson. I handle paper work, administrative, prosecute juvenile offense, and Department of Human Resources cases. I also handle all stages of the grand jury preparation and present cases to the grand jury. If they are my cases I will try it.

"I follow cases through the appellate courts and have taught classes to law enforcement officers in Hale County.

"But my main responsibility in the office," said McPherson, "is actually prosecuting felony jury trials. I've had the opportunity to prosecute all kinds of felony offenses. I have prosecuted capital murder for which the defendant received the death penalty, murders, injuries to child cases, burglars, aggravated sexual assault, aggravated assault, theft, cattle rustling, involuntary manslaughter and tampering with governmental records."

Trash collection to begin in city

"You may continue to burn your trash in your trash barrels until such time as the new dumpsters are in place and you are notified that you can use them," stated Lockney Mayor Dan Smith.

An agreement has been made with Triple C Waste Services to handle the trash pickup for Lockney. Dumpsters will be furnished and the trash will be hauled to a landfill at Crosbyton. This service will begin about the first of January.

At that time an ordinance will be passed and no more burning of trash will be allowed inside the city limits of Lockney, in the dumpsters or at the dumpground.

The Lockney dumpground will be used for items that cannot be put in the dumpsters. At present the county is digging a pit and the trash now on top of the ground at the dumpground will be pushed into it and covered. New pits will be dug as needed.

Gloyna displays arrowheads

By JaneMarie Wages

(Editor's Note: The following story was written by Texas Tech journalism student JaneMarie Wages, provided to this newspaper by Tech's School of Mass Communications through a grant from the Reader's Digest Foundation.)

There is quite a bit of history inside the Plains Electric Company in Lockney. This little museum is the collection of Lewzetta Gloyna, who has spent her life hunting and digging for Indian relics, as well as helping her husband run the electric company.

Her father was a "rambling, exploring" man who liked to collect arrowheads. Gloyna attributes her interest in Indians to him. Because her mother was a school teacher, Gloyna learned to read at a very early age. She recalls her favorite books and stories were of the Plains Indians.

Gloyna says she was a tomboy, and loved to play with trucks. "My dolls stayed in the bed where they were supposed to be," says Gloyna.

Gloyna was raised in Ford County around the Mesquite trees where many of the Plains Indians lived years ago.

Gloyna is always hunting for something, and she says that she has always been very lucky.

Some of her most prized findings are an Indian Thunderbird, and a mammoth's tooth that her mother-in-law gave her.

Her treasures have come from Colorado, New Mexico, and Arkansas, as well as Texas. One of her favorite spots to hunt is a buffalo kill site near Mackenzie Lake.

Gloyna and her husband like to hunt, fish, work with fossils, and spelunk in caves. She has special interests in archaeology and genealogy and is a member of the amateur archaeological society.

Gloyna's husband made bullets out of wax so his wife could practice marksmanship with her 30/30 in the storeroom of their electric company.

Gloyna has accomplished big things despite her bout with multiple sclerosis. She says her only fear is of spiders.

Gloyna says, "Some people talk about burning the candle at both ends, I'll tell you, I broke my candle in half and burned all four ends at once."

...And by looking at all her arrowheads, she certainly has.

Directory lists hundreds of museums in Texas

Where can you see the 70-foot long skeleton of a Diplodocus and learn about this and other early Texas dinosaurs? Where can you see restored classic automobiles of the 1920s and 1930s, board a reconstructed historic sailing vessel, or visit a living history farm? The answers to these and hundreds of other similar questions are provided in the 1988 Texas Museum Directory, offered free to the public by the Texas Historical Commission.

Texas' museums are both educational and entertaining. They are also popular. A recent survey conducted by the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation shows that visiting museums is one of the highest ranking activities enjoyed by tourists, both from Texas and out of state. The 1988 Texas Museum Directory is a quick reference to museums in 263 Texas cities, many of which feature exhibits on Texas' prehistoric and pioneer history, science and technology, geology and mineralogy, archeology, and folk art. The directory's listings represent the diversity of size, interest, and the multiplicity of museums in every part of the state.

Free copies of the directory are available from Highway Department Tourist Bureaus in the following cities: Amarillo, Anthony, Austin, Denison, Gainesville, Langtry, Laredo, Orange, Texarkana, Valley, Wasom, and Wichita Falls. Limited copies also are available from the THC by writing P.O. Box 12276, Austin, TX 78711.

McPherson stated that her reasons for running for district attorney was she wanted her children to be raised here and she wants to give something back to the community.

"I'm good at what I do," said McPherson. "I've gained experience. I have contacts with all sorts of state and federal agencies, such as the FBI, DPS, and the Texas Rangers. I want to make these resources available to the law enforcement officials in this county."

"Another goal that is very important to me is education. Not only does a prosecutor have to keep herself educated but also keep your law enforcement educated too. I want to educate the public too, because they need to know, when serving as a juror, that when you give a man 10 years he is only going to serve 10 months."

McPherson ended her speech by saying, "I'm a good career prosecutor. I'm asking you to let me bring my expertise to you so we can make a difference, so at night the criminal can be locked up instead of us being locked up in our homes."

Tom West, also a write-in candidate, addressed the audience and began his speech by also outlining his education and experience. West is currently serving as county attorney in Briscoe county. He graduated from Texas Tech in 1967 and the summer of 1969 he graduated from Baylor University School of Law. Since that time he has been engaged in private practice of law. He served on the board of directors of the Texas Trial Lawyers for 10 years and he is one of "80 lawyers in Texas who without medical degree in addition to law degree has been elected to membership of American College of Legal Medicine, due to showing knowledge of medical expertise in trial."

West has also been involved in agriculture in Briscoe County and the exportation of grain sorghum to Mexico.

The main thrust of West's speech was his commitment of strict prosecution against drug dealers and users.

"In 1975 I had the opportunity to represent a criminal defendant and work alongside Percy Foreman," said West. "He told me in defining a prosecutor that every prosecutor had the heart the size of a walnut and that if you cut off his arm he would bleed ice water."

"There is one thing, among others, that will make my ice water turn on, narcotics. It's them against us. I have no use for and totally loathe and despise anyone involved in narcotics. Anyone who is indicted in this district for the sale of narcotics, distribution, manufacturing, or financing of drug trafficking...I can't tell you how long they will go to jail but I can tell them this, that they can save their money on a lawyer to come and negotiate with me. He will find out for a $1.00 phone call from anywhere in the U.S. or the world, that 99 years is all he'll hear from me."

With reference to plea bargaining, West said, "I will not be a party to releasing drug offenders or violent crimes back on the street because of prison overcrowding. The only way I know to combat that is to increase the number of years."

Continuing his attack of drug dealers, West said, "I have no use for the maggots that are parasitic on our society and are sucking the lifeblood of our children."

West pledged if elected that he would use all means at his disposal to enforce the drug laws and prosecute those who are involved in any phase of narcotics. He pledged, "Zero tolerance."

Questions were next asked from the audience, the first being addressed to both candidates. "On cases not finished by Randy Hollums, would he be asked to help or would he be called as a special prosecutor?"

West stated, "I have talked to Hollums and he said there would be no grand jury until after the November election. I've gone over some of the cases that are pending and I see no problem with them. I see no reason to have Hollums' help."

McPherson stated that she had also talked to Hollums. "Any cases pending I will handle myself and will take to trial myself."

The next question, addressed to McPherson, asked her to clarify probation and was she in favor of it?

"Probation is an alternate sentencing," said McPherson. "Someone is given a sentence and instead of serving the sentence in TDC at that time, they are given probation. A district judge sets the terms and conditions of probation. It is not set by our office. It's up to the jury to decide if they want probation. I can't think of a case that I've tried to a jury that I have asked for probation. All the cases I've tried I've asked them to give time in the Texas Department of Correction."

West was then asked if he had ever tried a felony trial. He answered, "Yes."

Both candidates of the 84th legislative district also attended the meeting, and seem to agree on the states problem areas.

Warren Chisum, democratic candidate, spoke first.

A life-long resident of Gray County, Chisum stated, "I've made my living in the oil field most of my life."

He felt that there were several major problems facing the state of Texas, the first being the loss of our tax base in oil and gas severance tax. "In addition to that," said Chisum, "House Bill 72 has made demands upon the local school district and in most cases did not provide funds to meet those demands...it may be that House Bill 72 is the biggest tax increase we have faced."

Chisum also felt that the prison system was a major issue. "The state prison system has not had anything done to them for the past 15 years."

Chisum criticized the present prison system and told the audience in many cases prisoners are pleading guilty while in local custody so they can serve their time and get out rather than spend their time in county jail waiting for trial that would end up sending them to state prisons."

"We've got major problems in our prison system that will be addressed in the next legislature. We will have to build new prisons and provide more beds."

Chisum felt that one solution to prison overcrowding was to concentrate on education so people could make a living and not have to turn to crime.

"Drug and alcohol abuse must also be taught in the school system," said Chisum.

Another problem that Chisum saw was workman's compensation laws. "We have to reform workman's compensation laws. We have to make the business atmosphere attractive in the state of Texas so we can provide new jobs so we can have a new revenue base."

Christian spoke next and stressed his experience in the legislature serving from 1969 to 1971. He felt this would be beneficial to the district since the element of seniority was important to the legislature. Christian stated his previous experience would be important in securing favorable committee assignments which he felt would be important to the district.

Solving drug problems was also a major concern for Christian. He felt if the drug problem could be solved it would cut the cost of law enforcement drastically.

Christian also felt there was a problem in duplication of social services and that efficiencies could be found in this area of government.

On the issue of education, Christian said, "We must keep education on a local level. We cannot afford to have Austin dictate terms of our educational process."

Questions were then asked of these candidates, the first going to Chisum. "How would you reform workman's comp laws?"

"Workman's comp laws have to be reformed by reforming tort reform. We need to get more power to the Industrial Accident Board to settle more claims."

Christian was then asked, "How would you vote on the jail and prison system we have now and would you support building new prisons?"

"The problem we have with our prison system," said Christian, "is it is being run by a federal judge, not by our legislature. It might be a good idea to build one of those prisons right around his home in Tyler. We will have to build more prisons. I'm not sold on the idea of contracting prisoners out but I think that is something that has to be looked at."

Chisum was then asked, "Due to Edgewood vs. Turner lawsuit, what would you do to equalize funds for our school systems?"

"Equalizing funding will be the big issue when we get down there," said Chisum. "The problem we have is that we don't have equal taxation in counties. I prefer a formula that provides equal taxation. The system we now have rewards counties for being poor tax collectors. If they don't collect very much tax they get more state money. We need to change that system. Rural communities take a big licking in equalized funding because we don't get our fair share and one of the things I would intend to do would be, to be sure we get our fair share."

The question, "How do you feel about the career ladder?" was then asked of Christian. He stated, "I feel that it is demoralizing to the education process and it needs a lot of work. There is no outside objective measurements."

Larry Milner, Republican candidate for the 13th Congressional District spoke next. His opponent, Bill Sarpalus did not attend.

Milner stated during his campaigning and meeting people he had found that there were three major areas that people were concerned about.

They were: jobs, national defense and the drug problem.

"We have seen our rural areas depopulated because of the oil crisis and the increasing efficiency of farmers. One farmer can now feed 80 people when 10 years ago he could only feed 40. For this reason we have come up with our rural re-development program which I have been discussing with people. It is designed to keep tax dollars right here in district rather than sending tax dollars to Washington."

Milner stressed his feelings of a strong national defense and pledged to fight to maintain a strong national defense. He also pledged to work toward finding a real solution to the drug problem.

Milner explained his rural re-development program when asked the question, "What chance do you give your initiative to revitalize rural America?"

"My plan is to set up a Rural Re-development Corporation. It would be financed by taxpayers who have the option to send all their tax dollars to Washington or keep part of them right here. The corporation uses the dollars to finance new business and become partners to get them started. The new business can buy out the corporation after it gets started and the corporation can then re-invest that money in another new business."

Milner stated that if someone had a better idea he would buy that but now he was convinced that this would work and he pledged his time and energy to make it work.

The next question of Milner was, "Why are rural hospitals not funded the same as a more populated area?"

"It makes no sense," replied Milner. "I will work very hard to get that changed. One of the major problems is that we are losing our tax base which we need to fund rural health care. Our rural development plan would tie-in directly to this."

"Congressman Boulter and Sen. Phil Gramm are working very hard to get that hospital funding differential changed, and if elected I will too."

Refreshments were served at the end of the evening to those who attended.

Domestic cotton sweater business booms

Cotton was in the forefront as the domestic sweater business cornered attention at the recent Yarn Fair in New York City.

"One of the brightest spots in the domestic revival is the booming cotton sweater business," said Bill Burt, marketing and sales director for Lion Knitting Mill, whose Cleveland-based company is using state-of-the-art electronic knitting machinery in its production. In its report on the Fair, the Daily News Record commented that "Cotton sweaters have become so important to the domestic industry that many executives are sounding a patriotic note when discussing these styles."

Michael Culan, president and CEO of PVH Somerset Co., the private label knitwear division of Phillips-Van

Huesen Corp., is quoted as saying "the cotton yarns for domestic production come from America and American cotton is superior to other countries... (and) the electronic knitting machinery for domestic fancy-cotton programs is perfect for today's market."

THAT'S A LOT OF CONCRETE TO BURY -- The County Commissioners are digging a new pit at the Lockney dumpground to push the concrete, wire, and old tires into that have been accumulating over the years. The Texas

Health Department has mandated that the City of Lockney will clean up the dumpground. Everything has to be packed and buried. Burning at the dumpground will not be allowed after the first of the year. Staff Photo their state association to serve as a representative at the Annual Meeting. At this time, the state delegates will participate in the business meeting and elect a new president and five directors to the American Association Board.

HALLOWEEN

Safety tips

Costumes

*Keep costumes simple. Long and fancy ones could cause children to trip. Costumes should also be fireproof.

FIREPROOFING RECIPE

9 oz. Boric Acid
4 oz. Borax
1 qt. Hot Water

Saturate fabric and allow to dry. Washing will remove fireproofing, but process may be repeated after washing.

*Costumes should be made of white or light-colored material, to be easily seen at night. ReflectORIZED patches or strips can also be added to the costume.

*Regular street shoes should be worn, as opposed to fancy "clown", or "pirate" shoes, ect.

*Props, such as guns or swords, should be made of styrofoam or cardboard.

*If jack-o-lanterns are carried, a flashlight should be inside, instead of a candle.

*At least one person in each group should carry a flashlight.

Masks

*Instead of wearing masks, paint faces with make-up.

*Apply a thin coat of cold cream before applying the make-up (make-up will come off easier).

Treats

*Never eat anything until after you are home, and the treats have been examined.

*Cut and wash fruit before eating.

*Throw away anything unwrapped.

*Check the wrappers of commercial treats for signs of tampering.

*Notify the police if harmful items are found.

Parties

*Older children should attend parties, instead of going trick-or-treating.

*Younger children may enjoy attending a party organized by concerned parents on the area, instead of going trick-or-treating.

*Some game suggestions are; Apple Bob, Spook House, and Costume Contest.

Trick-or-Treat

*A responsible adult, or teen, should accompany each group.

*Try to limit the group size to four or five.

*Trick-or-treating should be for small children only... if the child is too old to be accompanied, he is to old to go trick-or-treating.

*Walk! Do not run while going trick-or-treating.

*Stay in your own neighborhood, and only go to houses which have porch lights turned on.

*Parents should know exactly what route their children are taking.

*Never enter a stranger's house-even if invited.

*Carry trick-or-treating bags that have handles, to keep your arms free.

Parents

*To avoid encouraging children to enter a stranger's house, never invite trick-or-treaters into your own home.

*Give wrapped, homemade treats only to children you know, and wrapped commercial treats to others.

*Be certain that your children are accompanied by an adult or a responsible teenager.

*Know which friends your children will be with.

*Do not leave your home unattended on Halloween Night.

*Leave your porch light on, so children will know it's okay to visit your home.

*Keep your pets inside (house, garage, or shed) on Halloween Night.

-Letters To The Editor-

Editor,

A wonderful thing happened to the city of Lockney a few nights ago. Several churches, Lockney Police Department, and two Lubbock police officers opened the eyes of many citizens to the drug problem in Lockney and Floyd County. Several churches combined their evening services to dedicate the time to allow two Lubbock crime prevention officers from Lubbock police department present a program on crime and drugs. The police department and local pastors put this program together. People were shocked to learn that there were four places on main street in Lockney where drugs or alcohol could be purchased. A bigger shock came when a prominent local citizen publicly confessed to drug use and the selling of drugs in the past. The two police officers drove home the point that drug use and drug trafficking is rampant in every county on the South Plains. The officers stressed a return to traditional values, citizen involvement, and applying pressure on government officials to win the war on crime. Dangerous criminals are establishing themselves in rural America where police officers are few and the ability to traffic in drugs is ideal. What happened in Lockney must happen throughout Floyd county and America. The people must know the seriousness of the crime problem in America; and what must be done to regain control of our prisons, jails, courts and government from liberal do gooders who seem bent on protecting criminals and ignoring crime victims. Floyd county must wake up and realize drugs and crime are not problems related to large cities only. There are two roads America can take at this point in history. One is the easy road. This road requires citizens to do nothing, and ignore all the problems around you caused by crime. It is a road many would like to take because it is the path of least resistance. However this road is bittered with the suffering of the innocent and dead ends in hopelessness, despair, and loss of freedom.

The other road is more difficult for the individual to travel because there is resistance from liberal government, criminals and their friends, officials corrupted by drug money, and the never ending fight for law and order. Unlike the easy road the road does not dead end, and it gets easier to travel the further you go. It leads to freedom and security for everyone but the criminal. Criminals don't want you to take this road. They know it could end their big money and good times. America must take this road. It is the only choice we can make if there is to be a future for our children.

Republican candidate for sheriff

Better Business Bureau's new program helps needs of seniors

The number of scams and marketplace problems experienced by senior consumers is growing at an alarming rate. The Federal Trade Commission estimates that there is a five percent increase per year in the number of such scams. This fact along with the growing number of seniors has prompted the Better Business Bureau of the South Plains to initiate a new Senior Consumer Counseling Program. The new program is made possible through a grant from the Junior League of Lubbock.

The grant has enabled the Bureau to employ a senior consumer project manager to develop and implement the program. The program basically provides three services: public education, individual counseling and investigations of scams. The Junior League is providing volunteers to speak to any and all senior citizen organizations about protecting themselves in the marketplace.

In announcing the program, Bureau Chairman of the Board Robert Clark stated, "The Bureau and the South Plains are tired of seeing our seniors abused in the marketplace and now, thanks to the Junior League, we have a program to address the problem."

Chemigation can give improved application

By Marilyn Brown
TAES Science Writer

Concerns over the environmental impact of chemical pest control have led agricultural researchers to seek new types of chemicals and new application methods that achieve the desired results with lower levels and fewer applications of chemicals.

By nature, such research is continuous; as in other aspects of crop production, there always seems to be room for improvement. One product of this ongoing research is chemigation, the practice of applying chemicals through irrigation water. This system is used by many producers, even while it continues to be refined and improved.

Chemigation saves farmers a trip over the field with pesticide or herbicide and reduces the drift problem of aerial applications. Most current chemigation systems, however, use pivot and linear irrigation, and chemicals applied through them are subject to the lack of water application uniformity. Targeting chemicals where they are needed also may be difficult because nozzles located above the crop canopy are used to apply both soil- and foliage-active chemicals. In addition, the large quantities of water used often cause excessive wash-off, creating the possibility of groundwater pollution if the soil's moisture-holding capacity is exceeded.

James P. Bordovsky, agricultural engineer and William M. Lyle, professor, both with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Lubbock, have devised a multi-function irrigation system (MFIS) that allows application of both water and chemicals with maximum precision. Two independent and adjustable nozzle systems allow flexibility to enable control of various insect pests in various crops.

One set of nozzles provides irrigation water, though chemicals also can be injected through it, and the remaining nozzle system applies chemicals exclusively. The two nozzle systems are completely adjustable for vertical and horizontal use, allowing them to be positioned at any location above, in, or below the crop canopy for maximum chemical effectiveness.

Both nozzle systems may be operated manually or automatically. In the manual mode, for a selected position, the nozzles remain stationary. In the automatic mode, both sets of nozzles are controlled by a programmable controller, that causes the nozzles to oscillate up and down. This allows maximum in-canopy coverage for crops of various sizes, or it can direct the chemical application to a specific vertical section or location, say the base of a leaf for leaf-sucking insects.

The system moves continuously forward to ensure precise water and chemical application. Bordovsky and Lyle have applied for U.S. and foreign patent applications on the MFIS and its propulsion system, which utilizes variable frequency control for its electric motors.

Tests have verified the superiority of in-canopy application and other stationary or manually adjustable in-canopy nozzles systems are being developed and tested with similar results, the scientists say.

To test the system, lithium tracers were used to evaluate chemical coverage of several crops, using in-canopy, over-the canopy, and aerial spraying modes. Tracers were used to evaluate the total concentration of lithium on the plant, the uniformity of distribution, and the uniformity of placement on the crop.

In-canopy concentrations of chemicals were far greater than those of overhead application or aerial application, the experiments showed. Using the insecticide Lorsban™ to control greenbugs, aerial application required the maximum labeled rate to maintain effective control for 2 weeks. Stationary overhead chemigation remained effective at 3, 7, and 24 days following treatment at rates down to 1/4 the maximum. In contrast, rates of 1/16 the maximum achieved 75 percent or greater control throughout the 2-week period using the MFIS.

Bordovsky, Lyle, and their associates are continuing to develop techniques and nozzles that will increase environmental safety through precise chemical targeting to lower insecticide rates and avoid drift, and through lower water volumes to reduce chemical wash-off.

In-canopy chemigation also provides excellent insect control with chemicals that gave no control with overhead chemigation or aerial applications, the scientist says. Future research by Bordovsky, Lyle, and their associates will evaluate biological and other environmentally safe materials that depend upon direct chemical contact with the insect for control.

FLOYD COUNTY GROUP TOURS COTTON INCORPORATED RESEARCH FACILITIES--Included in the picture are Charles and Mollie Huffman, John Lee and JoAnn Carthel, Bill and Anita Bigham, Sterling and Glynn Earle Cummings, Delton and LaNell Stone, and Paul Schacht of

County group tours Cotton Incorporated

Communicating the results of value-added research that has financial benefit for the entire cotton industry is a major function of Cotton Incorporated's service orientation, the president of the producer-funded organization told 365 West Texas producers and ginners on recent tours of CI's research facilities.

"My agenda for this company is relatively straightforward," J. Nicholas Hahn told the group, which brought to five the number of tours from Texas this year. "That is to continue to manage the most successful research and promotion program in all of U.S. agriculture; to expand grower financial support for the organization; and to enhance the competitiveness of cotton flow versus synthetic fibers from the field to retail counter."

Those touring from Floyd County were Charles and Mollie Huffman, John Lee and JoAnn Carthel, Bill and Anita Bigham, Sterling and Gleyann Earle

Cummings, Delton and LaNell Stone and Paul Schacht of Lockney; and Eugene Beedy, Delmas McCormick, Randy Bertrand, Steve Lloyd, Ted Anderson, Tommy Lyles, Ricky Meyers, Jerry Bartlett, Ronnie Hopper and Eddie Smith of Floydada.

The groups were sponsored by Plains Cotton Cooperative Association, Plains Cooperative Oil Mill, Farmers Coop Compress and the Cotton Board, which administers the Cotton Research and Promotion Program. Earlier, the Texas Farm Bureau, Paymaster Oil Company and the Texas Independent Ginners Association sponsored tours. In all, 12 producer-ginners tours with 764 participants have toured Cotton Incorporated's facilities this year.

"Cotton Incorporated does not manufacture, sell or ship anything," Hahn said. "We are a pure service organization. We research, analyze, develop, persuade and promote, then communicate the results."

Hahn cited Texas producers for their contributions in communicating the research results by adopting use of the module builder, High Volume Instrument testing (HVI) and now Engineered Fiber Selection (EFS).

"Cotton Incorporated and Texas A&M University played key roles in promoting the use of the module technology," Hahn said, "and Texas High Plains producers showed the leadership by being the early users of this important development which today is so vital to cotton harvesting across the Cotton Belt. As usual, Texas people took the early risk and made the sacrifices leading to the full commercialization of the module builder technology."

"West Texas producers also saw the inevitability and value of embracing HVI cotton classing. You played the key role in actually demonstrating the usefulness of this technology...and showed the strength of leadership to advance its full commercial use."

Hahn called Engineered Fiber Selection another breakthrough in technology destined to change the future of cotton from field to retail counter. EFS allows textile mill customers to access HVI generated data on fiber quality and interpret these data in terms of bale selection and laydown sequence. The result is a consistently high quality yarn and fabric from minimum fiber inventories with speed and accuracy.

"Texas growers, once again, point the way for all of U.S. cotton by demonstrating the effectiveness of EFS technology in the Littlefield denim plant—a model for the entire industry," Hahn said.

"It's only fitting that the High Plains of Texas would be leading the way once again. The visionary leadership that conceived of Cotton Incorporated came from West Texas as one of our founding fathers was the late Roy Davis of Lubbock. We all know how successful Mr. Roy's dream has become and what a significant impact the program has had on cotton production across the Belt."

"Cotton Incorporated, module builder, HVI testing and classing and the EFS program are but a few examples of cotton industry ideas that have been advanced by Texas cotton leadership."

Drought relief applications being taken

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) offices are now accepting applications for payments under the new drought relief law and will continue to do so through March, 1989.

Interest in the program on the High Plains is developing slowly as most producers await harvest results. But producers with crops that won't pay to harvest, notes Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., would do well to apply for payment now. With an appraisal from the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC) or ASCS, Johnson points out, the producer is allowed to destroy crops now to preserve moisture from the late-season rains and, where boll weevils are present, destroy their food supply.

In that regard, ASCS has recently announced that crops yielding eight percent or less of the farm's program purposes at zero production. Yields above the eight percent level, whether assessed or harvested, will be deducted from the pounds eligible for disaster payment.

The only losses covered by the program are those caused in 1988 by drought, hail, excessive moisture or "related conditions as determined by the Secretary." Loss claims resulting from sand, wind, heat, a freeze or other factors not directly related to drought, hail or excessive moisture will be disallowed, ASCS officials state.

PCG, High Plains legislators and others mounted an all-out push to get relief for 1987 crop hail losses, but the effort failed when Senate conferees refused to accept a House-passed proposal to that effect.

The program offers assistance to qualifying producers at three levels, only two of which are meaningful to cotton producers. The first level, covering losses below 35 percent of program yield, guarantees that producers will not be required to repay any advance deficiency payments that market prices may render unearned when final calculations are made after December 31. There's no doubt about the 6.4-cent cotton advance being earned, but advance payments on wheat and corn are said to be at risk.

A second level of losses, from 35 to 75 percent of expected yield, will qualify for payment at 65 percent of the crop's target price. 49.34 cents per pound on cotton, $1.90 and $2.75 per bushel, respectively, on corn and corn and $3.81 per bushel on wheat.

Eligible losses above 75 percent will be compensated for by payments at 90 percent of target, which comes to 68.31 cents per pound for cotton, $2.64 per bushel on wheat.

A cotton example prepared by PCG was a 500 pound payment yield and assumes actual production, whether harvested or not, at 40 pounds per acre. PCG's calculations show no compensation for the first 35 percent of loss (175 pounds); a payment of 49.34 cents per pound times 40 percent of the loss (200 pounds X .4934 = $98.68); and, since the 40 pounds or 8 percent actual production permits the field to be "zeroed out," a payment of 68.31 cents per pound times the remaining 25 percent (125 pounds X .6831 = $85.39). Total disaster payment thus comes to $184.07 per acre.

There is a "no double-dipping" clause under which a deficiency payment won't be made on any pound earning a disaster payment. But the producer in this instance still would be due a deficiency payment on the 35 percent of losses for which he receives no disaster payment. Using PCG's most recent guess of 20 cents for the total 1988 deficiency payment, this would give the producer additional income of $35 per acre (175 pounds X .20). The total, $219.07, represents a gain of $119.07 over the $100 deficiency payment the producer would have collected without the disaster program.

A producer with FCIC insurance will collect earned benefits in addition to disaster and deficiency payments, except that total receipts can't exceed what he would have made had he grown a normal crop.

One side effect will make the disaster program less attractive to some producers. Any producer collecting a disaster payment for 1988 losses above 35 percent will be required to purchase FCIC insurance on his crop for 1989 unless his 1989 premium is (1) 125 percent or more of the average premium for the country of (2) 25 percent or more of his 1988 disaster payment.

Boom time in the Texas pumpkin patch

The Texas pumpkin crop may be small, but it offers just what you need for Halloween carving, fall decorations or eating.

The word "pumpkin" is derived from the Greek word "pepon" which means "cooked by the sun."

This summer's drought in the mid-west cooked the pumpkin crop a little too much, and both the size and number of pumpkins coming from that part of the country was reduced by half.

All this is good news for the producers in Texas who raise the fall vegetable in irrigated fields. With only about 1500 acres of pumpkins, grown mostly in the south plains area, Texas wasn't exactly a giant in the pumpkin market — until this year.

"This is the height of the harvest and producers are getting good yields and excellent quality pumpkins," said Dr. Roland Roberts, a vegetables specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Lubbock.

"Where in past years the market for Texas pumpkins was primarily within the state, this year they're being purchased by buyers as far east as New York state and in the southern states," he said.

For consumers, the reduced supply of pumpkins means prices may be a little higher and the selection a little smaller.

Choose your pumpkin based on its intended use. The Howden variety are the large pumpkins used mostly for carving.

The miniature Jack B Little and Munchkin variety pumpkins make excellent fall decorations. They work well for party favors, carving contests or painting on jack o'lantern faces.

Pumpkin Pie Tips

If you're a pumpkin pie purist with an urge to make one from scratch, look for a high quality sugar pumpkin.

Roberts said the best pie pumpkins are in the 5 to 8 pound range, very deep orange, firm and heavy. Some brown flecking on the skin is also sign of good quality in these pumpkins.

According to Extension nutrition specialist Dr. Dymple Cooksey, a microwave oven can make fresh pumpkin pie preparation easier. Cut the pie pumpkin in half vertically. Scoop out the seeds and membranes. Place one half, cut side down, in a glass baking dish.

Microwave on high uncovered, 10 to 15 minutes or until tender, rotating the dish once or twice. Repeat cooking the other half. Cool the pumpkin halves until they're easy to handle and scoop out the pulp. Then process the pulp in a blender or food processor until smooth.

Cooksey said both fresh and canned pumpkin are high in vitamin A and low in calories; 50 calories per cup for cooked, fresh pumpkin and 85 calories per cup for canned pumpkin. But that's before you add the sugar, milk, egg and pie crust for the pie.

Lockney Longhorns skin Steers

The Lockney Longhorns defeated the Farwell Steers Friday night, 3-0. The win brings Lockney's district record to 2-1 and tied in a three-way tie for second with Olton and Hart.

The Lockney defense held tough all through the game keeping the Steers scoreless. On the first Farwell possession, an alert Horns defense recovered a fumble at midfield. The Lockney defense held Farwell again on the Steers next drive. Horns Wesley Teeter and Louis Perez stopped the Steers after a 1 yard gain. Lockney's Jorge Bernal stopped Steers Clint Kelley again just short of a first down. On the next play, Teeter broke through the line and sacked the Steer QB for a 1 yard loss. After a successful Farwell first down attempt, Kip Holt, Lockney's free safety stopped the Farwell drive by tipping the ball away from a Steer receiver.

Farwell felt the tough Lockney defense again early in the second quarter. Lockney forced a second Steer fumble and recovered the ball on the Farwell 10 yard line.

Lockney scored on their last drive of the half. Horns began their drive on Farwell's 35 yard line. Horns Michael DeLeon and Louis Luna sat up the score after gaining important yardage. With :40 left on the clock, Horns were deep in Farwell's territory on fourth down and 4. Horns Jorge Bernal got the call and answered it with a successful 3 point field goal. At the half, Lockney 3, Farwell 0.

In the third quarter, Horns Michael DeLeon came out hot and ran over 65 yards for a Horn T.D. Unfortunately, the touchdown was called back on a penalty against Lockney.

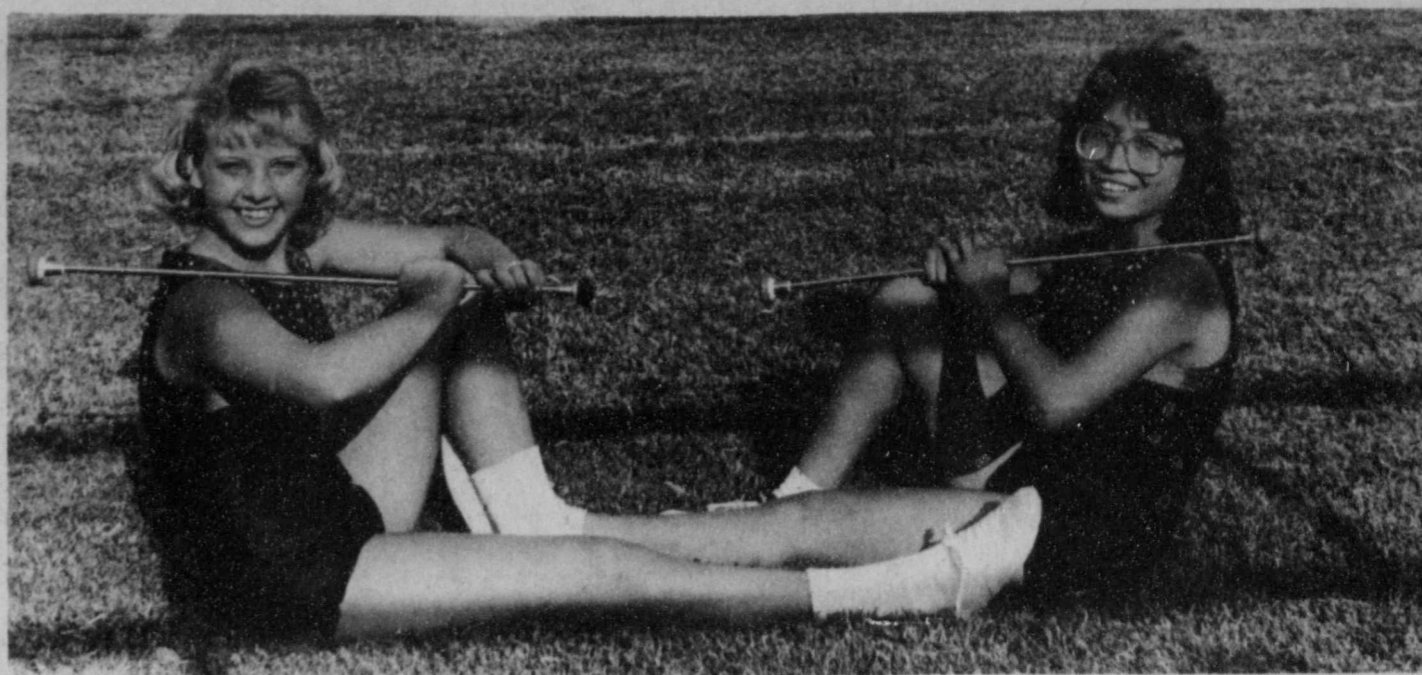

DeLeon was still a ball of fire, stopping the Steers two times in their next drive on the second attempt. DeLeon shut down the Steers on a fourth down and one yard attempt.

Farwell tried to come back late in the fourth quarter but the Lockney defense wanted the win. Farwell began their drive on their own 45 with :55 left in the game. Horns Phillip Glasson broke up a threatening first down pass to force a 2-10. DeLeon came back and stopped a deep pass to the endzone forcing a 3-10.

On third down and 10, Steers gained nine yards on a run. On 4-1, Lockney defense held tough under pressure by forcing an incomplete pass to Steers Darren Haselhoff.

The Horns pull an important victory over Farwell 3-0.

Horns will meet tough Abernathy Friday in their last home game. Abernathy is leading the district with a 3-0 record. Horns enter Friday's game 2-1 with a Horn win Friday night, Horns would be tied for first.

Happenings at Caprock Hospital

By Molly Stringer

We've had a lot of ghosts and goblins around the hospital this week. Dracula even came to visit on Halloween. We appreciate everyone's contribution to making Halloween a happy occasion at the hospital. Tommy Assiter brought pumpkins for all the patients and the nurses station. Everyone has enjoyed them. We thank him for his thoughtfulness.

The front office staff wore costumes on Friday and had a delicious snack table, which we all enjoyed. The Nursing Staff and Respiratory employees dressed up for Halloween on Monday, the 31st. First prize had to go to the respiratory dept. Rhonda Stovall came as a Rodeo clown and Peggy Hill came as Alfalfa of Our Gang. (Rooster tail, freckles and all.)

We have been very busy in the emergency room the past few days. CareLink was here for a transfer this week. We were fortunate to have no Halloween related injuries this year.

The ECA class had skills testing last week. They will go to Lubbock on November 10th for their state written test. The completion of this class should provide us with certified coverage on our ambulance 24 hours a day.

We appreciate the 1956 Study Club's renewed effort in completing the re-decorating project at the hospital.

Anita Page, our Swing Bed Consultant from Methodist Hospital came and gave an inservice to the nursing staff last week. She talked about the psychological aspect of caring for the elderly by the staff and also the response of the family.

St. Anthony's Enterprises is going to discontinue the mobile mammogram service to the area hospitals. We regret losing this service, it has been a tremendous benefit to our community. They will close December 2nd. They will be in Floydada one last time in November. We are scheduling now for Tuesday, November 29th. We can schedule about 25 People. Call the hospital for an appointment. We have all of your past records here and will keep them on file, you may ask for them for reference at any time in the future.

The discontinuation of this service is due to financial losses during the past two and a half years of operation.

Facts from the American Cancer Society:

Did you know—
 Certain hotels and motels in Lubbock will furnish lodging for patients receiving radiation therapy or chemotherapy. This guest lodging is for patients who need to rest for a few hours or over night during their therapy.

Transportation to and from the hospital can be arranged when there is a need. For more information or questions you might have, call the ACS hot line: 1-800-ACS-2345

This group was organized to raise funds to assist in research, educate and aid the general public in detection of cancer in the early stages. The name of the game to surviving cancer is early detection.

Workshop explains new federal economic development program

The details of Federal Enterprise Zones and the application process were outlined for 106 eligible Texas cities, including Floydada, in a workshop held in Austin, conducted by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the Texas Department of Commerce.

A Federal Enterprise Zone, much like a Texas Enterprise Zone, is a geographic area of pervasive poverty, unemployment and general distress. Once designated an Enterprise Zone, community leaders attempt to attract business investment and to create jobs in the area with a variety of incentives.

"Nationwide, Enterprise Zones have helped create thousands of jobs and revitalize communities," stated J. William Lauderback, executive director of the Texas Department of Commerce. "We are glad to help spread the word about the incentives these Federal Enterprise Zones provide."

Federal Enterprise Zones are a major

HUD program. The Secretary of HUD may designate up to 100 zones nationwide, of which one-third must be in rural areas. Many of the Texas cities invited to the workshop were in rural areas.

The application deadline for Federal Enterprise Zone designations will be set by Congress, and is expected to be before the end of the year. Selection will be determined by those cities with the highest rating of distress factors.

The mission of the Texas Department of Commerce is to build and maintain a diverse and dynamic economy for Texas through public and private partnerships. By focusing and leveraging the state's resources, the Texas Department of Commerce stimulates job creation through various programs and activities.
