Lockney Independent School is rated among top ten in Texas

The Lockney school system is rated in the top ten best schools in the state of Texas in academics according to Kent Grusendorf, a state legislator from Arlington. He is on the House of Representatives Public Education Committee.

Grusendorf has perfected a measuring system that measures each school system not just by their TEAMS test scores but on how well each district performs up to expectations, considering its size and the background of its students.

The 10 best school districts in the state, listed with the county the school is located in and their enrollment or population are: Clear Creek, Galveston County, enrollment 19,000; Daingerfield, Morris County, population 3,030; Lone Star, Morris County, population, 2,036; Hallettsville, Lavaca County, population 2,865; Lockney, Floyd County, population 2,334; Mason, Mason County, population 2,153; McAllen, Hidalgo County, population 67,042; Mission, Hidalgo County, population 22,589; Nazareth, Castro County, population 299; Plano, Collin County, population 72,331; and Round Rock, Williamson County, population 11,812.

W.H. Hallmark, superintendent, said that he would give the credit for Lockney being in the top ten to the teachers, school board and the community as a whole. "They are very supportive and very concerned."

"We appreciate the recognition but I think it is wrong to tie funding to performance alone," Hallmark stated.

The study examined 1985, 1986, and 1987 Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills (TEAMS) scores, its student bodies, and money spent per student.

TEAMS scores for each district were compared with predicted scores. Predicted scores were calculated by using regression analysis with the following variables as predictors: number of non-

English speaking students, percent of students in free lunch programs, and dollars spent per student.

TEAMS tests are given each year in Texas schools to students in odd-numbered grades. The ten highest-achieving districts posted TEAMS scores 29 percent above the expected level.

According to the November, 1988 issue of Texas Monthly magazine, "Grusendorf's really startling discovery was that the ten highest achieving districts spent considerably less per pupil than the ten worst - $3,629 for the best and $4,466 for the ten worst. Where did the extra money go? The best districts spent their money in the classrooms and the worst spent theirs on administration."

"Heifer" and fuel taxes repealed

"On the last day of Congress, farmers and ranchers got two big corrections in tax laws," reports Phil Dunavant of Floydada, president of the Floyd County Farm Bureau.

One dealt with the diesel fuel tax and the other, the so-called "heifer tax," pertained to an income tax provision regarding production expenses, he said.

One correction restores a tax exemption on farm-used fuel at the retail level. The so-called "heifer tax" restores pre-productive expensing of livestock.

"Both tax corrections are very important to the farmers and ranchers of this county," Dunavant said.

The Budget Reconciliation Act, passed by Congress last December, changed the collection point for the diesel tax from the retail to the wholesale level, forcing users to pay the tax and then apply for a refund. The change became effective April 1. In most instances, producers would have to wait for an entire year to get a refund.

Both taxes have now been repealed by the Technical Corrections bills passed just before Congress adjourned, the local farm leader said.

The Floyd County Farm Bureau received a letter from Texas Farm Bureau President S.M. True, congratulating local leaders for the two successes.

"Your hard work has paid off, and the Texas Farm Bureau's top legislative priorities have been accomplished for 1988," Mr. True wrote.

Phil Dunavant said the American Farm Bureau Federation credits Texas producers with playing a key role in obtaining final passage of the bills. AFBF reported that hundreds of letters were received by Texas members of Congress, he said.

Abduction attempts continuing in Childress

Editor's Note: The following article was submitted by Lockney Police Chief Leonard Gilroy. It is being reprinted from Briscoe County News, Wednesday, Oct. 26, 1988.

The Childress and Memphis police are again asking for assistance in an ongoing investigation into the attempted abduction of several children in their towns. The saga began last May with the reports of a man in a dark colored car, and/or pickup, attempting to lure children (male and female) ages 3-14 into his vehicle.

The nightmare began again last week at Childress Elementary, as a seven-year old Childress boy made his way home from school. The man told the youth, "Your sister has been hurt...come with me."

The second incident occurred shortly before 7 p.m., on Wednesday, again near the elementary campus, involving a seven-year old girl at play. A man fitting the same physical description drove up and told her "I've got some candy for you...I'll buy you a new bicycle and I'll take you to the park every time you want to go, if you'll come get in my car."

Police responded within two minutes, but were unable to locate the man or the vehicle.

The description is the same as the last summer reports. Male; age and nationality unknown, dark hair, dark mustache, short beard and light colored eyebrows. Vehicle: small, dark color, damage to the front portion and a broken right tail light. A dark pickup was reported in the summer offenses also.

According to Police Chief Jim Trulove, the suspect may not live in Childress, by there being two months time lapse in attempts. He also noted that in July, in addition to trying to talk to the children, the man has taken pictures of the children and had tried to obtain information about different children by questioning by phone. A late report of yet another incident occurred last Friday at 3:15 p.m. at the Church of Christ parking lot in Childress, near the elementary school. Childress police and school officials are urging parents to be extremely careful in watching their children, and not to take any chances. "We can't stress enough the danger of the situation. We aren't blowing it out of proportion," states the Childress Police Chief.

A seven-year old Stamford girl has been missing since September 2, 1988. She had walked one block from her home to a convenience store to buy a soft drink. Posters of the child and a suspect have been circulated.

The recent instances bring the total to about nine having been reported to the department.

"In some cases he has asked children if they want candy. Other times he has asked them about their parents...whether they are at home. He talks to children from the vehicle and it doesn't matter if they are playing in a yard or behind a fence," officer Billy Blacksher told The Index in July.

Officers have been patrolling the elementary campus since school began last month and school officials are being requested by the department to help patrol the area as well. Childress County Sheriff's Office as well as Department of Public Safety and surrounding law enforcement agencies have been notified of the attempts and are "on the look out for the suspect and the vehicle."

The police department currently has no connection with the telephone inquiries made at the beginning of this school term by an unknown person, who said she was with Childress County School Census and the attempted abductions. However, parents are still advised NOT to give out information over the phone about their children regardless of their ages.

Parents are warned to be cautious and report any suspicious activity. Anyone with any type of information should contact Childress Police Department

Chief Gilroy requests that anyone with information please call the Lockney police or sheriff's office at 652-2416.

Patrol, not parole

A dropped "t" in the word "patrol" caused red faces in this office last week, as well as in the office of a candidate for sheriff of Floyd County. During his presentation to a candidate's forum held in Lockney on October 18, candidate Ray Macha said he believed "we need more coverage of the county, we need more patrol. We need to place more responsibility in our jailers that we hire. We don't need as many people down at the jail during the day as we have at present..." During the process of production, the "t" was dropped, changing the word to "parole", rather than "patrol." Mr. Macha stated to The Hesperian that with a few exceptions he is not in favor of parole or early release. We regret the error on our part and apologize to Mr. Macha and his supporters.

Lockney Care Center NOT planning day care

An ad was mistakenly run in last week's paper which stated that the Lockney Care Center was interested in opening a Day Care Center. The Lockney Care Center is NOT interested in opening a Day Care Center. We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused the Care Center.

Lockney PTA plans meeting

The Lockney P.T.A. will hold their November meeting on Monday, November 7 at 7:00 p.m. in the Elementary Cafeteria.

The Lubbock Police Departments Crime Prevention Division will give a Drug Abuse Seminar to the adults. This will be the same program and speakers as spoke at the Methodist Church on Sunday, October 16.

There will be a special program on drugs which will be supervised by adults for the children who are present.

Wine grapes thrive near Lockney

Phil Green of Lockney is a part of a fledgling industry in Texas. Green has five acres of white reisling grapes and this is his second year of harvest.

Grape growing in Texas is a new industry and could be on the verge of being a world renowned industry. According to Green, "This area is the same latitude as the Napa Valley in California and the grape growing areas of Italy and the weather is comparable."

Green said that his reislings are a late growing variety. They mature about two weeks later than most varieties and make a slightly sweeter wine.

Green's vinyard, located west of Lockney, was planted in 1985 and this is the second year the grapes have been harvested. To get a good deep root system any grapes that grow on the vines the first couple of years are snipped off. Grapes are cut off by hand, boxed and shipped to the Mesina Hall Vinery at Bryan, Texas. This winery is known for their white wine that is slightly sweeter than white wines processed at other locations.

According to Green, "In a good year these grapes will produce three to five tons consistently. The wet weather we had in June and July was more rain than they needed. Two thirds of the crop was ruined and left on the vines."

"White reislings are a winter hardy variety for this area. A few varieties that have been planted have not withstood the winters. If we have cool damp weather in the fall the vines tend to take a second growth and it takes the sap longer to go down and an early freeze will kill them" stated Green.

According to Dr. Bill Lipe of the Texas Agricultural Station at Lubbock this area offers near perfect conditions for high-quality wine grapes.

The more than 3,000 foot elevation provides cool nights to offset the hot days. The ever present winds and low humidity keep the vines free from the potential of fungus.

Diseases that affect grapes in Texas, such as cotton root rot and Pierce's disease, are unknown on the South Plains.

Deep sandy soil encourage deep-reaching root systems which give vines the ability to adjust to periods lacking in moisture. Because normal annual rainfall of eighteen inches provides most of the moisture needed to grow grapes, growers usually need only irrigate once a year at bud break.

"If we could do away with the rainfall we nearly always get at harvest we could have nearly perfect weather for grapes," said Lipe.

Grapes are proving to be good for the South Plains. Cotton farmers are finding that wine grapes are a high-value supplemental cash crop. Another benefit from grape growing is the conservation of water. Wine grapes require only two to three inches of irrigation per acre annually.

According to Green the most expensive part of starting his vinyard was the steel posts to support the wire the grapes grow on.

A vinyard is one of the most labor intense crops raised. It takes skilled hand labor to do the pruning and picking. "Our vinyard is a family affair with all of us pitching in to do the work," said Green

IT'S IMPORTANT TO Vote

VOTE
November 8
Elect
RAY MACHA
Sheriff of Floyd County

On October 18th, in Lockney at a "Meet the Candidate" political forum, sheriff Fred Cardinal admitted that he had allowed jail prisoners to answer the telephone, operate police radio, and teletype. He further stated he did not know if it was an illegal practice or not, (after 12 years as sheriff?), but he had called the Texas Department of Corrections about allowing jail inmates to perform such duties. He stated that he was told, "Who do you think answers them here?". A call to the data office at Huntsville contacted Darlene Williams, and she stated, "No way. We do not allow prisoners to have access to the teletype or radios. If someone told your sheriff that, I would like to know who it was."

A call to the Crime Information Bureau in Austin where a David Gavin was contacted revealed this information: Mr. Gavin stated that National Crime Information Center policy Part 10 Sec. 2 - VII Letter C.#2 states that, "The agencies having terminals with access to criminal histories must have operators screened and restrict access to the terminals to a minimum number of authorized employees." He further stated that he had never heard of prisoners being used in such a capacity. Common sense should dictate that no unqualified person, much less a jail inmate, should be allowed to operate in such a critical position. Any rookie police officer will tell you that a police dispatcher is the first and most vital link between a crime victim and the police officer. A well trained dispatcher will get the pertinent information the officer needs to properly respond. The right information and response can save a life or capture a criminal. A lack of good information can have disastrous consequences.

We cannot have burglars, drug dealers, etc. compromising the safety of our citizens and police officers by being allowed to be anywhere in a position to take and dispatch emergency calls. To trust criminals with access to information about who has gone on vacation or to trust them with confidential crime line calls is outrageous. Let me give you just one of many documented examples: A citizen of Floydada tried to contact Chief James Hale to relay information about a possible drug deal taking place near the high school. The "dispatcher" he spoke to stated he would not relay the message to Chief James Hale until he got the callers name, address and phone number, etc. So he finally gave this information, but no police showed to apprehend the criminals. When Chief Hale was contacted later by this person as to why no one showed up, he discovered that Chief Hale had not received the message. A person convicted and serving time for drug charges was the "dispatcher" who took the call and failed to contact any law enforcement official. This is just one of the sheriffs policies that is hampering law enforcement in Floyd County. Perhaps now some of you can now see why many police officers and citizens have criticized some of Sheriff Fred Cardinal's policies.

This November 8th the citizens of Floyd County can put an end to such policies, by voting for Ray Macha for Sheriff. He will make the necessary changes that will benefit everyone but the criminal.

Lockney Care Center News

By Dianne Galvan

Residents, staff and community members enjoyed their enchilada dinner on Friday night. We are all grateful to our dietary staff for working so hard to make this event a success. Proceeds will be going to the annual Alzheimers fund.

Celebrating birthdays this week are Bessie Jackson and Henry Merrell. Bessie is a long time Lockney resident having come here in 1946 with her late husband, Joe, and their son Kenneth. Her oldest son, David, was already making his home here at the time. Mrs. Jackson has been a homemaker, a nurses aide and a teachers aide. She continues to remain active by helping out in the dining room, crocheting, helping other residents, and she is also known as the best popcorn popper in the West.

Henry Merrell was born and raised in the Flomot area. He has worked as a farmer/rancher all of his life. His favorite pastime is being outdoors and chatting with others. Happy Birthday Henry and Bessie!

We wish to thank May Pearl Burns for the flower vases that were given to us and Yvonne Steele and the Carhels for the pumpkins that we have enjoyed. All of the residents were delighted to see the little Brownie troops that came to see us in their array of Halloween costumes and as a special treat they had a visit from little Eddie Lee Fortenberry a.k.a. "The Great Pumpkin." He passed out cute little pumpkins to all. Thank you, Eddie Lee!

Ward Rattan had a special group of visitors this week. From Longview and Gilmore, Texas, were Jerry Landford, Bud Hensoc and Moody Daucus. These fellows came down to the Rattan ranch area to do a little quail hunting and made their first stop here to see Ward.

We wish to express our heartfelt sympathies to the families and friends of Mr. Esker Pyle in their recent loss. Mr. Pyle was very dear to all of us and will be deeply missed.

Sixty-two attend Stennett cousins reunion in Cisco

The Stennett cousins met Saturday, Oct. 15, in the meeting room at the White Elephant Motel in Cisco for their first reunion. It had been 30 to 50 years since many had seen each other. The day was enjoyed by all with a lot of talking and reminiscing. Plans were made for another in five years. The noon meal was catered by Oscar's Barbecue.

Sixty-two were present for the occasion. Honor guests were two of the three remaining parents of the cousins. SHERIFF, FLOYD COUNTY
FLOYDADA, TEXAS

To the Voters of Floyd County:

It has taken every ounce of self-restraint within me to keep true to the campaign promise I made when I announced my bid for re-election last February—that of conducting a clean race, free of mud-slinging.

As I sit here in my mud-covered office, the temptation to break this promise and respond in a like fashion is very great. The obviously coordinated attacks conducted on my opponent's behalf by the city police departments of Floydada and Lockney have been based on grossly distorted half-truths if not outright prevarications.

Many of my friends have encouraged me to "take the high road" and not dignify these slanders with a response, while many others have insisted that I should counter each charge point by point. After much soul-searching, I have concluded that in a county the size of ours, facts have a way of becoming known as they actually are—not just as someone might like to misinterpret them. I choose to put my faith and trust in an informed electorate who will have sense enough to "smell the garbage" without any assistance from me.

I don't feel compelled to defend my character because too many of you already know it first hand. My interests have always been for the betterment of Floyd County, as so many of you have seen through working with me on countless community projects and civic organizations through the years.

I have committed eighteen years of my life to law enforcement in Floyd County. During such a period of service, situations invariably arise that don't fit rulebooks or proscribed procedures, when budgets don't allow you to do what should be done, when state agencies are incapable of providing adequate back-up. Nonetheless I proudly stand behind all the decisions I've made and the actions I've taken while serving as a deputy and as your sheriff.

All I ask is that you look beyond the allegations that have been issued so freely—and perhaps ask what those involved individuals hope to gain. My desire is to serve you four more years as Sheriff of Floyd County—to continue directing fair, equal and impartial enforcement of all laws. I appreciate all the words of encouragement and support you have given me, and, one more time, I ask for your vote.

Re-elect a Good, Honest Sheriff.

-Letter To The Editor-

Dear Mr. Hallmark:
Please accept our thanks and appreciation for the opportunity to appraise teachers in your school.

We have been in a number of schools around the state and you truly have one of the best schools we have been in. You have some of the best teachers we have observed.

We are impressed with your splendid organization and the school administration. We have seen none better. Your instructional program is sound and up to date by the most modern and successful standards. Your buildings are in good repair, very clean and efficiently used. This certainly indicates a great amount of pride and care by the staff, the school board and community. Your tax dollars are being well spent.

children. You are truly professional people.

You should be proud of your school because the good stable schools and communities are fewer and fewer. Our sincere thanks for having us in your school. It was a pleasure.

Sincerely yours,
W.L. Willingham

(Editor's note: Nine former teachers and principals were on the appraisal team. They came from Pampa, Vernon, Stanton, Seagraves, Plainview and Patton Springs.)

The discipline in your school is outstanding. The children appear to be happy, well mannered and like to go here. They are well kept and cared for. There is a reason for this—the people in this school care and are doing a great job to educate and direct the affairs of these

Nugent cautions gas consumers to check winter heating systems

Noting "accidents go up as the thermometer goes down," utility companies are reminding homeowners and businesses across the state to have their gas furnaces and heating systems checked before cold winter weather reaches Texas.

Every year we see an increase in the number of accidents involving natural gas as cold weather grips the state. A simple check for leaks or other problems now can prevent tragedy later as furnaces are fired up for the heating season.

Explosions, fires, leaks, or other incidents involving natural gas in homes or businesses have been reported through the end of September this year. The accidents have claimed five lives and injured 12 others.

The majority of these tragedies occurred during the first four months of the year - the prime heating season.

TWO THINGS TEXANS DON'T LIKE ARE BAD HIGHWAYS AND BROKEN PROMISES.

The money we send to Washington every time we fill up our cars comes back to Texas. The government promises that this money will be spent to build, repair and maintain our highways.

Diverting those Federal Highway Trust dollars to some other purpose could devastate our highway system for years to come.

- It would halt vital road construction;
- Cancel needed safety improvement;
- End repairs to roads and bridges.

Texans can stop this threat by voting for Proposition One which makes certain that highway dollars are spent on highways. Let's keep the promise to Texans.

On Election Day look at the bottom of your ballot and find Proposition One, the Highway Amendment. Proposition One continues the Texas plan for good jobs, economic growth and safe roads without raising taxes and most importantly . . . keeps your family safe.

A lot is riding on the promise of good Texas roads.

Keep highway money for highways and the jobs they create. Proposition One is endorsed by the Texas Highway Commissioners, local and state-wide officials of both political parties, and hundreds of civic groups because they know that building good roads keeps Texas moving.

Social Security News

By Terry J. Clements

Social Security benefits can be paid to many survivors of workers who die after having worked long enough in work covered by Social Security.

These survivors include the worker's unmarried children under 18, under 19 if a full-time high school student or over 18 if disabled before reaching 22; a parent caring for a child under 16 or disabled who gets benefits; a widow or widower 60 or older, or 50 or older if severely disabled; and dependent parents 62 or older.

In addition; a surviving divorced wife or husband can generally get the same benefits as a widow or widower if the marriage to the worker lasted 10 years or more.

A lump-sum payment of $255 can be made to the worker's eligible widow or widower, or, if none, to the worker's child entitled to benefits.

It is important for survivors to apply for benefits as soon as possible after the worker's death. This is especially important for widows and widowers under 65 because benefits cannot generally be paid before the month of application.

When applying, survivors should have their own and the worker's Social Security cards or a record of the numbers, birth certificates for any eligible children, marriage certificate, proof of the worker's death, proof of age for the widow or widowers, and Form W-2 or self-employment tax return for the past year. Parents 62 or older will need to show they were dependent on the worker for their support.

Cocaine used by 22 million

Cocaine has been used by more than 22 million Americans, and 6 million are estimated to be addicts, according to the September issue of Texas Medicine. This marks a 400% increase in use of cocaine from 1972 to 1982. Because cocaine is now considered perhaps more addictive than heroin, the medical community has found that AIDS is a hazard for those who abuse the drug intravenously.

In the 1970s, there still was a question about the addictive qualities of cocaine, according to author K.J. Krajewski, MD, Assistant Professor and Director of Undergraduate Education, Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences, The University of Texas Medical School, Houston. As of 1987, several disorders had been associated with cocaine abuse including dependence, intoxication, withdrawal, and delirium, states the article in the official journal of the Texas Medical Association.

"The staggering growth of cocaine abuse also has implications in the AIDS epidemic," writes Dr. Krajewski. This is because drug abusers are the second most commonly affected by AIDS and intravenous drug abuse taxes the immune system, he adds.

"A number of obstetrical and gynecological conditions have been associated with cocaine abuse," according to the article. These include spontaneous abortion, premature labor, and menstrual irregularities. Also significant is that cocaine abuse among women is approaching that of men. This pattern is different than of other drugs that are abused, explains Dr. Krajewski.

The article concludes that the popularity of cocaine use and associated medical problems has led more persons to seek medical treatment, placing significant demands on the health care system.

FmHa urges borrowers to check on insurance needs on 1989 crops

Farmers who plan to put in winter crops with the Farmers Home Administration emergency loans based on this year's drought should take steps immediately to see if they need crop insurance for 1989 crops, according to J. Lynn Futch, FmHa State Director for Texas.

The Disaster Assistance Act of 1988 requires any farmer with a production loss exceeding 65 percent of normal to agree to purchase insurance for 1989 crops, with some exceptions, as a condition for obtaining an FmHa emergency loan to help cover 1988 losses, Futch said.

Exceptions to the insurance requirement include cases where insurance is not available and where premium costs would impose an undue financial hardship as determined by the FmHa county committee.

Resolutions committee holds meeting in Waco

The Texas Farm Bureau Resolutions Committee, consisting of 41 farmers and ranchers from across the state, will meet in Waco Nov. 7-9 to compile state and national policy recommendations which voting delegates will consider Dec. 4-7 at the 55th TFB annual meeting in Corpus Christi.

Resolutions pertaining to state matters approved by voting farmers and ranchers in Corpus Christi will become state policy for the general farm organization during 1989.

Adopted resolutions pertaining to national policy will be forwarded to the American Farm Bureau annual meeting Jan. 8-12 in San Antonio.

GINNERS DISCUSS RESEARCH—The importance of integrating research and promotion to keep cotton products moving through the marketplace was brought into sharper focus for members of the Texas Independent Ginners Association (TIGIA) during a recent tour of Cotton Incorporated's research facilities in Raleigh, NC. Discussing decorative fabric developments are (from left) Jody and Jackie James of Floydada and Jami and Jim Kemp of Lockney. A tour of the White Oak Plant of Cone Mills Corporation completed the trip, sponsored by TIGA and the Cotton Board, which administers the producer-funded Cotton Research and Promotion Program conducted by Cotton Incorporated. Supak concerned with grade and yield

Over 95 percent of another big, quality High Plains cotton crop remained in the field as of October 28, prompting Dr. James Supak to advise timely harvest to preserve its value.

Supak, Area Cotton Agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock, is concerned about both yield and quality losses. Cotton fiber reaches its peak weight and top quality on the day it's ready for harvest, he says, "and it's all down hill from there."

Uncommonly warm and dry weather in the last three weeks of October have added an estimated 10 percent to the area's potential output, crop observers say. That brings the more pessimistic estimate for the 25 million bales. And a few unbridled optimists have raised their sights to 2.8 and even 2.9 million bales.

What may prove to be more reasoned estimates, however, lean toward the lower end of the range. Classing offices at Lubbock and Lamesa, where at least 95 percent of the area crop is classed, are projecting combined receipts of 2,400,000 running bales. That's 85,000 bales below classings last year when the 25 counties tallied 2,668,550 net weight bales. Lamesa projects 750,000 bales for this year, 85,000 more than in 1987, while Lubbock looks for 1,650,000 a drop of 170,000 bales.

Qualitywise, Lubbock's first 11,000 bales classed 93 percent white, 89 percent in the base micronaire range and 69 percent with strength of 24 grams per tex or higher. Early classings at the Lamesa office tell a similar story, except for a disappointing and unexplained 24 percent outside the 3.5 to 4.9 micronaire grouping. Supak suggests that producers would be smart to consider use of harvest-aid chemicals to prepare the crop for early harvest as opposed to waiting for a frost or freeze. He calls attention to research showing a weight loss of about one percent per week for each week loss of about one percent per week for each week of field weathering, but says that is only part of the story.

More comprehensive studies, he points out, show a total average drop in value of about $5 per bale per week, including the loss of weight, grade, micronaire and the normal weakening of market prices as the harvest progresses.

"And," he adds, "there's always that possibility of hail or other bad weather that can cause severe, even total losses."

Goal directed management is key to success

Goal-directed management can be a key to success in virtually any type of business.

This opinion was expressed by Dr. Paul Gessaman, an agricultural economist with the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service during the International Ranchers Roundup (IRR) in San Antonio last week.

"Goals provide direction for management decisions," Gessaman told several hundred people assembled for IRR.

He said goals serve to plot future conditions and outcomes that individuals and families want to attain.

"Goal-directed management requires periodic identification of goals, priority setting, selection of suitable enterprises and activities, an appropriate resource base and management that supports goal attainment," Gessaman said.

He said that this type of management can apply to virtually any business but functions quite successfully for ranch operations.

Gessaman said that ranch management goals can range from identifying the basics of life and work to those specific to each family's situation and work arrangements.

"Recent experience indicates that, given an opportunity to do so, many families can and will identify goals and use goal-directed management strategies," Gessaman said.

Another speaker, Dr. Tom Troxel of Uvalde, livestock specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, discussed "How Many Is Too Many?" concerning the number of animal production units a ranch should support.

Troxel, a coordinator for IRR, said a computerized method has been developed to provide a rancher with guidelines for the number of animal units a ranch can graze.

"This computer program provides assistance in determining the entire beef cattle herd composition. It also has been completed for sheep (ewe/lamb) and angora goats (does/kids)," Troxel said.

He said the two most important factors that determine the herd composition are the size of the animals by live weight and the reproductive and culling rates of the animals.

Troxel said that ranchers, including those experienced and others new to the game, probably will "always try to balance forage demand with forage supply."

This question of balance affects the success of a rancher in both immediate and future projects and planning, Troxel said.

"The rancher who can better judge forage supply and demand while keeping this forage relationship problem in the right sequence will have the most chance for success," Troxel said.

Individuals desiring more information about the computer software programs may want to contact Troxel at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Uvalde.

Cotton disposable diapers coming

Everybody knows that disposable diapers are made of cotton, right? Wrong. Currently available disposable diapers contain wood fiber for the absorbent fluff next to baby's skin and non-biodegradable polyethylene as the outside covering. With baby boomers—avid customers of natural products—in mind, Cotton Incorporated has developed a new prototype diaper that has an all-cotton filling and covering, contains no plastic and rubber pants aren't necessary. The diaper is also biodegradable, nonallergenic and absorbent, but doesn't retain heat. The new, nonwoven diaper will premier at the Association of Nonwoven Fabrics Industry trade show later this month in Baltimore. Cotton Incorporated adds that all-cotton fillings could be available within a few months, but an all-cotton diaper will take a few years. The nonwovens industry holds great promise for U.S. cotton. It has been estimated that if one ounce of cotton were placed in every disposable diaper, more than 1 million additional bales of the fiber would be consumed each year.

Module builder grows in importance

Modules may look like nothing but big, white bread loaves, but to many growers they are beginning to look like a sizable savings and convenience to their cotton operation.

The module builder is currently the primary method of assembly in Arizona, California and Texas. And use of this type of storage is growing throughout the Mid-South and Southeast.

"Most cotton growers are familiar with the modular system of storing and handling seed cotton," says Dr. William Lalor, senior director of agricultural research at Cotton Incorporated. "However not everyone is aware of all its potential advantages. And some growers think that modules are just for larger growers, which is not necessarily true."

According to Lalor, growers of approximately 700 bales and up can afford to own a module builder of their own, while smaller growers should investigate ways of sharing the use of module builders.

"The module builder gives growers the opportunity to harvest when the crop is ready, thereby avoiding having to harvest the crop in a rush when the gin is ready to take it," says Lalor. "This is real insurance against bad weather."

Modules also offer growers real transportation savings because approximately 12-14 bales can be hauled in one trip with a module. The same amount of cotton might require four trips with a trailer.

However, Lalor cautions that if module storage systems are used, they must be used properly and the cotton must be harvested dry and kept dry.

He adds that it behooves every grower that uses the modular system of storage to have a way of measuring seed cotton moisture content.

"We advise every grower using this system to get a good moisture meter and learn to use it properly," says Lalor. "The temperature of the module must also be monitored. The minimum requirement is for the temperature at several places in the module to be measured daily until the grower is certain that the module has gotten over its initial heating period and is beginning to cool down."

Lalor warns growers to never allow more than a 20 degree temperature rise during the heating period and to gin hot modules immediately.

According to Lalor, it's one thing to harvest cotton dry and put it into the module dry, but it's another to keep it

The Lockney Longhorns met a tough match Friday night against the District leaders the Abernathy Antelopes. The Lopes won 28-0.

The Horns' defense came out tough on Abernathy's first drive. Horns Wesley Teeter stopped the Lopes on third and six to force an Abernathy punt. Teeter was a key factor in stopping the Lopes next drive. On second down and 11, Teeter forced Scott Attaway back for a loss of three yards. Lockney's Michael DeLeon broke up a pass on the next play to force a punt.

Russell Miller of Abernathy scored on an eight yard run on their next drive to end the first quarter 7-0.

Abernathy scored on their first drive of the second quarter. Steve Peoples scored from the five and Abel Barrera

7th Shorthorns shut out Abernathy

The 7th grade Shorthorns beat Abernathy 20-0 Thursday to keep their undefeated record alive.

David Luna scored the first of his two touchdowns in the first quarter. Shorthorn Oscar Palomin set up the next touchdown by intercepting an Abernathy pass. David Luna scored again for Lockney to bring the score to 12-0 Lockney.

Juan Ceja scored the last Shorthorn touchdown and also scored the two-point conversion. The final score was 20-0, Shorthorns.

The Shorthorns will take on Olton here Thursday in the last game of the season.

JV defeated by Antelopes 14-0

The Lockney Junior Varsity played the Abernathy Antelopes Thursday but were defeated 14-0.
