

LISD board accepts bids on sale of two Lockney properties

The Lockney Independent School Board met Thursday, Nov. 10, for their regular meeting. Present were board members, Dr. Paul Glasson, Lisa Mosley, Jim Bob Martin, Dickie Lambert, D.K. Jackson and W.H. Hallmark, superintendent of Lockney schools.

A sealed bid in the amount of $15,000 was accepted from Jim Doucette of CableVision of Texas for the purchase of the old bank building, Lot 10, Block 3, Lockney. No other bids were received for the property. This building has been used as a storage building for the school system for the past few years. A new storage facility will be built using the proceeds from the sale of the bank building.

Two sealed bids were received on Lots 17 and 18, Block G of the N.B. Davis addition. Elizabeth Guerrero bid $700 and Abelino Luna bid $1,000.

The school board accepted the bid from Luna with the understanding that it will also have to be accepted by the City Council and Floyd County as they are partial owners of the lots.

A textbook committee was appointed to review new textbooks before they are accepted into the school curriculum. Appointed to the committee are Tonda Jolly, Peggy Hallmark, Zane Polson, Pam Fulton, Kay Williams, Jim Clark, Ethelyn Vernon, Robin Bowden, Zeldia Ellison, Amy Brice, Felicia Castro, Jamie Moerbe, Kathy Kellison and Amy Thornton. James Poole, high school principal, is the textbook coordinator.

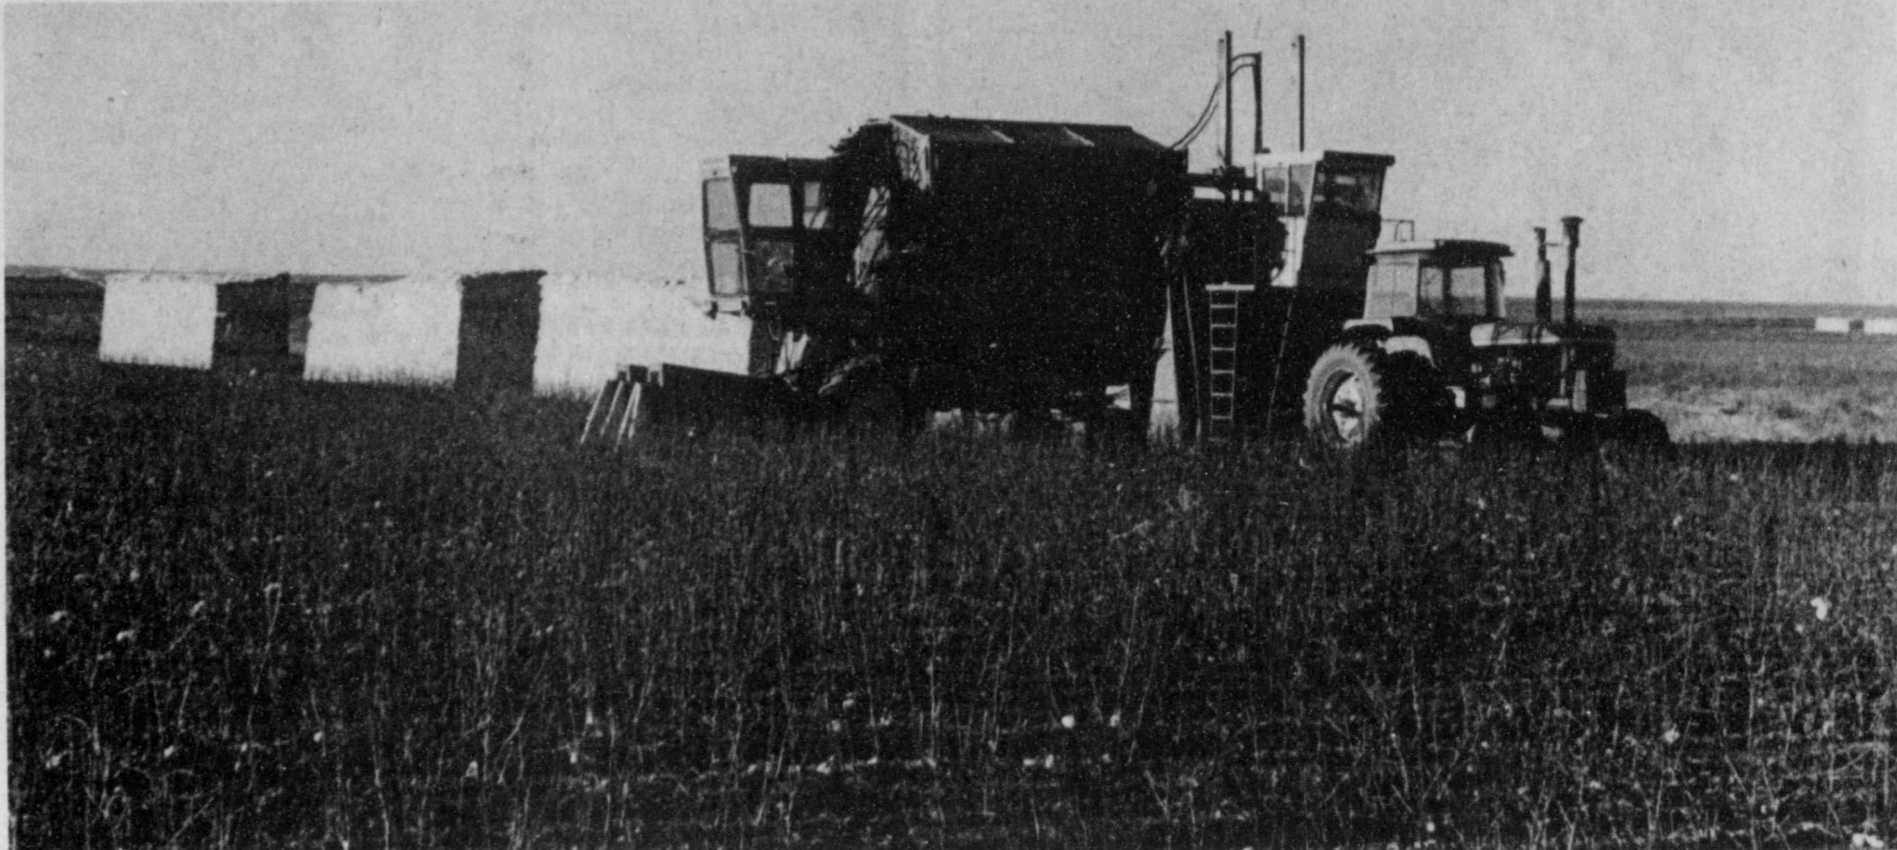

Dennis Scott, representing the Honeywell Corporation, gave a presentation on the maintenance of the heating and cooling systems of Lockney elementary and high school buildings. He also gave a report on the condition of the heating and cooling systems in the schools from a survey he had done previously.

Charlotte Mitchell, counselor for the Lockney schools, gave a report on the various gifted and talented programs that are available for the potentially gifted and talented students. After some discussion the board voted to hold a two week program this summer for those students who qualify. More discussion was held on other gifted and talented programs and it was decided to do some further study into the school system at a future date.

Instructional classes on a new phonics program was taught Saturday, Nov. 12, by Joyce Evans, elementary school principal. This program, entitled "Sing, Spell, Read and Write," will be adapted into the phonics program now being taught at elementary school. The board and teachers will continue to study ways to better incorporate it into the regular school curriculum.

The board members approved a school calendar change. The date of spring break was changed to March 20-24 to coincide with the days that the colleges are out. Students and school personnel will be dismissed at 2:30 Friday, March 17, and classes will resume on Monday, March 27.

COTTON STRIPPING IN FLOYD COUNTY IS WELL UNDERWAY-- Cotton strippers are running in fields all over the county. Cotton modules are lining the turnrows waiting to be picked up by the module trucks and transported to the gins for ginning. There are cotton trailers on the roads and they are waiting their turn at the scales to weigh in. The beautiful weather has contributed its share to the amount of cotton that is out of the fields. Many farmers will be finished stripping by Thanksgiving and will be giving Thanks for the bountiful crop that they have received. STAFF PHOTO

Lockney sales tax rebates are up

State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office sent out checks to 1,045 cities that collect local sales tax, in the amount of $118.4 million. According to Bullock the monthly rebates increased in November. "The payments to cities continue to improve. The state's economic recovery continues to pick up steam."

November checks represent taxes collected in September, by those who file monthly, and in July, August and September, by those who file quarterly. Lockney's check amounted to $5,112.34 compared to $4,809.92 at the same time last year. Even though the monthly check is up, the 1988 payment is down from last year. 1987 payments up to this date were $48,446.92 compared to this year's amount of $45,572.94. This figure is down 5.93% from last year.

Floydada's November payment was $12,349.72. This amount is up from last year's payment of $10,394.17. Floydada's 1988 payments were also up from last year. 1988 payment for Floydada is $99,322.83 compared to the 1987 payment of $98,722.40 at this time. Total payments received from area towns are as follows: Quitaque, $1,888.10, up 25.51%; Silverton, $1,998.59, up 0.45%; Dickens, $1,508.57, down 27.97%; Spur, $6,105.56, up 2.92%; Crosbyton, $6,609.18, down 0.95%; Lorenzo, $2,392.61, up 7.70%; Ralls, $6,659.59, up 15.11%; Plainview, $214,929.87, up 58.46%; Matador, $3,521.00, down 0.40%; and Tulia, $24,401.87, up 67.85%.

Senior Citizens Center marks first anniversary

The Senior Citizens Center has been open a year. At the time of their opening they numbered 188 and today their membership stands at 261.

Board members at the Senior Citizens beginning were O.C. Allison, president; Harmon Handley, vice-president; Virginia Sissney, secretary and Hazel Johnson, treasurer. Other board members were C.L. Henderson, Willis Reynolds, Claude Brown, Helen Hodel, Ray Sissney, Velma Harrison and Edna Workman.

At the present time board members are Harmon Handley, president; Claude Brown, vice-president; and Virginia Sissney, secretary-treasurer.

Other board members are O. C. Allison, C. L. Henderson, Willis Reynolds, and Ray Sissney.

Myrt Hill is publicity chairman. She regularly reports activities and goings-on, along with news about members and menus for the coming week.

In February 1987 the Lockney Senior Citizens was organized. There were forty two persons at the initial meeting held at the Lockney Beacon office.

The first event on the schedule was a chili supper and bake sale. Proceeds from the supper and sale helped to establish a fund for the newly organized group. One hundred twenty five to 150 people came out and the event was a "sell-out".

This was just the beginning in fund raising. There have been suppers, luncheons, bake sales, game nights, garage sales and many more activities.

In March an agreement was reached to purchase the former Lena Fay Store and renovate it into a center for the Senior Citizens to gather. Donations continued to come in and the fund grew and grew. Velma Harrison was selected to serve as the first hostess and there has been a hostess each month since. She asks others to help her and they do the planning, getting ready for and cleaning up after the events held that month.

Equipment for the center has been donated, and purchased with donations. Stamps have been collected for the purchase of card tables, chairs and other needed items. Where there was a will, and a need, there was a way.

Dues were set in April and members joined daily. Each meal and activity continued to be a sell-out. Donations and memorials continued to come in.

In May kitchen appliances were purchased and volunteers continued to work on the building. A new air conditioner was installed. Members decided to celebrate birthdays. Those with birthdays in May were honored with an ice cream and cake party. This has continued to be an event that is looked forward to each month.

Through the summer work on the building continued enthusiastically. Memberships came in, donations were taken and the center advertised for a cook.

The Senior Citizens held their first activity in the new building with a celebration of July birthdays. The party was held on the last day of the month.

Days were still busy. The ladies quilted a quilt to be given away at the Floyd County Fair. Over 700 tickets were sold and the quilt was won by Almeda Phillips. A float was put together for the Fair parade and the group set up a food booth and fed fairgoers throughout the three day event.

Finally on the first day of October the center was declared finished and plans were made for the "Big Day".

Two hundred and one people were on hand for the ceremony which marked the opening of the completed Senior Citizen Center. The first event of the day was a flag raising ceremony by a color guard made up of members from the Lockney VFW post and the National Anthem was played.

Mayor Dan Smith cut the ribbon officially opening the building. Senior Citizen president O.C. Allison gave the welcome following the invocation given by Robert Kirk, pastor of the First United Methodist Church.

The building was officially dedicated by Foster Whaley, state representative of the 84th congressional district.

In the days that followed Nina Sanders was hired to cook lunches at the Center. She is assisted by several ladies who take turns helping where they are needed. To date 8,261 meals have been prepared. Approximately 25 people are fed each day.

There are games to be played after lunch and classes to be taken. Much visiting goes on all the time. It is a place to gather, to visit with old friends and to make new ones. This project has truly been a community effort and the community is better for it.

Great American Smokeout in progress this Thursday

The American Cancer Society and Methodist Hospital are once again preparing for the Great American Smokeout slated for Thursday, November 17. The theme for this year's event is "Be A Friend," and the goal of the event is for non-smokers to assist a friend in kicking the habit.

The ACS event, now 12 years old, is an upbeat effort to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours. Coordinators of the event also hope that one in every five smokers will give up cigarettes from midnight to midnight on that day. On November 17th, with the help of non-smokers and ex-smokers, smokers can prove to themselves that they can have 24 hours of abstinence.

Roughly one out of three American women smokes. Women outnumber men in programs designed to help them overcome nicotine addiction. Addiction may seem like a strong word for a nicotine habit; however, the body's reaction to withdrawal from cigarettes shows nicotine is a highly addictive drug.

Jack E. Hennington, chief of the laboratory of biology dependence and abuse of the National Institute of Drug Abuse, calls nicotine the most critical link between tobacco carcinogens and cancer. He said, "without nicotine, there is no evidence that there would be widespread, compulsive use of tobacco products, the most important preventable cause of death and disease." Physical reactions to nicotine in the bloodstream have shown that small doses of nicotine act like a stimulant, while larger amounts act like a tranquilizer.

Texans find medical care more difficult to obtain

A growing number of Texans are not receiving the care they need, while others are paying more for the care they get, according to a recent survey of Texas physicians.

The threat of a lawsuit is causing some physicians to limit services to indigent patients, while rising medical liability premiums have increased fees to other patients, according to a recent statewide survey conducted for the Texas Medical Association.

"The medical liability situation continues to get worse for doctors and patients due to decisions by the Texas Supreme Court. Over and over, the court has expanded liability and invented new ways to recover damages, and this is hurting our patients," said Dr. Val F. Borum, TMA president.

Fear of a lawsuit has led 10 percent of all physicians responding to the survey and 21 percent of obstetricians/gynecologists (OBGs) to limit services to indigent patients. At the same time, seven out of ten physicians have increased diagnostic testing and four out of ten have increased hospitalizations due to the threat of a lawsuit or claim.

The high cost of medical liability insurance has forced 37 percent of physicians to limit or eliminate certain services, according to the survey of 1,600 doctors conducted by Opinion Analysts, Inc., Austin. Most dramatic, 45 percent of family doctors stopped delivering babies and nearly a third of emergency physicians have limited emergency room procedures.

Physicians responding to the survey said many medical services now limited or eliminated could be restored if reasonable limits were set on their liability. Forty-two percent claimed they are either very likely or somewhat likely to increase their availability or state indemnity. More than a fourth of the respondents who deliver babies said they would deliver more babies if their liability exposure was limited to eight years from the present 20. Thirty-eight percent of the OBG's said they would deliver more babies if this provision was changed.

Besides making health care services less accessible to Texans, the medical liability crisis is affecting what they pay for their care. Respondents estimated that nearly 15 percent of the average patient bill is due to defensive medicine, the practice of ordering extra tests, consultations, and hospitalizations for additional protection in the event of a lawsuit.

Texas physicians are paying anywhere from 37 to 117 percent more for professional liability insurance in 1988 over 1986 rates, according to the survey. Slightly more than half of those responding said they would need to raise their fees to patients not covered by Medicare or Medicaid if there is an increase in professional liability insurance premiums.

Ironically, the most highly trained physician specialists are most often sued. These include most surgeons, such as neurosurgeons and orthopedic, general, and specialized surgeons, as well as physicians in emergency medicine.

"Most often it's not the bad doctor who gets sued. Many highly trained specialists perform the most high-risk procedures," said Dr. Borum, an anesthesiologist from Fort Worth.

Liability insurance premiums were increased in nine percent of the suits or claims mentioned by doctors in the study. However, policies were ended in another seven percent and in two percent companies limited the amount of coverage available.

Monday's bus ride led us to Matador where we were welcomed to visit with Mrs. Pearl Rattan, whose husband, Ward, is a nursing home resident. She treated us all to freshly baked cookies that were delicious. Those riding enjoyed the view of the countryside while they ate ice cream cones, courtesy of Myrtle Gibson. Thanks, Myrtle.

On Tuesday cookies were passed around and on Wednesday we all had popcorn. So we've been pretty busy eating. We would like to extend a hearty welcome to our newest friends, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hunter of Quitaque.

Inhalants qualify as substance abuse

During the early 1960s, the public was alarmed by newspaper accounts of purported epidemic of youngsters intoxicating themselves by sniffing airplane glue.
But as quickly as the hysteria surfaced, it faded, replaced over the years by reports of teenagers abusing seemingly more dangerous substances, including alcohol, marijuana, PCP, cocaine, and, most recently, crack.
And while inhalants such as solvents and aerosols aren't abused as often as other substances, they continue to be a persistent problem, particularly among boys between the ages of 12 and 15.
Such adolescents turn to inhalants, which have been nicknamed "poor man's pot", are extremely inexpensive. For instance, a pint of varnish remover can provide dozens of intoxications for as little as a couple of dollars.
Inhalants also are highly accessible. Virtually every home or garage has nail polish remover, plastic cement or lighter fluid as well as a variety of products in aerosol cans.
In addition, inhalants can be purchased by anyone no matter how old and are inconspicuous and simple to use. A teenager can easily squeeze airplane glue into a soda can and inhale the fumes without detection.

Although the dangers of other substances have received far more attention in recent years, inhalants are no less hazardous.
Short-term effects of inhalant abuse include nausea, amnesia, sores in the nose and mouth, impaired vision, temporary paralysis, violent behavior and loss of muscle and reflex control.
Long-term effects include forgetfulness, fatigue, depression, mental confusion, tremors, weight loss and permanent brain and kidney damage.
While researchers are unsure whether one can become physically addicted to inhalants, studies indicate that psychological dependency commonly occurs when the abuser is overwhelmed by cravings for the substance.
Inhalants also are often the first step in the progression to other drugs.
In addition, an estimated 100 inhalant abusers die each year of Sudden Death Syndrome (SDS).
More recently, SDS has been associated with deaths of teenagers who inhaled a popular brand of typewriter correction fluid.
As with all forms of substance abuse, knowledge is the best weapon in dealing with inhalant abuse.
While there is a seemingly infinite number of products that can be used as inhalants, parents can familiarize themselves with products most often used as inhalants.

They generally include household cements, fingernail polish remover, lighter fluid, gasoline, aerosol propellants, spray paint, lacquer thinner, and typewriter correction fluid.
Parents also should familiarize themselves with the common modes of usage, including soaking a rag with a solvent and then putting it to the nose or in the mouth.
Another common method is to deposit the substance in a paper bag which is then put to the nose or mouth.

In addition, parents should be aware of the symptoms of inhalant abuse, including slurred speech, staggering, drowsiness, impulsiveness, excitability, irritability, hallucinations and delusions.
An adolescent's clothes may also smell like the abused substance. Chronic users may develop a persistent cough or a rash around the nose and mouth.
Any parent suspecting a teenager of inhalant abuse should seek help immediately.
"Understanding Your Teen" is provided by the Adolescent Care Unit at St. Anthony's Hospital.
