

WHEAT FIELDS ARE BEAUTIFUL GREEN

EARLY PLANTING IS GROWING VERY RAPIDLY.

Acresage Will be Much Larger than this Year—Ground is in Fine Condition.

The wheat fields which were planted a few weeks ago are now of a beautiful green color, the young stalks being from three to five inches tall and with the fine weather of the past two weeks are growing very rapidly. In every direction will be found wheat fields which show up green for considerable distance. The early planted crop is reported to be the best seen on the Plains for a number of years and with a continuation of the fine fall weather, the crop will greatly surpass any this county has had for years.

It is probable that not over half of the wheat acres are yet planted. The fall season has been so busy that only a small percent of the farmers have found time to plant all of their wheat, although the majority of them prepared their wheat ground early and in a scientific manner. During the past few weeks the farmers have been so busy cutting kafir and maize that they were forced to put off wheat planting. However, scientific farmers claim that this week is the best time to begin planting wheat and most of the farmers will have their row crops in such condition that they can now turn their attention to wheat planting.

A man who has been over the county considerable said to a representative of the News last week: "The ground is in the best condition I have seen for years. The rains of two weeks ago were fine for the wheat fields which generally have been well prepared by the farmers. I find that the ground is in excellent working condition and full of moisture. The farmers are in much better spirit than I have seen for years. They are studying the scientific methods of farming and the fine row crops of this year raised under a very abnormal rainfall has convinced them that scientific farming will win even though the rainfall be light. We are going to have a fine wheat crop next year."

Christian Endeavor Rally.

The Panhandle Christian Endeavor union will hold at a rally at Amarillo beginning tomorrow and ending on Sunday evening. The program will be very fine for the occasion with a number of important addresses by prominent men and women. President Beem, of the state union, will be present and render valuable assistance in the rally. Miss Addie R. Whitcomb, district superintendent, will have charge of the work. The program will be very valuable to workers in young people's societies and should be largely attended from this city. The Presbyterian society has elected Misses Lola Word, Ruby Muldrow and Sadie Winkelman as delegates.

DOUBLE MARRIAGE ON THURSDAY.

R. E. Prichard and Miss Lizzie Gibson,
E. C. Prichard and Miss Cleo Wells.

A double wedding was held at the J. M. Gibson home last Thursday evening at 5 o'clock when R. E. Prichard and Miss Lizzie Gibson and E. C. Prichard and Miss Cleo Wells were united in the bonds of holy wedlock by Rev. F. M. Neal. All of the parties are well known in the city and are among the highest esteemed young people. All but Miss Wells have lived here for several years. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only a few relatives and friends.

The Prichard boys are brothers and sons of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Prichard, who live just south of the city. They are industrious young men and leaders in all religious matters. Miss Gibson has lived in the city for several years and has many friends who rejoice in her wedlock. Miss Wells is a niece of D. L. Hickcox and came with the family from Minnesota two years ago. She has been attending the public schools where she has made many friends.

The young people are receiving congratulations from their many friends in the city and wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

After the ceremony the company went to the T. J. Prichard home where a bountiful wedding supper was served.

Help me! but her face and brow are lovelier than lilies are Beneath the light of moon and star That smile as they are smiling now.
White lilies in a pallid swoon Of sweetest white beneath the moon.
White lilies in a flood of bright Pure lucidness of liquid light Cascading down some plenilune, When all the azure over head Blooms like a dazzling daisy bed.
So luminous her face and brow, The luster of their glory, shed In memory, even, blinds me now.

CALVES BEAT WORLD RECORD

RECORD PRICE FOR RANDALL COUNTY CALVES.

53 Head Shipped by C. O. Keiser to Kansas City Market two Weeks Ago.

The News reported last week that Randall county calves had topped the Kansas City market a week previous, but word comes this week that the price received not only topped the market but set a new world record for the Kansas city market. The announcement made in Clay, Robinson & Co's. Stock market was as follows:

"World's record price for range grass cattle that still stand unbroken and all obtained this season." Following were different grades of cattle and breaking the calves record was the 53 heifer calves shipped by Peter Meyers from Happy and owned by C. O. Keiser. The calves weighed 402 and sold at $7.50. This is only another instance showing the great superiority of Panhandle cattle.

Board of Regents Coming.

President R. B. Cousins has received word from the board of regents for state normal schools that they will leave Austin on the first Monday in November for their tour of inspection of the schools. They will probably be in Canyon during the first week of the trip. The board will inspect the building and work done and investigate the needs for the future.

Swimming Pool Complete.

The swimming pool at the Normal is being filled this week after having been repaired and given three coats of white cement paint. The pool looks mighty fine and will be greatly appreciated by the Normal students.

FURNISH CLASS ROOM.

Baraca Class of the Methodist Church Makes Fine Improvements in Class Room.

Substantial improvements were made by the Baraca class of the Methodist church in their class room by placing there a new set of furniture, consisting of rugs, upholstered chairs, a library table and pictures. The room complete is very homelike and one of the best Sunday school rooms in this section of the country. The room itself is one of those built to the church last spring, the Booster class being at the head of the enterprise.

The Boosters furnished their room several weeks ago and since have been "joshing" the Baracas for using the old furniture that the Boosters had discarded. The Baracas came to life with a strong determination to have as good a room as the Boosters and selected a committee to push the work and buy the furniture. The result is that two prettier or more convenient rooms cannot be found in any city in this section of the country.

The Baracas are indebted to the Philathea class for the fine art square which was bought under the direction of the Philathea teacher, Miss Maud Brandon.

338 Normal Students.

The attendance at the Normal has reached 338. This number is 10 more than the entire enrollment of last year. There have been three enrolled this week. Students will continue to come throughout the year until 375 will be enrolled for the entire year.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Pat Thompson Monday morning. Homer Richards is trying his best to convince Pat that his boy is bigger than Pat's but Pat firmly declares that young Thompson has young Richards beat by about half a pound. At any rate both are fine young men even if young Richards has the best of the argument by being a little older.

SETH WARD WAS BEATEN MONDAY

NORMAL WINS FOOTBALL GAME BY SCORE 19 TO 0.

Normal Plays Fast Game, Outclassing Plainview Men—Return Game Oct. 28.

There was much joy among the Canyon football fans, when the report came late Monday from Plainview that Seth Ward had "failed to hang Canyon on the sour apple tree" and had received a severe drubbing at the hands of the Normal team to the score of 19 to 0, revenging the bitter defeat administered last year by the Seth Ward eleven. From the local team's point of view this contest was a little steadier and inclined more toward the old style of football than the initial game with the Amarillo high school recently. At no stage of the game was the Normal team compelled to use trick plays in order to gain ground, however, once or twice tricks were used to "show 'em just a little classy football." Seth Ward varied from the straight to the open game and back again, but found the simple "whip-crack," a massed long end run, the only effective play.

The first touchdown was made by Ackerman on a line plunge after a 45-yard gain by Campbell in the first quarter. In the same period Sewell intercepted a long forward pass and got away for a touch-down. On a very simple and open criss-cross in the third quarter Campbell planted the ball behind the goal posts again. Only one try at goal was made. Another time Sewell made a beautiful run down the side line for 60 yards to the opponent's goal but was called back an account of having been pushed out of bounds. Other sensational plays were pulled off by various members of the team, in the way of tackling, breaking interference and general all-round football ability.

In the line, Cowling and Watson did the most effective work both on the offense and defense, while the rest showed up a little weak on the defense. The whole back field played a star game, working like clock work and hitting the opponents, hard, low and heavy. Their "pep," especially Campbell at half was the life of the team and the rest of the men could always depend on him. Conner is developing into a level-headed, gritty little player and one which dealt Seth Ward misery. They also seemed to dread tackling Campbell and Sewell judging from the way the Plainview men held apart. Ackerman's main featuring was line plunging which gained the ten yards time and again.

Coach Miller reports a fine trip, and that the squad was treated loyally while visiting in the city of Plainview. Seth Ward will play a return game on the local gridiron on Oct. 28.

Sheep Bring Good Price.

A number of Hereford sheepmen have sold their crop of lambs at a good price. A Mr. Elder, of Kansas was here recently and bought 2,850 head, paying out an average of $3.00 around for the lambs, which weighed an average of 63 pounds. Allan Bell, inspector for this district, says that it was the finest bunch of lambs ever shipped out of the Panhandle if not the state. Mr. Bell, himself, shipped 1,109 to the Kansas City markets for which he received satisfactory prices. There will be something like 25,000 lambs for sale in the Hereford district this fall and most of them will be sold. There are a few herdsmen, however, who will keep their lambs and feed them here for the early spring market.—Hereford Brand.

Don't Do It.

Don't advertise if you believe you are wasting your money. Let your competitor waste the money on advertising, and perhaps in this way you can put him out of business. Just stand back and laugh at him when you see him squandering his money for printer's ink. One time there was a little boy named—we think his last name was Wana-maker or maybe it was Money-maker—anyhow his name was John with some sort of maker attached to his last name. He owned fifty yards of calico, three pairs of jeans, half dozen pairs of boots. He called this a dry goods store through a weekly newspaper and offered to sell a pair of socks for 39 cents. The don't believe in advertising merchants just laughed. Young John spent $65 with a Philadelphia newspaper to advertise just one time less than $100 worth of goods. He was cautioned by the merchants who knew it didn't pay. It was through sympathy they offered him advice. But John did not listen to them but went and blew his money foolishly; and today poor John sees the result of his undoing—he has so many large dry goods stores that he can hardly find time to study his Sunday school lesson. Can you see a lesson in this. Be a progressive up-to-date business man. Advertise your wares if you want to sell them.—Rule Review.

There are some refreshing things about this campaign. For example, the Louisiana Progressives, departing from the old rule that "all is fair in love and war and also in politics," refuse to take advantage of the slip by reason of which the Democrats might have lost three of the electoral votes of the Pelican State. Then, notwithstanding Wall street betting is four to one in favor of Wilson, business is good, and Chicago business men declare it is going to remain good regardless of the result of the election. The usual quadrennial threat has not been heard. Perhaps there is something in the explanation of the Chicago men that business has segregated itself from politics.—Dallas News.

What do you think of this? The Government Printing Office, the biggest printery on earth, furnished to Congress during the last session 35,285,600 envelopes. These envelopes bore the name of a Senator or Representative in facsimile and were most largely used in sending out to a waiting, but long-suffering public, the utterances of the senders in the form of speeches taken from the Congressional Record. Is there any wonder that the country is restless?

A CORROBORATION.

Of Interest to Canyon Readers.

For months Canyon citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Canyon residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Canyon reader:

C. P. Shelnett, Canyon, Texas, says: "You are at liberty to use my statement as heretofore. Whenever I have had occasion to take this remedy, the results have been satisfactory."

Without causing any restriction of habit or diet, Dodson's Liver Tone starts the liver to working and cures constipation, biliousness, etc., without any harmful after-effects.

The fact that calomel is mercury has kept many people who are afraid of mercurial poisoning from using it. Calomel is a good thing to let alone. All persons can use Dodson's Liver Tone, whether they have been in the habit of taking calomel or not, for it is entirely vegetable and cannot do harm. The City Pharmacy will give the money back to any dissatisfied purchaser. Price fifty cents.

Mr. McAllister says that this year's product is declared to be the finest ever seen in this section in the matter of quality, a special dwarf variety being planted. Harvesting, he declared, is now well under way, the work of harvesting, seeding and baling done entirely by machinery, a new departure in the Panhandle.

In addition to the crop proper, Mr. McAllister declares that from 15 to 20 bushels of seed will be netted to the acre. This will probably be used for feed.

The entire crop will be turned into brooms in a Chicago factory. It is estimated that a hundred dozen brooms may be made from a ton of the raw product, giving a possible output of 25,000 dozen from this one farm of the Amarillo Broomcorn Co.

The figures prove beyond question or dispute the value of broomcorn in this section, under proper cultural methods.

Did it ever occur to you why all good business men keep a checking account with a bank? We'll tell you. It enables them to keep their funds in a more secure place than the office safe. It gives them a better standing in the business world. It enables them to pay their bills by check, the returned check being an undisputed receipt.

Individuals find a checking account very convenient and a source of saving. Money in one's pocket is often spent on the spur of the moment, while one is disposed to think twice before drawing on his balance in the bank. "Get the Savings Habit." Lay up for a rainy day. Start a bank account with MAN has acquired a hunger for land which he can call his own. The supply is limited---the demand unlimited! Land values have risen to prohibitive prices in older settled states!

The Panhandle Is Ready For The Farmer

Here is a deep, rich soil, ready for the plow. An ample rainfall and a most healthful and splendid climate. Adequate railroad facilities by which to reach the markets of the world.

A return to normal climatic conditions, a greatly increased acreage of winter wheat, spring wheat, oats and barley, an unqualifiedly successful demonstration that Kaffir corn and Milo maize cannot be excelled as material for ensilage, the "better farming" spirit and the results of studying and developing this land assures a prosperous year.

The successful outcome of flax culture, demonstrated last year under conditions much less favorable than can confidently be reckoned on in the future has added another to the list of our resources.

Farms can be bought here now cheaper than they can later on, at prices which are certain of a steady advance as the summer and fall emigration stimulates the demand.

My farms are all favorably located, as regards towns and railroads and give the buyer a wide range in selection. All the improved farms are rented to good farmers and will produce a substantial revenue this year.

I am in position to give terms to suit the purchaser.

"I shouldn't be surprised."
 "The poor dears! I'd better write them a telegram at once."
 "An excellent idea."
 She ran to the desk, found blank forms and then paused with knitted brow: "It will be very hard to say all I've got to say in ten words."
 "Hang the expense," Mallory sniffed magnificently. "I'm paying your bills now."
 But Marjorie tried to look very matronly: "Send a night letter in the day time! No, indeed, we must begin to economize."
 Mallory was touched by this new revelation of her future housewifely thrift. He hugged her hard and reminded her that she could send a day-letter by wire.
 "An excellent idea," she said. "Now, don't bother me. You go on and read your paper, read about Mattie. I'll never be jealous of her—him—of anybody—again."
 "You shall never have cause for jealousy, my own."
 But fate was not finished with the titillation of the unfortunate pair, and already new trouble was strolling in their direction.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Jealousy Comes Aboard.
 There was an air of domestic peace in the observation room, where Mallory and Marjorie had been left to themselves for some time. But the peace was like the ominous hush that precedes a tempest.
 Mallory was so happy with everything coming his way, that he was even making up with Snoozeums, stroking the tatted coat with one hand and holding up his newspaper with the other. He did not know all that was coming his way. The blissful silence was broken first by Marjorie: "How do you spell Utah—with a Y?"
 "Utah begins with You," he said—and rather liked his wit, listened for some recognition, and rose to get it, but she waved him away.
 "Don't bother me, honey. Can't you see I'm busy?"
 He kissed her hair and sauntered back, dividing his attention between Snoozeums and the ten-inning game.
 And now there was a small commotion in the smoking room. Through the glass along the corridor the men caught sight of the girl who had got on at Green River. Ashton saw her first and she saw him.
 "There she goes," Ashton hissed to the others, "look quick! There's the nectarine."
 "My word! She's a little bit of all right, isn't she?"
 Even Dr. Temple stared at her with approval: "Dear little thing, isn't she?"
 The girl, very consciously unconscious of the admiration, moved demurely along, with eyes downcast, but at such an angle that she could take in the sensation she was creating; she went along picking up stares as if they were bouquets.
 Her demeanor was a remarkable compromise between outrageous flirtation and perfect respectability. But she was looking back so intently that when she moved into the observation room she walked right into the newspaper Mallory was holding out before him.

 Both said: "I beg your pardon." When Mallory lowered the paper, both stared till their eyes almost popped. Her amazement was one of immediate rapture. He looked as if he would have been much obliged for a volcanic crater to sink into.
 "Harry!" she gasped, and let fall her handbag.
 "Kitty!" he gasped, and let fall his newspaper. Both bent, he handed her the newspaper and tossed the handbag into a chair; saw his mistake, withdrew the newspaper and proffered her Snoozeums. Marjorie stopped writing, pen poised in air, as if she had suddenly been petrified.
 The newcomer was the first to speak. She fairly gushed: "Harry Mallory—of all people!"
 "Kitty! Kathleen! Miss Lewellyn!"
 "Just to think of meeting you again."
 "Just to think of it."
 "And on this train of all places."
 "On this train of all places!"
 "Oh, Harry, Harry!"
 "Oh, Kitty, Kitty, Kitty!"
 "You dear fellow, it's so long since I saw you last."
 "So long."
 "It was at that last hep at West Point, remember?—why, it seems only yesterday, and how well you are looking. You are well, aren't you?"
 "Not very." He was mopping his brow in anguish, and yet the room seemed strangely cold.
 "Of course you look much better in your uniform. You aren't wearing your uniform, are you?"
 "No, this is not my uniform."
 "You haven't left the army, have you?"
 "I don't know yet."
 "Don't ever do that. You are just beautiful in brass buttons."
 "Thanks."
 "Harry!"
 "What's the matter now?"
 "This tie, this green tie, isn't this the one I knitted you?"
 "I am sure I don't know. I borrowed it from the conductor."
 "Don't you remember? I did knit you one."
 "Did you? I believe you did! I think I wore it out."
 "Oh, you feckle boy. But see what I have. What's this?"
 He stared through the glass eyes of complete helplessness. "It looks like a bracelet."
 "Don't tell me you don't remember this!—the little bangle bracelet you gave me."
 "D-did I give you a bagged bracelet?"
 "Of course you did. And the inscription. Don't you remember it?"
 She held her wrist in front of his aching eyes and he perused as if it were his own epitaph, what she read aloud for him. "From Harry to Kitty, the Only Girl I Ever Loved."
 "Good night!" he sighed to himself, and began to mop his brow with Snoozeums.
 "You put it on my arm," said Kathleen, with a moonlight sigh, "and I've always worn it."
 "Always!"
 "Always! no matter whom I was engaged to."
 The desperate wretch, who had not dared even to glance in Marjorie's direction, somehow thought he saw a straw of self-defense. "You were engaged to three or four others when I was at West Point."

HE SHOVED KITTY INTO A SEAT.

 "I may have been engaged to the others," said Kathleen, moon-eyebing him, "but I always liked you best, Clifford—er, Tommy—I mean Harry."
 "You got me at last."
 Kathleen fenced back at this: "Well, I've no doubt you have had a dozen affairs since."
 "Oh, no! My heart has only known one real love." He threw this over her head at Marjorie, but Kathleen seized it, to his greater confusion: "Oh, Harry, how sweet of you to say it. It makes me feel positively faint," and she swooned his way, but he shoved a chair forward and let her collapse into that. Thinking and hoping that she was unconscious, he made ready to escape, but she caught him by the coat, and moaned: "Where am I?" and he growled back: "In the Observation Car!"
 Kathleen's life and enthusiasm returned without delay: "Fancy meeting you again! I could just scream."
 "So could I."
 "You must come up in our car and see mamma."
 "Is Ma-mamma with you?" Mallory stammered, on the verge of imbecility.
 "Oh, yes, indeed, we're going around the world."
 "Don't let me detain you."
 "Papa is going round the world also."
 "Is papa on this train, too?"
 At last something seemed to embarrass her a trifle: "No, papa went on ahead. Mamma hopes to overtake him. But papa is a very good traveler."
 Then she changed the subject. "Do come and meet mamma. It would cheer her up so. She is so fond of you. Only this morning she was saying, 'Of all the boys you were ever engaged to, Kathleen, the one I like most of all was Edgar—I mean Clarence—er—Harry Mallory.'"
 "Awwfully kind of her."
 "You must come and see her—she's some stouter now!"
 "Oh, is she? Well, that's good."
 Mallory was too angry to be sane, and too helpless to take advantage of his anger. He wondered how he could ever have cared for this molasses and mudclay girl. He remembered now that she had always had these same cloying ways. She had always pawed him and, like everybody but the powers, he hated pawing.
 It would have been bad enough at any time to have Kathleen hanging on his coat, straightening his tie, leaning close, smiling up in his eyes, losing him his balance, recapturing him every time he edged away. But with Marjorie as the grim witness it was maddening.
 He loathed and abominated Kathleen Lewellyn, and if she had only been a man, he could cheerfully have beaten her to a pulp and chucked her out of the window. But because she was a helpless little baggage he had to be as polite as he could while she sat and tore his plans to pieces, embittered Marjorie's heart against him, and either ended all hopes of their marriage, or furnished an everlasting rancor to be recalled in every quarrel to their dying day. Oh, etiquette, what injustices are endured in thy name!

So there he sat, sweating his soul's blood, and able only to spar for time and wonder when the gong would ring. And now she was off on a new tack:
 "And where are you bound for, Harry, dear?"
 "The Philippines," he said, and for the first time there was something beautiful in their remoteness.
 "Perhaps we shall cross the Pacific on the same boat."
 The first sincere smile he had experienced came to him: "I go on an army transport, fortu—unfortunately."
 "Oh, I just love soldiers. Couldn't mamma and I go on the transport? Mamma is very fond of soldiers, too."
 "I'm afraid it couldn't be arranged."
 "Too bad, but perhaps we can stop off and pay you a visit. I just love army posts. So does mamma."
 "Oh, do!"
 "What will be your address?"
 "Just the Philippines—just the Philippines."
 "But aren't there quite a few of them?"
 "Only about two thousand."
 "Which one will you be on?"
 "I'll be on the third from the left," said Mallory, who neither knew nor cared what he was saying. Marjorie had endured all that she could stand. She rose in a tightly leashed fury.
 "I'm afraid I'm in the way."
 Kathleen turned in surprise. She had not noticed that anyone was near. Mallory went out of his head completely. "Oh, don't go—for heaven's sake don't go," he appealed to Marjorie.
 "A friend of yours?" said Kathleen, bristling.
 "No, not a friend," in a chaotic tangle. "Mrs. — Miss — Miss — Er — er."
 Kathleen smiled: "Delighted to meet you, Miss Ererer."
 "The pleasure is all mine," Marjorie said, with an acid smile.
 "Have you known Harry long?" said Kathleen, jealously, "or are you just acquaintances on the train?"
 "We're just acquaintances on the train!"
 "I used to know Harry very well—very well indeed."
 "So I should judge. You won't mind if I leave you to talk over old times together?"
 "How very sweet of you."
 "Oh, don't mention it."
 "But, Marjorie," Mallory cried, as she turned away, Kathleen started at the ardor of his tone, and gasped: "Marjorie! Then he—you—"
 "Not at all—not in the least," said Marjorie.
 At this crisis the room was suddenly inundated with people. Mrs. Whitcomb, Mrs. Wellington, Mrs. Temple and Mrs. Fosdick, all trying to look like bridesmaids, danced in, shouting:
 "Here they come! Make way for the bride and groom!"

CHAPTER XXX.

A Wedding on Wheels.
 The commotion of the matrimony-mad women brought the men trooping in from the smoking room and there was much circumstance of decorating the scene with white satin ribbons, a trifle crumpled and dim of luster. Mrs. Whitcomb waved them at Mallory with a laugh:
 "Recognize these?"
 He nodded dismally. His own funeral baked meats were coldly furnishing forth a wedding breakfast for Ira Lathrop. Mrs. Wellington was moving about distributing kazooos and Mrs. Temple had an armload of old shoes, some of which had thumped Mallory on an occasion which seemed so ancient as to be almost prehistoric.
 Fosdick was howling to the porter to get some rice, quick!
 "How many portions does you approximate?"
 "All you've got."
 "Boiled or fried?"
 "Any old way." The porter ran forward to the dining-car for the ammunition.
 Mrs. Temple whispered to her husband: "Too bad you're not officiating, Walter." But he cautioned silence: "Hush! I'm on my vacation."
 The train was already coming into Ogden. Noises were multiplying and from the increase of passing objects, the speed seemed to be taking on a spurt. The bell was clanging like a wedding chime in a steeple.
 Mrs. Wellington was on a chair fastening a ribbon round one of the lamps, and Mrs. Whitcomb was on another chair braiding the bell rope with withered orange branches, when Ashton, with kazoo all ready, called out:
 "What tune shall we play?"
 "I prefer the Mendelssohn Wedding March," said Mrs. Whitcomb, but Mrs. Wellington glared across at her.
 "I've always used the Lohengrin."

"We'll play 'em both," said Dr. Temple, to make peace.
 Mrs. Fosdick murmured to her spouse: "The old Justice of the Peace didn't give us any music at all," and received in reward one of his most luscious-eyed looks, and a whisper: "But he gave us each other."
 "Now and then," she pouted.
 "But where are the bride and groom?"
 "Here they come—all ready," cried Ashton, and he beat time while some of the guests kazooed at Mendelssohn's and some Wagner's bridal melodies, and others just made a noise.
 Ira Lathrop and Anne Gattie, looking very sheepish, crowded through the narrow corridor and stood shamefacedly blushing like two school children about to sing a duet.
 The train jolted to a dead stop. The conductor called into the car: "Ogden! All out for Ogden!" and everybody stood watching and waiting.
 Ira, seeing Mallory, edged close and whispered: "Stand by to catch the minister on the rebound."
 But Mallory turned away. What use had he now for ministers? His plans were shattered ruins.
 The porter came flying in with two large bowls of rice, and shouting, "Here comes the possum—er—posson." Seeing Marjorie, he said: "Shall I perambulate Mista Snoozeums?"
 She handed the porter her only friend and he hurried off, as a lean and professionally sad ascetic hurried in. He did not recognize his boyish enemy in the gray-haired, red-faced giant that greeted him, but he knew that voice and its gloating irony:
 "Hello, Charlie."
 He had always found that when Ira grinned and was cordial, some trouble was in store for him. He wondered what rock Ira held behind his back now, but he forced an uneasy cordiality: "And is this you, Ira? Well, well! It is years since last we met. And you're just getting married. Is this the first time, Ira?"
 "First offense, Charlie."
 The levity shocked Selby, but a greater shock was in store, for when he inquired: "And who is the—er—happy-bride?" the triumphant Lathrop snickered: "I believe you used to know her. Anne Gattie."
 This was the rock behind Ira's back, and Selby took it with a wince: "Not—my old—"
 "The same. Anne, you remember, Charlie."
 "Oh, yes," said Anne, "How do you do, Charlie?" And she put out a shy hand, which he took with one still shy. He was so unsettled that he stammered: "Well, well, I had always hoped to marry you, Anne, but not just this way."
 Lathrop cut him short with a sharp: "Better get busy—before the train starts. And I'll pay you in advance before you set off the fireworks."
 The sippancy pained Rev. Charles, but he was resuscitated by one glance at the bill that Ira thrust into his palm. If a man's gratitude for his wife is measured by the size of the fee he hands the enabling parson, Ira was madly in love with Anne. Rev. Charles had a reminiscent suspicion that it was probably a counterfeit, but for once he did Ira an injustice.
 The minister was in such a flutter from losing his boyhood love, and gaining so much money all at once and from performing the marriage on a train, that he made numerous errors in the ceremony, but nobody noticed them, and the spirit, if not the letter of the occasion, was there and the contract was doubtless legal enough.
 The ritual began with the pleasant murmur of the preacher's voice, and the passengers crowded round in a solemn calm, which was suddenly violated by a loud yelp of laughter from Wedgewood, who omitted guffaw after guffaw and bent double and opened out again, like an agitated umbrella.
 The wedding-guests turned on him visages of horror, and hissed silence at him. Ashton seized him, shook him, and muttered:
 "What the—what's the matter with you?"
 The Englishman shook like a boy having a spasm of giggles at a funeral, and blurted out the explanation:
 "That story about the bridegroom—I just saw the point!"
 Ashton closed his jaw by brute force and watched over him through the rest of the festivity.

CHAPTER XXXI.
Foiled Yet Again.
 Mallory had fled from the scene at the first hum of the minister's words. His fate was like alkali on his palate. For twelve hundred miles he had ransacked the world for a minister. When one dropped on the train like manna, through the roof, even this miracle had to be checkmated by a perverse miracle that sent to the train an early infatuation, a silly affair that he himself called puppy-love. And now Marjorie would never marry him. He did not blame her. He blamed fate.
 He was in solitude in the smoking room. The place reeked with drifting tobacco smoke and the malodor of cigar stubs and cigarette ends. His plans were as useless and odious as cigarette ends. He dropped into a chair, his elbows on his knees and his head in his hands—Napoleon on St. Helen.
 And then, suddenly he heard Marjorie's voice. He turned and saw her hesitating in the doorway. He rose to welcome her, but the smile died on his lips at her chilly speech:
 "May I have a word with you, sir?"
 "Of course. The air's rather thick in here," he apologized.
 "Just wait!" she said, ominously, and stalked in like a young Zenobia. He put out an appealing hand: "Now, Marjorie, listen to reason. Of course I know you won't marry me now."
 "Oh, you know that, do you?" she said, with a squared jaw.
 "But, really, you ought to marry me—not merely because I love you—and you're the only girl I ever—" He stopped short and she almost smiled as she taunted him: "Go on—I dare you to say it."
 He swallowed hard and waived the point: "Well, anyway, you ought to marry me—for your own sake."
 Then she took his breath away by answering: "Oh, I'm going to marry you, never fear."
 "You are," he cried, with a rush of returning hope. "Oh, I knew you loved me."
 She pushed his encircling arms aside: "I don't love you, and that's why I'm going to marry you."
 "But I don't understand."
 "Of course not," she sneered, as if she were a thousand years old, "you're only a man—and a very young man."
 "You've ceased to love me," he protested, "just because of a little affair I had before I met you?"
 Marjorie answered with world-old wisdom: "A woman can forgive a man anything except what he did before he met her."
 He stared at her with masculine dismay at feminine logic: "If you can't forgive me, then why do you marry me?"
 "For revenge!" she cried. "You brought me on this train all this distance to introduce me to a girl you used to spoon with. And I don't like her. She's awful!"
 "Yes, she is awful," Mallory assented. "I don't know how I ever—"
 "Oh, you admit it!"
 "No."
 "Well, I'm going to marry you—now—this minute—with that preacher, er, then I'm going to get off at Reno and divorce you."
 "Divorce me! Good Lord! On what grounds?"
 "On the grounds of Miss Kitty—Kathleen—Lewellyn—or whatever her name is."
 Mallory was groggy with punishment, and the vain effort to foresee her next blow. "But you can't name a woman that way," he pleaded, "for just being nice to me before I ever met you."
 "That's the worst kind of unfaithfulness," she reiterated. "You should have known that some day you would meet me. You should have saved your first love for me."
 "But last love is best," Mallory interposed, weakly.
 "Oh, no, it isn't, and if it is, how do I know I'm to be your last love? No, sir, when I've divorced you, you can go back to your first love and go round the world with her till you get dizzy."
 "But I don't want her for a wife," Mallory urged, "I want you."
 "You'll get me—but not for long. And one other thing, I want you to get that bracelet away from that creature. Do you promise?"
 "How can I get it away?"
 "Take it away! Do you promise?"
 Mallory surrendered completely, anything to get Marjorie safely into the rest of the festivity.

The Whole World Is to Participate In the Great San Francisco Panama-Pacific Exposition In 1915

By HAMILTON M. WRIGHT.
THE whole world is interested in the opening of the Panama canal and in the great international fête at which the United States will celebrate the completion of the canal, the Panama-Pacific International exposition, to be held in San Francisco in 1915.

The proclamation of the president, issued by authority of congress, has been delivered through the instrumentality of the department of state to every quarter of the globe. Inquiries as to the exposition are pouring in upon the exposition management from all parts of the world. The nations of the world in recognition of America's great achievement at Panama are preparing for participation in the exposition as a more comprehensive scale than any of the greatest of former world expositions.

The foreign nations will be represented by the finest assemblage of displays that the world has seen. The strange tribes and peoples of Pacific ocean countries will participate in a wonderful week's festival in which the nations of the orient will take part. The most marvelous parades ever witnessed will be seen on the streets of San Francisco.

The commonwealths of the United States, each of which as a member of the Union has taken its part in the building of the canal, will be represented by the most magnificent state displays ever assembled. California has dedicated more than $20,000,000 to the nation's fair, and the city of San Francisco, the west and the nation are co-operating to render the exposition one that will express in every way the pride and patriotism of the American people.

The Panama-Pacific International exposition will be the greatest exposition in the history of the world. A notable commission of architects of national reputation is engaged upon the plans, and within a few weeks first construction work will begin, when grading of the site and the building of a sea wall, which will serve in part as the basis of a magnificent esplanade along San Francisco harbor, commences.

Among the noted architects who are designing the wonder city which will rise from the shores of San Francisco bay are Messrs. McKim, Mead & White of New York; designers of Madison Square Garden, the Boston Public Library, the Agricultural building at the World's Columbian exposition; Thomas Hastings, president of Cassette & Hastings, architects in charge for the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo; Henry Bacon, designer of the Lincoln memorial; Willis Polk, associated with D. H. Burnham of the World's Columbian exposition at Chicago. These architects and their associates pronounce the site of the exposition as unsurpassed for a great maritime celebration. The exposition structures will be the largest and costliest ever erected for a world's exposition.

huge Grecian columns adorned with the flags of all the nations of the world and surmounted at convenient intervals by classic arcades. At the junction of these two streets will be erected a civic center. The buildings in this architectural group will cost close to $9,000,000. The nucleus of the civic center will be a new city hall to take the place of the one destroyed in 1906. The exposition authorities have voted the sum of $1,000,000 for a great auditorium to accommodate visitors to conventions during the exposition. A great opera house will be erected by private capital at the civic center, and the famous singers of the world will be heard in San Francisco in exposition

Midway at the Panama-Pacific Exposition Will Be the Most Striking and Original of All

By HAMILTON M. WRIGHT.
FOLLOWING the battleship parade into San Francisco harbor—the opening event of the Panama-Pacific International exposition in 1915—there will be a program of events of world interest and importance in a succession of two months apart, interspersed with lesser events: Yacht and motorboat races of an international character for great trophies and cash prizes; aviation meets with the famous bird men of the world; Olympic games, in which the athletes of the world will take part; intercollegiate contests; automobile races, in which the holders of the world's records will participate in the automobiles of every nation; military maneuvers, in which the crack cavalry and infantry of this and other nations will participate upon an extended scale. The location of the exposition gives widest scope for the greatest international sports program in history. The auto races will pass into Golden Gate park before the huge concrete Coliseum seating 75,000 people. The military maneuvers and Olympic games will also be held in the stadium. On San Francisco bay motorboats will vie for the world's records before the Harbor View site of the exposition. Noted yachtsmen will sail from Europe across the Atlantic to New York and then through the Panama canal to San Francisco. Personal invitations will be extended to the foreign rulers to attend the exposition if possible or to be represented by their diplomatic representatives in the royal yachts.

The concession and amusement features at the exposition will be among the most striking and original ever displayed. The "Midway" will be located at the Harbor View site of the exposition, the location of the night life of the exposition, and every possible feature that can be conceived as appropriate to an exposition will be shown. The Chinese residents of San Francisco have under way a project for a great Chinese concession which will be surrounded by a replica of the great wall of China, including within its environs a series of Chinese communities and embracing every possible feature of interest in Chinese life from the manufacture of silks and ivory and woodcarving to sampans and junks floating on miniature waterways and itself one may look out over the bay through the Golden Gate to the Pacific ocean. At night Harbor View will be brilliantly illuminated with incandescents, Finson lights and waterfall illuminations. A chain of lights will stretch across the Golden Gate, the international fleet of battleships in the harbor will be illuminated, a huge commemorative structure towering 1,300 feet above the Golden Gate will be surmounted by a searchlight, and its outlines will be lined with incandescents. In fact, the contours of the exposition site will be visible for miles away.

The west will be on exhibition to those who view the Panama-Pacific inand will be visible in detail to passengers on ships entering the Golden Gate.

The site of the exposition takes every advantage of the combination of harbor and hills that give San Francisco its chief charm. The main features of the exposition will be located at Harbor View, on San Francisco bay midway between the ferry building and the Golden Gate, and the permanent buildings to remain after the exposition is over will be erected in the west end of Golden Gate park, which fronts on the Pacific ocean. These sites and intermediate locations will be connected by a marine boulevard that sweeps from Harbor View through the Presidio to the Golden Gate and then turns south to Golden Gate park. A trackless trolley will take visitors over this magnificent scenic boulevard from Harbor View through the military reservation at the Presidio, where the government is planning a wonderful military display, to Golden Gate park, and one admission will include entrance to both features. The site expresses the maritime character of the great celebration. In harmony with the exposition San Francisco itself will be an exposition city in 1915. The parks and water front of the city will be improved at an expenditure of millions of dollars, and the ferry building, the main entrance to San Francisco, will be adorned with a grand court of honor. Market street and Van Ness avenue, the two main thoroughfares of San Francisco, each running from the bay and meeting in a V in the heart of the city, will be decorated with days. Great saengerfests in which the choral societies of foreign countries participate will be held upon the exposition grounds.

The Panama-Pacific International exposition will open with a pageant in San Francisco harbor of the battleships of the navies of the world. The foreign vessels will first assemble at Hampton Roads, where, joined by ships of the American navy, the entire fleet will be reviewed by the president of the United States and foreign dignitaries. This fleet, the largest ever assembled, will then proceed through the Panama canal to the harbor at San Francisco, where it will participate in the most spectacular naval demonstration ever witnessed. San Francisco in 1915 will see the flags of more nations than have ever been brought together in one place at any one time. From unofficial assurances now received it is anticipated that 100 foreign battleships in addition to those of the United States navy will be gathered in San Francisco harbor.

A huge commemorative edifice, in purport like Bartholdi's statue of Liberty, will welcome vessels from afar. The structure, to be known as the St. Francis Memorial tower, will be 850 feet in height, with a base 220 feet square. The shaft will be eighty-five feet square, with corners rounded, and of steel construction and terra cotta veneering. The approximate cost of the tower will be $1,000,000. From its summit the sightseer will look almost straight down upon the waters of the Golden Gate, 1,300 feet below.

portraying the life of the river dwellers around Canton. The concession will cost $1,000,000, and influential Chinese with American attorneys and engineers will shortly leave for the orient. From Nevada concessionaires will establish a rip-roaring mining camp, picturing the days of '49 and the bonanza era of the Comstock lode. Bret Harte's heroes, old Wells Fargo stage drivers, gamblers and gambling, bad men, prospectors, shootings and holdups will lend a realistic touch to the camp.

But the chief charm of Harbor View for most people will lie in its setting in San Francisco bay. As the crowd files the site extends along the water front for about a mile, but following the irregular contours of the shore the distance is more than that. Along the entire water's edge at Harbor View will be built an esplanade, or bund, along which visitors may walk, and in existing lagoons will be made the basis of a superb yacht harbor. Classic columns will rise from the water's edge, and near by will be the great exposition structures, the Palace of Liberal Arts, the educational building, the manufactures building and other edifices that house the more serious phases of the exposition, as distinguished from the amusement features. Harbor View lies as an amphitheater, with its sides the wooded slopes of the Presidio and the tenanted hills of San Francisco. It is near the most populous part of the city and is not more than twenty minutes' walk from Nob Hill, where lived the multimillionaires of California's early mining days. Looking down from the hills one can see all over the Harbor View site, while from Harbor View international exposition in 1915. Under the stimulus of cheap railroad rates and convenient traffic arrangements thousands will have an opportunity that they could have in no other way to know their own country better. Side excursions to the Yosemite, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, the Yellowstone National park, the Redwoods of the north coast of California, the big trees of the Sierras on the approach to the Yosemite, the side trip to Alaska by the inland channel, will be parts of the delightful and educative features of a visit to the exposition.

Routing over any of the eight transcontinental roads that terminate upon the Pacific coast will enable the traveler to come by one route and return by another. Visits to the slopes of Puget sound and the great fast growing cities there, the Great Salt lake, the Santa Clara valley, with its prairies of flowers; the orange orchards stretching from the northern portion of the state to Los Angeles; Redlands, Riverside and San Diego and the journey through the Panama canal, either coming or returning, perhaps most wonderful of all, will be among the unusual opportunities of 1915, to see much of the world at a moderate expenditure and under conditions never before obtained. When the Panama canal is in operation ships will negotiate the journey between Atlantic and Pacific coast ports in less than three weeks' time.

his arms: "I promise. If you'll really marry me."

"Oh, I'll marry you, sir, but not really."
And while he stared in helpless awe at the cynic and mercurial that jealousy had metamorphosed this timid, clinging creature into, they heard the conductor's voice at the rear door of the car: "Hurry up—we've got to start."

They heard Lathrop's protest: "Hold on there, conductor," and Selby's plea: "Oh, I say, my good man, wait a moment, can't you?"

The conductor answered with the gruffness of a despot: "Not a minute. I've my orders to make up lost time. All aboard!"

While the minister was tying the last loose ends of the matrimonial knot, Mallory and Marjorie were struggling through the crowd to get at him. Just as they were near, they were swept aside by the rush of the bride and groom, for the parson's "I pronounce you man and wife," pronounced as he backed toward the door, was the signal for another wedding riot.

Once more Ira and Anne were showered with rice. This time it was their own. Ira darted out into the corridor, haling his brand-new wife by the wrist, and the wedding guests pursued them across the vestibule, through the next car, and on, and on.

Nobody remained to notice what happened to the parson. Having performed his function, he was without further interest or use. But to Mallory and Marjorie he was vitally necessary.

Mallory caught his hand as it turned the knob of the door and drew him back. Marjorie, equally determined, caught his other elbow:

"Please don't go," Mallory urged, "until you've married us."

The Reverend Charles stared at his captors in amazement:

"But my dear man, the train's moving."

Marjorie clung all the tighter and invited him to "Come on to the next stop."

"But my dear lady," Selby gasped, "it's impossible."

"You've just got to," Mallory insisted.

"Release me, please."

"Never!"

"How dare you!" the parson shrieked, and with a sudden wriggle writhed out of his coat, leaving it in Marjorie's hands. He darted to the door and flung it open, with Mallory hot after him.

The train was kicking up a cloud of dust and getting its stride. The kidnapped clergyman paused a moment, aghast at the speed with which the ground was being paid out. Then he climbed the brass rail and, with a hasty prayer, dropped overboard.

Mallory lunged at him, and seized him by his reversed collar. But the collar alone remained in his clutch. The parson was almost lost in the dust he created as he struck, bounded and rolled till he came to a stop, with his stars and his prayers to thank for injuries to nothing worse than his dignity and other small clothes.

Mallory returned to the observation room and flung the collar and bib to the floor in a fury of despair, howling:

"He got away! He got away!"

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Empty Berth.

The one thing Mallory was beginning to learn about Marjorie was that she would never take the point of view he expected, and never proceed along the lines of his logic.

She had grown furious at him for what he could not help. She had told him that she would marry him out of spite. She had commanded him to pursue and apprehend the flying parson. He failed and returned crest-fallen and wondering what new form her rage would take.

And, lo and behold, when she saw him so downcast and helpless, she rushed to him with caresses, cuddled his broad shoulders against her breast, and smothered him. It was the sincerity of his dejection and the complete helplessness he displayed that won her woman's heart.

Mallory gazed at her with almost more wonderment than delight. This was another flash-light on her character. Most courtships are conducted under a rose-light in which wooer and wooed wear their best clothes on their best behavior; or in a starlit, moonlit, or gaslit twilight where romance softens angles and wraps everything in velvet shadow. Then the two get married and begin to live together in the cold, gray daylight of realism, with undignified necessities and harrowing situations at every step, and disillusion begins its deadly work.

Fresh cranberries this week. The Leader.

This young couple was undergoing all the inconveniences and temper-exposures of marriage without its blessed compensations. They promised to be well acquainted before they were wed. If they still wanted each other after this ordeal, they were pretty well assured that their marriage would not be a failure.

Mallory rejoiced to see that the hurricane of Marjorie's jealousy had only whipped up the surface of her soul. The great depths were still calm and unmoved, and her love for him was in and of the depths.

Soon after leaving Ogden, the train entered upon the great bridge across the Great Salt Lake. The other passengers were staring at the enormous engineering masterpiece and the conductor was pointing out that, in order to save forty miles and the crossing of two mountain chains, the railroad had devoted four years of labor and millions of dollars to stretching a thirty-mile bridge across this inland ocean.

But Marjorie and Mallory never noticed it. They were absorbed in exploring each other's souls, and they had safely bridged the Great Salt Lake which the first big bitter jealousy spreads across every matrimonial route.

They were undisturbed in their voyage, for all the other passengers had their noses flattened against the window panes of the other cars—all except one couple, gazing each at each through time-wrinkled eyelids touched with the magic of a tardy honeymoon.

For all that Anne and Ira knew, the Great Salt Lake was a moon-swept lagoon, and the arid mountains of Nevada which the train went scaling, were the very hillsides of Arcadia.

But the other passengers soon came trooping back into the observation room. Ira had told them nothing of Mallory's confession. In the first place, he was a man who had learned to keep a secret, and in the second place, he had forgotten that such persons as Mallory or his Marjorie existed. All the world was summed up in the fearsomely happy little spinster who had moved up into his section—the section which had begun its career draped in satin ribbons unwittingly prophetic.

The communion of Mallory and Marjorie under the benison of reconciliation was invaded by the jokes of the other passengers, unconsciously ironic.

Dr. Temple chaffed them amiably: "You two will have to take a back seat now. We've got a new bridal couple to amuse us."

And Mrs. Temple welcomed them with: "You're only old married folks, like us."

The Mallories were used to the misunderstanding. But the misplaced witticisms gave them reassurance that their secret was safe yet a little while. At their dinner-table, however, and in the long evening that followed they were haunted by the fact that this was their last night on the train, and no minister to be expected.

And now once more the Mallories regained the star roles in the esteem of the audience, for once more they quarreled at good-night-kissing time. Once more they required two sections, while Anne Gattie's berth was not even made up. It remained empty, like a deserted nest, for its occupant had flown south.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Fresh Trouble Daily.

The following morning the daylight creeping into section number one found Ira and Anne staring at each other. Ira was tousled and Anne was unkempt, but her blush still gave her cheek at least an Indian summer glow.

After a violent effort to reach the space between her shoulder blades, she was compelled to appeal to her new master to act as her new maid.

"Oh, Mr. Lathrop," she stammered—"Ira," she corrected, "won't you please book me up?" she pleaded.

Ira beamed with a second childhood boyishness: "I'll do my best, my little ootsum-tootsums, it's the first time I ever tried it."

"Oh, I'm so glad," Anne sighed, "it's the first time I ever was booked up by a gentleman."

He gurgled with joy and, forgetting the poverty of space, tried to reach her lips to kiss her. He almost broke her neck and bumped his head so hard that instead of saying, as he intended, "My darling," he said, "Oh, hell!"

"Ira!" she gasped. But he, with all the proprietorship he had assumed, answered cheerily: "You'll have to get used to it, ducky darling. I could never learn not to swear." He proved the fact again and again by the remarks he addressed to certain refractory hooks. He apologized, but she felt more like apologizing for herself.

Oscar Graham Coming.

"The Stumbling Block," which is the title of the production in which Oscar Graham and his company are appearing this season has been widely criticized as one of the most wholesome, most uplifting and inspiring plays of modern times. When Mr. Graham presented his beautiful college Indian drama, "A Prince of His Race," and later his western classic, "Circle C Ranch," he firmly established himself as a favorite among theatre patrons. Both these plays were warmly received because they were clean, moral, high class and excellently staged. In "The Stumbling Block" there is presented an exquisite theme coupled with an inspiring moral. In the story's fabric is interwoven a thread of pure, delightful comedy. As Mr. Graham's company is made up of artists who have been associated with him for four straight seasons, it is safe to say that the acting will be commendably artistic. "The Stumbling Block" will be at the Opera House, Wednesday, Oct. 23.
