Mrs. Reid Arm Broken.

Mrs. J. W. Reid is suffering from a broken arm received Friday evening when the car turned over three miles east of town.

The family was out riding, and came to a gap in the fence, where no wire had been stretched for several months. Mr. Reid had been through the place a number of times and had never seen it closed, but slowed up for passing through. Just as the car came to the gap, he saw the wire, but the car was going at a sufficient speed to turn over when it hit the wire fence. Mrs. Reid was the only one to be injured, her arm being broken at the elbow, which makes a very bad wound. She is recovering as nicely as could be expected.

Safe Farming and Live Stock THE GREAT PROBLEM which confronts our nation this year is that of producing sufficient foodstuffs to feed our own people and contribute to the world's markets. INCREASED PRODUCTION depends upon the farmer's recognition and observance of the basic principles of safe farming. SAFE FARMING necessitates the maintenance of live stock to offset the soil depletion of constant cropping. FARMERS are invited to discuss these matters in detail with our Officers. ANURIC!

The Newest Discovery in Chemistry.

This is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, who is head of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that there is no other eliminator of uric acid that can be compared to it. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, lumbago, it's simply wonderful how surely "Anuric" acts. The best of results are always obtained in cases of acute rheumatism in the joints, in gravel and gout, and invariably the pains and stiffness which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear.

Go to your nearest drug store and simply ask for a 50-cent package of "Anuric," which is 37 times more potent than lithia to eradicate uric acid, or even write Dr. Pierce for a large trial package (10c).

YES! LIFT A CORN OFF WITHOUT PAIN!

Cincinnati authority tells how to dry up a corn or callus so it lifts off with fingers.

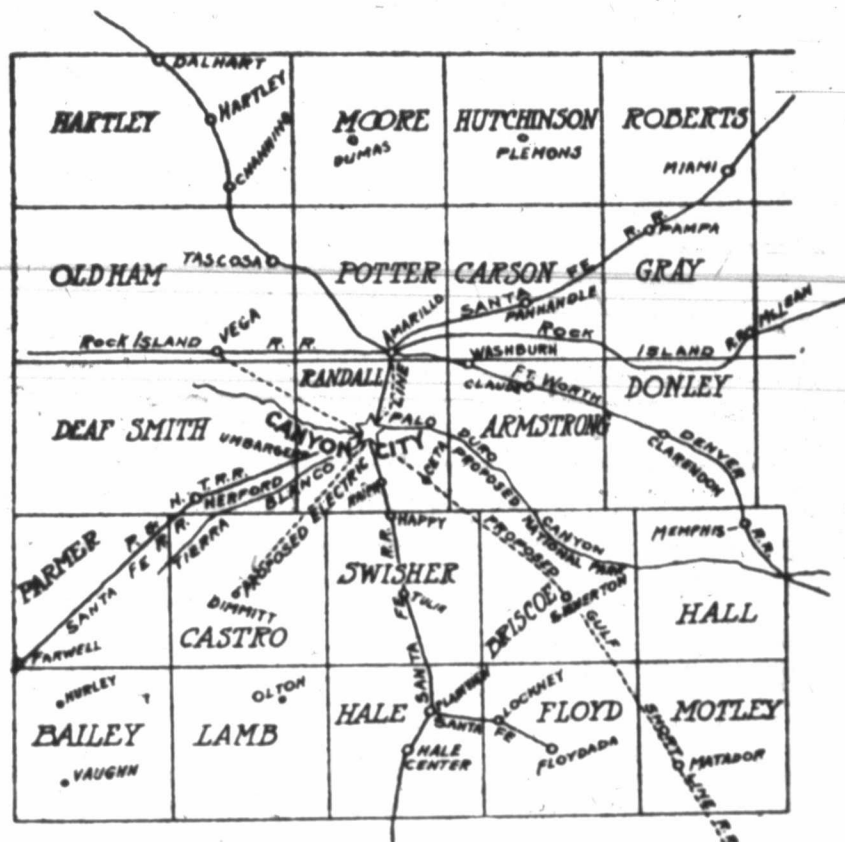

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezeone applied directly on a tender, aching corn or callus, stops soreness at once and soon the corn or hardened callus loosens so it can be lifted out, root and all, without pain. A small bottle of freezeone cost very little at any drug store, but will positively take off every hard or soft corn or callus. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to irritate the surrounding skin.

If your druggist hasn't any freezeone tell him to get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house. It is fine stuff and acts like a charm every time.

The Storks Arrival

What a world of love the baby brings! Thousands of women for over three generations awaiting motherhood have themselves given nature a helping hand by the daily use of the time-honored external preparation, "Mother's Friend". By its regular use the tendons and ligaments are made elastic and the tendency to morning sickness is avoided. Stretching and bearing down pains usually are not felt and the muscles relax easily when baby arrives. Do not go a single night without applying it. By assisting nature, the crisis is one of less pain and danger. Ask for a bottle of "Mother's Friend" at your druggist's today and write for valuable book brimful of information, "Motherhood and the Baby". It is free. Address The Bradford Regulator Co., Dept. Go West, Young Man.

Horace Greeley immortalized his name when he said, "Go West young man and grow up with the country." He merely touched a chord that is ready to vibrate in every ambitious man, and it has been the case from the beginning of things on this continent. Action is born in the bones and they want new fields and new opportunities. It was the incentive of Daniel Boone's entry into the Kentucky wilderness. It was the spirit that prompted our grandfathers to cross the great "Father of Waters" and settle upon the trackless prairies.

The Texas Panhandle is the one new great West full of promise left in our great country and it is no wonder that we are engaging the attention of people all over the continent.

Greeley followed his own advice and founded Greeley, Colo., now one of the most prosperous cities of the Plains, surrounded by productive farms and a happy prosperous people. Take his advice and go West while yet opportunity is open. The last great West will soon be a thing of the past. Quit renting and get a home of your own. Take advantage of the cheap railroad rates to see the largest body of cheap but fertile land in the United States.

An Invitation To Strangers.

The citizens of Canyon and the County of Randall know that they live in a great country filled with opportunities for the energetic farmer and business man and they can therefore invite the outside world to come and investigate the great possibilities. They know that conscientious investigation is all that is needed in order to convince even the most conservative. Drones are not in the class which is wanted—the people here are wide-awake and believe in getting up and doing things. The invitation is to those who want to prosper.

By and by it will not be possible to talk treason anywhere except in the United States, Senate.—Kansas City Times.

A Monstrous Thing.

If you should be found dropping bright-colored caudies, containing a deadly poison, where the children of your neighbors would be sure to find them and eat them, what would be thought of your sanity? Is there an alienist in the world who would not convict you of possessing an abnormal, monstrous, crooked mind? This being the case what is to be thought of the Pressian military policy and the men who obey it by scattering poisoned bombons from airplanes among the forlorn, half-starved little children behind the lines. Even the little son of the Roumain queen was one of these victims. He picked up one of the gayly-colored sugar plums of death and died in frightful agonies before his mother's eyes.

What of a military power that can make war in this way? Can the world tolerate it?

Hog Raising Profitable.

Ever since an attempt has been made to raise hogs in this Panhandle country it has been an acknowledged fact that it presented the greatest profit that has ever been shown in any country. Not only are the feeds raised here of the best feeding value but the hogs are free from disease, an item which will be readily appreciated by any hog raiser. The meat is of such fine quality and the animals fed upon milo maize and kafir-corn of such uniform weight and size that they always bring the top prices when sold on the market. Randall county has many hog feeders who are making money very rapidly. They have always continued in the business after starting.

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX CLOTHES ARE ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED TO SATISFY

At a time when every dollar you spend ought to be looked at twice before you part with it, just remember that you ought to look more than twice at what you are going to get for it

Hart Schaffner & Marx have based their whole buisness on the belief that all wool is best for mens and young mens clothing; that cotton mixtures, though some what cheaper, are not economy.

They have maintained a strict all wool standard in spite of steadily rising costs of all wool, in the face of the clamor for cheaper clothes, we know that the men and young men of America share this belief that all-wool is the best; is real economy.

Good clothes like every thing else, cost more than they formerly cost, but if all-wool is best and cheapest in the long run, you ought to have it. It means more style, more service, more satisfaction. Its worth the price

In spite of the War the weavers of England, Scotland, Ireland, and America have supplied the wool goods for these clothes.

We believe we are upholding and strengthening the call for economy in offering these all wool clothes, with an unlimited guarantee of satisfaction

Randall County Fishing.

The two running streams in Randall county offer fine sport in fishing. All along both of these streams there are deep holes of water in which there abound large numbers of bass, trout, perch and catfish. A number have already been caught this year weighing from four to six pounds while two pound bass are too numerous to keep up with. In the fall and winter large numbers of duck and wild geese are to be found upon the lakes and streams making that class of hunting very fine sport. Other game is to be found in their respective seasons, but in the season thousands upon thousands of ducks and geese are to be found upon any of the lakes and streams.

Sweet Clover.

By Dr. Vernon G. Cooke in Western Farm Life

This article on white sweet clover (Melilotus Alba) is written especially for the semi-arid regions where the rainfall is often conspicuous by its absence. It is impossible to apply fixed rules relative to what should be done in a country which has so varied climatic conditions as the United States, and especially in dry regions. But using judgment and common sense will enable many to gather valuable ideas and important information from articles which seemingly do not apply to their conditions. Many active agriculturists do not look far enough ahead when they either are (as they should be sometimes) planning, or doing their work. Too many of us are prone to expect immediate results, that is we plan to plow, harrow and seed so many acres and let it go at that; we do not usually look any farther ahead than the immediate season but repeat the operation year after year, overlooking what is of supreme importance, that we may in normal times be making a living yet are not getting an adequate return for labor and capital.

We know that if we have a certain amount of money in a bank it is sure to become exhausted if we keep drawing sums out and spending it, but if we add various sums to our banking account the original sum grows. This in another way is the exact situation of a farmer—the soil is his bank and if he treats it right it will increase in value in two ways. First it will thru good crops pay big interest on the cash value of the land and at the same time the land increases in value thru the large crops it produces, therefore it behooves the farmer to consider well how to permanently improve his land, and at the same time get crops that pay for work expended. The farmer in these dry regions where it was once said crops could not be raised has a most wonderfully fertile soil; fertility which has been accumulating for centuries. Now, this fertility is not always immediately available for growing crops unless certain chemical changes take place in the soil to set it free for the plant to use.

Crops and cultivation use up our humus, and soil deficient in humus will not hold a maximum amount of moisture. Without moisture we cannot dissolve the latent fertility in the land and, as the organic matter in semi-arid soils is small, we can readily understand that, unless we supply organic matter to the land, we are handicapping ourselves by taking a long chance of getting a crop short of the season be dry.

One of the best ways to improve our land, and that, too, in more ways than one, is to rotate our crops with white sweet clover. And before I enlarge upon this really wonderful plant would ask my readers not to condemn it from what they have heard or read, but to give two seasons of trial in this crop. All important and big things in this world were "knocked" at their initiation and some day white sweet clover will be valued at its true worth.

White sweet clover will grow like rye with poor treatment, but responds to good treatment. Therefore it pays to plow and prepare our land well and put it in as good shape as possible. Soil plowed deep, eight inches or more, properly harrowed and packed (not packed when wet) will raise good crops of clover. It is far more satisfactory to raise good crops and just as easy as raising poor ones. Unhulled seed is preferable to sow in the fall or winter. We must make an allowance for the fact that some of the unhulled seed will not germinate the first season, if at all due, to immature seed and sometimes extra hard covering which the season may not affect. The amount of seed per acre varies; that is, quality, texture and condition of the land must be considered as well as visibility and percentage of germination. Twenty-five to thirty pounds sown broadcast early in the fall is considered good.

Then the question arises. When should we sow in the spring?

We suggest that the land, if not plowed in the fall, which we prefer, be plowed as early in the spring as work permits. If ground is in good condition to do good plowing, and it should be, harrow if possible with small harrow attachment to the plow. Watch for weeds and keep these out of sight by cultivation. Sow end of May or beginning of June, or in other words sow when experience and judgment tell you your real steady growing weather has set in. Many will prefer, if ground is ready, to sow earlier. Undoubtedly good stands of clover can sometimes be gotten by sowing earlier. But by sowing as suggested above, we with a little extra work get rid of millions of weeds, thereby improving our land for future crops, and what is of supreme importance, are not likely to have any frost or a cold snap to interfere with the RAPID GROWTH of our young plants, as our moist soil will be warm and conditions should be ideal for a splendid stand of clover minus weeds. Sow with a press wheel drill, six to ten pounds per acre of hulled seed.

We are not intending any hit-or-miss proposition, but have made up our minds to get as perfect a stand as possible; that is, a stand that will be free from weeds and thick enough so that our hay (if we make our crop into hay) is not coarse; and we must recollect that if used as pasture, stock prefer fine herbage to that which is coarse and woody.

The beginning of this article spoke of farmers not looking ahead quite as much as they should sometimes. When we plan our work, if we plan as we should, we should ask ourselves the question as to what extent the growing crops deteriorate our land. White sweet clover is and will be recognized as a wonder plant. Why? The second year it dies (it is a biennial), and leaves in the soil an immense amount of dead roots, organic matter which in time decays and becomes humus. This humus improves our land in many ways. It changes the texture of heavy clay and gumbo soils, has a strong tendency to prevent much land baking, changes the texture of our light sandy soils and helps prevent drifting or blowing; helps keep moisture in the soil, thereby saving many a crop of fall wheat from dying thru lack of moisture.

Usually it is said when winter wheat is more or less dead in the spring it has winter killed, intimating cold weather killed it. An immense amount of winter wheat is killed thru the soil drying out, and the winter gets the blame. The humus of the dead roots of sweet clover prevents this, by helping to hold moisture in the soil.

The finest potatoes in the world can be raised on much of our semi-arid soils after white sweet clover. Dry seasons do not affect our crops so much when the land is used after sweet clover. In fact, I am afraid to eulogize this plant very much more because it will be harder to make my readers believe what I have written, but having, I think, said firstly and secondly, will say thirdly that no one can go wrong by rotating his crops with white sweet clover. Neither need he worry about having to rotate as a hard and fast rule just so often and so on. Judgment must be used, inasmuch as in some favorable seasons a very large amount of roots will be made, followed by more or less dry seasons which will prevent rapid decomposition of plant roots. But when we consider how we improve our soil in so many ways with this nitrogenous plant, first cousin to alfalfa, that grows practically anywhere, where alfalfa will not grow, can be pastured (if common sense is used) without danger of bloat, pays for itself the first season and keeps on paying by improved crops long after it is dead, surely we should at least give the subject some consideration and study.

When it was suggested some years ago that alfalfa could be raised by means of irrigation in a state not a thousand miles from Colorado the majority said, "impossible." Yet today alfalfa is producing magnificent crops in that state practically everywhere, with water. No one would be foolish enough to deny alfalfa, for alfalfa responds magnificently when water is used and is the irrigator's stand-by. I hereby assert without fear of contradiction that when we understand more about white sweet clover, how to properly prepare our land, when to sow (you cannot sow) it anywhere and everywhere at such a fixed time, how to sow, amount of seed per acre suitable to individual conditions, that we have a plant that will solve many of our dry farming problems and will be the equal of alfalfa to the man who is farming with what moisture falls upon his land. Yes, I will go one step farther. I believe white sweet clover is a better plant to raise on a dry farm than alfalfa, because it will respond much more rapidly to adverse conditions than alfalfa will, and gives much quicker returns thru its special ability to adapt itself anywhere and everywhere. This plant is well worth the serious study of both the irrigator to prepare his land for maximum crops of alfalfa and those who dry farm thru intensive methods of conservation of moisture.

The good roads and excellent climate make Randall County an ideal place for the use of automobiles, both for business and pleasure. There are about 400 cars owned in Canyon. They can be used the year round, and during winter there is not a time with the exception of a few stormy days, that it is not a pleasure to take a spin through the country.

All of Randall County is underlaid with sheet water, which guarantees a never failing well at any spot where one would desire to sink it! The water is pure, soft and cool, and exists in inexhaustible quantities at a depth of 30 to 100 feet. Randall County belongs in the shallow water belt of the Plains.

The water supply of Canyon is wonderful. The water is mighty good, too. Even from the deepest wells, the water in Canyon is very soft. There is not a better drinking water under the sun.

About Dividing Texas.

Much is being said and written of late about dividing the grand old state of Texas into two states, north and west Texas cutting loose from the southern and eastern portions of the state and going into the state business on its own hook. Very little representation and a great deal of misrepresentation are the direct causes which brought up the discussion. It is claimed that we in this portion of the state would be free from the evil influences and unfair legislation of the professional politicians who control the legislature and senate and that our tax money would be used in building up home institutions instead of being wasted in attempts to educate the negroes and paying salaries to useless state employees. A division would bring about some improvement in the matter of the expenditure of public funds, but we could never get rid of the professional politician. While we would free ourselves from one bunch of notoriously bad ones, yet the minute the news went abroad that the new state was to be formed, politicians out of a job from every state in the union would flock in here and begin a systematic campaign for places at the pie counter. And many of them will land, too. Professional politicians are a curse, the same as bootleggers and other peddlers, and they would figure conspicuously in a new state just as they do in the old. Another thing, and one which speaks volumes for the new state idea, is the fact that the legislation which concerns the people of south and east Texas is of no importance to north and west Texas. Laws which benefit the one will work a hardship on the other, and as south and east Texas out-vote us about 100 to 1, they get the benefits and we get the hardships. If such a thing as dividing the state, which the Headlight favors but considers impossible at this time, should happen, we would like to see the constitution of the new state provide: That no one could hold office in the state without he has been a resident thereof for a period of twenty years; that women vote, hold office and ride horse-back the same as men; that this be a bone dry state (referring to intoxicants); that no "culled puhson" be allowed to own land within this state and that the capital be located at Amarillo.—Hansford Headlight.

Soon after taking charge of the Herald, we began an agitation of this question, but at that time it seemed so unpopular with both press and public, that we shut up, knowing that time would some day bring up the question of division, when the people of West Texas get tired of being the second fiddler for Cinderella. We even went so far as to agitate a debate of the question between some school boys, and this editor don't deny coaching the boys who affirmed that Texas should be divided and they won, despite all the sentimentality that could be infused in the negative side. Now that the subject is becoming real popular with the press and public, we believe that the subject should be kept up, till like the saloons, West Texas can get rid of the boss end of the State.—Brownfield Herald.

More and more of the papers of the Panhandle and Northwest Texas are falling into line on the proposition of the division of Texas. Some or them that criticized Senator Johnson most severely when he first brought the matter up two years ago are now crying for a division.—Hall County Herald.

The News venture the statement that just about as many of the papers of the section named reach our exchange table as go to that of the Herald, and we can't recall one—outside the Herald—that advocates any such division. We ask the Herald to name one. The News is against any such proposition for several reasons, the two cardinal ones being that the capitol building would add greatly to already heavy taxes and would, in justice to all concerned, have to be located in the central part of the new State, and the bulk of taxes for government would fall on the Panhandle. The other is that it would materially increase freight rates to our nearest seaport. About the only thing a division would do to benefit any one would be to give a bunch of lame ducks lucrative positions.—Claude News.

Mr. Lloyd George seems to have been getting his American history out of our school text-books.—Boston Transcript.

To the Man Who is Thinking Of Buying a Home

The Last Opportunity for owning a home at a moderate price in the GREAT TEXAS PANHANDLE is fast passing

Farm lands have advanced 50 per cent during this year, and in view of the present prices of all farm products guaranteed and assured by the Government, and being engaged in war means that the purchasing power of the mighty dollar has very materially decreased in all commodities of exchange except land.

The reasonable conclusion of all thinking men is that land values will seek the high level of products of the farm.

In view of the above facts don't you think it would be wise discretion on your part to buy a home ahead of the big advance in land which is sure to come within the next few years, and be able to enjoy that independent feeling of security that you have your posterity provided for.

We own, control and have the exclusive sale of thousands of acres of choice farming land in Randall and adjoining counties, both improved and unimproved that we are offering for sale to actual settlers for from $15.00 to $30.00 per acre, a large per cent cash, balance ten equal annual payments at 7 per cent.

TEXAS STATE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE DAY

MONDAY, OCT. 15, SET ASIDE BY STATE FAIR OF TEXAS FOR MEETING.

EXPECT 1,500 DELEGATES

With Branch Councils in 210 Counties and Low Railroad Rates to Dallas a Large Attendance is Assured—Patriotism is Key Note.

Monday, October 15th, has been designated as the date for the meeting at the State Fair of Texas of the Texas State Council of Defense.

The Texas Council is a branch of the National Council of Defense, and has been largely instrumental in making successful the work of this national organization.

The Texas Council has branches in 210 counties of the State of Texas, these county members being appointed by the County Judges. Seven delegates have been appointed from each of these counties, and it is expected that between 1500 and 2000 representatives of the Council will be on hand for the special meeting to be held at the State Fair.

President R. E. L. Knight of the State Fair is a member of the State and National Councils, and is giving personal attention to arrangements for the meeting at the State Fair.

Mr. Knight recently went to Washington to confer with officers of the National Association in an effort to procure one or more nationally known men to attend the State Council meeting and deliver addresses upon the present war situation.

At the meeting of the State Council plans for the future work of the organization will be outlined and reports will be made upon the activities up to that date.

As the year 1917 is known as Patriotism Year of the State Fair of Texas, it was deemed fitting that the meeting of the State Council of Defense should be held during the early days of the Fair, in order that impetus might be given the patriotic movement. Every effort will be put forth during the Fair to impress upon the patrons of the Fair the need of patriotic service to their country, especially at this time. Many novel plans have been arranged to carry this message of patriotism to the hundreds of thousands of people who will throng the Fair Grounds, and no opportunity will be lost to impress the theme upon everyone who attends.

Instructions will be issued that every musical program played during the State Fair shall include patriotic numbers. Flags of the Allies will be mingled in profusion throughout the grounds. Every building will be decorated with the flags of the United States and the Allied nations, and decorative effects throughout the Fair will show the allied colors.

"It seems entirely appropriate that the Texas State Council of Defense should hold its meeting at the State Fair of Texas," President Knight said. "The State Fair has this year been dedicated to the service of the United States Government to be used in any manner which those in authority deem best and wisest. The Texas State Council of Defense has also given its services to the Government to aid the United States during this war. With missions wherein there is so much unity of purpose, it is fitting that the council should come together within the gates of the State Fair."

"An additional incentive for a meeting in Dallas during the Fair will be the cheap transportation rates in effect at that time. Because of the Fair all roads will grant low rates and members of the various county councils will not be put to any heavy expense to attend the convention."

"At this meeting it will be the purpose of the State Council to hear a report of the work, which has been done up to that time, and to discuss plans for future efforts. The State Council has accomplished much up to this date, far more perhaps than the general public realizes. Composed in general of the leading citizens in the various counties of the State, the influences exerted have been far-reaching."

Buy-It-Made-in-Texas Exhibit.

The "Buy-It-Made-in-Texas" Association has selected Monday, October 22nd, as its special day at the State Fair of Texas, October 13-28, and members of the Association from all parts of Texas will be present. The Association is planning to have an extensive exhibit at the Fair showing the products of this State and demonstrating why Texas people should spend their money for goods made within the borders of their own state.

A cotton mill complete in every detail will be in operation in connection with the "Buy-It-Made-in-Texas" exhibit. Several of the largest mills of the State will cooperate with the Association to erect and operate this plant. The manufacture of all kinds of cotton goods will be shown and explained in detail.

WHAT WILL YOU DO TOWARD SOLDIERS TOBACCO FUND?

Very few people in Canyon have taken any interest in the Tobacco Fund for our Soldiers who are in France, fighting our battles.

The Tobacco Fund is urged by the leaders of the army as an excellent way to assist the boys in their work. Men who have used tobacco for a number of years find it a great consolation in the hard tasks of the training camps of France, where it is next to impossible to buy tobacco. Will you not help a little? Only 25c will keep a man in tobacco. Only 25c will keep a man in tobacco.

This is possible from the fact that the wholesale tobacco dealers have agreed to furnish the tobacco without profit.

You men who smoke—why not cut out a few cigars and send the money to the boys who are fighting for you across the water.

The News will sent all money left at our office directly to the fund, every penny of which goes to the men in France.

DIZZY SPELLS

Relieved After Taking Two Bottles Of Cardui, Says Tennessee Lady.

Whitwell, Tenn.—Mrs. G. P. Cartwright, of this place, writes: "About four years ago the dizzy spells got so bad that when I would start to walk I would just pretty near fall. I wasn't past doing my work, but was very much run-down."

I told my husband I thought Cardui would help me, as a lady who lived next door to me had taken a great deal. I told me to try it. This was when we were living in Kentucky.

My husband got me a bottle and I took it according to directions. It helped me so much that he went back and got me another bottle. I got a whole lot better and just quit taking it. I got over the dizzy spells. I took no other medicine at that time for since for this trouble. No, I've never regretted taking Cardui.

I felt just fine when I finished the second bottle. Purely vegetable, mild and gentle in its action, Cardui, the woman's tonic, may be the very medicine you need. If you suffer from symptoms of female troubles, give Cardui a trial. All druggists.

Died On His Wagon.

Frank Van Bergen, a freighter from Boise City, Okla., to the railroad, died on his wagon as he was camped for the night. He was a bright, well-educated young man and had a good income from property in Cleveland, Ohio, but was addicted to strong drink. At the time of his death he had a bottle of medicine containing morphine which he had filled at Clayton and about two-thirds of which was gone and is the supposition that he had taken an overdose of it.

HOME OF C. O. KEISER IN CANYON, TEXAS

Go Southwest.

By Albert Johnson.

Where to find the largest returns from his labor and the nearest approach to independence has been the problem of mankind for many ages. That problem is turned over in the minds of a multitude of Americans every day, and in too many cases is left unanswered. I believe the solution, in a general way, is to get onto the land. Become a producer instead of a consumer.

The Panhandle offers a safe haven for tens of thousands who may wish to become land owners. And the only way one should desire to get on the land is as an owner. Never be content to labor on another's farm. Get in the forefront and enjoy the full fruitage of your toil. Go to that newest section of the country, that last frontier, where excellent land still is within your reach, and buy a home.

Month after month, as I have traveled through Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Colorado and other places, I have marveled at the apparent independence and absolute contentment of the energetic farmers that have been filling the farms. Wherever a man is found who is willing to work every day in the year, Sundays excepted, from reasonably early in the morning until the approach of dusk, there is found a man who is fast piling up a comfortable competence for the days when age comes creeping on.

When I see the difference in returns for the same amount of labor expended on the farm and in the factory there is the wonder in my mind that there is anybody left to keep the factory machinery going. Of course, not all of us are suited for farming, else there would be no consuming class, but there is no reason why the man who leans toward agriculture should not follow that vocation with great profit these days.

In the first place, there is a vast army of renting farmers in those states where values have reached a high point that should get homes before the days of cheap land are over. There is just one reason why the lands in the southwest are cheap, and that is because they still are thinly settled. There has thus far been a lack of demand for them in sufficient quantities to squeeze the price up. But each year sees that demand increasing, and the land prices increase in just the same proportion. The inevitable law of supply and demand is at work.

These renters are in many instances paying cash rental for a single year as large as would the complete purchase price of one of those southwest farms. Think of it, and resolve to pay that sum next year for your own farm, then when the crop is garnered you will not have to realize that you have nothing left to show for the money. It is a foolhardy thing to pay for rent as much money as it would take to buy a good farm outright.

Right here I want to go on record as saying that there is land in some parts of the southwest that can be bought at ridiculously low prices that is just as good as the best some of the so-called corn belt states possess. One need go no further back than the present generation to find men who have seen sections of the country come up from what was declared to be desert wastes to highly productive farms. The younger ones will see the same thing in many parts of the southwest.

Next to the renter we would call the attention of the sons of land owners in the higher priced localities to the excellent opportunity that awaits them in the southwest. Thousands of these are reaching their majority each year and their minds naturally turn to matrimony and a home of their own. Unless they have been pretty fortunate the old home locality offers nothing that they can buy and pay for. To such as these the rich lands of the Southwest appeal most strongly. It offers the choice between ownership and independence and renting and durgery. It is not difficult to tell which will be elected.

Added to these two classes is a third made up of men behind counters and desks, in factory and shop, whose very nature cries out for the land. Many left the farm for city life, believing it held out to them greater opportunity and higher compensation for labor, and now they see the farmer passing them in the race for health. They would like to get back, but they haven't much to buy with. The wide southwest can take care of them. The same is true of a large class of Americanized foreigners, whose life at home was spent in agriculture, but who stopped in the industry centers when they reached this country.

To all these the southwest extends an invitation which no other part of the world can duplicate. Not that the southwest is a bed of roses. I do not want to be misunderstood. If there is anything that would give a man a guilty conscience it would be to mislead a man in search of a home. Such a one is entitled to the best that can be found, and I would try to tell him where that is.

The southwest is not a Garden of Eden. There is no such spot, as it is generally understood, on this mundane sphere. The farmer in the southwest will have battles to fight. If he did not he would not deserve the good things that await him. Nothing is appreciated that is gained without effort. But I claim there is more chance for fortune in the southwest today than in any other part of the country.

The best places in the world are those that have been won by the hardest effort. Many of them were so uninviting that they lay for generations untouched because they offered so little encouragement. Many states that now show the highest land valuations looked like impossibilities a few decades ago. Then what may be expected of the beautiful southwest? In its rawest state most of it is tempting to the eye. It shows before it is touched that it holds wealth in its bosom and every surrounding indicates that it may be extracted with the least possible discomfort.

The days of pioneering are over in the southwest. Civilization is to be found on every hand. There are places, it is true, where neighbors are somewhat scarce, but each year finds the gaps being closed up. And as they are closed the prices of land go up, so it behooves the man who would help tame what is left to get some of it now.

In the big, broad plains of the Panhandle country, tens of thousands of men may find homes where the maximum of content will prevail. This is one place where the man who has been accustomed to life on the prairies will find what he has always known, and he will find that the same products will thrive. Especially does wheat bring returns. All manner of forage crops yield big, and that is just what is wanted, for cattle will ever be one of the main adjuncts of every farm. This whole territory was a wide cattle range only a few years ago, but the farms are rapidly being stocked with the white-faced Hereford which is taking the place of the long-horned steer.

This wide expanse of choice farming land, as large as many states and larger than several, has been the mecca of thousands of seekers after homes in the last few years, but there still remains an untold number of choice sections of land for sale. It is true the big demand has sent the price up, but it is still low enough to make it a highly attractive place. The man who is willing to go there and conform to the conditions under which the soil must be tilled will find it a profitable plea for investment.

Randall county has the greatest scenery in the entire Southwest. Its broad, undulating prairies present a magnificent view while the Palo Duro Canyon offers scenic value that cannot be told in words. Come and see Randall county anyhow. You won't regret it.

The Great Palo Duro canyon just east of Canyon has the most wonderful scenery of any canyon in the world. Before many years the glories of this canyon will be as widely known as those of the Colorado river canyon.

The schools of Randall county are first class. The buildings are all practically new, and the teachers are all well trained. There is not a third grade teacher in the country.

The business men of Canyon are a very courteous bunch of men. They are wide-awake and energetic.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form. Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good. To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building- tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

SHE JUST GOT "MAD VIT IT"

Woman of German Extraction Cured Herself of Disease in a Very Simple Manner.

I once met an elderly woman of German extraction who was pointed out to me as a woman who had cured herself of a chronic disease after suffering a decade or so and "having tried everything." I asked her exactly how she did it, and she said:

"I got mad vit it!"

My curiosity was excited and I made her tell me the whole story, says a writer in the Minneapolis Journal. It seems that one day the full meanness of the infliction that had been upon her for so long, and the injustice of it all, got on her nerves. Suddenly she went mad with the whole situation. The "furor Germanicus" set in. She got up on the ends of her toes, waved her fists and "hollered good." She said it wasn't right and she wouldn't stand it. She knew her rights and she would have them. She demanded to be let alone and told the disease "to get out."

As nearly as I could make out from the story, the disease took one look at her and packed its grip.

Anyhow, she got well from that moment.

AROUND THE WORLD

Rio de Janeiro imports coal. Japan's toy trade is expanding. India is a large producer of peanuts. Japan grows rice on 7,540,000 acres. Bohemia is developing old silver mines. Formosa is a large sugar producer. Norway is developing peat fuel deposits. Haiti will permit land ownership by foreigners. Tonkin, China, coal deposits are to be exploited. French Indo-China is extending sugar cane cultivation.

China's Need—Publicity.

If the Chinese people are awake to their opportunity, they will take a leaf from the book of Japan and establish a publicity organization at home, and better and more useful than that, they will send to the United States a few men who can, by lecturing, speaking, writing and otherwise getting before the public, establish a Chinese propaganda. All the United States needs is to be informed about China, and who should inform them if not the Chinese? The cost would be negligible, and the results incalculable. China needs the right sort of publicity, and needs it more than any other nation in the world. If China does not take steps to put herself and hold herself before the world in this regard China need have no hope for the future. China is done, for no country will voluntarily take up the cause of China—no people. They must be made to think about China—made to! Otherwise they will never think, nor care.—The Far Eastern Review.

Greater Than Gunpowder.

The European war has proven that gasoline is greater than gunpowder. When the German army rushed through Belgium and were almost within sight of Paris thousands of motor vehicles rushed troops to the aid of the French army, turned the tide and made possible the victory of the Marne. We know that Verdun was saved by the timely use of a great fleet of motor trucks. New York's gasoline army of 318,000 cars and over 110,000 professional drivers will be an important asset as an arm of the national defense, says a New York automobile man.

Fruit Cookies.

One cupful brown sugar, one-half cupful butter, one-half cupful rich milk or cream, two well-beaten eggs, two cupfuls sifted flour, one-half cupful currants, one cupful raisins, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one teaspoonful cream tartar and one-half teaspoonful soda. Drop on buttered tins.

To Bead Georgette Crepe.

To bead georgette crepe stamp the pattern to be beaded into a piece of heavy white writing paper, then baste this onto the cloth with little, fine stitches. The pattern can be very plainly followed, and, being on the stiff paper, it is very easy to handle.

Turning Hose on Your Clothes.

Letter From Wm. Younger.

Leon Springs, Texas, Sept. 23. Had the third shot of propylaxix vaccine shot to us yesterday afternoon, so am not feeling as gray this morning as I might. One month has almost gone and I'm still in camp, through the Benzine Board might get me any time.

Was quite interested in reading the Canyon News. It's about the only paper I've had time to read. Have been really studying down here and conscientiously believe I've earned my salary for once in my life anyway.

The class of men down here is the best, I believe, I was ever around. Of course, you find some men that are sorry anywhere you go, but I believe the men here will average with the men anywhere. The professions represented are quite varied as you may note from the men in our squad; 1 lawyer, 1 civil engineer, 1 mine superintendent, 1 banker, 1 Methodist preacher, 1 wholesale merchant and the manager of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co., in Oklahoma. The lawyer is a son of Senator Joe Bailey.

We are sure getting the habit of doing things up to the minute and the more I know about artillery the better I like it.

GREAT EXHIBITION IN ASSOCIATION'S HISTORY

"Bigger, Better and Grander than Ever," fails to tell all the truth about the oncoming fifth annual exposition and show of the Panhandle State Fair...

Forty counties in Northwest Texas have secured space for exhibiting soil products, and it is expected that the management of the fair is expected to be a very great, fertile, productive area...

Asks from the exhibitors, Texas counties, there will be exhibitors from Eastern New Mexico and Western Oklahoma in special classes. The doors have been thrown open, and all who meet the requirements of the rules and regulations committee, are to be admitted...

What the matchless State Fair at Dallas means to Texas as a whole, and incidentally to the Southwest, the Panhandle State Fair is being made to mean to Northwest Texas, Eastern New Mexico and Western Oklahoma. There are no binding, petty restrictions in connection with this expansive exhibitional organization...

When the world was facing an alarming and increasing beef shortage, the most serious of all time, the calf crop cut off by the drench and disease and the fatal blackleg claiming the choicest specimens...

Not from among the much heralded and plutocratic gathering of bacteriologists, basking in the sunshine of public favor and commercial wealth; but from obscurity, on the wings of his own achievement, from the research department of his Alma Mater came the man who shook the medical world and aroused it to the fact that from lack of knowledge it had toyed with danger in its methods of handling the blackleg situation in the past...

It is fortunate that a man of Dr. O. M. Franklin's honor and integrity stands between the cattlemen eager for blackleg protection, and the greed of commercial exploitation, the Germ Free Fluid Vaccine, every dose of which was produced under his supervision...

Is this the attitude of a weavling? No. It is the action of a young giant in whose veins leaps the vibrant blood of able forebears! The Panhandle State Fair will show to the throngs coming here this year that which will startle the admiration of the most stoic and pessimistic.

A few Swedish envoys will soon be trying to find their way home without getting their feet wet.—New York World.

All Plains Interested It is sufficient to say that the Panhandle State Fair is an actuality, and that as a result of a general and unselfish co-operation whose sole limitation is measured by the mete and bounds of the Great Plains Area...

GRAND GATHERING OF FINEST CATTLE IN U. S.

The cattle show has always been one of the main features of this fair and this year will be no exception, as it will be a third larger than ever before. This will undoubtedly be one of the finest cattle shows held in America this year, even surpassing the Royal Show at Kansas City both in numbers and quality of Hereford cattle...

also a goodly number of other breeds already entered. The range cattle show will be bigger and better than heretofore, the management announcing several hundred entries in that division already. Mr. VanNatta has secured a tent 170x90 feet in which to hold the show and the Panhandle Hereford Breeders' sale of pure bred cattle...

THE PANHANDLE STATE FAIR

- FOR YOU CATTLEMAN—"Greatest stock show in the southwest" is what many enthusiastic cowmen said of the splendid stock exhibit last year, and they ought to know. But compared to this year's paralleling of the American Royal Show, last year's show was like a range yearling alongside of a blue-ribboned aristocrat from a coliseum saw-dust arena.
FOR YOU FARMER—Cash and blue ribbons for you as an exhibitor and inspiration and education for you in displays of money-getting crops which are making prosperity for the present and for the future all over the Panhandle.
FOR YOU WOMAN—Beautiful results from successful home-makers over the plains. Whether it's embroidery, knitting for the navy, or pickles which appeal to you and yours, you can't miss entertainment and instruction in these big displays. Valuable special prizes, too, for women who paint china and bake pies like you do.
FOR YOU BANKER—Collateral is ability to pay whether it's on paper or in the man. Methods which are making good collateral for the customers of many Panhandle banks will make a moving panorama during the days of the Panhandle State Fair. You are helping develop these methods. Touch elbows with other men who are.
FOR YOU BUSINESS MAN—Prosperity for the men and women you meet across the counter is prosperity for you. The machines which serve them best and the wares which please them most are being tested out by display at the Panhandle State Fair. Help them and help yourself by finding these new requisites for the needs of your customers.
FOR YOU HOMESEAKER—Certainties from the Men Who Can in the Land of Now. Talk to Old-timers who started on hope and who stayed on grit, who for a quarter century or more have been developing this Great Short Grass country into a prosperous commonwealth which they are most generously proud of. Look at displays of crops which are making bank rolls and buying automobiles for the men who beat you to it a few years. Find out how many, many more places there are for you and for yours in the hospitable counties which are co-operating in men, women and products to make this Panhandle State Fair.
DONT TRY THIS ON YOUR FORD—How'd you like to scoot down in your car on a dizzy grade from a hundred foot tower, then exactly up a grade thirty feet to a jump-off into nothing—just plain nothing? That's exactly what pretty Madame Hurley, of the Dare-Devil Hurleys is going to do every day at the Panhandle State Fair, Amarillo, October 8th to 13th. All she wants is you to come to watch.
N. B.—The other half of the Dare-Devil Hurleys hangs from a trapeze above that thirty-foot drop, and he saves Madame Hurley's life every day. He never misses her yet. That's just one of the features on the big entertainment program at the fair this year.

Dr. O. M. Franklin Coming to Amarillo

When the world was facing an alarming and increasing beef shortage, the most serious of all time, the calf crop cut off by the drench and disease and the fatal blackleg claiming the choicest specimens; when the men on the battle fields of Europe fighting for civilization and the world at war looking to the United States to supply this demand, a man arose from the ranks and plunged the greatest leak in the dyke that conserves the beef supply, he took from the blackleg germ its power of destruction.

Not from among the much heralded and plutocratic gathering of bacteriologists, basking in the sunshine of public favor and commercial wealth; but from obscurity, on the wings of his own achievement, from the research department of his Alma Mater came the man who shook the medical world and aroused it to the fact that from lack of knowledge it had toyed with danger in its methods of handling the blackleg situation in the past and the cattlemen sustained a loss that they should not have been forced to accept.

It is fortunate that a man of Dr. O. M. Franklin's honor and integrity stands between the cattlemen eager for blackleg protection, and the greed of commercial exploitation, the Germ Free Fluid Vaccine, every dose of which was produced under his supervision...

The Kansas Blackleg Serum Company a $150,000 corporation, came into existence and is at this time erecting a $20,000 plant in Amarillo in which this vaccine will be produced.

Amarillo is the center of the cattle raising industry of the Southwest. In this area the actual battles are fought that determined the extent of the beef supply of the world. It is fitting that Dr. O. W. Franklin, the master of the blackleg situation, should come here and take charge of the largest and most important biological laboratory in the Southwest. It is fortunate for the stockmen that Dr. O. M. Franklin, the producer of this vaccine with which the herds of the range have been made safe from blackleg, personally passes on every dose before it is sent out for use.

The Kansas Blackleg Serum Company have adopted a trade mark, a lone star in a circle with the company name and address between the points of the star, and across the star and circle the name of O. M. Franklin, the man who created, developed and perfected the vaccine.

The erection of the Amarillo plant was started on September 18th and will be completed in forty working days by contractor Fred Bone. The building is situated north of the Rock Island tract on block 143 and will be of tile and cement.

A corps of competent field men will be kept busy and no effort will be spared to give to the cattlemen this positive insurance against blackleg.

Dairying-At Hale Center. The dairy business is a proven success in the Hale Center country. As one of the illustrations of that we are pleased to make note of the results obtained by one of our farmers, Harm Koeler, who lives four miles west of town. Through the kindness of Goodlett & Cooley we are enabled to give the following results of Mr. Koeler's cream check. His cream checker for one week amounted to 62 pounds. This cream tested 44 per cent, or 27.2 pounds of butterfat this netted him $10.88. And this was just for one week, too. For a month it would net him $43.52. And this is for the cream alone; he has the skimmed milk to feed to his high priced hogs.—Hale Center Record.

BALANCING THE POULTRY FLOCK.

By B. B. Holland, Asst. Agricultural Agent

The early fall weeks, particularly in September bring the year to a close on the poultry farm. It is the season when the egg production in the flock of yearlings and older hens drops down to a minimum. The birds have practically finished the season of high productivity, and are getting ready for the season of moult the resting period of the fowl. During this time their energies will be largely extended toward making new plumage and building up the broken down parts of the body. At the same season the pullets which have been on the range during the past summer, are rapidly developing and reaching maturity. The cockrels also are reaching mature growth, and will soon be ready for further consideration. Thus, it is that this particular time is a critical one with the farm flock. It is the natural closing of one year and the beginning of another. Because of this fact it is essential that every poultry raiser should consider the balancing of the flock, basing the work on the experiences of the past year, and planning it with a view toward enlarging and developing the size and efficiency of the flock during the coming year.

The balancing of the flock includes all the factors which help to keep the flock in the maximum productive condition throughout the year. In other words the poultry flock is well balanced, if it is so managed as to bring in some profit during every month in the year, if it is so planned as to economize in labor and time, and if it is kept in good health, fed regularly and properly and treated as a business proposition. There are always, on every poultry farm, some birds which add to the income and general economy of the farm materially, while there are others which are merely "boarders," their presence being a detriment to the flock. In a well balanced flock the birds which go to make it up should all be economical and profitable producers.

One of the first steps in developing and maintaining this balance in the poultry flock lies in the culling out of yearlings and older hens that have been through one or more seasons of egg production. It is poor economy to keep through the fall and winter months birds that will probably never again pay for their keep, much less bring in a profit. There are some birds in every flock which, during early fall season, can be picked out not only without lowering the value of the flock, but also with a resulting increase in its efficiency. This general culling should take place now. There is no "cut and dried" process by which you can go through the flock and pick out these birds. The trap nest method is the only sure way in which one can learn the really correct value of each hen in the flock. This method, however, cannot very well be used on the average farm, so it is necessary to depend largely upon external appearances of the birds. Poultrymen have found by studying flocks carefully through many years, that there are certain characteristics to be found in the birds which have been "boarded" in the flock.

Shut the hens in the house some morning when the culling is to be done—catch each bird in the flock. Individual examination is necessary. Discard the hens that have bright yellow shanks and beaks. This applies, of course, to the yellow shanked breed of fowls. Heavy egg production tends to fade out the yellow coloration of the shanks and beaks. The comb is another part to be examined.

The small undeveloped comb is usually indicative of light egg production. This characteristic is more pronounced in the egg breeds, such as Leghorns, Anconas and Minorcas than in heavier types of birds. The progress of the moult is another characteristic to be considered. As a general rule the early moulters are the poorest layers, the better birds continuing their egg production well through September and October before commencing to moult. Cull out the birds that show distinct signs of moulting. The condition of the lay bone of the fowl has been taken by a good many poultrymen as a fairly accurate measure of their egg producing capacity. These bones, also known as the Pelvic bones, should be soft and pliable and with a distance of an inch to an inch and one half between them. In the poor layer these bones will usually be found to be sharp, hard and very close together. Another important factor which should be taken into consideration in culling out these birds is the size and weight of the bird. In most cases the hens which are kept will be used as breeders, therefore, bear in mind that the small, light weight birds should be marketed. It is an excellent plan at this time, and during this culling out, which is one of the most severe through which the flock is put during the year, to have clearly in mind the standard description of the breed with which you are working. Cull out the birds which are badly off type. While this may not have a very close relation to egg production, it will have an important effect upon the general quality of the flock and eventually will improve egg production as well. The age of the bird should be carefully considered. Very few hens are worth keeping after the second year. Some system should be used so that the age of all laying flocks could be determined.

If this culling is carefully done, it will not affect the egg production of the flock very materially. Culling out these birds will result in a fair income to the poultryman and farmer during the season of the year when the income of the flock is usually at its minimum. These culled hens should be sold on the general market and not as breeding hens. Getting rid of these hens will cut down materially on the feed bill during the early fall weeks, the present high price of feed making this an important consideration.

The hens which are left after this culling has been done will probably consist of yearlings and perhaps a few older hens. The greater part of these should be used as breeders during the next season. They are fully matured and will produce hatching eggs that are strong and which will hatch hardy, vigorous chicks. These hens should be kept on a fair average ration, thus allowed to come into spring with full vigor and in good condition. Treating these selected hens mainly as a breeding flock is one of the most important points in establishing a better balance in the farm flock. The part of these young hens in the balancing of the flock will be played largely in the spring breeding season when their eggs will be used for hatching purposes.

The best cockrels, in size, type, development, health and vigor should be selected from the ranges, to be used later in the season to mate with these breeders. In culling out the cockrels, care should be taken that the cockrels selected are not related to the flock. Some of the opinion that cockrels can be used the second year, but they should not be. Considerable pains and effort should be taken to get the male birds of marked strength and of fairly good type and free from disease. Other cockrels, the culs should be marketed. The selected cockrels should be kept by themselves and fed and managed carefully until late in the fall and winter. Much of the loss in table eggs, especially during the spring and summer months, is due to the development of the germ in fertile eggs, caused by the cockrels being left in the flock. Owing to the absence of germ life in an infertile egg, it is slow to decay and never rots. Infertile eggs bear shipment and handling much better than fertile eggs. And infertile eggs are produced just as abundantly as fertile eggs, the presence of the male not affecting in any way the hen's ability to lay the egg. Where feeding for egg production is done the absence of the male results in a much quieter flock thereby reducing the feed bill.

The pullets from this season's chick crop should have an important part in the balancing of the flock. You should depend largely upon the pullets for the greater part of the egg production. It then becomes necessary to consider how to best manage the pullets to distribute the egg production through all the months of the year and thereby increase the profits. Much of this can be done if you consider carefully the time when the pullets were hatched. I believe you should consider early hatching along with hatching during the regular season. The pullets of the early hatches reach laying maturity during August, and this means that during the fall months, if these pullets have been well cared for, a good supply of eggs can be expected. At this time the regular seasons hatch is continuing to grow and mature. At this time also, as pointed out above, the older hens are at their lowest egg production. Eggs produced during these fall months bring high returns when sold for table purposes, thereby adding to the revenue of the flock at this time of the year.

Early hatched pullets will be fully matured before the cold winter months set in. These early matured pullets may be profitably used as breeders in the production of hatching eggs during the early spring months. These eggs run extremely high in fertility and produce chicks of a hardy vigorous constitution. These birds go into moult in the late fall months, dropping

The New Fashions are Going Out Briskly and Other
New Fashions come in to take their Place in Style Show

Assortments are extensive and varied. We never had so many in any other style show—this accounts for the ease and satisfaction in choosing.

The Annex has long been the wonder of the retail ready-to-wear business throughout the Panhandle, the volume of business done is truly remarkable. As the volume increases assortments grow in proportion. So, today, patrons of the Annex will find more fine suits, coats and dresses than usually comes in a whole season—and still they come, more and more each day.

There are hundreds here ready now for you to step into, and at almost any price you want to pay.

There's the practical serge dress we hear so much about in scores of variations—serge and satin, serge and crepe Georgette dresses that appeal more particularly to certain tastes; there's the frock that is serge, all serge and nothing but serge, and there's one that seems to rejoice the more, the more it has of ornamentation.

In other words, serge frocks are legion and their ways are many and they are priced accom modatingly all the way from $9.50 to $49.50

Nearly all the coats have large cape-like collars that may be muffled up close when desired. There are lots of fine black plush coats, some with fur collars, and there are more and more coats of pompon, Bolivia cloth, broadcloth, etc., and coat prices range from $19.50 to $98.50.

Some new millinery fashions for little folks have just come. Most of these are of velvet, all very interestingly fashioned for the little girl. Prices range from $1.50 to $4.95 with the majority of pretty styles around $2.50 shapes are on sale at $2.45, and some of these are worth nearly double the sale price. Very little trimming is required to make really smart hats of these. See them in the Annex.

Ethiopian Brown Broadcloth—A very rich and popular color for suits, dresses and coats; 50 inches wide, at $2.75.

Beetroot Broadcloth—Another charming new shade very high in popular favor—$2.50.

Taupe Broadcloth—A leading favorite with many and takes well to lively bits of trimmings.

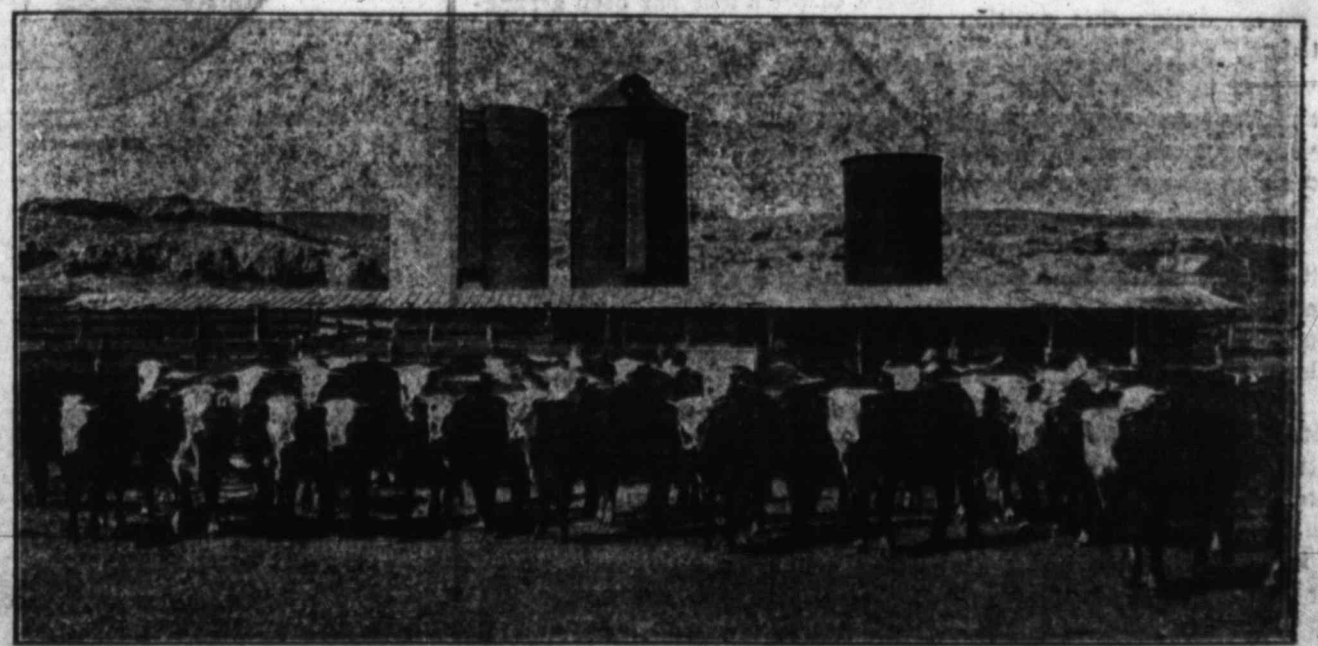

Navy and Black broadcloth—Beautiful chiffon weights in 50-54 cloths—$1.50 to $4.50 a yard times as many horses as have ever been entered in a program at the Panhandle State Fair. Some of these horses are the very best in their class and the lovers of harness races are sure to be more than entertained. In connection with the racing program, there will be slow mule races staged on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a purse of $35 each day. The slowest mule or the one finishing last wins all the money. No entrance fee is charged and no money deducted from the winner, which fact will insure enough entries to make these races very entertaining and amusing.

The Amarillo Automobile Association will have an exhibit of fifty different makes of automobiles, together with automobile accessories, which will be housed in a tent especially arranged for them, 100 feet in diameter. This will be an exceedingly fine exhibit as lovers of automobiles will have an opportunity of seeing all the different makes in one exhibit.

Nor has the management forgotten for an instant the amusement features, having contracted with the Robinson Amusement Company of Chicago, Illinois, for three very high class free attractions, two of which will be presented on a stage opposite the grandstand every afternoon and evening. The third attraction, a most marvelous automobile cloud swing stunt, will be staged each afternoon and evening directly in front of the grandstand in the center-field. Mr. VanNatta is expecting hourly to contract with one of the most wonderful and daring aviators of the present times to fly each afternoon on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th. They have also contracted with DeKrekko Brothers Carnival Company of San Antonio, Texas, whose shows will be located on the grounds of the Panhandle State Fair during the week, and it is the management's pleasure to announce to the people that their exhibitions in every line will be clean and high class.

It is the ardent hope of the management that all the people of the Panhandle and, in fact, the entire country, may realize that this fair will be an educator as well as a pleasure to all those who are fortunate enough to attend. It is a Panhandle institution and certainly a worthy one and deserves the earnest support of all the Panhandle. Mr. J. L. VanNatta, Secretary and General Manager, has gone on record as stating that he guarantees that no visitor will attend the fair and go away disappointed.

Believes in "Scientific" Farming.
W. J. Lovell, of Draper, was in Spur Monday and Tuesday of this week. Mr. Lovell is one of the number of farmers of the country who have adopted the "scientific" methods of farming, he having this year cultivated some five or six acres on his place in accord with the methods prescribed by the County Agent and he says that it has demonstrated to him that there is something to the proposition of "scientific" cultivation of soil. In fact, he stated that he would probably cultivate his whole farm next year under the supervision and directions of the County Agent. Any one can visit the Spur experimental farm and be thoroughly convinced that the manner of preparing land and the manner of cultivation has everything to do with making the best crops. On the farm this year are growing crops which apparently has suffered but little from the continued dry weather. Of course the rich soil of this territory will produce bumper restricted policies of the Southwest. Fortunately that time is at an end and in its stead, here has arisen a stalwart and invincible determination for the general appropriation of a spirit of progress. Progress marks this giant young exposition enterprise at its very turn. It is a progress that knows no factions, no autogonic community lines, no class restrictions. Its operations are as broad and open as the matchless expanses of the Llano Estacado, its purposes a benefaction as blindly impartial as that suggested by the blindfolded Goddess of Justice—unseeing save and except for the good of the whole.

To many of the more enthusiastic, realization of the dreams for this enterprise came slowly, but even these have conceded that the waiting has been amply repaid when received in the light of almost undreamed of achievements. It will be interesting in this connection to note that the Panhandle State Fair Association has regular and permanent headquarters, and scores of men have labored incessantly for weeks shaping structures in which to house the assuredly ample and representative exhibits from over an expansive territory. After the main exposition building there have departmental structures raised the committees in charge attempting to meet every requirement of the exhibitors, be they individual firms, committees or counties. Music of the saw and hammer blending with the voices of workmen, has poured a sweet-assurance in upon the ear of those at whose design this position was planted.

Improvement in Swine Exhibit.

Mr. VanNatta announces that he has received far more entries in the swine and sheep classes than heretofore, and the agricultural display will be worth coming many miles to see. There will be displays by some twenty different counties alone and numerous industrial displays. The chicken show will undoubtedly be the best held in the southwest this year.

Undoubtedly one of the outgrowths of the establishment of this fair has been a remarkable development in the swine industry in the Panhandle. It is not to be supposed that previously the hog has not been an important factor in some parts of the Panhandle, but the industry has increased enormously in the last two years. Some of this may be traced to the work of the promoters of the Boys' and Girls' Club work in this section, but that too has received through the educational work of the Fair a tremendous impetus. Some success in this line of agricultural promotion has been attained in former years, but it was not until the education influence of the Fair had paved the way that it was possible to obtain the necessary cooperation of the business man of the district. The Fair management state that in consequence of the entries coming in in the pig class of the Boys' and Girls' Clubs it will be necessary to more than double their accommodations in the swine department. The entries from the general field in the swine department have increased to large proportions also, and the exhibit of this year promises to be of extraordinary attractiveness.

Horse and Mule Division.

The management has not been unmindful of the fact that in this section there is much demand for large development in this branch of the livestock industry and that conditions are favorable for wonderful accomplishment. A well classified list of adequate premiums has been provided in this division and it is expected that a splendid exhibit will be shown.

In the Sheep Division.

The people in this section of the country have given practical demonstration of the value of the sheep in the operation of the farm and ranch and in accordance with the increased interest in this direction a more extended list of premiums has been arranged for the present exhibit of the Fair. Reference to the catalogue shows attractive premiums offered for the following breeds: Southdown, Delain Merino, Rambouillet, Hampshire, Cotswold and Shropshire.

The Biggest Time Yet.

J. L. VanNatta, Secretary, announces that they have over 90 entries in the harness races, some races having as many as 18 starters. It is with a great deal of satisfaction that this announcement is made, since it has always been very difficult to get race men to come to Amarillo on account of it being so far away from all other meetings in the circuits. This race program will far exceed anything that has ever been seen in Amarillo or in the Panhandle, as this is three or four Saving the Butterfat.

A good cream separator will save between $4 and $10 worth of butterfat from 600 pounds of milk, the production of one cow in a year. Multiply this by the number of cows you own and the sum will represent just a part of what the separator will be worth to you each year.

The Purdue University Experiment Station conducted some very exhaustive investigations on Indiana dairy farms a couple of years ago to determine the efficiency of the different methods used by the many farmers in separating the cream from the milk. They also pointed out to Indiana dairymen the methods that would reduce the loss of butterfat in skim milk to the smallest amount and improve the quality of the cream.

As a result of this investigation, it was found that when the deep-setting method of creaming was followed, the average loss was 10.1 pounds of butter in the skim milk for one cow in one year.

The average loss of butter when the shallow-pan method was used was 26.2 pounds, and the average loss per cow in a year under the water dilution system was 40.5 pounds of butter. Figuring butter at 40 cents a pound, the loss in a ten-cow dairy for one year would amount to from $40.50 to $162, depending on the system used.

How, then, is the farmer to get this butterfat that refuses to rise with the cream but continues to be fed or thrown away with the skim milk—and with butterfat at present prices?

The modern cream separator will not lose over 1.2 pounds of butter for each cow in a year, as was shown by this same investigation. This wide difference in the efficiency of skimming between the hand separator and the other, or gravity systems, is so great as to show the great butterfat loss to the farmer who does not use a cream separator. Then, too, the quality of the cream can be greatly improved when the hand separator is used—and we all know that it is impossible to make the best of butter from an inferior quality of cream. Of course, there are many conditions that influence the quality of cream, such as the health and feed of the cows, sanitation and cleanliness in the care of the milk, the handling of the cream before it reaches the factory, as well as the system of creaming.

The value of the skim milk is also to be reckoned at about 75 cents per hundred as feed for calves and pigs, and it has the highest feeding value, fresh and sweet from the separator. The real satisfactory and money-saving separator is done by the cream separator.

India has Great Wheat Crop.

The first official figures on the prospective wheat crop of India have just been received by the United States Food Administration. The estimate indicates an increased yield as compared with the crop of last year of 54,670,000 bushels, or 19.3 per cent.

The wheat production of India for last year was 283,930,000 bushels, which this year will be increased to 338,600,000 bushels. The exportable reserve of wheat remaining on hand in India Sept. 1, was estimated at 80,538,000 bushels, which will be very materially added to by the coming crop. Lack of adequate shipping facilities, however, holds this wheat from the world's market pending peace or the overcoming of the submarine menace.

A Good Egg and Butter Record.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Smith, who live in the Rock Creek neighborhood, at our request, handed us the following figures showing the amounts they have received from the sale of butter and eggs since the first of January, up to the 15th of this month. They are:

Butter $112.70
Eggs 279.50

Total $392.20

This lacks only a little of being $400 this year and three and a half months yet to go on. In this time they are quite likely to sell for much more than during the summer, and Mr. Smith informs us that he expects their sales for the year will amount to near $700. Quite a nice little income.—Silverton Star.

SOME HINTS ON FALL PLOWING

E. R. Parsons in Western Farm Life

The creating of a winter fallow to absorb the snowfall has always been a favorite device among dry farmers. It has also been found that where the furrows are laid at right angles to the wind and not harrowed down that they will prevent blowing of the soil; but where high winter winds are prevalent and the soil light, listing is even better than plowing.

The lister is used in the fall as if a field of corn was being planted, which leaves every alternate furrow unplowed, and the dirt being heaped up on these, leaves a series of high ridges which form a perfect snow trap and effectually break the cutting edge of the wind.

In the spring in order to secure a satisfactory seed bed the unplowed center furrow or ridge should be cut out and after being harrowed down the field is ready to plant. In western Kansas and Nebraska on the hard lands which do not blow 50 and 60 bushels of corn to the acre are being raised by plowing as deeply as possible in the fall and then listing in the corn in the spring across the plowing. Corn can be raised in wet seasons without any plowing at all, by simply listing in and then cultivating between the rows when it is up. Once in a while a 40-bushel crop has been raised in this manner, but an average taken in districts where this method is practiced shows that the usual crop is from 10 to 20 bushels in good seasons and from 5 to 10 in dry years.

When the soil is dry, as it usually is in the fall, it is always a question with the farmer as to whether he should plow it or not. Some soils mellow down much more easily and sooner than others, and where this is the case it is usually safe to trust to the winter snows to do the work. It is most important in the spring to choose a time for reducing the winter fallow to a level seed bed when the ground is not too dry or too wet, when the clods are just right to fall to pieces.

To secure full crops of potatoes, oats, flax, spring wheat, etc., they should always be planted on the winter fallow. Spring plowed ground is not compact enough for oats and flax which demands a rather solid seed bed, and since it is impossible to secure a reasonable crop without the deep plowing which conserves the moisture good work in the fall, allowing the soil to settle all winter, is the best way out.

Potato-raisers are finding that for this crop it is impossible to plow or cultivate the ground too often. The ground is plowed as deeply as possible in the fall, and then again before planting, but it is usually conceded that if one plowing is deep the second may be shallower.

When the land is moist enough to plow well in the fall it is always good policy to do as much of this work as possible, for even such crops as corn, milo and Sudan grass, which do fairly well on early spring plowing, will stand drouth better and yield more when planted on the replowed winter fallow.

It is not good policy on the dry farm to plow late in the fall and plant winter wheat. In such land there is seldom enough moisture to insure germination and the stand is often very poor in consequence.

Is it safe to plant winter wheat on corn stubble? To do so is to take a chance. If the field has been plowed deeply at the start and well cultivated thru a season not over dry, it is possible to harvest from 15 to 25 bushels; but the 30 to 40 bushel crops have all been made off the summer fallow, land which was plowed in the late spring or early summer. Winter wheat should be planted about three inches deep, so that it will not sprout after a shower which is too light to keep it going until it gets established.

Fall rye for hay is about the only crop that may be run in on any kind of stubble without plowing, but for grain it should receive the same treatment as winter wheat and is a surer crop.

There is not much sod as a rule broken in the fall, for the weather is usually too dry; but occasionally this may be done after big snows in October and if allowed to lie all winter and well disced and harrowed until reduced to a fairly fine tilth in spring, will raise anything. A dry farmer in Montana made 75 bushels of oats per acre on such a field last year.

In dry farming it pays much better to reduce plowed sod to a profitable seed bed instead of following the antiquated notion of waiting for it to rot. In the old days the want of the necessary implements was the farmer's excuse, for today we have both plows and discs which, with very little extra expense will tear the sod to shreds, or bury it and leave a comparatively smooth surface ready for immediate planting.

Demented Woman Kills Son.

Mrs. John W. Shafer, of Amarillo, is being held in jail here charged with having killed her 11-year-old son and attempted to kill her daughter, who was a little older. The little boy's throat was cut and his face and hands slashed and the little girl was badly cut about the face and hands.

The woman had taken the children

west of Amarillo, where a cousin of hers, Ernest Conret, was caretaker. She told Conret that she and the children had nothing to eat and nowhere to stay and he gave them his room and bed. During the night he heard a commotion in the room and ran for a neighbor and the two came to town for Policeman Chessir. When they returned to the farm, they found the boy dead and the woman was apparently trying to choke the girl, the razor with which she had cut the boy's throat having broken.

Sad Sequel to Gas Explosion.

As a result of the shock and grief caused by the tragic death of his wife, R. V. Duke died at his home near Clovis, last week. More than two weeks ago, the Dukes were called upon late at night by a passing auto out of gasoline, and drew the gas from a storage tank for them. It is supposed that Mr. Duke used a lantern to see how much was left in the tank and the explosion resulted. Mrs. Duke was so severely burned that she died within 12 hours, but Mr. Duke's injuries were not thought to be dangerous.

A Big Time At Dalhart.

The Trans-Canadian Fair will be held at Dalhart on October 4 and 5 and a special feature of the Fair will be the Boys and Girls Club work which is under the direction of County Agent Midkiff, who made Hall County famous as the home of the largest Boys and Girls Club in the world.

Mr. Midkiff has 400 members in the four counties now under his jurisdiction and they and their exhibits and contests will constitute one of the leading features of the Trans-Canadian Fair.

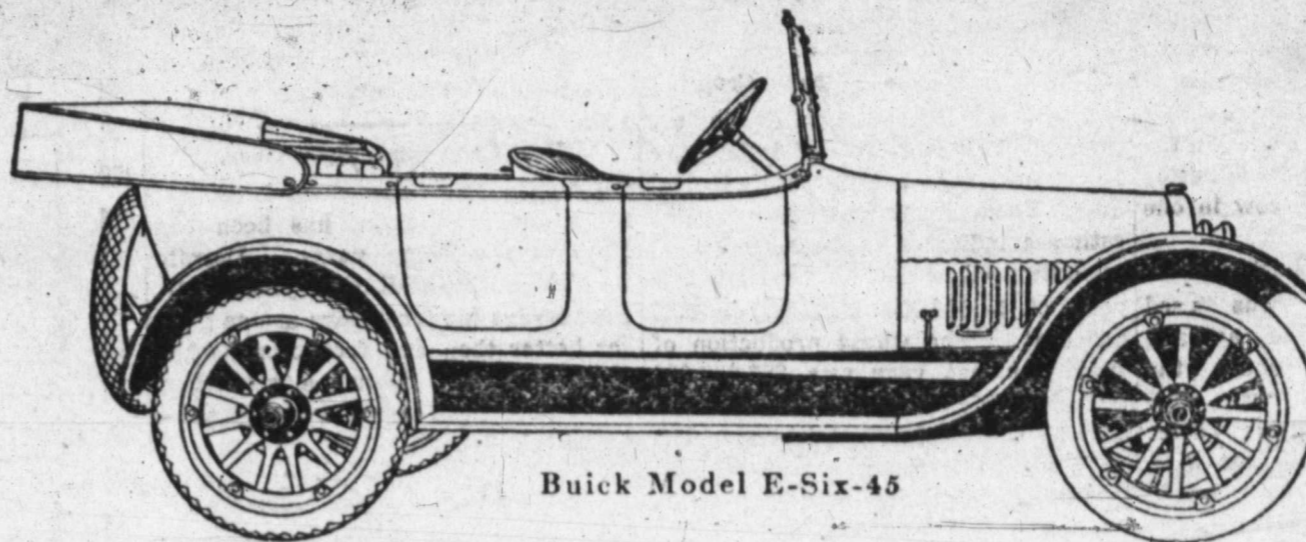

Some splendid prizes have been put up and there is a long list of contests in which these boys and girls will take part. Those members winning the largest number of prizes on their exhibits will be taken to the Dallas Fair and the contest promises to be a lively one.

Accidentally Shot Himself.

Last week while Homer Parker of Chalk was shooting hawks he was accidentally shot. He had loaded a gun with buck shot and in some way the weapon slipped from his hand and was discharged, some of the shot going through beneath the chin and coming out in the roof of his mouth, and his left thumb was shot off. He also received a slight wound over the left eye.—Paducah Post.

ing down in their egg production. But by this time the pullets of the regular seasons hatch should have reached their laying maturity and should be keeping up the egg production. By having the early and late hatching season it is possible to keep the egg production in the fall well up to a maximum, and at a time too, when prices are usually high.

The present high price of feed makes almost prohibitive to feed a flock for egg production. However, even at the high price of feed the flock should have at least enough to keep them in good condition. If you have sour skim milk to feed, it will materially increase the egg production. Meat scraps are probably one of the most economical feeds which you can feed at the present time, as it has not increased in price in proportion to other feed and it carries a relative high protein content. With farm and city flocks the practice should be to utilize the refuse from the home table as a material part of the ration. None of this should be allowed to go to waste, but should be fed to poultry. It is estimated that three-quarters of a million dollars' worth of offal finds its way to the garbage can every year and if an effort was made to utilize this by feeding it to poultry, much saving could be secured. Where considerable garbage comes from the table, the amount of other feeds can be materially reduced.

Where commercial feeding stuffs are purchased to feed for egg production, care should be taken that the ration is as nearly a balanced one as possible. The cheapest feed is not always the most economical, and care should be taken in buying that you are getting the cheapest according to analysis. The cost of feed should be based on the cost per unit of protein.

A ration to stimulate hens to lay more eggs must be rich in protein nutrients which make the egg. They stimulate the hen into production. I have seen flocks of hens laying scarcely any eggs, though fed as good a feed as corn and materials of that sort, but lacking meat or any of the rich protein feeds. And I have seen these added to the ration and by their introduction into the ration the egg production increased rapidly until the hens were laying normally. An egg is composed of 65.7 per cent water, 11.4 per cent protein, 12.2 per cent ash, and 8.9 per cent fat. The composition of the egg is the same every- something out of nothing, she must where, the hen cannot change its composition. Also a hen cannot make have the proper amounts of the various ingredients of an egg before she foods she waits till she gets them before laying, so if your hens are not can lay one. If she hasn't these laying look into your ration and see if you haven't left out something they need.

For commercial egg production, the following, I believe will be about the most practical ration for this country:

Milo or Kafir	400 lbs.
Meat scrap or Tankage	25 lbs.
Cotton Seed Meal	30 lbs.
Wheat	100 lbs.
Milo meal	35 lbs.

And above all, the flock, especially the flock on the farm should be given all the range possible and allowed to run over the place. Where possible a forage crop should be planted for the flock. Wheat perhaps would be the best, but other crops would do. Plant a small patch near the house especially for the chickens and you will be surprised at what it will save you on the feed bill and what it will be worth in the production of eggs.

Balancing the poultry flock is, then, a job to be planned and worked out during the fall moult. It consists of improving the standard of the flock by eliminating the undesirable birds and adding others that will bring greater efficiency and greater profits to the farmer. A good poultry flock should show improvement every season. Selection and elimination based on your judgment and experience together with sensible management and feeding will balance the farm flock and help you to realize a better balance at the bank at the end of the season.

Tractor Disc Harrowing.

The highest development of implements for intensive tillage, the tool which ranks in farming next in importance to the plow, is the disc harrow. Today it is generally acknowledged that the disc harrow is the one indispensable implement on the farm, and the progressive and successful farmer is not only expert in its use, but is daily finding new ways in which it can be employed to great advantage. The rapidly increasing use of farm tractors has been an important factor in developing the utility of the disc harrow.

The first use of the disc harrow is to prepare the seedbed. When used after the plow, it does more than any other farm implement to increase the yield. By breaking and pulverizing the soil it produces that fine condition which gathers and retains moisture and makes the plant-foods available to the roots. The disc harrow is equally necessary to pulverize the coarse soil and also to keep fine soil from clodding and baking. The double action disc harrow, either the horse drawn or tractor drawn type, carries the work still further by doubly pulverizing the soil and at the same time leaving the entire seedbed level and equally well prepared in all parts, assisting to develop uniform crops.

Up to a few years ago the average farmer would have scoffed at the idea of discing his land after harvest until the time came for the next season's planting or sowing. As soon as the crop is harvested the ground should be gone over with the disc harrow. This makes a dust mulch and preserves the moisture, which would otherwise dry out immediately after the crop is removed and allow the land to bake. The turning in of the old roots and stubble also adds valuable plant food elements to the soil. Discing at this time will show surprising results in the increased yield of the next crops, even though planting is not done until the next season. Several discings while the field lies idle will increase the benefit and is time and labor well invested.

Discing before plowing, as well as after the plow, insures a perfect seedbed to the full depth of the furrow. The mouldboard plow always leaves clodded soil, with air spaces at the bottom of the furrow, and while the later discing makes a perfect seedbed and protects this, yet the oil deep down is not in ideal condition for the young roots of the plant. By discing before plowing, the soil which is later thrown by the plow to the bottom of the furrow is thoroughly pulverized, so that the discing after the plow completes the operation and the seedbed is equally well pulverized and prepared for its entire depth. An especially good example of the value of discing before plowing is the preparation of sod land for cultivation. When sod is plowed without first being disced the mass of closely interwoven grass roots lies in the bottom of the furrow. This shuts off the moisture and plant-food from the deeper soil, preventing the roots of the new crop from receiving this nourishment.

Discing without plowing is often practical, allowing the farmer to disperse entirely with the plow. Where two crops are grown in one season, or where a crop for the next season is planted immediately after the harvest of the first crop, plowing is frequently unnecessary. A thorough discing with the double action horse or engine harrow, or using the single action in half lap to cover the field twice, will prepare a perfect seedbed. When fertilizer is used it should be thoroughly disced or drilled in to secure the best results and permit its action on all the soil.

In cultivating alfalfa many successful growers disc their field after each cutting. In this work the discs are set straight so that they split the crowns of the plants. This also kills the weeds cultivates the soil and makes a dust mulch, thus giving the plants a good start for the next crop.

In sections where grain is raised on a large scale a practice growing in favor is to prepare the land for a new crop by using tractors and wide cutting double action engine harrows, eliminating the plow. This of course means a great saving of time and labor which means dollars to the farmer. Sometimes where a large tractor is used, a double action engine harrow is put onto the stubble with a grain drill following; thus the land is tilled and seeded in one operation.

LUNCHEONETTE DEPARTMENT IN CONNECTION WITH SODA FOUNTAIN

Russia Invictus.
Illustrate, unorganized, still sore with the shackles of serfdom, priest-led and tax-bleb, ridden with pagan superstitions; simple as children and as generous and as cruel: incapable of realizing the significance of any government except the local commune: a national loom filled with parti-woven patches: with fine primal virtues and undrilled passions, exploited by prelates as letterless and ingenious as themselves: ruled by the contemptuous German stewards of a contemptible nobility: counted as cattle and valued by their masters only as they might yield revenue to support Boyar profligacy: a mob of peanuts speaking as many dialects as Babel's tongue suddenly delivered to freedom—is it any wonder that bewildered Russia is spending her heritage of Liberty with ominous folly? Can we expect a horde of barbarianized tribes to metamorphose over night into orderly, comprehending effectives? They must find themselves. Dreadful griefs alone may fuse so strange and alien elements for common denominators. Russia must rise, fall, totter and rebound, balance, not once, but many times before the merciless rod of reason casts judgment into her people.
But Muscovy will never be a crown jewel of Prussia. Five soldiers, can still replace each that falls, through all her present armies be wiped out. The Teuton can never advance as far as they can retreat. Meanwhile many a Kerensky will arise from the need of him. Time, the steppes, limited resources and exhaustless vitality will tell—and in the end tell terribly against the Central Powers.

The Generous Frontier.
Opportunity makes no maps. Charts follow discovery. The goal with the ready-made road is not worthy of ultimate endeavor, not that every pioneer correctly values his findings, but where one man has surveyed the route scores may be expected immediately behind him to scrap and scramble for the weakly held advantage.
True, fortune continues to mix the crowds: wealth and reputation are regularly picked up along thronged thoroughfares. Ambition has made a rosary of certain names — bankers, merchants, builders who found Eldorado in Compolis.
But then count those who just managed to glean bare livings in the rut and contrast their lot with the condition of equally capable men who seek success in the broader spaces.
While there are virgin valleys behind, the cropped hills and unmined ledges beyond the looted mountains and intact forests where the last rails end — while they are spilling cities to populate new towns and exhausting rowdies to stimulate the search for fresh supplies, the empty places will bid higher for brave determination than packed districts can afford to pay.

It's just a matter of plain arithmetic—the smaller the divisor the larger the dividend. The frontier is magnificently generous to its industrious sons.
Oklahoma will raise 60,000 tons of broom corn this year, which is as much as was produced in the entire United States in 1916, according to estimates of commission men handling that product here. Oklahoma is the greatest broom corn-producing state in the Union. In 1916 this state produced 37,000 tons out of a total production of 60,000 tons in the United States. Commission men here estimate that this year the production in Oklahoma will equal that of the total yield in the United States will be increased to 100,000 tons. If these figures bear out this state will harvest 60 per cent of the entire broom corn crop of the United States this year. The estimated value of the broom corn of Oklahoma for 1917 will be $12,000,000. Accurate figures cannot be given at this time owing to possibilities of fluctuation of price, but on a basis of 50,000 tons estimated yield, and an average price of $200 a ton throughout the season, this figure will be reached.
One million acres of cut-over lands situated in various parts of the Gulf Coast territory were recently offered Western cattle owners of the drouth district for the transfer of their herds to the south, in a telegram sent by the Southern Pine Association to Hon. David F. Houston, secretary of the United States department of agriculture at Washington. Secretary Houston referred the proposal to a conference of 100 government representatives and ranch operators who are now in session at Washington discussing means for stimulating the nation's meat production.

Led by John V. Conway, assistant state superintendent of public instruction, county boards of education in practically every county in New Mexico have extended the rule against the use of alcoholic drinks by teachers to include the use of tobacco in any form.

The rice yield of Arkansas this year will be 7,000,000 bushels, according to a forecast made by A. D. Beals, manager of the Arkansas Rice Shippers' Traffic Bureau. The yield last year was 6,500,000 bushels.
Instruction in city planning will be given in Dallas public schools next
