BIG BARBECUE IN CANYON FRIDAY and SATURDAY

SMUT HAS DONE GREAT DAMAGE TO WHEAT CROP OF RANDALL COUNTY THIS YEAR—TREAT SEED

Smut has totally ruined many fields of wheat in Randall county this year. In other cases, smut has been the cause of from fifty to seventy-five per cent loss among the wheat growers. Smut has cost the farmers of Randall county hundreds of dollars this year, and will cost them thousands of dollars next year unless properly combated. Smut is a transmittable disease among plants, and spreads very quickly among the wheat fields. Yet, it is easily combated and controlled if all of the wheat farmers will take the matter in hand and put up the proper fight to stop it. The grain men of Canyon and Randall county are anxious to see a determined fight made by the farmers of Randall county against smut, and are willing to give every possible aid and information toward stamping out the disease. Wm. Ash, of the firm of Hunter & Ash has just received several hundred copies of a bulletin issued by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station of the A. & M. College which deals with smut and the ways of combatting it. These bulletins are for distribution, and Mr. Ash wants every wheat farmer in Randall county to have one of them. Every wheat grower should make arrangements to treat all seed wheat before planting this fall.

Leavitt Home Wiped Out By Flames Friday

While cooking supper Friday evening on an oil stove, the home of J. J. Leavitt southeast of Canyon was burned to the ground, Mrs. Leavitt being badly burned by the flames while attempting to rescue furniture from the home. Mrs. Leavitt left the room where the stove was burning, and returning only a few minutes afterward found the room in flames. Mr. Leavitt was not at home at the time. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stratton were returning from town and noted the flames from their home. They drove hurriedly to the scene, arriving about the time as did Mr. Leavitt, but not in time to rescue anything from the flames. Messrs. Stratton and Bailey brought the word to Canyon Saturday and in a few minutes more than $200 was raised among the business houses to assist the Leavitt family to restore their loss, which was indeed a very heavy one for them to bear.

House Redistricting Bill Passes Senate

Austin, Aug. 10.—In a spectacular fight lasting until nearly midnight, by the majority of 27 to 2 the Senate passed the House bill redistricting Texas but adopted an amendment not putting the bill into effect for two years. This provision was stubbornly fought by West Texans under the leadership of Senator Bledsoe of Lubbock, Amarillo district.

The House will agree to the bill in free conference and Clifford B. O. Jones, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, which organization has for three years fought for adequate representation for West Texas in the Senate, will urge by personal solicitation that the Governor sign the bill.

The Amarillo territory substantially gains a new senator through an election to be held under the provisions of the bill designating returns be made to Amarillo. Lubbock was selected for similar filing of returns for new senator created for South Plains.

Representative Lee Satterwhite of Panhandle is being urged to announce, for senator from the new Amarillo district but he refused an interview. Representative Hill of Shamrock is also being talked of as a possible candidate for the new seat in the upper house from the Amarillo territory.

American Legion at Canyon Hold Credit

"Canyon has just finished an American Legion home and club room that would do credit to any city in the Panhandle-Plains country," said J. O. Guleke, who visited in the neighboring county seat Friday. Mr. Guleke declares that the American Legion Post home is modern and in every way expressive of the esteem in which the people of Canyon hold this worthy organization.

Much publicity has been given the American Legion posts of the Panhandle-Plains country by reason of the outstanding persistence with which the Canyon post has gone after this permanent abiding place for the former members.

Local officers and members of the legion express the belief that within a comparatively short time, many other points in this portion of the state, will follow the lead of Canyon and establish comfortable, enduring quarters for the "boys who dared to sacrifice themselves for their country and the world."—Amarillo News.

TOMATO VINE BEARS BIG CLUSTER OF SEVEN

MRS. MITTIE MORGAN, FOUNDER OF THIS PAPER, DIED LAST FRIDAY

Mrs. Mittie Morton Morgan died Friday at the home of her daughter at Bowie. Mrs. Morgan will be remembered by all of the old time residents of Canyon and Randall county, as the founder of the Canyon Stayer, the name which was later changed to the Canyon City News, and still a little later to the Randall County News.

Mrs. Morgan was a true type of pioneer which cut out this great empire in Northwest Texas. She was forceful of character, keen of intellect, vivid in imagination, resourceful in meeting and solving the serious problems which confronted the early settlers.

After starting the Stayer in 1896, she conducted the paper for two years and then moved to Amarillo, launching the weekly Star, which later became the first daily paper in that city, the Evening Star. Since that time she has been identified with the publication of several prominent newspapers and magazines.

A few years ago she moved with her husband to Houston where they have since made their home. Mrs. Morgan has a host of friends all over the Panhandle who are deeply grieved to hear of her death.

THE U. S. ROYAL CORD

A famous tire—and a famous tread. Acknowledged among motorists and dealers alike as the world's foremost example of Cord tire building. Always delivering the same repeated economy, tire after tire, and season after season. The stripe around the sidewall is registered as a trade-mark in the U. S. Patent Office.

How you can measure tire value in 1921 —

OFTEN it's surprising the number of different tire views that come out in a chance talk at the curb or in the leisure of a friend's garage.

Almost every day you come across the man human enough to believe he can outguess the cut-price tag on "job-lots," "discontinued lines" and "surplus stocks."

His opposite is the hard-pan car owner who sticks year in and year out to a standard brand as the only rational economy.

Many will remember the scarcity of U. S. Tires last year.

A hardship at the time, but a benefit now. There are no U. S. Tires to be worked off—no accumulations—no forced selling of any U. S. brand—no shipping of tires from one part of the country to another to "find a market."

There are 92 U. S. Factory Branches. Each one gets its share of U. S. Tires. There is a broad, constant, even distribution of U. S. Tires always going on from these Branches to the dealer.

Buy a U. S. Tire anywhere—in a community of 500 people or even less—and you get a fresh, live tire of current production—with all the original service and mileage the factory put into it.

The owner of a medium or light-weight car stands on equal ground with every other car owner.

Any United States Tire is a universal full money's worth—backed up with a leadership policy of equal quality, buying convenience and price for everybody.

The Conversion of Bernard Shaw

The Independent of July 23 gives a refreshing account of the new creed of the great playwright and philosophic thinker, Bernard Shaw. His latest play, "Back to Methuselah," is taken as proof, that he has reformed. His introduction to the drama explains that evolution contains nothing inconsistent with religion, as God is equally a maker whether he makes things all at once or in the course of a thousand ages. Shaw has agreed to call his Life-Force of "Man and Superman" God. (Chesterton pointed out that no one will worship a hyphen!) But he still fights shy of personal immortality even though he admits that "men do not live long enough." The central idea of his play is that will power, as it may be developed in future ages, can prolong human life indefinitely. It begins with Adam and Eve in the Garden and ends with A. D. 31, 920.

The Simplicity of War

The North American Review for August, 1921, contains some interesting and unusual ideas on the problems of war and peace. Vernon Kellogg, the author, says, "The longer we have peace the more enviable seems war—in some ways. War has its advantages. It seems to strengthen our wills and our courage, making us able to move straight forward. It makes things simple even if it makes them bigger. Peace, which should bring simplicity, has brought us to a perfect maze of complexity."

He says that Peace has brought us to such a deplorable condition that we are ashamed to face it honestly. "Human kind," in his own words, "in the persons of its most civilized, most educated peoples is presenting an edifying spectacle to the lowly and barbarous tribes sitting in the benches around the arena. It must sadden even the anthropoids when they reflect that out of their stock have come these human end-products of million of years of evolutionary effort. The apes must wonder why Mother Nature didn't stop with apes."

When the Armistice was signed and the peace conference was settling the affairs of the nations, the world was praying for swiftness and definiteness of action, based on clear judgment and wise charity. Those prayers were unanswered. Since then there have been troubles over boundaries and troubles inside. People have starved and frozen. Politicians have played politics. Agents of Bolshevism have pointed the way, out of trouble—by creating more trouble. Poland's problems are still unsettled. So are Austria's, Czechoslovakia's, Jugo-Slavia's, Hungary's and Greece's. England came out of the peace chamber with an increased and enduring empire problem, and France with an enduring military one. Japan came out with a piece of China; and America came out bewildered.

Mr. Kellogg thinks that the United States has a position that gives her special opportunities, hence special responsibilities, to relieve the situation. He says that most of the nations of the world still have the faith in America that Slovakia had when she stopped a commission of Americans who were carrying food to an enemy country; gave them a reception; and sent them on with God's blessings. In the author's words, "We are, I truly believe, the nation on which depends the initiation of the healing of the present critical world sickness. We are the only nation called in the night of the world's of the profession require the physician to respond. The remedies first needed in this case are stimulants, and the stimulants needed by Europe are money, credit, generous commercial relations, an attitude of encouragement, and an active friendly interest."

It would save a lot of taxes if we could arrange for Mr. Dempsey to settle our international disputes hereafter.—Columbia (S. C.) Record.

And so Bergdoll is to marry. The guilty may go unpunished for a time, but retribution falls on 'em like a ton of brick soon or late.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

If Germany keeps on underselling the world, it may become necessary to lick her again to make the world safe for inefficiency.—Marion Star.

A Good Job

The teacher had asked, "Why did David say he would rather be a door-keeper in the house of the Lord?"

"Because," answered the boy, "he could then walk outside while the sermon was being preached."—Boston Transcript.

J. B. Cranfill: The late Dr. J. B. Gambrell once said, "When I see a woman with a dog in her arms, I always feel that the dog is entitled to a better mother than that."—The Independent.

The Feminine Nuisance in Literature

Joseph Hergeshelmer in the July issue of "The Yale Review" gives some interesting ideas on what he terms "the feminine nuisance in literature." The author says that nearly all of our late literature is written for women. To prove the truth of this statement, he cites the following illustration of "American novels":

"Peter Grindleby dares the terrors of the world from the Antarctic to Brazil, endures terrestrial trials and calamities, in order to put all that he heroically becomes between the hands of little Mary Simms on the porch that night in April when, bronzed and beautifully scarred, he returns. It should be noticed that Peter Grindleby never returns without the gold mine, he never comes back until the timber of the great northwest has been turned into negotiable securities."

Continuing in a more serious tone, Mr. Hergeshelmer deplors the lack of appreciation of Art on the part of men. He thinks it should be men's province as well as women's. The entire article is worth reading and considering.

What Germany Should Pay

Jasper in Leslie's: It might graify the just indignation of the rest of Europe if Germany should be held white to make compensation for her misdeeds. But from the economic standpoint it would be the worse for the world in general were a crushing burden laid upon her. That would defeat the effort to compel adequate reparation. The German Republic must be allowed to prosper or it can not pay its dues to its creditors. The wrangling and delay over the sum that must be disgorged have been hurtful to trade and finance almost everywhere. What so powerful a nation as Germany still is contributing little or nothing to the common wealth the remainder of the family of nations are necessarily less prosperous. Therefore, the demands made on her should be dictated by a practical survey of her ability to produce and live. When both sides reach a sensible agreement Germany will increase her industrial activities and commerce with her will be restored, for then she will require and be able to buy many things from this and other lands.

A shipping basket on wheels make it easy for the children of London to take home their loads of parcels.

No Excuse for Raising Runts

To obtain the most rapid growth and best development of live stock, keep good stock and see that nothing checks its growth from the time it is born. This is the method by which a North Dakota farmer prevents runts among his animals.

In a letter on this subject to the United States Department of Agriculture, which has been studying the causes and prevention of undersized animals, he says: "In the forty years of my farming and breeding and raising live stock of all kinds, I do not remember a runt in any class or breed. I have always been a liberal feeder and a good caretaker. Besides, all stock had access to good, fresh water at all times. With this, in addition to good shelter and ventilation, it seems that my young stock would not stop growing from the time they were born. Use good judgment in feeding, and don't neglect the details."

A farmer in Vermont writes: "A well-bred animal well cared for will not produce runts. There is absolutely no excuse for one in livestock or poultry. By well-bred live stock I mean strong, healthy stock, well taken care of for several generations, and bred for constitution. This has been my experience from boyhood, first with rabbits and game fowls and later with sheep, hogs, horses and cattle. An accident to a well-bred and healthy animal will, if the accident occurs before it reaches maturity, affect its size but not its productive capacity. That is, it will not influence its ability to produce such young as it would have had if no accident had occurred. Eliminate all females that are not good mothers, and you will soon stamp the whole herd with constitution. Then with care, which gives attention and feed, your runts will fail to materialize."—Aberdeen-Angus Journal.

What's Ahead of Us?

David Starr Jordan in Leslie's: I believe that for a time we shall have a rest from politics to give perhaps some very much needed attention to the domestic needs of the country.

Among important home matters which will rise insistently are problems of deflation, taxation, immigration, prohibition enforcement, waste—personal and official, free speech, tariffs, Panama tolls and other special privileges, the recrudescence of militarism and the repugnance of farmers to being the first victims of the hard times already overdue.

On all questions there is a wide range of difference within the Republican party and sooner or later the new President will have to decide who is to be his master. The party is merely a temporary coalition. In a coalition Government the reactionary elements dominate, for they are held together by interest rather than by opinion. It is likely that there will be political harmony for a year or so, after which the President probably will face an adverse Congress, and recriminations will begin again.

So far as foreign affairs are concerned, there is plenty of room for trouble.

Ever Heard of Clock Stars?

Tit-Bits: The Astronomer Royal, Sir Frank Dyson, who has been elected senior warden of the City Guild of Clockmakers, is well qualified for the post. He it is who is responsible for our time, which is decided by the passage of certain stars, known as "clock stars" over the incredibly thin spider's thread which fixed in the focus of the transit instruments at the Royal Observatory, serves as the all-important Greenwich meridian.

B. electricity the master clock automatically fires time guns and drops time balls in various parts of the country every day, and sends the hour of 10 a. m. to all post offices and railway termini.

The Greenwich clock is one of the most accurate in the world, but it is not quite perfect, and its "rate" is daily corrected by the observations made the previous night of the "clock stars," unless clouds have hidden them. But if clouds prevented the correction of the Greenwich clock for a whole year its error in that time would be barely five seconds.

New York City has a subway system about 230 miles in length. This is almost equal to the distance from New York to Boston.

The Senators at Washington have a private electric subway which takes them from the Senate office building to the Capitol.

Wages Being Reduced

Forbes Magazine: Although little noise has been made about it, tremendous satisfaction has been created in high financial, industrial and commercial circles over the readiness manifested by workers in many industries to accept wage reductions of 10, 15, 20 and even 25 per cent. The thick and gloom pessimism which prevailed toward the end of 1920 was regarded as not wholly an unmixed evil, since it had a potent influence in bringing labor into a reasonable frame of mind concerning the absolute necessity for lowering wages as well as everything else. Many men of large affairs delayed laying plans for aggressive action during 1921, until they could determine whether labor costs would be reduced. All indications are that by the end of the winter the wage level will have fallen into line with the price level of goods and commodities. Therefore, the prospects for a spirited revival of enterprise in the spring have become distinctly brighter.

The Real Revolution in Russia

Henry Cucher in Leslie's. Lieutenant Commander Hugo W. Koehler in the World's Work for July: The Russia of the past belonged to the noble class. The Russia of the future is a people's Russia. The Russian revolution was a real revolution. It will loom large in history. Its importance of the French Revolution should be clouded by the period of the Commune.

Taking Stock

The days of the morality play have returned! "Taking Stock" is the latest production. Miss Harriet Graham was the author. Miss Brown the director, and Miss Edith Eddins the heroine. The first presentation was at chapel, Thursday, July 21. The williams were perhaps the most interesting characters, and they drove home some strong morals about dropping forks, cutting meat, using spoons, chewing gum, painting lips, combing hair, wearing bouidoir caps.

Members of the English Club Discuss Dramas

For the first three mornings of the past week, the chapel period was turned over to the members of the English Club, who gave some very helpful and entertaining discussions of the plays to be presented by the Devereux Players.

On Monday morning Miss Joye Mills gave an illustrative talk on the life and character of Edward Bulwer-Lytton, the author of "Richelieu."

Miss Mattie Swayne then took up the play itself, in its historical setting, and showed how it reflected the social and political conditions of France at the time of the ascendancy of Richelieu, the great prime minister of Louis XIII.

Tuesday morning Miss Todd and Mr. Boatright continued the program with an account of "Ghosts" and its author. Miss Todd's treatment of the life of Ibsen, the circumstances under which he grew up and wrote, and the influence of those conditions on his dramas helped to make their meaning clearer.

"Ghosts" was characterized by Mr. Boatright as "A protest against conventional morality and an indictment of the social, moral, and religious order of the times."

Miss Cobb and Miss Angel concluded the series of talks Wednesday morning with a biography of Maeterlinck and a synopsis of his "Monna Vanna."

Both discussions were timely and helpful.

Story Telling Hour

The Story-Telling Hour Thursday evening was unusual in character, and enjoyed very much by everyone. It was essentially the children's evening, but there were a few "grown-ups" who were unwilling to acknowledge that this provision barred them and who told almost as good stories as the children. After all the stories were told, instead of to bed, the troop went to the piano, and were entertained by Joe Boy Hill and Martha Nell Lang.

On Friday and Saturday, July 29-30, Prof. B. F. Sisk, conductor of the Summer Normal, delivered a series of two lectures on the literature of the Bible and the possibilities of its use in school. Mr. Sisk said that though the Bible is excluded as a text book from the schools, the teacher can with profit use it in many ways.

The stories of the Old Testament, he said, are superior to most of the stories used in school. The story of the youthful David is a better story of heroism than that of Achilles or Ajax. The friendship of David and Jonathan is more beautiful than that of Damon and Pythias.

Some of the greatest poetry in the world, Mr. Sisk said, is to be found in the Psalms; and Job is one of the greatest pieces of dramatic literature.

STANDARD NON-SKID

The Fastest Selling Tire In America

The increasing popular demand for the Firestone Standard 30x3 1/2 inch tire over a period of years has given us big volume. Our Plant No. 2 devoted wholly to this size tire with a capacity of 16,000 tires and 20,000 tubes per day cuts costs on every operation.

On May 2, we dropped our price to $13.95 passing on to the car owner the full benefits of this big sales volume and this labor-saving plant. This tire has been our standard for years—four plies long staple fabric—extra gum between plies—heavy non-skid tread. The greatest value ever offered car owners. Insist on Firestone.

Our Cord Tire Values

Firestone Cord tires are made exclusively in Plant No. 1. Our process of double gum-dipping each ply of cord gives thicker insulation. The massive non-skid tread, with extra thickness where wear is most severe, gives real effectiveness in holding the car against slipping and adds many extra miles of service.

Firestone Cord tires are sold at the lowest prices in cord tire history: 30x3 1/2, $24.50; 32x4, $46.30; 34x4 1/2, $54.90.

D. 1921, against Cora Tatum, as defendant, said suit being numbered 917, the nature of which is as follows, to-wit:

Plaintiff alleges that he is an actual resident and citizen of Randall County, Texas, and that he has been such resident and citizen of said County and State for more than twelve months next preceding the filing of this suit; that the residence of the defendant is to him unknown; that plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married to each other in Wichita County, Texas, on the 23rd day of March, 1920; that owing to certain conditions that existed at the time of such marriage, to-wit: that defendant was then and there pregnant by some other man unknown to plaintiff at said time, was such as to render their living together as husband and wife insupportable, that plaintiff never lived with defendant, or co-habited with her in any manner.

NOTICE THE STATE OF TEXAS.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Randall County, Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to serve the following order and notice by causing publication thereof to be made and for the time and in the manner therein provided:

Now on this the 8th day of August, 1921, at a regular term of the commissioners' Court of Randall County, Texas, there was presented to said court, the following application and petition to-wit:

THE STATE OF TEXAS, COUNTY OF RANDALL.

To the Honorable Commissioners' Court of Randall County, Texas.

Now comes W. H. Lewis, who resides in Randall County, Texas, and respectfully shows to your honorable court, as follows, to-wit: That he is the owner of that portion of Section No. 33, certificate No. 15-3556, in Block B-5, H. & G. Ry. Co. land, situated in Randall County, Texas, and more particularly described as all of Blocks Nos. 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 80, 81, 92, 93 and all of Blocks Nos. A, B, C, D, E, F, G, being a part of the Conner Addition to the city of Canyon, Texas, and has owned the same since November 10th, 1919, that on or about the 21st day of April, 1919, L. G. Conner and wife Q. V. Conner, caused a plat thereof to be made and recorded in Randall County, Texas, as is fully shown in Volume 21, page 369, of the deed records of said Randall County, to which reference is here made for a full description of said plat; that the land described herein is situated in the Southeast part of said plat and that none of the streets or alleys in that part have ever been opened and used as highways and that they have not been formally accepted by Randall County or any other municipality as highways, but as a matter of fact all of that portion of said Section 33, is now in cultivation; that your petitioner, as such owner is desirous of canceling that part of said map and plat embracing the Blocks described above, and throwing the same back into acreage property as it existed before such subdivision into lots and blocks, streets and alleys, was made; that your petitioner still owns all of that portion of said Conner Addition set out above, so located in Randall County and that the cancellation of that part of said Conner Addition will not interfere with the established rights of any person whomsoever.

Wherefore your petitioner prays that your honorable Court take such action, give such notice, and enter such orders, as may be proper or necessary for the cancellation of that part of the map and plat to said Conner Addition, described in this petition and throwing the property above mentioned back into acreage.

W. H. LEWIS.

And, upon due consideration, it is ordered by said Court that said application and petition be heard and further considered and action taken thereon at the next regular term of this Court, to-wit, on the 12th day of September, A. D. 1921, and that any person or persons interested in the lands therein described be commanded to appear at said time to protest, if so desired, against the action prayed for by the petitioner.

Said application and notice of such hearing and action shall be published in some newspaper published in the English language in said county, for three weeks, prior to action on said application as is provided by law; and a true copy of this order, containing said application as above set out, shall be published as the application for the relief prayed for and as the order of this court giving notice of the time that the court will take action upon said application; and the clerk of this court shall issue legal notice of such hearing.

Herein, fail not, but have you before this court this notice, on the 12th day of September, A. D. 1921, with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said court this 8th day of August, A. D. 1921.

O. W. Gano, Clerk, of the Commissioners' Court of Randall County, Texas.

A true copy, I certify.

EDITOR TELLS HOW TO MAKE ADVERTISEMENTS PAY

"There is no such thing as an advertising campaign; either you advertise or you don't advertise," said Harford Powell, Jr., editor of Collier's Weekly, in his message recently to America's owners and managers of electric light and power plants, complimenting them on breaking their silence of thirty years.

"Campaigns meant advertising by fits and starts. They do not produce a finished or final effect. You might as well speak of a breathing campaign. Start a breathing campaign now and then, let your lungs rest. There will soon be more of you at rest than your lungs. Begin an eating campaign and stop eating."

"Public utility men are doing more advertising than they have ever done before," continued Mr. Powell, "and they are trying to give the public the facts concerning their business through news stories. They are making a serious and intelligent bid for public interest and public good will. They are making conversions by their publicity but you should not expect them to last."

"We have all been scraping our chins every morning for years. Would the effect last otherwise? Publicity is like that. It is a matter of repetition of converting a man once and convincing him again. Say it. Repeat it. Then repeat it again. The human mind wobbles. Keep it wobbling your way." He said the average American is more interested in the public utility business than other industries because he is directly concerned in the utility as a consumer, tax payer, voter and investor, and that when he makes up his mind that a business is square and right he will stick with it through thick and thin.

Roosters of Known Quality

With poultry, as with other live stock, the value of a male breeder is determined not merely by the number of points he makes in scoring, but by the character of his offspring, and it takes a little time to demonstrate this, whether with beef or dairy cattle, horses, hogs or poultry. There is among breeders of all lines of live stock quite a leaning toward young stock, the idea seeming to be that "young" means "vigorous" stock. But one important fact is lost sight of, and that is that young breeders are untried breeders. "By their fruits ye shall know them," but the fruit must be given time to mature and prove. Even in poultry we believe it a serious error to sacrifice males of known proven value before they pass the effective breeding age. When a cock of any breed whose get are the evidence of his worth, reaches his second or third year, instead of discarding him because a little past his prime, we would advise simply reducing the number of females mated with him, and a little closer attention to his feed and general care.

Right here is an important reason for the separating of the sexes as soon as the breeding season is over. It gives the males the opportunity for rest and recuperation. To make it effective, the house and runs the males are in should be out of sight of the females. The hens too, will be all the better for being in an "Adamless Eden" and will come into the fall season much the better prepared for the next breeding season.

Eat the Roosters.

Farm Life: If you haven't eaten your roosters, do so now, and if they are too much for you let someone else eat them. How much does it cost to feed a rooster a year and how valuable must he be to make it profitable to keep him over until next breeding season? If it takes ninety-seven pounds of feed for a hen a year, surely it takes 100 pounds to feed a rooster. And but little grain can be had for less than 3 cents a pound and it is just as valuable whether you raise it yourself or someone else raises it and you buy it. At the very best, it will cost between $2.50 and $3 to keep the old bird until he is wanted next breeding season. And if he warrants this feed bill, he must be a very valuable bird.

Excavations at Geser show an Aegan element in the culture of the Philistines.

In the United States Navy both the Atlantic and the Pacific fleets now have well organized and complete "trafms" of hospital ships, supply boats, repair vessels, refrigerating ships, ammunition and fuel ships, in addition to motor patrol vessels, submarine chasers, mine sweepers and mine layers, converted yachts, submarine and destroyer tenders and troop transports, practically undreamed of a decade ago.

MICKIE SAYS—

WHEN A MAN TAKES A CIGAR OUTA HIS MOUTH TO TELL TH' EDITOR TO STOP HIS PAPER BECUZ HE CAN'T AFFORD IT, TH' EDITOR SMILES A CROOKED SMILE!

Hon. John Wanamaker

John Wanamaker has completed sixty years of service as a merchant. Wanamaker was the first big merchant to discover the potentialities or regular systematic newspaper advertising. It would require police details in Philadelphia and New York to keep him out of newspaper offices. And the only reason under the sun why he likes advertising is that it increases business for his stores. Whether times are good or bad, Wanamaker's advertisements always appear in the New York and Philadelphia papers—Hunt County Times.

Mr. Wanamaker became a merchant before he became an advertiser. He began as a quite small merchant, but was unwilling to remain small. He experimented with advertising at a time when most of his competitors, themselves small merchants were convinced that advertising didn't pay. John Wanamaker was not willing to give his valuable time and valuable brains and unusual business capacity to a store which depended upon the "drop-in" trade, or upon the hand-shaking method then in vogue. Wanamaker believed there was a better and bigger way to attract custom than by standing at his door and endeavoring to intrigue the passers-by. So he began putting little special announcements into the newspapers. He put good sense into the ads before he put the ads into the papers. The public responded, in a faint but perceptible degree. Therefore, he put in more ads and bigger ads. Soon he employed a man to do nothing but attend to his advertising. Everybody knows the rest of it. Everybody knows that John Wanamaker not only showed his competitors how to sell goods, but how to advertise. To imagine John Wanamaker running a store which carried no goods that would bear advertising, or prices that he preferred the public not to know, is to conceive of the Egyptian pyramids swimming in the Nile. All merchants can't be Wanamakers. But it looks like every merchant would wish not to be like Mr. Wanamaker's first competitors, who disappeared into unadvertised obscurity a generation ago.—State Press in Dallas News.

The Impulse to Criticize

The habit of criticism is one that many people—and not only those who are criticized—deprecate. There is a fairly general impression that the person who criticizes is not capable of doing much else, and that, as he is too lazy or inefficient to undertake active, constructive work, he resorts to criticism of others in order to keep alive a spark of self respect. Such an intolerant view of the critic may occasionally be warranted, but it is more often unreasonable. The most searching criticism has nearly always been supplied by men who were themselves producers of men of action. Matthew Arnold's insight as a critic was probably derived in some measure from his own adventures into poetry; Roosevelt was as severe and sharp in criticism as he was versatile and vigorous in action. It is true, however, that a good deal of criticism proceeds from what he called the impatience of the amateur. Criticism of that sort should be uttered with discretion, and usually little will be lost if it is not uttered at all. A consciousness of the imperfections and shortcomings of others is likely to be more profitable to a person if it remains unexpressed. When criticism is not of a personal character the amateurishness of it is usually pronounced, and if it does little harm it is certain that it does little good. It reacts unfavorably upon the person who is addicted to it; he has supposed that his opinions were held in some esteem, well-considered and intelligent, and at last he discovers with dismay that he has built up a reputation for himself as a fault finder.

New Year's Day in a Chinese Family

From "My Chinese Marriage: III. First Daughter-in-Law," by M. T. F., in Asia Magazine for August: We were in the last week of the old year. Delicious cooking odors drifted about everywhere, new clothes for everyone were made ready, and faces took on a shining happiness.

One evening after a visit with his mother, Chan-King came to me, laughing heartily. "Mother reminds me," he said, "that for three days it is customary for the maids, when sweeping the floor, to pile the dust carefully in a corner instead of throwing it out, lest the family good fortune should be thrown out with it. But she says of course it is only an old superstition and if you like you may tell the maid to remove the sweepings as usual." I laughed too. Then I said, "Tell mother we shall do our part toward keeping good fortune in the family." "For three days, also," continued Chan-King "no harsh or scolding word is to be spoken to anyone."

Even now I see it all again. My husband was wearing a long, dignified gown of dark green satin—unfigured, as is customary for officials—dark green trousers, short brown jacket, lined with soft fur, black satin cap and black boots. My oldest boy, Wilfred, was quite a young gentleman in long gown of blue-green silk, broad-trimmed jacket of dark green, blue trousers and red-tufted cap. Clubby Alfred was dressed in lavender jacket, scarlet trousers, a tiger face apron of red, white and black, embroidered slippers and a gay little knitted cap. Baby Alicia, whom the whole family loved best in her frilled white American dresses, added now a pink silk jacket and an adorable little pink and black cap, which gave an Oriental grace to her features. I wore my latest Shanghai creation, in pale lilac-and-black figured satin. Guests came and went incessantly, and we made our calls in the village. The air was filled with odors of spice, molasses, roasted meats, seed cakes and millet-candy and with sounds of fire-crackers, gongs and happy voices.

Had an Inking

Answers: "Agnes, does thou love me?" asked a Quaker youth of one at whose shrine his heart's holiest feelings had been offered up.

"Why, Jask," she answered, with a downcast look of her eyes, "we are commanded to love one another, are we not?"

"Ay, Agnes, but does thee regard me with the feeling the world calls love?"

"I hardly know what to tell thee, Jack. I have greatly feared that my heart was an erring one. I have tried to bestow my love on all, but I have sometimes thought, perhaps that thee was getting more than thy share."

The first umbrella ever made in England was of oiled skin on a strong wooden frame, and was so heavy that it took two persons to carry it in comfort.

IT STOOD THE TEST

An analysis of reserve percentages of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks during 1920 reveals some interesting figures.

While depressing business conditions affected some more than others, the total reserves of all combined fluctuated only between the narrow limits of 45.8 and 41.4 per cent.

Acting as a great, single reservoir of credit, the Federal Reserve System maintained throughout 1920 a greater degree of financial stability in time of stress than this country ever before experienced.
