

Here In HICO

Mrs. Forgy, who usually does most of the work and all the worrying connected with getting this newspaper in print each week, has been kept from her duties for the past week by a cold and complications of same for which her physicians have found enough high-powered names to cause her to have something to worry about other than the office. Sinus trouble seems to be causing her the most pain, for which she is taking treatments, and as our community correspondents say, she is "well on her way to recovery."

We wish to acknowledge a debt of gratitude to Ollie Davis, faithful part-time employee of the News Review, who took hold of the reins during the forced absence of Mrs. Forgy and the willful desertion of the editor and his wife during the sessions of the Texas Press Association at Mineral Wells, and kept the wheels turning and the customers at the office satisfied. Ollie, who is picture-show operator, electrician, printer, mechanical genius and in fact, "Hico's Handy Man," is a most faithful employee, and works hard at any job he goes at. He is loyal to the last ditch, and is one of those fellows who is endowed with the greatest attribute that can be possessed by anyone—appreciation. He remembers the good things that happen to him and forgets the unpleasant. (If Ollie gets hold of this before we go to press, he will probably ditch this paragraph—and if he doesn't find it until afterward, he might ask us for a raise in salary). But those who know Ollie and his work will bear us out in all our statements.

Speaking of worrying, isn't it funny the many little things we can find to cause us to be up in the air and ill at ease? For instance, this humble scribe suffered all day yesterday from some sort of a worry complex—there was something bothering us which we couldn't just exactly place. Picture our utter disgust when we got home at night and found the seat of the trouble in the bottom of our shoe, a little rock which had been dealing us misery all day, and of which we were unaware on account of trying to locate the cause of the trouble and find out what was causing our distressed state of mind. And to think, we had so many more things that we could have been worrying about. We have about decided that it is the little things in life that cause the gray hairs in older people's heads, and that if you spend too much time puzzling your mind about little things you won't have time to attend to the things that really deserve thought.

Perhaps you have heard of the gentlemen, one of our Israelitish friends, who was stopped one day while limping down the street by a friend who inquired why he did not wear larger shoes and quit cramping his feet. "Well," was the astounding reply, "since the market crash in which I lost all my money, my business has gone to the how-wows, my wife has died and my daughter has run off with a traveling man; the bank in which I kept my money has gone busted and my house has burned. So all the fun I get out of life is when I go home at night and pull off these d— shoes!"

Speaking of foot troubles, we are reminded that we are being cheated out of a lot of enjoyment now that we don't get to scratch our toes and ease the tickling sensation which is described as "athlete's foot" as we did up to two or three years ago. This scribe never won an athletic contest in his life of any greater proportions than a croquet game from a flock of amateur players, but nevertheless we had the exact symptoms of what is now described in the magazine ads as athlete's foot. We foolishly used some of the sure cures advertised, and the darned stuff stopped the itching. Now we are deprived of the utter ecstasy that comes from rubbing and scratching in between our toes—and of all times, when there is so little inexpensive entertainment anyhow.

A letter from Mr. Henry T. Ewald, president of the Campbell-Ewald Company, Detroit advertising agency, which we had meant to reproduce in this column this week, but we have gone too far into our personal affairs to permit this now. We are saving it to print later, because it expresses our convictions that American people can't be kept down forever, and that things are going to get better because "All God's chillun want things." Mr. Ewald's message carries a note of optimism without any references to corners which "business will turn" at some definite date, or any sort of silly predictions and analyses which have been so prevalent in the past months.

Akron Is Sighted North of Hico Late Sunday Afternoon

Those people of Hico and vicinity who happened to glance toward the northern horizon late Sunday afternoon were greeted with a sight that will come perhaps but once within their lifetime, when the giant dirigible Akron was sighted wending her way from West to East in majestic elegance.

There was no previous information of the route the ship would take, although several of those "in the know" were informed that the rails of the Texas & Pacific Railroad would be followed from El Paso to Texarkana. Some idea of the size of the giant ship may be gained when it is considered that when sighted locally the Akron was over 50 miles away, as the crow flies, but seemed only a scant 10 or 15.

Many local people reported having watched the progress of the monster of the air for over an hour, when dark came and the distance from Hico took the shape form their view.

Although the Akron traveled almost all day eastward over the Texas & Pacific rails, the ship severed from this course at Weatherford about dark. With its nose slightly tilted it passed up both Fort Worth and Dallas, going straight to Cleburne instead where Commander C. E. Rosendahl gave the old home town a lasting thrill as he circled the air bus around the town and drove immediately over his parents' home.

The proudest person in Cleburne was the Commander's mother, Mrs. C. O. Rosendahl, who, with friends had been advised by telegram and she and all the other people in town were outside watching for the ship.

The night was clear, and the dirigible with all lights on, presented a majestic picture in the moonlight as it glided over and around Cleburne. Commander Rosendahl, whose father died only a few weeks ago, was reared in Cleburne and attended the high school there.

Traveling from El Paso toward Texarkana at sixty miles an hour the big dirigible encountered only mild and clear if somewhat hot weather. This was the sharpest contrast to that met with on the westward passage, particularly when spring storms hit the ship as it sought to get over the 10,000 feet high Davis Mountains.

Hico Delegation to Austin Wednesday For Firemen's Meet

Fire Chief M. A. Smith, accompanied by L. J. Chaney and E. G. Horton as delegates from the Hico Fire Department, were in Austin Wednesday, Thursday and Friday for the State Meeting of the Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association.

Highway 66 Plans Divulged In Suit In Palo Pinto Co.

That Highway 66 which is now designated as far north as Hico, will develop into an important road and centering the attention of the Highway Department at present is apparent to those who have kept up with the proceedings in highway matters, especially those at Palo Pinto last week which resulted in denial of an injunction sought by the citizens of Palo Pinto County to prevent the construction of the so-called Bankhead cut-off.

The two projects, Highway 66 and the Bankhead cut-off, together with the allied project of a cut-off on the former to or near Chalk Mountain and Granbury, seem to be shaping up exactly as promised a delegation from this section some two years ago, when Hico people were assured that they were fortunately located as pertained to Highway 66, and which has been proven by developments since that time.

The following report of the proceedings at Palo Pinto will be of interest to our readers:

PALO PINTO, June 9.—Preparations for building the Bankhead Highway cut-off from Weatherford to a point three miles south of Strawn will be resumed immediately, Chairman W. E. Ely of the State Highway Commission said here this afternoon after District Judge Sam Russell had denied an injunction to restrain the road construction.

The injunction hearing began Monday morning and was concluded at noon today. Plaintiffs were residents of Palo Pinto Co. Road District No. 1, who contended that the building of the highway would damage the present Bankhead Highway through loss of traffic.

Ely said that the new road will be Highway 89, and will not be designated as a branch of the Bankhead, and that no efforts will be made to redesignate the Bankhead course. He also said that plans will go forward for the building of Highway 66, which will extend from the Rio Grande Valley to Mineral Wells and on to Wichita Falls, and eventually other parts north.

He and D. K. Martin, another commission member who was here for the injunction hearing, said they believed Highway 66 will be of great benefit to Mineral Wells. Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer, said after the ruling that all field work for the cut-off has been completed and that the plans which were being worked on in the state engineer's district office at Fort Worth will be resumed. During the trial he said that it was planned to begin construction probably about August, and that the road should be completed about Jan. 1, 1934.

It is likely that the road will be of gravel foundation with an asphalt topping. Ely testified he did not think the road would be built of cement. He contends that it will be a shortening of about 14 miles in the highway from Weatherford to Ranger, Eastland, Cisco and other cities in that section.

Ely, against whom fraud charge was made in the plaintiff's pleading, was guilty of no fraud, judging from the evidence presented. The court, presided over by Judge Sam Russell of Stephenville, made the statement that only such matters as pertained to the purported fraud or to any mistake, accident or abuse of discretion that might be found on the part of the Highway Commission was under consideration in the trial.

Preliminary Report On Marriage and Divorce In Texas

Washington, June 17, 1932.—The Bureau of the Census announces that, according to the returns received, there were 40,507 marriages performed in Texas during the year 1931, as compared with 45,174 in 1930, representing a decrease of 4,667 or 10.3 per cent. This decrease is due in part to a change in the marriage laws, effective June 12, 1929, requiring three days notice to be given before the issuance of a marriage license. In 1922, there were 61,730 marriages performed.

During the year 1931 there were 15,788 divorces granted in the State, as compared with 16,645 in 1930, representing a decrease of 857 or 5.1 per cent. In 1922, there were 12,527 divorces granted. And there were a total of 121 marriages annulled in 1931, as compared with 141 in 1930.

The estimated population of the state of Texas on July 1, 1931, was 5,313,000, and on July 1, 1930, 5,553,000. On the basis of these estimates, the number of marriages per 1,000 of the population was 6.9 in 1931, as against 7.7 in 1930; and the number of divorces per 1,000 of the population was 2.67 in 1931, as against 2.84 in 1930.

The number of marriages was furnished by the County Clerk and the number of divorces by the Clerk of the District Court, of each county. The figures for 1931 are preliminary and subject to correction.

Neighboring Paper Highly Honored at Texas Press Meet

Signal honors came to the Stephenville Empire-Tribune, published in the adjoining county of Erath by Clements & Higgs, and to its editor, R. F. Higgs, at Mineral Wells last week on the occasion of the 53rd annual meeting of the Texas Press Association held there Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 9th, 10th and 11th. The Empire-Tribune was adjudged the best all-around weekly newspaper in the State, and was awarded the cup presented yearly by the A. H. Belo Corporation. In addition, the owners and employees of the Empire-Tribune were given the prize of $50.00 in gold for the best set advertisement of over 30 inches in size, a much-coveted honor, and the editor, R. F. Higgs, was selected for the position of vice-president of the Texas Press Association for the ensuing year, of which organization Lowry Martin of Corsicana was elevated to the presidency for the same term, and R. L. Scott of De Leon retired after having served efficiently in the same capacity for the past year.

Del Rio was selected as the place of the next meeting after invitations had been extended by Brownwood and Houston as well as the border city. The association adopted the National Editorial Association's plan of circulation audits and effected the temporary organization of an audit association to put the plan into effect among the members of the press association.

The meeting, which was attended by the editor of the News Review and his wife, was one of the most inspirational held in recent years, although the attendance was lighter than usual, and was featured by a more interesting plan of meetings, with less attention paid to entertainment features than in the past, although Mineral Wells and its neighbor, Weatherford, took care of the visitors in a most commendable manner and made them feel at home. It was the intention of the program committee to have the sessions constructive and worthwhile and the cooperation of the members brought their plans to a realization.

State Press of the Dallas News, Joe J. Taylor, delivered what might have been termed the keynote address of the meeting when he analyzed present business conditions, and proved that everybody in the publishing business is getting along fine aside from the money-making feature of their enterprise, which he went on to demonstrate as non-essential in the end, stating that gold was not the proper thing to seek for, but cultivation of the finer things of life. Mr. Taylor laid stress upon the value of friendship and brotherly love, and upon the high regard of ones fellow-citizens and co-workers, aptly demonstrating ideal conditions and proving his point in the end.

Other speakers stressed the importance of a weekly newspaper's taking part in their home county politics, before the elections, and helping to fulfill their public purpose, that of moulding public sentiment. The idea was stressed that this is the day of opportunity for smaller weekly newspapers, and the members on hand were urged to get down to real, earnest, hard work and capitalize on their opportunity as they should.

General sessions were held in the mornings, with meetings in the afternoons being divided into those concerning the three divisions of the publishing business, daily, weekly and periodicals. R. F. Higgs was chairman of the weekly division, and carried out his program in a most able manner.

Problems of circulation, advertising, community correspondents, local news and reader interest were discussed.

Reunion Committee Makes Plans For 50th Celebration

With the realization of plans initiated at a meeting of the Hico reunion committee Tuesday of this week, people of this section and visitors from afar are assured of a celebration which will be replete with entertainment features and a fitting climax to fifty years of the institution's existence.

Dates have been set for August 4th, 5th and 6th. S. J. Cheek, who has so efficiently managed the entertainment features in the past, has been engaged in the same capacity again this year. A first-class carnival company has been secured, and plans are under way to secure prominent speakers and provide some unusual features for the "Golden Jubilee."

The reunion committee, after thorough consideration, decided that in view of the fact that this is the 50th anniversary of the staging of Hico's first Reunion, and the added fact that people are in need of some form of entertainment more especially this year than in the past, it was their judgment that the sentiment of a majority of the people would bear them out in their action.

No radical changes from the usual program is contemplated by the members of the committee, but they are anxious to make this year's get-together more attractive with any of its predecessors, with special emphasis on the social features afforded through mixing and mingling of old friends from a distance and home people who do not get to see each other often.

They invite constructive criticism, and are open to suggestions that will add to the success of this year's Reunion. A. A. Brown, E. H. Elkins and R. L. Holford are the members of the committee appointed to handle the affair.

Farmer Candidate Pays Visit to Hico

Accentuating his program of economy if elected to the office of Governor of the State of Texas with fiery remarks on present conditions, J. E. Glenn of Kopper, Bosque county, an avowed gubernatorial candidate, is hitch-hiking his way over the State, accompanied by his dog Heck, and stopped for awhile in Hico Thursday of last week to present his claims to the voters and citizens here.

Mr. Glenn arose as a champion of the cause of the common people to announce his candidacy for Governor upon a platform advocating that taxes be cut in half and the State made to live within that income.

Born in a log house, and proud of the simple but honest life he has lived, Mr. Glenn stated that he was making an endeavor to visit with the "little fellows" while the other office seekers were spending their time with the "big boys." He promised that as soon as the crops were laid by he would "turn loose his Big Bertha."

"Old Heck and I are out fighting side by side," stated this unique aspirant for the Governor's chair while in the News Review office. "We started out with a hoe but have lost it. My platform needs no discussion, but speaks for itself." Included in his platform are the following main features:

Absolute exemption of homes from taxation, regardless of size or value.

A new tax system, agreeable to the taxpayers themselves, designed to yield but half the amount now levied and to distribute the burden equitably.

Fifty per cent reduction in salaries of all public officers and persons who draw pay from the state and county treasuries, until financial and economic conditions justify an increase.

Budgeting the State government to function efficiently under the lowered tax yield.

Formation of a land loan company, supervised by the State or other dependable agency, to lend money at 3 per cent and to encourage and assist every man in Texas to own a home.

Reduction of the highway license tax on automobiles to $1.00.

Reduction of poll taxes to 25 cents.

Increase In Rate Of Postage On 1st-Class Mail July 6

John V. Lackey, postmaster at Hico, has received a bulletin from the postoffice department at Washington setting forth the rates and other information relative to the amendments made in the Postal Laws and Regulations.

It is of the utmost importance that every patron of the postal service become familiar with the increased rate of postage on first-class matter as set forth. Failure to prepay the proper amount of postage will delay the dispatch and delivery of mail, cause confusion, annoyance and inconvenience and impose upon the Postal Service unnecessary labor and expense.

The provisions of the amendment are summed up in a message from the Third Assistant Postmaster General, as follows:

"See that postage is paid at the rate of 3 cents an ounce or fraction thereof on letters and other first-class matter, except postal cards and private mailing or post cards; and also except drop letters mailed at offices where letter-carrier service is not established and the addresses are not served by rural or star-route carrier."

"Drop letters, that is, letters mailed for delivery from the office at which posted, are required to have postage paid on them at the rate of 3 cents an ounce or fraction thereof when mailed at letter carrier offices, including offices where village delivery service by carrier has been established, or at offices which are not letter-carrier offices if the persons addressed are served by rural or star-route carrier; and 1 cent for each ounce or fraction thereof when mailed at offices where letter-carrier service is not established, provided the addresses are not served by rural or star-route carriers. There is no drop rate on mail other than letters."

"Letters mailed at a post office for delivery to patrons thereof by rural or star-route carrier and those deposited in boxes along a rural or star route are subject to postage at the rate of 3 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof. Postmasters at offices of addresses shall be careful to rate up with the proper amount of postage due all mail reaching their offices with the postage insufficiently paid."

If you are not familiar with the requirements for mailing, or the above is not clear to you, it would be well to call on Postmaster Lackey or other of the employees for further information.

Car Stolen In Hico Found Wednesday A. M. Near Tolar

A 1929 model Ford Tudor sedan belonging to J. W. Cranford, which was stolen from Hico Tuesday night, was recovered about two miles from Tolar Wednesday morning by Hood county officers who found the car abandoned by the side of the road, damaged to some extent.

Mr. Cranford, who is visiting here from Arp with his father-in-law, W. B. Sweetman, had driven the car up to the garage door that night, and presumably the thief or thieves pushed it a few feet to the top of the hill where it coasted a safe distance from the house before the motor was started. He had no insurance.

Another car, a Chevrolet coupe belonging to Mr. Briley at Carlton, was reported stolen the same night, but nothing had been heard from it up to Thursday.

Emilio Fernandez Olivera, 11, and Thomas Gonzalez, 12, were drowned at Laredo Monday when they leaped into the Rio Grande to recover a yo-yo belonging to the former. Another boy had thrown it into the river.

An order reducing the per well allowable oil production in East Texas from 54 to 51 barrels per day of effective Thursday, awaited signatures of the state railroad commissioners Wednesday noon.

Two young bandits held up the Dallas-Fort Worth Interurban depot at Arlington shortly before noon Wednesday, and escaped with money amounting to $43.

Keeping Up With TEXAS

Thin indeed were the ranks and feeble the steps of the veterans in gray who assembled in Bryan Tuesday for the annual joint reunion of Hood's and Green's brigades. There were only five members of the two brigades present—four from Hood's and one from Green's—as follows: Hood's, Capt. W. H. Roberts, Arcadia, president; Capt. P. K. Gore, Midway; W. B. Beach, Houston, and W. H. Barry, Navasota. Green's, Judge W. H. Browning, Lampasas, commander for life.

Wesley Brown, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Brown, who reside two miles east of McKinney, was electrocuted at 6 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when he came in contact with an electric light in the Universal Car Company, while standing in water. He had been scrubbing the floor.

An exciting game of baseball was abruptly terminated Monday night when Vance Smith, 43, popular young business man of Lockhart, was seen to topple over after he had thrown a ball from 3rd to 1st base. Smith was dead when physicians reached him. He was president of the Caldwell County Fair Association, assistant chief of the fire department and served as County Clerk for 18 years and was a candidate for County Judge.

Rivers A. Baker, 37, of 3606 Cleveland St., Dallas, produce dealer on the Pearl street market, was killed early Tuesday when he fell asleep while driving to Dallas with a truckload of vegetables, his machine overturning after it had struck the railing on a bridge on the Lancaster pike.

Hurled through the windshield of her husband's automobile when it crashed into an electric line pole at Fort Worth at 2 o'clock Monday morning, Mrs. Raymond Stripling, 23, died two hours later in a hospital from loss of blood from a severed neck artery.

In tribute to the mother of its commander, the U. S. navy dirigible Akron flew low over Cleburne at 9 o'clock Sunday night. It passed directly over the home of Mrs. C. O. Rosendahl, mother of Commander Rosendahl.

A snake, crawling across a 23,000-volt power line, temporarily disrupted electric service in 15 towns near Marlin Saturday night of last week. The reptile evidently climbed a line pole to prey on a sparrow, which it was found to have swallowed. While on top of the pole the snake came in contact with the wires and was electrocuted. The repairmen found it dangling from a cross-arm.

Horace Chilton, first native of Texas to sit in the United States senate, and contemporary of John H. Reagan and James Stephen Hogg, died at his home in Dallas early Sunday. He was 79 years of age. The former senator was one of the few survivors of the men who overthrew carpetbagger rule in Texas after the Civil War.

Laws that would put a stop to over-insurance against fire were advocated in resolutions passed Wednesday by the State Firemen's and Fire Marshals' Association in the annual meeting at Austin.

The first far of tomatoes for shipment from Franklin County is being loaded at the packing shed at Mr. Vernon under the supervision of W. F. Denny, representing the buyers. He says the quality is excellent and prospects are good for several more crops as more than 100 acres are being grown by the producers. The price is two cents per pound.

Reduced prices on both board and rooms at Baylor University dormitories will be put into effect with the opening of the fall quarter, September 16, it was announced by university authorities at Waco Wednesday. Table board in Memorial dormitory will be cut from the previous rate of $26 to $22.50 per month; room rent there has been reduced from the former scale of from $8 to $16 to $6 to $15 per month, and other halls have witnessed similar reductions.

Emilio Fernandez Olivera, 11, and Thomas Gonzalez, 12, were drowned at Laredo Monday when they leaped into the Rio Grande to recover a yo-yo belonging to the former. Another boy had thrown it into the river.

An order reducing the per well allowable oil production in East Texas from 54 to 51 barrels per day of effective Thursday, awaited signatures of the state railroad commissioners Wednesday noon.

MAN MADE THE TOWN

by RUBY M. AYRES

Thirteenth Instalment.

Diana, a young English girl, in love with Dennis Waterman, a married man, undergoes a nervous collapse and is sent to the country to recuperate under the care of Dr. Donald Rathbone, who lives near the cottage where she stays. She finds herself falling in love with the doctor, but still trying to hold Dennis' affection. Linda, Dennis' wife, tells her that she offered Dennis a divorce but he would not accept it; he would have felt compelled to marry Diana. Diana's love for Doctor Rathbone is tempered by jealousy of a woman named Rosalie, who lives in the doctor's house. At last Rathbone finds that he is deeply in love with Diana, but he confesses to her that Rosalie is his wife.

He had married her out of sympathy, when her husband had been killed in the war. But Rosalie was hopelessly insane it is found. Diana and Rathbone part, and a letter comes from Aunt Gladwyn calling Diana back to London.

Dennis comes to see her. She discovers that she is all through with him. As she is leaving for London a letter comes from Dr. Rathbone, expressing his hopeless love. Back in London she learns that Linda Waterman, Dennis' wife, has been for years in love with a married man whose wife has just died in an insane asylum. Life seems a frightful, puzzling affair. She goes to a party, expecting to be bored, but the footman at the door announcing the incoming guests, calls out: "Dr. Donald Rathbone."

NOW ON WITH THE STORY

Diana had been watching the scene before her, her thoughts far away, but at the sound of that name her slender body stiffened, and her face went as white as her gown.

"No... no... no..." Her heart cried out in passionate protest even as her dilated eyes met Rathbone's across the long room. And she had been afraid that she was beginning to forget him! Forget him! Forget his big, powerful body against which she had once been held in such perfect happiness and peace? His grave steady eyes, and the mouth that looked as if it rarely smiled.

He did not smile now, though a little flash passed across his sombre eyes before he turned to greet his hostess.

It seemed an eternity to Diana before Rathbone began to make his way across to her. He seemed to know a great many people, many of whom stopped to engage him in conversation.

Rathbone was beside her now, but he made no attempt to take her hand, and she did not offer it. "Good-evening, Miss Gladwyn."

Diana raised eyes that were infinitely pathetic, because they fought so hard for indifference.

"Good-evening, Dr. Rathbone."

"A great rock in a weary land."

Something in her tone of voice made Diana think suddenly of Miss Staring, and an almost childish longing for her and for the peace of her little room at the cottage awoke in her heart.

How amazed the Creature would be if she could know!

Diana sat up in bed, rocking herself to and fro.

She wished she could cry, but her eyes felt too hot and burning to allow the relief of tears.

Were other girls made to suffer like this, or were they too wise to allow themselves to care very much for anyone?

With a terrible feeling of restlessness she got out of bed and began to walk about the room.

If only she could sleep! Her head was throbbing so; it reminded her of that night at the Savoy with Dennis, when the world had seemed to be filled with a million demons, all of whom were conspiring together to torment her.

Anna's sleeping draught had been useless; it had only excited her and racked her nerves.

Perhaps if she took some more. She looked around the room eagerly; yes, the bottle was there on the dressing table.

Anna's sleeping draught had been useless; it had only excited her and racked her nerves.

Perhaps if she took some more. She looked around the room eagerly; yes, the bottle was there on the dressing table.

Diana crossed the room. She was a childish figure in her white night-gown with her bare feet and disordered curly hair.

Her hands shook a little, making the bottle rattle against the glass as she measured out some of the drops.

It had a nasty bitter taste.

"That's because I haven't put any water with it," Diana thought vaguely. "I don't care; perhaps it will really make me sleep this time."

She shivered and made a little grimace as she crept back to bed. Why were all the things that were supposed to be good for one so nasty?

"We've got something else to do besides hang round waiting for you to call," Hobson said tartly. He half turned to go, then came back.

"Which way did you come?" he asked, lowering his voice.

"Through the village."

"Oh—well—you didn't see anything of our Miss Rosalie, I suppose?"

"Miss Rosalie? No. Why?"

"Why?" Hobson echoed with the impatience of anxiety. "Why, because she's out somewhere, of course. Been out since nine o'clock this morning as far as we can make out. Not very nice for a young lady to go wandering off on her own a morning like this, is it?"

"Alone?" Jonas said.

"You mean—she's lost?" Jonas asked.

"No I don't mean nothing of the sort," Hobson retorted angrily. "You can't get lost round about here. It's just the fog that makes it difficult to find her. If you see anything of her it'd be a kindness to let us know or to bring her back."

"All right," Jonas said briefly. He had turned to go when Hobson called to him again.

"Look here," he said more confidentially. "You won't open your mouth all over the village, I know, so I'll tell you.

"Miss Rosalie has been missing ever since it was light. Nobody knows how she managed to get out—it's never happened before, and there'll be hell to pay if the doctor comes home and she isn't here."

"Isn't the doctor at home?"

"No, he isn't, hasn't been home for two nights, lucky for us; but we've got to find her before it gets dark, and that's all there is about it."

CHAPTER XXII

Jonas was putting the pony and trap away in the stable when Mr. Shurey came down the yard, a giant figure looming out of the grey mist.

"Don't 'ee put her away yet," he said. "There's some things for Rathbone's."

Jonas turned round.

"It'll be difficult to get so far in this fog," he said rather sulky.

The farmer frowned.

"When I was your age I didn't argue about things being difficult, he said bluntly. "I did 'em. If you go up to the house the missus'll give you what's to go."

Jonas shrugged his shoulders and obeyed. He did not really object to the fog, but he was in no mood to go. There was a dark spot in his mind whenever he thought of Donald Rathbone.

He felt as if, during the past weeks since he first met her, she had unconsciously been giving him broken pieces of a puzzle which had slowly and carefully formed themselves into one, until this morning, he suddenly realized that it was complete. And it was Rathbone's face that he saw in the finished picture.

The love Jonas felt for Diana was the kind of love which Dante had felt for Beatrice. He had been content to love on his poet's dreams of her, asking nothing more for himself than that he might be allowed to continue to dream.

But that she should be unhappy was more than he could endure.

It was nearly midday before Jonas reached Rathbone's. The big gates were wide open—a most unusual thing in his experience, and as he neared the house he saw that the front door was wide open also, regardless of the damp fog that swirled in.

He drove round to the side door and got down.

Nobody answered his repeated knock, and presently he turned the handle and looked into the kitchen.

Nobody about. He set his basket of eggs and butter down on the table and had turned to go when Hobson, the chauffeur, suddenly appeared.

Jonas looked at him.

"Where's everybody?" he asked. He indicated the basket. "I've just brought that. Isn't there anybody about?"

If only she could sleep! . . . Her head was throbbing so.

I've been out myself since seven—haven't had any breakfast yet!" Hobson grumbled, trying to hide his anxiety.

"If I tell Mr. Shurey he'll send some of us along to help," Jonas said. "It'll get dark early to-day, with this fog hanging about."

"If you tell Shurey the whole village'll know," Hobson said lugubriously. "Not but what I don't think you're right. The more of us that looks for her, the sooner she'll be found."

"Have you tried the woods? She used to go there a lot in the summer?"

"I tried the woods," Hobson said scornfully. "When you can't see your hand before your face out in the main road, how do you think you're going to see in the woods? Not but what it isn't an idea," he added.

"I could find my way through them in the dark," Jonas said quickly, but Hobson shook his head.

"What I'm afraid of is the river," he admitted reluctantly. "It always had a wonderful fascination for the poor lady. Sit for hours watching it, she would, and singing to herself." He broke off with a touch of emotion, then pulled himself together to say gruffly: "I can't waste my time talking to you; but if you do see anything of her—"

"I'll keep a lookout," Jonas promised.

He went back to the trap and drove slowly away.

The river! . . . It was a disagreeable thought on a morning like this. His imagination was deeply stirred. The river would be icy cold and full of dead weeds.

It seemed to be getting dark already, although it was not yet three o'clock; the grayness of the mist was deepening and intensifying, as if someone were blowing black smoke into it and the two were slowly mingling together.

Before he had gone a mile on the road he was obliged to get down and lead the little pony. It was almost impossible to see the ditch or any turnings. And somewhere, wandering hopelessly about was Rosalie—a poor "mad" thing, as Diana had called her.

The curious acrid smell of a river was in the air, a mingling of rotting vegetation and dank water. If he was indeed anywhere near the river, then he had wandered very far from the right direction, for the river wound half a mile behind the village in a wide semi-circle.

Mrs. Rickard.

Mrs. Sallie Adelyn Rickard was born November 14, 1858, in Nacogoches county. She came to Bosque county with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lambert, near Iredell, Texas, where she made her home until her marriage to Rev. G. A. Rickard, a Baptist minister, July 16, 1882.

To this union five children were born, a son dying in infancy. She was converted at the age of 13 and united with the Missionary Baptist Church, giving most of her life to the service of her Master. She departed this life on May 24th, at 8:45 p. m., at her home 6 miles west of Glen Rose, being 74 years, 6 months and 10 days old.

There never lived a more faithful wife. The heart of her husband safely trusted in her. Only the true and worthy mother knows how she appreciated and loved her children and was a true Christian. She told loved ones she was not afraid to die, that she knew just where she was going but was anxious to get well and was never heard to complain those five long weeks she suffered very much. She was of an unselfish nature and sought constantly to administer in some way to others.

Her neighbors broke down in tears at her going away and said, "Oh, it is like giving up my own mother—I loved her so." That was the kind of a neighbor she was. She is not dead—she lives in the lives and thoughts of the many who felt the touch of her unselfish and kindly ministries and she lives in Heaven free from pain where the weary are at rest.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and four children, Mrs. Janie Sanders of Walnut Springs, Ernest Rickard of Meridian, Mrs. Lee Slay of Cap Rock, New Mexico, John Rickard of Knoxville, Tennessee. All of the children were present when the end came but Mrs. Slay, who was unable to attend. She leaves one sister, Mrs. Ella Newton of Iredell, and a brother, Mr. Will Lambert of Oklahoma.

The funeral was held the following day by Rev. Bruce, pastor of the Baptist Church at Glen Rose. She was laid to rest in the Nancy Smith Cemetery at 4 p. m., the grandsons acting as pallbearers, Stanley and Joe Dalton Rickard, Vernon, Alga and Olin Sanders, and Steve LaBarbara. The granddaughters were flower girls, Reta Carriene Rickard, Johnnie, Winnie Lee, Eula and Estalena Sanders.

Among those who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. White and family of Evant, Mr. J. P. Word, C. O. Ally and J. L. Bird of Bosque County, who were beloved friends of Mrs. Rickard.

Mrs. Rickard was well known here and her many friends extend sympathy to the bereaved.

Carlton

By LOLA REDDEN

One of the largest crowds that ever attended a singing in Carlton was present Sunday afternoon at the local Baptist church. It was a county affair, but visitors from adjoining counties were here. Roy Cannon, the well known blind singer from Brownwood, was here.

Mr. Cannon is a splendid singer, and everyone was glad to get an opportunity to hear him. The Ripit Quartet from DeLeon was to be on the program, but were unable to be present. No doubt this was the best singing that we have had here in quite awhile.

Miss Bonnie Bell Moore surprised her many friends by the announcement of her marriage to Mr. Homer Duck Miller of Lamkin last Saturday morning in the county seat, Hamilton. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Moore, who reside west of this city. Miss Moore taught in the local grammar school last year and made many friends while here. The groom is well known in this section of the country, having taught in the Lamkin school the past several years. The newlyweds left immediately for Denton, where they will go to school this summer. The citizens of this section wish for them a long and happy married life.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Railsback of West Texas came in Sunday for a visit with relatives and friends.

Misses Novice and Wayne Dyer came in from Denton Friday. They have been attending North Texas State Teachers College. They were accompanied home by Miss Charlie Ann Phag of McKinney, who will remain for a visit in the Dyer home.

W. L. Fisher accompanied Misses DeAlva and Louise Montgomery and J. E. Fisher to Cisco Sunday. Miss Martha Rowland returned to Carlton with them for a visit with friends and relatives.

Harold Beadles was in Dublin on Friday of last week attending to business matters.

McGee Moore returned home on Friday from San Marcos where he has been attending school.

Ervin Pruitt of Carlton visited in Hamilton last week.

Miss Frances Turner of Carlton was a visitor in Hamilton last week.

Jack Tull of Midland is here for a visit with his grandmother, Mrs. J. H. Tull of this city.

R. D. Ford made a business trip to Walnut Springs Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. Frank Frazier spent several days this week visiting her father, R. A. Smith, and other relatives here.

Reginald Tull, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Gerald and children, and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Blanchard of Stephenville spent the past week end with relatives here.

Herman Wright of Dallas who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Wright, returned to his home Sunday.

Truman Smith, wife and daughter Martha of Gustine, spent Sunday here with relatives and old friends.

I. O. Scott of Gatesville was in Carlton last week attending to business.

Preston Chick and Burl Caudle were Dublin visitors Monday of last week.

J. W. Waldrop and T. B. Cook made a business trip to Hamilton and Gatesville Tuesday of this week.

Mrs. Ruby Shaver and little son Van visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Cook of this city for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gibson of Dallas came down last week for a visit with relatives.

Mrs. R. H. Gibson and sons, Carroll and Connie, visited with friends and relatives in Girard last week.

Guy Briley, Herman Wilson, Harold Beadles and William Renssley played in the Hamilton Band Wednesday afternoon for Trades Day.

Chesley Kennedy and sister Wilma left Sunday for Austin where he will attend Texas University. Miss Wilma will go to San Marcos School.

Word was received here the first of the week of the marriage of Miss Nell Carlton to a Dallas man. Miss Carlton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Carlton of Hamilton. She is the niece of Postmaster Elmer Carlton of this city. The bride is well known in this part of the country and has many friends here who wish for her a long and happy married life.

Mrs. Florence Doyle of Hamilton is here visiting a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Lola Redden and family.

F. E. Fisher, E. S. Huffman, Rev. A. J. Quinn and W. H. Vick left for Marble Falls Thursday on a fishing trip.

"SIX CYLINDERS NO MORE-NO LESS," says America

Anything more and you sacrifice economy—anything less and you sacrifice smoothness.

BUYERS everywhere are comparing low-priced cars. Lifting hoods. Counting cylinders. And the result? An overwhelming verdict for the six, in preference to cars of fewer or more cylinders.

"SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!" And America backs up that conviction by purchasing more six-cylinder Chevrolets since January 1st, than the combined total of all fours and all eights under $1000.

With more than six cylinders, you sacrifice Chevrolet's famous economy of gas, oil and upkeep—the greatest economy in today's motor car market. With less than six cylinders, you sacrifice the built-in smoothness that makes driving really restful and enjoyable.

But with a six—a Chevrolet Six—nothing is sacrificed. You get smoothness and economy.

And power, 65 horsepower. And speed—65 to 70 miles an hour, easily! And pick-up—from a standstill to 35 miles an hour in less than 7 seconds! You also get Free Wheeling; Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting; big, spacious Fisher bodies.

So, when buying a new low-priced car, settle the question of cylinders RIGHT, and you can't go WRONG. Take America's word for it: "SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less!"

THE PEOPLE OF TEXAS MUST DECIDE THE FATE OF TEXAS RAILROADS

● THE WELFARE of Texas and Texans has gone and will always go hand in hand with the welfare of Texas railroads. Their dependency upon each other is absolute.

In 1929 Texas railroads gave employment to 82,956 employes, to whom they paid annually $126,674,543 in salaries and wages. In 1930 this number decreased to 70,739 while the payroll declined to $109,892,226. In 1931 the number of employes fell to 57,098 and the payroll to $89,505,918.

This represents a decrease of more than $37,000,000 in purchasing power in Texas communities. There has been a corresponding decrease in purchase of materials and supplies by Texas railroads. The ability to have maintained railroad payrolls and purchases would have been a very important factor in overcoming the present trying economic condition.

The decline in railroad payrolls and purchases is due only in part to economic conditions. The revenues of the railroads have been affected not only by business conditions but to a very large extent by loss of traffic to trucks and buses using the public highways in competition with the railroads.

● The time has come when the people of Texas must decide whether the traffic of this state can best be carried by the railroads, using facilities which they built and maintain at their own expense, or by trucks and buses using the highways built and maintained at the taxpayers' expense.

MR. FORD AND UNEMPLOYMENT

The annual report of the Ford Motor Company shows that the company lost over $53,000,000 last year, but it still has a comfortable cash surplus of 372 million left, and, according to all the reports we hear, Mr. Ford is using a lot of this money and most of his own time in trying to find ways to alleviate distress, put men to work and generally make conditions better for such individuals and families as he can reach.

Nobody has yet found the perfect answer to the most dreadful of industrial unemployment. One reason is that it is a new problem, as human events go. A hundred years ago there was no industrial unemployment worth mentioning, because there were no industries worth mentioning, in the modern sense. Generations of people who had no contact with the land had not been accustomed to being born and reared and living their lives in cities and industrial communities, without any means of support except the wages that they received when factories were running. Now we have millions of people who have no resources to fall back on when business conditions compel industry to shut down, unless they have been among the thrifty few who have saved up something.

Mr. Ford thinks this is all wrong, and so do we. We agree that the word "unemployment" has become one of the most dreadful words in the language, and the condition of unemployment has become the concern of every person in the country. And we certainly agree with him that charity, in the ordinary sense, should be resorted to only when every possible means of helping people to help themselves has been exhausted. Helping people to help themselves does not necessarily mean "making work" or "paying them for jobs which do not need to be done and which are not really productive. It does mean taking a personal interest in the individual problems of men and women and their families, and calling into co-operation everybody who needs to have any kind of work done, so that those who are able and willing to work will not get the habit of idleness. It means, also, seeing to it that nobody starves while out of a job.

Perhaps it would not be practical everywhere to carry out the methods which Mr. Ford has adopted in Dearborn, which include the opening of a commissary where people buy food on credit, giving their I. O. U.'s when they have no cash; but that system seems to us a great deal better than the indiscriminate handing out of food itself or orders on the store, without putting any obligation upon the recipient ever to return it. Giving anything for nothing is what makes paupers. Giving under conditions where the recipient is made to understand he will be expected some time to pay, when and as he can, tends to elevate the self-respect of the unemployed.

THAT CRUCIAL TEN PER CENT

The people of the United States consume about 90 per cent of what they produce. Ten per cent normally goes abroad. That may seem a small drop in the bucket. But, as David Lawrence recently pointed out, the 10 per cent may mean the difference between prosperity and depression in this country. A 10 per cent profit on an investment is a very good one. A 10 per cent drop in the business done by a concern usually makes drastic retrenchment essential.

In 1931 the United States sold abroad $2,500,000,000 less in goods than in 1925. Yet, even in 1931, more than $1,500,000,000 was paid to 1,400,000 people directly involved in manufacturing products for export. According to Mr. Lawrence, if we could get back the two-and-a-half billions of foreign trade we have lost, we could put more than 1,500,000 men to work, earning about $1,500,000,000 in wages, all of which would serve to swell our purchasing power as a nation. Another 1,400,000 persons would be put to work supplying the goods these re-employed people wanted to buy. The net gain, therefore, would be employment for close to 3,000,000 workers—more than a third of those now out of work.

There is not a state or a town in the country which is not adversely affected by the decline in foreign trade. In these days commerce between nations grows steadily more important to the stability and prosperity of the world.

He's In a Tough Spot

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT

We have always felt that taxpayers do not object to paying reasonable taxes, provided they get something for their money. Lately there has arisen a widespread outcry against the steady increase of taxes, Federal, State and local. We think that outcry has its roots in the general feeling that our government units are not giving us value received for the taxes we pay.

Almost all of our government units have been taxing, borrowing and spending beyond the means of the people to pay. Taxes are remaining unpaid. That causes forced sales of property and destroys values. Nothing but drastic retrenchment can possibly restore our governmental units to financial health. And one way to retrench—the best possible way as we see it—is to stop spending money on fads, on things which benefit only a few, and particularly upon the effort to regulate everything by law.

As a nation we are dedicated to the principles of individualism and a minimum of governmental interference in private affairs, and yet we have built up the biggest and most expensive governmental machinery ever created. We object to government in business, and yet we spend more money on governmental promotion and regulation of business than any country in the world except Russia. We talk loudly about the vast expenditures for armaments in Europe, and yet we spend more on armaments than any other country in peace time in the world's history. Likewise, we spend more than any other country in the attempt to enforce the laws, and at the same time we have more crime of all kinds than any other nation.

If the editor of this paper knew the perfect answer to all the problems of government and finance, he would not be running this paper, but might be running the government. We think that there is an answer, but we think also that the answer will only be found when everybody who contributes a cent in taxes to local, county, state, or national administration devotes a lot more time to thinking about these things and expressing his thoughts than most people do now.

Letters From Readers

"So because thou art lukewarm and neither hot nor cold I will spew thee out of my mouth"—Rev. 3-16. "Now John you write to the angel of the church (that is the preacher) of the predicament of things sayeth Amen. I know thy worth, yet I know all about you. There is nothing hid from me under the sun. Thou art neither cold nor hot. I would thou wert cold or hot."

me under the sun. Thou art neither cold nor hot. I would thou wert cold or hot."

Away back yonder some 1900 years ago John was cast off onto the Isle of Patmos for being loyal and standing by his faith, and while he was there he was told by the Angel of the Lord to the church of Asia. The servant John proceeds to write as told. You will find his letters in the first three chapters of Revelations. I believe their churches represent seven different stages or periods of the church, through the Gospel age from Christ's first coming to his second advent.

I can't say just where these different divisions begin, but I do think that we are now in that last part of the predictions, about ready unless we repent and see our real condition to be spewed out of His mouth. Lukewarm is neither cold nor hot—it is a sickening stage in a sense to be in, but in body or mind it means a satisfied condition.

The Locodicean is of all people the most pitiable and unhappy—listless, slothful, without keen interest in anything, he drifts here and there on the sea of life without finding any port in which he can anchor and abide. It must have been the Locodiceans of whom Jesus said, they have eyes but see not, and ears but hear not. In their hearts the ecclesiastical fires of enthusiasm ever smoulder, but never burst into clear and vehement flames, colorless and sterile. No wonder the Lord finds the Locodiceans distasteful and spews them out of his mouth.

Why permit ourselves to go on through life neither hot nor cold, taking no definite and positive stand on anything. "How long halt ye between two opinions?" inquired the ancient prophet of God. Are we convinced in our hearts that the earnest and sincere Christian life is best? Then let us candidly, definitely, positively decide to follow that life to the very best of our ability. Let others scorn and deride if they will—let them misunderstand and deceive us falsely as they may—we will set our faces steadfastly toward the light, righteousness and beauty of reality, ever striving to make the world a little brighter and happier abode for those with whom we come in contact from day to day.

If you have lived in Locodicea, determine to move from that city at once, cast your lot with those who really live, get something out of life worthwhile by putting into it everything you have. Do with thy might what thy hands find to do advised Solomon the wise man, and the spirit in beneficence adds, Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life. As with a church in this case, so with a person. So let's be careful about the stage we are in no more now.

Fish and Egg Croquettes To one cup of baked fish, (cold salmon, haddock, or cod) use three hard boiled eggs, chopped finely. Mix with one cup of white sauce, season and spread on a plate to cool. Shape and dip in slightly beaten egg, then in fine bread crumbs, fry in deep fat, using a frying basket. One may use a little lemon juice if one desires when making the croquettes, or may serve quarters of lemon with the finished croquettes.

If one's children go away to school, it is always wise to darn the stockings where the mother is sure to know from experience, that particular child wears the stocking hardest. Darn on the wrong side, not allowing the stitches to come through to the right side. If the child is old enough it is wiser to teach him or her to darn stockings. It is no disgrace for a boy to know how to darn.

Select cucumbers of equal length, half as many as there are persons to be served. Peel them thinly, cut length-wise in two pieces. Scoop out the inside, leaving a firm outside, however. Chop the part removed, with a small slice of onion, a half green pepper and add enough canned peas to double the chopped mixture. Mix the whole with mayonnaise and refill the cucumber boats. Serve very cold on lettuce leaves.

Tea stains are not always readily removed therefore it is wiser to attend to them before the staining article is put into the wash. Try holding the stained part over a large pan or bowl, and pouring boiling water from a height until the stain disappears. Or sprinkle with borax and soak. Or, if one prefers try soaking in glycerin, then washing.

If cement is not obtainable and there is a mouse hole to be stopped, try this: Soak newspapers in a strong solution of hot water and sal soda, mash or squeeze to a pulp, and fill the hole.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

International Sunday School Lesson for June 19th

JACOB THE AGED FATHER Genesis 46:1-7; 28-30; 47:7 Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Pharaoh had personally invited Jacob to come and take the journey in the "wagons of Joseph." Our Master Teacher is gracious in giving us aids to faith, for many are still slow of heart to believe, like the two who walked and talked with Jesus on the road to Emmaus. Those who do not believe God are those who simply will not for the proofs concerning His person and work are abundant throughout the ages.

Heart-hunger helps Jacob to become willing to enter upon the toilsome journey to Egypt. There are to be five more years of famine and then the appeal to change residence to another place where food can be found.

In Hebron was the place of ancestral burial. On this traditional site is the most venerated shrine of the Mohammedans. Care is taken to bar all others but Moslems from visiting this shrine.

All anxiety about the journey to Egypt was removed at Beer-Sheba where Jacob had further audience with God at the altar of worship. This change of home was in the purpose of Jehovah as we read the promises made to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Jacob was a shepherd so he was given a section of land in Goshen, which lay east of what is now Cairo, and contiguous to the Red Sea. Reuben was sent to announce their coming.

The aged father met the first-born son with outburst of thanksgiving. The meeting with Pharaoh was formal indeed, but he extended all courtesy. Read the rest of the narrative to the end of Genesis. Read the Golden text as found in (Genesis 20:12).

The groundless fear of the brothers is renewed until Joseph assures them that forgiveness has been granted. What is our relationship with God? Read (Psalm 103:12).

IT MAKES THE WORLD GO ROUND

A young man burst violently into my office.

His face was somewhat haggard, and his clothes disheveled, as though he had been up all night, which, in fact, he had.

But there was electricity in his walk, and sunshine in his eyes. "Have you heard the wonderful news?" he cried.

I told him I had not heard any wonderful news since 1929.

"Well, you're going to hear some now," he exclaimed. "I have a boy. Yes, sir, seven and a half pounds, born at five-thirty this morning. Think of it . . . me . . . a son."

Whereupon he became almost inarticulate, waving his arms and emitting sounds that were half laughter and half tears.

At length he gained sufficient self-control to impart the information that the baby had blue eyes. (I hadn't the heart to say that all babies have blue eyes. He wouldn't have heard me anyway.)

"When I looked down at him the first time, the little rascal looked up and smiled. And he reached out and grabbed my finger, and say . . . well, I don't know how to express it, but when I felt him grip my finger, so trusting and everything . . . well, say, if I were worth five thousand dollars to my boss yesterday, I'm worth ten thousand today."

Did I treat his enthusiasm seriously? You bet I did. Any man who himself has passed through that experience and does not feel a reverent sympathy for a young brother in the same situation has some serious lack in his soul.

One night in 1856, Thomas Huxley, the great scientist, sat alone in a quiet room awaiting the birth of his first child. His spirit was on fire with great new resolves.

"In 1860 I may fairly look forward to fifteen or twenty years," he wrote in his diary, "and with comprehensive views my training will have given me. I think it will be possible in that time to give a new and healthier direction to all Biological Science."

"To smite all humbugs, however big; to give a nobler tone to science; to set an example of abstinence from petty personal controversies, and of toleration for everything but lying; to be indifferent as to whether the work is recognized as mine or not, so long as it is done—are these my aims? 1860 will show."

"Half past ten at night. "Waiting for my child I seem to fancy it the pledge that all these things shall be."

"Born five minutes after twelve. Thank God."

Every night, somewhere in the world, hundreds of thousands of men sit waiting for their children. Thoughts come into their young minds, which never were there before. New purposes; new earnestness.

Not all of this impulse is permanent, of course, but a part at least remains of the urge to do something and be something worthy of these children.

It is a greater force than personal ambition. It makes the world go round.

MALARIA

I believe that many of my readers will be interested in my topic this week, especially the great number living in the damp lowlands of our southern districts. The mosquito is the malaria-carrier. Our broad policy of education of the masses of unhappiness to our race.

Typical malaria is manifested by its periodical chills, and fever that follow immediately. Its paroxysms occur with the regularity, almost of the clock. Remember, irregular chills and fever point to septicemia—pus somewhere—and NOT malaria. Your physician must decide for you; and a chill, of any kind, should send you post-haste to the doctor for investigation.

Science has identified the malarial poison, which is now easily disposed of, if your diagnosis is right. Quinine will turn the trick, if administered properly. I give it on chill-days only, getting in three doses (which should total at least ten grains), the last dose at least one hour before the expected chill. For instance, if the chill has been arriving at eleven o'clock every second day I give four grains of quinine at four, seven and ten on the day the chill is due.

Given in this manner it will dismiss the chill on that day. Then, on next chill-day, I repeat the little program, and do it for at least six "chill-days" after the last chill. The malarial poison will have been conquered. Of course the bowel must be looked after, and the diet kept in the bounds of good easily-digested food. This outline is for the acute form of malaria, which will not become chronic if properly dealt with. Quinine is a specific for malaria. Space forbids discussing the "estivo-autumnal" type.

I have treated cases from the Amazon Valley in South America and the swamps of Louisiana with gratifying success.

THE 4-H CLUB NEWS

The 4-H club member who does not go in for health work in his project program is missing a good deal because it will not only show him what his or her defects are but will help to overcome them. How this works is plainly shown in the case of two Indiana club members who were recently chosen health champions in the annual round-up of club members held at Purdue University.

Both of these champions had been in the previous state contest and made good scores, but not good enough to win. So they started in a systematic way after returning to their homes to improve their health score, and the result was that when they came back to the next contest they won the highest award. The boy champion is John Phillips, who is 16 years old and weighs 164 pounds. His height is 5 feet and 93.4 inches. He is the youngest of four children, whose parents are farm people. The judges gave this boy a score of 99.3, his main demerits being three filled teeth and a slight defect in posture.

The champion girl, Dorothy Caster, is 18 and is a neat looking blonde, who scored 98.33. Her main demerits were slight defects in gait and posture. She is the oldest of three children and spends a great deal of time out of doors.

Elmer Giesecke, wife and daughter and Mrs. Holland were in our midst Monday getting a few plums and berries.
Forty-one home demonstration club members in Deaf Smith county recently remodeled dresses at costs ranging from 5 to 50 cents each. The total estimated saving in one month from this sort of work was $121.20.

ON TEXAS FARMS
By W. H. Rarrow, Extension Service Editor.
Control of intestinal worms of poultry and of coccidiosis in chicks has become almost universal on Texas farms as a result of thousands of demonstrations, the extension poultry husbandman believes. He bases it on reports from county farm and home demonstration agents, on common observation, and on the fact that the volume of inquiries increased for the last five years. "Worms used to cut production 25 per cent or more," he says.
In the Wilbarger county contest 10 home demonstration clubs reported the installation of 85 sanitary pit toilets.
From a garden 500 feet long and 150 feet wide, Ruth Guttery, a 4-H club girl of Jim Wells county sold 318 pounds of cabbage in a recent two-week period, and a bit earlier sold off 1050 tomato plants.
"Terraces had as much to do with our good crops last year as the season, because what water fell did not run off but benefited the crops," says E. L. Jones who was helped by the Kaufman agent to terrace a 95-acre field last year. The year before the tract produced only four bales of cotton and very little feed. Last year 22 bales of cotton were gathered, 700 bushels of oats, 300 bushels of corn, and 7 tons of sorghum hay.
Cost of living studies made on farms during the last 20 years indicate that 40 per cent to 60 per cent of the family living has been made on the farm. Food has constituted a little less than half the total living costs. As much as 50 per cent to 75 per cent of the food supply has come from the farm, these studies show.
The influence of 4-H pantry demonstrators extends far beyond the limits of the home demonstration clubs. Members have set as goals the coaching of from 50 per cent to 85 per cent of all the farm families in their counties in gardening, budgeting food requirements, canning and organizing efficient pantries.
In Jack county the home demonstration clubs are trying to help 976 farm families this year. The home demonstration agent has established demonstrations in canning and care of poultry in nine unorganized communities. In a recent monthly check-up it was revealed that 28 home demonstration club women had shown 77 other families short cuts to a bountiful wood supply.

ON TEXAS FARMS
By W. H. Rarrow, Extension Service Editor.
Control of intestinal worms of poultry and of coccidiosis in chicks has become almost universal on Texas farms as a result of thousands of demonstrations, the extension poultry husbandman believes. He bases it on reports from county farm and home demonstration agents, on common observation, and on the fact that the volume of inquiries increased for the last five years. "Worms used to cut production 25 per cent or more," he says.
In the Wilbarger county contest 10 home demonstration clubs reported the installation of 85 sanitary pit toilets.
From a garden 500 feet long and 150 feet wide, Ruth Guttery, a 4-H club girl of Jim Wells county sold 318 pounds of cabbage in a recent two-week period, and a bit earlier sold off 1050 tomato plants.
"Terraces had as much to do with our good crops last year as the season, because what water fell did not run off but benefited the crops," says E. L. Jones who was helped by the Kaufman agent to terrace a 95-acre field last year. The year before the tract produced only four bales of cotton and very little feed. Last year 22 bales of cotton were gathered, 700 bushels of oats, 300 bushels of corn, and 7 tons of sorghum hay.
Cost of living studies made on farms during the last 20 years indicate that 40 per cent to 60 per cent of the family living has been made on the farm. Food has constituted a little less than half the total living costs. As much as 50 per cent to 75 per cent of the food supply has come from the farm, these studies show.
The influence of 4-H pantry demonstrators extends far beyond the limits of the home demonstration clubs. Members have set as goals the coaching of from 50 per cent to 85 per cent of all the farm families in their counties in gardening, budgeting food requirements, canning and organizing efficient pantries.
In Jack county the home demonstration clubs are trying to help 976 farm families this year. The home demonstration agent has established demonstrations in canning and care of poultry in nine unorganized communities. In a recent monthly check-up it was revealed that 28 home demonstration club women had shown 77 other families short cuts to a bountiful wood supply.

The arrangement of the scarf is so important this season that it is a matter that is worth serious effort. Dressmakers propose, but the women who wears the dresses dispose. You may have a scarf attached to your coat with one end thrust through the button-hole, but unless you take care to see that it is always carefully adjusted the whole effect will be spoiled. You may have a long, straight scarf designed to be worn in a bow, but whether the bow be smart or otherwise depends on the care you take in tying it. If a bow scarf is not becoming you may prefer the ascot arrangement, but this too requires painstaking arrangement.

YOUNG FOLKS LISTEN

It is time you were thinking seriously about that business education necessary for getting on the pay roll this fall, or being prepared to work your way through college. By entering Byrne College now, you can do what Miss Mary Dell Wilson, the young lady whose picture appears on one of our circulars, has done. A year ago, now, she was graduating from high school, today she is a well paid government secretary in the State Banking Department. Hundreds of our graduates who enrolled with us when high school closed last year would not think of giving up their position and be placed back along side of those who did not take advantage of Byrne training last summer.

Don't let the employment question bother you. It isn't bothering Byrne students graduating at this time, for we have a very effective plan of securing positions for our graduates, and as business improves along toward fall it will be even easier for us to place them.

You would enjoy spending your summer under electric fans in Byrne College. Our work being practically all of the laboratory type makes it so different from the work you have been doing that it will be a rest for you. You will enjoy the association of our splendid student body of fine young men and women. There isn't a finer group to be found anywhere than you will find in Byrne College. Please remember that Byrne College with its seven copyrighted textbooks is the only school that can give you a good thorough business course and graduate you by the first of September ready for the pay roll or college.

We invite you to visit and get our special prices, and also get our plan of making up special courses of study which you can handle under our individual advancement plan. These special courses are made up with a view of giving you just what you want in the shortest time possible and at the smallest possible cost. We give you almost twice as much for your time and money as any other school in the city, but come and see for yourself.

If you have had commercial work in high school, we make a liberal allowance for the advancement already made, for we build on what you have. If you need only our Office Training and Employment Service, we are able to make you very attractive prices and terms for this service.

Please call at our office, or write or phone us, at your earliest convenience. You will find our school very interesting and very different from any other. It is more like a big business office, and our individual advancement plan and our laboratory method of teaching give us an advantage you will appreciate.

Questions and Answers about Conoco Germ Processed Oil

Q: WHAT DOES "GERM PROCESS" MEAN?

A: The words "Germ Process" describe the scientific method by which this oil is manufactured. Such processing adds immeasurably to the oil's lubricating properties. North American patent rights to this Process are owned by Continental—only CONOCO oils are Germ Processed!

Q: IS IT DIFFERENT FROM OTHER OILS?

A: Yes. It is the only oil of its kind, and does what no other oil can do. The Germ Process gives it the ability to penetrate surfaces in combine with metal surfaces and also gives more "oiliness" than any other oil. Any oil would be better oil if Germ Processed.

Q: WHAT IS THE "HIDDEN QUART?"

A: The "Hidden Quart" is tangible evidence that CONOCO Germ Processed Oil penetrates metal surfaces and gives surer, safer lubrication. During the first 250 to 350 miles after your first fill with Germ Processed Oil, a pint to a quart seemingly disappears. On later fills, it does not. That's the Hidden Quart—it stays up in your motor and never drains away! Other oils drain away when your car is idle, leaving vital parts unlubricated during the starting period, when almost half of all motor wear occurs. CONOCO's Hidden Quart lubricates before your motor starts—cutting down costly starting wear!

Q: WHY SHOULD I CHANGE TO CONOCO GERM PROCESSED MOTOR OIL?

A: Because, by cutting down starting wear, it gives your motor longer life, keeps it sweet-running and saves expensive repair bills. Because Germ Processed Oil's extra oiliness makes your car run better. It forms a stronger piston-seal, making a starting easier and giving more power. It withstands crankcase dilution and high temperatures. CONOCO Germ Processed Motor Oil gives you the safest, surest lubrication you can buy. Change now to this better oil at any CONOCO Red Triangle station.

TRYING OUT THE SALES TAX

By Caleb Johnson

I think it is as certain as anything in the future can be that eventually the United States will adopt a general sales tax, as a means of raising national revenue.

Mississippi has gone boldly ahead and adopted a sales tax, which went into effect on the first day of May this year.

Mississippi's sales tax is expected to yield about $4,000,000 a year. The state was up against a treasury deficit of $12,000,000, inherited from former administrations which made appropriations in excess of tax revenues.

Some of the more intelligent members of the Mississippi Legislature in the idea of a sales tax, but who ever he was, he ought to have a medal for getting a new idea through the heads of legislators.

For, after all, the main objection to the sales tax is that it is something new, and being new, members of Congress and of Legislatures are afraid of it for fear that in some way it might injure them politically to be for it.

People, generally, are conservative. They distrust change. But they are nearly as conservative as a good many politicians think they are.

The theory of the sales tax is not so much that everybody knows that he is paying it. There is no tax, of any kind imaginable, that is not paid, in the long run, by the ultimate consumer.

On the second day of May, the day the tax went into effect, merchants announced new prices with the two percent sales tax added and had no difficulty in passing on the tax burden.

Every man who pays a tax of two percent when he buys a radio, or a bicycle, or a Panama hat, the fact that he himself is paying the tax. Every time one buys a pack of cigarettes or playing cards now, he is reminded of the tax he pays, when he breaks the revenue stamps.

As long as there is any considerable body of people who think that they do not pay taxes, that the government's revenue is derived only from the rich, there will be large bodies and groups of people trying to get money from the government on the theory that it comes out of somebody else's pockets.

When any sort of a tax is so distributed that everybody pays it and knows that he is paying it, then there is a much better chance that everybody will take an intelligent interest in how the tax money is spent by Legislatures and Congress.

The best argument of all in favor of the sales tax, however, is that it is the one tax which is automatically distributed among the people in precise proportion to their ability to pay it.

If there were a sales tax of two percent, let us say, on every article of commerce, then the man who spends $500 a year would pay $10 in taxes, and the man who spends 55,000 would pay $1100 in taxes, and so on.

The man who spends nothing would pay no sales tax; the multimillionaire who spent half a million dollars a year, if the rate were uniform on all commodities, would pay the same amount.

Every scheme of sales taxes exempt from the tax certain classes of commodities, however, such as necessary food and low priced clothing, so that people of low incomes pay proportionately less than those of high incomes.

The principal outcry against the sales tax everywhere has come from retail merchants who, in the absence of my exact knowledge of the subject, assume that they will have to absorb the tax, that it cannot be passed on to the consumer.

In Mississippi, retail merchants contended that the measure would drive them into bankruptcy, but when the tax went into effect it turned out that the old adage that "the consumer always pays" still holds good.

records relating thereto, subject to inspection at all times. Deductions are allowed from gross sales as follows: 1-Sale price of goods, taken in exchange for new goods.

2-Credit sales by retailers and wholesalers may be reported as collected. 3-Taxes collected on gasoline and tobacco.

4-Gross receipts from sale of agricultural products when in the original state or condition of preparation for sale. 5-Sale of fertilizers, seeds, boxes, and crates used in preparing agricultural products for market.

6-Sales of schoolbooks when sold under State contract. 7-Sale of cotton, seed cotton, lint cotton and baled cotton. 8-Amounts received from life insurance policies and annuity contracts up to the amount of premiums paid thereon.

9-$1,200 each year, to be deducted from total gross income and or gross proceeds of sale. A feature of the sales tax is that it makes practically every person engaged in business a tax collector serving for the state without compensation, keeping a record and making monthly returns with- out being even allowed postage on the remittance.

Some classes of manufacturing concerns are also included, soft drink establishments being required to pay 1 per cent, and cotton seed oil mills and ice factories 1 per cent.

The danger in the sales tax as in any other new form of taxation is, of course, likelihood that it will encourage tax spenders to a new extravagance. If adopted merely as an added burden upon the tax paying public, it will fail of its purpose.

If adopted by states as a means of reducing the burdensome taxes which will fall upon owners of real estate, it certainly is to be highly commended. And, as I pointed out in the beginning, one of the great things to be hoped for from the sales tax is, that, by making everybody who spends a dollar tax conscious, it may in time make everybody who spends money for anything realize that he is a part of the state, and that it is his money which the law-makers are appropriating.

Mother of 7—Still Young

THE woman who gives her organs the right stimulant need not worry about growing old. Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels.

When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary!

Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a big bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin today. Use often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need to be stimulated. Give it to children instead of strong laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

Salem

By MRS. W. C. ROGERS

The farmers are busy at work again after two nice rains and a few warm days. The grain cutting is about through and the cotton fields are getting all the attention.

Health here is very good at this writing. Mrs. W. D. Nelms has recovered enough to be about her garden and yard again.

Miss Faye Koonsman returned home Sunday night after a two weeks vacation with her sister and husband, Mrs. and Mr. Greer Alexander of Bruceville.

Clayton Hulse and little daughters, Charline and Dorothy D. of O'Brien were here last week on business, and to visit Mrs. C. J. Lambert. Miss Ludie Lambert accompanied them home for a couple of weeks visit.

The young folks enjoyed a party at the home of John Holder on Saturday night.

Mr. Nolan and family spent last Sunday with Mr. Brown and family of Millerville.

Mrs. H. L. Anderson and little daughter Lola Marie returned to their home in Sisk Sunday after a two weeks visit with her mother, Mrs. W. D. Nelms.

Mr. W. H. Hyde is enjoying a vacation in East Texas and Arkansas. We wish for him a most pleasant trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Summerall of Chalk Mountain spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion McElroy.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davis and little daughter Vera Lee of Flag Branch and Mr. and Mrs. Carlie Trimble of Duffau were Sunday visitors with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Vincent.

Mrs. Wylie Roberts of Hico was in Hico a few days last week visiting her mother, Mrs. W. H. Hyde.

Dick Hollis and family of Hico spent Sunday with his mother and sister, Mrs. B. L. and Mrs. Hollis. The singing at Paris Mayfield's home was well attended Sunday night. Much good singing was practiced. The singing next Sunday night will meet at Frank McEntire's home.

Nola and Dorothy Rogers and Maude Lambert spent Sunday afternoon with Martelle Koonsman. Gook Lambert was in Glen Rose a few days the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Koonsman were honored in their home when their children gathered there with lots of ice cream and cake. Besides Mrs. B. L. and Skinnie Hollis and Mr. J. C. Laney the following children were present: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wolfe of Indian Creek, Mr. and Mrs. Jewel Wolfe and children, Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Scott and children, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Mayfield and daughter Miss Martel, and Hugh, all of Salem; and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Koonsman of Duffau. A good time was reported. This good time deserves such honors.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carter and family of Eastland motored down for a short visit with his sister, Mrs. C. A. Vincent.

The many friends of Jim Bergans of Duffau were grieved to hear of the painful accident that happened to him last week. We hope he will soon be seen out with the young folks again.

You can't coast on a bicycle in New York. It is against the law.

A demon taxi-driver hurled the editor of The New Yorker into Fifth Avenue out of Twenty-third street the other noon, just beating a red light, grazing a traffic sign, grazing a safety zone, grazing a bus. A cop halted him. Deliberately he took a big handkerchief from his pocket.

"Listen, cowboy," he said. "On your way back I'll drop this, and see if you can pick it up wit' yer teeth."

With that he motioned him on.

Was in a restaurant the other night when I saw a woman smoking a cigar. She attracted little attention. The cigar manufacturers wonder why women don't take up cigar smoking.

JOE GISH FREE AIR

FOLKS THAT HAVE TO SLEEP ON THE FLOOR DONT HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT FALLING OUT OF BED.

This Week in WASHINGTON
BY RADFORD MOBLEY

Washington, D. C. June 20—With the political conventions getting closer and closer, the two big questions which everybody is asking and nobody knows the answers to are:

First, what is the Republican National Convention going to do about prohibition?

Second, who are the Democrats going to nominate for President?

The first question is important, because it is the only question on which anybody can stir up any semblance of a controversy in the Republican Convention. Mr. Hoover's renomination is definitely assured with likelihood that Mr. Curtis will also be renominated for the Vice-Presidency.

Therefore, the only thing that it seems possible to start a quarrel over in the convention is the prohibition plank in the platform.

These things can be set down as definite:

First, there will be a prohibition plank.

Second, it will be a plank which will open the door for action by the next Congress looking toward a constitutional amendment superseding the Eighteenth or Prohibition Amendment.

Whether this plank will call for a popular referendum, or will pledge the party to the submission of a new constitutional amendment through the usual channels, for ratifications by state Legislatures or conventions, whether it will promise a liberalization of the Volstead Act, or however it will open up the subject of prohibition, is still undeterminable. President Hoover has been in conference with dry leaders and wet leaders of all shades of opinion. Very careful political efforts will be made to avoid alienating the so-called "moderate" dries. Also, there will be pussyfooting in the convention to avoid offending the wets.

How important the prohibition question seems right now is indicated by the fact that many leading dries have been trying to organize a third party, and that so eminent and able a statesman as Senator Borah of Idaho has been taking part in the conferences, until Washington gossip has it that Borah may run for President on a third party ticket, if neither the Republican nor the Democratic plank which is satisfactory to these dry leaders.

Just the bare threat of a third party in the field sends politicians of both of the old parties into conniption fits. The Republicans are afraid a third party would draw voters from its candidates, and the Democrats are equally afraid that a Prohibition party with Borah at the lead would steal a lot of ordinarily Democratic states in the election. Senator Borah undoubtedly knows this, and it would be surprising if he did not use that knowledge to exert a very strong influence in the framing of the Republican prohibition plank.

It almost goes without saying that the Democratic party, whose convention comes two weeks later than the Republican, will try to be a little more wet than the Republicans, without being so wet as to alarm the dry states of the South, which happen to be also the normally Democratic states. That, at least, would be the natural thing for the Democrats to do, in order to gain whatever party advantage there may be in "wet" support. There is a suggestion, however, that leaders of both parties may agree upon an identical plank. None of the political leaders wants to get into a prohibition fight. If both parties made exactly the same declaration on the subject there could be no fight and the campaign would be devoted entirely to actual issues of candidates and economic principles.

"Al" Smith's strength as a party leader is becoming more apparent from day to day. Reports from the country at large indicate that Speaker Garner's prestige is not quite so great as it was. If and when Governor Roosevelt is beaten for the nomination which is the principal aim now at large but scattering group of Democratic politicians, it seems more and more likely that ex-Governor Smith will name the candidate. In that case it will not be Mr. Garner. It will not be Owen D. Young because he has taken himself out of the contest. It might be Newt D. Baker, but then again it might be another Ohioan, Governor George White.

Governor White will come into the convention with the solid Ohio delegation behind him. He is not widely known outside of Ohio, but his record is good, his ability is said to be very great, not only as an administrator, but as a vote-getter; he is the Democratic Governor of a state which has gone Republican oftener than it has gone Democratic, and he might turn out to be the dark horse at the Chicago convention.

Nobody knows, but it is all very interesting speculation.

Agriculture is taking care of its own. No lines are drawn by home demonstration club women in extending the latest and best in the art of food production and preservation. Negroes are getting help in East Texas, Mexicans in Southwest Texas.

Hico Evens Count With Fairy On Local Diamond

By W. E. GOYNE

Hico took advantage of Fairy's errors Sunday in the first inning and with the help of Patterson's three-bagger scored two runs and added another in the sixth as a result of two-baggers by Patterson and R. Proffitt to even the series, defeating Fairy 3 to 1. The latter's only marker came in the 5th. Bridges hit a hot grounder to left, went to second on Hutton's out and scored on McCoy's drive past third. But for a lot of cheap and unsportsmanlike beefing at the umpires, this was a real enjoyable affair.

First inning—Bridges grounded out to first. McCoy singled to left. Herrieks singled past third. Pitts struck out. Ross up for Hico singled past third, reached second on Pitts' error. Rierson took first on Short's error, went to second on Herrieks' overthrow to second. Ross scored. D. Proffitt grounded out, second to first. Patterson tripled to right, scoring Rierson. R. Proffitt hit to third and Patterson was out on fielder's choice. Johnson went to first on pitcher's error. Glover popped out to pitcher.

Second inning—Allen struck out and Hess grounded out to first. Brummett struck out. Seago went to first when Pitts waited his grounder out, thinking it a foul ball. Carpenter flew to left. Ross struck out. Rierson grounded out, short to first.

Third inning—Lacwell singled over short. Bridges flew to center. Hutton hit to pitcher who tried to catch Lacwell going to second; both runners safe. McCoy flew to short. Herrieks went to first on second's error. Pitts grounded out second to first. D. Proffitt then grounded out second to first, Patterson grounded out third to first and R. Proffitt flew to left.

Fourth inning—Allen flew to center. Hess flew to left. Brummett grounded out third to first. Johnson struck out. Glover singled past third. Seago struck out. Carpenter grounded out to first.

Fifth inning—Lacwell grounded out pitcher to first. Bridges singled to center. Hutton grounded out pitcher to first. McCoy singled to center, scoring Bridges. Herrieks grounded out third to first. Ross grounded out pitcher to first. Rierson grounded out pitcher to first. D. Proffitt struck out.

Sixth inning—Pitts flew to first and Allen grounded out second to first. Hess grounded out third to first. Patterson doubled to center. R. Proffitt doubled to the same spot, scoring Patterson. Johnson hit to third and Proffitt was tagged out third to catcher to third. Glover flew to center. Seago flew to second.

Seventh inning—Brummett was up and struck out. Licett who had an injured knee, was sent in to pinch hit for Lacwell and drew a walk. Trantham, running for Licett, was forced by Bridges. Hutton forced Bridges at second. Trantham now pitching for Fairy. Carpenter struck out. Ross was given a life on pitcher's wide peg to first and went all the way to third, but was caught off the bag by Herrieks' rifle shot to Pitts. Rierson struck out.

Eighth inning—McCoy struck out. Herrieks grounded out to first and Pitts grounded out pitcher to first. D. Proffitt, Patterson and R. Proffitt struck out in a row.

Ninth inning—Allen flew to second. Hess singled sharply to right and Brummett struck out. Trantham grounded out third to first, ending the game.

Final score, 3 to 1. The box score:

FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

SCHOOLS
 I wish every teacher and every parent could read and ponder upon the remarks of Dr. William J. O'Shea, New York Superintendent of Schools, who said the other day that the efforts of the schools must be directed toward defining what is success in life.

"Too often the unthinking identify success in life with wealth, and judge human achievement in terms of material acquisitions," he said.

I have long felt that our school systems started off on a false trail when they began to try to teach children how to earn money. That inevitably results in setting up acquisitiveness as the chief virtue, and money-getting is the principal pursuit in life.

CONFIDENCE
 The other day a banker said to me: "We've got more money to lend than we've had at any time in two years, and I think that is true of most other banks, but we are not lending it, because the people who ought to be borrowing it have lost confidence in themselves and other businesses."

I asked him to explain. He pointed out that in normal times sound banking consists in making loans for productive purposes. It is not sound banking to lend money to someone who cannot use it to make more money in order to pay it back. Most of the would be borrowers today, my banker friend said, are trying to get money to save something that is irretrievably lost.

I am inclined to think there is plenty of bank credit for every legitimate purpose, and that the reason it is not being used more freely is that business men are afraid to try anything new.

BEAUTY
 Three or four years ago an artist moved into the little New England village where I vote and trade my farm produce. He bought the tumble-down but picturesque old stone mill and made a studio of it. He was a pleasant unassuming fellow, who quickly got acquainted with the village people and won their confidence and respect.

The artist's eye was offended every day by the unartistic appearance of Main Street. There are, perhaps, thirty houses and stores between the cross-roads and the bridge, and no two of them were the same color. Some of them looked as if they had never been painted at all. Quietly, without advertising his purpose, the artist persuaded one of the store owners to paint his building white. It looked so clean and fresh that the owner of the adjoining property felt obliged to paint his also, and he put on a coat of white paint. Then a lady across the street decided that this white paint made her old yellow house look dingy, so she painted that white.

Now every house on Main Street is painted white, which is the best color of all for buildings set among green trees, as these are, and tourists driving through, instead of hurrying on to get past an ugly and unattractive spot, slow down to admire the trim looking village. And the village folk are proud of their own town now—all because one man succeeded in selling beauty to his neighbors.

POTATOES
 Botanists from the Department of Agriculture are exploring the mountains of Bolivia in search of new varieties of potatoes. Potatoes came originally from the high Andes, where more than 150 varieties are known. The natives preserve them in ice water of the mountain streams, and "cook" them by freezing. They were taken to Spain by the early conquerors, but did not spread over Europe for more than 200 years, when a Yankee advisor to the King of Bavaria introduced them into Germany and taught the people how to grow and cook them. They were introduced into Scotland as a substitute for turnips about 1790, and into Ireland some years later.

In communities where the potato will grow it is the safest reliance against famine that has yet been found. When all other crops fail the potato can be relied upon to keep a nation alive. The end of the recurrent famines in Ireland came when the people began to cultivate potatoes. If they would grow in China and India we would probably hear no more of famines in those countries.

SPELLING
 How do you spell analogous?
 Correct.

I spelled it with three "a's" and had to step down in the return match of our Stockbridge versus West Stockbridge spelling tournament I had the satisfaction, however, of lasting a lot longer than the principal of the High School did. The winner, now hailed as the spelling champion of Berkshire County, Massachusetts, was the wife of one of my farmer neighbors.

I don't know that spelling bees prove anything, except that the ability to spell is more a gift than something that can be acquired by study, and that a rural spelling bee is a lot of fun.
