HICO, TEXAS, FRIDAY, AUGUST 14, 1936.

NUMBER 12

Here In HICO

Neither the News Review nor its editor is going to lose any friends in the present political campaign.

This statement is made in full knowledge that there will be those who may credit their existing dislikes or disappointments to something we have said in the paper. At the same time we understand that our real friends know in their own minds that we are fair in the conduct of this newspaper, and that whatever stand we take upon any matter is done so in all sincerity. Those who doubt this statement were never our friends anyhow, whatever they might say. True friendship allows for the expression of individual opinion, whether coinciding with or differing from one's own.

With this short explanation of our deviation from the established custom of staying out of politics, we hope that what we say will be understood. Developments readily apparent to our readers have made it seem advisable that we here and now explain our position in the present campaign for election of a congressman from the 17th district at the August 22 primary.

We don't have to tell most of our readers again that we are for Tom Blanton, who is making a race for re-election against Clyde L. Garrett of Eastland. They have been told that by Mr. Blanton's enemies time and again, always with malicious insinuations and suggestive explanations of their own. But we corroborate them in the one statement they have made which they can prove.

There are a number of reasons why personally we are supporting Mr. Blanton, just as we did two years ago. But the one which has been used most often against him is the one of which we are proudest. They have said that he was our friend. How they could justify their criticism of him on this basis is more than our mind can grasp, when the very essence of our civilization is founded on that one principle. We like to believe that there is some basis for that mutual friendship, and that we are consistent in admitting same. The one thing we want distinctly understood is that for our part this friendship and admiration is not dependent upon any political favor received in the past or anticipated in the future. Our friends who have correct information will bear us out on this statement. And others will disregard the truth anyhow, as they have done in the past.

Were this criticism merely of us, we should overlook it as we hope we shall never be called upon to explain or excuse ourselves to the home people. But the hard part, the thing that inspires this article, is the fact that an innocent man is being persecuted for something for which he is not responsible, and which the underhanded criticism gives him no opportunity to explain. We sincerely believe that the wave of opposition to Mr. Blanton has its foundation in personal animosities incurred over political disappointments.

Many of those who are working against him have grabbed for appointments of one kind or another from Mr. Blanton, and when they received instead disappointment they have turned against him and justified their action by a smoke screen of charges without any foundation whatever. Two years ago Mr. Blanton was highly praised by some of these same parties. Now he is anathema to them. Isn't the reason clear? And isn't what they are doing openly the same thing they are unjustly accusing Mr. Blanton's supporters of doing, without any proof or evidence?

Many good people are supporting Mr. Garrett. This is well and good. We allow every man and woman the privilege we take for ourselves. If anyone has a good reason, through friendship, belief in his capacity to fill the office, or any other reason, we have the utmost admiration for him in his efforts to have him carry the election.

But a great number really have no preference and have voted admittedly without considering the matter as it affects them personally. It is of these we wish to make the request that they study the situation seriously and from the standpoint of their own good. Personally we think Mr. Blanton is the man for the place, and that he should be returned to Congress to continue the good work being done there by the veteran members from Texas. Vice-President Garner himself has approved the wisdom of this procedure on the part of the people.

This is no reflection on the character, integrity or ability of Mr. Garrett. Were he a second Moses, he would have a hard time accomplishing anything in Washington for several years, un-

Wright Patman to Cover District For Blanton In Runoff

Aug. 13.—The Honorable Wright Patman, Member of Congress from the First District of Texas, today announced his intention of going to the aid of his friend and colleague, Thomas L. Blanton, who is facing a run-off with Clyde L. Garrett in the Seventeenth District. In announcing his decision to speak for Congressman Blanton, Patman said:

"Because of his support of my Anti-Chain Store or Equal-Opportunity-in-Business Bill, which has substantially helped independent merchants, by reason of his support of President Roosevelt's Holding Company-Death Sentence Bill, and by reason of his uncompromising fight upon graft in Washington, Blanton has made enemies of some of the most powerful influences in the Nation, which have threatened openly to put him out of Congress. Because I know him to be a valuable Member of Congress—in fact, no man in America, in or out of Congress, knows more about parliamentary procedure than Blanton—and because I know he is being fought by outside interests, I shall take my own sound equipment and do all I can for him by speaking in his District."

"Tom has always been my friend and has substantially aided me in major battles, including the fight for payment of the Adjusted Service Certificates, the Robinson-Patman Bill, and others, and I am not going to see him cut down by the Wall Street gang without raising my voice against it."

Congressman Patman will speak at the following places on the dates and at the times mentioned:

Saturday, August 15: Mineral Wells, 10 A. M.; Eastland, 2:30 P. M.; Moran, Blanton Rally, 4:30 P. M.; Breckenridge, Blanton Rally, 8:00 P. M.

Monday, August 17: Anson, 10:00 A. M.; Rotan, 2:00 P. M.; Sweetwater, 4:30 P. M.; Abilene, Federal Lawn, 8 P. M.

Tuesday, August 18: Baird, 9:30 A. M.; Dublin, Radio Station KPFL, 12:30 to 1:30 P. M.; De Leon, 2:30 P. M.; Hamilton, 5:00 P. M.; Stephenville, 8:00 P. M.

Straw-Drawing Sets Run-Off Candidate For Representative

Through a peculiar coincidence, it was learned this week that two men had tied for second place in the race for Representative of the 17th District, composed of Hamilton and Coryell Counties. The situation is fully explained in the following letter from W. A. Patterson, Acting Democratic Chairman of Hamilton County:

"Two men tying for second place in the race for Representative caused the Democratic chairman to get busy and have the one to really be in the run-off decided on immediately. It was time to have the ballot printed for the August 22nd primary and the authorities at Austin as well as the chairman of the Democratic Committee in Hamilton and Coryell Counties were anxious to know just which man was to go in the run-off."

"Straw were drawn by Dr. A. G. Livingston and John E. Miller, the two tying for second place, and Livingston drew first and got the shortest straw, which was equal to elimination according to the agreement. The drawing occurred in my presence and as this was the only practical way to decide an event like this, it showed good sportsmanship on the part of both men to abide by the decision."

"This is the first incident of this kind, where two men were tied for second place in a district race, and at this late date it seems to me that John E. Miller is at a disadvantage in making his campaign. In fairness to him I sincerely hope the voters will be considerate."

Respectfully,
W. A. PATTERSON."

It should have accumulated some seniority to command prestige. In all fairness, we ask that the voters overlook the side issues and look upon the situation as it affects us here in the district. Can we afford to lose a man like Tom Blanton at this particular time?

Hico's 54th Annual REUNION

August 12-13-14-15

LIKE A FISH STORY THE GUY GOT AWAY

We nearly had him but he got away! Such was the wail Sunday night of Flossy Randals and Charlotte Boyce, school friend of Miss Randals and Home Demonstration Agent of Hill County who was an overnight visitor in the Randals' home.

Miss Randals and Miss Boyce were sitting on the front porch discussing the past semester at C. I. A. when they heard a skifflet fall in the kitchen. Thinking someone was in the house, they started for a gun that Miss Boyce carried, but decided they had better call some boys who were in the E. H. Persons' home.

They found the skifflet on the kitchen floor and the door open. Leighton Guyton, Tom Herbert Wolfe, Ray Cheek, Paul Graves, Luskie Randals, O. M. Bramblett, Rollie Porgy and Joe Ivy quickly organized a posse. Their search carried them to the chicken pen. Without light, they sent for matches. Coming back the boys passed through a hedge and their hunt ended. A man ran out. All managed to shout, "There he went."

It would have made a good fish story so near was the catch. Like all fish stories he got away.

HEAT REACHES 113 NEW RECORD

A torrid Texas sun sent the mercury to a new record in the history of Hico's twenty-four-year-old weather station Tuesday when the temperature went to 113 degrees. A new mark had previously been set Monday with 111. L. L. Hudson, local weather observer, said Tuesday's heat reached 110 at noon and by three o'clock the thermometer stood at the high reading. Hottest day of the year before Monday was the 108 degree weather July 19.

The heat was not local. Records were broken all over the state. Texarkana led Monday with 117. A new record was also set in Dallas where the temperature reached 109.6. Hico's station is four years older than the twenty-year-old Dallas bureau.

F. F. A. Boys Return From Cisco

The local F. F. A. boys returned Saturday from Lake Cisco where 296 boys from 35 schools had gathered for the annual three-day summer encampment. Richland Springs won the F. F. A. plaque by winning more points in the different events than any other school.

O. D. Belcher, local F. F. A. reporter, won fourth place in the best Future Farmer contest. Robert Anderson, the famous wash tub boat racer, won his first beat of 50 yards in 43 seconds, which put him in the final race with four other boys. But ambitious Robert got too fast and his tub ship went under half way down the line, giving him fourth place in the final race.

The pole fighting team, Jack Hollis and Dan Holladay, won fifth place.

Fifteen teams entered the playground ball contest. Hico drew a bye in the first round. The second round was matched with San Saba. As a result of a tie an extra inning was added. San Saba winning 6 to 5. Saturday morning Stephenville defeated Colorado City 30 to 8 to win the championship in playground ball.

All local F. F. A. boys resolved that they would know more about the encampment and would win more points next year, as this is the first year Hico has entered any events.

Robert, Max and Grady still had their usual complaint, "I can't find anything to eat."

Fire Destroys Pig Pen

Fire destroyed a pig pen back of Marvin Marshall's home early Tuesday afternoon when a trash fire in the alley spread to the structure by surrounding dead grass.

The local fire department quickly put out the blaze which threatened a nearby barn.

Prospects above average in all cotton districts of Texas except the southern and southeastern parts of the state were reported by Henry L. Rasor, cotton statistician of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in Austin Monday. A cotton crop of 3,850,000 five-hundred pound bales is indicated, compared with 2,956,000 last year, and an average of 4,850,000 bales for a five-year period.

Keeping Up With TEXAS

Earl Marcus Barnes, 69, died of heart failure while attending his wife, who had collapsed from heat at their home in Waco. The couple was sitting on the front porch of their residence. Thermometers in Waco registered 102. This occurred on Sunday.

"Where to?" the taxi driver asked his two fares in Washington, D. C. one night last week. "San Antonio, Texas," they said and settled back. As they passed through Beaumont, Texas, Ray Rose, the driver, said his passengers were two retired army men who recently received their bonus. He said the trip would cost them $260. "Now they're talking about going up to Seattle," he said.

Nine narcotic addicts, suffering from heat, took an unusual means to effect their liberty in the crowded city jail at Dallas Monday. Arrested in a drive against addicts, the men were crowded in a small cell. The temperature was well past the century mark, and they hadn't had a "shot" for some time. One of the addicts mysteriously produced a razor blade. Turnkeys, hearing groans, discovered that the nine had slashed their wrists. Two were rushed to a hospital. They are expected to recover. Only two of those with the slashed wrists were released.

Mrs. Mabel H. Green, widow of Col. Edward H. R. Green, railroad tycoon, was named permanent administratrix of his vast estate, estimated at $80,000,000, in a brief hearing in Kaufman Monday. County Judge Ben Brooks, Texas' youngest jurist made permanent the appointment of Mrs. Green, temporarily named after application for letters of administration were filed July 28.

Texas Centennial officials, still shocked by the sudden death Sunday of William A. Webb, 58, the exposition's general manager, looked about Monday for someone to fill the popular organizer's place. That place, they agreed, would be hard to fill. It appeared likely that no action would be taken for several days. Fred Florence, president of the exposition corporation, said "we are so shocked that no one has had a thought of anything else just at the moment."

Death came to Sheriff Carl Smith at 4:45 a. m. Monday in All Saints Hospital Fort Worth. It ended for the Tarrant County law enforcement chief a long struggle against anemia, an ailment which has kept him in bad health for several years. Three blood transfusions had been given. Nearly three weeks ago, just as had victorious campaign for re-election was drawing to a close, he was forced to enter the hospital.

Leaf Worm Damage

We have been watching the leaf worm situation closely and feel safe now in saying that severe damage from this insect is immediately impending through the entire eastern part of the State as far as the Red River and that this infestation will spread as far as the Panhandle by September 1, probably by mid-August. Farmers will do well to be prepared to apply measures.

The only poisons recommended by us as entirely safe to use are calcium arsenate or lead arsenate, the latter being so expensive as to be impractical so long as calcium arsenate can be obtained. Either may be dusted or sprayed. If dusted, from 5 to 8 pounds per acre of either should be applied, depending upon the size of the cotton. The best time for application is in the early morning when the dew is on the plants and when the air is usually quiet.

If to be applied as a spray, 2 pounds of either material should be mixed with 50 gallons water and this mixture kept well agitated during the application. Paris green or London purple are apt to prove injurious to cotton and are not advised if the other materials can be obtained. If they must be used, 4 parts of hydrated lime should be thoroughly mixed with 1 pound of either poison for dry application, this amount to cover an acre, or 1 1/2 pounds of the lime mixed with 1 1/2 pounds of either poison in 50 gallons water as a spray.

White arsenic, a mixture of white arsenic and dry lime, of white arsenic boiled in water with sal soda or caustic soda, are almost certain to burn the cotton and the entomologists of A. and M. College strongly advise against their use.

Mayor Greeted Crowds And Predicts Success For Annual Picnic

Expecting practically every mode of transportation from the days of the ox-cart and on through the horse-drawn vehicles to the present-day streamlined, high-powered automobiles, the long and colorful parade Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock launched the 54th Annual Hico Reunion on its four day run which is expected to attract unprecedented crowds.

Following the parade, which terminated at the City Park, the site for years past where previous celebrations of this nature have been held, Mayor H. F. Sellers in his gracious and hospitable manner welcomed the visitors and impressed upon homefolks the opportunities afforded by the picnic for social mingling and renewing of friendships of long duration.

Going into the historical side of the affair, Mr. Sellers recalled that although he was not present for the first celebration of this nature, he had been privileged to attend quite a number of them, the first of which he attended being held at the old Grubbs place. He added that he had watched the growth and increase of interest in the affair from year to year, and predicted that this year's Reunion would stand out above all others in points of attendance and interest.

Parade Prizes

One of the longest parades ever held started wending its way through the city streets shortly after 10 A. M. Covering a total length of over six blocks, the cars, floats and individual entries were unique and showed evidences of a great amount of thought and effort in their preparation.

The parade committee, composed of G. M. Barrow, chairman; S. W. Everett, Lytle Golden and R. J. Adams, had made up an amount of $15.00 to match the similar amount offered for the various diversions of entries, and rivalry was keen for a part of the prize money. The committee announced that the judges had awarded the prizes as follows:

- W. E. Petty Dry Goods Co., $10.00 for most historical car, float or wagon.
- Hico Review Club, $10.00 first; Carmen's Beauty Shop, $5.00 second, for most artistic car or float.
- Texaco Service Station, $5.00 for most comical entry.
- Fairy Shop, $10.00 first for most artistic car or float from rural district. There was no other entry in this division, and the second prize therefore was not awarded.
- Stanford Family, $5.00 for best walking clown.

Many Represented

Represented in the parade were a number of local business houses and individuals, as well as visitors from other towns. The line was led by Tyrus King and C. E. Connolly, who acted as standard bearers. They were followed by the official car, a Chrysler provided by the Jones Motor Company, carrying Mayor H. F. Sellers and party. Following this came the Hamilton Band, engaged for the duration of the Reunion for daily concerts. The Hico Volunteer Fire Department's pumper truck was next in line, carrying members of the department and a number of little girls riding atop the conveyance.

Included in the lineup were the following entries, listed to the best of a newspaper representative's ability:

- Carl, no sign.
- Fairy High School.
- Comedians—Stanford family.
- Hico Review Club.
- Ellington Feed Store.
- Texaco Service Station.
- WPA Workers.
- Jones Motor Co.
- Midland Hotel.
- Geo. Terrell, driven by Kal Sechrist.
- Garrett for Congress, driven by Mrs. George Tabor.
- G. M. Carlton Bros. & Co.
- Porter's Drug Store.
- Clyde Weatherly Motor Co.
- Gulf Refining Co.
- Farm Implement Supply Co.
- Hubert Keller, Bonvoy Gasoline.
- Hico School Bus.
- Golightly Chevrolet Co.
- J. J. Leeth & Son, Glinners.
- Carmen's Beauty Shop.
- Lytle Golden.
- C. L. Lynch Hardware Co.
- W. E. Petty Dry Goods.
- J. Manley Head, Seven cars.
- Ras Proffitt, Magnolia Station.
- Raymond Lowe's Garage.
- Midway Inn—Perry Clepper.

Speaking Program

In his address of welcome, which was followed by a short talk by W. J. Oxford, Jr., of Stephenville, Mayor Sellers announced the program of speaking for the four days as follows:

GOES 'ROUND AND 'ROUND
(And It Comes Out Here)

The subject of winning money came up the other day, especially after we won the $10.00 at Trades Day, and George Stringer told us a good one. He said two children were talking about prizes to be awarded, and one of them said to the other: "If mother would win the $25.00 one and the $15.00 one too, what would she have?" The other answered: "A fit." So that is nearly what we had when we won the money the other day. Listen, folks, we now believe in Santa Claus. We had said hundreds of times that we never have and never will win anything, but we'll never say it again. So keep coming to the Trades Days for your time is sure to come. It's a glorious and grand feeling to see a number in your hand the same as is on the board, and a greater thrill when they hand you out the money.

Mrs. S. E. Blair declared the other night that the merchants of Hico give good measure in their merchandise, especially where eggs are concerned. She recently purchased a dozen eggs, and as she broke the shell of one of them found the egg a bad one. A neighbor lady who was there at the time advised her to have the merchant make it good, when Mrs. Blair informed her that she was still even as one of the former eggs she had broken contained two yolks. Then Mrs. Coston spoke up and said she could tell one better than that, as she recently bought a dozen eggs that three of them contained two yolks, equivalent to fifteen eggs. The moral of the story is "Buy your eggs in Hico."

One of the most energetic people in Hico we know of is Mrs. Laura Homer, who in spite of a badly sprained wrist, has been engaged in canning foods for the past several weeks. About four weeks ago, Mrs. Homer received the sprain when she fell at her home here, and since that time, the arm has been in a splint and sling. She still suffers from the injury and physicians said it might be months before she fully recovered. But in spite of the use of only one hand she has done work that many women with the use of two would never have done. Hico is noted for women who are good workers and good managers and Mrs. Homer is one of them.

Several of the Hico citizens enjoyed a few musical numbers at Gene's Cafe Saturday morning by WFAA radio artists. Armstrong's Birdbrand Cowboys, who were en route to Hamilton to play for a dance at the Perry Country Club. These artists are heard daily over the station from Dallas and the Hico folks felt that it was a treat to hear these famous musicians, and feel indebted to Mr. Langston for making the program possible.

The other day James Lee Proffitt called the number of his father's service station and said "Hello, who is this?" His Proffitt, recognizing his son's voice said: "The smartest man in the world." Then James Lee said: "Pardon me, I got the wrong number."

One of our out-of-town friends asked us to call the attention of our readers to the wonderful exhibits on display at the University of Texas in Austin this year. Five of the buildings house these historical scenes of nature and other things for Centennial year. The gymnasium building brings out every historical feature of the Lone Star State, and the four other buildings contain things equally as interesting. It would be well worth your time if you pass through Austin this year to take a little time off to view these marvelous exhibits, which are free to everyone.

We are right now enjoying one of the best Reunions Hico has ever had, and we want you, your family and friends to have a big time. Your merchants have made the entertainment possible and they want you to make your home here for the rest of the week. You will probably see some of your friends whom you have not seen in a whole year, and others for a longer period than that. Just drop everything and come on in, as you will have the rest of the year in which to do your farm work.

J. W. Richbourg, manager of Carlton Bros. & Co., has seemed a little "high-headed" all week, and we have tried every way to find the reason for his peculiar actions. Just today we learned that while he was in Dallas last week that he shook hands and had a long talk with the vice president, John M. Garner. Mr. Richbourg came home a little more interested in politics, and said he could tell us a lot more about the State's business.

Local stores which have taken on new appearance in the way of newly painted fronts in time for the Reunion are the H. & D. Harelik Dry Goods Company, Barrow Furniture Co., Lynch's Cafe, Lynch's Shoe Shop, Gene's Cafe, Post Office, J. C. Rodgers Insurance Co., Wiseman Studio, and the corner building formerly housed by Norton's Cash Store.

A new National cash register of the latest model has been added to the Corner Drug Co. fixtures, and according to Geary Cheek, one of the employees, it does everything but talk. It keeps the sales of tobaccos, fountain drinks, prescriptions and other articles added in separate accounts. If it works as well as it looks, it must be a wonderful machine.

A small envelope from Mineral Wells, Texas, received in the mails Tuesday morning contained the announcement of the birth of a little daughter who arrived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gallaher in that city last Friday, August 7th. The child weighed nine pounds and was given the name of Sylvia Beth. Mrs. Gallaher was formerly Miss Johnnie Copeland of Hico, and her many Hico friends send congratulations and best wishes on their first arrival. We imagine our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Copeland, are hard to get along with since they are "granny" and "grandpap."

WHY NOT BEAT AUGUST HEAT by driving someplace for a swim? And if you want to keep your gas bills down, don't forget you need a fuel with a formula that fits hot weather. Otherwise your gas doesn't burn completely—part of it escapes through the exhaust unburned, wasted. FIRST TRENCH SILO FOR HAMILTON COUNTY BEEN DUGGED AND FILLED

T. D. Craddock, County Agent

The first trench-silo for Hamilton County has been dug and filled by Emil Stogemoller of the Indian Gap community. This trench is 12 feet wide at the top, 8 feet at the bottom and approximately 90 feet long. It is filled with grain sorghum. When Mr. Stogemoller gets ready to start feeding we are planning on having a tour with every one interested to inspect this work and see the results.

Following is the "History of the Trench-Silo in Texas" by E. R. "Hico" Eudaly: Extension Service, A. and M. College:

The first trench silos in Texas so far as I am able to find out, were dug in Kleberg and Jim Wells counties. These were dug about 1920. It was several years before any more were dug. There are three reasons for the trench-silo idea not spreading any faster at the start, viz. (1) We thought that the trench silo had to be at least 8 to 10 feet deep, 8 to 10 feet wide and about 100 feet long to prevent a large percentage of spoilage. (2) We thought the crop to be put in the silo should be cut when it was in the dough stage. (3) We thought the feed had to be chopped up with a silage cutter or it would not keep.

We now have trench silos only 3 feet wide, 3 feet deep and 20 feet long, and we have found that we get better silage when we allow the feed to ripen.

Covering the Silo.

Perhaps one reason for thinking that the trench had to be large was due to the fact that the first trenches were not covered with dirt. This permitted the air to penetrate the silage and we had spoilage as far as the air penetrated, which was usually 12 to 18 inches, depending upon how well the silage was packed in the trench. On this basis it is seen that nearly all of the silage would have spoiled in a trench only 3 feet deep. If we cover the trench with a 12-inch layer of dirt and then wet dirt if it is clay dirt, not necessary with sand) we get practically no spoilage even in a trench only 3 feet deep.

In 1932 we filled a trench silo with bundles of hegar, this kept well. The bundles should be laid lengthwise of the trench and shingled in. In 1933 we filled some trenches with ripe hegar. The grain on the head was hard but most of the leaves were green. We also filled one with bundles of corn (stalks with ears on them) which were ripe enough for the grain to be hard but most of the leaves were green. We found that the livestock at more silage when it was made from ripe feed, and there was less trouble from scours. At the end of 1935, we had about 4,000 trench silos in Texas, and about half of them were filled with bundles.

The above discoveries have put the trench in the reach of the small farmer, and therefore in the reach of every farmer in Texas. It is the cheapest and safest way to save feed, and the best way to keep it saved. Feed buried in a trench silo cannot burn up or blow away. Neither rats nor boll weevils will bother it. Regardless of how much it rains or how dry it gets, we know that the feed in a trench silo will keep for eleven years. We have trench silos of all kinds of soils. We have them on flat land and on hillside. Where the land is flat and where it has a high water table, we have some silos above the ground. To do this throw up two levees of dirt parallel to one another. The height of the levees of dirt, and the width between the levees of dirt, depend upon the size of the trench wanted. Pack the feed in between the levees of dirt and then cover with a 12-inch layer of dirt.

Interesting Discovery.

We have recently learned that grain sorghum heads buried by themselves will keep in a trench silo just as well as they do when buried on the stalk. O. C. Copeland, of the Dairy Experiment Station, at College Station, buried 2 tons of dry yellow milo heads in a trench last October. This trench was opened 130 days later, and Mr. Copeland found the heads had kept all right. He packed dry heads in the trench and then ran water in up over the heads. Two feet of dirt was put on the heads. The water got the air out and the dirt kept it out.

L. W. Worsham of Goliad also buried some grain sorghum heads last fall. Mr. Worsham had 150 acres of hegar. It was a wet fall and Mr. Worsham knew that he could not dry the heads out to put them in the barn, without considerable damage and loss. Mr. Worsham is in the hog business and wanted the heads separate from the stalks. He dug two silos of 100 tons capacity each and cut the hegar heads with a header, putting them in the trench as fast as the heads were cut. The grain was hard but the stems were full of sap. The heads were covered with about 12 inches of dirt. I visited Mr. Worsham on March 7, and found him feeding out of one of these trenches. The heads were in good condition. He had fattened out 100 head of hogs on these heads. The heads were thrown on the ground and the hogs allowed to eat them. The grain was soft, therefore grinding was not necessary. Mr. Worsham gave his hogs a little tankage and cottonseed meal to balance the ration. He had also fed 100 sheep, fifty turkeys, fifteen sows, ninety-one pigs, and five head of horses and mules on these heads. He said all the animals like the heads and did well on them.

Mr. Worsham stated he had always had trouble keeping corn and grain sorghum heads due to rat and weevil infestation, especially weevils. Nothing bothered the heads that were buried in the trench silo. He had found the trench silo the cheapest and safest way to store feed.

Storing to Advantage.

It would seem now that the average diversified farmer should store his grain sorghum heads in one trench, and the stalks in another trench. By so doing, he can regulate the amount of grain fed to the livestock and have grain to feed horses, hogs, chickens, turkeys, and what have you. The bundles can be fed as roughage which should be all they will eat.

The trouble in Texas, has been when a big crop of feed was produced we have not been able to save it. We then make a short crop, and next year we are out of feed. The trench silo enable us to remedy this trouble.

Furthermore, the Experiment Stations have shown that 1 acre of any of the grain sorghums when put in a trench silo is worth 2 acres put in the stalk. If we can double the per acre value of feed by putting it in a trench silo, then it would certainly seem good business to put it in the trench.

Invest a little real money in some real studio photographs. It is more or less a duty you owe to your family. It will pay big dividends in appreciation and pleasant recollections in years to come.

REVOLUTION IN EUROPE

The turmoil in which the whole world, more or less, has been involved for twenty years and more, finds its latest manifestation in the bloody revolution now in progress in Spain. From all reports, France too, seems to be on the verge of a popular uprising.

It is difficult, from this distance, to place proper value upon the news that the cables bring. We have nothing in our American temperament, our methods of life or our political system, with which to compare the situation in Europe.

Apparently the conflict in Spain is between two conflicting concepts of government, neither of which has gained much headway in America. It seems to be a struggle between Communism and Fascism, complicated by strong anti-church feeling and by an effort of the monarchists to bring about a situation that would result in King Alfonso being restored to the throne.

The only thing certain is that armed forces on both sides are killing people by thousands, and looting the churches and the big estates of the nobility. The situation has been likened to that which existed in Italy before Mussolini took charge; with the exception that no strong leader has yet appeared to seize power and restore order.

Spain differs from most other nations in that it has no great commercial middle class. Its population consists on the one hand of laborers and peasants and on the other of the so-called upper class of nobles and grandees. The upper class supplies the officers of the army, but the rank and file comes from the lower class, and the present situation began with a revolt of soldiers against their officers.

It is possible that the other European nations, particularly Great Britain, may seize this opportunity to step in and "pacify" Spain. It is hardly likely that any of Spain's neighbors will be happy to see a new fascism or a new Communist nation develop so close to them.

COUNSELS OF MODERATION

It is both interesting and, to most folks, surprising, to see the advertisements of one of the largest firms of whiskey distillers counselling moderation in drinking. Yet, on analysis, it appears to be the most intelligent move which the liquor business has ever made.

Most folk will agree that drinking cannot be prevented by law. The unfortunate experiment of national prohibition provided proof enough of that. Almost every nation has made efforts by political methods to control the traffic in "hard liquor," but nowhere has any means been found effective except that of education in temperance. America has always been a whiskey-drinking nation. The manufacture and sale of whiskey has again been legalized, except in a few states which are still "dry" by popular vote. It is not the moderate use of whiskey which lies at the root of the still active agitation for prohibition; it is intemperate and excessive drinking.

It is, therefore, a highly intelligent move on the part of the distillers to join in the counsels of moderation, to want their customers against excessive indulgence. They want to continue in business, but not at the price of making drunkards.

Their situation is comparable, in some respects, to that of the builders of automobiles. The increasing number of cars, with greater engine power and vastly higher possible speeds, has been accompanied by an appalling toll of human lives from motor accidents. Now the automobile makers are giving vigorous support to the campaign for moderation in driving, just as the whiskey makers are counselling moderation in drinking.

When all's said and done, the problem of temperance, whether in driving, in drinking, in eating or in any other human activity is an individual one. Every man must solve it for himself. There is no mass method of making people behave according to a fixed rule or act at all times in their own best interests. But every effort, such as this one of the whiskey distillers, to instill the principle of moderation in all things, is a step in the direction of sanity and human progress.

Nothing is gained in discussing the faults of others. Darkness has never failed to give way to light.

MODERN WOMEN

CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS

Women of Mexico are taking a more aggressive part in political and social life of their country, and have been particularly effective in the fight against illiteracy, having reduced the percentage of illiterates by 30 per cent in the last twenty-five years. Hundreds of school teachers have been sent to the rural schools which have multiplied considerably. The open air schools of painting are considered one of the most significant developments in their modern education work. Besides their interest in schools the women living in large cities have organized civic and social betterment clubs. At the next election in Mexico women will have their first opportunity to cast their votes. They have made great strides even though the world outside hears little of individuals who are responsible for this progress.

Women who are good in marksmanship are always a little surprising, probably because they have so little practice. But when you hear of a college dean who can hit the bullseye every time, or nearly so, she is hailed as a champion, even though the demonstration is on the college campus and before an informal gathering of students, as was the case recently when Dean Virginia C. Gilderleeve of Barnard College, New York, cracked a whole series of targets amid the cheers of the undergraduates. She is a daughter of Colonel H. A. Gilderleeve, a New York lawyer, who was an expert rifle shot.

Among the seven women's orchestras in America, one of the outstanding organizations is that of Long Beach, California, which has 125 members and is conducted by Miss Eva Anderson.

Mrs. Floyd Bennett, widow of Admiral Byrd's co-pilot, now heads a division of the WPA Re-employment Bureau in New York.

FOR TOWN WEAR

Pattern 8704: Achieving a youthful accent in a frock for mature figures brings joy both to the designer and to the wearer, and the model here shows accomplishes this objective so gracefully, so easily as to make it appear utterly simple. For which you may give credit to a softly charming neckline and the concealing folds of the always-flattering capelet sleeves. The slimming panels of the skirt, front and back, give way to kick pleats for essential fullness.

Make it of a colorful print of your favorite material—silk or crepe or pongee or cotton—with a self-fabric belt to gather in the waistline and know the joy of perfect grooming.

Marcy Hart's HOME NEWS

For most of us names just indicate certain persons, places or things. For an historian they present one of the few means of discovering whole chapters of unwritten history. This is especially true of geographical names which as an eminent teacher points out, "are an expression of the mental character of the people and the period."

With that statement in mind, it is interesting to examine the names of some Western towns to see how much they reflect the cultural life of our people in the pioneer days. Basalt, Colorado, is one of a dozen towns named after mineral deposits, showing that the earliest settlers were prospectors and miners, and showing what value they put on Colorado. California has places named by its settlers for their agricultural and commercial interests: for example, Radium, Walnut, Oilfield, Orange, Rice Shearbranch, and Placerville.

Other Western names reveal flora, fauna, and very human, pioneer interests: Rifle, Smuggler, Grant, Wild Horse, Wildcat, Bibbia, Model, Hygiene, Ideal, Magazine, Officer, Tombstone, Inspiration, Humble Bee, Weed, Jenny Lind and Success.

Taken all together these geographical names tell a good part of the saga of the West. What stories of history do the place names in your locality tell?

The drive for safety in home appliances continues. Latest wrinkle shown in Chicago's Merchandise Mart is an electric fan with semi-soft rubber blades. It needs no guard, as the blades, while stiff enough to set up a strong breeze, are limber enough not to injure inquisitive fingers.

Whether you write with a fountain pen or on a typewriter, you are using glycerine. It happens to be an important ingredient in the manufacture of high-grade inks, typewriter ribbons, carbon paper and printing fluids.

Shoes are a weakness with Helen Hayes, as well they may be. Any possessor of a size three and one-half foot would want to show it to its best advantage. Few headliners own a more impressive array of shoes than this popular stage and screen star. For evening wear she has assembled quantities of sandals with high and low covered heels in materials and colors to match or contrast with her various gowns. To supplement her town clothes she prefers strap pumps and tongued oxfords with medium heels, and walking shoes with low builtup heels.

Golfer sufferers, which include so many women through the mid-western and mountain states golfer belt, are promised relief from the non-surgical treatment of toxic goiter which has been called one of the greatest achievements of modern medicine. The evidence is now overwhelming that the dread toxic goiter yields almost invariably to radiotherapy without any of the risks inherent in operations. Complete and permanent cures are obtained in about 99 per cent of cases, and this includes the cases so advanced that shock operation would be fatal.

Household Hint: Leftover biscuits can be heated by sprinkling lightly with water and placing in covered pan and then heating five minutes in moderate oven. You will be surprised how fresh the biscuits will be.

"I don't think I'll pray tonight," said four-year-old Joan as she climbed sleepily into bed. "I've had an awfully good time today and I guess God knows it. Besides, I can't think of anything I want."

LET'S TALK ABOUT CLOTHES

Denton, Texas, August 4.—Are you wearing the right type of clothes? So many women give little consideration to the styles they wear, except whether or not they are fashionable. They think nothing of the design in relation to their respective figures.

A tall, slender person is blessed with a willowly appearance. She can get away with long trains, sweeping shoulder drapes, and can look perfectly stunning in huge fur coats or slim suits that hug her form. The short person should never try to wear these items. They'll make her look dumpty and will cut what little height she has. Her evening dresses should give a swaying motion when walking, and should be short enough so that a tiny part of the slipper will show—otherwise she will give the appearance of being stuck to the floor.

Breaking the line of dresses is the best way designers have to give your figure just the style it needs. Some use pleurms if the line is to be broken at the waist, others use capes of varying lengths to suit your individual preference; and girls at Texas State College for Women (CFA) suggest tunics.

Skirt lengths should be adjusted to the individual figure and legs. Even if everyone is wearing her dresses 11 inches from the floor this season, you certainly shouldn't do so if that length exposes the fattest part of the calf. It will mar the entire effect of your costume.

Arms and neck should also be taken into consideration when discussing types of clothes suited to individuals. If you have a short neck, wear only the simplest, flattest necklines. Sleeves should be governed by the proportions of the arm.

Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Charles E. Dunn

Sowing and Reaping. Lesson for August 16th. Galatians 6:1-10. Golden Text: Galatians 6:7.

All successful athletes know how necessary it is for them to abstain from the consumption of hard liquor. "The precision that tennis demands," insists Helen Willis "makes necessary total abstinence—even from beer." Con- nle Mack, the veteran big league manager says that he "won't bother with a youngster who drinks." The alcohol habit must be shunned by a professional ball player, observes Mr. Mack for the sake of the public, the club, the player's team-mates, the player himself. My good friend Clarence DeMar, who won the Boston Marathon seven times, is a total abstainer and an active Christian worker.

But when he returned from France with his distinguished service medals and was asked by his home-state what he wanted, he named not only a road for his isolated mountain folks but also a school where temperance might be taught. "A feller who don't protect the children who is growin' up from liquor," said he, "ain't a good Christian nor a good citizen, no how." "You can get along with a wooden leg," writes the noted surgeon, Dr. Charles Mayo, "but you can't get along with a wooden head. It is the brain that counts, but in order that your brain may be kept clear you must keep your body fit and well." Then, too, we should never forget the impressive fact that there are 26 million gasoline automobiles and trucks in America today crowding our streets and highways, and often bounding forward at a speed approaching recklessness. Because the difference between life and death may be but a vious that every driver must be a fraction of a split second it is obviously sober, booze and gasoline are a fatal mixture for our motor age.

BRUCE BARTON Soap. Includes a portrait of a man.

Youth Looks Ahead. The Advertising Club of a certain city decided to offer a course of lectures in the Choice of a Vocation. It was planned to have a leading doctor speak on medicine, an eminent lawyer on the law, a railroad man on transportation, and so forth.

With the idea of finding out which subject would be of most interest to the young men and women of the city, a questionnaire was mailed to current graduates of the city's high schools, asking them to indicate a first and second choice of life work. Now, gentle reader, how do you think this ballot came out?

One occupation over-shadowed all others. Not medicine, law, chemistry, or advertising—none of these. By an overwhelming majority, those boys and girls, looking over the whole field and seeing what goes on, announced as their first choice of a life work government service.

I do not blame them for this vote; there are many opportunities for good work in the government employ. None the less, this is a straw which shows a good change in our national psychology. In the old days no boy chose a government job, at least until he had tried something else first. He wanted to jump into the competitive game of business; win or lose, he would measure his wits and strength against his fellows.

One day he might hope to have a conviction that every bright moment in human life has to be paid for by an equivalent moment of darkness. Say to him: "It's a beautiful day, Mr. Jones," and his invariable answer is: "Yes, but it's a 'weathermaker'." We're living in some tough storms for the future, mark my word."

light of day the old lady may have passed on to her reward. I recall dimly the excitement she caused more than thirty years ago. She was a cook and for a number of years she went her way from one employer to another, giving general satisfaction. But a tragic fate pursued every family she served. One or more members invariably developed typhoid fever. Doctors examined the food and the milk and the plumbing without success.

Finally one curious individual, Dr. George A. Soper, a sanitary engineer, caused an examination of Mary, and a startling discovery was made. Mary was not sick; she never had been sick; but she was a huge boarding house and picnic ground for typhoid fever germs. She was what is known as a "carrier"—a walking distributer of death.

Well, the world is full of Typhoid Marys. I remember one who was a merchant in a country town. Always prosperous, he was always pessimistic. Go into his store and ask him how business was, and he would reply: "Not good, not bad. And if you want my opinion, I'll get a whole lot worse before it's any better."

His pessimism did not prevent him from making a snazzy annual profit and accumulating a considerable estate. But for fifty years he dropped a germ of pessimism into the soul of every customer. Another man has spoiled ten thousand sunny days. He has a deep seated conviction that every bright moment in human life has to be paid for by an equivalent moment of darkness. Say to him: "It's a beautiful day, Mr. Jones," and his invariable answer is: "Yes, but it's a 'weathermaker'." We're living in some tough storms for the future, mark my word."

They looked up Typhoid Mary, but the spiritual Typhoid Marys roam the world unchecked. Not sick themselves, they instill a germ of gloom and foreboding into everyone they meet.

The Family DOCTOR by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D. Includes a portrait of a man.

NO REASON TO FEAR WORK. Regular, legitimate toil never harmed any one. We often hear of "overwork" being a cause of breakdown mentally and physically; but, when we look carefully into the matter, we find the victim, long prior to his invalidism, wrecked the machinery of his body by improper feeding, irregular sleep, and unsympathetic exercise. Can you imagine a tubby, swivel-chair, club-ridden gormandizer, getting exercise from a ride in an upholstered automobile, and three hours a week devoted to panting around a fancy golf course, where he does his heavy-ballasted carcass more harm than good? Wouldn't you think he is about fifteen or more years too late with his "exercise"? There is no hope of long life for that sort of man—absolutely none! He is in danger every moment he exists.

One thing our city business men should remember: There is a vast difference between "good business" and night living. My idea is, there is nothing that pays quite so well as a rigorous adherence to proper care of the body. It is a shame that we violate every law of diet, sleep, and exercise—die young—and put the blame on overwork. Does Providence remove the man that commits suicide? I knew a man who worked in a stone-quarry on his farm until he was near eighty. "A freak," you say. No, you are the freak! This man ate regularly; when tired, he rested. He had his full allotment of fresh air; he slept eight hours every night; he ate just what he wanted and no more. He died at eighty-two—and he didn't die of overwork. His was a perfectly natural death.

Exposition to Honor Great Texan

JOHN NANCE GARNER

A special proclamation by Governor Allred has proclaimed August 5th as John Nance Garner day, and the distinguished Vice President will be honored on that day by a tumultuous demonstration at the Centennial Exposition in Dallas. Thousands of Texans will converge upon Dallas in probably the greatest public ovation ever accorded a citizen of the Lone Star State. The Exposition is preparing to handle the gayest and largest crowd in its history.

What Makes the Wheels of Jumbo Go 'Round

Artist's Conception of the Innards of Billy Rose's Spectacle

Billy Rose's circus-musical comedy-drama-revue-extravaganza "Jumbo" will be seen to even greater advantage during its stay at the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial than during its season-long run at the New York Hippodrome. True nearly a quarter of a million dollars was expended making the famous Manhattan playhouse habitable for the elephantine spectacle. But the "little ol' cow town way out west" has gone the big town on the Hudson one better. At Fort Worth a complete circus amphitheatre has been constructed, the first to be devoted exclusively to a circus in over seventy years. Designed and supervised by Albert Johnson it represents an investment of $300,000.00, over a third of which is allotted to electrical equipment and another $100,000.00 to paraphernalia.

One Man in a Million

FRED S. BENGE, of Norman, Okla., is one man in a million. He found that out recently when, visiting the Texas Centennial Central Exposition at Dallas, he was pounced upon by a group of guides, regrettably by the mayor of Dallas and officials of the fair, hailed by the Centennial Ranger Band, and taken for a Jinticksha ride through the Grand Plaza. Nonplused at first by the unexpected attention, Mr. Benge soon learned that he was the Centennial's millionth visitor. The photo shows the National Cash Register building in the form of a huge cash register which registered 1,000,000 as Mr. Benge passed into the grounds. In the inset is Mr. Benge and Miss Mabel Rooks, captain of the Texas Rangerettes, who escorted him about the grounds.

Which Did Mother Wear?

Uniform styles at Texas State College for Women (CIA) have changed with the prevailing fashion, and the demure miss of 1916 bears little resemblance to the trim young modern of today. Miss Jay Shroyer of Denton models the uniform worn by her mother two decades ago, and the uniform she will wear this fall.

New Furs Arrive

NEW YORK... This coat is for sports or about-town and one of the new tunic-length furs for the season ahead. It is black Persian. The four flap pockets, the belt and the buttons are of heavy black calf, a new touch for fur treatment.

Inherits Found Fortune

TIPTON, Ia... Louis Voss (above) and wife are to inherit the fortune of $212,000 found hidden in the machine shed and house on the farm of the three Iwers brothers here. Seventeen other cousins are contesting the will.

Centen's Sweetheart

SAN ANTONIO... Janice Jarrett, this town's model beauty, has been commissioned the "Sweetheart of the Texas Centennial" by Governor Allred, to rule during the celebrations now under way.

Formal Coiffure

HOLLYWOOD... Fashion folks say it is most complimentary and interesting and the ideal hair dress for formal events, first introduced by Mary Boland (above), Paramount star, in a recent picture. The clever arrangement of curls at the sides is repeated over the top of the coiffure.

Protected Americans

BOSTON... Eric C. Wendell, 31, of Quincy, Mass., third secretary of the American embassy at Madrid, Spain, was in command when riots and revolution started there and it was up to him to protect hundreds of Americans who rushed to the embassy.

Texas Guns

by L. P. HOLMES

Final Installment.
 "He's on top of the bunkhouse," yelled Johnny. "I'm gonna be set for him next shot. An' Jim, fer God's sake take a new position. They got yuh figured."
 The old cattleman swore but made no move to push himself to another point. It was Ronny who darted up and drew her father away, in spite of his protests.
 At the window corner Johnny sat tense, his lips in a compressed line, his eyes fixed unwaveringly on the top of the bunkhouse. Suddenly he stiffened and shoved the muzzle of his rifle through a shattered pane. His keen glance had caught sight of a slight movement on that distant ridgepole. The movement continued and grew into the shape of a long, black gun barrel which was being shoved over and trained on the ranchhouse. Johnny swung his sights into line, drawing a fine bead just above that threatening barrel. Cautiously the upper half of a barred head showed. Johnny held his breath, centered his bead and pressed the trigger.
 Half the body of a man lurched into view, then dropped from sight. The big Sharps rifle teetered on the ridge pole for a moment then tipped over and slid half-way down the roof, where it stuck and held, in plain view of the exultant Johnny.
 "That's one cannon spiked. I got him, Jim. An' the big gun's in plain sight on the roof where the rest can't get it."
 Johnny's triumph was short lived. Just as Speele's cohorts, driven to madness by the sight of another casualty on their side, opened up in fury from all angles, Doc McMurdo started to circle from Delevan's side to Johnny. He went down, just opposite to Johnny. He went down, just opposite the window, falling at full length on his face. There was a bullet hole in the side of his neck and one in the side of his neck. He was dead on his feet.
 At her father's side Ronny sighed in a near faint. Delevan swore helplessly, terribly. Johnny, white and harsh, crouched over and dragged the body into a dark corner. Then, without a word he padded back to his window corner and settled down to his watching. In that position darkness found them.
 There comes a time in every man's life when minutes are hours and hours untold ones. When suspense whips the nerve centers taut and harsh and sets muscles hard and unyielding. At these times the veneer of civilization melts away and pure savagery rears its head. And if the suspense endures without breaking, the animal madness grows until danger and hand to hand conflict are to be welcomed with open arms.
 Thus felt Johnny Clehose as midnight approached. The house was in utter blackness seemingly much deeper than the opaque veil which hovers over the world without. And the Box D ranchhouse had become a house of ghosts now. Human bodies had no substance in that stygian, acid gloom. Only human voices existed, low-pitched, anger hoarsened voices.
 Only when Ronny crept once to Johnny's side with a cup of coffee which Chang had managed to brew by some celestial legerdemain, did he realize fully again that he was not alone in a mad, black, stark world.
 Ronny crouched close beside him, her cheek resting against his shoulder much as would that of a frightened, bewildered and unutterably worried child.
 "Pore little kid," murmured Johnny. He put his freed arm about her shoulders and she relaxed and rested there.
 "Presently she stirred. "Johnny," she whispered. "I'm afraid. They are going to rush the house soon. I know it. I feel it. And I'm afraid if only Tex was here."
 Johnny gulped. "Ain't I been wishin' an' prayin' the same thing," he muttered hoarsely. "God—yes, if Tex was here he'd lick Speele's whole damn outfit single handed. Good ole Tex—he's like a dad to me."
 "I know. He's wonderful. With his clear old eyes and funny, quirky smile. Yet I feel that he can be terrible if he's aroused."
 Long they crouched there in the dark. Two children and just a wee bit afraid of a stark, murdered world.
 Long after, Jim Delevan stirred in his chair and cleared his throat. "Ronny," he called softly. "Where are yuh, child?"
 "She's here, Jim," answered Johnny. "She's asleep on my shoulder. Pore little kid, she's havin' a tough time of it."
 "I'm glad she's asleep. She likes yuh, son."
 Johnny's arm tightened around the sleeping girl. She stirred and moaned a little, like an infant plagued with dreams.
 The air was stark with the chill of early morning. It seemed to Johnny that the murk outside was thinning somewhat. Dawn was not so very far away. Then the storm broke.
 From all sides of the house a torrent of yells shattered the silence. And with them came the rumble and thunder of shots. There was a clatter of boots upon the porch and something crashed at one wide porch window, tearing away sash and splintered remnants of glass in a flurry of blows. Then through the opening catapulted a dark, magnificent figure, a spitting gun in each hand.

 Like a flash Johnny lowered Ronny to the floor and leaped away, careless of movement and noise, just so he could draw that ruthless fire from the girl. He stumbled against a chair and it skittered and crashed in front of him. Immediately those flaming guns winked and flared towards him.
 Something struck him low on the left side, burning across his ribs like a white hot iron. It spun him half about but he steadied and drove two quick shots in return, holding low-down and between the crimson arcs of flame which spat at him. There was a Late on the following afternoon Johnny opened a pair of lackluster eyes and stared at him. Immediately a slow grin wreathed his pale face. Stooping above him was the care lined visage of his old partner.

 "Tex," murmured Johnny. "Tex—yuh came in time. I knew it was yuh. I heard 'em roar—those Texas guns."
 "Yuh danged young hellion," murmured Tex. "Yuh didn't leave much fer Utah an' Al an' me to finish."
 "But yuh got Spelle?" protested Johnny.
 "Nope—not us. You got him."
 "I did? I don't getcha."
 "Son, yuh shore did. He was layin' jest outside that front window on the porch with a 45 between his eyes. An' that thievish four-fingered half-breed son o' his was the two gun man yuh downed in the room. Ole Jim told me all about it."
 "How about you—did yuh get them cattle?" asked Johnny.

Flaming guns winked and flared towards him.

rough, a gurgle and the thud of a falling body.
 "Johnny," howled Delevan. "Yuh got him—yuh got him!"
 In the rear of the house Pink Crosby's Winchester was crashing in steady cadence, while outside the yells had doubled in ferocity and the gunfire rolled to a shattering, sustained roar.
 There came a rustle of skirts and Ronny's voice fearful and broken crashed through the dark.
 "Johnny—dad—where are you?"
 "We're all right child," boomed Delevan. "Yuh keep down—down—down—do you hear. Lay on the floor."
 But Ronny did nothing of the kind. She stumbled through the blackness until her hands rested on Johnny. She felt the warm stickiness of blood running down his side.
 "Johnny!" she gasped. "You're hurt, you're hurt! Oh—dad—he's falling."
 Johnny wasn't exactly falling but he was slumping slowly down, his shoulders against the wall.
 "I'm alright," he muttered hoarsely. "A'right—jest a little dizzy. A little dizzy."
 He ended up finally, half lying, half sitting against the wall. Ronny crouched beside him, her arms about his fiercely. She was sobbing and praying at the same time.
 Abruptly she stiffened.
 "Listen!" he gasped. "Listen—I hear 'em—I hear 'em. Texas guns—Texas guns—Texas guns! Hear 'em roar will yuh? It's Tex. The ole gray wolf's come to look after his cub. Now Spelle—damn yuh—here's where yuh—get—yore—needin'."
 So saying, Johnny slumped forward, silent—inert.

"Yore damned right we did. We had a little trouble findin' 'em but we finally located 'em in a little valley about fifty miles north o' the railroad. The Box D iron was blotted on every circuit, turned into a Gridiron P. A lot o' it was mighty sketchy work. We conneder the jasper who claimed to own 'em an' a leele question got him so tangled up he didn't know what his own name was. Utah an' Al an me declared a showdown an' the rustler boss and his gang elected to shoot it out. It was their mistake. We got the whole stop from one of them what was due to cash. He came clean. Like we figured, Spelle was behind the whole deal. Takin' it by an' all it's been quite some storm. But the air's cleaned up an' we can settle down to honest cattle raisin' now."
 "That shore listens fine," murmured Johnny. "I'm dead sick o' fightin'. I done had enough roamin' around. I want to settle down an' grow fat an' sprout a beard."
 "Yeah?" Tex's eyes were twinkling. "I reckon somebody else will have somethin' to say about that—the beard an' the bay window I mean. Women are touchy about such things."
 "Huh," grunted Johnny. "Think yuh're smart don't yuh?"
 "Nope—jest a prophet, that's all. An' I'll betcha a new hat I'm right."
 Johnny smiled up at him.
 "Yuh'd win the bet, ole timer. Where is she?"
 "Out on the porch with her dad. I'll send her in."
 Tex swaggered the length of the bullet scarred porch with mischief glowing in his eyes. Ronny Delevan watched his approach curiously and was rewarded by having Tex catch her by both shoulders and plant a resounding, shameless kiss on one velvety cheek.

 "Why—what—" stammered the bewildered girl.
 "Now don't get excited, young 'un," chuckled Tex. "I'm jest salutin' the bride to be. Aint mad are yuh?"
 Ronny blushed furiously. "Who told you that?" she demanded.
 "Nobody. Shucks I got eyes ain't I? By the way, that young cub o' mine wants to see yuh. Pronto now—don't keep yore future husband waitin'!"
 Ronny scurried to the doorway, where she halted and looked back. Of a sudden she dimpled rosyly. "Tex," she called. "You win."
 "They're good kids, Tex," rumbled Delevan finally.
 "None better nowhere," nodded Tex. "Jim, we're danged lucky men."
 "Yore damn right, Tex. I hope there'll be leetle fellers later on, leetle pudgy fillers to tug an' paw us ole woves around."
 "They will be, Jim. Them kids o' ours are the real quill."
 Another long silence.
 "Happy?" rumbled Delevan.
 "As hell," sighed Tex. "This is the end o' the trail for me. Right here I stay. Right here I sit an' watch the days peter out down there across the desert."
 As though in salute a single golden ray bathed them in its radiance, softening the grim, sculptured harshness of their features to one of mellowed contentment.

Lets Talk About Clothes

Denton, Texas, Aug. 11.—Tunics have come into their own. For the past three or four years, timid approaches have been made to make this style "tops" but not until this year have designers boldly proclaimed it the most necessary item in your wardrobe. Both young and old find the garment especially attractive.

Right now we see ray printed tunics made for summer wear, but those displayed in the stores are more versatile—they show dark skirts with light tops that can be discarded when the summer months give way to fall. You can have a tunic ensemble now, and if you're smart it will serve you many times in the coming season.

For instance, a black and white ensemble is especially good. The blouse is made of white novelty crepe or a black and white check. Tiny caplet sleeves are gathered through the center with a draw string, and the neck is criss-cross style with three large black patent leather buttons following the diagonal line across the front. A black patent belt completes the frock.

Now, let's look at this dress and see what we can do with it. First of all, we need something a little more sporty, and something to wear in the fall. We can discard the white tunic for a darker one in blended plaids or we can wear a short taffeta blouse. If your skirt is one of the dull crepes, a boucle knitted blouse will be nice with it.

With the same black skirt, for informal dinners in town, girls at Texas State College for Women (CIA) suggest a bluish pink all over lace tunic with patent leather trimmings. A wide brim black hat and matching accessories will complete the costume.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The effect of the widespread drought in dollars and cents upon farm purchasing power is being carefully analyzed by the Department of Agriculture. Early this year the total farm income for 1936 was estimated at $7,500,000,000 as compared with $8,900,000,000 last year and $8,400,000,000 in the big drought year of 1934. Estimates based on reports received so far from the regions most severely affected by the drought still hold to the estimate of $7,500,000,000 farm income for the year. Losses in the stricken regions, it is considered, will be offset by higher prices for products grown in other sections and by Federal funds.

A general rise in the price of all agricultural products is clearly on the way. Wheat supplies are said to be adequate for domestic consumption and there will be no need to import wheat. The corn situation is getting somewhat worse, and the price of hogs is expected to continue to rise, unless the shortage of corn for feed starts a widespread movement among corn-hog farmers to dump their hogs on the market.

Cattle prices are tending downward, because of the deterioration of the quality of cattle offered from the drought-stricken sections, but the Government is prepared to buy $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 worth if necessary to maintain prices. Drought conditions have put an end to the expectation of excessive cotton crops, thereby tending to strengthen cotton prices. The fruit supply is poorer than since 1921, but that is due to late cold weather in the Spring rather than to the drought.

Out of the whole situation there emerges one definite trend, and that is toward higher prices for consumers for all foodstuffs. In Drought Cycle. There has been so much talk lately about long-range weather forecasting that the department of Agriculture is flooded with inquiries as to why they did not predict the drought in time to give farmers fair warning. There is no scientific forecasting as yet that can be relied upon. The experts of the weather bureau, however, have come to the tentative conclusion that there is a drought cycle, which may be expected to bring about recurrences of present conditions every few years.

The present drought, like that of 1934, is regarded as a continuation of the drought cycle which began in 1930. How long it will last and how long before another period of several years of inadequate rainfall, are questions which nobody is prepared to answer. Efforts to anticipate the political effect of the drought seem to lead nowhere. Both parties are trying to make political capital out of it. On the Democratic side, emphasis will be placed upon the speed with which the Administration came to the financial aid of drought-stricken farmers and cattle raisers. President Roosevelt's proposed tour of the Northwest will help to emphasize the humanitarian motives of the New Deal.

are long-continued, political sharps here point out, efforts will be made by some Republicans to play it up as a "Roosevelt Drought." Just as some Democratic campaigners in 1932 referred to the drought of 1930 as the "Hoover Drought." That sort of talk is silly, of course, but it is typical of the way some political minds work.

Strike Threat Fades.

Apprehension over the possibility of a strike in the steel industry before election is dying down. The labor situation has developed into a bitter inter-caste war in the ranks of labor itself, with John L. Lewis vigorously opposing the A. F. of L. and using all his very considerable fighting abilities and eloquence to build up his plan for vertical industrial unions. The political implications in this situation seem to point toward a permanent split in the ranks of labor, with a possible vigorous semi-socialistic Labor Party emerging for this campaign of 1940.

The last accession to the Democratic strength is the resignation of Frank Murphy, Governor General of the Philippines, to return to his native Michigan and run for Governor. Mr. Murphy made a good record of efficiency and personal popularity as Mayor of Detroit, and is regarded as the ablest man who could be picked in the effort to carry that state for the Democratic ticket.

Postmaster General Farley's leave of absence from his Cabinet post, to enable him to give his entire attention to the political campaign, is not expected to make any difference whatever either in the conduct of the Post Office or in the political aspect of affairs in Washington.

The National Vote

Political Washington is eagerly studying such polls of voting sentiment as are now being conducted. It is the conclusion of the best qualified political observers here that about 80 percent of the voters have fixed convictions which are not subject to change, and that they are about equally divided between the Republicans and the Democrats. The campaign really resolves itself, then, into the effort to influence the remaining 20 percent of voters who have no fixed convictions as yet.

While both sides express great confidence, it is far too early to make any prediction other than that the popular vote seems likely to be very close. The deciding factor will be which party can win over about 11 percent of the total electorate, constituting a majority of the "swayable" voters. Political eyes are being cast again upon the Townsend Plan movement, which seems to be gaining renewed strength and may prove an important factor in the election.

CARLTON 4-H CLUB REPORT

"I have almost reached my Preservation Goal," stated Mary Louise Fine, Carlton 4-H club girl, in conversation with home agent, Mary Louise, who has 24 containers of leafy green and yellow vegetables that she has added to the family pantry. It is vitally important that there be a certain amount of leafy and green vegetables preserved in every farm home, so that the needs of the daily diet may be met in the non-productive months. One hundred pounds of green and yellow vegetables are needed per person for a year. For the non-productive months (about 4 in this county) estimating serving leafy green and yellow vegetables 7 times per week for the 4 months or 16 weeks, a family should have at least 112 containers of these vegetables on the pantry shelves. The goal for 4-H club girls this year was the addition of 30 containers of leafy green and yellow vegetables to the family pantry. Besides the 24 that Mary Louise has added, she has made 15 pints of jelly.

Pottsville 4-H Club Girl. "I did not have leafy green or yellow vegetables to can, as I enrolled as a club girl too late for a garden, but I have preserved 25 containers of corn and 3 1-2 gallons of cucumber pickles," stated Sue Waggoner of the Pottsville 4-H girls club.

Because of weather conditions and lateness in enrolling in the club many girls have not been able to do their preservation in the leafy green and yellow vegetables, but have made a brave attempt to do their best with what they had to work with. Corn is considered grain in the food budget and enough containers should be preserved to serve twice per week during the non-productive months. Corn is considered a starchy vegetable and serves as a bulk. To keep our bodies in general health we must have the foods such as okra, squash and okra to help supply this ruffage.

Gives Good Report.

"I have added 265 containers to my pantry shelves" so said Mrs. E. F. Goolsby, wardrobe demonstrator for the Jonesboro Home Demonstration Club. These containers have been filled with 14 kinds of vegetables, having 14 varieties. Besides the vegetables that have been preserved pickles and preserves have been added to the pantry. From her last year's preservation, Mrs. Goolsby has enough meat and canned fruit to meet her budget. She closed the conservation by saying she could plan a meal to meet the nutritional need of her family any day during the non-productive seasons.

John E. Miller

IN RUN-OFF WITH HUDDLESTON ASKS SUPPORT OF VOTERS

Through an unusual occurrence, John E. Miller, of Coryell County has replaced Dr. A. G. Livingston in the run-off Primary, August 22, for State Representative from the 94th Representative District of Texas.

Mr. Miller addresses the voters as follows:

A tie vote between Dr. A. G. Livingston and myself for second place was discovered by official tabulation at so late a date as to cause some confusion about certifying the run-off candidate. We drew straws to see which of us would be in the run-off, Livingston drawing the short straw and according to mutual agreement being eliminated. I appreciate his sportsman-like conduct and genial attitude, and realize the position he was in after starting his run-off campaign.

Now that I am in the run-off with Earl Huddleston I would greatly appreciate the vote and influence of all who can see fit to assist me. I made the race before the first primary in a limited time and am forced to do likewise to a decided degree in the run-off. Starting out after my school was out I endeavored to cover two counties as best as I could by myself. From now until the second primary on August 22, I would not have time to see all the voters, so I trust that every one will take this as a personal solicitation for your vote and influence.

Yours to serve, JOHN E. MILLER (Political Advertisement)

Watch Your Kidneys! Do Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work and act as a nature intended—full to capacity—impurities that poison the system when retained. Then you may suffer from backache, dizziness, stammer or too frequent urination, getting up at night, painless under the eyes, loss of nerves, mischievous blood. Don't delay! Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are especially for poorly functioning kidneys. They are recommended by medical men the country over. Get them from any druggist. DOANS PILLS
