GOES 'ROUND AND 'ROUND

(And It Comes Out Here)

(Written from hospital room)

"Knock knock."
"Who's there?"
"Amia."
"Amia who?"
"Amia get up and get out of here."

The thing that makes us realize more fully that we should be up and getting out, is a sign tacked up by the side of the door with three large outstanding figures, to remind us of the price of our room per day. And for the benefit of those who may not know it, room rent is much higher here than it is in Hico.

We asked our boss for a day off on August 17th to come down and go through the main part of the clinic, and we are still here and will probably be for another week. In fact a long, long day for us. Our stay has been most pleasant, though, due to the many letters, cards, flowers and gifts received from the lovely friends from Hico. We don't believe there is a town in the United States containing so many fine people. Since there are fifteen hundred inhabitants that we really love in Hico, space does not permit us to print all their names. We will have to live many years to even repay a part of their kindnesses.

We know some news items too. Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. Earle Harrison and Miss Quata Ribicough came over and spent awhile with us. Then late in the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Holford and Emma Dee Hall came to see us. All of them just looked beautiful to us. If all of the Hico folks have improved in looks as much as the above six, then we feel that our home town will be filled with good looking people upon our return.

We are not worrying about a thing now. At first we thought they could not get out a paper without us, but since we have seen that the best issues ever printed have been during our absence, we are going to take our time in recovering. But there is one thing we want to say to our advertisers: Beware, merchants, for we have some new ideas about why you should advertise every week. Of course if we can't convince you by the new method, then we'll continue to spring the old one—it helps the Hico News Review. We have received many ads by telling the merchant that very thing. But who wouldn't want to help their home newspaper?

We hear the streets are all torn up there, and can hardly picture the sight from the ways it has been described to us. When a person asks us here where we are from, we always end up the conversation by telling them we are getting paved streets too.

And another thing we have not even seen the new Ready-to-wear Shop in Hico. We are sure Mrs. Gamble has a lot of pretty dresses for in our opinion, she has good taste.

We appreciate our bouquets in our column last week, and read it over a number of times. We do not feel that we deserved the praise given us, but just the same, who does not like to have nice things said about them? Just to give you an idea of how many times we looked at it, we even memorized Porter's ad which was perched right up by the side of it with the large heading "Reclaim Reputation." We even read all he said about "Worming Turkeys." Even though we are not a prospect for turkey medicine, just think of the farmers who are prospects, and who read the ads? Just couldn't resist the idea of using a little sales talk.

Since one of our very close friends in Hico sent us a lovely pair of silk hose to "walk out on," we'll be seeing you soon.

We have more than a welcome for you—A message of life.

Hico Superintendent Gives Instructions to Teachers and Pupils

The minimum requirement as to subjects to be taken in high school is set forth in this quotation from Bulletin 347, page 37: "The Classification Committee, in regular session of June 23, 1932, warned school boards that, in their efforts to economize, they should give careful consideration to the subject offerings of their schools. The Committee went on record as discouraging all classes or courses consisting of not more than ten pupils. The Committee directed that each and every four-year high school in the State having less than $1,000,000 taxable valuation of property and fewer than 100 students be restricted to a maximum of 15 accredited units, the following of which are required:

- English 4.
 - American History 1.
 - Algebra 1, 1 1-2, or 2.
 - Plane Geometry 1.
 - Foreign Language or Natural Science 2.
 - Civics 1-2.
- Mr. J. W. O'Banion, Chief Supervisor of Schools, Austin, Texas has just written me that his office recommends that General Mathematics be taught as a full unit course in the eighth grade, Algebra as a full unit course in the tenth grade; and two or three electives with the value of one-half credit in the eleventh grade as follows: Algebra, Advanced Arithmetic and Geometry." Accordingly General Mathematics will be offered in the eighth grade and Algebra 2 in the ninth grade and Plane Geometry in the tenth grade this year.

Pupils who will expect to be on the NYA program this year will find the regulations somewhat different from those of last year. The ages at which a boy or girl may be placed on this work is 16, as it was last year. A student must make his grades in three-fourths of his work and as soon as he drops below that amount of passing work he will be dropped from the pay roll. For the information of those who are interested in this project I wish to say that only ten pupils will be accepted and these places are already filled. County Superintendent Fatterson wrote me this letter about pupils whose grades are taught at home:

"In regard to the three children who were enrolled in your district, but since have acquired residence in Buck Springs District and since they were not enrolled in the latter district can not be transferred. They are obliged to pay tuition to the Hico District after their State and County apportionment is used up. I will give you the ruling of the State Board on the matter:

"No tuition will be paid over to a receiving high school in children whose grades are taught in their home district are allowed to go free."

Several patrons have applied to the several county superintendents for transfer of pupils to our district whose grades are taught at home and in almost all cases the applications have been rejected. This should serve as a warning that this district has no choice as to whether it will charge tuition in these cases mentioned if the pupils are sent to our school.

Miss Opal Harris who will teach penmanship and drawing in grades 5, 6, and 7 states that pupils will be expected to use the following materials: Writing—black ink, writing tablet 8 1/2 by 11, Spencerian pen points No. 1, pen staff; Drawing—Scissors for paper, manila paper 9 by 12, construction paper 9 by 12, and Crayolas. It will be best to wait until school opens before buying these things because the exact kind and amounts of materials can be secured without the chance of getting the wrong kind. Miss Harris also writes that "I am still in school and will be until Sept. 3. I have enjoyed my work a lot and feel that I shall be better prepared to carry on my work than before."

Patrons are reminded that we need some more money for the purchase of sewing machines for the home economics department. There has been an insistent demand for this subject in the course of study and the board of trustees has elected a teacher and has purchased the sewing tables but they do not feel that they have enough money with which to purchase all the equipment and will call on the patrons whose girls intend to take home economics and ask for donations. We have secured around fifty dollars to date but that amount is not half enough to purchase four good sewing machines.

During the mornings of Sept. 9 and 10 tests will be given to pupils who desire to remove conditions in their work. Only pupils who have been studying during the summer should report for these examinations, because they will be thorough and a full knowledge of the subject matter will be required for passing.

Only one day will be taken for registration and this year Friday, Sept. 11 will be the date. The eleventh grade should report at 9 o'clock, the tenth grade at 10 o'clock, the ninth grade at 11, and

TO ENTERTAIN HERE SATURDAY

Through arrangements recently perfected by the local firm of Randal Brothers, the people of this section will be offered a special treat next Saturday afternoon, Sept. 5th. The Chuck Wagon, carrying "Kernel Wheat and His Gang" in person, will make a special trip to Hico on that date and perform in front of the Randal Brothers store all afternoon, from 2 o'clock.

Having recently acquired the local distributorship for the products of Bewley Mills, sponsors of the unique entertainers who advertise these products over a wide section, Randal Brothers feel that they are fortunate in being able to secure this extra entertainment for their customers and the public in general.

Read their page advertisement on Page 7 of this issue for full details.

MRS. MASTERTON CONFERS WITH STATE SECRETARY OF TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

Mrs. C. G. Masterton was in Fort Worth last Friday conferring with the secretary of the State Teachers Association and the assistant city superintendent regarding the program for the arithmetic section at the November meeting of the association. Mrs. Masterton was elected chairman of the arithmetic section last year at San Antonio.

New Cafe Owner.

Through a deal completed recently, T. U. Little became the owner of the business, known as the City Cafe, formerly conducted by C. W. Shelton, and took charge of the institution on Tuesday morning, Sept. 1.

Mr. Shelton and family will continue as residents of Hico, it is presumed, although they have not announced their plans for the future.

MRS. MAUDE HUKEL DIED IN SWEETWATER; WAS BURIED FRIDAY AT MILLERVILLE

Funeral services were held last Friday afternoon for Mrs. Maude Glover Hukel, who died in the Sweetwater Hospital. Burial was made in the Millerville Cemetery. Services were conducted by Elder Stanley Giesecke, assisted by Elder D. Lee Hukel, who made a short talk.

Building New Home

With the foundation complete, and rapid progress being made on its erection within the past few days, the new home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Waldrop, in the South-west part of town, is fast assuming shape.

The residence, which is to consist of five rooms with bath, is of frame construction. It is being built on the lot known as the Howerton lot, formerly occupied by the house of W. H. Howerton which burned several years ago. Materials are being furnished by Higginbotham Bros. & Co. A. R. Robertson is the contractor, and A. B. Robertson is doing the painting and papering.

Back From Arkansas.

Dr. P. G. Hays and party returned Sunday afternoon from Marshall, Arkansas, where they had visited for several days. On the way the Ragsdale car was wrecked between Fort Worth and Dallas when it collided with some donkeys. A fender and radiator shell were damaged. Included in the party were Dr. and Mrs. Hays, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Ragsdale and daughter Alma.

New Filling Station.

Completion of a filling station just west of the business section, on Highways 66 and 67, being constructed by L. J. Cheney is expected in about a week. Lewis has purchased the home, formerly owned by Mrs. Harvey Smith, and has been occupying it for some time. The station is being built on the back of the lot, fronting on the highway.

Work on the building is being done by B. F. Williams. It will be about 18 by 40 feet. Materials are being furnished by Barnes & McCullough.

Cheney has operated a station on Mesquite Street, at the top of the hill, on the old Stephenville road, for a number of years. Upon completion of the new quarters, he will abandon his old stand.

Short Vacation Spent Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Rodgers of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, visited over the week end with his father, J. P. Rodgers, his sister, Miss Thomas, and other relatives and old-time friends here. He had planned a longer visit here, but they only had four days off for his vacation and postponed the regular visit until Christmas, when he hopes to spend a large part of the holidays here. They were accompanied down from Dallas by Miss Sarah Lou Skipper, granddaughter of the elder Mr. Rodgers.

"Dollar Day" Will Bring Crowds Here Next Wednesday

While the streets of the business section will probably present a few difficulties to visitors next Wednesday when they come to town for the regular September Trades Day event, the committee guarantees to find a place for them to stand. And then the hustle and bustle of preparing for paved streets will add to interest ordinarily generated by the event.

The main show will be held at 4 p. m. It is announced, and there will be a number of side shows provided by individual merchants, many of whom have taken advertising space in this issue to tell of their offerings.

Each month sees an increased attendance at Hico's Dollar Day party, and people from over a wide section have set that day aside as a time for coming to Hico and meeting their friends.

The fact that Fall goods have just been put on display, and all kinds of school supplies are being featured at special prices just when schools over this section are beginning to open is expected to stimulate trade at the stores. All Hico merchants are making very special efforts to serve better than at any time in the town's history.

If you don't believe things are really humming in Hico, and have not been in the habit of coming here to trade or to attend the monthly Trades Days, come out next Wednesday, Sept. 9th, and see for yourself if the above statements are true.

Moving to Houston.

Mrs. J. T. Persons and daughter Eleanor will leave next Monday for Houston where they will make their home in the future. They will visit for a while with Mrs. Persons' daughter, Mrs. John Marshall and family, before becoming permanently established. C. C. Pierce and wife have made arrangements to occupy the Persons' home after their departure. The many friends of Mrs. Persons and Miss Eleanor, while regretting to lose them as citizens wish for them the most of happiness, health and success in their new home.

Vacating in South Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Wiseman left Tuesday morning for San Antonio, where they will spend some time before going to the Rio Grande Valley for a visit with relatives and friends and to see the country. They will visit in McAllen, Harlingen, Brownsville, San Benito and several other Valley points before returning home, and will be gone several days. They were accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. L. B. Creath of Coleman.

Investigate Hunting Prospects.

Lusk Randalis, Lusk, Jr., B. B. Gamble and Jack Malone left late Saturday night and drove to Mason County to look the situation over prior to the opening of deer season this Fall. Mr. Randalis says that things are looking fine, reports being that there is a good crop of bucks, and that the horns this year are big. He said they saw at least fifty deer, and enjoyed the short outing immensely.

Preparing to Open Business.

S. E. Blair was in Dallas Tuesday making business preparatory to opening his new place of business within a short time. He has selected a name for the place, has bought fixtures of the finest and most modern type, and plans to open a sandwich shop and cafe about the middle of the month in his building at Elm and First Streets, which has undergone extensive repairs and remodeling.

RECEIPTS AWARD FOR THE FIRST BALE IN ERATH CO.

J. E. Cooper of Hico has just received an eight-pound carton of Mrs. Tucker's Shortening, and mention all over the country for producing the first bale of cotton in Erath County this year.

Mr. Cooper and the producers of the first bales of cotton in every county are being given cartons of shortening by Mrs. Tucker of Sherman, Texas, to show her appreciation to the people who raise cotton, which furnishes the seed for the cottonseed oil used in the manufacture of her product.

Mrs. Tucker's shortening is made from choice cottonseed oil produced in the Southwest. This oil is not only easily and quickly digested, but its sale helps produce a greater market for the chief money crop in this section.

Attention, Yard Contestants!

Although the judging has been going on for some time on yards, the Review Club thought it best to give the yards more time to develop as the dry Summer has been so hard on all flowers.

Since our recent rain and the cool nights have begun to be with us again, we think the flowers will be in much better condition to judge.

We want to thank all who have labored so tirelessly to beautify their yards and wish each one could get a prize. That being impossible, we do want those who deserve prizes to get them, as we promised last Spring.

CIVIC COMMITTEE, Hico Review Club.

Plans Worked Out For Hamilton Co. Day At Ft. Worth

While no definite plans for participation in Hamilton County Day at the Frontier Centennial at Fort Worth, next Tuesday, Sept. 8, have been worked out locally as yet, probabilities are that a considerable number of Hico people will join the caravan being planned to start from Hamilton on the afternoon of that day.

A half-holiday all over town has been declared at Hamilton for Tuesday afternoon, and much enthusiasm in the caravan has been generated. The following letter from Mrs. A. M. Smissen of Fort Worth, secretary of the Hamilton County Club, gives further details on the event:

Fort Worth, Sept. 1, 1936. Hico News Review, Hico, Texas:

In response to numerous requests for the plans and entertainments that the Hamilton County Club of Fort Worth have made for your pleasure and regional advertising of our county, Tuesday, Sept. 8, at the Centennial Frontier Show, will state that definite arrangements have been made to have a reception committee from the Chamber of Commerce, City officials, Hamilton County Club, Barney Oldfield and others with a police escort to meet you at the outskirts of our city at the hour you designate. As this is to be a very important day on account of its being the day of the State Democratic Convention, please tell us as nearly as possible the exact time of the day you want these committees to be at this designated spot.

We have planned to have the principals of your delegation interviewed by the staff correspondents and photographers of the Star-Telegram.

A large lighted sign will be run atop of our exhibit building announcing that it is Hamilton County Day. The Star-Telegram has also arranged for us to have some time over radio station WBAP. Literature concerning our panel in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Exhibit will be prepared that day.

Your hostesses will have general supervision of your information booth. Your beauty winner will be introduced at the Casa Manana by Paul Whiteman, attired in a pretty evening gown. She will be viewed by thousands of spectators during this spotlight introduction. Of course you realize that the maximum benefits to your county depends upon your own participation and efforts.

Please let me know as soon as possible what your program is so that we can serve you best.

Our committee on arrangements is composed of: Dr. Chas. H. McCollum, reception chairman; Mrs. L. B. Garrett and Mrs. A. M. Smissen, committee on general arrangement; Mr. L. E. Walden, committee for police escort; Mr. Joe Witly, reservation committee; Mr. L. B. Garrett and Mr. A. M. Smissen, literature committee.

Yours very truly,

Imagine the panic in the hen-house if it tried! Decidedly such tasks are not for the telephone. But the telephone has other very proper uses which are essential to farm management. One of the most important of these is to afford quick communication at any time between the farm and the market. Lack of such contact when needed might endanger the profit from a season's labor. Careful buying as well as selling is also a factor in farm profits and here again the telephone can give useful aid. With its day-by-day savings, its earnings and the protection it gives to home and family, the farm telephone is an economy, not an expense. No farmer, no matter how few his acres, can really afford to be without a telephone.

Make-Believe Bride

Third Instalment
SYNOPSIS: Maris Trevor is discouraged because Rod O'Rourke spends all his money developing an invention which he hopes will provide an income so that they can marry. Maris thinks they should enjoy the present rather than deny themselves for the future. She becomes uncertain of her love for Rod. Perhaps there would be more happiness with someone else.

Carefully she fixed herself before the mirror. Then quickly picking up her gloves and bag, she hurried down the passage to the elevator. Maybe Stanley would still be in the hall. Maybe his snappy sport roadster would be at the curb.

But as she stepped from the elevator, Rod O'Rourke came swiftly to her side.

"Say, honey, I guess I was a fool leaving you like that yesterday," he said. "Tell me you still love me, Maris darling." He added impulsively as she drew her away from the throngs that were sweeping along the halls.

Maris' eyebrows drew swiftly together. Why had Rod appeared just when there was a chance that she might see Stanley? And yet how her heart had leaped when she caught sight of him, looking so eagerly for her! She knew in spite of any vagrant thoughts about Stanley that she still loved Rod. Well, there was no use making a scene, so quickly banishing her frown, she smiled and said, "Oh Rod, what a scare you gave me! I thought something terrible had happened when I saw you standing there."

"Well, mavoureen, I've been having a terrible time thinking maybe I'd lost you."

"You couldn't do that so easily," answered Maris, while she glanced about the wide halls of the office building. But Stanley Fayson was nowhere to be seen.

"Oh Maris, darling, you've made me so happy! Rod's blue eyes glowed as they rested on the girl at his side.

"Don't look at me like that," she whispered. "People will think you crazy!" But even though she took a step away from his side, her heart was fluttering because she realized that Rod was so handsome. No wonder the girls hurrying past turned to look at him, envy in their eyes.

"I don't care if they do, sweetheart, I'm so happy. Let's go somewhere and have dinner and then take in a show or something," he begged, falling into step with her when they joined the multitude hurrying from the building.

"Oh, but Rod, I'm afraid I can't," Maris explained, suddenly remembering that she was going to discipline the man she loved. It would never do, she knew, to give in the moment he started to make up.

"You can't shake me as easily as that," declared Rod, his blue eyes smiling into hers as he laid his hand lightly on her arm. Then stooping down, he whispered softly in her ear, "You really don't want to do, you, sweetheart?"

"Oh, Rod, you're impossible!" And Maris raised her dark eyes to his, feeling strangely satisfied that she should yield so readily to his mastery. There was a smile on her face. It was out of the question to get annoyed with Rod—his Irish good-nature laughed off all rebuffs. Even his temper, about which Patsy had warned her, was, she believed, non-existent. She had never seen the smile fade altogether from his eyes, nor his lips tighten in a ruthless line—as they did—when he uncovered some money-business in the course of his work! That time was yet to come, for her.

"There, honey, I guess you were just stringing me about someone else last night." Again his blue eyes flashed at her.

"Don't be too sure," she answered but in her smiling reply he failed to read a warning.

"Och, mavoureen, now don't be getting me all excited again. But of course it's only a joke. Now, what would you like to do?" he asked as they reached the sidewalk, heading north.

"Well, if you insist on spending money on me and taking me to dinner—wouldn't you rather come up to the apartment and have me fix something? Pat made a grand dinner for you last night, with chocolate cake and—"

"Not tonight, honey," he interrupted. "I want you all to myself." "Well, that's strange, isn't it?" she asked, suddenly noticing a serious look in Rod's eyes.

Ignoring her remark, he said, "Let's stay into the subway. I know a pretty decent place up town. It's quiet and the food's good."

"No orchestra?" questioned Maris, disappointment in her voice.

"Nothing like that," he answered. "Did I?" she asked. "Oh, Rod, don't you know I love it? Couldn't we go somewhere else?"

marked one arm hanging to a strap and the other around Maris, his elbow jutting outward as though to protect her from the swaying creatures who were jammed around them.

"That's the only thing that makes me feel I'd be glad to leave New York," she said. Then she remembered, and a swift flush deepened the color in her cheeks. Rod would love to hear that for he was crazy to live in the country. Well, she had said it was the only thing she'd be glad to leave New York for, but that was a trifle compared with all she would miss—the movies, the stores, the cute apartments!

Rod smiled. "The only thing?"

Rod. "I don't believe I could tackle that."

"Sure you can. I wish you'd try it. It's the finest thing they have here, and I bet you'll eat every particle. What say, sweetheart?"

"All right. It does look rather good," and Maris glanced with appraising eyes at one that a waitress was just bringing in.

"Good, Maris, you'll say you never tasted better." Giving the order, Rod laid the menu to one side. Then, gazing across the table, he said, "Say, honey, I've just been thinking I've had a darned lot of gall making you ride in Dulcie all this time, but you won't have to much longer. Looks as though the

"But now, honey, I guess there's only one thing to do—tell me you'll marry me."

he questioned, "I'd give up everything just to get away from this city. Well, I reckon it won't seem much longer."

But as Maris started to question him, the car came to a sudden stop, and again there was a mad rush for the doors. Rod suddenly saw two empty seats and dragged her to them.

"This is better," he said. "If these greasy old workmen don't fall in our laps." Right in front of them stood a couple of swarthy-skinned men, with mud-stained clothes. They looked as though they had been working in the subway or digging some cellar.

Maris and Rod got out at the next station. Now, beyond a few casual remarks as they passed various landmarks, Rod said little to Maris. For her part, something seemed to warn her that she had better not refer to Rod's rather cryptic remark about the city not seeing him very much longer.

But after they entered the "Hidden Inn" and found a table in a secluded corner of the room, Maris had a swift presentiment as Rod looked at her that something momentous was about to happen. This thought was swiftly dispelled, however, when he took up the menu and said, "Well, Maris, what will you have?"

"I don't know. What's good here? When did you find this place? I've never been here before." A sudden twinge of jealousy shot through her. It was an adorable place, with a raftered ceiling, and pictures that suggested an old English inn with its jugs of frothing ale, and, in winter, a roaring fire on the hearth. Yet with it all there was an air about it that suggested it was a place where many important affairs had been settled—and not merely between men, for there was a hint of romance in the atmosphere.

Even as she waited for Rod's answer, she found herself wondering if he'd often been here before and who his companion had been. As she glanced across the table at him, she realized once more what a presentable man he was, with that virile air about him, that fine clear look in his eyes—so different from so many of the men around. Somehow he always seemed to speak of the great outdoors, of clean living and wholesome in life instead of merely gratifying thinking, as if he had some purpose all his desires. Yes, she was proud of him.

Raising his head, his eyes met hers. "Oh, Charley Grant brought me here so we could talk about the gadget undisturbed. They don't hurry you. If you want to, you can spend the whole evening at one of the tables without a single black look from any of the waitresses or manager."

"Well, that's rather nice when you've business to discuss." "It sure is." A twinkle danced in Rod's blue eyes. "But you haven't decided what you want. What do you say to some real English beefsteak pie and a nice mug of ale?"

"Oh, but I'm not terribly hungry."

age-old question would once again be settled. For, even if she could not answer in so many words, with her lips on his, and her head pillowed on his heart, he would surely know her answer.

But even as something urged her to say, "Yes," a shadowy form rose like a silhouette in her memory—a slender, dark-eyed young man. He was not particularly impressive from a physical standpoint, but he had money, limitless money behind him, and social position.

Yet as thoughts of Stanley Fayson flashed before her, Pat's words of warning came swiftly to her mind. Well, she didn't need any advice—she could take care of herself. But as she raised her eyes to Rod's she whispered, "Please, Rod, don't ask me that here. There was a little quaver in her voice.

"But you haven't said, 'No,' he cried triumphantly, as he slipped his firm hand across the table and imprisoned her fingers.

"And I haven't said, 'Yes,' she answered, as she withdrew her hand from his clasp. "Let's eat now."

COOPERATION IN AMERICA

A great deal is being written and said these days about Consumer Cooperatives. People are hearing about the great success of the cooperative movement in Great Britain and on the European continent and are asking why cooperation won't work in America.

The answer is that it does and it doesn't.

Farm cooperatives, marketing associations whose members pool their products for sale, have been measurably successful in this country, especially since the Federal government began to give financial aid under the Farm Marketing Act of 1929 and the Farm Credit Acts of 1933 and 1935.

Nearly a quarter of the cash income of American farmers for the crop year of 1935 came from sales made through cooperative marketing associations, which did about a billion and a half dollars' worth of business.

In spite of all the efforts to build up such organizations and keep them going, their death-rate is still high. Out of some 25,000 organized since the Grange began the cooperative movement in the 1870's, more than 15,000 have died.

Consumer Cooperatives have a similar history. There are about 1,500 of them in operation in this country now. More than half are cooperative oil and gasoline distributors, many are buying groups for the cooperative purchase of certain limited classes of commodities. Somewhat under 500 are cooperative retail stores, with or without their own wholesale distributors.

All told, these Consumer cooperatives did about $100,000,000 of business last year, of which about half was in oil and gasoline. The total represents about one-fifth of one percent of the nation's total business turnover for the year. In England, where Consumer Cooperative Societies have been developing for nearly a century, they do about 15 percent of all retail trade. In Sweden the proportion is still higher.

President Roosevelt recently sent a commission to Europe to investigate and report on the operations of Consumer Cooperatives over there. This indicates a measure of interest in the whole subject.

EUROPE, A LESSON

The greatest tragedy which could befall America would be the development in this country of such national class and racial hatreds as have converted Europe into an armed camp and set the people of Spain to killing each other in a merciless and bloody civil war.

America is not without its preachers of hate. Lately there have been public utterances by men whose position and responsibility should have restrained their tongues, calculated to inflame the minds of the thoughtless to hatred of groups of their fellow-citizens. To stir up hatred against those who differ in their religious creeds, their political beliefs, or in their places is to start America in the road to civil strife which will lead us as it has led Europe into a world war.

The real danger to American liberties is not from without but from within. The preachers of class hatred are more dangerous enemies of the Republic than is any foreign nation. It has been this country's greatest source of pride that no citizen belongs to any fixed class. Every man can, as millions have done, raise himself from the lowest state of life to the highest. Nobody will try to ston him. Rather, if he has the ability to make something better of himself he will find encouragement and helping hands all along his upward climb.

To teach that all employers are the enemies of their employees is vicious and un-American. It is not true, as every intelligent person knows. To teach that the followers of any particular religion are different, is equally vicious and un-American. Our nation was founded on tolerance, on freedom of thought and of religious belief. To attempt to destroy that tolerance and substitute hatred for it is to blast at the foundations of the Republic.

There is no power, and there should be no power except public opinion, to prevent any American from saying whatever he believes and from acting on his beliefs.

COACH MEAGHER TELLS HOW TO PLAY FOOTBALL

Football fans and boys who want to become stars will be interested in the following rules given by Coach Jack Meagher of Alabama Polytechnic Institute in The Progressive Farmer:

"Rule No. 1 is sleep. The growing boy and the football player should have at least eight hours of sleep. It is possibly the most important rule. The body requires this rest and the proper amount of sleep makes for a clear, alert and keen mentality.

"Rule No. 2 is proper food. The normal, well balanced meal prepared by the skillful hands of mothers on the farm is just right. Any boy who has ambitions as an athlete will abstain from alcohol and tobacco.

"The average lad living on a farm has a great amount of hard work to do; this makes the muscles of his body hard and well developed, but he should supplement this by spending 10 or 15 minutes a day going through a series of callisthenic exercises to give the various muscles of his body flexibility and resiliency. In addition to this, games such as baseball, basketball, boxing and sparring, tennis, or any other fast game that requires agility, will help to develop nice coordination and flexibility of body and quicken the reflexes. A boy could get much out of providing himself with an old football and spending some time kicking, passing, and receiving passes; or have it around where he can pick it up in his hand, grip it, and feel it to develop a touch for the ball."

THE SEEDS OF INFLATION

The banks of the United States have more money on deposit than at any previous time in banking history. Not even at the height of our financial prosperity, before the collapse of 1929, did the 5,374 national banks hold within a billion and a quarter as many dollars as the $26,153,000,000 which the Comptroller of the Currency reported a couple of weeks ago. In addition, state banks and savings banks hold even more. The stupendous total of money in our banks runs to above 58 thousand million dollars.

This is sufficient, some financial experts say, to permit banks to lend eight times as much, or much more than four hundred billion dollars. If that credit could be put to work, an immediate end could be made of any vestiges of depression. Until it is lent and put to productive use, its net effect is to increase prices of all commodities without increasing commodity production proportionately.

We have, in short, reached a stage of credit inflation where we have more money than we know what to do with.

Beyond doubt this bank money credit ought to be put to work. As to why it is not working opinions differ. The fact is that there is comparatively little demand for credit.

So we have the curious, even amazing spectacle of a nation chafing with riches and yet does not turn its money into productive channels. Nothing like that has ever occurred before. That the dam which is holding back the flow of credit will burst, sooner or later, is certain. When that happens, we may find ourselves in an era of cheap money and high commodity prices such as America has never seen.

The seeds of inflation are already in the strong-room of the banks.

INCREASED DIABETES PRESENTS PROBLEMS

Austin, August, 31.—The increasing incidence of diabetes presents a serious problem to the physician and the average citizen, according to Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer.

"Ordinary diabetes, that is mellitus, which is often referred to by many persons as a disease of the kidneys, is not a kidney disease, but a disease of the pancreas in which there is deficient production of insulin," Dr. Brown said, "and this mistaken idea that diabetes is a kidney disease probably results from the fact that the insulin deficiency causes large amounts of carbohydrates (sugars and starches) to pile up in the body. The result is that the patient drinks large amounts of water, and because of this, large amounts of urine containing sugar are passed."

"The pancreas is a vital organ located in the upper abdomen behind the stomach. It has a double function: it supplies the most powerful digestive juice in the body, known as the pancreatic juice, which it pours into the intestine through special ducts developed for the purpose; and it makes another substance, called insulin, which goes directly into the blood, and is essential for the use of sugar in the body.

"Obesity and heredity overshadow all other factors in the causation of diabetes. Most diabetics are fat. Not every fat person, of course, gets diabetes. Heredity seems to be the most important link in the chain of diabetes from generation to generation. In the adult, however, obesity brings out the predisposition to the disease.

"Early diagnosis by a competent physician, with consequent proper treatment, enables the diabetic patient to live a useful life, and retards the development of complications."

Skeptics who claim there's nothing new under the sun fail to reckon on the ingenuity of shoe designers. It won't be long before glass heels flash on the trim slippers of modern Cinderellas. Made of opaque glass, they come in lovely jewel colors to harmonize with the rich satins and brocades of the new evening shoes. Next in the procession of novelties is the aerated rubber heel, a model which makes it literally possible to walk on air. It has an air chamber in the back which collapses when a step is taken, thus throwing the weight of the body toward the front of the heel where many orthopedic experts say it belongs.

And while we're on the subject of shoes, here's some timely advice from a well-known orthopedic surgeon. "No one should continue to wear a spike heel at all times," he declares. "A dress shoe or sitting shoe is not a walking shoe. If ladies must indulge their fancy for high heels, they should take a brisk walk daily in bare feet or at least in low-heeled shoes."

According to a home economist, most women pound their heels over hard floors for the equivalent of three to eight miles a day in the performance of their household tasks. If they wear spike heels, she says, their resistance will have sunk to zero by the time the dinner hour approaches. Well-fitting shoes with comfortable built-up heels are recommended by this expert for women who must stand on their feet for lengthy periods at business, in the home, or when engaged in outdoor activities.

Luxurious bathers can now add bath oil to their list of tub accessories. A few drops is all you need to a tub. And a trick to using bath oil is to drop a little into the tub before you get in.

When broiling ham for breakfast or any other meal, spread it first with prepared mustard. That gives the finishing savory touch to this favorite meat. To bake a slice of ham trim off border of fat, chop the fat and mix with brown sugar and prepared mustard. Spread this on ham and bake half an hour.

Household Hint: Save orange peels and make use of them. Put them through a chopper and then cover with sugar and they can be used as flavoring and added touches in salads, puddings and cakes—or even on tea biscuits when the latter are about to be placed in the oven.

CHAUTAQUA

The eyes of the nation have lately turned again upon one of our most venerable and useful institutions, the Chautauqua Assembly. Both President Roosevelt and Governor Landon have lately spoken from the Chautauqua platform. It was no new experience to either of them. Indeed, a considerable part of Governor Landon's youth was spent in attendance at Chautauqua.

Founded nearly 70 years ago, the educational movement which entered in the "Hall in the Grove" on the shore of Chautauqua Lake became one of the most powerful influences in our national life in the days before the motion picture, the radio and the modern newspapers and magazines brought entertainment and education into every home.

Under the auspices of the parent organization, summer "Chautauquas" and Winter lectures were held in every part of the country, while to Chautauqua itself hundreds of thousands flocked every summer to listen to the educational, social and political speeches made from its platform and to enjoy the best in entertainment that the nation afforded.

It seems quite appropriate that both of the candidates for the Presidency of the United States should have spoken to the people of America from this veritable center of American culture.

It is gratifying to learn that the recent financial difficulties of the Chautauqua Assembly have been straightened out and that this important focus from which so much that is really worth-while has emanated for so long will continue its useful service to the nation.

Sunday School Lesson

Turning to the Gentiles.
 Lesson for September 6th. Acts 14:18-19.
 Golden Text: Acts 13:47.

The Golden Text strikes the keynote of our lesson. Because the Jews rejected the gospel message proclaimed by Paul, he and Barnabas turned to the Gentiles. The great-hearted apostle was very eager to convert his own countrymen. One need only read his letters to the churches at Rome and Corinth to realize how zealously Paul labored for the salvation of his own people. Indeed the apostle was anxious to surround every man, whether Gentile or Jew, with the saving embrace of the gospel.

But Paul came to believe, it not at the time of his conversion, certainly during the later years of his career, that he was especially commissioned to devote himself to the Gentile world. The hostility of his Jewish hearers during this first missionary journey strengthened his conviction that his work was to be in the main, with the Gentiles. Such proved to be the case for his greatest successes were won with those outside the Jewish fold. And so it came to pass that Gentile Christianity overshadowed Jewish Christianity and thus today Christendom is a Gentile community.

How did Paul promote the cause of Christ among the Gentiles? Not, it is clear from the record, by sensational methods necessitating striking publicity and a loud blaring of trumpets, but by quiet personal hand-to-hand work. To be sure there was much public preaching in the synagogues and elsewhere. But Paul did his most effective work in the homes of the folk whose lives he touched. In this way Christianity acted as a leaven quietly changing the lives of ordinary citizens, and binding them all together in the bonds of faith.

There is a reason to believe that the church of the future must depend, in the main, on intensive work with individuals. The day of steadily large congregations seems to be passing. But the need for a pastoral, intimate ministry with needy souls was never more evident.

BRUCE BARTON Soap

No room for word "never" Back in 1925, I happened to be riding with a vigorous middle-aged man who had just sold his business for several million dollars. The contract provided that he should remain active in the company, but his intention was to take things easy. "I am never going to let myself have any more financial worries," he said. "In addition to my stocks, I have $700,000 in the moss-back bonds. Whatever happens, they can never get me."

In 1929, his stocks began a nose-dive. By 1931, he thought the depression was over sufficiently so that he could make a large commitment on behalf of one of his friends. The commitment nearly wrecked him. For five years he has worked harder and worried more than ever before.

The other night I saw him again. His business is getting better, his stocks are improving. Always an optimist, he said: "This country is going to have another very profitable period. The question will be, have we learned anything? We didn't know enough to salt away our winnings before; shall we know enough to do it this time?"

Another man remarked recently: "My principal mistakes have been not in believing too much in the country but in believing too little. I sold some perfectly good securities in 1932 because I was finally persuaded that the depression was different, that however rocky the country had recovered before, it could never recover again. Those same stocks are selling today at prices which I thought I never should live to see."

Here are two smart men: One was sure the depression could never go far enough to involve him; the other was equally sure that recovery would come in sufficient proportions to let him "off the hook." Both are intelligent; and both are wrong. This is a big country; it is big enough to contain almost everything. But there is one little word that apparently is too big even for it—that is the little word never.

Laughter is golden At an informal party I met Herb Williams, that comedian whose vaudeville drollery has made me laugh a score of times until my stomach muscles ached. Earnestly and reverently, I pumped his hand. "If I should never see you again," I said, "please remember that you carry with you always the undying regard of a very grateful customer." Being a top-notch he is, of course, modest. He seemed a bit surprised that anybody should say "thank you."

He is one of a precious little group of folks to whom I should like to make similar acknowledgments. Are they not the world's most valuable citizens? Of almost every kind of talent there is an over supply. We have plenty of bankers, lawyers, writers, income tax collectors and investment counselors. But only a handful of men who can literally make you laugh until you cry. If there ever should be another war, surely they should be put in a special classification under the draft.

One of Charles Lamb's essays records a touching conversation between an elderly man and his wife. They are recounting the joys of their young days—the theatres they attended, the books they bought, the sacrifices they made together. At length she says wistfully: "Yes, we have more things now, but we do not laugh so much."

Laughter is golden, and youth should lay up as much of it as possible in the bank of memory. Only the most important business should be allowed to interfere with the chance for an extra hour

"POOR CIRCULATION" MOSTLY TIRED NERVES

So many people come to see me, telling me, among other things, that they have "poor circulation." The reasons for this mistaken idea is because their feet are more or less numb, with "creepy" sensations, tingling and almost invariably, cold, or uncomfortably cool. These symptoms they describe as poor circulation.

True, it feels just like that; feels as if the blood could not get through the tissues fast enough, and was trying to force its way—which isn't the case at all; those tiny blood-vessels may be as open as they ever were, with the pulse rate and arterial pressure normal. The coldness, tingling and numbness, however, will bring the "poor circulation" opinion every time, when the patient tells me about the falling legs, or arms below the elbows.

It's a nerve proposition every time. When the brain and spinal cord become very very tired, fagged, weary from long over-taxing, the twigs of the nerves farthest from the centres will manifest their exhaustion by lack of healthy function. To prescribe a heart tonic for such a condition when it only needs rest, would be stupid. The general tonic may be useful and, particularly, the nerve tonic which, however, is only supplementary to the first requirement—rest for the brain and cord.

If those leg symptoms are accompanied by high blood pressure, it is extremely necessary that the patient consult his physician at once—and it isn't "poor circulation" even in this emergency, that still a nerve-proposition that caused the feeling, though the circulation may be running riot.

Drought Cattle Invade Capitol Grounds

BISMARCK, N. D. . . . Hungry cattle whose rangelands are now barren dust-covered plains, finally invaded the North Dakota state capitol grounds here last week, nibbling at such sparse grasses as had survived the scorching heat which gripped this state for weeks.

Chicago Bears Are In For Tough Game Of Football Sept. 7

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 31.—An all star cast of coaches this week started the difficult task of moulding an all star aggregation of rugged, individual football luminaries into a team unit formidable enough to hold at bay the Chicago Bears of the National Professional League whom they will meet in the Cotton Bowl at the Texas Centennial Exposition the night of September 7.

They were the nation's spotlight stars of 1935, and several other seasons, and they banded in Owenby Stadium at Southern Methodist University as August waned, many of them meeting for the first time. Rugged individualism sent them zooming into sectional and inter-sectional limelights, some of them to all American heights. Now it is up to Coaches Matty Bell of Southern Methodist University, and "Dutch" Meyer of Texas Christian University, to blend all this talent into a grid eleven which can stand the onslaughts of such backfielders as Bronko Nagurski and Beattie Peathers. Bell and Meyer know great football teams. They have a habit of developing them. Several of their 1935 stars made the American football elevens.

The Bears are in for a tough evening of football. Bell and Meyer will have more versatile gridsters to send against the Bears than they apparently will know what to do with. They can muster a "dream" backfield with only one of the head, Take Elser of Notre Dame; Pincura of Ohio; Mickal of Louisiana State; Wilson of Southern Methodist University; McCauley of Rice; Clark of Texas Christian; Shuford of S. M. U.; Peterson of Kansas, and others. Those backfielders can do anything with a football that's in the book. Triple threaters, broken field runners, line plungers—their repertoire is almost unlimited.

They'll have the nation's best linemen to tear gaping holes ahead of them. Players who have mastered fundamentals to perfection and who rate among the nation's best in forward wall class.

EARL HUDDLESTON THANKS VOTERS FOR THEIR SUPPORT

Now that the election is over and the returns show that the people of the 94th District by a substantial majority elected me as their Representative for a third term, I wish to take this method of thanking each of my friends who supported me in the recent election. To those who saw fit to vote otherwise I have no ill will.

I made this campaign as I have all others, refusing to engage in personalities, not withstanding some reports were circulated which were not true in my home town and the district. I wish to call the people's attention to the fact that I received around ninety percent of the votes at my home base, Oglesby and of the surrounding territory. I invite any one who may have heard any of these reports to come to my home town and investigate for yourself these charges. I feel that the people in general have expressed their confidence in me, however I have heard that some have been misled and therefore this is my reason for referring to this matter.

I want to assure the people of the district that I intend to represent every person in the district without fear or favor to the best of my ability. I am not under obligations to any special group and invite the counsel of every person to this end.

Respectfully,
EARL HUDDLESTON

Death of a Pioneer Mother

There is a great cloud of sorrow and sadness hovering over the Dry Fork community, over the last of its pioneer mother, Mrs. Mattie Johns.

Mrs. Johns died Saturday morning, August 29, 1934 at her home in Dry Fork community. She was sick two hours before her death. She was born October 1, 1854 in Arkansas. She united with the Methodist church in an early age. Her membership was in the Hico church until death.

She was married to Mr. J. M. Johns in 1873, who preceded her in death 35 years. They made their home in Arkansas until her husband's death, then the family moved to Texas where they have lived since. To this union was born 11 children, 6 who preceded her in death and 5 living who are: Mrs. J. A. Shaffer of Hamilton, Mrs. H. L. Havens of Hamilton, Lula, Buford, and Claud Johns are the children who were with her. One grandchild who died in infancy, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Havens, one brother, N. J. Patton of Decatur, Texas. One half sister, Mistic Paxtor and one step sister, Angie Van Patton both of Pangburn, Arkansas.

She was laid to rest in Honey Creek Cemetery, a large crowd was present to pay the last tribute to her.

The flower girls were: Mrs. Ailine Hicks, Mrs. Eursie Hendricks, Mrs. Ila Hicks, and Miss Gladys Hicks.

The palbearers were: Gilford Wooten, Robert Wyley, Dave Jones, James Hicks, and Arthur Hendricks.

Those who attended the funeral from off were: N. J. Patton, Willie Patton and daughter, Lula Wilhite and daughter of Decatur, Mrs. W. F. Killion, Mr. and Mrs. M. Crews and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gilford Wooten and family of Stephenville.

Should an acquaintance of this pioneer Christian mother see the statue of "The Pioneer Mother" with her Bible in one hand and her child in the other his mind would drift back to Mother Johns.

The Christian influence of her will ever live in the lives of her children, not only in the children's lives but in the lives of those she came in contact with. Her Christian influence will ever live going out for good and not for bad.

The grief of those who loved her is not as for one who has no hope, for they have these consoling words, "Blessed are they who die in the Lord for their work do follow them."

"Blessed are they that do his commandments that they might have the right to the tree of life and enter in through the gates into the city."

Her many friends will ever bless the kind words and many deeds which were always scattered in their paths by her. That healing touch of mother's and her love shall never be forgotten by her children.
