VOLUME LII

HICO, TEXAS, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1936.

NUMBER 19.

Here In HICO

Puzzled patrons and inquisitive onlookers who have been flabbergasted this week at seeing the local trains backing into the Hico station and out again in the same "cart-before-the-horse" manner will doubtless be relieved at having the situation explained to them.

Most of them probably have let their curiosity get the upper hand, and ere this have contacted some official who has told them what's what. Nevertheless we cannot allow our efforts to go to waste, and will try to straighten out our readers who are not yet aware of the why for.

Torrential rains along the watershed of Aquilla Creek, between Waco and Whitney, washed out several hundred yards of track, dump and other railroad equipment necessary to the operation of trains. And the Katy, accustomed to giving service, and having a good neighbor in the Santa Fe, promptly made arrangements with the latter line to run a train from Temple to Morgan over its tracks, thence to Hico and points northwest. Since there is no "Y" at Morgan whereby a train may be turned around, the conveyance has had to come hind first from that point to the nearest turning device, which is at De Leon. From De Leon to Stamford, we are informed, the train runs as it orders, head first, and also back to De Leon, where it is necessary to turn around again so that when it gets on its neighbors tracks at Morgan for the return trip it won't be appearing to misbehave. It seems that engineers don't like to run their trains backwards over Hico's tracks.

Simple, isn't it? But at least it breaks the monotony. And doubtless it hasn't caused patrons nearly so much worry as it has officials and employees of the railroad.

One of our public-spirited friends last week asked us to say something in the paper about the kind of a fellow who would burn his property in order to collect his insurance.

According to our friend, a person of this type is the very worst sort of criminal—even worse than a thief. And he went on to show us why.

"A fellow who steals usually takes his loot from someone he doesn't know, whereas a firebrand, incendiary artist or house-burner takes money from the pockets of his neighbors and friends," he continued. "Which seems very good logic when you stop to think about it."

When a fellow burns his house, and believe us it has been done, he causes the insurance rates of his neighbors to rise. The insurance companies do not pay for losses out of their own pockets. This repayment comes from money collected from you and me and him. When losses are light, we are credited with a corresponding amount on our premiums. And when losses are heavy, we are penalized in like degree.

At the same time one never knows the limits of a fire. It is hard to figure just where the damage will stop, for under proper circumstances whole towns have been destroyed from what appeared at first to be a minor blaze.

The moral of which is, let's don't burn up our property. And let's be as careful as possible to see that it doesn't happen accidentally, either.

After waiting for about fifty years, it does seem odd that citizens are so impatient in the matter of getting their streets paved.

Taxpayers are of course entitled to grip. Sometimes we think that is about the only privilege accorded with the payment of taxes. Nevertheless when this griping is done in a serious nature, it sometimes is inconsistent.

A number of our friends have been heard to inquire lately, "When are the streets going to be paved?" In answer we might give what little information is in our possession, and save the mayor from a few of the questions.

The streets will be paved when they are paved. This is about all anyone knows about the matter.

If the paving job were a contract, the mayor and councilmen could raise heck with the contractor when things slow up. If the city were paying all the expense, it would be only right for them to protect the taxpayers to that extent.

But when Uncle Sam is being a big brother and contributing a lion's share of the cost of said project, it would be a little inconsistent to try to hurry things up too much. Those who have been in touch with relief work know that things simply aren't done that way.

After all, what's the hurry? The longer we wait for completion, the longer the streets will last, anyhow.

Stephenville Home Of Modern Hospital Recently Enlarged

Caring as it does for a number of patients from the Hico community, as well as providing modern hospitalization for citizens of the town in which it is located and a large territory surrounding, the Stephenville Hospital invites the general public to inspect its modern quarters, especially the elegant new addition just completed and opened this week.

In making this additional investment, Dr. James C. Terrell, founder of the institution, and Dr. Vance Terrell, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist associated with his brother, feel the hospital is fully prepared to take care of its growing clientele of patients in an efficient and satisfactory manner.

Approaching the new wing from the street, one is impressed with its dignity and harmony with its surroundings. The lower half of the two-story structure is built of brick and the top half is plastered. A red tile roof is in keeping with the style of architecture followed. Venetian blinds at all windows give a hint of the beauty and comfort to be found within.

Stepping into the hall, the floor of which is covered with battle-ship linoleum, one first notices the beautiful woodwork in light color, finished off with birch doors. Some of the rooms are finished in spring green, others in maize tan.

Each of the rooms is equipped with Simmons all-steel furniture, with Bestream mattresses on all the beds. Steam heat is provided throughout the building, with individual bed lamps and fans adding a touch of comfort appealing to inmates. Electrical illumination is supplemented with a gas lighting system for use in cases of emergency.

Providing another touch of convenience, an automatic elevator for use of the patients furnishes easy access to and from the upper floor.

Among the many features now offered in the Stephenville Hospital are an oxygen tent for use in treatment of pneumonia, a laboratory with a capable technician in charge; the very latest in modern X-ray equipment; and an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, Dr. Vance Terrell. One doctor is available for emergency cases at all times.

Having served a number of patients from this section since 1926, when he established the Stephenville Hospital, Dr. James C. Terrell is anxious to have the public familiarize itself with the institution and the service it now offers.

Which has been improved from time to time during the past ten years. He and his brother, Dr. Vance Terrell, issue a special invitation to the people of Hico and vicinity to visit and inspect the new addition, and urge them to feel free to make any investigation they deem proper as to the ability of the hospital to render modern service, both in equipment and in personnel.

Hamilton County Fall Fair to Open Next Wednesday

HAMILTON, Sept. 30 (Spl.)—The Hamilton County Free Fair will open Wednesday, Oct. 7, for a three-day Centennial celebration. The street parade will take place at 11 o'clock on the opening morning.

Community booths, livestock exhibits and other interesting exhibits will be featured throughout the three-day exposition. The entertainment will consist of horse races each afternoon; two rodeo performances each day; amateur contest along the Major Bowes line and public wedding on Wednesday night; historical pageant and crowning of the queen Thursday night; and a night football game between Hamilton and Comanche on Friday night.

A good carnival will show throughout the celebration.

2069 BALES COTTON GINNED IN COUNTY PRIOR TO SEPT. 16; 623 TO SAME 1935 DATE

W. M. Martin, Special Agent of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, makes the following report for publication, under date of Sept. 28, 1936: "Census report shows that there were 2,069 bales of cotton ginned in Hamilton County from the crop of 1936 prior to Sept. 16, as compared with 623 bales ginned to Sept. 16, crop of 1935."

Rough Ride On Roller.

On a mission which was anything but enjoyable, Roy Massingill, Ray Connally and C. E. Lester had unique experience in bringing a 5-ton roller to Hico from Hamilton during the heavy rain last Saturday.

The roller, property of the City of Hamilton, had been leased for use on local streets, and the trio departed just before the heavy rains to pull it back behind a truck. If you think this was a snap, ask any one of the crew in charge of bringing it here.

The roller was put into service the first of the week, packing the streets which are soon to be topped with asphalt.

Preparations Made For Big Dollar Day Wednesday, Oct. 7

With Fall really opening up, and everyone ready to lay in a supply of Winter merchandise, indications are that the next regular Dollar Day, to be held in Hico next Wednesday, October 7, will be the biggest one held since the plan was worked out some 16 months ago.

Each month since the inception of the idea the popularity of the event has grown, and thrifty shoppers were present at the September Dollar Day from miles and miles around. Since cotton picking is under way to such an extent, farmers will be quite busy next mid-week, but it will pay them and their wives to take time off and come to Hico for Dollar Day.

In addition to the many special prices on seasonable merchandise and on wanted services by Hico merchants, the regular feature of the day will occur at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Arrangements have been made to distribute fifty dollars among those present.

On the inside pages of this paper will be found a number of individual advertisements offering special inducements and bargains in needed merchandise. At practically every store will be found some manner of Trades Day cooperation, although some of the local establishments could not think of anything to advertise this week.

Make your plans now to be on hand in Hico next Wednesday—tell your neighbor—and remember that "if you miss it—you will miss it!"

GOVERNMENT HORSE BUYER FAILS TO SECURE TYPE OF HORSES ARTILLERY NEEDS

Expressing regret at the inconvenience local horse-owners were put to last week-end on his scheduled visit to Hico for the purpose of buying horses for the artillery, Capt. Clarence W. Bennett assured those who brought in animals that their cooperation was appreciated. He stated that there was a wonderful response to the announcement of the sale, and that it was unfortunate that the preliminary schedule had not made clear just the type needed for this special purpose.

Unable to get to Hico Friday afternoon, the time announced for the visit, Capt. Bennett wired W. L. McDowell that high water would prevent his arrival until Saturday morning. Mr. McDowell, after some delay in receiving the message, passed the word along to those present with horses, and invited them back the next morning. Through his courtesy sandwiches were served to a number of those kept waiting.

It was reported that over a hundred horses were on the lot Friday afternoon, most of the owners taking the animals to Mr. McDowell's place near town Saturday morning where inspection was made. Capt. Bennett explained that a number of good horses were on hand, but they did not suit his particular needs at this time, a light type of riding horse being in demand at present. He made it clear that it was not quality but classification that prevented purchases being made.

The government agent reported having bought five horses at Granbury, where he was stationed Friday morning, and three are reported to have been accepted after he made a trip to Carleton to inspect them.

FAIRY SCHOOL RE-OPENED WITH GOOD ATTENDANCE

Reporting good attendance at the resumption of school Monday morning of this week, Superintendent W. M. Horsley of the Fairy Schools looks forward to a very successful school year. After running two weeks following the opening of the present session, the students and teachers took a two week's recess while cotton picking was heaviest.

Mr. Horsley reports a change in the faculty with Hollis T. Ford of Turnesville taking the place occupied formerly by Earl Woodall. Mr. Ford, a graduate of Texas A. & M. College, will teach junior science, biology and agriculture, and will coach the high school boys in athletics.

Escaping without injury when the car turned over on its side last Saturday afternoon, occupants of a car owned and driven by Dr. C. C. Baker of Hamilton stopped in Hico a while before resuming their journey.

According to Dr. Baker, the car got out of control when a tire blew out between Hico and Stephenville, on the newly asphalted stretch near the Erath-Hamilton County line. The car was brought to Hico for repairs.

Greenville School Starts Greenville school will start Monday, October 5. New and old pupils bring book and report cards.

Plans For Welfare Board For County Made at Hamilton

After having been selected as chairman of a county welfare board, formed last week at Hamilton, J. P. Rogers Jr. of Hico this week expressed regret at being unable to accept the honor and so notified the other members.

A report of the meeting, as carried by the Hamilton Herald-Record in its last issue, follows:

With the coming of cold weather and its demands for a greater amount of food, clothing, warm bedding and fuel, Hamilton county will again be facing the problem of aiding the indigent poor amongst us.

It is generally known that Federal Emergency Relief Administration ceased furnishing funds for direct relief purposes on January 1, 1936. Through strict economy measures the Texas Relief Commission stretched the remaining funds to meet the needs until July 31, 1936. Since that time there has been no established agency in Hamilton county to carry on a welfare program for those families who are still dependent upon aid. However, so far the needs have been slight, as noted above will be dire when winter comes on, and there will probably be a greater number of the needy on account of work being more difficult to obtain during the cold months.

The situation has been taken in hand, and a movement started that will provide for the sustenance of the unfortunate. Mrs. Ethel B. Kooker, Dr. C. E. Chandler, and C. P. Emmett, acting as a volunteer and temporary committee invited a number of persons throughout the county to meet in this city at the County Court House on Tuesday, September 22, at 2:00 o'clock for the discussion of the problem confronting society.

The committee had been assured of the cooperation of the County Government in the movement, and it was hoped that the result of the conference would be the selection of a Hamilton County Board of Public Welfare, a permanent body dealing with all problems of public welfare.

The meeting was well attended, and a tentative organization effected out of which will grow a permanent central body with branches that will cover the entire field of service.

C. P. Emmett, Supervisor of the Rural Resettlement Administration for Hamilton County, presided at the meeting, and a general discussion of the problem was entered into. Every one present agreed that it is expedient that the organization of a permanent Board of Public Welfare be perfected in the near future that no people amongst us shall suffer dire need.

The following officers were elected subject to their acceptance of the office: J. P. Rogers, Hico, Chairman; Cecil B. James, Hamilton, Secretary-Treasurer; Mrs. Ernest Moore, Chairman of Drive Committee; Evant; Sid Dickerson, Chairman Drive Committee Hamilton.

Mrs. Ethel B. Kooker, Chairman Drive Committee, Hamilton. Chairman J. P. Rogers will call another meeting to perfect the organization as soon as other chairmen are appointed.

The agencies enlisted through the heads of the various bodies included Commander Bradford Corigan of the American Legion Post; Mrs. John Cameron, President of the American Legion Women's Auxiliary; L. Brann, Chairman Hamilton County Red Cross; J. H. Moore, President Lions Club; Rev. Bryson English, Pastor Methodist church; Rev. Judson Prince, Pastor of First Baptist church; Rev. Harvard A. Anderson, Pastor of the Presbyterian church; Rev. Leland Aiton, Pastor Church of Christ; the Central Christian church, St. Mary's Episcopal church, all fraternal orders and service clubs of whatever nature; C. A. Nix, Superintendent of Hamilton Public Schools and teachers of all schools in the county.

The temporary committee Mrs. Kooker, Dr. Chandler and C. P. Emmett deeply appreciated the interest manifested by the people who responded to the invitation to be present for the meeting, and urge that the entire citizenship of the county lend assistance in this worthy cause.

Let's not wait until the cold weather brings suffering and want. Let Hamilton County be prepared to take care of the unfortunate poor.

"Fire Prevention" Week Slated For Local Observance

Plans have been announced for local participation in National Fire Prevention Week, to be observed throughout the United States next week, October 4th to 10th.

Local Fire Marshal J. R. McMillan and J. W. Leeth, chief of the Hico Volunteer Fire Department, have announced their intentions of cooperating with the State Fire Insurance Commission in every feature of the program. The object of the observance is to reduce fire hazards, make people fire-conscious, and thus cut down the mounting sum in life and property lost through fire each year.

Hico has a particular interest in reducing fire losses, it was pointed out, since local property-owners stand a chance of regaining their maximum credit for good fire record which was enjoyed up to four or five years ago.

Time heavy losses caused the relation of money paid out by insurance companies to the amount collected in premiums to become unbalanced to such a degree that all policies were figured on a penalty basis instead of being credited as in the past.

From a 15 per cent credit, insurance payers saw their expenses rise through the addition of a penalty in a like sum, making their payments almost a third higher. Interested citizens have since that time been using every effort to reduce losses and change the situation up, but until this year there has been no opportunity to regain the maximum credit.

In March of this year, the Insurance Commission announced that a 5 per cent credit would be allowed. Since the losses are figured over a period of three years, it has taken some time to work off the "bad" years. Losses in the past two years have been light, however, and thus far in 1936 Hico has enjoyed a very good record. Leading public spirited citizens to hope for a continuance of same throughout the remainder of the year.

A program of speaking has been arranged by the sponsors for the churches and schools, and every day next week will be devoted to an effort to make people conscious of the dangers of fire.

NO FLOOD HERE, BUT LOTS OF WATER IN THE BOSQUE

Filled to the brim Saturday night through torrential rains on watershed, the Bosque River at Hico stayed within its banks here while lapping over at spots up and down its course. At the bridge the waters stayed practically at the same height all day Sunday, with the slough backing up into the road near the fork. Traffic was not halted.

Farmers up and down the river reported high waters inundating their fields at some places, but the high stage lasted for a time did not develop.

Old-timers marveled at the swiftness of the flow of water down the Bosque, stating that since the river was cleaned out three years ago the stream takes care of its floods in better fashion than of old.

At Stephenville the Bosque came out of its banks, stopping traffic. Duffan Creek's rise cut off traffic between Hico and Iredell for considerable time. The Leon River between Hico and Hamilton rose to a high stage, and other smaller streams were swollen. Hico did not receive as heavy rainfall as neighboring towns.

Electric service was interrupted for a short time Saturday night through trouble on the high-line coming in from the East. However, the local power plant was promptly put into action, and service was resumed before further than slight inconvenience was suffered. C. P. Coston, local manager of the Community Public Service Company, reported a rough night for some of the linemen and crews out in various parts of the district in an effort to repair damages. Swollen streams hindered them in their efforts, but they toiled ceaselessly throughout the night and part of the next day until all lines and equipment were in shape.

TRAIN SERVICE HALTED ON ACCOUNT OF FLOODS BELOW

Due to the destruction of a bridge and several yards of track between Waco and Whitney, near Aquilla, service on the local M-K-T line was interrupted Sunday. No trains ran that day, and arrangements made for emergency service the following days resulted in departure from the regular schedule.

Mail service has been maintained practically as usual on first-class matter, through the motor line from Dublin to Stephenville, but most newspapers, packages and periodicals have been delayed in reaching patrons.

H. Smith, local agent of the Katy, reports that crews were put to work promptly at the points where damage was suffered, and that now the tracks are back in shape, assuring resumption of the usual prompt service on passenger and freight traffic.

Fall Grand Jurors Make Their Report And Ask Dismissal

Commending officers and bailiffs for rendering valuable service, and calling attention of the citizens to the work transacted during the recent session, the members of the Fall term grand jury in Hamilton county last Friday made their report and asked to be discharged.

The report, submitted to the News Review by District Clerk L. A. Morris follows:

September 25th, A. D. 1936. The State of Texas, County of Hamilton.

To the Honorable R. B. Cross, Judge of the 52nd Judicial District:

We, the Grand Jury for the August Term of District Court, A. D. 1936, beg leave to submit the following report:

First we wish to thank the Honorable Court for his excellent charge which was given to us on August 31st, and for the capable and able assistance rendered by the Court from time to time during our work. We were in session for a period of seven days beginning August 31st and then asked the Honorable Court for permission to recess for a period of more than three days, said permission being granted, and on September 21st, A. D. 1936, the grand jury reconvened and remained in session for a period of five days.

We have examined 221 witnesses and returned 48 true bills of indictments, 43 felonies and 5 misdemeanors.

We wish to thank the bailiffs who rendered such valuable service, each bailiff's work being satisfactory in every respect. We wish to thank Bill Allen, district attorney, Houston White, Sheriff, and Ardell Williams, county attorney for the services and assistance which they have given of the grand jury. The sheriff and other law enforcing officer of Hamilton County are to be commended for the noble and unflinching efforts that they have rendered in enforcing the law of this county. The citizens of the county as a whole are to be commended and thanked for their co-operation with officers and their respect and obedience of the law.

Apparently there are many violations of the Sunday laws by the merchants of Hamilton County, and it seems that there is no necessity whatever for the merchants to keep their stores open after nine o'clock on Sunday morning, and it further appears that there is no need or necessity for reopening their store at any time during the day of Sunday. We respectfully request and ask all the citizens of Hamilton County, to cooperate with the officers of Hamilton County, in enforcing and up holding the law. And also keep watch for all lotteries, skin games, pool halls and all other violations of the law.

It further appearing that there is no other business to come before us, we respectfully ask the Honorable Court that we be discharged.

W. B. McPherson, Foreman. Shade Register, Sect.

STATE SENATOR HEAD, ON WAY TO SPECIAL SESSION, VISITS AWHILE IN HICO

En route to Austin last Friday morning, to be on hand for the opening of the special session of the State Legislature on Monday morning of this week, State Senator J. Manley Head of Stephenville stopped a short while in Hico to thank a few of his friends for the wonderful support he received in both primary elections.

While in Hico, Mr. Head will serve in the present special session as a member of the House of Representatives, filling out the term to which he was elected two years ago from Erath and Hood Counties. He will take up the duties in the upper house after the first of the year, when the regular session of the Legislature is called together.

After a short vacation, during which he took a much-needed rest following the strenuous campaign, Mr. Head states he is feeling fine and that he is ready to enter into his new duties with the idea of rendering real service to his constituents, whom he invites to confer with him on any matters in which they might be interested.

HICO RECRUIT IN NAVY IS ASSIGNED TO INFANTRY AT FORT SAM HOUSTON, TEXAS

Under date of Sept. 26, Sidney J. Cutler, Major, FA, Recruiting officer at Dallas, gives the following information regarding enlistment of a Hico boy:

"It gives me pleasure to advise you that Willie Lee Joiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wyle Monroe Joiner, Hico, was forwarded by Sergeant Elton B. Brooks, Army Recruiting Service, Waco, and was enlisted in the United States Army this date and assigned to Infantry, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Additional vacancies still exist at this station and at Fort F. E. Warren, Wyoming, and Fort Sill, Oklahoma. Applicants should write or call Sgt. Brooks in the post-office at Waco."

Keeping Up With TEXAS

Woe be unto a certain Dallas auto thief when and if the police capture him. The brazen thief added insult to injury by taking Patrolman J. C. King's new report blank—also the police car. The car has a large "Dallas Police Department" sign painted on the side.

M. C. Welborn, of Fort Worth, state division highway engineer, Monday forecast an early start on the paving of a 13-mile gap in Highway 10 between Stephenville and Dublin with the receipt of orders to proceed with plans. Grading has been completed on the section.

Judge T. O. Davis of Carthage, formerly sentenced Tuesday Terrence R. Bramblett, convicted slayer of Shelby County's former treasurer, Marlie Childs, to 50 years in the penitentiary.

The dapper Jefferson youth, who admitted a love affair with Childs, made no comment when sentence was passed.

Twenty-five patients of the Spann Sanitarium, a private hospital at Dallas, had to be carried out by nurses about dawn Tuesday when fire damaged the interior of the hospital.

A number of patients on the second floor had to be removed on ladders. None was expected to suffer serious consequences. The loss was estimated at about $10,000.

Willie W. Waterhouse, 75, 117 Gollad Street, was found dead Sunday at 9 a. m. on North Street in the block east of South Alamo St. in San Antonio by Frank E. Christensen, a passerby. The body was taken to Riebe Undertaking Company. Waterhouse, a retired printer, was a member of Typographical Union No. 172. The services were conducted Tuesday of last week by Rev. Thomas Kennedy, Waterhouse, a native Texan, had lived here most of his life. Death was said to be due to natural causes.

Kaufman citizens were complaining Thursday because the city lake had run dry for the second time in thirty years and they were forced to buy water from Terrell and go on short rations. The pipes were turned on only for three one-hour periods each day. The situation Sunday was reversed. After 14.5 inches of rain between Saturday morning and Sunday night, the lake was overflowing, the south spillway had broken under the crush of waters, creeks had overflowed and were standing fence high in farmlands, a railroad bridge had been washed out, and highways in every direction were under water.

An Alexander man who "has no children in school, but is interested in all boys and girls," has sent to John Tarleton College a check for $100, which is to go to the Alexander High School Senior making the highest average for the year. John F. Culpepper, school superintendent at Alexander, specified in telling Dean J. Thomas Davis of the gift, that the donor wishes to remain anonymous.

Texas school children were assured Wednesday of a train rate of one-half cent a mile for trips to the Texas Centennial Central Exposition at Dallas. The General Passenger Agents' association announced the rate. It will be available for groups of 25 or more school children and their sponsors. Governor Allred has designated district holidays to allow pupils to attend the exposition. Delegations from the Panhandle are expected Thursday and Friday and from the Brownsville district on Sunday and Monday.

GOES 'ROUND AND 'ROUND
(And It Comes Out Here—)

The past week-end brought us lots of rain, and we just wondered if the farmers around Hico were of the same opinion of those in Scurry County. A little ditty from the Scurry County Times ran like this: "Knock, knock. Who's there? Water. Water who? Water do something about this infernal mud, or the worms'll be our ruination yet!" We might add that our own muddy streets might ruin us.

A lady to be initiated into the business circle in Hico recently is Mrs. Lee Rainwater, who is assisting her husband in the furniture store they opened a few weeks ago in the building just south of Teague's Variety. Both Mr. and Mrs. Rainwater are greeting their customers in a friendly manner. Other ladies who recently have positions in places of business are: Mrs. Edwards who is seamstress at Mrs. Gambie's Shop, and Mrs. Julius Jones who is assisting Mrs. Brown at Brown's Ready-To-Wear Shop.

Be sure to bring the family to town again on Wednesday of next week, for who knows, but what some of you might share in the distributions.

Since Miss Carmen Shelton has installed a new Realistic Permanent Machine in her beauty shop, she can give several more permanents per day, with even more satisfactory service. This new machine is of the latest make, and has all the new features. All the curls can be made at one steaming so the customers can get the wave without the usual worn out feeling. Hico has three beauty shops and all of them try to keep up with the latest in beauty equipment in order that all the ladies of Hico and surrounding territory may look well groomed.

The other day we heard Jean Wolfe say to Leighton Gayton: "Your auto certainly looks worn out." Leighton looked a little disappointed, then replied: "It ought to—it's the sole survivor of six love affairs."

Improvements have recently been made to equipment at the Hico Recreation Club. Frank Falls, manager, says the pool tables have recently been remodeled, and also other equipment been redone. Plans are to make some needed improvements about the building also within the next few weeks. Although ladies are not allowed to take part in the sports at this club, it is said that it is one of the best conducted places to be found in this part of the country.

We received the Albany News this week, sent to us by D. F. McCarty, Jr., who is running the news end of that well known weekly. In our opinion, it was a very creditable issue, and he had even started a column, headed "Lookin' around." This week's column contained favorable comments about the activities and organizations in the town of Albany. We also received a Dublin Progress on which Miss Emma Dee Hall is employed. She also writes feature articles as well as local news of all kinds. You can tell by both papers that the writers are well educated in the schools of journalism, as their articles are so well gotten up.

We noticed a large new bicycle on display in Porter's Drug Store perched in front of school supply counter, and upon inquiry, learned that they were going to give it away with a school supply deal. We have not learned the particulars concerning just what it takes to get it or when it will be given away, but we intend to learn more about it soon.

J. D. Upham, who lives on a route out of Hico, was apparently in a good humor Saturday morning when in town after experiencing what he thought was due him. He remarked to a member of the News Review force during the early part of last week that he expected a blank paper since they were short of help at the office, but supposed he could use it for wrapping paper. In the mails Friday morning he received a "blank" News Review, with not a line printed on it, as the force said they did not want to disappoint him. Mr. Upham came to town Saturday after a printed one. He is a prosperous farmer in this section and can take a joke any time. Besides doing diversified farming, he raises fruits, watermelons, tomatoes and potatoes.

A motorist was 100 yards from an open level crossing and was approaching at 52 miles an hour. A passenger train was 120 yards from the same crossing and was going at the rate of 61 miles an hour.

Problem—Did the motorist get across?
Solution—Yes, he got a cross. His widow bought it out of the insurance money.

CORRESPONDENTS

The Fairy School started again Monday after being turned out for two weeks for cotton picking. All of the high school students are making acquaintance of and welcoming the new coach, Mr. Ford. Miss Wilma Caraway returned Monday from her home at Alexander where she had spent two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Caraway. Miss Caraway has resumed her duties as a teacher in the Fairy School.

Mrs. Price Cox and Mrs. Ben Wright were Stephenville visitors Wednesday.

Make-Believe Bride

by Ruth Harkey

Seventh Installment
SYNOPSIS: Maris Trevor is discouraged because Rod O'Rourke spends all his money developing an invention which he hopes will provide an income so that they can marry. Maris thinks they should enjoy the present rather than deny themselves for the future. She becomes uncertain of her love for Rod. Perhaps there would be more happiness with someone else.

"Say, cried the girl, 'since when have you been handing the young boss billets-doux? Seems to me that ain't the first time you two met, and I thought I had my eyes peeled for young romance around here. You're sure not one over me.'

"Oh, go on, Milly. There's nothing to that."
 "Hub, that's what they all say. But remember, young lady, Stan's got a girl, though I must say you'd make a good understudy for Rowene—the same silky, golden hair, the same dark eyes."

"But that's where it ends. Look at Rowene's jewels and me with a five-and-ten bangle on my lily-white arm—the only jewelry I've got, and I'm glad enough to have it."

"Well, then, Maris, there's nothing for you to do but cut out a glow of life seemed to sweep through her again. Whatever it was, Stan was not angry with her. But as she looked at him, she realized his face was haggard, and the dark marks below his eyes told of a sleepless night. What had happened? It must have been something awful, to leave him looking like that. Why, his clothes looked as though he'd never taken them off all night!

Clearing his throat, he said, "I wonder if you would wear the bridal gown at the exposition?"
 "Me!" exclaimed Maris. Had her ears deceived her?
 "Yes, Maris," he said quietly. His eyes seemed to tell her that she would confer a tremendous favor on him if she would do this.

"But I thought Miss— Maris suddenly stopped, realizing she was blundering.
 "Yes, my fiancée was to wear it, but—well, our engagement's broke and— He hesitated slightly as his brown eyes sought her sympathy. "You can understand that's impossible now."

"Of course," she answered hurriedly. "But I don't see why you chose me."
 Ignoring her remark, Stan said, "The gown is in that box. I'd like you to try it on. Maybe you'd just step into my inner office and put you've saved the situation, and I'll never forget that," he announced emphatically.

 Maris' heart was beating furiously as she left his office and met the frankly inquisitive glances of the girls, as well as the questioning looks of the miscellaneous salesmen who always seemed to be hanging around anywhere but in the room set apart for their special use.

But she glanced neither left nor right, but hurried toward Miss Riggs' desk.
 "You're going to do it?" she asked. "I'm so glad. This is a chance in a lifetime. Now make the most of it."
 "I feel terribly nervous about appearing before a whole hall full of people. I just don't know if I'll be able to when the time comes."

"Don't say such a thing. Of course you will. I've often thought you were wasted in an office like this, hammering a machine all day long. But then, of course, with times as they've been lately, I didn't want to put ideas into your head. But you're lucky, all right, so see that you get something out of this. How about shoes and things like that?"

"Mr. Stan said I should see Mrs. Bryce, and then go home till they call for me in the evening."
 "I shouldn't be surprised if Mr. Stan calls for you himself. He's terribly sore at Rowene. I don't know what can have happened between them, but you play your cards right and there's no saying what may come of this," she cooed.

"Oh, I'd never think of that," said Maris, although Miss Riggs' suggestion was but the stepping stone to a wonderful castle of dreams that instantly floated into her mind.
 "Don't say that," said Miss Riggs. "Every girl has a right to make the most of her chances, so just remember what I say. Oh, there's Mrs. Bryce; better see her at once," she added as the head stylist, a striking-looking young woman with unusual green eyes, appeared.

"All right," answered Maris, and she went forward to meet her.
 An hour later Maris was hurrying home, a pair of beautiful satin slippers, long suede gloves, some exquisite lingerie and a gorgeous wrap following her by special delivery. She could hardly keep from running as she left the subway and turned down the street to her apartment house.

Who would ever have thought that morning that she would have such a wonderful piece of fun; that she would have a chance to mingle with society girls as if she were one of them; to be the center of attraction at the exposition! Oh, it was too wonderful! It would completely bowl Fatsy over.

She glanced at her watch. Patsy would be asleep, for she didn't generally rise till about four, and it wasn't much past twelve. Well, she'd just have to wait, for it wouldn't be fair to waken her up. Patsy really worked hard and took her work seriously.

Quietly she slipped her keys in the lock, and turned it slowly around. But suddenly she felt the door jerked open. "Patsy," she cried as she almost tumbled into her friend's arms. "Why aren't you asleep?"
 "What are you doing home at this time of day?" countered Pat. "Oh, something wonderful's happened, but tell me what's the idea of your being up when you should be getting your beauty sleep?"
 "I'm getting off tonight. The manager said he thought it was time I had a chance to make up some of the hours I'd worked overtime, and of course I'd rather sleep at night for a change."

 "That's great, Patsy."
 "But why are you home?"
 Throwing her arms about her chum, Maris cried, "I'm going to be the bride at the show tonight. Ain't I the lucky girl?"
 "But I thought young Fayson's girl was to show off that gown."
 "So she was. Pat, but, oh, I guess Stan and Rowene have busted up their engagement. We'd awful excitement. Poor old Riggs was all up in the air. Then she sent me into Stan's office. Gosh, I wondered what crime I'd committed, but when he told me, well, you could have knocked me over. So I had to put on the dress. It fits me like a glove. Don't you think I'm in luck, old girl?"
 "Why, Maris, this is wonderful! Now you'll see how you'd like to be a mannequin."
 "Sure I will; but it will be like starting up to stardom. Oh, Patsy, I'm so excited, and you should have seen how Stan looked at me. Gosh, when I came into his office in the wonderful gown or rather when he stepped into his private office and saw me—well, I haven't got words to describe what I did to that young man. He's all set up again, and didn't he look the heart-broken lad when I went in at first?"

A troubled look had crept into Patsy's hazel eyes. "Oh, Maris, do be careful. Don't start and think Stan's crazy about you. Remember he wants to make good, and is probably mighty glad he found a girl so easily to take Rowene's place, so don't get all sentimental about him, Maris."
 "There, you little kill-joy, why don't you say, 'Go to it, old girl,' like Miss Riggs did? She's a business woman and I bet she's fed up on it and would give her eye-teeth if she had the chance to charm some old sugar daddy."
 "I wish Rod was at home. I don't really like you going out with those folk and none of your town around you."

"You dear old thing. Anyone would think you were fifty at least and with a whole raft of children to turn your hair grey with their escapades. You don't need to worry about me. Can't I have my little joke? You're far too serious, Pat. There, someone's at the door. I bet it's the rest of my trousseau coming," she cried as she hurried to open it.

Swiftly the afternoon passed, and though Maris kept protesting, Pat should look after her own affairs and take some enjoyment in the few hours that she was having off, she was only too glad to have her help her get ready for the great occasion.

The gown in all its tissue wrappings had arrived. Patsy declared it was time for Maris to slip into it. As she drew it over her head, she suddenly cried, "Oh, Patsy, I'm scared. What if I don't make good?"

Her smile, which revealed a dimple in her cheek, was not lost on Stan.

Rowene. I bet that wouldn't be so hard. They say she's just as dumb as she's beautiful, so that's going some. Say, why don't you?" she whispered, her almond-shaped eyes aghast.

"How about you making a bid for him? I thought that was your specialty?" and Maris looked at the girl intently.
 Mill gave a little smirk. Then in a very confidential tone, she said, "It used to be, but I've decided a star salesman who can make his twenty grand a year is all I want."

"You mean you're engaged to Brewer?" Maris' eyes opened wide in astonishment.
 But, apart from a slight inclination of her head, Milly had no chance to say anything further, because Miss Riggs suddenly appeared and called her to her desk.

"Mr. Stanyel Fayson wants to see you at once in his office. He's terribly upset, Maris."
 Suddenly Maris felt herself trembling. Why should he have sent for her? But Miss Riggs was already hurrying across the corridor to old Fayson's office, and so Maris couldn't find out anything more.

Maris felt numb all over as she walked towards Stan's office. What could he want with her? Surely he wasn't angry with her because she had criticized his announcement. He'd asked her to do it. Didn't he mean what he said? Yet he had seemed to be perfectly pleased with her suggestion. Why hadn't Miss Riggs given her a hint of what he wanted?

Quickly she thought of the letters she had written lately, but not one had been his. Then she remembered that one of his father's—or one of the salesmen's, it must have been—with the quotations. But Miss Riggs had checked it over with her and had assured her it was correct.

Of course you never knew when any of the men might be trying to pass the buck and blame a stenographer for a mistake of their own. How hateful business was! Whom could you trust anyway? Suddenly she hated it all. It made a girl nervous. As she turned the handle of the door her hand felt positively clammy.

But when she entered the room, Stan looked up eagerly and said, "Oh, I'm so glad you've come. Miss Riggs suggested you might help me. I certainly hope you can. Do sit down." Once more he indicated the chair beside his desk.
 The numbness left her body and it on now. I'll send for one of the forewomen from the factory. She can help you."

 "But you're sure you want me to do this? I've never done any modeling."
 "That's just why I want you. That's why I decided to have Miss Quirk and some of her friends put this show on, because we want to prove that our new crepe and other fabrics are the choice of such girls, and not just designed for show wear for professional use."
 "You certainly will," he answered, a sudden glow in his eyes again. "Don't worry about a thing. You'll be the hit of the evening. I'm sure of that."
 "I'll do my best," Maris said in a low voice, while her smile, which revealed a dimple in her left cheek, was not lost on Stan. He was already wondering why he had failed to notice this girl during all the weeks she had worked just a stone's throw from his office.

WALTER PARKER WOODBRIDGE

ENGINE . . . . . the corliss

It was like getting news of an old friend when I read in the paper the other day that Henry Ford has bought for his Dearborn museum the big Corliss engine which was built for the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876. My real education began when my father took me, as a boy of six, to the Centennial; and of all things I saw there the Corliss engine stands out first in my memory.

That was partly because George H. Corliss, its inventor and builder was a friend of my father's and I had been at his house in Providence. But mainly it was because it was the biggest piece of moving machinery I had ever seen, with its 30-foot flywheel revolving so smoothly that there was no vibration at all.

I remember that my father took a silver dollar out of his pocket and stood it on the edge on the horizontal frame of the engine, and it was not shaken off.

The Corliss engine, with its 1,400 horsepower, would seem like a top today, but it was the greatest triumph, in man's attempt to harness natural forces that had ever been achieved, 60 years ago.

BUTTER . . . . . a statue

It amuses me to hear people in the East speak of states like Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin as if they were still raw, unsettled prairie country. I read somewhere recently an expression of surprise at the information that Minnesota produces more dairy products than any other state, as if that were something new.

One of my keenest memories of the 1876 Centennial is that of the "Butter Woman," a figure of heroic size, carved out of butter and standing in a refrigerated glass case in the Agricultural Building of the Centennial. That was Minnesota's chief product 60 years ago, as it is today.

That was another chapter in my youthful education. There's nothing like a fair—whether it's a World's Fair or just a county fair—to impress realities indelibly on children's minds.

LIGHT . . . . . Sperry

One of the things shown at the Centennial which I remember seeing was Professor Bell's telephone.

One I do not remember was C. F. Brush's electric arc light. But a boy ten years older than I saw the arc light, went back to his home in Cortland, N. Y., determined to study electrical engineering, found a friendly and able teacher at Cornell University, and at 19 he had set up an electric lighting system in his home town, the very first in the world.

I got to know Elmer Sperry very well in later years. He was one of the great pioneers in electrical invention, and in the practical application of his inventions. Sperry got the inspiration for his life work from America's first great World's Fair, I hope the New York World's Fair of 1939 will stimulate a fresh crop of young geniuses to make the world of the future different from the present.

TOY . . . . . principle

Another thing I remember from the Philadelphia Centennial, besides the majestic beard of Dom Pedro III, the last Emperor of Brazil, is a toy my father bought me, a gyroscope top. A gyroscope is a flywheel whose axis is free to revolve in any direction. It resists any effort to make it change its plane of rotation.

Elmer Sperry bought one of those gyroscopic tops. For years he studied it at intervals until he had mastered its underlying principle, which nobody had ever put on paper. Then his practical mind sought practical applications for the gyroscopic principle.

The result? Every important ship afloat today is steered by "Metal Mike," which is the Sperry gyroscope attached to the helm. The Sperry gyroscope compass gives the mariner the true north instead of the magnetic pole. Sperry gyroscopes keep modern aircraft on an even keel; one guided "Lindy" across the Atlantic.

SLAVE . . . . . now 115

The oldest person on the Federal payroll is a Negro 115 years old, Mark Thrash, who was born on Christmas Day, 1820. The old man worked 28 years as a laborer in Chickamauga National Park, until he retired on a Civil Service pension at the age of 102.

I imagine nobody begrudges this former slave the little monthly retirement pay he draws from the Government. Millions must envy him the vitality which enabled him to keep on working for a hundred years and which still keeps him alive.

It is utter nonsense to set an age limit at which men should quit working. Some men ought to quit at 40 for all the good they are after that, but many men do their best work at 70.

WALTER WOODUL PLEADS FOR AMENDMENT RAISING PAY OF STATE OFFICERS

Walter F. Woodul of Houston, pleading for the passage of the amendment calling for raising State officers' salaries, writes as follows:

In 1876 Texas wrote into its Constitution a salary of Four Thousand ($4,000.00) Dollars for the Governor, Four Thousand ($4,000.00) Dollars for the Attorney General, and Twenty-five Hundred ($2,500.00) Dollars each for the Land Commissioner, Comptroller, Treasurer and Secretary of State. In those days this might have been an adequate salary, but today those holding these high offices are not paid as well as they were in '76, and no man can carry the burden of the office and justly care for his family during his incumbency. Being Constitutional provisions these salaries have remained the same and I am sure that if the thinking people here the matter called to their attention they will vote for one proposed Constitutional Amendment in the November election of this year raising the salary of the Governor to $12,000 a year, the Attorney General to $10,000 and the other four Constitutional officers to $6,000 each. This will only cost Mr. John Citizens less than a half a cent each to do justice by these leading officials of our great State Government.

Texas is the fastest growing State in the Union, the largest State and the fifth in population and wealth. The demands on State officials are many and we ought to pay our public servants a reasonable living wage while they transact the business of the State.

Take the Governor for instance. No Governor can live up to the requirements of the office and raise his family, excepting that he have private means, without having to spend one-half of the month wondering about where he will borrow money at the end of the month to pay the bills for the month. We all admit that this is not good business. The same is true of the other officials. The Attorney General ought to be, and always is an outstanding lawyer, and in the great number of cases in which he appears on the docket from him are often paid more in the one case than the Attorney General earns in two years.

To think of the State Comptroller, responsible for several hundred employees and having to make a State campaign every two years, rearing a family in Austin on the pitiful sum of $2,500 is a crime and ought to be corrected. This is true even if we didn't think of the millions of dollars' responsibility he carries for the State.

Although fifth in rank in the United States, there are only three other States in the Union, to-wit: North Dakota, South Dakota and Tennessee that pay their Governor as little as we do in Texas. Even Rhode Island, Montana, Idaho and all of these other States recognize the importance of the office and pay in excess of what we do in Texas. Texans, when they think of it, are not adverse to paying a living salary. Take the salaries we pay the Mayors of our larger cities: the $14,000 and $16,000 paid City Managers in some of our larger cities. We pay the Superintendent of Schools in Houston $10,000 a year and that after the depression cut. The Federal Judges in Texas get $10,000 a year and a job for life. Members of Congress are paid $10,000 a year plus allowances. Washington sent a capable engineer to supervise the work on the Colorado River Project at a salary of $20,000 a year and the engineer on the Port Arthur Bridge construction is to receive $12,000 a year.

In private business the smart business institutions like our banks, railroads and other large institutions pay much better salaries than are proposed here, but these are for public service. There is no executive of a private institution in Texas that has the responsibilities or duties calling for ability such as do these officials.

I am sure that the thinking men and women in Texas, after the matter is put up to them, will see the justice of the proposed amendment and will talk to their neighbors and will talk it at Sunday school, their lodges and at social gatherings and say a good word to the end that the proposed Constitutional Amendment will be overwhelmingly carried at the November election, and in this great Centennial year we can right a wrong that has long existed, and do it to the glory of Texas. If every good Texan will speak his mind upon this worthy Amendment between now and the November election, we have no fears of the final outcome.

WALTER F. WOODUL

It is interesting to find that more women are receiving honors in the sciences and it is a pleasure to record that three young women students in chemistry have been awarded scholarships for graduate study by the Women's Service Committee of the American Chemical Society. The young women are Martha W. Smith of Raleigh, North Carolina; Mary Elizabeth Stutzenberg of Chicago, and Florence V. Olson of Beresford, South Dakota. All three have high academic degrees. Miss Smith is engaged in the chemical analysis of peach leaves.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Sept. 22.—One of the demands for money which will be made upon the 75th Congress when it convenes on January 3, 1937, will be for funds with which to carry on toward completion the building program to house federal workers here.

There never has been a time in recent years when the Government offices were not cramped for space in which to house their files and records and provide adequate deskroom, air and light for everybody. Congress has always been slow to provide money for new buildings. As a result almost every department and independent bureau of the Government was overcrowded, and many of them quartered in rented space or in structures which can hardly be dignified by the name of "shacks."

Major Departments Crowded

Practically all of the activities of the Navy Department for example are still conducted in one of the "temporary" buildings which were constructed hastily at the time of the World War. Even with the Navy crowded out of the State, War and Navy building, the War Department "overflows" into other rented buildings.

Perhaps the most crowded of all the Federal offices is that of the Federal Trade Commission, which occupies another of the war-time "shacks." The Trade Commission's activities have been expanding enormously in recent years, and now it has wished on it the administration of the Robinson-Patman Act, which promises to call for some hundreds of additional workers and acres of storage space for files and records.

W. P. A. funds are being used to complete the "apex" building of the "Federal Triangle" which will house the Federal Trade Commission when it is completed. This will be nearest to the Capitol of the great group of white palaces which have already made of Washington the most impressive national capital anywhere in the world; but the plan under which the present buildings between Pennsylvania Avenue and Constitution Avenue have been built calls for still further construction southward of The Mall, toward the Potomac, where the Department of Agriculture with its annexes is already on the ground, with the Smithsonian Institution and the National Museum.

Planned For Beauty

Eventually, it is expected, the entire triangle, a mile long and a mile across, lying between the Capitol at the apex and Fifteenth Street at the base, bounded by Pennsylvania Avenue on the North and Maryland Avenue on the South, will be occupied by Government buildings, while to the West, beyond Fifteenth Street, the beautiful old Treasury Building, the White House and the State Department building will remain at the northern edge of the great park of which the Washington Monument marks the center, and in which the Lincoln Memorial stands as one of the most beautiful and impressive structures ever built by human hands.

The architectural scheme to which all of the Federal buildings, except the State Department, are keyed is a classic Greco-Roman style which was chosen by George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, among his other accomplishments.

The Government's building operations were scattered haphazard around the city, with no particular attempt to centralize them until 1910, when President Taft proposed that the Government should buy the land in the worst slum section of the city, from Pennsylvania Avenue southward. Much of this land was bought then; more was acquired later when, in 1925, a commission appointed by President Coolidge, developed the centralized plan under which the old slum district has been transformed.

District of Columbia

Now more money is needed from Congress for more buildings. It is cheaper for Uncle Sam to own his own buildings than to rent space, as he has to do now for the overflow. No matter how much real estate the Federal Government owns, its taxes don't go up for under an agreement with the people of the District of Columbia entered into nearly sixty years ago, the Government pays half of all the taxes. In consideration for this, the people of the District voted, in 1879, to abandon their democratic form of government, surrender their right to vote and let Uncle Sam run the District for them.

Congress thus became the City Council of Washington, or, more accurately, the Legislature of the District of Columbia. "Washington" is just the name of a post office in one of the communities in the Federal District. It is not a chartered municipality, and has no distinctive city officials. Everything of an administrative nature is performed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, appointed by the President and confirmed by Congress.

Prize-Winning Horse Bought by Low-Income Farmers

The prize-winning Percheron stallion shown above is one of 81 pure-bred sires which cooperative groups of low-income farmers in Texas and Oklahoma have been enabled to buy through loans from the Resettlement Administration. The other photograph was taken at a cooperative thresher also bought with a Resettlement loan for use of a group of low-income farmers whose fields were so small that they had been unable to obtain adequate service. More than 2,300 Texas and Oklahoma families are using such cooperative services established this summer by means of loans from Resettlement. In addition, individual borrowers in these two states have used Resettlement loans to buy 16,932 milk cows, 17,288 horses, 29,111 mules and 137,812 head of poultry.

Notes From Office Of Hamilton Co. Home Dem. Agent

Has Good Fig Crop
According to a statement from Mrs. W. A. Moss, president of the Honey Grove Home Demonstration Club, her fig trees have been very profitable this year.

From her 20 trees she gathered on an average of 8 gallons every day for four weeks. She sold these figs at 25c per gallon, marketing the majority of them at Hico and with her neighbors. Mrs. Moss said that she thought that the abundant supply and good quality of the fruit was due to the watering of the trees. The family hauled water in barrels for the trees each day.

Large Poultry Farm in Hamilton County.

"I am receiving on an average of $60.00 per week from the sale of eggs," stated Mrs. C. W. Meyer, cooperator in the Pleasant Valley Home Demonstration Club. She added that her pullets had not begun to lay, and the sales were from her old flock.

On Mrs. Meyer's farm she has: 1150 Black Spanish Turkeys; 1000 white Leghorn hens; 876 white Leghorn pullets; 125 white Leghorn pedigree cockrels; 38 Barred Rock pullets for eating purposes. Mrs. Meyer cleared $1,500 on her turkeys last fall.

Yeast—Everlasting.

In the spring of 1914 Mrs. C. W. Meyer obtained from Mrs. E. V. Cox at Temple, Texas, a "starter" for yeast bread. From that time until today, a total of 22 years, Meyer has never lost that starter, but she is still making bread from it. She bakes all kinds of homemade breads such as: luncheon rolls, whole wheat bread, coffee cake, cinnamon rolls, and straight light bread from this yeast, at least once or twice each week.

Prepare For Achievement Day.

Mrs. Emmett Christian, food demonstrator for the Evant Home Demonstration Club, is about ready for the local achievement day to be held in her home October 14th. Mrs. Christian has canned 450 containers of food this year and had enough left from last year to make a total of 1045 these 1040 containers. Mrs. Christian has 1000 pounds of dried food, including fruit, peas, beans, onions, potatoes, and popcorn. Of the foods under the green, leafy and yellow vegetables she has nine varieties, four varieties of other vegetables, ten of fruit, three of grains, two of meats, thirteen of pickles and preserves and a total of 106 containers of tomatoes. There are seven members in this family and the budget was made and carefully filled to meet their daily needs.

Indian Gap Has Achievement Day.

The Home Demonstration Club of Indian Gap, has had their local achievement day. It was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Stegamoller on September 24th from 7 p. m. until 9 p. m. Club members, their families, and guest from adjoining communities and Hamilton attended this program. The chief attraction of the evening was the pantry that was on exhibit. Mrs. Stegamoller did not have a pantry when she was made demonstrator but her husband made her one. One side of the room is shelves that take care of the products in jars and cans. On one end of the room is a built in base cabinet that takes care of the products such as dried peas, beans etc. The pantry is well ventilated and lighted, as it has a window in one end and a door in the other that gives it cross currents of air. The pantry opens into Mrs. Stegamoller's kitchen, making it very convenient for selecting and transporting the food to the kitchen for meal preparation. Including both the dried and canned products Mrs. Stegamoller has 24 varieties of food in her pantry. There are 432 containers of canned products. In her report at this meeting Mrs. Stegamoller said, "I enjoyed Miss Neely's visit to the County and feel that she made me realize more than anyone ever has the importance of tomatoes in the diet, because of their high content in vitamin C, which is so necessary for the growth of our children and the good health of adults, and that this vegetable is the one in which this vitamin is least effected by heat." She went further to state that tomatoes rank next to milk in this vitamin. Mrs. Stegamoller gave her pantry a total value of $190.35.

SALLY JONES,
Home Demonstration Agent.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

E. E. Dawson, Pastor
Two important announcements for next Sunday are: Promotion Day exercises will occupy the Sunday school hour. An interesting program has been prepared and is highly desirable that all members of the Sunday school be on hand promptly at the beginning of the hour, 10:00 o'clock. Then the other announcement is that the Lord's Supper will be celebrated at the eleven o'clock hour and it is most earnestly hoped that all members of the church will be present.
At 7:30 in the evening the regular worship and preaching service will be held.
Everybody is invited.

MODERN WOMEN

The fourth woman to be pictured on a United States stamp, I am happy to say, is Susan B. Anthony, that pioneer in the suffrage movement. Her profile appears on the new stamp issued by the government in August to commemorate the sixteenth anniversary of the ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment to the Constitution granting the franchise to women. The other three so honored, not including allegorical characters, are Queen Isabella of Spain in 1893, Pocahontas in 1907 and Martha Washington in 1908. Miss Anthony, a native of Massachusetts, devoted the last years of her life to the suffrage cause and although she did not live to see the day of victory for "votes for women" the inspiration of her leadership was an incentive to her associates to carry on the fight until the day of victory in 1917.

A group of women in Geneva who are working for peace and disarmament are pictured as the visual symbol that women of the world do care for peace by Miss Mary A. Dingman, the new president of the peace and disarmament committee of the women's international organization at Geneva. Miss Dingman, who was for fourteen years with the World Council of the Y. W. C. A., speaking recently in this country, said that the peace and disarmament committee was one of the instruments for building up a solid groundwork for peace.

Bobby Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bates, who recently has been undergoing treatment for an injury to his leg, fell from a porch last Thursday and broke an arm. The youth was taken to Stephenville Hospital, where the break was set, and he is recovering nicely now at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dorsey.

PANICS AND POLITICS

It is human nature to place the blame for hard times and give the credit for good times to whatever political party happens to be in power when times are hard or times are good.

That happened after the Revolution. The final crash came when Washington was President. The economic curve from 1783 to 1791 was almost exactly like the curve from 1919 to 1929.

After the war of 1812 the same thing happened; the crash came in 1819. There was a similar sequence after the war with Mexico.

The brief prosperity of the North after the war between the states was followed by a short depression, a speculative wave and then a financial crisis in 1873 with a depression that lasted until 1879.

Everyone old enough to read, almost, remembers that in 1919 and early 1920 after the World War there was a great boom of prosperity.

Then a depression which lasted until 1922, then a great speculative wave which came to an end in 1929 and we are only just beginning to climb out of the seven year depression which followed that collapse.

It is difficult in the light of such historical records, to believe that politics or political parties are always to blame.

YOUTH IN UNIFORM. The French Chamber of Deputies is considering a bill to enforce compulsory physical training for all boys and girls over six years old as a beginning to prepare them for army service in the elementary schools.

In Italy every boy of 12 has to join the "ballilla" wear a uniform and be subjected to military discipline, and lately Mussolini has promulgated an order that boys of six shall be put into training and uniform against the time when they are old enough to undergo the more rigorous discipline of the ballilla.

In Germany the "Youth Movement" has become almost a brown-shirted militia. In Russia the age of military conscription has become lowered to 16 years. Every boy from 18 years onward must do compulsory military service in France and Germany.

Europe is preparing its cannon fodder for the next war. For lack of all of this military preparedness the scarcely concealed designs of the rulers of the dictator-ridden nations to take the first opportunity to seize the territory of their neighbors. France alone is arming for defense of the fatherland.

Under such conditions, how is it possible for war to be avoided?

MODERN WOMEN. The office of the Secretary of State for New York has a woman as First Deputy Secretary, Miss Grace A. Reavy who is ensconced in the Capital at Albany. Miss Reavy is proud of her post. The office of the Secretary of State is the oldest, dating back to the Provinces of the Netherlands, when the Secretary was also Clerk to the Crown. Many of the traditional duties of the Secretary have survived since the days of Queen Anne when the Secretary was Secretary to the Crown. The Secretary's department is the State government. The Secretary is appointed by the Governor.

Ellen Culver Potter, on whom Rutgers University, N. J., recently conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, first studied art, then medicine and later taught at the Women's Medical College in Philadelphia. She devoted fifteen years to the practice of medicine during which time she engaged in administrative and research work in Pennsylvania and was medical director in the Department of Institutions and Agencies in New Jersey.

The first American sculptor, Fallene Wright, born in Bordentown, N. J., in 1725, made a wax effigy of William Pitt which occupies a niche in Westminster Abbey. She made a wax bust of George Washington which is considered one of her most important works. Mrs. J. West Roosevelt of New York owns a copy of the Washington bust which has never been out of her family since it was made. The Pitt likeness was purchased a few months after Pitt's death in 1778.

The only woman chancellor in diplomatic circles is Miss Mary Conway, Chancellor of the Spanish Legation in Dublin, Ireland. Miss Conway has been in the United States visiting her brother, Mr. John Conway, who is Vice-Consul of the Irish Free State.

Gina Kaus, author of that interesting book "Catherine, the Portrait of an Empress," visited New York last spring and is planning to come again in the fall. She is so interested in women, this vivid young Viennese, that she once wrote, edited and published a newspaper for women dealing entirely with motherhood. Miss Kaus thinks it most important for women to fight to keep their rights and not to submit to being pushed back as the German women have. The only way to prevent future wars, Miss Kaus says, is for women to hold on to their rights.

Slenderizing Jacket Ensemble Pattern 8817: This jacket frock is the ideal style of ensemble for the woman that needs a bit of slenderizing assistance from her frock. The jacket hangs loosely and drapes effectively at the waist to indicate trimness there. Short shoulder tucks help to knit their breadth and at the same time give a well-fitting contour. The short-sleeved frock is in itself youthful looking with its shirt-waist details plus a raised waist line to give the illusion of longer more slender and lithesome lines. The skirt has the further slenderizing effect of a wide front panel. Kick pleats provide ample room for action. Material suggestions: Sheer jersey, small figured silk prints, or flat crepe.

A Modern Joshua by A. B. CHAPIN

Nancy Hart's HOME NEWS

Cotton undies have hit a new high—two new highs, in fact—one in color, one in style, and as fast as the younger set is concerned at least. Silk can retire. We certainly can't blame the girls or their older sisters, for that matter, for raving about batiste nighties in bright blue, red, brown, aqua and black that pretend to be as demure as anything, what with their little-girl collars, halter necklines or pleated bosom fronts. Like a man's dress shirt, even to the colored studs.

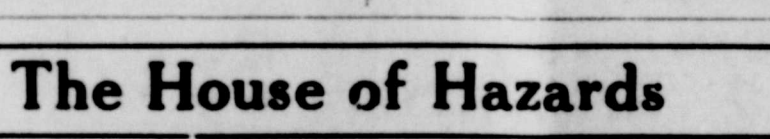

The modest front that they put up belies the neckiness of their startling decolette evening gown backs and very full dance frock skirts. Incidentally, it is the blacks that the young things are snatching up with greatest glee. For those who cling to femininity in their night attire there are printed dimity nightgowns trimmed with val type lace, also pajamas and robes. Another nightie we saw was of very fine imported batiste, tucked and trimmed with hand-finished lace insertion and boasts a very elegant swishy lace flounce. Very romantic with its low neck, puffed sleeves, full skirt and a pink sash that hangs down the front.

Frivolity aside, here is real news. The old-fashioned chemise is back—and with good reason, as anyone who has tried to appear nonchalant in some of the lighter-weight culottes has found out to her discomfort. Slips are definitely out of the question; panties quite inadequate. So we have a polka batiste chemise, its top cut like a brassiere. There are panties and nightgowns to match.

Handkerchief-linen lingerie is the Olympics the prize was (and still is) an olive wreath. Winners in the Pythian games received a wreath of laurel leaves. But the prize at both the Isthmian and Nemean games was a wreath of wild parsley!

Hoped To Dance

NEW YORK. Miss Sarah Churchill, 21 (above), daughter of Winston Churchill, former British Chancellor of the Exchequer, is in New York, but whether she will dance in a theatrical production depends upon what her brother says, who sailed a day later from England with "word" from the family.

The Lady Mayoress of Liverpool, Miss Margaret Hall, is only twenty-four years old, and is the youngest in her position on record. On ceremonial occasions she rides in an Elizabethan coach of state with gold braided footman up behind. She recently visited this country with her father, the Lord Mayor, who is a widower.

Wreaths: In going over historical references to the ancient Greek Olympic Games from which our modern contests are patterned, we learned that there were three other athletic festivals of secondary importance to the Olympian games. These were the Pythian games, the Isthmian games, and the Nemean games. The chief point of difference seems to lie in the nature of the prize awarded to the victors. In

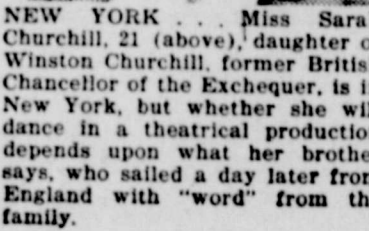

The Macedonian Call. Lesson for October 4th. Acts 16: 6-15; Golden Text: Mat. 28:19. After a short visit in Antioch Paul set out on his second missionary tour, taking Silas with him. Passing through Syria and Cilicia they came to Lystra where Paul found Timothy, an attractive youth whom he persuaded to accompany him. Upon reaching the harbor of Troas in the north western corner of Asia Minor, not far from the scene of the Trojan war, Paul had a dream in which he saw a man from the province of Macedonia, across the Aegean Sea, begging for help. It has been surmised that this Macedonian was none other than St. Luke, the beloved physician, who apparently joined Paul's party at Troas. However this may be, Paul at once answered the call, crossed the sea, and landed at the important city of Philippi, situated about ten miles inland. Its inhabitants enjoyed Roman citizenship, spoke Latin, and were under Roman law. Apparently Philippi had no synagogue. So Paul went down to the river bank and preached to the women who liked to gather there to bathe and pray. His first convert was a prosperous woman, Lydia by name, who hospitably entertained Paul and his companions in her home. It is significant that a woman should be the first person in Europe to be won to Christ. Christianity, we must remember, brought to women a more honorable standing and gave them a greater freedom. It would be hard to overestimate the services rendered by the Christian faith to the gentler sex. In the time of Jesus it was the custom to expose female babies to die at the hands of the pitiless elements. What a far cry it is from this barbarous habit to the deference, sympathy and consideration manifested everywhere toward women today! It is not too much to say that Christ has emancipated woman from the brutal thralldom of a pagan past.

Experience Teaches Dollar worth. One day the vice-president of a trust company was showing me around and explaining how carefully the company handles the funds entrusted to it. Being asked by him for a comment, I modestly put forth the following: "There would seem to be one defect in your set-up. You take young men from the rich dormitories of Princeton and Harvard and Yale, and you transport them straight into the paneled offices of Wall Street without ever a chance to find out what life is all about. A dollar or a hundred dollars or a hundred thousand dollars are just so many marks on a piece of white paper to them. "No boy ought to be allowed to come into your trust company until he has first worked a year on a farm as a section-hand on a railroad, or behind the counter of a country store. A dollar never again would be simply a mark on a piece of paper to him. It would mean struggle and sacrifice sweat."

The vice-president didn't pay any attention to the suggestion, of course, but I still think it was good. A great danger to this country comes from the lack of understanding between different sections and classes. I wish it were possible for every big city banker, lawyer and executive to change places at least one year in seven with a small-town storekeeper, or a day laborer. It would be fine if every big board of directors had one place which would be filled by a farmer—a different one every year.

The Family DOCTOR

WORK EARLY AND FAST WITH PNEUMONIA. With all the progress in the science of medicine, we are forced to admit that the mortality rate in the terrible disease, pneumonia, still continues high; a specific has not yet been discovered. So few commonsense observations are never out of place. The beginning of acute pneumonia is almost invariably with a pronounced chill. It is at this time that an heroic attempt should be made to abort the disease. The effectual battle must be waged early—for it does not take long to be too late. Call your physician early. Better be safe than sorry; a few visits by a capable doctor are many times cheaper than a funeral.

Meet the fever following the chill with medicines which produce profuse sweating, literally "soak" the victim in perspiration. This reduces congestion of the lung by bringing the blood to the surface. Administer a good laxative as well. I tell my patient to drink all the water he can hold; the juice of four lemons in the first eighteen hours, is a good accompaniment. A big mustard plaster over the chest, at this stage, has earned its distinction for usefulness; later it is too late. I am sure I have aborted many cases of pneumonia by the vigorous steps mentioned. Once the disease is established, your management and outlook are conjectural.

I care not what moralists may say. I have found the alcoholic stimulants of great value in the profound weakness of pneumonia, combined with nourishment, especially in aged cases. But the victory is more certain if we attack before the disease is established.

Interest in Home Economics.

At the present the most interesting subject discussed among the girls of Hico High School is Home Economics. Miss Wagstaff, the instructor, is putting forth much effort to make things interesting, and from what I hear—she is succeeding.

She has told us that we will make garments to wear as well as some embroidery and other dainty hand work on the side. Not as yet have we secured all the equipment for the laboratory, but we are doing everything in our power to raise some money for the things needed.

We wish to say that each day at the recesses and at lunch there will be girls at the grade school building and also at the high school building, ready to give you any kind of candy you wish. So please bring your pennies and nickels. Also later on we will occasionally sell sandwiches.

Speaking for the whole forty-eight girls, we wish to ask everyone for cooperation for we feel as if the money spent for candy is not wasted. It is just helping us to secure what we lack.

—Mavis Hardy.

Senior News.

The members of the Senior Class met and elected their class officers Monday. Hosea Warren was elected President, Dan Holliday Vice President, A. C. Hays Secretary, and Mavis Hardy Class Reporter. The class as a whole has not yet decided fully upon the year's outline of work, but the members feel sure that those mentioned above will do their part to help make this year's class one of the best that has ever finished at Hico Public School.

We wish to organize a Journalism Club and also a Spanish Club, because we are almost positive that Miss Johnson and Miss Halton would make it interesting and at the same time an advantage to us.

—Mavis Hardy.

Junior News.

The tenth grade was originally scheduled to entertain with an assembly program this week. But Mr. Lockhart was given the time to initiate his Green Hands, and put on a fine program. After the reading of the minutes and the other work was done, the Green Hands were led in with their left hands tied and their right hands on the right shoulder in front of them. After this, they were told the meaning of some of the symbols of F. F. A. and given a bronze pin. Then the boys were led out and the applause given by the audience showed how thoroughly the program was enjoyed. The ten Green Hands were: B. N. Marcum, A. C. Odell, Glen Marshall, Albert Brown, Melvel Hunter, Augusta Beckitt, Bill Hall, Cecil Ogle, Dewane Needham, and Oran Massingale.

The tenth grade is indeed well pleased with its home room, history and Spanish teacher, Miss Halton. She is amply qualified to fill the position for which she was selected, and is very popular with the students.

Monday morning before our classes began, we traded rooms with the eighth grade and got the room which is usually taken by the tenth grade—the big study hall. However we still have a few Freshmen because our former room would not hold the entire eighth grade class.

Sophomore News.

This year we have for our English and room teacher, Miss Johnson from Waco. She was chosen as our Pep Squad Sponsor. All of the students like Miss Johnson's teaching and her pleasing personality. We all sincerely hope that she is pleased with the Hico High School.

The Sophomore Class met Tuesday of this week and elected its class officers. They are: President, Robert Anderson; Vice-President, Winifred Houston; Secretary, Ouida Pickett; Reporter, Helon Gamble.

Tuesday afternoon the Hico Antelopes won a victory of forty to nothing (40-0) over Morgan. This was our first game and we hope that it won't be our last one with such an overwhelming score for us, of course.

9th Grade Home Room. Our Class list at present includes: Eunice Sultis, Winifred Houston, Leona Jones, Grady Brown, Robert Anderson, Dorothy Cunningham, Addie Lee Connally, Nellie V. Mullins, Gladys Hicks, Helon Gamble, Mamye L. Wright, Daisy French, Ruby Stone, Francis Stanford, Margaret Reithan, Bettie Louise Wright, L. Z. Fulford, Ouida Pickett, Nadine Seay, Ralph Horton, Clifford Herrington, Travis Nix, Anna Bell Hodnett, Juanita Jones, Rachel Marcum.

Stime. As school opens each year a new flock of freshmen are initiated. This year is just our luck. A few of the most distinguished citizens of the Freshman Class threw their dignity out the window and appeared in most outlandish dress. (Thanks to the upper classmen.)

They have recently found their dignity and (believe it or not) elected officers. The following were elected: President, Roberta McMillan; Secretary and Reporter, Mary Ella McCullough.

The joke is on Billy now. When asked where he was at a certain time he replied, "Well! I wasn't at a dry goods store." We wonder.

Sport News.

Hico was rocked by a very successful pep meeting held on the school campus Thursday night. It was also Freshman night and there was lots of fun. There were quite a few outsiders present, but we hope there will be many more next time. Everyone is invited. The pep meeting was due to the fact that the ball team was to play Morgan the next day. The team went to Morgan but the game was rained out.

The team went back to Morgan Tuesday determined to make up for lost time. With the starting line up with A. C. Hays at center, W. H. Brown and Jack Hollis at ends, Jack Smith and Hosea Warren at guards, Bill Hall and Johnnie Elkins at tackles and Tom H. Wolfe, Dan Holliday, Walton Gandy, and A. D. Land at backfield. A touchdown was made before Morgan got the ball.

Dan Holliday acted as quarter back and did some very hard driving. Dan scored 19 points. A. D. (Heary) Land found it very easy to push through their line for 7 points. Tom Wolfe made several good runs and did some fair sidestepping. He also scored an extra point.

Jack Smith who was backing up the line on defense intercepted two passes and ran for a touch down both times. Another time he caught a punt and came close to the goal.

Cecil Ogle (Strawberry Roan) made an extra point. This is Cecil's first year out for football and he's a very promising player. The final score was 49 to 0 in our favor.

Coach Rogstad stated that the team that started and all the substitutes that played looked very good. He also said that he believed he could replace any first string position with a substitute without weakening the team.

The home team was not at any time during the game in danger of Morgan scoring, therefore no punting was necessary. We used only one formation of plays and tried only two passes.

Friday may be an open date due to the fact that Walnut Springs changed dates on us.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Sept. 15.—Regardless of who is elected President on Nov. 3, and whether the House of Representatives in the new Congress has a Republican or a Democratic majority, some highly important decisions will have to be made by the new Administration and Congress at the very beginning of things.

Several of the most widely-discussed laws enacted by the 73rd and 74th Congresses will expire by limitation early in 1937. The new 75th Congress will take effect at noon on January 3. President Roosevelt's term, whether he is re-elected or not, will not expire until noon on January 20th. There will be a period of 17 days in which, even if Mr. Landon should be elected President, with a Republican House of Representatives, Congress will be in session but Mr. Roosevelt will still be President.

Congress Must Act. Either in that period or in the ten days following the inauguration, the Congress will have to decide whether or not it will withdraw the authority which the 73rd Congress granted to the President in May, 1932, to devalue the dollar; for that authority expires by limitation on January 30th next. Under this authority, the President, by proclamation, reduces the gold content of the dollar by a shade over 40 percent; under the law he could have reduced it as much as one-half.

Since early 1933, therefore, all of the Federal Government's financial operations and, naturally, all banking and business transactions and calculations, have been in terms of a lower value dollar.

Whatever Congress might do, either in extending or withdrawing the authority of the President to lower the gold value of the dollar still further, or to increase it, would in itself have little effect. The dollars themselves issued under Presidential proclamation would still be dollars, and obligations incurred in terms of such dollars would call for payment in whatever values might be called dollars.

There is a likelihood if the Republicans should be victorious in November, that the new Congress would vote promptly to withdraw this and other powers which its predecessors granted to the Executive, as a matter of party principle, without necessarily in any way nullifying any of the acts which the President has performed under them.

Silver and Paper Money In the same Act which authorized the devaluation of the gold dollar—the Thomas Amendment Act—the President was also authorized to resume the free and unlimited coinage of silver dollars and to fix the relative value of such silver coinage and the gold dollar in his sole discretion. The President was also authorized to issue up to three thousand million dollars of paper money based on government credit without any metallic reserve behind it. He has not exercised that power of currency inflation, and has not done nearly as much to rehabilitate silver as the ardent silverites wished.

These monetary matters are, in many aspects, highly controversial stuff, and the new Congress might easily get into a jam over the question of whether it should proceed to fix the value of the coinage, or continue to leave it to the President, or do nothing about it—in which case the present Presidential authority over these things would expire by time limitation, and Congress could leave the money situation "as is" for later consideration and turn to other matters.

Tax Revision Due There are several excise taxes now on the statute books, yielding about $30,000,000 a year in revenue, which run only to June 30, 1937. What will the new Congress do about renewing them or replacing them with some other kind of taxes to produce new revenue?

Any consideration of the tax question might open the door to a general overhauling of the whole system of Federal taxation. And here lies an opportunity for leadership to the one willing and able to seize it, in the necessity for planning and putting into effect a logical system of Federal taxation.

Another important law which will expire by limitation early in the next Administration is the Trade Agreements Act, giving authority to the President to enter into reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations and to raise or lower tariff duties by as much as 50 percent. This power automatically ends on June 12, 1937.

Whether the alternative will be to throw the whole tariff question open for long-drawn-out debates and logrolling in Congress remains to be seen.

Busy Session Promised The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, established under the Hoover administration, has a lease of life only until February 1. No of the first things the new Congress must do will be to decide whether to keep it alive or to kill it.

New funds must be voted before March 31 if the Civilian Conservation Corps is to continue. By May 1 the new Congress will have to decide what it wants to do about the Neutrality law which expires on that date. The "Hot Oil" law comes to an end in June, and so do several other of the emergency laws of the past three years.

Whichever party elects its Presidential candidate and puts a majority into the House of Representatives, the Senate of the 75th Congress will have a Democratic majority for the next two years, at any rate. But regardless of which party is in control, the boys on Capitol Hill are going to have plenty to do from the day they start, January 3, 1937.

A recent art exhibition held in New York and which accepted entries only from persons past 70 brought out Miss Catherine Croxall, 95, who exhibited a set of powder 350 years old. Some of the guests at the opening exhibit wore costumes of 1865. Miss Croxall once was nurse for Mrs. Franklin

Murals Portray Texas Life

Expressive of the four sections of Texas, their bountiful natural resources and historical background are the elaborate murals which adorn the walls of the $1,200,000 Hall of State, the dominating building of the Texas Centennial Exposition at Dallas. At the top a section of one of the giant murals found in the great hall portrays two of Texas' foremost natural resources, oil and cotton. On the extreme left may be seen the prow of a sea-going freighter, representing the vast shipping industry of East Texas and the lower Gulf Coast. In the center mural, which hangs in the North Texas room, Old Man Texas is the predominant figure. The lower is unmistakably typical of the arid West. The paintings adorning the walls of the Texas Building's great hall are reputed to be the largest in the world. They portray the story of Texas, both in the days of the republic and after statehood.

Odd Texas Described In Unique 128-Page New Cartoon Book

(By Cecil Baugh)

Texas rightfully belongs to Spain, was once larger than the United States, has had at least 19 flags, and at one time duped the American Government to the extent of $10,000,000.00 by selling it a big tract of land over which Texas had never maintained any control.

These and a thousand more queer facts about Texas are included, and explained, in a unique new 128-page cartoon book, ODD TEXAS, written and compiled by Jack Harper and John Newbern of Dallas.

"All the queer and amazing facts about wild and woolly Texas—screams of the red, white, and blue jacket of this cloth-bound volume. Wild and woolly, queer and amazing it is."

According to Harper and Newbern, who boast in their preface that canards are loathsome to them, you'll find in Texas horses with hoofs as big around as dinner plates, islands on top of a mountain, a river in which cattle stand up to their necks and bawl for water, houses of cactus plants, rattlesnake steaks, streaks of lightning made of sand, five pound hailstones.

If you had been there when it happened, you could have seen 1,000 horses shot down in cold blood by U. S. soldiers, turkeys roasted with the feathers on, roads full of stumps a foot high, trains on wooden rails, human ears as gifts, quinine served like salt and pepper, or you could have gotten a wagon load of choice steaks—free!

The Texas Indians come in for full attention in this Texas hodgepodge of fancy illustrations. They had some peculiar habits, such as killing girl babies, traveling a hundred miles or more to get the right kind of cactus for eating purposes, selling Indian beauties for a bow and two arrows and cutting off the noses of unfaithful wives. America's only cannibal Indians lived in Texas.

Sugar-coated Texas history is the forte of Odd Texas. Something unusual has been squeezed from every important event in Texas history, engagingly illustrated and tantalizingly worded.

For instance: The battle of San Jacinto lasted just 18 minutes and the only artillery used by the Texans were two cannons donated by the citizens of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The first official act of the Texas Rangers after their organization was the capturing of a Mexican boat anchored on the Texas coast. The defenders of the Alamo fought under a Mexican flag and James Bowie fought the battle from his bed!

At Goliad Fannin requested (before he was shot) that his watch be sent to his wife, that he be given a Christian burial. A Mexican lieutenant stole his watch, he was shot in the head, and his body was left where it fell.

The capital of Texas has been located in thirteen different places, two of them in Mexico and one in Louisiana.

To impress you with size of the State and its resources, you're told by ODD TEXAS that 14 other states could be put inside of Texas with room to spare, that the State is larger than the entire Japanese empire.

Texas produces 97 per cent of the nation's sulphur, 99 per cent of America's polo ponies, nearly one third of the cotton and oil of the United States, and practically all of the helium in the world.

There are literally hundreds of such items as the cow that gave birth to a heifer calf each February 4, for three consecutive years (this ain't no bull, either), the cowboy who beheaded himself with his own lariat trying to rope a steer, and the bird that is half duck and half buzzard.

For further information, you'll have to see the book. We warn you, ODD TEXAS is a volume you can't put down, once you pick it up, so, after you start looking you'll have to shell out your dollar and take it home with you.

ORANGE CRULLERS: Beat 2 eggs without separating. Add 1-2 c granulated sugar and 1-4 c whole milk, 2 c flour, 1-2 t salt, 1 t cream of tartar, 1-2 t soda. Add grated rind of one orange and mix to a dough. Roll small amount at a time to thin sheet. Cut into rounds. Put 1-4 t marmalade on each piece and cover with another round. Press edges together and fry in deep fat.

ALMOND COOKIES: 1 c butter, 6 T powered sugar, 1-2 lb. almonds, 1 t vanilla, 1 t baking powder, 1-2 c flour. Mix in the order given and with fingers roll into size and shape like a large peanut. Bake 10 minutes in a moderate oven. When slightly cool dust with powdered sugar. If the dough sticks to the fingers when the cookies are being shaped, a little more flour should be added.

TWO HICO GIRLS AMONG OCCUPANTS OF THE NEW DORMITORY AT TARLETON

Stephenville, Sept. 22.—Among the first group of students ever to live in the two dormitories just completed on the College campus are, Martha Masterson of Hico and Dixie Potter of Iredell, who entered Tarleton for the fall session.

Several hundred yards apart stand the two buildings, the Tarleton dining hall and the armory in between. Lotta Moody Hall for girls is of brick, and the four-story boys' dormitory is of brick. White window facings and white door pediments of the two resemble. In fact, the exterior architecture is much the same. Yet a stranger going through the two halls would have no difficulty in deciding which was built for boys, which for girls.

In the boys' dormitory, convenience, simplicity and attractive composition material are emphasized. The building is divided into four ramps with no interconnections. Each ramp has two outside entrances, consists of four rooms on each of the four floors. On entering one steps into a hall dividing the two sets of connecting rooms and serving as the building's only reception room for boys' mothers who come visiting. Walls there are of sunny glazed tile; floors, as also in the rooms, are of durable, easy-to-clean, attractive composition material.

In each room there is a lavatory with a mirrored medicine chest just above. The acne in convenience is exemplified by the tiny slots built into the walls for disposal of used razor blades, by the automatic faucets. Walls are plastered; ceilings built of concrete slabs. In each room are two wall plugs, so that studious cadets won't have to quarrel over a single table lamp. There is a large closet with two long shelves, two clothes rods.

The girls' dormitory is something else again, with convenience and quality given major attention, but an entirely different system of decoration used. The two buildings are, on a large scale, the answer to the problems Mothers and Dads face when they wonder how to arrange rooms so they will meet the varying tastes and needs of sons and daughters, yet look nice and keep their appearance.

Lotta Moody annex has two floors, each with a long hall running the length of the building. On each side are walnut-colored Colonial type doors leading to spacious rooms. Each room has two closets with plenty of shelf space and a long rod for coed clothes. Every room has a lavatory, wide windows, plenty of plugs for study lamps, dressing table lamps, et al. Radiators are concealed.

The color scheme was chosen to please fifty-six girls (the number who will live in the hall) and to blend with the different colors will introduce with spreads, window curtains, pictures, and gowns. Walls are plastered and painted seafoam green; window shades are peach color; woodwork is silver grey; and furniture and doors are walnut.

All reservations for the new dormitories were taken for months before Tarleton opened. Dean J. Thomas Davis says, however, that the school still has accommodations for late-registering students.

Denton, Texas, Sept. 22.—A great variety of simple desserts can be made by the housewife with little expenditure of either time or energy. Some can be prepared in advance. Others may be partly fixed with the basic materials, and later you can do wonders with them by adding sauces or fruit fillings.

CHERRY AND PECAN TORTE: Prepare cup cakes, using whole egg cake batter. Cut off the tops carefully so that the centers may be replaced. Hollow out centers somewhat and fill with a mixture of chopped pecans and maraschino cherries; or raisins may be substituted for cherries. Replace tops and decorate with whipped cream.

FRIED APPLE SLICES: Wash and core apples. Do not peel. Cut across apple for 1/2 inch slices. Put fat in iron skillet. Cover bottom generously. Fry slices, turning once when brown to fry on both sides. Sprinkle with sugar and serve on platter.

INDIVIDUAL COFFEE CAKES: Mix and sift 2 c flour, 1-2 t salt, 4 T sugar and 3 t baking powder. Work in 1-4 c butter. Beat an egg and mix with 1-2 c milk. Add egg-milk mixture to dry ingredients. Turn on a slightly floured board and knead lightly. Divide dough into 6 long, narrow pieces. With the hands roll each piece on the board until 8 to 10 inches long. Pat out thin and spread with butter. Cut each piece in two and twist the two pieces together, bring ends around to form crescents. Put into greased pan. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Bake in hot oven at 450 degrees F for 15 minutes. While hot, brush over with thin icing made with 1-2 c confectioner's sugar moistened with 1 T lemon juice.
