

Here In HICO

From Carlsbad, New Mexico, where the lumbering, golfing, knitting, trumpeting McCulloughs made their first pause on a vacation trip to "Pike's Peak or Bust," comes a card dated June 18, which reads as follows:

"Slept under two blankets—but air-conditioned cabins come a little high."

A resolution passed by a church organization in a West Texas town four or five counties removed from this moral vineyard, among other things, requests newspapers hereafter not to carry any advertisements, "out of respect to a majority of voters of this county."

When we read the resolution we wondered if the admirable intentions of the committee extended to the matter of supplying other advertising in lieu of beer advertising which it found objectionable. Also we wondered if they paid for the printing of the resolution in the paper, deciding in their own mind that they probably didn't.

Do you reckon they consider or care about the revenue end of a newspaper? If they run true to form, they probably find occasion, from time to time, to promote or sponsor booklets, directories, pamphlets, bulletins, or some sort of advertising schemes themselves, and we wonder if they inquire into the morals and ethics of the business men from whom they solicit advertising patronage before accepting their money?

Consistency, thou art a jewel. Now in the collection of flotsam and jetsam in the Hamilton County News is a "part of a Masonic pin or watch charm" which was found by one of the dozen or so column contributors of that paper recently.

John Sullivan, self-acknowledged authority on graveyard jokes and daddy of the P&J corner, describes the Royal Arch emblem in detail, calling attention to the lettering, HTWSSTKS, and promising return to the owner in case it is not lost, before being claimed, from Sullivan's bill-fold which is "leaking a little at an corner."

Maybe that's an omen. You know, Sullivan, we aren't supposed to tell, but that mysterious lettering when deciphered means, "High Tempered Writers Should Strive To Keep Silent."

J. B. POOL Seeks County Office

Sets Fourth Policies Advocated For Office of County Judge; Asks Consideration

TO THE VOTERS OF HAMILTON COUNTY: I want to be your County Judge. I think I am asking for the most important office in your gift. How much tax money you must pay and whether it be spent wisely or thrown away foolishly lies with the Commissioners' Court and the Judge ought to be the leading influence for the whole County in this court.

Hamilton County owes me nothing. If I cannot show that I have policies that are worthwhile, I have no right to expect election. I stand for the following things and, if elected, will try to put them in operation:

1. In trial court matters, impartial and absolute enforcement of law. No violator turned loose because it is an expense to keep him in jail. To offset this, I favor for those convicted and given a jail sentence or those fined who choose to "pay it out in jail" at the taxpayers' expense, to work out a system of work that offsets the cost of their keep.

2. Annually a complete audit of all county affairs.

3. Push everything that benefits either highways or neighborhood roads. Get an equal break with neighboring counties in State Highway work and so long as the Federal policies of road project work continues aggressively to go after everything that may be secured for the county.

4. Its soil is the capital stock of Hamilton County. To conserve and build it up deserves our first attention and best work. I pledge my fullest cooperation with the County Farm Agent and with the Home Demonstration Agent and all vocational teachers and all State or Federal efforts to save and build up our soils.

In the matter of terracing, experience has taught me that unless terraces are correctly surveyed and properly made, terraces had better not be built at all. And experience has further taught me that terraces cannot properly be made without the use of heavy machinery too expensive for the ordinary farm to own. I therefore favor that the county buy one complete terracing machine and operate it at actual cost plus depreciation in building farm terraces. In addition I favor furnishing in each commissioner's precinct a terracing grader that can be either horse or farm tractor drawn to rent at a reasonable charge to farmers who want to do their own work.

All of this combines in a long-time, hard-working program to develop all the resources of farms and pastures and to grow up a generation of boys and girls into a high-grade, prosperous citizenship. I want to see more 4-H Club and F. P. A. work. By 1949 I want to see and will work to have 100 boys feeding baby beaves, 100 girls feeding pigs and lambs, 100 girls with garden and poultry projects, 100 gardens irrigated from earth tanks, 1000 additional farms making better yields because of terracing and built-up soil.

How all this can be done with no final additional cost to the taxpayer will be discussed as the campaign progresses.

I want to discuss it with you in some public talks. Please watch the papers for speaking in your community.

DELEGATES To Farmers' Short Course Should See Co. Agt. by July 1st

A large attendance is anticipated at the Farmers' Annual Short Course to be held July 13-15 at A. & M. College and in view of this fact County Agent T. D. Craddock urges all Hamilton County farmers who plan to attend to let him know by the first of July in order that reservations may be made.

Farmers and ranchmen who attended the demonstration will be offered a real agricultural program. Farmers, ranchmen, county judges, and county commissioners will headline the three-day session with talks about their experiences in agriculture. Hon. Harry Brown, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, will be speaker at the formal opening of the Short Course Wednesday morning.

SURVEY Promised Committee

Road Delegation Gets Encouragement On Chalk Mountain Road At Austin Hearing

A survey on the proposed change on State Highway 220 from Hico to Chalk Mountain was granted a Hico delegation, supplemented by interested business men of Glen Rose, Fort Worth, and Hamilton when that group appeared before the State Highway Commission in Austin Monday in the interests of road construction in this section.

The delegation pressed their requests with arguments that the road was necessary to facilitate more rapid movement of trade and to eliminate hazards with a view toward eliminating accidents.

As a result of the grant, Mr. Brown of Hamilton, highway engineer working under Division Engineer D. M. Puckett of Waco, arrived Wednesday morning and, with Mayor Lawrence N. Lane, made a tour of the county with a view toward accelerating progress on the proposed change.

The following composed the delegation appearing in Austin Monday: C. G. Cotten, chairman of the Highway Dept. of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce; W. S. Whaley, vice-chairman of the Highway Dept. of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce; L. C. Eastland, member of the highway committee of the same organization; C. A. Bridges, Glen Rose; George Hamlet, county commissioner of Erath County; H. William Allen, Hamilton; and S. E. Blair, Ray D. Brown, H. D. Gilmore, W. M. Marcum, Lawrence N. Lane, Frank Pallas, H. V. Hedges, and Sam Clark, all of Hico.

GULF SOUND TRUCK To Be Sent Here For Reunion To Aid In Entertainment

Advice received this week by C. G. Cotten, consignee, from the Houston office of the Gulf Reunion Company, was to the effect that a sound truck requested previously will be on hand for two days of the Reunion.

In a letter from Houston, the dates of August 10 and 11, the first two days, were suggested. The letter continued: "You may advise the committee in charge that you have been successful in securing the sound truck with the services of the technician who also is a trained announcer and master of ceremonies, will be placed at their disposal."

S. J. Cheek, manager of this year's Reunion, is enthusiastic over the assurance that the Gulf truck will be here this year. Previous requests had been made too late in the year to be granted, but Mr. Cheek started early this time with successful results. As is known by those who visited the Centennial and Frontier Fests in Dallas and Fort Worth two years ago, Gulf provides a class of entertainment at celebrations that is worth hundreds of dollars if it had to be paid for by the sponsors.

"Our Charley"

CHARLEY LOCKHART, State Treasurer

TREASURER Seeks Office Again

Self-Styled Home Town Boy, Now In State Office, Visited Hico Saturday Afternoon

Charley Lockhart, one of the "home town boys who made good," was a visitor for a short time Saturday afternoon in Hico. Little Charley, only 45 inches tall, is the present State Treasurer and is running for re-election. He has made a fine record since he moved to Austin in 1919, and old timers of Hamilton and Erath counties remember when he rode in from two miles in the country to attend high school in Hico.

In more of a spirit of joking than anything else, Charley said, "My schooling consisted of about six months in the Hico public schools. When my uncle moved away and left me without a place to room and board, I had to find a fitting occupation that would go to school."

Lockhart is running the race of State Treasurer on his past record in office. During the time that he has served, his office has handled more than two hundred million dollars annually during one of the most serious depressions in the history of the nation without a loss of one penny to the State.

Diminutive Charley grinned as he recounted his record and said, "As you can guess, I'm just a little jagged of that record."

His home territory has always given Lockhart a very fine reception at the polls when he is running for public office and he expressed his appreciation for this while he was here Saturday.

Lockhart was on his way back to Austin after attending the opening of the Second Annual Hico Festival at Mineral Wells where he was one of the honored guests. He said that one of the most interesting sights of the festival was the Gainesville Community Circus which he saw for the first time.

Before leaving, Charley said, "I'm getting around as much of the State as I can this year and stirring up their pure minds by way of remembrance. You tell all the boys and girls that if it is at all possible, I'll be back up for the big Reunion in August."

He thanked the voters for their kindness in placing him in charge of the financial affairs of the State and pledged the same courteous, efficient service that he has rendered in the past when he is re-elected. He said, "During the time that I have been in public office, I have never lost sight of the fact that a public office is a public trust."

SENATOR NELSON Coming to Hico Wednesday In the Interest of His Campaign

Carrying on what old-timers concede is one of the most active campaigns ever launched for the Lieutenant Governor's office, Senator G. H. Nelson, of Lubbock County, will be in Hico Wednesday, June 29, to discuss with voters here the vital issues in his race for the state's highest legislative position.

Nelson's Hico visit is one of six scheduled in towns of this section. Before coming to Hico, he will stop in Comanche, Dublin and Stephenville. He goes to Clifton and Meridian after his stay here.

BAND Now Under Full Sway

Director Webb Jenkins Reports New Students Coming In, With Lots of Interest

According to Webb D. Jenkins, director, the summer band school recently organized, is now under full sway and with new students coming in daily, is rapidly gaining in popularity. Continuation of the school throughout the summer is now assured.

All beginners who intend to become members of the band next year should take advantage of this opportunity and get started on some instrument as much more personal supervision can be given them during the summer, says Mr. Jenkins.

The group meets each morning at 9 o'clock for practice in theory and technique. The rehearsal assembly rehearsal is held, followed by private instruction and section rehearsals.

Much interest in the band has been shown by the parents and business men, and an effort is being made to build for Hico a school band that can take its place along with the other school bands of this section in the contests held each year. All parents and others interested in the band's progress are welcome at any of the band meetings and reports have been issued to the effect that a Band Parents' Club will be organized in the near future.

FIELD LIGHTING FUND Added To This Week, With Many Prospects Not Yet Seen

With the athletic field lighting movement, sponsored by the American Legion at Hico, scarcely a week old, rapid progress is reported by W. M. Marcum, post commander.

Besides those names listed last week as having bought the debentures, with which the expenses will be paid, the following since have bought: L. J. Chaney, $20; S. J. Cheek, Sr., $10; O. E. Meador, $20; J. H. Ellington, $20; and Frank Pallas, $10.

CLAUD JONES Out For County Judge

Hamilton Young Man States Views And Claims For Consideration Of Voters At Polls

In announcing my candidacy for the office of County Judge of Hamilton County, I wish to give the people who are not personally acquainted with me some facts in regard to my twenty-seven years, all of which have been lived in Hamilton County.

I was born and reared in the Lanham community. My parents are Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Jones. After graduating from Hamilton High School in 1927, I attended John Tarleton Agricultural College for two years. I was married in 1934, and lived the succeeding two years on a farm at Lanham. Since 1936 I have been, and am now, dealer for Allis-Chalmers farm machinery in the Hamilton territory, with my residence at Hamilton.

This is my first time to ask the voters of the county the favor of an elective office. In doing so, I realize there are those who will look upon me as being too young for this office, since for many years it has been filled by men of elderly age.

It is being proved every day in all lines of business and industry that young men are doing their job faster, more thoroughly, and reaching better results than many of their seniors. There are many examples now in the State of Texas where men my age, and younger, are serving their counties as County Judges and establishing themselves enviable records.

I believe that the majority of the voters of Hamilton County are looking for this type of young man to fill this office. They want someone who will stand up and demand that this county receive that to which we are justly entitled.

We all appreciate the fact that this county is in good financial standing, and that this standing has been guarded zealously. It is my aim to continue along these lines already established. I am in favor of good roads and projects that will help this county. I am also in favor of speeding up the work on these items, and I believe it can be done.

I am in favor of using county road machinery to build terraces and ditches for the farmers of this county at the actual cost of operation and depreciation, instead of the amounts that are demanded at the present time. We all know that our farm lands are the backbone of our county, and I do not intend to sit by and see these lands washed away, if the owners want the work done.

Since I am late in entering this race, I know there will be many whom I will not get to see personally. I am going to see everyone possible between now and the first primary, and will be glad to discuss any issues on which you might be interested.

I will state here that in entering this race, I am doing so in all seriousness; that I did not enter this race as a joke, or to cause a split-up among the voters; that no person or concern was directly responsible for my reaching the decision to enter this race, other than my friends who know that I will serve them well in the office for which I am asking.

Keeping Up With TEXAS

"Grandma" Sarah Gillis, 112 oldest Harris County resident, was reported recovering in a hospital Monday from a heart attack. She has lived in the county home for the aged at Houston for several years.

A mule on Kenneth Parrish's farm near Mexia hitch-hiked a ride on a hay stack that cost his life. Farm hands recently threshed 4900 bushels of wheat and left the straw stacked in the field. When flooded Mustang Creek roared out of banks, the mule sought safety on the haystack. Flood waters carried the stack some 7000 feet, lodged the mule in a barbed wire fence. Parrish had to shoot the injured animal.

The Mason volunteer fire department was at a disadvantage Saturday when flames roared out of the C. A. Kensing Garage. Both the department's trucks were inside, and were destroyed, along with five cars, machine company equipment, and the concrete building. The loss was estimated at $15,000. A fire truck was temporarily from San Angelo.

A Fort Worth Press columnist reports that the day before Harmon Hodges of the National Supply Co. of that city was to marry Miss Ruth Grammer, Harmon's co-workers locked him in a cage and hauled him down Main St. The following placard was attached to the cage: "Could a Girl Be Happy With This?"

A North Side groceryman today was hailed as the "most ideal." While picking, carrying "unfair" signs paced the sidewalk fronting his store in Fort Worth, the owner provided them with cold soda pop. "And," he told them, "if you fellows get hungry, just drop in—there'll be sandwiches for you."

While the psalms and prayers of a church service went on in a downstairs room, police raided an upper story of the Austin Labor Temple Sunday morning and arrested ten men, who are to be charged with gambling. The men were released on bond. They were laborers.

In true Western style — horses, wire-cutting and all — two Austin negroes started to make their June-teenth picnic a gala affair with a little barbecue, but they ran into a cattle rustling charge. The two negroes, according to officers, led a plump 2-year-old steer into the reeds of the Colorado River bottom Saturday midnight and killed it. Officers arrived just as the Negroes had cut the head from the steer. The Negroes jumped on their horses and escaped. Later the deputy sheriff's captured one of them.

City Judge George W. Burkitt of Palestine isn't hard-balled, but he admitted he fined himself $1 for violating a city traffic ordinance. Arriving for the morning court session, the judge parked his automobile on a street opposite the police station, where a one-hour rule is in effect. At noon he found the car still there, even though he had told the police chief to remind him to move it. He pleaded guilty and paid his fine.

H. L. Hickman, 33, of San Antonio, was critically injured Friday night when a fire blew out on the heavy coupe he was driving from Brownwood to Fort Worth. The car overturned several times, three miles east of Stephenville on Highway 10. Alone in the car at the time of the accident, Hickman was later taken to Stephenville Hospital where he was resting well at last reports.

A patient who collapsed in an American physician, has sat goodby to more than $100,000 in uncollected accounts. He burned eight ledgers in the incinerator, saying that he doesn't expect to live long and that he never could collect anything anyhow. The ledgers contained accounts from as far back as 43 years, when he first began the practice of medicine in McLennan County. He hopes that his office after reports of uncollected accounts, but that all debts have been cleared. "But I burned the books," he declared, "to keep myself from worrying. The folks who owe me never have."

MAIL BOXES

Torn Down Recently; Perpetrators Subject to Severe Penalty

Complaints have been received recently of several mail boxes in this community having been torn down, damaged and tampered with. While this was done at night, in most instances, after the mail had been removed, parties responsible for this vandalism should remember that they are thereby subjecting themselves to severe penalties under postal laws.

Several days ago boxes belonging to J. P. Clepper and to W. C. Cassidy on Route 2 were torn down maliciously. Even though nothing is taken from the box, the law is strict in regard to such mischief.

BASEBALL

Players Will Meet Evant Here Sunday At 8 O'clock

Lefty Miller, who pitched the winning game against Priddy two weeks ago, will pitch again next Sunday when the Hico baseball team plays Evant at the Athletic Field here.

The game has been called for 3 o'clock, and everyone is urged to turn out and support the home team.

Tarleton Honor Student

Stephenville. — Elizabeth Derrick of Hico was named an honor student at John Tarleton College this week in a report released from Registrar Charles S. Wilkins' office after reports of second preliminary grades were in.

Elizabeth was on the semester honor roll. Honor roll students were required to make 30 grade points. She is a junior at Tarleton.

FILLING STATION

At Jones Motor Co. Leased by J. A. Currier Last Week

J. A. Currier, who has made his home a few miles from Hico and is well known to a great many people here, has leased the filling station at Jones Motor Company, and will operate it in the future, according to announcement last week by J. D. Jones, owner.

Mr. Currier put on a Saturday special at his new location last week and stated afterward that he was being favored with a nice business, although he is anxious to meet more car owners at his place on Highways 46 and 67.

PICNIC

At Glen Rose For Central Division Employees of Power Company

Local employees of the Central Division of the Community Public Service Company were among the hundred guests who attended the annual meeting in Glen Rose Saturday.

A business session was held in the afternoon at the Baptist Church, after which the employees were free to spend the day as they pleased. A barbecue chicken dinner was served at Oakdale Park.

JAIL BONDS

Approved This Week By Attorney General Wm. McCraw

AUSTIN, June 22—Attorney General William McCraw today approved a $35,000 jail refunding bond issue for Hamilton County for the cancelling of warrants issued by the county for the construction of the jail.

The issue, consisting of 35 bonds of $1000 each and bearing 4 per cent interest, were ordered by the Commissioners' Court of Hamilton County March 1, 1938, and is dated May 1, 1938. The bonds mature in groups of $1000 to $3000 May 1, 1955.

JENNIE MAE

Charlie Lockhart, 45-inch State Treasurer, who spent his younger days in and around Hico, stopped for a short visit with friends here Saturday. Mr. Lockhart, who always makes it a point to be back in Hico for the Reunion, will be unusually busy this summer campaigning for the race, in which he is opposed by two other aspirants for the state office to which he is seeking reelection. With Mr. Lockhart was one Horace Secret, ex-journalism student at the University of Texas. Secret, who is city editor of The Austin Dispatch, was an old school mate of The Flying Jenny's. When they suffered together in a course on "Newspaper Management," Jenny had never seen type like, Italic space bands, chase-stretchers, nor a number of things one becomes accustomed to during apprenticeship on a newspaper.

Mrs. Jim Adkinson of Iredell is still wondering where her last week's Hico paper went. Two trips to the mailbox failed to produce anything fruitful Saturday, and its sudden appearance has been the cause of much bewilderment to Mrs. A. Maybe a neighbor borrowed your paper for a short reading session, Mrs. Adkinson.

Weldon Burney, who roused this would-be poet from her slumber at 7 A. M. one morning and requested her to get him some candidate cards off on the 8 o'clock bus, was brave enough to enter the office Saturday and meet her face to face. Mr. Burney, who is one of two identical twins, the other being named Woody, is making the race for Representative from this district.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Bodiford, who reside a few miles southwest of town on a little farm through which runs Honey Creek, stopped in Saturday to renew acquaintances with us. Mr. Bodiford is somewhat of a fisherman and Mrs. Bodiford listens patiently while he relates the latest of fish tales to his friends. But Mr. Bodiford has his fish trained; they don't bite anyone's hook but his.

After cloudbursts over this section Thursday and Friday, the Katy's crack train, the "Doodle Bug," backed into Hico Saturday morning on the Waco-Rotan run. Cause of this oddity was the washing away of the tracks near Aquila, necessitating a detour by way of McGregor. Pulling into Morgan and finding themselves headed in the wrong direction with no turntable, the engineers were forced to throw it in reverse until they got to De Leon, where they found facilities enabling them to get things straightened out. One local observer was overheard saying, "Say, it will be something if that thing ever comes in sideways!"

So to go is to look through the style books they have—and by the way—they are already showing the August styles, pick out a design they like, and Miss Jessie Garth can look through the file and hand it right over the counter.

The extra service being put out at Nas Proffitt's Magnolia Station this week probably has been indirectly caused by the installation of a new hydraulic grease lift and the purchase of a new grease gun. There will be quite a few customers, we are sure, for this reason: We formerly didn't like to go there to have our car greased because we didn't want to admit we were scared to drive up on the old one.

While on a joy ride some afternoon drive by R. F. Wiseman's and catch a glimpse of the beautiful petunias he is growing. We know that travelers and tourists passing through seldom see only the homes directly on the highway, and the attractive scenes form a lasting impression. These colorful flowers represent a great deal of care, but they are worth it in the pleasure they give to their owners and neighbors. And while we are on that subject we want to mention the wonderful improvements recently made by Willard Leach around his service station on that same highway.

FUNERAL

Services Held At Hico Saturday For Mr. E. B. Noland

Funeral services for Mr. E. B. Noland, who died at 7:30 o'clock Friday morning at his home six miles north of Hico, were held Saturday afternoon at the Hico Cemetery.

Rev. W. M. Brown, Primitive Baptist minister of Abilene, conducted the services which were attended by a large concourse of relatives and friends. Pallbearers were Phillip Noland, Prentice Noland, Carroll Allison, Theron Allison, Raymond Strickland, and Horace Moore, all nephews of Mr. Noland's except Mr. Moore. The flower girls were Mrs. Effie Rowland, Mrs. Minnie Noland, Miss Ila Strickland, Mrs. Eva Esque, his nieces; and a friend, Mrs. Horace Moore.

Burial was made in the Hico Cemetery under the direction of the Barrow Funeral Home.

Mr. Elias B. Noland was born July 11, 1872, near Crawford, Tex., where he was reared to manhood. He was married to Miss Dovey Glazier, Dec. 6, 1896. To this union were born six boys and one girl. The girl died at the age of three years, and the boys are all living.

Mr. Noland moved from Crawford into Coryell County and in 1922 he moved to Erath County and has made his home here ever since that time. He united with the Primitive Baptist Church the third Sunday in July of 1913, and has been a faithful member. At the time of his death his membership was in the Clairette church.

Mr. Noland is survived by his wife, Mrs. E. B. Noland, and six sons as follows: Clarence, Marvin, Irs. John, and Floyd, all of Hico; and Rayburn of Grapeland, Tex. He is also survived by ten grandchildren, all of whom were at the funeral; three brothers and one sister who were present, T. M. Noland of Floydada, J. A. Noland of Crawford, Albert Noland of Sumnerfield, and Mrs. M. V. Dalton of Oglesby. A large number of nieces and nephews also survive.

Relatives and friends from out of the community in attendance at the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Martin Dalton, Oglesby; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Noland and son Prentice; Mr. Doshay Strickland and children, Raymond and Ila, Mr. W. H. Anderson, Phillip Noland and Mrs. Clifford Noland, all of Crawford; Mr. T. M. Noland, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Noland and children, Joe Richard and Ima Jean and Mrs. Horace Rowland, all of Floydada; Mrs. Margie Allison and son Theron, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Allison, and Mrs. Eddie Esque, all of Waco; Three sisters unable to attend the funeral were Mrs. R. G. Burchfield of Big Spring, Mrs. J. D. Kee of Elbert, and Mrs. J. L. Hughes of Erie, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McClendon had as guests recently, Mr. and Mrs. Ross McClendon and little daughter, Betty Jean of Boling. From here they expect to go on to Fort Worth where Mr. McClendon has employment.

D. R. PROFFITT, Mgr.

Washington, June 23.—The announcement by President Roosevelt that he will send a commission to London this summer to study and report on the workings of the British Trade Unions Act has met with general approval here except for certain Labor leaders who see in this plan a possible threat to the Union supremacy now accorded by the National Labor Relations Act.

The general feeling here, however, is that it is about time Congress and the American people had access to correct information about how labor relations are controlled in the other great democracy of the world.

England has had a long experience with labor organizations and their regulation by government. Besides old laws providing for the registration of Unions and public accounting of their receipts and expenditures, there are statutes prohibiting the use of Union funds for political purposes. The Act of 1927, which followed the general strike of 1926, declares "sympathetic" strikes illegal, prohibits picketing in support of illegal strikes and forbids the use of union funds to support such strikes.

An important provision of the British law forbids Union affiliation by government employees. There is a growing feeling in both houses of Congress that our own Wagner Labor Relations Act gives organized labor an unfair advantage in that it does not give employers rights comparable with those of workers. The movement to amend the Wagner Act in that and other respects has been gaining much headway.

Distribution of $3,000,000,000

In the meantime, the exact situation in this country of the related matters of unemployment and relief is coming under increasing scrutiny. In response to a request from the President, Congress has appropriated nearly 3 billion dollars for "pump-priming" and relief, in the hope that the expenditure of this money will stimulate business to the extent that private industry will find it possible to reemploy most of those now being supported, directly or indirectly, out of public funds.

There are grave differences of opinion as to the effectiveness of this new spending in the matter of business recovery, but quite general agreement that it will be useful politically, in helping the Administration to retain its control of Congress in the Fall elections.

The funds appropriated—which must be borrowed and added to the National Debt—are apportioned among the WPA, the PWA, NYA, Farm Security Administration, Porto Rico Reconstruction, National Emergency Council, National

ALAMO

Reproduction Favored For Building At Golden Gate Fair

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16, Mrs. William Lois Hodges, of Austin, Executive Assistant to Secretary Col. Paul L. Wakefield of the Texas World's Fair Commission, was conferring here today with officials of the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition on plans for a Texas Building at next year's Western World's Fair.

Mrs. Hodges declared that the most favored plan was one submitted by the Texas Planning Board, calling for a reproduction of the famous Alamo. The building she said would seat 400 to 600 people, and would be made into a motion picture theater where visitors to the Exposition would learn of the progress of Texas on programs resembling the March of Time.

Mrs. Hodges conferred with Keith Southard, the Exposition's Director of State Participation, and with Clyde Vandenberg, Director of Promotion, and several other officials. She also spent an afternoon visiting Treasure Island, site of the $50,000,000 Pageant of the Pacific. She said she would spend several days here before returning to Austin.

Final plans for the exhibit will be made shortly by the Texas Commission, Mrs. Hodges said. The Commission is composed of 45 members appointed by Governor James V. Allred, headed by Vice-President John Nance Garner. RFC Chairman Jesse H. Jones is chairman of the Commission.

EUROPE . . . war threats

Every one of my friends who has lately visited Europe brings back the report that the people of all nations are sure of one thing. That is that a great war is coming sometime in the future. Nobody puts a date to it, but all are sure it is coming sometime.

The evidence is the feverish military preparations which are going on all over Europe, and the efforts of European governments to make alliances and negotiate treaties which will tend to avert war, or to assure the nations participating of help when and if war comes.

All the rest of Europe is afraid of Germany. Hitler's government has given them ample cause for alarm. If the apparent ambition of Germany to control all of Central and Eastern Europe is realized an autocratic government with no regard for the rights of others and opposed in principle to all the concepts of free nations will stand as a constant threat to world peace, in a position where it can dictate to the rest of Europe in matters of trade routes, international commerce and the freedom of the seas. And Germany is arming for war.

ENGLAND . . . armaments

The English are the most practical great nation in the world. Their diplomacy is always based on what is to England's best interests. England is preparing for war on a gigantic scale, and at the time making friends of potential enemies. The British government has just increased taxes to the highest rates since the World War. It has announced the purchase of enough foodstuffs from abroad to enable the nation to live for months if supplies should be cut.

off by war. It has perfected a plan of rationing food in case of war. England has made a new alliance with France, whereby an immense volume of war supplies, bought by England, will be stored in France, where they will be ready when the war starts. When that comes, British and French armies, navies and air forces will act as one unit from the beginning of hostilities. A French general will command the land forces, the British will operate the combined air forces and a British Admiral will command the joint navies.

England has cleared the decks by reaching an agreement with Italy, and making a new treaty with Eire—the new name of the Irish Free State—which will keep those two possible enemies off England's neck when the fighting begins. And it is building war-planes at a greater rate than ever, buying up a stock of gas masks and laying up a stock of every inhabitant in case of an air raid by Germany.

FRANCE . . . impregnable

Like the English, the French are an intensely practical people. Their politics are beyond the understanding of foreigners, but beneath the apparently irrational air of excitement in which their public affairs are conducted, there is an underlying strain of realism which dominates all the French people.

The practical-minded French joined the League of Nations at its inception, but at the same time enlarged their standing army, tightened their requirements of universal military service and constructed the "Maginot Line." The entire length of the border between France and Germany is a row of fortifications and concealed artillery, connected by underground galleries. It would be practically impossible for an enemy to break through this line. An army of millions of men can be massed under cover within its walls and tunnels. And every Frenchman is a trained soldier.

ITALY . . . ambitions

Italy is the least predictable of all the great Powers of Europe. The "Rome-Berlin Axis" is a loose agreement between Hitler and Mussolini to act in concert where the interests of both nations are concerned. The lately-negotiated accord between London and Rome has allayed the friction between England and Italy. England recognizes Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia and Italy agrees to keep its hands off Egypt and not to interfere with British access to the Suez Canal. But where Italy would stand in a general European war is still in doubt.

None of my newspaper friends, from whose reports I draw most of my conclusions about the European situation, believes that Mussolini likes the idea of having Germany as his next-door neighbor, which has come about through Hitler's seizure of Austria. Mussolini had his eye on part, if not all, of Austria. Now it will be harder for him to take Yugoslavia when he gets ready, unless he plays ball with Germany.

AMERICA . . . western hemisphere

With the nations of the entire Eastern Hemisphere ready to fly at each other's throats, the only part of the world which can reasonably expect continued peace is America. The Western Hemisphere is still the newest and least developed half of the world. The United States of America, as the most powerful and prosperous nation of this hemisphere, must be the spearhead of any united resistance to aggression or penetration by European powers.

We kept out of the League of Nations, which has demonstrated its futility as an agency for the preservation of peace. My personal idea is that the Pan-American Union, in which every North and South American nation participates, should be developed into a League of Nations of the Western Hemisphere.

It would be this country's job to do most of the "policing" on behalf of the smaller nations as well as our own. If autocracy is victorious in the coming European conflict, it is as certain as anything in the future can be that the victors will try to take over as much of America as they can. That is why I am for a navy big enough to protect both coasts.

PARTY DISCIPLINE

Few things that can occur in a democracy are so potentially dangerous to the human liberties upon which the democratic principle is based as unrestricted control of government by a single party, without effective opposition.

For examples of what has happened in other nations where one party has succeeded in gaining unrestricted control, we need only look to Russia, where the Communist party is alone in the field.

These considerations apply in equal ratio to both of the major parties. For twenty years after the Civil War the Republican Party was in undisputed control of the Federal Government.

Conservative Democrats as well as all other true believers in the liberal American tradition, should welcome the apparent prospect of the recapture by the Republicans of enough Congressional seats at this year's elections to reestablish the present minority party as an effective disciplinary opposition.

CLOTHING FROM PAPER

During the World War the Germans developed paper clothing, being unable to obtain enough cotton and wool to make clothes for the civilian population.

Now a new kind of paper fabric has been developed in this country and is shortly to be placed on the market for clothing of all kinds.

We have not seen the new fabric, but it appears to our imagination like the woven glass fabrics which also have been made into dress and even men's clothes. Like many other modern improvements, such things have arisen because of the demand for the old staples. We wonder what effect this newest one will have on the cotton producers.

EARNINGS OF CHILDREN Public sympathy seems to be unanimously with "Jackie" Coogan in his effort to recover from his mother some of the money, reputed to be anywhere from a million to several millions, which he earned as a child star in the movies.

That there should be some provision for exceptions in the case of precocious children whose talents enable them to earn huge sums in infancy, most people will agree. Paternal affection and generosity cannot always be relied upon.

BUSINESS CAREERS FOR BOYS

As the high schools and colleges turn out their thousands of graduates this month, there are certain to be both sons and parents who will find helpful information in an article by Paul W. Chapman, dean of the Georgia College of Agriculture, in the Progressive Farmer, on getting started in business occupations.

"There are hundreds of occupations in business. Almost all of them can be included in three groups: Selling, financing, and record keeping. Selling is, in some ways, the most important part of business. Our farms and factories could not operate unless the goods which they produce were sold.

Financing in business is essential. This means that we must have banks, clearing houses, credit agencies, stock, bond, and investment houses, and many other agencies. This group is smaller in numbers employed than the other two major divisions of business. We have fewer banks, for example, than we had ten years ago.

MARK TWAIN Keeping the Big Bad Wolf Away

Are you in debt? Did you ever lose any money through making a bad investment? Well, if so, you may find consolation in the fact that some of the most brilliant men who ever lived made fools of themselves when it came to investing money.

He lost almost a hundred thousand dollars in all sorts of inventions such as steam generators, marine telegraphs, and other marvelous machines that were going to revolutionize the printing industry.

His friend H. H. Rodgers, of the Standard Oil Company, offered to pay his debts on the basis of fifty cents on the dollar, but Mark Twain wouldn't hear of it.

METHODIST CHURCH

"I Know What It Does For My Life." Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, in his sermon on Successful Christian Living, argues the need for the use of "Techniques," which he says our forefathers called "The means of grace." prayer, Scripture, reading, active Christian service, and participation in corporate worship. He gives testimony to one of America's leading novelists, who makes it her unflinching practice to go each morning, before beginning her day's writing, to her Anglo-Catholic Church for prayer and meditation, and once each week prepares her mind and goes to receive the sacrament. Her testimony is: "You may argue about the theory of it all you will. I know what it does for my life." At the Methodist Church Sunday all the regular services will be held. Church School meets at 10 o'clock. Preaching services are at 11 and 8:15. The subject for the morning is "Stand Up and Live," and that for the evening, "The Joyous Heart." You are always welcome at the Methodist Church. If duty doesn't call you elsewhere you have a cordial invitation to be present at any or all services. J. C. MANN.

News of the World Told In Pictures

PERSONALITIES IN MUSIC

LEOPOLD GODOWSKY, A. S. C. A. P.

By Daniel I. McNamara

SEVEN years ago, at the age of sixty, with world fame as a piano virtuoso and composer of hundreds of works for piano, Leopold Godowsky, A. S. C. A. P., started to pioneer in a new field. Not content to live with memories of success as artist, composer and editor, his restless genius spurred him to new endeavor.

In seven years he has done an amazing work, creating a rich library of pianoforte compositions for the left hand only. In this hitherto neglected musical realm, he has disclosed to pianists an astonishing development of the possibilities of the left hand.

Had Godowsky done nothing else, his fame would have been secure through these recent compositions. Now that he has rounded out his impressive collection of this new type of work, he has returned to his earlier compositions, and is devoting himself to their revision. It was on the basis of these earlier works that he was elected to the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and the right to public performance for profit of copyrighted works were made available to ASCAP licensees.

Born in Wilna, Russia, February 13, 1870, a son of Dr. Mathew and Anna Lewin Godowsky, Leopold Godowsky was a concert pianist at the age of nine. He entered the Berlin Hochschule at fourteen and later studied in Paris under Saint-Saens. Before he reached his teens, he toured Russia, Poland and Germany as a concert pianist, and at fourteen made his first American tour, playing in many American cities between 1884 and 1886.

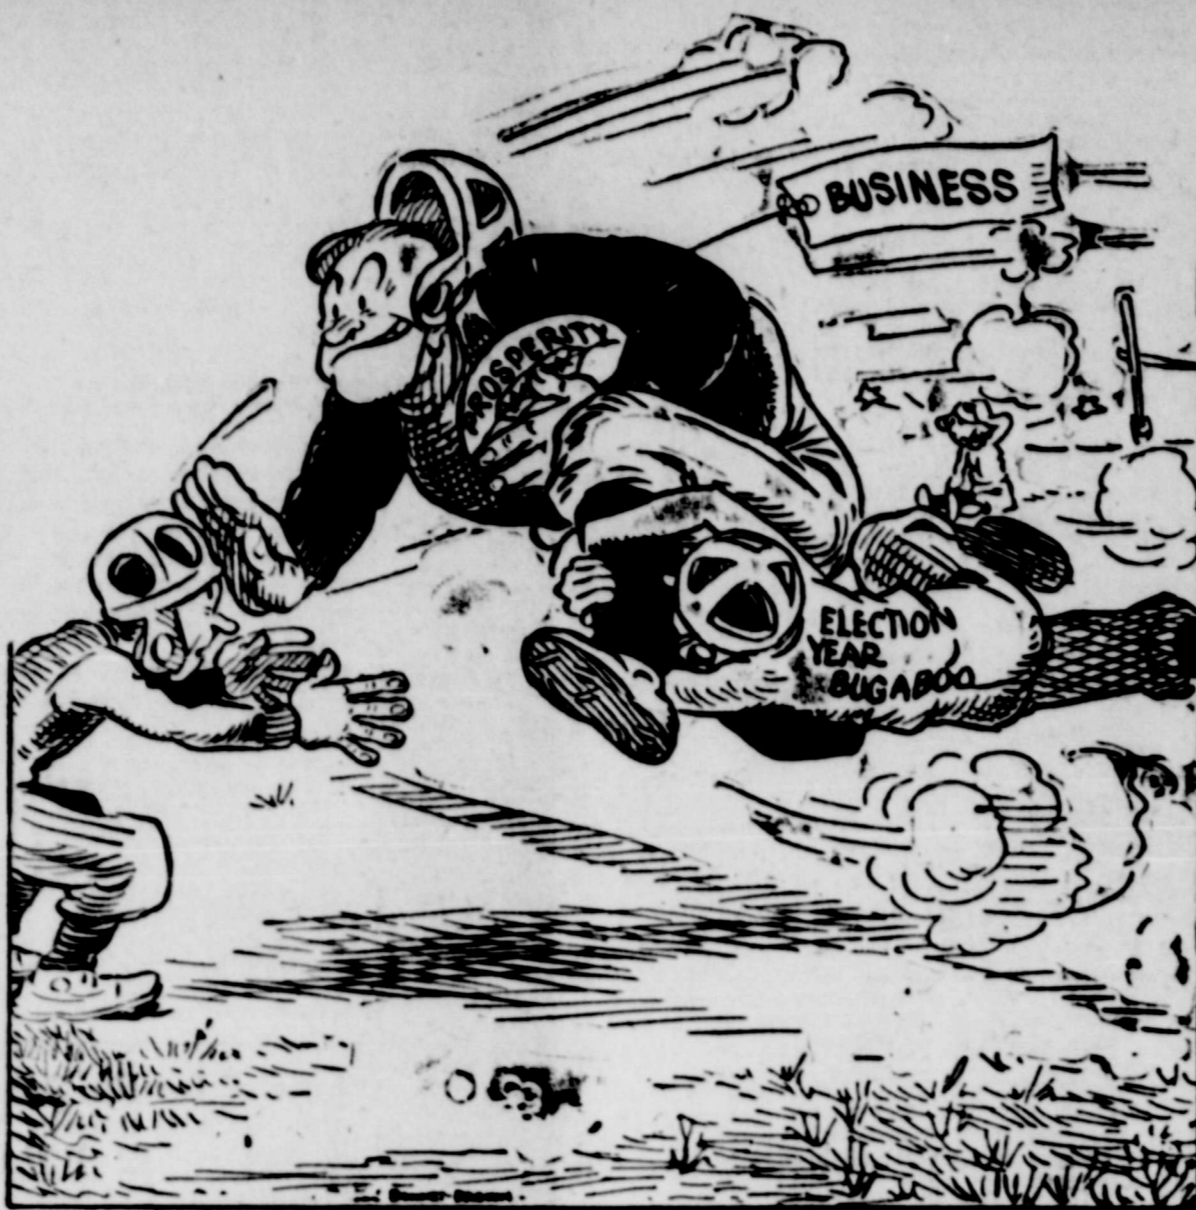

In 1893, he became director of the piano department of the Chicago Conservatory of Music, remaining in that position until 1900. Several years of concert tours and intensive composition followed.

In 1909, he was created Imperial Royal Professor of the highest rank by the Emperor of Austria and named director of the Imperial Royal Meisterschule for Piano at the Imperial Royal Academy of Music in Vienna. In 1912, he was made editor-in-chief of the Art Publication Society of St. Louis.

Godowsky's studio in Riverside Drive, New York City, is the scene of frequent impromptu concerts of chamber music directed by the maestro. Sometimes Albert Einstein, distinguished mathematician and warm friend of Godowsky, is first violinist at these musicales.

Godowsky keeps abreast of the latest developments of physics and chemistry, delights in discussions of scientific trends.

Godowsky is an aviation enthusiast. He flew before passenger carrying had reached the commercial stage. One of his first flights was from Paris to Morocco fifteen years ago, when flight over the Mediterranean was accompanied by hazards. He likes to fly today, he says. In the air his mind is composed—and he can think out the intricate arrangements of his compositions for the left hand.

A Lesson in Physics—For Drivers

A new word, "turnability," has been coined by The Travelers Insurance Company in an effort to picture for drivers just what happens in the higher brackets of speed. A page of the company's new highway safety booklet entitled "Death Begins at 40" is headed "A Lesson in Physics for Drivers" and makes use of this term for the first time. "The first law of motion," the booklet states, "is that a mov-driver's "turnability" has been cut to one-ninth that when he was traveling at 25. If he tries to turn more sharply than this law of physics allows, he is certain to turn over."

ing body tends to continue in uniform motion in a straight line. The energy of a moving body is in proportion to the square of its speed.

"At 25 miles an hour, however, you can make a fairly sharp turn. At 50 miles an hour, you can make only one-fourth as sharp a turn as you could make at 25. This explains many accidents in turning and passing at higher speeds.

"And at 75 miles an hour, the

LISTEN TO THIS

By TOM FIZDALE

With the coming of Summer radio listeners will get a new deal in entertainment—and while many of the winter favorites will vacation, you may be certain that the program builders will have some new surprises in top-notch features.

Scheduled for a summer breathing spell are Fibber McGee, the Monday Radio Theatre, Eddie Cantor, Gang Busters, Al Jolson, Edward G. Robinson, Al Pearce, Kate Smith, Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Hollywood Hotel, the Andre Kostelanetz-Grace Moore musical, Joe Penner, Burns and Allen and Phil Baker.

Sponsors have some brand new ideas and the networks will try out a crop of their own. CBS is planning a Monday evening series which will originate from cities around the country and another idea to be given a trial is a series of plays produced in rural districts that never reach New York. Looks like anything but a dull summer.

Alice Hill

Les Tremayne, NBC leading man who grew a beard in the great mustache race of 1935, is in a predicament. His girl likes it so well that she won't let him shave it off as he had planned. Gale Page, recently heard over NBC kilocycles from Chicago, is definitely a click in her first Warner Brothers flicker, "Crime School." . . . A wag tossed Phil Baker a dime after Baker's accordion solo on the recent Ben Bernie show, and Phil cracked: "Heigho, silver!"

The Bernie show, by the way, is reported due for a fadeout with the broadcast of July 6. . . . President Roosevelt will be heard over all major networks June 30 in an address in connection with the National Education Ass'n. convention in New York, and on July 3, when he will speak as a feature of the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. Both speeches will be heard throughout the world via short wave.

Les Tremayne

Donald Novis, radio's top tenor a couple of years ago, who retired to improve his voice, is staging a comeback from Hollywood. . . . Bayard Veilier, who pens "Valiant Lady" on NBC, has another script ready for fall production. . . . Alice Hill, star of "Betty and Bob," is sporting an early season tan and strong arm as result of doing her own reconditioning of her sail boat. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Cantor celebrated their 24th anniversary June 9, setting a mark for screen folk to shoot at.

Fibber McGee's fighter, Milt Aaron, climbing that water weight ladder. . . . Scored seventh straight victory last week. . . . Music director of those crack "Vocal Varieties," writing new songs, "When Day Begins," Benny Goodman and Hoosier Hot Shots of "National Barn Dance" form a mutual admiration society. . . . They are fans of each other. . . . Dolores Gillen, pretty NBC actress, married over prospects of younger sister, Elizabeth, training for radio.

Arrival of King George VI and his entourage in Paris on Tuesday, June 20, and the British Sovereign's address three days later, Friday, July 1, when he unveils an Australian war memorial in France, will be heard in this country over the NBC-Red network. . . . Margarette Shanna of "Arnold Grimm's Daughter" has real estate—caused by searching for a new house. . . . It's contagious, too, among friends.

Bedspread Wins 1937 Crochet Contest

Design Captures National Crochet Championship

TO MRS. FRANK E. HAYWARD, of Seattle, Washington, went the top honors in the First National Crochet Contest, held in 1937, and the title of National Crochet Champion. Mrs. Hayward's prize-winning design was this exquisite bedspread, made of mercerized crochet cotton in a tiny crocheted pattern. National interest now centers on the Second National Crochet Contest, to be held this fall in cooperation with local, county, and state fairs. Directions for crocheting Mrs. Hayward's prize design, and details of the National Crochet Contest may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The National Crochet Bureau, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City. The FEUD at SINGLE SHOT

By Luke Short

Sixth Installment SYNOPSIS

With his partner, Rosy Rand, Dave Turner is on his way to his ranch at Single Shot. Both are returning from prison where they have served sentences for unjust convictions. On the train, which is carrying a large sum of money, Rosy's quick action and straight shooting holds a hold up while Dave saves the life of Martin Quinn, a gambler, who is being threatened by a desperado. Stopping at Single Shot, the sheriff tells Dave he is not wanted. Quinn defends Dave but Dave and Rand go to Soledad to meet Mary, Dave's sister, and proceeds on horseback to the ranch. Mary reveals she is married and tells Dave that the ranch is doing poorly, being beset by nesters and involved in a claim dispute. Suddenly a shot from the darkness topples Dave from his horse. Rosy fires and kills the unknown assailant and they rush to the ranch to treat Dave's severe scalp wound. Next morning, at breakfast, Dave and Rosy discover that Mary is now cooking for the ranch hands—a bad sign. After discussing financial matters with Mary, Dave and Rosy saddle horses and leave for Single Shot to deliver a corpse to the sheriff and see the town banker. Identity of corpse reveals him to be an ex-employee of Hammond's. Dave, Rosy and the sheriff immediately confront Hammond with facts. Fight between Hammond and Dave prevented by sheriff.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:
"Those nesters are in good black land," Dave continued. "They're probably pretty good farmers. I can get a crew of Mex's to ditch water down to them from the creek. It runs about a mile from that bottom-land, but it's shut off by a low hill." He looked at Rosy. "Let those nesters raise alfalfa on shares with plenty of water."
"You turnin' farmer?"
"No. But look. There's a bunch of mines around here, besides these two towns. With water we could get three crops of alfalfa in the summer. Contract some of it, hold the rest and get skyhigh prices for it later. In ninety days, I'll have enough from that to clean off the paper and start stockin' the place."
A two hours' ride brought them to the lip of a grassy hill and they reined up. At the bottom of the basin lay orderly checkerboards of fields, now fallow, waiting for the spring plowing.

Small in the distance, at the base of the cliff, lay a cluster of buildings.
They rode point to the cabins, skirting the fields a little. There were six houses that Dave could see, log shacks. As they approached the first shack, Dave saw a man step out the door. He noted passively that the man was so tall he had to stoop to get through the door. He was unshaven, hatless, wearing dirty bib overalls and a flannel shirt.

They reined up before him and Dave let his eyes wander casually around the place before he brought them to bear on the nester.
"Howdy," he said amiably.
The nester spat noisily.
"Lookin' for some one?" he growled.
"Six of you," Dave said laconically.
"I'll do," the nester retorted.
He was staring into the barrel of a Colt in Dave's hand.
"Close that door," Dave said softly. "You got a gun there just inside the door, so move slow."
The nester continued to stare insolently at him, his hands in his hip pockets.
Dave's gun exploded and a chip of wood behind the nester's head splintered off.

Dave saw the nester's face set a little as he leaped away from the door. He reached in and got the rawhide latherstring and swung the door shut.
"Now step out here," Dave said. He leathered his gun and the nester stepped closer to his horse. Dave folded his arms.
"I'm Dave Turner," he announced.
"How would you like to clear off my land?" he asked softly.
With the quickness of a cat, the nester drove his fist into the nose of Dave's horse. The horse jerked his head high, reared, and Dave slid out of the saddle. The nester turned and ran toward the house. Dave tripped him and the nester crashed into the door.
Dave stood a little ways off from him, unbuckling his cartridge belt and holsters, letting them fall to the ground.

"Get up and take a beatin'." Dave said softly, kicking the guns out of reach.
The nester rushed in, head down and Dave stepped aside and straightened him up with a looping left to the mouth. Dave let him walk into a straight right arm three times, then avoiding a low kick and flailing arms, he sank a body swing to the nester's stomach, doubling the heavier man up. Dave stood over him, breathing heavily.
"If you want any more, stand up," Dave said.
"Not me. That's enough."
"Look what I got in the round-up," Rosy's voice said from the corner of the house.
Dave turned and saw four men standing sullenly before Rosy, who had dismounted and made the rounds of the other shacks while Dave was fighting.
"Get in the house," Dave said. "I got some turkey to talk."

the middle-aged nester said. "I never have, I've usually paid for what I took, but this here spread had so danged much land—that I reckon I hated to see it go to waste. But from now on, Turner, I'm paying my debts. You'll get nothing from me but work. My name's Rourke."
"All right," Dave said, grinning. "Let it ride that way, Rourke. If there's anything you need, and I can give it to you, come up to the house."
By lantern light—for it was past ten when they reached the ranch—Rosy rubbed down the horses, grained them and was forking some hay.

The stable door swung open and Winters stood in the doorway, his dark face scowling against the light.
"Oh, it's you," he said amiably, when he saw Rosy. "Mind forking down some hay for my horse?"
"Sure," Rosy answered.

Dave let him walk into a straight right three times . . .

The beaten nester threw open the door. The house consisted of one room, a double-decked bunk at one end, a stove and table at the other. Four home-made chairs and a shelf comprised the rest of the furniture.
"Sit down," Dave ordered, standing in the middle of the room.
"I reckon you know why I'm here," the nester said.
They nodded.
"I can run you off this land right now and burn your shacks. I reckon you know that."
"Sure," one of the nesters, a small wiry man in middle age replied.
"All right," Dave answered. "I got a proposition to make. You can take it or leave it. You five can farm on a sixty-fourty split here on an alfalfa crop. Startin' tomorrow, you can break up all the land you can. I'll get a crew to put in ditches. In a week and a half you can be ready to put in the crop. With plenty of water, we'll get three crops this summer and a market for the hay with all the horses there are in these two towns and the mines. Suit yourself. Stick here and take a forty per cent share and work, or clear out, way out."

"You mean you're puttin' water down here?" the middle-aged man asked.
"That's it."
The nester gave a brief glance at his companions.
"I dunno about the rest of 'em, but I'll stick and glad of it. Damn glad of it. My son-in-law—he owns the place on the other side of me—will too. He ain't here, but I'll swear he will."
"I'll stay," the big man said.
"Stay here," the other two joined in.

"That goes right," Dave said. "There's no reason why this arrangement can't go on. It's up to you all. You've got more good bottom land here than you can ever farm. You've got water—or will have it. I'll have the seed ordered in Single Shot and delivered to Soledad and you can haul it up from there."
"I don't feel right about this,"

Winters led the horse in, a big bay with a Roman nose, still breathing heavily, his sides wet with sweat. Rosy was about to speak, but held his tongue. If the bully didn't know enough to walk a horse after lathering him, then let him lose a couple of horses in the process of finding out.
"Look over the range today?" Winters asked.
"Took that Jasper into town on his horse," Rosy answered.
"What did you find out?"
"Name of Freeman. Used to work for Hammond."
Winters snorted, then smiled knowingly. "I don't suppose Dave has told you what Hammond's trying to do about the lake up here."
"He told me," Rosy said. "We saw Hammond too."
"What did he say?"
"He's shootin' on sight at next meetin'." Rosy said dryly.
A dim roll of thunder came to their ears. The first tentative saps of rain, dull and widely spaced, echoed hollowly on the barn roof.
Winters followed him into the corral and stopped, hands on hips, looking at the sky.
"Glad I'm finished with that hole," he said. "I'll have two feet of water in it."
"Prospectin'?" Rosy asked.
"Yes. I putter around some. I got some color up in those canyons to the west of that rock slide on Old Cartridge. May not be much, but it keeps me on my toes in case I want to get back in the minin' game."

"I got so interested there this afternoon I worked till way after dark by lantern light. You'd never guess, but—"
"We'd better hightail it," Rosy cut in. "We're goin' to get wet."
The meal finished and cigarettes smoked, Dave helped Mary with the dishes. Finished, he yawned, stretched and informed them that he was going to bed. Rosy followed him, leaving Winters and Mary in the kitchen.

"Tomorrow we split up," Dave informed him as they undressed in their room. "I'm goin' to locate all the cattle and get ready for a count. You go to Single Shot, order the seed for them nesters and round up a couple of riders. Then ride over to Soledad and get hold of Pablo Manero at the frame store there. Tell him I sent you and that we want about ten Mexicans, tools and all, to put in that ditch. And—oh, I'll tell you in the mornin', I'm talkin' in my sleep now, G'night."
It was a dull, gathering, earth-rocking window-rattling roar that woke them.

Rosy raised up on his elbow. "Dave," he called softly.
"I heard it," Dave said.
Another report came booming through the rainy night.
"Dynamite," Dave guessed.
"There must be a ton in each shot."
Three more vast detonations in quick succession seemed to shake the house.
"Where'd it come from?" Rosy asked.
"Up in the mountain. Old Cartridge way," Dave replied. "I'm takin' a passar. You comin'?"
They dressed in the dark and left the house noiselessly. A steady drizzle was beating down and the first faint lights in the east announced approaching day.
They saddled their horses swiftly and swung out through the mud up to the trail to the notch. When they reached the timber, gray daylight allowed them to see. Dave rode ahead, urging his horse.
A half mile from the notch in the rock rim, Dave left the trail and started up the rock-strewn steeper grade that announced the mountain. Rosy, puzzled, reined off after him.
Suddenly it dawned on Rosy where they were going and why Dave had ridden so unerringly for this point.
They mounted a hog's-back and Dave reined up, staring. Before them, a basin seemed to have been scooped out of the very base of the tunneled mountainside. It was roughly oval, quarter of a mile in length. Its bottom, slanting steeply to the center from all sides, was a thick, black, shining-wet slime of mud. Steady trickles of water seeped up thinly in some places. Rosy's eyes followed the level rim around and there, toward the east edge nearest the rock rim, leaving in its place a wedge of gray storm-blanketed sky. The forty yards from the edge of the rock rim to the edge of the lake had been blasted out!

HELP KIDNEYS
To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste
Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.
You may suffer sagging eyeballs, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.
In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

TROPICAL LOVE STORY
Moves Tropical Drama Coming to Palace Next Week

A romance between a handsome young aviator, whose airplane is wrecked on a lonely South Sea island, and an untamed native girl, who has never before laid eyes on a white man, forms the story of "Her Jungle Love," the new Paramount Technicolor production, which is showing next Thursday and Friday at the Palace Theatre.
Ray Milland and Dorothy Lamour head the cast, making their first appearance together since "Jungle Princess," in which they scored so sensationally a season ago. Probably no two stars in Hollywood are more often associated with tropical romance than Milland and Miss Lamour, he having recently appeared in "Ebb Tide" and she in "Hurricane." In "Her Jungle Love" they are assisted by a cast of popular players, including Lynne Overman.
"Her Jungle Love" marks a continuation of the experiment, which brought such success in "Ebb Tide," of using Technicolor to bring out all the exotic charm and beauty of a tropical background. But where "Ebb Tide" took place mostly aboard ship, the setting of "Her Jungle Love" is exclusively a lush South Sea island which affords perfectly adapted material for color photography.

DISPELLING THE FOG

By CHARLES MICHELSON
Director of Publicity, Democratic National Committee

Nowadays when the newspapers of the country are full of political forecasts, straw votes, and real or invented surveys of the American trend of thought, it might be supposed that when an authority produces one of these estimates it would be prominently displayed.

Sad to say, the headlines and editorial comments in the anti-administration press appear to be confined to such forecasts as imply a recession from President Roosevelt's popularity and criticism of the New Deal measures. The other day, Fortune magazine, which can hardly be suspected either of great admiration for the President or a devotion to the emergency and reform measures that were the striking elements in the proceedings of the Seventy-Fifth Congress, went in to the survey business rather elaborately. The editors announced that their Quarterly Survey to be published next month indicates "that 54.7 per cent of the population approve of Mr. Roosevelt, while 34.4 per cent disapprove, and 10.9 per cent 'don't know.' The survey even indicates a possible majority disapproval of the phenomenon of a rebellious Congress: 47.2 per cent think that Congress should work more closely with the President, while 49.6 per cent prefer it to show an independent spirit and 12.2 per cent 'don't know.'"

Fortune is a big business magazine. Suppose it had announced that its survey had shown an opposite trend of public sentiment. The anti-New Deal newspapers would have screamed the result in big headlines on every first page.

As it was, the few of them that mentioned the conclusions of the Fortune poll printed just a little bit of it, very deep in the back of the paper. Most of the big newspapers ignored the whole account, although advance copies were furnished them by the magazine. One of the great metropolitan journals passed up Fortune's survey and the accompanying editorial, though it gave a long account of a sectional bankers' conference in Springfield, Illinois, in which the New Deal was attacked.

Curiously enough, not one of the prominent newspaper columnists who seize with avidity on anything that seems to throw doubt on the success of the New Deal measures and who see in everyting evidence of revolt and disintegration in the Democratic party also paid any attention to the magazine's story or its editorial. They were too busy denouncing Relief Administrator Hopkins' statement that were he a voter in Iowa, his native State, he would favor Congressman Wearin against Senator Gillette, who won the Senatorial nomination in the recent primary. They also had a great deal to say about the importance of the congratulatory telegrams received by Gillette from Cabinet officers and others as bearing on the question of whether the administration was mixing in local primary fights.

Why the Story Was Not Published

Of course, nobody can question the authority of the owner of a newspaper to print what he likes and omit what he dislikes, even if it does not seem quite square to his readers that they should not have all the news. You could hardly expect the New York Herald-Tribune or the Chicago Tribune, for example, to re-publish such matter as this, even though uttered by the foremost business publication in the country: "At the moment it does not look as if the Republicans could win more than three or four new Senatorships this Fall, and even the most sanguine of John Hamilton's dopesters has not dared to claim more than 75 new seats in the House of Representatives. The Democrats will still have a heavy majority in both houses of Congress. Moreover the conservative Democrats will still be a minority in their own party." And it goes on to say: "And the chances that any important number of Mr. Roosevelt's men will be defeated in the primaries this year are very thin."

The text of the editorial that accompanied the article referred to might have come from a New Deal textbook, instead of from the most luxurious of the publications devoted to the practical affairs of commerce and industry. The theme is the necessity of actual cooperation between business and government.

"Whether the present situation is permanent or temporary," says Fortune, "is beside the point. Every businessman who is not kidding himself knows that he does not know how to guarantee, without government intervention, the markets with which alone his free, competitive capitalism can function. Every businessman who is not kidding himself knows that, if left to its own devices, business would sooner or later run headlong into another 1939. And every businessman who is not kidding himself ought to know that as long as these things are so, the electorate will force government into affairs. It is neither possible nor desirable for a democratic government to sit by while a third of its citizens starve and almost as many more fear for their jobs."

When Is News Not News

As a newspaperman, it seems to me that such an opinion coming from such a source is news. It is news particularly because it departs from the impression which the administration's political foes have been so diligent in spreading—that all business regards the New Deal as a direct assault on American institutions and as indicating that the administration is an enemy to business. So also is news the concluding paragraph of that editorial, which runs this way: "Between these two unpalatable extremes (communism and dictatorship) lies an American economy. It is not an economy that any single man, any bright economist, can now define. It is not an economy that can be found by good luck, or by a single victory at the polls. On the contrary it can be established only by business working with government, and government working with business, over a long period of years toward a progressively higher standard of living derived from the incentives of private enterprise. It is the only course open to business or government that does not lead inevitably into the fallacies of totalitarianism and State collectivism. And if these two cannot find it together, nobody else can."

FOUR 4-H CLUB GIRLS

Plan to Attend Junior Short Course at A. & M. College

Four 4-H Club girls from Hamilton County plan to attend the Junior Short Course to be held at Texas A. & M. College, July 6-9. Genola Gardner, winner in the County 4-H Club Dress contest, is being sent by the Blue Ridge Home Demonstration Club, and Mary E. Smithman, winner in the Clothing Demonstration contest, is being sent by the H. D. Council to enter the State Contest; two other girls not yet named shall also attend; one sent by the Indian Gap H. D. Club and the other by the H. D. Council—the winner of the judging of canned fruits contest which will be held June 25.

This is the first time that adult and Junior Short Course visitors have met on different dates, according to Roy W. Snider, Short Course general chairman, and about 2,500 boys and girls from Texas farms and ranches plan to attend the Junior section of the annual Farmer's Short Course which will be held at College Station.

The arrangement has been made because the yearly increasing attendance at Short Course has taken place at the same time when summer sessions of the college have also been growing. Each year it has been harder to make room for both groups and this year it was impossible.

General assembly every morning and the night programs will be joint meetings of the boys and girls, with music in charge of the famous Rotary International song leader, Walter H. Jenkins, of Houston. Speakers and picture shows will feature these meetings. A tea honoring the gold star boys and girls will be given one afternoon.

Programs for the boys and girls have been arranged on the subjects of livestock, field crops, entomology, horticulture, plant propagation, cotton classing, and meat. For the girls, the program will center around home making subjects, wild-flower legends, and "The 4-H Club Girl's Dollar and Sense." One series of talks by the girls themselves will be presented under the title, "How I got on friendly terms with the things around me." "What 4-H Experience Means to College Girls" is the subject of a talk by Ruth Foshee, former Hunt County 4-H Club girl, winner of the Texas Home Demonstration Association college scholarship. "A 4-H Club Girl as a Homemaker" will be discussed by Mrs. Paul Stauffer, former 4-H club girl of Wheeler County.

The Washington trip winners will tell about the club camp.

Results of Clothing Demonstrators' Contest

Final judging for the 4-H Clothing Demonstrators Contest was finished Friday evening. The following girls placed:

First: Mary Nell Smithman, Blue Ridge 4-H Club.
Second: Barbara Jones, Pecan 4-H Club.
Third: Isabel Perryman, Liberty 4-H Club.

Honorable Mention: Myrtle Fay Stanford, Union 4-H Club; and Torine Zimmerman, Lund Valley 4-H Club.

The girls were scored on their records kept, their sewing work, the story of their work, and the improvement made during the year in their sewing equipment, the condition of their clothing, their personal appearance, and the storage place for their clothing.

Announcement

The 4-H Girls Canned Products Contest will be held Saturday, June 25, at 9:00 a. m. in the Home Economics Department of the High School (Auditorium Building).

The winner of this contest will be sent to Short Course to compete in the state contest. Please be on time as the contest will begin promptly at nine o'clock.
