

The Hico News Review

VOLUME LV

HICO, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JUNE 30, 1939.

NUMBER 5.

Here In HICO

Our fan mail is growing to frightful proportions. Just this week we got an anonymous letter from a self-acknowledged admirer, making by the best available count, two letters of this type during the past ten years. At that rate just think what the future holds for us.

Signing the letter simply "A Reader," the correspondent promises a doubtful bouquet with the following introduction: "I am sending you this little dope bucket to do with as you see fit. . . . What- ever you do I just wanted to know that you and Vignettes both write mighty good columns, and that we like it and want more of the same. I think I represent Hico pretty thoroughly when I say that the News Review is about the best little weekly in these parts."

And then Mr. or Mrs. or Miss Reader proceeds with the following collation of flattery and abuse, and proves himself or herself, as the case may be, a columnist of no mean ability.

"Our residence on the 'Banks of the Beautiful Bosque' to the contrary notwithstanding, we here in Hico, can see an ever so slight bit of weight in favor of the immitable Otto Bordenkircher in his seemingly inevitable clash with the pilot and commander-in-chief of our local blot, the Hico News Review.

"Understand, we are doting this bout from an impartial and neutral, but a very interesting, standpoint. However, we would like to say, for the benefit of the paying public, that in our opinion, both Sullivan of Hamilton and Webster of Dictionary have been sucked bodaciously into the maelstrom by the very viciousness of the combatants—not through any unguarded move of their own. Mr. Webster is, we are sure, represented in both camps, while Sullivan's nearness to the Holford quarters, as well as his brilliant representation of the Hamilton sheet, are probably responsible for his prominence in the parley. Since Webster is quite safe from any material or moral damage, our only concern at the moment is for the safety of the brave little Irishman.

"As for the qualifications of the principals themselves (these statistics are taken from the admissions of each as to the other's merits in their respective columns) Herr K. Holford has the advantages of aggression, superior materials of war, unerring accuracy in rat chunking, as well as a conceded edge of twenty-seven months experience at masticating type metal, hot or cold, while developing fangs for the fray.

"On the other hand, 'Sir Neville' Bordenkircher is quite adequately fortified with such defensive preparation as dodging mule heels and choking ferocious rattlesnakes. In his tender infancy, Mr. Bordenkircher, we figure, should have been more than a match for a stack of Holfords. However, since his infancy is cold history by this time, our main reason for quoting odds in favor of the Panther City entry is the fact that he seems to have right on his side. And right is right, you know.

"So go to it, boys, while we of the ringside try to place our hard-earned money on the most promising nose. Sincerely, "YOUR Public."

"At the risk of boring a few of our readers, who may not have followed this feud through its various stages, we feel compelled to straighten out a few points for those who might be interested.

"If the News Review editor's experience consists of only twenty-seven months duration, what has caused all these wrinkles and wavy hairs and callused hands? Why did twenty-seven months of work just today getting this sheet out.

"Reference to their early training is the only hint of truth emanating from the columns of these screeching non-Hicoids. They were admittedly behaving like brats when they should have been emulating the Holford example and attending Sunday school and polishing their manners.

"The worst rats ever in our office were not rodents. And those we harbored in the old office were kept only for amusement, not for left thumb.

REUNION PARADE

Changed to Afternoon of First Day; Committees Appointed

The parade on opening day of Hico's Annual Reunion, usually held in the morning, will take place beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, according to announcement this week by S. J. Cheek, manager of this year's picnic. This change was made, Mr. Cheek said, after numerous requests from the public. Directly after the parade, which will wind its way to the park as its final destination, a program will be presented at the pavilion.

The parade committee will be named from the membership of the Hico Review Club, which organization will have charge of preliminary details. A booster trip is being planned, according to Mr. Cheek, who has named Max Hoffman, J. I. Grimland and Ray D. Brown as a committee to arrange dates and details of this important part of the affair.

Jim Barrow, Bluff Robertson and Will Hardy compose the membership of the Old Fiddlers and Dance Committee, while L. N. Lane, J. N. Russell and H. V. Hedges make up the speakers' committee. With the dates for the Reunion, August 9 to 12, only a little more than a month away, Mr. Cheek reports details shaping up rapidly, and says that greater interest is evident in the affair this year than for many years previous. A few concessions are left, information on which may be obtained from him.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Hamilton County Baptist Association will hold their regular quarterly meeting on Friday, July 7th, at 2:30 p. m., in the Hico Baptist Church, according to an announcement by the president, Mrs. Alvin Swindell.

8. Talk on evangelism, Rev. J. P. King.
9. Song.
10. Benediction.

Marvin Marshall Ill
Marvin Marshall, employe of the local post office, was stricken suddenly while on duty Tuesday afternoon, and was taken to his home where medical attention was given him immediately.

Later reports are to the effect that he is convalescing rapidly, and expects to be back at work by next Monday.

Attend Brother's Funeral
Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Penley of Fort Worth were called to the Gorman Hospital to the bedside of Mr. L. V. Penley Saturday night, where the latter, an only brother, passed away at 7:35 Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Penley and son, Vernon, were back through Hico at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday, and went on to Clairette for funeral services which were conducted at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon.

Visitors of Russells
Mr. and Mrs. James N. Russell entertained a number of out-of-town friends and relatives at their apartment at the Russell Hotel Sunday, including Mrs. Alice Goff of Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Penland of Waco, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sellers and Miss Mianie Lockett of Abilene, and Mayor Henry Clark of Stephenville. Mrs. Goff remained to spend the week here with the Russells. Miss Irene Frank was a dinner guest.

custom has come to be an institution. No one wants to use the organization for selfish purposes. We have never heard that allegation made, nor do we believe it is true. Certainly they wouldn't want to destroy it with outside detractions which make the inside attractions fall to pay off.

Strict consideration of the best interests of the public should be given in considering any outside enterprises. No one could be blamed for adding to the attractions offered, but from a strictly cooperative point of view, it is not right for independents to capitalize on the efforts of financing of the merchants and people as a whole.

Wouldn't it be fairer to arrange for concessions with the manager, so that the responsibilities of getting crowds here and providing for their entertainment might be shared equally?

DOLLAR DAY

NEXT REGULAR MONTHLY DOLLAR DAY—

Wednesday, July 5

In a cooperative advertisement and elsewhere in this issue of the News Review Hico merchants are taking advertising space to acquaint the people of this territory with a monthly event sponsored by local merchants and commercial organizations.

Contained in the advertisements are real bargains. Special efforts are being made to make your trip to Hico next week profitable and pleasant in every way.

At the same time an urgent invitation to participate in the free entertainment is extended to the public. Hico merchants really want you to come here . . . and to want to come back.

COME TO HICO NEXT WEDNESDAY

FOR PROFIT FOR PLEASURE

STORES TO CLOSE

In Celebration of Independence Day, Tuesday, July 4th

A canvass of the local stores early this week disclosed that most of the places of business in Hico will be closed next Tuesday, July 4th, in celebration of the customary Independence Day holiday. Shoppers are requested to anticipate their needs and lay in their supplies previous to Tuesday, as employes will be off for that day whenever possible, and only emergency business will be transacted. Most grocery stores, markets, cafes, filling stations and drug stores will observe the customary rule of being open a part of the day, but the owners request that their customers cooperate with them in providing a holiday for their employes by transacting their business ahead of time whenever possible.

No program has been planned locally for the Fourth, but many expect to attend celebrations advertised for Hamilton and Dublin, and at other points. The following day, Wednesday, July 5th, is the date for Hico's regular monthly Trades Day, and merchants are making preparations for entertaining a large crowd on that day.

Trench Site Being Filled

Workmen were busy at the C. W. Clayton home on what is known as the old Boone Ranch Thursday filling a recently constructed trench site with ground cut on the farm. The new site, with a sand rock lining, is 8 feet deep and measures 12 by 130 feet in its other dimensions. The feed is being packed and sealed with water and will furnish green feed for the cattle throughout the entire winter, Mrs. Clayton said in reporting the news.

Guests of McMurrays

Sunday visitors in the D. H. McMurray home were: Mrs. McMurray's mother, Mrs. S. A. Hinson, who celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday June 11th; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McMurray and grandson, Fort Worth; Mrs. R. K. Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Owen and daughter, Betty Sue, Brownwood; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lewis, son and granddaughter, Whitney; and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Guthrie, Hico.

Free Use of Library

Anyone who wishes to use the Public Library may enjoy this privilege free during the month of July, according to an announcement made Thursday by Mrs. Myrtle Swindell, chairman of the library committee of the Review Club.

Subscribers NEWS AND VIEWS

Having received notice that his subscription was expiring, J. E. Slaughter, City, laid all other duties aside and put the News Review foremost in his mind. As a result, Mr. Slaughter, one of our good subscribers, has his subscription renewed once again, and we have his money. We believe, knowing him as we do, that he will be satisfied with his trade.

E. J. Brewer, Route 7, has renewed his subscription through Leonard Howard.

Having had occasion to notice that Jesse Bobo's subscription was expiring, we feared lest he neglect the matter until he had mislaid a copy. Acting upon our fears and keeping in mind our pleasant dealings with Mr. Bobo in the past, we marked his time up for another year, knowing that we could expect a visit from him soon.

Through the years we have formed the habit of renewing for A. A. Brown and then serving notice later, knowing that even if Mrs. Brown would do without the paper, Mary wouldn't, after having served so capably on the staff of The Mirror. Mrs. Brown, whose chief delight is her young granddaughter, Jimmie Gail, who returned home last week after a visit here, spends half her time thinking up things to do for the youngster.

M. D. Slaughter, Route 2, when asked if his subscription had not recently expired, replied: "No, it ran out several months ago. I've just been doing without." Which is a hard thing to have to do, we think, and are glad that Mr. Slaughter hurriedly found a way to remedy the situation.

Mrs. W. H. Tinsley, Route 2, says her paper expired last week, but that she got this week's issue all right. She was in Saturday to renew, just in case her good fortune didn't last always. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tinsley, Jr., who live with his parents, also enjoy the home paper.

We know Marie Harrison didn't let her wedding anniversary slip by, but for some reason he forgot to bring her to the News Review. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison have been subscribers to the paper ever since it was first given to them as a wedding gift in June, 1935.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE

To Sport Four City Teams In Opening Games Tuesday Night

Widespread interest in a city softball league resulted this week in an announcement of the formation of four teams among local business men. Players will be assigned to positions Monday night at a meeting at City Hall auditorium beginning at 8:30. Those interested in playing are requested to attend this meeting.

The schedule will start the following Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, with two games being played every Tuesday and Thursday nights. The four teams will be managed by Morse Ross, Grady Barrow, Sim Everett and the Fireboys. All available players can be used, Ross said, regardless of age. Games between the local teams are free, he added, and the public is welcome to come out and enjoy themselves.

The American Legion team, to be composed of the best players from the four city teams, will play Stephenville tonight at 8. The Hico Fireboys will play DeLeon in the other half of the double-header.

In Dallas Clinic

Mrs. George B. Gollightly of Hamilton is in the Carroll-Girard Clinic at Dallas taking treatments for an ailment affecting one of her shoulders. In a letter to her son, Roling Fergy, at Hico this week Mrs. Gollightly said that by taking these treatments, which will continue several days, she hopes to avert an operation which for a time seemed necessary. Her many friends in Hico hope that Mrs. Gollightly's condition will improve readily to the extent that she will be able to come home soon.

That accounts for their happy, harmonious wedded life, we suppose, and so we are warning Marie this way in order that he can keep his home life on the same plane in the future.

D. A. Izell, Route 1, has told us so many times that he didn't want to miss a copy of the paper that we take it upon ourselves to renew for him when the time comes. And it always does. Mr. Izell, however, doesn't mind it so much when he thinks about those 52 copies of the paper forthcoming.

Kal Segrist of Hico, Austin and Dallas, can take a rest now and relax with the home town paper, since the legislature decided to adjourn and go home. Mr. Segrist, whose chief hobby is his Hico farm upon which he is making extensive improvements, lets it be known wherever he goes that he is polling for Hico.

IMPORTANT MEETING

Called For Next Thursday Night; New Organization Planned

It seems that Hico has the prospect of a new commercial club in the near future, that is, one that will take the place of the two we now have; and a meeting of the members of both the Chamber of Commerce and the Business Men's Commercial Club is called for Thursday night, July 6, at 8 o'clock, on the second floor of the City Hall building. The work of dissolving the two old organizations and setting up the new one will probably be done at that meeting.

To speak of the movement more in detail, some three weeks ago there was a meeting of a joint committee, made up of several representatives each of the old organizations, and for the purpose of discussing the advisability of trying to have one organization instead of two. This joint committee, after ample discussion, formed a recommendation which we publish below in full, and which explains itself. It is reported that the recommendation has been accepted by both of the old organizations, and the full meeting called for next Thursday night is the outgrowth of this acceptance. The recommendation of the joint committee is given herewith:

A joint committee from the Hico Chamber of Commerce and the Hico Business Men's Commercial Club met Tuesday, June 13, at 8 p. m., in the Russell Hotel and discussed the advisability of having only one such organization in Hico instead of two. It was felt that in view of community benefits already accomplished by each organization, a still greater proportion of good could be wrought in their united capacity.

The matter was discussed from all angles, and in the frankest way, and with the best of fellowship throughout. After full discussion, and upon agreement that any satisfactory consolidation would have to be based on a give-and-take policy, it was decided unanimously to present the following recommendation to each club:

1. That the two present organizations be discontinued and that a new organization be set up, with new constitution and by-laws.
2. That the name of the new organization be the Hico Chamber of Commerce.
3. That Dr. H. V. Hedges be made president, and H. F. Sellers treasurer, and that all other officers be elected by the body in session.

That the body have monthly meetings, with lunch in connection.

Respectfully submitted, THE JOINT COMMITTEE, Consisting of I. J. Tague, S. J. Cheek, Sr., Roland Holford, J. W. Richbourg, Max Hoffman, J. N. Russell, Sim Everett, H. V. Hedges and Alvin Swindell.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

Holds Regular Monthly Meeting At Buckhorn Cafe Tuesday

The June meeting of the Hico Business Men's Commercial Club was held Tuesday evening at the Buckhorn Cafe, with about the usual attendance and including two new lady members. Matters of routine, such as reports of officers and committees, were given the usual attention. The Club voted to give some assistance to scouts who are soon to attend the Boy Scout camp near Belton.

Considering the coming Reunion at Hico set for the second week in August, a motion was carried that the club have a float in the parade, and a committee composed of Ray D. Brown, Roy French and J. N. Russell, was appointed to decorate same. Something was said also about a booster trip preceding.

The most important item coming up in the meeting was the consideration of the report presented by the joint committee from the two commercial organizations of the city, looking to the idea of having only one such organization instead of two. Following a free and rather spirited discussion of the matter the recommendation was accepted without an opposing vote. The recommendation is published elsewhere in this paper in connection with the announcement of the joint called meeting to occur on the evening of July 6.

Attend Smith Funeral

Emory Gamble and Misses Jean and Jane Wolfe and Helon Gamble were in Stephenville Monday afternoon to attend funeral services for Grady Smith, 22, killed early Sunday two miles east of Stanton on Highway 80 when his car crashed into a truck. He was returning to Stanton, where he is employed in a tailor shop, after visiting his mother, Mrs. Hudson Smith.

MEETING AT DRY FORK

The Dry Fork meeting will start Friday night, continuing through the following week. Bro. Newton will do the preaching, making his eighth annual meeting at Dry Fork. Everyone has a special invitation to attend each service of this meeting. CONTRIBUTED.

Keeping Up With Texas

Texas

That "old debbil" Johnson grass, considered a pest in some sections of the State, has been in many places the greatest erosion control crop in addition to being a good soil builder. D. C. Lerner, United States Soil Conservation speaker from the Dublin area, said in a conservation lecture delivered Tuesday at the North Texas State Teachers' College. The speaker added that in some places the Russian thistle, often charged with "taking the country," has proved nature's last dependence. Any cover at all is better than none, and where the poorest can hold for a time, it may prepare the way for a better type later, he pointed out.

The dangers that beset pedestrians in Houston were brought home to Calvin Sherwood with a bump Tuesday night. Sherwood, 50-year-old negro was walking along Howard Street about 10:30 p. m. one night when a car suddenly turned a corner and headed straight for him. Without looking, he jumped for safety at the side of the street, but the spot where he landed was an open manhole. Sherwood fell about seven feet, suffering a back injury and cuts and bruises. He was able to walk to the hospital for treatment.

Carload movement of West Texas' 1939 wheat crop into Fort Worth is expected to reach the peak within the next two weeks, grain dealers there said Tuesday.

With clear weather in the wheat belt, it was predicted that receipts will reach as high as 1,000 cars daily. Monday's receipts jumped to 508 carloads, heaviest of any day this season, after movement of the new crop had been delayed by rains in the wheat producing areas. Grain dealers said some wheat ordinarily shipped to Enid, Okla., is being diverted here because of carload congestion in the Oklahoma area. Carload prices being paid here range from 79 1/2 to 85 1/2 cents a bushel, 5 to 8 cents below last year. Reports of the condition of the crop led grain men to forecast that receipts there would be at least normal.

The Davis Mountains Road, otherwise known as Highway 67, will be completed soon, making the scenic wonders of the Big Bend country more accessible to tourists, Charles G. Cotton, highway manager of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday. He has just returned from a conference at San Angelo where this project was discussed.

"Improving the quality of peanuts" is the keynote of a statewide meeting of peanut growers held at Eastland this week. The meeting, second annual session of the Southwestern Peanut Growers Association, was attended by members of the A. & M. Extension Service, representatives of the Farm Security Administration and others.

Texas drivers' licenses, which the Legislature failed to provide for, although they expired last April, will be rubber stamped to extend their life until April 1, 1942, state police announced Tuesday. Chief Ralph L. Buell of the drivers' license division said department officers would be equipped with stamps for that purpose next week. Buell urged Texans planning out-of-state trips to have their licenses stamped and avoid possible difficulties.

Public schools of Texas next year will receive the highest per capita appropriation in history from the State available school fund, B. B. Cobb, executive secretary of the Texas State Teachers Association, said in Fort Worth Wednesday. The apportionment will be $22.50, Cobb said, an increase of 50 cents over the payments for 1937 and 1938. This amount was fixed by the Legislature for the fiscal years beginning Sept. 1, 1939 and 1940. The law, which has been signed by Governor O'Daniel, also ended, for two years at least, a disagreement between the State Board of Education and the State Tax Board. The dispute arose over an interpretation of the previous law.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Solomon: A Ruler Who Began Well.

Lesson for July 2: 1 Kings 3: 5-15

Golden Text: 1 Kings 3: 9

For the third quarter of the year we shall study twelve of the leaders of Israel, using topics and Scripture references prepared by the International Council of Religious Education. The first of these leaders is Solomon, whose memorable reign began so well but ended badly.

At the sanctuary of Gibeon, Solomon celebrated his accession to the throne by an impressive religious ceremony. There, on the following night, he had a dream in which he heard the voice of the Lord offering to grant him whatever he asked.

It is greatly to the credit of the young king that instead of seeking riches, or a long life, or victory in battle, he humbly mentioned wisdom, or discretion, as his primary need. And the Lord, as our lesson text tells us, was so pleased with Solomon's wise choice that He gave him not only what he wanted but also the riches and honor for which he had not asked.

The story does not make clear what is meant by wisdom. Is it shrewdness, or impartial judgment, or statesmanship, or an appreciation of the blessings of peace and culture?

Perhaps it is all four of these qualities. Certainly Solomon's wisdom covered a wide field of human interest, as is indicated by the variety of emphasis in that grand compendium of good sense, the Book of Proverbs.

What is life's best gift? This is the perennial question of the ages. Many answer by stressing health, or wealth, or fame, or length of days. And these are certainly a boon. God conferred them all upon Solomon.

But there is a still greater blessing that "understanding heart" or "attentive mind" which our hero knew he needed most of all if his reign was to be a true success. If a man has genuine wisdom in his soul the lesser goods of life will follow. "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom," we read in Proverbs, "and the man that getteth understanding. Length of days is in her right hand; in her left hand are riches and honour."

THREE "SHOTS" Will Protect Vacationers From Dangers of Typhoid Fever

Austin, June 29.—If you have not been vaccinated against typhoid fever within the last two or three years, go to your family physician and have him give you the three "shots" that will protect you against that disease.
This advice comes from the Texas State Health Department, and is addressed particularly to those persons planning vacations away from home and those who regularly go on camping, fishing or such trips.
Typhoid is contracted by way of the mouth. Each case comes directly or indirectly from some previous case. You eat or drink the germs that cause the disease.
In food, water or milk contaminated by the discharges from persons who are ill with the disease or who have had it at some time.
Modern medical and public health practices have greatly reduced the occurrence of typhoid, but it is still a menace to those unprotected against the disease.
Protection of public water supplies from pollution, pasteurization of milk, inspection and supervision of food supplies, improvement in household sanitation and hygienic habits, better sewage disposal and careful investigation of typhoid outbreaks to determine the source of the disease are measures which have contributed to the diminiution of the incidence of typhoid in the State. But there are still sources of infection to which individuals are exposed, that cannot be reached by public measures, and for which vaccination affords additional protection.

Persons who are apparently well, but who have had the disease at some time, may continue to discharge the typhoid germs.
Such persons are known as "carriers" and if they are not careful in their personal habits they are liable to contaminate any food they touch. Flies carry germs from contaminated sources to food, and are another source of typhoid infection.
Health departments, state, city or county, are waging constant warfare against typhoid all the year. Special efforts are made during the vacation period through the sanitary supervision of summer camps, parks, and public eating places to reduce any possible danger of vacation typhoid from such sources. But vaccination and sanitation are the only means to personal safety against the disease. So see your physician today for a vacation and summer un-marred by typhoid.

ANNUAL FIRE LOSS Suffered on Farm Property is
Of Serious Proportions
Austin, June 21.—Despite improvements in farming methods, equipment and facilities, the farmer of today is still faced with a serious problem which, unless solved, will continue to retard the general progress of the business and reduce every farmer's profit.
This problem is the annual fire loss suffered on farm property, according to Marvin Hall, State Fire Insurance Commissioner.
"Nearly two million dollars property loss is suffered each year on the farms of Texas," Commissioner Hall pointed out, "and a very substantial reduction can be made in this figure if farmers generally will observe a few simple rules of fire protection and prevention."
The losses in barns and granaries contribute largely to this annual toll, as these are peculiarly subject to fire danger. Of the many sources of barn fires, spontaneous combustion is perhaps the most dangerous and the one which should first be eliminated. Moisture, bacterial activity, germination and storage in large heaps may be listed as the main causes of spontaneous combustion.
When feeds are curing and drying, bacterial activity is always present, and everybody knows that wet or green feed in storage will heat. Unless the heat is carried away by ventilation, it may become so intense as to set fire to the feed, and this sad result is hastened by large heaps or quantities stored in one place.
Because hay is subject to spontaneous combustion, it should be thoroughly dried before being put in the barn. The use of common table salt is recommended when storing loose hay which is not thoroughly cured since a sprinkling of salt reduces the moisture and thereby lowers the danger of fire. From three to ten pounds of salt to each ton of hay will be sufficient for hay stored in wet weather.

JOTS.... Jokes & Jingles

-BY- JENNIE MAE

Penn Blair, while finishing up improvements at the Buckhorn Cafe this week which include enlarging of the kitchen, has further plans in store for his establishment. They call for an extension of the building at the front to take in the space formerly used by the service station and the installation of additional air coolers. This, Mr. Blair explains, will enable them to handle any size banquet with ease. Also in progress this week is a building program at the Russell Hotel which provides for the construction of a sleeping porch off the second story of the east side, with space underneath for storage of guests' cars. Durward Lane, another progressive business man, explains his ability of being able to charge batteries at the low price stated in his Trades Day ad by showing us his new 1933 model Handy charger, which will charge as many as 12 batteries at one time and operates at a very small cost.

Sim Everett, after receiving a contest entry all the way from Dallas, has decided to give his rural customers a break. Another series of questions, first of which appears next week, will be open only to residents living outside the city limits and questions will not be received before 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Those who wish to try for the prize may bring their answers to the tailor shop at that hour. . . . Saw Mr. Cheek, already talking Reunion. . . . Hester Jordan blushes but does not deny the accusations that she went riding with an automobile salesman in a brand new car and the motor died on the road several miles from town. She also admits that it isn't a very good story.

Just to show you what a fellow's imagination and suppositions can drag him into, we want to quote an item from Flotsam and Jetsam, brainchild of John B. Sullivan of the Hamilton County News:

"Jennie Mae, who writes the excellent column, 'Jots, Jokes, and Jingles' in The Hico News Review, is on an eastern and northern tour this month. F. & J. is worried about her. In her last column, mailed in from Detroit, she says:

"Tomorrow we will leave the United States and cross into Canada for a short trip before returning to this country by way of Niagara Falls. Next week we'll be at the Fair. . . ."

"All the way through her column she keeps using 'we' without explaining the plural pronoun. Then she mentions the trip to Niagara Falls. Those two facts taken together sound bad for Editor Roland Holford. Some time ago he lost Dink from his staff when she married George Goughly and moved to Hamilton. Newspaper folks mourned for him then, fearing he would never be able to replace Dink. But he got a break such as few editors get. He got Jennie Mae. Editors do not get breaks like that often. When a man has had Dink and Jennie Mae both on his staff, he has had about all the good things to which he is entitled in the weekly newspaper business. Now if Jennie Mae's trip to Niagara Falls means what such trips so often do, Holford is in a tough spot. Condolences, Holford, just in case."

Mr. Sullivan has flattered us in more ways than one. But if we were the least bit sensitive our pride might rebel against some of his ideas. For instance, only this week we were approached by a salesman who tried to high-pressure us into buying a well-known brand of aluminum for our hope—I hope—I hope chest. Such salesmen never worry us for long, as we usually dismiss them with the admission that we have no hopes and they are usually so emotionally affected that they nod their heads in sympathy and depart in haste. However, occasionally there comes along one who graciously offers suggestions and even, a time or two, there have been those who offered their personal assistance. And here comes Mr. Sullivan with a glamorously-fabricated story that he obviously dares to hope is true. The word "we" was not used with an intention of deceiving our public, Mr. Sullivan, but merely to include such amiable but unromantic traveling companions as our mother, kid sister, uncle and girl friend (ours, not his). So don't be so hasty in forming such conclusions in the future. You ought to know how women are.

DROWNING TRAGEDY

Takes Life of Popular Youth of The Fairy Community
 James Dudley Richardson, 17, Fairy High School senior who met a tragic death from drowning Sunday afternoon while swimming with a group of companions at Blue Hole on Honey Creek, was buried Monday afternoon at Fairy.

Friends from all surrounding counties and over the State gathered at the State gymnasium to pay final tribute to the young man who had spent his entire life in that community. The services were conducted by Elders Robert LeCroix of Coolidge, Legard May of Houston, and O. O. Newton of Pottsville.

Pallbearers were Audie Parks, J. N. Pitts, J. R. Hutton, Robert Hedgpeth, Windell Wolfe, and Vernon Jackson. Flower girls were classmates and friends from Hico and Fairy.

Survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Richardson; two sisters, Mrs. D. E. Allison, League City; Miss Charlene Richardson of the home; a brother, Hershall of Fairy, a grandmother, Mrs. A. L. Newman, and a number of uncles and aunts also survive.

Young Richardson was prominent in social and school activities, being a member of the Fairy High School basketball team and of the Hico American Legion softball team on which he held the center field position. A large spray of flowers from the several softball teams rested beside his casket.

In an all too short but eventful life James Dudley had surrounded himself with friends, both old and young, who sought his companionship and were rewarded with his eager, sincere friendship. It was this, and his qualities of unselfishness and thoughtfulness, that attracted and bound others to him.

He was born November 18, 1921, at Fairy, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Richardson. He was converted by Elder LeCroix, and joined the Church of Christ two years ago.

Among the out-of-town relatives here for the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Burden, Rochester, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence May and two daughters, Moody, Lester, Betty, Bryan; and Onie Andrews, Temple.

James Dudley had gone to the creek with a group of young friends from Fairy, who had been in the water some time when one of them observed that he was missing. When a search of the banks on either side proved fruitless, a dog was summoned from town, and Roy French recovered the body a few minutes later near the spot where he was last seen.

Sixth Installment
SYNOPSIS

Barry Haveril leaves his Texas home to see the country, meets a man who has just been shot who turns out to be a cousin of his, Jesse Conroy. When they part, Barry leaves for home and comes across the body of his murdered brother, Robert. Barry starts searching for the murderer and finds a spot to get gold, and then goes to Tylersville to get money for it. There he meets Judge Blue and his daughter, Lucy, who aids him to get $450 for his gold. Judge Blue also tells him that the gun Jesse gave him is the gun of a murderer known as the Laredo Kid. The Judge invites Barry up to visit him and there Barry meets Jesse. He accuses Jesse of killing his brother and of being the Laredo Kid. Judge Blue comes up behind, knocks Barry unconscious and tells Jesse (Laredo) that Barry knows where there is gold and he's keeping him until he finds out where it is. Barry escapes, however, and as he is riding through the mountains a shot whizzes past his ear. The man who fired the shot explains that he thought Barry was the Laredo Kid and that he had pledged himself to killing the Kid. Barry and his new acquaintance, Timberline, become friends. Barry leaves him in his search for Laredo and finally goes to Red Rock where, going through a valley, he sees three men attempting to capture a beautiful girl. Barry rescues her, finds where she lives and then heads for a nearby cabin in which he formerly lived. There he finds Timberline occupying the cabin.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
"Yuh're always trackin' me down, ain't you?" said Timberline.
"Whose cabin is this, anyhow?" demanded Barry.
"Mine. I found it. The man that made it must have left the country. There ain't been nobody livin' in it for more'n a year; yuh c'n tell by the way the brush has grown up. What yuh laughin' at, Hyena?"

Barry sat up and felt glad that he hadn't come back to a deserted cabin. It was good to see old Timberline again. He said:
"I reckon we've got to be partners whether we like it or not."
"Tomorrow morning, I'll show you where the gold is."
"It don't happen to be back towards Red Rock, do it?"
"Yes, Why?"

"That's lucky," said Timberline. "Yuh got to go to Red Rock anyhow tomorrow. That is, unless—Yuh didn't happen to see her today, did you?"
"Who?" said Barry.
"A real purty girl. Name of Lucy," said Timberline. "Got to know her purty good when I come through. She'd had a sort of comedown in life since yuh saw her last. Look in at the Gold Nugget Lunch Counter. Yuh'll find her there."

They turned in early that night, turned out early in the morning. Barry thought, "Strange how everything's worked out! Today he would see Lucy—but yesterday he had seen that other girl."

Barry, feeling queer about it all, rode on into Red Rock, looking for the Gold Nugget Lunch Counter.

Lucy, behind the counter, was cutting an apple pie when he came in. He stood there and stared. Lucy, too, stared. Lucy Blue at all, his little sister Lucy!

"Barry!" she cried, and dropped pie and knife, and came running into his arms.

Her husband, Zachary Blount, was dead of pneumonia. She had tried so hard not to be glad! For he had been a brute, and she had found him to be as crooked as a stake-and-ride fence.

"I found out so many things," said Lucy in a hushed voice, both her little hands hugging one of Barry's big brown ones. "Judge Blue—he is a terrible man, Barry. Nobody knows it; everyone thinks he's grand. But he is the worst man in the world."

They chattered for half an hour and didn't get said half the things they wanted to say. Barry rode back to see Timberline at the creek, promising to return the next day.

Arrived at the creek he found Timberline's two companions. "Look here, Timber," he said soberly, "we're partners. But I don't know as much about gold mining as a pig knows about a fiddle, and while you're a man who ought to know it all, all you do is jump around like a grasshopper in a hot skillet. Let's go over and get us a third partner, some man that knows about making a mine pay."

"Shore," he said, mollified with never another word from Barry. "Shore, Sundown. Don't I know it? They's a young squirt name of March, Ken March, son of ol' Big Moments March, an' he knows sassfras from gumbos anyhow. He's a minin' engineer, born o' minin' daddy an' granddaddy an' he's in town. I'll go get him."

"Grease the trail and slide," said Barry.

The girl rested there, fingers gripping but making no move to draw the weapon. He stared at the man facing him and fell into utter confusion.

He had been so sure of Jesse Conroy's voice—but was this Cousin Jesse?

The girl, flushed and indignant, broke the brief electrical silence. "What do you mean by this sort of thing?" she demanded hotly. "What right have you to break in to our house like this?"

Barry said, looking not at her at all, but steadily at her companion: "You are Jesse Conroy."

The other laughed in his face, yet his eyes remained as watchful as a hawk. Also his ungauntered right hand, like Barry's, was on his gun. He said drawlingly: "Just now you called me another name. Laredo Kid, wasn't it? Suppose you make up your mind."

"You are Jesse Conroy," said Barry. "You're the Laredo Kid."

The two sprang apart.

Timberline slid. Barry opened his roll, got out his razor and went briskly to work on the stubble on his face. He washed at the creek, he had an extra shirt, and put it on.

He stopped his horse near the barn. A voice said, "Lookin' for somebody, stranger?"

Barry didn't turn. He just said crisply, "Whose place is this?" "Judge Blue's, o' course," said the stable hand.

"There's a girl lives here," said Barry. "Who is she?" "Why, Miss Lucy, o' course!" "Judge at home?" asked Barry, and was glad to receive a prompt "No" in answer. So he asked next: "Miss Lucy? She's here, though?"

Yes, Miss Lucy was there. Barry left his horse at the stable and walked on to the house.

Then he heard a man speaking, and Barry stiffened to a dead stop. The man in there was making love to a pretty girl, and he sounded in dead earnest—and there was not a doubt in Barry Haveril's mind that at last he had come up with Cousin Jesse, the long sought Laredo Kid.

Barry didn't even think of stopping to knock at the closed door. He simply threw it open and burst in upon the two people in the big living room.

The two sprang apart. Barry, his eyes blazing, cried hotly: "Got you, Laredo! You—"

He broke short off, and the hand that had slid down to his

The girl looked from one to another, not knowing what to think. "You're the man—" she began.

Barry nodded. "On the trail—yes. And you're Lucy."

"I am Lucy Blue, yes," she said quite coolly.

"Then we used to be friends," said Barry. "Friends for one short day anyhow. I am Barry Haveril. It was three years ago, at Tylersville."

She gasped and her eyes opened wide. Then she studied him harder than ever.

"I—I wouldn't know you," she said.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest soft particles of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or otherwise, your stomach often grows and the food sits in your stomach. You feel sick and upset all over. Doan's and more takes a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes three little blue tablets called Doan's and for indigestion to make the entire stomach, both nervous, relieve distress in ten minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and, see Doan's package papers. Ask for Doan's for indigestion.

TELEPHONE—maybe you won't have to go

Next to a personal call—a telephone visit is the most satisfactory. Often a sale—an adjustment—the ironing out of details—those things that are difficult to handle unless you can talk them over—can be accomplished without even leaving your office. Give thought to your Telephone—you'll find often that you can telephone.

said slowly, "You have changed a great deal."

"Sometimes a few years make differences. I didn't know you either. And my cousin here, Jesse Conroy, has changed more than we have, I think. But I knew his voice—"

"Is that why you thought him your cousin?" At last she laughed a little, but even so there remained a tenseness in the room. "Well, I can tell you that you've made a mistake. This is Tom Haveril—"

"Tom Haveril!" asked Barry frowning. "I never heard of any Tom Haveril!"

"If you should happen to be a Haveril," said the other man smilingly. "I suppose you know someone hereabouts who can vouch for you?"

"Why, of course!" exclaimed Barry. "My sister! You know her, too, Miss Lucy! You know her in Tylersville; she has the same name as you, Lucy Haveril; she was, then Lucy Blount."

"Oh!" exclaimed Lucy. "Of course I know her. She's my very dearest friend. If—if she should really prove to be your sister, I'd be so happy!"

A dull, baffled rage seethed within him: He knew this was Jesse, the Laredo Kid—only he didn't know!

"I'll be going now," he said slowly, and felt defeated. To the man he said, "If you're Cousin Jesse, and I think you are, then you're Laredo too, and I'm going to kill you."

He headed straight to Red Rock to see his sister and have her go out to see Judge Blue's to talk to Lucy. The first man he encountered was old Timberline, just starting back to camp.

Timber greeted him with enthusiasm, inspired, Barry suspected, by a drink or two. The old man said:

"I seen young Ken March, Sundown, an' it's all fixed. He was jus' lookin' around for a chance like this. You see, he's a minin' man an' always was, but not like me. Minin' engine-er, is what he says he is."

Barry said, "Fine."

He rode on. A few minutes later he saw the many yellow lights of Red Rock down below him and heard Red Rock roistering. He thought: "I'm going to get Sister Lucy out of that place. She can keep house for Timber and me—when we get a house."

But Lucy wasn't at the lunch counter, and her assistant didn't know where she was or when she was coming back. Where did she live? Back yonder a piece, with the Prices.

Mrs. Price, sitting on her porch when Barry rode up, hadn't seen Lucy and wasn't expecting her; it wasn't time for her to be coming home.

Barry left word that he'd be back, and rode to the saloon. There were perhaps forty men in the place, yet almost instantly Barry's roving eye found Tom Haveril, and marked who it was with him. It was Judge Blue.

Barry strode through the long room making a bee line to the two at the far end of the bar.

"Hello, Judge," he said quietly. The Judge regarded him a moment without speaking, taking him in from head to foot. Then, "Do I know you?" he said. "Don't seem to place you."

"I hoped you'd remember me. I'm Barry Haveril. Three years ago, over at Tylers—"

"I remember that day. I remember Barry Haveril. Changed a lot, haven't you?"

"Not more than most folks around my age do in three years. I was just a kid then. I guess."

The Judge's eyes bored into him. "And you—if it was you—walked out on me that night without a word!"

"There were reasons," said Barry.

The Judge nodded slowly. "My daughter Lucy," he said presently, "was beset by some ruffians on the trail. If it was you who gave her a hand, I have you to thank. And if you can ever lead me to the ruffians—"

"One was called Sarboe," said Barry. "But I didn't come here to talk of this, and I don't want any thanks. But maybe you can tell me who this man is that you're drinking with?"

"Why," cried the Judge, and sounded heartier, "It's my friend Tom Haveril! By thunder! If you are Barry Haveril, you two might be related!"

"I'm not hunting any kinship," said Tom Haveril. "I think we are cousins, and that this is Jesse Conroy. They used to call him the Laredo Kid. You'd know, Judge!"

"I'd know Laredo!" said Judge Blue mildly.

The man at the Judge's side said, never more drawlingly: "Look at his gun, Judge. Like the one the Kid used to tote, isn't it?"

"You're a stranger here," he said to Barry. "Tom Haveril isn't. Many will stop up and vouch for him even though he hasn't been here all his life. How about you?"

The up-and-up young rancher spoke swiftly: "He says Lucy Blount is his sister. He says she can tell us."

"Well then," exclaimed the Judge, and sounded hearty once more. "Let's step over and see Lucy Blount! Anything she says goes with me. Come ahead, boys." (To Be Continued)

It is interesting to hear that Miss Emily Bax, known as the author of "Miss Bax of the Embassy," recommends the diplomatic service to any American girl who has a sense of adventure, a desire to see the world, and who can laugh at trials. Miss Bax knows the right qualifications, for she served as shorthand typist at the American Embassy in London for three successive ambassadors.

Girls in the diplomatic service must be ready and willing to move to another country at a moment's notice, Miss Bax says, and live in whatever quarters that country provides. But the job will be interesting and will enrich a girl's usefulness in her own country.

Miss Bax is an English woman but has applied for United States citizenship papers. She is living here now.

She was a freshman at Allegheny College then and was eager to see the telephone, which was considered a childish gadget at that time. Because people laughed at it in its days of infancy shows how wrong they can be about new ideas, Miss Tarbell says. "It just doesn't do to close your mind on anything," is her comment.

In selecting a monument to mark the last resting place of one who has passed on, you'll want a design of dignity and grace, wrought with precise and careful workmanship. Such a stone will go down through the years; a mark of permanence in a world that values the names of those who have stood for worthwhile things during their lives.

May we suggest that you come to our yard and select one of the beautiful designs we have made up.
