

HEARTS WALKING

Mrs. Harry Pugh Smith

Chapter V Synopsis

Janet Phillips finds herself left out of things when her wealthier friends in Bay City come home from their finishing schools and colleges. Priscilla Leigh—at the moment interested in Janet's old friend Gordon Key—is making herself disagreeable. Jim Phillips, Janet's brother, has brought her to the dance to which Gordon promised to take her. Jim has been subbing as the golf pro for the summer and has offered to give rich, red-headed Helen Sanders lessons. She mistakes Jim for a club member at the dance and ignores his invitation to dance. She finds that Howard Leigh has falsified Jim's position and hurries to explain.

Jim was starting down into her lovely pointed face and it seemed to be wiped quite free of sophistication and affectation. He had not until then realized that she was very young, much younger than her pose.

"You forgive me?"
"Certainly!"
Again she laid her hand on his arm and he learned that ecstasy can cut like a knife. "Will you dance the next dance with me?" she asked softly.
"I'll be delighted," he stammered, "only I warn you I'm an awful dub on the dance floor. I'm no lady's man."
"Perhaps that's why I like you so much."

Nothing in his experience had prepared him for the rapturous emotions which surged through him at the feel of her supple, fragrant body. Once when he bent his head a little bronze curl brushed his cheek, thrilling him from head to foot. He had a wayward desire to press his lips to the seductive hollow in the slender ivory column of her throat.

"You dance beautifully," murmured Miss Sanders when the music ended.

He did not trust himself to speak. Howard Leigh was coming toward them with a scowl and still Jim said nothing.

"I'll see you in the morning," she asked, "for our first lesson?"
Jim swallowed hard. "Yes," he said unsteadily, although he knew that the first lesson was behind them.

It was not apparent on the surface that Janet Phillips no longer occupied the same position in respect to her old crowd which she had once held. She did not suffer for lack of partners at the dance that night.

Gordon did not look happy. In spite of his mother's persuasions, Gordon had never liked Priscilla.

Even when it was her whom to smile he never knew what minute she might turn upon him. Janet understood the distressed pucker between his eyes and why in spite of himself he glanced longingly at her from across Priscilla's sleek blond head. When some one cut in on him he could not resist the temptation to tap Janet's partner on the shoulder.

"Hello, Gordon," said Janet.
Gordon drew a breath of relief as his arms closed about her. It was as if he had escaped unpredictable perils and rediscovered security.

Involuntarily Janet's voice took on a soothing note.
"You mustn't feel conscience-stricken about me, Gordon," she said gently.

"I feel terrible about letting you down!" cried Gordon in a choked voice.

Janet still found herself in the anomalous position of defending him from herself. "It isn't as though we were ever formally engaged, or as if you had flitted me at the altar," she said kindly.
"I wouldn't have hurt you for the world. My one consolation is that you're too good for me," he said with a mournful smile.

It was Janet's cue to bolster up his self-esteem by a denial of his sudden vision of truth. "Yes," she said, "I am."

She wished some one would cut in, but her friends were too tactful. She muttered an excuse when the music stopped and escaped to the dressing room.

She arrived at the ballroom to find that her partner for the next dance had looked everywhere for her before retiring in dudgeon to the bar. Had Janet followed her inclination she would have hunted for Jim and asked him to take her home. She felt sure he was bored to death and eager for an excuse to go, but at that moment a couple drifted by her on the dance floor. Janet could scarcely believe her eyes. From the rapt expression on his rugged face, her brother with Miss Helen Sanders in his arms was anything but bored.

"Oh, no!" cried Janet.
She did not realize she had spoken aloud until someone who had come up behind her addressed her. "Shall we finish this dance?"

She turned sharply. Tony Ryan stood at her elbow. Evidently he had only that moment arrived. She intended to make an excuse for not dancing with him. However, he gave her no chance to do anything of the kind. He merely put out his arms and danced off with her as if he believed any girl would feel flattered to be singled out by the famous Tony Ryan.

"That at least needn't worry you any longer."

"I always get what I go after," he said quietly.

"Modest, aren't you?"

"No, just sure of myself. There's a difference."

"Who am I to take exception to your pride in your accomplishments," she inquired bitterly. "You are on your way up, I am on my way out."

He stared at her curiously.

"Yes?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "As you may know, a generation ago my family was prominent locally."

Now my mother works in a store and so shall I when I finish my course in interior decorating."

He was studying the dead end of his cigarette. "If you're an expert on interior decorating, I might have a job for you."

"A job?"

"Perhaps you aren't interested in jobs."

"Oh, yes," said Janet with a

"I always get what I go after," he said quietly.

Janet was glad when the music ended, glad when Priscilla came skating across the room to assert her prior claim to the visiting celebrity, glad when everybody crowded around Tony Ryan so that Janet was edged to the extreme rim of the group and finally extricated from it entirely by Ted Hughes with whom she had the next dance.

The last dance of the evening was the only one in which no cut-ins were allowed. Every one was supposed to dance it with his escort, but Janet had not seen Jim for an hour. She had a notion he was lurking outside with a cigarette. However, she made a circuit of the veranda without locating him. She was perched on the porch railing staring somberly at the setting moon, when Tony Ryan again came up behind her.

"Want to dance?" he asked.

"No," said Janet without turning her head.

There was an interval of silence which Janet found trying. In the end it was she who broke what had begun to seem a contest between their wills.

"It must be nice to return to the old home town in its role of conquering hero," she remarked in a light, disdainful voice.

He laughed. "It's a complex, I suppose. I could never convince myself that I had outgrown Shanty Town until I came back here and had the seal of approval put upon me by the elite of Bay City. Queer, isn't it?"

She gave him a grudging glance.

hostile smile. "I'm interested in any chance to earn money. It's so important to make money. Nothing else matters."

"I've bought the old Radcliffe mansion."

"My grandfather's house!"

"I signed the papers a couple of hours ago."

"But," cried Janet breathlessly, "it's dreadfully run down. That's why Mother let the property go practically for back taxes. We couldn't afford to live there and no one would rent it. People don't care for those huge, old-fashioned places any more."

"I do," said Tony Ryan. "It's like this," he explained. "When I was a ragged alley rat I promised myself that some day I'd buy the best of everything. At that time the old Radcliffe mansion represented my idea of the most elegant thing of its kind."

"It broke Mother's heart to give up the place," said Janet icily. "It's one of the few times I ever saw her cry. Since then I've gone blocks out of my way not to pass the house. It isn't pleasant to be reminded that the glories of your past are past."

"If it would be painful, forget it."

"Don't be ridiculous," said Janet. "Paupers cannot afford sentiment."

"That's settled, then? Shall we fix a day to go out and look things over? Tomorrow?"

"If you like."

"I'll pick you up at two at your home."

She gave him a curious glance. "Won't you rattle around like a marble, alone in that huge place?"

He shook his head. "Of course I shan't live there long alone," he said.

She stared. "You're going to be married?"

"Naturally," he said. "One can't select a wife as quickly as a house."

"You haven't selected one yet?" cried Janet in a dismayed voice.

He grinned. "All I know is that she'll have to be out of the top drawer."

Janet decided she hated him. "Locally you'll find Priscilla Leigh our highest priced article," she remarked disdainfully.

"So she's given me to understand," said Tony Ryan.

So far as Berenice and Bill Carter were concerned, the party at Lou Fletchers that same evening was not a success. They ran the radio and danced and made a great deal of noise. The people in the adjoining apartment knocked on the wall, but no one paid any attention. They were a quiet middle-aged couple and did not belong to "The Bunch," as Berenice's friends called themselves.

The Sheltons were middle-aged too. "But we don't let it get us down!" cried May, shrieking with laughter when Guy draped a tapestry from the wall about his shoulders and pretended to be a bullfighter in action.

Guy was screamingly funny, or so Berenice thought, but Bill sat in the corner and sulked just as she had expected him to do.

She went over to Bill. "Ready to go?"

"What do you think?" he asked.

He did not trouble himself to tell the Fletchers he had enjoyed the party. Berenice seethed with anger.

"I hope you're satisfied," she said when they were alone in their apartment.

Bill stalked into the dressing room and began to hunt for his pajamas. "If I refuse to go to their damned parties, you're sore. If I give in and go, you're sore. It's got so it's hell around here any way you take it."

JENNIE MAE

This story came to us second-hand, but it sounds like what Johnson Patterson would say about his friend and neighbor, County Judge J. B. Pool, and his inherent honesty. Mr. Patterson, it seems, was in Hamilton recently and stopped by the county judge's office to chat a while. The office was closed but a note on the door disclosed Mr. Pool's whereabouts. Instead of saying "Gone to Lunch" as some people would have done, Mr. Pool had his sign read, "Gone With the Wind."

Willard Leach says a fishing trip is a fishing trip, but there are limitations. Recently he and Max Hoffman took a day off to fish at Lake Brownwood and Willard hasn't been the same since. He said, "When we got there, here came Max dragging out his lines and tackle." Can you beat that—and on a fishing trip!

Mrs. George Tabor believes Ripley has nothing on her. Several weeks ago his famous "Believe-It-Or-Not" feature in one of the daily papers carried a picture of a black and white mule, which from all the talk going on, seems to be quite an oddity. Personally, not being an authority on such topics, we wouldn't know. But we'll take Mrs. Tabor's and Mr. Ripley's word for it. She has a horse with a young colt about 12 days old that is black, but has white legs and other splashes of white about its body.

One of the most practical Mother's Day gifts were heard about is the one Porter Pittman of Stephenville gave his mother, Mrs. A. J. Mullican. Mr. Mullican says he came down from Stephenville with the necessary supplies and materials and carried and repaired Mrs. Mullican's house—a combination birthday and Mother's Day present. Mr. Mullican says they were very surprised and really appreciated the gift—and especially since the guest did the work.

Cotton Dinner Dress

Ideal for Southern wear is this dinner dress of white birdseye pique worn by Gretchen Thomson, a favorite in New Orleans social circles. The snug fitted jacket is all-over embroidered with gay Alpine flowers. Such a jacket is extremely practical, says the National Cotton Council, for it can do double duty being equally appropriate for sports wear.

FOR SALE: A Good Home In A Poor Town

Actual Value $6000 . . . Will Sacrifice For $3000

DID YOU EVER SEE AN ADVERTISEMENT LIKE THIS? No. Not exactly, but some advertisements mean as much.

Your attractive, comfortable home, that you have probably spent years in efforts of labor and savings to build has a valuation; that valuation is derived from its location and depends on the wealth of its location. A nice house costing $6,000.00, constructed and erected in a desert away from any center of business or wealth, would be of little value to anyone; on the other hand, the same home in a progressive community, with good business will be worth many times its cost to the owner.

So if your home is in a dead town its valuation is smaller, but if your home is located in a live town with good business supported by its local citizens its value is greater. This case does not apply only to city properties, it is an established fact that it affects rural sections in the same manner.

TRADE WITH YOUR LOCAL FIRMS — Make business good for them and you make business good for yourself as well as benefitting from the full value of your investments.

Congressman Garrett Announces His Candidacy For Re-Election

In announcing my candidacy for re-election, I desire to refer to my record in 1933 and outline the various actions I have taken concerning same.

Free Speech and Free Press
I have strongly advocated and emphasized the principle of free speech and free press. Strictly adhering to that principle, I have not denounced either a constituent or a colleague in Congress, through the press or through the medium of the Congressional Record, for either their actions or their comments contrary to my interests or favorable to an opponent.

Veterans Legislation
I have favored in 1933, as now, such legislation as would provide for the return of foreign wars who are in need of assistance from their country they sought to save.

Immigration
I have favored in 1933, as now, such legislation as would provide for the return of foreign wars who are in need of assistance from their country they sought to save.

Foreign Affairs
I have favored in 1933, as now, such legislation as would provide for the return of foreign wars who are in need of assistance from their country they sought to save.

Control, Commerce and Labor
I have always favored the principles of private ownership and freedom of business enterprise.

Agriculture
The most important industry in my District is Agriculture. It is confronted with many vexing problems. It is easy for one who wishes to aid the plight of the farmer, but it is hard for him to follow up his statement with a plan, for such a plan must be developed through months and probably years of study and with the proper national perspective.

Agriculture
The most important industry in my District is Agriculture. It is confronted with many vexing problems. It is easy for one who wishes to aid the plight of the farmer, but it is hard for him to follow up his statement with a plan, for such a plan must be developed through months and probably years of study and with the proper national perspective.

and sound program should be provided to remove this cause of farm tenancy. It has been said "You cannot make landlords out of tenants until you stop the thing that is making tenants out of landlords."

In my further efforts to cooperate with agriculture, every cotton farmer is aware of the bill which I have introduced in Congress calling for the redemption of tax-exempt certificates issued under the Bankhead Act, voted prior to 1936.

"FRIENDLY SUGGESTIONS" ON HEALTH DANGEROUS

Austin, Texas, May 20.—"The responsiveness of the American public to unsound health suggestions from friends, acquaintances and other less impersonal sources is very general. Pads and fancies, lacking basic worth as well as common sense, thus literally are rampant throughout the land. Although many of the so-called friendly suggestions that are ardently applied by the too-trusting or gullible are not responsible for more than temporary harm or inconvenience, others are likely to result in serious complications and may even terminate in death," says Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"As a case in point, some time ago a man, while at an evening gathering, suddenly experienced abdominal pain, and was advised by no less than three of the party to take a dose of oil. This suggestion he immediately adopted. He actually was suffering from appendicitis, and taking the oil aggravated an extensive peritonitis which caused the loss of his life. His fate, however, may influence others who experience pain of this type, or in fact an illness of any kind, to seek professional counsel rather than to rely on the usually spontaneous suggestions of well-meaning though ill-informed persons.

"While health and illness are high up in the conversational scale, the fact remains that only those skilled in the practice of medicine should be relied upon for advice of any kind relating to both bodily health and to the curing of an ailment.

"Doctors, through long training and wide personal experience, are qualified to recognize the cause of symptoms and thus define the illness. Proper diagnosis is essential to proper treatment. And those outside the profession, bright as they may be in their particular fields, cannot safely assume the role of the family physician, either for themselves or for others."

SUBSCRIBERS - NEWS & VIEWS

With enlisting proceeding at a rapid pace, the vast army of News Review readers grows daily, possibly incited by widespread propaganda emanating from the office of Chief of Staff Holford relative to the merits of the aforesaid newspaper.

One of the first military objectives achieved was renewing the News Review and Semi-Weekly which for several years have gone to the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Booth, Route 3, Mrs. Booth who transacted the deal, was accompanied on her visit to the office by Mrs. W. F. Herricks, herself an ardent follower of the home paper, and two of the latter's grandchildren. Both ladies quite enthusiastically stated they'd rather miss their daily rations than the News Review.

To further prove that we have renewed the subscription of the Tyler office of the Gulf States Telephone Co., an alert organization whose general manager, Oscar Burton, keeps up with front line activities going on around Hico as closely as if he were one of its progressive citizens.

On a recent visit to Hico, Brad Corrigan of Hamilton reported that the Germans had just taken Olin. We might attribute Mr. Corrigan's apparent lack of worry over the fate of his home city to the difficulties the enemy would encounter in attempting to traverse the road from here in to Hamilton. As further re-inforcement, we have marked up Mr. Corrigan's subscription and hope we can keep him pacified for another year.

W. F. Todd, Route 2, initiated an investigation after missing his weekly copy of the News Review, finally remedying the deplorable situation by having us renew his home paper and, for good measure, the Semi-Weekly Farm News also.

Our activities, which may be traced over considerable territory, have spread as far as Iredell, where we have renewed the N-R of H. A. Simpson.

Decorations for distinguished service might be in order for D. R. Proffitt, who renews every year in May so he can call the News Review subscription his wife's birthday present. Mrs. Proffitt has always seemed very well satisfied, and we must hand it to Mr. Proffitt for killing two birds with one stone in such a facile manner.

J. R. Massengill, City, who assured us that the city water supply is perfectly safe and that residents who have been worried over the condition of the water may rest assured that necessary repairs have been made and the water in the future would be up to the usual high standards, has another year of the News Review coming to him since we recently renewed his subscription.

We usually just renew the subscription of Sam Kirkland, City, and never let him know until the first of the month. Mr. Kirkland, between duties at the Ellington feed store, once gave us this liberty, and we have found it to be convenient and agreeable—at least on our part.

C. C. Christopher, City, the man who contains order and keeps watch over Hico business establishments while the rest of us are geting in our required hours of sleep, he can keep up with what goes on during the daylight hours when he's asleep.

Mrs. R. H. Wright, Route 3, was never one to let us down, so although pleased, we were not particularly surprised when she visited us one Saturday to renew her subscription. Mrs. Wright, active in community affairs at Fairy, is usually accompanied by her daughter-in-law, who is a most charming and attractive young woman.

Miss Mildred Houser, Route 7, takes care of their News Review subscription in a most capable manner judging from her prompt renewals after the expiration date rolls around. We like Miss Houser's interest in the paper and hope that the enthusiasm of other members of the family is comparable to hers.

Other Iredell recruits to the fold include E. A. Koonsman, who let one week pass without renewing his subscription, but who can't be charged with neglect because the second week didn't catch him. He renewed in plenty of time to receive that week's paper.

Mrs. J. D. Crow, who with her father and her young son recently left their many Hico friends to make their home in Iredell, is seen quite often here visiting her friends and attending to business, and on one of these trips took advantage of the opportunity of renewing her Hico paper.

Miss Sue Tabor has renewed for her mother, Mrs. Ira Tabor, Route 1. Although we know that both Mr. and Mrs. Tabor enjoy the home paper, we suspect the subscription is a result of Miss Tabor's handiwork and we proffer her our thanks.

Although his subscription lacked several weeks of having expired, W. H. Luckie, City, said he wanted to pay up while he had the money. Although we believe Mr. Luckie would always have a dollar for the News Review (he always has, ever since we've known him) we are glad he thought of us first, and now he's paid up until June 5, 1941.
