VOLUME LVI

HICO, TEXAS, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1940.

Here In HICO

President Roosevelt took to the air Wednesday night in the first of five major political speeches he has announced, the purpose of which he describes as correction of falsehoods given in an attempt to terrify the American people. And the President was in fine fettle for the fray, judging from his words and intonations. He is an old campaigner, and in his own words, "loves a good fight."

While it is unfortunate that the campaign has been placed on the plane to which it has descended on the part of the opposition, it was our thought that perhaps, in a democracy, such things are for the best. At least, the President will get some satisfaction out of the fray, which will tend to take his mind off the more weighty matters, about which it seems that nothing much can be done that hasn't been done.

We can always see both sides of any proposition—our side and the wrong side. But with so much being said about so many things, we sometimes wonder what it's all about. We did notice that we were far more tolerant about missing one of our favorite radio programs because of the Democratic campaign arrangements than we were the previous week about a similar disappointment on account of Republican usurpation of the air.

During the talk we heard Mr. Roosevelt talking about a "blitzkrieg of verbal incendiary bombs." Our attention having lapsed momentarily, we were startled at first, thinking the speaker was referring to the opposition as "bums" in which he might be justified, at that.

Personally we feel that the country is fortunate in having a leader who is as steady and able as Mr. Roosevelt. And his statement that "it is for peace that I shall continue to labor all the days of my life" should reassure some who have been having the jitters over propaganda from the GOP that we were being led into war.

Yes, the Democrats' cause seems to be gaining, now that the President has started speaking to the people. And this in spite of recurrent reports to the contrary. We heard a part of Wilkie's speech a little while later, but frankly couldn't tell anyone what he was trying to say. It might be because we turned the radio off shortly after he was introduced.

One of the most unique birth announcements we have seen arrived this week from Mr. and Mrs. Urban D. Brown of Austin. Mr. Brown, inspector of materials in the State Highway Department of Austin, will be remembered as supervisor of the WPA paving job in Hico several years ago.

The Browns had a special report made up, simulating a contractor's report, bearing the information that Betty Jo, weight 6 pounds, 13½ ounces, made her appearance at the Seton Hospital on October 17, 1940. Other specifications and information contained on the report were interesting, but might not bear publication. We are saving the announcement until the young lady grows up, at which time we hope to present it to her for her inspection and watch the fireworks when she goes to work on her mother and dad for having announced her arrival in such an unorthodox fashion.

Until then, and in the meantime, we rejoice with the Browns in their new status as father and mother, knowing full well that they are in for a lot of joy and satisfaction which will fully repay them for any expense or inconvenience to which they may be put.

Pleasant visitors in the News Review office Monday of this week were our old-time friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Borland, of Burnet. They were accompanied by her stepfather, Abner Pickett, son and nephew, A. J. Harwell of Kingsland, and her sister, Mrs. J. B. Hoover, of Concord, California.

Mr. Borland, who likes to pull our leg, and has liked so doing ever since we made his acquaintance at Grand Saline when we were a callow youth and not accustomed to the ways of a weary world, came in making noises like a Wilkieite. We couldn't stand that, but were relieved shortly by his chuckle and remark that we knew better than to believe he had descended to that.

The Borlands have a nice home close in to town at Burnet which they want to sell or trade. We are throwing this semi-advertisement in free, just to show our old newspaperman friend that there is such a thing as appreciation. He told us one time, long ago, how to get along in the world and prosper. We've about forgotten the recipe, though.

PORTABLE MACHINERY WILL BE DEMONSTRATED AT REA SHOW NOV. 7-8

Portable farm machinery which may be moved to any point on the farm where an electric outlet is available will be demonstrated at the REA Farm Electric Equipment Show opening Nov. 7 for a two-day stand at Waldrop's Nursery. The show will be staged by the Rural Electrification Administration under sponsorship of Erath County, Hamilton County, and Comanche County Electric Cooperatives.

One of the most useful of these devices is the large electric motor, which, by means of an ingenious "motor toter", may be moved easily by one hand, and its power applied to any of a number of farm machines. Near the big tents, by use of a portable pumping unit, an irrigation system will be shown in actual operation. It is easily moved to any part of an electrified farm. There will be ensilage cutters that can be moved from one silo to another. Feed grinders that are easily moved by one man will be shown in actual operation, grinding local grains. There will be shellers, elevators, hoppers, hay choppers and many other pieces of equipment for the farm and home, all of them demonstrated under actual working conditions. Specialists will lecture on their uses, giving costs and facts, as they operate.

Farmers living near the show site will haul wagon and truck loads of their own grains for shelling, grinding, and chopping. Other farm equipment to be shown and demonstrated includes electric milkers, cream separators, milk coolers, electric chick and pig brooders and other poultry equipment, water systems, sterilizers, water heaters and washing machines.

The program for the first evening includes a "cooking duel", a lighting demonstration featuring the new low-cost "package" lighting fixtures, a wiring demonstration and a general discussion of irrigation systems, motors and various pieces of farm equipment. Continuing all the next day, afternoon and evening, with an intermission for supper, the show will feature demonstrations of special interest to women in the big auditorium tent. These programs are shared by Miss Oneta Litter, REA regional home electrification specialist, and Miss Maurine Herne, home economist of the State Extension Service and Miss Evelyn Bloomer, REA home electrification specialist traveling with the show.

At the same time, farm machinery demonstrations will be conducted on the grounds outside the tents by Mr. D. L. Grant, REA utilization specialist and a representative of the State Extension Service. In addition to the bigger motors and machines, inexpensive farm equipment designed by REA will be shown. Attracting wide interest wherever it is shown is a stock-tank water heater, which when equipped with a thermostat and fixed a few inches below the surface of a stock water tank, this heater will keep the water free of ice under any temperature, at low cost. The small equipment group includes a simular pig brooder using a 100-watt bulb with a wash-pan reflector for heat. Recent experience indicates that with all-night light in a brooder, heavy losses in early litters can be avoided.

An all electric lunch tent, operated by local women, will serve hot and cold foods to all who remain for the evening demonstrations.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HWAY. 281 ASSN. TO BE IN STEPHENVILLE NOV. 6

R. F. Higgs of Stephenville, president of the Highway 281 Association, has written J. N. Russell, president of the Hico Chamber of Commerce, relative to a meeting of that association to be held in Stephenville at 2 p. m. on Wednesday, Nov. 6.

"Your attendance and that of the officers of your organization and others interested in the further development of Highway 281 is requested," said Mr. Higgs in calling attention to the meeting.

The Highway 281 Association, formed at Lampasas several years ago, has done considerable work in promoting the development of Highway 281, known as the American Legion Memorial Highway. Now that the project is nearing completion with the finishing of existing gaps, it is possible that steps may be taken to have it designated as a military highway, connecting as it does strategic military points along the route.

Ridenhower Named Candidate
Ray Ridenhower, Junction rancher and son of Mrs. E. K. Ridenhower of Hico, was named candidate for Congress from the 21st Congressional district by the Republican party, according to relatives here.

Mr. Ridenhower has been in the sheep and goat ranching business in Kimble County for the past 15 years. He has many friends here who will be interested to know of his political aspirations.

GUEST SPEAKERS AT NEXT MEETING OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

J. Hilton Burk, manager of the Comanche Chamber of Commerce, and Judge Karl Lovelady of Stephenville will attend the next meeting of the Hico Chamber of Commerce, to be held at the Russell Hotel next Tuesday evening, Oct. 29, at 7:30 o'clock, according to announcement from the president of the local organization. Each of the visitors is expected to make a short address before the gathering.

Mr. Burk, formerly associated with the engineering department of the State Highway Commission, is an authority on road matters and a zealous worker for improved highways, especially in Central Texas, where his efforts have resulted in increased interest from the authorities in local road work.

Judge Lovelady, serving at present as county judge of Bosque County, will take office in January as State Senator from the 21st district, to which he was nominated in the Democratic primaries. He will bring greetings to his many friends in Hico, along with a discussion of topics of mutual interest.

A full attendance of the membership is desired at the meeting next Tuesday evening, which is the time for the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

TIGERS TAKE CONFERENCE GAME FROM GORMAN; ENGAGE DE LEON TONIGHT

The Tigers stepped up a notch in the district conference rating by defeating the Gorman High team 7-0 with a last-quarter touchdown in the game here last Friday night. Two previous threats to score made by the Hico team had been broken up by the visitors during three quarters of smashing line plays, end runs and short passes.

With renewed confidence as a result of their two victories in as many weeks, the Tigers engage De Leon tonight on the local field with a determination to chalk up their third consecutive win, although De Leon is conceded to have at least a two-touchdown better team, holding Dublin to a 20-0 win earlier in the season and allowing Hamilton only two touchdowns in their game last week.

Coach Pimson said the De Leon squad averaged at least 7 pounds more to the man than his own Tigers and admitted that they would be lucky if they could win. The kick-off will be at 7:45, and the band will give a 20-minute concert preceding the game.

Mr. Pimson wishes it announced that the City Council has agreed to sprinkle the field with the fire hose to settle the dust, which bothered some at last week's game.

Mr. McEver also has added a line of Texas Queen ultra-lifted feeds, and will have on display an attractive exhibit showing every ingredient contained in a sack of the feed.

CISCO REVIVAL ENDS WITH BAPTIZING OF 133 IN CLOSING WEEK

The Old Time Religion Big Tent Revival at Cisco was brought to a close Sunday night, Oct. 13, with a crowd estimated at 3500 people in attendance. Those people came from all over Texas and other states, according to Evangelist E. J. Hierholzer, who sent the following report of the closing services to the News Review:

"Around 200 were prayed for on the last healing nights, and were healed of all kinds of human sufferings and left rejoicing. Saturday night's altar call brought 141 souls weeping their way to the altar to make peace with God, and 48 were baptized that night. Sunday night's altar call brought 135 to the altar, and 48 more were baptized out of that bunch, and 37 had been baptized the week before, making a total of 133.

"It was truly a great and God-sent revival. People received the Holy Ghost and spoke in other tongues just as the spirit gave utterance, like in the Bible days. Some were filled with the Holy Ghost right in the water. So the meeting was brought to a close and everyone went on their way rejoicing like the sunsh in the 8th chapter of Acts.

"We wish to thank this newspaper for carrying the revival news and we can highly recommend it to our many friends as a paper worthy of support."

Rev. Hierholzer has returned to his home at Corpus Christi, after what he describes as an exceedingly successful revival at Cisco.

AMON CARTER TO DEDICATE WILL ROGERS MEMORIAL NOV. 15

Fort Worth, Oct. 22.—Amon G. Carter, Fort Worth publisher and benefactor, announced today he would officially dedicate the Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum on the night of November 15th to climax the Will Rogers Day celebration and to present the premier showing of the All-American Rodeo & Horse Show, in which Hico will be represented by Miss Margie Weiborn as Queen.

In dedicating this $2,000,000 shrine to the memory of a great American and Cowboy, Mr. Carter will unveil a gift he is presenting to the city of Fort Worth and the citizens of the Southwest, destined to be admired and appreciated by every man, woman and child who sees it.

The gift is an oil painting of life size of Will Rogers astride his most beloved horse, "Soapsuds". This gigantic piece of art is valued at more than $100,000 and following its presentation to the Southwest by Mr. Carter, this masterpiece will be placed over the portal of the Coliseum to silently but vividly remind all those who enter the ever-presence of that great humorist and philosopher.

Publisher Carter took the lead to erect this most magnificent Coliseum; he was one of the intimate friends of Rogers and subject of many of the great humorist's classics. He was even the employer to the son of Rogers and that son, Bill Rogers, newspaper man of Beverly Hills, has been invited to be an honored guest for this occasion. Mr. Carter's gift to the city is so realistic that nothing but "Ahs" and "Ohs" describe the feeling of those who have glimpsed this painting. One critic so aptly described it "You expect Will Rogers to speak and Soapsuds to neigh the instant you see it."

November 15th is going to be a red-letter-day in the Southwest. Cities from all over the area are sending Queens for the gala celebration; bands, horses and riders, governors, celebrities and delegations will parade that afternoon in what is expected to be the largest parade ever held in Texas. The Buffalo Barbecue following the procession is being prepared for 6,000 honored guests; the most colorful prelude, dedication, the premier show and the Queen's Ball in Pioneer Palace after the show along with the Top Hat & Stetson Revue under the direction of Ida Mae Heffington are but few of the exciting events for the opening day of a ten-day world championship show.

Fort Worth Jaycees are in complete charge of all arrangements for the colorful Will Rogers Day celebration, Nov. 15.

TRAINED DOG TO PERFORM AT PARTY HALLOWE'EN NIGHT

"Spitzie," the trained dog with an almost human intelligence, will perform for forty-five minutes at the Halloween Carnival Thursday night at the High School auditorium beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Spitzie is half fox terrier and half Eskimo-sptiz, and she has made hundreds of appearances over Texas in schools, theatres, orphan homes, hospitals, clubs and fairs. According to her owner and trainer, J. E. Massey, of Dallas, she has a marvelous disposition and loves to perform before crowds. Her repertoire includes more than fifty complicated mental and acrobatic feats.

The Halloween Carnival, sponsored by the high school and grammar school faculties, will feature approximately fifteen entertainment booths to provide amusement for grown-ups and children. Proceeds will be divided evenly between the two schools and will be used to buy supplies or equipment to be decided upon by the two groups. A small admission fee will be charged. "Spitzie" will also give a 15-minute sample performance for children Thursday afternoon at 3:15.

69.5-95 Shift The Baby

The Rev. and Mrs. Clifford Potts, young couple attending Baylor University, found that 17-month-old Joanne hampered their class schedule until they devised a hipper-dipper mama-to-papa lateral pass formation. Daddy goes to his 8 o'clock class each morning, leaving Mrs. Potts with the baby. At 8:55 he hurries toward home, meeting his wife with the child in her arms. Baby is passed to papa, who returns home until time for the next class. Then he dashes toward the campus on the passing end of the play. Thus it alternates through the day. Potts, majoring in Bible, is pastor of a Baptist church at Turnersville. Mrs. Potts is majoring in education. Joanne is just passing the time away.

Woman Gets Draft Number

Draft board supervisors scratched their heads over Reika Mary Schwanke of Austin, who registered for the draft and got a number. The woman, saying she wanted to join the Army right away and would do any work, even peel potatoes, convinced another woman on the draft board she could register. When the draft board member expressed doubt that Miss Schwanke could register, the applicant declared she had heard on the radio that women could enlist. She got No. 14.

Mineral Deposit Found In Texas

Texas bulked larger in the national preparedness picture Monday with the discovery by University of Texas geologists in Central Texas of a rich deposit of magnesite, an essential war mineral. Used for the insulation of high-power steam turbines and machines, the high-grade magnesite ore exists in sufficient quantities in the central mineral region, a forty-mile-square area west of Austin, to be suitable for mining, according to Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of the University's Bureau of Economic Geology. The deposits were the first ever found in Texas. Dr. Sellards said, and were discovered by accident when University geologists were sampling rocks for potential building stone quarry sites.

EDITORIALS WHAT MAKES AN AMERICAN?

There is a good deal of confusion in many people's minds as to what constitutes Americanism. Some seem to think that nobody can claim to be a real American unless his ancestors of several generations back came to this country. Just how far back, they don't say.

It certainly is not true, as a schoolgirl in a western city said, that she and other children had been taught in school, that the only real Americans are the Indians. Where would the daughters of the Revolution get off, in that case, to say nothing of the Society of Colonial Wars, whose members are some times accused of looking down their noses at anybody whose ancestors didn't come over either in the Mayflower or the next boat.

It is everybody's privilege to take pride in his or her lineage, but it is nobody's right to profess a higher degree of Americanism than someone else, merely because one's grandparents left the old country somewhat earlier. We wonder what boat the immigrants came on whose descendants are carrying on a whispering campaign against one of the candidates for President because his grandparents were born in Germany.

Mr. Wilkie is proud, as he said in his acceptance speech, and has a right to be proud, that his grandparents could not tolerate the political oppression of their native land and came to America to seek and find spiritual liberty. What makes an American? Steve Vasilakos took the oath the other day which made him an American citizen. Steve has been running a peanut stand on the corner by the White House in Washington for a good many years, ever since he came from his native Greece.

It is not education that makes an American. On the same day that Steve Vasilakos became an American citizen another recent immigrant took the same oath. He is perhaps the best-educated man in the world, at least in his own field of mathematics. His name is Albert Einstein. He is a Jew, born in Germany. The greatest minds in the world of science look up to him as a teacher who knows more than any of them do.

Now the Greek peanut vendor and the Jewish master of mathematics are equals. They are both Americans. And both of them are equal in their rights as Americans to every other American whose ancestors came over with Captain John Smith or Miles Standish—or for that matter, who came in the hold of a ship as cargo.

OUR DANGER FROM WAR

The greatest danger the United States of America faces in looking forward to possible war, is not the destruction of property and lives, the enormous burdens of taxation which our people would have to pay, win or lose, none of those material evils which concern so many people very deeply.

What we stand to lose is individual liberty, whether we win the next war or are defeated. Every time we have taken part in any war we have lost some of the liberties which we had cherished, and some which we never fully regained.

It is necessary, if a war is to be conducted successfully, that the whole national life shall be geared into the war machine. There must be a central authority with power to make and carry out rules by which the whole populace must abide. There's no time to take a vote on whether to do without sugar or gasoline, or on such more serious matters as

Politicians, the world over, are not as a rule men of outstanding caliber. Their records demonstrate that the majority of them have not been markedly successful in life's ordinary endeavors, though there are of course notable exceptions. They seem to be, for the most part, rather loquacious gentlemen who must talk or explode. This urge takes them on to the soap-box and into public life. The successful man, on the other hand, is usually of the self-effacing type which hates publicity and wants to stick to the work which he has made prosperous and which provides his family with the good things of life.

Therefore one must not be abnormally shocked or surprised if these struggles could be kept clean. It would be a happy circumstance if the Democratic and Republican workers were all men like their leaders—President Roosevelt and Mr. Wilkie. But these two possess superior brains, and with the use of these brains have placed themselves at the top of the profession called "Politics."

Because these leaders are of a higher type, it is natural for them to avoid the use of political fifth. We haven't heard Candidate Roosevelt, for instance, call Candidate Wilkie a crooked public utilities magnate, nor have we heard Mr. Wilkie accuse Mr. Roosevelt of lining his pockets from the United States Treasury. Immunity to the effect that Mr. Wilkie is a sort of pal of Adolf and Muss, has passed the lips of those who are talking too much about the possibility of being licked. When there's a war on, the Government takes command of the people's liberties—for the time being. "For the time being" is too apt to be stretched into "forever." There were war measures enacted in 1917 and 1918, intended to be used only for the period of the emergency, which have never been repealed and are still on the statute books. Almost all war statutes infringe to some degree upon peace-time rights of citizens. It is never easy to get men in power to let go of the right to dictate to the people, after the war necessity for such dictation has passed.

We are preparing for war. We believe we may have to fight to save democracy. We must beware lest we lose it in trying to save it.

TWO SIDES To Every Question

What is to be our attitude in future European wars? Are we to waste our substances as we did in the World War and as some Americans wish us to do in this war, or are we going to build up our strength to resist the inevitable barbarism to which Europe must descend under the devastating blows of these now fashionable "total wars?"

It does not require figures to demonstrate the terrific punishment which our participation in the Great War caused us. The drastic dislocation of our economic machine is evidenced by ten million unemployed workers; increase in the national debt from 1 billion and a quarter in 1916 to forty-five billion now; by taxes never dreamed of by the most pessimistic of economists.

Perhaps we can stand another such blow. If we enter the particular phase of Europe's continual warfare which is now in progress, we will probably find ourselves, a few years after it is over, with a national debt of one hundred and fifty billion dollars, twenty million unemployed workers, and government ownership and regimentation in lieu of taxes which cannot be paid. Perhaps we can stand this and still remain a sort of semi-free people. But can we take a third blow, or a fourth blow?

Some people have been known to say, "What difference does it make to us what happens fifty or one hundred years from now, we will be dead by that time." This may be a good argument, but it is doubtful if our descendants would approve it. Some people think we don't need to worry that far ahead because they believe warfare is dying out, and cite as proof, the fact that no major European nation was engaged in war between 1918 and 1935 (Italian-Ethiopian). This, they say, is the longest period on record, from the given date of 1860, in which one or more of these nations was not fighting. But they overlook the little detail that the Great War was the most exhausting combat ever fought and that it physically required twenty years to resuscitate the shattered participants. Why not realize the truth and then base our calculations upon it and not upon wishful assumptions. We know that European warfare will continue unless the people themselves take from their governments the power to declare war. This last does not seem probable, so we must figure that in another twenty years from now we will be called upon to take sides between say Russia and Germany or Russia and France against England and Germany; or almost any other of the hundred combinations which Europe has already tried out in her bloody history.

What is to be our course? Are we going to harden our souls to those emotional slogans which Americans can't seem to resist or are we going to finally destroy ourselves, fighting a high minded but utterly hopeless crusade. This war will probably be the final test of our strength to resist. Already the emotionalists are weeping over the fate of innocent neutral nations; even the cold hearted calculator is justly incensed. Already we are fighting our own war to resist the frightful arguments and tempting slogans of soulless men and women who are urging us—quite openly now—to spill our blood and treasure and to sacrifice our hope for the future upon the altar of their passions and beliefs.

Every man and woman in America should make up his or her mind now and every man and woman in America should advise his congressman how he or she feels about the subject. It is not sufficient to say "Don't worry, Americans are 90 per cent anti-participation." That is a good slogan too, but it doesn't work properly; and if you don't believe that statement, refer to your American history prior to our entry into the last war!

We all made fair. This next week is Halloween, and we are going to have a big carnival, we hope. Mr. Columbus has gone to Hamilton this morning and Oletta Blakley taught us until he came back.

Mrs. Jeanette A. Stevens of New York is a competent seaman, has built a sail boat, captained others of average size and trained seven ZIP mariner leaders in the Manhattan Girl Scouts. She is a business executive and her boating and sailing enthusiasms are allowed to come forth only after office hours. She really didn't know much

DALE Carnegie

AGE AND THINKING

Dr. Ales Trdilicka, of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C., is conducting a most interesting experiment. He is trying to learn whether the brain keeps on growing all through life. He has discovered that great intellectual leaders have had heads that continued to grow as they lived, and it is believed that the brains of these persons must have grown, too.

Some surprising facts have come out. One is that some of our greatest leaders and thinkers have had unusually large brains. For instance, the size of the average brain is 1350 grams. Turgenyev, one of the foremost novelists of all time, had a colossal brain, weighing 2012 grams.

Thomas A. Edison had an unusually large head, and he said that his head grew in size until he was an old man. Charles Darwin, who laid down the principles of evolution, also had an unusually large head, and he, too, said that his head grew until the very end of his life. Flinders Petrie, learned British Egyptologist (he is 84) says that his head is still growing. And so it would seem (although it has not been proved) that the human brain continues to grow almost until the end of life.

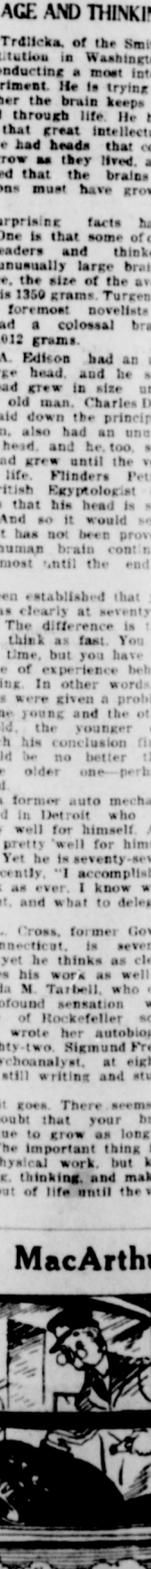

It has been established that you can think as clearly at seventy as at thirty. The difference is that you cannot think as fast. You require more time, but you have the added value of experience behind your thinking. In other words, if two persons were given a problem to solve, one young and the other 70 years old, the younger one would reach his conclusion first; but it would be no better than that of the older one—perhaps not as good.

There's a former auto mechanic named Ford in Detroit who has done pretty well for himself. And he's doing pretty well for himself today, too. Yet he is seventy-seven. He said recently, "I accomplish as much work as ever. I know what to leave out, and what to delegate to others."

Wilbur L. Cross, former Governor of Connecticut, is seventy-eight, and yet he thinks as clearly and does his work as well as at forty. Ida M. Tarbell, who created a profound sensation with her expose of Rockefeller some years ago, wrote her autobiography at eighty-two. Sigmund Freud, famous psychoanalyst, at eighty-three was still writing and studying.

And so it goes. There seems to be little doubt that your brain will continue to grow as long as you live. The important thing is—Do less physical work, but keep on directing, thinking, and making the most out of life until the very end.

GREAT PREPARATIONS BEING MADE FOR FIRST ALL-AMERICAN RODEO

Fort Worth, Oct. 17.—When the cowboys of the nation voted to hold their first World Championship Rodeo in Fort Worth, Nov. 15-24, they had a two-fold purpose in mind. They wanted to end the season in Cow Town and to pay tribute to the memory of Will Rogers.

Therefore the All-American Rodeo & Horse Show was born. The Rodeo Ass'n of America, the Southwest Rodeo Ass'n and the Cowboy Turtle's Ass'n will bring the top 75 cowhands of the Northwest in direct contest with an equal number of waddies of the Southwest to determine undisputed champions. These cowboys and officials elected T. E. Robertson, president of the Southwest Ass'n to be the producer and today finds the headquarters in Fort Worth literally snowed under with offers of co-operation and announcements of huge delegations to attend.

The festivities will open Friday afternoon, Nov. 15, with what is expected to be the largest parade in the history of the State. There will be more than 1,000 horses and riders, Governors, Queens, celebrities and dignitaries. Every person who owns a horse or can secure one is urged to be in the parade. Every city in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana has been asked to send official Queens. The Queen most typical of the Southwest will be crowned All American Girl of the Southwest and be given a round trip airplane flight to Hollywood, finest of hotel accommodations and will be escorted through leading studios by their stars and executives. Monday found 69 Queens entered.

The World Champion woman bull fighter of Old Mexico City; first Fox Hunt in an arena; blue-blood horses from the finest stables; Alice City, Sis Martin and scores of rodeo and entertainment celebrities will be here. The Town and Country Horse Club of Fort Worth will sponsor the horse show.

Chamber of Commerce and Jaycee officials, press, radio and photographers are combining their talents to make this show and celebration the greatest ever presented in the Southwest and to warmly entertain each and every visitor to Cow Town during the ten-day show.

Streets of Fort Worth will be jammed with spectators when this colorful event opens and the Western hospitality of this city will be extended every man, woman and child who enters the "Gateway to the West."

During a recent visit at Baylor Hospital where they had gone to take a patient, Bryant Lively and Frank Thompson on a cot, and rolled him all over the hospital trying to get some attention from the nurses, but to no avail. Bryant says every once in a while when they passed a room in which there were ladies in white he'd stop in front of the door and readjust the pillows and cover around Frank, but never once did they get a break.

We had the pleasure Tuesday morning of meeting our Salem correspondent, Mrs. W. C. Rogers, for the first time. Last week Mrs. Rogers inserted a classified ad in the News Review to sell some peanut hay, and there were some people at her house asking about the hay before she ever got her paper. In fact, someone here in town saw the ad and drove off and bought the hay before the postman got to her house with the News Review. We've been through a deluge of testimonials on the advantages of N. R. advertising this week—Grady Barrow says he sold five sewing machines from a small ad in the personal column. Moon & Eubank sold five tires from a small display ad. Ras Proffitt sold five radios from a display ad of similar size; Frank Mingus is about to sell all the clothes he has trying to supply people answering his classified ad a suit; and Mrs. Welborn now has a house-keeper (a good one, we hope) selected from among the numerous applicants who read her classified ad last week. We just can't see how those who haven't been advertising are managing to get along.

Queer things were going on in the display window at the J. W. Richbourg store Sunday. Those few persons who happened to be passing around the lunch hour thought at first Mr. Richbourg was featuring live models in his window decorations. But the model wasn't very graceful, so that so-called was thrown out. Not only ungraceful but very undignified he was, down on his hands and knees hanging on the plate glass windows, making funny threatening gestures with his fists, waving his arms around in the air and crawling around among the costume jewelry, handkerchiefs, and ladies' hats. One person ventured over toward the window. The man wiped the sweat from his brow and motioned to the one outside to come in the store. The latter obeyed "Now open up that door and let me out," the voice pleaded, referring to the door to the show window. It was A. T. McFadden. A slight breeze had blown the door to behind him and the lock had snapped, leaving Mr. McFadden a prisoner in his glass cage. Sunday was a hot day, too, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Meador of Stephenville celebrated their eighth wedding anniversary Wednesday. Stephenville is all right, they say, but not as good as Hico. Those having bird dogs they wish trained are asked to get in touch with Trainer Max Hoffman (paid advertisement). Do you know what happened to Yehudi? The draft got him.

Rumor has it there is a good reason for the Sunday pilgrimages of Hico folk to the site of construction of the new army camp at Brownwood. Young eligibles, 21-35, have been going over to pick out their "cabins."

Ras Proffitt says Webb McEver

is the best feed man we've ever had in Hico. Some sixth sense just tells him when a guy is needing feed. Several days ago Mr. Barrow called the hatchery and ordered a sack of feed. Practically with the same breath she used in telling Mr. McEver about the order, Mrs. Keeney mentioned the fact that Mr. Proffitt was a good feed customer. Absent-mindedly (with Mr. McEver's forgiveness we hope for saying so), he hurried up to Mr. Proffitt's and left Mr. Barrow's sack of feed. Coincidentally, Mr. Proffitt WAS out of feed, but he is still wondering how Mr. McEver knew it.

BODY OF MRS. BOBO BROUGHT HERE MONDAY FOR SERVICES, BURIAL

Funeral services were held at the Polytechnic Church of Christ in Fort Worth at 10 o'clock last Monday morning for Mrs. Elizabeth Bobo, mother of J. R. Bobo of Hico, who passed away at 9 a. m. Sunday at her home in Fort Worth. Services were conducted by the pastor, Bro. Thomas D. Rose.

Pallbearers were selected from the congregation of the Polytechnic church of which she was a member. Flower girls were her granddaughters.

The body was brought to Hico for burial Monday afternoon, and brief services were conducted at the grave by Elder Stanley Giesecke, pastor of the Hico Church of Christ, assisted by R. L. Beaman.

Mrs. Bobo is survived by two daughters, Miss Mary Bobo of Fort Worth and Mrs. J. L. Robinson of Mineral Wells; three sons, J. J. Bobo of Fort Worth, J. R. Bobo, Hico, and H. L. Bobo, Lubbock; a brother, Jesse Jordan of Mercedes; 23 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren.

A number of Fort Worth friends were here for the funeral and also Mrs. Ethel Olson, Bill and G. D. Lowe, of Meridian; and Mrs. R. L. Beaman and daughter, Roberta, of Stephenville.

Elizabeth Jordan was born April 4, 1861, Bear Savannah, Georgia, and moved to Abbott, Hill County, Texas, at the age of 12. She was married to Thomas C. Bobo in August 1884, and to this union eight children were born. Two died in infancy and a son, C. E. Bobo, died in July 1938.

Mrs. Bobo moved with her family to Carlton in 1915, residing on a farm near there for eleven years before moving to Hico. After living here about five years, she moved with her son, J. J., to Los Fresnos, in South Texas, where she lived for three years before going to Fort Worth.

Besides her own family, Mrs. Bobo reared three orphan children, Mrs. Carrie Lowe, deceased, Ethel Jordan of Dallas and Wesley Jordan of Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Bobo had been a faithful member of the Church of Christ since 1886.

Six Inch Sermon

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

Christian Motives for Abstinence.
 Lesson for October 27: Luke 1:13-16; 2:40; 4:4; 6:21, 25, 43-45. Golden Text: Romans 14:17.

While other temperance lessons of the year have stressed the injury brought upon a man by the thing, usually strong drink, that leads him to intemperance, today's lesson shows the blessings of temperance and the folly of allowing anything, even something good in itself, to take the place of the better thing.

If drinking were harmless, which it is not, it would be unwise to waste upon strong drink and self-indulgence the precious time that should be given to better things. It was said that John the Baptist should drink neither wine nor strong drink. His life was to be given to something higher than the gratification of the appetites. It is not strange that as a child he "waxed strong", that he was "filled with wisdom", and that as a man he became a great prophet who prepared the way of Jesus.

Now harmless things can become a sin and a snare when they are wrongly used. Some spend so much time in gratifying themselves with food and other things that they have no time and little inclination for spiritual things. Needless material things should not be allowed to crowd out the spiritual. They who deny themselves for the kingdom of God and for their own souls will not suffer in the end. They may be hungry now but they shall be filled.

The high desires of life, lofty motives and a pure heart can be nurtured in the body of a glutton. As good soldiers of Christ, let us keep the body under, as Paul advises; abstain from hurtful things, and wisely use good things that would grow by indulgence and shut out the spiritual.

Those luscious large blueberries which find a ready market in the summer months when housewives are looking for something tempting for their dinner or breakfast table, owe their existence to a woman, we are told; to Miss Elizabeth C. White, who has lived practically all her life in the bog sections of New Jersey.

Miss White, several years ago, noticed when she tramped over her father's cranberry bog, that blueberries always grew nearby. Through the Department of Agriculture she arranged to send cuttings for experimental purposes to a member of the department. In this way, and after five years of improving the specimens, she was able to produce the finest type of plants.
