Both Glad And Sorry

Here is a story that took place a few thousand years ago.

"Three men were crossing the desert by camel on a long journey. On their way they came to a watering hole and they stopped to refresh their mounts. And as they were resting, a voice spoke to them from the heavens. It said, 'Fill your pockets with sand and tomorrow you shall be both glad and sorry.'

"This they did and they rode on. The next morning they awoke to find that the sand had turned to gold. As the voice had told them they were, indeed, both glad and sorry. Glad they had taken some, and sorry they had not taken more.

Leave the Pressure Out of Sports

BY KATHY JOBE

Too much pressure in sports can turn a child off--with both the sport and with his parents.

Athletic events can play an important role in an adolescent's development and health, but parents should know both the positive and negative aspects of competitive sports.

TAKE PRESSURE OFF

Since competition puts pressure on children, parents can help relieve it by making "fun" the primary goal in sporting events.

Parents also can "play up" other benefits--in addition to the glory of winning.

Other benefits include learning the rules and tools of the "game of life"--agility, skill development, cooperation, discipline and fair play.

Give these benefits plenty of attention.

Also, consider different kinds of sports with your child -- together you may discover some new ones that don't carry high pressures.

Instead of considering only competitive sports such as football, basketball and baseball, look into some non-competitive, less-pressured sports.

Non-competitive sports include jogging, swimming, cycling or hiking -- all of which let children develop their bodies, enjoy themselves and keep a sense of self-worth.

These may be especially attractive to children who aren't ready for -- or interested in -- organized sports.

In addition, resist the natural desire to live through your children, especially on the athletic field.

Remember that adults usually are the ones that give winning too much importance.

Highly organized leagues for young children are most often planned with adult seriousness, and they tend to take the fun and play out of the activity.

The bride's table held a four-tiered pillared cake featuring a pair of doves on the upper tiers and a miniature of the bride's bouquet of silk flowers between the pillars. The table, covered with a white floor-length cloth, also featured the bride's punch. The centerpiece was a brass five branch candleabra decorated with apricot carnations, roses and baby's breath.

Business Light at Commissioners' Monday Session

Coke County Commissioners' Court had a relatively uneventful session Monday when members had their first August meeting, with Judge D.W. Sims presiding.

The commissioners met and approved the appointment of Johnny Hutchins as new deputy sheriff for Coke County.

They voted not to approve a plat presented by Pauline Roe of Robert Lee because the right of way for streets did not meet the minimum specifications of 50 feet in width.

Court members discussed the possibilities and ramifications of appointing Buddy Dyess as a reserve deputy sheriff at Oak Creek Lake. They also discussed setting up sewer system specifications at the lake. No action was taken on either matter.

The commissioners will have their second August meeting Monday.

Nabisco and the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States has announced plans for a nationwide physical fitness and development program for U.S. school children.

A schedule of physical exercises for boys and girls is being offered to millions of youngsters in 78,000 of the nation's elementary schools during the 1979-80 school year.

Officials of the AAU, America's leading sports organization, and of Nabisco, co-sponsor of the program, are excited over the prospects of reaching a potentially high percentage of elementary school-age children.

Robert H. Helmick, president of the AAU, said the program could have far-reaching impact on this country's sports picture.

"This is a major undertaking, one which can start a large number of U.S. children on a continuing program of physical fitness and well-being," Mr. Helmick stated. "We know we have a program that works. Nabisco's co-sponsorship enables us to extend the program to a significant percentage of elementary school students."

The AAU has taken a leading role in the organization and promotion of amateur sports in the U.S. since 1888. The physical fitness program—with its built-in testing and measurement provisions—is viewed Designed to motivate boys and girls to increase their participation in sports and to improve their physical fitness, the program standards are well within the capabilities of the average, healthy boy and girl. A planned schedule of physical exercises, when periodically repeated, enables school authorities to measure an individual's progress.

The AAU has sent program details to 78,000 elementary schools across the country. During the school year, physical education teachers at participating schools administer and score the fitness tests, forwarding results to the AAU's national headquarters in Indianapolis. The AAU and Nabisco will award certificates to every child who participates.

FANCY THAT!

THE FIRST WOMAN TO CROSS THE ATLANTIC OCEAN IN AN AIRPLANE WAS AMELIA EARHART. ON JUNE 17, 1928, MS. EARHART, A PASSENGER, LEFT TREPASSEY, NEWFOUNDLAND AND LANDED IN WALES AFTER 20 HOURS AND 40 MINUTES OF FLIGHT!

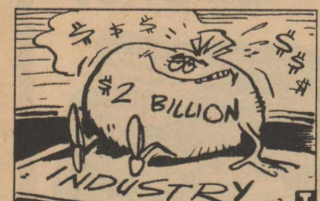

TODAY IT'S NO BIG DEAL FOR WOMEN TO CROSS THE ATLANTIC, AND FOR ARMY WOMEN WHO HAVE TAKEN AIRBORNE TRAINING IT'S NO BIG DEAL TO JUMP OUT AFTER THE CROSSING!

IT'S A FACT!

Queen Elizabeth I of England was probably one woman who never wailed, "I have nothing to wear." The monarch's wardrobe contained over 2,000 dresses from which she could make her choice.

Americans may find their clothing choices getting smaller, according to the National Cotton Council. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration's rush to regulations—unless halted by the courts—will cost the industry over $2 billion and could well increase consumer prices of fabric and clothing.

Law Changes Right of Way On Ramps And Frontage Roads

AUSTIN—Texas drivers need to know about an important new law which will seriously affect how they drive on freeway frontage roads.

The change is so important that ignoring it could literally become a matter of life or death.

The law, passed in the recent session of the Texas Legislature, gives traffic entering or leaving freeway ramps the right of way over frontage road traffic.

It was signed by the governor on June 11, and becomes effective August 27.

It reads in part: "The driver of a vehicle proceeding on an access or feeder road of a controlled access highway shall yield the right of way to a vehicle entering or about to enter or leaving or about to leave the road to enter the highway."

Many ramps on Texas highways already are arranged that way, and YIELD and other signs are in place on the frontage roads for this kind of operation.

Other places where ramps and frontage roads meet, however, are not. There, the signs presently are arranged to require the ramp traffic to yield.

The situation is especially critical where the frontage road carries traffic in both directions. Ramp traffic both entering and leaving the freeway crosses opposing streams of traffic on the frontage road.

The wise motorist should be alert for any changes in signs on the frontage road he may drive regularly and should be aware that all ramp traffic will legally have the right of way over frontage road traffic later this summer.

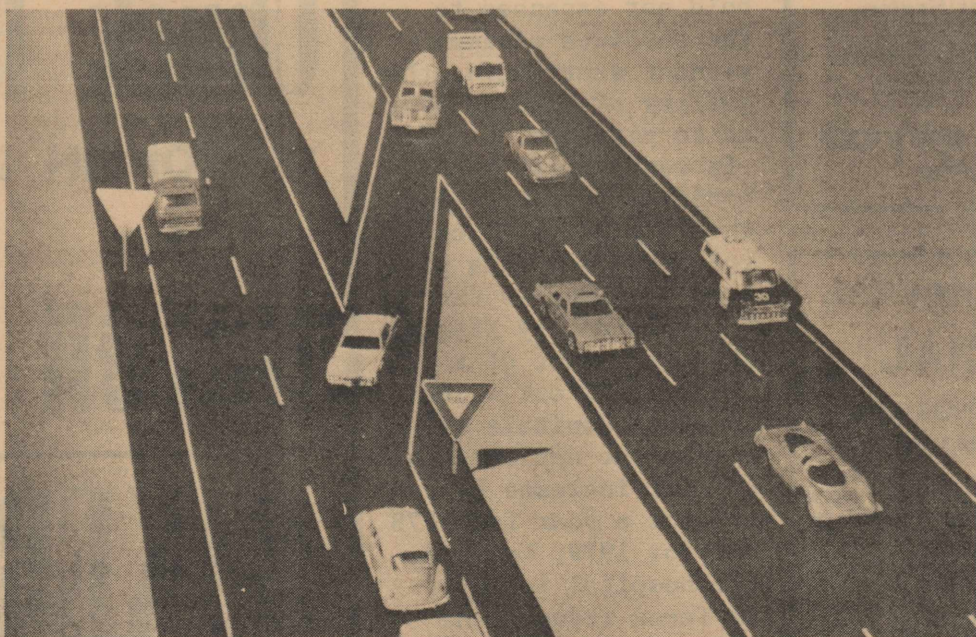

He should also be aware when using freeway ramps that other drivers may not be aware of this law change and may overlook the new signs.

Signs are being changed now. Drivers should heed new sign arrangements as they encounter them.

Frontage road traffic must yield to vehicles entering the freeway.

On two-way roads, both lanes of traffic yield to vehicles using the exit ramp.

Hospital Is Cited For Its Efforts in Cutting Expense

West Coke County Hospital District of Robert Lee has received a 1979 Certificate of Participation citing the hospital for its outstanding effort in cost containment.

James R. Sikes, administrator of West Coke County Hospital District in announcing the receipt of this Certificate said, "We're proud of the progress our hospital, together with its medical staff and employees, are making toward holding down the cost of hospital care. We will continue to make every effort to hold our expenses to the absolute minimum without sacrificing the quality of care delivered to patients."

In early 1978, the hospital industry launched a program to control costs and this program is known as the Texas Voluntary Effort. This is a part of a national effort which commits hospitals to reduce the national rate of cost increase by two percent a year for 1978 and for 1979. In 1978, the hospital industry in Texas reduced the rate of rise by 2.6%.
