Cotton and feed crops, suffering from lack of moisture, were greatly benefitted in Floyd County and much of the plains territory when a general heavy rain was received Tuesday night. Receipt of little moisture in recent weeks had caused no small amount of worry among row crop farmers in this vicinity.

Probably the greatest help was to cotton as this crop is at the stage when moisture was essential. Cotton farmers say that the rainfall this week will go a long way toward maturing their crops.

Heaviest precipitation was reported from the east portion of Floyd County where approximately two inches of rain was received. Farmers in the north and northwest portions of the county stated that they received about an inch or slightly over that amount.

Floydada and the immediate territory received 1.48 inches rainfall in Tuesday night's fall. West of town toward Barwise and Mickey the precipitation was set at one and thirty one-hundredths inches.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Norman and family returned home Sunday after having been away for a two weeks vacation. While away they visited in Wellington and Amarillo, and spent some time in Medicine Park, Oklahoma.

Geo. P. McCarty, poultry specialist of the extension service of College Station, and county agricultural agent, D. F. Bredthauer, met with an enthusiastic group of poultry and turkey breeders of Floyd County Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the district court room for the purpose of discussing poultry management in this county.

As poultry is regarded as one of the side lines for furnishing meat and eggs for home consumption it also can be regarded and made a profitable side line in regard to receiving more revenue from the farm by keeping a well managed flock of poultry. A motion picture lecture was given in managing a farm size poultry flock and Mr. McCarty gave a talk on successful brooding, feeding, housing, and marketing of quality eggs.

The meeting was so well received by the breeders present that they requested the county agent to arrange for a meeting of this kind every month throughout the fall and winter. J. T. Hatch of Plainview, discussed the possibility of an organized egg circle being formulated in this county for the purpose of distributing eggs to New Mexico and Arizona at which points a much higher price are available throughout the year provided quality products are furnished.

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses the Food Value of Ice Cream

Nationally Known Food Authority Describes Its Place in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City.

ONE of the most significant contributions of modern nutritional science was the discovery of the importance of the protective foods—milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. These foods abound in the minerals and vitamins that help to insure normal growth and health, and safeguard us against the deficiency diseases.

In this group, milk and dairy products made from it assume a commanding position because milk is the best and most practical source of calcium and vitamins A and G. These substances should be consumed in much greater proportions than at present if we are to increase health and efficiency and improve our chances for longevity.

The first rule in providing adequate amounts of the protective foods is to allow daily a quart of milk for every child and at least a pint for each adult. This amount of milk need not always be consumed as a beverage, however. It may be used in cooked dishes or eaten in the form of cheese and ice cream.

Composition of Ice Cream

Ice cream is often regarded as a confection, but it deserves to be classed among our most nutritious foods. It is composed of varying proportions of cream, milk, sugar, flavoring and frequently a binder or stabilizer such as gelatin. The composition varies somewhat between the home-made and the commercial product, and the commercial product differs in various states. That is because standards governing the butter fat content differ widely so that the requirement ranges from 8 to 14 per cent. Most large commercial companies produce an ice cream with about 12 per cent fat.

Guard Against Contamination

Some states require the pasteurization of the milk or cream used in manufacturing ice cream; others stipulate that the entire mix must be pasteurized before freezing. These measures are desirable, as ice cream requires the same scrupulous care that should be given to milk and cream.

Because of the possibilities for contamination, several precautions should be observed in buying ice cream. Choose cream manufactured by a reputable concern. Be sure to buy from a dealer who keeps it well frozen, for ice cream that has been melted and frozen again may be dangerous, owing to the opportunity for the multiplication of bacteria while it was melted. See to it, also, that the dealer uses sanitary methods in dispensing.

Home-Made Ice Cream

An easy way to make certain of the purity of the ice cream you serve is to make this delicious dessert at home. Motor-driven freezers are available, as well as those that are manually operated. And the homemaker with an automatic refrigerator finds it easier to make ice cream than to prepare many less interesting and nutritious desserts.

Ice cream powders which simplify the preparation of home-made ice cream, can be obtained unflavored, or in a variety of flavors, including lemon and maple, in addition to the popular vanilla, chocolate and strawberry. The ice cream powders may be used with milk or a combination of milk and cream to produce a healthful des-

Send for this Free BULLETIN on Keeping Cool with Food

You and your family will enjoy better health and greater comfort during the sizzling days of summer that remain, if you send for "Keeping Cool with Food," offered free by C. Houston Goudiss.

sert suitable for every member of the family. They also may be used for less rich but equally refreshing milk or buttermilk sherbets.

A canned freezing mix is likewise available and is especially nice in a fruit flavor as it contains pieces of the whole fruit.

A Comparison With Milk

If we regard one-sixth of a quart of ice cream as an average serving, and compare it with one cup of milk, we make the interesting discovery that there is a close relation between the two. The ice cream provides about 24 more calories and only a trifle less protein, calcium, phosphorus, iron and vitamin A. There is considerably less vitamin G, but ice cream is nevertheless considered an excellent source of this important vitamin.

A Healthful Food

It then becomes apparent why ice cream is considered as an excellent food, not only for adults but for children and convalescents, and why one outstanding authority urges the liberal use of ice cream as a means of increasing the vitamin A content of the diet.

Plain ice cream may be used interchangeably with simple milk puddings. Rich mixtures, such as those filled with nuts and crystallized fruits, rank with the heartier desserts and should follow a lighter meal.

Ice cream is so rich in nourishment that it should not be consumed indiscriminately between meals, but should always be considered as part of the day's ration. When that is done, one nutrition authority states that its beneficial effects can hardly be overestimated.

Effect on Digestion

One frequently hears the question, "Doesn't the eating of ice cream retard the digestion of other foods consumed at the same time?" The answer is that it does slow up slightly the emptying time of the stomach but this delay is without significance and is more than compensated for by the important nutrients it provides.

Many people believe that it is injurious to follow ice cream with hot coffee. But it has been demonstrated that just the opposite is true. The coffee raises the temperature of the food in the stomach and thus modifies the cooling effect of the ice cream.

Another common question concerns the effect of cake or pie a la mode. Experiments indicate that eating ice cream with cake or pie produces a more satisfactory gastric juice than when either of these foods is eaten alone. One must take into consideration, however, that cake or pie a la mode is a rich combination and plan the remainder of the meal accordingly.

Use More Ice Cream

It has been estimated that five billion pounds of milk are used each year in the production of commercial ice cream, which provides about three gallons of ice cream per capita. The amounts of ice cream made at home will raise this figure somewhat. But the amount consumed may well be further increased, because when properly made from pure ingredients, ice cream deserves to rank with our most wholesome and nourishing foods.

Failure of Democratic Purge Gives Republicans New Fear

Politics

If Franklin Roosevelt ever planned to "purge" his Democratic party of undesirables, he now knows the purge has failed. On the presidential black list may have been Iowa's Gillette, Nevada's McCarran, Colorado's Adams, and Missouri's Clark. By last week these New Deal haters were either renominated or assured of winning their state primaries at the expense of administration favorites.

News of purge failure has recently sent the most dour conservative into ecstasies. For once, it appears, Franklin Roosevelt's domination over the party is at ebb tide. But last week a few foes began thinking instead of effervescing:

Is purge failure helping untangle badly twisted United States political lines? Decidedly the contrary. Is purge failure eliminating Franklin Roosevelt as a third term? Probably not.

Originally the purge idea sought to transform the Democratic party into an instrument of coherent liberalism, implying formation of an equally coherent conservative party on the other side. But when Congress convenes next winter the United States will see instead a hodgepodge of multi-colored political thought from which little but bickering can be expected.

Deeply tanned from his 20-day fishing trip to tropical Pacific waters, Franklin Roosevelt was back in his 48 states last week, still mum about his term rumors that have kept newsmen busy since he left. Of all rumors, most thought-provoking was that purge failure robs the President of party control, robs him also of the right to name a successor in 1940. Not willing to be robbed, enthusiastic New Dealer Roosevelt would rather run himself than pass the mantle to a less ardent New Dealer.

Kentucky

Blue Grass politics was red hot as Kentucky prepared to choose a Democratic senator. At Jackson, former Sheriff Lee Combs and his brother attended a rally for their own faction, then walked brazenly into a rally of opposition forces. When the smoke cleared, Lee Combs was shot dead. A few minutes later his father organized kinfolk to search for William Combs, who was no relative but the alleged slayer.

KENTUCKY'S ALBEN BARKLEY
It was surely a fine day.

Said Police Chief A. S. Sizmore: "I'm a Republican so I'm not on either side. They were all bet up from politics."

Two days later Kentucky went to the polls. At Versailles, Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler muttered, "Down the hatch" as he chivalrously voted for his opponent, Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley. At Paducah, Alben Barkley deposited his ballot, glanced at the skies and predicted a record vote.

By midnight it appeared that Happy Chandler should have voted for himself. "Dear Alben," with presidential blessing, was renominated and political theorists tried to figure out what it meant.

Foreign

Since 1931, when Japan marched into Manchuria, Tokyo and Moscow have been "on the brink of war." Last week they appeared to be fighting two wars: In one, at the isolated Russian-Manchurian-Korean frontier nobody knew who was winning. In the other, being waged in the Moscow office of Soviet Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff, it appeared that Russia had the upper hand.

Amidst a barrage of incidents, communiques and curt notes, Asia's two powers were attempting to settle ownership of a shell-pocked hill near the village of Changkufeng.

Russia-Jap hostilities in this sector date back to 1931 when Japan marched into Manchuria and looked longingly at land patrolled by Russia's autonomous Siberian army. But not until mid-July this year did the five-year "secret war" break into the open. Since then both powers have attacked and counter attacked for days on end, moving troops, artillery and planes to little Changkufeng.

Already tired of one war (see below), Japan was anxious to avoid another. Finally Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu at Moscow received word to open peace negotiations. Last week it appeared proud, stubborn Japan would have to eat crow if she wanted peace with prouder, more stubborn Russia. Muttering that "the time has come to terminate these endless incidents." Foreign Minister Litvinoff matched Tokyo's proposals with an even better set:

MAXIM LITVINOFF
"The time has come . . ."

- (1) Immediate cessation of hostilities, with mutual withdrawal behind a fixed line.
- (2) That line to be determined by the Russ-China treaty of June 26, 1886.
- (3) Appointment of a bilateral commission, two Russians, one Manchukuan, one Jap, to negotiate for redemarcation of the line on basis of the 1886 treaty.

While Japan boasted after two weeks that 1,500 Russ soldiers had been killed and wounded against 180 on her own side, two tattered Soviet deserters walked into her Siberian camp to air their grievances against Moscow.

They deserted because their fathers, well-to-do Kulak farmers, had been heavily taxed, heavily oppressed in the Soviet drive for collective agriculture. "Our slogan is defend the fatherland of liberty," one said, "but how can we soldiers defend such a system when the cows, horses and even their barns are taken away."

To Japan it looked like Russia's poor Siberian administration was her ally.

Last week weary Japanese troops were still more than 100 miles down the flooded Yangtze river from their goal, Nanking, long since deserted by the Chinese government. While defending troops claimed the invaders had been repelled in battle after battle, crafty Japs were evidently resorting to brains instead of brawn to capture another part of China.

In the past Manchuria and Peking governments were undermined by palm-rubbing Tokyo agents and disgruntled Chinese officials. Result in each case has been a puppet state, completely divorced from China. Last week at peaceful Canton, only a few miles from Britain's Hongkong, came reports of secret negotiations to sway South China from the central government.

Promising to prevent recurrence of disastrous bombings which left Canton a bloody shambles last month, Jap agents would set up an independent government closely allied to Tokyo.

Meanwhile Japan refused to stop her bombing attacks on Canton. For two successive days last week war planes swooped down with their cargoes of death, finally striking within 400 yards of the foreign settlement where thousands had taken refuge. Next day Canton's Catholic cathedral was struck while hundreds cowered in terror within.

Miscellany

Back to London last week from darkest Africa came Missionary John Harris with a strange tale. His story: In Bechuana land lives Ramonilwana Senan, believed to be 140 years old yet still in good health and boasting all but one tooth. He has a son more than 100 years old, and a daughter 15.

Twenty thousand bathers at New York's Rockaway beach sought relief from sticky weather last week. In the distance were unimportant rumblings of thunder. Suddenly the air was splintered by a bolt of lightning that zig-zagged 300 feet down the beach, killing three, felling hundreds. Next day investigators wondered if a huge steel bridge, passing almost immediately over the beach, might have drawn the freak bolt.

When she was first launched, England's proud Queen Mary was also queen of the Atlantic. Then came the French Normandie to set a westward passage record of 3 days, 22 hours, 52 minutes. Last week her powerful engines churned the Queen Mary to a new record, clipping 1 hour, 14 minutes off the Normandie's mark.

Fondled like the museum piece it is, Douglas (Wrong Way) Corrigan's $900 transatlantic airplane was unloaded in Manhattan last week.

People

At Callander, Ont., Olivia Dionne's famous five children failed to appear before their daily tourist audience. Dr. Roy Daffoe, who has guided the four-year-old quintuplets since birth, reported they suffered from upset stomachs. Next day Pappa Dionne worried publicly over Emille, who had taken no nourishment for 24 hours.

Two days after former cinema actress Pearl White died in Paris, Warner Oland of "Charlie Chan" fame succumbed in his native Sweden of bronchial pneumonia.

At Hammond, La., Governor Richard W. Leche poured coffee, served sandwiches to pickets surrounding a box factory.

Religion

On the next day . . . when they heard that Jesus was coming . . . took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet Him, and cried, Hosanna: Blessed is the king of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord.

Thus wrote St. John in Biblical days. Since then his words have been unchanged, but last week American clergymen began studying the Bible as rewritten under Adolph Hitler's direction to conform with Germany's Nazi ideology. Said the Nazified St. John:

"Then they took green branches, went to meet him and cried: HELL to him that comes in the name of God. HELL to thee, thou shalt be our king."

Eliminated are all references to sin, heaven and the Hebrew prophets, for the Nazi heaven is now to be found in Germany alone.

Domestic

That Pennsylvania's Sen. James J. Davis has been more successful with U. S. Moore than his Tennessee Valley authority investigating committee, was admitted last week. From Washington to Knoxville, in the heart of TVA's far-flung power empire, the committee has dug for facts, rumors and figures to establish why ousted TVA Administrator Arthur Morgan raised such a hullabaloo last winter.

The committee's aim, said Davis, was to find the "real, true 'yardstick' cost of power and the total amount of money going into TVA development."

Last week, after spending more than half the $50,000 appropriation, Chairman Davis decided 85 per cent of his rummaging was concerned with uninteresting auditing and accounting. Named to investigate for the investigating committee was a private investigator, M. C. Conick, whose personal headache TVA now becomes.

Labor

The nasty word "Communism" hung like a spectre last week before the eyes of C. I. O. Mogul John L. Lewis. At Detroit and Los Angeles his henchmen were having trouble.

Ex-preacher Homer Martin, who heads 375,000 members of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers, found himself marked for liquidation by the four vice presidents he recently found guilty of consorting with Communists. Their charge: That Martin himself has been consorting with President Jay Lovestone of the Independent Communist Labor league.

To bewildered C. I. O. workers it appeared that U. A. W.'s trouble was simply a fight between Stalinist Communists and Lovestone Communists, each willing to fight for their own beliefs no matter how many unions are destroyed. Standing on the sidelines at Detroit awaiting the opportune moment was A. F. of L. Francis Dillon who headed the U. A. W. when it was a respectable Labor Federation affiliate.

Meanwhile at Los Angeles, four C. I. O. unions voted to withdraw from Radical Harry Bridges' Industrial Union council, charging he had brought the body under Communist control.

Aviation

Since its birth shortly after the World War, U. S. commercial aviation has been bounced back and forth by a dozen government agencies, has suffered from repudiated agreements and constantly changing administration. Worst blow was the government's repudiation of air mail contracts five years ago, an experiment that ended in headaches for all.

Last winter congress established a Civil Aeronautics authority to manage commercial aviation permanently and sensibly. Its job: to administer air mail contracts, supervise commercial air lines and private fliers and study aviation safety.

Last week the new authority took over its job, two weeks before the act goes into effect. As Chairman Elmer J. Noble of Greenwich, Conn., walked into his office for the first time he hoped to regulate aviation as successfully as another policy-forming board, the Interstate Commerce commission, has supervised railroading.

Sports

Several weeks ago a young Chicago broker, Fred Tuerk, bet his partner half a $30,000 plantation he couldn't play 144 holes of golf from dawn to dusk without going over 95 on any 18 holes. Partner J. Smith Ferabee took him up, starting out one morning last week. By nightfall all 144 holes were played at an average of 86 strokes per 18 holes. Next day Broker Ferabee, still golf hungry, played again.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for August 21
Hannah: Godly Motherhood

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 1:9-18; 2:1-5. GOLDEN TEXT—If children arise up, and call her blessed. Proverbs 31:28.

"Godly Motherhood"—All the power and grace of the infinite God working in and through the most tender and at the same time most potent human relationship—motherhood! There indeed is the solution of many of our national and social problems. For we agree with the poet that man, who regards himself as being mighty, ruling over land and sea, must defer to a mightier power.

"For the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world." Hannah was the mother of Samuel, who became one of Israel's outstanding leaders—a priest, a prophet, and "the maker of kings." God needed a great man, so He chose for him a great mother.

Our study for today will be topical rather than textual and extended to related portions in chapters 1 and 2. We consider Hannah as a mother who was spiritual and sacrificial, but at the same time practical in her daily life and service.

I. Spiritual.

Many are the tributes offered to mothers, but none has deeper significance than the testimony of a boy or girl that their mother has led them both by precept and example to have faith in God. Though other advantages may be beyond the reach even of the most self-denying mother, this most important of all benefits she may bring her children, but only if she herself is an earnest and faithful follower of the Lord.

1. Hannah trusted God in her hour of trial and sorrow (1:10). Although her husband was a man of good qualities, he had followed the custom of his times and taken a second wife. Hannah, childless in the presence of Peninnah and her children, was in deep sorrow. But she knew where to take her burdens: she brought them to the Lord in prayer.

2. She prayed—fervently and effectively (1:17, 18, compare James 5:16b). Mother's prayers have followed many a wayward boy and girl and brought them back to God. When every other influence for good had been swept aside, they have been unable to forget mother's prayers. One wonders what will happen to boys and girls who go out to face a wicked and bewildering world, with the memory of a prayerless, worldly mother to blight rather than to bless them.

3. She recognized children as a gift of God (1:11). And surely they are. Christian men and women should protest by both word and deed against the vicious modern theory that children are a sort of biological accident to be avoided.

II. Sacrificial.

The most precious possession a woman can have is a child of her own. It was, then, the deepest and finest sacrifice of a noble mother when she

1. Dedicated her boy to God, even before his birth (1:11). Yet this act so fine and commendable was in reality only an intelligent recognition of the fact that children are a gift of God. Your children and mine belong to God. Let us not stand in His way (or their way) as He graciously leads them out into service for Him.

2. She kept her promise (1:24-28). Many parents have solemnly dedicated their children to God before their birth, and then later the prospect of separation from them has been too much for the parents, and the promise to God has been thrust aside. The writer has on many occasions seen young men and women weep with broken-hearted dismay because a mother or father has forbidden them to go to China, Africa, or elsewhere at God's call. Mother, have you kept your promise to God regarding your boy, your girl?

III. Practical.

Hannah not only promised her boy to God; she made the completion of that promise certain.

1. By guiding her boy in the right way (1:24). As a matter of fact, she went with him to the temple. A mother who "sends" her boy to Sunday school or church will never help him like the mother of whom it may be said "she brought him unto the house of the Lord."

2. By providing for her boy (2:18, 19). There is no more tender and meaningful story in all literature than that of Hannah bringing her boy his "little coat." It is still true that the best "support" a missionary of the Cross can have is a home that "stands by."

The story is told of a missionary candidate who had no "board" back of her but the "washboard" of a godly mother, and who made a valiant and useful servant in the foreign field. Such an arrangement may not be the most desirable and it really should not be necessary if God's people would give, but it has its glorious advantages.

Such a mother as Hannah would have such a son as Samuel of whom it is said that he "was in favour both with the Lord, and also with men" (2:26).

Coffee for Ginger Cookies.—Try mixing ginger cookies with cold coffee instead of water.

Napkins From Tablecloths.—When tablecloths wear thin in the center, cut up the outside into 12 or 16-inch squares and hemstitch them. These make napkins which will wear for some time.

Beautifuling Wash Stand.—Rubberized cretonne if pasted around an unsightly wash stand will cover ugly plumbing and make a bathroom attractive.

When Sugar Gets Lumpy.—When sugar gets hard and lumpy, put it in the refrigerator for two or three days and you will find it will become quite soft again.

Onion Absorbs Paint Odor.—If an onion is cut in halves and placed in a room that has been newly painted it will absorb the odor of paint in a few hours.

Don't Soak Brushes.—If clothes and hair brushes become very dirty wash with water in which a little borax has been mixed. Dip brushes into water and wash with another brush covered with a light coating of soap. Never soak in water.

Shoe Health.—If your brown shoes are looking a bit scuffed, give them a dose of castor oil, rubbing it well into the leather and then polishing in the usual way with shoe polish. Castor oil gives brown shoes their color back again, and preserves the leather, too.

"Playing With Dynamite"
By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:
The old phrase, "Playing with dynamite" has come to mean about the same thing as doing something foolhardy. That's the figurative meaning of the expression. But when speaking of the man who monkeys around with high explosives it is usually one of the unsung heroes of our age.

Grinding Salvaged Powder.
In France, millions of men were crouching in trenches, avoiding explosives that the enemy was hurling at them. But Herman Beaver was away to avoid the explosive that he was dealing with. His job was to grind the stuff—and to handle it roughly, too. He was grinding salvaged powder that came in to him in chunks and long tubes that he ground in a machine that looked a lot like an old-fashioned, hand-operated coffee grinder. That powder, when it had been reduced to bits, would be used to load rifle grenades.

A terrible concussion threw him backward.

from the air. Even in those days they were concerned about those shacks were filled with men and women, and even boys—all taking long chances, to supply our soldiers with ammunition.

Blast and Deadly Flames.

But Herman wasn't thinking about the chances. The view from the window was pleasant. The trees outside swayed in a gentle breeze. "I was at peace with the world," says Herman. Without warning, there was a deafening blast. Acrid choking smoke filled the air and fire bit into Herman's flesh. He felt the earth rock under his feet—a terrible concussion that threw him backward. He was so fast that only when he was on the floor did he realize what had happened. The powder that he was grinding had exploded. He was on his hands and knees, covered with pans of powder. In rapid succession they were catching fire. Then Herman saw that his own body was saturated with powder dust, was aflame too. If they had soaked with gasoline they couldn't have burned any more furiously. "The flames shot many feet above my head," he says. "I was a torch."

He was stunned for a moment, but he managed to stagger to his feet. His whole body one mass of flame, he ran to the door and out of it.

That time people were pouring out of all the buildings in the group. He dashed out of the door and kept right on running. He had no power of reasoning. All that moved him now was a blind, desperate panic. He wanted to run, and keep right on running until he was dead. And in his terror he was headed for another building—a building that was filled with powder.

"Lie Down and Roll."

He had run into that building, this story might never have been known. Suddenly, through his panic, he heard a voice. Out of all the yells and that mob of screaming humanity that was watching him, that one voice, and that alone, penetrated his consciousness. It was shrieking, "Lie down and roll!"

Instantly, Herman remembered. That was what he should be doing. The only way to save himself. He dropped to the ground and rolled. The pain was unbearable, as burned, smarting flesh came in contact with the hard earth. He rolled over once—twice—and stopped. It was all he could stand. A workman ran over to beat out the flames.

A woman caught fire and he stopped to tear it off. Then the superintendent ran up. He ordered the crowd back, and he himself began rolling over and over. He burned his hands severely, but he stuck to his job until the fire stopped blazing.

When the flames were out, Herman's clothing—what was left of it—was smoldered like one large, live coal. They rushed him into the shacks, sat him down on a box, and began tearing the charred clothing from his body.

"That shack was filled with powder," Herman says, "but in the excitement they never thought of that."

There was powder in the very box I was sitting on. The Lord only knows why the whole place didn't blow up. I know I don't. And I have scars, one on my right hip and one on the front of my left leg. I found me every once in a while of what a close call I had."

He will ever know how that explosion started, but Herman thinks that a cap might have found its way into the powder he was grinding with the lid of the grinder open," he says. "If it had landed down when the explosion occurred, the whole machine would have shattered to bits—and I don't believe I'd be here to tell the story."

Damage or Chimney Tax

Damage or chimney tax is levied in Domesday as paid to the king for every chimney in the town. The Black Prince, Edward, has imposed a tax of 10 pence on every hearth in his French dominions. The first statutory enactment in England required a tax of 10 shillings on every hearth in the town to be paid to the king. The tax was abolished in 1609.

Nature Builds a Bridge

Nature is making a bridge in the Kleinwals valley in the province of Vorarlberg, Austria. The "structure," which spans the Schwarzwasser river, consists of chalkstone furrowed by the rushing water. Reports received in Vienna say it has a span of 30 feet and this is growing. The arch of the bridge is carried by three pine trees which have grown into it from underneath. It is natural that they want to stay.

Does F. D. R. Seek Third Term? President Has Many Reasons

If Roosevelt Is Sure of Victory He'll Run; Meanwhile It's a Waiting Game with President Holding Cards, Says Observer

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — Senator Burke, the Nebraska Democrat, has come forward with a proposition fixing the term of the President of the United States at six years and limiting an individual to one term. It is not a new proposition. It has been suggested before—as long ago as President Jackson's term—but it takes on a new significance now. Its new importance is not because of Senator Burke's declared intention to press the thing through to enactment so much as in the fact that "third term talk" is all over the place these days.

I do not profess to know what is in Mr. Roosevelt's mind about a third term. That is one subject upon which he has kept his own counsel.

Precedent-Maker

The third-term precedent will be no barrier to Franklin Roosevelt if he thinks four more years will help him to achieve history's rating as a great president, thinks William Bruckart. Two of Mr. Roosevelt's outstanding characteristics are his enjoyment of the power of the chief executive and his willingness to create new precedents.

quite severely. He is completely capable of keeping his own counsel when he desires, and I can say without equivocation that he has kept it in this case. The Washington correspondent or observer usually can get a tip-off as to the presidential mind in ordinary matters, but not so regarding the third term.

President Is Playing Waiting Game

Now, there are many who believe that Mr. Roosevelt's personal popularity will be the only thing sufficient to swing that party control. He will not be able to nominate his own pick, but he will be able to nominate himself, say these observers.

Mr. Roosevelt Reveals In the Presidency

Mr. Roosevelt has a consuming desire to go down in history as a great President. There can be no doubt of that. He wants history to show him as an outstanding friend of the people, the masses. He will let nothing prevent him from that course if it is within his power.

If there is one trait in the makeup of the man that transcends others, I believe it is his desire to establish new precedents. We speak of him as precedent-breaker. That is incorrect. He likes to make new ones. No other President has ever done more than make motions about a third term. Mr. Roosevelt would not be disturbed by the fact that never before had any President occupied the White House for 12 years. I suspect that he would enjoy doing that sort of thing.

And when I mention enjoyment, I need to refer at the same time to the very well known fact that Mr. Roosevelt enjoys being President. That is, he has what we say is a "good time" on the job. There is no real weariness for him as Chief Executive. Within the range of my quarter of a century as an observer, there has been no other President who so reveled under the generally accepted tremendous burden of the presidency.

President's Popularity Has Religious Fervor

Behind the scenes, no President has ever had a hallelujah chorus of so many voices around him. There has never been a President with such great personal popularity as Mr. Roosevelt. The combination of these things, the continual songs of praise that he hears from his close advisors and the adoring multitudes—well, I firmly believe that no living man can maintain the equilibrium necessary for sound and sane thinking while such semi-religious fervor toward him is shown.

Seldom, if ever before, has any President had the same type of promoting theorists, starry-eyed dreamers around him. The country never has had an administration as radical as Mr. Roosevelt's regime. At no time have as many crackpots, schemers, theorists with untried panaceas had a chance to get their plans put into action. Some are workable; most of them are not. The fact that some have worked, however, is the very reason the whole crew sticks around and keeps plugging for further trials of this, that or the other. For most of these folks, it is the first time in public life, their first entry into national office with authority. They like it. Also, they like the payroll. It is natural that they want to stay.

Trim kitchen windows with oilcloth shelf edging.

WE ARE indebted to one of the readers of this column for this idea. She was so enthusiastic about the book, SEWING, for the Home Decorator, offered with these articles that she wrote a nice letter of appreciation and also described this clever idea of her own for making her kitchen gay.

All of us know how often kitchen curtains must be laundered. Yet, we like interesting windows in this room as well as any other. Well, here is the answer with the minimum of work.

The curtains themselves are as easy to wash and iron as a dish towel—no frills, just hems. But don't make them too skimpy. A full width of 35-inch-wide material is not too wide. Cut away the selvage at the front edge and hem it with a 1-inch hem. Use a 2-inch hem at the bottom. This gives the curtains body so they will have smart crisp lines. The casing at the top should be just wide enough for the curtain rod. And don't forget to allow for shrinkage if the material is not pre-shrunk.

If figured material is used, choose colors that will harmonize with the shelf edging along the top of the window and the tie-backs as shown in the sketch. The thumb tacks used for the shelf edging may also add color interest.

NOTE: Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' book, SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Forty-eight pages of directions for making slip-covers and curtains; dressing tables; lampshades and many other useful articles for the home. Price 25 cents postpaid (coin preferred). Ask for Book 1, and address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood streams free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.
Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.
The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

THE SECOND PRIMARY ELECTION

Very little interest is being shown in the second Democratic Primary Election to be Saturday, August 27. Following the nomination of W. Lee O'Daniel for Governor and election of district and county officers, the political situation took a decided slump.

W. Lee O'Daniel's action in stamping his O. K. sign on his selections for other state officers served as a hypo to an otherwise semi-concoction election. What effect O'Daniel's selection of Coke Stevenson, Bascom Giles, Walter Woodul, C. V. Terrell, Ben Critz and Harry Graves will have on Texas politics remains to be seen.

Texas "Democratic" nominee for chief executive shattered all political precedents when he went on the air to name the men he would support in the runoff primary, saying, "This is the business way which you have said by your vote is the way you want. These are the men who will be of most help to me in giving you a business administration".

THEY CAN DO IT TOO

Although it is not an every day occurrence as yet, the crossings by air of the Atlantic are becoming common. Last week four German mystery fliers set their ship down on Floyd Bennett field in New York 25 hours after taking off from Berlin. It was the first Berlin-to-New York air trip.

Howard Hughes' quick trip, followed by Wrong Way Corrigan's hop to Iriand brought the Atlantic flights back into the aviation spotlight. Following Corrigan's history making flight military authorities were again reminded of the possibility of air attack in the event of conflict with other nations. The only problem in an event of this nature would be refueling. Unless a base could be established some place in the Atlantic or Pacific an enemy flight into the eastern section of the United States would not be feasible.

Aviation's interest has always been centered toward the flying feats of Americans since the time of the Wright Brothers. Lindberg, Earhart, Post, Hughes and Corrigan have each contributed a great deal to this never dimming interest.

funny—if he knew it."
"Doesn't he?"
"No. He's too absorbed in his own big problem. He's an unhappy man, and with good reason. But he wants everyone around him to be contented. He has always seen himself as a benevolent god in the machine, working his miracles to benefit others. It is to laugh!"
Hale moved abruptly in his chair, and Ainsworth took the hint. He had finished his liquor. He got up. "I'll be off now," he said. "See you at Halcyon Camp. Shall I tell Miss Hosanna you'll join our happy band in time for dinner tomorrow night?"
"Yes, thanks."
"The dinner hour is half past seven, and the run down takes almost two hours. You'd better come on the half-past four train."
"I will. Thanks again."
They shook hands and with a strong sensation of relief Hale watched Ainsworth's departure. He

"He wants a new car," Mrs. Nash explained when she had returned to her seat after the jerk. "He thinks if he wrecks this, he'll have one. You won't, darling," she assured the boy. "I've often reminded you that my annuity dies with me. You'd have to go right to work, probably on a truck. And, darling, please don't turn to point out the beauties of nature to us when you're driving at this speed. There's no sight more beautiful to me than a young driver who keeps his hands firmly on the wheel and his eyes on the road."
The cub turned and waved a careless paw. He was lightly clad in a low-necked khaki shirt, khaki shorts, and a pair of dirty white tennis shoes. He had a brown skin, brown hair, and brown eyes.
She returned her full attention to Hale, and gave him a few details about the neighborhood.
"They're very casual at Halcyon Camp," she told him, when she willing to be approached or disturbed. It spread over a lot of ground. A large screened-in veranda ran along the entire front of the frame building. Another extended along the right side. French windows opened on these. There were a number of outbuildings. Several tents were set up on pine board foundations and entered by roughly built steps. There was an impressive out-door oven for camp cooking. Down on the beach he saw what were evidently private bath-houses, a boat-house and a pier. A good-sized float loomed up some distance from the shore. Yet with all this, Halcyon Camp did not suggest a hospitable home.

Throughout his life Hale had been subject to what, for lack of a better word, he called "hunches." His hunches were sudden and strong convictions. Without understanding them he had developed a certain respect for them. He had a hunch now, and he did not like it.

AT EVENING TIME

By Madeline A. Chaffee
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

The "Briny Toyshop" was closed for the day. Its tiny show window still displayed an enticing array of delightful playthings, but the latch was hard down on the door, and its little lady proprietress had retired to her favorite low rocker by a rear window facing the sea.
The most persistent youth in the small sea-faring village rattled the door, but in vain. Miss Matilda Bell did not even hear.
There seemed more than ordinary magic in the glowing spell cast by the sun at this close of day. The old-fashioned garden sloping to the rocky shore seemed a fairy place. The sea was many-hued, dusky, wondrous, and its melody came pleasantly to Miss Matilda. There were dreams in Miss Matilda's eyes as she watched; not the happy, hopeful dreams of youth, but the deeper, sadder dreams of one who has lived long.
Miss Matilda was so much a part of her surroundings that she had ceased to notice them in detail. Her mind had flown back nearly 50 years, to the time when she had not the faintest thought of ever being a little, elderly, sweet-faced lady sitting by herself in the twilight.
To the time when she was a young, adventurous girl pleading her troth to a dashing young naval officer. Even now her eyes gazed dimly as the memories came drifting in on the breeze. Dream pictures blotted out the garden, the rocks, the sea itself, and Miss Matilda felt herself in the arms of her young lover, so tender, so dear—

And he had sailed away, full of hope and happy anticipations of the day when he should return to make her his wife. Miss Matilda's eyes blurred. That day had never come. There had been a fire aboard the ship—and the young officer, who belonged heart and soul to Matilda Bell, had given his life for another.
Years had taken away that first tragic grief, but Miss Matilda had loved too deeply to forget. How she wished she had been with him! Sometimes he seemed to speak to her in the voice of the sea, and she would say that she was coming—some day soon, very soon—coming to be with him.
On the rocks below Miss Matilda's cottage two figures were silhouetted against the dull red sky.
"But, dear girl"—the man's voice was tender, serious—"you don't know what the life is. I do—and I wouldn't condemn any woman to it, least of all—you. It will be a torture without you—but it wouldn't be fair to take you."
The girl's straight, sweet gaze held his steadily.
"But, Tom, don't you see I want to go? It may be years before you come back. Our marriage—that-is-to-be is going to be true partnership, Tommy boy, and it must begin by my going to South America with you now. I can face anything—with you!"

The two silhouettes suddenly converged into one as Tom said huskily:
"Bless you, sweetheart, you're coming with me. We'll play the game of life squarely—together."
And up in the little dusky window above the garden, with the sea still crooning a low love song, Miss Matilda had come into her own.

It was a long time since he had experienced a hunch so definite and disturbing.

told himself irritably that the fellow had pricked his balloon, and the next instant reproached himself for being so susceptible to the man's influence.
Hale finished his shopping and saw an amusing play that night. It diverted him even more successfully than the shopping had done. He took a calm mind to bed with him and into dreamland. But his dreams were troubled.
Kneeland had told him to leave the train at a certain station, adding that it was three miles from the Camp and that probably he would be met. Hale left the train at that station shortly after six the next evening and was not surprised to find no one in sight who seemed to be looking for a red-headed stranger. It was a lonely little station and only one passenger had got off with him. This was a slight woman, coolly dressed in blue voile. She had bent a furrowed brow over a note-book during most of her journey. She seemed to be unsuccessfully adding columns of figures that annoyed her. A small sedan car with a youth at the wheel was waiting for her. On her way to it she heard Hale question the station agent, who stood on the platform, as to the direction of Halcyon Camp. She turned and came toward him. She was a woman in her forties, with prematurely white hair, a youngish face and a worldly smile.
"You must be the young man Miss Kneeland is expecting today," she said cheerfully. "Hasn't anyone met you?"

reached that point of interest. "It never occurs to them to meet guests, or to get them to trains, for that matter. Time means nothing to them, and they're no respecters of persons. Mr. Kneeland talks about living close to the soil. He lets his guests do it, but he makes himself thoroughly comfortable. You won't catch him ploughing through the underbrush and along muddy country roads to the Camp. Miss Hosanna and Joan do it half the time. Mr. Kneeland keeps his car for his own journeys back and forth. Bert has a four-wheel wreck that he disappears in every day, when he isn't off in his motor-boat. Here we are. Sorry I can't take you to the door. Follow those excavations at the right. They represent a road."
Hale thanked her and jumped out of the sedan. He grasped the bags and his hat-box and started off along the branch road that ran at an angle to the so-called highway.
At a rather unexpected turn in the road, he saw the Camp. He stopped, put down his luggage, and looked it over. It was not a camp or a bungalow, but a big mid-Victorian house set in a wide clearing. Seen at that short distance, it had something of the effect of a brooding gray hen with outspread wings, crouched close to the earth, and un-

Hale straightened, drew a quick breath, and picked up his luggage. It was a long time since he had experienced a hunch so definite and so disturbing.
He approached the strangely silent house. There must be a number of human beings in and around it, but not a sound suggested their presence. Many of the windows were open, and their chintz curtains billowed in the breeze. Not a voice was heard, not a note of music came out to him, not a dog barked. One would think they'd have dogs in a place like this. If they had, the dogs were inside, hidden like the humans.
Hale strode up the wide steps leading to the front veranda, passed through the screen door, reached the double front doors, and pressed a compelling finger against an electric button on a side-panel. Light steps came along the inner hall and the right-hand door swung open. A young and pretty girl, in a maid's uniform, gave him a welcoming smile and stood aside to let him pass, even before he spoke. She was so pleasant to look at, so matter-of-factly reassuring, that the newcomer experienced an absurd sense of relief. He smiled at her as at a familiar friend.

WINS APPLAUSE OF FARM LEADERS EVERYWHERE

REQUESTS for reprints of the interviews between Everett Mitchell and Champion Farmers evidenced so great an interest that these entertaining and instructive programs will be resumed beginning the week of August 14.

In addition to the interviews conducted by Everett Mitchell the Firestone Orchestra and quartette complete a pleasant and instructive fifteen minute program.

The list of stations with days and times over which the broadcasts can be heard appear below.

Bird That Builds Nest Used by the Chinese for Food Found in Philippines

Science has finally come to one of the Philippines' most exotic industries, but not with a labor saving device.
A word of swift, one of whose species is the swift-flying small bird that may be seen rising sharply from American chimneys, has at last been identified as the bird that makes the edible nests which Chinese consider a delicacy.
But the business of collecting edible birds' nests will not see any machinery, Canuto G. Manuel, of the Philippine Commonwealth Fish and Game administration, indicates in the Philippine Journal of Science.
For the birds build their nests in all but inaccessible caves, which collectors must reach today in precisely the same manner as their forbears—by climbing patiently over slippery rocks and deep chasms. And, once inside, the collectors use the same primitive torches to light their way as they maintain a precarious balance while they carefully remove the nests they are to export.
The species is prevented from becoming extinct by the fact that many of the birds build their nests in caves that are actually inaccessible. No estimate of the size of the business, which centers at Bacuit, Palawan, is possible, for the local Chinese merchants who ship the product to China constitute a close-mouthed monopoly. Reason for their silence is fear of larger licensing fees.

Collecting is done by Filipinos who work on their own, selling all they take to the corporation. Each nest weighs less than ten grams (about a third of an ounce) when removed from the cavern wall, and loses a considerable portion of its weight in the drying process. The nests are gelatinous in nature.

Jerusalem's Cities

The present city of Jerusalem is the eighth to be built on this site. In southwest Judah is a mound, which reveals 11 distinct strata, each stratum representing the remains of a city. When a city was conquered the buildings were leveled to the ground. Since they were mostly built of clay, they formed a layer of soil on which another city rose.

HOMER WILLIAMS SAYS THIS IS BEST SOFTBALL DISTRICT

Homer Williams, regional director telephoned from Sweetwater Tuesday night that Floydada's placing sixteen teams in district tournament and the preparation to place four teams from this district in the regional tournament, made this the best district in his region.

Mr. Williams says that Commissioner Collins has done an exceptional job and his presence as well as a large number of fans from this district is expected in Sweetwater next week. The method of playing was complimented and Williams called special attention to the Childress team's bunting and fast base running. He said such practice would greatly assist teams which go to region.

18 Is Quota of NYA School Aid Jobs For Floyd Co.

Special to the Plainsman.
Austin, Texas, Aug. 18.—A quota of 18 National Youth Administration School Aid jobs has been allocated for Floyd County under the 1938-39 school aid program to provide part-time employment for young people in elementary and high schools who cannot otherwise continue in school, J. C. Kellam, state youth director, has announced.

Walter Travis, county superintendent has been notified of the number of jobs allotted. He has been requested to organize an advisory committee of local school officials to recommend an equitable distribution of jobs within the county on a basis of youth need and availability of school facilities. Mr. Kellam said that as soon as this is done, the NYA State Office will be in position to approve schools for participation. School officials requiring information concerning the 1938-39 school aid quotas should communicate with their county superintendent. They should furnish him with data which will assist the county committee in recommending the distribution of jobs, Mr. Kellam said.

As for the last three years, boys and girls in secondary schools between the ages of 16 and 24 will be enabled to earn a wage not exceeding $6 a month. They will be selected for employment by their own school officials, who will plan and supervise their work assignments. Students seeking part-time NYA school aid jobs should apply to the superintendent or principal of the school they plan to attend, since the officials of schools approved by the NYA for participation in the program select the students for the jobs, Mr. Kellam said.

"I'll vote for electric cookery"

• Before Mother got her Westinghouse range, I could almost yell my head off and she would never come to my distress. Always said she was too busy cooking. She was fussy and grumpy, too—all because of that hot kitchen of ours.

• But now, I just barely whimper and I get all the attention I want. Our meals are cooked automatically... and that gives Mother time to take me out for the afternoon. Foods taste better too... because the wholesome flavors are sealed in.

• Yesir—I'll vote for a Westinghouse electric range everytime—because its faster, cheaper and, well—it's just better, that's all.
