about dimmitt and castro county by b. m. n.

The first Tuesday after the first Monday in November is General Election day. In Texas, and many Southern states, with the exception of presidential elections, balloting on general election day has served the purpose of only making the election of Democratic nominees official. In my memory, with the exception of Congressman Bruce Alger of Dallas, there has never been other than a Democratic nominee elected in a general election in Texas. Some say that this is not good, that we should have a two-party state. I am inclined to agree.

Two responsible parties would probably be good for Texas state government. Maybe if we had two responsible parties Texas wouldn't be so low on the totem pole in education, maybe the deplorable condition of our state parks, as featured in recent issues of a regional daily paper, wouldn't exist. Maybe if we had two responsible political parties in Texas we would have as much attraction for the tourist trade as states with much less to offer, instead of being the last place in the nation that people from other states want to see.

I believe that if we had two responsible political parties that the state legislature would pass laws beneficial to the people of the state rather than those dictated by the major oil companies and other special interests of the state. Need a specific, then consider the gas bill needed and asked for by the farmers of the Plains Irrigation area. How about the proration, 8-day pumping allowable for oil wells, that is killing off the small independent companies and drying up jobs in the industry in Texas, as well as depriving the state and nation of tax revenue lost through special tax privileges enjoyed by major companies on imported oil.

We could go on, and on, enumerating reasons why we should have state government based on a responsible two-party system. But how in the world can we ever have two responsible parties as long Republicans vote in the Democratic primaries.

To me the development of a two party system in the state would be a simple matter. All that is necessary is for people to line up with the party of their choice and let the independents refrain from voting until the general election. The candidates of each political party furnish the money to pay the expenses incurred in conducting the two primaries, interested party members serve as party officials, free of charge, in conducting the business of the party. It is their primary that is being held and they have a perfect right to expect the people who voted in their primary to honor the pledge at the top of the ballot which reads: "I pledge to support the nominees of this primary."

I didn't support any of the Democratic nominees for state office in the primaries, but they are the nominees and I will support them in the general election. They are the nominees of my party and they will get my vote.

Thanks to a Democratic administration we are having fine weather for the harvesting of a bumper grain sorghum crop. It's a lot better than some of those foul Republican falls we had a few years ago. Another week or two, like this week has been, and all the grain will be in the crib.

A mere mention of the tragedy in Mississippi is about all that is possible in a work-a-day week as it is a matter about which volumes have been written and there are many more to come. In this controversy, as in all others, people choose sides and if you express an opinion you are expected to be on somebody's side. Actually it is not a matter of local or regional likes or dislikes, prejudices or personalities. It is a matter of law and order. Whether we agree with the opinion of the court or not, that opinion or order must be respected and obeyed. I am sure that Meredith could have found an integrated school where the educational opportunities are just as good as those at Oxford, Mississippi, and many believe that is what he should have done, but he didn't. Another basic philosophy in our land is that every man is entitled to his day in court. Meredith had his and the court ruled in his favor. Once the court handed down (See About Dimmitt, Page 12)

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

Traffic in "bootleg" oysters can be virtually eliminated if the public is willing to help, State Health Department officials believe.

The statement comes just as the season of increased oyster consumption hits full stride. More than 45 million Texas-grown oysters were sold on the retail market last year, and most of them were consumed right here at home.

"Bootleg oyster traffic isn't increasing or decreasing," a department official said. "This is just something we want to break up once and for all."

The questionable shellfish involve perhaps 10 percent of the tens of millions harvested annually in Texas bay water. The other 90 percent have pedigrees authenticated by State Health Department inspectors.

Most retail outlets—grocery stores, seafood houses, and restaurants handle only certified products, the department emphasized.

Bootleg oysters may be grown in water of questionable quality, harvested under insanitary conditions, and peddled by spurious dealers from house to house or at roadside stands.

The department urged that buyers insist on knowing the source of oysters offered for sale, and to refuse them if their certification by health inspectors can not be readily established by the vendor or verified by local health officials. approved canned or packaged oysters can quickly be identified by a certification number issued by the State Health Department.

VOTERS STILL WAIT FOR ANSWERS FROM MR. ROGERS

People want to know why Mr. Rogers refuses to answer the questions about his voting record. People continue to ask why he voted for a farm bill to enslave the farmers, why he voted for the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, why he voted to increase the national debt limit to $308 billion, and why he has consistently supported the New Frontier's plans for increasing bureaucracy and wasteful spending. When, if ever, will he give answers instead of generalities?

Highlights and Sidelights FROM THE State CAPITOL

With 12 indictments already returned in the East Texas slant-hole investigation, there are strong side-currents growing out of the East Texas scandals.

Rep. Charles Ballman of Borger and his fellow House investigators sent a preliminary report to Speaker James A. Turman and Gov. Price Daniel. They urged "immediate action" on eight changes in or additions to the criminal laws.

They also proposed that a procedure be set up to replace state officials who become ill and unable to handle their duties. This obviously is a reference to Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson who has been ill at his home in Amarillo for several months.

A major policy change would be revision of the old "marginal well law" which could be very important to many Texans, particularly in old oil areas.

Present law says that if an oil well cannot make as much as 20 barrels a day, it is a "marginal well" which must be exempt from shutdown days. Thus, a well producing 19 barrels a day will get an allowable of 570 barrels a month. But a well capable of making 1,000 barrels a day will be held to 160 barrels a month 20 barrels a day times eight producing days. Committee recommended that marginal wells be held to the same monthly allowable as a non-marginal well in the same field.

Governor Daniel has been non-committal on the possibility of calling a special session of the Legislature to act on this and other current problem areas.

COMMISSION SHAKEUP—Texas Railroad Commission is under a reorganization study by the Texas Research League. Already changes in procedures are being put into effect.

Commissioners William J. Murray Jr. and Ben Ramsey named a committee of oilmen headed by James E. Russell of Abilene to advise on revision of rules and procedures which most admit had become too cumbersome and slow.

Padre and Madre-Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler continues his battle against creation of the Padre Island National Seashore.

He has charged that oilmen bidding on state school leases in Laguna Madre did not make big cash bonus offers to the state because of passage of the Padre Island bill.

Sadler intends to oppose legislation to authorize sales of state land in Laguna Madre to the U.S. for the recreation area.

He has hired Captain William C. Russell of Fort Worth, recently retired as director of the Southwest Division of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, to survey the area along the Gulf.

"Although the so-called 'tidelands' law was passed in 1953, there has not been a settlement between Texas and the U.S. as to where the exact boundary lies. Russell, whose life work has been in coastal surveying, will undertake that chore.

It is made doubly hard because the line is supposed to be three marine leagues off the shore, as it was in 1848 when Texas entered the union. The shoreline has changed considerably in the intervening years.

BUSINESS PERKS UP—Texas business activity rose seven percent in August over July. And eight percent above that of August, 1961.

Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas found this rosy picture in August, after two bad months of decline.

CASH ON HAND—While there has been lots of talk about the state government being in the red, it really never has been.

On August 31, when the fiscal year ended, the State Treasury had a cash balance of more than $219,000,000.

Deficits have been recurring in one of the state's 380 or so funds

—the General Revenue Fund. But the others always have cash balances.

Controllor Robert Calvert gave Texans some charts. They show where $1,300,000,000 went last year. Education took 41.01 cents of each dollar, highways took 28.50 cents, public welfare cost 16.29 cents, and all the rest — Legislature, courts, administrative agencies and everything else — cost 9.04 cents of every dollar.

LAND SENTENCE—A third man's conviction from the veterans land scandals of the mid-1950's was affirmed by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

He was B.R. Sheffield of Brady, who was found guilty by a Hill County jury of "uttering a false instrument" in the case of one of the 54 veterans whose rights were put together to buy a 10,000-acre ranch in Kinney County.

Previous convictions were on former Land Commissioner Bascom Giles and J.T. McLarty.

Sheffield recently paid back the Veterans Land Board, with interest, the money he received for the land.

LOST PARK—Back in 1933, Joe Espy of Fort Davis gave the state 169 acres in the Davis Mountains, with a provision that if it were not developed for public recreation he would get it back.

The state failed to develop the land, so Espy sued to get it back. Trial court held that he was entitled to the land, and ordered it returned. The State Parks Board is appealing.

Espy said he would give it to the Parks Board again—if the Board will develop it as a park.

FEDERAL AID—Texas has received $317,920 from the U. S. Forest Service to be allocated to East Texas counties where four national forests are located.

Counties and schools in the forest areas get 25 per cent of the Forest Service's income from the forests, to help maintain road and school programs.

BOOK DEFENDERS—The men and women who run the public schools came out in strong support of the present method of selecting textbooks in Texas.

Plan has been under attack by some witnesses at recent legislative hearings.

Texas Association of School Boards, meeting in Austin, found no fault in the system by which a textbook committee selects as many as five books for each course and then local textbook committees decide which of the five they will use.

School board members also took no action on an Ector County proposal that central state purchasing of school buses be ended.

COLLEGE TAX ILLEGAL—Texas Supreme Court action is expected soon on a case which could upset the junior college set-up in Texas.

'Taxpayer' suit from Harris County contends that the Legislature had no constitutional authority to allow the levying of taxes by junior college districts.

Supreme Court has been studying the case since April. Should it agree with the taxpayers, it would take a constitutional amendment to legalize the college districts. Meanwhile, state money might be needed to keep the 32 junior colleges going until the voters have a say on the subject.

OLD BADGES—Texas Rangers have gone back to the old days and old ways.

Old-time Rangers carved their own badges out of Mexican pesos. It was a star within a circle.

A fancy new-style badge was adopted in 1936 when Rangers were put under the Department of Public Safety.

Now they are going back to the old-type badge. But they won't carve their own. All 62 Rangers were issued shiny new ones, ready-made.

SLOW PICKING—Texas Department of Agriculture reports a slowdown in cotton picking. Harvest slowed to 29 per cent, which is the same as this time last year.

Damp weather kept bolls from opening in the South Plains and rains slowed the picking in other areas.

Wet fields also have slowed the sorghum harvest.

SUMMER READING—Nearly 21,000 school-age children in 285 cities earned certificates from the Texas State Library for summer reading.

Boys and girls who read 12 books during the summer got the awards.

STUDY COMMITTEE—A citizen advisory committee has been named to help the Texas Legislative Council study the problems of emotionally disturbed children. Rep. C.W. Pearce Jr. of Temple is chairman.

The study committee was set up after experts advised that Texas has few facilities for curing such disorders.

GOVERNOR NAMES—Governor Daniel named Mack Wallace of Athens as district attorney, to replace Jack Hardee of Athens, who resigned because he is the Democratic nominee for district judge.

District is composed of Henderson, Anderson and Houston Counties.

He also named Boyd Hilley of Lamesa to the Egg Marketing Advisory Board, and reappointed Jack Dabose of Gonzales and Marvin Gilbreath of Weimar on that board.

B.H. Dewey of Bryan and Rep. George Hinson of Mineola were named to the Southern Regional Education Board.

Ballot Roster—Secretary of State Frank Lake has certified 24 candidates for statewide office.

Names appearing on the November 6 general election ballot will include 14 Democratic nominees, eight Republicans and two from the Constitution Party.

In addition, the fate of 14 proposed constitutional amendments will be decided by the voters.

TWO WITHDRAW—Two Constitution party candidates have notified the Secretary of State to withdraw their names from the November election.

They are Ruben Lozano of San Antonio, candidate for Congressman-at-Large and Roy R. Brown of Bonham, candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

JOBS ON RISE—Figures released in Austin by the U.S. Department of Labor show the Texas employment picture to be twice as good as the national average.

Texas' non-agricultural employment increase from 1947 to 1961 was 45.4 per cent, almost double the national average of 23 per cent.

NEW ERA PREDUCTED—Maurice Turner, chairman of the State Parks Board, believes a surge of public interest presages "a mighty Texas" neglected state parks system.

He credits this new interest to a sizable movement to develop tourism in Texas.

Attendance at Texas state parks increased by some 500,000 persons during the last fiscal year.

In keeping with the national trend, overnight campers increased by more than 100,000.

Total visitation for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1962, was 7,099,672 compared with 6,614,332 for the preceding year.

SHORT SNORTS—Governor Price Daniel attended his last Southern Governors Conference in Hollywood Fla., and brought out a report challenging national import policies on oil, saying that the domestic oil industry is hit hard by imports from foreign lands Atty. Gen Will Wilson held that school teachers are not entitled to get their jobs back when they return from military service, such as the recent call-up of part of the Texas National Guard Texas will send 153 men to military service through the draft in November—August report of the Liquor Control Board shows revenues collected for the state since the Board was created at the end of prohibition, November 16, 1935, amount to $501,279,416.

Walter Rogers' WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER

HELIUM CONSERVATION

H.R. 10548 (Rogers of Texas) was the number of the legislation which I introduced on February 18, 1960. This measure was the result of much study, research and discussion. It was designed to bring about a partnership operation between the government of the United States and private enterprise, to the end that our philosophy of private enterprise would be fully carried out. Also, it was to provide a bulwark against confiscatory practices that could have come into being. Hence, I am indeed proud to have had the opportunity to author this legislation, to see it pass through the Congress, and to stand up against the onslaughts leveled against it. It is, of course, rewarding to see it being implemented and carried out and to know that its purposes are being fulfilled in all respects. It was my pleasure to address the House of Representatives on the subject recently, and I reprint here a condensation of the speech that I made on the subject.

The long-range program in which industry and government are working together to save helium now lost when natural gases are burned as fuel is one of the most forward-looking and commendable efforts ever made in the field of conservation. When the government acts to curb waste of a limited, irreplaceable resource essential to progress, such action surely is worth while. When it attracts private capital at private risk, creates many new jobs for industry, stimulates the economy and brings rapid technical advances, it can be termed praiseworthy. When this same program pays for itself, it must be rated close to ideal. The helium conservation program will accomplish this, and more. It provides an outstanding example of industry and government co-operating in an enterprise beneficial to both and to the entire nation as well. Consider the accomplishments. On Aug. 15, 1961 (12 days after Congress approved funds) the first long-term helium-purchase contract was announced. Within 90 days, three more had been negotiated. Now, little over a year from the date of the first contract, helium from a new plant at Bushton, Kansas, is about to start to the Cliffside gasfield at Amarillo, some 350 miles away, where it will be stored to meet future demands. Four other plants are near completion. Phillips Petroleum is finishing two plants, in Sherman County and Dumas, which expects to begin deliveries in December. Two more plants in Kansas are due to go on stream next March. To get the helium to Cliffside at minimum cost, a pipeline is being built from Cliffside to Bushton; designed by an Oklahoma firm the line was built by Groninger and King of Pampa and R. H. Fulton & Co. of Lubbock. In one year, more than 90-other contracts worth over $4.2 million, have been awarded, on everything from telemetering equipment to milepost markers.

It was clear that it would take higher prices to make the program self-liquidating. Accordingly, the Interior Department raised the price from $19 to $35 per thousand cubic feet. This will permit repayment within 25 years, with interest, of all government funds used to buy helium during early years of the program. Thus the users will pay the costs of guaranteeing the supply. This program is a clear case of acting before an emergency arises. Uses for helium in electronics, nuclear energy, missiles, space and refrigeration have tremendously increased the demand. Requirements were expected to exceed supply by 1985. Hence we took immediate steps to obtain necessary legislation. The entire matter was heard by the Mines and Mining Subcommittee of the House Interior Committee, of which I was a member. We made it clear to the Congress that action was essential. But one strong faction advocated the takeover of all helium, wherever found by the government under the right of eminent domain. Those of us who have long supported the basic free enterprise theory waged a vigorous battle against this idea and won. The oil and gas business reached its present world leadership position through private initiative; it is logical to assume that proper development of helium resources can come through the same route.

This experience has refuted irrevocably those who malign the natural gas industry as self-interested and profit-hungry. The program has been started more rapidly more efficiently and at less cost than if the government had tried to go it alone. The dynamic capabilities of a free industry in a free economy have come into fullplay. Five plants are nearing completion in less time than the

Senator YARBOROUGH'S REPORT

Dear Fellow Texan: The Senate Subcommittee on Education has jurisdiction over bills in the field of education. As a member of this subcommittee, much of my time each year is spent in committee work on problems of education. One of the big problems is that larger numbers of college students are finding it more and more difficult to finance their college years. The cost of education is going up—living costs, tuition, all the costs of college education are going up.

One important bill that has just passed the Senate would make more loans available to students for higher education. government would have taken to build one. And, technical advances are marvelous. Plants built less than 20 years ago could process only 2.5 million cubic feet of gas daily; the new plants can handle 400-500 million cubic feet a day. And, any risk inherent in new methods is borne by the companies; the government agrees only to pay the negotiated price for the helium it receives. Current agreements give private companies maximum incentive to reach their greatest helium-producing capability, thus encouraging the fullest possible conservation.

Hundreds of new jobs have been created, in participating companies and supplier industries. Technical advances will greatly benefit the entire natural gas industry. Removal of helium from gas automatically increases pipeline capacity for transporting burnable hydrocarbons. And, consumers will no longer pay for a substance with no fuel value. Had the government conducted this program alone, the Bureau of Mines would have had to expand its staff enormously, far more time would have elapsed, far more helium would have been lost. Through cooperation with industry, it has been possible to conserve even more helium than first considered possible, at extremely low cost. There is work still to be done, but we have achieved our objective—maximum conservation at minimum cost to the taxpayer.

Right now, the most money that can be loaned to students at a single school is $250,000 in the aggregate. But many of our nation's finest schools find more students who need these loans than the present bill allows. In Texas, for example, the University of Houston has asked for $364,000 for loans to students. We should help make available that money to the students there. At Baylor in Waco, a total of $366,000 for student loans in one year was requested. This, too, is a school that turns out fine students and the need of these students to borrow money should be recognized.

The amendment that has passed the Senate would become a part of the National Defense Education Act of 1958. These loans go to students in certain vital defense fields and fields of education. Not every student can qualify, because the fields covered are major fields of science, mathematics, foreign languages, engineering, medicine, and dentistry and teaching. In the 1960-61 school year, there were 151,000 students who used these loans over the United States. On the average, the loan was for $40 a year per student. Over 12,000 students are already at work paying off their loans. And they have paid off nearly $2 million to date — proof positive that the plan is working.

In Texas alone, our colleges and universities have loaned more than $10 million under the National Defense Education Act since it first passed in 1958. In 1959, the total was $1.75 million. But by 1962, the total was nearly $4 million loaned in Texas schools in one year under the Defense Education Act.

So far, more than 29,000 college students in Texas have borrowed money under the National Defense Education Act. Today, more than 9,000 students are in Texas schools with the use of these loans. The number will increase with this stepped-up appropriation that we have made this year.

The importance of stepped-up scientific, engineering, medical and teacher training is clear. The need for loans is also clear. We have only to look at the increasing use by students who want to advance their education so badly that they will borrow money and put themselves in debt to do it.

Another bill that we are clearing through the Congress is one for federal grants for extension teaching. It will apply to state universities and land grant colleges, and we have at least two of these institutions in Texas that qualify. Probably more will in the future. This bill will get teaching techniques out to the remotest farm or

Grass Waterways Prevents Erosion

Excessive amounts of run-off water this year have aroused an interest in grassed waterways. The purpose of such a waterway is to carry runoff with little or no erosion.

Where water concentrates it needs to be handled so as to prevent erosion. Natural waterways or depressions may require very little shaping and establishment of a grass cover. However, there may be no natural depression or it may be more desirable to build the waterway somewhere else.

Experience has shown that it is more difficult to establish and confine the flow and soil and moisture are usually most favorable to vegetative growth. Waterways located along a field boundary have the advantage of interfering least with tillage operations, but they are usually more expensive to establish because some shaping may be required.

Experience has shown that it is hazardous and expensive to attempt to establish vegetation in a waterway when it is being used for the disposal of runoff. Newly prepared seedbeds, fertilizers, young plants, and newly placed bermuda sprigs offer little resistance to erosion and are frequently washed out. If possible, divert the runoff into a temporary bypass until the vegetation is established. The type of grass would depend on whether irrigation water is available. Where irrigation water is not available western wheatgrass is good in this area. Bermudagrass is good, but will need some irrigation.

A waterway should be inspected after each heavy rain. Minor repairs done then may prevent failure later on. Damaged sod or washed out seed or plants should be replaced immediately. Overgrazing must be avoided. Proper mowing or grazing of vegetation tends to develop a cover and root system that is more resistant to erosion than rank vegetation.

Soil Conservation Service technicians assigned to assist the local Soil Conservation District are available to assist with your waterway problem.
