ORNATE CORSAGE NOT SUITABLE FOR YOUTH

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

A young girl's best laid plans for her Easter ensemble can go awry if the corsage she wears is too sophisticated or too ornate.

If you're expecting Dad or your best beau to do the honors on Easter, better toss out a few hints beforehand so that your corsage will be in harmony with youthful togs.

For advice on what flowers to select for your Garden of Eden, top-flight florist whose corsages are prized by young New Yorkers. For informal street wear, she says, a round nosegay type of corsage is more to be desired than a long sheaf of flowers which may dwarf a slight young figure or look too showy. As happy a choice as a shoulder-pinned flower for a young charmer is a wreath of delicate blossoms which she can string around the crown of a plain straw hat.

A "little lady," says our expert, will stick to flowers with bright, vibrant colors that spark a costume shade or delicate blossoms with an innocent air. Spring garden flowers such as geraniums, carnations, poms, violets, daisies, lilies of the valley or hyacinth are wise choices. She should avoid wearing exotic flowers such as large orchids, gardenias or dark red roses which are better suited for a mature or sophisticated woman.

Public Responsibility Forgotten

JOHN L. LEWIS and Benjamin Fairless have a good deal in common. Both rose from jobs as manual laborers to positions of affluence and great power. Both are intelligent, aggressive, tough-minded men who are pretty sure of the rightness of their decisions. The fact that they are on opposite sides of the fence often seems beside the point.

Fairless, as president of the United States Steel Corporation heads the biggest single producer of our basic industrial commodity. Recently he undertook to defend and justify a rise in the price of semi-finished steel products, even though the steel companies were making enormous profits and the increase would surely have a discouraging effect on the general effort to lower prices.

Lewis makes all the policy decisions for the 400,000 coal miners on whose efforts so much of our industry and commerce depends. The other day he came back from a Florida vacation, sun-tanned and loaded with Shakespearean quotations, and began throwing four-syllable words at the coal operators. His oratory boiled down to a charge that the operators had backed out of an agreement for a miners' pension plan.

He didn't explain his pension plan, but he implied that he would get it for the miners—or else. And two days later thousands of miners suddenly discovered they were not "able and willing" to work, which is the neat right-to-strike provision that Lewis got into a contract that he negotiated after passage of what he calls the "Taft slave law."

Now it may be that Lewis' pension plan—he already has a pension fund of some $30,000,000—is just and reasonable. It may be that Fairless can make out a good account-book case for raising steel prices. But it does seem that both these men are forgetting that a great public responsibility goes along with their great power.

Whatever the reasons, the country and the free world cannot afford a long coal strike that would curtail industrial production and transportation. They cannot afford a rise in manufacturing costs which is imposed only for the purpose of piling more profits on top of profits already huge.

Ideally, the best way to carry on commerce under the American system is with a minimum of government interference. Freedom of competition and collective bargaining is one of the keys to this country's material greatness. But that freedom can only be maintained when it is accompanied by a broad sense of public responsibility.

We do not quarrel with the rights to raise prices or collect pensions or strike. But today the insistence on these special rights must be weighed against other, broader rights and duties.

Lewis and Fairless must not forget that their country is committed to a bloodless war for the protection of freedom. They are in a position to determine largely whether that war is to be won or lost. They must at least explain and justify their private interests which threaten defeat, or else expect the government to curtail further their freedom of private action in the interest of the public good.

Spring Again

Well, the country seems to have survived one of the severest Winters in recent years with few ill effects, and the recent discomforts will soon be forgotten. Already January's bitter blizzards and February's mild recession in the commodity market are little more than memories.

Some day orchids will be as common as onions, says a writer. And the gals will still cry for them.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

Wife's 1946 Views On Russia Cited In Condon Charge

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—There were from 15 to 20 guests present at Mrs. J. Terry Duce's dinner party at which Mrs. Emile Condon is said to have uttered some violently pro-Russian sentiments. Mrs. Condon is the wife of Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, whose "association with foreign agents" is now being investigated by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

The guests included: Senator Carl A. Hatch (D-NM), Congressman Earl Muntz (R-SD), Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass). Scientists present included Glenn P. Seaborg, of California, co-discoverer of plutonium, and Joseph H. Rush, secretary-treasurer of the Federation of Atomic Scientists.

James R. Newman, counsel for Senator Brian McMahon's Atomic Energy Committee, was there. Newman was one of the principal drafters of the present atomic energy law. Condon was the committee's chief of staff and scientific adviser. Samuel Shaffer of Newsweek, several more writers and a few other guests were there. Nobody remembers who they were. Vaguely one guest remembers "a very young scientist who looked like a tall Sinatra, but wasn't."

None remembers the exact date. It was sometime early in 1946. Anyway, cocktails were served, they had a delicious roast beef dinner, and then went into the drawing room for coffee and high balls.

Joe Rush remembers he led off the discussion, summarizing views of the scientists who had worked on the atomic bomb. He cited the fact that there was no defense against the new weapon, the need for international controls, the need for efforts to cooperate with them.

Sam Shaffer says he raised the question of how there could be international controls when the Russians were acting the way they were. Mrs. Condon, who is little, dark and vivacious, had brought her knitting along. She was seated in the center of the group, her needles flying. She came to the Russians' defense, making a strong argument for efforts to cooperate with them.

No one can recall anything specific that Mrs. Condon said but several of the guests came away with the impression that Mrs. Condon was pretty pro-Russian. Whatever she said, the question raised is whether a husband can be held responsible for his wife's remarks in after-dinner conversation, at a gathering called for the express purpose of discussing a controversial subject.

It's a fine point, as Congressman Muntz admits. A husband can be held responsible for debts contracted by his wife, unless he makes a public disclaimer. But one spouse cannot be forced to testify against the other. Mrs. Condon, in now declining to try to remember what she said that evening, has the right not to talk about it.

Congressman Muntz remembers that at the time he "wondered who that friend of Uncle Joe's was," Muntz says he "popped off" on what he knew about Tito, Yugoslavia and the Russians.

Rush and Seaborg kept out of all this Russian argument. Senator Hatch and Dr. Condon didn't say anything all evening. Mrs. Duce in a whisper asked Mr. Duce why he didn't ask some questions and he whispered back that he didn't want any part of the performance because he didn't like the way the talk was going.

Only one of the guests remembers that there was any discussion of sharing the secret of the atomic bomb with the Russians. Senator Hatch, Congressman Muntz, Rush, Shaffer and others don't remember that anyone went that far. Rush says that giving the bomb to the Russians was never any part of the federation's program.

Rush felt that the evening had been a failure because the talk had been so much about Russia. As the party was breaking up, however, Congressman Muntz told Rush how impressed he was by the young scientist's remarks and asked him to talk before the 76 Club, made up of Republican freshmen in the 76th congress. Rush later spoke to the 76 Club and "made up for some lost ground."

Congressman Muntz is ranking Republican member of the House Un-American Activities Committee. He presides over the full committee in the absence of Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ), who is recuperating from illness. Muntz says he did not make a report to the committee on the Duce dinner. But he says some of the committee investigators might have heard him discussing it.

The Chiropractor and You...

No. 4 in a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of Chiropractic.

CASE HISTORY No. 274—A girl of 17 who came to a Chiropractor suffering from severe headaches which she attributed to her eyes. She had worn glasses for five years, changing to a stronger type of lens every six months. However, analysis revealed that the headaches were caused by nerve pressure at the base of the skull. A series of spinal adjustments released the nerves from pressure and the headaches promptly ceased. Further, eyeight so improved that within a short time she was able to discard her glasses and has not worn them since.

CASE HISTORY No. 745—A severe case of asthma resulting from the drainage of mucous from dis-eased sinuses which had affected the bronchial tubes. This middle-aged man had tried every available means of relief without success. Brought to a Chiropractor "doubting that anything could be done," he was restored to normal health within a few weeks. The cause of his condition was simply nerve pressure between the brain and the sinuses. When this pressure was removed by spinal adjustment the abnormality quickly cleared up.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION concerning the modern Chiropractor and what he can do for you, phone 1256 for your appointment.

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC?

Chiropractic is based on the fact that the brain is the human power house. It creates vital energy. Without brain energy no organ or part of the body can function. Brain energy is transmitted over the body's network of nerves. These nerves radiate from the spine, and it is in the spine that the nerve can be "pinched" by vertebrae, and the flow of energy over them impeded or cut off. When in this way the connection is broken between brain and one or more parts of the body, disease is the inevitable result. By skillful analysis and precise spinal adjustments, the Chiropractor is able to locate and release impinged nerves and restore an uninterrupted flow of brain energy to the part affected. Health follows naturally.

One happy family in Rome, Italy, are the Turzi—thanks to the citizens of Harrisburg, Pa. in a campaign to show the need of the Marshall Plan, the Philadelphia Inquirer ran a series of NEA-Acme photos showing the impoverished living conditions of the Turzi family. Nobody Complains About Pains Of Income Taxes—Except Taxpayers

By HAL BOYLE

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Paying income taxes is getting so painless now that nobody complains about them much any more—except taxpayers.

And all they object to generally is that it costs them money. And what is money today? Money?

One son of Erin, after studying the calendar, decided the whole tax program was a foreign plot against the Irish.

"I think it's a darn shame we have to pay all this money by March 15th," he wrote the Bureau of Internal Revenue. "It's nothing but British propaganda to spoil our St. Patrick's Day celebration."

He was among the fewer than one in ten thousand taxpayers who sit down with pen in hand each March to gripe at the tax collectors.

There used to be more beefing and quibbling. But it has been cut down by the new short tax forms and the system of withholding payments which removes the money from the taxpayer before he even sees it.

Fewer Midnight Lines.

This year there were fewer midnight lines of frantic citizens.

"To avoid overtime costs we closed most offices at the regular time and saved $250,000 in overtime pay," said a man at the bureau here.

He added that the biggest nuisances to the collectors were taxpayers who forget to sign their returns and those who tried to reduce their payments by fudging on Uncle Sam's definition of dependents.

Some have tried to write off as dependents their girl friends, their household pets—even a tape worm. One listed three fathers—his own and those of his two wives. Another put down his mother-in-law as "a discrepancy."

One old lady became angry because a collector refused to accept her "Bill" as a dependent after the collector discovered that "Bill" was a mule retired to pasture.

"I listed him for the last two years and nobody raised a fuss before," she complained.

Another woman insisted she had two dependent daughters called "Mabel."

"They were twins," she said, "and they looked so much alike we just decided to name them both Mabel."

The bureau gallantly bowed to this invincible maternal logic.

It is difficult to huri a new insult at the tax collectors. With cheery good humor the bureau has made a scrapbook of the prize shafts aimed its way. Some samples:

One man enclosed half a shirt with a partial tax payment and said, "I'll send you the rest of the money and the other half of my shirt as soon as I can."

Another, who asked for a $80 refund and was awarded $90, wrote dazedly,

"I am now 65 years of age. At last I believe in Santa Claus."

Fort Worth Violence Brings Six Arrests In Meat Packers Strike

PORT WORTH — (AP) — Six strikers at the Armour & Company Packing Plant were arrested Monday night and booked on charges of violating the new state anti-mass picketing law.

The strikers were arrested after Lee McClendon, 45, a worker at the plant, was struck over the right eye with a beer bottle. An automobile containing six men forced McClendon's car to the curb near the Armour plant.

McClendon said he and two other employees had just driven through the picket line at the plant after a day's work.

"These men walked over to our car and said something about working in the plant," McClendon told District Attorney Al Clyde and Police Chief R. E. Dyasart. "I started to get out and was hit on the head by a beer bottle."

Maximum penalties under the law are a $500 fine and 90 days in jail.

Russians Exploiting B-29 Secrets Copied From Interned Superforts

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It is now definitely known that the Russians are exploiting the secrets of the B-29 Superfortress bomber of the production of giant transport planes as well as bombers.

The complicated, weird story of how the Russians got the B-29 data in the first place, and of how they are currently using it, can now be told for the first time.

It starts with the mysterious disappearance during the war of three B-29s, including the famed "E. H. Arnold Special." It involves an unsuccessful Russian attempt to buy B-29 parts in the U. S. And it ends with the showing of a newsreel in a London theater recently.

In July, 1944, the first Superfort fell into Russian hands. The pilot of the plane was forced to land at Vladivostok after a bombing mission against Mukden, Manchuria. The second one to go to the Reds was the "Special." This plane was one of the first B-29s to come off the Boeing production line in Wichita, Kan. It participated in the first B-29 bombing mission in the Pacific. To bolster morale in the plant the employees were kept informed of the plane's missions—until its mysterious disappearance. The last they were Russian held. The pilot had taken off on Armistice Day, 1944, and dropped bombs on Japan.

Mexican Workers Lost; Uncle Sam Seeks Vainly

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Uncle Sam is looking for about 12,000 "lost" farm hands.

They were among more than 300,000 agricultural workers brought in from Mexico and the West Indies during the war and since to help meet a farm worker shortage.

They were given permits to enter this country for only a specified time, and were supposed to return to their respective countries after the harvesting season.

So far neither the Agriculture Department nor the Immigration Service has been able to find the 12,000. Most of those missing are from Mexico.

The copy: Newsreel shot of Soviet's TU-70 gave away the story of the Russian Superfortress.

Then no more was heard about the plane or crew.

The "Special" also landed at Vladivostok, and was followed 10 days later by the third Superfort. All had gone into Russia because they were running short of gas. The crews were interned at a camp at Taikent, Siberia, before they were freed and sent back to the U. S. But the Russians never volunteered an explanation of what happened to the B-29s.

The first evidence that the Russians were producing replicas of the B-29 came last year during the Soviet Aviation Day parade at Moscow. U. S. observers reported that they saw in the sky "definitely more Superfortresses than they came by from us."

Then Gen Carl Spaatz, Air Force chief of staff, disclosed in testimony before President Truman's Air Policy Commission that Russia in 1946 had tried to place an order with an American rubber company for tires, wheels and brake assemblies of the Boeing B-29. General Spaatz said the company wasn't permitted to fill the order.

Then a newsreel in a London theater showed the new Russian Tupolev TU-70, a 72-passenger transport. A reporter for the British paper, "The Aeroplane Spotter," saw the similarity between the B-29 and the TU-70. He asked the manager of the theater for clips from the movie reel, and sent the prints to Boeing.

Planes Compared

Boeing engineers compared the two airplanes and concluded "that they had given Andreas N. Tupolev considerable help in designing the TU-70." From three photos Boeing designers recognized more than 20 B-29 items that were exact duplicates.

Among the 20 items are: the wing, the general shape of the fuselage, the main landing gear, the tail surface design, the nose, and the propellers. There are other similarities which make it obvious even to the untrained eye that the Russian transport came direct from Boeing engineers.

In the Boeing employees' monthly magazine, where the story first was told in detail, Reynolds Phillips writes:

"Russia asked no one's permission when she seized the Superforts from which it appears she has copied the design and built the jets and dies necessary for production. She was presented the opportunity, through no one's fault, and she helped herself."

"It is an indication that Russia's own designers still have not been able to produce a long-range airplane as advanced as the Superfortress, which in this country already is being superseded by the even more advanced Boeing B-50."

What has a railroad got to do with Easter Eggs?...

Who would think that the railroads have anything to do with those gaily colored candy eggs that delight the hearts of little children at Easter time? But they do—because whether it is candy Easter eggs or tractors, toothpaste or motor oil, the railroads bring them from the manufacturing plants of the nation—to you.

Yes, the railroads DO make a valuable contribution to your day-to-day living.

And, too, they help to protect your safety and welfare. How? The millions of dollars the railroads pay each year in federal, state and local taxes help maintain schools, police, fire and sanitation protection for you and your family.

And, the railroads provide good jobs for thousands of people—people who spend their salaries in their home towns, thus contributing to the prosperity of their individual communities.

Yes, the railroads are more than a system of transportation. They are a vital part of your life and well-being.

The Texas and Pacific Railway, as a service and tax-paying "citizen" of Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico takes an active interest in these three great states.

It is proud of its share in helping bring better living and greater prosperity to the towns and cities it serves.

St. Louis Has Dream Mound Staff For '48

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. —(AP)— Potentially the St. Louis Cardinals have the greatest pitching depth in the National League, and that doesn't mean the chucksers always are in a hole.

It does mean that Manager Eddie Dyer, if all the moundmen turn out as he hopes, can start a new man on the mound every day for nine straight days, barring double headers.

It would be almost too good if such a prospect materialized, but here's the dream as it is right now: Murry Dickson—a jigger-sized right handed veteran who looks great this Spring after a rather disastrous season for him last year.

Harry "The Cat" Brecheen—reported late and has not done much yet, but has the record of being a reliable performer.

George Munger—looking pretty good to date, with prospects of steady improvement. Won 16 games and lost five for the Cards last year.

Folet Question Mark
Howie Folet—spelled with a question mark. The erstwhile star had an arm operation during the winter and whether he can come back is guesswork.

Jim Hearn—a big, strong right hander who won 12 games while losing seven last year.

Alpha Braae—looking great, the sinker-ball southpaw won 14 and lost 8 in 1947.

Ken Burkhardt—used mostly in a relief role last year, but is showing so much stuff he might land a starting berth.

Clarence Beers—A right-handed rookie. What he can do against major hitters remains to be seen, but his outlook is promising.

Alfred Papp—another Houston rookie with a 21-10 record behind him in the Texas League. Also a good prospect.

Kentucky Favored To Trample Baylor

NEW YORK —(AP)— Kentucky's mighty Wildcats were firmly favored to brush past Baylor and win the NCAA basketball championship in Madison Square Garden Tuesday night.

It's a familiar role for both teams. Kentucky was the solid choice to capture the Eastern eliminations and the smooth 'Cats did so handily. Baylor, on the other hand, was rated an underdog in both of its Western playoffs but the battling Bears surprised the opposition in each case.

On the basis of its sensational play in whipping Columbia and Holy Cross, Baylor has been established a 9 1/2-point favorite over Baylor.

The Southeastern Conference champions polished off Columbia's Ivy League titlists 76-53 and de-throned Holy Cross' 1947 NCAA champions 60-52.

Baylor, first Southwest Conference quintet to reach the NCAA's final round, nipped Washington's Pacific Coast Conference kings 64-52 and then conquered Kansas State's Big Seven pennant winners 60-52.

In each game the Bears came from behind to win. Groza Big Problem
Both quintets are in the eight-team Olympic tryout tourney.

Groza, the tall Kentucky center, scored 40 points in the two Eastern contests, 25 against Holy Cross.

He's virtually unstoppable with his push shots and pivots and if he has any bad moments, Wah Wah Jones, another lanky ace, usually takes up the slack. Jones collected 33 points in the two playoff games.

Trying to stop these two huskies will be Baylor's biggest problem. Kentucky (33-2) is working on a 15-game winning streak. Baylor (25-5) has a modest six-game victory string of its own.

The championship contest will start about 8:40 p. m. (GST), shortly after Holy Cross (26-4) and Kansas State (22-5) finish up their consolation affair. Holy Cross is a five-point choice to cop third place honors.

The volume of trading on the New York Stock Exchange dropped from $63,700,000 in 1946 to 253,600,000 in 1947.

Nine records are in danger of being broken at the Sand Hills Relays Saturday. Eleven entries already are made in the Odessa event. These are Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Lubbock, Andrews, Seminole, McCamey, Monahans, Kermit, Lamesa and Pecos.

Now for the marks due to be cracked (with holders): 100-yard dash, 10.4 seconds, Partridge of Big Spring; 440-yard dash, 2:22 seconds, Harrison of Denver City; 200-yard low hurdles, 24.0 seconds, Anderson of Odessa; 440-yard relay, 54.5 seconds, Odessa; 800-yard relay, 3:40, Odessa; shot put, 44 feet, 10 inches, Streibler of Amarillo; discus throw, 135 feet, 8 inches, Goodie of Midland; broad jump, 30 feet, 9 inches, Young of Andrews; high jump, six feet, Pennell of Andrews.

Key marks are likely to stand. They are, with holders: 120-yard high hurdles, 15.7, Anderson of Odessa; 220-yard dash, 22.8 seconds, Bingham of Odessa; mile relay, 3:40, Odessa; shot put, 44 feet, 10 inches, Streibler of Amarillo; pole vault, 12 feet, Dean of Lubbock.

Matty Bell, head football coach at Southern Methodist University, told 200 coaches attending the 20th annual University of Oklahoma free football clinic that the best way to halt a T-formation attack is to "vary the defenses."

"After we play our first game at SMU," Bell remarked, "all of our scrimmages time is devoted to defensive work."

"The time to learn your offense is in the Spring and in the first three or four weeks of autumn," Bell added.

Bell said it is hard to stop a T-formation team—it is better psychology to concentrate on slowing them down. He explained that devising a defense against the T calls for an all-day coaches' conference and "lots of adjustment."

Leave us not picture the future too rosy for the Midland Bulldogs baseballers and tracksters:

Sweetwater, which Midland engages first in 3-AA play, won its 1948 diamond finish at Texas 8-0, shelling Hamlin. And it is remembered Hamlin edged Abilene 10-9 and Abilene is defending district title. In walloping Hamlin, Sweetwater didn't error. Pitcher John Woodard allowed Hamlin just three hits.

Leon Leopard of Big Spring, who naturally will be here for the district meet, did all these things in the Brady Relays last weekend: won 100-yard dash in 17.8 seconds; ran 440-yard dash in 2:03.8; won 440-yard dash in 52 seconds; ran on record-making mile relay team as anchor; won second in broad jump.

Add Leopard, then, as a menace with Byron Townsend of Odessa, who high-jumps, sprints, throws the discus, and runs on relay teams. Those guys gonna get all the district points, others wonder?

Baseball Heads For Top Rating In Texas Schools, Says Scribe

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS —(AP)— The fact that more than 600 Texas high schools will play baseball this year should lead to the diamond sport, being placed high on the curriculum of the coaching school at Abilene in August.

Thus far the big coaching school has given football and basketball virtually all the time.

But in a few years we'll have state championships in baseball the same as football, basketball and track. Next year the city schools will place it on a state title basis. There will be district championships in Class AA, Class A, and Class B the same as this season, but officials admit that the thing is going to grow into state championship races in some of these divisions in the near future.

Coach from Abilene
Basketball didn't really bloom until it was taken out of the step-child class and full-time capable coaches were employed. The results have been good. There now is a crying need for larger field houses so all who want to see the games can get in, and twice in a row Texas college basketball teams have placed high in the national collegiate tournaments.

Texas last year won third place. Baylor already has clinched running honors and a spot in the Olympic trials this season.

Baseball can do just as well if the proper attention is given to it. Record Turnout
Here's a sample of the interest already generated in baseball: Borger High School took up the game. Coach T. E. Ward issued a call for candidates. A total of 160 boys reported. It created a problem. Coach Ward had ordered only 17 uniforms.

The 160 was a record number of boys to report for any sport at Borger High. This refutes claims of the football men that doing away with Texas college basketball teams has placed high in the national collegiate tournaments.

How many would have been out for baseball had Spring football been conducted?
Sure high schools can have baseball and Spring football too. But they won't have good baseball with most of the good athletes devoting their time to football.

Baylor Catches On
Adolph Rupp, the famous coach of Kentucky basketball, never would say so, but we gathered from talking to him at Texas coaching schools the past two years that he didn't think too much of this state's basketball.

Rupp was instructor in basketball at the coaching school in Corpus Christi in 1946 and at El Paso last year.

Tuesday night Rupp will get a chance to see what strides, if any, basketball has made in Texas since he started coming down here.

Kentucky plays Baylor, champion of the Southwest Conference, in the NCAA finals at New York.

Robinson Confident
Baylor's pretty hot. We had our doubts the Bears even would survive the first round of the NCAA Western Regional Tournament at Kansas City last week, even after talking to Jackie Robinson, the perpetual-motion man of the Bears.

We asked Jackie what he thought about things. "Is that for publication or off the record?" he asked. "I want to publish it," I said. "Well, then, I'll tell you," said Jackie. "I think we'll take 'em."

Venezuela Is Laboratory For Plan By Rockefeller To Bolster Its Economy

Modernization of Venezuela's fishing industry, now haphazardly operated in this picturesque but primitive fashion, is one of the first ventures in the Rockefeller experiment.

By S. BURTON HEATH
CARACAS, VENEZUELA—(NEA)—This country is a guinea pig, or testing ground, for Nelson Rockefeller's experiment in helping Latin America to help itself.

Rockefeller's International Basic Economy Corporation has three projects in Brazil. But in Venezuela IBEC is making its major bid to prove that United States investors can get a reasonable profit out of helping these nations to develop their own resources.

Nelson Rockefeller and his partners have put in $4,750,000 of their own money thus far. Oil companies in business here have pledged up to $15,000,000. The Venezuelan government, through a corporate agency, is obligated thus far for some $7,000,000.

With this there have been created the first four of the operating companies that will try to bolster weak spots in the national economy.

Because food is Venezuela's prime worry, three of the four companies are devoted to producing food. The fourth will import and distribute the food, and will try to put a dent in the terrific inflation that oil-bred prosperity has created.

Fishery First

The first venture to get started is the Paequerias Caribe, or Caribbean Fisheries Company.

The ocean off Venezuela swarms with food fish—sardines, red snapper, mackerel, herring and langosta—or Florida lobster—among others. They are badly needed to fill nutritional holes. Yet they are scarce in Venezuelan markets, and costly. That is because fishing is haphazard and inefficient; and for lack of refrigeration, storage and efficient distribution, spoilage is high.

The Fisheries company has bought a tug boat, a refrigerated barge, four modern fishing boats—two with radiotelephone for shore contact, one with sonic depth-finding and automatic steering—and two seine boats.

Ice will be made ashore and sent to the fishing fleet. The ice boat will bring back fish. This will keep the catch fresh, and enable fishermen to stay out longer.

Land Bought

Land has been bought in Puerto La Cruz, principal fishing port, and in Caracas, for ice-making and fish storage plants. Part of the catch will be distributed at once to regular dealers and to at least one retail outlet intended both to demonstrate efficient methods and to put a yardstick on retail prices. Other fish will be quick frozen and stored for use in off seasons.

A food production company will operate a relatively small number of estates, located to serve important consuming areas, raising garden truck, dairy cattle, plantains, beans, corn and the like. Some day it is hoped to break up the estates into individual farming units.

There is almost no fresh milk here. The Golden State Dairies, of California, are putting up $75,000, IBEC $200,000 and the Venezuelan government $245,000 to establish the Lactuaris Caribe, or Caribbean Milk Company. This will turn powdered milk from the States, into 6,000,000 liters of whole and chocolate milk, 250,000 gallons of ice cream, and quantities of cheese every year.

Super Market Planned

And finally, a food distribution company will import and buy locally, store, and distribute food wholesale to established stores under agreements to limit profits. It plans to establish its own super market, to show local merchants how low prices can be turned into pleasing profits.

Ten millions of the oil companies' money is for these and similar ventures. Only two-thirds is committed thus far, which leaves funds for other experiments. The remaining $5,000,000 can be called on to finance non-profit activities such as teaching modern farming methods, health and nutritional projects and community services.

The Rockefellers hold all common, voting stock. They expect to make a reasonable profit. The oil

'The Doings,' Newsy Letter, Reaches 1,050 Free Readers

By WILLIAM C. HEARD
 Associated Press Staff

A decade ago, E. J. Headlee of Denton was writing so many letters to relatives, he decided to just write the same letter to all of them and have it mimeographed.

He adopted the practice—one mimeographed letter per month.

The letters were so newsy and interesting and contained so many names, that friends of the relatives asked to be put on the list. Headlee complied.

Every month, for 10 years he has been writing and mimeographing his letter.

But now 1,050 persons receive it. Charles Hearstall, Denton newspaperman, tells the story of Headlee.

"To him," Hearstall says, "friends are piches and he wants the biggest bank-deposit of friends in the world."

Six Or Seven Pages

Mr. and Mrs. Headlee, who have been married for 50 years, have built a huge home in Denton with plenty of guest rooms, to accommodate subscribers to the monthly letters.

The letters now have a name: "The Doings."

A heading says: "It is not a newspaper—it is free."

During the war, 500 subscribers to The Doings were overseas. The letters still go to such faraway places as Germany, the Philippines and Japan.

The Doings runs as many as six or seven, single-spaced pages per issue. It chronicles births, deaths, marriages. It quotes citizens briefly on topics of the day.

Headlee has a get-the-news habit, writes at odd times. Sometimes he gets an idea in church and makes pencilled notes, meanwhile receiving nudges from his wife.

He makes no apologies for his spelling.

"I get near enough that anybody ought to make out what I mean," he says.

In September, 1947, the average worker in the average manufacturing plant had taken-home pay of $50.42—a record high at that time.

Non-Swim Suit

... But don't go near the water! That warning applies to the case of Mrs. Elaine McLaughlan, wife of a Hollywood, Calif., airline executive, whose $250 leopard skin bathing suit is non-swimmable. Designed by E. H. Tamarin, its sole purpose is to permit ample exposure to the sun.

Money Again Likely Will Top List Of Problems For Texas Lawmakers

By DAVE CHRAVENS

AUSTIN—(AP)—Money, where to get it and where to put it, looms now as the chief problem for the next legislature.

It's nearly a year until the 51st legislature meets in regular session. There isn't a chance in a hundred that Gov. Beauford H. Jester will call a special session. Meanwhile, the problems and potential problems are piling up. The governor thinks they can be disposed of in due time by a general session.

The school teachers were only mollified by concessions made during the 50th legislature. Their campaign for further salary increases is going full blast in all parts of the state, with the teachers asserting that increased living costs have already eaten up such gains as were made under the $2,000 minimum salary law.

The teachers do not want just a living wage. They want compensation equivalent to that received by lawyers, doctors and other professional people. The Gilmer-Aiken committee is expected to have something to say on the subject, as well

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Gabbert of the Oriental Cleaners and Dyers have returned from San Francisco where they attended a national convention of cleaners and dyers. They saw demonstrations of improved methods of the trade and saw the latest type machinery in operation.

Gabbert said he has purchased several pieces of new and modern equipment which will be installed in the plant here upon delivery. The firm has been in business in Midland 20 years and is a member of the National Association of Cleaners and Dyers.

Draft Status—

(Continued from page 1) may change any of these conditions, it is doubtful if many changes will be made. The services are already on record as being the set-up as described. Anticipating the present crisis, the Department of National Defense has made a preliminary study of its manpower needs. And the men who are still left in the old draft set-up, now called Selective Service Records, have also been preparing for such an emergency.

Within 60 days after an emergency draft law is passed, a Selective Service expert says, the draft machinery will be inducting the first men. The biggest job will be printing new forms and getting new space and equipment for local boards. It is estimated the job will cost about $70,000,000.

Although the basic elements of possible draft legislation are pretty well established, there are still many factors for a peace time draft which Congress will have to figure out. These could make a great deal of difference to the men who are inducted.

Consent: One provides National Service Life Insurance. The other guarantees that draftees will get their jobs back when they are discharged. The laws which provide all the other World War II GI rights wouldn't apply to men going into service under a new draft law.

Congress also would have to decide what to do about conscientious objectors. The services don't want men for limited duty and there is a lot of sentiment against setting up special camps for them as was done during World War II.

Another difficult job would be defining just what men would qualify for Class II—those classed as essential civilians. The military would have only a few top scientists be eligible, but industry is likely to object to this. On the whole, however, the experts agree that the Selective Service machinery worked very well during World War II. And there is little need for changing it for the present need, they say.

With the services unified under the one Department of National Defense, it is unlikely men will be given a choice of what branch of the service they serve in. They will be told after they are inducted.

AS LONG AS I LIVE

By Ione Sandberg Shriber © BY IONE SANDBERG SHRIBER; DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

ONCE again it was morning. Surprisingly she had slept well, soundly. And she awakened to the smell of coffee perking in the kitchen, the crackling of fresh logs in the fireplace, the sounds of Rush made moving about the kitchen.

She stretched, under the light covers, yawned and stretched again. She blinked against the bright sunshine that streamed in through the open windows. She yawned widely and rolled over.

Rush was standing in the doorway looking at her. She looked back at him, a straightforward unsmiling look, and she thought to herself, "I'm going to pretend I don't know. I'm going to pretend everything is just the way I want it to be, just the way I thought it was going to be. I'm going to close my eyes and then, when it comes..."

"Good morning, darling," Rush said. "Sleep well?"

"Wonderfully," she announced, sitting up. "That coffee smells heavenly."

"Bacon and eggs coming right up," he told her and went back into the kitchen.

It was difficult for her to believe, as she and Rush took their breakfast trays to the big screened porch that overlooked the lake, and sat there eating bacon and eggs and hot toast and butter coffee, that they were not just a couple of ordinary people, a man and wife off for a few days alone, happy and healthy and enjoying themselves. Part of the difficulty in believing it, she realized, lay in her reluctance to believe evil of Rush; indisputable as the evidence was, every fibre of her being ached to deny it. But wanting something—even as dreadfully as she wanted to believe Rush wasn't enough. She couldn't change the fact.

IT was almost noon when Rush suggested the canoe ride. They'd just been lazing around all morning, lying on the hot sand in their bathing suits, soaking up the sunshine.

"Haven't been canoeing for ages," he said thoughtfully, scowling into the sun. "Do you suppose I could manage one?"

"Probably," she said tranquilly. "Probably you could." If her heart beat a little faster there was no way he could know it.

It took him an hour to lug the canoe from the boathouse where it had been stored, clean it all out, find the backrest, hunt for pillows.

All the while he was getting ready she kept lying on the sand, thinking to herself, "When he's all set I won't go. I'll say I don't like canoes. I'll say I don't feel up to it. I'll say..."

And then, Rush was saying, "O.K., honey, let's go," and she was getting to her feet and walking across the sand to the dock. It was as though she were hypnotized.

She said, as he helped her into the canoe "Don't go out very far, Rush. I don't swim well, you know."

He dashed her a strange look. "You're not going swimming, angel puss," he said. "You're going canoeing."

It was fun, at first, going up the waves with one sweep of the paddle, then down them. It was like a midge roller coaster: it didn't take your breath away the way a roller coaster did but it gave you the same gone feeling in the pit of your stomach.

Then it happened.

The only odd thing about it was that when it came, it was so unexpected.

RUSH said, "Look at the freighter." In the most natural tone in the world and she turned around to look. The freighter was there, highlighted against the blue sky; she looked at its black bulk for a moment and then turned around to say something to Rush and found him leaning toward her, handing her a cigar.

Something as simple as a cigar. She stretched forward to take it and, incredible as it seemed, Rush was suddenly jerking out of his seat, falling forward. She knew she screamed as he touched her, she knew she didn't conceal the terror she felt, and then they were floundering in the water.

In some small part of her brain she thought, "This is it. Here we go. Except there was something wrong."

This was the journey she was to take alone, Rush wasn't supposed to go with her. Yet here he was, floundering beside her in the water. She wondered about that.

But then she had time only for fighting. The waves, which had been fun to ride over, became personal implacable enemies.

She went under and gasped and struggled and came back up and saw the canoe floating upside down only a short distance away.

"Ann! Ann!" It was Rush shouting to her but she went under again before she could make out what he was saying.

When she came up this time she was winded and choking and close to exhaustion.

Beside her ear Rush said, "Ann!" She managed to turn in his direction.

"Ann, here." He was holding out his arm.

She gave a great sob and reached for him, felt the strength of his feet tread water, churning it up.

"I—you—it wasn't—a nother minute—" she gasped the words out.

"Shut up!" He held her close. "You silly fool, don't you know—"

She opened her eyes and looked at him. His face was filled with fury. She heard him say, "Oh, ye gods! Ann!" and then slowly, inexorably, he drew her down under the water.

St. Paul Winter Carnival Tournament, which he and Peter Leventritt won last year. They successfully defended the title.

Today's hand is one that helped Groden to become a two-time champion. Experienced tournament players do not often redouble a contract, but I considered this one an exception.

When South's opening lead of the king of spades held, he shifted to the ten of clubs. Groden (East) won in dummy with the ace and played the jack of diamonds, North covered with the queen. Groden won with the ace. He returned a small heart, winning in dummy, then ruffed a small club in his own hand.

He knew South must hold four hearts to the jack to justify the double. The bidding indicated South had six spades. So Groden cashed the king and queen of hearts, then led the eight of spades toward dummy. There was nothing South could do but to cash his ace of spades and jack of hearts.

Then he led a spade, but this was won in dummy with the queen and Groden's small diamond was discarded. The balance of the tricks were his.

Trade With Russia Takes Stiff Turn

WASHINGTON (AP)—This country's tough attitude toward Russia is taking another stiff turn.

That's on the shipment of American goods to Russia. There'll be a ban on any goods that could help Russia militarily.

A government official—in the Commerce Department—said: No shipment of any kind for Russia has been okayed since March 1.

This week this government will decide what kind of goods can be shipped.

No goods can go if, directly or indirectly, they might help build Russia's military strength.

For instance? He mentioned big power-shovels for opening mines. They might be an indirect military help.

But that doesn't mean a ban on harmless goods for Russia.

Why no shipments okayed for Russia since March 1? On that date the government stopped shipment to any country of anything—if it's worth $100 or more—without Commerce Department approval.

War Veterans Protest And it hasn't given approval. Monday for a while, Catholic war veterans picketed a Russian ship, the Chukotka, which was loading machinery at Deseret City.

A Commerce Department official explained that the goods being loaded now were on their way to port before March 1.

In 1938, the last prewar year, 1.6 per cent of all our shipments abroad went to Russia. They were worth $69,000,000.

In 1947, our shipments to Russia were one per cent of our entire export trade. They were worth $149,000,000.

At present inflated prices, the official said, that $149,000,000 in 1947 wasn't much more, if any, than the $69,000,000 in 1938.

What we imported from Russia in 1938 was one per cent of our entire import trade. It was about the same in 1947.

homa territory and Mangum, Okla.—all the same town.

Ivan Elmer, Wichita Falls newspaperman, tells their unusual story:

Hannah was born in Mangum, Texas, Feb. 29, 1896. Mangum was a little cowtown settlement of 500 persons between the North and South forks of the Red River.

Sixteen days after Hannah was born, the U. S. Supreme court ruled that the South fork, not the North fork of the Red River was the true Northern boundary of the state of Texas. Thus, Greer County, of which Mangum was the county seat, was severed from Texas.

By act of Congress in May, 1896, Greer County became a part of the Oklahoma territory.

On Nov. 16, 1907, the Oklahoma territory was made a state. Hannah and Dodson, who too had resided in Mangum, now became Oklahomans.

Poor Maps Elmer says that maps of what are now Texas and Oklahoma were too poor in the early 1800's that when Spain and the United States signed a treaty in 1819 giving all the territory North of the Red River and East of the 100th Meridian to the United States, no one knew there was a fork in the Red River.

The treaty, therefore, did not specify which fork was the Northern boundary of Spanish territory.

Not until 1852 was the North fork of the river discovered and several years later a survey of the region was attempted, Elmer says, on the belief that the forks actually lay inside of what is now the Texas panhandle, rather than East of it.

Title to the land South of the Red passed from Spain to Mexico to the Republic of Texas and finally to the state of Texas.

Alarmed at the possibility of losing a million and a half acres of land, the Texas legislature created Greer County out of the disputed territory Feb. 8, 1860, and set up a civil government in the county.

The Civil War stopped further action and for years the region remained unsettled.

Lord Milne, Who Put Mechanization In British Army, Dies

LONDON (AP)—Field Marshal Lord Milne, 81, who introduced mechanization into the British Army, died Tuesday at his suburban Putney home.

Lord Milne, who was chief of the Imperial General Staff from 1926 to 1933, had been ill since last January.

He was made a field marshal in 1928, two years after he was named chief of staff. It was during his tenure in this post that he introduced mechanization.

Lord Milne was a native of Aberdeen, Scotland. He entered the army as an artillery subaltern when he was 19. He took part in Lord Kitchener's conquest of the African Sudan, in the Boer War, and was a brigadier commanding an artillery division at the start of World War I.

After helping to direct the British retreat from Mons, France, in the first World War he was ordered to Salonika, Greece, to command British forces in the fighting against Bulgaria.
