Important Ordinance

The proposed zoning ordinance now being considered by the City Council undoubtedly is one of the most important pieces of municipal legislation in the city's his-

It is an all-inclusive ordinance of provisions and restrictions which will govern the future growth and development of Midland. It perhaps will affect all Midlanders in one way or another now or in future years.

Some citizens will favor the regulations others will not like them. Some likely will be hurt by the ordinanceothers will be helped. It could not be otherwise since the plan is citywide in scope and is designed to serve the community as a whole rather than individuals or groups.

But the important thing is that each and every citizen should become familiar with the ordinance before it becomes law. Now is the time to study it and to express epinions to the council. After the ordinance becomes law, it will be too late.

The City Council has scheduled an official public hearing on the proposed ordinance April 7 in the Midland County Courthouse. Citizens are invited and urged to attend and to express their likes and dislikes so the council may have the benefit of their thinking before finally act ing on the measure.

An-informal hearing on the ordinance was conducted several weeks ago by the Zoning Commission, but the attendance was small as compared to the importance of the subject under consideration. The text of the ordinance of course is lengthy and does not make interesting reading, but it is most important that citizens study the proposed legislation so they will know what they can and cannot do under the measure.

Many residents likely will not become concerned with or about the ordinance until they conflict with its restrictions. Then the howling will start. For instance, a homeowner may not think much about the ordinance right now, but when he goes to erect a fence around his property and finds there are restrictions as to its height, he likely will become more than concerned.

Height and size of residential and business buildings, front and back yard areas, location of buildings on property useage and lot areas are only a few of the lon, the Justice Department analyst ey will be used to finance Dutch provisions and restrictions which will affect Midlanders

Some of the restrictions, of course, are included in the Clark sat on his hands for two years lation on any subject in Congress, present zoning ordinance which has been in force since while Miss Copion got away with Justice Department secrets.

Again, the important thing is to study the proposal. A map of the various zones and copies of the regulations and sent word to the senator that are available at the city hall. The map and text of the he would give him 15 minutes to proposed ordinance also have been published in The

Much time, effort and money have gone into the preparation of the proposed new ordinance which constitutes an excellent piece of work. The Zoning Commission is to be commended upon its diligence in connect never said he gave information tion with the program.

An ordinance will be adopted, but it still is not too late to make certain revisions if deemed advisable. Both the City Council and the Zoning Commission invite constructive criticism concerning the proposal. The Reporter-Telegram, opposed generally to additional regulations, but agreeing that zoning may be necessary to the future well being of the city, favors an ordinance in principle, but is opposed to certain regulations. Particularly are we opposed to restricting the height of downtown office buildings to 125 feet. Office buildings have made Midland, so to speak, and we can see no reason for shuting the door to future skyscraper construction.

Let's have the best zoning ordinance possible in Mid-

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON-When John L. Lewis threw his pick, shovel, lamp and a couple of sticks of dynamite at U. S. Bureau of Mines Dector James Boyd, the United Mine Workers' boss missed his targets by a mile with everything.

Charges which Lewis and UMW Secretary John Owens make against Boyd are two. Lewis calls Boyd

"incompetent, unqualified," because he has never worked in a coal mine and could not himself qualify as a coal mine impector. Secondly, Lewis by inference at least holds Boyd responsible for the 1,013 coal miners killed and the 54,100 injured in 1948. Neither charge will stand up and, incidentally, the number of casualties in 1948 was lower than in 1947. Answers Q-How did the sport of roller skating originate?

A—The sport was started early in the 18th century by an unknown Hollander. One Summer, unwilling to wait until the canals froze, he nailed cruds wooden spools to strips of wood attached to his shoes and off he bumped along the roads of Holland. In the next century the sport spread slowly through England, France and Germany. in 1947.

Mine inspection, health and safety is only one of five major responsibilities of the Department of Interior's Bureau of Mines, over which Dr. Boyd has had acting supervision for nearly two years. The other divisions deal with fuels and explanations research. plosives research, mining research, metallurgical research, economics and statistics.

It would of course be silly to put just a qualified soal mine inspector in charge of all these highly technical projects. Dr. Boyd, as a trained scientist and graduate mining engineer is apparently qualified to direct all of them, even if ne never did work in a coal mine. Competent Subordinates

But still more revelant is the fact that the Health and Safety Division to have the first stroke come preof Bureau of Mines is in the hands of perfectly competent men under Dr. Boyd's general supervision, Q-Approximately how many Chief of the Health and Safety Di-vision is John J. Number Of Miners Decreasing The number of miners has been decreasing because of increased mechanization and increased strip mining, which reduces humber of men underground. But the accident and death rates on tonnage and hours worked are what count. Both are still too high, but declining. That weakens Lewis' arguments.

Though you would hever guess it from his public statements, what Lewis may actually, have been shooting at when he called his two weeks' holiday for mourning is the mine inspection law. Enforcement of this law is dependent upon the 1941 Public Law 48, which is a per-feetly toothless thing, In the 80th Congress introduced to amend this law by giving federal mine inspectors the power to close mines until safe operating conditions were restored. This year a similar amendment has been introduced by Senator Mat-thew M. Neely of West Virginia and Rep. Melvin Price of Illinois. If it passes, federal mine safety enforcement will become a reality and the inadequate local mining laws in many states will be vastly strength-

Lewis would be on solid ground if he confined his dramatic gesture to securing passage of laws that would help reduce the toll of accidents and deaths in the most hazardous of all U. S. occupations.

glass that you drink out of, dipping water out of the river with the glass, and pouring the water back in the river, dipping it out and pouring it back.

Daddy Ringtail came walking along through the grass and saw him doing it, just as Bobby was about to lose his temper. "Daddy Ringtail," said Bobby, "none of this water will ever pour up. It always pours back in the river, when I pour it out of the glass."

Now you may think it was silly business for Bobby to be trying to find a glass of water that would pour up. Maybe it was. But with all of that whole lot of water in the river - how could Bobby know that maybe some of it wouldn't pour up, if only he could get it in the glass and do some pouring?

Daddy Ringtail smiled and said, "It's no use trying, I'm afraid. None of that water is going to pour up." "How do you know?" Bobby asked. Some of it might pour up, because did you ever try to pour all of it and see if any of it would pour up?" VIC FLINT Daddy Ringtail said he had never tried to do it.

Legislators Ponder One-Year Spending, Tax-Talk Deferment

AUSTIN —(A)— Legislators Wednesday mulled over the suggestion that only one-year appropriations be made this session, leaving tax land highway, and a residence betalk and future spending to a special session next January. Gov. Beauford H. Jester had no immediate recommendation to make on the proposal voiced Tuesday by Lieut. Gov. Allan Shivers. He said it deserved "consideration and study" and noted that it is "primarily a legislative innovation that is sug-

"The basic idea has a definite appeal, in that we certainly would know more about our financial condition for the 1949-51 biennium next January than we do at this time," Jester said, adding:

"It has the possible disadvantage that any shortage of funds for the biennium might fall in the second year of the biennium, instead of being spread ever two years. If that possibility could be foreseen and planned against the suggested pro-gram undoubtedly would gain sup-

Shivers told reporters he anticipates "a serious economic downtrend toward the end of this year." Should this occur, the Legislature would be better able next January to "judge both the demands for appropriations and the need for additional taxes,"

His suggestion prompeted largely by the fact that requested expendi-tures far exceed anticipated revenue, shoved other legislative deve ments in the background.

The Senate passed and sent to the House the veterans land sale bill by Senator John Bell of Cuero. As amended, it gives 90-day priority to disabled veterans on land bought by the state for resale to Texas veterans of World War II.

per cent, the interest rate on the state loan from four to three per cent, and required the Veterans
Land Sale Board to give the purchaser 40 years to amortize his loan if he desires that much time.

The board, composed of the governor, state land commissioner and attorney general, would be allowed to issue bonds not exceeding $25,-000,000 for purchase of state, federal and private lands for resale to
